Hemmingford Bank Held Up By Masked Men With Guns Friday Evening

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at Hemmingford, where a hold-up took place on Friday evening.

The Hemmingford Branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce was held up on Friday evening by three masked men and during part of the scene it resembled a sort of wild west shoot-up.

The bank like many others on Friday evenings, was open until 8 p.m. and the manager, Mr. Jean Tourigny, was about to lock the door, when the three men forced their way in. Exerting all his strength, Mr. Tourigny endeavoured to hold the door shut while he turned the key but the superior weight of three men forced him back and, threatening him with revolvers and a machine gun, the bandits entered the Bank. Three customers were standing at the counter and while two of the gunmen held them and the Manager there, the third ran behind forcing the tellers back against the wall. He proceeded to fill a zippered canvas bag with the contents of the cash drawers and getting into difficulties with the drawer, he ordered two of the tellers at gunpoint to assist him. Noticing that someone was at the outside door looking-in, one of the gunmen ordered the Manager to "Move over there". As he did so, two shots were fired, narrowly missing him, and lodged in the wall behind. A prospective customer with his young daughter, unsuspectingly entered the outer door of the Bank and was immediately ordered to come in and put his hands up. He, however, whipped round and dashed out into the street, calling for help. At this, the two men at the door shouted to the one behind the counter to 'come on', and all three made for the door. The manager started after them but was halted as three or four bullets were fired at him by one of the fleeing men. He turned into his office, which faces the street, putting out the lights in an attempt to read the number plate of the get-away car but was unable to do so. The car used was a black one, thought to be a 1962 Ford, and made off in the direction of Sherrington. Two of the men were dressed in striped grey and black jeans, the third in dark blue jeans. One wore a red sweater, one a white. They were not very tall and on the slim side. All spoke in English.

The hold-up only took a few minutes, but they worked fast in that time and gathered up between $6 and $8,000 dollars in cash before they sped away in a waiting car.

Fortunately no one was hurt by the bullets fired by the bandits and it was probably only done to scare people away and keep the others quiet.

Provincial police at St. Johns, Huntingdon, Valleyfield and Mercier Bridge were notified as quickly as possible and they converged on Hemmingford from these various points. The Hold-up Squad from Montreal is also on the case, but no trace of the bandits has been found as yet.

Good Attendance At Bulk Cooler Night

The Bulk Cooler Night sponsored by Kelly's Farm Supplies at Huntingdon High School, on Thursday evening, was very well attended.

Mr. L. Q. Brictson, who gave the talk on coolers, gave out a lot of very valuable information, not only on the brand of cooler concerned, but also on coolers in general. Those present would therefore gain much valuable knowledge of a subject that may soon be in the foreground of the news. He also pointed out the important points of the product sponsored, showing how improvements had been made that made this cooler the very latest in design.

Following the demonstration, refreshments were served to all in the cafeteria of the school.

Several door prizes were offered and these went to the following: Eli Leger, Raymond Dubois, Lester Fraser, Mrs. Ed. Robson, Albert Kane, Mat. Wallace, Maurice Smith.

PREVENTING HEARTBREAK

What can be done to impress upon parents that the utmost care should be exercised where it is necessary to leave children unattended for even a short time? It is usually during short-time absences when fire occurs, young lives are lost and heartbreaks result. — Melita (Man.) New Era.

J. K. Dickson Honored At Banquet In Montreal

Mr. John K. Dickson, of Ormstown, Que., was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered him at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, on Saturday. The banquet was to honor the fact that Mr. Dickson had been a member of the Montreal Milk Producers' Association for the past 25 years. There were about 600 members of the Association present for the event which took place at 1 p.m.

Mr. W. L. Carr of Huntingdon, gave the background of the Montreal Milk Producers' Co-operative and Mr. Dickson's connection with it over the years. He said how energetic he always was and is in the interests of milk producers. He could put up a very good argument for what he believed to be right and he was able to hold the floor in support of his views at all times. He had meant much to the Association over the years.

Following this a presentation was made to Mr. Dickson of a travelling bag and a fine painting, by Dr. Mercier of the Quebec Department of Agriculture.

The occasion was also the annual meeting of the Montreal Milk Producers' Co-operative and the three retiring directors were re-elected by acclamation as follows: Mr. Elmer Duffy, South Durham; Mr. Ken Finlayson, Ormstown and Mr. William Petrie. Mr. R. Dubuc, President, also make a few remarks on the operation of the Association and offered congratulations to Mr. Dickson on his being recently elected Vice-President of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

Some Suspected Rabies Reported But None Confirmed

Some people are becoming perturbed in account of some cases of possible rabies that have been reported. Some are of the opinion that nothing is being done about it. We wish to assure all that Government officials and veterinarians are fully alert to the possibilites and all precautions are being taken.

It was recently reported that a dog had gone after a fox that was rabid. The dog is being insolated in quarantine and this may be for six months, to find out if it is safe or not. Rabies has a long incubation period. Another case of a cow that died being suspected of having been bitten by a rabid fox, is being carefully looked into and the head has been sent in for examination.

A number of owners of dogs in this area have taken the precaution to have their dogs vaccinated against the possibility of rabies. Many of these owners belong to various dog clubs and the whole membership has taken the precaution. Some individual owners have also taken the precaution.

In the case of individual owners, you never know when your dog may go chasing after some rabid animal, or be attacked by one. It is therefore very necessary where there are young children around to take precautions to safeguard them.

While Government officials say that the type of rabies so far is not the vicious kind, it could develop. But rabies of any kind demands the necessary precautions being taken.

Some people are doing a lot of talking themselves, but they are not taking the precaution with their own dogs.

We repeat the instructions that were published several weeks ago in these columns and we hope that all will take notice of them. Further, if anyone wishes more information on the subject of rabies, a pamphlet can be obtained through Dr. Fred Horsley, at the Government Health of Animals office in Huntingdon, at the O'Connor Building. He will also be pleased to give information, or to help you in any way.

There is no need for alarm, but there is need to take necessary precautions to prevent the spread of what might be rabies.

So far as is known, no person or animals have been bitten. It is recommended that these precautions be taken:

(a) Have your veterinarian vaccinate your dog against rabies if this has not been done within the last 12 months. This is especially important if your dog is allowed to run loose.

(b) If a dog cannot be identified and its behaviour is quite abnormal, it should be confined, chained securely, and reported to the Police.

(c) Kill as many foxes as possible.

(b) Do not hesitate to kill a dog if you are attacked by one which appears to be rabid. If possible do not damage its head. This is important for diagnosis and subsequent treatment of persons it may have already bitten.

(e) Keep doors closed where foxes could enter buildings.

Rabies is a reportable disease under Federal regulations, and and clearly dangerous cases should be reported to Dr. Fred A. Horsley, Sub-district Veterinarian, Tel: CO. 4-5400 Huntingdon or your own veterinarian.

Ormstown Band Annual Concert Well Received

ORMSTOWN BAND --- --- ML

A large crowd assembled in the High School in Ormstown on Saturday evening, to hear the 16th annual band concert under the direction of Mr. Lindsay Cullen.

Our ever genial Ken Aldridge acted as M.C. and kept his audience alerted during the evening.

The band has come a long way and many were the compliments on their excellent performance.

Principal C. Moore gave a very glowing account of the uphill struggle Mr. Cullen has had on bringing the band to the high state of perfection it now has. Mr. Moore also reminded his audience of the hours of patient teaching, for — many times — no more remuneration than the satisfaction of seeing a youngster stand before an audience and play a tune, sometimes the tune is barely recognizable but as the months go on he takes his place in the band and very often goes on to greater things. We have former Ormstown band members — as far away as Los Angeles, Virginia and Germany — playing their instruments and no doubt remembering the days long ago with Lindsay struggling to get a true tone.

An interesting feature of the evening was the majorette performance under the direction of Dawn McMahon. Dawn was called to the front of the hall and presented with a gift on behalf of the band members on the occasion of her coming marriage.

Town To Obtain Expert To Look Over Filter Plant And General Operation

Huntingdon Town Council met at the County Building, on Monday evening for a regular session. Members were rather slow in arriving and when a quorum had been obtained, Mayor Lefebvre had not arrived, so Pro-Mayor D. McGerrigle took the chair and opened the meeting. However, Mayor Lefebvre arrived very soon after and the meeting got underway finally with all members in their seats.

One of the Aldermen remarked that a report of a loan of up to $60,000 for the Town had caused a number of people to ask what was happening. He felt that the matter had been incorrectly reported in The Gleaner. We quote the wording of the item as it appeared in The Gleaner of March 7th: "A resolution was passed to borrow up to $60,000 for operation expenses, pending the receipt of taxes."

The Gleaner was asked to clarify this to prevent further misunderstanding. In the first place there is no mention of a loan. This is an annual proceeding that is gone through to provide money to carry on the services of the Town until the current taxes have been received .It does not mean that the Town will borrow the full $60,000. The resolution is made so that amount could be borrow if it became necessary to do so. Possibly a very small amount of this sum will be borrowed and in any case it would be immediately paid back as the taxes are collected. It therefore shows the need for all people to pay their taxes as early as possible. The town is run on the taxes that are collected. The Gleaner hopes that people will understand now why such a resolution is passed each year. If the report had been read properly, it would have been evident that the sum of $60,000 was not necessarily the amount to be borrowed—only up to that amount, pending the receipt of taxes.

A permit was asked for and granted, to build a house on Somerville Street.

A price for the painting of the Water Tank at the Filter plant was received. A discussion took place as to whether this could come under the winter works program. It was said that the work should be done while the weather is cool, as it would be too hot to work inside the tank in the summer months. The matter was finally left for further consideration.

A resolution was passed with regard to Daylight Saving Time which will go into effect at the end of this month, probably April 28th.

Discussion again centred on the water situation as the secretary presented the reports he had received in the early part of March. Some felt that too much publicity had been given the matter and this is harmful to the Town. Others felt that it was time that something be done about it with all the reports they were getting of bad water from the taxpayers. It was said it only occurs at this time of year and during the rest of the year the water is good. Other opinions were that the Filter Plant was there to do a job and the job should be done right or find out why it was not right.

Mayor Lefebvre said he had been told that the addition of carbon to the water would do much to improve the condition. He also said he had been told of a man who could be obtained who could give them a report on what is wrong and how it can be remedied. This man might also be able to tell them what is not being done that could be done to remedy the situation.

It was decided that the Mayor get in touch with this party and have him come to Huntingdon and look over the Filter Plant and its operation with a view to supplying a remedy which would stop this annual contamination of the water. A resolution was passed to this effect.

Application was made by Shop and Save for a water connection before April 15th. It was stated that this store would use a large quantity of water for air conditioning to be used in the store. It was decided, that in view of the fact that no water connections are granted prior to the early part of May when the frost is out of the ground, that a connection would be made providing the company pays all expenses to do with same. Also that a meter be installed with a one inch connection.

A complaint was made regarding the late closing of some restaurants in Town. It was decided the by-law in this respect be checked and warning be given if required.

Encourage Farm People To Stay On Farm Says Gilbert MacMillan To Rotary Club

Huntingdon Rotary Club held its regular meeting at the Chateau on Monday with a very good attendance.

It was reported that the Bingo in aid of the Nurses' Fund was a very successful one. However, it was stated that very few people of the Town of Huntingdon were in attendance. It is hoped that more from town will attend in future. The next Bingo will be held on April 25th, at the same place and time.

Mr. Gilbert Macmillan was the speaker and he took as his subject: Creating conditions that will place people engaged in Food Production on the same economic level as those an Industry, as the answer to the Farm Problem in Canada.

Following is the text of his remarks on the subject :

To anyone who reads the daily press, listens to the radio or watches television, it must be apparent, we have two distinct schools of thought, as to the way to provide food for a definite future for mankind.

On the one hand, we are treated to a set of figures showing population increases, that unless controlled, will ensure that we will eventually perish from starvation.

On the other, we are told that we have too many small units producing food at present, and if food production was organized along the lines employed in industry, we would be assured always of plenty and everybody would be better off.

In trying to reach a compromise between these two schools of thought, there are two factors that should be seriously recognized.

FIRST, while it is true that agricultural production is destined above all to satisfy the primary food needs of man, and its price should be within the reach of all consumers; this still cannot be used as an argument that the people who produce this food should be compelled to remain in a state of economic inferiority because they cannot be organized along the same lines as industry.

SECOND while organization of huge industrial concerns have been successful in the manufacturing fields, this is no guarantee they would be equally successful applied to much of our food production. It certainly has not succeeded in Russia.

In organized industrial operations, you have human control of nearly every element entering into the operation. With food production, you have absolutely no control over perhaps the most important factor of all — the weather. In active everyday operations your plans depend entirely on it; a sharp change overnight can alter all your planned operation for several days.

In the next place, you are working with animals who have certain natural characteristics that have to be recognized and catered to, if you are going to be successful with them. If you are in the milk production field, how are you going to fit the dairy cow into a forty hour week, or even an eight hour day. An important factor in most industries.

The weather is also a vital element in the growth and rate of maturity of all nature's plants you can exercise some control through acerage allotment but this is no guarantee of what amounts you will harvest at the end of the season. We have seen plenty examples of this. The larger the unit, the larger the crash when adversity strikes; large units also create labour problems for themselves, as with Canadian conditions, it is not possible to furnish steady year round employment for all the help needed at certain seasons. This is much more easily worked out under existing conditions.

The main cause of this whole farm problem (or price squeeze, as it is sometimes called) of maintaining a balance between our industrial and agricultural economies in Canada, stems from the fact that we have followed the pattern set in the United States, where wages and hours of labour are no longer determined by the value of what they produce, but by the power that organized labour holds over industry to enforce their wage and hours of labour demands, irrespective of their fairness or effects on the rest of the economy.

This affects the balance in two ways, it raises the price of the industrial goods and services producers use, it further increases the spread between what hte producer receives and what the consumer pays for their food, as the effect of those enforced union demands sets the pattern for wages all down the line, except at producers' level.

Labour leaders must not be too severely criticised for their attitude, as it is simply the

Howick Scout Troop Near Realization

Many interested persons have expressed a desire to "Get the show on the road" to Mr. Fred Leblanc. This would seem to be the time to strike while the iron is hot. An open meeting is being planned in the Howick High School, for Friday, April 6th, at ..15 p.m.. This of course will be a meeting for the general public to voice their opinion as to what is the best arrangement for Scouting in Howick. The District Headquarters Staff will be on hand to answer questions and outline and pertinent facts that appear to need clarification. A special movie will be presented to show the Movement in action. From the keen interest shown to date this would appear to be a very worthwhile evening. Not only are parents urged to attend, but the whole Howick area is invited. We can expect to see big things from Howick in the near future.

Honours and Awards

The official list of Honours and Awards made by His Excellency Major General Georges P. Vanier at Government House has been released. For anyone taking the time to peruse the list several questions come to mind. Of all the awards made only 6.7% came to Quebec Scouts. 45% to Ontario, 19% to Alberta, 12% to Manitoba and 10% to B.C.. The first question that comes to mind is do they use a different yardstick in Ontario to determine the merits of a courageous act. This of course cannot be since all awards are made after careful study Dominion H.Q. thereby ensuring a standard assessment of each case. A deduction that can be made is that areas of dense population afford more opportunities to perform courageous acts and therefore Ontario should have the largest percentage. However the spread between Ontario and Quebec can only mean-a. Cases are not being reported when and where they occur.; b. Boys are not being trained to cope with emergent situations. c. The program does not include enough out-of-door activities. From a study of the program in Quebec we can readily see that points b and c. do not apply. The only fair conclusion that can be drawn is that cases are not being reported. To be sure that meritorious acts are properly recorded why not assign this function to a member of the Group Committee. We owe this to the boys.

The Victoria General Hospital in Halifax recently presented a brand new, shining first aid kit to the 3rd Halifax Scout Troop. It replaced a kit that played an important part after the 1917 explosion when he scouts gave all their first aid equipment to the hospital which was seriously short. The scouts had paid for the equipment with their hard nickels. Fifty-eight year old Harry Flowers was on hand for the presentation. He was one of the scouts who bought the kit and he spent three months working in the hospital during that tragic winter even though he was but a lad of 14.

Jamboree-on-the-Air Plans for 1962 Are Announced

Once each year Boy Scouts throughout the world hold an unusual get-together. It is called the Jamboree-on-the-Air and uses short wage radio as the means of communication.

Sponsored by the Boy Scouts World Bureau, which is in Ottawa, the 5th Jamboree-on-the-Air will be held this year from 0001 hours on Saturday, October 20 to 2359 hours, Sunday, October 21. Both times are Greenwich Mean Time.

