

Producers Facing Challenge

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Friday night Canadian producers are facing commercial challenges that could lead to a drop in agricultural and industrial exports and trade in general.

He said challenges are coming from the Soviet Union, from new patterns of trade in Western Europe, from nations now becoming industrialized and from within Canada where equilibrium must be maintained to prevent unnecessary increases in costs.

Canada must build up its trade, he told a crowd of more than 1,200 at the annual banquet of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada. International trade represented nearly 30 per cent of Canada's gross national product.

"Russia is launching an economic offensive and we must accept the fact that we are in a world in which we live side by side with the Soviet Union."

STUDY TRADE RELATIONS

The forthcoming summit meetings, Mr. Diefenbaker said, "would be well advised to give adequate attention and study to the problem of establishing sensible and orderly trade relations between the Soviet Union and Western world countries."

The West is preparing to negotiate with Russia in disarmament and other fields and there was some hope that progress could be made.

"Surely there is no reason why there should not be a parallel progress towards an improved basis for economic relations," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The Communists didn't care about dollar profits. They could trade for political motives. They could trade to control the thinking of men throughout the world.

DAMAGE POSSIBLE

Trade between Russia and the West could sharpen political issues or could lessen the likelihood of conflict. There could be great damage—commercial and political—if Russia was able to export on terms dictated by political rather than economic considerations into markets in which Canada and other Western countries were traditional suppliers.

"Equally," the prime minister said, "no one can but welcome increasing participation of the Soviet Union in ordinary trade on a fair and reasonable basis."

New trade competitions were resulting from European and Asian countries that were expanding, becoming more industrialized and increasing their productivity.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canadian producers must keep rising costs in check and maintain prices at a competitive level or run the dangerous risk of losing their competitive position in world markets and even the Canadian market.

Hog Marketers Warned Against Rush To Sell

OTTAWA (CP)—Any rush to market hogs before the government leaves the hog-buying business next month will boomerang on the producer, farmers were warned Friday.

Homer J. Maybee, associate director of the agriculture department's livestock division, said any market pickup will result in delayed slaughter and settlement and unnecessary carcass shrinkage.

Crosby's Voice In Crowded Store Tranquilizes Those Who Listen

By JANE SCOTT

A weary salesgirl busied herself rearranging wares on her counter in the dime to a dollar shop. I paused at her side. It was late in the day when I rushed in to pick up a few things on my way home. I was tired, too, after a hectic year filled with business and anxiety over dear ones. And recent days had been particularly difficult as we laid the second member of the family away to wait "The last clear trumpet call of God." Now time was short and Christmas was at the door.

I was glad for the challenge of Christmas and deeply grateful for "The tidings of comfort and joy" it brings to folk who are bending beneath the crushing load of experiences that have been the common lot of all men since our first parents disobeyed God and death was passed upon all men.

N.B. Parents Of 27 Children Face Tax Sale Of Farm Home

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP)—The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Helodore Cyr, parents of 27 children, will be sold here by auction next Tuesday afternoon for county tax arrears of about $600.

Fifteen of the children are still at home, three miles from the rural community of Ledges, in Madawaska County near the Maine border, and 28 miles from Edmundston.

Refused To Yield Her Party Line Is Fined $210

MILLBURN, N. J. (AP)—Mrs. Peter Zelinski was found guilty Friday of refusing to yield a party telephone line for emergency medical purposes. Magistrate Milton Freiman fined her $210.

No final action was taken on Mrs. Jeanette Hausler, co-defendant with Mrs. Zelinski. Mrs. Zelinski, of Millburn, and Mrs. Hausler, of Springfield, were accused of refusing to allow a physician to use a party line after he indicated he needed it for an emergency.

J. Alan Drummond, Mrs. Hausler's lawyer, won her a delay by asserting that since she lives in Springfield, she is not within the jurisdiction of Freiman's court. Freiman reserved decision on this motion.

Dr. Marvin Becker testified that he tried five times to gain the use of the telephone Nov. 11 when he was treating Mrs. Sophie Wetzel, 80, a heart attack victim. He said the defendants told him to "go to hell."

Session Reads Bill On Grants

QUEBEC, — (CP)—Quebec's Premier Paul Sauve is going ahead with his plan to provide provincial universities with permanent, regular grants without waiting for the outcome of negotiations with Prime Minister Diefenbaker over the long Quebec-Ottawa dispute concerning federal aid.

He announced Friday in the legislative assembly his government proposes to bring down a bill setting up machinery for the new grants system and providing for financing from the Quebec education fund. The bill, though its text is not yet available, was given first reading.

But at the same time Mr. Sauve indicated he is trying to work out a settlement of the disagreement over university aid between Quebec and Ottawa. He hopes the federal government will authorize the provinces to levy an additional one per cent on corporation profits to be deductible from the federal tax levy.

ALTERNATIVE PLAN

Mr. Diefenbaker had proposed an alternative plan—apparently aimed at enrolling Quebec's acceptance of the federal aid—in a letter to all provincial premiers Dec. 9. Quebec universities first rejected federal aid in 1953.

Mr. Sauve avoided a direct answer to the federal proposal. He told Mr. Diefenbaker it was apparently meant for provinces which have leased their taxes to the federal government and asked him to define his proposals' meaning for Quebec.

Friday the premier also gave notice his government proposes to restore the double enumerator system in Quebec's urban areas by a series of amendments to the Quebec Election Act. The move was received with desk-thumping approval by both government and Liberal-opposition members.

In 1953 a single enumerator system was established. The Liberal opposition protested loudly. Now the government wants to go back to the system where one enumerator is appointed on the recommendation of the government leader and the other by the official leader of the opposition.

Jake The Barber Factor Passes Lie Test

CHICAGO (CP)—John (Jake the Barber) Factor, central figure in an alleged kidnapping for which prohibition-era gangster Roger Touhy served 26 years in prison, underwent a lie detector test and was cleared Friday of any knowledge of Touhy's assassination Wednesday night.

Factor told police he came to Chicago on business the day before Touhy—released from prison only Nov. 24—and a friend were shotgunned from ambush on a west-side street.

The friend, retired police sergeant Walter Miller, 62, was taken to hospital in critical condition. He was reported gaining strength Friday and shifted from the critical to the serious list.

BURIED QUIETLY

The body of Touhy, meanwhile, was buried quietly in the family plot during the night—near the graves of his policeman father; his mother, victim of a fire in her early years, and four of his six brothers.

Like Roger, nicknamed "The Terrible," three of the four brothers pursued crime careers and were shot to death.

The clues to Touhy's killers were thin—a piece of glass that may yield fingerprints and some king-size shotgun slugs of riot-gun calibre. Police examined them painstakingly and plodded through a maze of information in a bid to track down the assassins—three men were seen running from the scene shortly after the shooting.

Touhy, 61, was convicted of kidnapping Jake the Barber in 1933 and maintained his innocence throughout his prison stay. Factor is a longtime confidence man now dealing in real estate in Beverly Hills, Calif. He had filed a $3,000,000 libel suit against Touhy and others for statements in Touhy's biography which was published on the late gang chief's release from prison.

Miller's wife, who maintained a vigil at his bedside, reported he told her repeatedly, "It was the syndicate" that set up the ambush. "The syndicate" is a loose term for supposedly organized criminals who reap fortunes from vice, gambling and racketeering.

Magog Strike To Spread?

While the provincial government is searching for a solution to the strike at the Magog Dominion Textile plant, 3,000 other Quebec textile workers are threatening to follow the example of the strikers.

In a telegram to Quebec Labor Minister Antonio Barrette, the United Textile Workers of America (CLC) asked for the immediate intervention of a provincial mediator to prevent the extension of the strike to the mills at Valleyfield and Montreal. Valleyfield has 1,800 union members and Montreal has 1,200.

The minister replied that intervention by the provincial government is not feasible immediately. He said some aspects of the two new disputes are similar and he will try to arrange talks after the issues peculiar to the Magog strike are settled.

Emphasizing that he had no personal comment to make on Mr. Barrette's attitude, Roger Provost, Canadian director of the union, said the labor minister's reply would be carefully studied by the members of his group.

Political Roundup

Politicians Have Time For Holiday And Time To Mend Their Fences

By CUTHBERT JONES (Record Staff Writer)

The holiday quiet has set over the Quebec scene, with the Legislature adjourning over the New Year. While the House will reconvene only in mid-January, political activity at the lower levels should speed up during the first few days of 1960.

With an election almost certain before the end of June, most members are likely to take advantage of the brief legislative respite to mend their own political fences.

Opposition members who carry on most of the party organizational work will be busy seeking out candidates in the various ridings where none have been selected to date. Once a suitable man or group of men have been selected, the nominating conventions will be held when the selections will be made official.

Union Nationale supporters during the next few months must see that the goods are delivered. Like other politicians whose party is in power, UN representatives have a tendency to let things, especially unpleasant things, ride. But with elections nearing, their electors are demanding action, generally hinting that unless something definite is forthcoming, and soon, there may be a change in political allegiance.

