

Arts Westmount benefit:

Irving Layton reads to distinguished audience

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

Arts Westmount patron Raymond Affleck welcomed the return of a "great and natural resource" in the person of Canadian poet Irving Layton who gave a poetry reading before a distinguished audience at the fundraising banquet in Victoria Hall last Thursday evening.

Mr. Affleck, the internationally-known architect and teacher, said Dr. Layton's poetry touched him because of its sense of place. "I enjoy seeing Irving crash through pomposity and pretension," he said.

The architect congratulated Edythe Germain, president of Arts Westmount, who invited everyone in Montreal to come to the festival which is being held from Sept. 18 to 23. Mrs. Germain said the "old doll," Victoria Hall, is to be refurbished into a new doll in time for the event. She also paid tribute to vice-president Sally Hooff "who has done a lot for the community and we are all better off for having her."

Dr. Layton, 72, sporting a heavy silver medallion he bought in Morocco, said he was most delighted and honored to read his poetry and had waited 60 years for this to happen.

"I am not a stranger to Westmount," he began. "I was a messenger boy at the age of 12 at Macy's drug store on the corner of Sherbrooke and Victoria and delivered things to Westmount homes. My strongest memory was going up and down Victoria and Grosvenor listening to Chopin and other composers emanating from the houses. There were no books or music at home. I find it rather odd that I passed Victoria Hall so many times, wondering about the sort

Bonds, pearls missing Monday

Items valued at $1,450 were reported stolen from a house on Roslyn avenue Monday night last week, police said.

The house, located in the 600 block, was entered by forcing open the front door, possibly with a screwdriver. Damage amounted to $200.

Among the missing items were bonds, a pearl necklace, a watch and a money clip.

that it would receive the grant, awarded by the ministry of employment and immigration under its Summer Canada program.

Although the Y had hoped to employ five students for the survey, funds are to be provided for three students to survey local seniors who live in their own residences.

"We don't really know what seniors need in the area," said Nancy Macdonald, the Y's community services director.

Plans also are for the surveyors to inform seniors of services available to them in the community.

"I think it's fantastic," said Dr. Terry Nugent, director of the Westmount Health Module, who has been trying to organize a

Family Day crowds expected Saturday in Westmount Park

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

When Westmount's ninth annual Family Day takes place this Saturday in Westmount Park, the event's organizers will be trying to put their past experience to work.

Along with a variety of games, displays and entertainment, the day's organizers are attempting to expand on events which proved popular in the past. If all goes as planned, they predict this year's Family Day could surpass the great success of last year's.

The city's director of services, Bruce St. Louis, told THE WESTMOUNT EXAMINER this week he hopes to see an even higher turnout than the approximately 4,000 people who attended last year's Family Day.

"If the weather's good, I would

Three charged in possession of stolen bike

Three persons have been charged with receiving stolen goods in connection with a bicycle stolen last fall during a burglary in Westmount, police report.

The three accused are a man and his son, who is a juvenile, as well as another man.

They were arrested Wednesday last week on Greene avenue just north of St. James street by Constables Daniel Killens and Daniel Huneault.

Director Michel Groulx, commanding officer of station 23, said the police patrol had become suspicious of a man putting a bike into a car.

They stopped the car, questioning the man. A check of the bicycle's serial number and description revealed that it had been taken along with other items from a house on Willow avenue last October.

Three bicycles, a radio and cuff links worth $1,435 were initially reported stolen in that case.

The recovered bike was worth $300.

The burglary continues under investigation.

Pool opens Saturday

Westmount residents who want to go for a swim in the city pool will be able to do so starting Saturday.

Recreation superintendent John Garland says the pool will open for the season Saturday at 9:30 am. For the present time, swimming will be open to all age groups, with specialized times starting later in the year when more people use the pool.

The pool's hours of operation for the present will be from 9 am to 9:45 pm on weekdays, from 9:30 am to 9:45 pm on Saturdays and from 10 am to 8:45 pm on Sundays.

Bicycle crackdown to begin

By LAUREN SWEENEY

A 35-day blitz by police to crack down on bicycles in Westmount starts Saturday following a two-week notice period, during which cyclists have been advised to license their bikes and bone up on driving regulations.

Failure to stop at red lights and stop signs is one of the priority offences for which police will be on the lookout.

Licensing of bicycles at city hall will help return found bicycles, explains local police director

Trespassing brings charge of assault

A 29-year-old man has been charged with assault by trespasser in connection with an incident Sunday night at the city's Corporation Yard, police report.

A guard noticed a man walk into the yard about 10:30 pm and asked him to leave. The suspect allegedly proceeded instead toward the salt shed. The Public Security Unit was called and, ultimately, police.

The PSU requested that police search a bag which the suspect was carrying, police said. He then was taken to police station 23.

The charge of assault by trespasser comes under article 41.2 of the criminal code.

It states that a person "shall be deemed to have committed an assault" if he resists an attempt to remove him or to prevent entry to a dwelling house or real property by a person in peaceable possession of it or someone legally assisting.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER
By Capt. Eric Neal
May 25 to 31

Some seeding may be undertaken in the south, planting and transplanting next week; a little later in the Laurentians. A killing frost in June should be allowed for. Nights are cool but days quite warm with morning frosts and heavy dews — even drizzle for some places. Temperature range 0 - 25°C or higher, with 60 sunny hours. Very warm, humid and sultry through mid-week. Some risk of thunderstorms with hail, then cool winds. More showers, then clearing for a pleasant although hot weekend. Fishing good at dawn, fair all day.

Wanted men stopped here

A 32-year-old motorist, stopped by police here Monday night last week, was found to be wanted by Laval police. The man was a resident of Ville Lemoyne.

The arrest warrants were discovered when he was stopped at 11:50 pm at Sherbrooke street and Prince Albert avenue. The reason for the warrants was not reported.

A 22-year-old pedestrian also was checked Tuesday last week by a police patrol at Victoria avenue and St. Catherine street.

He was found to be wanted for failure to appear in court and was sent downtown to detention at

Shingler calls meeting to discuss recreation

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

Westmount citizens will get a chance to air their views about the city's recreation department at a meeting to be held June 4 at city hall.

Alderman John Shingler, Westmount's commissioner of services, has called the meeting to bring citizens and recreation officials face to face.

"We really want to hear from as many people as we can," says Ald. Shingler. "We want to explain and clarify the goals of the department and elicit as much citizen reaction as possible."

Along with Mr. Shingler at the meeting will be director of services Bruce St. Louis, recreation superintendent John Garland and other recreation staff. They will give a short summary of the department's programs and then open the floor to questions and opinions from the citizens.

The alderman hopes such a meeting will produce the kind of input from citizens he has been looking for since taking office.

"When I ran (for alderman), I ran on the basis of open government and government-citizen dialogue," says Ald. Shingler. He notes that although he has publicly asked for letters or phone calls regarding people's views of the recreation program, the response has been limited.

Along with establishing a dialogue with those who run the recreation program, Ald. Shingler hopes the meeting will produce a dialogue between citizens with varying points of view on the recreation program.

"Instead of the recreation department being caught in a sandwich, they (citizens) can discuss things with each other," he says.

Ald. Shingler says such a meeting is necessary because the department is so involved with serving people directly.

"The recreation department, in particular, is a human service, it's not removing snow or putting out fires," he says. "Recreation is initially involved in the community and its subjects are people. I want to know if we're doing the right thing."

The meeting will take place on June 4 at 7 pm in the council chambers of city hall.

Nemiroff wins Rotary Club's speech contest

A Westmount youth has won this year's Montreal Rotary Club public speaking contest.

Daniel Nemiroff, 1 Church Hill, won the contest last week, competing against four other students from schools in Quebec and eastern Ontario.

Mr. Nemiroff, a student at St. George's School, went to the final after winning a semi-final at a Westmount Rotary Club meeting earlier in May.

The Montreal Rotary meeting, chaired by president Claude Lemay, also heard from Brian Barrett, a representative of Tourism Canada. The federal government office awards travel prizes to all finalists in the contest.

For his win, Mr. Nemiroff will also receive a $500 university scholarship.

Fred Braman, chairman of the club's public speaking committee, thanked Reader's Digest of Canada and Wayne Moffat of Marketing Manager Books for their support to the contest.

Judges for the contest included Marc DeMan, Al MacDonald and Frank Hofstetter.

Teachers back in classrooms at academy

Students at Solomon Schechter Academy, a private Jewish school on Kensington avenue, are back in their classes this week, after the school and its teachers reached a settlement to end a month-long labor dispute.

The school opened Tuesday, after teachers agreed to a new two-year contract which will keep salaries and work loads at the same level as at present.

Although the 45 teachers at Solomon Schechter are back at work, their colleagues at three other Jewish schools still remain locked out of their schools.

The central issue of dispute has been over the schools' wish to increase secondary level teachers' work loads. Officials at Solomon Schechter, the one school of the four which has only elementary classes, have said that issue was never of concern to the school's teachers.

Run closed

Dog owners living in the vicinity of Westmount Park should take note the park's dog run will be closed today and tomorrow. Director of services Bruce St. Louis says this is to clean and prepare the park for the Family Day celebrations on Saturday.

Maldoff reviews Alliance for Westmount Rotarians

Westmount Rotarians heard about the latest endeavors of Alliance Quebec last week as Eric Maldoff, the organization's president, addressed the club.

"We've successfully addressed the challenges we set out in the last two years," said Mr. Maldoff. He explained that Alliance absolutely deserved almost everything we were getting."

"The message was clear," said Mr. Maldoff. "If we wanted to have a future here, we were going to have to roll up our sleeves and work for it."

Mr. Maldoff stressed Alliance Quebec's fight has not been just to change language laws such as Bill 101, but to change attitudes toward anglophones in Quebec.

"If we didn't change the social climate and attitudes, we might get rid of one provision or law but the problem would emerge again in a different form," he said.

According to Mr. Maldoff, Alliance Quebec now has about 40,000 members in 21 chapters in the province. He noted the true indication of the organization's success has been its financial support.

