MORE MUC Police chickens come home to roost. In Town of Mount Royal—and it could just as well, and likely will, happen in Westmount—police patrols are reduced because the available officers are now doubled up, two to a car.

Who says so? The local police director? The town council? The mayor?

Not a bit of it.

The MUC Police director-general? The security council? Chairman Judge Coderre?

Only by indirection.

The Montreal Policemen's Brotherhood Inc.? Union Boss Guy Marcil?

You bet.

THE island-wide outcry against the inapt proposals of the report of Director-General Rene Daigneault to effect police integration likely has stopped implementation, for the present, of the worst-feared steps: those which would strip the suburbs of police stations, vehicles, men and local radio communications.

Child, 4, took Metro

A four-year-old child from the east end of Montreal was found wandering around Alexis Nihon Plaza Saturday at 10:40 am. The child apparently had boarded the Metro near his home at 5717 Delormier boulevard and rode the subway to Atwater.

Westmount Police turned the youngster over to a Montreal policewoman who drove him back home. The parents had already reported the child missing to Montreal Police.

For June 18 elections: St. Henry, most of N.D.G. our school board partners

Westmount's Protestant schools likely will be included in a ward with the eastern sector of Notre Dame de Grace and St. Henry, for purposes of electing a commissioner to the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal (PSBGM).

This fact was revealed Tuesday night at a meeting of the PSBGM, when the proposed electoral map was discussed among representatives to that body. Westmount School Commissioner Mrs. Muriel Kaplan attended the meeting also as a PSBGM commissioner and notified the central board of the feelings of Westmount school commissioners on the subject.

(The Westmount School Board met last week to consider the map at an in-camera session, as reported in The Examiner Jan. 25.)

Petitions continue

A quick survey of distribution of forms and notification of petitions sent indicates that the number of signatures forwarded from Westmount citizens to Premier Bourassa protesting Bill 281 has passed the 5,000 mark.

The petition is sponsored by a protest committee formed by Mrs. H. Vautelet.

A number of petitioners have reported having received acknowledgements from Premier Bourassa's office (See You Say, p. 5.)

Petition forms are still available at the Westmount Public Library, city hall, and THE EXAMINER office.

Quebec ousts six tenants on Greene

A Quebec roads department this morning declined comment upon or explanation of eviction notices given earlier this week to the occupants of six dwellings on Greene avenue adjacent to the Trans-Canada Highway.

The dwellings are in the row of houses on the east side of the street, below Selby street, expropriated by the provincial government for a ramp to the new expressway.

Subsequent representations from citizens and the City of Westmount led to a rerouting of the eastbound access ramp which removed the necessity of demolishing the big stone buildings. They have been partially occupied since by six tenants, embracing approximately 10 persons.

Registered letters delivered this week called for vacating the premises by April 30. No explanation was given.

City hall has had no advice from the provincial authorities.

Car forced

Someone forced their way way into a car parked in front of 376 Redfern avenue last Wednesday morning and walked off with a portable radio and a briefcase left on the seat. Estimated cost of the goods was $300. Westmount Police feel the right front window was pried open with a screwdriver or similar tool.

Solons meet

Westmount city council's statutory February meeting is to take place Monday at 8 pm.

Administration unchanged

Mrs. Kaplan made it clear that the proposed map outlined electoral districts only, but that the six administrative districts now in operation would remain unchanged for the time being.

"The map was approved in principle by the PSBGM," Mrs. Kaplan said, "and may be amended at a special or a general meeting in February before it is finalized. We've urged all the school committees to hold meetings and make constructive criticisms of the proposed map before then."

Westmount will be included in Ward 4, consisting of six school areas: Westmount High, Roslyn, Westmount Park, West Hill High,

Ballet studio resists Quebec threats

A Westmount-based ballet studio, the Seda Zare Professional Ballet Centre at 223a Melville avenue, is operating this year without a permit from the department of education, but with a determined director who has 20 years' standing in the Quebec dance world.

Mme Seda Zare, a resident of 4474 St. Catherine street west, has received threats from the province to prosecute her under laws governing private instructional institutions. She has continued to operate her 20-year-old establishment anyway, although she intends eventually to fill out the necessary documents and post the security bond requirements requested by the department of education.

The department has asked all private institutions to post bonds to cover reimbursement to students if the establishment closes, and sets restrictions to cover safety and validity of purpose for the institutions. Mme Zare feels the laws could be "positive" if they were to set standards for teacher qualifications, but that education department permits should be "earned, not bought."

For Mme Zare, whose studio makes close to $10,000 each year, she would have to post a bond of $2,250, a sum she would have difficulty raising. Many of the questions demanded on government forms do not apply to a studio like hers.

"Since the (classical ballet) dance's first formative systems

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER By ERIC NEAL

February 2 to 10

Icy roads and deep snowbanks remind us that this is still our month of snows. The long term average is 23 inches, but 10 inches each week is more probable this season, even more some places. Heavy falls of powder snow come to an end Monday because the air is dry when night temperatures drop well below zero.

With cold northwest gales, the wide temperature range during the week will give us 25-below-zero nights in the Laurentians and northern counties. South of the river, 30 to 35 degrees Fahr. days and some nights 10 to 15 degrees below zero. Temperatures easing during the weekend for sudden thaw.

Municipal Ward 42, which is the St. Henry district.
 The inclusion of St. Henry in the ward concerned some school commissioners, since few children from that area attend schools in Westmount or NDG.

Free choice of schools

"The ward commissioners will have to represent all their constituents," Mrs. Kaplan noted. "This means they will be looking after St. Henry's interests as well. There will be free movement for the pupils, who can go to any school they want to in the city. We hope they will move even more freely than they do now. But the map is purely for electoral purposes."
 Mrs. Kaplan pointed out that parents will be members of school committees in schools their children attend, but will vote for commissioners in their electoral ward.

The wards generally are drawn up according to pupil populations, and not according to school enrolments in the area. Ward 4 is based on a pupil population of 4,000, slightly higher than most other wards in the city. The lowest number of students are located in LaSalle's Ward 2, which has only 3,100 pupils.

Chairman pleased

Westmount School Board Chairman Mrs. Joan Rothman was quite pleased with the fact that West Hill High School and its feeder schools were in a ward together with Westmount.

"West Hill serves a population that is extremely energetic about its education," she said. "It's much like Westmount."

Mrs. Kaplan said that by leaving administrative districts as they have been, the three Westmount School Committee chairmen would form a parents' committee by themselves. This committee would make decisions affecting the local schools, now the responsibility of the Westmount School Board. Superintendent R.T.B. Fairbairn will remain in his post with this district.

The redistricting of the PSBGM was brought about by the passing of Bill 71 in the Quebec National Assembly late in 1972.

Elections to all island school boards, Protestant and Roman Catholic, take place next June 18. The local Westmount board goes out of existence June 30.

Shoplifting court-skip caught lifting

A Montreal man who had failed to appear in Westmount Municipal Court to face shoplifting charges last month was caught shoplifting again at the Miracle Mart in Alexis Nihon Plaza on Friday afternoon.

Charles Fagan, 48, of Montreal was the subject of a warrant issued Jan. 24 after he had not fulfilled a promise to appear in court on that date.

