Fifty-Second Year

World News In Brief

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—Almost a year from its start, Canada's "modified austerity" program is still largely in effect, though some of its more obvious irritants have been removed.

A reminder that the dollar-saving program is still very much alive came yesterday when the Government announced the rationing of dollars for pleasure travel in the U.S. will be continued for another year at $150 a person.

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—Thousands of workers were dismissed today and at least 200,000 more in New South Wales were told to "stand down" three days weekly without pay until the general coal strike is settled.

The dismissals followed ordering of drastic power cuts last night by the government to conserve remaining coal supplies. The strike began November 3 following a breakdown in negotiations to settle a month-old jurisdictional dispute on whether members of the Miners Federation or the Australian Workers Union should work on a railroad tunnel through a mountain connecting two mines on the south coast of Australia.

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—The Canadian Poultry Council will meet with Deputy Agriculture Minister Dr. G. S. H. Barton today to thrash out means of finding new international markets for Canadian eggs.

The Council—representing Canadian poultrymen—believes that Britain's shortage of dollars will force her to withdraw from the role she has maintained during the last seven years as purchaser of Canada's egg surpluses.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—Engines of a dozen search planes shattered the dawn stillness today as the hunt began for a missing American Air Force plane with six men aboard.

The plane, a twin-engine B-25, was believed to have crashed last night near Argentia, the United States Naval base in Placentia Bay in Southern Newfoundland.

New York, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—A thick fog which kept the liner Queen Elizabeth stranded outside New York harbor throughout last night still shrouded the harbor early today.

Among the ship's 2,235 passengers was Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, returning from London where he was taken ill just before the Commonwealth Prime Ministers conference.

London, Nov. 6.—(A.P.)—The $250,000 French station Djelal went mad with fright aboard a plane above the English channel yesterday and killed himself.

The animal was being flown from France to the United States where an American syndicate of breeders recently purchased from Marcel Boussac, a leading French owner.

Montreal Textile Executive Brutally Slain In New York

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG
Canadian Press Staff Writer
New York, Nov. 6.—(A.P.)—A chance acquaintance in a midtown bar started a chain of events that led to the brutal death yesterday of a 56-year-old Montreal textile executive.

Less than 12 hours after the body of Colin Cameron Mackellar had been found in his Canadian Club suite in the Waldorf-Astoria, a 19-year-old Michigan salesman was arrested and, police said, had confessed to the fatal beating.

Dark haired Ralph Edward Barrows, six-foot former football player from Grand Rapids, Mich., was the only suspect involved, police said.

A book of matches with the name and address of a west-side bar gave police their only clue. The matches were found on the floor of Mackellar's luxurious suite in the Canadian Club, which occupies the 18th and 19th floors of the Park Avenue hotel.

Mackellar, who arrived Thursday night from Montreal by plane was general sales manager of Dominion Textiles, Ltd. He is survived by his wife and two children—Betina, 15, and James, 21, a student at Dawson College, Montreal. His home was in Westmont, Que., and he had a summer home on Lake Memphremagog, on the east shore between the Hermitage Club and Georgeville.

King Does Away With Old Custom

London, Nov. 6.—(Reuters)—The King has ended a centuries-old British custom with the announcement that Home Secretary Cuthbert Ede will not be summoned to Buckingham Palace for the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby expected about Nov. 11.

"The attendance of a Minister of the Crown at a birth in the Royal family is not a statutory requirement or a constitutional necessity," the announcement last night said. "It is merely the survival of an archaic custom and the King feels that it is unnecessary to continue further a practice for which there is no legal requirement."

Ede will still, however, be responsible for making official notification throughout Britain of the birth of an heir to the Throne, the announcement added. In practice, this means that the news will be telephoned to Ede, who will see that a bulletin is fixed on the doors of the Home Office.

He will also notify the Lord Mayor of London, who has a traditional right to be informed promptly.

The custom, requiring the Home Secretary's attendance at Royal births is popularly supposed to date from 1688, when a son, James Edward, was born to the 55-year-old King James II and his second wife, Mary Beatrice Eleonora D'Este, daughter of Alfonso the Third, Duke of Modena.

King James, who had succeeded his brother Charles II, in 1685, had aroused widespread opposition because he was a Roman Catholic. The rumor spread that a "changeling" child had been smuggled into the Palace in a warming pan to ensure a Catholic succession to the Throne.

Chinese Claim Gains In North

Peiping, Nov. 6.—(A.P.)—The Chinese government reported today it had hacked out gains to the north, west and south and enlarged its north China Peiping-Tientsin island, which is entirely surrounded by Communists.

The government report came as American authorities moved to evacuate 1,000 American dependents from Nanking, Shanghai, Tientsin and Peiping. The Americans fear an outbreak of fighting in the major national cities may cut off escape for the United States citizens.

The biggest government gain was to the south. Government headquarters said three Communist brigades—possibly 30,000 men—were smashed in a drive on Suikichang, Red headquarters 170 miles south of Peiping.

There was no hint as to how close the government is to the railway city. The Communist radio, however, has been showing nervousness over this government move.

Reunion Party of Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders of Hamilton Ends in Tragedy—Two Women Among Victims.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—At least six Hamilton residents, including two women, were killed and some 65 others injured early today when a street-car and a chartered bus collided on Toronto's western outskirts.

Police and hospital authorities identified the dead as: Mrs. Thomas Hay, Frank Augustus Noble, Mr. and Mrs. David Armit, Earl McKie and Gordon Beddie.

Of the injured, first reports listed 15 in critical condition. Frank Noble, 31, of Hamilton, severe lacerations of the scalp, broken right big toe, possible broken left leg.

Frank Rowe, 24, driver of the bus, of Hamilton, broken left thigh, broken lower left leg, extensive elbow lacerations, shock, broken ribs and possible punctured lung.

Thomas Hay, husband of one of the dead, undisclosed injuries.

Most of the critically injured were passengers on the bus.

The Canada Coach Lines bus carried members of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders of Hamilton, who, with their wives, had attended a reunion party at the Top Hat night spot near the west-end Sunnyside amusement centre.

Most of the street-car passengers were workers coming off the night shift at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company plant in suburban New Toronto. The tram was travelling eastward, toward the city on the Long Branch line linking the suburbs of Long Branch, New Toronto and Mimico with the King and Queen car lines in the city proper.

Rescuers used acetylene torches in a desperate effort to remove the screaming and moaning victims trapped in the bus, which had its axle tightly imbedded in the front of the street car.

One eyewitness said the bus, only two minutes after leaving the Top Hat, apparently swerved to miss a pedestrian.

A motorist driving directly behind the bus when the accident occurred said he saw the bus swerve and then smash directly into the street car. Both the roadway and the tram tracks were wet and greasy from the light rain which had been falling for several hours.

The impact sent the big bus on its side with a crash that could be heard several blocks away. The cries of badly injured persons mingled with screams of trapped men and women who had escaped severe harm.

The accident was one of the worst in Toronto recently.

Taxi driver Roy Steinberg, one of the first on the scene after the collision, said he saw a small fire break out in the bus. But it was quickly extinguished.

The dead and the dying, the dazed and those who had been knocked unconscious, sprawled in all directions as police and ambulance men moved among them to give first aid.

Three or four men on the street-car averted a panic in the tram by ordering passengers to remain quiet. They slapped the faces of one or two who appeared to be becoming hysterical.

Police said the operator of the street-car had been identified as Tom Clark. He survived the crash but was reported to have suffered a broken leg.

The bus driver was alive when extricated from the bus. His head had gone through the windshield and part of his body was inside the street-car.

Eyewitnesses said the emergency door of the bus could not be opened for nearly half an hour after the collision because the vehicle telescoped and locked together.

Edward Styles of Toronto, a passenger on the street-car described the moment of the impact:

"There was an awful crash and I was thrown on top of some seats. Then the lights went out. People at the back of the car started to shout, 'keep your heads' and in a minute or two there was no confusion. Most of us managed to get out without trouble."

"It was awful outside. People were lying on the pavement and blood was everywhere. We could hear screams from those trapped inside the bus and there was nothing we could do."

One dead woman when removed from the wreckage, was wearing an evening dress with her corsage still pinned on.

"One soldier was thrown clear through the bus window and landed about 20 feet in front of the bus," another witness said. "If he isn't killed, it must have been a miracle."

Most of the injured were taken to St. Joseph's and Western hospitals. There the least severely injured jammed the corridors to await their turn for attention.

Dundee, Que., Has Boundary Line Problem

Valleyfield, Que., Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—A tiny segment of the international boundary line provided a dramatic background to proaic charges of foreign exchange violations.

The setting is a neat, white-painted little grocery store, housed in the International Hotel building at Dundee, Que., and squinting squarely on the Canadian-American border.

So sharply through the stores does the international line cut that the division between the province of Quebec and the state of New York is the straight edge of the grocery counter.

The principals are Marcel Macabee, grocer, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Operating for Canada's Foreign Exchange Control Board, the R.C.M.P. brought Macabee into court at Valleyfield yesterday and charged him on four counts. He pleaded innocent and hearing was set for Dec. 3 by Judge Maurice Fortin.

The charges are not unusual in the scores of investigations and procedure by the control board: Failure to declare United States currency beyond the $250 limit allowed a Canadian merchant; dealing in U.S. currency through purchases in the United States; paying Canadian currency to non-residents of Canada; failure to keep proper records and books of accounts.

There the drabness of the court charges ends and the little grocery, which may cause Judge Fortin plenty of pondering, comes into colorful perspective.

Grocer Macabee is in Canada when he waits on his customers; all his goods-laden shelves are in Canada. Only his customers are in the United States—specifically in Fort Covington, N.Y. It is they so much as rest an arm on the counter, they are in both countries at the same time.

Over the sharp customer-side edge of the counter hangs a sign, "International line."

On a wall, tight against a thin strip of wood are two signs. On the groceryman's side of the strip the sign reads "Canada"; on the customers' side it is "United States."

The questions Judge Fortin will likely have to consider—you figure them out.

Such incidents are not at all unusual for border residents but during the early days of the war, when border controls were tightened, it got beyond the laughing-stage.

At Rock Island, Que., the boundary slices through the Haskell Opera House, a combined community theatre and library.

Canadians without passports couldn't use the front door of the library because it is in Derby Line, Vt. They had to go up the fire escape at the back of the building to get to the librarian's desk.

But in the theatre, things were worse. A rope representing the border was strung across the seats. Americans had to sit on their own side of the fence, Canadians on the other.

There was also the time the Canadian undertaker couldn't bury his American client because he hadn't bothered about getting a passport.

Housewife Who Aided Canadians At Dieppe Is Honored By France

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Dieppe, France, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—The small French woman, her faded hair tucked under a shabby blue felt, smiled and said: "One must do one's duty, mustn't one?"

She was embarrassed as friends view to tell the story of how Marie Renet, middle-aged French housewife who lives not far from Dieppe's "Carrefour des Canadiennes" (Canadian Crossroads), aided two Canadians stranded when their comrades withdrew.

