Joking's okay for blind country singer Terry Gibb

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Terri Gibbs, who has been blind since birth, can joke today about her music and her disability.

But she couldn't two years ago when her career began to plunge after her first record became a smash hit.

Just after the record, Somebody's Knockin', became a hit on both country and pop charts, Gibbs began feeling insecure rather than exhilarated by her fame.

"Sometimes I wanted to run and hide," she said. "It scared me. I didn't know if I measured up. It was such a traumatic change for me; I went through a lot of depression."

The 29-year-old performer with a husky, haunting voice was an unknown restaurant lounge singer in 1981 when she did the recording.

Suddenly, this bashful singer from Augusta, Ga., was thrust into the competitive, sophisticated music industry. She wasn't prepared.

BLIND SINGER

She had never lived away from home and had been rather sheltered. She knew nothing about the complex, behind-the-scenes aspect of the music business. And complicating it all, she was blind.

When her career began to plunge, she had to quickly learn about the business of music — the side she didn't even know existed.

"I learned about charts and records and record companies. I learned about the kinds of things the average person doesn't know about — and maybe shouldn't."

None of her other recordings measured up to Somebody's Knockin'. In fact, she has had nothing in the Top 10 since. Some radio stations quit playing her records.

"People were waiting to see what I could do," said Gibbs, a pianist. "After a while, you doubt yourself."

But through it all, she maintained a sense of humor. Now she can joke about her music and her disability as well.

She and John Jarrard, who also is blind, write songs together. She laughingly calls it "the blind leading the blind" and she jokes they should write a song and call it, I'm Blind in Love With You.

But, when asked if blindness hurt her career, she said: "I sometimes wonder if it hindered my ability to size people up.

"But I feel I do a pretty good job. I know that being able to see would have helped in a lot of ways, like adjusting better, but it's not a major thing."

RISING AGAIN

Now, her career may be rising again. Billboard Magazine, the music industry trade publication, has termed her current album, Over Easy, her best — a "thoroughly entrancing project."

A single from the album, Anybody Else's Heart But Mine, has been moving quickly up the country charts.

She says the high point of her career was not Somebody's Knockin'. It was doing Over Easy.

"I put my whole heart and soul in it," she said.

Somebody's Knockin' was her first record. A Nashville recording executive, Ed Penney, discovered her through a demonstration tape she sent him.

She was a finalist for a Grammy Award and the Academy of Country Music and the Country Music Association gave her awards as the most promising singer.

Starving musician routine not for guitarist Benson

NEW YORK (AP) — George Benson couldn't be happier with what he's doing.

Sure, he's had his critics. They're the jazz purists who say he sold out and abandoned the chance to become one of the greatest jazz guitarists of all time for the moneyed world of pop music.

But no matter, Benson says they simply do not understand him and his music.

"I'm not trying to prove anything; I never have tried to prove anything," he said in an interview. "I guess that's what makes me different than the old image people have — like the jazz musician is a man who desires to starve. I think that's ridiculous. I've never met a jazz artist like that."

He also knows that for every detractor, there is another critic offering praise. Benson deserves his popularity, one reviewer said, because the considerable weight of his talent is balanced by his excellent use of it.

An important part of that talent, Benson says, comes from his ability to read his audience, gauge their reactions and have it reflect in his music.

His latest album is In Your Eyes, his seventh for Warner Bros. Records. It's in the Top 40 and climbing. And like most of his newer records, he's singing on practically every cut.

In fact, many of his newer fans don't even know he plays guitar.

"It doesn't bother me," says Benson. "Hopefully, they'll become guitar fans and they'll go back and listen to those albums or go out and buy some of the other stuff with guitar music on it."

And maybe, he says, he will turn some of them into jazz fans.

"They seem to be more willing to do that than the jazz fan is willing to give up his so-called status as a heavy jazz listener.

"But I don't form any particular opinion about it. I just cut what I feel good about doing, and I feel good about what I'm doing now."

FROM THE CORNER

At age 40, Benson has seen the music business from almost every angle.

When he was eight, he was known around Pittsburgh, his home town, as Little Georgie Benson, the ukulele-strumming street singer who picked up pocket money performing on street corners.

During his teens, he played guitar with the rhythm and blues and jazz-flavored bands that were the foundation of his later music. In the late 1960s and early '70s he played on albums with numerous jazz greats — including the legendary trumpeter Miles Davis — earning him the reputation as one of the hottest guitar players around.

Still, wide recognition didn't come until the late '70s when he recorded This Masquerade, the only vocal on his Breezin' album.

Top ten? Not likely but RCMP song is here

VANCOUVER (CP) — If Steve Romanik's record gets the airplay he thinks it deserves, it could lend new meaning to the radio expression: No.1 with a Bullet.

Romanik — Const. Steve Romanik — is the composer of The Mounties, a 45 r.p.m. ode to the RCMP, of which he's been a member for the past 12 years. But Romanik is feeling handcuffed by radio programmers who won't put the song on the air.

"I'd like to see it played," says Romanik, 34, who is stationed at the Chilliwack, B.C., detachment in the Fraser Valley east of Vancouver.

"It could boost morale on the force. It could become kind of a theme song for the force."

Romanik wrote the song nine years ago, and submitted it without luck to several Canadian record companies. Last December, Royalty Records of Edmonton accepted it and recorded it, with Cal Canus singing the lead vocal.

Romanik, an ex-country musician, did not perform on the record.

In August, Royalty sent 300 of its 1,000 copies out to radio stations around the country but so far few of them have found it an arresting song.

REFUSES BOOKINGS

Romanik is disappointed that the bigger Vancouver stations won't book it. He said he spoke with programmers at CKNW and CKWX, who told him that because Canus is an unknown factor, they wouldn't play the record.

Harold Kendall, music director at CKWX, concurs.

"I listened to it and I rejected it," says Kendall, who said the song was played on the station's all-night show. "It's a humorous enough little ditty, but I don't hear it as a hit record. I need a big, fat commercial hit.

"I don't believe in playing records because they're local, or because they're made by a cop."

Romanik believes his record is the first about the RCMP since Dick Nolan mentioned the force on Aunt Martha's Sheep some 15 years ago.

He knows The Mounties is not basic Top 30 material, but he's banking on the novelty factor.

"I'm going on the pretense that it's unique," says Romanik.

A sample of the lyrics:

"From Vancouver Island to the Newfoundland Coast

"And through the great north of the land we love most

"Maintain the right, is the RCMP way, law and order in Canada will stay

"A comin' down the highway, the cars are blue and white

"You'll see them in the day time you'll see them in the night

"So obey the laws of Canada, that goes for you and me

"The next car behind you, might be the RCMP."

Claire Mowat accomplished writer in her own right

Kaleidoscope

By RICHARD LONEY

The Outport People by Claire Mowat (McCLELLAND & STEWART): $18.95, 271 pp.

For a woman, living with a writer is usually an exercise in eccentricity at best. The Hemingway wives, Scott Fitzgerald's Zelda. even Canada's celebrity wife-of-a writer Sheila Hailey have all gone into print in one form or another, with or without their husband's blessings. Claire Mowat, the wife of celebrated Canada naturalist Farley, had a successful career as a graphic designer after being educated at Havergal College and the Ontario College of Art. But the peripatetic habits of Farley and his honest habits of research and experiencing his subjects firsthand have led Claire and her fiesty writer husband to some exotic landscapes. Iceland and Siberia may seem to be lands that would present challenges to the couple venturing to their strange shores, but the decision of the Mowats to live and work in a Newfoundland outport community proved to be a fantastic voyage into the colonial past of Canada's most recently confederated province.

From 1962 until 1967 Farley and Claire dwelled in the quaint outport community of Baleena (a fictionalized name), and The Outport People is Mrs. Mowat's transcription of that experience. Once the reader gets past the feeling that he is witnessing a sociologist's probe into the cultural habits of this alien, little-known breed of hardy folk, Claire Mowat's book can be entertaining. The settlement of Baleena has all of the characteristics of a 19th century rural village caught in the throes of industrialization, unionism, and adjusting to modern conveniences such as the telephone, passable highways, and the mixed blessings of television.

Through her contact with various of the Newfoundland natives, Mowat presents a clear picture of the petty prejudices and class distinctions that are so finely drawn in Baleena. We meet the bourgeois Drakes, who are the social leaders in the area due to their ownership of the fish-packing factory; the local RCMP representative, postmaster, fishermen, nurse, doctor, and the children of the hard-working outport doreymen. Mowat weaves her narrative around the lives of her neighbours, while she and Farley adapt to the roughing-it-in-the bush lifestyle they have chosen to facilitate Farley's research.

Newfoundlanders, fiercely proud of their heritage and skeptical about the designs of a writer and his wife from "away", take very slowly to the Mowats as settlers in Baleena. But once they have been accepted, they are made a part of such time-forgotten rituals as Mummery at Christmas time and their kitchen becomes one of the focal points for the neighbourhood children. The Outport People is an unusual book which really turns out to be as much about the Mowat family's adapting to the ways of Newfoundlanders as it is about the outport people's reaction to the writer from Toronto and his observant wife.

The Man From St. Petersbury, by Ken Follett (SIGNET): $4.95, 342 pp.