With the help of amateur radio station operators, Scouts across Canada have been taking an increasingly active role in Jamboree-on-the-Air. The World Bureau with the help of the Canadian Army and the Amateur Radio Club, has operated a short wave radio station at Connaught Ranges, near Ottawa, and this station has been the focal point for participating Scouts throughout the world.

The call sign "VE3JAM" has been used for the past four years, but in 1962 the World Bureau station will have new call letters "VE3WSB".

Jamboree-on-the-Air is not a contest, the World Bureau points out. No prizes are given and licence regulations must be strictly observed. Participants may use any authorized amateur frequency and join in by calling "CQ Jamboree" or answering this call.

A Close Call — As Told By A Howick Citizen

Looking out of the window one morning last week, I was surprised to see a skunk struggling to free its head which was caught in a jar it had taken from the garbage. I called Donald, who was dressing to go to work and together we watched it struggle for about five minutes. We realized it could never get its head free and was doomed to a slow death by starvation.

Don decided to help the poor struggling animal, and asked me to give him an old blanket. With great missgiving I complied and watched with bated breath as he went outside and slowly approached the skunk, which, on hearing his footsteps, became quite still. When he was within reach, Don threw the blanket over the animal but managed only to partially cover it. However he decided to go on with the rescue and bent over, and in a moment had the little animal's head free of the offending jar. I thought now, he'll get it, but no, the skunk sat quite still a moment longer, then turned and walked quietly away. I would advise everyone to break jars and completely open cans, so that small wild animals are spared unnecessary suffering.

Obituary

The Late W. Eddie Murphy

The death of Edward William (Eddie) Murphy occurred at his home at Ormstown, Wednesday, March 28th, 1962. He was a patient for the past three months at the Barrie Memorial and Montreal General Hospitals and the Snowdon Home. He came to his home two weeks previous to his death being able to be up and around until the day of his death, he bore his lengthly illness with a cheery and Christian manner.

Born in Ormstown, September 1880, son of the late John C. and Julia Morrissey Murphy, he was educated at Ormstown and at an early age took up photographing. As photography at that time was in the tin type age as well as portraits, most of the families in the district have in their family albums the work done by Eddie which they cherish with pride. Ill health forced him to give up for a time and then he started as a garage machinist and drove a rural school bus to transport the children to and from school each day. At Christmas time each child or youth was remembered with a gift box from Eddie. He gave up his bus route four years ago, and retired in Ormstown with his sister, after twenty-two years with the bus.

Funeral service was held on Saturday at 10 a.m. in St. Malachie's Church, Canon Grondin, pastor chanted the requiem mass, assisted by Father Garneau from Huntingdon as deacon, Father Lavigne as sub-deacon.

He leaves to mourn his loss two sisters, Mrs. Peter Murphy (Mary Ellen) Moira, N.Y., Katherine at Ormstown, besides nieces and nephews.

Three brothers and three sisters predeceased him. James, John and Jeremiah, Mrs. John Kilgour (Joanna), Mrs. Fitzgerard and Mildred.

Attending the funeral from a distance were friends from Syracuse, N.Y., Moira, N.Y., Franklin Centre, St. Clothilde, St. Chrysostome, Huntingdon.

Pallbearers were: Gordon Kilgour, William McClintock, Joseph Boyle, Alcide Chantigny, Frank McCaffrey, Arthur Boudreau.

THE ISLE OF GREECE

The fabled Aegean Islands may appear to be havens of peace, but the Book or Knowledge points out that, since they were first settled about 1000 B.C., they have been held by Athens, Macedonia, Rome, Byzantium, the Crusaders, Venice and the Ottoman Turks. Most of them were returned to Greece about 1829 A.D.

St. Andrew's W.M.S.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. met on Wednesday, March 28th., in the Church Annex, with a good attendance. Mrs. Jean McCleery presided, and chose for the devotional period the Easter Lesson from Glad Tidings, several members taking part in the readings. Miss Frances Turner read a letter from Rev. Paul Chan, pastor of the Chinese Protestant Mission in Montreal, inviting all to attend a sale of work there. A letter from Mrs. A. S. Reid acknowledged cards sent her while ill. Two cards, signed by all present, were sent to Mrs. W. G. Gibson and Miss Agnes Paul, who are both ill in Florida.

It was moved and seconded that a donation of money be sent to the Chinese Mission in Montreal, also donations to our C.G.I.T. and Explorers. Mrs. Grant then showed a series of colored slides of British Guiana, explaining the work of the Presbyterian Mission there, which was started in 1885, and is our only mission in South America. The next meeting, which will be the Spring Thank-offering, will be May 2nd., when a guest speaker will be present.

Rerfreshments were served at the close and a social time spent.

Reports of the judging of the Temperance Study Course showed that several pupils will receive awards and certificates, these to be published later. Readings on subjects of interest were given.

The Cup-sheet Programme was on, "Industry and Alcohol," several members taking part. Refreshments were served by the hostess following the close of meeting.

The Weather

We have been in wonderment all through this month of March and the last day on Saturday still had us wondering. Some say March came in like a lion and therefore should go out like a lamb. Others say it came in like a lamb and therefore should go out like a lion. We have been of the opinion that March was a wonderful month, in fact not like March at all. We do not think it was rough at the beginning either, it certainly was very quiet all though and some of the days were real balmy. On Friday the weather changed and it became a little cooler. The ice went out of the river and a few floods resulted to the east and west of Huntingdon, but nothing really bad. On Saturday, it was cool and there were a few rain showers, then by noon this changed to snow and kept up until Sunday afternoon. More snow fell during the night of Sunday so that a blanket of perhaps 6 inches covered everything. But still we would not say that it was rough. We leave it to you to decide if March was lion or lamb, we really cannot reach an opinion.

Wins First Prize In Irish Sweepstakes

A lady in Glenelm has accomplished something that a good many of us hope for and dream about — she is a winner in the recent Irish Sweepstakes with the Horse, Kilmore, The lady is Mrs. C. Jones and she is a little shy of publicity, so would not give too much information on her good fortune. We understand the sum is quite substantial and that she has not made any plans as to what she may do with the money in the future. We are glad of her good fortune and wish her all the best of luck.

Will baby like his play pen?

A play pen gives him new freedom by helping him to stand and walk around the sides. Properly made shoes help baby in these new activities, too. Those first little boots are so important. They must protect each tiny foot . . . yet not constrict the natural development of the bones-still so soft and pliable.

We recommend Savage Pussyfoots, the correctly-made first walkers that guide baby's steps properly. We are trained to fit growing feet expertly, too. Bring your baby to us with confidence.

Spring Brings Its Hazards

WHILE everyone eagerly looks forward to the coming of Spring, after the long winter months, it also brings its hazards with the melting of the snow and its general disappearance, to show once again the good old earth, a feeling of freedom seems to come over everyone. It is as if a great load had been lifted and there is the urge to be up and doing. It is a time of rejuvenation, a time when new life permeates the atmosphere and the urge is to go and keep going.

But actually, there is no great change to our way of life for we have been carrying on just the same through the winter months as we do at any other time. Work goes on, troubles come and go, traffic moves along in the towns, cities and over the highways and business is carried on as usual. But nevertheless, there is something within us that says, things have changed and we must change.

It is this very thing which should put us on guard for we are very liable to throw caution to the winds and become a little reckless. For instance, during the winter months those who have been driving cars have had to watch for the many hazards of winter driving and the pace has been somewhat slowed. With the disappearance of the snow and ice and the solid appearance of the roadways once again, the urge is to step a little harder on the gas pedal and let the old car go. In the first part of spring there are more accidents than during the remainder of the summer, actually the hazards are greater and all should be just as safety conscious now as at any other time of the year.

The children, who have been cooped up in the house during the winter months, have a great urge at this time to go out and play. They want to use their summer playthings and among these is the bicycle, or tricycle Having been shut in so long they probably are not as cautious as they should be and they take chances. It is therefore very necessary that the motorist take note of these things and be ready for any emergency.

This past week we read of two children who lost their lives while playing and coming in contact with traffic. The drivers of the vehicles were not to blame, but nevertheless tragedy came and spoiled this very glorious time of the year for all concerned.

We want to try and stop the further occurrence of such mishaps by warning all drivers of motor vehicles to keep a sharp lookout for the children, especially where any number are congregated. Watch for those children who may be riding bicycles and those who may be riding tricycles, even though they may be on the sidewalk. You can never tell what a child may suddenly do. They become engrossed in a game of some sort and they have no other thought than this game they are playing. They become oblivious to traffic until it is often too late. Only the alertness of the driver of a vehicle can then prevent what may take place and even then may be helpless.

We warn the children not to play too near busy streets, not to play around parked cars. Not to play with their tricycles or bicycles in such a manner that they may suddenly dart out into the path of traffic. In fact we suggest that all children learn safety measures and practise them. A good deal of this evolves upon the parents, who must teach their children the dangers of playing outside and the hazards involved.

Let us all co-operate and not let that spring feeling get the better of us to the measures of caution. If we do this, we can help to curtail the early season accidents of all kinds, not only those involving traffic.

The School Buses

WHILE the general public in this area seems to be obeying the law with regard to stopping for school buses, there is still the odd one who does not do this. The law should be uniform throughout the Province, but sometimes people from other places do not seem aware of it. Until signs appear on all our highways as they are in the States, it is likely that there will always be a few who will drive on by.

The signs have been promised on a number of occasions, but so far have failed to materialize. We do have some in this area that were erected by the municipal council. However we believe more signs should be erected and then there would be no excuse for anyone to pass a stopped school bus.

We feel at this time would be as good as any to issue a warning to the drivers of all vehicles that they must come to a full stop no matter in which direction they are going, when they catch up to a stopped school bus. They can only move on again after the bus has started to move. It is then permissable for them to pass the bus if they wish to do so.

It is necessary for all the buses to be equipped with proper lights and signals and to be marked that they are school buses.

The children should make sure that it is safe to cross the road, if it is necessary for them to do so, before running out from the stopped bus. If it should happen that a car has ignored the rule to stop, there would be less chance of an accident.

Recently in Beauharnois, it was noticed that the children lining up and waiting for the bus, instead of remaining on the sidewalk, were standing in the roadway. We believe this to be a bad practice and one which could result in an accident. As the children crowd forward to board a bus, it could be very easy for someone to be pushed down. The lining up should be orderly and all children should remain on the sidewalk until actually boarding the bus. Proper supervision of the smallest details can often avert an accident.

We therefore suggest that all take the necessary precautions to prevent accidents happening of any kind.

The Coming Music Festival

THE first Chateauguay Valley Music Festival is now a fact and will be held in Ormstown, from May 1st to 5th with a full program for every day.

One thing that this endeavor has uncovered is the fact that we have a fairly large number of musicians of various talents. While all have not entered this competition, the number that has is very encouraging and will tend to draw attention to the Chateauguay Valley's musical potential. In this day of so much television viewing, it is remarkable that so many have found the time to take up various forms of music and to study it. So many today listen, rather than do, that it is good to know that all are not wasting the talents they may have.

This first music festival is being sponsored by the Lions Club of Ormstown and is an effort that is most worthwhile because it embraces such a large area. The fact that it will take five full days to carry through and complete, proves that it is a truly great effort and has caught on with the music-loving public. Included in the entries are Instrumental numbers for many types of instruments, Vocal numbers, Choir numbers and Band numbers. The programs each day will be varied enough to provide some very interesting concerts. There is no doubt that the very best effort will be put forth on the part of the competitors as the competition will be very keen. Piano entries are especially large.

The rewards for the winners will be in the form of Trophies and Scholarships and all are very worthwhile and something of which the winners should be quite proud. Having won a place in this festival can be a valuable achievement due to the large area from which the entries have been drawn. There is no telling at this time just what extra special talent will come from this competition. There is no telling just who may be present taking an interest in the performers. The outcome could be much more far reaching than just being in a competition.

It would appear from the splendid encouragement this festival has received, that it will become an annual event and that it will increase in number of entries from year to year. The experience gained from this first attempt will be profitable to future efforts and will provide more general knowledge of what will be required. Any defects will be brought to light so that improvements may be made at the next attempt. We feel that those in charge of the planning and arrangments have done a good job thus far and we hope that continued success will crown their efforts.

"England As She Is"

FIRST World War gunfire did something to my ears, so I collect sounds and then sort them out. French-speaking friends generally talk so fast that I've given up hope of mastering the language, but kept a Larousse handy to note word differences. The other day I became curious about the word 'hotel''. In French, it may signify many things, including hospitals, city halls, imposing public edifices, sometimes a town residence, etc., as well as an hotel as we apply the word in English.

I then turned to an American reference for the difference between a boarding-house, motel and a hotel. I gather that the latter is, strictly regarded, a place licensed to receive guests, leaves the front door unlocked at all times and provides rooms, linen, meals, etc., plus telephone, bellboy, maid, watchman and mail services.

To round things off, I pulled out the Encyclopaedia Britannica to get the difference between pub, inn and hotel. Of the three, the hotel gets the low marks if I read the key sentence correctly: "English law regards the highest class of hotel as little more than an inn, and little less than a disorderly house." Some day I'll parse that sentence, but now turn to other things.

Business necessitated a two weeks stay in London last October. I wrote well in advance for a reservation at my usual hotel, but back came word that it was fully booked. This meant that something special was on, so cabled a friend to find me a room. He tried ten before he fixed me up at the rather disturbing price of £7 a day without breakfast thrown in; but it was that or commute daily from the suburbs.

The explanation was the annual Automobile Show, with every hotel within twenty miles of Earl's Court turning away business. Perhaps, no people are still more interested in new models than the British. For this there is good reason, because it was years after the end of the last war before they could get on a priority list. One of my friends told me that his car was over 21 years old before he qualified and he then had to wait a year for delivery.

I did not go to the Show last Fall, but it caused me to recall a remark made at a dinner I'd attended when in London in 1951 at a conference of sorts. Such Commonwealth gatherings are officially graded. Our's fell into the category of entitlement to a large conference room, extra coal rations, an official group picture, an afternoon jaunt to Windsor Castle and an official dinner.

In the Buckingham Palace area are many manisons of great size. Most date from Queen Victoria's reign, having been constructed by the great Gentry as town houses convenient to the Court. Income tax, death duties, staff problems, etc., have made the Crown owner of many of them and it was in one such that the dinner was held.

There were two uniformed doormen and a butler sonorously announced each guest. The main stairway was at least twenty feet wide, the ceilings were high and from them hung massive chandeliers of hand-cut glass. There seemed to be and endless number of sitting rooms and the mahogany table in the dining room seated around fifty without crowding. I'd never been in the like before.

As is customary, a minister was host. A general election was on, so he was from the House of Lords side. After formal introduction, I moved on to chat with others and was non-plussed when, all guests having arrived, he walked over and said: "Mr. Sellar, don't you think we should go upstairs for dinner?" I gasped, then realized that the English never take chances. They follow strictly the Order of Precedence. Canada is the senior dominion, so I was to be seated on his right.

He had dealt with the likes of me before and in a few minutes we were chatting easily without thought of ancient linage and vast estates. When he refused one of the eight listed wines, he put me entirely at ease by whispering that, once rid of his little prepared speech, he would catch up and enjoy himself. This was a red-letter day. After long waiting and much wangling, he had become the owner of a secondhand Ford with only 80,000 miles on the speedometer!

His Lordship turned to chat with the chap on the other side, so I had time to think things out. One never knows how the other side lives. It was only a few days since I had attended a Wall Street luncheon. The introductions had been hit-and-miss, and I had not met the man seated next to me. The face seemed familiar.

After the usual preliminaries, conversation became more personal and in the course of it he remarked that his secretary had just brought his Christmas list up to date. He now had to plan a day off to do his buying. "Our's is a big connection and we have a rule about Christmas presents. Each must be personally selected and none may cost more than $5." I kept twisting around and finally got a squint at his place card. It read "Mr. Rockefeller."

The conference I was attending in London was meeting in India House, a huge and dingy building. The date was late November and the draft along the floor such that I used my brief case as a footstool. Out of curiosity, I asked a fellow, who had an office in it, how they heated the place in the winter. He replied: "Quite well. Most of us have fireplaces and the thermometer rarely drops much below 48 in the hall."

I'm one of those who does not enjoy a heavy lunch, therefore, when the day was fine — sun sometimes out — I thawed out on a park bench while the others were off to lunch. St. James' Park is only a few steps from India House and is a busy place. The British are great bird-watchers and the Park is the habitat for a wide range of birds and water fowl.