"The best indication of the acceptance of Alliance Quebec is that people are willing to put their dollars up for it," said Mr. Maldoff.

He said Alliance Quebec's most recent funding drive raised $650,000 in private donations, almost matching the amount the organization received from the federal secretary of state.

The future of Alliance Quebec, said Mr. Maldoff, will focus on aiding individuals and municipalities to bring further changes in Bill 101. He said the recent changes in the legislation's preamble showed the government was starting to realize that English-speaking people in Quebec were not part of "some folksy anglophone community that walks around playing bagpipes."

Mr. Maldoff was introduced by Peter Gray-Donald and was thanked by Bob Layton. The club welcomed visiting Rotarians from Sweden and Montreal West.

Eric Maldoff

Quebec was formed two years ago to mobilize the anglophone community in Quebec against language laws being passed by the Parti Québécois government.

"We faced a situation where the legitimacy of the English-speaking community was in doubt," said Mr. Maldoff. He added he thought that the view of anglophones in Quebec from outside the province was that "we

We Say

For more 'moral suasion'

WESTMOUNT city council made a profound decision in its general committee deliberations earlier this month.

It was to drop the idea of anti-pornography legislation and instead to rely on "moral suasion" to keep proliferating sex-oriented magazines beyond the reach and gaze of children.

In itself, this is smart. The more councillors wrestled with the framing of a by-law to regulate such things, the more trouble they had. There are too many factors almost impossible to nail down. There is censorship. There is the definition of pornography. There is the "forbidden fruit" risk in suppression. There are problems of enforcement. In the end there is interpretation of any such by-law, even the competence of a municipality in the subject.

Perhaps, and we hope this is so, mayor and aldermen came to the conclusion that the merchants of Westmount who, willingly or unwillingly accept questionable literature from the distributors along with other, more-acceptable periodicals, are sensible and sensitive citizens. They are, indeed, susceptible to "moral suasion," most of all from their customers who may take the trouble to object to what they may deem to be objectionable.

Certainly, the store-keeper should be given the opportunity to take action on his or her own, aware that there is a community concern.

More broadly, we cheer this resistance to the "there ought to be a law" syndrome. We are smothered in laws which didn't exist not long ago, and all levels of government engage in marathon sessions of legislative excess.

Go back a generation or two and we find that Parliament and the legislatures met for only a few weeks, once a year. The country and the provinces were no less well run. Instead of laws, "moral suasion" ruled the land: we did not have overflowing penitentiaries and over-worked tax lawyers. Nor did we have huge cadres of civil servants "administering" constantly amended and new laws.

We commend Westmount City Council for its good sense.

Anytime they believe they can apply the same approach to dogs, parking, littering, fire-fighting, order in the parks, noise, speeding, bicycles and all the other things which crop up on their agendas, they'll have our fullest support and that of a morally persuadable citizenry.

It's bicycle time again

TOO much emphasis never can be put on bicycle safety — both the condition of the vehicles and, more particularly, the practices of those who ride them.

With spring well advanced, this means of locomotion once more is to the fore. Each year at this time, however, we witness the phenomenon of bike riders, young and old, seemingly having forgotten not only how to handle their wheels but, just as important, the rules and hazards of the road.

It is well the MUC police are mounting Operation Seven Days starting at the end of the week, this Saturday, after which date infractions of the rules of the road will not be tolerated. Special emphasis is to be placed on the observation of traffic lights: a red signal will mean just as much for bicycles as for automobiles, a full stop until it changes to green.

Director Michel Groulx of station 23 is recommending that bikers use the next few days to put their bikes in sound order and bone up on the traffic law.

In the latter respect, youth officers will be visiting Westmount schools and distributing helpful literature. The growing number of adults pedalling on the streets of Westmount will have to refresh themselves on the regulations in much the same way as any motorist — a fact which underscores the truth that a bicycle is every bit as much a vehicle as a motor-car.

For the younger set, the Rotary Club of Westmount once again this year is mounting its annual Bike Road-ee, on Saturday morning, June 2, at the ice rink. This is an opportunity for youngsters in particular to have their bikes inspected and tested, receive pointers on putting them right, and to ride a course under watchful eyes to have any riding faults pointed out. Parents are urged to get their boys and girls to this event, whatever biking experience they may have: everyone can develop bad habits which only the observant may notice. A pointer received may save his or her life.

Meanwhile, police issued over 800 tickets to bicyclists in Westmount last summer. That number is reducible. But the careless and reckless are on notice that they risk becoming part of this year's statistics if they don't shape up.

Sexism rears head in Fire Brigade

Sir: With tongue slightly in cheek, as chatelaine of this delectable residence, I wish to take exception to the entry in your "Where are they going?" column in the May 10 issue.

To wit: "May 6, 7:48 pm: [419 Victoria] smoke detector activated by woman cooking."

Now refer to the May 17 issue: — "May 10th, 5:34 pm: 523 Argyle, smoke detector activated by cooking."

Why was the sex omitted in this case?

Sherbrooke street admired from afar

Sir: Last December we left Westmount, where we had lived seven beautiful years. We left because my husband was transferred to the United States, in the state of Illinois. Since then, we are getting acquainted with our new city, Chicago, and, although we find her very pretty, I must admit that Westmount and Montreal shall always hold the best place in our hearts.

Last summer I had written you my impressions on the "concerts in the park" (your edition of July 21, 1983). To my pleasant surprise, you had published them.

Since we left, we have spent long hours reminiscing about the wonderful friends we left behind, and all the beautiful places we miss so much.

So I took my pen, as I often do in those times, and wrote about my favorite street, Sherbrooke. I was wondering who I could share this with, and remembered that you often publish letters from melancholic "former residents" of Westmount. I don't really expect you to publish it, but, if you do, I would be most grateful if you mailed me a few copies. I will be glad to defray the cost of the newspaper and postage.

We miss you, Westmount!

SHERBROOKE STREET

There is a street
In my city
That runs from East to West. And,
Of all the streets
That I have seen:
- The famous ones,
- The largest ones,
- The exotic ones,
- The historical ones.
- Whether they be
- In France or Italy,
- Hidden in a country
- Or in a flamboyant city.
- Wherever and forever
Sherbrooke Street is the greatest.

She unwinds like a ribbon
Up and down the neighborhoods
She flirts a while with the Mount-Royal
And disappears in the horizon.
On her course, she often stops
To savor the piquant aroma
Of the French culture,
Enjoy the refined ambiance
Of the English hospitality
And shake hands with attractive relatives
From far-away countries.

She delights the eye of the tourist
And tickles the curiosity of the child.
She plays the intellectual
As she proudly displays
Colleges and universities,
Museums and art galleries.
And one can't help observing
The elegance of her splendid landmarks
And the originality of her handsome boutiques.

But the portion of the street
That is the dearest to me
Extends between the corners
Of Claremont and, say, Atwater.
It is called Westmount.
There you will find charming little shops
Nestled in exquisite old structures.

For God and country

AS every performer knows, much of the satisfaction is derived from "playing the audience" — observing reactions, responding to them.

As every public speaker knows, "eye contact" with the listeners vastly improves effectiveness of the communication.

When Arts Westmount asked us to be master of ceremonies, acting, unpaid and independent, at its fine fund-raising banquet and poetry-reading in Victoria Hall last Thursday evening we readily accepted. In the newspaper business we get far too little direct contact with our readers; a live crowd hath such rewards.

First there was the composition of the gathering. It wasn't just an "arty" group. There are plenty of Westmounters who don't know a pastel from a bronze, yet enjoy both; or perhaps even are insensitive to any creativity other than making money. But, there are few residents who would say they don't believe Arts Westmount is a good thing.

Thus, from the vantage point of the lectern: some political gossiping there, ribald laughter here, a dozing public figure there, eager anticipation here.

While being briefed on our duties for this event, we noted there was no mention of Grace to be said, a toast to the Queen or a singing of O Canada. These things, we were told, were up to us.

Being in some respects old-fashioned, we rather like these niceties. Not knowing who would be there, we compromised: of the three, we opted for the first and last — risking the ire of the Monarchist League but confident that Her Majesty would understand that the banquet's wishes for her good health could be assumed. Besides, there were the inevitable smokers, their cigarets alight even as they sat down.

What we are really getting to here is the startled looks on some men and women when they were asked to find their places and remain standing until Grace was said!

Whether that set some tone for the program, Mr. Irving Layton and his poetry reading notwithstanding, or merely was a conversation starter, we don't know. But we overheard some mutterings. We smiled inwardly, confident that the small rite did neither the occasion nor some of the individuals any harm.

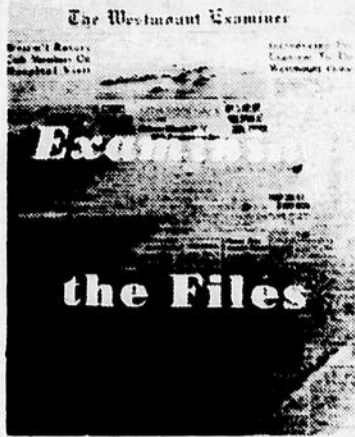

And at the end of the evening it seemed fitting to us, if not to all attending, that there be a corporate rendition of O Canada. Again, the same bemused look on the same faces.

If these two items, opening and closing the program, caused any discomfort we are not sorry.

God and country may be out of fashion here and there. But in these times, specially, we need reminders of both. Both have their place in the arts and in Westmount.

I Say!

THE bridge buff turned to the expert and asked: "How would you have played that hand?" The expert replied with a sigh: "Under an assumed name."

Present Mayors Terry Coventry of Staynor, Doug Patterson of Westmount and Laurie Bennett from Prince Albert, will have to get their electioneering campaigns going if they wish to retain office as many others are out for their positions. Jimmy Morgan, able Playtown Fire Chief, and Pat Baker, Police Chief, are also having to defend their platforms. This summer, the mayors and chiefs will have quite a few responsibilities and will also have more privileges than before."