The early introduction of the 1960 budget removes one of the most popular excuses for delaying action—"Any move in this matter must await the introduction of the budget." Now the budget has been presented and the voters may be expected to ask:

"Do we get it or don't we?"

PRECEPT AND PRACTISE

The decision of the heirs of the late Premier Maurice Duplessis to donate his fine collection of oil paintings to the provincial museum is an important step in enhancing the value of that institution.

These paintings were given to the Premier by admirers on birthdays or other happy occasions and for the most part represent outdoor scenes in French Canada by prominent artists.

LOOK AT THE WEEK: The Atlantic alliance tried to heal a breach with France. Maximum interest on government-guaranteed home mortgages in Canada went up to 6 1/2 per cent. Eisenhower travelled from India to Iran, Greece, Tunisia and France. DISSENSION IN PARIS

The dispute overshadowed the annual NATO meeting in Paris Tuesday through Thursday. President de Gaulle does not agree that all member-country military forces should be under one joint command.

COSTLIER MORTGAGES
Of more immediate concern to Canadians and their pocket-books was the announcement Thursday that the maximum interest rate on housing mortgages was increased to 6 1/2 per cent.

The move is designed to attract more funds for home-building from chartered banks and insurance companies which recently have found other investments more profitable.

National Housing Act mortgages of $12,000 for 25 years now require monthly repayments of principal and interest of $82.21. Previously, payments on that amount were $76.78.

Canada may be trying to do too much too fast. James Coyne, governor of the Bank of

He told investment dealers in Toronto that the outlook is for a continued shortage of credit and high interest rates.

President Eisenhower left India Monday for Tehran, capital of Iran, and Athens, in a speech to the Greek Parliament, he said his message could be summed up in three words: "Peace in freedom."

From Greece he took a sea passage to Tunisia where he joined with President Habib Bourguiba in expressing "grave concern" that the Algerian rebellion was continuing.

Eisenhower was in Paris at the end of the week to plan strategy with President de Gaulle, Prime Minister Macmillan and Chancellor Adenauer for a summit conference with Premier Khrushchev.

East Angus Theft Sequel

Found Guilty Of Perjury Charge Sherbrooke Man Gets 6 Months

A 22-year-old Sherbrooke man was sentenced to a six months jail term yesterday when he was found guilty by Judge Joseph Marier of perjury.

Roger Lacombe, 22, of 219 Mt. Pleasant street, Sherbrooke, was found guilty after Judge Marier was "forced to believe Provincial policeman testimony."

The perjury charge was brought against Lacombe as the result of his testimony in a $750 theft hearing August 13 against one of his friends.

At the August 13 preliminary hearing of Gilles Gaudreau, of East Angus, Lacombe testified that he had gone to the Provincial Police offices in Sherbrooke just to look around, after he heard that his friend had been picked up.

"The Provincial Police did not ask me to go there, nor did they question me at any time," Lacombe had said at the hearing.

Yesterday, Lacombe still stood by his original testimony, but testimony to the contrary by three Provincial policemen brought about a conviction.

Provincial Police road officers, Hubert Lawrence and Gilles Doyon told the court that they picked up Gaudreau and Lacombe in early August in a car travelling along the Birchton highway.

"We asked them to come to Provincial Police headquarters in Sherbrooke in connection with a $750 theft at the Commercial Hotel in East Angus," Doyon said.

Provincial police detective Guy Dupont told the court that he questioned both men in connection with the theft but released Lacombe when he found out that he was not connected with the theft.

In passing sentence, Judge Marier told the court that he was obliged to believe the Provincial Police and find the man guilty.

Flag, Anthem

Reaction Favorable — Allard

Public reaction has been considerable and altogether favorable towards the suggestion for the establishment of a Canadian anthem and a distinctive Canadian flag, Maurice Allard, MP for Sherbrooke said at a press conference yesterday morning.

He said that the bill, placed before the House of Commons recently, also proposes that the date December 11 be set aside as a national holiday and that the Canada Council present to the Senate and the House of Commons, a year from now, with a flag and anthem which are distinctly Canadian.

Two of the letters, said Mr. Allard, contained models of suggested flags, and it is possible to see that the majority of Canadians are still not agreed on what the design of the flag should be.

"However," said Mr. Allard, "the aim of my bill is to bring all Canadians into agreement on a quick and practical method of reaching a goal, in this case a national flag and anthem of which we may be proud."

Flash Bulb Exhibition Is Given

Sher-Bell Camera Club members met Thursday evening at the King George Hotel for a demonstration of flash bulbs, given by Sylvania Electric (Canada) Limited. Arthur L. Keymer, Canadian promotion director for Sylvania photography lamps, described the advances being registered in flashbulbs. He showed the latest bulbs being introduced, are one twenty-fifth the size of lamps used ten years ago.

"Photography is really an expensive hobby," Mr. Keymer said, and added, "pictures actually gain in value as time passes, as they're your only means of recalling events of the past."

Mr. Keymer's address also conducted a half hour showing of color slides, describing photography practices.

Miss Doreen Hodge, of Sherbrooke, modelled after Mr. Keymer's talk, when the hobbyists practised picture taking techniques.

Douglas Corbett president of the Sher-Bell Club, thanked Mr. Keymer and his associates on behalf of the group.

Gets Two Years For Bogus Bills

A Sherbrooke man was sentenced to a two year penitentiary term yesterday by Judge Joseph Marier when he pleaded guilty to a charge of uttering and having 59 $10 American bogus bills in his possession during March of 1958.

Remi Richard had originally pleaded not guilty to the charge and had been ordered to await trial in jail.

His trial would have been during the 1960 Sessions of the St. Francis District January Criminal Assizes.

He had already spent 10 and a half months in jail.

The American Political Scene

Democrats Weak In Leaders

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Democrats, though powerful in Congress, face the 1960 presidential election year with a weak lack of firm leadership and evident cracks in their political armor.

Blunting their offensive is an outbreak of family squabbling as to what manner of man should lead them in the struggle next November to wrest the White House from an eight-year Republican hold.

The situation has become so bad that Paul M. Butler, chairman of the party's national committee, recently had to make a special appeal for funds to pay the rent at national headquarters. One southerner suggested enthusiastically to pay party dues would be stirred by Butler—if he'd quit.

At least five men may vie for the party's presidential nomination at the Los Angeles convention next July 11. Each has his distinctive qualities—and each his evident political weakness.

MAY CHOOSE ADLAI

In the end, the Democrats may be forced to draft kindly Adlai E. Stevenson who twice suffered stinging defeats at the hands of President Eisenhower in the 1952 and 1956 election fights.

The 59-year-old Stevenson who swept to post-war political fame by winning the Illinois governorship in 1948—a rare thing for a Democrat in that Republican stronghold—says he's washed his hands of any further struggle for the presidency.

Yet he has popped up to speak at familiar political places and his friends say he can be persuaded to make a third try if the party rallied round him completely.

Could Stevenson win the presidency? Many Democrats, including former president Harry Truman, think not. The balding, divorced Chicago lawyer fights clean, but apparently without delivering hard blows. Truman says he can't "give 'em hell."

DOUBT SEEN

So there is doubt that among the expected 1,500 voting delegates at Los Angeles there would be any great clamor for his return—unless no other choice can be made.

From now until convention time, the party's main concentration will be on its presidential "hopefuls."

Perhaps the man with the most winning ways is wealthy young Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, whose shock of reddish brown hair is a familiar political trade mark across the country. The tall, lean son of a prominent financier has shown outstanding political performance in his six years as congressman and seven years as senator.

Kennedy has great drive, ambition and self-discipline, but democrats observe he is young—only 42—and he's a Roman Catholic. Catholics make up only about 20 per cent of the U.S. population and no one of that faith has ever become president.

There's also Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota—Gabby as he is known among some of his associates—who'll talk at a drop of a hat and sometimes is known to do the dropping. But,

35 Years And 140,000 Aircrew Later

On December 20, 1924, a group of eight young men — the RCAF's first aircrew trainees — received their wings. Yesterday, at RCAF Station Winnipeg some 35 years and 140,000 aircrew later, another class graduated in a ceremony which marked the final chapter of the RCAF's 35th anniversary celebrations. Pictures here show the first graduating class beside an Avro 504 trainer, and part of the class graduating Friday, beside a modern T-33 jet on which they were trained. Guest of honor at the ceremony was Air Marshal Roy Slemmon, only still-serving member of the first graduating course, who appears in the old picture at far right as Provisional Pilot Officer Slemmon. Stevenson's Bold Plan

Adlai Stevenson's proposal that the free world pool its resources for a 40-year, $200 billion investment program for under developed countries comes as NATO powers meet in France to discuss more solidarity in the matter of military might.

Mr. Stevenson, writing in a foreign affairs magazine, said that to him, the two most dangerous realities now being faced by the free world are the multiplication of nuclear weapons and the disparity in living standards between the rich nations and the poor.

What is newsworthy about Mr. Stevenson's dissertation is not his recognition of the dangers - for they are the same dangers recognized by just about every government of the world, including the USSR - but his bold plan for dealing with one of them; the problem of the world's starving millions.