Toil - worn hands nervously smoothed the well-brushed coat and opened and closed the clasp of her purse as the story disclosed her secret—which for three years she'd dare tell no one, not even her husband.

Today it's common knowledge, for Mme. Renet has been honored by France and by her city. Dieppe honours Canada, too, may recognize her.

For six days after the August 19, 1942, raid on Dieppe by the 2nd Canadian Infantry Division she fed two unidentified Canadian soldiers who missed the force's debarkation from the beaches.

Truman Gains In Stature As Result Of Election Victory

By THE EDITOR

New York, Nov. 6.—New depths of greatness are now discernible in President Harry Truman that were not apparent as he led this nation for over three years, without a direct mandate from the people, and hobbled by an unfriendly Congress.

The modesty and humbleness of his acceptance of the people's verdict stirred the hearts of millions of Americans, and gave them a new appreciation of their President. If ever a man had the right to shout from the housetops "I told you so" it was Harry Truman. It seemed only human that he would grow a little.

But he did not, and with firm conviction accepted his responsibility "with God's help." He refused a dinner invitation of the Washington Post where he would dine on turkey, and sundry alleged experts and newspaper correspondents would eat "bread of crow."

The President refused to gloat over his defeated opponent, who had been so sure of victory that during the campaign he had refused to fight.

All in all Harry Truman has today reached a stature he never had before, and in private conversation Arthur Krock, experienced chief of the New York Times, compares him to any master politician the nation has produced.

Mr. Krock said that Mr. Truman's confidence of victory and assessment of the real sentiment of the people was a political achievement equal to any in the history of the country.

Here in New York for the past three days Democrats have been giving the Republicans the greatest horse laugh in history—their glees only slightly modified by the fact that they themselves gave Mr. Truman little chance to win.

So many people have been caught off base. For instance in the United States edition of Time Magazine, somewhat different from the Canadian edition in size and make-up, there is a full page advertisement for Kipling's Magazine headed "What will Dewey do?" The advertisement goes on to say that the November issue, "Just off the press," gives "an accurate, down-to-earth analysis and forecast of what to expect from the new administration." As Mr. Truman said "there will be lots of red faces in Washington."

What do political observers expect now? Several important changes are expected. Drastic modification of the Taft-Hartley Law, and perhaps complete repeal is expected. Increased social service facilities along a line of a New Deal, are expected and hoped for by those Democrats who saw in Truman the mantle-bearer of F. D. R.

Arthur Krock, in his Thursday column in the New York Times, referred to the State of Illinois as the "Mother of Republican Presidents," and said that the swing of this state to Truman was the breaking point for Dewey.

All Canadians will be pleased at the terrific beating Colonel Robert McCormick, and his Chicago Tribune, took in Illinois.

It was the editor's pleasure to spend some time Thursday with

Ministry Of Justice To Go To Garson

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent yesterday made the first move towards bringing Premier Garson of Manitoba into the Federal Cabinet as Justice Minister.

He announced that Mr. Garson has accepted an invitation to "associate himself" with the Liberal party in the Federal field and disclosed that Hon. J. A. Glen, former Resources Minister, has resigned his Manitoba Commons seat of Marquette to facilitate the entry of the 49-year-old Premier into the Federal House.

By-elections will be held Dec. 20 in Marquette as well as in the Quebec riding of Laval-Two Mountains and the Ottawa district seat of Carleton. Nomination day in the three ridings will be Dec. 6.

George Drew, the new Progressive Conservative leader, will seek a Commons seat in the Carleton contest.

While Mr. St. Laurent did not say outright that Mr. Garson would enter the Cabinet, his appointment to one of the portfolios—likely Justice—is regarded in political circles here as a foregone conclusion. Mr. St. Laurent himself has been serving as Justice Minister on a temporary basis since Rt. Hon. J. L. Halsey left the Cabinet in June.

Observers here pointed out that Mr. St. Laurent could not yet announce appointments to the Cabinet since Prime Minister Mackenzie King still is head of the Government.

However, the appointment is expected just as soon as Mr. King resigns and turns the ministry over to Mr. St. Laurent. Mr. King is returning from Britain this week-end and may leave office some time next week.

Mr. Glen's resignation leaves the Commons standing as follows: Liberals 63; Progressives Conservative 63; C. C. F. 32; Social Credit 13; others eight; vacant four; total 245.

The Government won two by-elections in the Ontario riding of Algoma East and the Saskatchewan riding of Rosthern.

Entry of Mr. Garson into the Federal council has been predicted since he nominated Mr. St. Laurent for the Liberal leadership at the party's national convention here in August. He himself had been nominated as a candidate but withdrew.

Fuel Shortage Strikes Gander

Gander, Nfld., Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—Skies were almost empty over this sprawling field of tarmac in the Newfoundland wilderness today as the island-wide rail strike cut off fuel supplies and forced 10 airlines to cancel eastbound flights to Europe.

Air lines shifted operations to Reserve Airport at Sydney, N.S., and Moncton, N.B., as gauges on gas and oil storage tanks slid to the near-empty mark.

This move immediately threw some 200 machinists, airframe mechanics and other workers out of a job.

It was reported that the Newfoundland government was negotiating with American officials for permission for civilian planes to use the American air force base at Stephenville on the west coast.

1948 Has Been Important Year In Canadian Politics

By DOUGLAS HOW

Canadian Press Staff Writer
Ottawa, Nov. 6.—(C.P.)—Canada is heading into the last hectic stages of a year that has seen with political developments as few if any others in the 81 years since Confederation.

Above all, it will see next week or shortly after the retirement of the man who has dominated Canadian public life more than any other in the last quarter-century.

After 21 years as Prime Minister, William Lyon Mackenzie King will return from Europe and turn his post over to Louis Stephen St. Laurent who has been acting in his absence.

It also has seen or will see:

1. Five provincial elections which in all cases returned the present administrations to power. No two of the five governments were of the same political persuasion. New Brunswick returned the Liberals, Quebec its Union Nationale, Ontario the Progressive Conservatives, Saskatchewan the C.C.F., and Alberta the Social Credit.

2. National conventions of the country's three leading parties in the same year for the first time, and the preparation of their platforms for about the only thing that didn't happen in 1948—a Federal general election.

3. Choice of new leaders for the two old-line parties—the emergence of Mr. St. Laurent as the first French-Canadian leader of the Liberal party since Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the long-awaited arrival on the national stage as Progressive Conservative chief.

4. The way virtually cleared for the entry of Newfoundland as a tenth province, raising Canada's population beyond 13,000,000, and extending her sovereignty to important defence bastion in the North Atlantic.

5. Entry of career diplomat L. B. Pearson into the Cabinet as External Affairs Minister to finish Canada's year-old "crucade" for the most important international political steps in her history—formation of a seven-power North Atlantic security alliance. It still may be consummated before 1949.

6. Assumption of membership in the key, veto-haunted Security Council of the United Nations for the first time with Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the 1st Canadian Army, as the national spokesman.

7. At least nine Federal by-elections, four slated for a December windup that will see the old year out in a blaze of Yuletide oratory. Of the first five, the C.C.F. won three, the Liberals two.

8. Two premiers—Drew of Ontario, Garson of Manitoba—abandon provincial politics and move into the Federal tent in vital roles for the general election that could come next year.

Hollywood—(NEA)—Van John-

Judy Garland in "Good Old Sum-

next picture will be semi-autobiographical, touching on his career tainer. . . United Artists is the first major film company to give serious consideration to distributing television films. They're

New York.

Marie Wilson posed for some glamor shots for Bob Landry.
Said Bob: "They're different from any previous pictures of Marie. They accentuate the negative in a positive sort of way."

George "Gabby" Hayes had his whiskers tinted to make them photograph a nice clean snow white for "El Paso." "I feel like an awful sissy," he said, "but I've got to take care of 'em. Those whiskers are the only talent I have."

Hard Times. . . More economy: Paramount

coat they wanted for Pauletta Godard in "The Mask of Lucre-

Anything is possible in Holly-

"Daughter of Ramona." . . New threat to the blood pressure of shooting scenes in Brooklyn streets for "The Amboy Ducks."

Sight of the week: Betty Grable

Young Love. . . Kiddie

in a few days linking my name to Margaret O'Brien. But I don't worry about it. It won't be true."

Jimmy Dykes, the former Chi-

Susanna Foster's marriage in the

They hadn't ever heard of the ro-

To Play In Albert Hall

Mary Munn, blind Canadian pianist, well known to Eastern Townships music lovers, who has been invited to play Grieg's piano concerto with the London Symphony Orchestra at famous Albert Hall on November 21.

Blind Since Birth, Canadian Pianist
Wins Praise From London Critics

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Nov. 4.—Mary Munn, blind Canadian pianist now living in London, is a philosopher as well as a musician.

"I sometimes think that if statesmen and politicians listened to great music before going in to debate the world would be saved a lot of headaches," said Mary when interviewed in her home at Ealing Common.

"There is a power in the work of the masters that transcends petty grievances. That at least has been my experience. I get very angry sometimes. . . but it passes when I play the piano or go to a good concert."

Since she first left her native
Montreal 22 years ago, Miss Munn's talent has been divided between Canada, Britain, the United States and European countries. She has given recitals in London regularly since last January and the critics have been unanimous in their praise.

She has been asked to play Grieg's piano concerto with the London Symphony Orchestra at the Albert Hall Nov. 21.

"I regard it as an honor," she said, "and I shall certainly give of my best."

Born blind, Mary has trained herself since childhood to memorize full-length symphonic works note by note. She can repeat as much as five pages of Mozart after hearing them played only once, complex music has to be learned progressively in five-bar sections. She memorized the Grieg concerto in 14 hours.

"When learning a new piano concerto I always study the conductor's score as well. I like to know what to expect from the orchestra, and not have horns coming in when I'm expecting strings."

Tall, with dark hair and a bright smile, Miss Munn first came to London when she was 18 and studied at the Royal Academy of Music. Then she returned to Canada for a 15-weeks engagement with the CBC in Toronto.

Back in London two years later, a series of piano recitals proved so successful she was invited to play in other European capitals.
Seeking a companion for her travels, Mary became friendly with concert and operatic singer Essie Mann. Miss Mann accompanied her to Rome, Budapest and Berlin and enjoyed it so much she gave up singing to become Mary's permanent companion.

"We've been together nearly 13 years now," Miss Mann said. "Our friends call us Munn and Mann—as if we were some sort of comic team."

The house which they share has two grand pianos, in the drawing-room—one for each. It will be let next January, however, as Miss Munn is returning to Canada for a concert tour.

JOSE TORRES,
SPANISH DANCER, TO APPEAR IN SHERBROOKE!

JOSE TORRES, reputed to be the greatest Spanish Dancer since the late Antonio Argentina, will make his first appearance in Sherbrooke at the Granada Theatre on Tuesday evening, November 30. Montreal was one of the first cities in North America visited by Mr. Torres since his debut last month in New York, where he gave a memorable recital at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Torres is described as an authentic Spanish gypsy from among whom the greatest of Spanish dancers have been recruited. He spent his formative years in Seville and the country of that district, developing a habit as little more than a child of following the wandering bagpipers, guardians of the golden folklore of his country.