He was caught on Friday at 4 pm with $17.97 worth of goods he had not paid for. His first theft from the store, Jan. 12, had netted $34.97.

On Saturday Fagan appeared in court to face both charges of shoplifting, and after pleading guilty was sentenced to three months in prison for the offences. He was not charged with having failed to appear in court three days earlier.

Short haul

Three rolls of heavy copper cable were removed from the construction site of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police building on St. Catherine street at Greene avenue last Wednesday morning. The rolls, which held about 100 feet of cable each to be used for elevators in the building, were recovered within half an hour by Westmount Police.

Detectives are still looking for the thieves, however.

Erstwhile 'pal' decamps in car, writes it off

Twenty-five-year-old John Spearing of Montreal was left at the corner of Lansdowne avenue and de Maisonneuve boulevard early Sunday morning when his friend drove off in his 1971 Oldsmobile.

The friend then demolished the car in a two-car mishap at the corner of Decarie and de Maisonneuve boulevards in Montreal.

Mr. Spearing had gotten out of the car momentarily when his friend of years, who was a passenger in the vehicle, took control without Spearing's consent. Spearing complained to Westmount Police about the incident, and there is now a warrant for the arrest of the (former) friend.

Renault 'nut' caught at last on sixth theft

A youth with a reputation for stealing Renault automobiles drove off with one in Westmount Friday afternoon before finally being arrested later that night by Montreal Police.

The 17-year-old stole the 1968 model from in front of 343 Clarke avenue and abandoned the vehicle in the east end of Montreal, where it was recovered at 6:32 pm.

A second Renault was reported stolen from the east end location at about that time. Montreal Police later recovered the vehicle and arrested the youth in another part of the city.

The youth was charged with the theft of five Renaults in Montreal, including the one he was caught with, and one Renault in Westmount.

We Say

It is to be hoped that Mr. Daigneault and his staff already are taking into consideration the realities of policing beyond the core city and suitably revising their recommendations to the security council. Anything less than a crime-preventing, protective police force will continue to encounter vociferous and determined resistance. Meanwhile, however, the best efforts of Mr. Daigneault well may be over-ridden by the contract secretly-negotiated last spring between the MUC security council and the Montreal policemen's union—albeit, as provided for in Quebec's cart-before-horse Bill 281 setting up the MUC Police.

As in other ways in which Bill 281 put first things last, there was no provision for studying existing conditions to determine the kind of force best suited to meet the varied police needs of the island, before attempting integration and its many facets including an omnibus labor contract.

What Mr. Marcil won from Judge Coderre in private last spring was not only enviable pay scales—a principal factor in skyrocketing police costs and unprecedented local tax increases—but the whole packet of City of Montreal police working conditions to be applied inflexibly throughout Mr. Marcil's newly expanded, island-wide jurisdiction.

What Town of Mount Royal suddenly finds itself the victim of is this pat little Article 26.01 in the MUC-Montreal Brotherhood contract:

Two policemen are assigned at all times to patrol cars answering calls.

The contract is riddled with other, similar goodies for the union which effectively deprive, beforehand, Mr. Daigneault of manoeuvrability in planning the best possible MUC Police department.

What is worse, the contract handed on a platter by Bill 281 and by Judge Coderre to the Montreal Policemen's Brotherhood effectively deprived Montreal's MUC partners of any real hope of seeing applied to the new force some of the time-tested, proved practices of the better-policed suburbs.

For example Westmount, and some other island municipalities, have for some time had a four-platoon system of police watches which provides for more reasonable arrangements for time off than does Montreal. This must be scrapped to meet the requirements of the Marcil-Coderre contract.

Marcil-Coderre allows for up to 50 percent of the force being off on vacation in summer. Westmount, and many a suburb, know full well that the summer is when the greatest manpower demands are upon them, particularly the protection of the property of citizens themselves on vacation. It is not by accident or by a Marcil-type contract that, despite being a prime burglary target, Westmount enjoys a remarkably low break-and-entry loss record.

JUSTICE Minister Jerome Choquette has promised some form of budgetary responsibility of the security council to the MUC council. He has not vouchsafed what changes he is proposing in Bill 281. But certainly the time is now for a hard, realistic look at Bill 281 in many of its ramifications.

Heading the list should be a moratorium on all attempts at integration—except those which may be effected without dislocation of existing police service to the citizens of the community—until the necessary studies are made, a plan is drawn up in detail, it is agreed (not mandatorily rubber-stamped) by the MUC council, and then implemented by a clearly understood, manageable timetable.

Meanwhile, the status quo should be maintained: existing directors left to direct their departments under the authority of the local municipal councils, who best know the police requirements of their communities.

And it will be essential, of course, that Mr. Choquette's amendments provide that, the policemen's brotherhood contract notwithstanding, there be no conditions of work imposed on the municipalities which affect methods or strength of patrols, shift arrangements or any other policing routines of the constituent forces.

The Quebec government has the opportunity not merely to correct its own mistakes, but to demonstrate its willingness to abandon the principle of imposition and, instead, respond to the needs and wishes of citizens.

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

I have lived in Westmount since I settled in Quebec in 1968 and I am writing this letter to you as a citizen of Westmount.

Westmount is a rather unique city, as it can offer its citizens maximum protection.

our M.P.

Hon. C. M. Drury

says...

The Mackenzie valley pipeline

The proposed 2,500-mile pipeline which will transport natural gas from the Alaskan north slope and the Mackenzie delta to the southern Canadian and American markets has become the object of widespread public scrutiny in Canada.

The federal government is involved in the environmental, economic and sociological aspects of the Canadian north. It will have to ensure that the dangers posed to the delicate ecological balance during the construction phase are successfully averted. At the same time, the government must give careful consideration to the project's economic implications to the northern community.

Thirdly, the government will have to ensure that those native peoples who choose to maintain the traditional lifestyles of trapping and hunting will be able to do so, as well as to offer short- and long-term opportunities to those wishing to seek the advantages of a wage economy. Public hearings will be held by the government to allow the native peoples a full voice in these and related decisions.

Future requirements studied

The Canadian government must also decide upon the question of future Canadian energy requirements. The rate of development of new "reserves" (i.e., resources which can be brought to market) in western Canada relative to Canadian demand indicate that the development of new supply sources is in the national interest.

There is no question that Canada possesses very substantial recoverable resources of fossil fuel, including natural gas, but these must be developed and made available for the consumption by the Canadian market to preclude shortages. This was the position taken by the National Energy Board in a ruling made in November 1971.

Thus, northern Canadian gas is essential to ensure adequate supplies for Canadian needs. But this can only be economically obtained if the pipeline also serves the much larger American market. This is readily apparent when one considers that the proposed pipeline will be able to deliver up to 4 billion cubic feet per day, whereas last year's Canadian demand averaged only 3 billion per day.

In no way will Canadian gas reserves which are not designated as surplus be exported to the U.S. and in no way will the Canadian government enter into a continental energy policy whereby both the reserves and the shortages will be shared by both countries. It is also worth bearing in mind that a major portion of the gas to be transported by the pipeline will be from Alaska and intended for U.S. markets.