Nuclear disarmament has, of course, been proposed by both the United States and Russia, and by other powers.

Mr. Stevenson's plan for aid to the underdeveloped would take up where the Marshall Plan left off, but has much wider implications.

It would not be purely American project. The scope envisaged by Mr. Stevenson is too big for even that cornucopia. It would involve all the resources of the free world; the creation, in Mr. Stevenson's words, of "new supra-national patterns and institutions of cooperation."

The world would have to co-ordinate, Mr. Stevenson said, "all aspects of the effort with other nations - not only investment, but opportunities for trade, international liquidity and so forth."

Mr. Stevenson is getting very close to the ideal of a world federation, advanced by many sociological theorists. But what he proposes is no theory; it is an eminently practical plan that could and should be put into operation.

Any who many doubt this have only to reflect back to the days of World War II when, within a few short years, the forces arrayed against Hitler, through all-out material aid cooperation and co-ordination of resources, built themselves up from virtually nothing.

What is needed now is the same unifying spirit that pervaded that operation, but it must be a spirit this time of peace.

This is the most difficult aspect of Mr. Stevenson's proposals. Just how difficult it may be symbolized by the presence of President Eisenhower in France trying to bolster NATO's military strength at almost the same time that Mr. Stevenson's plan for world harmony is being read on this side of the ocean.

It will not do to wait until the free world is menaced again by the threat of being wiped off the face of the earth to develop this unity. By then, this time, it will probably be too late.

Deliberate Overplanting

Although corn production in Canada plays a comparatively minor part in the agricultural economy - the average crop running about 12,000,000 bushels - it is one of the major products for the farmer of the mid-western United States.

This year the United States corn crop will be the largest in history. To carry out its pledge to purchase corn at the new support price of $1.12 a bushel the U.S. government may have to buy 500,000,000 bushels.

Under the former program farmers figured they would make more money if they passed up the higher support prices which went hand-in-hand with restricted acreage, and overplanted their quotas, and settled, instead, for a guaranteed lower figure of $1.06 a bushel.

The new program provides for fixing prices at 90 per cent of the average market price for the last three years, which provides the $1.12 figure.

But whether it is old program, new program, high parity, low parity, it all boils down to the same thing. As long as a government support program tempts farmers to overplant, to add to the already great surplus of marketable farm commodities, they will do it.

The problems involved in the situation are two-fold. One is to find storage for the extra 500,000,000 bushels when the present facilities are literally bulging. The second is to find $560,000,000 with which to pay the producers. This, however, is comparatively simple - squeeze the tax payers again.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

SQUEEZE OPENS PATH TO SLAM

West was in a sacrificing mood. Hence his desperation bid of seven spades against North's seven diamonds.

North should have doubled and taken the sure 1300 points, but North also thought that maybe seven no-trump would roll in, so he passed the buck to South who decided to try for the grand prize.

He won East's jack of spades with the ace and counted 12 easy tricks. He also saw that a squeeze for the grand slam would develop provided West held the long hearts and East both the high spades.

spades and the three rounds of hearts showed that West was long in that suit.

Now all South had to do was run his six diamonds. The last diamond squeezed both East and West. West had to hold a high heart and East a high spade so no one could hang on to three clubs.

Strangely enough there was a defense to beat seven no-trump. All West had to do was open the queen of clubs!

Saturday's Sermon:

The Window Of Hope

By REV. B. S. MURRAY, M.A.

I consider myself fortunate that my bedroom window has an eastern setting. Each morning I awaken, the sun greets me and I find myself greeting the SUN of Righteousness (Mal. 4:2) inviting Him to be my guest, more and more of Himself displaying "shining to the perfect day".

THE BOOK OF NATURE

This, I repeat, is a daily happening as hope springs in my breast and in my thinking. In winter, I remind myself as I look out on the fields and countryside blanketed in snow that even in the snow there is the promise of May. In the Springtime, thrilled am I to watch those soldiers of the soil - the farmers - plow in hope. O'er the same landscape in summer is writ the word Hope, spelled out in trees, flowers, green fields, running brooks, etc. Nor is Autumn far behind with each leaf before it falls planting "hope-seeds" into another leaf so as to guarantee continuity. The Book of Nature is indeed a Book of Hope.

THE BOOK OF FOLKS

Where Nature leaves off, men, women and children take up. Are not fathers and mothers specialists in hope? Lovers too. Teachers and all those connected with the training of Youth, the hope of Tomorrow, have generous supplies of this ingredient. Through a life with all its changes and chances we find folks possessing hope and possessed by it to an amazing degree. Like that business man who when his shop burnt down, arrived next morning carrying a table and amid the charred debris, set up this sign: "Everything lost except wife and children and hope. Business will be resumed as usual in the morning".

THAT EAST WINDOW

A Church I knew and loved back in boyhood days had an east window with a Christmas-Epiphany theme depicting the three stars of Faith, Hope, Love. In the centre was Hope, bearing the inscription "Jesus, our Hope, our Heart's Desire. Each Lord's day came from this window a challenge for each worshipper, each lover of the risen, glorified, ascended Lord to carry in his kit bag these three and being steadfast in Faith, joyful through hope and with love (that essential and dominant element in life, the beginning and end of all things) face life as a hero, walking in the steps of Christ. When the time came to repeat the Apostles' Creed, automatically we turned Eastward. Toward the East we buried our dead "with a heart toward the morn" believing that Christ will return thither. This hope kept receiving each miniature Easter Day, Sunday, the Lord's day. Nor did we stop there for hope spilled over into those occasional offices dealing with marriage, baptism, sickness, death. From the House of God, there generated a Hope that we took home with us and even carried it into our daily work illustrations of which may be found in such services as family prayers and the blessing of the corps and harvest thanksgiving.

panying challenge here and now to embrace and ever hope of the blessed hope of everlasting life.

On the second Sunday in Advent, the Bible is presented to us as "an anchor of the soul both sure and steadfast" (Hab. 6: 19). Such an anchor of hope in God saves us from defeat and disaster when the storms of life overtake us and, at the same time, in calmer seasons, this anchor of our faith holds us true to life's sweet engagements and noble endeavours.

Continuing to look through the window of Hope with the Bible in our hands containing the injunction "Search the Scriptures" the Church, on the third Sunday in Advent, discusses Her messengers of Hope whose primary concern is with both the LOST-NESS of the world and those individuals who compose it. Such as you and I. Armed with the dream to make each of us a child of the morning with eyes directed forward and spirits upward, these Messengers of Hope unceasingly bid those committed to their charge to follow the advice the prophet Elisha gave Josiah, king of Israel (2 Kings 13: 17) and open the windows of their souls eastward and therefrom shoot "arrows of hope" against those forces which sore let and hinder us in our Battle-of-life-fight-to-the-finish. Walk and work close to God, trusting Him in all things so that you may live victoriously is the daily recipe for hopeful, happy, sunlit living those Messengers of Hope suggest. God bless them every one!

THIS SUNDAY, WE WAIT...

So inspired by the assurance of hope for this life and that which follows as revealed in the Holy Bible and interpreted by the clergy, we come to this Sunday, the fourth in the Advent cycle, and buoyed up with and by hope complete our preparations and await the Birthday of Christ. The Birthday of Hope.

And waiting, chant

"To us a CHILD OF HOPE is born,
To us a Son is given;
Him shall the tribes of earth obey,
Him all the hosts of heaven.

His name shall be the Prince of Peace, for evermore adored, The Wonderful, The Counsellor, The Great and mighty God. (Isa. 9: 6, 7). His power increasing still shall spread. His reign no end shall know; Justice shall guard His throne above, and peace abound below."

That's how John Morrison more than a hundred years ago expressed the end and aim of Christmas. May we in our day and generation translate this poetry into the prose of daily living. Know ye that whosoever opens his heart to and entertains as his Guest and Saily Companion, Christ, will find in this personal relationship with the God of all hope that his life is flooded with THE HOPE that never disappoints since the love of God flows in our minds through the Holy Spirit (Romans 5: 5).

Such hope-intoxicated sons of light go on their way, joyful through hope, to the Holy City, the New Jerusalem buoyed, filled with the hope that THERE our endless home shall be. THERE our Lord we soon shall see!"

THE HOPE

So as we look through the Church's "Window of Hope" on this Sunday before Christmas 1959 and muse on Christ our Hope, our Heart's Desire, THE HOPE of the Ages as well as THE HOPE of our nervous, out-of-joint world; Your hope and

by Clyde Blackburn

OTTAWA — Coming from Harold Winch it sounded almost like treason.

The CCF member for Vancouver East said publicly and widely that strikes for higher wages by productive workers right now could lead straight to unemployment.

But that is only one aspect of the current world trade picture—complicated by the European "inner six" and "outer seven" whose agreements may or may not upset the apparent for Canadian exporters.

Much will be heard about these matters at the next session of Parliament opening Jan. 14.

The bright young men in the Trade Department, the Agriculture Department and in External Affairs (and don't think this is sarcastic because they really are bright young men), will have a lot of information for their ministers when the time comes to take in Parliament.