After serving as a dancer figurant at the Liceo Theatre in Barcelona, Mr. Torres determined to leave for Paris and fame and fortune. These came to him only after exceptionally hard struggles including a period of partial starvation.

Then came his official debut and he leaped to fame overnight.

Just before the war Torres was offered two posts, that of premier danseur at the Paris Opera and chief star dancer and ballet master at the Opera Comique. His admirers tried to persuade him to refuse either in favor of remaining a recital-ist. But he says that he felt he could contribute more to art by accepting one of these posts, that at the Opera Comique where he served for several seasons.

More recently, Torres, a young and vigorous man, has returned to concert work in which he won his first fame.
Today, it is said, he stands at the peak of his career. Just before leaving France for this continent, Torres was the recipient of a rare honor, a book magnificently illustrated describing his art and career and written by the celebrated Professor Jeanne Banay of the Paris International Archives of the Dance.

Unity Between Races Is Keynote Of "French Day" Observances In Schools

The importance of unity between French and English-speaking Canadians was stressed yesterday afternoon by Guy Blanchette, guest speaker at an assembly held in the Sherbrooke High School to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the official recognition of French on an equal footing with English as the parliamentary language in Canada.

Yesterday was "Le Jour Du Français" and English-speaking students all over the province marked it with special French language observances.

Ross Beattie, French specialist in the Sherbrooke High School presided.

Mr. Blanchette told of the advantages of being bilingual. He said English and French-speaking children, playing together, learned each other's language. He told of how both languages were used at the three recent political conventions.

Three-Day Fair Ends Tonight With Drawings For Many Big Cash Prizes

The three-day Rotary Fair will come to an end tonight and a bumper crowd is expected to jam the Belvidere Street Armory, attracted not only by the many booths but also by the fact that more than $700 in cash prizes will be distributed.

This afternoon—Children's Afternoon—the fair will operate in full swing, too, and Rotarians have spared no efforts in their attempt to provide a gala time for the youngsters.

Phil Mathias is in charge of the Children's entertainment and a fine assortment of practical prizes such as windbreakers and over-shoes is awaiting the lucky ticket holders.

The Canadian Legion Pipe band will be on hand and will entertain the youngsters with a special program. Many of the games of chance will be in operation and a big variety program, complete with clowns, gives promise of a real afternoon of fun and laughter.

Another big crowd filled the armory last night. A bumper business, with the Bingo game and the Superfine again the big attractions.

Receipts at the fair last night totaled $5,404, a slight increase over the corresponding night last year when $5,359 was collected.

The many fine prizes waiting to be won drew not only residents of Sherbrooke but persons from out-of-town and winners included men and women from such widely separated points as Montreal, Granby and Beebe.

Brightly-colored blankets, buckets of household articles, baskets of fruit, cigarettes, candy, electrical equipment and the valuable

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT
JOHNS-MANVILLE

C.J-M Mine Helps To Meet World Asbestos Shortage

The question is often asked: "What effect does the world shortage of asbestos have on Canadian Johns-Manville?"

There is a serious world-wide shortage of asbestos fibre. To help meet this shortage J-M has done everything it can to expand production of the company's big mine at Asbestos, P.Q.

This assures continued operation of the J-M plants which depend largely on asbestos and adds to the strength and stability of the company.

Last year, C.J-M produced 305,000 tons of asbestos fibre—an all-time high and 30 per cent greater than the year before.

This increased production was necessary not only to keep J-M plants going but also the plants of many other companies who required it for the manufacture of needed products.

Thousands of tons of asbestos fibre were made available to these other companies last year. Even though many of them are direct competitors, Canadian Johns-Manville believes in meeting their requirements for asbestos so far as that is possible, because all the wheels of business must be kept going to continue to assure jobs and prosperity for all.

This is one of a series of answers to questions frequently asked about Canadian Johns-Manville and Canadian industry.

Judgment In Bessette Case Due Nov. 19

Judgment in the case of Joseph Olivier Bessette, of Ste. Edwidge, charged with the illegal possession of illicit liquor, after six gallons were seized on his property, will be rendered by the R. C. M. P. will be pronounced on November 19, Judge Joseph Marier declared yesterday, following the conclusion of evidence submitted by both attorneys, Evender Veilleux and Guy Blanchette.

The case continued yesterday morning, with Mr. Bessette taking the stand. Questioned by Mr. Blanchette, the accused contradicted the statements made by Constables Gorge and Grefard and by Albert Sidelou, bailiff of the Superior Court, declaring that he was not out on his guard by the constables after the seizure of the liquor. Accused's wife and son, Romain, corroborated his testimony.

Mr. Veilleux questioned the analysis report from the Department in Ottawa, produced as an exhibit by Mr. Blanchette, on the grounds that the certificate mentions only that the analysis showed a mixture of alcohol and water, but does not say that the liquor analyzed was illicit.

Following the summing up of the evidence by the respective attorneys, Judge Marier announced that the judgment would be handed down on the 19th.

THE WILD COUNTRY

By Louis Bromfield

A drama that wrought powerfully upon the lives of a dozen men and women and one sensitive boy, Ronnie, the principal character, is a boy closely related to every crisis and revelation in the destinies of these people, responsive to the new knowledge life is thrusting upon him as he is responsive to the beauties of the countryside. Louis Bromfield describes uniquely well.

It was the summer of the St. Louis Fair; Ronnie was 13 and spending his vacation on his grandfather's rich, shady stock farm in the valley, beyond whose smooth fields lay the wild country, a tract of rough wooded hills that, to Ronnie, spelled excitement, danger and forbidden fascination. While he did not yet know it, this summer and the months that followed it were to be for Ronnie a period of disturbance, perplexity, illumination and maturing as he came to manhood.

A series of dramatic and passionate episodes in the countryside involving men and women whom Ronnie knew well, were to open before him new realms of knowledge, vistas into the half-glimpsed land of adult love. He was to be deeply moved and wrought to maturity by the woman, Vinnie, the outsider who was making an honest wife and helpmeet, no matter what the gossip said; by young Wayne Torrance, well liked, exuberant and wholly evil; by Melissa, still lovely in her sixties, who, together with her blind lover, brought Ronnie the golden world of Continental art and living.

It was a crucial season for Ronnie and for those who loved him, a time which would determine whether he would remain in troubled uncertainty or grow slowly and naturally into knowledge, tolerance and balance. For allies he had only his own inborn soundness of mind and the watchful wisdom of his grandfather. The Wild Country will win a memorable place among stories of youth coming to maturity.

Of the long list of fine books which Louis Bromfield's writing career has produced — including such novels as The Green Bay Tree, The Rains Came and Mrs. Parkington — the most recent before The Wild Country is Malabar Farm.

THE VICTOR BOOK OF CONCERTS

By Abraham Vainus

Of all forms of music performed at concerts, the concerto is today the most popular with audiences. This was not always so; but the increase in the numbers of radio performances and the sale of recordings of concertos is one of the most striking phenomena of developments in music during the past five years.

Along with this development there has been another that is even more striking and important. That is a growing concern with and interest in what music is all about — that is, music itself and not merely biographical gossip about its composers and performers. The day is happily gone when one could satisfy the concert, radio and phonograph-record public with casual notes about Beethoven's deafness, Liszt's affairs of the heart, or Paderewski's accomplishments as a statesman. Today that public wants to know about music itself, how it is put together, how it should sound, and where its peculiar beauties lie if these are not entirely self-evident on a first hearing.

It is with these facts in mind that Abraham Vainus has written the VICTOR BOOK OF CONCERTS. While it does not offer a detailed technical analysis of all of the 130 concertos presented, it always goes to the heart of the "musical" matter in each work. Biographical material is given where it is relevant, but the emphasis is always on the music the composer wrote, and no one can read an account of one of these works, as given by Mr. Vainus, without gaining an insight and understanding that can lead only to greater pleasure and appreciation when that work is again heard.

It is no more possible to write soundly and intelligently about music without occasional technical words and phrases, but the author of this book has not assumed that his reader is necessarily a trained musician; but neither has he presumed, on the other hand, that he is an intellectual baby.

The list of concertos discussed is based on the list of concertos recorded by the RCA Victor Division of the Radio Corporation of America — hence the title of the book. There are over 500 musical illustrations for it by H. L. Kownatshy.

BOLD TO SAY

By Austin Pardue

The Lord's Prayer is the most profound expression of man's hope and the only statement that Jesus ever compiled. The basis of all worship, it is old yet ever new, simple yet mysterious. In the introductory words of an ancient liturgy, the most lowly can be "bold to say" it, for lightly understood it satisfies the desires of all mankind.

This book makes clearer to the reader the meaning and significance of those phrases of the Lord's Prayer so familiar to every man, woman and child. It translates spiritual principles, too after forgotten, into the language of the present day. The illustrations, for example, taken from everyday life as the average individual faces it, have a personal quality that leads any reader to recognize himself in these pages.

Prayer is a powerful thing. It can move mountains, it has no limits, only the limits of our own doubts. This book has one key word about which everything else revolves. This word which is so important in the life of each individual and nation is DESIRE. The perfect guide to the study of its use and meaning is to be found in the Lord's Prayer, read about it in BOLD TO SAY.

At the time of writing this book Rev. Austin Pardue was Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in Buffalo, New York, and he is now Bishop of Pittsburgh. His preaching and radio addresses have attracted an unusually large number of hearers. In written and spoken word he places particular emphasis on personal religion, and because of his varied experience with many types of individuals he can speak with authority.

WE NEED NOT FAIL

By Sumner Welles

This is a book about Palestine. It is a book about the supreme crisis in the life of the United Nations. It is a book about the survival of western civilization.

Is Palestine to be one more defeat for collective security, one more triumph for selfish expediency? Is it another link in the total chain: Manchuria, the Rhineland, Ethiopia, Munich? We face the same challenge in a new form. Will we fail again?

Last November the General Assembly of the United Nations voted to partition Palestine, a vote led by the United States. The factors behind the decision have not changed, but the government of the United States has "changed its mind." The peoples of the world must then inevitably change their trust, their hope of leadership.

The Jews of Palestine, one of the most completely democratic communities in the world, have built a homeland relying on the partition plan adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations. Are we, like the Chamberlain government, to be frightened by threats? Mr. Welles points out that we might even find desperate need for a democratic ally in Palestine.

But his main purpose and achievement is to tell the dispassionate story of Palestine, of its inception, of the perfidious white paper, and our own recent lack of courage and consistency. Let us read this book to know the facts. Knowing the facts, let each and every one learn from the sufferings of the Jewish people, and of all the men impoverished in World War II, that national safety lies only in the safety of the community of nations.

INTRUDER IN THE DUST

By William Faulkner

William Faulkner's seventeenth volume, his first novel to be published since The Hamlet in 1940, searches the conscience of the south. It is a study of murder and the mass mind, of an accused Negro whose guilt or innocence becomes secondary to the larger moral problems of justice itself.