Americans share in cost

In this way, the Americans will be paying for a substantial part of the construction cost during the early days of the pipeline's operations.

The government is insisting that management and a substantial portion of the ownership remain in Canadian hands. The consortium already has indicated that it is extremely hopeful that 51 percent of the equity capital will be Canadian. Formal legal control by Canada can be ensured through existing regulatory agencies.

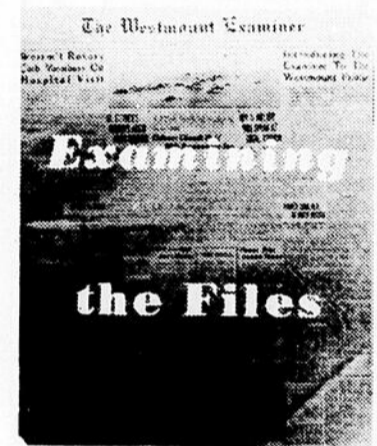

In addition, it is expected that the participation of Canadian firms engaged in the engineering and construction phases of the project will be very high in order that they can develop a marketable expertise for future projects in Canada and elsewhere.

Great care will have to be taken to ensure that the heavy demand on equipment and machinery in Canada will not be unduly inflationary. There is also a real danger that the large amounts of borrowing on Canadian capital markets will drive up domestic interest rates: at the same time, the funds borrowed abroad could cause the Canadian dollar to rise well above the American dollar.

The government has created a special advisory committee to study the effects of these and other problems affecting the Canadian economy.

An application for construction of the pipeline and transmission of the gas will be presented by the 25-company consortium to the National Energy Board next summer. It is expected that the hearings, which will be public, will last approximately a year and a half, during which time it can be determined whether these problems have been resolved and the government's conditions have been met.

"Westmount Rotary gained an insight into the hotel business Wednesday when they were addressed by Donald M. Mumford, general manager of the soon to be opened Queen Elizabeth Hotel. Mr. Mumford described the facilities of the hotel as 'second to none,' and predicted that it will bring to Montreal many convention dollars that had previously been reserved for such cities as New York, Chicago and Toronto."

"In a series of raids in Chateauguay, Ville St. Pierre and Montreal East, Westmount Police this week recovered between $1,500 to $2,000 worth of tools and new car parts which had been stolen last summer from Girard Automobile Inc., 372 Victoria avenue. Westmount's Chief Inspector A. E. Jones said yesterday that the recovered tools were found in garages throughout Montreal Island. Still being sought are the thieves who broke into the garage."

Now, on the basis of many news items that I have read on the subject, integration of police forces in the Montreal Urban Community would result in a substantial increase of the taxpayers' burden coupled with a reduction of police protection. Westmount would even be deprived of its own police station. I think this is both unfair and absurd.

Undoubtedly, Mr. Prime Minister, you are aware that a large number of important businessmen live in Westmount; by the same token, you wish to attract new investments in Quebec; you want the existing business to develop. But I do not believe that such a policy is likely to attract investors from outside Quebec or to give those who are already established an encouragement to remain in this Province.

We all know that the financial situation of the City of Montreal is anything but rosy. Should not the trouble be treated at the source, rather than penalizing cities that have demonstrated their ability to organize themselves?

When I came to Canada, I was under the impression that this was a country where free enterprise was given all possible help. Now I find that our government is changing slowly but surely to become more and more socialistic and control-ridden, as in Europe.

May I respectfully ask you, Mr. Prime Minister, to register my complaint.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. Vautelet disclaims words attributed to her

Sir: Mr. Ouimet telephoned me here this morning, exercised over a phrase that appears in this issue of The Examiner—which I left Montreal too early to read myself.

I am searching my mind to find what I could have said that might have sounded like "You're corrupted." I do know that I talk very fast and in conversation with you later might have said something that registered as "corrupted"—possibly, since I believe it, that we have, as democrats, corrupted the principles of democracy our forefathers left us.

I know, however, that I said nothing at all—merely smiled an acknowledgment after Paul Ouimet thanked me and, since I have not the slightest feeling of the sort, never accused the city council of corruption even in chit-chat after the meeting. If I had felt it, you can be sure I would have said it in my talk and underlined it. Moreover, I do talk a lot, but

Something I want to say:

Quebec seeks help from no one

By ANDY DODGE

The example set by the City of Westmount in asking other cities for information about their participation in social services should shine in the halls of the provincial government these days, as it blunders along on its own, seeking help from no one.

The Province of Quebec is coming out of a long sleep into the 20th century, setting regulations for individuals and municipalities and trying to adapt to a modern-day reality. The situation has been complicated by the awakening of French-Canadians to the fact that they should be in control of their own destinies.

As Quebec has grown it has not become more and more a member of the North American community, but rather has tried to isolate itself, first by trying to impose direction upon education institutions. Now other facilities are coming under its thumb.

Attempt at McGill

While an undergraduate at McGill, I watched the department of education determine, through devious means, the type of student it wanted the university to produce. I was quite deeply involved, for two years, in the government attempt to close out non-Quebec students by introducing a five-year university requirement and later by forcing tuition hikes.

Now I come to Westmount and find the government taking away local control of police forces, centralizing taxi services,

Sir: Your recent editorials have forcibly presented the case against public housing in Westmount and now draw satisfaction from a resolution of the Urban Renewal Implementation Advisory Committee endorsing a similar position.

Possibly you, as well as present members of the committee, have forgotten that the expressed reason for the Westmount urban renewal study was the imperative need to make provision for the rehousing of the residents of Selby street, displaced by the clearance procedures of the provincial highways department.

True, no legal stricture obliged the city council to assume this responsibility but to its credit it would not overlook the fact that 250 Westmount families, through no fault of their own were being uprooted and obliged to leave their community. These families it should be noted, according to census figures, held something of a national record for length of continuous residence in their homes.

Whatever else residents of the entire 90 acres of the urban renewal zone may have found to question in the several stages through which the program passed—and heaven knows, they provided your paper with a major source of copy for many a week—the proposal to resettle the evicted families within the city's boundaries never figured among such questions. If anything, it was the fate of the Selby street residents that gave substance to the fears of the people living in the southern sector who now found themselves designated for renewal.

It gave backbone to the residents of Prospect and Clondeboye faced with eviction for a power station; it stiffened the resistance of the families from Atwater to Hollowell who found themselves offered to the mercies of a now bankrupt development corporation. What happened on Selby street was not going to happen again.

And in all this time of anxiety when, month to month, one crisis followed another, when citizen participation made itself a fact in Westmount civic affairs, first to be suspected but latter to be welcomed, in all this time, the residents of the urban renewal area were loyally supported by the representatives of the Selby families, the Westmount Tenants Association and its tireless president, Al Fisher. Since their dispersal, Al has kept constantly in touch with his fellow residents, representing them in countless meetings concerned with the urban renewal program, working with other members of the community, the city and its consultants to achieve a worthy conclusion to the program.

I cannot hope to express to you the shame I have experienced in reading the scornful and derogatory terms in which these citizens have been pictured in the pages and editorials of The Examiner. At public meetings call by city council or WMA, these good people are openly vilified as if they were without ears to hear or hearts to hurt. Throughout this past year, Westmounters have displayed a behavior with respect to people, of whom they know little and care even less, that can only be described as indecent.