Ken Follett borrows a pop novelist's technique from writers such as E.L. Doctorow, whose Ragtime wove a fictional tale into the real fabric of history, to make his most recent thriller his best book to date. The Man From St. Petersburg blends the action and suspense that he handles so well, with a great deal of atmosphere and many cameo roles from noted British historical figures. The simple plot, in which an anarchist from the Russian city of the book's title journeys to London to assassinate a Russian Count, really is just a device for Follett's unfolding of the detail that makes this an adventure novel with a difference.

A young Churchill, British royalty, and Mrs. Pankhurst the suffragette heroine, are a few of the characters that Feliks Kschessinsky's anarchist plot crosses, the Follett does a workmanlike job of establishing the social conventions of London in the year 1914, with the world poised on the brink of the Great War. The beautiful wife of the Earl of Walden, a Russian woman named Lydia, is shocked at the reappearance of the sinister Feliks, who was once her lover. Follett's tale is intriguing, and his portraits of the main characters are accurate and believable. The comedy of errors that ensues when Feliks sets out to assassinate Count Orlov keeps the reader zipping through the pages of this thriller with an historical angle.

Cult favorite 'Dune' will soon be major movie thriller

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Frank Herbert, author of the cult favorite, Dune, believes its millions of readers will be pleased with the movie version of the science fiction epic.

"I know what they're doing to my baby — they're doing a really good job," he said in an interview at Churubusco studios where the movie is being shot.

The multimillion-dollar movie, directed by David Lynch and scheduled for release next year, sticks closely to the story line of Dune. It is based on the first book of four in the Dune series. A movie version of the second in the series is in the works.

A fifth book, The Heretics of Dune, will be published soon, and Herbert is four-fifths of the way through a sixth. He says he never tires of the fictional universe he has created.

"It's a fascinating palate, and I like to paint on it," he says.

The 62-year-old author described his role as being a resource for the director, although he noted that he's helped with some lines and with the cutting of the original script.

Herbert said Dune developed in the 1960s when he had an idea for a book about the urge to be a messiah. He started researching comparative religions. While working on an unrelated magazine article, he flew over an area in Oregon that had sand dunes.

The result was Dune — one of the most popular science fiction novels ever written. It is set on the desert planet Arrakis, known as Dune, where good eventually wins over evil.

Herbert said one study estimated that 40 million people had read the 10 million copies sold of his science fiction novel, which was published in 1965. "I don't know why, but this was a passer-on book," the author said.

The production's cost is expected to top $20 million.

The cast includes Jose Ferrer as The Emperor, Max Von Sydow as Dr. Kynes, Sting of the rock-group Police as Feyd and Italian actress Silvana Mangano as Rev. Mother Ramallo. The navigator is a mechanical construction made by Carlo Rambaldi, who built the extra-terrestrial E.T.

Sadler Wells — from Royal Ballet's shadow

LONDON (CP) — Gone are the days when Sadlers Wells Royal Ballet was just the touring arm of Britain's most famous dance company, the Royal Ballet.

Instead, on its first tour of Canada during the next six weeks, Sadlers Wells will show Canadians an international ballet company in its own right.

"It's true to say that 15 years ago, this was a watered-down version of the Royal Ballet," admits Sadlers Wells' director Peter Wright.

"But now through a change of policy we are two distinct companies with the same roots."

Those roots are firmly based on what is known as the English Classical Style, a clean, lyrical style that was introduced into Canada when Celia Franca founded the National Ballet more than 30 years ago.

HAS VITALITY

But what Sadlers Wells has that the bigger Royal Ballet lacks is a youthful vitality. And in that sense, Sadlers Wells can be compared to the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

"In the last 10 years, we have built up a special identity for the company," says Wright.

"I think the fact that we perform far more than the Royal Ballet gives us a special excitement ... there is a freshness about the company."

There are stars, too, like David Ashmole, Margaret Barbieri and Marion Tait, although their names may not be as well-known internationally as those of the Royal Ballet's leading dancers.

The exception is principal ballerina Galina Samsova who is well-known everywhere, especially in Canada. Samsova began her career in the West as a principal dancer with Canada's National Ballet after emigrating from the Soviet Union in the 1960s.

In fact, Samsova should prove to be the main attraction on the Canadian tour with her performances as Odette-Odile in the company's dramatically coherent version of the classic Swan Lake, which she produced jointly with Wright.

CHOOSES SWAN LAKE

With a keen eye on the box office, Wright chose his critically-acclaimed Swan Lake to open the tour in Kitchener, Ont., on Sunday night.

The rest of the tour's repertoire was chosen to give a little bit of everything — young talent, established talent, and classic virtuosity.

The young talent is David Bintley, recently appointed as company choreographer. His short ballet, Night Moves, set to music written in the late 1930s by Benjamin Britten, has already proved a success here.

"Benjamin Britten wrote the music when war was in the air," Wright explained.

"He was aware of the disaster that was impending but everyone else was carrying on as usual.

"So there is a forboding feeling about the piece."

The established talent is Kenneth MacMillan, the Royal Ballet's principal choreographer. His short classic about the sexual awakening of a young boy and girl, The Invitation, has never been seen in Canada.

"It's good powerful stuff, a strong well-constructed piece."

LAUNCHES CAREER

It's also interesting from a historical viewpoint for it was this ballet which, in 1960, launched the career of Lynn Seymour, a young dancer from Wainwright, Alta., who went on to become the supreme dramatic ballerina of the Royal Ballet.

Completing the triple bill is Act 3 of Raymonda, Rudolf Nureyev's production which Wright has included as a concession to those who want to see the best of glitter and virtuosity that classical dance has to offer.

Sadlers Wells is used to performing a lot — indeed it tours most of the time. Last year, the company and its 52 dancers spent three months touring the far East and Australia.

Perequita and pot roast to chase away November

Wine bits

BY TIM BELFORD

After a lingering summer and a gorgeous September, Mother Nature is about to turn on us and reveal her true character — a cross between the Wicked Witch of the West and Typhoid Mary. She'll bring that miserable November weather and enough colds and flu to keep the manufacturers of kleenex happy until April.

The only solution is to put away your spare tonic water, reshelve the white wine that you were saving for that last warm day and bend with the wind. In other words, red wine is in again.

All kidding aside, it is the season when stews, chilis and pot roasts once again become a popular evening meal and as usual there are a number of wines perfect for the occaison. The watchword here is 'body' since the wine must have suitable character to stand up to the strong flavor and high spice content of these many pot meals.

One wine that comes to mind immediately is the Portuguese Perequita. Robust and the darkest of red, Perequita is produced by the famous house of Fonseca from grapes of the same name. Few wines have the strength of character to handle highly spiced chili or Hungarian goulash as this one does and few wines can be found at as reasonable a price.

Speaking of Hungary and the paprika-laced dishes of the Magyars, both the splendid Egri Bikaver (Bull's Blood) and the rougher but acceptable Szekszardi Voros fill the gap like a Cadbury's Snack Bar never could. Produced by the government-owned Monimpex, both improve with a certain amount of aging but even when young are quite palatable.

From the Greeks comes Naoussa. A strong, dry red of considerable character, Naoussa hails from the northern portion of the country in the region of Macedonia. Once ruled by Alexander the Great and his father Phillip, Macedonia boasts rugged country and fierce fighting men. Naoussa is above average in character and a fitting drink for a race spawned by world conquerors.

A listing of full-bodied wines would not be complete without mention of the ubiquitous Chianti. As I have been at pains to point out in previous columns, Chianti can and often is a superb velvety wine, with a subtle character suitable for fine dinning. The young chiantis — those of the wicker covering — however, are fresh, fruity affairs with an almost oily texture to them that stands them in good stead with any Saturday pot roast.

There are others of course. But finding them is half the fun. Cheers!

Making it big in Japan is no easy task for Canadians

TOKYO (CP) — Canadian artists are beginning to make forays into Japan's massive audience, but the road to popular success is still long.

In the last few weeks alone, performers ranging from the Tommy Banks Jazz Quintette of Edmonton to Ontario's Theatre Beyond Words mime troupe, have played to small, but appreciative and influential audiences and Louis Hamel, the cultural attache at the Canadian Embassy says Japan's market is coming closer to being a good one for Canadian artists.

"But it takes time to break into the market here," he said. "It is sophisticated and demanding. Without a series of serious attempts, Canadians cannot expect to be big hits."

Banks, who just completed a tour of China and parts of Southeast Asia, began a Tokyo stint by entertaining diners at a dinner for Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

From that, the group was able to get a booking in an influential Tokyo jazz club and the audience included several of the country's most powerful jazz critics.

With that exposure, it is believed the group will be able to mount a modest tour here next year that should pay off.

Theatre Beyond Words, which had a highly successful month-long run in several parts of Japan, had broken into the market with similar short visits and the country now seems likely to become a regular stop for the company.

IMPRESS CRITICS

The Orford String Quartet, stopping off on return from a tour of Asia and Oceania, also impressed several music critics here and is likely to be able to add several more concerts, on a commercial basis, on their next swing through.

In ballet, the Grands ballets canadiens will have a month-long tour in June and July of next year and prima ballerina Evelyn Hart of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet is performing Giselle in Tokyo this month.

Composer Murray Schaffer has been commissioned to work with a Japanese and a French composer to create a new work on the theme of Kyoto which will be premiered in 1985.

