

Progress of Music in Canada; Celebrities Gather at McGill to Hear Child Prodigy

A section of the large and enthusiastic audience which attended the recent concert given by Miss Ellen Ballon, Montreal's wonderful child pianiste, in the Convocation Hall of the Royal Victoria College. Sir William Macdonald and Principal Peterson, of McGill University, are prominent in the front row. Miss Ballon has gone to New York to take a two years' course in piano tuition under Joseffy, on the conclusion of which she will go to Europe for further study. It is predicted by famous pianists who have heard her that she will become the most famous pianiste in the world. (Flashlight photograph by Homier, exclusively for The Standard.)

BISHOP OF SASKATCHEWAN.—The Right Reverend Jervis Arthur Newnham, D.D., third Bishop of Saskatchewan, was born at Bath, England, in 1854, his father, the Reverend George W. Newnham, M.A., at that time being the Vicar of Corsham, Wilts, England. He received his early education at Bath, and came to Montreal in 1873, when he entered McGill College, taking his B.A. degree with honors in 1878, and M.A. in 1883, subsequently passing through the Montreal Diocesan Theological College. In 1891 he received the degree of D.D. from St. John's College, Winnipeg, of whose Council he is a member. He was ordained Deacon by Bishop Oxenden in 1878, and Priest by Archbishop Bond in 1880. He was successively missionary at Onslow, Que., 1880-1882; curate at Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, 1882-1886; rector of St. Matthias, Montreal, 1886-1891. In 1891 he was recommended by the late Bishop Horden, of Moosonee, to the Church Missionary Society in England, who support the missionaries in that diocese, as a suitable person to succeed him in the Bishopric, and he went out to Moosonee in 1891 as a missionary to gain the necessary experience. Bishop Horden died before his resignation could take effect, and the Society, in conjunction with the Archbishop of Rupert's Land, selected Rev. Mr. Newnham for the vacant See. The appointment was duly made by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the new Bishop was consecrated second Bishop of Moosonee on August 6th, 1893, at Winnipeg, by the Most Reverend Robert Machray, Archbishop of Rupert's Land, assisted by Bishops Young, of Athabasca; Pinkham, of Saskatchewan and Calgary; Burn, of Qu'Appelle; and Walker, of North Dakota. In 1903 His Lordship was translated to Saskatchewan, the seat of which Diocese is at Prince Albert.

HISTORIC CURLING BONSPIEL.—In the curling world at present the chief subject of discussion is whether or not the weather will be propitious for the great bonspiel which will be held in Montreal to celebrate the centenary of the Montreal Curling Club during the week commencing January 21. The latest information guarantees a magnificent series of contests. The Bonspiel committee has made arrangements with the Windsor Hotel to provide a banquet for between five and six hundred persons on January 24th. The date has been fixed in midweek, so that all visitors who arrive in the city, and have possibly finished with the competitions in the first two days or so, can enjoy themselves, and take back home the memory of the hospitality of the Montreal Club on this historic occasion. Entries have been pouring in from all directions: Scotland, New Jersey, Detroit, St. John's, Nfld., St. John, N.B., Ottawa, Winnipeg, Sherbrooke, Orms-town and, in all, the number of curlers expected to take part will be over four hundred. The Standard this week reproduces group pictures of the Thistle and St. Lawrence Clubs, Montreal, taken especially for this paper, both of which organizations will enter many rinks for the various trophies.

Canada's Canal Systems Have Played Big Part in the Development of the Country

Lock No. 2 of the old Beauharnois Canal, from which electric energy may be secured for Montreal.

The Lachine Canal in the immediate vicinity of the C.P.R. bridge at Lachine.

THE CANALS OF CANADA—THEIR ORIGIN AND EXTENT.—An interesting paper on this subject was recently read before the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers by Mr. Ernest Marceau. The writer reviewed the beginnings of the different canal systems of the Dominion, going back to the time when efforts were made by the Fathers of the Seminary of St. Sulpice to overcome the difficulties of navigation between Montreal and Lachine. In the year 1700, the then Superior of the Seminary undertook to improve the little River St. Pierre and to open up a cut from Lake St. Pierre (a shallow body of water lying about half-way between Montreal and Lachine, which has since disappeared) to a point on the St. Lawrence above the worst part of the Rapids. The contract for the work provided for the excavation of a canal, 24 arpents in length, 12 feet wide at the surface of the ground, and of varying width at the bottom according to the depth of cutting. The work was begun in October, 1700, and after a series of financial difficulties, was abandoned. In 1717, Mr. Chaussegros de Léry, who had charge of all the military and civil engineering work in Montreal, reported that three-fourths of the work was done and in 1733 the complete route was surveyed and fresh plans and estimates were prepared. From that date nothing can be found in the Seminary papers relating to the canal which would seem to indicate that the work was never completed.