One afternoon, I remarked to our chairman that the Park was one of the most interesting spots in London. One saw all sorts of people and all were enjoying themselves. He replied: "It is, but currently it is the No. 1 headache of the Ministry of Works" and proceeded to explain.

In the United Kingdom, a Government is composed of many ministers but only the Secretaries of State and the heads of a few departments are members of the Cabinet. The other ministers are called in only when something of direct official concern is under consideration. For example, in 1951 neither the Minister of Agriculture nor the Minister of Works was in the Cabinet, although they were members of the Government of the day.

The Minister of Works, a miner, was a man accustomed to getting up at 4 a.m. and being at work by five o'clock. He had done his best to adapt himself to London ways but, even by 7 a.m., there was no one in his department and the scrub women glared at him. By chance, he learned that St. James' Park was within his domain and that the head keeper went on duty at 5 a.m.

From then on he had a place to go. In the previous September a duck had hatched some ducklings. The Minister had watched proceedings more closely than the drake and took great pride in their growth. One morning no ducklings were swimming about.

"Where are the wee ducklings?"

"The corvidae ate them last night."

"Wring their bloddy necks".

When the Permanent Head (deputy minister to us) arrived at 10 a.m., the top sheet of his blotter announced the despatch of these carrion crows. Whereupon there was hell on earth. First, the birds were something rare, extraordinary and, worst of all, the gift of one of the great names of England. Second, the report of a committee of top ornithologists was to be presented to Parliament that day and the cover plate was a picture of the deceased. Finally, the Minister had not followed the official 'must': a minister gives direction only to the Permanent Head.

Which was rated the most serious I do not know. A suitable letter conveying news of the deplorable tragedy could be addressed to the donor in a matter of minutes, but it would take an hour to make certain that all honours were suitably appended to name — no senior civil servant worth his salt would leave that to a cleek.

The Report, of course, had to be withdrawn (with the printers blamed for a serious typographical error) and a new plate and cover prepared. As to the Minister? The suggestion was that I look closely when in the Park again. This time I observed that there were two top men, with one of them of the sea-lawyer type that is truculent, knows his rights and takes orders from recognized superiors only.

Report From Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Considering various announcements and debates on wheat, seed oats, dairy products and lumber it was, to a large degree, a somewhat rural week in Ottawa.

Into the midst of it came the ghost of the 1956 pipeline debate. But so far as haunting was concerned it put up a poor show.

A lively debate — although perhaps well below 1956 standards — was expected when Prime Minister Diefenbaker introduced a resolution to establish a house rules committee to consider the advisability of repealing the closure bill, used in 1956 to shut off the pipeline debate.

The Liberals offered no resistance to the move. In fact they suggested it be speedy. It was the CCF-NDP members who proposed a go-slow approach.

The word "pipeline", which might have ignited the issue, was not mentioned once.

After Liberal party speakers announced their support for the resolution, Mr. Diefenbaker said that "such a reformation on the part of any party has, I think, never been equalled since Biblical days in the case of Saul."

J.W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) said the closure rule would probably never be used again.

More Wheat for China

Of all the agriculture matters in parliament, the biggest concerned the sale of more wheat to Red China. Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton announced that a sixth order worth $75,060,000 has been completed, and that most of the 39,000,000 bushels will be moved from west coast ports between June and December.

This is the largest of the sales resulting from the long-term credit agreement completed between the Canadian Wheat Board and the Communist Chinese a year ago.

It was reliably learned outside the House that confirmation of another major grain sale to China is in the offing.

Mr. Hamilton's announcement came after the Liberal opposition made an unsuccessful attempt to learn the details of Canada's 2½-year grain sales agreement with Red China.

"It has been the policy of the wheat board over the years to keep secret the terms and details of its contracts," said Veteran Affairs Minister Churchill. Mr. Pickersgill said terms of the deal should be revealed parliament.

Sees Good Export Levels

Earlier Mr. Churchill, acting for Mr. Hamilton, said that Canadian wheat exports during the current crop year should compare "very favorably" with last year's performance.

He said the all-time peak carry-over occurred at the end of the 1956-57 crop year when 733,000,000 bushels were on hand. The carry-over estimated for July 31, 1962, will be less than 300,000,000 bushels — the first time in nine years that the carry-over into a new crop year has been less than 500,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Hamilton announced Friday that sales of wheat last year would give Prairie farmers a record $125,000,000 beginning in April.

The government also announced that it will contribute $225,000 towards the freight cost of moving seed oats to areas in Manitoba and Saskatchewan where supplies are lacking because of last year's drought. The federal and provincial governments will share the cost.

The announcement said that the total contribution will be limited to a maximum of 75 per cent of the total freight costs up to $12 a ton. The distance involved must exceed 25 miles.

On the dairy question, opposition members expressed the view that the eastern dairy producer has replaced the western grain farmer as Canada's major agriculture problem. Liberal and CCF-NDP MPs combined to offer these solutions:

Regulation of margarine production and sales; a search for uses other than butter and cheese for surplus fluid milk; and a nation-wide milk distribution program to schools.

To Grade Lumber

The Canadian Lumberman's Association announced in Ottawa that most of the lumber sold in Canada soon will be quality graded so that the consumer can tell exactly what he is buying.

Grade-marking is expected to become widespread in the industry after April 1, when the practice will become mandatory in all construction projects financed by central mortgage and housing corporation.

Election Guessing Continues

There appeared to be a growing feeling that the federal election may be called June 11 or 18 as usually well-informed circles, who previously banked on an autumn vote, now consider it's an almost even choice between June and October.

Tied in with election speculation is the date on which Finance Minister Fleming will bring down his budget. Those who look for a June vote suggest the budget may be presented as early as April 3 or 5 but no later than April 10.

Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market was also under discussion. Edward Heath, Britain's negotiator on the question, spent two days in Ottawa talking with government leaders behind closed doors.

Little was said about the discussions, but Finance Minister Fleming said: "We have expressed to Mr. Heath our full confidence in the way he is conducting the negotiations in relation to Britain's undertaking to safeguard Canadian and Commonwealth trade interests."

Defence Estimates Up

The Defence Department calculates that its expenditure for the 1961-62 fiscal year will be $1,631,857,000, which is $16,220,000 more than originally estimated. It is $93,890,724 more than in 1960-61.

Justice Minister Fulton announced that four special institutions for young offenders will soon be built by the Federal Government in the Atlantic Provinces, Quebec, Ontario and the West.

He said the institutions will be finished within four years, making it possible to isolate the young offenders. He did not cite an age limit.

TCA announced an increase in economy-class fares, but CPA said it has no immediate plans to go along with the jump. The move creates a $10 difference on Montreal-Vancouver economy class flights.

Provincial Capital Report

Quebec (CP) — Normally few persons risk the wrath of the Bench, but in recent months criticism of Criminal Court Judges in Quebec has been heard several times.

Easy bail for serious charges was knocked by Chief Detective William Fitzpatrick of the Montreal Police Force in January. Newspapers echoed such criticism.

The latest blast at the courts came this week from Attorney-General Georges Lapalme.

Mr. Lapalme lashed out in the Legislature at "The weakness and complaisance of the courts towards criminals" as a matter over which his department had no control.

He said early parole and low bail, despite pleas from Crown Prosecutors for higher bail, sometimes allowed individuals to immediately commit another crime.

Criminal investigations were rising in the Montreal and Quebec City regions, he said. Criminal Courts operated "like factories" and the pressure was "almost tragic."

Mr. Lapalme told members the Government will add four permanent Crown Prosecutors at Montreal and two at Quebec to handle the crush of crime.

Meanwhile, as Quebec City enjoyed its warmest March day since 1943, the report of the Bedard Committee appointed to study Quebec's Mental Hospitals was made public.

The report said radical reforms are needed to provide care for the Province's mentally ill. Mental hospitals now were too large and were overcrowded and understaffed.

The 157-page report said hundreds of persons are needlessly confined. It added that $50,000,000 invested in psychiatric hospital construction in the last 10 years was misspent.

Hide In Car And Rob Owner

VALLEYFIELD — Yvon Lalonde, of 225, 23rd Avenue, Ile Perrot, and Gilles Lambert, of 505, Perrot Boulevard, appeared before Judge Maurice Fortin, in Valleyfield, charged with robbery with violence. The preliminary hearing will be held on April 24th.

On March 25th, at about 11.30, both individuals robbed 65 year-old Gordon Harrison of Ile Perrot South, when he left the Hotel to drive home. Lalonde and Lambert hid themselves in Harrison's Station Wagon, and when he got into the car, they caught him by the neck and forced him to hand over his money, approximately $150.00. When the police were notified, constable Armand Portelance and Chief J.P. Parizeau of Ile Perrot, investigated, and the two accused were arrested.

Jean Beauchamp Appointed General Manager Salaberry Club

VALLEYFIELD — The President of the Club, Mr. Jos. Degre, announced at the last meeting that Mr. Jean Beauchamp had been appointed General Manager of the Club for the 1962 season. Mr. Beauchamp is well known among sports organizations. He is a former President of the Notre Dame de Bellerive Softball League, and also an active player in the Recession League. The newly appointed charge will demand a great deal of experience and effort. Everyone is convinced that Mr. Beauchamp will manage with success as he always did in the past. Mr. Gaetan Moniere will remain as master of ceremonies. The opening ceremony of the last season was considered as the best one of the Juniors; this compliment speaks well for Gaetan Moniere, who was the principal organiser of the ceremony.

The price of the pass for the Season was also discussed and it was decided that it would remain the same as last year, that is: $0.50 one game, and $5.00 for the whole season (15 games). All local games will be played on Sunday afternoon. The Treasurer of the Club, Mr. Maurice Lalonde announced that he had a big project in mind, but he did not give any particulars about it. The programs were discussed and also the press conference which will take place at the Salaberry Chateau before the meeting, on Friday evening, April 6 at 8 p.m.

It is not the first time that these employees have been mentioned in this matter; since 1953 they received a total of 20 certificates, showing that they had accomplished each time one million of working hours without accident. This time they are about to reach an unprecedented record, when on January 27th., an accident occurred. They had reached 4,546,788 hours without an accident at this date from May 20th, 1960.

Valleyfield Mayor Sees No Need Of Further Meetings

VALLEYFIELD — As he commented on the events which took place last week regarding the destruction of documents of the Valleyfield Industrial Commission, Mayor Robert Cauchon declared last Monday morning, that there was no need to hold a joint Press Conference together with Mr. Gerard Cadieux, to put light on this affair.

Mr. Cauchon said that the explanation given by Mr. Lehoux, Librarian at the Valleyfield Municipal Library, was very clear. Mr. Lehoux has been suspended by the Council as Librarian indefinitely for having taken measures about a certain document on his own. He said that Mr. Cadieux, if he wanted to laugh concerning this affair, could do so together with Mr. Lehoux.

LITTLE DENMARK FLOWER SHOP

Flowering Shrubs

The nice thing about flowering shrubs is that they need very little care after they are planted. You need only water them during a prolonged dry spell and you should give them some fertilizer in springtime. For winter protection leave a windbreak of burlap nailed to a wood frame over the shrubs until the frost comes out of the ground. Some people pile everygreen branches around their shrubs as covering.

You should avoid harsh pruning of your shrubs. You can easily ruin its beauty by over-pruning. Prune back winter-killed branches, and remove the tips of branches that have grown long and straggly. Don't try to prune all the branches the same length. Try to retain the natural shape of the shrub, cutting out only the weak, spindly branches and a few of the heavier ones to leave more "breathing space".

Forsythia or Goldenbell is one of the earliest flowering shrubs and shows up beautifully as a background for a bed or border, or by itself on a lawn. It has deep yellow flowers and grows up to eight feet tall. It is necessary to protect forsythia against strong winter winds.

Philadelphus (Mock Orange) has fragrant white flowers and blooms late June and early July. It grows to about six feet in height and is one of the most popular flowering shrubs. The flowering branches are often used for bouquets because of their beauty and exquisite scent.

Spirea Vanhouttei (Bridal Wreath) is one of the best varieties of Spirea. It is a common favourite because it is so easy to grow and is very hardy. It blooms early in June and grows five to six feet high. The branches are covered with small white flowers. Bridal weath can also be used as a hedge.

Hydrangea Arborescens Grandiflora (Hills of Snow Hydrangea) cannot be beaten for beauty, hardiness and value. It blooms from July to September, and has large white clusters of flowers about six inches in diameter. The blooms change to a greenish colour, then tan. This is a low, compact, three to four foot plant.

Syringa Vulgaris (Common Lilac). Lilacs are extremely hardy shrubs and grow well in shade. The blossoms are very popular because of their fragrance. There are many varieties including some double and colours are white, blue, rose, purple, mauve, pink, red and even yellow. Lilac bushes grow to a height of twelve feet, and bloom late May and early June.

Buddleia (Butterfly Bush) is one of the lovelist shrubs you can purchase. It has large spikes of bloom and comes in a variety of colours including pink, red, blue and white. The blooms have a lovely scent. Flowers are produced on new wood each year.

Hydrangea Paniculata Grandiflora (Peegee Hydrangea) is similar in habits to the Hills of Snow Hydrangea but has cone shaped heads of bloom which turn from white to pink and then brown.

Maple Syrup Season Is In Full Swing Now

With the splendid weather we have had during the month of March, the Maple Syrup season has come in very well and is in full swing at this time. Reports are that a very good run of sap has been collected and a fine quality of syrup and sugar has been the result.

Several sugar parties have been held around the countryside and enjoyable times have been had. The syrup season in Quebec seems to be the opener for summer activities. It is carried on while there is still snow in the Maple bush, but warm days and cool nights are the ideal weather conditions for this thriving industry. Not all our farmers make syrup on a commercial basis, many of them tap the trees and make just enough syrup and sugar for their own use. It is however a tradition that has been carried on down through the years and where a farmer has a large bush lot and does the work on a commercial basis, it makes a good cash crop return for the end of the winter season.

Maple syrup is good however it is used — whether you just spoon it with toast, have it with pancakes, or as special breakfast dish have pancakes and sausage.

The gathering of the sap and the means of transporting it to the sugar shanty has changed considerably over the years. Some farmers use a piping system that carries it all to the tanks and evaporator, others uses tanks and then dump this into another tank at the shanty, whatever system is used, the sap finds ready sale and is eagerly looked for by a large number of people.

Following is one story of how automation is creeping into Maple syrup business and it is becoming a matter of mass production methods.

Eastern Townships farmer Rolland Boudreau has brought mass-production methods to his sugar bush in the shape of mechanized transport, pumping systems and gas-fired evaporators.

His modern methods might take some of the romance out of making maple syrup but they also remove much of the drudgery from a tiring springtime operation.

The Ascot Corner farmer and his eight helpers have left the days of horse and sleigh, kettle and wood fire far behind. They plan to tap 1,000 maple trees a day until all 11,010 trees in the Boudreau bush are included in the operation.

If the sap runs well this year, Mr. Boudreau expects to gather enough to make more than 1,000 gallons of syrup.

Such production is made possible mainly by use of a tank-like vehicle that moves on rubber treads and is designed to go practically anywhere in the woods.

The vehicle carries two 430-gallon tanks on either side. After about an hour on the bucket-emptying round, the tracked vehicle is driven back to the modern Boudreau sugar house.

Use Gas Fires

The raw sap is pumped from the mobile tanks directly into a reservoir and then into evaporators. In contrast to the open fire and kettle of the old days, the evaporators stand on concrete foundations and are heated by gas fires.

Mr. Boudreau inherited the sugar bush, if not his methods, from his father. He recalls the days when his father started to work the bush. "He had one horse then and we thought it was quite a big business."

Not all the expected 1,000 gallons of syrup stay that way. Mrs. Boudreau uses some of it to make maple sugar and maple butter in the farmhouse basement. She also sculpts little animal figures from the sugar.

Quebec last year accounted for 2,413,000 gallons of the total Canadian production of 2,676,000 gallons of maple syrup and 627,000 of the total 707,000 pounds of Canadian maple sugar.

On Thursday evening, March 22nd, 1962, Joseph Chartrand, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Amédie Chartrand, passed away in Regina Hospital, Lafleche, Que., in his 74th year after a few months illness.

The deceased was born in New Erin where he lived all his life. He was a person of cheerful nature and pleasing personality, and will be greatly missed by a host of friends.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, nee Mrs. Roger Forget; three sons, Ovila of Montreal, Arthur and Alfred; six daughters — Mrs. Raymond Taillefer (Eva), Mrs. Rosario Déniger (Lauria), Mrs. Florian Lemieux (Dora), Mrs. Roger Goyer (Marie-Jeanne), Mrs. Albert Beauchamp (Florence), Mrs. Leo Beauchamp (Yvonne); four sisters — Miss Blanche Chartrand, Mrs. Ben (Denise), Mrs. Victor Himbault (Marie Louise), Mrs. Jules Drolet (Lauria) and two brothers — Omer and Zénophile. Provincial Capital..