Pop artists, like Loverboy which wowed Japan in October last year, have also begun making marks here and Hamel suggested the market will continue to welcome Canadians who make the effort to break in slowly and without overly high expectations on the first attempt.

"But if a group has a recording available, favourable press, or other means of introducing itself to Japan, people here are ready to be entertained," Hamel said.

"But this is a tight market and no one can hope to just arrive and find someplace to perform. Even small clubs are booked months in advance, so Canadian artists hoping to do well here, must plan well ahead and work hard. But then the benefits really start to flow."

University Gallery mounts show

By Timothy Belford

Bishop's-Champlain Art Gallery presents from October 13 to November 2 Le Dessin de la jeune peinture, an exhibition organized by the Circulating Exhibitions Service of the Musée d'art contemporain in Montreal.

This exhibition brings together drawings by young abstract painters in Quebec who emerged during the mid-70's and who, by their attitude and achievement, have created a new dynamism in painting. Gathered together in the show are works by Denis Asselin, Luc Béland, Louis Comtois, Lucio de Heusch, Christian Kiopini, Christian Knudsen, Richard Mill, Léopold Plotek and Louise Robert. The selection makes evident the principal forms taken by drawing in the work of each painter and makes it possible to trace the course of an entire generation since its first exhibitions in 1975-76.

Without having at any time formed a movement or having necessarily followed parallel directions, these young painters have certain characteristics in common. Their painting is abstract and takes its position on the terrain of 'Modernism', the theory of which asserts the self-reflective, or self-referential, nature of painting. Their interpretation of Modernism has led them into quite personal investigations involving such concepts as illusion, time, and colour as spaces. The earliest works which go back five or six years are constructed in terms of systematic relationships of colour and line. Apparently freer and more singular, the recent work attest to a deepening of earlier procedures as well as to unexpected detours that they have sometimes taken.

This exhibition is distinctive in considering a group of painters solely from the standpoint of the drawings they have produced. In doing so, the show recalls the various possible functions of drawings in a painter's work. The ensemble of the drawings also affirms that, though it is not the principal activity of these artists, drawing is nevertheless for them a privileged means of expression; one through which they have created work which translate eloquently the sensibility and intelligence of this new generation of painters.

Festival L-M ends summer series

Festival Lac Massawippi, showcase of the very talented artists of the Eastern Townships, is ending its very successful '83 season with a "Sons et Brioches" concert, on Sunday, October 9, in St. James Church, Hatley East. The concert is at 11:00 a.m., but coffee and cookies will be held from 10:00 a.m.

The performance will consist of medieval, Renaissance and classical music played on the instruments of the period. The musicians are Monique Cambron, Jean Larouche, Bertrand Larouche, Etienne Larouche and Renée Larouche. Apart from possessing the technique of the recorder, spinet, psalterion and of other early instruments, these musicians are pursuing careers and studies in other musical fields. Monique Cambron teaches piano and is Vice-President of the Sherbrooke Youth Orchestra. Renée and Etienne Larouche also teach piano. Jean Larouche is a singer as well as a recorder teacher, and Bertrand Larouche plays the trombone with the Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra.

This ensemble often plays at meetings of various organisations and also gives recitals. Their performance will bring us the enjoyment of listening to music and musical instruments of an earlier period rich of a music that is too little known today.

Festival Lac Massawippi will start again in the spring '84, with an even more extended program than in '83. Anyone wishing to receive the Festival's programs and timetables or wishing to participate in it, do not hesitate to contact Claire Lagacé at the following number: 842-2583.

Festival Lac Massawippi's final Sons et Brioches will feature medieval, renaissance and classical instruments.

Arts Sutton's 'Elements' a first for sculptor Hapi

By Merritt Clifton

SUTTON — Arts Sutton risks the 'Elements' this weekend and next, mounting hometown sculptor Denis Hapi's first major show in this area. Already known in Montreal and elsewhere about the Quebec art scene, Hapi comes well-recommended by other members of the Sutton arts community.

Hapi's reputation is as a thinking man's artist, whose carvings from local marble and other materials express a philosophy whose cornerstones are meditation, environmental awareness, escaping time-pressure, and emphasizing creative work. His 'Elements' show makes the various points — but it's smooth. Too smooth. Hapi brings form, energy, and even color out of his materials, while neglecting texture. Every surface is smooth as polished glass. The effect is that his delivery of message becomes too smooth as well, like the rehearsed rhetoric of Hari Krishna flower-vendors when asked about the roots of their beliefs. While embracing the elements of earth, air, fire, and water, Hapi has somehow overlooked nature. His crouching griffons need some rough edges, ruffled feathers, something to connect them with craggy mountaintops.

Eve Gossage

Photographer Bill Nunnelly and painter Eve Gossage are Arts Sutton gallery organizers, present at the Hapi exhibition only to provide a backdrop. Yet Nunnelly in particular presents a selection of works noteworthy and memorable in their own right. All Nunnelly's offerings are black-and-white prints, some in framed groups of four, others separate. Most are either of trees or boards. Each emphasizes texture, the very dimension missing from Hapi's pieces. The roughness of Nunnelly's saw-cuts, weatherbeaten planks, and knots contrasts with his own smooth shadows; the similar contrast with Hapi seems to underscore Hapi's failure to use contrast himself.

Gossage's works have in several cases been seen here before, most notably at her 'Soul Of Wood' exhibition two years ago with sculptor Eddie Heath. Her selections come closer to offsetting Hapi's work without commenting upon it — but still, one notes the contrasting textures of a painting showing several sliced vegetables, the interplay of not-quite matched pairs, and returns for second and third looks. Thematically, her statements echo Hapi. One mural-sized canvas is in two pieces, the first showing a tree above ground, the second the tree's roots, in a cut-away view exposing the mouse nesting among them. The literary expression here is what Hapi aims at. What he needs to add now is drama.

'Elements' is open for viewing on October 8, 9, 10, and 15-16, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., at the Arts Sutton gallery, rue Principale, Sutton.

Denis Hapi's work may be too smooth.

Why not kick hotel habit and try bed and breakfast

By Timothy Belford

Vacations too expensive? Hotels and motels getting you down? Don't despair. Try a bed and breakfast.

That's right, a bed and breakfast. Originating in England, the B and B concept developed when country dwellers discovered they could make a little extra cash by renting out one or more spare rooms to the growing number of tourists who took advantage of the 1950s and 60s prosperity boom and travelled abroad.

The allure of the B and B came from low prices for overnight accomodation and a first-class, home-cooked breakfast to start you on your way.

The concept soon became extremely popular in Britain and spread from the rural areas into the cities. Presently there are literally thousands of B and B rooms available located in everything from former castles to farm cottages.

Although it took several years, the idea of opening private homes to visitors finally arrived in Canada where it took firm root in every province of the country. Quebec was no exception and now boasts numerous and various homes where a weary traveller can obtain clean, comfortable lodging and a first-class country breakfast.

One of these etablishments is located in Waterloo, Quebec run by a couple who, like most B and B managers, received there first experience in Britain.

Ginette and Paul Williams are both natives of the Eastern Townships — she from Sherbrooke and he from Drummondville — and although they spent the better part of 20 years away from the area they had always planned on returning. The opportunity came in April of 1983 when they pruchased a lovely old home hidden away at the end of Mountain (de la Montagne) Street in Waterloo.

The home, which was built in 1850 as a summer residence for Montrealer James Davidson, was in excellent condition and the Williams were sure they could turn it into an attractive guest house.

Davidson, according to Ginette Williams, was known "as one of Canada's tin Gods" because of his involvement in the manufacturing of tea, coffee and baking powder containers. He, or a member of his family had lived in the home until 1972 when it was purchased by a couple interested in restoring an old country home.

When the building came into the Williams' hands, it was therefore in relatively good condition with most of the original woodwork intact and the original floors already restored.

"We took a trip to England in 1979", says Ginette, "and decided to stay at bed and breakfast houses to minimize the cost. We were really impressed especially when at one home the woman asked us what time we wanted our tea served in bed the next morning. We decided we'd like to be able to offer the same service to others."

Thus the Williams' home became a Bed and Breakfast with four guest rooms able to accomodate 11 people. The remaining rooms in the twelve-room home serve as their own residence. The cost per night is $25 single and $30 double which includes a breakfast of juice, tea or coffee, toast, home-made sausages or local bacon, eggs or pancakes if you prefer.

So far business has been good and co-operation from local hotels and motels has been excellent. "We handled a lot of the overflow business from places in Eastman," says Williams and although this is a slow time — between summer and winter —, she expects business will pick up with the arrival of the skiing season. "We are ideally situated. We are only minutes from Bromont and a half hour or so from several other good ski hills."

The Williams' 133-year-old home provides more than a hotel.

The Williams home is only one of several B and Bs in the immediate area and only one of a system that now covers most of the country. Two books are presently in print listing available accomodation and outlining costs, number of rooms, locations, local attractions and other pertinent details. A Traveller's Guide to Canadian Bed and Breafast Country Places by John Thompson is now in its second printing, while The Canadian Bed and Breakfast Guide by Gerda Pantel offers perhaps a slightly more comprehensive look at the B and B style of accomodation.

