

Two killed in Sherbrooke gang war

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Five persons were detained by police during the weekend in connection with a running battle between members of two rival motorcycle gangs overnight Friday that left two dead and five wounded.

Marc Distefano, 20, of Sherbrooke and Michel Lamoureux, 19, of nearby Coaticook died of injuries suffered during four hours of continuing chases on car and foot that began about 10:30 p.m. Friday.

Spokesman for the Quebec Provincial Police, who assisted Sherbrooke police in the case, said the violence began in a tavern parking lot when about 20 members of the Atomes and Gitans motorcycle clubs fought with guns, chains and baseball bats.

Robert Provencher, 20, of Coaticook, a member of the Atomes, was shot once in the back, and Jacques Filteau, 25, of Sherbrooke, a member of the Gitans, was knifed in the stomach.

The two were taken to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital for treatment. Several members of the gang burst into the hospital about three hours later and resumed the fighting.

An unidentified person suffered a knife wound to the chest and underwent emergency surgery.

Police said five members of the Gitans and six members of the Atomes piled into two cars after fleeing from police at the hospital and a chase ensued.

When the car carrying the Gitans' club members stopped suddenly, the other rammed into it from behind.

Police said the five Gitans emerged from the first car armed with three rifles and two baseball bats and attacked the rival club members. Distefano died from a shot to the head and Lamoureux, who was shot in the chest, died three hours later in hospital.

Philip Demers of Sherbrooke was shot in the knee and Pierre Morin, 23, of Sherbrooke was cut by glass. Police said both were taken to hospital.

Police arrived during the battle and chased several gang members on foot through city streets, finally cornering them in a house, where five persons were taken into custody.

A police spokesman said members of the two clubs exchanged gunfire outside a hotel last October but that no largescale feuding had occurred since then.

At PC convention Stanfield gets massive vote of support

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield got a massive vote of support from his party Sunday night after delegates to the party's convention pushed his idea of a leadership review a step further than he proposed.

Mr. Stanfield proposed that a secret-ballot vote on whether to hold a leadership convention be taken at each party convention. The proposal would have come into effect at the next convention.

But when the constitutional amendment came before the convention's general meeting it was amended to provide for an immediate vote.

The outcome was 600 against a leadership convention—a show of satisfaction with the present leadership—and 97 in favor.

Marcel Lambert, MP for Edmonton West, said the vote was necessary "to get rid of this tendency" of having the Conservative Party question leadership.

"We'll put it to rest once and for all," he said. "There will be a resounding vote of confidence in Bob Stanfield."

The three-day convention is to choose a new president and consider policy orientations for the party.

DELAYED BY STORM

About 1,900 delegates were expected, but many were held up by a storm that dropped 11 inches of snow on Ottawa in a 24-hour period ending Sunday evening.

Many were still registering as wrangling over the constitution led up to the vote giving 86 percent support to Mr. Stanfield's leadership.

The constitution previously said that when the party is in opposition a leadership review is possible only when it has failed to increase its parliamentary seats by 20 per cent in the preceding general election.

Jack Horner, MP for Crowfoot and one of the sponsors of amendments that led to the previous constitution, opposed a regular leadership review.

But he said that if there were to be automatic reviews, they should begin immediately.

"Certainly I support Mr. Stanfield, but I am getting tired of fighting the Conservative Party on this leadership thing."

Mr. Horner's sub-amendment making the Stanfield amendment take effect immediately passed by a vote of 135 to 49. Mr. Stanfield's amendment then carried, overwhelmingly, without a count.

Another constitutional amendment takes away the right of the party executive committee to appoint delegates-at-large to party conventions.

A motion from Mr. Horner eliminated an amendment which would have permitted the executive to name 50 delegates-at-large.

Mr. Stanfield went into the so-called bearpit Sunday evening but found it was a friendly meeting.

The questions ranged over housing, inflation, unemployment insurance, welfare, taxes and small business and Mr. Stanfield's answers were greeted each time by rousing applause by delegates.

When a woman asked him if he thought he would one day be prime minister, Mr. Stanfield said he sometimes wakes up at night with the thought that he will be.

Bourassa says he has special responsibility

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa told an English-language radio audience during the weekend that his government has a "very special responsibility" towards the province's French-language majority.

"It is a normal preoccupation for my government, which is the only French-speaking government in North America, to be concerned with the collective rights of the French-speaking citizens of the province of Quebec," he said.

The premier said no contradiction exists between the need to protect these collective rights and those of Quebec's minority groups.

"We are trying to conciliate both goals," the premier said, adding that he is confident Quebec's English-speaking and ethnic populations "will understand the position of my government and our responsibility for the future of the French culture in North America and Canada."

Asked whether the status of English in Quebec is to be clearly spelled out when language legislation is tabled in the national assembly, Mr. Bourassa replied:

"As far as possible, but in some cases and in practice it might be difficult."

WILL SEEK AMENDMENTS

The majority of French-speaking Quebecers are in favor of allowing their English-speaking counterparts the right to use their language in Quebec's courts.

When reminded that such a right is guaranteed by the British North America Act, the premier repeated his intention to eventually seek amendments to the constitution.

"Once our law is adopted by the national assembly," he said, "I will be ready to consider the possibility of going back again for a new constitution."

As the premier explained earlier in the week after the Liberal government's throne speech, the fate of Bill 63—the controversial language legislation which gives parents the option of sending their children to either French or English-language schools—remains undecided.

Decisions on most aspects of the language policy have been made, Premier Bourassa said.

MUST CONSIDER ALL

"But, as to the teaching language, there is still more discussion with the cabinet and within the caucus. We have to consider all the implications because this is very important for the immediate and long-term future of all Quebecers."

Cabinet minister Victor Goldbloom said Saturday that the Quebec government is the only body which can protect the status of French and that Quebecers must work together to conciliate English and French-language rights and aspirations.

"In Ontario the official language is English. If Quebec doesn't protect French, who will?" he asked.

"The English-speaking person is likely to see individual liberty of choice as of the utmost importance and the French-speaking person, worried about his culture and his decreasing community, sees the good of the 'collectivity' as important."

Quebec in focus

Bourassa lashes back at PQ

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Sunday he is surprised the Parti Quebecois criticizes his government because of current inflation, since an independent Quebec would suffer even more with inflation due to the current oil shortages.

Mr. Bourassa, speaking on a radio program, said one of the major causes of inflation is the high cost of gasoline, which is having repercussions on a great variety of oil and oil-derivative products.

Mr. Bourassa said that with Quebec a part of Canada the provincial government can take steps to protect the consumer against the high cost of gasoline whereas an independent Quebec would find itself faced with galloping inflation because of gasoline prices.

Pepin wants French to be official language of work

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor leader Marcel Pepin called on the Quebec government during the weekend to introduce legislation that would make French the language of work in the province.

"The language of work is a national working condition and it must not be negotiated," the president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) told the St. Jean Baptiste Society Saturday night. "It must be imposed."

He criticized the Bourassa government's throne speech last week for its "anti-nationalism" and "vague intentions" on the crucial questions of French as the working language and language of instruction in schools.

In an interview, he accused the government of planning legislation that would lead to the "triumph of the English language over the most sacred rights of the original settlers of Quebec."

The use of English by a privileged minority in Quebec has imposed a double burden of the French-speaking majority, Mr. Pepin said.

French-speaking people have had to acquire technical as well as linguistic competence in a second language, he said, and "how many thousands of Quebec workers have been refused work in Quebec because they didn't speak English or couldn't speak it well enough?"

Auto recalls

The motorists aren't showing up

TORONTO (CP) — They don't like it, but automakers have learned to live with the recall campaign. It's costly and it usually means somebody goofed.

The real headache is tracking down the car owner, but the height of frustration comes with the motorist who simply does not answer a recall.

This year has started the same as many others. In the first two months, General Motors, Chrysler and Ford had four major recalls covering 125,547 vehicles in Canada. A total of 1.48 million were recalled in the United States.

In 1973 the Big Three and American Motors recalled 334,569 vehicles in Canada for safety defects. That represented the bulk—but not all—of such campaigns which by law are reported to the federal ministry of transport.

The ministry recorded 178 recalls last year from 56 companies—domestic auto makers, foreign auto manufacturers, snowmobile manufacturers, motorcycle firms and the like. Total number of vehicles recalled for safety-related defects was 596,998, down from more than 850,000 in 1972.

INCLUDES SNOWMOBILES

The 1973 total included more than 100,000 snowmobiles and 40,000 motorcycles. In the fourth quarter alone there were 61 recalls covering 111,063 cars, trucks and buses, 28,218 snowmobiles, 22,848 motorcycles and 347 trailers.

Recalls have been around almost since the auto industry began. The first by General Motors, for instance, was initiated in 1916 by its Buick division.

A GM of Canada official said every mass-produced passenger car contains an average of about 14,000 parts, including moving parts such as wheels, brakes, gears, valves, pistons, switches and electrical components.

"The number of vehicles recalled is in no way related to the number of vehicles which may actually have a defect," he said.

"In many cases, a recall campaign is like looking for a needle in a haystack. We may turn up a handful of defects even though thousands of vehicles were recalled."

Recalls are costly. Ford estimates a Jan. 11 recall of 133,000 1974-model cars, including 5,000 in Canada, will cost about $4 million. The campaign is to locate 400 cars that may have a malfunction in the automatic speed control device, an option, activated by a steering wheel button. Identifying the faulty units involves tearing apart the whole mechanism and Ford has committed itself to replacing all of them.

A large part of the expense is in tracing owners. Most auto manufacturers utilize registered mail to some extent.

Often the buyer has moved or sold his vehicle to someone whose address he doesn't know. Or he won't advise the new owner of the campaign or tell the manufacturer of the ownership change.

Worse, after he receives notification of a recall he refuses to bring his car in.

"Our biggest problem in concluding recall campaigns is still getting the owner to bring his vehicle in once he or she has been notified," said a Chrysler Canada spokesman.

SUGGESTS LEGISLATION

A Ford of Canada official suggested governments should consider a fine or other penalty for owners who ignore recalls. He said provincial motor vehicle registrars might consider keeping a computer record of owners to facilitate the search for third- or fourth-round buyers.

Ford goes through three mailings, two registered, in its hunt for owners. As a final resort, it makes a telephone check with the original dealer and customer.

Chrysler calls in an outside agency to help locate an owner if the registered letter is returned as undelivered.

Response to recall campaigns varies between 50 and 80 per cent.

In many cases the seriousness of the defect determines the response, a Ford spokesman said. A 1972 recall involving a small plastic ring fitting over the shoulder harness achieved 33 per cent completion "and it probably won't achieve much more." Another 1972 recall requiring replacement of the rear axle in certain cars resulted in a near 100-per-cent response, excluding cases where the owner could not be found.

GM WAS BUSIEST

Last year Ford had 21 campaigns covering 25,058 vehicles in Canada. The smallest campaign involved three bus chassis for incorrect air brake routing; the largest 7,713 cars for a sticky throttle. GM Canada recalled 238,510 vehicles and by Jan. 4 this year 139,835 were accounted for. Its smallest campaign covered two medium-duty trucks; its largest 203,631 full-size 1971-72 cars.

Chrysler Canada had eight campaigns last year covering 40,832 cars and 17 covering 13,894 trucks. The largest was for 20,787 cars and the smallest involved five trucks.

American Motors had six campaigns in Canada for 16,275 vehicles, the smallest involving 41 sedans that had an incorrect tire pressure sticker in the glove box. The largest was for 14,720 cars for an incorrect nut installed in the brake pedal assembly.

growth of Canada's gross national product," he continued.

"The facts belie the screaming of those Canadians who charge that corporate profits are too high, and who maintain that we should scrap the competitive enterprise system in favor of the centrally-planned all-powerful state," he said.

"Corporate profits have, since 1950, grown only three-quarters as much as total wages and salaries, less than total personal income and less than the gross national product," Mr. Rapsey said.

"The figures clearly spotlight the villain of the piece. Governmental spending has been growing close to twice as fast as our gross national product."

"I hope we shall have the wisdom to base our future policies in Canada on the central premise that the more people can do for themselves the better, and the more we can limit the future growth of government the better," Mr. Rapsey said.

years. "It is easy to predict that the one remaining employer will begin to dictate wages and working conditions. There will be no other employer to compete for your services."

He said government spending since 1950 has increased more than 1,000 per cent, while wages and salaries rose 610 per cent, gross national product 540 per cent and before-tax corporate profits 470 per cent.

DISPOSABLE INCOME UP

Over the same period, living costs have climbed 90 per cent, manufacturing wage rates per hour 270 per cent and personal disposable income after taxes 470 per cent.

Canada's population over the 23-year period increased 62 per cent, he said.

New mining development and hydro power may be spur to White Pass-Yukon railway

VANCOUVER (CP) — New mining developments in the Yukon and the area's enormous potential of untapped hydroelectric power may be the gold of the future for the White Pass and Yukon railway.

The 110-mile-long backbone of White Pass and Yukon Corp. Ltd. was completed in 1900 to support the light traffic of the Klondike gold boom. The collapse of that boom brought the company many years of economic hardship that only now appears to be coming to an end with the promise of mining developments and the need for low-cost energy.

But a cloud looms on the railway's horizon with the federal government's suggested line into the Yukon from a northern point on the British Columbia Railway.

Richard A. Hubber-Richard, president of Vancouver-based White Pass, says the government could build a line from the B.C. Rail terminal at Fort Nelson, 90 miles south of the Yukon border, to carry the territory's minerals.

"Such a decision would have to be political and that being so, we cannot gauge the strength of the threat. If commercial considerations were the sole criteria, then we would know what is likely and what is not."

A northern access line west of Fort Nelson has already been agreed upon by Ottawa and the B.C. government, partners in railway development in the province's north. The northwest extension of the provincial government's railway should reach Dease Lake in 1976 and plans are in the mill to move the BCR railroad north to Lower Post on the B.C.-Yukon border.