Existing hospitals should be divided into semi-autonomous units of not more than 500 beds each. General hospitals with more than 200 beds should have psychiatric wards.

It blasted the gigantic proportions of St. Jean-de-Dieu Hospital in Montreal and St. Michel Archange Hospital in Quebec City.

It recommended that a special hospital be built to care for seriously disturbed persons, such as the criminally insane. The mental wing at Bordeaux Jail, where 100 mentally ill persons are still cared for, should be closed.

Meanwhile, personnel in some institutions would have to be increased as much as 400 per cent if hospitals were to care for the mentally ill "not just shut them up."

The bitterest words were reserved for Foyer Ste. Luce de Disraeli, a private hospital with 278 mental patients.

The staff was "absolutely incompetent," the report said, and the minimum rules of fire safety and hygiene were not observed.

The Committee was astonished that public funds were granted the institution and that it could exist before the eyes of the Government.

It noted in another part of the report that the existing psychiatric hospital division of the Provincial Health Department has been directed for 20 years by a doctor, not a psychiatrist.

It proposed a government commission of psychiatric authorities to work out a general program of development of mental hospitals.

Fire Destroys House On The Gore

GORE — Fire has destroyed yet another Gore landmark when the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Vaillancourt went up in flames on Friday morning, March 23rd, fortunately no one was hurt. When Mrs. Vaillancourt noticed the fire at about 11 a.m. it had got a head start in an upstairs bedroom wall. She quickly roused her husband, who had been working the night shift that week, (in Leach Textiles), they tried to subdue the flames with water, but realizing it was too late they started carrying out the furniture. Meantime the neighbours had been made aware of the fire, and quickly came and with their ready assistance, the furniture and belongings from the first floor were mostly saved but there was no time to remove anything from the rooms on the second floor.

The house was built many years ago by the late Pete Gilmour and was later owned by the late Fred Henderson and his mother, Mrs. Jane Henderson. Mr. and Mrs. Vaillancourt bought the place in 1950.

reaction against the conditions that workers had to endure until they became strongly enough organized to fight back.

Two wrongs however never made a right; and if present trends are allowed to prevail to their ultimate end, I am very doubtful if the present decade's contribution to Canada's future will be a good one. There has to be a better way of resolving labour disputes than allowing any group in a strategic position to tie up the whole economy by going on strike.

It cannot be fairly claimed the present position of Canadian Agriculture is due to its inefficiency. As far as productivity per worker is concerned, it has doubled in the last three years. Compare this with a statement made publicly not very long ago by the President of the Imperial Bank of Commerce, which I have never seen refuted (Quote) "Canadian Industrial workers, work the shortest hour week; have the most holidays of any country; rate second to the bottom among the ten leading nations in increase of productivity per man for the last six years." end of quote.

This disparity of returns on investment for labour involved in food production and that enjoyed on both counts by industry, is not confined to Canada. It has been one of the most difficult problems to work out by the countries of Europe already in the Common Market. It is also the chief problem for Britain to adjust before joining.

It may be something of a surprise to those people in Canada who appear to be badly worried over the money the Government spends in supporting Agriculture, to learn that over the last eight years Britain has spent an average of £260 million pounds sterling per year and due to special conditions in 1961 nearly £78 million pounds sterling over the average. It has also got to be remembered that this is done in a country that has a smaller percentage of its people engaged in farming and where the difference between the wages paid in Agriculture and Industry is very much less than in Canada. This money is spent along the lines of a deficiency payment for certain products.

It is perhaps hard to define exactly what a family farm is; it is not merely a question of size. It is an agricultural unit owned and operated by a family whose success is dependent on how well it is operated. It represents individual enterprise at its best, and is the bulwark of our whole rural economy.

In a county like Canada, with what is now almost a permanent problem of unemployment, the solution is not to be found in moving people off the land, but in working to create conditions that will slow up this movement rather than speed it up. This I think can be best accomplished by narrowing the gap in price between what these people produce to sell; and what they have to pay for the goods and services they have to buy.

In a well balanced economy this group of people would provide one of the strongest domestic buyers' market in the country. Compare the goods and equipment that need to be purchased by a family farm unit, in comparison to the same family living in an apartment in a city.

In defending the family farm, I am not suggesting keeping a farm family on all our marginal farms, however, where there is a good modern house, and where there is some local employment for some members of the family, or where they can exchange some of their labour for the use of their neighbour's machinery. If they are satisfied with their way of life, they should be left alone.

From the long term viewpoint it may be worth recognizing two of Canada's greatest assets are her food producing land, and her people. The man who farms his land for a lifetime and leaves it more productive than when he got it, has possibly made a greater contribution to the future of Canada, than the man or group of men who have exploited some of her natural resources, made a fortune in the operation, but exhausted that resource.

In closing I also make a plea for the farm raised young people. They have something natural, this is not acquired in town or city life. There are plenty of records to support this. Perhaps after all the greatest product of the land is the human product that had its roots in the soil.

Valleyfield Mayor...

The above declaration was not made by Mr. Cauchon during a press conference, since press conferences, lately, are getting scarce. In fact, Mayor Cauchon stated that he would not hold press conferences at all for a certain time, since, in his opinion, the press gave too much consideration to the invitations of Mr. Cadieux "to criticise, every time I say something."

Mr. Cauchon cannot understand why the press met so frequently with Mr. Cadieux, "a man who holds no established public function," and publish his commentaries with so much emphasis. It is known that Mr. Cauchon had affirmed that Mr. Cadieux had no representation in the public domain, and was nothing but a candidate who had been rejected twice by the voters.

To Montreal

During this interview Mr. Cauchon said that he was going to attend a meeting of the Canadian Electrolytic Zinc Co. in Montreal, on Tuesday. However he made no comment in regard to the ceremony of the start of construction.

CHARLEMAGNE'S HOMETOWN

Charlemagne, Emperor of the West and founder of the Holy Roman Empire, was born and died in Aachen, now in Germany on the Belgian border. He made it the capital of his dominions north of the Alps. It served as coronation city for 37 German emperors. About 85% of Aachen was severely damaged when the American First Army took it by storm during World War II, but according to Encyclopedia Americana, the tomb of Charlemagne escaped unscathed.

COVERING THE ACTIVITIES OF THE "LITTLE ROYAL" EXHIBITION CENTRE

The Public Speaking Finals

ORMSTOWN — We were impressed with so many things at the Public Speaking Finals the other night, in the Auditorium, of the Ormstown High School. First of all, the large number of people who turned out to hear these youngsters speak, the decorum with which young and old conducted themselves and most of all the wide variety of interesting subjects chosen by the youngsters made us think that the "methods of teaching" in our schools today cannot be as bad as we are sometimes led to believe. These young people for the most part had chosen thought provoking subjects, and certainly had spent a great deal of time in research to be able to put across their ideas so well. We were impressed particularily by the young lad who decided to do something about his "Get Up and Go", since his address, so have some of the rest of us. The little miss who certainly spent many hours of study on the mechanical workings of the brain, left nothing to be desired on her presentation, or her information. The young lady who gave a vivid description of her baby sitting experiences, may have exaggerated a little, but we feel she will some day become that much sought after "Great Canadian Author". The young man who impressed us most of all was the lad with the very poetic name... Bogden Kruschenko. This lad we feel sure will become a great leader someday, we hope he will continue thinking along the lines he spoke of and will devote his life to the good of humanity, we also feel compelled to comment on his excellent manners, he was the only speaker who seemed to know what the speaker's desk was for, he was very considerate of the officials both, on and off the stage. These things are so noticeable by those who sit in the audience.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Program

HOWICK — There was a hustling and bustling around the Curling Club last Wednesday morning as the Senior Citizens prepared to serve themselves a chicken pie dinner, as a special feature of their last meeting of the season. Members of the executive of the Curling Club were invited to the dinner in appreciation of what they had done to give the seniors a place to meet weekly during the winter months.

Rev. W. and Mrs. Brown and Dr. J. Davidson, all well known for their kindly interest in older folk, were guests also forty-four seniors and friends enjoyed having dinner together.

A short program followed with J. D. Lang as M.C. He called on Mrs. Gerald Roy, who told an interesting story about her recent trip to Regina with the Silver D competitors. Mrs. Janet Reddick gave an amusing reading about "Ma's New Stove" and Rev. W. Brown led a sing song. Dr. J. Davidson spoke briefly and Pres. W. K. McRae expressed pleasure that this group of older people had used the Club and enjoyed meeting together. He hoped the same plan would be followed next winter.

While the ladies proceeded to clear up the dishes, like all good housekeepers, the men went on the ice to decide who were champions. Fred Allen's rink, with Willie Anderson, Jim Crawford, Melville Kerr (lead) were the winners vs Arthur Kerr (skip) J. D. Lang, G. Goudie, Haddon Kerr. Mr. Jim Stewart won the men's prize for cards. Mrs. Wallace Elliot won the ladies prize and Hiram Reddick the floor prize, that was drawn.

With spring house cleaning and gardening jobs coming up, everyone will be busy for a few months, but all look forward to meeting at the Curling Club next season.

Minimum On Milk Praised

Milk for Health Inc. joined the controversy over Quebec's minimum price for milk on Thursday.

At an annual meeting luncheon, President E. E. Richmond — a milk producer himself — defended the minimum price set by the Quebec Dairy Industries Commission.

"I think minimum prices should be kept for at least a year," he said. "After all, we've lived with it for 20 years now."

It's a great stabilizer for the market. To remove it would disrupt the market and nobody will get hurt if it stays."

Public Inquiry Urged By Dairyman

The controversy began when one dairyman demanded a public inquiry into the set prices. He urged their removal and argued that he could sell milk at six cents a quart less if there was no minimum rate.

Dedicated to the task of selling more milk — "your finest drink; your finest food"—milk for health officials plan to spend over $51,000 in their efforts this year.

The organization's dietician, Monique Saint-Hilaire, denounced many of the 'insidious" theories about radio-activity as "half truths."

"Unfortunately, the ordinary, the average do not appeal to the public. This is why the public was not told in the first place that radioactivity is part of our normal surroundings", she said.

In 1960-61 the organization distributed literature to 312 schools, ran competitions and took city youngsters on country visits to dairies.

"Milk consumption in Canada is actually satisfactory, but it is insufficient in certain groups of individuals, particularly school children," Miss Saint-Hilaire said.

Mannings Visit New Zealand Farms

PERTH, AUSTRALIA — Mr. and Mrs. James Manning had the unusual privilege, for tourists, of visiting farms comparable to their own while in Australia and New Zealand.

What struck them most in New Zealand was the sight of apples, oranges, and peaches all prospering side by side in a single orchard near Auckland.

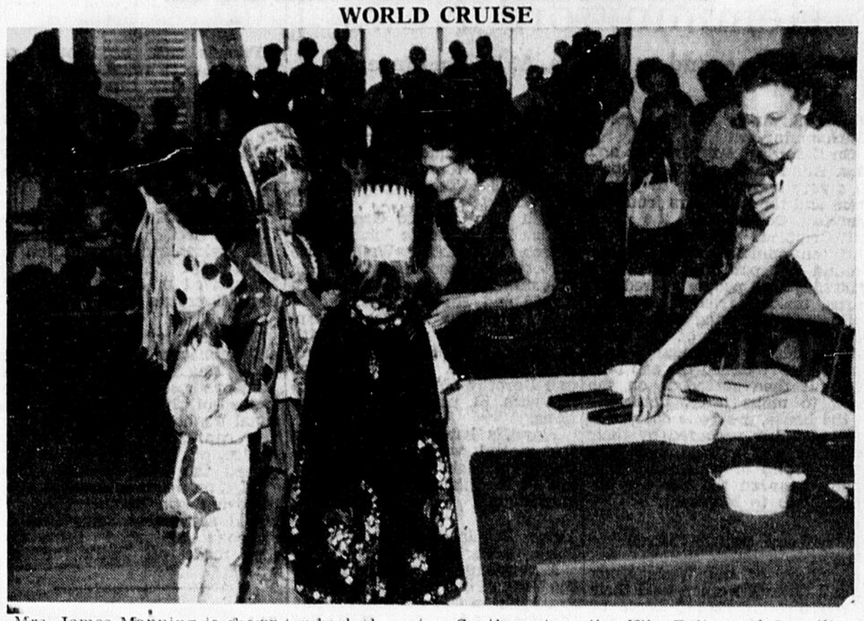

Mrs. Manning tells the story as follows: "We came over to Honolulu for a short stopover on the Orcades, and there we met a young man, a Mr. McKisson who was in the horticulture department of the New Zealand government. When he found out we were interested in orchards, he said he would arrange an orchard tour for us when we arrived Auckland on the Canberra.

"He did, too. He was at the pier to meet us and introduce us to a Mr. Hiam, the horticultural inspector. He took us on a fine tour. What we could not understand was how apples could grow and prosper here, without frost, along with quinces and citrus fruits.

"The varieties of fruits are different from those of Quebec, but they do have a few that are grown in Nova Scotia. Harvesting is done the year round, depending on the variety.

Mr. and Mrs. Manning are on World Tour and there home is at Franklin Centre, Que.

MR. AND MRS. J. MANNING STILL ENJOYING WORLD CRUISE

Mrs. James Manning is shown dispensing prizes to the children who participated in the children's fancy dress party on the S.S. Canberra while she cruised up the Red Sea. Mrs. Manning was one of the three judges. She and Mr. Manning disembarked at Southampton, March 29, to tour Europe for a month before completing their trip around the world.

When the ship made port in Suez, the Mannings took a day's tour by car to Cairo and the pyramids of Giza, returning via the Nile Delta and Ismailia to Pord Said to rejoin the Canberra. "We thoroughly enjoyed the trip, "Mrs. Manning said. "Especially the beautiful fertile fields of the Nile Valley." Mr. and Mrs. Manning are from Franklin Centre, Que.

what are the basics of our Hospital Insurance plan

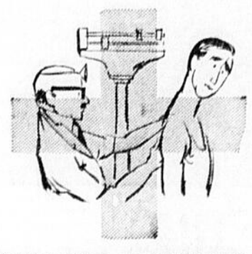

THE POLICY HERE...

Sickness is a universal hazard. And regaining health frequently calls for extensive and expensive hospital treatment. Since last January, our Provincial Government sees to it that you receive — free — the required hospital care every time your doctor deems it necessary. This includes standard ward accommodation, the usual meals and the agreed hospital services. That sums up our Québec Hospital Insurance Service.

...AND ELSEWHERE

In several other provinces, you must register and then pay a monthly premium in order to qualify under their hospital insurance systems. In Ontario, for instance, the monthly premium is $2 per person or $4 per family. Here, nothing of the kind. Québec supplies you with free hospitalization, providing you fulfill two prerequisites.

1st condition: BEING A RESIDENT

Firstly, you must have lived here at least three months. In which case, your children qualify from birth. But if you are just getting settled in this province, you must wait three months before being entitled to free hospital treatment.

THE CASE OF TRANSIENTS

Transients — such as tourists, visitors and relatives from other provinces — do not qualify under our Hospital Insurance Act. Services received by such persons in a Québec hospital are charged to the patient, or to the hospital insurance of his own province.

PROVING YOU'RE A RESIDENT

The hospital may request at any time that you prove your residency, namely, that you have been permanently established in this province for over three months. You can perhaps handle this by showing the usual identification papers: birth or marriage certificate, driving licence, credit cards, hunting or fishing permit, passport or what have you. If you are too weak or ill to comply personally with this formality, the person with you must attend to it.

2nd condition: THE DOCTOR'S RECOMMENDATION

Free hospitalization is conditional on your doctor considering it medically necessary. If he deems that your case can be handled satisfactorily elsewhere, you are not entitled to free hospital care. But if you are sent to the hospital on his recommendation, you may remain there as long as required from a medical point of view.

IN CASE OF ACCIDENT

If you ever require urgent admission — for instance, as the result of being injured in a serious accident — the person in charge at the hospital may authorize your admission, without waiting to check with your own doctor.

A COSTLY OPERATION

As you can see, our Hospital Insurance plan provides every resident of this province with the required full-range hospital care — on a free and efficient basis. A truly colossal and costly undertaking: the assignment is to supply, as needed, free hospitalization to over 5 million insured residents — entailing this year a governmental expenditure of more than $140 million!