Jobs for students

AT this very pleasant time of year, too many of our young people are worried about a job for the summer. Fresh from the anxieties of exams, completing reports and thinking about grades, thousands of students across Canada face a summer burdened with concerns about raising money for next fall's tuition, meeting last year's debts or simply having enough to pay the next month to month.

Summer jobs have traditionally been an education in themselves. It was an opportunity for students to gain experience in a certain area they might wish to develop into a career, or to learn about something totally beyond their realm of experience. It was a time to contribute to something beyond the classroom or the lecture hall, and to gain new insights into the world for which their education was preparing them.

Today, however, too many students must choose between some experience at too low wages or more money doing menial jobs. And many others have no option at all, and go through most of the summer unemployed. It is discouraging and wasteful and one of the most important problems our country must face.

Encourage entrepreneurship

I have been thinking about this problem a good deal in recent weeks, and one idea which might create a number of jobs and generate a good deal of experience is a program I propose to call the Youth Enterprise Development Fund (YEDF). This fund would encourage the entrepreneurial instincts of students, many of whom have terrific ideas for businesses but can't get the financing because of their age and lack of bankable experience.

Students in their final year of study would be able to submit a proposal to a provincial panel composed of 12 members drawn from the business, labor and investment communities. It will not be the cabinet nor the bureaucrats who will decide where the youth enterprise money will go. The final word will go to people who, on the basis of their personal experience and expertise recognize the job creation potential of entrepreneurial activity.

The emphasis would be on creating student jobs in a meaningful way, in launching small businesses, and providing a new generation of entrepreneurs.

The real benefit, however, would be in encouraging young people to think of themselves as job creators, not job recipients.

PQ election strategy

THE government has now tabled its legislation for the remainder of the session. With the possible exception of a revised Bill 40, on school reform, there is nothing to make the political pulse beat faster. From a legislative point of view, it promises to be one of the duller sessions on record.

All this is consistent with the government's basic philosophy toward the goal of its own re-election: make no waves, and talk prosperity. The PQ is happily letting its social and educational ideology slide from sight while showcasing its born-again capitalism.

Last week the Liberal Party of Quebec made public a document which details the PQ strategy for the next year and a half. The document discloses a whole range of strictly political initiatives which various ministers and deputies are responsible for undertaking. It also shows clearly the extent to which ministerial staff, paid out of public funds, are required to perform strictly partisan political tasks of the most odious nature.

Haunted by Arthur

The PQ has for some time been haunted by Quebec morning man, André Arthur, of CJRP. After the shooting tragedy of May 8, they blamed him for creating an environment in which violence against politicians becomes acceptable. Likewise, their strategy document proposed that PQ militants and ministers' staff would form teams to flood Arthur's hot lines with calls, in order to intimidate him and moderate his criticism of the government.

The document also shows the origins of the ostentatious consultations with the intellectual community which Messrs. Johnson and Laurin undertook last winter. Far from being a spontaneous attempt to revitalize the PQ's intellectual batteries, these undertakings were a cheap manipulation, preconceived by Péquiste strategists to appease the sagging credibility of the PQ among the intelligentsia.

The Parti Québécois looks more and more like the ordinary garden variety political party it really is, and less and less like the sacred crusade it professes to see when it looks in the mirror.

Colorful Westmount gardener

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

THE most spectacular garden in Westmount belongs to retired economist Neill Currie on the northeast corner of Roslyn avenue and de Maisonneuve blvd.

Passersby marvel at its beauty. That fully satisfies Mr. Currie for that is the purpose of his hobby — to make it visible to others. He didn't want a garden in the back yard that no one could see.

"It is very difficult to get any work done, so many people stop to talk and compliment me," said Mr. Currie, with a smile.

So far this year, close to 3,000 bulbs — tulips, daffodils, crocuses, scilla, snow drops etc. — have bloomed along with the flowering almond in the 100-foot by 50-foot garden.

Two magnolia trees were in glorious array last week and made people catch their breath they were so exquisite.

Masses of trilliums are in bloom and about to burst forth are many rock garden plants — peonies, pink bleeding hearts, lilies of the valley and an ornamental crab.

Lilacs will be coming out soon and 25 rose bushes will blossom later.

Chrysanthemums galore

There will be lupines, Japanese anemones, regal lilies and oriental poppies in the summer and chrysanthemums galore in the autumn.

Mr. Currie will put out in the summer, to make a beautiful splash on his fence, the bougainvillea he has kept indoors all winter. "I have species of plants running into the hundreds," said Mr. Currie with pride.

In his glassed-in veranda Mr. Currie keeps many exotic flowers including orchids, cacti, azaleas and gardenias. His indoor favorites are azaleas which he successfully bonsais.

Mr. Currie is a distinguished-looking bachelor of 63 who looks years younger. He has blue eyes, an aristocratic-looking nose and white hair. He is a fast, articulate talker and has a pleasing personality.

He looked at 60 houses before buying 307 Roslyn avenue in 1967 and chose it for its southern exposure. He started re-landscaping the garden in 1971 when the loveliest elm tree, with a classical shape and arms reaching into the sky, died of Dutch elm disease and was cut down by the City of Westmount. "I am very sad that the elms are dying here," said Mr. Currie. "Did you know that the disease came from Holland to North America and then found its way to England? It is such a shame that the disease has developed in Hyde Park."

Mr. Currie comes by his green thumb honestly. His late father, Alex Currie, who died in 1964, was an ardent gardener. A Canadian Pacific railway station agent in Manitoba, he moved from place to place, beautifying each with flowers. He won prizes for the best gardens visible from the passenger trains on the CP lines.

Mother to visit

Mr. Currie's 91-year-old mother, Annie, who lives in Winnipeg, is visiting her son in the summer.

His sister, Marian Gillis, is a very conscientious gardener in Winnipeg. His brother, Clyde, has a nice garden in Fort Garry. So has his brother, Jack, in Port Arthur, Ont.

Mr. Currie was educated in Manitoba schools. He got his BSc in physics and mathematics from the University of Manitoba in 1942. He also joined the RCAF in 1942. He was an honor student at his initial training school, at his elementary flying training school, and his service flying training school. He became a pilot of heavy bombers during the Second World War and won the Distinguished Flying Cross.

After the war he got his BA from Queen's University, Kingston, in 1945, and his MA in economics from the University of Toronto in 1947.

He returned to Manitoba where he taught economics at United College. He won a Rhodes Scholarship in Manitoba and attended Oxford University from 1948 to 1951.

Entered external affairs

Mr. Currie returned to Canada in 1951 and worked for the department of defence in Ottawa for a year. In 1952 he entered the department of external affairs and served as a foreign service officer, largely at the

What is your pleasure today?
Would you enjoy a taste of Mexico,
Or would you like to relax in a small café?
Can I tempt you with an ice cream cone
From the daintiest ice cream store?
You can sit on a bench
And watch passersby.
Or lie on the grass
In the most delightful park...
You can soak your toes in the pond
Or feed the gluttonous squirrels.
You can make friends with a pigeon, if you wish...

You may choose a book from the library,
Or just browse around in a bookshop.
It's all there, and there is more.
Would you like to hear some fine musician
And, Ah! laugh at a facetious clown?
You will see them, and more, on Merchants' Day
And at every possible occasion.
Have you ever had the pleasure
To smile at a sweet old lady?
Or observe a little old man
Taking his nap in the sun?
Would it suit your fancy
To watch an artist, as he captures
The fragile beauty of a flower?
Then walk to the corner of Lansdowne, by the park:
You will find them, if you try...
You will feel a special happiness
As you stroll along Sherbrooke street.
You will wave at your postman
As you recognize him from a distance,

Or smile at the amicable Salesclerk from the corner gift shop.
You'll say Hello to the owner from the toy store
And salute your favorite cashier
As you pass by the supermarket.
They will all become very dear to you.
And one day, as you wander
Somewhere between India and Costa Rica,
You will know in your heart
That no street is as alluring
As gorgeous Sherbrooke street!

Some amplification from Profile subject

Sir: Many people have called me to comment on how much they enjoyed the profile of me that Joan Capr  ol wrote in your last issue. And I would like to add that Miss Capr  ol was both charming and determined in her search for information about me.

I would like to amplify one statement in which I am named as the designer for the CN Rail magazine Movin (no "g"). Maurice Auzat of CN Rail is the designer, but on the occasions he has not the time or is on vacation I take on that responsibility.

Again my thanks to Miss Capr  ol — and Rick Kerrigan for his professional photography.

United Nations from 1953 to 1961. From 1954 to 1956 he was Canadian consul in Bogota, Columbia.

"I served with Canadian missions to the United Nations both in New York and Geneva," said Mr. Currie. "I was also advisor to the late Josie Quart, who subsequently became a senator, when she was Canadian representative on the UN commission on the status of women. Those were the days before the feminist revolution surfaced. Here was a middle-aged bachelor advising a family-type grandmother on women's issues at an international level!"

In 1961 Mr. Currie decided to live in one place. He left external affairs and took a job at the Bank of Montreal as an economist and eventually became a vice-president and economic advisor to the bank.

In 1979 he left the bank to become economic advisor to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at the time when its head office was in Montreal.

In 1980 Mr. Currie suffered a massive heart attack and had a quadruple coronary by-pass. He retired for health reasons in 1981.

Mr. Currie has been on the board of the Westmount Senior Citizens' Centre for eight years. During 1979 and 1980 he was president and now serves as treasurer. He is on the committee which runs Tele-Check, a new service manned by volunteers which allows clients to have an outside contact on a daily basis. "It is working fine and we can handle easily more clients, up to 150," said Mr. Currie.

Mr. Currie, who is written up in Who's Who, is a governor of the Fraser-Hickson Institute in N.D.G., the oldest free library in Canada.

The superb gardener also is a musician. He used to play the flute professionally when going to college. He taught the flute in Winnipeg.

Youth protection director feels positive about new act

Laurier Boucher, director of youth protection for Ville Marie Social Service Centre, feels very positive and optimistic about the new Young Offenders Act "because it creates a better balance between rights and responsibilities of young persons."