EAGER FOR EXTENSION

Yet both the federal and Yukon governments have been enthusiastic about a possible extension of the White Pass line, which nips the northwestern tip of B.C. en route from Whitehorse to Skagway in the Alaskan panhandle, north from the railroad at Whitehorse to Pelly Crossing, via Carmacks.

But before the White Pass can be encouraged to extend, uncertainty over government will have to be clarified. In 1973 White Pass trains carried 52,000 passengers and 100,000 tons of supplies and equipment into the Yukon and transported 660,000 tons of silver-lead and lead-zinc concentrates and asbestos out of the territory.

With locomotive and car fleet additions, the railway could handle up to two million tons of freight annually, despite the line's three-foot gauge width. Standard railway track is four feet, eight inches.

Mr. Hubber-Richard was appointed president when White Pass was taken over by Federal Industries Ltd. of Winnipeg in 1973.

"The company had money from selling off grain interests and it felt a commitment to invest in Western Canada. Here was an opportunity to gain Canadian ownership of an important company with 1,000 employees," he says.

But inflation has hit hard because the company is a big user of materials, like steel for the railway extension into the Yukon.

"The price of some steel items has gone up 25 per cent since October and a highway tractor that cost $24,000 to $25,000 in 1969 now costs $34,000. Fuel for our trucks and locomotives has shot up in price, too."

White Pass also has two container ships working between Vancouver and Skagway. Tank farms at Skagway and Whitehorse are joined by a four-inch oil pipeline running parallel to the company's railway and petroleum products are moved by tank cars to feed the company's oil distribution network in the Yukon. The company is also involved in tourism "in a fair way with our railway."

But Mr. Hubber-Richard says White Pass will basically continue as a transportation company.

The future for that the transportation company is promising since major new mining developments in the Yukon are likely and the quickest way of getting their output to tidewater is on the White Pass railway.

CMA head warns that government may soon control whole economy

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Canada is headed for total government control of its economy by the year 2000 unless Canadians act to halt the trend, Keith H. Rapsey, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said recently.

Federal, provincial and municipal governments already spend an amount equal to half the total income of all Canadian citizens and all business firms, Mr. Rapsey said in remarks prepared for an address to the Ontario chapter of the Association of Consulting Engineers of Canada.

Mr. Rapsey said government spending is the chief factor in the nation's worst inflationary spiral in 22 years, and that ultimate state control of all economic activity would mean the loss of basic freedoms for citizens.

"We are in real danger of becoming a 'one-boss economy,'" he said.

"If the present trends continue, the state will operate or control all economic activity in Canada within the next 25 or 30 years. "It is easy to predict that the one remaining employer will begin to dictate wages and working conditions. There will be no other employer to compete for your services."

Time for merchandising stocks—analyst

TORONTO (CP) — Merchandising stocks have been among the most depressed in the market during the last 12 months, reflecting an expected slowing in consumer spending, but at least one analyst says now is the time to accumulate these stocks.

Peter McMullen of Wills, Bickie and Co. Ltd. says in a recent investment letter the retailing industry can expect relatively high earnings for the first half of this year but should improve during the second half and beyond.

The recent slump has reflected expectations that Canada is headed for at least a minor recession and perhaps a major one, that low consumer confidence will lead to spending curtailment and that unemployment will rise to between six and eight per cent.

Other fears are that higher energy costs will lead to cuts in purchases and that merchandisers face a continuing cost-push squeeze that could worsen if sales volumes do not improve.

Mr. McMullen says investors have over-reacted, ignoring some positive offsetting factors.

RECESSION UNLIKELY

First among these is that a major recession is not likely unless the Arab oil embargo is extended beyond the first half of the year. Canada, isolated from some of the pressures of the energy shortage, has brighter economic prospects than other Western countries.

Mr. McMullen also notes that depressed consumer confidence is historically not a negative market force.

"By the time the public is fully aware of how bad things are, the market usually has discounted the negatives and is ready to move up in anticipation of the next expansionary phase."

Inflationary psychology is so ingrained in the minds and spending habits of Canadian consumers that a sharp decline or pullback from current spending levels for most items, excluding automobiles and some housing-related durables, is unlikely, Mr. McMullen says.

A higher unemployment rate precludes severe monetary restraint, and instead, the money supply should remain expansive in 1974.

Mr. McMullen says that, other than cuts in luxuries, he does not foresee a substantial decline in demand for the majority of products sold by most department and apparel chains.

WEAK CHAINS HIT

The cost squeeze for merchandisers will continue but not with the severity of the late 1960s. Major stores have become more aggressive and it will be the poorly managed, weak chains that fall by the wayside.

Although 1974 will be a challenging year with expected merchandising shortages, energy crisis after-effects and inflationary pressure, "most public-listed retailers are well poised to benefit from the next major merchandising demand cycle," Mr. McMullen says.

The decline in prices of most retail stocks has already discounted an earnings slowdown in the first half of 1974 "much greater than can reasonably be expected."

Among the stocks recommended by Wills, Bickie and Co. are Simpsons, Consumers Distributing, Pennington Stores, Dylex, Fields Stores and Grafton Group.

Controls lifted

Newsprint prices rise in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — A Cost of Living Council decision to exempt paper from price controls had led to a round of price increases by several United States newsprint manufacturers.

International Paper Co., U.S. arm of the Canadian International Paper Co., led the way with the announcement that their higher Canadian prices will be extended to newsprint made at mills in Mobile, Ala., and Pine Bluffs, Ark. The price for middle-weight newsprint was raised to $213.30 a ton from $188 a ton at those two mills.

Others posting higher prices include Great Northern Paper Co. and Garden State Paper Co. in the East, and Crown Zellerbach Corp. and Publishers' Paper Co. in the Northwest.

Southern producer Kimberly-Clark Corp. says it is studying the decontrol decision and may have an announcement on prices within a few days.

Publishers Paper Co. said it will boost its price immediately to $200 a ton from $176 for 32-pound newsprint. The firm has mills in Oregon City and Newberg, Ore.

Crown Zellerbach said its price will be $213.50 a ton for 30-pound newsprint as of Saturday. The company has mills at Wauna, Ore., and Port Angeles, Wash.

MAY FOLLOW TREND
Smaller producers, like Abitibi

Southern Corp., a U.S. branch of another Canadian company, which produces only 150,000 tons of newsprint annually at its Augusta, Ga., mill, says it is not big enough to be among the first to raise prices. But a spokesman says if the larger companies all raise their prices, Abitibi Southern will follow.

Although prices will vary somewhat, companies say they will set prices about equal to those established by Canadian producers last fall. The Canadian mills, which produce about 70 per cent of the newsprint used in the United States, have traditionally been the industry price leaders.

Those prices, which U.S. producers now are matching, look like this: $200 a ton for heavy-weight newsprint, $213 a ton for middleweight paper, and $225 a ton for the highest grade. Prices will vary about $5 a ton depending on the agreements that a company has with its customers, U.S. manufacturers say.

The average price for newsprint delivered in New York City in 1972 was $164.58 a ton and rose to $200 last year, industry figures show.

Under price controls, newsprint prices were frozen at uneven levels and publishers were paying anywhere from $170 a ton to $200 a ton, the companies say.

Rivalries threaten unity

CALGARY (CP) — Regional rivalries, accentuated by policies of the federal and provincial governments, threaten to destroy Canadian unity and hamper the economic growth of the country as a whole, the president of the Royal Bank of Canada said recently.

W. Earle McLaughlin, speaking to the Chancellor's Club of the University of Calgary, said the size and ethnic diversity of Canada constitute "a formidable barrier to the development of any Canadian consensus on the issues."

What often emerges, he said, are "completely different perspectives, even on the basic facts."

Some rivalries between regions are simply political debates that are "the result of political meddling in economic affairs that would soon sort themselves out to the benefit of all Canadians if only left alone," he said.

"While I am encouraged, indeed bullish, on the prospects for Canada as a single, unified nation, I am nevertheless discouraged and alarmed by the degree of mischief which may be done in the short run by the zealous action of those whose vision is limited by either time or geography."

"Canadians must recognize that we cannot have the 11 different governments imposing 11 different policies without harm to the whole," he said.

Governments should "interfere less with the free market mechanism by accepting the fact that free markets cut across provincial boundaries" and should work instead for long-term benefits to the entire country.

He also called on the business community to "recognize its responsibility to be less secretive" about facts of regional operations.

"Where it is feasible, let us open up the regional books on an industry basis—and this applies to federal government operations as well."

"Rampant renegade regionalism" is wrong, he said, citing claims at an economic opportunities conference in Calgary last July that the banking industry had been draining deposits from Western Canada.

"The facts were completely opposite. The banks were in fact importing capital into the West."

The text of the speech was released in advance of delivery.

Business forecast good despite 1973 record

TORONTO (CP) — The recent flood of 1973 corporate earnings, indicating a vintage year, has investors wondering what can be done for an encore.

Investment firm Bongard Leslie says in a recent market letter that Canadian business will fare extremely well over the foreseeable future.

"Relative to the problems being experienced throughout Europe and Asia and, to a lesser extent in the U.S.A., the Canadian economy should escape virtually unscathed."

Trading partners will place more modest demands on Canada's raw materials and some manufacturers of finished goods will face stiffened sales resistance abroad and greater import pressures at home.

However, the need to replenish depleted stockpiles will help offset a large proportion of any shortfall in commodity demands, and secondary manufacturers can use a breathing space after the capacity strain of the last several months, Bongard Leslie says.

Canada's strong natural resource base will play a vital role in staying off external recessionary pressures, the firm says, adding that it strongly favors shares of companies engaged in primary activities.

It currently recommends a variety of stocks in the industrial and mining sectors of the market.

In the industrial sector, the outlook for steel "has seldom been more favorable" and Stelco and Dofasco are rated as buys for participation in continuing profit growth.

Bongard Leslie says despite the current premium on the Canadian dollar, Abitibi, Anglo-Canadian Pulp, Consolidated Bathurst, Domtar and Great Lakes Paper continue to warrant serious attention for earnings growth in 1974.

Shares of Genstar offer above-average profit participation as North American demand for cement heads toward record levels and productive capability is likely to prove insufficient.

FAVORS MASSEY

The firm says Massey-Ferguson should show "an enviable earnings record" despite problems at its manufacturing operation in the United Kingdom.

In the morning sector, Rio Algom and Sherritt Gordon both are worthy of continued investor interest in anticipation of sustained profit growth this year.

With short-term interest rates likely to drop soon, profits and share prices of chartered banks and trust companies should improve. These stocks should be bought for growth, Bongard Leslie says.

For investors wanting a high level of immediate income, the recent dividend increase by Bell Canada to $3.12 a share annually provides an opportunity for after-tax return greater than that provided by high-calibre bonds, with the added possibility of some capital gains over the longer run.

WATERLOO POLICE TRIAL

Lapierre honorably acquitted of assault charge

SWEETSBURG WARD (JD) — Judge Gerard Normandin, in a 14 page written judgement, honorably acquitted Jacques Lapierre on a charge of simple assault.

Mr. Lapierre, a former Waterloo police sergeant, had been charged with assault on the person of Victor Lyonnais, also of Waterloo, in the Waterloo police station January 6, 1974.

The following is a précis of the judgement.

"The accused as well as Constable Bockus, who were on duty on the night of January 5 to January 6, received a call to go to the Rex Restaurant where a person had fallen down the stairs leading to the cellar.

ARRIVED AT THE SCENE

"They arrived on the scene and determined Mr. Lefebvre was injured as a result of the fall, however not seriously, and should the restaurant owner, who was tending to the injured person, wish to avail himself of an ambulance they provided him with the telephone number.

"While they were on the scene, to wit at the foot of the stairs, the plaintiff, who was in a state of insobriety, called the policemen dirty dogs and told Bockus he used drugs and his family also were users of opiates and his brother was a pusher.

"During all this the policemen retained their dignity and Sgt. Lapierre told Const. Bockus to leave in order to alleviate the situation.

WENT AND TOLD SON

"They left and then went and told the son of the injured man about his father's accident.

"Then they resumed their patrol and eventually received a call from the police clerk at approximately 4 a.m. asking them to return to the station to quieten what could possibly become a brawl. The message was given in police code.

"As the clerk was alone they decided to return immediately. Bockus preceded Lapierre into the station when they noticed the person who might have caused the trouble was the plaintiff, the man who had abused them earlier at the Rex Restaurant. It was at that time and place the plaintiff alleged he was assaulted.

DIFFERENCE IN TESTIMONY

"There was a difference in the testimony of the crown witnesses regarding the events, namely that of Lyonnais, the plaintiff, the clerk and a person named Anderson who accompanied Lyonnais, as to that of the defendant Sgt. Lapierre and Mr. Bockus.

"Lyonais said he went in with a ticket and at the same time he was going to lay charges against Mr. Lapierre and Mr. Bockus for their conduct at the restaurant where he felt he had not acted in a manner befitting police officers.

"As far as the alleged charge against St. Lapierre, his motives there, too, were also misguided. Furthermore it was not the time to press charges, namely at 4 a.m. when the station was only manned by a young clerk.

ISSUED BY BOKKUS

"In any event the warning ticket was issued by agent 18, the pocket number of Mr. Bockus. "Lyonais said he determined it was Mr. Bockus' number, and the latter held him by his left arm saying it was indeed himself, and added the accused Lapierre then punched him in the stomach, he fell and when he got to his feet he told Lapierre 'You're having fun,' do it again, and Lapierre slapped him.

"He then said the men took him to a back room where they hit him again, and he regained his senses in a shower when they were washing his face with a cold towel.

