Richmond to celebrate Irish heritage all month long

By Gordon Lambie

Richmond is a community that has always been proud of its Irish Heritage and has come to be known far and wide for its Saint-Patrick's Day celebrations. This year, the community is kicking things up a notch by turning the whole month of March into one long celebration of Irish culture in Canada.

"We have a lot more activities this year," said Erika Lockwood, President of the St. Patrick's Society. "Thanks to funds received this year from Heritage Canada, and our partnership with the Historical Society, we are here to present a complete month of Irish activities."

In addition to the traditional mass and parade on March 17 to mark Saint Patrick's Day, the society has also worked together with a range of local groups and organizations to plan 15 different musical, storytelling, and history-based events as well as a number of opportunities to sit down and have a good meal.

"It is a very full month," Lockwood said.

Patricia Keenan, one of the directors of the St. Patrick's Society, explained that the month's events are partly aimed at looking back to the local Irish community's roots.

“The Saint-Pat’s society was first called the Saint-Patrick’s Literary and Benevolent Society of Richmond and vicinity,” she said. “We’re returning a little bit, this year, to that idea.”

Although now a group largely responsible for organizing the annual Saint-Patrick’s celebrations, Keenan said that the society was once a group that looked out for local Irish immigrants, providing social support in different forms, including telling each other stories.

“They weren’t all literate, but they would meet and be read to,” she said, pointing out that there are several storytelling and spoken-word events as a part of the coming month’s programming to help reflect that history and share another aspect of Irish-Canadian heritage.

The 2019 Irish Heritage Festival begins on the weekend of March 2 and 3 with a corned beef supper at the Grand Central Hotel and an Irish tea at Saint-Andrew’s Presbyterian Church in Melbourne, but as of March 8 a variety of different cultural activities are set to take place.

“We’d like to encourage the whole community to participate together,” Keenan said, pointing out the spoken word event hosted by the Richmond County Historical Society on the eighth, in particular, as a popular returning event. “We need to work together,” she added, noting that the partnership between the two organizations, now in its second year, has been a very positive boost to the annual celebrations.

On the historical side of things, Keenan will be giving a talk on a brief history of Ireland, which she summarized as “1000 years of Irish History in 14 minutes” partway through the month, and author and researcher Danny Doyle will be coming to the Wales Home from Ottawa to talk about his research into what happened to the Irish Language when it came to Canada.

“What I’ve been doing is collecting historical references, ethnographic references like songs and poetry, and then also going back to the earliest census where you were allowed to say that your native language was the Irish language, which was in 1901,” Doyle told The Record, explaining that his studies eventually showed that not only was the language brought to the country, but in certain areas it was passed along through generations for quite some time. “Usually when I say to people in Canada that I speak the Irish Language, they say oh but that’s just English with a funny accent,” he continued. “That’s historic evidence of, after the famine, (the language) being so associated with death and with poverty and also the attempted Fenian invasions of Canada that to be seen as a Gaelic Irish person was synonymous with being a traitor.”

According to Doyle, although many families were initially proud of their backgrounds and their native language, within a generation of the famine people stopped speaking it and hid the fact that they were speakers from their children, some going so far as to change their family names.

Today, although many people in Canada are learning Gaelic, the researcher said one would be hard pressed to find someone who had the language passed down to them in a direct line from an ancestral Irish immigrant.

From the late 1800s on, he said, the common line was that the Irish Language simply never came to Canada, but his talk will shine a light on how that simply is not true.

On top of adding new events, this year’s schedule also features a change or two to some of the classics.

While in past years the Irish festival has always involved a banquet, Keenan said that the organizers are taking a different approach this year by hosting a "kitchen party" at the local golf club.

"It's more about the music this time," she said, explaining that in place of the sit-down meal and speeches of the past, this event will feature light refreshments and three different musical acts celebrating the musical culture of Irish immigrants.

On March 17, the annual parade will take place starting at 2 p.m. as usual, with registration to participate open up to the day of, as well as in advance by phone or in person at Richmond hardware.

The last event of the month will be a bilingual production of the old Irish folktale, "The Countess Cathleen O'Shea", presented by Julie Miller's "It takes a village" theatre troupe. The troupe, made up of 11 children from Richmond and Ulverton, will present the 30-40 minute story on the nights of March 28 and 29 in the Richmond Regional High School Auditorium.