The new act, which was legislated in June, 1982, and came into effect last month, applies to all young offenders between the ages of 12 to 18 who have committed an offence against the Criminal Code of Canada or any one of the federal statutes.

Every year we have approximately 1,500 youngsters who are brought to our attention at Ville Marie because they have committed delinquencies ranging from the most common property offences, such as breaking and entering, theft, shoplifting, to other serious crimes like assault, armed robberies, attempted murder and murder," said Mr. Boucher during an interview with THE WESTMOUNT EXAMINER. "Murder is not frequent but it happens."

How does the new act affect Ville Marie? "We have the same kids, the same offences, the same police in the same city," replied Mr. Boucher. "What is different is that we now know that certain offences are to be considered as much more serious and are to be treated as such."

"We also know that the process whereby we get involved with these youngsters is somewhat different. For instance, how we involve the parents, how we deal with victims, how we use alternative measures, how we deal with the Crown attorneys and the judges. These are new skills that our social workers must develop and master."

Possibly arrested

"A kid who is caught shoplifting is first charged by the police and possibly arrested. Then the police charge is verified by the Crown attorney. If there is enough evidence and the charge is retained by the Crown, it is then sent to me and my social workers and we make one of three decisions."

"We may close the charge if it's very minor; if it's a first offender; and if the kid has learned his lesson, so to speak."

"We may decide to take the youngster to court if he declares that he is not guilty for that action, or if he is a repeater, or if we feel that he is seriously inclined to committing delinquencies."

"The third possible decision is to involve the youngster in what is referred to as an alternative measure — for instance, paying back for the goods stolen or doing some work for the victim, or doing some work in community organization."

According to Mr. Boucher, the new Young Offenders Act differs very much from the old Juvenile Delinquents Act in the following ways:

1) It states that the young person should be held responsible for his or her delinquencies, much as an adult is held responsible.

Has special needs

2) Because we are dealing with a young person, the act recognizes that this young person has special needs — for instance, guidance, discipline, assistance etc.

3) It guarantees for a young person who has committed delinquencies certain basic rights that are normally guaranteed for adults — for instance, the right to legal representation, the right to be heard and the right to appeal sentences.

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

4) It offers the possibility of alternative non-judicial measures — for instance, restitution, compensation, mediation with the victim, community work orders and other similar measures.

5) The legislation states that parents of these young offenders are to be seen as primarily responsible for these young persons and therefore it states that they should be involved and notified and heard at every stage of the judicial or non-judicial process. In other words, the state doesn't replace the parents.

6) Society has a right to protect itself from the illegal or delinquent actions of these young people.

No longer ignored

7) Finally, the victim is no longer to be ignored and is to be consulted or taken into account in determining the appropriate measure to be taken for a young delinquent.

"The legislation seeks to create a greater or better balance between the protection of youth and the protection of society," said Mr. Boucher.

Mr. Boucher, 45, who was born near Chicoutimi, has been director of youth protection for Ville

Marie for six years. He worked for seven years for the solicitor-general's department in Edmonton, Ottawa and Montreal in succession as parole officer, staff training co-ordinator and consultant.

Mr. Boucher is a social worker by profession. He got his master's degree at Carleton University, Ottawa, in 1970.

He also taught high school for four years in Edmonton during the '60s.

He is married to Lisette Simard, a nurse from Alma, Que., before her marriage.

The couple have three sons: François, 13, Luc, 12, and Frédéric, 10.

Three sent to hospital in 10 traffic mishaps

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

Only one of last week's 10 traffic accidents here sent persons to hospital, according to police reports.

A three-car collision at Grosvenor and Westmount avenues Monday last week was attributed to brake failure. Two persons were taken to hospital by police and damage was estimated at more than $500 to each car.

The mishap occurred about 1:30 pm when a northbound Pontiac reportedly hit the car ahead. The second car, which had been waiting at a red light, was pushed into an eastbound car. The Pontiac was reported to have recently undergone a brake repair job.

Between May 14 and 20, three of the 10 accidents were hit-and-run incidents and another five occurred mid-week on Wednesday.

One driver was ticketed for going through a red light following an accident Friday at Metcalfe avenue and Sherbrooke street, police said. This resulted when a northbound car went through a red light striking a westbound car. More than $500 damage was caused to each vehicle.

The first of the many mishaps

Wednesday took place on Sherbrooke street at Arlington avenue about 9:38 am and involved two cars travelling in opposite directions. They collided when one pulled out to pass a parked car.

Another accident the same day at 10:30 am was confined to the curved driveway of the apartment building at 400 Lansdowne avenue. A parked car apparently was hit by another car.

A short time later, at 12:02 pm, a car attempting a U-turn on St. Catherine street collided with a car headed south on Wood avenue.

Also on Wednesday, at 5:28 pm, a car hit the rear of an MUCTC bus in front of 4854 Sherbrooke street, near Victoria avenue. Damage to the car was under $250.

Saturday, a car backing out of a parking space in the Steinberg lot on Victoria avenue hit another, causing up to $500 damage.

There were three hit-and-run incidents.

One occurred Tuesday opposite 421 Argyle avenue when a parked car was hit between 3:20 pm and 3:40 pm causing up to $500 damage.

Another took place Wednesday last week in the garage at 4300 de Maisonneuve boulevard causing up to $250 damage.

The third was reported Thursday on Strathcona avenue.

Greene-Dorchester area site of major gas project

Gaz Métropolitain crews are busy installing and repairing gas lines in Westmount, with the most recent just completed in the area of de Maisonneuve boulevard and Prince Albert avenue.

The major gas line project for this year is to begin in early June and concentrate on Greene avenue, Dorchester boulevard and along most streets south of Dorchester. The project is expected to last about six weeks.

Most work in Westmount should be completed by early summer, when the city begins reconstruction of streets.

Georges Benoit, an agent in municipal relations with Gaz Métropolitain, says this is to avoid having to install gas lines after street reconstruction has ended.

"If we see they're going to reconstruct a street, we look into the possibility of replacing the gas lines," says Mr. Benoit. "There is a definite coordination of our services, because otherwise it would be jeopardy."

This year, Gaz Métropolitain is sending out flyers, asking owners of residences along streets scheduled for reconstruction if they wish to subscribe to gas.

"This is something we hope will improve communication with the people so we won't get somebody saying they'd like to have gas once the street has been reconstructed," says Mr. Benoit.

Much of the work being done consists of inserting plastic pipes into old cast iron ones to accommodate higher gas pressure. Gaz Métropolitain is forced to increase pressure in order to serve an increasing number of clients, Mr. Benoit says.

"People in general in the west end (of the island of Montreal) have been much more receptive to gas," says Mr. Benoit.

He says the number of clients using gas is increasing steadily in Montreal. About 3,500 of Westmount's 9,300 residences and commercial establishments now use gas for various purposes.

Liberals keep Robert Keefler as president

The Westmount Liberal Association, the provincial party's riding association, elected officers for the coming year at a meeting Friday in St. Andrew's Church.

Robert Keefler was re-elected president of the association, and Peter Duffield and Nicole Mackay-Smith were elected vice-presidents.

Mark Whittall and Elizabeth Roux were elected to positions held for councillors under 25 years old, and Dr. Norbert Kazdan was elected ethnic councillor.

Nancy Slater and Sally Drummond also were elected councillors of the association.

The meeting was attended by Westmount MNA Richard French, and a speech was delivered by MNA Pierre Paradis, one of the candidates in last year's provincial Liberal leadership campaign.

The public is invited to the regional convention of the Montreal West Liberal ridings, to be held Sunday from 8:30 am to 4:30 pm at the Meridien Hotel.

Robert Layton seeks place on Tory ticket

Bob Layton, 225 Olivier avenue, plans to seek the Progressive Conservative nomination in the federal riding of Lachine at a meeting June 12. The riding encompasses the municipalities of Beaconsfield, Pointe-Claire and Dorval, the town of Ile Dorval, and most of the city of Lachine.

Mr. Layton was raised on the west island and still maintains a summer home in Hudson. He says he feels at home in the area.

"These are the people who I grew up with and feel a part of," Mr. Layton told THE WESTMOUNT EXAMINER. "It's a natural constituency for me."

This is not Mr. Layton's first run at a political candidacy. In 1972, he made an attempt to be the Liberal candidate in the riding of Vaudreuil, and he has been a director of the Westmount Liberal Association.

Despite his past support of the Liberal party, Mr. Layton said he was not hesitant to run under the Tory banner.

"I am very comfortable with my decision to run for the Conservatives. For a while we felt the Liberal party was the answer to Quebec but that psychology has changed," he said. "I really think the Liberal party has had far too much balance from the Quebec side and I think it's time to rebalance that."

"There could be a change in government (in the next federal election) and what could it be if there were no Quebec voices."

Mr. Layton currently is president of the Montreal Association for the Blind, does fund-raising work with the Society for Crippled Children and McGill University, and is involved with several Rotary Club projects, including being past president of Manoir Westmount.

To move again into the political arena is just another form of community service, he said.

"I guess it's an extension of my life and my interest in serving the community," said Mr. Layton. "Service to the community is the highest reward anybody can have."

Mr. Layton's attempt at the Tory nomination in Lachine follows the action of another Westmounter, Peter Blaikie who was the Conservative candidate there in 1980.

In order to get him nominated in June, Mr. Layton's supporters now are working at getting as many sympathetic Tories as possible to join the riding association by May 28.

Mr. Layton said there are apparently three other candidates interested in the position.

CRACKDOWN...

Michel Groulx.

During the past week several bicycles were found and reported returned.

Monday last week one unlocked bike which disappeared from the rear of 265 Prince Albert avenue later was recovered near the house in a lane.

A bicycle which disappeared Friday from Wood avenue and Sherbrooke street also was found and returned to its owner.

A bicycle stolen May 2 from a garage on Clarke avenue, however, was not reported missing until Tuesday last week. Police said it had not been locked, had no licence and the serial number was not known.