In the past decade, highway projects, street widenings and ambitious redevelopment programs have destroyed 15,000 dwellings in the metropolitan area. Fifteen thousand units that housed low income families were withdrawn from the housing stock. Their only source of replacement has been the housing efforts of the City of Montreal for, while we have witnessed a spate of private building activity it has produced an abundance of non-family units and all beyond the means of those in need.

Every task force, every housing inquiry in the past five years has pointed irrefutably to the fact that housing has become a commodity out of reach for families of moderate means and even the almost total re-writing of the National Housing Act now before the House of Commons fails to offer hope to families with incomes below $8,000 per year. That, let us appreciate, includes 40 percent of all Canadian families.

The subsidy of housing is a principle that is accepted almost universally and in this country by whatever political party, though the form it might take is open to debate, be it assisted home ownership, non-profit corporations, public housing or rent supplement programs. The last of these, the rent supplement, which would offer citizens the opportunity to locate where they would choose, is not envisaged in the new legislation, possibly because it is felt that it would not increase the housing stock and that its inflationary pressure would bid up the price of housing with little resulting benefit—at least to the consumer.

In municipalities where the price of existing housing is high and the difference between the market rent of property and the purchasing ability of potential residents is too great, families of modest means are virtually excluded as governments at all levels are obviously unwilling to opt for rent supplement as the method of subsidy when this implies greater expenditure than is to be found in other options.

Such is the situation in Westmount today. It is true that many families, that can in no way be classed as wealthy, working people, purchased their home in this municipality; many did so at a time when interest rates did not border on usury and benefit from the long amortized security of their tenure. In a similar age, others accepted rental as a practical form obtaining accommodation—as do 75 percent of all Quebecers. After all, being a landlord was considered a respectable occupation, so surely we can accept the notion that being a tenant does not necessarily imply irresponsibility!

With the destruction of Selby street, the stock of available low rent housing in the city virtually disappeared and to the families (for God's sake stop calling them Selbyites, it sounds like the dirty epithets hurled by racists on either side of Bogside) to these families the municipality could offer no alternative accommodation.

The mayor and council have chosen to make accommodation available using the vehicle of public housing. They have retained the services of a first rate architect and worked closely with the future residents of the project in a worthy model of participation. They have reclaimed land which in its present state is detrimental to the neighborhood and have attempted to integrate housing of family scale and character in an area that was being nibbled away by high rise and commercial development. Most important, they are meeting their social responsibility in a personal and concrete fashion that does honor to us all.

I have made little demand on your space till now I trust you will find it possible to print these comments in full in your next issue

Mr. Bourassa replies to city petitions

(A copy of the following letter, dated Jan. 23, has been provided to The Examiner.)

Mrs. Jacqueline Meunier
15 De Casson Road
Westmount, Que.

Dear Mrs. Meunier:

The Prime Minister, Mr. Robert Bourassa, has asked me to acknowledge receipt of your recent petition concerning the integration of police forces of the Montreal Urban Community.

Mr. Bourassa wishes to point out that Director Daigneault's recommendations are not necessarily binding, as his report must be submitted to the Security Council of the MUC.

Provisions are made available within the framework of Bill 281 (Section 53, chapter 93, Quebec Statutes 1971) which permit interested parties to express their opinions.

Upon receipt of the recommendations, the Security Council approves it, with or without amendments. If a municipality, a police association or public servants wish to appeal the decision, they may do so before the Police Commission within 15 days following the mailing of notices by the MUC.

You can, therefore, make use of the rights provided to you by the law, in order to make your opinion known to the authorities.

Yours truly,
Lawrence Cannon

Associate Private Secretary
Office of the Prime Minister,

St. Andrew's Ballet . . . membership on the rise

A well attended annual meeting last Sunday heard reports of progress in all areas during 1972 at St. Andrew's United Church.

For the second year there has been a net gain in church membership, with 854 persons listed on church rolls. Givings to "outreach" causes beyond the congregation increased over 1972 to a total of $25,865.

New chairmen elected include E.J. Vorman, 255 Metcalfe ave, administrative board; T.E. Munford, 752 Upper Belmont avenue, outreach committee; Mrs. A.C. Scott, 500 Elm avenue, program committee; D.C. McLeod, 320 Kensington ave, membership committee, and A.C. Clark, 3009 Barat road, worship committee.

Six new elders were elected: Miss I. Sherman, Dr. E. B. Copland, K.J. Thorne, H. Hodges, G. Luney and A. McLeod. It was announced that Ross Canavan was recently elected clerk of session replacing D.O. Bremner.

On Sunday evening St. Andrew's was the locale of the annual ecumenical gathering of the Westmount churches marking the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, with 175 persons from local congregations took part in a social period and discussion groups. During a concluding service, Scripture lessons were read by Mayor Paul Ouimet and Maurice Bradley, representing Interfaith.

This Sunday's sermon to be given by Rev. E.A. Kirker at the 11 am service, will deal with the question "Is Humanism Outdated?"

Ballet . . .
qualified official establishments in Paris in 1661," Mme Zare says, "the dance has always been respected as an autonomous group. To those of us who were started in the spirit of the system there is only the ideal to pursue. The better we perceive and transfer these ideals the more qualified we become."

