Postmaster N. McCrimmon Retires After Over 36 Years

Mr. James O'Hare Appointed as His Successor is Well Known Here

Mr. Norman McCrimmon, who has served Huntingdon as its postmaster for 36 years and 7 months, has gone into retirement. Mr. McCrimmon has not been in good health for some months and is a man well advanced in years. He has repeatedly asked to be relieved as the Huntingdon Postmaster, but the Post Office Department knew they had a capable man in charge of the Huntingdon post office and they evidently wished to retain his services until such time as the appointment could be filled by a veteran. The appointment of James O'Hare, as Mr. McCrimmon's successor to this post will undoubtedly meet with public favour.

MR. NORMAN McCRIMMON

Mr. O'Hare has had much post office training, first under the tutorship of Postmaster McCrimmon as a courrier and then as his assistant within the Huntingdon Post Office. During the war Jim was in the postal service and served in England.

Mr. McCrimmon has been a remarkable man. His rugged constitution has stood him well. In the Klondike Gold Rush days he was one of the men who made the trek to that far off rugged country. It was the robust and able men who managed to combat the rigors of that escapade of exploration.

Mr. McCrimmon, a most competent practical accountant for many years worked as a book-keeper for various cheese and butter factories. It was on Dec. 13th, 1909, that he was appointed Huntingdon Post Master and from that day to the date of his retirement he has given a good account of his stewardship.

The Huntingdon Gleaner has for many years been the one local firm that has much to do with the post office and naturally came in contact with post office officials from time to time. Never yet have we heard an official say anything but of the very best of Mr. McCrimmon, and so likewise have we found him. If every postmaster knew the Post Office Manual as well as did Mr. McCrimmon, errors made in the postal service would be few and far between.

The rugged constitution of Mr. McCrimmon made it possible for him to work many more hours per day than perhaps any other individual in Huntingdon. For many years he was at work in the morning when practically speaking, the rest of the town were in their comfortable beds. Trains whether running late or on schedule, the mail was immediately sorted upon receipt. Mail never missed being sent out if it was within the human control of Mr. McCrimmon.

His first Post Office was in the Lefebvre Block opposite R. Rolfe & Son Hardware. These quarters were small and poorly lighted and had served their day as a suitable post office for Huntingdon. Shortly after the O'Connor Building was built the Post Office was moved to the quarters now occupied as the offices of Shawinigan Water & Power Co. The advent of Rural Mail Delivery in Huntingdon area made it that these quarters were indeed much too small and not very satisfactory for the office. After much agitation it was decided a new post office should be built and such was done in 1932. This Post Office, whilst it is not perfect has proved to be a great boon to the post office employees and the general public.

Many exasperating things occur in a Post Office, such as is that in Huntingdon, and it was little wonder that Mr. McCrimmon's nerves at times seemed almost to reach the limit. Not one member of a family would call for their mail, but perhaps a half dozen would call, and several times a day, and perhaps those same people wouldn't get a bit of mail once a month. They simply went to the Post Office because everyone else did and at the same time have a visit with someone else who might be in the public space. In late years Mr. McCrimmon's hearing has not been perfect and he was obliged to rely on help. Usually speaking he has had exceptionally good help. The outstanding employees we would say were Miss Grace Letang, Miss Ruby Moriarty, Miss Shirley Malloy and of course the new Post Master, James O'Hare.

Of the dozens of men and women who may have had work to do in connection with providing a mail service in Huntingdon it is not likely you will find a single individual, but that will have good words to proclaim for Postmaster McCrimmon.

James O'Hare, the new Postmaster, received his official appointment on Wednesday, July 24.

Presentation To Dr. and Mrs. S. Gaw

A large number of cattle have been shipped to the States from this district in the past few years which meant a lot of work to the veterinaries. Dr. Gaw, a young man coming to Huntingdon a complete stranger, was always willing to look after this work whenever he was called. A group of cattlemen (the cattle rustlers) felt they would like to show their appreciation of his work and willingness. On Friday evening, July 26th, these men with their wives and a few friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tannahill where Dr. and Mrs. Gaw were invited with Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McMillan for ice cream. Dr. and Mrs. Gaw were greatly surprised when they arrived to see so many friends waiting to greet them. At 9 o'clock when all had gathered in the living room Mr. McMillan spoke of the work the doctor had done and the name he had made for himself in the district through his co-operation and willingness and on behalf of all present presented Dr. and Mrs. Gaw with a coffee table, smoking stand and a number of pieces of flat silverware (enchantress) as a small remembrance and appreciation of his work and congratulations on their recent marriage. Although completely surprised, Dr. Gaw, on behalf of Mrs. Gaw, thanked all for these gifts.

Dr. Boyer, in his speech, spoke of the co-operation Dr. Gaw had given in his work. Mr. R. G. Stevens of Dundee also spoke of the work of Dr. Gaw in this district but said he did not want to forget Mrs. Gaw as she came from a good family of the Tannahills. Ice cream and cake was served and a social hour was spent when all departed wishing Dr. and Mrs. Gaw many years of wedded life. Mrs. Gaw, the former Miss Dorothy Tannahill, is well known in this district, having been County Health Nurse for almost five years.

NEED CO-OPERATION

HALIFAX-(CP)-The Dominion of Canada is "a partnership and "in a partnership full co-operation is necessary", Industry Minister Harold Connolly told a Canadian commercial travellers' convention at Halifax. Canada's real problem is economic, not political, he said, and "wealth and power cannot be centralized at the expense of others".

Social Disease Subject of Talk to Rotarians Monday

Speaker is Dr. John E. White, Malone, N.Y.

At the Rotary meeting on Monday, July 29, Dr. John E. White, Malone, gave a vocational talk on "Social Diseases". Dr. White spoke on syphilis, stating that in 1492 when Columbus came to America, it was then that the white man can into contact with syphilis and that when his crew of explorers returned home, nine-tenths of the men were suffering from the disease. Dr. White went on to explain the various stages of the disease and how it could be so easily spread. The symptoms that followed and how such could be treated. The repercussions that befall the unfortunate human with the disease were explained in the every day language of the man in the street. Dr. White stated that it was in February, 1905, a doctor was detailed by the Imperial Health Office, Berlin, Germany, to delve into the matter and find out the cause of the disease. In the matter of 31 days the discovery was made and then the effort was directed to find a cure. The famous 606 about which we all heard so much during World War 1, was believed a cure, but it was found that as time rolled on syphilis might return. Dr. White stated that in the past four years the use of penicillin was giving evidence of being the cure, although a small percentage of syphilis cases are not being so cured.

Dr. White stressed great importance on blood tests being made of contracting parties to a marriage. It has been found that women who have contracted syphilis either through inheritance or otherwise may have babies free of the disease providing they subject themselves to treatment during pregnancy. Dr. White told in a brief manner how many of the discoveries were made that led to the treatment and cure of the disease.

It was Dr. White's intention to also speak of gonorrhea but time did not permit so it is to be hoped Dr. White will at some future date return to Huntingdon and give another of his vocational talks that are so informative.

It will be recalled that 10 years ago when addressing the Rotary Club in Montreal, it was he who first brought the subject of "social diseases" into public discussion and about which so much has since been written and published for the benefit of mankind.

Dr. White was introduced by W. K. Philps and thanked by Dr. J. E. Caza.

Roger Crete, Ormstown, Injured

Hit by Taxi Near Shawinigan Falls

Roger Crete, 26-year-old Ormstown, Que., resident and an employee of Daniel's Greater Shows which played here all last week, was the victim of a serious accident Friday night, July 12th, when struck by a taxi on the Shawinigan Falls - Grand'Mère highway. He suffered from fractures of both legs and a possible skull fracture. The accident occurred late Friday night and Crete was unconscious most of the time.

The taxi was driven by Jean-Paul Gervais, of St. Georges de Champlain, and the accident took place around 1.30 a.m. Saturday morning. It appears that a truck, travelling along the highway, lost a crate of oranges, close to where the circus was stationed, and a large number of people were picking up the scattered fruit when the taxi came along. In order to avoid hitting the people on the right hand side of the road Gervais turned his car sharply to the left and struck Crete on the gravel part, throwing him a distance of some 40 feet and stopping his vehicle some 125 feet from the accident.

Crete was immediately taken to the Ste. Therese Hospital and placed under the care of Dr. Justin Trudel. During the night of Saturday-Sunday the victim was taken to his home in Ormstown by the Rousseau and Frere ambulance and due to the graveness of his injuries was immediately transferred to the Montreal General Hospital and from latest reports his condition is still very serious.

Provincial Highway officers, Hector Rheault and R. Boucher, are making a complete investigation of the accident. — (Shawinigan Standard).

Organized Recreational Activity Getting Underway

Questionnaire Received Indicate Deep Interest in Undertaking

Friday evening, July 19, the management committee of the Huntingdon Recreation Association met in the County Building. Present were: Alex. Fawcett, D. A. Grant, Francois Cleyn, Rev. W. S. Hatcher, Rev. Thomas Knowles, W. S. Brown, Rev. Father Quenneville, Brother Fallon, Rev. Father Arthur Pigeon, Adam L. Sellar and Stan Liversidge. Absentees were: John Telfer, Mayor W. E. S. McNair, Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., E. C. Martin and Charles Reid.

Mr. Liversidge reported that all the questionnaires had been received from the employees of Huntingdon Gleaner, Popular Rugs Ltd. and Fawcett & Grant Ltd. and those for the town were now coming in. A break-down of 123 questionnaires had been completed and he hoped to see this number rise to upwards of 700. From the 123 replies received it was quite evident interest was being taken in the Association. In the softball field sixty boys had replied as interested in that sport. As a result the boys were first formed into two teams to play softball in the Bennie Coccia Field for the Bennie Coccia trophy. Just as soon as two teams were organized it became possible to organize a third team and on this evening a fourth team was organized. The first night the boys appeared on the field they looked pretty shoddy, said Mr. Liversidge, but every night there are marked improvements in the way the boys play and respect one another. In place of it being a regular scrap all evening it is organized softball under the supervision of their team leaders and with Mr. Brown as head organizer for the softball being played on the Bennie Coccia Field.