A Free Spirit bike chained to a lamp-post at Sherbrooke street and Lansdowne avenue between May 4 and 5 also was not reported for two weeks.

The following are other bicycles found and taken to local MUC station 23 when their owners could not be traced:

- A 10-speed green Raleigh was found Friday at Hollowell avenue and Selby street;

- A "Big Wheel" tricycle, yellow and red, found last Thursday at Lansdowne avenue and St. Catherine street;

- A Supercycle bike found Wednesday last week about 12:20 pm under the overpass near 350 Selby street;

- A second bike was found the same day about 4:15 pm in front of 411 Roslyn avenue by a public safety officer.

Revision of zoning plan seen before introduction

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

At its next meeting June 6, Westmount city council expects to introduce a revised by-law amendment that will likely exclude rezoning for three city apartment buildings.

Alderman Peter Trent gave council notice of motion of the by-law in May, adding the new draft will probably include "revisions."

Those revisions will probably eliminate provisions which would have allowed commercial establishments in the Chateau Maisonneuve apartments and in buildings at 1336 Greene avenue and 201 Metcalfe avenue.

"We'll more than likely eliminate those three items and retain the 'motherhood' items on massage parlors, electronic games and sex shops," Ald. Trent told THE WESTMOUNT EXAMINER. "We don't want to hold up the whole by-law. We want to get the other elements through."

Ald. Trent said council is developing a policy designed to encourage the retention of residential property in the city.

"We are looking at the overall development plan for Westmount," he said. "Before we make any decisions that impute any policy, we want to form this policy."

Ald. Trent admitted that council is not opposed to conversion at the 201 Metcalfe site, but its proposed rezoning likely would be excluded to be consistent.

"That's sitting on the fence with that one. The logic is so compelling to allow conversion, the only reason we took it out was the other two," said Ald. Trent.

Although none of the buildings' owners were present at council's last meeting. Tom von Eicken, president of the Action Greene group of merchants, expressed hope council would allow rezoning of the Greene avenue apartment.

"We were surprised we were not approached by the owner," said Mr. von Eicken, but added that "the merchants approve any commercial action or improvement that might take place."

Health module is looking to relocate

Now that the Westmount Health Module has a new body to administer it, it may start looking for a new location.

The module received official notification from the provincial government recently that it will come under the authority of the local community services centre (CLSC), located in the Guy Métro, effective September 1.

The health module is presently administered by the department of community health of the Montreal General Hospital.

Dr. Terry Nugent, Westmount's chief medical officer, said recently that he and officials from the CLSC are considering moving the module from its present location in the city hall annex to a location which is "more visible and more accessible."

The area most strongly favored for the new location is somewhere on Sherbrooke street, preferably around, or even in, Victoria Hall. Dr. Nugent and others tried to have the module relocated in Victoria Hall about two years ago, but were unable to convince the city to allow the move.

The module, which pays rent to the city for its space in the annex, could move at almost any time, since its lease there may be cancelled upon relatively short notice.

was taken to have a riding show at the field put on by Adam's Equestrian Centre.

Hayrides, too

For those youngsters who are more interested in riding horses than watching them, there will be the ever-popular pony rides. There also will be hayrides again this year.

There will be numerous displays and sales during the day, including those by local Scout, Guide and Brownie groups, the YMCA, Arts Westmount, Block Parents and the Westmount Senior Citizens' Centre. Garderie Narnia Daycare will have a booth to paint faces on children in the morning.

Westmount firefighters are expected to demonstrate their new combination aerial-pumper truck during the afternoon. The local police plan to display a number of vehicles.

Those interested in the arts might be impressed by the poster-making contest at 11 am or the break dancing contest at 1:15 pm. Music will be provided throughout the day by a Dixieland Band and at noon by children's groups, including a choir from the Villa Ste. Marcelline's school. Other groups also are to perform.

Refreshments and food will be available during the day from booths run by local Venturer Scouts and Girl Guides.

Activities will be transferred to the artificial ice arena on St. Catherine street in the event of inclement weather.

City to grant concert cash

Approval has been given for the Concerts in the Park to provide a Sunday program again this summer in Westmount Park.

The city council in general committee agreed to grant $1,500 for a minimum of five concerts during July and August, Mayor Brian Gallery announced recently.

"These have proven to be very popular events," he noted. "Many citizens take the opportunity of attending them and relaxing in the park."

Last year seven concerts were held Sunday afternoons sponsored by the Westmount YMCA, the City of Westmount, and the Music Performance Trust Fund.

Poodle found

A white poodle was sent to the Animal Hospital of Westmount by police recently after it was found at Sherbrooke street and Atwater avenue. The dog had been found by a Verdun resident.

The Westmount Examiner, Thursday, May 24, 1984 - 9 Apartments burgled here

Two apartments on the same floor were broken into last Thursday at 4330 Sherbrooke street, police report. Goods valued at $2,300 were taken from one.

Entry was believed gained through the front doors and in each case a window leading to the fire escape was found open.

Among the missing items were video and stereo equipment as well as an antique clock and British currency. Nothing was reported stolen from the other dwelling unit.

The burglaries took place sometime between 9:10 am and 2:30 pm.

hope to see about 50 percent more," said Mr. St. Louis. "It really takes a good effort on everyone's part but it's getting better every year."

Working with a team of 34 volunteers and 18 city staff, Mr. St. Louis and recreation superintendent John Garland are organizing the spectacle so as to let everyone see as much as possible.

"We're trying to have as much activity throughout the park as possible," said Mr. St. Louis, noting that organizers are scheduling events so families can flow from one to the next.

'No sense' in split

"There's no sense having a magic show and a puppet show at the same time and split the kids," he said.

The event will kick off at 10 am at the Sherbrooke street side of the park, with music from the Northshore Concert Band and opening remarks by Mayor Brian Gallery.

Races will start at 10:15, and will cover 28 different categories for boys and girls ranging from those as young as two years old to those old enough to be parents. The races for all ages except two- and three-year-olds will involve running, rolling a hoop and pushing a balloon.

Organizers have set up two new events this year, in order to use more of the park area. There will be a petting zoo situated at the park's lagoon, and an equestrian show at 2 pm that will be held on the field along Melville avenue.

"One thing we observed from last year was that after the morning races, there was not much activity on the big field," said Mr. St. Louis. He added that since the Montreal Urban Community Police could not provide a horse display this year, the decision

Fire inspectors visit homes, check detectors

It's home inspection time for Westmount firefighters and residents are asked to help firemen check their homes for possible fire hazards.

Now that a full year has gone by since smoke detectors have been made mandatory in all dwellings here, citizens will be expected to have the required number of the lifesaving devices properly installed.

This is traditionally a busy time of year for the brigade and its annual programs are on schedule, according to fire officials.

The annual spring gas survey of the city has just been completed and fire extinguishers in municipal buildings now are being checked.

The gas survey turned up only

By LAUREEN SWEENEY
one natural gas leak located in a test hole outside 4323 Montrose avenue April 28. It was reported repaired by May 3.

The survey took place between April 21 and May 2 during which time firefighters used an explosimeter to probe for leaks in sewers, catchbasins and lamp standards as well as cracks and openings in streets.

The procedure is carried out again in the fall.

The home in-service inspections are conducted throughout May, June, August and September, finishing by early October.

None are scheduled for July when many residents are away on holiday, says Deputy Chief William Timmons.

This time will be used instead for training and preplanning of large buildings. The preplanning program involves acquainting firemen with the particular layout, hazards and safety features of certain buildings in the community.

Inspection hours of private homes are from 9:30 am until noon and from 1 pm until 4:30 pm on all weekdays except Thursdays, fire officials said.

Fire hazards are pointed out to residents and any defects are expected to be corrected by residents.

A check of some 150 fire extinguishers located in municipal buildings is expected to be completed in about two weeks.

Strange odors a big headache

Firefighters were called to check out a house on Grosvenor avenue Wednesday last week after a resident reported a strange odor of fumes believed to be causing headaches.

Fire officials said the problem probably was caused by fumes from a loose oil tank gauge cap as well as from spraying to exterminate ants earlier in the day.

The headaches had sent a woman to hospital. Firemen reported finding a very pronounced smell in the house.

They tightened the loose gauge cap from which vapors had been released.

Fire quenched in wastebasket

A fire in a wastebasket on the northeast corner of Wood avenue and Sherbrooke street brought assistance from firefighters and public safety officers.

The fire was spotted about 4:10 am by police who called firemen. The fire was put out with a bucket of water, fire officials said.

Hearing loss

A hearing aid was found on the sidewalk at Côte St. Antoine road and Argyle avenue last Thursday afternoon. It was taken to MUC police station 23.

based on the music of the British duo Flanders and Swann. This should put you in a good mood for the summer. Bartley Bard created and directs this show, which stars Darcy Dunlop, Paul Keenan, Andy Maton and Brian McKay. The revue is described as a tribute to Michael Flanders and Donald Swann and it owes much to their revues At the Drop of a Hat and Hat, at the Drop of Another. The show opens tonight and runs until June 17. Show times are Tues.-Fri., 8 pm; Sun., 7 pm; and Sat., 2 pm. For more information call the box office at 288-3161.

Lechay dancers perform

The Jo Lechay Dance Company will present seven works in its new show which runs tonight until Saturday and May 31, June 1, 2 in the D. B. Clarke Theatre of Concordia University, 1455 de Maisonneuve boulevard west. Fans of the company will see three new pieces in this show: Keep off the Grass, Edge, and Après l'ecare, which is a solo number danced by Ms. Lechay. For ticket info call 879-4341.

Five actors needed

The Quebec Drama Festival is sponsoring a touring company for the province and the organizers are looking for five actors. You must be a student with theatre training and you should be planning to make theatre your career. Auditions will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and you must prepare one short piece and one song. You will also need your resumé and a photo. The salary is minimum wage. If you're interested call 931-0829.