HELP US HELP YOU

Plain common sense suggests that each one of us fully cooperate with our Hospital Insurance Service. Never ask your doctor for hospital treatment unless it is absolutely needed. Never remain at the hospital one day too many: this is an unfair and costly practice. Don't stretch a fine prerogative. Your conscience... and your taxes... will feel all the better for it!

Happy Sugaring Party at Hemmingford

On Saturday, April 1st, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Campbell were hosts to a very happy group of youngsters and their teachers from the MacKay School for the Deaf and Crippled. Nineteen children and ten adults arrived by bus around 2.30 p.m. and groups of excited young people toured the barns, making friends with the animals and having fun in the hay. The highlight of the party was a visit to the Sugar Shanty where they watched the sap boiling and then spread it on the snow to make taffy. Returning to the house, everyone enjoyed a hearty supper prepared by their hosts. It was a tired, but very happy group of youngsters who finally boarded the bus for the return trip to Montreal.

F.W.I. Stresses Need For More Chronic Hospitals

A Federal Health Plan, with federal grants administered by the Provinces, is favoured for a nation-wide health plan by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. This recommendation is made in a brief submitted to the Royal Commission on health Services at the Ottawa hearings. The FWIC claim this would ensure that every resident of Canada has access to the health care he needs at a time when he needs it, regardless of his ability to pay at the time of service. Ill health should have more recognition, states the brief, than is now given to it; it constitutes a grave threat to those of inadequate incomes. Protection against this and the cost of medical expenses should be considered in an over-all Social Security Plan.

The brief deals with services in the fields of Chronic Patients Rehabilitation Program, Outpatient Clinics, Homemaker Services, Extension of Nursing Service under Public Health, and Surgeons Insurance.

Under the first the need for more chronic hospitals and homes is pointed out, and counselling service for chronic patients rehabilitation centres. Homes for the aged are mentioned in this context for pensioners and those from small income groups. More out-patient clinics are stressed as many tests and simple treatments could be taken care of in this way, under a trained staff.

The need for a subsidized plan for Homemaker Services is shown. This service can be used in prevention, on occasion, of physical and family breakdown. This is as urgent as housing and should be rated as top priority.

A Nursing Service, is another need, one that is available to all who ask for it, under a doctor's supervision. This could be financed by a small per capita tax and would enable many convalescent and chronic patients to go home and thus free hospital beds for patients who need more care.

The greater share of attention was given in this brief to the section on comprehensive medical and surgical insurance. The situation of farmers and small business men was pointed out. To date the only insurance available to individual families and those not covered by group plans is the high cost private policies beyond the means of those of low income. They should have benefits similar to group plans at low cost. Another aspect was mentioned: a subscriber who pays these premiums should be able to build up a reserve or backlog for care when they are no longer able to pay, instead of being classed as an indigent.

A national plan to provide a reasonable and equal distribution of services and facilities across Canada is imperative, concludes the brief. The health of the nation should be the responsibility of everyone.

NFB Film Makers Produce TV Series On Canada At War

OTTAWA (CP) — A task that started out five years ago as a dreary cataloguing job in an airplane hangar near Ottawa has resulted in production of a 13-part television documentary on Canada's part in the Second World War.

A four-man National Film Board crew was assigned in 1957 to check and make a scene-by-scene list of millions of feet of war film stored in the hangar on an airstrip at nearby Pendleton.

A year later, before the job was half finished, the men were confident they had turned up more than enough film footage to produce a documentary feature on the role Canadians played at home and overseas during the war.

The result of subsequent work under NFB producer Stanley Clish is a 13-part series of half-hour shows that will begin on the CBC-TV network April 3.

"The series is a nostalgic reminiscence of an era", says Mr. Clis Clish. "These programs will portray a cross-section of a nation and its people, both at home and abroad."

Successful Series Of Sewing Lessons Held At Howick

Howick High School cafeteria was a busy place from March 19 — 30 both afternoons and evenings for 33 ladies who registered for sewing lessons. The lessons are free, but the class must be sponsored by the Women's Institute. Mrs. Alberta Wells, the teacher, paid by the government, is well qualified for the job. Part of each day was spent learning some special part of dressmaking, such as facings, bound buttonholes, etc. Careless sewing or mistakes had to be done again. As a result, the finished garments, modelled at a fashion show on Friday afternon, were a credit to teacher and pupils.

Mrs. J. R. Younie, president, acted as commentator. Mrs. Huntley Greig, Convener of Home Economics, voiced a sincere thank you to Mrs. Wells and presented her with a little gift.

The cafeteria is the perfect place for sewing, as each pupil has her own cutting table and there is ample space. The ladies appreciate the generosity of the school board and the help of the caretaker.

The Singer Sewing Machine Co. supplied the necessary machines, all in perfect condition. Mrs. R. Rose won the prize of scissors donated by the Singer Co. Due to another W.I. unit not taking the course, Howick was fortunate in having a two-week's course.

There are many other free courses, some open to husbands and children, so it is hoped many of the young women will join the Women's Institute for Home and Country, and to keep it a growing organization, so these educational classes will continue to be available.

A cup of tea was served following the fashion show, and a tired but happy class parted, regretting that the sewing course was finished.

Your Heating System Can Be A Cheating System

How often have you said — or heard someone else say — "that coal (or gas, or oil) we're using isn't giving us the heat it used to". If you are beginning to regard the fuel you are using as being different to what it was a few years ago, it's high time you gave some thought to the whole matter of keeping your home — and your family — comfortable in the colder months. It probably has nothing to do with the fuel, at all, says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating.

The real cause of your being something less than cosy and comfortable may lie in your heating system. Any moderately well-insulated home with fairly air-tight windows and doors can be warm and comfortable in every room, — every corner of every room — no matter what its age. That is true, of course, only if its heating system is adequate for the job to be done and if it is functioning properly.

Some degree of home heating is necessary, our Canadian climate being what it is, for eight months out of twelve. It makes good sense, therefore, to give due attention to this most important of your whole living accommodations. Unless the past winter saw your home completely comfortable, in all its parts, no matter what the weather, it would be advisable that a thorough study be made of the situation. It's foolish to endure discomfort and wonder why.

The Institute cautions that heating problems are not to be solved by the layman or the "do-it-yourself" addict. Too much is at stake and a faulty system will get no better. It pays in the long run to call on a qualified heating man — expert heating contractors may be located in the yellow pages of the telephone directory — and let him make a study of your home's needs and the present equipment.

Sometimes minor adjustments or replacements will serve to restore the heating or the system of heat distribution to its original state of efficiency and performance. On the other hand, if the whole system is very old it may require replacement with something more adequate for today's needs. Don't forget it is a fact that the majority of us nowadays prefer to wear fewer and lighter-weight items of clothing and we are not content to huddle in "the warmest room" on cold nights, as were our grandparents.

There are many new improvements in heating systems which your heating contractor will be glad to show and explain. Heating plants are smaller, more compact and most of them so smart in design they enhance the appearance of the basement. Where the basement is a finished one, this is extremely important. For heat distribution, newer, smarter space-saving radiators and convectors are available and there is also the baseboard panel type which replaces the old wooden baseboards. Many new thermostatic controls are available, also, and you can even have a zoning system, whereby certain rooms — bedrooms, for example — may be kept at a uniformly lower temperature than the rest of the house.

Before next winter rolls around, it may pay you in health, comfort, and, eventually, fuel dollars to re-assess your heating arrangements and see that it is completely efficient by today's standard.

The table prizes were handsome steins donated by Dow Brewery Ltd. Parents donated sandwiches, fudge and numerous door prizes. All were much appreciated. The over all winner was Lynn Appleton who sold 86 tickets. Nice going Lynn! Elise Robertson Chat. North wishes to apol...ze for not listing the winners through the evening as was intended. Soon It Will Be Spring!

(By Mrs. L. L. Elliott)

We can hardly let this week go without comment on our floods and return, once again, to snow stalled cars and calling the service station. However, this is surely winter's last thrust, and we shall be able to look forward to spring. I have been in touch with the Chateauguay Town Hall and we can hope that our water should be clear in another two or three days. The surafce soil was washed under the ice and so entered the intake pipe. However, great news, I am assured that in four months time we will have a filter system and no more dirty water.

World Trouble Spots Seem To Be Coming To The Boil

Military leaders ousted elected governments in Argentina and Syria last week, a veteran Communist was shuffled out of the Cuban administration, the French army dealt severe blows against European rebels in Algeria, and world disarmament negotiators dealt out platitudes about peace.

The Argentine crisis, provoked by electoral support for politicians favoring exiled dictator Juan Peron, came to a climax last Thursday with the arrest of elected President Arturo Frondizi when he refused the military's bidding to resign.

Frondizi was taken under guard to an island in the River Plate and the president of the senate, Jose Maria Guido, took over the presidency with the blessing of anti-Peron military leaders. The military men, who ousted Peron in 1955, toppled Frondizi two years before his term of office expired on the ground that he was incapable of blocking Peronist ambitions.

In Madrid, a spokesman for Peron commented that "the legal way" for the return of Peron now has been blocked but he believes the former dictator will return anyway, "at the appropriate moment."

Syrian Coup

While the ousting of Frondizi was the fourth military coup d'etat in Argentina in 30 years, Syrian army leaders last week staged the seventh revolution since 1949 and a military government took over for the second time in six months.

Army leaders installed parliamentary rule last Sept. 28 in a coup that led to Syria's withdrawal from union with Egypt in the United Arab Republic. They overthrew the December-elected government of President Nazem el Kodsi and Premier Maarouf Dawalibi March 28 in a bloodless revolution.

The Syrian army leaders felt the right-of-centre government was going too far in reversing the trend towards social reform and more equitable distribution of land. The new leaders, headed by army commander-in-chief Abdel Karim Zahreddin, expressed friendship for Egypt, announced a trial of ousted politicans would be held and said formation of a new cabinet was under study.

Castro Fires Communist

Premier Fidel Castro shuffled his administration last week and denounced old-guard Communist Anibal Escalante, a director of the ruling Integrated Revolutionary Organizations party.

Escalante, accused of trying to create "an apparatus to pursue personal ends," fled to Czechoslovakia. Fidel's brother Raul was made vice-premier and Communist Manuel Luzardo took over as trade minister.

Almost 1,200 prisoners captured in the anti-Castro invasion of Cuba last April went on trial, but details of charges and proceedings were not made public.

Secret Army Harassed

The French army in Algeria hit hard against the European secret army, which is violently opposed to the March 19 ceasefire between France and Moslem insurgents that will lead to autonomy for the wartorn North African territory.

French soldiers stunned the European minority by firing on a demonstrating group of them. Thousands were arrested before the regular army lifted its siege of the Algiers suburb of Bab-el-Oued, a secret army stronghold. Among leaders captured and taken to France for trial was Gen. Edmond Jouhaud, second in command of the secret army.

President Charles de Gaulle announced a referendum seeking approval of the ceasefire with the Moslem army would be held April 8 and indications were that his policy would find massive favor in France.

Snail's Pace At Geneva

Foreign ministers of the big powers returned home from the 17-nation Geneva talks, leaving second-rank diplomats to discuss disarmament and a ban on nuclear weapons tests.

With the Soviet Union and the United States both declining to yield points that would stave off the threatened resumption of atmospheric nuclear tests at the end of April, anti-nuclear demonstrations flared anew in London. More than 1,000 ban-the-bombers were arrested, fined £1 if it was their first time in court and £2 if they had a previous conviction.

The United States and Russia apparently reached an understanding at Geneva to avoid a real showdown in Berlin pending further talks, but there was no sign of a settlement in other fields of the cold war.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green returned to Ottawa decrying the "attitude of hopelessness." While he could not promise anything, he said he was hopeful agreement could be reached at Geneva on some points and said there is a possibility of an east-west summit conference that could give the conference impetus.

To Take Canadian Company

Back in Latin America, Governor Carlos Lacerda of the Brazilian state of Guanabara issued a decree declaring expropriation of a Canadian-owned telephone company is a necessity.

However, the governor said his adminstration was interested only in taking over the management, not the stocks, of Companhia Telefonica Brasileira of Rio de Janeiro. Brazilian Traction, Power and Light Company Limited is the parent company.

The governor charged the company failed to provide an efficient Rio telephone service, a city of 3,500,000, saying thousands have been on a waiting list for phones for years. The company operates about 800,000 telephones in Brazil — some 80 per cent of the total — including about 300,000 in Rio.

Chinese Secretive

In China, the National People's Congress — China's parliament — met for the first time in two years amid rumors of differences between Soviet and Chinese leaders. Secrecy surrounded the meeting as both Communist and non-Communist diplomats and newspapermen were barred.

Secretary, take a letter. To Whom it may concern: Due to the annual expected flood of the Chateauguay River, those living near our usually quiet waters will have to navigate rafts in their basements. Families with young children must purchase bottled water at twenty cents for the half gallon because it takes time to commandeer the necessary water trucks. Due to a drastic oversight on our part, the water intake in Lake St. Louis was not placed deep enough to avoid the mass of contaminated water expected every spring. The plans for a filtration plant are somewhere but we can't seem to locate them. Perhaps next year if the Federal Government is again as generous we will find time to rediscuss this issue. Thank you for your indifferent tolerance...

The writer wonders if such a message ever entered the minds of her readers. A front page article last week mentioned that Mr. William Canvin was interested in forming an "Emergency Measures Organization". We intend to follow any progress of the effort.

Another seemingly insoluble problem has "plunked itself" before us. Most of our properties have been re-assessed at various new figures. They seem to vary according to the prevailing whim of the assessor. At least this seems to be the only plausible explanation. If any reader has a more substantial answer, we'd certainly appreciate one. It was just by chance that most of us heard of these alterations; many were informed too late to protest. Our newspapers do not, reach all people concerned. Perhaps the T.R.A. can organize a citizens' committee who would follow the taxable transactions at the town hall.

For those of you have forgotten, there will be a general meeting of the Terrace Recreation Association next Monday, April 9th, 8 p.m. at the Chateau Gai Motel. Business will begin promptly, ending, it is hoped, at 10 p.m. All committee chairmen will be introduced and their budgets discussed. The Constitutional By-Laws will also be subjected to approval. Small Fry Bowling will be held on Saturday morning. Dave Bulivant and Art Linnington are in charge of this activity.

The regular bowling season finished last Friday evening. John Urbas was trying for Bill Campbell's record (6 straight strikes) with four in a row. He was instrumental in his team's gaining seven points for the second time this year.

Three weeks of play-offs will ensue. There will be no bowling on Good Friday.

Night net results are as follows:

Mother Nature Again Confounds The Experts

It was generally agreed by our local authorities last week that a first class job had been done of opening the channel in the Chateauguay River down to the lake and that there was no fear of a spring pile up.

What Happened? Several days of above seasonal temperatures brought torrents of water rushing down the river which broke up the remaining ice and formed an ice jam above the railway bridge.

The recent raising of the low spots on Salaberry Blvd., has already demonstrated the necessity and desirability of such a project in that the water and ice were contained and did not spill over to the road surface. There was an ice blockage for a few yards on one half of Salaberry near to the railway bridge.

Sewers and ditches in many sections of Chateauguay were taxed beyond their capacities with the resultant flooding of many cellars and garages. The police had the auxiliary pumps of the town fire equipment in continual operation, which somewhat alleviated the flooded conditions.

Water is again being supplied to Chateauguay residents from water carts of other municipalities because the local supply is again contaminated.

Waters of the Chateauguay River, which flooded several homes and streets in Chateauguay Centre early Thursday morning, receded 8 inches in the afternoon.

When the waters receded slightly, bringing temporary relief to some low-lying areas, huge cakes of ice were left strewn over several properties and streets.

At least 10 homes were flooded in the older and newer sections of Chateauguay Centre. Five homes were affected on St. John Blvd., and others were flooded on Bernard Ave.

Sections of nearly half a mile of ice were dynamited on the river Thursday afternoon as temperatures hit a record high of 58 for this date.

Chateauguay police say a new highway still under construction may be forcing the flood waters into low lying areas.

The flood waters have also seeped into part of the town's drinking water pipes.

TEEN TOWN

By SHEILA CHAMBERLAIN

I do hope you all enjoyed yourselves at the dance last Friday night. The girls of the committee did a wonderful job of dancing the Charleston and the boys did a spectular job of dancing the Can Can.

Miss Grey, our choragrapher, took the time of her own to show us the dances. In return for her wonderful help in making our show a success, we the committee presented Miss Grey with a beautiful sterling silver braclet and carrings, inscribed with, "Teen Town Social Club of Chateauguay."