Twenty men have already indicated they would like to play the game of Horse Shoe Pitching. Many of these men are of the robust working type that will really get a lot of good out of the sport if they get leadership and good direction. Three men have indicated they will give such leadership. Two sets of horse shoes have been provided and horse shoe courts are being prepared on the Bennie Coccia Field. This is a branch of the Association work that should be developed with marked rapidity.

Swimming classes in the D.V.A. pool started on Monday, July 22nd, under the supervision of Stan Liversidge.

The first Cycle trip started on Saturday morning, July 20. The club has grown and gives promise of being made into a junior and senior club. Miss Seaton took the leadership of the first Club trip on Saturday, July 20.

Close to 30% of the questionnaires received indicated a desire for a library. It was agreed two libraries would be best for Huntingdon, one to be for English books, the other for French books. Alex. Fawcett was asked to take the matter up with the Protestant School Board and see if the High School Library could be used on one night of each week and have a library built up in that room where English books would be kept. Father Pigeon stated that in St. Joseph's School a start had been made on a French library and that such could be extended. This library would be kept open one night a week also. Mr. N. F. Manning was named a Library Chairman and to have a committee selected who in turn would explore the possibilities of securing a quantity of books for the respective libraries. A committee will be named who in turn will pass upon books as to whether they are of the acceptable type to be placed in the libraries. It is hoped these libraries will be made a reality in the early fall months.

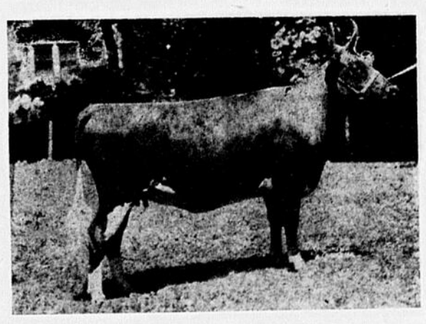

The matter of "Constitution" for the Huntingdon Recreation Association was given consideration. Mr. Stan Liversidge gave a rough draft of what should be included in the constitution but would need many details inscribed. After due deliberation the rough draft was endorsed

THE LADY BRINGS IN A BIG ONE

It is not always the men who can land the big fish and just to prove it here is a picture of a lady who landed a big one. The lady is Mrs. Chas. French, who caught this muskallonge which is 43 inches long and weighed twenty pounds, right in front of her camp at Port Lewis.

Cottons Plant Remains Strikebound

The Valleyfield plant of the Montreal Cottons, Limited, is still strikebound as employees carried on their work stoppage for the 61st day.

Strong picket lines formed about the mill on Monday morning after workers were informed at a meeting in the Valleyfield Town Hall on Sunday night that no settlement had been reached in the dispute. The employees had decided last Thursday to carry on the walkout until there was a guarantee of a satisfactory settlement.

Meanwhile, a member of the Quebec Provincial Federation of Labor committee on industrial disputes said efforts were still being made to bring the strikers and the company together on an agreement.

After being on strike since June 1, Dominion Textile Co. Ltd. employees, who signed a collective labor agreement to end their walkout last week, started their annual vacations. The mills will not reopen until next Monday morning.

Knocked Down By Car Aged Victim Dies

Mrs. Wm. McDowell Dies From Injuries Received

A tragic accident occurred about 9 o'clock on Thursday evening, July 18th, when Mrs. Wm. McDowell, age 72 years, was knocked down by a car near her home on Chateauguay Street. The aged lady was apparently attempting to cross the street when she saw a car coming, she hesitated and stopped and then started to cross the street again. According to the reports the driver of the car which was from the States, slowed down and then increased his speed again when Mrs. McDowell started back to the sidewalk. As he increased his speed the lady stepped out again in front of the car and it was not possible for the driver to avoid hitting her.

The victim suffered a broken arm, a broken leg and cuts about the head as well as other internal injuries. The ambulance was called and she was taken to the Huntingdon County Hospital, where everything that could be done was done, but she passed away about 3 a.m. on Friday morning, July 19th, as a result of her injuries.

Dr. J. R. McEwen, Coroner, investigated the circumstances of the death and arrived at the decision that death resulted as a case of purely accident.

The funeral took place at the United Church, on Sunday, July 21st, with Rev. T. Knowles in charge of the service and many relatives and friends of the deceased present.

Trophy Presented to Gleaner At Rotary Club Meeting

Presentation Made by Dr. Hugh Templin, President C.W.N.A.

At the meeting of the Rotary Club of Huntingdon held on July 22, Dr. Hugh Templin, editor of the Fergus, Ont., News Record and President of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association addressed the meeting giving a patriotic talk. Dr. Templin was on his Quebec Province tour and addressed a number of service clubs in this province.

At the Huntingdon meeting he took advantage of the occasion and officially presented the Gleaner with the E. F. Stephenson Memorial Trophy which was awarded for its perfection of page one makeup for the year 1945-46.

Dr. Templin has travelled extensively in America and Europe, and his talk was largely made up of his own observations while visiting various parts of Canada.

Elected president of the C. W. N. A. last year, it is part of his duties to visit all the provincial divisions of the association and he has only recently returned from a trip through the West to British Columbia.

Speaking of the division between the provinces, he said, that one of the biggest shocks a visitor finds is the unpopularity of Ontario in other places. "We claim is it not Ontario, but Toronto", he added

Geographically, Canada is the largest country in the Americas, with Brazil second and the United States third.

In Canada, we have outstanding attractions in scenery, such as the Annapolis Valley, and Cape Blomindon, in the Maritimes, the Saguenay in Quebec, and the Rocky Mountains in the West.

But Canada is a new country. It is only 300 years here between the stone age, and the atomic age. To illustrate his point, he showed a stone arrowhead of 300 years ago, found near Fergus, and a similar shaped piece of metal from a land mine which exploded near him while he was in England in 1941.

In spite of the tremendous advances made in the past half century, Canada is really still a pioneer country.

Dr. Templin pointed out that unlike most other countries, only a very small portion of Canada was taken over in war, but the bulk of it was won by peaceful means in the pioneer days. We should be very proud of this fact, even though we have had to fight off dangerous aggressors at various times.

The worst problem in Canada now, in the opinion of the speaker, is presented by sectional differences. British Columbia blames Ontario and Quebec for high freight rates, the Prairies think that all the money from there goes to Ontario and Quebec, and in the Maritimes, we are merely "Upper Canadians."

The solution, Dr. Templin thinks is in more extensive travel between the provinces.

Labour troubles have been largely imported, but in Ontario, they are pretty well stopped by strikes, which if not settled soon may have a permanent effect upon Canada.

Another problem is caused by our proximity to the United States. They are good neighbours, but by listening to their radios, reading their magazines, and seeing their movies, we are continually being told how wonderful they are in that country. This theme is meant for home consumption, but it slopes over into Canada, and there is the danger that it may give us an inferiority complex.

The only antidote to this is that we must constantly remember that we are a great nation ourselves.

Dr. Templin was introduced to the meeting by A. L. Sellar and thanked by Gilbert McMillan. Mr. Sid. Smith, on behalf of the Gleaner accepted the Stephenson Memorial Trophy.

Bridge Falls Into River When Car Crashes Into It

Morrison Bridge Damaged and Collapsed After Being Hit—Car Lands in River—Occupants Escape Unhurt

A bad accident occurred at the Morrison Bridge, on the Morrison Side Road, about five miles south of Huntingdon, on Saturday morning, July 20th, A car belonging to Mr. Walter Sutherland, of the Beaver, and driven by Mr. Donald Sutherland, was returning from the dance at Paul's Barn and proceeding north along the Morrison Side Road, when it struck the bridge. The car hit the bridge on the right hand side rail causing it to move and when the car entered onto the bridge, it gave way and toppled the car into the Trout River below.

The bridge seemed to move off the stone pier on the south side of the river and then buckle down into the river. The left hand side of the bridge and the north side remained hanging precariously, with the right hand side of the south end resting on the river bed. The car which had been travelling north, was lying on its left hand side and facing in the direction from whence it came. Just how it came about that the car was in this position is hard to understand. It must have run down the slope of the bridge and taken a nose dive over the railing. Another peculiar part of it was that a portion of the planks was resting on the car near the open door and went up to the roadside. The Gleaner was informed that these planks had fallen in that position and this allowed the occupants to get out of the car and back onto the road. Fortunately, the river is very shallow, so there was not much water on the bed.

While the car was quite badly damaged and possibly will not be able to be repaired, the three occupants, Messrs. Donald Sutherland, Wilbur Stowell and Mr. Donnelly, were unharmed in any way.

The accident occurred at about 2 a.m. on Saturday, and there is quite a sharp curve onto the bridge when coming along in a northerly direction. Apparently in making the curve the distance was misjudged and the car struck the right hand rail full in the centre. The radiator grill and the engine were driven back and badly damaged, as well as that end of the bridge being moved off the stone pier. The bridge is constructed of iron girders and heavy planks for the road bed, it is about 80 feet long. A sign on the bridge reads "No weight over 5 tons", but the Gleaner was informed that the bridge is used for loads considerably over this weight and that the snow plow has been brought over it many times in the winter. The car must have hit the bridge with a terrific impact to move it as it did and to loosen up the rivets, although it is possible that the heavy loads it is called upon to carry may have had something to do with it also.