EUROPE FREE TRADE

Meanwhile we are not sure what is cooking for us in Europe where six substantial customers of Canada have formed a prospective free trade community—the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, France, Germany and Italy.

They have a treaty and aim to achieve free trade in their countries, with each other, in ten years.

These are the "inner six," about which much has been written.

The "outer seven," countries which did not go along with this off-shoot of the recent and still current move of European units to get together, are the United Kingdom, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and Switzerland.

Originally it was the objective of the European countries to form a common market but they could not get agreement. The result was the so-called inner six went along on their own under a treaty signed in Rome to set up the European economic community.

This does not seem to have much to do with Harold Winch but it ties in I will come back to him.

BIG SHARE OF EXPORTS

The "inner six" countries of Europe account for about 12 per cent. of Canada's export trade. The "outer seven," who all hope to be in some sort of a trade unit and may become a part of the free trade community, take about 20 per cent. of our exports.

This piece will not attempt to forecast what is going to happen as a result of this regrouping of our customer countries.

Trade Minister Churchill and External Affairs Minister Green have both spoken publicly on these matters recently and they did not risk any specific prophecies.

They expressed a hope that these European developments would improve and regularize trade relations and not operate against Canadian exports. It may be a pious hope.

But it would seem likely that these countries will still need what they have been buying from Canada. They have not been buying because they love us but because we have what they want.

WINCH'S WARNING

So it might be a reasonable hope that there will not be any great setback to Canadian export operations.

Unless Harold Winch has discovered something really dangerous. He is 52 years old, a native of England, a socialist, a founding father of the CCF and an adopted son of British Columbia.

He has been a member of the House of Commons since 1953 and while he has not set the place on fire he is a man most members listen to with respect.

He has just returned from a long trip through South-east Asia to Australia and intermediate points.

In broadcasts and public speeches and private conversation Harold Winch has been telling the Canadian people that they are in danger of losing their markets abroad and for a reason no one would ever expect from a socialist.

Strikes in Canadian productive works had earned Canada, particularly British Columbia, a bad name abroad, he warned.

It was not only that higher wages and increased production costs operated against the Canadian exporter but customers were afraid of strikes causing interruptions in deliveries.

He warned bluntly, and admitted that he probably would be hated by his conferees in the party, that in some areas those striking for more wages would find themselves jobless because foreign markets would turn away from Canada.

though the 48-year-old Humphrey already has declared himself in the presidential race, veteran observers don't consider him a strong candidate mainly because of his extreme liberal views.

Out of the South comes Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, a tall, hefty 51-year-old political veteran who raised some dust inside the party during his majority leadership of the Senate. He suffered a heart attack a few years ago, raising a question of whether he has sufficient physical strength to withstand the rigors of the White House.

Amid the bickering and without the weakness of religious minority affiliation stands Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, a tall, ramrod individual who a few years ago had to undergo medical care for hypertension.

Some Democrats see in him the "compromise" candidate, perhaps acceptable both to northern and southern members. Symington, after some youthful escapades, later became head of a big electrical manufacturing company and first secretary for air in the former Truman administration.

EPISCOPALIAN

What's more, he's an Episcopalian and the record shows that more Episcopalians were elected president than any other religious affiliation.

Symington is a great champion of military defence and air power but there is no evidence that his national popularity compares with that of the youthful Kennedy or even Stevenson.

BRANTFORD, Ont. — (CP) — Health Minister Dymond of Ontario was asked about fluoridation Friday during a visit to this city which was among Ontario's pioneers in fluoridating its water supply.

He not only refused to discuss the subject, he wouldn't even drink the water.

"It's in the hands of a royal commission — I have no comment to make," he said during a tour of Brant sanatorium.

George T. Gordon, Brantford's member of the legislature and one of those instrumental in starting fluoridation here 14 years ago, cracked:

"You're going to have some today."

"I never drink water," replied the minister. And he didn't touch the stuff while he was here.

Increase Granted To Employees By Richmond Council

RICHMOND — Municipal employees are now enjoying a five per cent increase in pay which is retroactive to October 1, 1959. The increase was voted at the monthly meeting of the Town Council.

The council approved a grant of $1,000 to the Richmond Hockey Association for this season's activities. The delegation of members attending the meeting was headed by Fernand Menard, president of the body.

A grant of $300 was favored for Branch 15 of the Canadian Legion to help further its activities. A donation of $100 was made to the Richmond Library to help promote the work of the organization which now has over 3,000 books on hand. Another donation of $15 was made by council to the Brompton-Windsor-Richmond-Melbourne Anti-Tuberculosis League, presently holding its annual campaign for funds.

A report was given on the cost of repairing the local coliseum roof which, amounted to the sum of $5,692, a sum much lower than the estimated cost. Sales tax receipts for September amounted to $3,319.09 and for October, $3,528.95.

Approval of the following changes of properties was made: C. E. Blouin to G. Demers; L. Letendre to Mrs. L. Salois; A. Jeanson to J. P. Blais; J. G. Ewing & Sons to Geo. W. Ewing.

The Council approved the transfer of the taxi permit of Jean-Guy Lalonde to Hubert St. Pierre.

A request for more adequate street lighting along Craig at the Gouin St. intersection was studied and referred to the lights committee for action.

Five applications for public assistance were studied and all were rejected.

Mayor C. W. Armstrong presided over the meeting.

SWEETSBURG — Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ladd were in Granby for a few days and attended a birthday party for their daughter Vera, Mrs. Wallace Coburn. They were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Maro Ladd and family.

Mrs. M. R. Hodge has returned from St. Jerome, where she spent a week with her daughter, Mrs. Donald Quigley, Mr. Quigley and sons.

rounding the donation draw attention to the difference between preaching and practise. Lawyers and government officials frequently call upon the ordinary citizen to keep his last will and testament up-to-date, revising it as their circumstances in life change.

But Mrs. Balcer, sister of the late premier, said the donation was being made as the trustee of the estate knew his wishes. His will was not compatible with present day circumstances, she told Premier Sauve, because it had not been revised since 1930 when he first entered politics.

TEXTILE PROBLEMS — Following hard on the heels of a resolution adopted unanimously by the Quebec Legislature that the federal government take action to curb the inflow of foreign textiles into this country, Maurice Allard, M.P. for Sherbrooke, has announced he will introduce the following resolution at the next session of Parliament:

"The Chamber is advised that it should study the opportunity of referring to the permanent committee on banking and commerce the recommendations of the Tariff Commission on textiles, so the committee may summon witnesses and subpoena documents and books, for the purpose of studying the textile industry, especially as it concerns importations, and present a report on this subject."

A LONDON VIEW — The Times of London says there is a feeling in Quebec that Premier Paul Sauve may have more influence in the national scene than any French Canadian premier since Sir Georges-Etienne Cartier.

"Observers are sensing a new atmosphere in the province," says the newspaper's Ottawa correspondent in a lengthy biographical sketch of the new premier. It predicts a new era of greater co-operation between Quebec and the federal government.

The article says he is unlikely to change basic policies of the Union Nationale party framed by his predecessor, the late Maurice Duplessis, but that there may be a difference in approach.

Where Premier Duplessis "was uncompromising in his fanatical guardianship of Quebec's autonomy within Confederation," his successor perhaps had a wider outlook on life, born of experience outside provincial politics which makes him "more flexible and more diplomatic."

"Indeed, his family political background and traditions as well as his broad experience, especially in the army, suggest that he may think more in terms of Canada than purely Quebec in the Duplessis sense."

"The Liberal opposition, who felt that the reign of Mr. Duplessis in recent months was working in their favor and that his death had shattered the Union Nationale, now are watching with some dismay the phoenix rise from the political ashes."

that if the U.S. had taken the action Canada did in suggesting a United Nations Emergency Force for the area, "the position in the Middle East today would be very much better than unfortunately it is."

NEW HOME

Refugee families in Europe with tuberculosis cases find it despairingly difficult to be accepted as immigrants.

This week Canada became the first overseas country to accept tubercular refugees from European camps without sponsors. The first group of families, with 19 tubercular sufferers among them, reached Toronto from Rome Wednesday in two airplanes. Another group is expected Christmas Eve.

While the sick are cared for in Ontario hospitals, the others will begin the quest for jobs and a new life.

THE WEEK IN QUEBEC

In Montreal Tuesday contract talks between Canada's major railways and 15 non-operating unions were adjourned to Jan. 12 after a 10-minute meeting. Neither side would comment.

It was the fourth meeting since November when the unions announced demands for a 25-cent hourly wage increase for their 125,000 members, a boost the railways claim would cost them $65,000,000 annually if granted.

At Sorel, Que., Mrs. Paul Comtois, wife of Canada's mines minister, christened the new transport department ice-breaker and supply ship Tupper to be based in Charlottetown. The 1,800-ton vessel, with accommodations for 44, is designed for icebreaking in shallow waters and harbors, search and rescue work and buoy and tender placing.