The M.C., Ross Chamberlain, took part in both dances, it was quite a sight to see. Mr. McKee, one of the adults of the committee did a fine impersonation of the famous Al Jolson, and was well dressed for the act. That prepared everyone for the dances by playing suitable music to introduce the two dances. The skirts and tops for the Can Can were made by Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Keenan, Mrs. Blankhorn and Mrs. Brunet. We thank them very much for their help. The Charleston costumes were achieved by Miss Grey, Ann Maggs and myself.

We had our big twist contest on Friday and the winners were Teddy Thompson and Doreen Herrity, they won the two 45 silver brass and copper records. Congratulations to both of them. The Chaperons for this dance were Mr. and Mrs. Allan, Mr. and Mrs. McKeenan, Mr. and Mrs. Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain and Mr. Emberley. We would like to thank them very much for coming and chaperoning for us. The music for this dance was supplied by the Lightning Rods. They did a fine job.

Some of the teenagers are forgetting the rules of these dances you were warned before that if you do not obey these rules, we will not be able to have these dances. I will list the rules below and I hope you keep them well in mind.

No dancing with shoes on.
No smoking while dancing.
No liquor on or off the premises.
And check your coats when you come in.

We will be having a Sadie Hawkins Dance on May 18th, so everyone get ready for it.

The winners of the last Spot Dance were Marelene Giroux and Steve Watson.

We would like to wish a happy birthday to Barry Chamberlain who will be fifteen on April 3rd.

Will see you all at the next dance, meanwhile keep twisting.

Man Injured In Car Accident At Valleyfield

VALLEYFIELD — Constables Claude Hébert and Raoul Fortier investigated an accident at the intersection of Cousineau and St. Philippe Street in Valleyfield, in which 4 cars were involved. Mr. Jacques Chevrier having observed the stop on Cousineau and St. Philippe intersection, started to go ahead and collided with the Peugeot belonging to Mr. Lebel, coming in east to west direction on Cousineau Street; this car was thrown against the parked automobile of Mr. Velérin Plaisance, and also on the car of Mr. Adrien Loiselle nearby. The Peugeot continued, damaging the fence and trees on Mr. Loiselle's property. Mr. Michel Lebel was seriously injured and is still unconscious in a Montreal institution. After the accident last Saturday, he was brought to the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Valleyfield, by the Montpetit ambulance. He received first aid by Dr. Roy and considering the gravity of his injuries, his transport to a Montreal Institution was ordered.

Caughnawaga's Jos. I. Diabo Class B Pool King

(By John MacDonald)

The month long Class (b) Pool Tournament held at the Joe Delisle Pool Hall was completed Friday night, when Jos. I. Diabo defeated Peter Deer 100 to 66 in a one and a half hour game.

The tournament started March 1st with 39 participants and went into semi-finals on March 26th, with 16 players qualifying. The final game was a nip and tuck affair up until the 50th ball with only 1 or 2 balls separating the players, then Jos. I. Diabo started to pull away by sinking runs of 7-6-8 respectively and continued to play fine pool to take the game 100 to 66. Both players were quite nervous at times and it showed quite obviously at the end when Jos. I. Diabo failed 3 consecutive times to sink ball 100.

Jos. I. Diabo won $25.00 for taking first place. Peter Deer $10. for second, Freddy Baverfeld $5.00 and a lighter for third and $5.00 and a shirt went to Walter Jacobs for holding down fourth spot. Joe Delisle owner of the pool ball was quite pleased with the success of the tournament and hopes that next year it will even be bigger and better.

If you believed the reports from spring training camps, baseball had reached the end of an era. Practically every established pitcher you had ever heard of was headed for the cleaners.

Apple-cheeked youngsters were standing up to the deliveries of titans like Warren Spahn, Joey Jay, Billy Pierce, Robin Roberts, Jim O'Toole and other hurlers of repute and brashly smiting them to distant corners of Florida, Arizona and outlying areas.

Pierce, twice a 20-game winner and a 1961 American League all-star, was clobbered for 12 runs in a single inning by Washington Senators, a team that frightened nobody last season when it finished last in the league's club batting table and isn't likely to improve much.

Spahn, the National League's earned-run leader in 1961, yielded runs by the bucketful in his first outing. Jay O'Toole the mainstays of Cincinnati Reds' drive to the pennant, looked as though they'd have trouble striking out the bat boy. Even the vaunted New York Yankee infield couldn't stop the line drives from getting through on Roberts' best pitches.

Happens Every Year

But among those who have been around the camps for a few years there was no early move to consign the poor old gaffers to the boneyard. It happens every year.

To a rookie, every time at bat in a spring exhibition game is a matter of life and death. A strikeout may bring a one-way ticket to Keokuk or Amarillo. A base hit gives him another chance. A home run puts him in line to take a job away from Stan Musial or Mickey Mantle.

For the old hands it's just another chance to soak up a bit of sunshine, unlimber the muscles and gradually work up to the sharpness they'll need on opening day. There's no hurry — their jobs are safe.

A few of them have shown signs that they're ready. Among the first were Early Wynn and Herb Score, a couple of characters with a total of 28 years of big-league ball behind them, who combined to pitch one of the season's first shutouts for Chicago White Sox.

But then the 41-year-old Wynn and the 27-year-old Score are special cases. Hampered by injuries last season, they were anxious to prove to their employers that they're in one piece again.

Change Leagues, Luck

Similar questions arose in the case of Pierce and Roberts, both of whom have switched leagues after indifferent performances in '61. Roberts, once a perennial 20-game winner for the second division Philadelphia Phillies was trying his luck with the Yankees after a catastrophic 1-10 season. Pierce was with San Francisco Giants after a moderate 10-9 year for the White Sox.

But Roberts is 37 and Pierce 35. For most ball players of that age, these things can't be hurried. Their new bosses simply have to wait.

Just one more word to those who think Grapefruit League training camps broke up last spring. Pittsburgh Pirates topped the National League exhibition standings and the Senators, of all people, headed the American League.

In last place with averages respectively of .414 and .345, were the Redlegs and the Yankees.

Vision And Industrial Efficiency

Many factors intervene in industrial efficiency. But it seems that we forget too easily the extreme importance of a powerful vision in this field of human activity.

As the industrial work is mostly based on vision, it means that vision needs immediately a good protection against accidents and injuries. Then safety rules must be followed accurately. After research on this problem by a group of optometrists, it has been proved that 98 per cent of eye injuries can be prevented. This evidently requires a scientific study of the problem and the application of adequate means. Each factory must have a visual care program under the direction of an optometrist. The professional competence of this optometrist will first set up a screening program of the visual problems of the workers and study the visual working conditions. Then he will prescribe unbreakable lenses or visual training to workers who really need them. More than that when the need has been proved, the workers will have to wear unbreakable glasses even if they do not need correcting lenses.

As an excellent lighting is a necessary condition to a powerful vision, this problem will receive the attention of the optometrist who will make the best suggestions possible to the administrators. Color vision requires the use of paint, the different colors of which have a very important part to play in the working environment.

After the institution in a factory of a visual care program by a group of optometrists, the production increased by 19 per cent. In another factory, after optometrical research, it was proved that the visual problems of the workers were blamed for 37 per cent of all spoiled work. In another factory, optometrists corrected the visual problems of a group of solderers. The results were astronishing. These solderers earned 14 cents an hour more on piecework than their fellow-employees who had not had their vision corrected.

A BREAK FOR BUSINES?

I have been noticing something new lately.

Even in political circles, there are a few men with courage enough to take the side of business.

For a long time you couldn't find one spokesmen in a thousand for business. It wasn't popular. If you want popularity, you must, it seemed, condemn business, praise unions and plump for government action.

Well, we have big unions. We have lots of government action ---more than we ever had before in this country. And what has it brought us? Full employment, as promised? Not by a darn sight. Lower cost of living? I should say not, and my wife can prove it with her grocery basket.

People are beginning to see that when business is bad, times are poor for us all; but when business is good, we all benefit. Once having realized this, it becomes somewhat less popular to tax the steam out of business.

There are sings that this understanding is spreading. For many months now the president of the United States has been proposing an 8 per cent tax credit on new investments for equipment. In Canada, the government has, somewhat reluctantly, been considering ways to give business a little more incentive — because the government is learning that when business makes no profit, there isn't tax revenue.

In addition to those hopeful signs, there are a few people who are courageous enough to suggest that union leaders ought to moderate their wage demands and quit calling harmful strikes to force pay raises that aren't matched by increased productivity. Indeed, there is a great deal of support among workers for a reform of the labor laws themselves, so that union leaders will have to act with more responsibility.

Notes and Jottings FROM Robert Sellar's Historical Writings

The proposal seemed to be preposterous. The land is lower than the St. Lawrence and subject to frequent overflow, and where it is not covered with peat has a thick layer of black muck over the clay. Asking only a trifle down and giving long credit for the balance, secured by mortgage, there was no lack of applicants from the parishes adjoining Valleyfield. They managed to raise crops by burning the surface of the muck and sowing in the ashes. If they got a good burn and the season was dry, they raised fair crops of oats and barley; if the weather was unfavorable, they left. The population on the swamp has been a changeable one and, even now, few have their lots, miserable as they are, free of mortgage. In less than 10 years there was a row of shanties with stovepipes sticking out of the roof from Ogilvie's hill to the seigniory-line across land which it had been believed nobody could have been tempted to live upon. The Old Countrymen on the lakeshore viewed the unexpected incursion in their rear with astonishment, and believed it was only a matter of a few years when the poor people would be starved out, and Teafield, excepting the patches of good land, which rise above its dreary expanse like islands, would relapse into desolation. As they increased in numbers, it was suggested to the newcomers that they should have a church of their own, and there was an opportunity of buying a discarded wooden one in an adjoining parish which had erected a large stone edifice. The habitants fell in with the proposal and petitioned bishop Fabre to form them into a parish. The church was got cheap, was removed in pieces and re-erected on a knoll at the eastern extremity of the swamp. On the 6th February, 1882, the bishop issued his decree consistuting all that portion of the county of Huntingdon that lies east of the plank-road and north of Godmanchester, a parish under the name of Ste. Barbe. He referred his decree to the commissioners of his diocese, who made their report, when the lieutenant-governor issued his proclamation, dated 12 June, 1882, declaring Ste. Barbe to be a parish with civil powers. Of these movements the Old Countrymen knew nothing whatever, and when they did hear of their French neighbors in the Teafield getting a church of their own, they did not perceive that it was going to affect him. They were rudely awakened to the fact that it was otherwise. In the seigniories, when a new parish is formed as the Catholic bishop of Montreal constituted Ste. Barbe, it is not only a parish for ecclesiastical purposes but for municipal also, and the dwellers in Teafield, all natives of seigniories, considered they could do in Huntingdon what they could in Beauharnois, and not only elect a fabrique and church-wardens, collect tithes and levy assessments to pay for their church, but organize a municipal council. A council was formed and imposed a rate. The Old Countrymen were thunderstruck. They knew that in seigniorial territory the Catholic bishops can initiate the proceedings that result in the formation of municipalities, but their belief, which had been shared in by the entire English-speaking population since the conquest, was, that outside the seigniories they had no such power and that in township or non-fief land the legislature and the county councils alone had the right to erect municipalities. They asked if French law was to prevail in the country of Huntingdon, and the Catholic bishop cut it up into municipalities at his pleasure? They appealed to the courts and to the legislature to protect what they believed to be their rights, and met with the reception to be expected from men dominated by clerical influence. While the case is not finally decided at the time this is written, the prospect is that the descendants and successors of the men who chose the lakeshore as a place of residence, because they believed in Huntingdon they would be clear of seigniorial and parish law, will be driven from their homes by the operation of the very laws they sought to esacpe.

Note:— An absolutely correct list of the settlers at the lakeshore it was impossible to compile when I began to collect information. The annexed is substantially correct. As asterisk indicates those who were passengers by the Alexander. All were natives of Scotland. Knowing nothing of the procedure in settlement, they fancied they could live together and have their farms adjacent, so the front on the lake was laid out so as to give each family 5 acres and the shanties were put in a line, forming a little village. For this reason, any attempt to give their location would be misleading. I should have liked to have given the names of these who landed on the 1st August, but failed to recover them:

—*Robert Allan, only stayed a few weeks, and afterwards settled on the Chateaugay; David Anderson, shepherd, Dumfriesshire; *Robert Barrie, mason, New Monklands; David Brown, plasterer, Beith; *James Brown, mason, Glasgow; *Thomas Brown weaver, Campsie; *Thomas Brown, carpenter, who kept with his brother James a grocery on the Spoutmouth, Glasgow; William Caldwell, weaver, Pollokshaws; —— Dick, who had studied for the ministry, entered into business at Glasgow and failed; *Archd. Fleming, carpenter, Paisley; *John Gillies, laborer, Ayrshire; *John Harper, Paisley; *Dr. Fortune, Paisley; *Wm. Hamilton, baker, and *James Hamilton, helper on farm, brothers, from Motherwell; Jacob Hart,divinity-student, Hamilton; *Robert Higgins, carpenter, Pailsey; *Peter Horn, weaver, Campsie; *Thomas Marshall, weaver, Wishaw; *James McArthur, weaver and *William McArthur, weaver, brothers, from Paisley; Gilbert MacBeth, weaver, and James MacBeth, mason, brothers, from Beith; Parlan McFarlane, carpenter, and Peter McFarlane, book-keeper, brothers, from Glasgow; James McNair, farm helper, Inverary; Robert Nelson; *Adam Patterson, plasterer, Glasgow; *James Paul, mason, New Monklands; John Potty, sailor; *—— Rorison, merchant, Glasgow; *James Tannahill, mason, Tinnock; *Hugh Wiley and *John Wiley, masons, brothers, from Paisley.

DUNDEE

From 1760 the western extremity of the county of Huntingdon was regarded by the government as an Indian reserve. The Indians clustered at the point, named St. Regis, and did not occupy the country east of Salmon river, but when the townships came to be laid out, it was deemed desirable that sufficient territory should be kept for them to supply their prospective needs, and Chewett, the surveyor, left a length of ten miles of territory before running the line for Godmanchester. Bouchette, who visited St. Regis at the close of the war, says about 50 dirty novels, with enclosures attached, wherein potatoes and corn were raised, composed the village, and that its inhabitants were indolent and shiftless. A large church, 100 x 140 feet, had been erected in 1795 and there was a resident priest, who, however made no effort to improve the temporal condition of his flock, and in 1820 the government agent reported that not half of the inhabitants derived any part of their living from tillage, they depending upon hunting and fishing alone, eking out a livelihood with the pensions, or presents, allowed by government, which, for a number of years after the close of the war, were much larger than they are now. As the Indians were making no use of their land and there being no prospect of their doing so, it was deemed better that they should be permitted to lease it to settlers, as had been done 50 years before with the lands they had held in Glengarry and Stormont. Repeated efforts had been made by the government to elevate the Indians, with no success. The agent, Chesley, told a parliamentary committee in 1846 that during his connection of 32 years with the tribe "several attempts had been made to establish schools at St Regis but they have been invariably opposed and put down by the priests." A philanthropic soldier, Major Penderleith Christie, took 6 Indian boys and placed them in the school, erected at Chateaugay, in 1829 at his own expense. On hearing of it the governor, Lord Sydenham, doubled the number and paid the expense out of the public funds, but from the inefficiency of the teacher the experiment was not successful. Not discouraged, on Major Christie's finding the right man for such work in the Rev. E. Williams, a Caughnawaga Indian who had become a Protestant and been educated for the Episcopal ministry in Connecticut, he opened a school at St. Regis, the attendance at which rose from 17 to 40 in two months, when the priest interfered, and commanded the parents to withdrawn their children from the school under the pain of his displeasure and the anathema of the hurch. All save 7 left, and with these Mr. Williams persevered until the arrival of Earl Gosford as governor, who, at the request of the Catholic bishop of Montreal, withdrew the salary of $96 which the government had allowed and what was more fatal, the permission of the government to live on the Indian reserve. The school was closed but not without fruit, for there are a few Protestant families belonging to the tribe now resident on Cornwall island, who are by far the most comfortable and intelligent, and whose origin is to be traced to the forgotten labors of Mr. Williams. The trite remark, of the Indians being a decaying race, is not sustained by records of this reserve. In 1820 its inhabitants numbered 360, in 1827, 348, in 1837, despite their losses from smallpox in 1829 and cholera in 1832, 381, and in 1885, 1,136.