CLERK TOLD HIS VERSION

"Laliberte, the clerk, told his version of the events. Lyonnais came to the station protesting the ticket and wanted to lay charges against Lapierre. He added that Lapierre had bad mouthed him and he meant to rectify the situation.

"He then alerted the patrol car, and while the car was coming Lyonnais pressed him with all kinds of questions.

"According to the constables they received the call stating Lyonnais was at the station causing trouble.

LYONNAIS WAS ANNOYED

"Laliberte said Lyonnais was visibly annoyed about the ticket and wanted him to approve his charges against the men for their conduct at the restaurant.

"He stated Bockus was the first to enter the station, admitted he was number 18, when Lyonnais threw the ticket at Bockus who picked it up. When Sgt. Lapierre arrived he asked what was going on then he saw Lyonnais fall on a chair after he was pushed by Lapierre.

"He added Lapierre escorted Anderson outside the station then hit Lyonnais in the stomach with his fist; then they took him to the officer's dining room when the subsequent events were out of his sight.

ADMITTED TO BEING SEATED

"In cross-examination he admitted to having been seated at his desk when Lapierre allegedly hit Lyonnais in the stomach.

"According to the plan of the office the court cannot believe he could have seen a fist landing in the plaintiff's stomach.

"Laliberte also alleged to have been threatened by Constables Leclerc and Filion following the declaration he made to Chief Albert Stringer. The said declaration, according to the witness, was finished following a three to three and a half hour interrogation by the chief, which seems to be an extremely long time to reconstruct the facts of a very brief event.

LYONNAIS CAME TO STATION

"Constables Filion and Leclerc, who came on duty on the morning of January 6th, said Lyonnais came to the station shortly after 8 a.m., cursing Lapierre and saying they would have to be his witnesses. He alleged he lost his ticket in the bathroom and asked them to accompany him. He bent down and picked up a button and said 'that's from my shirt.'

"Both testified there was no button on the floor, and when Lyonnais stood up it was in the palm of his hand.

"Constables Belisle and Periard, Granby Quebec Police Force, testified both had a telephone conversation with the plaintiff on the morning of January 6. He appeared to be drunk, and told them he had had trouble with the Waterloo police concerning his car and he was going to take his 45 sidearm and go to the station to recover it. There was no mention of any assault on his person during the conversations.

NO MENTION OF CHARGES

"They added there was no mention he was going to press charges against either Lapierre or Bockus.

"Messrs. Lapierre and Bockus told their side of the story.

"They went to the restaurant, saw the injured man and he was being tended to, gave the owner the number of the ambulance service, and left after Mr. Bockus had been the target of much abuse from Lyonnais.

"Const. Bockus warned Lyonnais at that point he could be arrested for disturbing the peace.

TOLD OF EVENTS

"They then told of the events at the station when Lyonnais continued his abuse; how he lunged at St. Lapierre who pushed him and he fell into some chairs; how they escorted him to the interrogation room when he lunged at Bockus and Mr. Lapierre restrained him; how he then fell to the floor, and when they took him to the bathroom to wash his face.

"At that point he complained of pains and asked for his pills, when Bockus left to call Lyonnais' wife how he told Lapierre the pain had disappeared; then his release with the warning not to drive or he would be charged with impaired driving.

TICKETS ISSUED BEFORE

"They added the warning tickets had been issued prior to their call to the Rex Restaurant.

"According to certain crown witnesses the accused hit the plaintiff in the stomach once, the only act which could have constituted an assault, had it been proven beyond all reasonable doubt, as one cannot fault the accused for restraining Lyonnais from hitting Const. Bockus which would have been an offence of assault on the person of a peace officer in the performance of his duties.

"Furthermore it was proven that Lyonnais, on two occasions, namely at the restaurant, and at the police station, committed an offence under article 160 of the criminal code, to wit disturbing the public peace.

ARTICLE 25

"Article 25 of the criminal code states:

"Everyone who is required or authorized by law to do anything in the administration or enforcement of the law as a peace officer or public officer is, if he acts on reasonable and probable grounds, justified in doing what he is required or authorized to do and in using as much force as is necessary for that purpose."

"Lyonais was drunk and attempted, on two occasions, to assault the persons of constables Lapierre and Bockus.

"The court is convinced the circumstances surrounding Messrs. Bockus and Lapierre indicated they acted with great tact and discernment, and did not assault Lyonnais, rather, to the contrary, they used the minimum force required to prevent Lyonnais from striking a peace officer.

COURTS' CONGRATULATIONS

"The court wishes to congratulate them for having maintained their good sense in the situation where they had been abused and reviled by Lyonnais.

"Peace officers have onerous duties to perform and they are not dirty dogs; rather they are honest citizens who do whatever is in their power to maintain order in society and to protect the property and rights of citizens.

"The court heard the testimony of Bockus and Lapierre. Both testified in a dignified manner and with no trace of spite.

"In a prior judgement the court honorably acquitted Const. Bockus, and, following a long period of deliberation, came to the conclusion Sgt. Lapierre equally merited an honorable acquittal: as a result he is honorably acquitted."

nab student streaker

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Is a $10 bet worth a streak on a cold March evening? Apparently, one 20-year-old Bishop's University student thought so and he paid for it — the Lennoxville police nabbed him at the end of his run.

The young man wandered that he would streak from the Georgian Hotel to the Golden Lion Pub, some 300 yards distance. He made the trip along Queen St. without any effort and was standing in the middle of the road outside the Golden Lion, getting much observation from the passers-by in automobiles.

It was at this time that the Lennoxville constables happened upon the lad, who was clothed only in a pair of leather boots and an open jacket.

He was arrested under article 170 of the Criminal Code and will appear before Municipal Judge R. Monty on March 28.

Sweetsburg Court

SWEETSBURG WARD (JD)

— Wilfrid Carpentier, of Granby, was sentenced to two years in penitentiary in sessions court here, despite his request for a 10-year term.

Carpentier, who was represented by Legal Aid Lawyer Gilles Poussard, pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent assault on a female person under the age of 12, to wit, one of his daughters.

Mr. Poussard said: "I really have no representations to make. It is a sad case, one which I consider worthy of either medical or psychiatric treatment. The accused was charged with a similar offence in 1962 and served two years."

Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux cited Carpentier had been sentenced to two years for attempted rape on another daughter which led to his incarceration, and the current charge which dated back almost a year involved his youngest daughter.

"He is a foul individual and the least I can ask is a three year penitentiary term," Mr. Noisieux said.

Under questioning by Judge Guy Genest, Carpentier said he was a laborer who had been unemployed since the summer of 1973, and his family were living on social welfare.

"Do your family receive enough to get by on?" asked Judge Genest.

"Yes," Carpentier replied.

Judge Genest told him he was a danger to his family. Carpentier then said: "Give me 10 years, I married a whore and I would be at peace in a penitentiary."

Judge Genest then handed the minimum two year term.

Carpentier's cry of "I want more," fell on deaf ears as he was led from the prisoners dock.

Bruno Ashby, Granby, pleaded guilty to two charges of theft in Granby during 1973. Defence counsel Gilles Poussard asked for a pre-sentence report.

Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux then agreed to the suggestion of the defence on the condition Ashby be held in preventative detention until the report was prepared.

Judge Genest upheld the motion of preventative detention after studying Ashby's prior record.

Following a brief recess Mr. Poussard indicated the defence would accept a three month term, and the crown concurred.

Judge Genest imposed the suggested sentence. In any event he had assured Ashby there would be a further jail term following receipt of the pre-sentence report. These reports usually take one month to prepare.

Magog's Father Carriere discusses his exceptional success with music

By CONSTANCE GIRARD
Record Reporter

MAGOG — Recently The Record interviewed one of Magog's native sons, Reverend Father Reginald Carriere, who has returned to Magog for a brief vacation.

Father Carriere was born in Magog in 1921. His primary education began in the city's schools then on to the world-renowned St. Benoit du Lac and finally his classical education was completed at St. Victor de Beauce. The next step was the beginning of life into the priesthood.

1948 was the year he entered the "White Fathers of Africa" to be ordained in 1953. Father Carriere has spent the last 20 years of his life working with the blacks in Zambia.

This personable gentleman wanted to do more than perform traditional church duties such as baptisms, masses, etc., so he explored the idea of working with children. He feels that every single child, even the handicapped, can learn music. Learning Braille was a must as his plan was to teach blind children to read and play music.

This venture proved to be most successful and rewarding. Father Carriere feels that music is one of life's foremost pleasures.

The youths of Africa are the same as their counterparts all over the world. Boys will be boys and Father Carriere feels that children need constructive and pleasurable interest to develop normally on the emotional, spiritual and physical levels.

His next project was to form a band of approximately a dozen of nine to 12-year-old boys. He describes his teaching method as "very practical and easy" and says that he can teach someone to play a tune in half an hour.

Those of us who struggled with five finger exercises for years and never learned anything that remotely approached a tune can readily appreciate that Father Carriere's method is more likely to encourage children to learn and then it becomes a matter of enjoyment rather than endurance.

By his method, children learn the eight basic notes in the scale from "do to do" and are shown how to produce the corresponding sounds on the piano, piano-accordion or melodica. They learn which notes combine to make a musical chord and which produce a discord.

They are shown the position of the sharps and flats and soon are able to transpose tunes into a different key. The emphasis is all on the practical side of music rather than the theoretical and Father Carriere believes in letting the boys find out for themselves the most convenient way of fingering, rather than laying down hard and fast rules.

One member of the band can play seven different instruments while another has composed a beautiful song. Father Carriere's main purpose was to teach the boys to sing and play Christmas carols for a Christmas play. These talented youngsters were to become known as "The Rising Stars".

Their performances began locally, provincially, staging concerts for government officials, visiting hospitals, schools, etc. A tour of Africa took them to Kenya, Tanzania and Malawi. A new and very exciting venture for Father Reginald Carriere and his Rising Stars was to be a tour of the European countries.

This came about as a result of the enthusiastic response of a number of tourists who attended various performances of the band and suggested they should visit Europe and other countries of the world. The Archbishop of Lusaka, Father E. Milingo, then made arrangements for the trip, whose purpose is to show what Zambia's youth can do.

Their vast repertoire of 100 songs include Zambian traditional dancing and music and internationally loved songs such as Ave Maria, theme songs from popular movies etc. This tour of Europe was to become a most memorable event when the founder Father Carriere and his youngsters were to have an audience with His Holiness Pope Paul. Reverently Father Carriere says: "Believe me, that was quite an honour."

I listened to tapes of the performance staged at St. Peter's Basilica - there is only one word to describe it - MARVELLOUS!

Father Carriere states that the prime aim is enjoyment. These black children are not pressured. Practices are scheduled to their convenience.

One wonders if there are disciplinary problems. No, not at all, says Father Carriere, the reason being that the Rising Stars are even more than a band — they are a democratic society in miniature, with a president, director and treasurer. They set their own rules and it is expected that each member of the group will behave accordingly.

Even though Father Carriere has had tremendous success with the children he still feels that there is much more to be done with the Zambian youth. One project is to raise funds to establish a youth centre for the thousands of underprivileged children of that country.

Father Carriere's success with "The Rising Stars" has created interest within the Department of Education, Zambian Government and possibly music will be included in school curriculum.

I knew very little of Zambia, its customs and traditions and until my conversation with Father Carriere I was totally unaware of his work with this band, but as we talked and listened to tapes of the children's music, I found his enthusiasm and vitality to be infectious. I was so impressed with his achievements but above all, I admired his modesty. He was without a shadow of a doubt one of the most interesting and captivating persons I have ever met.

G. OLNEY

Olney exhibit displayed at Valcourt cultural centre

VALCOURT — Well known Eastern Townships artist, G. Olney, is presently exhibiting 60 of his most recent oils on canvas.

Born in Danville, Que. in 1931, Olney has been painting since he was 12 and gave up painting at the age of 20 to take up wood sculpturing. Many of his sculptures were shown to the public during the Danville Centennial in 1960.

In 1965 Olney seriously got back to oil painting and painted miscellaneous subjects for three years. His first exhibition in Asbestos was very well received. Since then some of his paintings have been on display in Sherbrooke, Montreal and Asbestos.

This year in Valcourt, Olney's collection treats only one subject — "The Forest". From the eastern woods, he brings out individual trees, which are for the artist the symbols of life — the tree coming to life every spring, dying every fall and regaining life spring after spring.

Olney's oils are not landscapes but more so moments of life, moments of happiness and sadness.

"Our present way of life, where everyone is more taken by daily problems and stress, leaves very little room to develop and enjoy artistic taste. However, it is very good to be able to stop momentarily and appreciate some things of real artistic value — the reward of many years of constant and serious efforts which is there in Olney's paintings, and leave with you a very definite charm." (Sperlin)

The cultural centre in Valcourt invites the population to visit this display which will be on until March 25. Opening hours are Monday to Friday 9 a.m. to 12 and 1 p.m. to 5; Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening 7 p.m. to 10 and Saturday and Sunday 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Precedents in history

So far no economist has faced the consequences of the global redistribution of wealth now going on — involuntarily, but without any visible resistance — as a result of the rise in oil prices. The despatch from Tehran on this page points to the sudden affluence of nations which, until now, have been at the receiving end of Western charity.

Iran is not only repaying her debt to the International Monetary Fund, but investing in the fund. The latter, having been starved of money because all the Western capital surplus is being spent on petroleum, will now be able to carry on as before.

Or will it? The Iranian contribution is a drop in the bucket and the Arabs have been keeping their new riches in their stockings — or the modern equivalent thereof, a Swiss numbered account. The Arabs were bristling with anger when last month State Secretary Henry Kissinger called their tactics "blackmail." Yet there is no other term for a practice that extorts all the savings, all the profits obtained by knowledge, hard work and ingenuity, in return for a commodity that albeit indispensable, is owned by accident or ancient conquest.