"It's a classic good versus evil kind of story," Miller said. "It has to do with money, with sacrifice, and with sharing."

While the play is being performed by children, Miller said that it is a story for everyone.

"It is a play for the whole community," Miller said, explaining that the original story was recorded by William Butler Yeats in the 1800s and has been adapted for the modern day, although it is still set in the past. "It's set in a village in Ireland let's say 200 years ago," she added. "There's been some very, very lean years and they are waiting on the harvest when three mysterious strangers appear."

"It's a beautiful story," Miller concluded. "We're happy to be part of the festival"

More information on the Irish Heritage Festival, including a full schedule of its 15 different cultural and community events, can be found on the website of the Richmond St. Patrick's Society, www.richmondstpats.org

"For 142 years now, we have been perpetuating the traditions of our ancestors and the Irish Heritage Festival we have prepared is a unique opportunity for both the people of Richmond and elsewhere to learn about this rich heritage," said Lockwood.

Uplands celebrates four talented women artists with the launch of Art Bridge

Record Staff

The exhibition Art Bridge/Pont des Arts will be inaugurated at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 24 at Uplands Cultural and Heritage Centre.

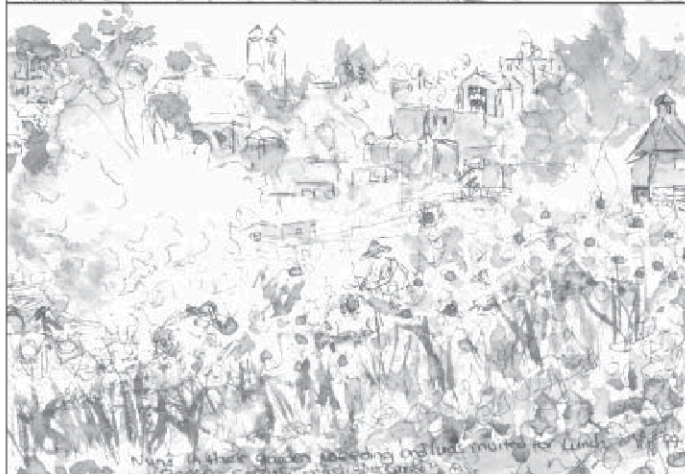

It will feature four women artists from the region, Nina May Owens, Catharine (Minnie) Gill, Kay Kinsman and Ann (Muffy) Malcom Tippet, all of whom have left an important contribution to the Townships' artistic heritage.

From the early 20th century to the first decade of the 21st, their art has borne witness to the people and landscapes of the Eastern Townships of Quebec. The exhibition will proudly present some 30 of their works.

Art Bridge/Pont des Arts—our heritage is part of a broader project, which combines art and cultural mediation, and has been made possible by Canadian Heritage. The exhibition will run until May 26, 2019. Please stay tuned for a range of cultural events, activities and conferences related to the exhibition, which will be announced this spring.

Mary Catharine (Minnie) Gill (1861-1946) spent most of her life at Bishop's University where her stepfather, Reverend Allnatt, was Dean of Divinity. During summer, Minnie also painted in Cap-à-l'Aigle, Charlevoix, where the Reverend was in charge of the Anglican Church, St. Peter on the Rock, well attended by summer residents.

Nina M. Owens (1869-1959) was born in Bolton-Centre where she painted her first landscapes of the region. Going to Montebello to complete her teaching certificate, she met Owen Owens, a lumber merchant. Nina, her son and daughter with Owen visiting (until his death in 1910) settled in Montreal where she joined the Art Association of Montreal (now the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts). She travelled in Europe and Great Britain sketching and painting as she went, before returning to live in Rosemere, Quebec. Nina frequently visited Knowlton where the countryside served as inspiration for several drawings and paintings, many of which are featured in the exhibition.

As for Katharine (Kay) Kinsman (1909-1998) arrived in Lennoxville in the early 1980s, after hopping from Paris to Montreal and also England. Kay quickly won a large and appreciative public who loved her sketches and watercolours. Among her artistic legacy is the Lennoxville Sketchbook / Lennoxville sur le vif, an album wherein, with her brush and her pen, would humorously and affectionately describe the ups and the downs of relationships and landmarks in her adopted town.