On the Saturday morning, the scene was the mecca of a large number of curious people who came to view the damage and to wonder how it had all happened. Later in the day the damaged car was removed. The road is closed off to traffic and there is no doubt that it causes a great deal of inconvenience to the users and the people who live along it. The Councils of Elgin and Godmanchester will have to meet to decide upon the procedure to be followed regarding the replacement or repair of the bridge and it is expected this will take place on Monday, August 5th, when a regular session is scheduled. Meanwhile the road will remain closed.

Taking Advantage of Services Offered

THERE are many services offered for the protection of the people which they fail to take advantage of when the occasion arises. A news story in this edition of The Gleaner illustrates an incidence where full advantage was taken of one such service. Reputable business concerns are never afraid to have their affairs investigated and are always willing to give information on their business methods. They realize that such straightforwardness helps to build them a reputation. When outside persons enter the town and offer services such as repairs, selling wares and so forth, it is well that something should be known of such persons. Perhaps they have been through the town on several occasions and are well known for good workmanship and fair dealing. If this should be the case then they have proven themselves reliable.

The Better Business Bureau, of which there is a branch in most cities, keeps track of most all such persons and can usually give a report on most businesses with a very good degree of accuracy. When such persons come through a town and start anything in the way of a sharp practice, such is oftentimes reported to the Better Business Bureau. If it is not done, then it should be, for this gives protection to others who may be duped.

Thus it was that when one local businessman found what he thought was something a little on the questionable side, he called the Better Business Bureau for more information. He got the information he needed and saved himself some money. Such experiences by one person serve to safeguard another, but they are not always taken advantage of. No one minds paying a reasonable figure for services or goods, but they balk at a holdup. It is always a good idea to find out if such services or goods can be procured locally, before proceeding to engage with the transient. It may be found that a good job can be had from someone in the town, or that they can get it done by a reputable firm known to them. There may be some delay, but this is nothing compared with the transient who may do a poor job and be gone before such is discovered.

We suggest that others will take warning from the experiences of the persons about whom the news stories relate, and that they will be on their guard against dealing with someone they do not know.

Old Fashioned Bridges vs. Modern Traffic

THE accident which occurred at the Morrison Bridge recently, brings to the mind the need there is in this part of the province of some inspection being made of the bridges to reveal their probable safety. In Godmanchester and Elgin municipalities we are told there are nine bridges which these municipalities must maintain and keep in repair. Most of these bridges are of the antiquated type and not altogether suitable for modern traffic needs. Yet these bridges are a vital necessity and used to a greater extent today than ever before, and to carry much heavier loads than in the days of yore. When the bridges were built years ago, they filled the need of the day and were safe for the type of traffic that used them. Today, they are not sturdy and safe enough for the modern automobile, truck, snowplow and bulldozer which use them. Furthermore far more vehicles use these bridges at all times during each day. Even within the Town of Huntingdon, the bridges are subjected to carrying traffic far beyond the capacity for which they were originally built. We venture to say that this condition is not alone prevalent in this part of the province, but is one that is common in all parts.

To replace the many bridges, or to put them into such condition as they need to be safe for the modern traffic, would cost the municipalities of the province responsible for their upkeep more than they can afford. It therefore seems that the Provincial Government should investigate this matter and make a survey of the bridges to ascertain that same are safe for the uses to which they are put. Such a survey would be in the interests of public safety and would ultimately be the means of avoiding many accidents of the type that happened here and possibly be the means of saving life. Attention should also be paid to the approaches to these bridges and where there is danger, especially at night, red reflectors and warning signs could be posted to acquaint people of the danger. As most people are aware who have used the bridge in question, when coming north over the bridge there is a sharp curve right at the entrance to the bridge. It would be much better if the road were so made that a straight approach could be made to the entrance to the bridge, then some of the danger would be avoided. No road should be built that has a sharp angle curve right at the entrance to a bridge, especially when the road and the bridge are as narrow as the one in question is. While it is a great danger after dark, it is also as much danger in the daylight as trees and bushes at the roadside obscure the view to a large extent. As we stated in the beginning, such bridges were quite all right for the time they were first built, but today they are a menace. We have fast moving motor vehicles of varying sizes and weights and oftentimes it is impossible for two trucks to pass one another and it would be positively dangerous if two trucks met at the curve mentioned while proceeding in opposite directions.

The bridge will have to be repaired or renewed in order to provide a way out for the people in this district, or if the traffic is diverted to other bridges in the vicinity, the load may prove too much for them also. A great deal of expense will be involved in repairing the damage done and it is likely that the local authorities will not be able to do this without some assistance. It therefore seems to be a good time for the Provincial Government to step in and make a thorough job of putting in a real heavy and safe bridge, at the same time straightening the road to avoid the dangerous curve on to it.

Canadian Dollar Sound

PERSONS who have visited across the U.S. Border in the past few weeks have remarked on the sharp increase in prices of the goods being sold in that country. Even staple lines have increased sharply and prices there are much higher than for similar goods in this country. Added to this was the fact that the Canadian dollar was discounted on the other side so that only 90 cents worth of American goods could be purchased for a Canadian dollar. This discount had the effect of making the Canadian dollar an inflated value when used in the States and all transactions between Canadian and American people meant that the Canadian was paying a higher price to do business with them, while the American was reaping the benefit. Since the announcement that the Canadian dollar would be placed on a par with the American dollar, visitors to the States have had the pleasant surprise of finding that they could purchase a dollar's worth of goods or services for the sum of $1, which of course means a saving of 10c. But due to the soaring of prices in the United States, this saving does not mean very much and most shoppers will find that they can buy better and as cheaply in Canada than they can in the States. Possibly there are a few more articles for sale across the line than in this country, but generally speaking, this does not amount to an advantage.

It is quite possible that the United States dollar may go below par because of the inflationary prices now prevailing in that country, while prices in Canada are being held under control. While some thought that the Canadian dollar had depreciated in comparison to the American dollar, when the premium was placed on the former, actually it was a wise move and meant solely to attract the American dollar to this country with which to pay our war debts. The need of this is not now so necessary and the Canadian dollar is still in a strong position and can hold its own so long as prices in this country are kept under control. The taking off of the premium may affect the tourist business to some extent, but there is still an attraction to the American tourist in the fact that he can buy many lines in this country much more cheaply than he is able to do in his own country. On the other hand many articles that had to come from the States as component parts for the manufacture of goods in this country, will probably be able to be reduced in price to the consumer on account of the dropping of the 10% premium. If not possible to reduce the price, then the reduction of the premium will go a long way to taking care of the increased costs of production and thus mean that prices that would be upped in this country will remain at the present level. All of this, as will be readily seen, will have the effect of holding down the inflationary spiral that is still a threat in Canada. Persons dealing in stocks and bonds in the States will save much in interest as they will receive their full share instead of being discounted the 10% premium.

Some manufacturers complain that the bringing of the two dollars to par value will have serious repercussions to their business on account of the fact that the 10% premium amounted to a protection tariff for their goods. That is to say that people would purchase Canadian made goods in preference to American goods of a similar quality because they could get more for the dollar. These manufacturers feel now that the trend may tend toward purchase of more American made goods as a result of the dollar for dollar value. They seem to have missed the point that due to rising costs of production and the release of control of prices in the States, that the cost of these goods is higher in comparison to those in this country. Thus for the time being at least there is still protection. Should the American dollar go below the par value, the story may then change.

Generally speaking, it would seem that there are more advantages than disadvantages in the two dollars being brought on a par with one another and that ultimately great benefits will accrue from the action.

British Belts Tighter

WHEN a war bride in Toronto said she felt "heartsick for my people back home" as she read of the British cabinet decision to ration bread in the United Kingdom, she was expressing the thoughts of thousands of Canadians who served on the little island fortress during the war.

For war brides, their Canadian husbands and other servicemen who grew to admire Britons for their courage and patience, it was difficult to realize that belts would have to be tightened still further now that peace has been restored to their bomb-battered land.

Nine ounces a day, the basic ration established by Food Minister John Strachey, may sound ample to Canadians who have plentiful supplies of other foods. But servicemen will tell you that the ration will cut deeply into Briton's scanty diet.

One Canadian bakery official estimated the average Canadian eats only 4½ ounces of bread daily, but the average Canuck also eats all the meat, fish, vegetables and fruit he desires.

In England where the meat ration has now been increased by two pence to 12. 4d. (28 cents) a week it's a different story. Canadian soldiers recall that in British homes where housewives are tired from standing daily in long queues for their meagre rations, folks satisfy their hunger with butterless bread and maybe a little rationed cheese or jam.

When the government asks Canadians not to waste bread it does so with the hope more food will be made available to those in Europe who suffered the horrors of war while we lived in comparative comfort. Careless restaurant patrons still waste thousands of loaves a day by nibbling one or two bites from a bun and leaving the remainder for the garbage.

Canada's fighting men know plucky Britons will pull in their belts and grin once more but if those veterans could issue a joint plea it probably would be: "Please save food for those who helped to save your homes".

This Week at OTTAWA

Specially Written for
THE HUNTINGDON GLEANER
By H. DENT HODGSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA —(CP)— Encouraging news for two of Canada's main industries—producers of wheat and gold—which came from the Commons last week has eased much of the tension and uncertainty surrounding both questions.

Anxiously awaited by farmers was the new wheat agreement with Britain, finally emerging as a long term $1,000,000,000 contract covering a four-year period and involving at least 600,000,000 bushels of wheat.

The gold announcement was a development on which considerable pressure had been placed, but the government's three-point plan to assist the industry in overcoming financial handicaps arising from recent adjustments of the Canadian dollar to parity with the United States dollar was a step many had feared might not be forthcoming this session.

The wheat agreement, which followed more than a month of negotiation, becomes effective Aug. 1. It guarantees a price of $1.55 a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat for the first two years of the agreement, with minimum prices of $1.25 and $1 a bushel respectively for the third and fourth years.