Sitting in the wood-panelled splendor of her living room, with Glayva, Ginny and Teddy romping at her feet — Dachshunds all — Williams makes her point very clear. "If you're looking for something more than the cold impersonal atmosphere of a hotel, we've got it." Given the facts, its hard to disagree.

Just whose homecoming was it last weekend anyway?

That annual rite of passage, the Bishop's University Homecoming, came and went last week with its usual flare. Why anyone would bother to gather every year to throw a party just to watch a football team lose is beyond me. There was some action this year however, when the students — past and present — tried to disrupt the half-time festivities. According to my sources, the Class of '63 had intended on regaling us with a Latin rendition of a once popular song. They were told in no uncertain terms by a representative of the administration that the entire half time was reserved for the Queen's University pipe and drum band — whose major claim to fame is the fact they all wear skirts. The students took exception to this arbitrary decision and proceeded to march onto the field carrying a sign indicating that the Queen's band should 'go forth and multiply'. An enraged Dr. Christopher Nichol, principal of the university, was observed rising from his seat probably intent on stopping this disgusting show when the class of '63, complete with academic gowns, entered the fray. The '63ers, wondering whose Homecoming this was anyway, proceecded to demonstrate that indomitable will that has sustained Bishop's throughout 140 years of trial and tribulation.

Speaking of the Bishop's homecoming, the Board of Governors of the S.A.Q. moved unanimously last week to thank both John Flowers and Stan Smith for perhaps the finest 'tail-gate' party thrown since the 1911 cricket team completed its undefeated season.

At the risk of offending all the people that Michael McDevitt has already offended, I have to mention this little item. Apparently one of the legion of dog lovers out there has come up with the latest in cutsie ideas — Pup-E-Luv. One Marjorie Hovis of North Bend Oregon — that's just a little past End-of-the-Earth Saskatchewan, has set up a company devoted to designer clothing for dogs. Now I always thought that dogs were given fur because they never took Eve'sadvice and ate apples and ended up like the rest of us. But Hovis' wardrobe includes blue jeans, kimonos, jogging suits and backless evening gowns. I hate to be a synic, but with all the people out there lacking proper food, shelter and clothing, isn't a bit much making sure your poodle is dressed to the nines — or K-nines as the case may be.

Who's who

By TADEUSZ LETARTE

Somebody better check their figures. Interim leader of the Parti National, Marcel Leger, says that the new national wing of the separatist movement would win 30 per cent of the popular vote if an election were held tomorrow. Another poll, commissioned by several branches of the news media, concluded that the PN would win just slightly less than 3 per cent. The difference between the two resembles the gap between Pierre Paradis and the leadership of the Liberal party.

Once upon a time the Nobel Peace Prize was given to someone who made an outstanding contribution to peace in the world. Apparently this is no longer true. As much as I admire Lech Walesa — his parents used to work for my grandfather — I cannot condone his winning of a 'peace prize'. Lech Walesa has fought long and hard for the rights of Polish workers — God knows they need it — but the result of his efforts have only increased tension in an already tension-filled world. Then again, he has seven children and a wife and manages to get along with them fairly well. For that alone he probably deserves the $240,000.

A short note to Bobby Fisher, sometime Sports Editor of The Record. Nobody drinks Courvosier wrapped in a paper bag.

Desmond McKeon the world's oldest man, will have to find new Saturday night digs since rumor has it that Stan Smith's mother-in-law has come to visit. Stan, who has recently become a civil servant — odd, I've never found him civil or a servant — broke the bad news to Des just about the same time he was asked to pay rent on his weekend parking space. For his part McKeon denies knowing Smith, owning a car or being involved in the Maze prison break-out.

Well-known CBC reporter Bernard St-Laurent has been touted as a likely replacement for Governor-General Ed Schreyer — why we're not sure.

Doonesbury, Duke, Zonker and the rest back and on Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — It has Duke, student of controlled substances and the former governor of Samoa, and Joannie Caucus, champion of liberation, as well as Zonker, who is into tanning, and B.D., still in football helmet.

It also has Mike, Mark, Honey, and even foreign correspondent Roland Hedley Jr., with his hip style. They're all coming to Broadway next month in a new musical.

The show is Doonesbury. Now warming up in a Boston, it's based on Garry Trudeau's popular, satirical, topical and cartoon strip of the same name.

It's not his first effort outside the world of syndicated cartoonery. In 1977, he and others cooked up an animated special, Doonesbury.

But James Walsh, genial producer of this 11-player proceeding, says the Broadway Doonesbury isn't at all like the TV show.

"No, as a matter of fact one of the things we wanted to do from the start was a book show" — with a beginning, a middle and an end — "and not sketches, not little cartoon cutouts doing jokes and gags.

USES CHARACTERS

"And so, this is a book show. The book uses the Doonesbury characters, obviously, but it isn't stuff that's been in the strip before. It's all new."

The Broadway Doonesbury is set in Walden, the counterculture commune and starting point for the strip when it began in 1970.

Then, only 30 newspapers carried it. Last year, when 723 papers were running it, Trudeau said he was temporarily shutting it down to take a breather. Down it shut in January.

He's been busy during his breather, though. He wrote the musical's book and lyrics, with Elizabeth (Runaways) Swados contributing the score.

The musical has a budget of $2 million, is scheduled to open Nov. 10, began as a workshop project, and has been in the works for five years, says producer Walsh.

He says the show picks up where the strip left off — with Joanie Caucus and her baby and many of the Walden inmates finally forced to graduate from college and otherwise face the realities of adult life.

Walsh originally tried to book Doonesbury in New Haven, Conn., where, while a Yale undergraduate, Trudeau began cartooning in the Yale Daily News with a strip called Bull Tales.

"I thought it'd be fun to try it out there, but unfortunately they couldn't get the theatre ready in time," he says. "So we moved it to Boston. But Boston is a great market for the snow, not just because of the 300,000 students living in the area, but because the strip was carried up there and people are very wired into it."

WHAT'S ON

By MICHAEL McDEVITT

Music

The Manoir Waterville welcomes a new band to the area (new to Mikey, anyway) called Knockout. The name, I suspect, indicates the decibel level.

At the FL Hideaway in Lennyberg, my eternal nemesis Cal Picken has somehow managed to book something he calls The Mickey Hall Dance Band — a name I suspect that will cause Mick Hall to piddle his pampers. Not to be discouraged, however, for Mick (now a dedicated McGill scholar) has gathered his usual collection of talented cronies together and I presume we'll be in for some fine, fine renditions of Mick's songs. Speaking of pampers, I understand Chris Griffith is scheduled to play but at the time of this writing his lovely lady Jocelyne is about to present him with a pink, bouncy little tax credit — Sharky 2. Should the little nipper have arrived by gig time, I imagine 'Shark' will be needing about 600 pounds of raw valium just to keep his drums on the ground.

Cal has also got a make-shift dart tournament scheduled for Sunday (think about it Cal, do you really want that crowd armed?), which has a $1.00 registration (not inscription, puhleeze) fee with the winners taking the pot, er money. No, I don't know what that has to do with music either, but what the heck, everybody likes a laugh.

At the Del Monty in lovely Rock Island, a band called Mania will be hammering the eardrums and giving us that hard driving rock appropriate to their name. The band plays Friday through Sunday.

John Bird and Station 88 are going for the big guns this month with Bigfoot one of the best country bands around. John's regulars are in for a good time with this band as they can always get a place jumping. They'll be playing Friday and Saturday evenings until the end of the month. There is no cover charge.

In Knowlton the Knowlton Pub is featuring a band called Townhounds, described to me over the phone by a thoroughly charming young lady as a dance band (of the popular music variety). Now, although I was completely disarmed by the giggle that accompanied that information, I cannot help but suspect there is something she wasn't telling me. Guess I'll have to go find out for myself. The band plays from Sunday through Wednesday evening.

Country Pride has taken over St. Jacob's Hotel in Richmond (funny, I didn't know St. Jacob was a hotelier) until October 30. This band plays straightforward country tunes (with a few country rock if you insist) and have been drawing in good crowds up there in the Richmond area which is mighty good news. They hit the stage Thursday through Sunday, with Sunday's show beginning at 5 and continuing until 10 p.m.

My friend Claude Laliberté seems to be having a little trouble getting his new country club — Li'l Nashville — off the ground but he tells me things have got themselves straightened out finally. The house band I mentioned last week will not be playing there, unfortunately, due to some unforeseen problems but the new Texas-Québec will be holding court in the club, behind the Disco-roule on King West. The name conjures up memories of one awfully good band, and I'm sure some of the original members are still involved. For all you sexist pigs out there, I'm told that the band has acquired a female vocalist who sings like a bird and looks like an angel. I could hear Claude's heart beating over the phone as the band rehearsed.

Speaking of angels, The Lennoxville United Church is featuring a concert by The Internationals, a group of eight dedicated Christian young people who tour the world spreading their message of faith and love. The group has been in existence since 1969 and performs everywhere in North America and in Europe and Asia. After the concert, local youngsters between the ages of 17 and 26 will be invited to audition for this organization. The group is constantly regenerating itself as members leave to spread the word in other ways. the concert will take place at the Lennoxville United Church at 7.30 on Thurday October 13.