Of a boy just old enough to find his way into manhood under the stress of conflicting values, of a community suspended momentarily between instinctive decency and bestial, irrevocable action. It is a story of a man in his essential nobility but on the verge of repudiating himself in all his reprehensible weakness. In the few fateful hours while a mob gathers, two leads and an old woman search for the truth that may free not only the accused but the community itself.

How they find it and all that is revealed to them make far more than a story of suspense and mystery; their discovery, and the reader's too, is a new insight into the relationship between the dominant and the dominated. Intruder in the Dust is a major American novel, distinguished for its penetration, subtlety and gripping narrative power.

NORTHERN LIGHTS

By Roger Verel

Roger Verel has been placed by French critics in the great tradition of Flaubert and Maupassant. Winner of the Prix Femina and of France's highest literary award — the coveted Prix Goncourt — Verel's Tides of Mont St. Michel was a Book-of-the-Month Club selection. Madman's Memory followed, to add to Verel's popularity in America. For his exciting stories of the sea, Verel evokes, as did Conrad's genius, the immortal drama of men and ships, of voyagers who sail beyond the horizons, and of women, who wait for their return.

In his newest novel, Verel unfolds a stirring story through which runs a taut thread of mystery. Young Jacques Pertry, son of an Arctic explorer, rather than follow his intrepid father's career among the polar snows, desired only to discover a quiet world with his sweetheart, Monique, on the shores of Brittany. Jacques' father, Philippe Pertry, had won undying fame for claiming new land near the pole. Upon Philippe's death, the stern command of men and ships, the challenge of the Frozen North fell to Jacques. But the warmth of his homeland, and Monique, held him fast until he learned the somewhere in the white silence of the pole, a secret lay buried — a secret which, if discovered, might stain with tragedy the bright memory of his father. Then — as happens to every human being — Jacques stood at the crossroads between love and duty.

The Managing Editor's Column

By DOUGLAS AMARON

When the Canadian Legion pipe band heads the Remembrance Day parade through the streets of Sherbrooke tomorrow, residents watching the parade will find that something new has been added to the bandmen's uniforms — KILTS.

Months of waiting for these precious pieces of Scottish garb to arrive have ended and the Legion band will truly be turned out in its finest style tomorrow. Only the green tunics are needed now to complete the uniform of Canada's only Legion pipe band.

The pipers and drummers may soon be dubbed the "Cameron's of Sherbrooke" for their plaid is that of the Camerons.

Still a young organization, the band already has won itself a big following and receives more requests to play than it can possibly fill. These come, not only from Sherbrooke, but from throughout the Townships and the United States.

The pipes are particularly popular south of the border and made a tremendous hit in Neypont.

Election Backwash

Out of all the comments coming up from the United States on the re-election of President Truman, we like best the one passed along by the Montreal Star's Washington correspondent, Ed. Hadley:

"Nobody liked Harry except the people."

Newspaper men may have been surprised by Truman's victory but it certainly provided them with a far greater wealth of news material for their stories than would have been available had Governor Dewey done the unexpected.

If nothing else, the election result should lead to more careful analysis and predictions in the future. It may even curb the politeness, but human nature being what it is, it won't stop the experts from climbing out on the limb at the very first opportunity.

Incidentally, in case some of you missed the Associated Press election squib from Kansas City yesterday, we'll repeat it here. It's a punster's dream.

Yesterday's Kansas City Star carried this front page note from a reader:

"To the Star: In view of recent events I believe I am in favor of an excess prophets tax."

Around the Town

Lots doing up at the Rotary Fair again tonight... and those prizes are really worth winning... one gentleman from out of town sat down at the Bingo table for the first time Thursday night and was still there for the last game... he won six prizes... encouraged, he was back again last night and will probably be there again tonight... that's real perseverance.

At our bi-monthly meeting last Monday night 13 new members were inducted, including five service girls. We were all very happy to see you ladies and hope to see many more of you in the near future. Plans are now going forward to provide you with a lounge room for yourselves, as was explained last Sunday.

Attendance was very small the other night, but perhaps it was due to the holiday. Don't forget the following events:

Joint house committee and executive meeting Monday night at 8 p.m. sharp.

Armistice Day will be celebrated on Sunday. The parade falls in at the William St. Armory at 1:30 p.m. Let's all get out and pay our respects to our former comrades-in-arms. The Pipe Band complete in their new uniforms will be on hand.

Sunday afternoon, October 24th, the Executive of the Branch were hosts to a group of local women veterans who were desirous of learning something of what the Canadian Legion stands for, what it is doing, and how Branch No. 10 in particular operates. The guests were received by Comrade John Kay, chairman of the Membership Committee, and Comrades Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Wheeler and Miss D. Humphrey, who acted as hostesses. Around The Armouries

By The Sgt.-Major

This is the week-end for all units to turn out on Remembrance Day in the annual Remembrance Day ceremonies. Each unit has a reminder in their respective "report of activities," so all members are requested to take note, and take part!

Sherbrooke has a big ceremony arranged for the annual observance this year, highlighted by the dedication of a memorial plaque in memory of those who did not return from World War II. One of the greatest parades in the history of Sherbrooke is being lined up, and it is hoped every vet and every member of every unit in the city will take part.

An innovation this year is found in the report that a special reception for members of the 12th Armoured Regiment, their wives, parents and families, will be given in each of the Messes at the William Street Armory immediately following the services at the Cenotaph. Tea will be served to the ladies. Sounds like a very fine way to conclude this memorable event, and it is hoped that every one will take advantage of it.

We have good reports from the various Sherbrooke units this week, but out-of-town units seem to be too busy (!) or just casually "passing the buck" to bet in any news of their activities. What's the matter with you fellows, anyway? This is your column, available for your use, and all you have to do is get someone in your unit to take enough interest to write a few notes of what you are doing, have done, or are planning to do, and send it along to "The Sgt. Major," c/o The Sherbrooke Record, and get it in the office by noon on "Thursday" of each week. It's a mighty good way to let others know what YOUR unit is doing, and how active the Eastern Townships reserve forces actually are... will YOU cooperate? Thanks a million, and we'll be expecting something from 27th, 13th, 13th, 13th, and the 38th Battery next week! See you all on parade, Sunday... understand Rock Island's 74th Bn. will turn out tomorrow for the big International Service at the Boundary, too; Richmond has their big Remembrance Day parade, Thursday, the 11th.

—The Sgt. Major,
12th Arm'd Regt (Sher. Regt) RCAC

Well, at the end of another week, we've had two good training nights — Monday and Wednesday — Turnouts were quite good

Activities of Legion Branches Throughout the Eastern Townships

Branch No. 10

Our testimonial banquet to our six comrades who received the Legion Medal of Merit was a pronounced success. Some 70 friends of J. A. Bourgeois, George Chapman, Guy Bryant, Newman Hunter, George Bedard and Bill Spackman were on hand to show the esteem in which they are held by local Legionnaires.

The citations, showing many years of distinguished and devoted service to the cause of the Legion were read out by President Charlie Kench after which he presented the medals to the recipients.

His Worship Mayor A. Trudeau was among the guests at the head table and a few brief words congratulating the decoration winners and pointed out the high position held by the Legion in Sherbrooke and remarked that it was in no small way due to the six guests of honor.

The guest speaker was Padre Fred Williams, who mentioned that it was the spirit of the soldier who volunteered to do the unenviable task that should carry over into civil life in the Legion and other service organizations.

At our bi-monthly meeting last Monday night 13 new members were inducted, including five service girls. We were all very happy to see you ladies and hope to see many more of you in the near future. LETTER FROM BRITAIN—

The New Health Service At Work

Since July 5th last my weekly pay has been the lighter by 4/11d (98 cents), deducted at source, and representing my contribution to the scheme of social security which is being built up in Britain. Of this sum 8/1-2d (14 cents) goes to help pay for the National Health Service on which most public attention has been focussed. I have heard a lot of stories about this service (which has become abbreviated like everything else these days and is now always called N. H. S.), some flattering, some the reverse. I have heard of elaborate operations performed free, and of examples of treatment held up by "red tape." It has been difficult to get an accurate picture of how in fact the N. H. S. was working after its first three months.

The other day I had a chance to talk this question over with a doctor who is in a good position to judge. He is an ordinary general practitioner, living in a semi-rural district about 20 miles from London, but he is also on the Council of the British Medical Association, which is the body that protects the interests of doctors. His considered opinion was that the N. H. S. was working well; not perfectly, of course, but a good deal better than might have been expected. About 80 per cent of the whole population have joined the scheme. This is to say, they have chosen their doctor and been accepted by him for his list, and as practically all the doctors have by now joined, there has not been that war between member and non-member doctors which, six months ago, looked quite possible.

More Attention for Children.

I asked the doctor whether he found he had much more work under the new scheme. He said that his surgery was certainly more crowded, but that of course he had fewer visits to make outside. A doctor will still visit his registered patients if they are too ill to come to see him, or if they choose to remain private patients and go on paying the old fees. But if you are registered under the N. H. S. you are expected, if you are well enough, to come along to the surgery and wait your turn. He said that as far as he could see, people were not wasting their own and the doctors' time by making unnecessary visits, just for the sake of getting something for nothing, but he was glad to notice that parents were bringing their children along to the doctor more often, instead of doctoring them at home, as was quite often the case in the past when saving a visit to the doctor meant saving 5 shillings ($1.00) or more.

His main criticism of the new scheme was that he thought the fees paid by the Government to the doctors would probably turn out to be too small. The basis of payment is what is called the capitation fee; this is the fixed sum to be paid out at about 17 shillings ($3.40) for each name, and this would be a plea if doctors could reckon on getting nearly the maximum number of names allowed (which is 4,000) but his experience was that most of the doctors in his district could only expect to get about half the maximum number of patients. When the health centres (which are going to be places where surgery equipment, consulting rooms, secretarial assistance and so on are provided for groups of doctors in one area) get going, the individual doctor's overhead will be still high.

On the other hand, this doctor thought that the administrative side of the new scheme was working better than the old National Health Insurance (usually known as "the panel"), though he agreed that specialists and hospitals were still uncertain of their position. On the whole, though, his verdict after three months' experience was favorable. "The new Health Service is going to work all right," he said. "But it's still being run in, like a new car. Soon it will be time to give it a check-up, but I don't think that when we do we shall find that much that needs altering."

The Common Cold.

This being the beginning of the season when doctors and patients start worrying about common cold, I was interested to see what one Member of Parliament has been asking about the results achieved by a body called the Common Cold Research Unit. The title of this body is self-explanatory, but its history is more recent. In 1940 the American Red Cross and Harvard University made a gift to Britain of a hospital. This was shipped across the Atlantic in sections and erected at Salisbury, in southern England. It is known now as the Harvard hospital. In May, 1946, the Ministry of Health and the Medical Research Council began there a systematic investigation of the cause of the common cold. Volunteers were called for to come and catch colds, and the supply of human guinea-pigs has continued ever since, many of them university students, but including men and women from every walk of life and even honeymoon couples.