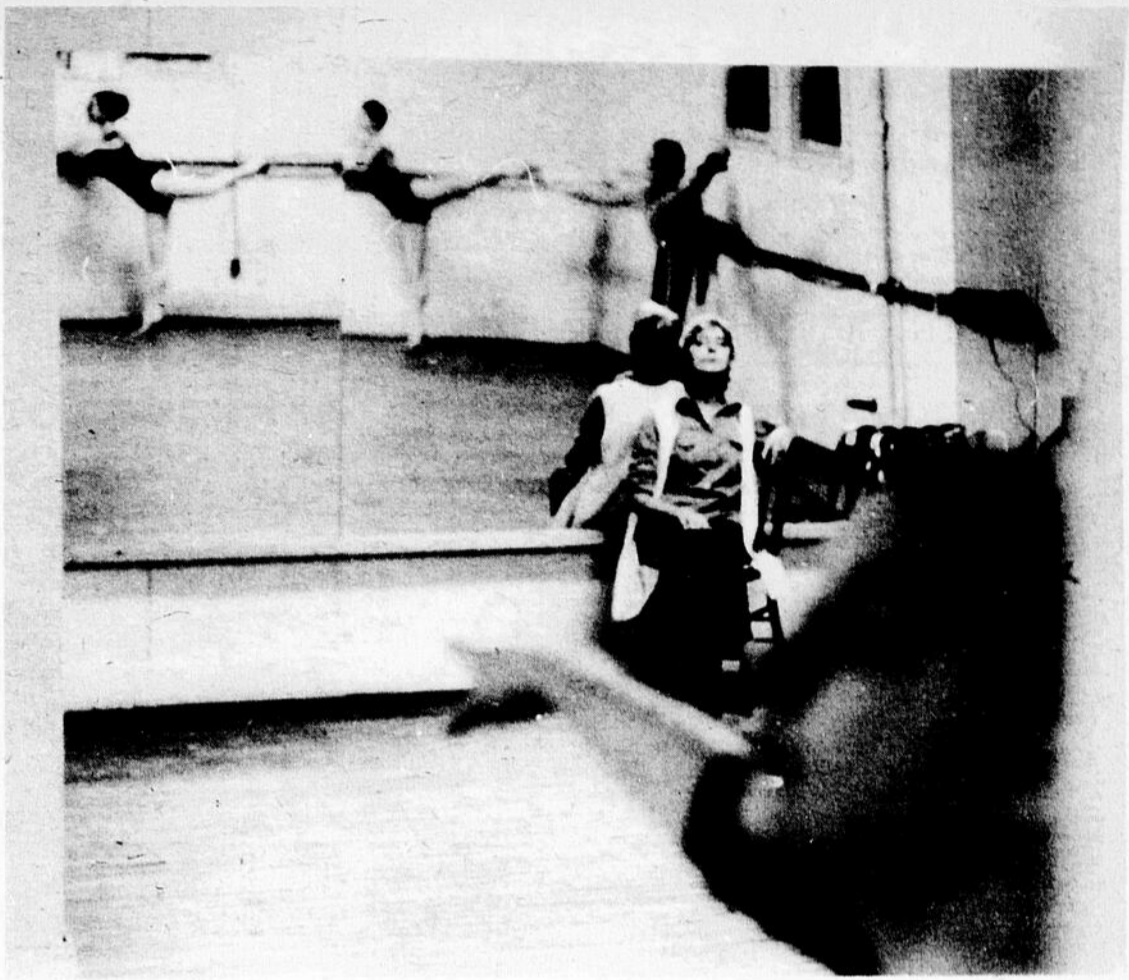

Mme Zare is the classical ballet "representative" for private schools to the Federation des Loisirs-Danses de Quebec, an organization to promote and supervise professional dance and instruction in the province. The federation already has suggested the establishment of a council in the education ministry to establish and oversee guidelines for dance instruction in public and private institutions; it has not received a reply during the past seven months.

Mme Zare claims credit for having developed well-known ballet artists Tommy Scott, Betsy Margolik, Betty Todd and Alain Vautrain. Westmount's own Alan McVey began his climb to ballet fame from the Seda Zare studio.

Mme Zare, or Russian-Armenian descent, began her dancing career at the London Garden School and spent several years in Germany before moving to Westmount.

Four others axed

"I'm not so much interested in myself," Mme Zare said, "as with the future of dance in this province." Four other private ballet studios in the province, some run by founders and participants of the Grands Ballets Canadiens, also received the axe from the education minister. Most of these groups are seeking recourse through Mme Zare and the federation. "Such an independent body as the federation would be the natural channel to direct and at the same time to protect the teachers," Mme Zare reflected, noting that the federation would be able to identify more clearly qualifications for teaching not only classical ballet but modern, jazz and other forms. The Federation des Loisirs-Danses also has sections dealing with folk and ballroom dancing, among other types.

Mme Zare explained that the bond demanded by the government was instituted after the Arthur Murray Dance School, which demanded immediate tuition from its members upon enrolment, declared bankruptcy and walked off without refunding hapless students who had not received much instruction.

"We're not in the same category with them at all," Mme Zare declared. "We're a professional program to improve the art of dancing in the province. Such an ignorance of things—it's incredible!"

As a 20-year veteran of the Quebec dance scene (she has lived in Westmount throughout), Mme Zare has made a name for herself among organizations and programs striving to improve the art in the province. Beside her representation with the federation, she is also a counsellor to l'Association des Enseignants de la Danse au Quebec. She has made several trips to South America, where she has participated in instruction and promotion of the art.

Four programs run

Her Westmount studio runs four different programs of instruction during a normal week, one for children under 10, one for children 10-14, one for adult beginners and one for more serious professional aspirants. The latter group works out every night during the week, while others are scheduled once or twice a week. Mme Zare teaches classes classical form, while Michel Martin, 4516 St. Catherine street, teaches jazz ballet and Margaret Goldstein teaches modern style.

The studio is also used by performers who need to rehearse before an appearance, according to Mme Zare.

Several well-known artists have passed through the studio, Mme Zare noted in proving her qualifications. Such names as Michel Conte, Marie Cote and Helen McKergow have received instruction there.

Children trace Roslyn's library start

By ANN PRINCE and SARAH STANLEY

Roslyn School Library began in 1960 when the Home and School Association felt there was a need for a reference library in the school. The group all got together and raised about $1,500 to buy books.

The present librarian, Mrs. Margaret Stronach, agreed to assist in selecting the books. She was able, with another parent who was also a librarian, to make the library available to the pupils for three afternoons a week.

The next step was to bring in all the books from the classroom libraries. The first books were non-fiction and reference books. Fiction and easy-to-read books were added later as budgets permitted. Books are purchased from an annual library grant from the school board based on school enrolment.

The librarian acted for a short time as a volunteer but was then appointed as a regular member of the staff. She began by working at Roslyn School, for two and a half days per week but is now there for three days a week. She also acts as a librarian at Westmount Park School. Volunteers staff the library on days that Mrs. Stronach is not at Roslyn School.

The library has approximately 7,000 books. French books are continually being added to the collection to serve the needs of the students in the immersion program. The addition of film strips, phono-discs and cassette tapes has already begun.

All students use the library. Some classes come in on a regular schedule, while individual pupils can come any time during the day and after school to work.

Ann Prince, 4643 Sherbrooke street, and Sarah Stanley, 608 Argyle avenue, are both 9-year-old students in Grade 4 at Roslyn School. They wrote the article voluntarily, out of their own interest in the library and their wish to tell others about it. They gathered the information with the help of Mrs. Stronach.

'20s-style fun at Found Objects

With antique-collecting mushrooming as a hobby for all ages, one of the most interesting shops to sprout up is Found Objects, specializing in '20s-style clothes and furniture.

Located on Sherbrooke near Victoria, it is co-owned by Ralph Wiseman, 26, and Alma White Beckler, 40.

Found Objects was originally the brain-child of Mrs. White Beckler, but on changing location from her Cavendish boulevard store, she joined forces with Ralph Wiseman, an antique furniture dealer. The result is an exciting potpourri of art deco and antique lace arranged on two separate show levels.

Mr. Wiseman feels that the revival of the movies of the '20s and '30s gradually created a nostalgia that extended into present lifestyles through fashions and finally through furniture, thus changing the environment. He usually suggests buying a lamp as a start to decorating in the art deco style. The unusual construction of the shades and stands provides a refreshing change from the modern world of neon and chrome.

The majority of their clientele are young people, but older customers are especially delighted to browse around in an atmosphere reminiscent of their childhood. Some even dash off and return with clothes or ornaments found in their attics and sell them to the store. So dig into those trunks; who knows, you may come up with a priceless piece of memorabilia.

'Strange odor' is incense

This week's call to the Westmount Fire Brigade for a "strange odor" came at 11:14 am Friday. Firefighters investigated a call from 4921 Sherbrooke street west, where residents reported a "strange smell of gas."

The firemen at first smelled nothing, but eventually tracked down some incense burning in a bedroom. The incense was extinguished.