In the year 1779 under the direction of General Haldimand, a series of four canals was put under way by the Royal Engineers for the purpose of permitting canoes or York boats to overcome the various rapids between Lakes St. Louis and St. Francis. The canals were located as follows:—The lowest one a short distance above Cascades Point at the rapids designated La Fauvette. It was 400 feet long and had one lock. The second was at the Trou du Moulin and was 200 feet long and without locks. The third was situated at the Split Rock Rapid. It consisted of one lock built in a side channel formed by a natural opening through the rocky shore. The last and most important was located at Coteau-du-Lac; its length was 900 feet, and it had three locks. The work was commenced in 1779, and completed in 1783. In 1800 certain changes were recommended in these canals, which were subsequently carried out.

Another Canadian Canal, built about the same time, ran along the Canadian side of Sault Ste. Marie. This was constructed between 1798 and 1802 by the original North-West Company. It was 2580 feet in length, with a raised bridge or pathway of round logs at the side of it, 12 feet wide, for oxen to track the boats. About 170 feet from the upper part of the canal a storehouse was built, 25 feet long and 23 feet wide. The fall overcome by this lock was 9 feet, or about half the lift in the present locks, both on the Canadian and American sides. The undertaking was of a private character, and no record of its construction was kept in any of the public documents. It was probably built of timber, as no traces of masonry have been found on the spot.

In the past 100 years, upwards of $100,000,000 have been spent by successive Canadian Governments in the perfecting of the canal system of the Dominion. To public enterprise is due the existence of the Lachine, Beauharnois, Soulanges, Cornwall, Prescott, Rideau, Welland, Sault Ste. Marie, Chambly, Trent Valley, Murray, and Ste. Anne de Bellevue Canals. A big project, the carrying out of which the next decade will probably witness at a cost of $100,000,000, is the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal undertaking, which even now is assuming definite form.

Adornment of a Canadian Square; What the 20th Century Windsor Hotel Will Be Like

Plate showing the improvements which will be in evidence in this well-known Canadian hostelry after the rebuilding operations have been completed. Engraved from a composition especially prepared in Montreal for The Standard. When finished, the hotel, it is claimed, will be unsurpassed on the Continent. Montreal music lovers will be glad to learn that the big dining hall will be so constructed as to permit of its being used for high-class concerts and recitals.

PROMINENT LANDMARKS ON DOMINION SQUARE, MONTREAL—St. James' Cathedral and the statue to the late Bishop Bourget, the Cathedral's founder. This edifice is a replica of the great basilica of St. Peter's at Rome, but it is only one-third as large. In its crypt are buried the three predecessors of Archbishop Bruchesi, namely: Bishops Lartigue and Bourget and Archbishop Fabre. The Bourget monument is from the chisel of Mr. Philippe Hebert, the famous French-Canadian sculptor.

DOMINION SQUARE, MONTREAL, AND ITS PUBLIC BUILDINGS.—In so far as its environment is concerned, Dominion Square is undoubtedly one of the finest public parks to be found in this or in any other city. From its southern section a glorious view can be obtained of Mount Royal, while all around it, on every side, imposing structures meet the eye. Chief among these are the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. James, the Anglican Church of St. George the Martyr, the Dominion Square Methodist Church, the Y. M. C. A. building, the Windsor Hotel, the Bellevue Flats, the Mount Royal Sanatorium, and other places of interest. The square itself is beautifully laid out in walks, flower beds, etc., and it contains memorials to the late Queen Victoria and Sir John A. Macdonald, as well as to the Montreal soldiers who participated in the South African War of 1899-1902. This memorial is now in course of erection. In the lower or southern section of the square may be found a couple of Russian cannon, which were captured, among many others, at the siege of Sebastopol by the Allied Armies, and which were subsequently sent to Montreal by the British Government. The guns bear the imperial eagle of Russia near what in modern times is known as the breach.

Dominion Square was originally a Roman Catholic burying ground, and, although the greater majority of the bodies which were interred beneath its surface have since been exhumed and re-buried in the Cote des Neiges Cemetery, quite a number still remain, however, in the former "God's acre."

Of all the public buildings surrounding the square, the two oldest are the Windsor Hotel and St. James' Cathedral. The former was opened in the seventies, and the latter was commenced in 1869. It occupied upwards of thirty years in building, and was only opened for public worship about eight years ago. Its interior, so means finished as yet, as the permanent altars, etc., have not yet been placed in position.