Finally, Festival Lac Massawippi will say goodby to its first season, confident, and justifyably so, that it has been a smashing success. The last Sons et Brioches concert will take place as usual at 11 a.m at St. James Church, Hatley this Sunday. The final show will consist of mediaeval, classical, and Renaissance music performed by Monique Cambron, Jean Larouche, Bertrand Larouche, Etienne Larouche, and Renée Larouche. You are, my dear Monique, thoroughly outnumbered so I gave you top billing. Coffee and cookies are served before the concert from 10 a.m.

The Lennoxville United Church will feature The Internationals Thursday.

Exhibitions

The Bishop's — Champlain Art Gallery's retrospective of the paintings of Quebec automatist Lise Gervais finishes this week on Wednesday, October 12. Gervais, a student of autonomist school founder Paul-Emile Borduas, is an extremely accomplished artist who has had several important exhibits in Montreal and Toronto, and who has also been awarded many prestigious prizes. Gervais' work is dramatic and colorful, exhibiting the autonomist rejection of stylistic restrictions, yet managing to express form and texture in no uncertain terms.

Following Gervais at the Bishop's — Champlain gallery will be a collective exhibition under the title Young Painters' Drawings. This show was organized by the Circulating Exhibitions department of the Montreal Museum of Contemporary Art and features work by soon-to-be-prominent Quebec artists. Ten young painters, representing several different schools are represented at the show, which opens on Thursday, October 13, and will continue until November 2. The gallery is open from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. every weekday.

An exhibit entitled Les Coureurs des Bois, featuring work by four local artists is being held at the home of Ginette and Paul Williams this weekend, beginning tonight at 7 p.m. The show, which features artists Keith Davidson, Karmen Dumas, Gertrude Vigneault-Provencher, and Tom Wilkinson is open to the public Saturday, Sunday and Monday, from noon until 5 o'clock, and is located at 51 de la Montagne, in Waterloo.

Also showing this weekend at the Gallery Arts-Sutton is a show by artists of three different media entitled Elements — Three Interpretations on the Theme. Opening tomorrow at 10 a.m. the show features marble sculpture from Denis Hapi, photography by Bill Nunneley, and paintings by hu-Go, who is of course, none other than Eve Gossage. The gallery is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. for the entire long weekend including Monday. The show will also be featured next Saturday and Sunday during the same hours. Arts-Sutton Gallery is located at 8 Main Street in Sutton.

Here in Sherbrooke, the Salle Albert Gravel of the Sherbrooke Municipal Library is featuring work by artist Alain Coudry until October 28. The Salle is open from Monday to Friday from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. with breaks from noon to 1 and from 5.30 until 7. On Saturdays the exhibit can be seen from (a.m. until 4 p.m. continuously.

The Point de Vue gallery at the Sherbrooke CEGEP's Pavillion 2, on Park Street is featuring the photography of Jean Bédard and Richard Gendron until October 28. Gendron will also be presenting paintings as well. The two artist styles are quite different, as each approaches his subject from a completely different point of view, making this an appropriate exhibit for this gallery. The show begins on Monday, October 10.

Two decidedly different shows are being presented at the Centre d'Exposition Léon Marcotte. Until the 16th, Chairs — 400 Years of Stylistic and Cultural Changes is looking at the cultural and practical changes that came into fashion in the evolution of this particularly useful item of furniture, and the show features several examples of truly beautiful work. 35 pieces are accompanied by an explanatory narration which makes the show a cohesive statement.

Also at the Léon Marcotte centre is a presentation by the National Museum of Science in Ottawa called Omingmak: The Muskox. Based on a decade of research and observation by David Gray a National Science Museum scientist, the show examines the precarious existance of this mighty animal in the vast wasteland that is Canada's far north. The show is a multi-media event with graphic panels, brochures, posters, and video tape offering an in-depth look at the life of a species that has barely survived the onslaught of man.

Ste-Hyacinthe native Normand Gladu is holding a one-man show at Coaticook's Musée Beaulne this month until October 30. Gladu spent several years in New England before returning to his native Quebec. A realist painter, Gladu takes his subjects from simple everyday scenes of rural Quebec, and as the artist himself says, his paintings need no explanation. They are celebrations of the pure beauty of a scene, which Gladu feels needs no more intercession from the artist than a sympathetic eye.

At the Galerie Canard de Bois at 232 Alexandre Street in Sherbrooke, talented young Quebec painter Lucie Desrosiers is holding an exhibit from tonight until Sunday. Desrosiers is a versatile artist. working in oils, watercolors, pastels and lithograpy, she offers an adventurous and diverse vision of the world around her. Her work is fluid and lively and she usually attacks a theme from several different and unusual angles. She placed first in the entrance examinations at the Quebec School of Fine Arts, and has exhibited copiously around the province. A vital, personal artist.

The Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-est is featuring the work of De Lourdes Dion-Marcoux until the 28th of August. Dion-Marcoux is another prolific and active young painter eager to share her vision of the world with as many people as possible. She has exhibited frequently in the last couple of years, mostly in the Sherbrooke area, where she received her formal training. The caisse's Galerie Mezzanine is open during regular business hours.

In Arthabaska at the Laurier Museum Victoriaville painter Yves Ricard presents thirty of his most recent works under the theme Le Monde des Robes. This show continues until October 23.

Finally, don't forget this year's Salon de Livre de l'Estrie beginning next Monday at the Eugene Lalonde Arena and continuing until October 16. This event is a major literary happening for the area, and many of Quebec's top writers will be present to give talks, sign autographs, and generally mix with the unwashed throng. Michel Tremblay, Roch Carrier, and Micheline Dumont are among many luminaries expected to participate.

Movies

This week's movie menu is a little bit more interesting than what we were subjected to last week, but it ain't no great shakes.

At the Cinema Capitol two movies dealing with subcultures take to the screen. Class of "1984 is a film by a British director Mark Lester. It purportedly looks at the nihilism of the punk scene, glitter, safety pins, and all and its effects on the minds of those who are a part of it. Roddy McDowall, Timothy Van Patten and Stefan Arngrim star. I suppose you never can tell about these things but a movie with a pitch line that goes 'Life is pain. Pain is everything.' does not sound to me like something that will send you home laughing.

The Capitol's second film is the controversial Cruising starring Al Pacino as a cop who submerges himself into the seamy world of New York's gay bars. this film got all kinds of grief from all kinds of people from fundamentalist Christians to gay lobbying groups (no, dummy, these are not organizations of gays who proposition people in hotel lobbies), which naturally gave it all kinds of free publicity, which in turn drove hordes of the curious into the theatre hoping to be shocked into outrage or titilated into ecstacy. It didn't work. The film is not among Pacino's best work and, to tell you the truth, it is quite depressing. you can almost smell this movie.

The Cinema Carrefour 2 is bringing us The Revenge of the Ninja, which is, I suppose an equal-time response to the the Revenge of the Shogun Women, only it only has 2 Ds. This is one of those martial arts type crockers that one either enjoys or doesn't, depending whether one has a brain or porridge inside his skull. Lots of excitement and action, however, as we all know those clever Japanese work twice as hard for less money than we do.

The Cinema Princess in Cowansville has an interesting sounding double header this week with Cujo the latest Stephen King thriller about a woman and child terrorized by a killer St. Bernard. Chillingly graphic and powerful, this is a pretty good film.

The second show is The Man with Two Brains, which Mikey has heard of, but that's about all.

The Bishop's University Film Society is offering Stripes this Thursday evening at 7 p.m. which is an hysterical comedy starring Bill Murray, who has the timing of a cobra. Entertainment Editor Tim Belforddescribes this movie this way. "The movie is stupid, imbecilic, childish, and goes downhill from there. It's great". Those of you who know Tim can take it from there, and those of you who don't... well count your lucky stars. Tickets for this film are $3 for for the taxpayers whose hard-earned dollars go to pay for that golf-course-equipped daycare centre for the mentally arrested, and $2.50 for Bishop's University students, the place's wards.

Smut à l'anglais returns to Cinema Belvedere 2 this week with two of the ever popular 'girls' seriers of films.Taxi Girls — about the strange positions one can find oneself in in a typical big city taxi with the meter running, and Godiva Girlswhich I pray to high heaven has nothing to do with horse. The Belvedere 2 is a wonderful place to enjoy these great movies as it is situated somewhere beneath the bowels of the earth below Belvedere 1. It seats about eight people, and is very dark, which is probably for the best. I do not suggest you bring your mother there, but if the wife's mum is down for the long weekend why not take her out on the town.

The Bishop's University —Champlain College Disarmament Group is presenting two presentations this week by Dorothy Rosenberga well-known speaker and activist. War without Winners looks at the present state of the arms race and its implications for the future of this planet. Rosenberg, who just returned from a visit to the Soviet Union will also give a talk and answer questions. This presentation will take place at 2 p.m. in the Bish Pubt 2 p.m. At 7, in MacKinnon Lounge Rosenberg will present a series of films and slide shows dealing with Canadian involvement in the arms race. We Canadians have long felt quite angelic in the fact that we do not deploy or countenance nuclear weapons on our soil (which is by the way a fallacy). We are, however, perfectly willing to provide our technological skills to those friendly and responsible nations who are willing to come up with the cash (Argentina, Pakistan, Peru... you know, the sensible ones). Our CANDU (Canadian Additional Nuclear Disaster Unit) reactors have made us popular with all the nice little juntas into whose peaceful little hands we have let them slip. I think I feel my halo slipping.