4424 Inc. carries on its work in well refurbished building

By ANDY DODGE

The 4424 Youth Centre needs money to stay alive. Despite recent news that the City of Westmount is paying the director's salary through March, and although private contributions are enough to keep the building open, youth and workers cannot see very far into the future.

"We're like mountain goats," explained Mrs. Marjorie Bedoukian, director of the centre, "jumping from crag to crag." Somehow the operation has stayed open since March 15, 1970, in varying degrees.

The open invitation extended last month to Westmount citizenry to visit the building was accepted by The Examiner last week. There was not much of a lineup for the guided tour.

Excellent condition

The building itself is in excellent condition despite a certain amount of graffiti on the walls of the downstairs common room, which is open only when there is supervision. Board member Uly Van der Walde, chairman of the house committee, "has done a tremendous amount—voluntarily—in terms of repairing plaster, fixing the walls, and painting the inside," according to Mrs. Bedoukian. "The house is in better condition now than it ever has been."

The centre is open on weekday afternoons and evenings for youth with medical and psychological problems or for those who simply want a place to go after school. Despite the seeming "hangout" nature of the centre during afternoons, Mrs. Bedoukian deals regularly with youth having psychological or social problems.

During one two-week period recently, for example, Mrs. Bedoukian recorded 89 male visitors and 43 female callers for counselling in her office upstairs. These do not include medical visits, records of which are kept separately, for gynecological and physical help sought by youth at the centre.

Counselling offered by Mrs. Bedoukian, who is a psychiatric social worker, ranges from family situations to girl-boy problems to school problems to difficulties with drugs.

"A number of parents come here as well," she noted. "Maybe they have some sort of difficulty at home, or maybe they think their kids are having problems." If the parents do not initiate the visit, she will only ask them in "if the boy or girl agrees." She prefers, she said, to have the children bring their parents with them when the need arises.

The drug situation

Drug problems, according to Mrs. Bedoukian, are not disproportionate in the number of cases she works with. Most students nowadays are into "downers"—barbiturates available normally by prescription—which serve to "wipe out the realities around them."

Mrs. Bedoukian is running a small "world experimental inventory," a psychological research project involving the students she is counseling. The study, which now involves 45 students, is "a way of monitoring progress" in terms of psychological and social rehabilitation.

The studies, experiments and success of the centre have not gone unrecognized in the Montreal community. Mrs. Bedoukian has been asked by Christ Church Cathedral to sit on a committee concerned with transients on the lawn of the downtown religious establishment. A drug treatment centre on Cote des Neiges in Montreal, "Alternatives," has asked the centre for help in dealing with youth.

"I think this place has developed enough credibility," Mrs. Bedoukian suggested, "if we're being asked to sit on these types of committees."

She is able to spend time counseling individuals thanks to the group work and supervision provided by two social work students, Mike Crelinsten and Marian Emo.

Open, closed sessions

Mr. Crelinsten is running both "open" and "closed" group sessions twice a week; the first session, with no limitations for the youth and little structure, runs after school on Wednesday and Friday; the closed sessions are held those evenings.

The "open-ended group" is a "growing process," according to Mr. Crelinsten. "People have the opportunity to reach out to each other a little more easily. You could say it's a hotbed for human communication."

Many of these students, he explained, are just beginning to develop a sense of self-identity and social awareness. At 4424 their attempts to relate to others will not be stifled, as they often are in the larger community.

Despite the theory behind the "open" session, there is no way of telling how effective it is, since there are no criteria with which to measure it. "It's preventative," Mrs. Bedoukian suggested. "We don't know where these kids would be if they weren't here, or how they would develop. Each one is an individual."

The relaxed nature of the session—many youth play cards or chess, talk in the corner away from the rest of the group, or sit by themselves and watch—does have two rigid rules. The room is never without either Mr. Crelinsten or Miss Emo to supervise the activities. If they are both sick or otherwise engaged, the door is locked and the session is called off.

Drugs are strictly prohibited. If any are found in the room, 4424 is locked and no youths allowed in for 24 hours. "Three or four kids have tested me on the rule," Mr. Crelinsten reported, "but we've found no dope here in about two months."

Not 'tea groups'

The closed sessions are run by Mr. Crelinsten between 6:30 and 7:30 pm and include eight youth. The sessions are not exactly "tea groups," he explains, because the youth often discuss problems not directly related to themselves and the dynamics of their interaction with each other. Students are "trying to develop a sense of trust among each other," he says, "to the point where we can risk telling others about ourselves."

The group includes sensitivity experiments and "intensive" group therapy.

Marian Emo is working for a social aide diploma from Dawson College, and using 4424 for her field work. She has worked with many students on "role playing"—a difficult exercise where the youth step out of their own roles and adapt the attitudes of others. "It makes them aware of how other feel—about them or anybody else."

Miss Emo also has organized a "legal night" to give the youth a chance to talk to criminal lawyers about problems they may have or wish to know about.

Although her eight-week requirement for Dawson was completed recently, Miss Emo said she would stay through January "and even into February and March."

Long-term relationships

"You develop a long-term relationship with these kids," she said, adding "it's sort of an indirect type of counseling." Although some of the more difficult cases are turned over to Mrs. Bedoukian, there are many times when youth simply need someone to talk to; Miss Emo finds many of these.

"Where can they go if they're messed up?" she asked rhetorically. "If they can't get their parents to commit them to a hospital, they might end up on the street or in jail. You can't see any results here. But it's prevention."

Miss Emo and Mr. Crelinsten are not worried that they lack the professional qualifications many people look for in such a setting (Mrs. Bedoukian pointedly plays down her own). "The most important things," Mr. Crelinsten said, "are sensitivity, patience, compassion—the innate skills. Professional skills can be learned."

Mr. Crelinsten has been with the centre since September, doing field work for his social work studies at McGill. "I'd like to continue my placement here for another year," he said. "I've got a number of projects started, and I'd like to continue them."

"This is one of the most successful experiments in the city," Mr. Crelinsten surmised. "That's proven by its mere survival."

Although the medical clinic in the centre was not open when the The Examiner made its visit, 4424 staff were quick to kill the notion that there were any abortions carried out there, and no methadone is dispensed to addicts. Only gynecological and regular medical treatment is provided.

VD 'in proportion'

Venereal disease, according to Mrs. Bedoukian, is "in proportion" to the number of cases received in regular hospitals. The clinic reports how many cases it receives to Quebec Health officials, but not to Westmount's medical officer, Dr. Antoine Valois.

"We have an advantage there," Mrs. Bedoukian said, noting that the cases are not public information within the city. "The kids trust us more than a hospital, so they're willing to bring in their contacts."

4424 Inc. is looking for ideas and suggestions from the community to increase the number of social events available to the youth. The lack of staff prevents them from organizing more activities, and volunteers would be readily appreciated.

The open invitation still stands for citizens to visit the centre.

Firemen on hop in cold

Yesterday's cold weather created a busy morning for the Westmount Fire Brigade, who had to answer two calls for broken water pipes caused by freezing.

The calls were among five to which the firemen responded; two of the others were false alarms.

The fire brigade had just returned from a false alarm at 100 Summit circle when they were called at 9:40 am to take care of a ruptured pipe at 345 Victoria avenue. The men turned off the water, called a plumber, and carried out salvage work at that address.