The latest bulletin which was given to Parliament on the investigation said that no very dramatic results have been achieved yet, though something about the type of virus which causes colds has been established. Apparently the object (if you can call anything so minute an object) which causes all the trouble is one ten-thousandth of a millimetre in length—about the size of the influenza virus, and it remains active even at a temperature as low as -70 degrees Centigrade. It is hoped that some day the team of doctors working at Salisbury will succeed in growing the virus, and that would be the main step towards finding how to deal with it. Meanwhile, we must all expect our winter sneezes, and unfortunately we do not have the satisfaction of thinking that our colds make any contribution to science.

Vermont Villages Show Few Changes

By

DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

My native West Burke (to continue the journey we started yesterday) frequently is referred to as the most photographed village in northern Vermont and this probably is the fact that its physical features have been altered little by passing time.

I found this lack of change was true in the majority of small places I visited. The residents are abreast of the times, but they live in the same houses I used to know. However, I encountered one sharp reminder that the eyes of childhood magnify.

In Wilmington, for example, I was surprised to find that what I once regarded as a long, steep hill opposite my home was nothing but a gentle incline. The river which had been a raging torrent to me was just a babbling trickle. It makes one wonder how many times we blame the poor youngsters for exaggeration when they are only telling us truly what their inexperienced eyes see.

Later in West Berlin, where my father died, I made a surprising discovery. His church had been renamed the "Mackenzie Memorial Methodist Church." I tried the front door and, finding it unlocked, went in. There looking down on me from high on the wall behind the pulpit was a life-size head-and-shoulder portrait of my dad.

Then there was another town where I was principal of the high school after I got out of university.

I won't name this place because it had a tough element and wasn't typical of Vermont. Anyway, I had to fight a hulking farmer-student with my bare fists before I could hold my job. The boys surrounded me during the first recess and the farmer challenged me to combat. So I had to beat him up, but he gave me an awful mauling.

My successor, who made the mistake of announcing that he was boss, lasted three weeks. The boys threw eggs and apples at him when his back was turned, and finally broke up the school furniture and threw it out the windows.

Then I visited Brattleboro, where the great Rudyard Kipling lived in my day and was a friend of my family. The next time I saw the famous writer was at a wedding reception in London about 1930. It was Brattleboro, too, that in the '90s I saw my first "horseless carriage" which was steered with a tiller and headed the Barnum and Bailey circus parade. Those were the days when lecturers toured rural districts, exhibiting that amazing contraption, the "talking machine"—ten cents admission.

And so ran my journey, with a lot more of the same kind of thing, for my family lived in many parts of the state. It was a successful and pleasant revival of the old days, but what impressed me most—and I have encountered the same thing in many other states—was the wholesomeness and high purpose of the people.

It makes a fellow proud of his national birthright.

Well Digger Sentenced To Be Hanged

Simcoe, Ont., Nov. 6.—Seth Linton, 41-year-old well digger, yesterday heard Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel sentence him to be hanged February 3 for the rifle-butt murder of his housekeeper's husband, Lew Stewart, 44.

There was an audible gasp as the jurors, mostly farmers, announced their verdict. Defence Counsel D. E. W. Tisdale said the case will be appealed.

Linton, showing obvious emotion for the first time in the four-day trial, said he was "definitely sorry that the jury has reached the wrong verdict in this case."

He was charged with the June 6 murder of two men—Stewart and Stewart's brother-in-law, John Kipp, 32-year-old tobacco worker—in a fight at his farm home near here. Kipp died where he fell, with a .22 calibre bullet in his back. Stewart died in hospital from a beating about the head.

Their deaths followed a visit to Linton's home with Mrs. Edith Stewart, Lew's widow, who for six years was Linton's housekeeper. She testified that she went back to her husband on the night before the double slaying, and had returned to Linton's house to pick up her belongings.

The Stewart case was heard sep-

Eisenhower Had High Regard For The Part Women Played In The War Effort

(Editor's note: This is the sixth instalment of Kay Summersby's story, "Eisenhower Was My Boss.")

By KAY SUMMERSBY

General Patton was curious about the behavior of women in Britain's war effort. But it was only a flurry of interest compared to the storm of questions General Eisenhower poured on Colonel Oveta Culp Hobby when she visited London.

"If you don't send me WAC's over here," he exclaimed, "I'm just going to hire a regular army of civilians. I've seen what women can do in wartime; I've seen how they can free men for their primary duty—fighting."

Colonel Hobby, the charming WAC director who retained all her newspaper executive ability from civilian days in Texas, attempted to explain that her girls still were training. Furthermore, she wasn't certain how America would react to the new idea of women going overseas.

"I've seen what women can do," the General insisted. "And I'm going to have them in this theatre, whether they're British or American or French or what." As a beginning, he asked for a wholesale shipment of some five thousand WAC's.

Colonel Hobby explained quietly that her feminine troops weren't ready for foreign duty as yet. "Anyhow," she added, "you're asking for well over a third of all the WAC's we have." She made a discreet reference to the existence of a war in the Pacific.

Finally, the Colonel agreed to send over large numbers of WAC's as soon as they were trained, equipped, and available. She kept her word. The first group was hand-picked, for all-around ability. They made a tremendous hit among the homesick GI's and buckled down to administrative work with dazzling efficiency. I heard many a staff officer remark that British office workers were wonderful, but couldn't measure up to the secretarial ability and morale-boosting of American girls.

And I'm happy to add that, despite the fantastic collection of backgrounds, those women behaved so conscientiously that I never heard a word of scandal about any WAC in England. That was a real achievement in a gay wartime capital like London, where occasional raids led the here-today-gone-tomorrow philosophy, where anything a girl might do was off the hometown scorecard.

As an advance cadre, Colonel Hobby sent to England five WAC officers. We all lived together before and after I got my commission, lived together in many countries, through every conceivable condition, for some three and one-half years. We came to know each other as sisters, and that intensity provides. The five were Ruth Briggs, a Rhode Islander who ended the war by going to Moscow with a Beetle Smith turned Ambassador; Martha Rogers, a Dixie belle from Mississippi; and Louise Anderson, of Denver, both now living as civilized Californians; Matthea Plette, of Maine, and Alene Dresmal, of St. Paul, both of whom immigrated to Washington, D.C., after the war. There couldn't have been a more diverse group; maybe that's why we got along so famously.

The only time Colonel Hobby was close to danger in London came when she stopped at an open elevator door and stiffly refused to go in until General Eisenhower entered. She didn't know it, but the General's flaming neck and face had nothing to do with a blush. He was angry.

"Just because you put a woman into uniform, it doesn't change her sex," he once scolded me when I, too, waited for him to step through a door. He always, with his inborn chivalry, stepped aside to let female companions enter the door first—a small thing, perhaps, yet to a woman an important and revealing trait.

But to many women General Ike was an unusual egotist. Soon after his arrival in England, British and American hostesses sent a Niagara of invitations cascading over his desk. They clogged the telephone wires with both coy and demanding invitations to parties, week ends, receptions, dances, dinners, luncheons, even breakfasts.

The harassed General at first tried to comply, in keeping with his anti-francic insistence upon practical Anglo-American relations, both social and military. But several bad experiences changed all that. One time he lost an entire afternoon's work because he agreed to lunch very simply with Norway's royalty; although intrigued and charmed by King Haakon, he fumed over the protocol which forbade commoners to leave until the King had departed. (Still, I heard the General mention on one occasion that he thought staff sections chiefs should remain at their offices until the "Old Man" left.) Another time, he returned from a large social gathering with hands so sore from the endless reception line that he swore never to go out again.

Staff advisers worked out a policy to which he adhered from then on: No social events unless directly connected with military duties. Even Lady Astor failed to tempt him with rare social bait—George Bernard Shaw.

This same lack of social pretense led him to evacuate his first London residence, luxurious Claridge's. It was too rich for his military blood. He moved into a site at the Dorchester, the Americanized hotel which fronted on Park Lane and permitted a restful view of Hyde Park. The flat had one parlor. Until he asked Butch to move in and take the other bedroom, General Eisenhower was a lonely man.

With his limited social activity, I felt quite honored when he asked my mother and me up to dinner in his flat. It was a wonderful, wholly natural evening.

The entire evening was so mutually pleasant that he invited mother back several times; they shared a bright interest in history, as well as other subjects. She was most impressed by my Boss. "You'll laugh," she said, "but he's every bit as great a leader as Lincoln. 'I'll see. He'll grow taller and taller in history as the years go by.'"

Truman Gains

Marshall Field, whose Chicago papers fight McCormick's bitterly, in Illinois McCormick's stooges and supporters of his isolation policy have all been licked, says Mr. Field. Governor Dwight Green was soundly beaten by 48-year-old Adlai Stevenson, regarded by some as a possible future Democratic president. In the Senate race C. Wayland Brooks, "who hardly brushed his teeth without checking with McCormick" was beaten by Paul Douglas, war veteran and University professor.

These events Mr. Field described as healthy for American politics and indicative that isolation was dead.

But even the most optimistic Democrats admit that it is now up to Mr. Truman, and if he fails to deliver he and his party will come crashing down. He told the people the 80th Congress was the worst ever and they believed him. Now he is back solidly in power, with a Democratic Congress. The rest is up to him.

Chomey's convert ended the scoring, and, for all practical purposes, the game, as neither side was able to accomplish much during the remaining minutes.

attorney, asked if any money had been stolen, replied: "No comment." Reconstructing the chain of events that led to the Canadian textile expert's death, Birnes said Barrows met Mackellar in another hotel (Astor) bar.

They were joined by two others and moved on to another tavern. Their another person joined the party before Barrows was invited to the Canadian Club suite.

The two entered the suite about 2 a.m. and had a few drinks. An argument followed and, Birnes said, Barrows struck Mackellar. Barrows left the suite 20 minutes after he entered, Birnes added.

Dr. Thomas Gonzales, chief medical examiner, said Mackellar had been severely beaten. He died of a fractured skull and ruptured intestines after being "punched, kicked or jumped upon."

Detectives said that the room was not disturbed and that Mackellar's suit was not mussed.

John Morrison, resident club member and occupant of the room next door, said he heard no commotion.

Barrows arrived in New York Thursday to visit his father. Birnes said that Thursday afternoon he went to see a movie "Kiss the Blood Off My Hands."

Detectives said Barrows was pointed out at the west side tavern by a blonde barmaid who told police Barrows said he had a "hangover" from drinking a bottle of scotch in the Waldorf the night before.

Police found a partially consumed bottle of scotch in Barrows' room. Mackellar checked into the Canadian Club about 10 p.m. Thursday. He was last seen alive by a club waitress who delivered the four side bottles, four glasses and a bucket of ice.

Police found two highball glasses had been used the next morning. One contained scotch and soda, the other only soda. Police said the glasses had some fingerprints on them but had not yet been checked against Barrows.