While the promised prices were not high, the Canadian farmer, a victim of price fluctuations after the First Great War, at least had the assurance of this minimum, and the agreement also read that in determining the price for the crop of 1948-49 and 1949-50, the British government "will have regard to any difference" between the prices paid under the agreement for the first two years and the world prices for wheat in those years.

Shipments will include 160,000,000 bushels in each of 1946-47 and 1947-48 and 140,000,000 bushels in each of the following two years. Any additional quantities of wheat Britain may need and which Canada may have to offer will be sold subject to the provisions of the agreement.

Trade Minister MacKinnon, explaining the agreement, said it ensured Britain the wheat she needed more cheaply than it woud be obtainable elsewhere on a free market at the present time. In return, Canada was assured a guaranteed market at the stated minimum prices at least. Canadian farmers thus were "protected from crippling losses should there be a world slump in wheat prices."

Opposition members were expected to argue that the agreement was "inadequate" in that it failed to give Canadian farmers sufficient security. On the other hand, H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, which he said represented more than 200,000 organized prairie wheat farmers, termed the agreement "in line with the thinking or organized farmers across the Dominion.

Government plans to offset the exchange-rate difficulties of the gold mines also were expected to come in for criticism as inadequate. However, the bringing down of the budget with little assistance to the mining industry had been viewed as an indication the government did not plan to ease the position of the industry this year.

The budget had been presented shorotly after a Senate committee brought forward a report urging considerable changes in the tax system to ease the lot of the mining industry and to encourage prospecting and development of new mines.

Now the government plans:

1. The budget proposal that new mines coming into operation after Jan. 1 pay only half the corporation income tax rate for the first three years will be changed to allow them complete exemption for that period.

2. The government's formula for determining depletion allowances in respect of gold mining companies will be modified temporarily to assure a minimum depletion allowance of $2 an ounce of gold produced.

3. The charge made by the mint for handling and marketing gold will be reduced from 35 to 20 cents an ounce.

These moves were aimed at compensating for the loss resulting from the alteration of the Canadian dollar to parity with U.S. funds—involving a reduction of the price gold mines receive for their product from $38.30 to $35 an ounce. It was not going as far as the Senate Mining Committee had recommended, but it was going a lot further than the original budget proposals.

Prices Board Chairman Donald Gordon told the Industrial Relations Committee in words of one syllable.

The committee, probing the demands of steelworkers for a 15 to 19½ cent increase in hourly wages, and confronted with the government stand that such an increase would bring inflation, called the prices expert onto the carpet.

Mr. Gordon, who said "I am working more in labor's real interest than any man in the country," said that with wage increases of "something under 10 cents we have a fighting chance" to maintain price controls.

He would not say just how far the increases could go without upsetting the price structure.

"My considered judgment is that if we can settle at 10 cents I would be willing to try it. Those associated with me would be willing to try it and I think the government would be willing to try it.

"If it was substantially more than that it would be my duty to say to the government 'it is no use.' If the workers are not willing to go along they will have to learn. I am not willing to carry on to fool the people into believing we can accomplish the impossible.

"It seems to me organized labor has to make up its mind if it is in its real interest and long-run interest to have price control or not. If organized labor is not prepared to make its contribution, to exercise restraint which the price control policy demands of every interest in this country, then you will not have price control."

Danger of Inflation In Britain

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Some weeks ago prices were raised in Britain for motor cars, utility clothing, and for railway fares and charges. The Labor Government also announced that it would be necessary to raise the price of coal in order to nationalize the coal mining industry. Wages and other production costs have been rising and prices have had to be raised to cover them. Prices have thus been chasing wages up the spiral staircase and the question is being asked in Britain whether inflation has begun.

Discussing this question in The Spectator (London), Walter Tamplin says: "The answer given by the best-known indices is a somewhat hesitant no. The cost-of-living index stands at about 30 per cent above 1939, where it stood for five years, pegged firm by the official policy of subsidies. The wholesale price index has risen rather sharply since the beginning of the year, the main upward influence being manufactured goods, and now stands at 75 per cent above prewar. Wage rates have likewise risen in the past four months, but not alarmingly, and the rise in rates has probably been partly offset by reduced hours, so that earnings will not have been quite so buoyant. All this may give rise to faint suspicions, but it is not possible to conclude from it that inflation is in progress."

Mr. Tamplin admits that "such fragmentary measurements" cannot give the true story, and he points out that "inflation is not easy to detect until it has reached the rabid stage." It would have to be shown whether spending as a whole was outrunning production as a whole, and Mr. Tamplin says that "data for a sound judgment about the volume and efficiency of production do not exist."

Speaking in the House of Lords, Lord Cherwell said: "Never in our history, so far as I can see, has the danger of inflation loomed larger. If the Government cannot economize and cannot increase production, the only hope of avoiding inflation—admittedly a very faint one—is to make the public realize what the position is, and trust that people of their patriotism will refrain from insisting on increased wages and salaries." In replying for the Government, Lord Packenhom admitted the danger of inflation, but he believed it could be averted if the controls were kept on and if the National Savings Campaign were carried on with the same intensity as during the war. But he declared that "the only way to overcome the danger of inflation is to produce more goods, so that there will not be too much money running after a limited supply of goods."

As I saw things during my recent visit to Britain, this last sentence sums up exactly the economic situation. Not only is the supply of the necessities of life limited by strict rationing, but a "scarcity" of all other commodities has been created by extremely high taxation which renders their prices prohibitive. One reason given for this is that the Government does not want the people to buy these non-essential goods because it requires them for building up export trade.

Capitalists in the past have been accused to creating a condition of scarcity in order to enhance prices and profits, but in this case it would seem that a Labor Government is resorting to "scarcity" as a means of preventing the people from enjoying the benefits of the high wage-rates which the labor unions have secured for them by strikes and agitation. There can be no doubt that the high cost of labor, plus absenteeism to avoid income tax, is hindering production in Britain. Social security services are having the same effect. Many people are taking advantage of unemployment insurance when they might be working, for there is so much work to be done in reconstruction and there is a general "shortage of labor" in many lines of industry.

On the other hand, as Mr. Tamplin points out, "The possibility of rapid expansion of nationalization in industry raises problems which are even more difficult to assess. The prospect of a fuller apparatus of control which they open up must be weighed against the apparent inability of Ministers to concede any function whatever to the free play of prices. It may be true that prices are the root of the whole trouble, but at least something is known about their behavior . . . But who would care to make a firm forecast of the behavior of Cabinet Ministers, particularly when the sphere of their activity extends down to the details of economic organization?"

If inflation comes in Britain it will be due to these two factors: Government interference with industry and prices, and the high cost and "shortage" of labor. The words of Lord Packenham are worth repeating: "The ouly way to overcome the danger of inflation is to produce more goods, so that there will not be too much money running after a limited supply of goods." His lordship was speaking for the Labor Government, but the policies of that government are largely responsible for the present situation, in which there is too much money running after a limited supply of goods.

Rockburn

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitham of East Hartford, Conn. and Mr. and Mrs. Norris Dustin of Fort Covington, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hoyer and Mr. and Mrs. A Murphy.

On Wednesday evening the Rockburn P.Y.P.S. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goldie and with members of the Y.P.S. from Athelstan and Ormstown and other friends spent a pleasant social evening and enjoyed a weiner roast, soft ball game, treasure hunt and sing-song. Mr. and Mrs. Norris Williams were presented by the Y.P.S. with a gift of a pair of blankets.

On Friday last the body of an old resident of Rockburn and one who had been for many years a member of the Rockburn Church, in the person of Mr. John Will, was laid to rest in Hillside Cemetery. Mr. Will had resided near Fort Covington for many years and had reached the great age of 96 years. His wife, Margaret Oliver, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Oliver, had predeceased him some years ago. He had enjoyed good health always until the last two weeks when he was taken to the Alice Hyde Hospital in Malone where he passed away on the morning of the 17th of July. The funeral service was held in the Presbyterian Church in Fort Covington and the commital service was conducted by the Rev. H. A. Pritchard. Mr. Will leaves several nephews and nieces, and in and about Rockburn a few older residents who will recall him as a younger man and resident of this community.

THOSE DEFICITS

Our financial system is a bit of a problem to us. Every year, it seems, the government budgets for a deficit running into the millions, and nobody seems concerned. Wish we could operate like that, and not be worried.

Lower Bracket Salaried Man in Sad Plight

Greatly increased income taxes and higher costs of necessities have just about taken all surplus purchasing power away from the salaried man since 1939, asserts The Financial Post. Editorially it states: "When the auto salesman starts calling on his prospect list this summer he is likely to discover that there has been a vast change in buying habits since 1939. Old customers in the medium salaried class who, used to buy a new car regularly every other season may have to be convinced that they can afford a new vehicle after waiting five years. And purveyors of radios, furniture, rugs, refrigerators and a score of other goods in the semi-luxury class are going to meet the same resistance, because the "surplus" money that used to be available for such purchasing now largely goes to Mr. Ilsley and to meet the higher cost of necessities.

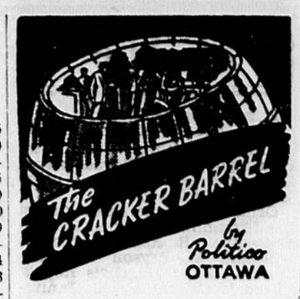

"Before the war the $5,000 a year man was able to meet his essential needs, food, clothing, shelter, etc., for well under $3,000 in most parts of Canada.

"To provide those same necessities over $4,000 must be spent today, and with his taxes up from five to ten times from pre-war it does not take a magician to discover where the balance of his present salary goes.

"The fact that there are now almost twice as many Canadians earning $5,000 a year as there were in 1919, and the same proportion would hold for the $3,000 and $4,000 citizens too, makes a difference. Sharply higher taxes and an increase of more than 20% in the bare necessities of life has drained away the bulk of the surplus purchasing power of the me-

"Not only is there a direct threat of the loss of one of our most important markets for durable and semi-luxury goods, but we also risk losing a vital testing field for the introduction of new goods.