If there were no wheat in the world except on the Prairies, and if, to feed the people, we were to demand all their gold and treasures — what would one call it? Moreover, what would we, a developed but small society, do with such enormous riches? The Ottawa-Edmonton argument is much to the point.

Money is now changing hands not through trade, nor through schemes such as the Marshall Plan, but by force. Were it not for the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean and the Persian Gulf, oil prices would never have risen to their present peak. The consequences are beyond imagination. Germany had a surplus in her trade balance of some $30 billion. Now all her surplus will have to be spent on oil.

The value of the mark will, therefore, be affected. Imports will become expensive. Germany's trading partners will lose their valuable market. All kinds of artificial means will be used to stop the outflow from Germany of foreign currency and stimulate exports. The Germans, accustomed these past 25 years to an uninterrupted prosperity, will suddenly face the spectre of a recession, with its fearsome memories of the 1920s and 1930s, and this at a time when the fabric of their society threatens to come apart.

In the present era, Germany has been a stabilizing force in Europe as Japan has been in Asia. Now Japan faces the same prospect, her foreign currency reserves flowing into the Arab coffers, her exports finding the doors barred by her old customers who themselves have been impoverished by the extortionate energy prices: Who will buy Toyotas and Datsuns when tens of thousands of unemployed walk the streets of Detroit (and Windsor)?

Within our traditional society, trade stimulates wealth that is distributed among the nations' strata. But what happens when the money is salted away by a few robber barons? Their populations are small and backward. It would take two and three generations to turn them into an industrial society and thus into consumers, people who will sell oil and buy machinery, with the machinery produce wealth, sell their surplus to buy other products. So far, the money has gone into the most unproductive of all consumer goods: arms.

There is every prospect that the merchants of death, in Moscow and elsewhere, will yet reap what they are sowing. The Western worm, which really is a kindly dragon, may turn and begin to spout fire. Or else revolutions and civil wars may bring about a collapse in which somebody, in desperation, presses the button. History is full of precedents. Dr. Kissinger knows them all. But does King Faisal? Or Leonid Brezhnev?

Opinion from the French-language press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Granby la Voix de l'Est: Prime Minister Trudeau applauds those unions which, by their moderation, do not impose an unjust burden on the rest of the community and, at the same time, issues a harsh warning to those inclined to exploit the people.

Mr. Trudeau says the cost of labor is not one of the causes behind the inflation Canada is experiencing. He attributes inflation to companies which, by whatever means available to them, increase prices.

While the prime minister expresses his intention of protecting consumers by attacking the oil companies and offers specific measures, he does not say what he will do in the case of other industries.

If we look not only at those who would like to exploit the people but at those who are actually doing it, we cannot believe the government is limiting itself to a simple warning. Is it the beginning of a federal offensive? Let's hope so.

Among the measures the government will have at its disposal in the fight against inflation, there are, first, those designed to protect the people most exposed to inflation's effects, the retired and low-income families. That is certainly a priority.

In the case of oil, Mr. Trudeau seems to know what steps to take to ensure Canadians reasonable prices.

He himself says the price freeze will not extend beyond March 31 and that his government is negotiating with producing provinces for a domestic and export pricing system. It appears agreed that the domestic price will be below the world one.

Apparently, the measures of which Mr. Trudeau speaks are not satisfactory to all Canadians. And rightly so — they are insufficient.

The government will no doubt have to intervene much more in the functioning of the economy in order to put a stop to the designs of exploiters. They exist in all industries. —Roland Gagne (March 2)

le nouvelliste

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Edward Heath has put an end to the suspense in which Britain was held after the Conservative party lost its absolute majority in the House of Commons in the country's general election.

Contrary to the British political tradition that says the losers submit gracefully to the winners, Mr. Heath tried to hold on to power. He sought the support of Liberals in the hope of forming a new government.

When the Liberals refused, the Tory leader had no choice but to submit his resignation to the Queen. Harold Wilson, the Labor leader, has been installed as prime minister for the third time.

The Wilson government will be at the mercy of the Liberals, who hold the balance of power in the same way the New Democratic Party does in Canada.

The Liberal leader, Jeremy Thorpe, admits he has little confidence in either Mr. Heath or Mr. Wilson, but his sympathies lie more with Labor.

In some circles, it is believed that Mr. Wilson is fervently hoping for another election in which he could win a majority.

He should not forget that if the voters denied their support to the Conservatives, they gave it to Labor only with great reticence. There is no proof that Mr. Wilson would improve his position in another election soon.

Britain needs strong government more than ever. The economic situation is chaotic. To complicate the drama, Mr. Wilson will take a hard look at Britain's membership in the European Economic Community.

It is Liberal leader Thorpe's move. The Liberals, with their unexpected strength, have every advantage in keeping the Wilson government alive, at least for a while. If they conduct themselves well, they could produce a considerable surprise in the next election. —Sylvio Saint-Amant (March 5)

LA TRIBUNE

Sherbrooke La Tribune: Our affluent society does not readily reveal its defects and failures. Carried away by a mentality of superficial glamor we ignore the sores our system conceals behind the facades of proud buildings and self-satisfied politicians' declarations.

When it is revealed that Quebec's prisons and rehabilitative institutions harbor as many young people as adults, no one seems unduly alarmed.

What, then, is our society doing for young people involved in crime and delinquency? We lock them up, trying awkwardly to re-educate them. Almost every time, we intervene too late and heal nothing.

We certainly cannot criticize only the state for not taking its responsibilities seriously enough.

Parents, those primarily responsible for the education of their children, give up easily.

Schools, too, often are alien and inhospitable to those who have an inclination to delinquency, which becomes the symptom of a sick society and questionable education.

What we need to solve the problem are true teachers ready to get their feet wet and devote their time to guiding and motivating young people who are poorly adjusted to society. —Jean Desrosiers (March 8)

LE DROIT

Ottawa Le Droit: While State Secretary Faulkner did not have to go into technical details of the expansion of CBC services, he could have elaborated more on his political area: The establishment of priorities for government corporations.

Announcing at a Toronto news conference that five years from now all Canadians will have access to government-subsidized broadcasts, he diplomatically talked more of CBC productions than of the slippery ground of which areas will be the first beneficiaries of the plan.

Yet minorities have unceasingly sought this extension of services. The answer they are getting now is encouraging, but not complete.

A total of $50 million will remedy the injustice that sees almost 900,000 Canadians not receiving the complete services of the radio and television networks. More than 300 localities will get the service.

Favorably received in French-language circles, the plan should permit minorities isolated among English-speaking majorities to participate in the French-language community.

The very decision to extend services results from the government's determination to spread the image of Canadian unity.

The money allotted will have nothing to do with local or regional production or programming. The new stations will simply be put on their feet.

As for "cultural" generation, it seems local production has been put off.

If we congratulate Mr. Faulkner on this plan to extend the network, we must also remind him of the second requirement in terms of the isolation of French-speaking groups who have been neglected up to now. —Pierre Tremblay (Feb. 18)

Would you bite the hand that feeds you?

Nixon raids justice for more legal aid

WASHINGTON — The White House is raiding the Justice Department for more lawyers to bail President Nixon out of his Watergate troubles.

Although platoons of attorneys are already working on the President's problems with taxes, impeachment, the Senate Watergate committee and the Special Prosecutor, our sources say the White House has asked for "at least a dozen" lawyers from Justice.

These lawyers, of course, are being pulled off important cases at Justice to assist the President at the expense of the taxpayers. Some top Justice officials are giving the White House names of prospects, but there is also an undercurrent of resistance to the presidential dragooning.

For example, Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen, whose criminal division handled the early Watergate investigation, has been privately hinting to aides that they would be wise to turn down the White House.

From bitter experience, Petersen knows that getting too close to President Nixon can mean political burns. At Nixon's request, he postponed acting on crucial Watergate information, and took a public roasting for it.

Petersen is also worried, say insiders, about possible conflicts of interest. Justice lawyers themselves have confided to us that they are leery of taking the jobs at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue not just out of personal distaste, but because of ethical conflicts. One young antitrust lawyer sent for a job interview with Nixon attorney James St. Clair had worked on the milk fund case while at Justice.

Other lawyers fear they will be doing "clerk and jerk" jobs at the White House, reviewing other lawyers' work and "jerk" files and books from law libraries.

The White House's difficulty in wooing young Justice lawyers was obliquely conceded by St. Clair in a telephone interview with my associate Bob Owens.

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

St. Clair said he is "in the process" of hiring two or three attorneys from Justice. But the talent search has been going on for weeks, ample time to snare more than two or three attorneys if career lawyers were volunteering.

When Owens asked St. Clair who was going to pay the Justice attorneys, the shrewd Bostonian dodged. "I work at a disadvantage because I don't understand the bureaucracy," he said. The payroll, he added, was being left to "smarter people."

At Justice, a spokesman said when the loaned lawyers leave the department, they will also go off the department payroll. This would put them into the White House budget.

Plumbers' Friend: A Senate committee has charged that Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger has set up his own "plumbers unit" in flagrant violation of congressional orders. HEW insists it's all a $600,000 misunderstanding.

The facts are disclosed in private correspondence between Senate HEW Appropriations subcommittee chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., and Weinberger's undersecretary, Frank Carlucci.

HEW, the documents show, has long wanted its own gumshoes to probe internal fraud, contract cheats, falsified payrolls and conflicts of interest in the vast jerry-built bureaucracy. But HEW employees have feared this would mean a Big Brother operation.

Last August, as the Office of Economic Opportunity fell to pieces under the Administration ax, HEW moved to grab the best of the OEO investigators. One of those they passed over, despite his eagerness for the top HEW security post, was John "Fat Jack" Buckley who, Watergate sleuths revealed, had planted a Nixon spy in Sen. Edmund Muskie's presidential campaign. Buckley was on the federal payroll at the time.

Though Buckley's zeal went unrewarded, some 22 persons were hired, mostly from OEO. Plans were made to take on eight others. None of the workers had the approval of Magnuson, who controls HEW's purse strings.

In October, the Magnuson subcommittee specifically deleted funds for all the added investigators, saying HEW's original 17-man security staff was all that was needed. Crimes at HEW could be handled by the FBI and other federal cops, as in the past, the committee reasoned.

But Carlucci went ahead with the plans anyway and, according to a confidential report he sent to Magnuson on February 7, conceded he had begun to "reprogram 30 positions (for) an Internal Investigation staff" at a cost of $600,000.

When Magnuson got word of it, he fancied White House-style snoopers under every HEW employee's bed. The unauthorized gumshoes, he told Carlucci on February 26, constitute "a so-called 'plumbers' unit' at HEW...."

"We are absolutely at a loss to understand how (HEW) could proceed," snorted Magnuson. "This action to subvert the intent of Congress cannot go unchallenged."

Magnuson ordered HEW to get rid of the new squad except for eight sleuths which he said HEW could keep "to show...we are not unreasonable."

At HEW, Nathan Dick, the veteran HEW security man who heads the investigators, told us emphatically his division "is in no way a plumbers unit." His mandate, he said, is not to snoop on HEW employees, but to weed out malefactors among HEW workers and contractors.

Letters

Uncoverage good,
so is streaking

Sir:

Re your streak photo on Monday's front page, I say, "Good Show" (and I mean that literally). Nice to see that streaking is getting front page uncovrage. But then again, it is, after all, a newspaper's job to lay bare the facts.

The naked truth is, if everyone stripped out of their hang-ups, and then out of their clothes, the world would be a great place in which to live. Crowded buses would be much more fun. People could say "Nice to see you" and mean it. Just think — no more dry cleaning bills, no more pick-pockets, no more flashers. Friendliness would abound — there would be no more war.

But, alas, society being as hung up as it is, I suppose the fun won't last forever. I've heard rumors there is already pressure to outlaw streaking, the rumblings coming mostly from Playboy magazine, large nudist camps, and various convents around the country.

So until the inevitable happens, I say "Whites and Blacks, let down your slacks!" While we can, let's have a ball and streak.

H.M. Smith
SherbrookeRecord photographer was there waiting

Sir:

I have been for the last five years a faithful reader of your paper for the excellent news coverage, sports items and other educational matter, but now I am angry to see that this same paper is encouraging and supporting the streaking madness.

I just can't imagine seeing the Record photographer (Bruce Porter) hanging around Jerry's Pizzeria at 3 a.m. Saturday morning with his camera ready for an event that was going to take place.

I personally believe if the chief of police of Lennoxville had checked out Porter, he would have found that Porter was either forewarned by anonymous callers who were friends of the streaker, or he personally bribed someone to do the streaking to enable him to take the picture.

I believe it's the latter and if I were in your position Mr. Radmanovich I would take a firm step to make sure that it did not occur again.

This type of coverage on the front page of your paper will encourage more students to participate in streaking in the Eastern Townships and also encourage a hell of a lot of youngsters to not respect moral laws as well as civil laws.

Think it over. Thank you.

Bob Sheldon,
Beebe, Quebec.

Bruce Porter was waiting for the streaker, acting on a tip, but he almost missed his picture. It was so cold that the streaker streaked right by him and he had time to get only one shot — lucky he didn't miss!

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Pernicious anemia treatment

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been taking vitamin B-12 injections for the past two years. Got tired of going to the doctor for the injections, so I stopped going. When I went to him the other day he gave me a good scolding and told me how important it was to take these injections for the rest of my life.

Would you enlighten me on pernicious anemia? Is it serious? Really don't feel any better after taking these injections, only a black and blue arm. I'm an older woman, so I'd like to know more about this blood condition that I must take injections the rest of my life.

DEAR READER — Your doctor should have scolded you. You had better believe that pernicious anemia is serious. What happens is that you don't absorb vitamin

B-12 from your food. You need this vitamin in the vital process of producing new body cells — which we all must do as long as we live. We destroy and replace millions of new red blood cells each minute. To make new red cells you need the B-12. If you don't have it, you don't form the new red blood cells and you get a severe anemia.