Television

Tonight Vermont ETV's late show stars Sophia Loren and Gregory Peck in Arabesque a compelling supense drama about a man drawn into the sobering world of espionage by his involvement with a beautiful woman.

Tomorrow at 2 p.m. Bing Crosby is the lovable 'Sir Boss' in the 1949 version of Mark Twain's classic satire A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court which, besides being a very entertaining movie, had the distinction of being the first film ever broadcast on Channel 12. I know. ' Where does that man get his wealth of knowlege?' you ask.

On Sunday afternoon at 2 on Vermont ETV, The Shakespeare Plays presents Hamlet, who is not only Hagar the Horrible's son, but also the Prince of Denmark. Let's just call it an historical ghost story and leave it at that. The darn play will never amount to anything anyway. Derek Jacobi stars as the melancholy Dane (he's Great).

At 8 p.m. CBC kicks of the new mini-series Vanderberg it's been selling so hard lately. Vanderberg is an ambitious Alberta energy tycoon whose constant search for the next big deal invariably leads into all kinds of adventure, sex, money, and violence — sometimes all at once. Classy production, but not exceptionately original. Designed, I suspect, for people who live too far from the border to get real American shows.

By the time you're sick of the immediately above, you may be in the mood for some music, and Radio-Québec has just the thing for jazz-blues fans with the presentation of a filmed concert by the incomparable Tom Waits. Now, for those of you who don't know anything about Waits, I'm not recommending him to just anybody. It seems that people either love his music or hate it. I, for one, belong to the former group, while my sister, on the other hand, thought I'd either busted my stereo or was putting her on when I played a Waits album for her. Chacun à son Goût.

At 9, CTV presents Busting Loose, a social comedy about an ex-convict (Richard Pryor) and a social worker (Cicely Tyson) who herd a bunch of disturbed big city orphans off to the better life in rural Washington State where presumably they start a protection racket to protect bears from hunters.

Also at 9 on CBC is what Mikey will be watching — the second part of Gwynn Dyer's marvelous War series. This episode, entitled Anybody's Son Will Do has the film crew follow the 10-week basic training of U.S. Marine Corps recruits. Dyer's vast array of knowlege in military matters and his brilliant ability to communicate his ideas allows us to see inside some of the training methods, which not only hone muscles and sinew, but which also indoctrinate the soldier to the point where he is ready to fight — and kill — the enemy on command.

Later at midnight on Channel 12, the late Romy Schneider and Donald Houston star in My Lover, My Son whose title, unfortunately tells it all. It is the story of a woman and her passionate, incestuous love for her son.

On Monday at 8, Vermont ETV presents The Oil Kingdoms, a look at some of the smaller Persian Gulf emirates and kingdoms which, because of vast earnings from petroleum exportation, have become important pieces in the big international chess games. These are the kind of guys who build 200-mile highways that don't go to or from anywhere just so that they can go for a ride in their gold plated Rolls Royces. Don't laugh, they hold a gun at your head.

At 8.30 Radio-Québec's Journal de Voyage follows André Malraux as he crosses the Pyrenees to be En Espagne avec Goya. Malraux visits Saragossa and Madrid while telling the story of the great Spanish painter and discusses his contribution to the world of art — particularly modern art, of which he is often referred to as the father.

On Monday night at 9, another example of somebody with more money than they know what to do with doing something silly in order to get some more of it. (I suppose money's like coffee and cigarettes — that is, it has you hooked before you know it. Thanks for the protection, George.) Anyway, CTV's Monday night movie is called On the Road Again. It stars Willie Nelson as a country singer (casting directors always amaze me with their imagination) who gets involved in a torrid love affair while on tour. It co-stars Dyan Cannon and Amy Irving... Maybe I'll watch it after all.

On Monday at midnight, Channel 12 offers something that could be interesting, Max Von Sydow and Dominique Sanda in Steppenwolf. No Jim, this isn't the story of a rock band, it's based on the surreal novel by Hermann Hesse ('like, he's so heavy, man, it really blows my mind': every hippie in the world 1966 — 1974.) This was one of this strange man's best works, and if the film does it justice it will be worth staying up for. Remember, that opinion comes from an insomniac who has been known to watch The Wayne Thomas Show at 3 a.m. on a Thursday morning.

Lucie Desrosiers is featured at the Galerie Canard de Bois.

On Wednesday at midnight, Rock Hudson and Angie Dickinson star in Pretty Maids All in a Row. Rock Hudson plays a California High School teacher and athletic director who has devised a whole new modern and liberated exercise program for the young ladies in his class. Tension mounts and suspense rises as Hudson begins to fear that some of the little darlings' parents — not to mention the state police — might not approve of this particular vital curriculum and he begins to knock off several of his less reliable students.

Finally, on Thursday at midnight Michael Palin of Monty Python fame stars in Jabberwocky which is supposed to be based on Lewis Carroll's famous poem. Not up to par with Python at all, but it has its charming moments.

Radio

We finally caught intrepid CBC reporter Bernard 'got a smoke?' St-Laurent scribbling in that omniscient notebook of his. Bernie is heard regularly (by shut-ins who can't turn off the damn radio) every Friday evening at around 5 p.m. on the CBC Radio Network where his keen wit, incisive mind and probing insight provide an inside look at the events, people, and tendencies that shape the very fabric of our lives. (Can I have that ten bucks now, Bern? Huh?)

This evening at 6.30 on CBC Stereo , they're trying something that's a little different. On Friday Night, host Ian Alexander offers the usual selection of favorites from tonight's special guest, and then proceeds with a documentary-style examination of Irving Berlin and his music by Alistair Cooke. Cooke, most famous for teaching Americans that Civilization can mean more than using the right fork at the Waldorf, looks at Berlin's early days in the 30s, when he struggled to make a living, although a good one, during the depression. Cooke's insights are bound to shed a different light on this giant in American music.

At 10.32 on CBC Radio Mostly Music presents the first concert by the CBC Vancouver Orchestra under the direction of Mario Bernardi. The orchestra plays a variety of modern music including Norris' A Tribute to Duke Ellington and Fancy Free, ballet suite by Leonard Bernstein.

Tomorrow, on The Entertainers, an interview with one of the most unpleasant (personal opinion — no cards, letters, death threats, or letter-bombs, please) people I am aware of — Joan Rivers. Now, Mikey realizes the lady has wit, and a certain amount of no-class charm, but she doesn't appeal to him in any way. We're going to be seeing a lot more of this lady, however, as she is now the official guest host on the Tonight Show. This means that she does 12 times as many of the shows as regular host Johnny Carson does for about one tenth the bread. The show is broadcast at 11.05 a.m. on CBC Stereo.

At 2.05 also on CBC Stereo Saturday Afternoon at the Opera presents The Barber of Seville by Rossini as performed by the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande and the Choirs of the Grand Theatre in Geneva.

On Saturday Stereo Theatre at 7.05 a migrant worker seeking the truth concerning the disappearance of a friend in the Gulf Islands of British Columbia, gets caught up in a web of Indian legend, myth, fear and mystery in Sleep in the Graveby Charles Tidler.

On Anthology at 10.10 on CBC Radio Morley Callaghan shows up to discuss his latest book A Time for Judas, and poet-author Pat McCann reads her short story The Last Rose.

It's Newfs night out at the Vancouver Folk Festival, as 90-year-old fiddler Rufus Guinchard teams up with Jim Payne on Simply Folk at 11.05 on CBC Stereo . Guinchard is a master of traditional Newfie fiddling, while Payne is a collector of Newfoundland music and folklore. Between the two of 'em dey'll really gets yer feets tappin' dere by.

On Sunday Matinée at 4.05 on CBC Radio part 2 of Margaret Laurence's The Diviners will be aired.

At 7.05 on CBC Stereo part 2 of The Canadians is presented on Sunday Stereo Theatre.

At 8.05 CBC Stereo's Testamentexamens the meaning of prayer in the modern world.

At 9.05, also on CBC Radio Ideas begins a four-part series investigating the mysteries of the The Freemasons, that sneaky group of characters who, in the guise of harmless people like Anglin' Bob Barnett plot to overthrow the Italian government, take over the world, raise the price of cigarettes and open taverns up to women. Actually, The Masons have been and remain today an exceptionally influential group of individuals, and no less than 15 US presidents were members along with such ne'er-do-wells as Frederick the Great, Simon Bolivar, Mozart, Churchill, Kerenski, and Bob Lewis.

On Ideas this week: On Monday Class, Culture and Cuisine examens, in three consecutive Sunday evenings, our need, love, infatuation, passion and murderous lust for food and its preparation. On Tuesday, Charles Ritchie a modern-day Pepys (the diarist, not the soft drink) reads from his voluminous diaries and comments on the many historic events his long career as a diplomat enabled him to witness. And on Thursday: a panel discusses the emergence of a new style in literature.

To millions, World Series is baseball's top show

FALL CLASSIC — Here comes the World Series. The Fall Classic first matched the National and American Leagues 80 years ago, in 1903.

Now the biggest event in the Great American Pastime draws up to 100 million U.S. TV viewers each year for at least parts of the various games. Millions more watch in dozens of countries throughout the world.