Montreal, Nov. 6.—G. Blair Gordon, president of the Dominion Textile Company Ltd., said yesterday he "was deeply shocked" to learn of the death of Colin C. MacKellar, who was in New York on a business trip.

"His death is a severe loss to the company and will also occasion sorrow in a wide circle of personal and business friends coupled with sincere sympathy for his wife and two children."

Extension Of Palestine Truce Sought

Paris, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Britain Prepared today to press her demand that the United Nations Security Council extend its stiffened truce regulations to all Palestine.

The resolution threatening U.N. action against truce violations originally was drawn for the Nagev area in Southern Palestine where Israeli troops last month pushed back Egyptian forces.

Britain's Sir Alexander Cadogan insisted after the resolution had been passed that it be extended also to the Galilee area of Northern Palestine from which the Jews claimed last week they had cleared all Arab forces. Britain had the backing of China and Belgium in the debate.

The council voted to postpone debate on Sir Alexander's resolution until complete information on the situation in Northern Palestine reached Paris.

Acting mediator Dr. Ralph Bunche conferred last night and today with his chief military observer, Brig.-Gen. William E. Riley, who flew here yesterday. The report may be ready for admission to the Security Council late today but Bunche's staff said they did not expect a meeting of the Security Council until Monday.

The resolution passed Thursday required withdrawal in the Nagev from positions occupied after Oct. 14, the date fighting broke out in the southern desert.

Israel is chiefly affected by the order, which provides for buffer zones rather than for automatic return of the Egyptians to their lost positions.

DOROTHY DIX Only Daughter's Duty

23-Year-Old Girl Has Right To Leave Home For Good Job

Dear Miss Dix: I am an only daughter, 23 years old. I have been offered the chance of my life to gratify my ambition and do the work I have fitted myself to do, but if I accept this opportunity I will have to leave home. Both my mother and father are about to have a fit at the mere thought of my doing so.

What is the duty of an only daughter to her parents? What would you advise me to do?

BEATRICE H. Answer: I believe in children doing their duty by their parents and treating them with all due affection, respect and consideration, but fathers and mothers have no right to ask their boys and girls to sacrifice their lives for them nor to give up their careers for their whims.

DUTY IS TO SELF You are young. You have your whole life still before you. They are old. Their fates are sealed. You probably have years ahead in which to achieve things. Their day's work is practically over. Just looking at it from any standpoint, it isn't fair or just that you should give up all that you may do or have just for the sake of giving them the pleasure of your company.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a woman 25 years old, married to a man of 55. I have been married for about five years and during that time I have been miserable due to my husband's insane jealousy. I can't go to a movie with a girl friend. I can't even go to the drug store or to visit a neighbor without him tagging along. If I attempt it, there is a scene.

Don't you think it is most unfair for my husband to treat me like this? I am fed up with his jealous insults.

Answer: The only excuse that you can make for such a man is that he is crazy. No man in his right senses could possibly believe that his wife continually was trying to deceive him, or that she was carrying on clandestine affairs with every man she saw and that every visit she paid to a neighbor was a rendezvous.

Jealousy is the hardest of all faults for a wife to combat because it is a delusion, and when she fights against it she is fighting against an impalpable ghost. It is made up of the vile imaginings of a man's own mind. Perhaps it represents the things that he would like to do if he were in her place, and so he attributes them to her. He cannot believe in anything that is good and honest and honorable; hence, he never can believe that a woman can walk straight for the sake of her own principles and self-respect. And nothing she can do or leave undone ever convinces him of her good faith.

The wife who endures cruel and inhuman jealousy from her husband for five years certainly is entitled to a hero's medal.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am 16 years old and have had a few dates with boys, but they rarely come a second time. My girl friends tell me that the reason the boys do not return is because I am so sarcastic. Can you give me a cure for sarcasm?

Answer: I suppose you mean by sarcasm that you make cutting remarks to the boys and ridicule their clothes and manners, and you think that shows how clever you are. Your girl friends are right when they tell you that no boy comes back for a second helping of that kind of talk.

So stop handing out conversational vinegar and learn to laugh with people, instead of at them, and to say pleasant instead of disagreeable things, and you will be popular with both boys and girls.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

Lotion Massage Curls Chapping

By ALICIA HART

Girls who wear ankle socks in the fall and winter should be prepared to spend more time on leg care.

To counteract the chapping effect of chilly winds on unprotected skin, you should begin now to have a lotion on legs before starting out for the day. After your bath when skin is moist and warm is the best time to apply a lotion. If knees and shins seem to be particularly susceptible to chapping, treat these areas to extra dabs of lotion and massage it over skin.

Remember that ankle socks look best on girls whose style of dress is not yet adult enough to include sheer stockings. The teen-ager who wears stockings for most dress-up purposes should limit her use of socks to those occasions when she wears very casual duds or sports outfits.

If the teen-ager's legs are chubby, dark-toned full length stockings which give an unbroken color line from hemline will look more slimming than socks which divide the line and add seeming bulk to ankles.

"Adam and Fallen Man," is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 7th, 1948.

The Golden Text is from Genesis 2:6, "There went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed; and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. . . . Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house. And he arose, and departed to his house. But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men." (Matthew 9:2, 6-8).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health" with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him there, sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick. Thus Jesus taught that the kingdom of God is intact, universal, and that man is pure and holy." (Page 476).

Legion Log

Frontier Branch No. 5.

The parade of all units, military, Legion, veterans of both wars, Cadet Corps, band, etc., will form up at the Stanstead College campus, Sunday, November 7, at 1:30 p.m., proceeding to the Hazell Opera House on the International Boundary for the Service of Remembrance at 2 p.m.

Residents of the Boundary and those who will march in the parade are requested to note the new time of the service, arranged to permit everyone to attend the special dedication of a Memorial Tablet erected on the monument at Dufferin Heights at 3:30 p.m., in memory of those who did not return from World War II. The plaque will be erected by Branch No. 5. Dress for veterans for the parade and ceremonies will be mufti, with berets and ribbons or medals to be worn. Special speaker for the day will be R. J. Meekren.

The regular monthly meeting of Stanstead Frontier Branch No. 5 took place in the Rock Island Armory on Wednesday, October 27, with a good attendance being recorded. At the close of the meeting, held to complete arrangements for Remembrance Day, films were shown that included views of British Columbia and Alberta, being very much appreciated by all present.

The annual Remembrance Day supper for veterans of both wars will be held in Christ Church Parish Hall, Stanstead, at 6 p.m. on Remembrance Day, Thursday, November 11. All veterans are welcome, and a good meal is promised to all who attend. Special program to follow. Make a note of it, and please be "among those present."

Danville Branch No. 41

Remembrance Day services for Branch 41 will be held on Sunday, Nov. 7, with Branch 41 members, the Ladies' Auxiliary, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubes meeting at the armory at 2 p.m. to parade to the Cenotaph for services to which the public is most cordially invited to attend at 2:30 p.m. Rev. C. Foggo, branch chaplain, will be in charge of the service which will follow the usual Remembrance Day observances, and the divine worship will be purely non-denominational in true Army style.

Danville-Asbestos Co. of 16th Recce. Corps will provide the guard of honor at the Cenotaph. Following the service the parade will be dismissed at the armory.

As part of the Remembrance Day ceremonies planned by Branch 41, one of the big events of this very special day will be the testimonial banquet to be held on the "night of the 11th" in the Farmington Hall in Danville. This special testimonial dinner is being arranged to honor Roy Smith, one of the oldest and most active members of the branch, whose activities have done so much to build up the Legion in Danville and to maintain increasing interest in both Legion work and in urging others to "join the Legion in your region," as well as for his great work in keeping in touch with the boys overseas during the war years.

Highlight of the dinner will be a presentation to be made by Past Provincial President Hugh Parry, of Montreal, who will pay tribute to Mr. Smith's splendid record of service by presenting him with the Legion Medal of Merit.

President John Philbrick, Branch 41, will act as chairman of the dinner, and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Branch, will join with Legion members and their wives and special guests on this momentous occasion to honor their fellow townsman and highly esteemed Legionnaire.

Next Branch meeting, Nov. 8, Business, nomination of officers.

Richmond Branch No. 15. Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., this year has secured the complete co-operation of municipal officials of the Town of Richmond, and Mayor Gerard Desmarais has issued a proclamation in regard to the observance of Remembrance Day for the community.

Services will be held on the actual date of Remembrance, the 11th day of November, that is next Thursday. The Mayor's proclamation requests all stores, factories and places of business to close for two hours, between 10 and 12 in the morning, to enable everyone to attend the services. All citizens of Richmond are invited to join with the Legion in this great day of Remembrance, and to assemble at the Soldiers' Monument in Memorial Park at 10:30 a.m. on November 11. All societies, groups, clubs and organizations of the community are asked to join with the Legion in a parade to form up at the Town Hall at 10:15 a.m.

Details of the services will be found in another column in today's issue of the Record, and anyone wishing further information may contact W. R. Parkes, telephone 623R12.

Earle Neale Doesn't Want To Go Back To College; Finds Fooling Professionals Much More Exciting

New York—(NEA)—Earle Neale was speaking before a Brown group at the Princeton Club, and someone asked the Philadelphia Eagles' veteran coach if he would like to return to college football.

"No, sir," replied Greasy Neale, pointing to the assembled alumni, "too many of these guys are your bosses."

Besides, fooling pros is much more fun. And you have to fool 'em. You can't run over them."

The Eagles holding the Chicago Bears to a single touchdown was one of the more remarkable football feats of the last several years.

Neale, explaining how he built the mechanism that tied up the Monsters, unfolds a complex job of gridiron engineering, which amounts to a brand new look in defense.

The most pronounced difference in college and professional football is represented in the money ranks' specialists, according to the originator of the naked reverse and shifting line defense Don Hutson of the Packers was something special. So are Sammy Baugh of the Redskins, Sid Luckman and Ken Kavanaugh of the Bears, Tommy Thompson of the Eagles and some more.

Hutson, for example, caught 489 passes for 8,010 yards, or more than four and a half miles, and 101 for touchdowns. The Green Bay rambler will do until a better football player comes slippery-hopping along.

Until he drilled Ernie Nevers at Stanford, Glenn Scobey Warner said Jim Thorpe was the greatest football player he ever saw. Then Pop switched to Nevers, explaining that Thorpe was inclined to be lazy at times.

Neale's choice as the finest he has set eyes on in 40 years of knocking around — Muskingum, West Virginia Wesleyan, Marietta, Washington and Jefferson, Virginia, West Virginia, Yale and the Eagles—comes as something of a surprise. This is especially true in view of the fact that Neale played with Thorpe's Canton Bulldogs. And Neale's pick does not come from the professional field and is of comparatively recent vintage.

"The best football player I ever saw," said Neale, unhesitatingly, "was the Clint Frank I coached at Yale in 1936 and '37."

"Frank did everything well, and he was as nice a boy as he was a player. He wasn't as great a runner as Thorpe, but he was extraordinary. He was a tailback who could have stepped right in and played end in the National League. He made more tackles than anybody on the team. I never saw a better defender against passes."