"The market he provided permitted the manufacturer to get into larger and lower cost production, to open a broader mass market, and thus new-work creating industries were established and expanded. If the wartime sacrifice of the salaried man's standard of living is to become permanent, then the whole country loses with him."

High drama.

Perhaps there is some perverse trait in human nature that makes us overly critical of the things we value most. Certainly in our attitude toward parliament we Canadians make no attempt to hide this tendency. In spite of this, one cannot watch our House of Commons day by day without developing a deep sense of high drama and a great respect for the free and democratic system of government.

Just let us follow a private member through one average day. Reaching the parliament buildings at 8.45 yesterday morning he had a quick breakfast in the Cafeteria and got to his office (shared with another member) by 9.10. He opens 15 letters from people in his constituency — Call on the telephone for information from seven departments of government — and dictates answers to all the letters. Completing this by 10 O'clock he goes to the meeting of the war expenditure committee (although he is not a member) to ask a question and to try to find what justification there is, if any, for the criticism, in one of the letters received that morning, of the War Assets Corporation.

At 10.30 he went to the library for figures to use in remarks on taxation which he intended to make in the budget debate and got to the chamber for the house opening at 11 remaining until adjournment at 1. Lunch took 45 minutes, back to the office to sign his mail then to the department of veterans affairs for information requested by one of the veteran constituents and back to the house opening at 3. He stayed in the Chamber for an hour making his own address and listening to two speakers on the budget then went to the meeting of the Committee on industrial relations (of which he was a member) until six. He had Dinner with a visitor from the home Constituency and back to the Committee on veterans affairs from 8 to 9, then to the Chamber from 9 to 11 listening to the debate and reading in Hansard the speeches which had been made the previous day while he was out of the Chamber. Home and to bed by twelve.

Members from the near by provinces of Ontario and Quebec have more personal visits from constituents and are pressed to go home Fridays to confer with their electors, thus being kept out of the Chamber more than members from other provinces.

Sincerity, devotion to duty and all round ability mark the great majority of members of all parties in the house and all are highly respected by those who closely watch the house in action.

Canada's Pattern.

The Canadian Forum, generally considered a left wing weekly of the style of New York's Nation puts forward an interesting theory. An editorial entitled "Twenty years as Prime Minister" confess that it had often "discerned the inevitable course of events as bringing to its end the king era" and just as often been wrong or at least "premature".

"Mr. King is our most completely typical Canadian" the editor says and finds that these Canadian qualities meet with "Considerable approval from the peoples of the world". He goes on to say that Mr. King has remained in power by taking "advantage of the fundamental pattern in which the Canadian people vote".

This pattern, it claims, completely rum sums up as all the other provinces combining against Ontario. This pattern, it claims, completely over-rides all differences between the two major political parties or differences between English and French. As proof of his theory the editor recalls that Sir John A. MacDonald kept the Tory hold on Canada when Ontario was solidly Grit. Later he says Laurier Lost some of his support in Ontario and took power by gaining the support of the rest of Canada and that Mr. King has taken over the Laurier pattern.

One other reason given by the Forum for the continued success of the Liberal party in Canada is that it continues to draw support from all groups and that Canadians refuse to divide along class lines as people in Europe and some other countries are doing.

A look at Europe today, had some consideration of what has brought Europe to its present condition, might confirm Canadians in their refusal to be induced into the "Class struggle" advocated by socialists.

Echoes for Parliament

Mr. Bentley (C. C. F. Swift Current, Sask.) There is at the present time quite a shortage of cement in Saskatchewan. Inquiry was made in the old country to find out if it would be possible to ship cement there through the Hudson bay port of Churchill during the summer season. The minister told us last year that the port was open for only a couple of months, so that any shipment would have to be hurried. The reply from the old country was that they had been informed by the authorities that all requirements for cement in Canada had been adequately provided for by Canadian manufacturers. If that is correct, why cannot we get cement?....In one village in Saskatchewan I know of a church, a store, and two or three houses which have the basements dug and are held up because they cannot get cement. Are Canadian manufacturers manufacturing all the cement that is required in Canada, or has Lord Beaverbrook forgotten Canada?

Mr. Howe: (Minister of Reconstruction and supply): The production of cement is slightly out of step owing to the concentrated demand in the early months of the summer. But in another month or two there should be plenty of cement. At the moment there are shortages. Nevertheless the production of cement is far higher to-day than at any time in our history. I suggest that before my hon. friend buys cement from the old country and ships it through Hudson bay he ascertain what the price is in the old country. It would stagger him compared with the price in Saskatchewan.

IT MEANS A LOT when the meal includes Maxwell House. This marvellous coffee is extra delicious because it contains choice Latin-American coffees . . . the finest the world produces.

TACKLES BOLTING HORSE TO SAVE SCHOOL CHILDREN

HARRY HAWES WINS Dow Award

It was shortly after midday in Kindersley, Saskatchewan. Harry Hawes was standing in front of his bakery and coffee shop watching the children stream out of school.

Then, suddenly, something scared a milk-wagon horse. The frightened animal bolted, dragging the wagon madly down the street. Instantly Harry Hawes realized the potential danger to the school children. Without hesitation he rushed into the path of the runaway horse. He managed to grab the reins, but fell as he did so, and was pulled under the pounding hoofs.

In spite of being kicked repeatedly Hawes hung on gallantly for several seconds, before losing his grip and falling under the wheels of the wagon. Harry Hawes was rushed to the hospital, but the school children were unharmed.

For his unselfish courage in disregarding his own safety to protect others, we are proud to present The Dow Award to Harry Hawes.

Opera "Carmen" in Montreal, August 7th

It will be a triumphant return to Montreal for Raoul Jobin, the great French-Canadian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, the Montreal Festivals feel, when he stars in Carmen, the second of their Grand Operas by Starlight, to be presented at the Molson Stadium on Wednesday evening, August 7. The great singer was here this Spring in Massenet's Werther, under the same sponsorship, and received at that time one of the biggest ovations of his career.

Don Jose is reckoned among Mr. Jobin's most characteristic and successful roles along with Des Grieux in Manon and Faust in the Gounod opera. He sang it many times at the Paris Opera and at the Opera Comique where he was regarded before the last war as the most authoritative interpreter of the luckless hero of Bizet's masterpiece. It has been out of his outstanding interpretations at the Metropolitan, as well as, at Rio de Janeiro and the Colon Theatre in Buenos Aires.

Jobin, who is now at the height of his career and is regarded by many as being the greatest living French tenor, was born in Quebec City and studied singing there before proceeding to Paris. He made his debut at the Paris Opera in 1930 in the role of Tybalt in Romeo and Juliet. His success was immediate and in three years he was under contract to both the Paris Opera and the Opera Comique as their leading tenor, making guest appearances in the opera houses of Belgium, Spain and Switzerland, and with the Colonne, Pasdeloup and Lamoureux Orchestras in Paris.

He came to the Metropolitan in 1940, making his American debut as Des Grieux in Manon and was then starred with Lily Pons in "The Daughter of the Regiment".

With Mr. Jobin in the Festivals outdoor production of Carmen at the Molson Stadium will be the distinguished French soprano Lily Djanel in the title role, Hugh Thompson, gifted young Metropolitan baritone, as Escamille, Therese Drouin, Mr. Jobin's wife also a native of Quebec, as Micaela, and Lucille Browning, of the Metropolitan, as Mercedes. Others in the cast will include Thelma Votipka, George Cehanovsky, Louis Bourdon, Gerald Desmarais and Laslo Cvabay.

Emil Cooper, the noted Metropolitan conductor will direct the performance.

At the Movies

Bud Abbott Revealed as Dramatic Star in Comedy

Bud Abbott, of the famous Universal comedy team, is playing his first role as a tycoon in Universal's "Little Giant," at the O'Connor Theatre, Saturday and Sunday, August 3rd and 4th.

His partner, Lou Costello, enacts a country boy who goes to the big city, Los Angeles, seeking his fortune.

It's the first time Abbott ever had the part of a tycoon, except on the stage in "play within a play" roles, but he did not let that embarrass him, in the least.

"I have often met tycoons in business deals, both in and out of the motion picture business," he said, "and I have a pretty good idea of how they act."

"Many tycoons depend on their stage setting, or office furniture, to impress other tycoons and ordinary folks with their own importance. With that idea in mind, William A. Seiter, our director, ordered up for the tycoon I play, an elaborate set that was really something right out of the Architectural Gazette.

Effects Described

"To live, or act up to the specifications of my high powered office set, I had to wear snappy clothes, and smoke big, black cigars."

Abbott admitted he did not depend entirely on his own contacts with tycoons of the radio, stage, screen and restaurant industries, in which he has had some practical experience.

"I studied some books like 'Lives of the Millionaires' and 'Giants of American Industry,' to help me see things through gilded spectacles," he said. "You see, in this picture, they have me play a double role."

HUNTINGDON LOCALS

School Honour Roll Fund

Very few contributions are being received for the Huntingdon Academy Memorial Tablet and Honour Roll in the past few weeks and the amount now needed to complete the objective is so small, that it should not take any great effort to raise it if all who have signified their intention of contributing will please forward their contribution. It's a very worthwhile project and one that all should take great pride in. The following contributions have been received during the past week: Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McDowell, $2.00; Mrs. J. Leslie Elder, $2.00; Laurence Smith, $1.00; Brian Smith, $1.00; Bruce Smith, $1.00. The total has now reached $871.50, leaving a balance still to be raised of $128.50. Contributions may be sent to Mr. J. B. Macmillan, Principal, Huntingdon Academy, Huntingdon, Que., and all will be acknowledged through these columns.