When the addition to the Windsor is completed, and the present structure overhauled, Montreal will possess an hotel to which there will be no superior on this continent. There may be larger and more elaborate establishments on which greater sums of money have been spent, but probably none better equipped to carry on the business, or more safely constructed. The new structure will be a model of latter-day ideas in hotel building. Every known device to facilitate the handling of the hotel traffic, and every means to protect and make comfortable the guests, will be employed in making the greater Windsor a most modern hotel.

After the addition has been completed and alterations on the present building made, the Windsor Hotel will be a ten-storey structure occupying that large block of real estate bounded by Peel, Dorchester, Stanley and Cypress streets. Work on the new building is going forward, at present the steel work being under way. The front of the addition will be of Montreal limestone, while the Cypress street side will be of Scotch firebrick. The whole will be absolutely fireproof.

Late Hints From the Parisian World of Fashion; In Musical and Theatrical Circles

BEAUTIFUL PARISIAN MODELS—The Standard, by special arrangement with the celebrated photographer, Henri Manuel, of Paris, is enabled to present, weekly, to its readers, the newest creations in fashion, posed specially by famous Parisian models. Unlike the illustrations in fashion magazines, these reproductions are from life. The above graceful Empire gown of white and black spotted net over white chiffon and silk, is from the Maison Bone Sœurs. The robe is embroidered down the front and skirt in design. Large pointed Empire revers fall on lace frilled sleeves.

It is stated that Mme. Patti, who has just celebrated a new "farewell," is anxious to sing once more in "Il Barbiere," and to obtain the co-operation in the performance of M. Jean de Reszke. "Will such another Rosina ever charm us, so simple and natural, coquettish and humorous, and vocally perfect?" once wrote the reply at the moment might be that Mme. Patti, for her part, at any rate, has no intention of seeking to gain fresh public laurels in the famous work. If performed at all, it will be given, one gathers, on the stage of Mr.

de Reszke's private theatre in his Paris residence, in the presence only of a select few.

Raphael Kellert, the boy violinist, of Montreal, and Frieda Stender, soprano, appear in Mount Vernon, N.Y., on January 15th, for the benefit of the Mount Vernon Day Nursery.

Clarence Eddy, the New York organist, who is touring in the North-West, was delayed forty-eight hours by snowstorms last week while on his way from Minneapolis to Moose Jaw, Canada. He writes that in North Dakota the snow drifts piled up higher than the engine, and that it was almost impossible to get through them. The concert was given two days late, which necessitated a change in some of his other bookings.

On February 12th the Mendelssohn Chorus of Toronto and the Pittsburg Orchestra of Pittsburg, will give a grand concert at Carnegie Hall, in New York. The chorus numbers 225 voices, and two of the soloists will be Corinne Rider-Kelsey, soprano, and

George Hamlin, tenor. Probably the works presented will be Humperdinck's "Pilgrimage to Kevlaar"; Liszt's "XIII. Psalm," and Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony."

An interesting feature of the recent provincial revival of "East Lynne" is the appearance of Dorothy Grimston as Lady Isabel. Miss Grimston is a daughter of the famous Mrs. Kendal, who, a generation ago, created the part. The young actress, among other things, has been able to act in French with Mme. Rejane's company.

Miss Dorothy Brenner, with Yorke & Adams in "Bankers and Brokers," at the Academy of Music, during the week beginning Monday, Jan. 14.

Gertrude Quinlan, in "The College Widow," at His Majesty's Theatre, during the week of January 14th.

Dorothy Tennant and Thomas Meighan, in "The College Widow," at His Majesty's Theatre, during the week of January 14th.

MICHAEL MATOFF, Russian violinist, who will give a concert in the Karn Hall on Monday evening, January 14.

Extreme Simplicity in Dress is Noted

THE LATE DR. J. D. CAMERON, who passed away last week from an attack of typhoid fever. At the time of his death he was assistant gynaecologist at the Montreal General Hospital.

One of the principal characteristics of dresses of the present season is the extreme simplicity of their cut. This is to be remarked not only as regards tailored suits, but also with respect to dresses having greater pretensions to elegance. It must certainly be said that they are not a whit less handsome on this account, as it is not the number, but rather the width and length of the gores which impart the flowing, graceful movement to a skirt. The rest depends upon the richness of the trimming adorning the robe. Nothing could be less complicated than the cut of some of the early spring models, where the skirt is composed of two gores, only the seams being placed in the centre of the back and front, and both being cut on the bias. The jackets completing these skirts, though slightly outlining the figure at the back and sides, possess no side pieces, having only straight fronts and a more or less shaped back. The rather full sleeves are cut in a single piece. The trimming is merely bias bands of self-colored velvet.

Chiffon and Net Waists Are a Feature at Present.