Three-in-one concert

The choirs of Christ Church in Ottawa, St. George's Church in Kingston and Christ Church in Montreal will present their third annual three-choir festival Sunday, 5 pm, in Christ Church Cathedral, corner of St. Catherine and University streets. Each choir will perform separately and then they will join for "Alleluia, Sing a New Song" by Jakob Handl. During this number the three choirs, comprising 150 voices, will be positioned in different parts of the church. The choirs also will sing Mozart's "Coronation Mass," accompanied by the cathedral orchestra. Admission is free but a freewill offering would be appreciated.

Olé, oy vey!

Gerineldo is a quartet of musicians devoted to the preservation and popularization of traditional Sephardic, or Judeo-Spanish, music and they will be performing Sunday, 1 pm, in the auditorium of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts. Affiliated with the Jewish Community Centre, the group has performed in Venezuela, Tel Aviv and at the Mariposa Folk Festival. They also will be performing June 10, 8 pm, at 5480 Westbury avenue, as part of the "Quinzaine sépharade."

Concerts from Montreal

Alain Lamontagne is a harmonica player and he surely can do more than blow "Amazing Grace" and "Home on the Range." In fact, he won a Felix award in 1983 for his album. He will be performing Wednesday, 9:15 pm, at the Maison de la Culture de Maisonneuve, 4120 Ontario street east.

Catherine Karnas and her five-piece band will be singing the blues Wednesday, 8:30 pm, at the Maison de la Culture Marie Uguay, 6052 Monk boulevard. Also on the show will be Gérard Dubé and his musicians. His music is somewhere between jazz and romanticism. Free tickets for the above shows must be picked up at any Banque d'Épargne.

The Brins de Gaieté choir for St. Hyacinthe will be performing in the auditorium of the Botanical Gardens Sunday, 2 pm. Admission is free.

Dance the night away

The Graduates' Club of Montreal is holding a dance Friday, 8:30 pm, in the Champlain Room of the Mt. Royal Hotel. Buddy Hampton and his orchestra are providing the music. Tickets are available at the door.

New numbers at kids' hospital

Effective tomorrow, the existing telephone system at the Montreal Children's Hospital is being replaced by a computerized and more reliable one to ensure a higher degree of flexibility.

Users of the hospital and the public should make note of the following numbers: general information 934-4400; emergency — medical 934-4499, surgical 934-4489; poison control, 934-4411.

The emergency department comprises both a medical and surgical emergency. Children who are suffering from fever, vomiting, diarrhea, allergies, infections, rashes and other ailments are treated in medical emergency. Children who have suffered cuts, head injuries, sprains, fractures and burns are treated in surgical emergency.

Maren Mehnert finalist in Miss Montreal contest

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

Maren Mehnert, 333 Metcalfe avenue, was co-winner of the semi-finals of the Miss Montreal contest held in Club Rhapsodie of the Four Seasons Hotel recently. She may be on her way to being Miss Canada.

"I was excited but now I am scared because there will be more competitors in the finals for Miss Montreal in August," says Maren.

Maren, 20, has huge, luminous hazel eyes, long lashes and light brown hair. She is five-foot-six, weighs 110 pounds; has a waistline of 23½ inches; and wears a size 6 to 7 dress. She has a lovely personality and a friendly disposition.

Maren is the daughter of notary Volker Mehnert and Helen Mehnert, the secretary-treasurer of Arts Westmount.

She joined a modelling school a month ago, and has been studying fashion merchandising at LaSalle College for the past year.

She attended Trafalgar School for Girls for nine years and went to Stanstead College for Grade 12.

Maren took two years of economics at Carleton University, Ottawa. She intends to return to university after finishing at LaSalle College.

She has one brother, Hagen, 18, who is in his last year at Selwyn House. "We are close and he was happy and proud that something good was happening to me," says Maren.

Lifestyle award for Finestone

Rita Finestone (EXAMINER Profile Dec. 2, 1982) is one of two Montreal-area women to have been presented a Lifestyle Award by Monique Bégin, federal health and welfare minister, at a ceremony in Ottawa May 22.

Mrs. Finestone and Pointe Claire resident Mary Memess are to be honored for contributing, by example and encouragement, to the health and well-being of their fellow citizens.

Mrs. Finestone already has received the Prix du Conseil des Hôpitaux de Montréal for her outstanding contribution to the hospital milieu as a volunteer with the Jewish General Hospital auxiliary and as president of the Association of Hospital Auxiliaries of the Province of Quebec.

Ingrid Harrison shows 'blazing' oils at West End

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

A collection of 33 blazing, glowing oil paintings by Ingrid Harrison is on view at Florence Millman's West End Gallery, 1358 Greene avenue, until May 31.

The works are still lifes with a joie de vivre, very representative of nature. They reflect Ingrid's personality which is always bubbly. She says she was happy when she painted them.

There are geraniums, chrysanthemums, delphiniums, crocuses, daisies and many more flowers. There are paintings of fruit and vegetables which look appetizing.

Objects are of blue and white Chinese antique china and various other pottery pieces in Ingrid's collection.

There are street scenes and city scapes. The largest painting — two feet by three feet — is a view of the woods in melting snow behind her former house in Estérel.

One beautiful painting is of a window in a country cottage up North where the delphiniums are in the foreground.

Escaped Estonia

Ingrid Harrison is an attractive blonde woman of 48. She was born in Estonia, the Baltic republic near Finland. Her father, Arnold Wanderer, a retired civil engineer, who now lives in Toronto, her mother, Meta, who died in 1973, and Ingrid escaped from their home in Estonia in 1943 during the Second World War to Gothenburg, Sweden, where they lived until 1951 when they came to Canada.

From 1952 to 1954 Ingrid studied at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts with Arthur Lismer, Goodridge Roberts and Jacques de Tonnancour.

From 1974 to 1978 she studied at Concordia University with Patrick Landsley, John Fox, Guido Molinari and Marian Wagschal. She has painted and exhibited in the Bahamas, Greece, Italy, United States and Australia.

Her paintings are in private collections in San Francisco, Montreal and Tokyo.

Auxiliary plans breast testing

A teach-in on breast self-examination is planned by the auxiliary of the Sir Mortimer B. Davis Jewish General Hospital to be held Sunday, May 27, from 10 am to 4 pm in the patient area of the hospital.

Nurse clinicians will be on hand to demonstrate breast self-examination on an individual basis and to answer any questions. A continuous educational film dealing with the emotional and physiological aspects of breast cancer and self-examination will be shown.

The service, co-ordinated by the auxiliary and nursing staff, is free and open to the public. For further information, call 342-3111, local 435.

Children for Peace contribute to 'Right to Food' conference

Westmount-based Children for Peace is contributing an intriguing exhibit to the international conference 'The Right to Food' being held on the mezzanine floor of the Sir George Williams campus of Concordia University from tomorrow to May 31.

The children have been working on the exhibit for the past two months at the Westmount Y under the supervision of Westmount artist Eva Prager, founder-president of the movement.

The exhibit shows dramatically the difference between the overfed society of North America and that part of the world that has not even enough food for one meal. It

Library sale on Family Day

To coincide with the events happening at this year's family day in Westmount Park, the Westmount Public Library will hold a sale of used books this Saturday.

The sale will be held in the library from 9 am to 5 pm. Chief Librarian Rosemary Lydon says the sale is possible because of donations of books which the library receives. She says those donated books which the library does not use in its own collection go to the book sale, held every two years.

"I just want to thank those people who have donated books," says Miss Lydon. "If we can't use the books, we can use the money we get from the sale of the books."

The sale will take place in the reference room of the library and will include both hardcover and paperback books and magazines.

Sinai ladies plan luncheon

The annual closing meeting of the ladies' auxiliary of Mount Sinai Hospital is to be held Tuesday, May 29, at noon at La Diligence restaurant on Decarie boulevard.

The highlight of the luncheon is expected to be the presentation of a cheque, representing funds raised by the auxiliary during the year, to the president of Mount Sinai Hospital Centre.

Tickets and further information are available by calling the hospital office, 342-3586.

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

is 12 feet long and five feet high and is one of about 20 exhibits at the conference which include those of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), the ministry of agriculture, the province of Quebec and Macdonald College.

The children who worked on the project are: Tony Chan, 17, who attends MIND (Moving In New Directions) High School and joined Children for Peace last December; Natalie Beauchemin, 17, who is going to the University of Quebec in Montreal and has been with the Children for Peace for two years; Joann Fernandes, 17, a student at Villa Maria High School, who has been with the movement for 3½ years; Mark Demers, 16, and Martin Phelan, 16, both in grade 10 at Loyola High School.

Two young women volunteers are Haritai Kopa, 25, who hails from New Zealand and is going into science of human affairs at Concordia, and Louise Giroux, 20, who is going into her third year of psychology at McGill University in September.

Surplus 'heart-breaking'

Mrs. Prager said the heart-breaking thing is that there is so much surplus food. "It is so much easier to produce it in this part of the world than in arid areas of the world where topsoil is depleted and proper growing conditions are almost non-existent," she said.

"I wish we could send food and medicines in exchange for the goods produced in Asia, Africa and other continents which create beautiful things such as pottery, glorious silks and many handicrafts."

Children for Peace, a non-profit, non-political association, was founded in 1981.

It is a project, an initiative towards world peace taken by the children of Montreal. They represent a multitude of diverse origins and cultures.

In 1981 they wrote, choreographed and composed the music for a Declaration of Peace. It was performed on October 27, 1981, in the House of Commons, Ottawa, and in November at Mary Queen of the World Cathedral and the University of Quebec in Montreal.

Children for Peace now is contacting schools with the objective of establishing peace clubs which can be linked to the curriculum in areas such as history, geography, anthropology and the study of different cultures, leading to less discrimination.

Concordia students plan summer as business consultants

Three Westmount students at Concordia University's school of management are part of a program to help small businesses in the Montreal area.

Tim Pepper of The Boulevard, Dugald Reid, formerly of Strathcona avenue, and Roy Pottle of Rosemount avenue are three of six students running the Concordia Small Business Consulting Bureau this summer.

The bureau is designed to help entrepreneurs with businesses employing fewer than 50 people and with less than $2 million in sales. Its student consultants can provide advice on cost control, marketing, government grant and loan programs or other management services.