Forty minutes later, at 10:20, they were called to do the same thing at 4026 Dorchester boulevard.

While answering the second call, some of the trucks were sent to 500 Claremont avenue to attend to a furnace which had had a delayed ignition, thus filling with oil. Returning from that call, they then answered an alarm at Alexis Nihon Plaza, which turned out to be false.

Eventually the firemen were able to return to 4026 Dorchester boulevard to finish cleaning up there before going back to their stations at 12:50 pm.

No other fire calls were reported during the afternoon and evening.

French courses are offered at St. Leon's

The adult education department of the Montreal Catholic School Commission will offer again here evening courses in French conversation.

At St. Leon de Westmount, 360 Clarke avenue, courses offered are beginner, intermediate, advanced I and advanced II. Most courses are given two nights a week according to the following schedule.

Monday and Wednesday, from 5:15 to 8 pm.

Monday and Wednesday, from 7:30 to 10:15 pm.

Tuesday and Thursday, from 5:15 to 8 pm, and

Tuesday and Thursday, from 7:30 to 10:15 pm.

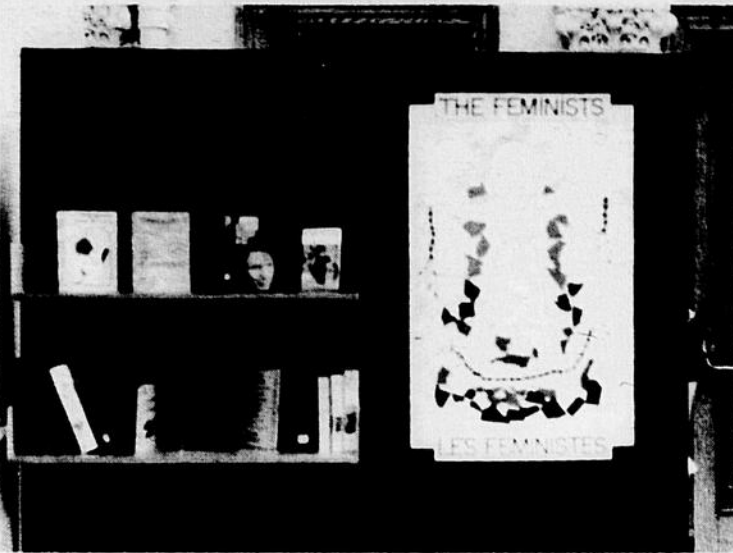

Saint Leon de Westmount is a school equipped with a language laboratory and the methods employed are of the most modern in audio-visual techniques. Also, in order to maintain the highest quality of teaching, all our personal have specialized in the methodology of teaching French as a second language.

In the case of business or groups of students who may wish to have a specialized schedule between 5:15 and 10:15, the department of adult education has the facilities to arrange this.

Those interested in registering may do so on Feb. 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 from 5 to 9 pm. Courses last 90 hours. For further information, call 525-2531.

Impromptu rink

A pipe burst inside a garage located at 3781 The Boulevard Tuesday night, spilling water out onto the road where it froze. Westmount Police were quick to stop the flow, and the city salted the pavement before any accidents occurred.

'SEX' REARS HEAD AT LIBRARY: Current special display of books at the Westmount Public Library is on the female world, the women's revolution, and related female mystique matters—works of interest to all sides of the liberation movement, perhaps even to those from whom liberatees have been liberated by the liberators.

Elementary students get 'professional days'

Westmount elementary students were graced with holidays—"professional days"—on Thursday and Friday last week, and will be able to take the day off again on Feb. 26.

The two days marked the approximate half-way point for the 1972-73 school year. Some of the time was spent in parent-teacher conferences to discuss the progress of individual students, although most was spent by teachers in workshops at Roslyn and Westmount Park schools.

Roslyn teachers spent most of Thursday in meetings with parents, and then travelled Friday to Somerled School's instructional media centre, was set up by the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal. The teachers are being asked for ideas to bring back to Westmount for the establishment of audio-visual "learning centres" here.

Westmount Park School teachers spent Thursday morning at "in-service training courses" in music and handwriting, before meeting with parents that afternoon. Friday morning was the occasion for workshops in social studies and math, while the afternoon was spent "bringing ideas together" about an audio-visual centre at the school.

A "professional day" will be held at Westmount High School on Feb. 16, generally to allow teachers to mark papers and "round out" the term. Workshops will also be held on that day.

"Professional days" are a regular part of each school year, as stipulated in the department of education's Regulation 7. A

Two teenagers apprehended damaging auto

Two teenagers from Ville d'Anjou were caught early one recent morning outside Dawson College inflicting damage on a private car parked on Selby street.

The youths, 19 and 17, were apprehended at 1 am by Public Safety Officers Jensen and White, who said the two had been drinking. One was caught inside the car, while the other was standing nearby.

The adult in the case, John Burgess, pleaded guilty yesterday in Westmount Municipal Court, and is making restitution to the owner of the vehicle. The juvenile was turned over to his father.

maximum of 20 such days is allowed during the year, although many occur just before students start classes and just after they leave for summer holidays. Another, March 30, marks the annual convention of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers.

Days during the year are generally declared by the principals of the schools involved, in consultation with their school councils. Letters announcing the two most recent "professional days" were sent to parents in mid-January.

Rev. E.M. Taylor data is sought by historians

The Brome County Historical Society plans to celebrate the 125th anniversary of Rev. Ernest Manley Taylor, 1848-1941 a distinguished and beloved figure in Brome county and the eastern Town-ships, with the publication of a biographical pamphlet and aweries of events designed to perpetuate his memory.

Many Westmount families, down through the years, have had summer residences on the borders of Brome lake, a key attractive feature of the county.

Dr. Taylor was well-known for his work as inspector of schools in the county, a position he held for 41 years between 1889 and 1930, as well as for his service in churches of Beebe, Hatley, Melbourne, Mattawa and Chambly. He was also one of the founding fathers of the Brome County Historical Society, serving as its secretary-treasurer from 1898 to 1939.

As a founder of the historical society, Taylor carefully collected historical articles and documents, including artifacts about pioneer life and early settlements, education, agriculture, manuscripts, deeds, ledgers, diaries, letters, genealogy, books, utensils, machines, microfilms, monuments, buildings, a war museum with a german Fokker biplane and even Indian artifacts. He produced a two-volume history of Brome, the second volume published in his 89th year.

The Historical Society is eagerly looking for any and all former students of his schools, and would be pleased to hear from them at its office in Knowlton.

Noise, theft of books plague library of WHS

By MARK ELLWOOD

Last week Westmount High School students were writing exams and as a result there wasn't any news from any of the activities. However, students still had to study and because the library is one of the main places that they go to do it, I did some research there.

The library is frequented by many who wish to study before and after school and at lunchtime during regular school days, although it also attracts those who play chess and poker, and other who come just to meet and talk to their friends.

These groups find various ways to raise the noise level in the library and often disturb others trying to work. Mrs. Windsor, the librarian, believes that students should be allowed to talk a little but that those who make excessive noise should go elsewhere, perhaps to a student lounge or to an empty classroom.