Sunday School Picnic

St. Andrew's Sunday School, Huntingdon, held their annual picnic on Thursday, July 25, at St. Anicet. The day was ideal and teachers and pupils numbering thirty-three, spent a most enjoyable day at the beach. After lunch, a game of baseball was engaged in by the older pupils. Thanks are due to the managers of the church who contributed to the success of the picnic by providing cars for transportation and treats of ice cream and soft drinks for the children.

St. John's Sunday School Picnic

The pupils of St. John's Sunday School recently enjoyed a very pleasant picnic at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tedstone, Port Lewis. Some thirty-five children and parents attended this annual event and enjoyed races, swimming and games of various kinds. Lunches were packed and ice cream and drinks were supplied at the cottage. Thanks are due to Mr. and Mrs. Tedstone for their hospitality in giving their cottage and services on this occasion.

Sharp Practices

Perhaps you could call him a "city slicker", "a black market artist" or whatever you like, but at any rate he evidently was living by sharp practices. This man was repairing a cash register for a local merchant and when he returned the machine on Thursday, July 18, he asked $77 for his services. The second hand machine cost $25 in the first place, so the merchant declined to pay out $77 for a job he was certain was one of minor nature. The man refused to accept a check in settlement, demanding cash for account. He was about to take the machine in settlement of account. The merchant got in touch with the "Better Business Bureau", Montreal and when Mr. Smart man got wind of it, he settled the account for $25.

Another deal was attempted to be put over on a merchant who needed some repairs to his electric refrigerator. The man worked on the refrigerator for part of an hour and asked $100 for services rendered. He got a check for $100, but the merchant stopped payment on the check until such time as he can check up on the travelling electric refrigerator service specialist. It is very doubtful as to whether he will ever get $100 for the service he accorded the Huntingdon merchant, but will accept considerably less and be more in keeping with better business practices

An electric storm on Friday evening, July 19th, caused some slight damage around the district. A transformer on Lorne Avenue was struck by lightning and left the residents of that street in darkness until repairs were made. Many people complained of their electrical appliances not working and it was found that fuses had been blown during the storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey McBride and son Lorne, of Georgetown, Ont., were visitors in town recently.

Miss Colby, O.B.E., and Miss G. Belle Terrill, of Stanstead, Quebec, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Manning.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Alex Sim and little daughter Heather, were spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hunter.

Mrs. H. B. Pope who was a visitor with Mrs. J. T. Ewart last week, represents the Tobin Travel Bureau. She is making arrangements to conduct a tour of New York, Washington and points between, for the last two weeks of September.

It is reported that Mr. Chas. McClatchie has sold his residence on Wellington St. to Mr. John Patterson. Mr. McClatchie has purchased a building from Mr. Z. Leblanc and will move it to his lot on Lake Street.

Mr. Albert Dufault, of Huntingdon was out fishing on Wednesday evening, July 17th, and in mid Lake St. Francis, caught a 36 pound muskallonge.

At a recent meeting of the ratepayers of the Catholic School Commission, Mr. Albert Saumier was elected a trustee on the Huntingdon Catholic School Board, to replace Dr. J. E. Caza, whose term of office had expired.

Mjor J. G. Rennie, who recently returned from overseas, and Mrs. Rennie, have been guests for a few days at the home of his mother, Mrs. Fred Rennie. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rennie, of Montreal, were Sunday guests at the same home.

The Huntingdon Boys' Band wishes to acknowledge with thanks the cash donation of $5 from Mrs. Charles McConville and of $10 from Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Rowat.

SURPRISE

CACHE CREEK, B. C. -(CP)-A crow hatched a baby pheasant here when crow and pheasant eggs were exchanged in a barnyard experiment.

Invite Personal Loans Small Interest Charges

Mr. W. K. Pope, manager of the Bank of Montreal, Huntingdon, reports that the low cost of personal loans appeals strongly to all borrowers coming to his office. It is a very pleasant surprise to many. The rate of interest is only one-half of 1% per month, which is equal to 27c a month for a $100 loan, repayable in twelve monthly instalments. Loans range from $50 to $1,000 - or more, if you need it.

Getting a personal loan from Mr. Pope is a straightforward, business affair, for, as he will tell you, when you ask for a loan at the B. of M. you do not ask a favour. (Advt.)

TRAVEL TALKS

After a three weeks trip taken in Windsor, Detroit, London, Toronto and Montreal, just as one story leads to another, travel incidents keep popping up here and there. For instance:

A four-engined Douglas Skymaster, world's largest passenger plane, recently made a good-will tour to Montreal. Several women writers in Montreal were invited to take a hop upstairs.

"I've done some interesting interviewing in my day but never before at 4,000 feet up in the air", said my friend Helen Murphy, of Montreal Herald, while we were together in Windsor recently.

"And by the way", she added, "one of the hostesses on the ship was from Huntingdon." And that is how I learned about the interesting work that Helen Brooks has found to do. The other day along came the charming photograph of Helen, as she looked that day in Montreal.

MISS HELEN BROOKS COVEY HILL, QUE.

Helen is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Brooks, of Covey Hill. Quoting from Montreal Herald: 'Helen is blond, blue-eyed, celebrated her 22nd birthday on June 22, last., and was one of the three hostesses on the Northeastern Air Liner. Another hostess was Kay McMahon of Montreal, and the third was Virginia Frain of Halifax. Applicants for such positions must have a high standard of health, plus personality and intelligence. Helen Brooks was educated at Ormstown High School, engaged in Office work in Montreal and completed her training as air hostess in Boston. Her hobbies include dancing, tennis, skating, riding, basketball and bowling. She reads a great deal, especially best sellers, and is partial to red heads when it comes to male friends. These further hints as to character and qualifications appeared in the Montreal Herald story, in all of which the many friends of Helen Brooks will be most interested.

Pearl Harbor Travellers to Mainland.

On train from London to Toronto I got into conversation with a "Canadian War Bride" returning with her baby to Nova Scotia. She was fed up with living in close quarters at high rent and delighted to be returning for a holiday to her home by the sea.

We were in the smoker end of an air-conditioned car and interested in the unusual fact that all other seats were occupied by Orientals, men, women and children. The conductor in passing warned that it was a chartered car and we were liable to eviction. Nothing happened.

Later I learned from Mrs. K. Struss of 2966 Oahu Ave., Honolulu, that this was a party of about 50 tourists, conducted by a Chinese, Mr. Char. The first tour since before the war, was made up of Chinese, Japanese, Hiawiians, with my informat and her husband the only whites. They had come across the Continent from San Francisco and were to spend Sunday at Royal York Hotel, Toronto, go on to Niagara Falls, New York, Washington, and Montreal about July 27th, across Canada and home. The cost around $770.00 for the two months trip. They were a jolly party. Mrs. Struss pointed out a Chinese who was a clothing manufacturer. He possessed a color movie camera and $500. worth of film.

AN AUTUMN TOUR.

These conducted tours have a lot to recommend them to persons with a yen for new sights and contacts. If you don't belong to a group that arranges conventions now and then and are a lone couple or even a single man and woman, an excellent way to discover places along with good companions, is to join a conducted tour.

In the mail to-day I have the outline for an Autumn Tour to New York, Washington, Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, Richmond, Williamsburg, Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, New York.

The party will leave Montreal Sunday morning, Sept. 15th, 1946, from Windsor Station, and return on September 30th. Sixteen days, all expense for $218.80. Including first class hotels, room with bath, meals, sightseeing in New York and Washington. Motor tour along the Blue Ridge Sky drive from Washington.

I will say again that there is nothing so refreshing both mentally and physically as the sight of new places and faces.

Specially Written for THE HUNTINGDON GLEANER By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"When is an athlete too old?"

That question again came up for discussion the other day after we had seen a motion picture short about one I. V. Baldwin, an American, who despite his 80-odd years, still is an expert tightrope-walker. The pictures showed the American balance artist was as spry as a young man on the aerial pathway and notwithstanding his more than four score years perfored the daring routines with little hesitation and much agility.

Immediately the name of King Gustav V of Sweden entered the discussion and it was pointed out that the Swedish monarch is 88 yet plays a better-than-average game of tennis and plays daily. That's something we wish we could do—and we aren't 88.

In boxing about the oldest known active pugilist is a Negro heavyweight of the west called Tiger Jack Fox. Fox officially is listed as 39; he admits to 38 and most oldtimers place his age at between 45 and 55. But the ring master still wins more fights than he loses and in 21 years of boxing—seven as an amateur—his record is creditable.

One of the more rugged gentlemen of the sports world today is an Ottawan now resident in New York City. He is James Wigmore, who at 72 plays a wicked game of polo—three times a week. Wigmore didn't take up the strenuous pastime until he was 45 and today his fondest wish is that he could play as well as he did when he was younger—60 to be specific. At the tender age of 51 he recalls, he was a member of the U.S. national championship team.

In other words, you're as young as you feel!

Labor disputes are front page headlines these days and nearly made the sports page for a second time recently. Following last month's threatened strike for union recognition of Pittsburgh's baseball Pirates, two more player walkouts were narrowly averted in the Border League a short time ago. One was at Granby, Que., and the other at Ogdensburg, N.Y.

The Granby team threatened to quit because of the release of Manager William Sisler, while the New Yorkers were strike-intended because of the management's alleged failure to strengthen the team. But all was quickly solved and no harm done.

Unlike baseball, labor calls only one strike for the out!

Joe Jacobs' Louis-Conn affair has entered the history books, but one story about the pre-fight days still lingers and is good for the best laugh of the whole business. Louis, as you know, is a bit of a wit and during the last days of training at Pompton Lakes he received a long-distance 'phone call from a sports writer on the Russian newspaper, Pravda.

When Joe picked up the 'phone the voice at the other end said: "This is Moscow calling. Is that you, Joe?"

"What Joe do you want?" countered Louis.

"Joe Louis," came the reply.