Montreal lawyer Mario Latoni was convicted of conspiracy to bring an undisclosed number of Italian aliens to Canada in 1951-52. Sentences were postponed to Jan. 12.

Latoni was acquitted of several other charges — forging documents, fraud and bribing a Crown officer. Three other men including a former Canadian immigration officer posted in Rome are still before the courts.

Although Mrs. Russell had been in poor health for over a year and had been hospitalized several times, her death was sudden.

The former Ina Claire George was born in Bolton Centre on October 25, 1920, the second daughter of the late William George and his wife, Bertha Paige George. She was united in marriage to John Levi Russell, of Freilighsburg, in Sept. 1940, and three children were born of this union, Wayland, Bradley and Evelyn. She was predeceased by Wayland in infancy in 1941, her husband in Dec. 1947 and her father in Nov. 1958.

Mrs. Russell was educated in this community and, with the exception of a few years in Montreal and Cowansville after the death of her husband, she returned here and spent her remaining years in and around this district. She was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Bolton Centre.

For several years Mrs. Russell was a cosmetic representative. She was much admired for the care she took of her young family after her husband's death. A person well liked, she will be sadly missed.

She is survived by her two children, Bradley and Evelyn; her mother, Mrs. George; a sister, Dorothy; three brothers and two sisters-in-law and their families, Lyndsay, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce George and Timothy and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur George, Michael and Sandra; also a great many aunts, uncles and cousins.

Three common types of dowel fastenings are shown here. Exposed dowel ends (a) are desirable for rough work. Simple to make; drilling both pieces at once (as shown) assures proper hole alignment. More exacting but favored for finish work, are hidden dovetail joints (b) and (c).

ing joints that are both neat and strong. Often they think that the only choice is between nail or screw joints and fancy dovetail joints. The former aren't terribly neat, the latter require a high degree of craftsmanship. Happily, there's a middle ground. It involves using dowels, lengths of wood in a variety of diameters from 1/8-inch to an inch.

The blind joint is little more difficult, worth the trouble because it leaves an unmarred wood surface. In this type of joint, holes are drilled part-way into the two pieces and the dowel is slightly less in length than their combined depth.

USE DOWELS
These hardwood pins, stocked in all lumber yards and quite a few hardware stores, are available in three-foot lengths. Dowels can be used in almost any butt or miter joint. A butt joint is made by placing the end of one piece of wood against the surface of another. A miter joint is a 45-degree angle joint hiding the end grain on both pieces—commonly used for picture frames.

In making the joint, a glue-coated dowel is inserted in matching holes in the two pieces of wood. The important thing is making the holes match perfectly.

EASIEST
Simplest is the open joint in which the dowel shows. The hole is drilled completely through one piece of wood and part way into the other. After coating the dowel with glue, push it into the holes and saw off the end flush with the surface of the outer piece. It's simple to keep the holes lined up in the open joint. Just drill both pieces at the same time.

MATCH 'EM
The holes must match perfectly. Clamp the two pieces of wood together. With a try square and pencil mark both pieces at the same time. Then locate the exact center of each line and mark it. Double-check your markings before you drill. The blind joint is especially useful in making wide boards out of narrow ones by joining them edge to edge. Don't make the holes so small that a tight fit is necessary. The dowel should slide in easily. Don't forget that you have to leave room for glue. A tight fit will squeeze out the glue. Before gluing, cut grooves or spirals in the dowel to hold the glue. You can groove a dowel by holding a file against it at an angle and slowly turning the dowel. Some dealers carry dowels that are already grooved or spiraled. Joints will be stronger if two dowels are used in each to prevent twisting. Q—What are the proper nails to buy for installing acoustical ceiling tile?—P.A.P. A—Ask for 1 1/4-inch collar nails. A metal ring or collar stops the nail at the precise depth when driven into the furring strip in back of the ceiling panel.

Farm Forum Activities

THIRD RANGE
The members of the forum were entertained at the Winget Home with 12 present. The broadcast was considered good and after the Greenleaf was read the questions were discussed.

No, we do not think it is possible to increase Canada's export trade because of the high cost of transportation. Farmers should cut down on production to adjust to the market demand.

It was planned to hold the next meeting at the community hall, with a Christmas party and exchange of gifts. Cards were played at three tables.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Herbie Winget.

COOKSHIRE
Though more time than usual was given to the group discussions none of the discussion groups at the Farm Forum seemed to be able to get any very definite answers about the problem of Market Expansion.

The meeting was held on Dec. 14 at the home of Mrs. E. Clarke, with a good attendance. The broadcast seemed to bring out a lot of facts, but no solutions.

The findings on the questions were: Question 1, Do you think it is possible to increase Canada's export trade? Yes, in some cases at least. The likeliest way seemed to be to raise standards of living in poorer countries, so that they could afford to buy our goods. Meanwhile, could not the nations get together and buy up surplus products and distribute them among the needy nations; thus helping both producers and receivers. Nothing much more seemed possible with any particular product; but if the price of pork could be brought down we could get a better export market.

Question 2 asked, How can Canadian farmers adjust their production to fit the market demand? It was felt that it is difficult to limit production. But a long-range plan for more education in and understanding of the principles of co-operation would help, especially in co-operative marketing.

Everyone enjoyed a couple of contests organized by Mrs. Clarke and her daughter, Mrs. Mailin Westgate, and three tables of cards passed the time until lunch was served.

There will be no meeting next week, Christmas Week. Jan. 4 is the first of three evenings on "The Problem of Adjustment", at a place still to be decided.

HIGH AND LOW FOREST
The Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McConnell on Dec. 14th with a good attendance.

The discussion was on Market Expansion. The Greenleaf and a note of thanks was read by the secretary.

Plans were made to hold a Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Wilson on Saturday, December 19.

It was also decided to ask Professor Jones, of Macdonald College, to a Forum meeting the latter part of January when he will be in this vicinity. Other Forums will be invited.

The Record's Farm Report

Brightening Hog Prospects

A bright ray in the hog picture has been added by the announcement of British Minister of Agriculture Hare recently that purchase of up to 36 million pounds of frozen pork, mostly from Canada, had been authorized. The volume is not very large but it may be ample to take the surplus after January 9th when Government purchasing stops.

If the expected rush to sell hogs before that time materializes, marketings for the few weeks following that date may be cut substantially. This slackening in marketings plus the new export market in Britain could be enough to eliminate surpluses and prevent prices from falling too sharply.

Dr. Taggart Retires

The choice of S. Clifford Barry as the new Deputy Minister of Agriculture has been widely approved. He succeeds Dr. J. G. Taggart who retires at the end of December. Mr. Barry, who has been with the Department since 1925, brings a broad experience in both production and marketing to his new task. On top of that, he is well liked personally.

Let's Start Wheat Promotion

There seems very little prospect that Canada is going to expand her wheat markets soon. Like the United States has been doing. Surplus disposal programs have been getting the U.S. softer wheats into practically every growing but underdeveloped market in the world. On top of this, the producing regions like Oregon, North Dakota and others, have been putting on promotion campaigns in these new markets.

Canada has not been getting into this kind of campaign. The main reason, according to our Department of Trade and Commerce people, is that we cannot afford to assist exports to the extent the U.S. does.

But while most of our markets are still in Europe, the market with the best prospect for growth in the future are those in Asia. These are the markets the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R. are now developing.

If Canada cannot get some of her hard red spring wheat into these markets now, these new growing markets will become accustomed to the softer wheats of other countries. This could dim our hopes for competing later when these Asian countries are able to pay cash for wheat.

Ring Around The Rosy

Salmon in Parsley Rice Ring is one of those colorful and substantial items that can be put together in a minimum of time, without sacrificing palate appeal and still leaving the cook free for her many demanding activities leading up to Christmas. Chunks of succulent canned salmon float in a delicate sauce of celery soup atop a savory rice ring, flecked with the vivid green of parsley. It looks and tastes mighty special, belying its simplicity and low cost.

SALMON IN PARSLEY RICE RING
2 cups canned pink salmon (1, 1-pound can), Milk, 1, 10-ounce can condensed celery soup, ¼ cup minced onion, ¼ cup butter or margarine, ¼ cup minced parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 cups hot cooked rice.

Drain and chunk salmon, reserving liquid. Add enough milk to drained salmon liquid to make ½ cup. Blend this into celery soup. Add salmon; simmer until thoroughly heated. Meanwhile, saute onion in butter or margarine until soft. Blend in parsley, salt and pepper. Fold into rice. Pack rice mixture for a few minutes into a greased ring mold. Under the ring mold is filled with a piece of plastic or cellulose tape will repair a cracked toothpaste or shaving cream tube. Repair will last until the supply of cream, if you handle carefully.

For extra speed, packaged, pre-cooked rice may be used.

ST. PATRICK MISSION CIRCLE

The St. Patrick Mission Circle held their closing meeting of the year on Monday night in St. Patrick's Church Hall.

The President, after recitation of the rosary, thanked the members and generous friends who had helped make both the recently held tea and outdoor collection such a success.

It was voted that money for Christmas gifts for children of the mission convents be sent to the Sisters of the Atonement and to Fathers Hawkins, Dorge, O'Flaherty and Jean.