Before the war of 1812 a few American families had settled in Dundee. Of these Benjamin Phillips lived on 12, Orlando Brunson on a point, or marsh island, farther west, and Joseph Spencer on 23, 2nd concession. On the Salmon river were a few families, of whom all record is lost. All were probably squatters, for there is no certainty that the Indians granted leases before 1817, on the 3rd of August of which year a marsh island on Salmon river, Portage island, was leased to Hypolite Emlotte dit Perikier, who several years afterwards transferred it to Peter Cameron, who made the island notorious by distilling whisky upon it. In the spring of 1818, an American, Jonas Schryer, from Alburg, Vermont, moved across the line and leased the east half of No 30 and all of 29 in the Broken Front. To shelter his wife and three children he raised a shanty of logs, having one gable built up with mud and stones for the fireplace, and roofed with splinters of cedar. He was very poor and to obtain provisions, had to labor at potash-making day after day. When winter came he borrowed a yoke of oxen and drew a load of boards from Fort Covington, with which he made his house somewhat more comfortable, though to the last, the children could amuse themselves by sitting at the fire and looking up the wide chimney watch the tree-tops waving overhead.

Final Kick

Of winter seems the logical explanation for last week end's shenanigan when the mercury suddenly dropped from the 70 degree mark of Friday to hover around the freezing point low temperatures and seldom more than a 10 degree raise for high readings. With the abundance of sloshy snow and sleet over the week end, by the time these notes appear in print, that slowly moving high weather system headed this way will have brightened up our outlook considerably I hope. Having to visit the city early on Sunday morning, I could not help but think it was certainly April Fool's weather.

Here and There

We were pleased to welcome back Mrs. Mary Manks of "Amiens" on Saturday last, accompanied by her daughter from Springfield, Vt., which I have mistakenly reported as being Mass. previously, but there are so many Springfields in the U.S. that it is some excuse for my lapse; after a prolonged and very nice time. Think I am correct in stating they are staying with son Albert t'other side of McLeod. Mrs. Agnes McKenzie of "Amiens" spent a nice shopping tour and the usual entertainment with son John and his wife Marion on Thursday last before returning home where she was hostess to them. Another resident returned after a short vacation who was missed is Mrs. Mary Wilkins of "Sicily". Mrs. Lucy Alloway of "Amiens" returned from her previous week end visit to daughter, and was visited by her son-in-law, newly arrived from Paris on Saturday last, accompanied by wife and two sons. Busy month ahead for them preparing for their move to Paris early in May. Jim and Mrs. Cashion of "Cambrai" will be leaving by Cunarder "Ivernia" on 13th. inst. to see the grave of their son, lost in aerial combat during last war, and interred in France.

Patients and Convalescents

Am extremely pleased to report that Mrs. Jas. Banks of "Dieppe" is making a splendid recovery from her recent serious Hiatus Hernia operation. Hubby Jimmie is once again all smiles and expecting his better half back home very shortly, from Montreal General Hospital. Mrs. S. Pugh "still a patient in Lasalle General Hospital. Another casualty in the person of Mrs. Lucy Alloway of "Amiens" who attended the Lachine General Hospital to have her arm X-Rayed early last week, some days after slipping on floor of Community Hall. Returned with her arm in cast due to broken bone in her forearm. Allan Murray of "Arras" and E.C. Jones of "Somme" still patients undergoing treatment in Queen Mary Veterans Hospital. Our very best wishes to all.

Solution to Last Week's Poser

Actually only two spare tires were necessary. After covering 4,000 miles of the tour, replace the two front tires with the spares. On covering the next 4,000 miles, a total of 8,000 miles, remove the two back tires and put on the two taken from the front wheels to complete the final 4,000 miles. In this way, each pair of tires were used for a distance of 8,000 miles each. "Elementary my dear Watson."

Here's Another.

A Mens' Outfitter sold a pair of leather gloves to a customer who tendered a $10.00 note in payment of the invoice for $8.00 but being short of small change, he requested the shopkeeper next door to change the note for him, receiving $10.00 in change. He wrapped up the gloves and handed them to the customer with a $2.00 note as change. Soon afterwards the next door shopkeeper rushed in to inform him that the note he had given to be changed was a counterfeit one. Naturally, he had to make it good. How much did the Mens' Outfitter lose on the deal? See answer next week.

Incidentally

Although I admire the action taken by the wives and mothers in regard to controlling traffic on the Dunver Road, McLeod Ave. arteries, I fail entirely to understand the why and wherefore as to placing STOP SIGNS on the corner of each side road from these main arteries tarough this locality. After all, cars using them have the right of way, and the STOP SIGNS should have been placed on the side roads to control traffic which enters the main thoroughfares. Reduction of speed limit to 20 m.p.h. through the various zones is very commendable, BUT present location of the STOP SIGNS can but delay traffic to no useful purpose. They should by rights be placed on main roads at intersections, but as now placed will cause much confusion to strangers and resentment to local car owners also. Once again the local floods have proved the old legend true that "It is an ill wind that does nobody any good". Once again we are having decent drinking water distributed via Water Cart. This is a boon to many.

Local Activities

The Hall will be used for a C.P.O.A. Dance from 8.00 p.m. same day.

Anyone for a sleigh ride! I'm sure we are all fed up with snow. The robins and crows vanished on Saturday, but not for long I hope. Their calls really seemed to herald spring. Old man winter is sure late making his departure this year, but cheer up folks, the weatherman says it won't last.

Any Ladies Interested In a Trip to Sorel?

Yes ladies we've been invited to go to Sorel and be shown through the Canadian Celanese Plant there. The ladies would be treated to lunch and there would be door prizes as well. The date set is May 15th, a Tuesday. They could accommodate 25 to 30 ladies. The problem is, it would not pay us to go by bus, therefore those who have cars and would be willing to drive and take a load, (who incidentally would share the gas with you) are asked to please let your Street Rep. know before Friday. It is about 60 miles each way and we would need to leave about 9 a.m. and would get back about 4 p.m.

Also those who would like to go, but don't have cars, call your Street Representative before Friday and give her your name. Your only cost would be your share of the gas. Sounds interesting doesn't it!

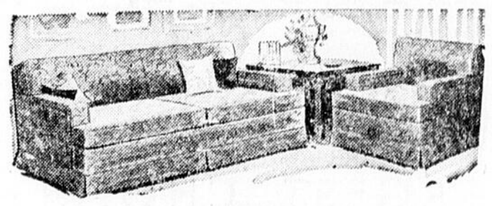

Also, since our Secretary is still quite ill, and feels she cannot carry on just now, are there any volunteers to take the Secretary's job for the months of May and June? Phyllis hopes to be able to take over again in the fall. Please call Lee Jen-

It is too bad with the coming of the beautiful weather last week, that our neighbours at the foot of St. Francis Blvd., could not have been able to enjoy it. They certainly seem to be having a regular spring season of flooded basements. It causes such a lot of damage and the newer neighbours were not prepared for this tragedy. Speaking to Mrs. Bain this morning they are all very thankful to Mr. G. W. Clewley of St. Francis, who came home from work each day and started right in to help them. Mr. Cleevley untiringly ran from house to house to pump out the water. It is wonderful at a time like this to have such a good neighbour. Many thanks from all, Mr. Cleevley, our hats are off to you.

What a shame that Spring to Chateauguay doesn't necessarily mean budding daffodils and crocuses, but more likely floods and dirty drinking water.

Four or five times last week it felt as though someone was banging at the side of the house but it must have been the blasting for the river. It's a good thing it doesn't happen late at night when one might be alone! I must say the water truck was very good at coming around all week-end.

Dog Talk
Recently an Imperial Gardens resident had a horrifyirig experience with a pack of dogs. This neighbour on returning from the village, near Willibrod and St. Leon was not only followed but crowded by and snarled at by at least twelve dogs. After having arrived home much shaken and upset, she realized that all the while a great dane (a newcomer to our development) had actually protected her. He had walked sideways in front of her and barked at the attacking dogs. On phoning the police, they explained that on reports, they pick up dogs without licences and after the third day they have the right to destroy the dog. Surely if owners are true dog lovers they will put licences on these dogs, in case they get loose. Dogs should be tied up at all times! Another regulation I wish to comment on is that of parking. It appears you only receive a ticket for parking at night time.

Hockey Season Over

The hockey season came to a close with a bang on Friday evening for our Champion "Mosquitos." They were invited to the Festival in Montreal at the Maurice Richard Arena, to play an exhibition game against "Duvernay Pee-Wee" Champions. Although the Mosquitos lost the game, the score was only 1-0 which shows the good team work of our little chaps. At one point in the game the puck was taken through the entire Duvernay team, and shot into the net. This would have been a goal for the Mosquitos except for an "offside whistle" which cancelled out the goal. It was a good game, well played and exciting to watch. All the parents must be proud of their young sons. We have a fine team in the making. About 2,000 people attended this Festival. Once again, our thanks to a wonderful coach, Mr. Daignault, for his time, his efforts and his interest in our children all through the season.

Although the children were tired on Saturday morning, after their big night, they all think they are pretty important, having played on the ice of the "Rocket" who no doubt is the idol of our Small Fry. So now the hockey equipment can be put in moth balls till next season, when we will be starting all over again, the wonderful Canadian Sport "Hockey."

Leaps and Bounds

It's amazing how fast things are done today; our area is growing but much slower than Chateauguay, which really has growing pains. As one drives through its many streets, we see heavy machinery digging a hole, a week later the foundations are in, and lo and behold we pass by five or six weeks later, and where once was a field numerous homes stand. If one had a chance to pass by in a hundred years, will these homes still be standing or would a demolition squad be hammering them down? It's a far cry from the days of the great Pyramid when a knotted string was used for measuring when it was built, yet it was measured so accurately that modern instruments show ½ inch error along one 755 ft. side. This huge tomb was built 5,000 years ago. 100,000 slaves worked twenty years (there was no unemployment there), according to the historian Herodotus. It is made of limestone blocks, each weighing 2½ tons. A crew of forty men were needed to move each block into place. It contains over 2,300,000 blocks. It's base is large enough to cover more than eight football fields. It's as tall as a forty storey skyscraper, and it was considered one of the seven wonders of the ancient world.

The Sponge

How many of us realize that when we use a sponge, it was once an animal, not the manufactured, but the real sponge. It is the tough fibrous remains of the sponge animal. Just as coral is the product of coral animals, the sponge is the skeleton of many sponge animals, which once lived together in a colony. They grow fastened to the floor of some tropical sea from which they are torn loose by divers. They are then taken to a dock, and workers tread on them to kill them. Then they are strung up until the animals have decayed. After decay has softened the parts, it is washed in water until nothing but the skeleton is left. They are then trimmed and treated with chemicals before being sold.

Pussy Willow Time

It won't be too long now, before we see the Pussy Willow. This is a small shrub, of the Willow tree, you will find them in dry or moist places, but seldom grows taller than 20 feet. It has many long twigs without side branches. The twigs of the pussy willow have many buds on them. Early in the Spring before the leaves unfold, the flower clusters break out of hard buds. These clusters are called catkins. They are long and round and are covered with a dense coat of silky grayish white hair. These catskins are thought to resemble tiny kittens climbing up the twig. Later the catkins develop into larger loose masses covered with yellow pollen, before they form seed or shed by the tree.

The Awakening of Spring

With a mighty force, Nature went on a rampage last Thursday with the temperature in the high 60's. Streams were running over their banks and roaring down to the lake, along with flooded basements, lawns that looked like rivers and highways covered with blocks of ice. Spring in all her glory, was surely bursting at the seams. The week-end snowstorm proved that Old Man Winter wanted at least one more fling however. Several inches of snow fell, blocking roads and making driving hazardous. March certainly went out like a lion.

Saint Ignatius School Activities

We want to congratulate Lawrence Coleman who won first prize in the public speaking contest sponsored by the Valleyfield Rotary Club. We all hope Lawrence will do just as well when he participates in the contest to be held in Montreal on April 9 next. James Clairmont also took part in the speaking contest and as a reward for his efforts received a beautiful book from the Rotary Club. Both Lawrence and James are very pleased that their efforts were rewarded.

School exams for the third term are all over at St. Ignatius and don't think anyone is sorry. I am sure that those who worked hard will be happy with their results, and we all hope that those who didn't do too well, will work much harder, because it won't be long now before final exams.

Let's Think

By Anne-Marie Pearson Côté

About Speaking French

'What is this life full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare!

During 'La vie qui bat', the French counter-part of 'this living world' on T.V. the other day we were told that the rhinoceros is a very bad tempered beast, has poor eyesight and is liable to charge without any warning at something he dislikes the look of, then we were told that the male has two 'cornes' or horns on his nose very deadly weapons with all the weight and power of his heavy body behind them.

At first we may find it rather amusing to think of an animal with cornes on its nose but we suddenly realize that we have been using the same expression for many years when we speak of the fabulous 'Unicorn' the mythical white horse with a single horn projecting from his forehead and always found in the British Royal coat of Arms.

Unicorn is not the only word that has a very strong French relationship — we even find many words that are exactly alike such as pollen, marmalade, issue and crime, whilst others vary in the spelling but sound alike when spoken such as gelee, cristal, elastique and journalisme.

This relationship goes back a great deal further than the close proximity of French Quebec and the rest of Canada and the Anglicising of many French words. Indeed it goes right back to the beginnings of recorded history when William the Conqueror crossed the channel from France to invade the south of England to kill the Saxon King Harold on the field of the Battle of Hasting's. For many years French was spoken at court as the new King William gathered friends and relatives about him and artisans were brought over to teach their trade to the British people.

Owing to the closeness between France and England, many people crossed the channel in both directions during the following years, the French language left its imprint on our speech, which is always being influenced by its surroundings.

Caughnawaga News

Fashion Show Draws A Large Crowd.

The Caughnawaga Knights of Columbus Hall was crowded with enthusiastic spectators on March 22, for a fashion show. The newly formed Committee for Retarded Indian Children sponsored the event, with a local mother, Mrs. Elizabeth White designing many of the gowns shown. One of the highlights of the evening was the appearance of Miss Arlene Phillips, a recent cover girl for the Weekend Magazine Section of the Montreal Star. Proceeds from the show will help provide special equipment for retarded children. Mr. Harry Stacey, president of the Committee reports that classes for slow learners will be established in September, 1962.

Explorer Group Formed

Caughawaga United Church Explorer group was formed on the 6th of March under the capable leadership of Mrs. Doris Montour and Miss Phyllis Wilson. Nineteen girls between the ages of 9 and 11 have joined the group, which meets each Tuesday at 4 p.m., in the Church Hall. The members will be initiated at a special meeting on May the 8th, and parents are invited to attend the initiation.

Change of Hour.

The United Church Sunday School now meets at 9.45 instead of 11 a.m. This change is the result of the regular church service being held at 11 a.m., rather than 7 p.m., as formerly.

Good News

Caughnawaga Residents have been pleased to note the return of Mrs. Martha Diabo to her home. Mrs. Diabo was a victim of the Greyhound bus accident, November 14th, 1961, near Plattsburg, N.Y. There were 27 people injured in the mishap, and Mrs. Diabo has been in both the Physicians Hospital and the Montreal Neurological Institute since that time. It has been a long hard struggle for the Diabo family, but at last they are together again.

Lenten Study Held.

Members of the United Church have been meeting each Tuesday evening, during the Lenten Season, for Bible Study and Prayer. The meeting is quite informal, with well known hymns being sung and then a study of the events leading up to the Crucifixion as related by St. Mark. The evening closes with prayer. The group has been well attended, and any interested people are invited to join the fellowship.

Campaign Easter Seals

Contributors to last year's Easter Seal Campaign played a personal part in the rehabilitation of 388 handicapped fellow citizens through the Rotary Clubs of Montreal area it was revealed today.

W. E. Kilgour, chairman of the Beauharnois Rotary Easter Seal Committee expressed the hope that the citizens of the Beauharnois, Chateauguay, St. Remi and Ste Martine area would again respond generously when they receive the familiar pink envelopes for 1962.

The Cripples Aid Committee during the past twelve months was able to provide 70 wheel chairs, 72 artificial limbs, 173 braces and other orthopedic appliances and 73 pairs of orthopedic shoes to crippled children and adults of Montreal and surrounding districts.

The amount spent on individual cases ranged from a few dollars for minor treatment or care up to $400 for an artifical limb.

In addition, the Cripples Aid Committee provided bursaries for five students in physical and occupational therapy to McGill University and the University of Montreal. The first Easter Seal graduate, under this program begun three years ago, will begin her professional duties this spring.

Rotarians have been working on behalf of the crippled and handicapped ever since the founding of the Rotary Club of Montreal in 1913. Rotary pioneered in this field in Montreal and vicinity when available facilities for the handicapped were few.

When Easter Seals came to the Province of Quebec in 1949, it was the beginning of a new era in Rotary's fight against the serious problem facing the district's crippled persons.