"Most businessmen have plenty of ideas, but no time to implement them," says Mr. Reid, the bureau's manager. "We sell time-saving to the small businessman."

While the program is new at Concordia, the idea of students offering consulting services is not new. The concept of the Concordia bureau started last January after management student Teresa Allen wrote a research paper on similar bureaus in other Canadian universities. At least eight other universities, including McGill, already have offered such services.

For Concordia, the bureau reflects a shift in the school's management program to a greater concentration on small business problems. Through the bureau, the school hopes to improve the link between the business world and the academic community.

Mr. Reid and Mr. Pepper believe there is a strong market for such a student service. They say small businesses make up over 95 percent of business activity in Canada, and four out of five small businesses these days fail in their first year of operation.

For young operations, the students say they can be particularly valuable.

"For businesses that are just starting up, we can help draw up a business plan which lays down what they need to get going," says Mr. Reid.

Establishments in Westmount will be the first real test for the bureau. In recent weeks, small businesses in the city have been "blitzed," receiving letters and phone calls informing them about the service.

Receive visit

Owners who express interest in the bureau's services receive a personal visit from one of the students, and an offer to form a management proposal for the business.

"We'll try one strategy and see how people react to and modify it from there," says Mr. Reid.

One of the students' promises is that they will remain interested in their clients even after the consulting process is finished.

"Rather than just making our recommendations and then just going away, we want to follow through," says Mr. Reid. "If the bureau is successful, it'll be because the businesses are successful."

The six consultants were picked from thirty applicants, and all have past experience working in business. They claim that although they are still students, they provide a good service at a fraction of the cost of most private consultants.

"We can compete quite well," says Mr. Pepper. "We're not professionals but we have access to professionals."

Have advisors

Serge Saucier, a partner with the accounting firm of Raymond, Chabot, Martin, Paré & Associates, is the chairman of the bureau's board of directors. In addition to the board and faculty advisors, the students also have access to some with practical advice.

"We have some small businessmen helping us who have been exposed to problem areas," says Mr. Pepper.

The students also have use of Concordia's libraries and the university's copying and translation services. They plan to use micro-computers to keep records of all their work and to help review their clients' businesses.

While realizing the broad educational value of the exercise, Mr. Reid and Mr. Pepper also see it as a way to pursue each of their own personal interests in management.

For Mr. Pepper, the bureau is a opportunity to get experience in the area of management consulting, where he wants to pursue a career.

For Mr. Reid, it is a chance to further develop his knowledge of small business, in order to properly run a business of his own.

"Small business is an area that interests me," he says. "I guess it started when I was clearing people's sidewalks in Westmount."

of people who visited it and here we are; here we meet 60 years later."

The first poem of the 15 he read, and the one most listeners liked best, was "There were no signs."

"Cain" was about taking an air rifle from his son's hand and killing a frog, which he regretted. He then read a poem about his mother who, he said, was vain and proud of her black eyebrows which she still possessed at the age of 93 when she died, in 1959. "I got my impeccable sense of rhythm from the vituperation of her cadenced cursing," Dr. Layton revealed.

"Rhine Boat Trip" concerned "Jewish mothers looking for their ghostly children."

"Shakespeare" was the result of his son's question: Are you a greater poet than the Bard?

"Auld Lang Syne" was dedicated to a deceased friend who attended Baron Byng High School with him.

Experienced culture shock

"Canada is the only country where I experienced culture shock," Dr. Layton proclaimed. "There are 35 monuments to Korean poets in their country. The only monument to a poet that I know of in Canada is one of Robert Burns."

Dr. Layton read a few poems from his books "Gucci Bag" and "For my neighbors in hell."

Mozart inspired "Eine Kleine Nachtmusic."

Dr. Layton laughed at one of his own poems about the billboard in front of a church with God's phone number.

Sally Hooff thanked the poet, asking him to mingle with the guests at the festival. "We have come together not behind closed doors," she said. "We want to keep joy and literacy alive."

Eva Morin succeeded magically in giving the concert hall a warm atmosphere. There was candlelight, a red carpet, pots of geraniums on the tables, red napkins contrasting boldly with the white linen table cloths, and bunches of marigolds.

Introduced head table

John Sancton, the master of ceremonies, introduced those seated at the head table: Mayor Brian Gallie and Mrs. Gallie, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Affleck, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Germain, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Finestone, Mrs. Sancton and Anna Pottier, Dr. Layton's companion.

Among the guests were: Richard French, MNA for Westmount, Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Blume, Henry Finkel, who did the calligraphy for the sumptuous menu, Rose Goldblatt, professor of music at McGill University, André Trudel, co-ordinator of the festival, and Mrs. Trudel, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Leahey, Alderman Peter Trent and Mrs. Trent, Alderman Peter Duffield, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Aitken, Miss Mary Germain, of Toronto, Miss Elizabeth Germain, Mrs. Helen Mehnert and her daughter, Maren.

The door prizes were works by Ann McCall, Catherine Bates, James Girvan, Harry Mayerovitch, Desmond Senior, Edythe Germain, president of Arts Westmount.

Doreen Lindsay, and an Aislin cartoon with René Lévesque beating an East Indian drum, crying Hara, Hara, Hara, Hara, Separation, Separation, Separation, Separation.

Following the banquet, Dr. Layton, who is five-foot-six-and-one-half-inches with blue eyes, told THE EXAMINER that he was no shrinking violet. "The evening was the most beautiful homecoming welcome that I could have had," he said.

People with long memories will probably recall that Irving Layton wrote letters to The Montreal Star supporting the American intervention in Vietnam.

Canadian Club

Michel Bélanger, chairman, president and chief executive officer of the Banque Nationale du Canada, is to speak at the June 4 luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club of Montreal in the Mount Royal Hotel, beginning at 12:30 pm. senior citizens' council. (See story Feb. 23.)

Dr. Nugent said he thought the survey would serve as a valuable outreach program to get seniors more involved in organizing their interests in the community.

"I'd like people to know what's available," he said. "There are a lot of people out there who could benefit from the services which are offered."

All the surveyors will be students, as required by the guidelines of the federal program. They plan to use the city's electoral lists to get an idea of which houses to visit, and to carry a prepared list of questions to ask all seniors surveyed.

The program should start this week and will continue through August. The information obtained from it could be used by the Y and other seniors' organizations in Westmount.

Sudan Interior missionaries to speak at Baptist services

Edwin and Mae Jones, veteran Sudan Interior missionaries, will be guest speakers at Westmount Baptist Church on Sunday. They will speak at the 11 am worship, and will present an audio-visual report on work in Africa at the 7 pm evening fellowship.

The Jones family spent over 30 years in Africa, serving first in Ethiopia, and later in Ghana, where they were involved in Cinema Today, an innovative evangelical outreach to distant villages and rural areas through the use of motion pictures. Follow-up of converts is made through the Mail Box Club, and over 10,000 have completed a basic correspondence course of seven lessons on the Christian life.

The Joneses also taught at Kumasi Bible College, in the city which is the centre of Ashanti culture in southern Ghana.

In 1983, the Joneses returned to the Sudan Interior Mission headquarters in Scarborough to serve as co-ordinators of missionary itineraries and travel. Their wide experience abroad facilitates this important work.

Edwin Jones grew up in Westmount Baptist Church, where his family were prominent and dedicated members. He attended Bible College and served in World War II before becoming a part of the Christian Army. Mae's home church is Mission Baptist Church, British Columbia.

Mr. Jones writes: " 'Man plans, God finishes' is a free translation of an Ethiopian proverb. No doubt all peoples have expressions which help them grapple with the fact that humans are not able to plan their futures with certainty. Missionaries are no exception." The exciting story of the growth of the church in the Third World, which marks a major relocation of Christendom following the rise of secularism in Europe and North America, is one which should encourage the church.

Friends of Edwin and Mae Jones and of the Sudan Interior Mission are especially invited to join Westmount Baptist for these significant services. A coffee hour will follow the evening fellowship.

Youth service is planned Sunday at St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's Church will hold a special youth service on Sunday at 11 am. The Celebration Folk Singers from Resurrection of Our Lord Parish, a group of some 20 young people who sing both contemporary and traditional religious music, are to be guests.

The singers will lead music of worship and will have a special musical interlude for the children. The service will be led by the children of the church school, who also will act as greeters and ushers.

The congregation will take the opportunity to say a special thank you to all of the teachers who have given of their time and love to the children of the church school. The children will be given a certificate of attendance and a memento of St. Andrew's. Join in for this special time of worship.

The women of St. Andrew's will meet in the auditorium next Tuesday at 2 pm. The guest speaker will be Anne Erskine, a member of the pastoral team of the palliative care unit at the Royal Victoria Hospital. She has a varied and interesting background within the United Church and will be a very able and interesting speaker.

Please come and bring a friend, enjoy the speaker and the delicious refreshments which will follow the presentation.

Police find youth choking

A 17-year-old man was taken to hospital last Thursday when he was found choking on an apple in front of 3040 Sherbrooke street, police said.

The man was a resident of Ville St. Michel. He was taken to the Reddy Memorial Hospital by police about 10:20 am.

Book to honor Caiserman

Ghitta Caiserman-Roth, a former Westmounter, plans to publish a memoir commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of her father, H. M. Caiserman.

Mr. Caiserman was the first director of the Canadian Jewish Congress when it was formed in 1919. He also helped found the Jewish Public Library and the Jewish People's and Peretz Schools.

The proposed booklet will celebrate his achievements and focus on social and literary views. Those who would like to be involved are asked to write to Mrs. Roth, 3475 Jeanne-Mance street, Montreal, H2X 2J7.

Synagogue holds annual meeting

Rabbi Joel Roth, dean of the Rabbinical School, Jewish Theological Seminary, will discuss "Women in the Rabbinate: Changes and Challenges," and all its ramifications at the annual meeting of the Eastern Canada region, United Synagogue of America, next Thursday at 8 pm at the Shaare Zion Synagogue, 5575 Côte St. Luc road.