The President reported that the Catholic Extension Society had suggested that a chapel be built at Fraser, B. C. with money received from St. Patrick Mission Circle and the name chosen for this chapel was Our Lady of Fatima.

The members were shown a beautiful tabernacle veil made and given for this chapel by Miss O. McKeown.

An exchange of gifts took place, the gift table being covered with a Christmas cloth, miniature tree, gay with lights and Noel candles.

Father Justin Diraviam was welcomed to the group and gave an interesting talk on his work in India and of the building of some 53 chapels with aid from Canada and the United States and of a recently built Leprosy hospital.

Rev. R. Moisan then joined Father Diraviam and the group for refreshments which were served by the hostesses. Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mrs. A. Julien and the Misses K. and F. Clark.

The next meeting will take place on Jan. 18, 1960.

The Christmas meeting of the Ascot Women's Institute was entertained by Mrs. Frank Ingham and Mrs. Ben Ingham at their home on the Stanstead Highway.

The treasurer's report showed the success of the card party held. A donation was given to the local S.P.C.A. and a crate of oranges will be sent as a Christmas gift to the Grace Christian Home.

A cash donation was sent to the cancer patients' cheer fund. The roll call was answered with a small gift for a shut-in person.

A committee was named to pack Christmas Cheer boxes for shut-ins comprised of Mrs. T. B. Majury, Mrs. R. S. Lipsey and Mrs. A. R. Parsons.

Gottings

By GLADYS TAYLOR

Below is a poem taken from Fred Cogswell's latest book of poetry, DESCENT FROM EDEN, which is reviewed elsewhere on this page. In it, in the penetrating potency of concise verse, he says what many of us have come to feel about our way of celebrating Christmas - but about which we unfortunately do little.

A Christmas Petition
To see men use God's holy things
To swell the merchant's hoard
Awoke your wrath in temple once
To swing a knotted cord;
Your eyes were lit with lightnings then,
Your tongue a sharp-edged sword—
Pray come not back at Christmas now,
Jesus Christ, my Lord.

Will Santa Crowd Out Christ?

This heading was clipped from an item in a recent issue of THE SHERBROOKE DAILY RECORD, which had reprinted it from WAR CRY. In the heading, Jane Scott one of our too few writers who wields a truly Christian pen, succinctly summed up what many parents surely feel as they plough through crowds to stand in line for Santa to pat their child's head and ask him what he wants for Christmas.

A Montreal columnist has commented on the trend toward more sedate office parties. I agree with this trend and feel it is a step in the right direction. I must go on record, however, as saying that I feel office parties should be abolished entirely.

I feel that the parties and all other such pagan ways of celebrating Christmas will not only change form but disappear. And one of the best reasons I have for this optimism is a story I read recently in a newspaper.

It told of the annual campaign of Montreal college students to "bring Christ back to Christmas". Somehow I can't see these students — and I hope many more will join them in their campaign — ever coming to the day when they will force Christ to abdicate while the cocktail party and the office binge replaces church as the accepted form of celebrating Christmas — or Christ's birthday — as we sometimes seem to forget it is.

This is what Peter C. Newman says about the writing of his book FLAME OF POWER, which is reviewed elsewhere on this page: "It has taken me three years to write FLAME OF POWER, although my interest in the strange forces that prompt into action such men as E. P. Taylor dates back to my studies at the University of Toronto, when I was reading for my Master's Degree in Economics.

"During my research I spent considerable time with the subjects of my book, the men who have worked with them and those who have worked against them.

"Possibly the highlight of my interviews was the one I conducted in the cottage-office of E. P. Taylor. Peering through the plate-glass window that faces the simple oak table he uses as his

Sketchbook, Excellent But Shallow

FLAME OF POWER — Peter C. Newman — Longmans, Green & Co. — 255 pp — $4.95 — The apparent idea of FLAME OF POWER is in itself commendable; to find the least common denominator, or is it the highest common factor, of those Canadians whose economic influence, by the fortuitous circumstances of time, extends beyond their inherent capabilities.

But in assembling his protagonists, the author seems to have realized that having dealt with the true men of power in Canada — of whom there were truly few — he must pad his book with unlikely candidates to fame before he resumes his theme with an examination of a latter day tycoon, E. P. Taylor.

The book consists of a series of excellently written but rather shallow biographies which fail to fulfil the promise engendered by the title and the author's own introduction.

There is a confusion resulting from his error in mistaking money-grubbing (Sir Harry Oakes) with the quest for power (Sir Herbert Holt). This is an ambitious project which falls short of its stated goal by reason of the dearth of concrete examples available in Canadian industrial history. One wonders whether Mr. Newman has not been the victim of his own sales promotion; for what purports to be a dissection of the motivating force of Canada's financial tycoons turns out to be merely a well written series of business anecdotes which might better have been published as magazine articles.

One also cannot help but feel that had Mr. Newman stuck to his guns and expanded his thesis on these who merited the attention of the serious student of historical economic power in Canada, that his work would have been more than the brilliant but brief biographical sketchbook it turns out to be. With his undoubted talent for writing, Mr. Newman is probably capable of better things than FLAME OF POWER. I. C. CAMPBELL.

SIR JAMES DUNN as sketched in Flame of Power

Creativity Lacking In Ballet

VANCOUVER (CP)—The classics in ballet are here to stay, says a leading United States dance instructor. Now progressive ideas need a chance.

Walter Camryn, head of a school for professional ballet in Chicago, said in an interview here that lack of creative work has placed the whole dance world, particularly ballet, in a dreary state.

"There is too much emphasis placed on the old classics and not enough thought given to progressive ideas of modern expression," Mr. Camryn said.

"Most of the classics will be contained in the repertoire for ages, but students of the dance should also be made familiar with all the new trends.

"That is the only way in which they can obtain a basic concept of the art in its widest sense."

NEW WORKS NEEDED

In addition, he said, choreographers and composers should get together and create new works.

Canada is rich in folk-lore in both East and West, Mr. Camryn said. There is interesting material to be used, including ballets based on the lives and legends of Indians.

What about the workshop system of ballet training? he was asked. Would it help aspiring dancers in Vancouver and elsewhere?

"Definitely, yes. It has been found to be of great advantage in many cities. But, since ballet is a personal art, the formation of one would have to be approached delicately yet firmly.

Tells Of Summer's Travel Through The Maritimes

THESE ARE THE MARITIMES, Will R. Bird (Ryerson Press), $4.50 — The jacket of this book describes it as a different sort of travel book about the travels of the author one summer in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

This is indeed a promising beginning that leads one to hope it will be truly different from the usual motor tour account.

The author travels thru the Maritimes stopping at towns and villages gathering information, opinions, yarns and gossip from numerous "oldsters" and other individuals identified as "Check Shirt", "Straw Hat", "Bow-Tie", "man in shirt sleeves" or from others similarly qualified by age or dress.

The book is a long, rambling narrative that tries to impart the flavor of "down-east" living by mixing folksy gossip and legends with local history recounted by randomly-chosen villagers.

The result is a long travel book that may appeal to readers who delight in a casual, unplanned gathering of information and local color.

Many, however, will find their interest lagging after the first chapters and will despair of finding a purposeful, coherent account of the Maritimes in its many pages. To sum up: Too much sail, not enough substance. NOEL O'BRIEN.

A Master Craftsman's Virile Verse

DESCENT FROM EDEN by Fred Cogswell, Ryerson Press, $2.50—A collection of remarkably virile verse from the heart of a master craftsman. For an ordinary reader to review it seems sheer presumption.

For Dr. Cogswell is an Associate Professor of English at the University of New Brunswick. Therefore, before turning a page the reader is hopefully aware of finding the work of an artist whose tools are words and media prosody of excellent form. And he is not mistaken.

The reader instantly finds himself in a man's world, peopled with vital personages—evil, wanton, pitiful, cold, but never dull; a land of emotions starkly defined with the bold, sure strokes of a master, and of soaring spirit that defies the sordid pull of earth and the cold finality of death.

The content reveals the poet's apprehensions of man's relationship to earth from which he came and will return.

There is in it the cool freshness of Robert Frost and the robust vitality of Robert Browning with an occasional bit of the latter's obscurity—intentional, I think—which provides the reader with tantalizing food for thought, richly rewarding him for his efforts.

The poem from which this collection derives its title is of this nature and, like Beth, causes the reader to marvel, to wonder and perhaps to feel a bit of cosmic dismay. There is cynicism, bitterness, remembrance of past torment and whole fields of philosophic acceptance in these poems. It is the world as seen through the brilliant eyes of an eagle shearing the skies with his wings while his gaze pierces the surface of the world's pool to watch The Golden Fish.

And it is not without its touch of wry humor. For, in the final pages, he sums up succinctly the entire torment of a poet's existence in one short, tidy bit of verse:

WITHIN MY TEMPLED FLESH

Within my templed flesh a God of pain presides over love's slow murders and hate's long suicides.

I curse Him as I feel his unrelenting sway—but could a force less cruel wring living out of clay?