The lack of B-12 can cause changes in other cells in the body, even affecting the way the brain functions. There can be gradual changes in the important nerve cells in your spinal cord, leading to serious problems even in walking. So, weakness, changes in your brain and nerves, changes in your digestive system, and generalized serious problems can result. Some of these develop gradually, and you may not notice them until you have already caused serious damage. Be a good patient and get the most out of your doctor's good advice.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For a person who should eat liver occasionally but doesn't care for it, would you say that liver extract or liver pills would do just as well?

DEAR READER — Liver is a good food. It is a good source of iron and a number of important vitamins. It is also moderately high in cholesterol and for those needing to limit their cholesterol, which certainly includes most men, it should be eaten in small amounts, if at all.

There is nothing in liver you can't get from other good foods. The vitamin enrichment and mineral supplements of our foods provide a lot of our vitamin needs that would be met by liver. Recently it has been decided to increase the iron in bread and similar products. So, I'm not really impressed that a person who doesn't like liver has to eat it today to be sure they are getting all the vitamins or minerals they need.

You can use liver extract in pill form, and you will absorb it as long as your stomach generates a substance needed to absorb vitamin B-12. If you have lost the ability to absorb B-12, as occurs in pernicious anemia, then you would need to take shots to get vitamin B-12 in the body.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on cholesterol, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Cholesterol" booklet.

Helping mothers

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter. If it doesn't help my mom, maybe it will help someone else.

Dear Mom: I know you have a drinking problem, but I love you too much and am too weak, or too much of a coward to tell you I know. Life hasn't been easy for you and I understand why you turned to the bottle. I wish I knew what I could do to help you, but now that I have children of my own, I am busy with my family.

We want you around as long as possible, Mom. When you go out at night by yourself, we worry. When I talk to you and then a little while later you don't remember anything you said, I am heartsick. It's happening more and more and it makes me realize the seriousness of the situation.

Get some help, Mom. Please admit you have a problem before it's too late. If you need me, I'm here. Just let me know. We all love you. — Your Daughter

Dear Daughter: Here's your letter. And now a note to every mom who read it: If you felt the slightest twinge, the faintest shadow of a hint that maybe that letter was meant for you, please look up Alcoholics Anonymous in the phone book and attend their next meeting. A better way of life is as close as your telephone.

Dear Ann Landers: Remember that fellow who set the world's finger-snapping record and drew a crowd of over 300 people? As I recall, you didn't think that was much of an accomplishment and a lot of readers got mad at you.

Well, how do you like this one? A 20-year-old Italian hair stylist in Boston edged out a 21-year-old telephone operator in a spaghetti-eating contest.

These two shoveled in the pasta for one solid hour and 40 minutes. The young woman washed down the boiled spaghetti (which she said she didn't care for) with red wine. Her opponent drank water. When she quit she said she wasn't really full yet but she was getting loaded on the wine.

The spaghetti-eating champ had won two other "firsts". He had eaten one pound of cheddar cheese in 4½ minutes and 266 pitted prunes in 40 minutes.

What do you think about such "stellar" achievements, Ann Landers? — Hollywood Witness

Dear Wit: I'm happy to say I don't have to think about them. To each his own.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 38, divorced and going with a married man. We have been seeing each other for three years. I lost my husband because of him. We are together almost every weekend and two or three evenings during the week.

Am I crazy or is he? This man is successful in business, has a fairly attractive wife, a nice home and six good children. He says his wife is a wonderful mother (they have been married 26 years) but she is not interesting to him sexually or otherwise. He likes my company.

Why would a wife stand for her husband to be gone four or five evenings a week? He has to be telling some fantastic lies to get away with it. She MUST realize he has somebody else.

Why doesn't she divorce him and give us a chance to have a decent life together? What do you see that I might have overlooked? — Mystified Ms.

Dear Ms: I see (1) six children, (2) a wife who would rather have half a loaf than none, and (3) a man who probably doesn't want a divorce and has never brought up the subject.

Feted on 16th birthday

WINDSOR — Miss Phyllis MacMorine was guest of honour at a delightful surprise birthday party, on the occasion of her 16th birthday, March 10, which was held the previous evening at the home of the Misses Lorraine and Francoise Pelletier.

Phyllis had planned on going bowling that evening with a couple of friends. On arrival at the Pelletier home she was invited downstairs to the playroom where eleven school friends were waiting. She was completely surprised when all sang the Birthday Song and showered her with confetti.

The coffee table was centered with a prettily decorated birthday cake, made by Lois McCourt. The cake was iced in white and trimmed with yellow and gold, topped with sixteen magic candles. Much merriment was derived from watching Phyllis try over and over to blow the candles all out, only to have them light up again one by one.

A social evening was enjoyed by the girls. The guest of honour was presented with a gift of a money tree — sixteen one dollar bills pinned to the branch of a tree — from her friends. In her usual cheerful manner, Phyllis expressed her thanks for the very useful gift and her delight for such a lovely party.

The evening ended with a pizza

Sutton WI—50th anniversary

SUTTON — The Sutton Women's Institute was first organized as a Junior Girls Institute on October 24, 1923, under the leadership of a long time teacher at Sutton, Mrs. Frank Jenne, now residing in Newport, Vt.

The main object of the girls at the time was to improve themselves while working for the betterment of the community. The young girls had a lot of ambition and enthusiasm and decided to work for the purchase of a memorial clock in memory of departed soldiers which seemed like a big project for so few.

The first deposit for the clock fund was for $25.00 made in 1927, however, with a lot of effort and some donations, the clock at a cost of $1,817.64 was installed on the tower of the Town Hall on October 11, 1949. The same clock is running today and a timely reminder.

On April 13, 1950 at Macdonald College the name of Junior Girls Institute was changed to the Sutton Women's Institute and the same type of work is being carried on.

A pleasant and noteworthy event took place in the hall of Calvary United Church on Monday evening, October 22, 1973, to mark the 50th anniversary of the Sutton branch of the W.I. when a buffet dinner was served by two of the members, Mrs. Douglas Mudgett and Mrs. Wayne Clarkson and some helpers.

Decorations were carried out in the W.I. Colors of deep blue and gold. The dinner guests were met by the president Mrs. Lillian Miltimore and signed the guest book in charge of Mrs. Bernice Russell and were presented with a gold mum tied with anniversary ribbon by Mrs. Slanger.

Seated at the candle-lit head table were the branch president, Mrs. L. Miltimore, the provincial president, Mrs. Walter Westover, the organizer of fifty years ago, Mrs. Frank Jenne, Mrs. Merlin Lewis, the provincial convener of Welfare and Health, Mrs. Irene Williams, county president for Missisquoi and Mrs. Fred Knights, 1st Vice-president for Bromfield County. The other guests and members were seated at small tables.

Mrs. Miltimore called upon Mrs. Knights to offer grace. Each guest at the head table was asked to speak a few words, after which the charter members were asked to say a few words.

Mrs. Cecil Carr, in addition to her remarks, said it had long been a desire to make some concrete gesture to the W.I.

and presented the president Mrs. Miltimore and the secretary Mrs. Bernice Russell with attache cases to be used while they were in office and then to be passed on to their successors.

Mrs. Rupert Phelps, after a few remarks, read passages from old minute books which proved to be of general interest.

An original poem of fifty years ago was read by Mrs. W. Westover.

Following the dinner a short business meeting was held, after which a monologue in four parts was given by Mrs. Irene Williams, between each act a song was enjoyed. She was thanked by the president and all present.

A citation is received each year for the lunch served by the W.I. for the Blood Donor Clinic.

WI meetings

The Annual Meeting of the Cowansville W.I. was held on Tuesday afternoon, March 5th, at the home of Mrs. I. Haines.

Main Street, with 18 members and three visitors in attendance. The President, Mrs. S. Bidner in her opening remarks, extended a warm welcome to all and then led the members in repeating the Creed and The Salute To The Flag.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. Ella Brown, and approved as read. The Motto for the meeting was "Keep Up The Good Work" and the Roll Call was responded to by each member paying their Membership Fees for the coming year. The Treasurer, Miss Cecile Darbe reported a Bank Balance of $84.30. A letter was read from the County Secretary, Mrs. Farnham, reminding the members of The Annual County Convention which will be held in The United Church Hall, Cowansville, on May 10th, and Mrs. Griffith was appointed as our official delegate.

The delegate to the Provincial Convention, at Macdonald College, May 28th to 31st, will be appointed at the April meeting. Each member was requested to bring used Canadian Stamps to the April Meeting at which time a committee will be appointed to sort these out and place them in packets of twenty-five for Operation Eyesight. Provincial Annual Reports were handed out to all present after which the Secretary checked with each member as to their Postal Code number. Two members were reported ill and the Sunshine Convener, Mrs. Haines was instructed to send Get-Well Cards and a note to each.

The President then called on the various Conveners for their Annual Reports which indicated that much had been accomplished. The Secretary reported that the meetings, eleven in all, were well attended and interesting programs had been presented. In place of The August Meeting, Cowansville and Stanbridge East branches held a joint picnic at The Missisquoi County Museum, Stanbridge East. At this point, Mrs. Bibby reminded those present that our Secretary, Mrs. Ella Brown, is the daughter of Mrs. "George" Beach who organized the first Institute in the Province of Quebec in 1911.

Sutton Red Cross Workers

SUTTON — In August 1914, Canada began her preparation for taking part in the European War and two months later a group of workers in Sutton started Red Cross work under the able guidance of Mrs. E.O. Dyer, who, after joining the Red Cross in Montreal was qualified to act as a representative for this group.

The work was most successfully carried on in a self-supporting way until March 1918, when it was thought best to organize and work as a branch.

The charter was obtained and organized as the Sutton and Abercorn Red Cross Branch.

The following officers were elected - Honorary Presidents: Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. O. Westover; President - Mrs. A.G. Eastman; Vice-president - Mrs. H.A. Parsons; Secretary - Mrs. F.L. Safford; Treasurer - Mrs. H.G. Bates and several committees namely Work, Purchasing and Packing were chosen.

Knitting Clubs were formed with their own officers and accomplished a lot of work.

Several needs had to be met. Among others, were work space and money. The Rector of the Grace Anglican Church offered the Parish Hall as a work room and this was used for four and a half years.

The second necessity was money which was mostly collected as some made pledges on a monthly basis, tickets were sold on several donated articles, proceeds from entertainments, commission allowed on Victory

Loans were also turned in; this amounted to $1,594.10; one lawn social netted $13.00 while a field day at Bromfield brought in $14.00.

It is impossible to mention every individual, as there were so many who helped in one way or another. The ladies of Abercorn, Alva, the Olmstead neighbourhood and North Sutton all joined in and thousands of useful sewn and knitted articles were shipped to Montreal Headquarters.

On April 9, 1919, the members of the Sutton and Abercorn Red Cross held a tea in the Parish Hall for the purpose of presenting two life memberships to Mrs. H.G. Bates and Mrs. E. Whitford. The ladies separated with regret but hoping never to be called together for war work again.

The hope was in vain, however, as with the outbreak of another war in 1939, the Red Cross group again organized into another branch under the presidency of Mrs. George Webb. The work room this time was on Main Street over the old telephone office and the same type of work was carried on.

In 1945, the Sutton Branch was closed for war time work. They were then asked to continue as a peace time branch which was decided on after much thought. As the branch was unable to occupy the rooms over the Telephone Office they were fortunate to get a room in the Legion Hall where they met until 1955, when they had to move again and this time Olivet Baptist Church offered their hall where they still meet every Monday afternoon.

Unlike the war work which had to be assembled in the rooms the work now comes neatly tied in bundles of tens. After this work is completed it is again put in bundles and shipped to Headquarters by truck.

Besides sewing and knitting there is a sick room supply cupboard which contains everything from beds to crutches.

There is also a Blood Donor Clinic held each summer.

The Financier Campaign is held every year and is well supported by the citizens of Sutton and surrounding community.

The president of the branch is now Mrs. Bernice Russell who for the past two years has been very successful as the campaign chairman.

So over the many years since the branch was formed in 1914 the women of Sutton have answered the need and in 1974 are still going strong.

The Honorary Presidents are Mrs. W.E. Dow, Mrs. O.H. Baker, Mrs. H.D. Miller and Mrs. R.S. Miltimore.

One of the workers today is Mrs. B. Smith, 86 years of age, who goes to the work rooms each Monday and takes home sewing to be done at home during the week.

The work convenor, Mrs. Bergeron over 80, is still in charge of all the work after many years.

UCW meeting

WINDSOR — The St. Andrew's U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Murray MacMorine on Thursday evening, March 7, with six members in attendance.

The meeting opened with devotions, read by Mrs. Wm. Jandron.

A donation of two artificial ferns, to be placed at the front of the church, was received from Windsor Florist. These are most attractive and will add a great deal to the appearance of the choir loft.

The group gratefully acknowledge the receipt of a refrigerator from a member's family. This will be placed in the kitchen in the church basement.

The Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial meeting will be held in Richmond on April 16. It is hoped that some members will be able to attend.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, April 3rd, at the home of Mrs. D. Morey.

Following adjournment of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. MacMorine and Mrs. Harper.

Quebec's Old Town is a historical delight

By MICHAEL GOUTHREAU
QUEBEC (CP) — A cloud of pipe smoke enveloped Claude as he guided his horse-drawn caleche over a cobblestoned Quebec City street.

"The municipal government has done a superb job on the Old Town through restoration projects," he said, puffing in rhythm to his horse's gait. "Many old buildings inside the walls were neglected and falling into ruin. All that's changed now; it's a beautiful job."

A third-year art student, Claude defrays part of his tuition and living expenses by working as a guide for visitors who want to tour the narrow, winding streets of the city, frequently referred to as the birthplace of North America.