The Chess Club already has tried using classroom but been thrown out of two for leaving a mess, and had to resort to using the library.

And nothing has been heard of the group that was looking for a suitable location for a student lounge.

Many students agreed

Many students feel the same way that Mrs. Windsor does — that noisy people should not be allowed in the library.

Another problem Mrs. Windsor has to contend with is stolen books. She receives from $4,000 to $5,000 a year for new books and figures that "possibly one quarter" of that is wasted in stolen books. But she does not want to guard the door to check for students carrying off books,

Westmount High School NEWS

nor does she want to control the noise level by disciplinary measures.

In short students and teachers alike need to have a little more respect for the library and ought to co-operate with the librarian by returning books on time and by trying to keep reasonably quiet while in the library.

So ends my preaching for this week.

Weredale puts down Caughnawaga

By DAVE PETERS

The floor hockey season had a successful start for the Weredale entry in the Quebec Floor Hockey League on Tuesday night, as the team defeated a strong Caughnawaga team by a score of nine to four. Keith Villeneuve gave a brilliant performance in the nets, and Ross Ingram with three goals and Wayne Paris with two led a strong offensive attack.

Two nights later Weredale crushed an extremely weak team from Verdun VERM 35 to seven in an exhibition game. VERM, however, is not an entry in the league. Terry Peters led the scoring with eight goals on a night when everyone had at least one goal.

This Tuesday night Weredale plays a home game against Dawson's Boys' Club, a strong team in past years. The coach and players are optimistic, though, and confident of a win. The team is extremely well-balanced this year and have been practising very hard as of late. So far it has paid off, and this could be the year Weredale brings the championship cup back again.

Ice games cancelled

Elsewhere the unpredictable weather changes for the past few weeks have caused most of the ice hockey games and practices scheduled for Staynor Park to be cancelled. However, the ice conditions are back to normal and things are getting underway once again.

It is good to see Tim McCambridge back around the building these days. Tim is a volunteer who co-ordinates the arts and crafts program for evenings during the week. He has worked in the arts and crafts program for the past two summers at Camp Weredale, and is well liked and appreciated by everyone.

Weredale gets use of house

Weredale House has recently acquired the use of a large seven-room house in the Mount Sutton area. An extremely kind lady, a Mrs. Parker, has offered this house to us and it is situated on her property.

A recent weekend John Snell, one of the staff, and a group of boys visited the place for a couple of days. They found the house to be more than adequately supplied, Mrs. Parker thinking of everything from boots and sleighs to food. It probably will be used on an every-weekend basis for some time now.

Several of the staff have completed some interesting vacations. Bruce Tobin of the social work department has finished a 10 day trip to Acapulco, Mexico. As might be expected, he has quite a sun tan and enjoyed himself so much he already is thinking of another trip in March. He reports that the weather was warm and the beaches full of beautiful sunbathers.

John Snell also has returned from several enjoyable weeks in Nashville and apparently had a good time.

Finally, Karl Sante and Jackie Campbell are back from eight days in the sun at Nassau in the Bahamas.

Meanwhile, the rest of us are suffering through the winter and waiting for summer.

On a sadder note, Dave Mitchell, one of the more experienced and better-liked staff in the building, has decided to leave. It will surely not be easy to fill his place.

Boy of 6 admits pulling alarm

A 6-year-old child from Notre Dame de Grace admitted to Westmount Police that he had pulled fire alarm No. 1231 at the corner of Grosvenor avenue and St. Catherine street west last Tuesday afternoon.

The alarm had brought engines from both Westmount stations to the site within five minutes of its sounding at 3:10 pm. The driver of one pump truck noticed two youngsters walking away from the site, seemingly unconcerned about the converging fire trucks.

The children, six and seven years of age, were questioned by a Westmount patrolman. They said: "a big boy did it," but when asked to go with the patrolman to look for the "big boy," the six-year-old admitted to the crime.

The older of the two is from Westmount. Both were turned over to their parents.

Minor coaches given clinic at Stanstead

In an enthusiastic response to a pilot project set up by the Stanstead College Summer Hockey School, close to 70 Montreal area minor league hockey coaches have signed up to attend a special clinic to be conducted by hockey analyst Howie Meeker at the college the weekend of Feb. 10 and 11.

Aim of the project is to give the minor league coaches an insight into the Howie Meeker training curriculum and to acquaint them with the physical fitness, balance and skating drills Howie Meeker teaches during his summer hockey school sessions at Stanstead.

The coaches will be accommodated at the college and meals will be supplied at the college's dining hall, all on a gratis basis. The coaches will be asked to provide their own transportation to Stanstead, which is about 90 miles south-east of Montreal, and to bring their own skates.

Man's life saved:

Citizen is proud of our Police

A resident of 4501 Sherbrooke street called The Examiner in high praise of Westmount Public Safety officers Tuesday morning. She said she had seen the men answer a call at her apartment "within five minutes" to attend to a maintenance man who had suffered a heart attack at 8:26 Monday morning.

The heart attack victim, Jean Joannette, 59, of Verdun, was given oxygen by attending policemen and later rushed to Queen Elizabeth Hospital, where he is still under intensive care.

The resident, who did not wish to be identified, said she had seen the same fast service "four times in the last year or so," including two other heart attack cases.

"They're here when you need them," the lady commented. "I can't imagine what we'd do without them."

Referring to the possible loss of Westmount's police station with the integration of island police forces, she noted that the man "would have certainly died if the station was three miles away."

She said she had done "everything she could" in terms of signing and passing around petitions, attending meetings and writing letters about police integration. She wanted the public to know, she said, how proud they should be of the Westmount Police.

Plaza fire

The Westmount Fire Brigade answered an early-morning call on Friday at Alexis Nihon Plaza, and found rags burning in a paint can. Both stations responded to the 2:01 am alarm and found the can in a vacant section on the west end of the fashion level of the complex.

Three-storey plaza jump
injures feet

A man jumped three stories from the first parking level to the Metro level inside Alexis Nihon Plaza Saturday morning, smashing both of his feet and receiving a slight concussion and cut to his head.

The 26-year old patient of the Douglas Hospital made the leap about 8:15 am on the east end of the open centre well. He was wearing pajamas under a top coat, shoes and socks when the incident occurred.

Westmount Police report the man lost one foot and "will probably" lose the other as a result of the jump. A witness told them he had landed on his feet, fallen forward and bashed his head on the floor. He then bounced back upright and fell backward. He was conscious when patrolmen arrived and rushed him to the Royal Victoria Hospital.

Other witnesses told police the man had climbed over the railing and jumped without hesitation.

The man had been a patient at Douglas Hospital for a "number of years." He had been granted weekend leave previously, according to police, though they did not know whether he was on leave when the incident occurred.

Westmount strike settled
'amicably'

The strike by stationary engine men at Westmount Square ended at 11:30 Monday night, when the workers ratified a new contract.

The agreement was reached on an "amicable" basis, according to officials of Mondev Corporation Ltd., who run the building. They had high praise for the department of the striking employees, which they said was "very proper." Pickets were peaceful, and no difficulties arose because of them.

"Both parties are very happy with the agreement reached," said union negotiator Albert Robillard.