Refreshments will be served and there is no charge for admission. All members of the conservative movement are invited to attend. For further information, call 484-4415.

Sachar to give Steinberg talk

Dr. Abram Sachar, an eminent Jewish historian, is to deliver the 1984 Helen and Sam Steinberg Lecture May 29 at 8:30 pm at Congregation Shaar Hashomayim, 450 Metcalfe avenue.

"The Redemption of the Unwanted: The Story of the Jewish Survivors after 1945" is Dr. Sachar's topic. He is a former president of Brandeis University and a former national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation. The lecture is free.

St. Matthias' to host choir

The Men and Boys' Choir of St. Matthias' Church will host the choir of All Saints Cathedral, Albany, New York, on Sunday. The two choirs will sing Mattins at 10:30 am and Evensong at 4 pm.

Music by Howells, Phillips, Thomson, and Parry will be sung at Evensong. The voluntary will be "Resurrection Dances" by Ridout.

FOUNDATION LECTURE: The principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University, Dr. David L. Johnston, right, of Westmount, delivered the second annual City House Foundation lecture recently at the Sacred Heart School of Montreal. The foundation aims to enrich the educational program of the school and funds a lecture once each year. Thomas R. Burpee, left, also of Westmount, and Norman T. Byrne are past chairmen of the foundation.

Burglar picks vacant house

A house on Hillside avenue, reported by police to have been vacant since 1969, was broken into last week sometime between Tuesday and Saturday.

Damage to the rear door window was estimated at $30. Although an amount of $300 theft was reported, police said it was not known what had been taken.

The burglary was reported by a man living in Kirkland.

Band program at high school is cancelled

Music at Westmount High School will have to come from students' voices and radios in the future. The school's instrumental music program has been cancelled for next year.

Principal Gary Thompson told the school committee last Monday that low registration and a reduction of teaching staff has forced him to close the program. He said only 26 students had registered for all three levels of next year's music program.

"As far as the arts are concerned, we are still very active," said Mr. Thompson, noting the school would still maintain strong programs in drama and fine arts.

"It could have been predicted that the chance of running all three programs was difficult, but we offered the students a choice," he said. "The students have chosen art and drama for next year."

Mr. Thompson's announcement came with the news that Westmount High would not have to lose ten teachers as Mr. Thompson had speculated last month. He said the school likely would retain two or three of the teachers it had expected to lose.

Mr. Thompson noted this was due to the provincial government's decision to freeze teachers' workloads for next year and a school board decision to lower Westmount High's student-teacher ratio.

Mr. Thompson added the board decision was likely due to a letter of protest it had received from the committee concerning the school's student-teacher ratio.

Tara Litwin sixth gymnast

Tara Litwin, a young Westmount gymnast, placed sixth overall at the novice level of the Canadian National Gymnastics Championships, held last weekend in Waterloo, Ont.

Tara, a resident of Roslyn avenue, finished fourth in the floor exercises and the uneven parallel bars. She led the Quebec team to a third place finish in the tournament.

A total of 49 competitors represented nine of Canada's provinces at the competition.

McGill to honor Westmounters

Two Westmount residents will be among 10 people honored at McGill University's spring convocations this year.

Architect Raymond Affleck, 16 St. George's place, will be awarded an honorary doctorate of science at the Management and Engineering convocation June 5.

Professor Louis Dudek, 5 Inglewood avenue, will be appointed professor emeritus at a ceremony June 4. Professor Dudek is a member of the staff in the university's English department.

Postal workers at one station celebrate week

Post offices across the country last week took part in activities marking Post Office Employees' Week, so designated by the Canada Post Corporation.

In Westmount, the Victoria sub-station participated in the festivities, but the manager of the Westmount postal station deplored the whole business.

His office took part in the week's activities last year, but declined to take part this year. He mentioned contract negotiations as having figured in the decision not to participate, when speaking to THE EXAMINER.

Canada Post officials emphasized that it was up to employees in individual stations to plan activities. Some were not participating for various reasons.

Victoria sub-station held a draw for three postal prizes, including stamp collections and a penny-bank shaped like a letter-box. Coupons for entering the draw were provided at the substation until Saturday.

Winners announced Tuesday were Pauline Bessette, of Westmount, Danielle Paney, 28 Burton avenue, and Mrs. G. D. McKay, 4694 Grosvenor avenue in Montreal.

More than 200 people took part in a similar draw last year, the manager said.

Cash missing from club till

Cash in the amount of $171 was reported stolen from the Jockey Club in 1 Westmount Square Wednesday last week, according to police.

On April 21, $1,500 also disappeared mysteriously from the till, police were told. The previous incident had not been reported at the time.

Police said two waiters were believed to be possible suspects.

Available July, $550 per month. Apply Box 733, Weekly Adservice, 155 Hillside Avenue, Westmount, PQ H3Z 2Y8.

PSOs spot van rolling over

Two public safety officers report going to the assistance of a van which they saw roll over three times on the Ville Marie Expressway behind the Public Security Unit headquarters on Hillside avenue.

The accident took place about 6:19 pm Sunday. The driver appeared not to be injured they said.

Police from both MUC and provincial forces were called. Although the expressway passes through Westmount territory it is under provincial jurisdiction.

Complaint over year-old job

A resident of Melville avenue complained to police Friday that $175 damage had been caused to the chimney and roof flashing of the home following repairs a year ago.

Apparently repairs in the chimney area had been made to two adjoining houses about the same time but by different firms.

A financial dispute over the work was believed to have led to the damage.

Garage scene of car entry

A car was forced open last week in the garage of the apartment building at 250 Kensington avenue but nothing was reported missing, police said.

The contents of the glove compartment had been strewn onto the front seat. Damage to a side door and antenna was estimated at $100. The incident took place overnight May 13-14.

Police believe driver impaired

A 26-year-old man has been charged with impaired driving following his arrest Friday night, police said.

The man, a Montreal resident, was stopped at Sherbrooke and Vignal streets at 11:55 pm while driving a Camaro. He is to appear in Westmount Municipal Court July 11.

Neighbor sees window taker

Someone took away aluminum windows left at the rear of a property on Winchester avenue Tuesday last week, police report.

They were believed taken by a man with a truck seen there between 8:30 am and 9:30 am. A neighbor described the possible suspect as a white man aged about 35.

Rabbit raided for cassettes

A radio and cassettes were reported stolen from a car in the garage of the apartment building at 4600 Sherbrooke street, police said.

The Volkswagen Rabbit was broken into sometime overnight Wednesday-Thursday last week through a side window.

PSU uncovers gutter trouble

Catchbasin covers were found removed at six different locations Friday night, public safety officers report.

They were spotted about 9:22 pm in the area of Victoria avenue, St. Catherine street, York street and Prince Albert avenue.

Cards' record unblemished in bantam softball action

By GARY ROUSE

The bantam division of Westmount's municipal softball program is now well under way, as each member of the three-team league has played two games. Currently, the Cards lead the league with an unblemished 2-0 record, having held on to nip the Royals 11-9 and come back to down the Pirates 16-9 with a seven-run fifth inning. The Royals hold down second spot with an even one-win and one-loss record, as they used a nine-run fourth to beat the Pirates. The Pirates are currently 0-2 and in last position. However, the season still is very young. There is plenty of time for the Pirates to turn it around.

The men's senior league has begun holding its try-outs for the upcoming season with a big change in the format. The league will be moving from four teams to six teams, as the league's popularity seems to be picking up among residents. Games now will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. All games begin at 7 pm. Spectators are most welcome, with all games being played on the Westmount Park diamonds.

The Mini-World Cup of soccer is moving right along as all leagues, with the exception of the bantams, have played two games; the bantams have played one. Games begin at 9 am Saturdays in Westmount Park and are truly entertaining. Anyone still interested in playing soccer, and who is of bantam or midget age, may still do so. Contact Peter Wallace, D. J. Reynolds, or Bob Aiken at 932-4293.

St. Andrew's Scout dinner

Scouting groups at St. Andrew's United Church will hold their annual parent-son banquet May 28 at the church starting at 6:15 pm. This will include all Beavers, Cubs, Scouts, Venturers and Rovers who meet regularly at the church.

Unity Club plans summer aided by federal grants

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

The Unity Boys' and Girls' Club on Greene Avenue is preparing a full summer of programs for both teens and children. Staff at the club learned recently that it would be receiving two grants of over $18,000 each from the federal ministry of employment's Summer Canada works program. "We'll have more people than we anticipated to hire," says club program director Bill Mahon. "It's filled a void in our human resources."

Mr. Mahon says the club's staff believed that more summer staff were needed to handle the large number of young people who use the club in the summer.

had an open-door policy and they would come and go as they please. We're structuring it more now because we have more people to work."

The program will be divided into five segments that will run workshops once or twice a week. These segments will deal with subjects such as outdoor activities and sports.

The project will also include a teen drop-in centre, a "job co-op" to help train teens in how to find employment, and discussions on topics such as budgeting, drugs and planned parenthood.

One of the grants will be used to finance the club's "Camp Adventure" program for children from five to 12 years of age. With a staff of nine and a projected registration of almost 100 children a day, the camp will concentrate on showing the children as much of Montreal as possible. Along with numerous short field trips, the camp will have some longer trips out of the city to sites such as Fort Chateaugay. It will also bring in guests to speak to the children and will put on special events such as a corn roast or a variety show for parents.

For teens, the club is hiring eight staff to run its "Summer Teen Development Project."

"We're trying to lose that image that we're just a drop-in centre," says Mr. Mahon. "Last year, we

Local winners in badminton

Four Westmount students were among the winners of two badminton tournaments held during the spring.

Carrie Knight and Jennifer Schloss, both students at Trafalgar School, were on that school's six-member team which won the bantam level of the Greater Montreal Athletic Association's city badminton championships.

On the provincial level, Gillian Morrison and Heidi Weigand, also students at Trafalgar, won the silver medal in the doubles competition of the Quebec invitational badminton tournament.