The first settlement in North America was founded here by Champlain in 1608. It was from here that French explorers set out to discover other parts of what were to become Canada and the United States.

OVERLOOKS RIVER

The caleche bounced under the wide arches of the famed Chateau Frontenac hotel to the Jardins des Gouverneurs park commanding a view of the St. Lawrence River, 360 feet below the summit of Cap Diamant (Cape Diamond).

"I find this the most beautiful place in the country," said Claude, gesturing towards the jumble of copper roofs huddled along the shore of the mile-wide waterway.

"I've been guiding for a long time and I never get tired of seeing that river."

Claude confessed Quebec has a special significance for him.

"You just can't beat this city for historical and architectural beauty," he said. "Those old houses surrounding the park were made to last for centuries. Some are probably 300 years old and they look as if they were built last week."

The horse heaved against the incline of a hill as the carriage passed the fringes of the Citadelle, a five-acre fortress built by the British after the battle of the Plains of Abraham, and on to a broad thoroughfare known as La Grande Allée.

HOUSES GONE

Fashionable mansions once lined its tree-covered sidewalks, but they were levelled during the last 10 years to make room for modern government offices.

Passing under one of the gates marking the limits of the Citadelle, Claude turned on to the rolling 235-acre Plains of Abraham, where more than 200 years ago a short-lived skirmish shaped the destiny of North America.

Under a starless night on Sept. 13, 1759, aided by sharp-eyed Highlanders, British General Wolfe stole up the shale slopes of Cap Diamant in a final desperate effort to wrest control of the summit from General Montcalm.

As dawn broke, a messenger rushed to Montcalm with the news that British troops had climbed the cliff and were forming on a series of small hills to the west of the fort.

Marshalling his forces, Montcalm left the safety of the stockade to engage the enemy.

BOTH GENERALS KILLED

The British held their fire to point-blank range. When it was over less than a half-hour later, both generals lay dying but the English had won Canada from France for all time.

Perched at the very summit of Cap Diamant, the Citadelle affords a spectacular view of the St. Lawrence River and the surrounding countryside.

From a walkway built into the cliff, the visitor can gaze at the wakes of ferries transporting commuters to Levis, on the opposite shore, or the steady traffic of ocean-going ships steaming toward Montreal, 160 miles upstream.

Turning back onto Grande Allée, Claude urged the horse into a canter as he headed for Lower Town and the heart of the Old City.

En route, he passed a sagging corner house, now a historic site, where Montcalm planned his strategy and built his defence of the city.

It has been converted into a restaurant specializing in French cuisine with tourtières, or meat pies, having to be sampled to be believed.

SQUARE RESTORED

The horse plodded into Place Royale, which has been restored to its appearance in Champlain's day.

At the far corner stands the little Notre Dame des Victoires (Our Lady of Victories) church, where a terrified population prayed successfully for the defeat of American forces under Generals Montgomery and Benedict Arnold laying siege to the city in the fall and winter of 1775.

Inside the church are paintings by Rubens and a scale model of a flimsy barque which ferried French pilgrims to alien shores.

In the middle of the square stands a bust of King Louis XIV beside a hotel of the same name which in years past was a gathering point for merchant seamen attracted to the hotel's strip shows.

Destroyed by fire in 1964, the building has been restored and its mortar-caulked walls today make up the dominant feature of the square.

Claude urged the horse towards Upper Town and passed in front of the Renaissance-style legislative assembly. The grounds in front of the building are known in winter as Place Carnaval, nucleus of a two-week period of collective abandon famous as the Quebec Winter Carnival.

"I'm not too crazy about being a guide during that time," said Claude. "The people seem to go crazy. Last year some guy tried to give my horse a drink out of a cane."

The official drink for the occasion is Caribou, a mixture of red wine and alcohol carried around in a hollow plastic cane.

Guysborough—the railway that never was

By IAN DONALDSON
The Canadian Press

A salmon fisherman rounds a bend on a river in the woods of eastern Nova Scotia and blinks.

Looming before him is a high concrete wall, standing in thick bushes by the river's edge.

Across the river is a similar block of concrete.

The fisherman, a stranger to the area, is puzzled.

Almost anyone in Guysborough County could clear up the mystery for him.

The concrete abutments on either side of the Salmon River far back in the woods 200 miles east of Halifax were built as part of the Guysborough Railway—the railroad that never was.

A carefully documented history of the line that played a role in a series of federal and provincial elections through four decades has been prepared by Bruce MacDonald of Antigonish, N.S., and published by Formac Ltd. of Antigonish.

It traces from 1897 to 1939 the many proposals and counter-proposals, actual start of construction and the swirling controversy that surrounded the long-proposed extension of the rails from end-of-steel near Sunny Brae to Guysborough town, a distance of 67 miles.

ABANDONED IN 1939

The road was cleared, bridges were built, abutments were put in place and some track was even laid before the project was abandoned in 1939.

Mr. MacDonald, whose book began as a thesis while he was at St. Francis Xavier University, traces the political clackety-clacks that finally derailed the railway that its proponents believed would have stemmed the depopulation of one of Nova Scotia's most economically-strapped counties.

"The role of partisan politics in the history of the Guysborough Railway cannot be underestimated," Mr. MacDonald writes. "Due to the close association of the scheme with the Liberal party, the railway was talked about more than acted upon."

Plans to build the railway were announced by Liberal governments and then cancelled when Conservatives took office, with the latter viewing the railway as nothing but an "election-bite" of the former.

The Guysboro Railway, Formac Ltd., Antigonish, N.S., 59 pages, $1.95.

Divorce lawyer Neil Fleishman appears to meet the stereotype of the swaggering, cigar-puffing male chauvinist, but 90 per cent of his clients in more than 3,000 cases have been women.

His book, Counsel for the Damned, is a picture of divorce courts where "thousands of women and children unprepared and unable to fend for themselves" face men in a male-dominated setting.

Juvenile courts and mental hospitals are full of women and children scarred by divorce, Mr. Fleishman writes, while men escape relatively easily.

"Four out of six women I will help get support in my office will, within 24 hours, be asking for and receiving social assistance. There is no law in the world that is going to force a man to make those alimony payments."

A specialist in divorce, custody and matrimonial law since 1945, Mr. Fleishman says he thought new Canadian divorce laws enacted in 1968 would mean a brief surge in divorce actions followed by a return to previous rates.

RATE STILL INCREASING

Instead, the rate has increased every year, and now 40 per cent of Canadian marriages end in divorce.

People seeking self-realization and liberation through divorce often find a brutal divorce court testimony, Mr. Fleishman says.

"The stripping bare of a personality is a form of assault on that personality. No one can painlessly give up his or her illusions, the little fictions that seem to make life go around."

He says men meet the ordeal better than women.

The divorce process touches all, Mr. Fleishman writes.

"The operative word in divorce and family law is need. The mighty, the meek, the wealthy, the poor, the workaholic—trouble at home brings them all low and they all need help."

"They are the condemned and what they need is relief—from hell."

Price rises are talk of spring fashions

By JEAN SHARP
The Canadian Press

Prices and shortages seem to figure as largely in fashion news for spring as color and line.

Almost every fashion expert consulted in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press commented on price rises already in effect or to come.

In St. John's, Nfld., a buyer said prices have gone up $3 or $4 on major items, such as dresses. She said because synthetic fabrics are based on petrochemicals, prices may go up again as a result of rising oil prices.

A Vancouver department store spokesman said the price increase on ready-to-wear has been about 10 per cent in the last year. The price of natural fibre fabrics has gone up 10 to 40 per cent. He said "real fabrics" are out for spring because of high prices for wool, cotton and linen. He predicted a cotton shortage this year because of problems in Mississippi.

A merchandise manager in Regina said prices go up with every shipment. He was concerned that a threatened strike of clothing workers in Montreal would add to the rise.

STYLES NATURAL

Whatever they cost, women's fashions for spring are taking on a soft, natural look. Dresses and soft suits are reappearing. A fashion co-ordinator in Winnipeg says a shirt look will be strong in dresses and suits. Suits will be shirt-like jackets over pleated or A-line skirts.

Denim is probably the biggest single fabric everywhere but it is not always what it seems. An Edmonton buyer said it can easily be imitated, especially in easy-care polyester. A Winnipeg co-ordinator said denim-like fabrics such as chambray or brushed cotton are often substituted.

But whatever it is, it is being used in everything from children's wear to dress clothes for women.

Another element is quality. A Toronto boutique owner said women are buying a few elegant items, rather than a number of lesser articles.

He also commented on the return of the dress, with easy-fitted, natural waists and full skirts.

Ivory and whites, blues and greens are the most important colors, in soft shades, said an Ottawa expert.

A Montreal spokesman said coats are following the general trend, in comfortable, belted, soft trench-coat styles. She said the trend to elegance will extend to evening dresses with bare shoulders and back.

Pants will still be fashionable, with loose, straight legs and high waists. They will be worn with light, T-shirt tops and cardigans.

Shoes, to go with the softer look, will have lighter plating forms, higher heels. A Vancouver buyer said the platforms are no thicker than half an inch.

A Halifax department store spokesman said the hat business has been booming for two seasons, and the large profile brim is popular this season. She said she expects business to continue to be good.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

What causes pericarditis?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know something about pericarditis, or which ever carditis affects the outer lining of the heart? If one has the outer lining removed can one expect a complete recovery or can one expect to be a semi-invalid for the rest of one's life? What is the life expectancy of this disease? What causes it?

DEAR READER — The outer surface of the heart is coated with a thin membrane. This same membrane continues to form a loose fitting outer sac. The entire membrane is called the pericardium (meaning around the heart). When it is inflamed it is called pericarditis. The "itis" means inflammation.

Inflammation can have many causes, including a viral infection and even chemical irritation. In many instances the cause of the inflamed pericardium is not known. It cannot be demonstrated to be caused by a virus or a bacteria in those cases. The term "idiopathic" is used in this case, which is a fancy medical term for "I don't know."

In many instances, the episode of pericarditis is self-limited and is not serious. In these cases no surgery is needed. In such cases the life expectancy is good. It can cause chest pain and even cause confusion with a heart attack, particularly in individuals in the heart attack age group. Rarely fluid will accumulate in the sac, between the membrane part covering the heart itself and the rest of the sac. If enough fluid collects it causes pressure on the heart and can interfere with its normal filling mechanism. This can seriously interfere with the circulation. In such rare problems the doctor can draw off the excess fluid through a needle inserted into the distended sac. It is like draining a large blister.

Very rarely the inflamed pericardial sac can undergo scarring and in the process constrict the heart's ability to beat properly. This is literally adhesions of the heart. This usually occurs much later or with rare cases of pericarditis caused by tuberculosis. In these instances the sac can be stripped away, literally freeing the heart of adhesions.

You can't say before the operation just how successful it will be. When the pericardium over the heart muscle is inflamed, the heart muscle itself is usually inflamed. Part of the success of the operation depends upon how much of the heart muscle has also been damaged with the disease. If there is little or no damage then an excellent recovery can be expected.

You can't say too much about the prognosis after surgery without knowing what the cause really is, tuberculosis, virus, or idiopathic. However, I would like to reassure you that in many instances of the disease there is little or no important damage to the heart muscle, and after surgery there is usually an excellent recovery with a good outlook for the future. This is an example of another operation that was difficult or impossible not too long ago. Before antibiotics, chest surgery for any reason was done as a last resort.

JAMES WHITEHEAD

One of our oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, James Whitehead passed away on Friday February 22, 1974, at St. Paul's Rest Home, where he had been a resident for several months. He was in his 94th year.

Mr. Whitehead was born July 31, 1880, at Stalybridge, Lancashire England, one of five sons of the late James Whitehead Sr. a prosperous tea merchant there.

The younger James received his education there, was married and employed as a salesman for a confectionery firm travelling over his territory and doing good business. However, due to an illness suffered in his youth, the climate of England was not conducive to his health and he decided to come to Canada, hoping that the change of climate would be beneficial to his health.

In 1908, he and his wife, the former Edith Holland, came to Canada. They were not coming to complete strangers as he had an uncle the late Abel Whitehead Sr., who had settled in Bury many years before, and a younger brother Abel who had been brought up by his uncle and was now married and settled in a home of his own and so there were relatives to greet the young couple upon their arrival.

He had long cherished the idea of having a store of his own and in 1911 his hope was realized. He was able to buy a small building on the Main street with living quarters overhead and he and his wife took possession.

He put in a stock of groceries, teas, spices and small wares. His business flourished so that he was obliged to enlarge his store and put in a full line of groceries, dry goods, footwear, wall paper, paint and general merchandise, all of which he sold at reasonable prices.

As his business further increased he was again obliged to enlarge his store.

At first he was able to carry on the business himself with the occasional help of his wife but as it kept expanding he found it necessary to engage outside help, a male clerk and a lady clerk.

It is worthy of note to mention here that in the 43 years of his business, he had only two male clerks and three lady clerks. One of the men, the late Johnny Lapointe, left to go into business for himself, the other, Wilfred Coates eventually bought the store in 1954 and is still operating it as a T.K. store. The lady clerks only left to be married.

Much of his success can be attributed to the little things he did. He always gave a 10 per cent discount on all purchases made by the ministers of the Methodist (United) and Anglican churches.

After his wife's death he had continued living alone in his apartment with a cleaning woman coming in weekly to do his cleaning and other necessary work.

In 1954, he sold the store to his clerk of many years, but kept his home.

UCW meeting

NORTH HATLEY — The February meeting of the North Hatley United Church Women was held in the Community Hall with an attendance of fifteen. The U.C.W. Purpose was repeated, also the Family Creed.

Mrs. Claude Smith lead the devotional period assisted by Mrs. M. Sharman, Mrs. G. Woodard and Mrs. L. Laird, with scripture readings. The theme being Listen to God's Voice, an appropriate thought for the Lenten season.