"Oh," said the champ, "I thought maybe you were calling Joe Stalin and the operator had given you the wrong number."

Maple Leaf Grange

"Henry's Mail Order Wife" was a play very well staged by the Westville Grange players at the Maple Leaf Grange last Tuesday night. Roy and His Western Boys and Girls of Massena furnished music between the acts, followed by an hour of instrumental selections.

Tap dances by Betty Shane and the Fleury sisters, duet by Joyce Dumas and Joan Fleury, cornet selections by Shirley McIllwain of Fort Covington added to the evening's entertainment.

Last Friday evening Mrs. Geo. Paul, Lecturer of Maple Leaf Grange, presented a programme at Westville Grange. She was assisted by Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Hattie Coffey, Miss Bessie Graham, Mrs. W. E. Barrie.

It was announced that next Saturday will be Neighbor Night at Malone Grange and members of Maple Leaf Grange are invited to attend.

SCHOOL ON MOVE

TRURO, N. S.,-(CP)-Nova Scotia Agricultural College will move from Truro to nearby Debert for the opening of the fall term Oct. 10. After destruction of the college building by fire, Agriculture Minister Mackenzie arranged for use of former air force buildings at Debert military camp.

There is no rationing of eating enjoyment, and a veal cutlet dipped in milk, rolled in well-seasoned crumbs and given a slow oven bake should be a happy choice for Sunday dinner. Veal takes kindly to braising too, and from your half-pound purchase you should have sufficient, augmented with vegetables, for Monday's top-o'-the-stove meal. A crisp salad plate with devilled egg and cheese wedge is a quick trick for a summer night when the mercury bespeaks freedom from kitchen drudgery. Wednesday's meat loaf will provide for a guest, plus a left-over for Thursday's meal. Friday's fish will bring you all the goodness of the sea. And a fine finish to a week of good eating (which, incidentally, spares you a token) would be a lamb chop with fresh mint sauce as its flavour partner.

District News Notes

Dundee

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gervais of Notre Dame de Grace, and Mrs. A. M. Basham of Ormstown, motored to Dundee on Sunday and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Angus Quenneville. Other guests over the week-end at the Quenneville home were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quenneville, of Cornwall, Ontario.

Mr. William and Miss Katie Campbell, also Mrs. William McGibbon, of Huntingdon, were Friday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Ferguson and family. Miss Isabel MacDougall, of Ormstown, spent the past week visiting her friend, Miss Florence Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McNicol and son Winston, Mrs. Fred White and son Robert of McMasterville, Que., also Mr. Robert McDonald, of Montreal, are spending a couple of weeks at the home of Mrs. Eleanor and Mr. Earl McNicol.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry MacNaughton and son Ronnie, of Huntingdon, were also guests at the McNicol home for a few days, the past week.

Despite a sudden thunderstorm which threatened to spoil the proceedings entirely, the recent Ice Cream Social held in Zion Church under the auspices of the Board of Managers, turned out to be quite successful. Mesdames N. D. McPhee and H. S. Smith were in charge for the evening refreshments and report that the proceeds amounted to $80.00. A short time after the tables were being filled by guests a sharp bolt of lightning struck nearby and in a flash all the lights went out, lamps and makeshift having to be used the remainder of the evening.

The home of Mrs. Jessie Vass and Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming which is only a short distance from the U. Church, had a very narrow escape from being seriously damaged by the same bolt that put out the lights at the church. Several persons at the church who were outside at the time saw the fire and sparks running along the telephone drop wire to the Vass home but did not think seriously of it. However it passed into the house by the telephone entrance and where the indoor wire ran near a window it burst into flame and set fire to the curtain and shade and both blazed up merrily. Mrs. Vass was alone in the kitchen at the time, Mr. Fleming upstairs and the others being at the social. With great presence of mind and although along in years and not in the best of health she managed to get a dish of water and throw on the blazing curtain and hold it in check when Mr. Fleming attracted by his mother-in-law's calls for help rushed downstairs and soon had the fire under control. Other damage around the house included telephone, radio, fuses and lamps burnt out and the electric wiring and connections damaged. A rather amusing episode took place after a new telephone had been installed to replace the one damaged by the lightening. Everyone thinks of telephones as being dumb to all intent and purposes except when the receiver is off but this one seemed to have had the uncanny knack of being able to hear even with its ear closed. At least that's what the lady of the house found out when some of her neighbours informed her that when trying to use the line they could hear the ordinary household conversation being carried on. A second call by the serviceman quickly remedied matters however. A telephone incorrectly wired was the answer.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Stark, of Huntingdon, are spending several weeks with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fraser.

The regular meeting of Zion Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. D. Fraser on Thursday afternoon, Pres., Mrs. George Sutton in the chair. After the regular devotional exercises, reading of minutes and roll call, the meeting was favored with a very interesting talk by Mrs. Collins, Missionary on furlough from Africa. She told of many of the customs and superstitions of the people and also the wonderful work done by the trained native missionaries. A collection of curios which she exhibited was also much enjoyed. After the meeting Mrs. Fraser served refreshments to about twenty members and visitors.

Mrs. Geo. Dumas, Mr. Hiram English and Mr. R. Gosslin, spent a few days holiday at the home of Mr. Fred Baskin and called on other friends. Mr. and Mrs. Baskin accompanied them to Montreal for a day.

Atomic bomb experiments and tragic bomb explosions in Palestine dominated the news during the last seven days. On July 24, Canadian time, the fifth atomic bomb in history was exploded under water in Bikini Lagoon, wrecking important units of a large fleet.

The atomic experiments at Bikini had even more significance, perhaps, than the Jerusalem blast. They followed the setting off of an atomic bomb by a joint United States Army and Navy task force July 1.

The second explosion took place under the surface of the Pacific lagoon. When the vast column of steam, water and radioactive particles had subsided, a battleship, a heavy carrier and half a dozen other vessels were on the bottom.

At the week's end, the surviving fleet still was too hot from radioactivity to investigate thoroughly. But Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy, commander of the joint task force, said Friday that, at a guess, he believed any men on deck on the Bikini test fleet would have been killed by the blast or by the resultant radioactivity.

Two days after the blast was set off, radioactivity was so severe that Admiral Blandy and a party of officers who visited the lagoon were driven away by the danger.

The King David hotel explosion in Jerusalem which killed at least 78 persons was followed late in the week by United States Secretary of State Byrnes' announcement that the Anglo-American cabinet committee on Palestine has recommended a partition of the Holy Land.

Byrnes said the British government has approved the plan which now is being considered by the American government. Meanwhile, in London, the foreign office refused comment on the American statement that Britain has approved the Palestine partition plan.

Though Byrnes refused to give details of the plan, it was understood to call for the creation of Arab and Jewish states in the Holy Land. Earlier reports from Paris said that representatives of both Arab and Jewish factions had requested such a move, with the seperate states to be operated under a United Nations mandate.

Word from London, however, indicates that Arabs generally, and some Jews, are opposed to such an answer to the Palestine problem.

The European peace conference starting at the end of the month in Paris may be the battleground for a fight over Hungarian reparations. This possibility was raised last Friday by a strong protest which the United States has sent to Moscow.

The United States accused Russia of creating economic chaos in Hungary by carrying off the beaten nation's food and industrial materials. Currently, Hungary is in the grip of runaway inflation.

The American charges were contained in a letter which Ambassador W. Bedell Smith delivered to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. Carrying an appeal to Moscow for Soviet collaboration with the United States and Britain in rehabilitating Hungary, the letter reminded Russia that the Big Three had agreed at Yalta to help Hungary get on her feet. According to the United States Russia is not living up to this agreement.

Ambassador Smith disputed contentions which he said have been made that Hungary's plight is due in part to the failure of the United States to restore to Hungary property stolen by the Germans. He described as exaggerated the Soviet estimate that the United States is holding Hungarian property worth $3,000,000,000.

Meanwhile, in Vienna, the Austrain parliament has, in effect, told Russia to mind her own business. The law-making body ignored a Soviet warning to the contrary and unanimously approved the nationalization of 81 key industries--including some claimed by Russia as German reparations.

Hardly had Austria's legislators defied the Soviet warning when they voted to ask the United Nations for permission to put Austria's case before that body at its next meeting. Obviously Austria is relying on the Potsdam promise that she will be left intact as a nation.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King is preparing for the Paris peace conference. The prime minister reached Britain by ship Friday and was joined by Health Minister Claxton who made the trip by plane.

When Mr. King reached London he outlined Canada's position at the 21 power parley. He said the Dominion is approaching the conference independently of any other country, and that Canada is equal in status if not in stature to any other country. That includes, he said, the United Kingdom.

The prime minister has fixed no deadline for his return to Canada. He thinks the Paris peace conference will be over in about a month, and he hopes to visit European battlefields after that.

On this side of the Atlantic, the veterans' committee of the House of Commons has brought down their veterans' charter after studying the proposals for parts of two sessions of parliament. The report reviews what has already been recommended from time to time.

The first recommendation was that the director of the Veterans' Land Act--Gordon Murchison--be reduced from the rank of deputy minister and placed under the complete authority of the minister. Secondly, the report proposes legislation which would extend existing legislation to all government agencies including crown companies. Another proposal was that veterans' priorities be extended in purchasing surplus war assets under a certificate from the veterans' department.

All in all the committee made amendments to 13 bills and suggested a dozen other recommendations. Most of them have already been adopted by parliament or will be soon.

RECIPES

SUBSTANTIAL SALADS

Summer seemed to be just around the corner for some time but it is here now with fine warm weather. Besides bringing hot weather, summer also means longer days to work and play out-of-doors. In many cases outdoor activities may take place some distance from the home and it may be necessary to carry lunches.