ABC-TV Sports — led by Howard Cosell — will broadcast the '83 World Series. Here is the schedule of the first four games in the best-of-seven Series (all times, EDT): Tuesday, Oct. 11, 8:30 p.m.; Wednesday, Oct. 12, 8:20 p.m.; Friday, Oct. 14, 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, Oct. 15, 1 p.m. or 4:30 p.m.

Last year, when St. Louis beat Milwaukee 4 games to 3 in a sloppy World Series, the NBC telecasts averaged a rating of 29.

This year, baseball experts — not to mention sponsors with millions of dollars at stake — are hoping for a crisper, more exciting World Series. A TV network reaps extra millions in ad money when a Series lasts seven games.

Over the years, the New York Yankees have won 22 World Series and lost 11 — to lead in victories and appearances. Next come St. Louis with a 9-4 World Series record; and the Pittsburgh Pirates, which is 5-2.

In 1981, the Los Angeles

Howard Cosell

Dodgers, trailing 0-2 in games, won the last four contests to beat the New York Yankees, capping a strike-shortened season. There were a total of 13 errors in the six Series games.

In 1980, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Kansas City Royals, 4 games to 2, in the World Series. The Phillies won their first World Series ever when Mike Schmidt knocked in two runs to lead them to a 4-1 triumph in the final game. Philadelphia reliever Tug McGraw twice stopped the Royals with the bases loaded.

But you have to go back to Oct. 21, 1975, for a game that many call the best in the history of the World Series. In Game 6, Carlton Fisk hit a 12th inning homer for a 7-6 Boston win against Cincinnati, after the lead kept changing hands. Cincinnati, however, won the Series the following day.

Absent Atkins hopes to be CMA winner

By Joan Crosby

When the annual Country Music Awards are telecast over CBS-TV on Monday Oct. 10, don't look for nominee Chet Atkins to be on the show. He's not sure where he'll be, but he knows he won't be at Nashville's Grand Ole Opry, where the awards take place.

"I was nominated for years and years and I went to the awards and never won. Then I said the heck with it and I didn't go last year and I won."

Atkins, the great guitarist, is once again nominated for instrumentalist of the year.

"Since I seem to have found how to win, I'm not going to be there again this year. I don't know where I'll be. I have a European tour coming up and I may be on my way by then," he said, by telephone from his Nashville home.

"I live in an area called Hackberry Heaven. It's filled with hackberry trees and they are ugly things with small leaves and berries that drip on cars. I wish the city would agree to cut them all down and replace them with maple trees," he says.

On the subject of country music, Atkins says there was a big change after the war.

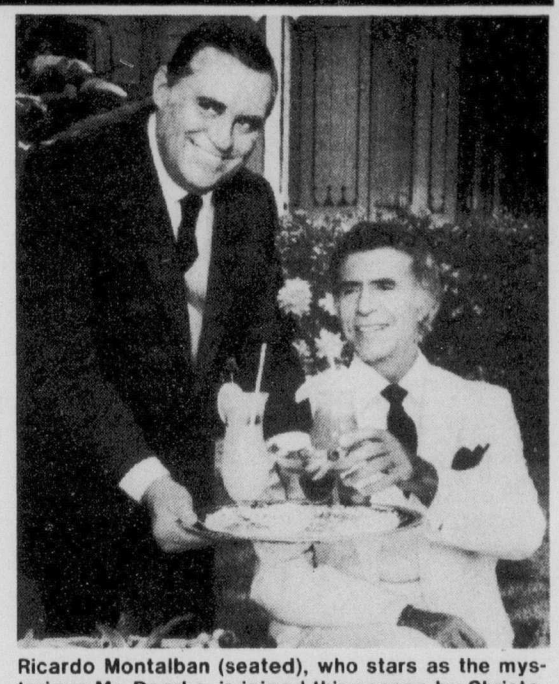
"People moved to the city then, and there was a blending. The public has changed since the Beatles and Presley. We country folk joined them and they joined us and now it is a blending of rock 'n' roll and rhythm and blues and everything. There's little pure country music anymore. Thank God there are some, like Ricky Skaggs and Bill Monroe, who are still pure country."

Atkins' European tour will take him to Norway, France, Belgium, Germany and England. He says that European audiences "tend to like the pure stuff."

"They want to hear old things, songs I recorded maybe 15 or 20 years ago."



Ricardo Montalban (seated), who stars as the mysterious Mr. Roarke, is joined this season by Christopher Hewett, who will portray the urbane personal aide, Lawrence, on ABC's "Fantasy Island," which makes its sixth-season premiere on Saturday, Oct. 8.

Movie Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

The fulfillment of the dream of the man who said "... there is no such thing as a bad boy," was the subject of "Boys Town," one of 1937's finest films. This MGM drama gave Spencer Tracy the opportunity to win his second consecutive Oscar as best actor.

Tracy portrayed Father Flanagan, a good priest, who took wayward boys from the city, educated them, and then sent them out into the world, better people for their experience. The plot was solid and emotinal, showing how Father Flanagan desperately tried to raise money for his Boys' Town project, while trying to reach the delinquent children with his understanding.

"Boys' Town" also received an Academy Award for its original story by Dore Schary and Elanore Griffin.

Question: Can you name the film for which Tracy won his best actor Oscar in 1937?

Answer: "Captains Courageous"

INNER TUBE

By Joan Crosby

LAST-MINUTE DEVELOPMENT — The day before filming was due to begin on the new Steve Bochco series, "Bay City Blues" (about a small town and its minor-league baseball team), the leading role of the manager had not been cast. After much competition for the role, it was given to Michael Nouri ("Flashdance"). Bochco created "Hill Street Blues."

That's how it can be when you're an actor. One day you don't necessarily know where your next job is coming from and the next you're a lead in a series. To be cast early in a TV show is a miracle. Often, the people you see on the screen are not necessarily the first choice — which is not a reflection on the actors who get the roles, but more because the networks like to wait until the last minute.

For instance, one time an important guest role in the "Buck Rogers" series was cast the same morning the episode was being shot.

HOT YOUNG LADY — Kirstie Alley is on her way to being the next big star in the industry. After a co-starring role in "The Wrath of Khan," she beat out a lot of young, better-known actresses for the role of Maggie in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" at the Los Angeles Music Center. She received excellent reviews for her performance.

While she's playing the role at night, by day she's filming a midseason TV series called "Masquerade." She may also play Mary Magdalene in Martin Scorsese's film about the life of Christ.

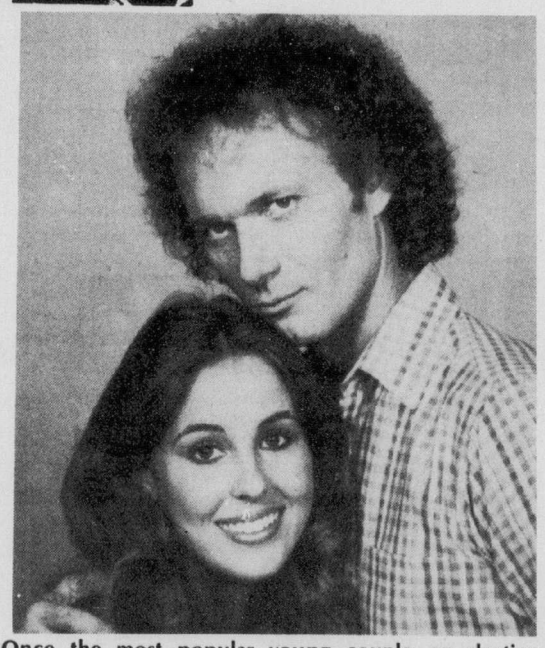
Speaking of Soap

by Mary Ann Cooper



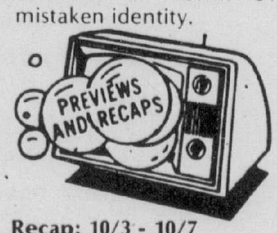
Once the most popular young couple on daytime television: Luke and Laura (Anthony Geary and Genie Francis) of "General Hospital."

Genie Francis, who starred as Laura Webber Baldwin, who marriage to Luke Spencer (Anthony Geary) on the ABC Television Network's daytime drama, "General Hospital," touched off nationwide celebrations and rang up the highest ratings in the history of daytime television, will return to the series on Nov. 11.

Ms. Francis resumes her role of Laura, who on Nov. 16-17, 1981, was married to Luke Spencer in the most tumultuous segments ever known on daytime television. Some 14 million viewers tuned into every episode in fevered anticipation.

Newsweek Magazine, in its cover story on "General Hospital," called Luke and Laura "The Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara of Soapland," adding that, "No two lovers in small-screen history have cast such a spell over the daytime audience."

When Ms. Francis left the series in January, 1982, her character, Laura, disappeared when she became a victim of mistaken identity.