The programme presented by Mrs. J. Allworth was a timely subject, Bill 63. Clippings were read followed by an interesting discussion.

Minutes from the previous meeting were read and approved.

Correspondence consisted of a letter of thanks from Phyllis Burgess in Angola, for a parcel recently received; also one from our forgotten patient, saying how thrilled she was with the sweater we sent her for Christmas.

Sunshine Convener, Mrs. Woodard, reported several cards sent to shut-ins. It was decided that we buy some nightgowns and men's pyjamas for a local nursing home, where these garments are needed. Later more will be made from material on hand.

Mrs. S. Reed will represent Mrs. R. Olson at the next Community Club meeting.

The forgotten patient will be remembered by Mrs. C. Powers. Mrs. Alfred King and Mrs. J. Hall offered to visit the Connaught Home this month.

Plans for an Easter Banner were discussed. Mrs. G. Cheal and Mrs. R. Lundborg offered to make it with help and suggestions from the group.

The dedication of the Pulpit Lamp in memory of the late Mrs. Ronald Reed, which was to take place last month was postponed until March 17.

A quilt which is being made by the group is progressing nicely.

The President, Mrs. Olson closed the meeting with prayer. A social time followed, the hostess being Mrs. W. Caunter.

Green beans... an extraordinary treat

Vegetables, a prime source of vitamins and minerals, are essential to a good diet. If they're not eaten with enthusiasm at your house, the fault could be problem vegetables, not problem family.

An exceptional people-pleaser is this recipe for Swiss Green Beans. Cooked green beans are folded into a smooth sour cream sauce, then topped with grated Swiss cheese and crunchy, golden, buttered corn flake crumbs. The vegetable casserole makes a perfect accompaniment for simply prepared meats such as a roast or grilled steak.

SWISS GREEN BEANS

Corn Flakes Topping:

2 cups corn flakes or
½ cup packaged corn flake crumbs
2 tablespoons regular margarine or butter, melted
Green Beans Mixture:
2 tablespoons regular margarine or butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup dairy sour cream
4 cups French cut green beans, cooked and drained
2 cups (½ pound) grated process Swiss cheese

If using corn flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Mix corn flake crumbs with melted margarine. Set aside for topping.

Melt margarine in large saucepan over low heat; stir in flour, salt, pepper, onion and sugar. Add sour cream; stir until smooth. Increase heat to medium and cook until sauce is bubbly and thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat.

Fold green beans into sour cream sauce; spread in greased 10 x 6½ x 2 inch (1½ quart) baking dish. Sprinkle cheese evenly over green beans mixture. Sprinkle crumbs topping evenly over cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 20 minutes or until thoroughly heated.

Makes 6 servings, about ¾ cup each.

is faced with a single suit play.

An end play might develop, but good discarding can stop that. Thus South will have to go after hearts himself. A simple finesse is a 50 per cent chance. (Actually less on account of the diamond distribution, but still close.)

The deep-sea finesse of the nine gives declarer an extra chance. If it loses to the 10 or the jack declarer can still fall back on the simple finesse. This time it turns out that West holds both the jack and 10 so the nine forces the king and South has his ninth trick.

World Day of Prayer

BURY — The World Day of Prayer Service was held in the Bury United Church on Friday afternoon March 1st at 3 o'clock.

The theme of the service this year was "Make us Builders of Peace" and was a bilingual service written by the Women's Committee of the National Christian Council of Japan.

Many ladies attended this service from the Roman Catholic Church in Bury, and St. Paul's Anglican Church, as it was a joint service for the three congregations.

This bilingual service was in charge of Mrs. Lionel Allison, Pres. of the U.C.W., who met the ladies at the door welcoming them to this united service and passing out the order of service sheets. Mrs. Allison was assisted by Mrs. Rayfield Ross from St. Paul's Anglican Church, and Mrs. Emilien Lecours from the Catholic Church.

Mrs. Marilyn Coates played the organ for the hymns which were O God Our Help in Ages Past and In Christ There is no East or West. Three ladies from the Catholic Church favoured us with a French (anthem) hymn which was very much enjoyed. The hymns were sung alternating the verses in French and English.

Mrs. Lionel Allison gave the message. Make us Builders of Peace and it was given again in French by Mrs. Lecours.

Various ladies from the congregation read voices, a part of the program, some in English and some in French.

The collection was taken by Mrs. Walter Atkins and Mrs. Buchanan and a goodly sum of app. $45.00 was collected to be forwarded to the Women's Interchurch Council of Canada.

Following the service afternoon tea was served by the ladies of the U.C.W. and a pleasant social time was spent.

The President of the U.C.W. thanked all those for coming and extended a special thank-you to Father Breton, who was able to be with us.

Mrs. Ross extended thanks from the St. Paul's Anglican Church and Mrs. Gordon Dougherty voiced the appreciation from those present from the Catholic Church for the very pleasant afternoon.

MANSONVILLE — Make Us Builders of Peace! Throughout the ages this has been the cry, but it seems more keenly needed today - in the world, within each country, in the community and even within ourselves.

The South Bolton Bethel Pentecostal Church was the chosen scene on the afternoon of March 1 for this year's special worship and prayer service of Women's World Day of Prayer which several men attended.

The service was led by Mrs. Bruce Armstrong, who introduced the theme and thanked the Women's Committee of the National Christian Council of Japan for this 1974 service.

She then called upon the Sec. Mrs. May Young to give a resume of last year's meeting.

Mrs. Young explained that the offerings go into a fund called Intercontinental Mission and is sent to the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada in Toronto. This year's offering throughout the world will be used primarily for rehabilitation tasks as a result of the Biafran-Nigerian conflict.

Mrs. Armstrong read a prayer of Invitation and Mrs. Maria Bray opened the worship service with a prayer asking for guidance, part of which read "We, who should love each other, hate each other, we envy each other, we harm each other - where in the world can we find peace (in a world trembling with fear at the destructiveness of evil)", scripture reading was taken from 1 Peter 3:8-12.

The following readers each represented "the voice of" youth, hungry, discrimination, pollution and apathetic: (in sequence) Miss Janet Jewett, Vale Perkins Unit of the United Church, Mrs. Myrtle Tracy, Bethel Pentecostal Church, Mrs. Ruth Fullerton and Mrs. Alice George, Mansonville United Church, Mrs. Shirley Cote, Mansonville St. Paul's Anglican Church and the last subject, Mrs. Tracy.

The hymns sung and accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Ian Lousen of the Bolton Catholic Anglican Church were: In Christ there is No East or West, They'll Know We are Christians by Our Love and Bless be the Tie that Binds.

Scriptures were Psalm 46:1-11 and John 16:33, read by Mrs. Bertha Nichols and Mrs. Ed Morrison of the Pentecostal Church read from Matthew 5:3-12. Mr. Hermann Ommerli played a beautiful melody he composed and titled The House of Peace and Love, on the accordion and Mrs. Ellison Peasley of Bolton Centre sang the hymn Joyful Joyful We Adore Thee accompanied by Mrs. Lousen.

The Message was given by Mrs. Iris Milroy of Vale Perkins. In the message she said that if women of the world start to teach peace in their homes, we can look forward. We must start within ourselves, show kindness by eliminating distrust, discrimination and attempt to change the ways of those who cause harm to others and to build foundations in the family first by learning how not to have quarrels and teaching the children not to be selfish.

Mrs. Milroy went on to say that the pivot of it all is human greed which is causing the downfall of the system today; to have peace, we must have brotherhood.

The offering was taken by Mrs. Albert Cameron and Mrs. Walter Hendrykowsky.

Rev. Coughlin of the Mansonville United Church known as Ron by his parishioners, thanked Rev. Ed Morrison for having the large gathering in the Pentecostal Church for this special worship service and closed with Benediction followed by the words "Everyone of us must set the example, be messengers of peace."

MELBOURNE RIDGE — A very touching World Day of Prayer service was held at the Melbourne Ridge United Church in the evening. It was a children's family service and Rev. Cameron opened the service, which began in a darkened hall.

One of the father's lit a large candle which represented Jesus and his gift of light and love. Each child took a small candle and lit it from the large candle. With this each child had the light of Jesus.

The second part was lead by another father. Pictures of people of other countries were displayed and the prayer Lord Jesus help us to love and share with our brothers and sisters in God's family was repeated by the congregation.

A collection was taken at this point.

In the third part Matt. 25:35-40 was read and then the leaders read, "Do we remember what Jesus said: When I was hungry, you gave me food."

One child gave another some food.

The next was, "When I was thirsty" and another child gave a friend a glass of water. This continued with one child giving another clothing, cheer, friendship etc. representing whatever you did that was kind or good to others, you did that to me.

The congregation sang "For our families Lord, we do pray" to the tune of Kumbaya.

Fourteen banners had been made by Mr. and Mrs. Thornin and some of the U.C.W. members.

Each child took a banner in turn from their display point on stage and carried it to the fathers who hung them on the wall for the children.

These banners carry messages of Love, Friendship, etc. and add color and beauty to our church hall.

The service closed with a prayer and benediction.

A lunch of coffee and cookies was served before going home.

AYER'S CLIFF — About fifty people were present for the annual World Day of Prayer Service which was held on March 1st with St. Barthelmy Catholic Church as the host Church this year.

The service was conducted from the bilingual printed word and was led by Mrs. Peter Despres of St. Barthelmy with Mrs. N. Wintle of St. George's Anglican Church and Mrs. Warren Robinson of the United Church assisting.

Scripture lessons included in the service were read by Miss Angles Webster, Mrs. W. Browning and Father Denis Fortin.

Other ladies who read prayers in French or English were Madame R.A. Dupuis, Madame D. Tetreault, Mrs. Maude Chadey, Mrs. E. Wintle and Mrs. N. Pierce.

Father Fortin delivered an inspiring message in French and English on the Prayer service Theme "Builders of Peace", pointing out our great opportunities and advantages to become such builders.

The choir of St. Barthelmy Church presented a special hymn "Gethsemane" with Father Fortin taking the solo part. This was beautifully rendered and much enjoyed. Miss C. Dubois was organist for the entire service.

At the close of his service the ladies of the Church served delicious refreshments in the Church Hall and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

The offering which was taken, and is used by the Inter-Church Council to promote educational projects and the distribution of Christian literature in Canada and around the world, amounted to $39.40.

Baseball roundup

Bob Darwin and Steve Braun accounted for five runs on one home run each to help Minnesota Twins win their first exhibition baseball game of the year Sunday, a 9-5 decision over Houston Astros.

Darwin had a two-run homer and Braun hit a three-run drive in the fifth.

The Twins had lost 11 straight.

In other games, Cincinnati Reds blanked Atlanta Braves 7-0, Baltimore Orioles beat Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3, Chicago White Sox downed Kansas City Royals 8-5, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 5-1, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated New York Mets 9-2, Chicago Cubs topped Oakland Athletics 6-2, San Francisco Giants dropped California Angels 8-2, Montreal Expos defeated Texas Rangers 5-1, and Cleveland Indians beat Milwaukee Brewers 3-1.

One half of Boston Red Sox got by Philadelphia Phillies 10-7, and the other half of the squad dropped a 4-3 squeaker to St. Louis Cardinals.

The Reds got 17 hits, three by Ken Griffey, while three Cincinnati pitchers—Pat Osburn, Steve Kealey and Pat Zachery—scattered five hits. Hank Aaron was hitless in four trips to the plate.

CABELL STARS

Inos Cabell drove in three runs and had a pair of singles to help the Orioles, who scored four runs in the fourth inning.

Jorge Orta had a homer and two singles, driving in four runs, to lead the White Sox past the Royals. The Sox scored seven runs off Marty Pattin in the first three innings.

Bobby Murcer doubled home two runs and scored another as the Yankees staged a four-run rally in the fourth inning to beat the Tigers.

A two-run homer, a single and a sacrifice fly by Ron Cey was the difference in Los Angeles' victory. Cey, who has six RBIs in his last two games, led an 11-hit Dodger attack.

Bill Madlock continued his torrid hitting spree by going three-for-four and Vic Harris and Jerry Morales hit homers to lead the Cubs. Maddock has hit 620 so far in exhibition play.

Pitchers John D'Aquisto, Frank Ricelli and Mike Caldwell held the Angels to just three hits to lead the Giants.

Bob Bailey had two doubles and scored twice to lead the Expos. Shortstop Frank Duffy homered and scored Cleveland's insurance run, as the Indians ended the Brewers' winning streak at three games.

Outfielder Bernie Carbo had four singles in Boston's victory over Philadelphia, while Reggie Smith hit a game-winning homer in the ninth and Ken Reitz drove in the winning run for the Cards.

Smith chides Fisk in running feud

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Reggie Smith called Carlton Fisk a "cry baby" and a "back stabber" Sunday and fanned the flames of a simmering feud between the former Boston Red Sox teammates.

"I'm glad to get away from a cry baby like Fisk," said Smith, standing at the batting cage at Al Lang Field, wearing the emblem of St. Louis Cardinals across his chest.

The Cards were playing host to the Red Sox in an exhibition baseball game and it marked the first confrontation between outfielder Smith and catcher Fisk since their bitter barbs last winter, after Smith had been traded to the Cards in a four-player deal.

Darrell Johnson, the Red Sox manager, gave instructions that his players were not to discuss the case. Yet Smith, an outfielder who went to the Red Sox in 1966 with great expectations, and Carl Yastrzemski, old friends, stood at the third base line about 15 minutes in conversation.

Smith and Fisk kept at a discreet distance during the warmups. In the first inning, Smith came to bat with Fisk behind the plate for Boston. They exchanged only cold stares—no words. Smith took a called third strike from pitcher Bill Lee.

Before the game, Smith, who batted .303 and hit 21 home runs for the Red Sox last season, said he had not seen Fisk since the 1973 campaign.