Chiffon waists, in colors and white, are a present feature in the world of dress, thus indicating that the sheer, light effects are preferred to the heavier fabrics. Novelty silks are used as foundations for these waists, Pompadour, plaid and stripe silks being utilized for this purpose. In white chiffon waists, those which are elaborately lace-trimmed seem to be most in favor. Combinations of chiffon and lace, light weight silks and lace make up many of the handsomest evening models. Net waists continue to be favored. Some of the newest net models are in the deep butter-color nets. Others are more on the cream tone. The prominence of ecru and butter tones in net and lace waists is in shade with the revival of tan and yellow shades in other garments.

Lingerie Waists Will be a Feature for the Spring.

Among the high novelties in imported lingerie waists is to be seen the use of crochet motifs. These are done in the Irish lace stitches and take the form of fruits, flowers, nuts and berries. These motifs are applied in relief, or are detached and pendant. Considerable use will be made of colored embroideries in lingerie waist lines. The Cluny laces have a high place in lingerie waists. Valenciennes' lace-trimmed waists are still in favor. Shadow and open English embroidery are combined in some of the newest patterns. The jumper waist of all-over embroidery will be the real novelty of the spring.

Among the spring colors presented in a new swatch book from Paris is a pearl gray, a mauve of the pinkish orchid, two shades of reseda green, one peacock green and bronze, a pale pink and a light old rose, three shades of tan series running to brown, one deep orange, two very interesting wine shades, one light magneta, four blues, light, ciel, light gray blue, old blue, a violet shade of medium tone, and a deep lime yellow. These shades represent the latest and most approved showing from Paris.

Paris also reports the use of dull blue in millinery as the high-style note of the present time; also combinations of blue and old gold.

"VANDALIA."

Hints to Lady Readers.

Very lovely are Pekin chiffons with moire stripes in self-tone, and many will be the dainty ball gowns evolved therefrom.

The fashionable sleeve for the tailor-made is now three-quarter depth, but not quite to the wrist.

Large bunches of velvet grapes in all of the latest millinery shades with foliage to match, for hat trimmings.

Large boas, round and flat, brown, gray or black marabout, with long double or triple tail-like ends that are trimmed with ostrich of the same color, are all to be among the neckwear this season.

Rich garnitures in applique work, with gold or silver chenille and narrow fancy braids on cloth velvet or silk, of a variety of shades, for the shoulders of evening cloaks and costumes.

A novel idea is a lattice-work of cords over white or cream cloth or silk in the collars and cuffs of suits and coats; the cord matching the color of the material, or in black.

Buttons are being enamelled to match all of the clan plaids.

Large buckles of very fine cut and rivetted steel, with silk or chenille embroidery, in floral designs, worked in their centres, are used on the newest models.

Very new are the silk volles, in mohogany, Empire green, Chinese blue, and ecru, with two-inch satin Pekin stripes of the same tone.

There are waists galore in plaid and Roman striped silks, made in both dressy and tailored styles, most of them with the bias effect in a part or the entire waist.

The fine serges embroidered with eyelet design in self-colored silks are new.

Pointers for the Gentlemen.

Frequent cries for reform are heard to-day in matters relating to men's evening dress, and now there is a rumor that a dark blue evening suit was seen in a London drawing-room.

The shoulder of exaggerated squareness is no longer insisted upon; indeed, the concave effect is distinctly wrong, and little, if any, padding should be used.

The small change pocket is rarely put on the outside, and the side pockets are covered by simple flaps, cut to follow the corners of the coat in front.

What has been said of the single-breasted style applies in general to the double-breasted as well, but on the latter the laps are usually larger and broader.

The double-breasted waistcoat of any design cannot be called the general fashion of this season any more than of the past.

A Wholesome Sweet For the Youngsters.

The fondness of the little ones for sweets is natural—and should be satisfied.

Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate is the most delicious and an entirely healthy sweet for children.

It is pure and nourishing. It is easy to digest. It is made only of the best cocoa-beans, the purest milk and finest grade of sugar.

The more children eat of it, the sturdier and rosier they'll grow.

Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate is made in a spotlessly clean factory—in the beautiful Gruyere Valley, Switzerland, famous for its bracing air, pure water and rich pasture-lands, where the cows graze that supply the milk used in this ideal Milk Chocolate.

Cailler's has a peculiarly delightful flavour and a rich, creamy delicacy, not found in other Milk Chocolates. And it is wrapped in four wrappings.

Every wise mother will avoid the unwholesome and often impure candy—and get Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate instead.

They'll begin right away.

At grocers' and confectioners'—5c, 10c, 15c, 20c and 30c. Daintily wrapped Croquettes (just the thing for receptions), 20c and 40c.