DORIS KING.

Name Successor To The Music Man

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Albert Thursday was named Robert Preston's successor in the title role of the Broadway hit, The Music Man. Preston, who has played the part for two years, leaves Jan. 9 to make a film.

realizes it's just the breaks, that he could have been back where he was if he hadn't gotten the fat role in "Sammy."

"I'm the same guy I always was," he says, "only now I've got a name."

Larry is a Houston, Tex., product who has lost all of the Texas touch in his speech—"except when I'm angry." He grew up wanting to be a lawyer, then got sidetracked by a batch of wood.

"I was taking a shop course in high school," he says. "And I botched it up all the time. The teacher was a man dedicated to wood. So he offered me a deal—he'd pass me if I'd promise to stay away and stop ruining his good walnut and maple. I took it. And with the extra time I took a course in drama.

"I liked it. So I went to see Orson Welles in a lecture when he came to town. And that did it. I forgot about law and decided to be an actor."

Bylden was a Marine during World War II—an infantry instructor—and feels that his Marine training was helpful to him as an actor.

TV and Stage Have 'High Hopes' for Blyden, 'Disciplined' Star of 'Sammy'

By DICK KLEINER

NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (NEA)—Larry Blyden, with his average face, average voice and average figure, melts easily into a crowd. Few people stop him on the street for autographs. Nobody has ever tried to cut off a souvenir lock of his hair.

Yet, around Broadway, he's looked on as one of the coming big stars on the stage. Television, too, has high hopes for him since his smash work on "What Makes Sammy Run?"—the big two-part on NBC's Sunday Showcase.

This apparent contradiction is easily explained: the man has talent.

The telecast of "Sammy" showed him over the top into the first rank, and it was indicative of the power of TV. Here is an actor who has been around. Yet, after his "Sammy" triumph, it was as if he was something brand new.

"The next morning," he says, "I had five movie offers. I'm not kidding—it sounds like an exaggeration, but it actually happened. Five movie offers. I told them all I'd like to see a script. Haven't seen one of the scripts yet, but the important thing is that they were thinking of me."

Another result of his hit was it "immediately" raised his salary for TV work: From here on, he gets more for the same thing he's been doing. There are some guest spots coming up—one, on The Ed Sullivan Show Jan. 3, will have him working with his wife, Carol Haney—and the new pay scale is in effect.

There is a third potential benefit accruing from "Sammy's" success. Nothing definite, of course, but there has been talk of awards, even the possibility of an Emmy for Blyden's work as the grasping, hurrying Sammy.

"Sure," Larry says, "I'd like to win an Emmy—but there are a few other pretty good actors in the running, too. There are boys named Olivier, Guinness, Gielgud and Astaire who are eligible. I would even be thrilled if I just got a nomination, with those men around."

The part of this whole business which is nice is that Larry ence and irritation, she said impatiently to the salesgirl at the next counter:

NOT that again. Her face was neither calm nor bright as she impatiently put her wares in order, ready for the closing bell. She was not in the mood for interference and I passed on without comment.

As the LP wafted its message to the far corners of the big shopping centre, Adeste Fideles was followed by White Christmas and, as I went from one counter to another making hurried purchases, the other salesgirls took up the strains of each number.

As they offered to serve me I noted the relaxed expressions on the faces of all the girls who sang along with Crosby as they tidied the counter and attended to customers.

They outnumbered the irate miss ten to one and they were ending the day far less weary and far more companionable.

I purchased the recording that produced such pleasant effects upon so many. As I rocked in the old chair, enjoying my evening meal listening again to the soul-stirring carols, I was lost in the dreams of many Christmases and the face of the tired salesgirl haunted me. How weary and frustrated she was. How much she needed the touch of the Saviour who brought good tidings of comfort and joy to fit her for the coming days of rush and confusion.

The weary salesclerk is representative of a large group of men and women who resist, to their detriment, the Christ of Christmas.

They have never come to know him as the one who pities them as a father pities his children. They have not been made aware of his personal invitation: "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

They do not know him as the friend of sinners, the comforter of the sorrowing, the life and the resurrection for the physically and spiritually dead.

The story of His coming as a babe to the manger holds no thrill for them. And they add to their already heavy burdens the self-imposed burden of unbelief and resistance.

And they break themselves into a thousand pieces as they resist the appeal of the still, small voice of God that is endeavoring to speak peace to their troubled souls through the medium of song and the spoken word unfortunately these resist the forces that lift mankind to a plane of peace and power.

This experience is known only to those who love to hear again and again the story of the Saviour's love and his provision for a sorrowing and weary world.

Our world is divided into two classes of people — those who are bored to tears and irritated by the repetition of the Christmas Message and those who are inspired and empowered to sing along with the angels and the earthly songsters who carry the refrain of the angelic hosts.

The star-of-hope which God Almighty set alight in the eastern sky 2,000 years ago has no significance for the former group.

They are too bent with their burdens to lift their heads and too blinded by unbelief to catch the glimmer of love and hope that radiates from the bright and morning star which was set as light to lighten the gentiles and the glory of my people Israel.

But to those who have found Him of whom the prophets spake, the name of Jesus and the sons of Christmas become increasingly sweet as the years roll by. And the hope he brought to this sorrowing world becomes indeed tidings of comfort and joy.

"I learned discipline," he says. "I think discipline is essential to an actor. That's why I have no use for the Actor's Studio people—they are undisciplined."

"Imagine one of them in a musical. You have to be disciplined in a musical. The dance numbers are all done by count, and when a singer gets a downbeat he'd better be ready. If you took time out to scratch or go, 'Er, uh, ah' before you started singing, the band would be in the second chorus."

Bylden knows about musicals, having just left the cast of "Flower Drum Song" after a year making love to Pat Suzuki and Miyoshi Umeki.

"I had to leave," he says. "After a year, I was completely empty inside. I felt the need to rest and to study. But it was great fun and I enjoyed working with the cast—they were wonderfully disciplined."

Bylden has been virtually typed in comedy since his first part, in "Mr. Roberts." He says he's been trying to "break out" for 10 years, and another fringe benefit of "Sammy" is that it

MARK LEDDY, agent extraordinary and New York correspondent for this column sends along the following bit of nonsense with this week's dispatches.

This is the tale of a truck driver who pulled up at a highway cafe, got out, took a monkey wrench and hammered the left front fender of his truck.

Then he went inside and had a bowl of soup, came out again and hammered the right front fender of his truck.

He went in again, had a hot beef sandwich, went out again and banged the left rear fender of his truck.

Again he entered the cafe, had apple pie and coffee, then came out again and hammered the right rear fender vigorously.

At this point the owner of the cafe who had been watching the peculiar activities approached and asked him why he kept hammering his truck.

"Well," shrugged the driver, "I've got no choice. I've got a five-ton truck and a six-ton load of canaries. I've got to keep one ton in the air all the time!"

From our own Anthology of Psychiatric Pstories comes the anecdote of the husband who complained to a psychiatrist about his wife's mania for emptying ash-trays.

"Doctor," he cried, "you've got to do something about this woman. All day long she just walks around the house emptying ash-trays!"

"You're making too much out of this," said the doctor soothingly. "I wouldn't call it a mania. There are thousands of women all over the country who behave in the same manner. It's merely a normal desire to be neat."

"In fact, my wife is the same way. She's always emptying ash-trays."

It was a long and quite boring political meeting during which a mighty array of speechmakers had taken their turn in orating. By the time our hero rose to make his speech the hall had emptied, save for one lonely soul in the front row.

Undaunted, our hero delivered an hour address and was roundly applauded by his audience of one. He bowed and said: "Thank you for staying until the end of the meeting!"

BOWL GAMES COMMENCE TODAY
Three United States college football bowl games are on tap today with a national television audience getting a look-see at the post-season action. The first tilt will get underway at 12.30 and will be the Liberty Bowl game.

Alabama will oppose Penn State in the Liberty while it will be Clemson and Texas Christian in the Bluebonnet at Houston and Lenoir Rhyne will clash against Texas A and K in the Holiday Bowl at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The first will commence at 12.30 and CBS will carry it and at 3.30 they will move to the Bluebonnet. The Liberty Bowl can be seen at 1.00 EST on NBC. The Holiday bowl, sponsored by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, has been billed for the small college title.

The Liberty and the Bluebonnet are newcomers to the post-season events. Promoters have lined up four top teams despite keen competition from the established bowls. TCU was the country's seventh ranked team in the final Associated Press poll.

TCU, co-champions of the Southwest Conference, rules an eight-point favorite to defeat Clemson, winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Some 70,000 fans are expected at Rice Stadium to witness the game.

All the teams have good records in their respective conferences and some good games should be witnessed by the TV audience. It looks like a well filled afternoon of football. So take your pick. This is the first of many to come from now until the big one on Jan. 1, the Rose Bowl.

See where Ted Williams claims he got only $60,000 for playing for the Boston Red Sox and not the reported $100,000 as was publicized. This came out in court at Miami when he appeared before Judge Holt to oppose a petition by his former wife.