Recap: 10/3 - 10/7
Preview: 10/10 - 10/14

AS THE WORLD TURNS -- Jerry tells Betsy her stocks have been wiped out. John pressures James to agree to divorce Karen. Maggie tells Ariel that Burke gave Karen custody of Dustin before he died. Bob gives Miranda two tickets to Paris. Steve sets off the alarm and is shot at.
THIS WEEK: Dana worries about Steve. Ariel plans to fight for Dustin's custody.
THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS -- Nikki is shattered when she learns Alison has left the country with Victoria. Rick thinks Alison went to a little village in England that she always talked about. Jack convinces the D.A. to drop charges against Patty. Jack tells Patty he wants a second chance at their marriage. Dina offers Eric a new job with her company in Genoa City.
THIS WEEK: Patty gives Jack her answer. Nikki searches for Victoria.
GUIDING LIGHT -- Nola tells her family she's pregnant. Quint gets knocked out by a mysterious intruder. Hope gets drunk again. Someone sets fire to Annabelle's file. Mindy gets a job as a candy striper. Bradley sees Beth and Philip kissing.
THIS WEEK: Maureen begins to feel envious. Ed wonders if he can operate again.
DAYS OF OUR LIVES -- The driver that gave David an alibi begins to blackmail him. Gwen fixes it so Alex can get Renee's money as soon as possible. Liz's request to be put in another prison is turned down. Gwen has rented Neil's townhouse. While she prepares for bed, she is attacked by the murderer. Daphne can walk unaided.
THIS WEEK: David is a suspect again. Don fights to keep Liz safe.
ANOTHER LIFE -- Amber finds Kate's body. Police find Dave outside, passed out in his car, with the murder weapon ten yards away. He is arrested. Peter asks Vicki to marry him and she accepts. Terry is upset by news of his engagement. Gil confronts Amber about the abortion. Carla has a baby girl.
THIS WEEK: Charles covers up his lie. Terry tries to talk some sense into Peter.
RYAN'S HOPE -- Maggie is mortified when Bess ruins the wedding cake and tells her to leave before anyone discovers she is Jill's mother. Later, Bess throws an apron on a hot stove and causes a fire at the Coleridge house. Because of the fire, Frank and Jill cannot finish taking their wedding vows. Maggie and Roger go to bed. Siobhan spots Joe in a restaurant and is determined to confront him about their break-up.
THIS WEEK: Bill gives Siobhan some advice. Delia steps up her plan against Frank.
GENERAL HOSPITAL -- Grant overpowers Luke and steals back the disc. Luke regains consciousness and realizes Grant went off to the Expo to rescue Holly & Celia. Luke is captured and held captive with the women. Scorpio rushes off to the Expo to find them. Blackie threatens to move out. Rick, unable to face first day in surgery, cops out. Bobbie refuses to tell Brock she's pregnant. Bryan and Claudia get into a fight over Changa's attentions to Claudia.
THIS WEEK: Lou feels insecure. Scorpio searches the pavillions.
ANOTHER WORLD -- Cass bullies Julia but she rebels. Janet tells Denby she needs time to gain Mark's trust. Janet suggests to Mark that he consider going back to politics. Sally is stunned when Donna shows her a copy of Dr. Dunnings' file. Then, Donna introduces Sally to Jennifer Thatcher and her son Kevin. After they leave, Donna tells Sally that Kevin is the baby she gave away.
THIS WEEK: Sally must make a difficult decision. Denby puts pressure on Janet.
SEARCH FOR TOMORROW -- Wendy decides she can't go through with the abortion but doesn't tell Warren. Jo convinces Vargas she's not his mother but he plans to kill her. Later, she convinces him to call Martin and ransom her life. Suzi moves back with Warren. Stephanie has second thoughts about marrying Steve. Kristin warns Warren not to corrupt her husband. Ringo finds out that Brian is working undercover for Tom.
THIS WEEK: Lloyd can't conceal his distaste for Steve. Jo takes a dangerous chance.
EDGE OF NIGHT -- Alicia shows up and tries to convince Sky she no longer hates him. Robbie overhears Michael talking to Calvin and has him killed. Preacher finds Michael's body planted in his apartment. Shelley is snubbed by a theatrical agent but Claire will be in a movie. Miles almost punches Robbie for taking advantage of Jody. Mike is third in the election poll for district attorney.
THIS WEEK: Raven and Sky cook up a plan. Alicia knows more than she is letting on.
ALL MY CHILDREN -- Erica and Palmer go to South America to unravel the secret of the pendant. While traveling, they find a clue to Lars' past that may indicate he was involved with the Nazi party. Greg is able to take a few steps with the aid of a cane. Alfred sees Tad and Liza check into a motel together. Ellen loses the baby and walks out on Mark. Devon urges Mark to seek help for his cocaine problem. Opal is getting discouraged in her hunt to find a man.
THIS WEEK: Angie resists the idea of adoption. Mark is feeling sorry for himself.
LOVING -- Merrill is fired when Roger's father in law forces Ewing to get rid of her. Jack worries that Lily will be abused by Garth while he's away. Noreen misses her husband but won't give up the idea of having a baby.
CAPITOL -- Paula is tortured by the memory of her former housekeeper. Sloane wonders why her mother is acting so strange. Jordy is convinced that there is something going on between Trey and Myrna. Paula's psychiatrist is sure that Paula is trying to manipulate Mark and Sloane into never leaving her alone.
ONE LIFE TO LIVE -- Asa is told he must sell the football team. Bo offers to buy it but Asa turns him down. Anthony tries to convince Delila to buy the team. David agrees to help Ada. She knows he is an intelligence agent. He warns her not to call anyone. When she tries to call her mother, he rips out the phone. Dorian decides she wants to run for congress. She speaks out about the revolution in San Carlos and attracts the attention of two strangers.
THIS WEEK: Dorian is investigated. Bo and Delila face off.

Sock it to me... again

By Andy Noble

"Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," arguably the most innovative TV show of the 1960s, is returning to TV — in syndication.

The show, which ran from 1967 to 1973, will be seen in half-hour packages (edited down from the original hour), with newly announced lead-ins by Gary Owens.

"Laugh-In" — a rapid-faced, tightly edited melange of sight gags, blackouts, topical satire and sketches — was the first series to truly take advantage of television's electronic technology. The show also spawned such memorable phrases as "sock it to me," "here come the judge" and "you bet your sweet bippy." Its ensemble players included such future stars as Goldie Hawn and Lily Tomlin.

But will it work 15 years later? George Schlatter, the show's executive producer, says he doesn't anticipate many problems.

Some segments will be cut. "Once we did a segment where we said 'continuing with Laugh-In's philosophy that there's something good to be said about everyone, here's our salute to Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.' In the whole cast no one could think of anything to say. That will come out because he's turned around, he's a sick man now. But he was fair game in the '60s."

PBS in the spotlight

David Hemmings stars in "Charlie Muffin."

'Charlie Muffin'

Charlie Muffin is no superspy. His ex-army superiors despise him, relegate him to the bottom and his scruffy clothes and worn-out shoes look out of place at M16, where old-school ties are the rule.

But Charlie Muffin survives. He always has. He's a professional. He snared Alexei Berenkov, Russia's top spy in Europe. The credit went to others, but it was a heavy blow to Soviet espionage. The Praesidium are putting pressure on General Valery Kalenin, head of the KGB, to secure Berenkov's release. For Kalenin too, time is running out.

Kalenin's surprise appearance at a British embassy reception alerts both the British and the CIA. Charlie's young colleagues attempt to make contact with Kalenin, but one after another, they disappear.

The Americans lean on the British, to get in on the operation. The head of Britain's secret service, is reluctantly forced to fall back on Charlie Muffin. Charlie takes over the operation. On his terms. In Moscow and Prague, he makes contact with Kalenin.

This spy thriller, "Charlie Muffin," starring David Hemmings follows unorthodox British agent Charlie Muffin as he tries to convince Kalenin to defect. It airs over PBS Wednesday, Oct. 12. (Please check local listings for time.)

JOAN COLLINS

STRANGE INVADERS, from Orion Pictures. Directed and written by Michael Laughlin. Starring Paul LeMat, Diana Scarwid, Nancy Allen. Rated 'PG' ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

At the end of the classic sci-fi film "The Thing" (the original, not the recent remake) the reporter is about to tell the world how he and a small group of friends just defeated a creature from outer space. He begins by saying, "Watch the skies."

As "Strange Invaders" begins, the opening credits tell us that the aliens have already landed and completely taken over a small town in Illinois. They vaporized the town's inhabitants and took on human form. These are quasi-docile aliens. Unlike "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," they are not set on conquering the earth. Instead they are quite content to perpetuate the lifestyle of the year they landed, 1957.

The viewer quickly recognizes what lies ahead in this spoof/send-up/hommage to the low-budget sci-fi films of the 1950s. But director/writer Michael Laughlin doesn't play it for Mel Brooks-like laughs. Laughlin's tongue is pressed quite firmly in cheek, and he retains the right level of camp, corn and inside jokes.

And there are tons of inside jokes. If you are a fan of '50s sci-fi films like those mentioned above, you are bound to enjoy this film more than the average viewer. In fact, spotting the film fan will be easy; he or she will be the one in the movie theater who keeps talking to their date pointing out all the references to those movies.

Such a movie could easily become silly, but Laughlin and a terrific cast force us to laugh with the film and not at it. Paul LeMat discovers the town stuck in 1957 when he searches for his ex-wife, nicely played by Diana Scarwid. Nancy Allen is delightful as a tabloid reporter, and Louise Fletcher plays the director of the National Center for UFO Studies.

Even if you're not a fan of such sci-fi epics, "Strange Invaders" has enough gags of its own well worth watching. And if you've a mind to see a message of conformity hidden behind the tongue-in-cheek humor, feel free to do so. It is your inalienable right.