Ann (Muffy) Malcom Tippet (1935-2011), another familiar artist to locals, first came to Lennoxville in 1977, where she soon enrolled in the Fine Arts Department at Bishop's University. After obtaining her degree, she founded a Montessori school on Church Street. From 1989 to 1998, under her enlightened direction, preschoolers developed their musical and artistic creativity. Muffy Tippet's artistic production was deeply inspired by the people, gardens, houses and landscapes of the Townships. Delightfully using pen, watercolour, oil and many printmaking techniques, she spontaneously captured the picturesque scenes around Lennoxville and the beauty of the surrounding countryside.

This exhibition is made possible thanks to the collaboration of Monique Nadeau-Saumier, co-curator with Dinah Duffield, coordinator of Uplands exhibitions. We would also like to thank all those who have graciously accepted to lend works for the duration of the exhibition.

A rare opportunity! Works by Kay Kinsman and Muffy Tippet will also be on sale during the exhibition, for the benefit of Uplands Cultural Centre and Lennoxville-Ascot Historial and Museum Society (LAHMS).

Uplands is located at 9, Speid St., Sherbrooke (Borough of Lennoxville) and is open Wednesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Entrance is free. For more information, please visit www.uplands.ca

Local artist Kay Kinsman now in the Permanent Collection of McCord Museum

The McCord Museum of Montreal has recently acquired some 20 original sketches by Katharine (Kay) Kinsman (1909-1998) an artist who does not need an introduction to the residents of Sherbrooke and the Townships.

Kay arrived in Lennoxville in the early 1980s, after living in Paris where she began her art training, then in Montreal and in England.

While living in Montreal in the 1950s, Kay was lured by the picturesque aspects of Faubourg à m'lasse, the oldest neighbourhood of the city, a nickname most likely associated to the sweet smell of barrels containing molasses located near the Molson brewery.

Situated roughly between Dorchester (now René Lévesque), Papineau, Viger and Wolfe streets, this working-class neighbourhood with its large factories, craftsmen shops, small independent grocery stores, churches and parochial schools, was the hub and lifeline for a proud and resilient population, mostly factory and blue-collar workers, shop or store owners, for the most part living in small houses and tenements, whether long-time occupants or transient workers.

In the 1950s Kay Kinsman spent many hours in the Faubourg à m'lasse, sketching and recording with pen and ink this colourful part of Montreal, perhaps already aware of its ominous disappearance. A premonition that came true in 1963, when the oldest neighbourhood in the city was completely razed in order to construct the Maison Radio-Canada, to house the French-language arm of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. (It is perhaps poetic justice that this monolithic building is now empty and obsolete).

In order to realize this project, 5000 residents were evicted; in addition, 12 grocery stores, 13 restaurants, about 20 factories and many suitable lodgings were destroyed.

In 1966, Kay published a first album : Montreal Sketchbook, which contained most of her sketches of the Faubourg à m'lasse .

Kay Kinsman's original drawings, sad reminders of a Montreal that no longer exists, are now safeguarded as part of the permanent collection of prints and drawings in the McCord Museum - Montreal Social History Museum.

Shortly after the death of her husband, Ronald Kinsman, in 1965, Kay Kinsman left for England where two of her three children already resided. She adopted Broadway, one of the oldest villages in England, where she lived for several years in a lovely old stone cottage, typical of the architecture of the Cotswolds. After a few years of residence, Kay published a second album, Broadway Sketchbook, describing in words and drawings, the daily life and idiosyncrasies of its residents.

When finally settling in Lennoxville, upon returning from England, Kay Kinsman quickly won a large and appreciative public who loved her sketches and watercolours. Among her artistic legacy is her third and last album, Lennoxville Sketchbook / Lennoxville sur le vif, wherein, with brush and pen, she recorded the picturesque architecture of the Townships and humorously and affectionately described the ups and the downs of relationships in her adopted town.

Kay Kinsman's artistic legacy will again be highlighted in the forthcoming exhibition Art Bridge / Pont des arts, which will open Sunday the 24, at Up-lands Cultural and Heritage Centre. Her colourful and sometime exuberant watercolours share the space with works of three other talented women artists from the Townships.

Submitted by Monique Nadeau-Saumier, Ph.D., L.L.D., Bishop's. Art historian, friend and admirer of Kay Kinsman