Seems funny no one denied it last summer when the story broke. Suppose they figured it would be good publicity for Ted and the team. He stated that he hadn't received a contract as yet and he doubted very much if he could play because of injuries and age. We still think that as a pinch-hitter he is still worth his salary.

Congratulations to Junior Langlois for his first goal in the NHL. He registered it Thursday evening in the general free-for-all against Toronto at Montreal. It must have been some game according to reports. We listened for awhile and the sportscaster certainly had plenty to say. He just couldn't keep up with the action.

We received a card from Jean Lessard, who is at Kimberley B.C. training for the Olympics. He claims they are following a very strict course and is enjoying it. Plenty of snow and all kinds of slopes to practice on. He sends his regards to his many friends in the Townships.

The race in the Intermediate Hockey League looks as though it will develop into quite a battle before the end of the season. It appears to be well balanced and all clubs should be in the thick of things until the last game.

Granby the latest entry in the loop, seems to have found, at last, a good club and they should be able to hold their own with the rest. They pulled the surprise of the current season Thursday when they blanked the Drummondville Rockets right in their own backyard, something no other club has been able to do.

Drummondville lost only one game at home during the season last year and so far had won them all until they ran into red-hot Andy Payette Thursday. It seems that the Rockets fired everything they had at him but he came up with the saves. In other words he pulled a Joe Lacourse on them.

The Canadiens of Victoriaville have a well balanced crew of experienced players. They added just a few more than last year but it seems the boys are pulling together and that makes the difference.

The Rockets are having difficulties and the injury jinx has hit them. Kenny Biggs has been out with an attack of boils while Bob Houde hurt his shoulder and may be out for a few more games. These two players played a big part in Drummondville's success and their absence has left a big hole.

As for the Beavers it seems to be a case of a few not carrying their share of the load. Some of the squad are definitely not in shape. You just have to look at them in a game and you can spot it right away. Once up the ice and they are puffing like some old men and this doesn't make sense after all the hard workouts they have had.

If the Beavers don't pull up their socks and get down to serious business they may find themselves in the cellar. It looks to us that some of the boys are carrying a little too much weight for their own good and can't keep up with the rest when the going gets tough.

The league is so well balanced just now that any one club can upset the other. Foolish penalties have taken their toll with the Beavers and why some of the players take them is beyond us. Maybe the boys are tired and do it to get a rest, at least that is how it looks.

Anyway Coach Dube will have to do something with his men and one sure thing is he will have to teach them to stay on the ice and cut out taking foolish penalties. Gagnon took one Thursday and this set up the Canadiens' first goal. He jumped right into the air to charge a player and then had the nerve to try and argue with the referee on the call. Maybe it was to try and cover up his blunder. Then Rousseau rammed his elbow into a player's face and again the extra talking.

Things like this are certainly not helping their club and it makes it tough on the others who have to kill off the penalties. You can't win a game in the penalty box and the sooner some of the Beavers learn this maybe it will be better for everybody.

Meteors Here Tomorrow, Rockets Travel To Granby

First Place Tie Is At Stake As Asbestos Clashes With Beavers Tomorrow; Vics Meet Rockets

A first place tie will be at stake here tomorrow afternoon when the Asbestos Meteors clash with Sherbrooke Beavers. In the other tilt Drummondville travels to Granby in what should be a close battle.

If the Meteors manage to pull out a win over the Dube squad it will move them into deadlock for first position in the loop. Victoriaville Canadiens are sitting out in front with a two-point advantage and they have a bye for the weekend.

The Beavers face another tough opponent in the Meteors as Coach Rolland Rousseau will no doubt have his staff all pepped up for the meeting. A victory for the Rousseau men would move them into a two-way stalemate for first spot with the Canadiens.

This will be the second meeting of the clubs and in the first encounter the Beavers rolled to a 4-1 verdict but on their showing the past week or so the Meteors will give the local plenty of trouble. They are a fast-skating outfit and pack plenty of experience.

Claude Bergeron, who attends to the net-minding chores for the Meteors and is the leading goalie in the circuit, will give the Beavers plenty of trouble. He has a good pair of hands and can move around in fine fashion. In eight games he has only been beaten 15 times which speaks well for him.

The tilt at Granby should be a great battle especially since the

Barbara Wagner And Bob Paul, Pairs Team Champions, And Don Jackson Could Win Gold Medals For Canada

Canada hasn't won an Olympic figure skating championship since Barbara Ann Scott dazzled the North American and European scene with footwork in the post-war years. No other athlete had brought Canada such renown as Ottawa's golden-haired beauty.

"BA," now a Chicago beauty parlor operator, climaxed one of the most glittering sports achievements by a Canadian in February, 1948. In a whirlwind 15-day round of championships and skating carnivals, she swept everything in sight — the European, world and Olympic crowns.

She was a world-known personality and the only Canadian to win an Olympic figure skating title. Now, with the 1960 Winter Olympic Games scheduled for Squaw Valley, Calif., Feb. 18-28, Canadians are looking for their second, and possibly third, championship in this ice-doddlng sport.

Experts of the highly complicated manoeuvres on ice are optimistic that 19-year-old Don Jackson of Oshawa, Ont., and the pairs team of Bob Paul and Barbara Wagner of Toronto, could be the next Games' gold medalists. Their records prove they are the best in the country since Barbara Ann's days.

Jackson, who took up the sport 11 years ago, is considered pos-

Hank Aaron Of Milwaukee Wins Batting Championship Of National Loop, Won Title In 1956 First Time

CINCINNATI (AP) — Hammerin' Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves, who led the National League batters from the opening week to the season's end, Saturday was crowned the official champion for 1956.

Aaron wound up with a .355 average to win the senior circuit title for the second time. The Braves' outfielder won his first crown in 1956 with a .328 mark. Joe Cunningham of St. Louis finished second with a .345 average last season, official averages released by National League headquarters disclosed.

Eddie Mathews, another Milwaukee slugger, edged Chicago's Ernie Banks for the home run championship. Mathews hit one in the final playoff game against Los Angeles, giving him 46.

Banks had 45. Ernie led in 1956 with 47. Banks, however, salvaged the 1959 runs batted in crown. He drove in 143 tallies, 14 more than his pace-setting total of 1958.

Aaron is only the third Braves' player to take batting honors in the modern era. The others were Rogers Hornsby in 1928 and Ernie Lombardi in 1942 — when the Braves were still in Boston. Overall, Aaron doubled out 223 hits, including 46 doubles, 7 triples and 39 home runs.

Vada Pinson, Cincinnati's swift sophomore, came off with two highs. He led in doubles with 47 and runs scored, 131. Charley Neal and Wally Moon of the pennant-winning Dodgers tied for the most triples, 11. Neal had the most sacrifice bunts, 21.

Willie Mays of San Francisco led in stolen bases for the fourth straight season, swiping 27. Johnny Temple of Cincinnati had the most sacrifice flies, 13.

Kenny Boyer, St. Louis' stellar third baseman, compiled the longest batting streak, 29 games. Only 12 players among those eligible for the batting title with a minimum of 477 total appearances finished at .300 or better. In addition to Aaron and Cunningham they were: Orlando Cepeda, San Francisco, .317; Pinson, .316; Mays, .313; Temple and teammate Frank Robinson, .311 each; Boyer, .309; Mathews, .306; Banks, .304; Moon and the Cards' Bill White, .302.

Cincinnati had the highest team batting average, .274 and Milwaukee hit the most homers, 177.

Tropical Park Officials Split Dade Handicap

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Twenty entries Friday forced the Tropical Park officials to split the Dade Metropolitan Handicap into two divisions when the six-furlong event for two-year-olds is run today.

Instead of carrying $10,000 in purse money as originally planned, each division will have a purse of $7,500 added.

Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Greek Page, packing 124 pounds, and Wheatley Stable's Bases Full, with 117, head the first division.

The second division features Midas Farm's Ira Eaker and April Fool Farm's April Skies, winners of the two divisions of the Alligator Handicap three weeks ago.

Only 12 players among those eligible for the batting title with a minimum of 477 total appearances finished at .300 or better. In addition to Aaron and Cunningham they were: Orlando Cepeda, San Francisco, .317; Pinson, .316; Mays, .313; Temple and teammate Frank Robinson, .311 each; Boyer, .309; Mathews, .306; Banks, .304; Moon and the Cards' Bill White, .302.

Get The Right Angle For An Accurate Shot

Position Of Stone Key To Backswing

(Canada's "Mr. Curling," Ken Watson of Winnipeg, is covering the Canadian curling scene for the Sherbrooke Record. This is another in a series of 20 articles.)

The most vital and by far the most important trademark of an accurate backswing is the position of the stone on the ice at the commencement of the delivery. Old curlers and new should remind themselves to check this salient point before playing any shot because it represents the crux on which success or failure of accurate broom play hinges.

Because a curling stone with handle weighs approximately 42 pounds the backswing takes the form of a pendulum with the rock hanging from the fingers as it makes the arc from the ice to the top of the swing. If the arc is not in line with the skip's broom, the odds are that the shot