Clint Frank was always regarded as a remarkable back, but this probably is the first time he is ranked so highly by such an authority.

So we have a new best ever.

No Objection To Paul Brown In California; All Coaches Are Pros, Points Out Stanford's Al Masters

New York—Paul Brown may be persona non grata in the Big Nine, but the welcome mat is out for the Cleveland Browns' coach in California.

"All football coaches are professionals," says Stanford's veteran athletic director Alfred R. Masters.

"Once he severs his connections with professional football, I can see no objection to Brown's going to Southern California, U.C. LA or any other Pacific Coast Conference school."

And when Al Masters puts the okeh on a college athletic figure on the west coast that makes it official, or has for years.

There was a hint, you see, that Stanford and California might be opposed to one of their southern neighbors drafting a coach from the professionals, especially one who took something like 10 players with eligibility remaining from Ohio State.

There is no question but that a large alumni block wanted Brown back in Columbus a year ago, but one close to Western Conference councils says there isn't a chance of the lean and hungry looking man from Massillon getting back in that league.

His raids on the Buckeyes left a lot of bitterness. Backs Ollie Cline, Bob Brugge and Dean Sanbaugh, each with a year of college ball left, hopped to the Browns only this fall. The Toe Groza had three years of college ball ahead of him, Dante Lavelli two, guard Lynn Houston one, etc.

To an old-timer out that way, the broader viewpoint in the very pure Pacific Coast Conference is noteworthy.

As far back as 1924 Southern California had to sacrifice Elmer Henderson when Stanford and California banded together, and threatened to break athletic relations. That brought in Howard Jones, the old Yale blue who grew something besides tail corn in Iowa.

Stanford was looking for a coach when Dr. Jock Sutherland resigned at Pittsburgh in the spring of 1939. Sports editor Chet Smith of the Pittsburgh Press and this correspondent talked until we were blue in the face trying to sell Sutherland to Masters.

But the good doctor had the professional tint, according to Masters. He didn't get along with his athletic directors. Anyway, Masters couldn't bring him out there.

And all Old Jock ever did was coach a high degree of college football, 15 years in one spot.

Mighty few college coaches have come out of the pro ranks, Northwestern's Bob Voigts and Holy Cross' Dr. Bill Osinski being notable exceptions. I can think of only two head coaches who hopped from college to the money boys and back again—Boston University's Buff Donelli and Bowdoin's Adam Walsh.

Getting back to Paul Brown, he is to be commended for being willing to give up a job that pays $50,000 a year just because he is a college guy at heart.

Football Too Costly, Says Bombers' Head

Winnipeg, Nov. 6.—(C)—After four years as head of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, retiring president Arthur Uniacke Chipman has come to the conclusion football is becoming too costly.

Stressing the need to develop home talent, he said that the Bombers had to be subsidized "substantially" this season even though "we had wonderful attendance at our seven home games." This was due partly to the big salaries paid American imports.

"We should quit trying to live up to the Joneses," he said. "Winnipeg, with a population one-third the size, can't keep pace with Toronto and Montreal. The sooner we realize it the better it will be for all associated with football in the West."

SPORT SHORTS

SPECTATOR ENTHUSIASM
Booster Clubs, formed by loyal fans and rooters of the American Hockey League are being originated or are already in existence in practically every league city. This group of fans attend every game at home as well as many on the road to watch their local pucksters in action. A very fine feature has been made by the members of the St. Louis Flyers Booster Club. They are donating a permanent trophy to be presented to the American League player who wins the league's most valuable player award each season. The trophy will be presented to the player upon the occasion of his first visit to St. Louis the following season. It will be called the Les Cunningham Trophy.

SCORES IMPORTANT GOALS
Carl Liscombe, high-scoring Providence wingman in the American Hockey League not only led the league in scoring last season, and is well out in front this year, but also registers the goals that count the most. Providence won its first four games this season, and in the first three, Liscombe scored what later proved to be the winning marker.

GOOD JUDGE OF PLAYERS
No one in hockey will ever doubt the judgment of Eddie Shore, owner of the Springfield Indians in the American Hockey League, when it comes to his opinion of a hockey player's ability. When he acquired Armand Lemieux from Pittsburgh last spring, Shore claimed that Lemieux would be a star. His confidence was borne out when Lemieux recently scored the three-goal "hat trick" first of the season for Springfield.

OUTSTANDING PLAYERS
Some of the players in the American Hockey League who were given special awards by their local fans last season were, Ab DeMarco, voted most valuable in Cleveland by the fans, Wally Stefani, most valuable in Philadelphia, Dunc Fisher the same award in New Haven and Nelson Podolsky most popular in Indianapolis. All of these players are again with the same clubs with the exception of Fisher who has been transferred to New York Rangers.

And the Pacific Coast Conference's willingness to take him in is something in the way of evidence that even those at its head realize how far football has gone back out that way.

Nothing increases your admiration for good football like a run of bad football.

Sports Roundup

By VIC MORRIS JR.
Montreal, Nov. 3.—(C)—Ralph (Bucky) Buchanan, ace Shawinigan Falls Cataracts winger, will see action with Montreal Canadiens this season.

Under suspension by Philadelphia Rockets, Buchanan is the central figure of a four-way deal involving Canadiens, Philadelphia, Shawinigan and Valleyfield Braves. His suspension followed a stubborn refusal to play for the Rockets this season.

Some time ago Selke disclosed to us that he sought Buchanan before Little Norman Dussault of Sherbrooke, Que., was signed, but that he was unable to come to an agreement with Philadelphia. Badly in need of a winger Selke signed Dussault, and at the same time paid Bucky a compliment saying:

"He knows his way around a rink. He's got what we need."

Sports scribes have been at a loss to understand Buchanan's attitude in refusing to play at the Quaker City. But maybe the ex-navy veteran is keeping things under his hat and waiting for the hockey magnates to make the moves.

A player of his calibre is continually scouted and approached with "dream contracts." But Buchanan may have realized an error in signing with the Professional Rockets and now hopes that the team will declare him a "free agent," whereby he would be then able to sell himself to any professional team of his choosing.

It was said that if Bucky had reported to Philadelphia he would have been put on the block and sold to New York Rangers, who have watched him enviously from the sidelines for two years.

But Bucky wanted no part of the Rangers, he wants to live in Montreal all-year round and is willing to sacrifice his hockey for this.

When he returns from the Pacific Coast Hockey League two years ago where he led the scoring lead, he stated that he was "fed-up" with living in boarding houses and hotels.

"I've got a family now and I think my place is at home," he said.

Last year he led the Quebec Senior Hockey League scoring with 43 goals. He had a total of 78 points.

If Selke purchases his contract from Philadelphia that will be all right with Bucky as it would allow him to live at home and continue to play the profitable game of hockey.

Filchok Cops M.V.P. Award In O.R.F.U.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—(C)—Frankie Filchok, the forward-passing sensation of this football season, today became the second successive American import to win the Imperial Oil trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

The quarterback and coach of Hamilton Tigers, who swept through the nine-game union schedule without a defeat, succeeded Bob Paffrath, now with Ottawa Rough Riders, as the choice of players on his own and opposing teams for the award.

The 32-year-old native of Pittsburgh, Pa., held a decisive edge in the balloting, result of which was announced. Each team votes for two of its own players and one member of the other team and the votes are pooled.

The award brings another honor to the man who came to Canada last year after his suspension from United States football on a charge of failing to report a bribe offer. Filchok protested the charge—he played the game of his career for New York Giants in the professional playoff in question—and some football men since have decided he was the scapegoat, because of the way he took to Canadian football rules and the way he gets along with teammates and opponents.

Unofficial statistics show that in nine games this season Filchok attempted 129 passes and completed 83. Around a dozen were intercepted. But about 24 were direct touchdown passes.

A forthright individual, he is popular with football men. He won their respect, not only because of his playing ability, but

Sugar Bowl Wants Army, But Cadets Must Meet Best Team Available

New York—(NEA)—Sure, the New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association is keenly interested in having Army play in the Sugar Bowl, Jan. 1, but the United States Military Academy or any other institution is not going to be permitted to be choosy about its opponent.

The Sugar Bowl committee tried very hard to land Doc Blanchard, Junior Da is and Army two years ago, when Col. Bill Jones was graduate manager, Col. Bill, while coaching Louisiana State, helped to get the Sugar Bowl started by putting up $100 as an original guarantor. He's an old buddy of Fred Digby, the longtime New Orleans sports editor.

The hitch at the time, it is revealed, was Army's reluctance to tackle Georgia or North Carolina.

The Sugar Bowl people couldn't understand it, still don't.

So they went ahead and matched Georgia and North Carolina, and got a remarkable game, with Charley Trippi on one side, Choo Choo Justice on the other.

"We try to approach the team selection on the basis of obtaining the best game possible," says General Manager Digby, "and no 49-0 stuff, which is akin to an exhibition."

"The fans come first."

"The Sugar Bowl is not only interested in Army. It is interested in the top teams of all sections."

"That is why it has no tie-up."

Maitre was adept at that language too. LeMaitre promptly informed the player that the fine would be $25, payable in any language.

CATARACTS HERE TOMORROW WITH REINFORCED AGGREGATION

Cats Sign Three New Players To Help Club; Game Scheduled For 2:30; Locals At Full Strength

After a four-day lay-off the Sherbrooke Seniors will pick up tomorrow afternoon when they are at home to the Cataracts of Shawinigan Falls, for the second time within a week, in a regular fixture of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Sherbrooke, who have played six of their eight encounters away from home, will for a change, play three of their next four tilts on their home ice.

Tomorrow afternoon they tangle with the Cataracts, for the second time, Thursday evening the Aces of Quebec will pay their initial visit of the season to Sherbrooke, and Sunday next the Braves of Valleyfield will return for a second time, Saturday night.

Sherbrooke will move up to the Capitol City to engage the bar-bor-poles of Ottawa in their first engagement.

Sherbrooke is at present in second position in the loop standing, trailing Royals for the top spot with four games in hand, while Valleyfield and Quebec are hooked up for third spot with 12 points, two behind the locals, and Ottawa is one point behind them.

In the week-end games Quebec is in Boston tonight and Valleyfield in Lake Placid while tomorrow Rovers move into the Forum, Ottawa goes to Valleyfield and the Cataracts will come to Sherbrooke to complete the schedule for George Slater's circuit.

"Sport Shots and Pot Shots"

BY LEN. O'DONNELL

Sherbrooke Athletics will play their final home game of the season this afternoon at the ball park when they take on the Lakeshore Flyers at 2:15.

In the opening game played in Montreal the local gridders held their own until the final eight minutes of the tilt, and were leading by a 10-6 score, however committing costly fumbles Sherbrooke dropped the verdict to the Flyers 17-10. Since then the A's have been hard at work and today's game should be a better contest than the first encounter between the two teams.