Easter Seals have channelled nearly a quarter of a million dollars in 12 years through the Cripples Aid Committee to answer the needs of the handicapped, a vast improvement on the meagre and wholly insufficient budget that the Rotarians had been used to in previous years.

Every dollar spent by the Cripples Aid Committee is furnished by the Quebec Easter Seal Society. The Society and the committee point with pride to the fact that the cases assisted represent actual dollars spent on orthopedic appliances, with no overhead costs.

The Cripples Aid Committee is only one of 10 major organizations in various sections of the province which lean heavily on Easter Seals in order to carry out their work for the handicapped.

It is to be noted that half of the proceeds of the Beauharnois Chateauguay Valley district is retained in our district for use amongst the handicapped in our area.

Parlays Idea, $800 Into Boom Business

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sixteen years ago Douglas Cope had $800, an idea and a brief, unhappy career in house-building behind him. He credits all three with starting him on the way to his present status as a very successful businessman.

The $800 was all that remained of $1,800 he received in gratuities when he left the RCAF in 1946. He lost $1,000 in three months after plunging on an abortive attempt to make a small construction firm profitable.

The idea was to build apartment blocks and sell, rather than rent, the suites.

He was $151,000 short of the amount needed to put his idea to work for the first time in a building of 25 apartments.

Shows Profit

But by the time the building was finished and all the suites sold, Mr. Cope had shown a $7,000 profit, lost 15 pounds in weight and was firmly established here as a pioneer promoter of self-owned apartments.

Since then he has put up 14 such buildings, including the $7,000,000 Chilco Towers, and sold suites worth an estimated $4,000,000. His company, Self-Owned Apartments Limited, also manages a number of buildings for the owner-tenants.

Now 39, Mr. Cope admits success has taken the edge off his daring. He says he wouldn't have the nerve now to start out on such a venture with only

1294 LAKE ST. LOUIS VILLE DE LERY

FUR, FEATHERS AND FUN

This week children, I'm writing about the wonderful little engineer the Beaver. Have you ever been in the mountains near a small lake or pond, where the trees are mostly Poplar?

A few summers ago I had the opportunity of watching these clever engineers at work. One has to stay very quiet and still if you want to watch, because there is always one beaver on guard — if he hears a strange sound, he slaps the water with his broad tail, as a warning signal to the beavers at work that all is not well. I watched the beavers chew through a young poplar tree, it did not take very long. When the tree fell to the ground, the beaver would slap the ground with his tail and two or three beavers would come to the fallen tree and start to chew it in pieces about a foot long. They don't only use these trees to build dams and homes for themselves, they use the bark as food. The beaver stores these logs and branches in the water near their homes, then they pile stones on top of these logs to keep them down. To make their home, they pile twigs and logs, weigh them down with stones and fasten them together with mud. They pat the mud in the cracks with their noses and feet.

If you look sometime across these lakes and ponds you might see a pile of branches sticking out of the water, this is the beavers home. Its a one-room apartment with doors in the floor because beavers must swim down into the water to get out. During the winter, they stay at home, only going out to the storehouse to get food. While they are building dams to help themselves, they are helping us too. Their dams hold back spring waters that prevent floods and keep our farmlands from being washed away. If you have a chance this summer to see these animals at work, Im sure you will enjoy every minute, so if you see a little black bump which is his nose moving along the water you will know it's a beaver swimming. You know children, there are so many things in the bush and our lakes if you just keep your eyes open, a whole new wonderful world will unfold to you.

Garde Member Honored For 25 Years Service

VALLEYFIELD — The Garde Champlain of Valleyfield honored a member for 25 years service on Sunday, March 25th, at the headquarters of the Garde, at the Hall of Sacre-Coeur Church in Valleyfield. Sergeant Eugène Guerin entered the Garde Champlain on March 24th, 1937, and was initiated on November 14th of the same year. On November 29th, 1942, he received the Medal as the best Cadet at a competition organized for members of 5 years or more. He was promoted Corporal of the Drummer Band on August 9th, 1946, and Sergeant of the same Corps in December, 1956. On August 11th, 1934, he married Alice Leclerc.

Mr. Guerin was very touched when he received the gold button for 25 years of Service, and also a beautiful ashtray as a souvenir, from Major Georges Poirier, President of the Garde.

The Garde under the orders of Lt. Colonel Georges St-Onge played the General Salute for the newly decorated and the ceremony was closed with reception given the Quarters of the Garde. The whole Garde hoped Mr. Guerin will continue on his way and reach 50 years service.

Chuckle of the week

Who is the certain party on Bissonnette Street who has been patiently waiting for her canaries to lay eggs, only to finally discover that she has been trying to breed two male birds! Better luck next time.

Seven m.p.h. Limit Studied For Seaway

OTTAWA. — Establishment of a uniform seven-miles-an-hour speed limit for all ships using the Canadian canals of the St. Lawrence Seaway is under consideration, R.J. Burnside, Seaway Authority director of operations, said on Friday.

At present the speed limit in the canals is six miles an hour for vessels of 260 feet or more in length and eight miles an hour for smaller ships. There is no limit in open sections of the international waterway or on the Great Lakes.

Last year residents of the Long Sault district complained high waves caused by passing ships damaged waterfront property.

A possible exception to the proposed new limit is the Beauharnois Canal where a nine-miles-an-hour restriction may be imposed because of the strong current.

SUCCESSFUL SEWING CLASSES HELD BY W.I. AT HOWICK

The above photo shows a part of the successful sewing class which was held in the cafeteria of Howick High School and sponsored by the Howick W.I. for the past two weeks. The cafeteria made a wonderful classroom for the "pupils" as there is considerable space and the tables worked very nicely for cutting out the material.

Wild Geese Seen Near Brysonville

A friend of The Gleaner phoned this morning (Wednesday) reporting that upwards of 200 wild geese were seen on the banks of the Chateauguay River near Brysonville, on Tuesday morning. The beautiful birds with dark green heads settled on cakes of ice lining the banks and rested for almost three-quarters of an hour, moving around contentedly and making very little sound. Just before resuming flight, one of the geese made a loud honking noise and flew off in a westerly direction, followed in single file by the others. The caller said the sight was beautiful and that a number of people in the vicinity enjoyed the birds' brief visit.

Checking with Bill Boyd who possesses lextensive knowledge pertaining to local wild life, The Gleaner learned that the geese had also probably stopped at the Bird Sanctuary in Laprairie and were probably in flight to the James Bay area. Mr. Boyd said the geese, like the robin, are harbingers of spring.

Teatime Topics

Because of the Broadway play "The Sound of Music" many people have heard of Maria von Trapp.

The real baroness now lives in Stowe, Vermont, at a year round resort called the Trapp Family Lodge.

Maria met Baron George von Trapp, a widower, when she was sent to his Salzburg home to serve as a governess for his seven musical children. Maria and the Baron fell in love and married.

Before long the family was singing together so equisitely they were asked to perform in public. With the help of the family priest, Monsignor Franz Wasner, Maria and the children formed a choral group.

Soon after the Nazis occupied Austria, the family moved with Father Wasner to Italy and later to the United States. They were forced to leave their many heirlooms behind.

They began singing together again and during the next 18 years gave more than 2,000 concerts all over the world.

About 1940 the family heard of a resort in Vermont that was for sale. By this time, three new voices had been added to the family chorus, and economy was a strong inducement in buying the inexpensive resort.

Finances were a problem but "it was then that we learned about that wonderful American institution — down payments," Maria Trapp explained.

The Baron died in 1947 but the Trapp Family Singers stayed together until 1955, when marriages disbanded the group. The home was then turned into a resort.

Austrian Specialty

At the Trapp lodge, Austrian cuisine is the perferred fare and skiers are often greeted back to the lodge with kaffee mit schlagobers (coffee with whipped cream) and Viennese torten.

The Linzer Torte is a crusty, butterery pastry filled with fruit preserves and nut meats. Here is the recipe which has been handd down from one Trapp generation to another.

Linzer Torte: 1 cup butter or margarine; 1 cup sugar; 1 tbsp. grated orange or lemon peel; 2 egg yolks; 1½ cups sifted, enriched flour; 1 tsp. baking powder; 2 tsp. cinnamon; ½ tsp. cloves; ¼ tsp. salt; 1 cup ground nuts (filberts, almonds or walnuts); 1 cup tart preserves.

Cream butter; add sugar slowly while continuing to cream. Add orange or lemon peel. Add egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, spices and salt. Add slowly, stirring in. Stir in nuts. After all is added, mix with hands until all ingredients are thoroughly combined. Chill. Pat two-thirds of dough in bottom of nine-inch layer cake pan, perferably one with removable bottom.

Spread perserves over this layer. Roll out remaining dough; cut into eight strips three-quarters inch wide and place lattice fashion on top of preserves. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 50 to 60 minutes or until edges of strips recede from sides of pan. Remove from pan, cool and garnish with a frill of whipped cream. Cut into small wedges to serve. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

A new booklet on glove etquette says that "gloves are the mark of a lady and their use should be as stringently respected as a proper knife and fork in a five-course banquet."

The booklet explains that a lady is never seen in the city streets, on a public vehicle or in public places without gloves. They are to be worn, not just carried, in every season.

The length of the glove is dictated by the length of the sleeve. Except in rare cases a glove should always meet the sleeve. One of the exceptions is the white wrist length glove worn in summer with short-sleeved or sleeveless cotton silk dresses.

A note says one always wears gloves when one goes to church; travels in a public conveyance; goes shopping; goes out to lunch dinner or tea; goes out for any reason in the city; goes to a wedding or other formal reception.

One never wears gloves when one eats; drinks; smokes; sits at a dinner table; powders one's nose in public.

A woman keeps her gloves on when shaking hands with a gentleman and when going through a reception line.

A young girl removes the glove of her right hand when shaking hands after being introduced to an older woman, particularly if the older women is gloveless.

Wedding Gloves

A bride should wear gloves and they should meet the sleeve of her bridal gown. For informal weddings and for bridesmaids, it is permissable and fashonable to wear pastel gloves to blend with the gown. The bride-slits the third finger of her right-hand glove so that she does not have to remove the entire glove to accept the ring.

Gloves can serve as a camouflage. A glove the same color as the sleeve of a dress makes the arm look longer and thinner. Contrasting gloves shorten a too lanky or too thin arm.

The older a women gets the more her gloves should cover. Her face, which she has carefully tended for years, is not necessarily one of the first aging points.

Fussiness is not good fashion taste. Simple gloves should be worn with all but basic types of clothing where they do not compete with dressmaker detailing in the dress.

Woman Chancellor

Women in the news recently include Mrs. Frank M. Ross, the first woman chancellor of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

Mrs. Ross, wife of the former lieutenant - governor of the province graduated from the university in 1925. It was the first election for chancellor in the school's history. All others had been acclaimed. She won out over a personal friend, Mrs. H.G. Angus, wife of the chairman of the B.C. Utilities Commission.

A Toronto neurologist has come up with some advice that will undoubtedly be met with glee.

Dr. Livia Mitis of Women's College Hospital told an audience of women executives to take time to learn to play again.

"And do yield to that impulse to buy the hat you can't afford. Do have fun."

Dr. Mitis spoke during a course in management sponsored by the Toronto Business and Professional Women's Club.

She likened executives to racehorses who had all kinds of ability and drive but who did not always know when to stop.

Sometimes tension resulted from an individual's inability to stand up to outside influences, or from fatigue. The symptoms of fatigue often went unrecognized. They include insomnia disturbed sleep and early waking. Being waspish was another indication that the individual was not so much annoyed with others as with herself and that she did not possess the superhuman qualities needed to keep going without stopping.

A person beset by stress was similar to a person bitten by a mosquito. The bite set up tension, and relief was sought in scratching.

"If you are bitten, but if you have a six-pound trout on your line, it wouldn't matter if a whole army of mosquitos were after you, "Dr. Mitis said. "This may be the same stress, but there is not the same tension involved".

Dress Up Your Dinners

Now that spring is here, thoughts turn to spring fashions. It's fun to dress up and it's also fun to dress up the dinner table. Many women have favorite meat or desert dishes but all too often the vegetabies are ignored.

Try mustard sauce to give canned or frozen beans or peas a perky taste. Blend together 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 tbsp. prepared mustard, 3 tbsps. milk and ½ tsp. lemon juice. Pour over drained vegetable and reheat for four or five minutes. Sprinkle with almonds and serve. The recipe makes enough sauce for six servings.

To give carrots a springtime look, try this glaze. Prepare, cut into fingers or rounds and cook in usual way 1½ pounds of carrots for six servings. When just tender, drain, add 2 tbsps. butter, 1½ tbsps. honey and 1 tsp. chopped parsley. Heat uncovered for two or three minutes, stiring carefully until carrots are well glazed.

To give frozen kernel corn new treatment, place one 16-ounce package in a greased one-quart casserole with 2 tbsps. cream, ¼ tsp. salt and a few grains of pepper. Dot with 2 tbsps. butter, cover and bake in a 400-degree oven for 30 minutes. Makes four to five servings.

Tomatoes can be used to add a splash of color to a salad. They are marvellous too as a hot vegetable and may be stuffed and baked or halved and broiled. A little basil or thyme is recommended as the seasoning.

Why Can't We Treat Married Women Like People?

As soon as a girl changes her status from Miss to Mrs. she's no longer looked upon as an individual adult fully responsible for her own actions and ideas, Christina McCall Newman charges in Chatelaine magazine.

A full-time working journalist she was unable to get a library card as a new bride in Ottawa without being listed under her husband's name, a library rule to ensure having on file the name of the man responsible should fines be incurred.

Before a ten-minute broadcast, she was introduced as the wife of the well-known journalist and author, Peter Newman, despite her insistence that neither her husband nor the fact that he had written a successful book had anything at all to do with her views at that particular moment.

While believing that men were often at fault in their attitude, Mrs. Newman contended that the main burden of blame lay with married women themselves. Once married they looked upon themselves as being "just a housewife", they were content to coast, to stop finding out what went on in the world. Men expected all wives to be dull because the majority of them were dull.

Our current social attitude that every girl should find herself a husband as soon as possible after eighteen was a contributing factor, she felt. Canadian girls married and bore their children during what should be the years of self-discovery. At the age of thirty or thirty-five with the children in school and the house under control, she was chronically bored.

The writer advocated that we instill both in ourselves and our children the belief that girls have as much responsibility to grow into fully formed opinionated adults as do boys; and that we try to stave off the urgency to marry to at least the middle twenties.

Consumers Association To Check Bread Weights

The Consumers Association of Canada hopes to check bread weights in Quebec after it establishes its consumer product testing services on a national basis, Mrs. A.F.W. Plumptre, CAC president, said.

The plan was hailed by responsible bakers who have been combatting shortweight practices beyond the Montreal area.

"Because of many small bakeries in Quebec, comprehensive testing would be too formidable a task at the beginning of our program," Mrs. Plumptre said.

The CAC will begin to test Canadian products later this year. According to Mrs. Plumptre there is a national obligation to be met before regional problems can be tackled.

"But we are aware of Quebec's shortweight bread problem and we hope to get around to it", she added.

In a newsletter to members in the Quebec Division, the CAC said, "unless the housewife is careful she may buy bread which appears to be a 24 oz. loaf but actually may weigh anywhere from 18 oz. to 22 oz."

These deceptive loaves are produced by irresponsible bakers as a competitive trick by using less dough in the pan normally used for a 24 oz. loaf.

"Balloon bread", as it is called in the trade, is priced lower than the standard 24 oz. loaf to create the illusion of a bargain. Actually there is no saving for the consumer and often the price per ounce may be higher.

Huntingdon Man In Accident At Valleyfield

VALLEYFIELD — Since the renovation of the J. O. Quesnel Store in Valleyfield, cars seem attracted by the new display windows — Last Saturday, another car hit the front of this establishment, near the intersection of Grande Ile Street and du Havre Boulevard. The accident happened around 7.10 p.m. when two automobiles passed each other on the Boulevard, near the intersection; the drivers were Mr. Marcel Samson and Mr. Xavier Roland, both from Valleyfield. At the same time, Mr. Jack Black, of Huntingdon, coming from Grande Ile Street, did not see the red stop light and collided with Mr. Samson's car, which was thrown over the one of Mr. Roland, and one of the cars hit the wall of the J. O. Quesnel Store.

It was fortunate that no one was injured; material damage amounted to about $1,050. Constables A. Fortier and P. Bougie investigated.

Immigration to Canada in the first nine months of 1961 totalled 56,168 down by one-third from the similar period of 1960.