SEES PICTURE

"I've only seen his picture in the paper and read all that stuff he's been saying behind my back," Smith said. "He didn't have the nerve to say it to my face. He had the chance. We were called into the manager's office together."

There has been a long-time personality clash between Fisk and Smith. Smith has had problems with other players on the Boston team. He and pitcher Lee got in a locker room fight last year. Smith and Luis Tiant had a mild skirmish on another occasion.

In 1972, Fisk criticized both Smith and Yastrzemski, saying they had not measured up to their roles as team leaders.

After the 1973 season, Fisk, speaking in Salem, Mass., publicly said he thought the Red Sox would be better off without Smith.

"He is a troublemaker," Fisk said. That's how the trouble started.

Fisk was in the Boston locker room when told of Smith's remark about his being a "cry baby."

"What are you trying to do, stir up trouble?" the young catcher said. "I refuse to comment."

Canadiens top Islanders

Esposito scores four more, Bruins win two

Boston Bruins centre Phil Esposito gets the majority of his National Hockey League goals by parking in the slot and firing a pass from a team-mate past the opposition's netminder.

Esposito's winning formula gave him four more goals during the weekend—two in Boston's 5-2 win over New York Rangers Sunday and two in the Bruins' 5-2 win over Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday.

In another game Sunday night, Montreal defenceman Larry Robinson used Esposito's tactic, scoring twice from the slot as the Canadiens defeated New York Islanders 4-2.

In other Sunday games Toronto and Philadelphia Flyers tied 2-2, Atlanta Flames and Chicago Black Hawks tied 3-3, and Buffalo Sabres defeated Minnesota North Stars 5-2.

Chicago downed Montreal 3-1 Saturday. Buffalo tied St. Louis Blues 2-2. Pittsburgh Penguins outscored Vancouver Canucks 8-6. Philadelphia defeated Minnesota 4-2, the Rangers won 3-1 over the Islanders, and Los Angeles Kings blanked Detroit Red Wings 2-0.

Canadiens 4 Islanders 2

Robinson's second goal of the game at 1:53 of the third period broke a 2-2 tie and the Canadiens went on to their fourth win over New York this season.

Robinson scored, on a pass from Yvan Cournoyer, from the slot "where Esposito gets all his goals. It just happened that there was an opening there and I just moved in."

Henri Richard got the other two goals for the Canadiens. Craig Cameron and Ralph Stewart replied for the Islanders. New York now is winless in its last 10 outings.

BRUINS 5 RANGERS 2

Aside from Esposito's two goals, other Boston marksmen were Ken Hodge. Terry O'Reilly and Don Marcotte.

New York claimed that O'Reilly kicked his goal at 19:36 of the first period into the net, but referee Brian Lewis allowed it to stand.

The Wayne Cashman-Hodge-Esposito line, which accounted for all five Boston goals in Saturday's win over Toronto, picked up six points Sunday and now has 306 in regular-season play, 30 short of the league record they set in 1970-71.

Maple Leafs 2 Flyers 2

Borje Salming's goal at 19:09 of the second period gave the Leafs the tie with the Flyers who led 2-0 in the first period on two goals by Simon Nolet. Dave Keon got the other Toronto goal.

Flames 3 Black Hawks 3

A disputed goal by Jacques Richard with 27 seconds left in the third period gave Atlanta the tie. The Black Hawks claimed Atlanta forward Bobby Leiter was illegally in the crease but referee Ron Wicks ruled he had been pushed in.

Bill White, Stan Mikita and Dick Redmond of Chicago each received game misconduct penalties when they pursued their point too vehemently with Wicks.

Sabres 3 North Stars 2

Rick Martin scored three goals—giving him a club record of 46—as the Sabres downed Minnesota. Larry Mickey and Paul Terbenche got the other Buffalo goals. Murray Oliver and Dennis Hextall replied for the North Stars.

Play resumes Tuesday with St. Louis visiting the Islanders.

Toronto at Los Angeles and Minnesota at home to California Golden Seals.

WHA roundup

New England Whalers, staggering from the vagaries of the World Hockey Association schedule which required them to play 15 of their last 17 games on the road, suffered their worst defeat ever Sunday night.

The WHA defending champions were drubbed 10-1 by Winnipeg Jets who assured themselves of a playoff berth in the West Division and established a club scoring record.

The victory was the second in a row for the Jets since Bobby Hull, who scored his 48th goal, turned the coaching over to his assistant, Nick Micoski.

In other games, Toronto Toros lost 4-2 to Chicago Cougars, Houston Aeros edged Cleveland Crusaders 4-3, Edmonton Oilers topped Vancouver Blazers 3-2 and Minnesota Fighting Saints downed Quebec Nordiques 5-3.

In Saturday's action, New Jersey Knights tied the Crusaders 4-4 and the Cougars defeated the Nordiques 4-3. Toronto Toros visit Cherry Hill to meet New Jersey in the only game tonight.

Cleveland 3 at Houston 4

Gordie Howe set up the tying goal and scored the winner for the leaders of the West Division. Gordie's son Mark pulled Cleveland goalie Bob Whidden out of position and set up the winning goal that stretched Aeros current winning streak to four games. It was their first victory of the season over the Crusaders.

Chicago 4 at Toronto 2

Although the Toros still occupy second place in the East Division, they now are separated from the fifth-place Cougars by only three points. The Cougars took command in the second period on goals by defenceman Larry Mavety and centre Ralph Backstrom. The teams exchanged single goals in the first and third periods.

Minnesota 5 at Quebec 3

Mike Walton's two goals in the third period—his 50th and 51st of the season—keyed the Fighting Saints to victory before 7,305 Quebec fans. Walton's first goal was scored while the Saints were shorthanded through a penalty to John Arbour. George Morrison also scored twice for the winners—his 35th and 36th of the campaign.

Vancouver 2 at Edmonton 3

Edmonton Oilers emerged in a tie for third place with the Jets by nipping Vancouver Blazers before 4,546 fans. The winning goal was provided by defenceman Doug Barrie from a scramble near the net with less than four minutes remaining. The loss eliminated the Blazers from playoff contention.

James Lyng cops provincial hockey championship

By BRUCE PORTER
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — James Lyng High School from Montreal copped the provincial playdowns for senior boys hockey over the weekend at Bishop's University.

The runners-up of the final contest, Alexander Galt Regional High School, clobbered Centennial High 8-3 in the opening game of the playdowns Friday.

Galt took a 3-0 lead in the first period on two goals by Alan Webb and another by Tim Kennedy. Centennial narrowed the Piper lead to one goal when Marty Holleley, Grant Gentleman and Robert Elson scored. Dannie Speck tallied for Galt in the second.

Jim Sharman, Pierre Cote, Tom Hunting and Kennedy had goals in the third period for Galt in the win.

Roussin High and James Lyng met next in the W.B. Scott Rink for the other semi-final match. Lyng doubled the Le Royer School Commission representative's output with a 4-2 victory.

Tony Lemme, Bill Miller, Scratch Orsini and Tommy Cloberty were the James Lyng marks men. Normand Lefrancois and Richard Boivin tallied for Roussin.

Centennial and Roussin competed in the consolation final, with the Centennial High squad again going to defeat. Roussin won 9-3 and was paced by Sylvain Belisle's hat-trick. Two goals were scored by Richard Boivin, while Roussin singles went to Serge Pouliot, Andre Monette, Michel Lefebvre and Normand Lefrancois.

Centennial's goals came from Robbie Alikas, Jory Kraus and Randy MacKenzie. The first major penalty of the playoffs was given during that game. Roussin's Serge Pouliot was the recipient of the five minute infraction.

Except for a four minute lapse in the Alexander Galt defence against James Lyng, both teams were very evenly matched. But during that span, the Montreal team slid home their five goals in two different periods as they blanked the Pipers 5-0 in the championship final.

Lyng captain Mike Clahane netted the winning marker at 4:06 in the first period, followed by Bruno Londei at 5:11. Clahane scored again at 7:17 to give Lyng their first three goals in just over three minutes.

Scratch Orsini hit in the third frame at 4:52 to put the GMIAA champs ahead by four goals. Eight seconds later, Danny Caccavelli ended the scoring.

The game was marred by a total of 55 minutes in penalties and was probably the roughest championship game that has been played in the last few years.

Lyng's Clahane and Galt's Jim Sharman squared off in the first period at 13:33 and both spent the remainder of the game watching from the stands.

The second period was relatively quiet, but at the 5:18 mark of the third period, two more combattants were at it. Piper Shane Whipple received a major for fighting for his part in the scramble, while Mike Cinquino was given a fighting major, as well as a match penalty for kicking, and another five-minute penalty which had to be served by his team.

The last two brawlers joined their team-mates on the sidelines for a better look at the game immediately after the fight.

Goaltender Brian Doyle of James Lyng was picked as the most valuable player in the championship tilt.

Galt won the championship trophy for the two previous years, and has won the hardware three out of the last five years.

Waterloo rally wins college hockey title

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Bob McKillop had a simple message for his University of Waterloo Warriors before they took the ice for a 10-minute overtime period against Sir George Williams University Georgians Saturday.

And the Warriors heeded their coach's words and outscored the Georgians 2-1 in the period to take a 6-5 decision and the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union hockey title.

"Before the overtime, I told them they had made a hell of a comeback," McKillop said. "I told them to play sound hockey and don't press too much. I said the puck will go in if you're working."

The puck went in for the Warriors only 21 seconds after the extra session began when Russ

Elliott popped his second goal of the game and the Warriors went up by two goals when Mike Guimond tipped in a shot just over two minutes later for his second goal of the afternoon.

Ron Hawkshaw and Bob Madeley got the other goals for the Warriors with Rory McKay, Brian Morin, Marcel Lapierre, Maurice Desfosses and Alain Vendette replying for the Georgians.

Waterloo, making its first appearance in a national hockey final, led 2-1 at the end of the first period but trailed 3-2 after two.

WOLFE OUTSTANDING
The only reason Waterloo was not leading by a wide margin after the second period was the work of Sir George goaltender Bernie Wolfe, appearing in his final college hockey game.

Wolfe, selected as all-Canadian goalie and as the game's most valuable player, turned aside all 24 Waterloo drives in the second period and faced 57 shots during the game while his team-mates fired 38 at Waterloo's Jake Dupuis.

"Let's face it, Wolfe is a good goaltender," said McKillop. "But we have had to have good goaltending too and when we needed it, we got it."

"Jake kept us in the game in that third period."

No one really expected either Waterloo or Sir George to put on what fans felt was a good show. In fact no one really expected that Waterloo or Sir George would even be playing for the national crown.

"I guess that should destroy the myth that St. Mary's and Toronto have to be in the final for it to be a good hockey game," said Georgians' coach Bob Philip.

"We had it when it was 4-2 in the third period and then we just gave them two easy goals. We were a little sloppy when it was 4-2."

DESFOSSSES SCORES
Desfosses had given the Georgians a 4-2 lead at 1:58 of the final period but Madeley scored on a breakaway at 4:22 when he deked defenceman Ron Lapointe at the blueline and walked in beating Wolfe high on the glove side.

Then Elliott got the tying goal at 6:39 when he took a centring pass from behind the net that just got by Wolfe's outstretched stick and the Waterloo forward, who was standing untouched in front of the goal, had no trouble tipping the puck in.

"This club never panicked," said McKillop. "We have no all-Canadians and we have no big stars. They just went out and won the whole thing."

Richelieu Valley wins Visser, Stanstead captures consolation

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Richelieu Valley Regional High School captured the coveted Visser Trophy over the weekend at Bishop's University for the provincial championship in senior boys basketball.

St. Thomas High, the runners-up in the championship round, trounced Philemon Wright Friday night by an 81-35 score. Lloyd Pullen was the high scorer for the winners with 27 points, while Bill Saban had 20. Mike Milks and Brad Wigney made 11 and 10 points respectively for the Wright squad.

Stanstead College took on the RVRHS Vikings in the second game of the playdowns Friday but lost 54-31 to the South Shore representatives. Stephen Dowd netted 22 points for the Vikings, with Terry Erskine scoring 12. Jim Etcheverry and Brian McCarthy tallied 16 and 10 points for the Stanstead Spartans.

Saturday morning, Stanstead met the Philemon Wright team in the consolation final. The Spartans came up with the victory over the Falcons, 55-35. McCarthy was top scorer for Stanstead with 19 points, while team-mates Etcheverry and Ron MacDonald making 14 and 13 points. Wigney was high scorer for the Falcons with 10 points.

The St. Thomas squad floundered in the championship final against Richelieu Valley, as the Montreal team dropped the contest by a 47-35 margin. Dowd was high scorer for the Vikings again with 20 points, Erskine following with 14.

Bob Harmidy got 13 points for the downed Knights, while Dave Jardine scored nine points. Pullen, St. Thomas' 6'4" center, was held to only four points in the game, after scoring 27 the night before.

Dowd was also the high scorer in the meet with 42 points. Pullen of the St. Thomas squad was second with 31 points, while Stanstead's Etcheverry was third with 30 points.

Green takes golf title

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Hubert Green broke out of a tie with four birdies in a row, enabling him to take three-stroke victory in the Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament Sunday.

Green, rapidly gaining stature as one of the game's outstanding young players, had a final-round 71, one under par on the 7,088-yard Deerwood Country Club course, and joined idle Johnny Miller as the only multiple winners on the pro tour this year.

Green collected $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 as he recorded his second victory of the season and fourth in the last 12 months with a 276 total, 12 under par.

He pushed his earnings to $82,663 for the year, second only to Miller.

Green's victory went with his earlier triumph in the Bob Hope Desert tournament and was set up by a decisive string of four consecutive birdies beginning on the seventh hole.

Ben Kern of London, Ont., tied for 15th place with three others with a final-round 72 for 285.