This is the last game of the Athletics on their home ground as next week they move into Montreal to tangle with the Eastward squad in the final game of the season. Sherbrooke came through their hard test with the heavy hitting Rockland squad without any serious injuries and the complete team will be on hand to try and finish off their home stand with a clean cut victory over the Lakeshore aggregation.

A meeting of the Eastern Townships Amateur Ski Association will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Chateau Frontenac Hotel at 1:30. Officials from the various ski clubs of the district are asked to be on hand, or have representatives, as some very important matters will come up for discussion. Dates for the different racing events of the season will be set so the clubs are asked to be prepared to take up the matter.

The St. Francis District branch of the McGill Graduates Society is leading the other branches in their drive for their Alma Mater fund campaign which speaks well for the district executive. The district heads have arranged an exhibition tilt between the local hockey club and the McGill Intercollegiate team to take place Tuesday, December 14, with the proceeds to be used towards establishing a scholarship fund.

Tomorrow afternoon the Cataracts of Shawinigan Falls will pay their second visit of the season to the local Arena to take on Coach Dugre's fast-traveling aggregation.

On their last appearance here Tuesday evening the locals blanked them 10-0 for their worst pasting of the season, and they looked an altogether different club from the one that played against Sherbrooke Saturday in Shawinigan when the Seniors came through with a 3-1 win. As Red McKenzie said after the game, "I can't understand it. There is not that much difference between the two teams." But it comes back to the point already previously stated that we have a real fighting outfit that never knows when it is licked. They are digging every minute they are on the ice and that is what makes the difference.

With these two convincing wins over the Cataracts I wonder how Gilles Trudel, from Shawinigan Falls, feels now regarding his statement he made a few weeks ago in "Le Nouvelliste." Gilles could not see where the local club would make any kind of a showing in the Senior Group. He further said that Herbie Carnegie was the only one of the colored boys that was of senior calibre. Ossia could not skate fast enough and that Manny McIntyre was afraid of his own shadow. I wonder if Mr. Trudel was at the game in Shawinigan when Ossia broke away from the whole Cataract team and left them behind as he walked right in on Les Colvins time after time, and all so if he was in the rink when Manny mixed it up with Joe Macintosh. It didn't look to me as though Manny was afraid of his shadow, nor any member of the local squad, from where I was watching the game. Perhaps Mr. Trudel was looking at the game through different kind of glasses than the kind I used to watch the tilt.

Why sport writers come out with statements like this is beyond me and the only reason that I can see is that they figure that the Senior Group in the past was tops in the game. I will admit that in the provincial playoffs between the two groups that the seniors held the advantage but on the other hand I have always maintained, and still do, that there were just as good hockey players in the provincial loop as the senior and now I am more convinced than ever. Our team has proven it regardless of what happens in the future. On the other hand, perhaps Mr. Trudel does not know what it takes to make a good hockey player. I am sure that he must have been around when Frank Selke picked up Normie Dussault, of the Provincial League, and when he held his own in fast company surely that must have been sufficient warning for anybody that there were good players in the loop. Anyway I think it will take Gilles Trudel a long time to live down his famous statement, but on the other hand he is not the only one in that class, so console yourself, Gilles, you have plenty of company.

A two and a half hour picture show of Joe Louis defending his heavyweight title of the world, which is sponsored by the Y's Men's Club of Sherbrooke, will take place at the Y.M.C.A. on November 18 and 19.

Anyone interested in boxing should take in this event as it will show Joe against all his past contenders and at the same time it will help a good cause as the proceeds will be used for the boys' camp, which is sponsored by the Y's Men.

The test for the referees of the district that was supposed to be held this evening by the Referee's Board of the Q.A.H.A. has been postponed until November 27. The main reason being that the local officials figured that it was a little early as the only league operating is the Senior at the present.

HERE AND YONDER. . . Some of the local tailbirds figure that the hockey club is just fair, even after their convincing victories. Wonder what they want before they agree that Sherbrooke has a good team. . . QUEBEC CURLERS are opening their season and tomorrow they will hold their first competition. How about Lennoxville and Sherbrooke? Things should run pretty soon. . . See where Mrs. Agnes Martin, of Dufferin in the Mixed Bowling loop, rolled a high triple of 944 with a single of 343. That's bowling in any league, nice going Mrs. Martin. . . A MONTREAL French paper is riding NORMIE DUS-SAULT for being offside so often at the blue line. They claim he is throwing the whole line out of kilter. Why not get after the two others on the line for not passing the puck up to him, when he breaks away so fast? Perhaps the line could do a lot more scoring. Another funny thing is that Glen Harmon, who plays left defense, very seldom passes the puck up to left wing, he always flips it over to right. Wonder whether harmony is lacking with our good Canadians?

The SHERBROOKE WINTER CLUB is holding its official opening this afternoon at the Arena. All members are asked to be on hand to meet the new pro, John O'Donnell, no relation to your reporter. . . JIMMY GALBRAITH, whom the Cataracts were expecting to have with their outfit, has decided to throw in his paddle with the Royals again. Tough luck Red, he would have helped you. . . See where SHAWINIGAN has signed MAURICE COURTEAU, to look after the goal tending job. Saw nothing wrong with Les Colvins' work just lack of support in front of him. Shots on goal tell the story.

Athletics Meet Lakeshore In Last Home Tilt

Lakeshore Flyers, Cinderella team of the Intermediate Quebec Rugby Football Union, will be the opposition for Sherbrooke Athletics this afternoon at the ball park in the local squad's final home game of the season.

The Valois gridders are at present in third place, just one point behind Quebec Swimmers but including today's game they still have two games to play whereas Quebec has only one. Before the season opened, Lakeshore were tagged as tail-enders in the five-team circuit.

Co-coaches Harry Walker and Ken Jackson of the local squad expect to have a full team on the field for today's contest. The players having come through last week's drubbing by Rockland without serious injury.

Athletics lost to a better team when Rockland whipped them 30-0 but at the same time they put on one of their poorest displays of the season. Against Lakeshore they will be running up against a lighter squad but on which has an abundance of football b'ains and which makes very few mistakes.

The Flyers beat Sherbrooke 17-10 when they met at Valois a month ago, coming from behind with two last-quarter touchdowns for the victory. Both majors were the result of Sherbrooke miscues and but for these Athletics would have won.

So today may tell another story. Athletics, who wind up the season against Eastward in Montreal Nov. 14 want to end their home stand with a victory and likely will test all the lays in the book at the Lakeshore team.

Their new-found plunging strength in the person of Gordie (Beef) Ross, should aid them considerably. The light Eastward players will have their hands full trying to stop him.

Today's game will start at 2:15 p.m. and, as usual, buses will run to the ball park from Portland Square.

Ruffed Grouse, Known As Partridge In Canada, Hard To Detect In Woods

It begins, they say, "with the measured tramp of a big drum, and dies away in the rumble of a kettle drum." It is a blur of sound that fills the woods and defies you to locate its source. It is the Ruffed Grouse, drumming, standing on a fallen log, displaying his handsome ruff and crest, beating his wings on the air before him. In spring, the drumming is a mating call. In autumn he drums from the sheer exuberance of life and the season, and it is then that the sound makes the hunter's heart beat faster.

Although called a Partridge in Canada, and a Pheasant in the southern parts of its range, Bonasa Umbellus is a true Ruffed Grouse, easily recognizable by the soft black ruff feathers on both sides of the neck, by its broad, barred tail, and the black eye in deep snow or thick evergreen trees.

The ability of the chicks to "disappear" under one's very eyes is well known. The brood is usually from 10 to 12 in number, and the chicks are active immediately upon emerging from the egg at the end of a 24-day incubation period. They are protectively colored in wood brown and gray, enabling them to hide among dead leaves by "freezing," while the mother tries to lead an intruder away by pretending to trail a broken wing.

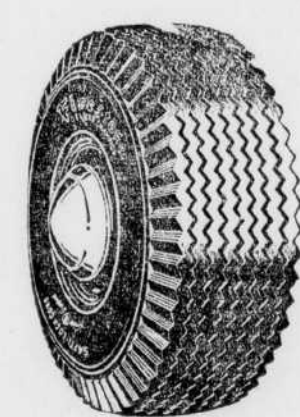

As with so many game birds, the number of Grouse has been seriously depleted by the cutting of timber and clearing of land; this depletion has been estimated to be as high as 50 to 75 per cent within the memory of men now living. Not to be confused with this re-spots on the lower back. It occurs in two color phases—the gray and the rust—but not, apparently because of differences in age, sex, or season. The Ruffed Grouse is native to the wooded areas of Canada and the United States, and where it has grown wary from living close to civilization it offers a real test of the hunter's speed and skill. Lying in thick underbrush, the bird may wait until the hunter is almost upon it before exploding from cover; it attains full speed almost instantly, and hurtles away into the shadows of the woods before the novice hunter has recovered himself.

The Ruffed Grouse is non-migratory, his only concession to winter being the growth of snowshoe-like, horny projections on his toes during this season. It eats buds and seeds, twigs and fruit, and roosts, during the cold weather.

duction in numbers, however, are the periodic fluctuations in population which occur quite regularly. The Biological Bureau of the Quebec Fish and Game Department supplies the information that, whether disturbed by man or not, the Grouse population drops to a critically low point about every ten years, rising slowly thereafter until it is re-established on a normal level. Several theories have been offered to explain this fluctuation. Dr. C. H. Clark, Superintendent of Wildlife Management in Ontario, discovered in 1934 that a blood parasite was killing about 60 per cent of the chicks hatched. Other biologists have found additional parasites, of which black flies may be the intermediate hosts, are also associated with these periodic population declines.

Canadians In Scottish Hockey Loop Are Forging Ahead For Scoring Honors

Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, Nov. 6.—(P)—Canadians with more than a single Scottish hockey season behind them are forging ahead in the S.I.H.A. individual scoring tables, with the season three weeks under way.

Red-haired Bud Scrutton of Fife Flyers has notched 12 points from right wing to share leadership with Johnny Evans, Dundee left-winger.

Both are in their third season here. Scrutton, from Kingston, Ont., is toying with the idea of going home to turn professional. Evans, a Toronto product and now No. 1 sports hero in a thriving Scottish seaport of 250,000, likes it here and plans to stay.

Last year's top scorer with 158 points, Randy Ellis of Dunfermline Vikings is in third place with nine points. Ellis, a centre, comes from Lindsay, Ont.

Vikings led Falkirk Lions by a point as the League passed the half-way mark in its 12-game opening competition. The autumn series is a warm-up for the Canada Cup and National League schedules to follow.

Several youngsters, making their debuts before critical Scottish fans, have already caught the railbirds' eyes. Standout newcomers include:

Hal Moreland of Fife who learned his hockey under Orilla, Ont. Tom La Pointe, of Perth Panthers, a Winnipegger who played in the N.O.H.A. last year.

Bill Hurst, 18-year-old Dundee Tiger defenceman who had a try-out with Philadelphia Rockets last spring.

Don Irons, Perth Panther goalie and a guarantee of the Toronto Mercantile League.

Al Bathe of Ayr Raiders, who has seen service with Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa Generals.