Since a hot meal is often out of the question, the homemaker must prepare something that will be efficiently substantial to satisfy keen appetites. In many instances, a substantial salad is the logical answer since a salad may include meat or fish, eggs, cheese and vegetables, raw or cooked. Care should be taken, when a salad is to be carried, to have all ingredients thoroughly drained before being mixed; otherwise the texture and appearance of the salad would be mushy and unappetising. Glass jars with a good lid make good containers for salads. Lettuce should be carried in a separate container or wrapped in waxed paper in a paper bag or tea towel.

The same salads may be prepared to serve for the family lunch or supper at home. The home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture are suggesting recipes for salads such as these.

Lima Beans Salad

4 cups cooked lima beans
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
¼ teaspoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon chili powder

Combine lima beans and parsley. To mayonnaise add the curry and chili powders, blend well. Add to beans and mix together lightly or carry in separate container to be added just before serving on lettuce leaves. Hard cooked eggs and radishes may also be served with this salad. Six servings.

Vegetable-Meat Salad

2 cups chopped cooked meat
2 tomatoes, chopped coarsely
2 or 3 radishes, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 cup chopped cucumber
¼ cup chopped green onion
½ teaspoon vinegar

Pickles or a small amount of grated cheese, (mild) may be added or substituted as wished. This salad gives any number of variations, according to what is used or omitted. Mix with mayonnaise or carry the latter in a separate container and serve on lettuce.

Macaroni Spring Salad

2 cups cooked cooled elbow macaroni
½ cup chopped green onions
1 cup sliced or shredded raw carrots
1 bunch radishes, about ¾ cup, sliced
2 cups lettuce cut in pieces
1/3 cup boiled dressing.

To cooked macaroni add green onions and boiled dressing and mix thoroughly. Cool and chill for at least ½ hour. Add carrots, radishes and lettuce. Toss lightly but thoroughly. Serve on whole lettuce leaves. Six servings.

Basic Boiled Dressing

1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon mustard
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons sugar
Few grains cayenne
2 eggs
½ cup vinegar

Heat milk in double boiler. Beat eggs until very light and add dry ingredients. Add hot milk and return to double boiler. Cook, stirring until thickened; then stir in vinegar very slowly. Cook 2 minutes longer. Yield: 1½ cups.

A MATTER OF LOCATION

Home, folks like to tell you, is where the heart is. In that case, Tom Jenson of Stoughton, Wisconsin, was living in his mouth. He drove out on the edge of town to look at his newly completed house. It was beautiful. Fresh white paint, green shutters. New pine tree in the front yard. Everything wonderful...until Jenson peered around and noted the house was standing on someone else's property.

CHILDREN'S CORNER

HEROINE IN BLUE

I think the little story of the heroine in blue should be told for her valor may serve to lift hearts heavy with burdens and handicaps.

In the beginning she seemed to us just another blue jay mother, perhaps tamer than the rest, because she never took to that nervous flight at our approach which is so characteristic of her family. This was the more remarkable since she was accompanied by her three children, yet feared neither for herself nor for them. She would perch nonchalantly on the wire fence, only a few yards from the porch where we sat, with her children distributed carefully around her to share the crumbs she had obtained from the feeding ground nearby.

It was on one of these occasions that I first noticed with what difficulty she maintained her balance, and, looking very closely, I saw that she had but one leg.

Oh, what a lesson to the faint-hearted! In a world peopled overabundantly with natural enemies and not overly furnished with the needs of life, this little lady had not only managed to survive herself, but had raised a fine family of three.

She managed them extraordinarily well, too, and not one of the little ones would crowd for his meal nor stir from the spot she had appointed when she flew off on urgent business. Indeed, it seemed as though her unusual strength of will had communicated itself to them and won whole-hearted respect, even beyond the normal code of birdland.

She was not without her winning ways, either, using as her special ruse the lining up of her three, directly in front of our eyes, the minute we appeared on the porch, so that crumbs would be forthcoming. If buried in a book, we could count on plaintive calls to rouse us, too. When returning after a day's absence, we would find the family perched suggestively on the tree at the kitchen window. Who could deny that she was the ever-watchful sentinel of our comings and goings?

The little story ends here. The children, of course, reached independence as the summer advanced, and the mother appeared alone. Gradually her appearances became less frequent and her motions more laboured. Then she appeared no more. It seemed as though, having done her highest duty, she had earned her everlasting repose.

POSTMAN AND THE DUCHESS

The "Duchess" is a sheep dog, and the Postman is Eddie Kerr, both of Los Angeles in general and the east side of the city in particular, for it is in this section that Duchess lives and Eddie works. And, because Eddie works, the Duchess works, too.

It started about three years ago. The postman delivered mail to the house where the Duchess and her four-year-old mistress, Theresa Orosco, live. Both mistress and dog took a great liking to Eddie, who was very friendly with them. Soon after their first acquaintance had ripened into fast friendship, the Duchess started to help Eddie along his route. How she found out where the starting point was, nobody can say. However, one morning when Eddie arrived at the branch post office to begin his day's work (postmen have a lot of paper work and sorting to do before they start on their routes) he was greeted by the Duchess. She waited around until the time came to begin the deliveries, then happily followed Eddie on his rounds. When she got to her own house, though—which is about two-thirds of the way through the entire route—she quit. But, next morning, she was at the post office again, awaiting her friend in the blue uniform. She did the same thing; walked the route until she got to her home—then she knocked off for the day. And this has been her modus operandi, now, for the past three years.

Queen though she is, she must get up at about four o'clock to be at the post office to greet Eddie, who comes to work at five. But she reports every morning without fail. On Sundays, when Eddie Kerr has a day off, the Duchess—not believing in holidays—goes on the route by herself.

The Duchess has picked up a few labor-saving tricks while on the daily march. The postman, at one point, has a single delivery to make on the opposite side of the street. He crosses over, makes the delivery, then crosses back again to continue his regular route. At first, the Duchess would follow him across but soon she got so she would just sit down and wait where she was while Eddie made the crossing and came back. Thus, she saved herself a few weary footsteps.

The post office department does not approve of postmen having dogs along with them on their routes—but there seems to be nothing it can do about the Duchess. (Nor do they seem to want to do anything.)

AIDS BUSY DOCTORS

JOHANNESBURG-(CP)- H. F. Geldenhuys has inaugurated the Rand Emergency Service to relieve harassed and overworked doctors of some of their cares. The service is 24-hours a day and through it doctors with social obligations will be able to keep in touch with patients, nursing homes and hospitals.

Swimming and Water Safety

The first group of swimmers to follow the leadership course for instructors in swimming and water safety organized by the Canadian Red Cross Society has now completed the lessons and the two hundred some instructors have returned to their localities. While they were in Montreal following the one week course, all their expenses were taken care of by the Society; teaching swimming and the rules of water safety is an important item on the Red Cross peacetime program.

The appalling loss of lives through drowning each year has incited the Red Cross Society to promote a better knowledge of swimming and water safety, and to organize classes for boys and girls from eight to eighteen years of age. It is felt that widespread use of a standardized method of teaching swimming and water safety might have prevented a high percentage of the more than one thousand drownings in Canada last year. Of this number, almost three hundred of the drownings occurred in our province. In view of the short swimming season—practically limited to the months of July and August—this is an appalling figure and calls for quick action. Statistics reveal that the majority of persons living on lakes, rivers and on the seashore do not know how to swim; it is even more surprising to realize that in cities like Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers, where swimming pools are opened the year round, and where children are offered every opportunity to learn to swim, only one out of ten can qualify.

As far back as 1939, the Canadian Red Cross had contemplated a swimming and water safety program, but the war broke out and it was not until September of last year that it was possible to put it into effect. The Society is anxious to reach children in rural areas and smaller communities, where there generally exist no organizations, no opportunities to teach children how to be safe in water.

Candidates to the Canadian Red Cross Society's leadership course for instructors were nominated by organizations, colleges, schools and Red Cross branches from Gaspe to the Eastern Townships The majority were French-speaking—seventy-five percent—and of the total number about one fourth were girls.

In charge of the French-Speaking section is Lucien Pilon, while Donald Rose heads the English group. In outlining the program to the participants, the directors pointed out that the course is not primarily concerned with life-saving, but will concentrate on uniform methods of swimming and water safety. A better knowledge of the rules of water safety would prevent the majority of accidents which occur at frequent intervals all through the swimming season.

Dr. A. T. Bazin is chairman of the Swimming and Water Safety Committee in our province, while the National Director is Dr. Harvey Doney, of Toronto. Dr. Doney outlined the Society's program in a short address to the group of instructors in Montreal and pointed out that last year's drowning toll, which included 280 deaths in Quebec, emphasized the need for water safety.

Aimed toward preventing the large annual toll of deaths through drowning, the new project will also have the second object of providing healthful physical development and clean sport. Upon completion of the course, the boys and girls should be able to swim strongly and easily over long distances and in cases of emergency, they should enable them to swim in place, tread water, or stay afloat with little expenditure of effort; to swim in still water, in choppy water, in swells, in currents and in the surf. In general, the skills will enable the pupils to swim easily and effectively, whether for recreation or in cases of emergency.

The Canadian Red Cross hopes to make Canadians in every part of our great Dominion acutely aware of the importance of learning how to swim.

The campaign is on—for physical fitness and to help save lives from drowning—learn to swim now.

Anchor Ice A Mystery

When lakes and streams freeze in winter the ice usually forms at the surface of the water. However, ice sometimes forms on the bottom of a river, lake or even a shallow sea. Such ice is called anchor or ground ice.

When ground ice forms in rivers with stony beds, it may form around large boulders in such quantities as to provide sufficient buoyancy to cause the boulders to actually float up from the river bottom to be carried down stream with the current.

Ground or anchor ice similarly may form on the bottom of shallow seas such as the Baltic, and when such ice envelops an anchor it may lift it from the bottom, allowing the ship which depended upon that anchor for mooring to drift away.

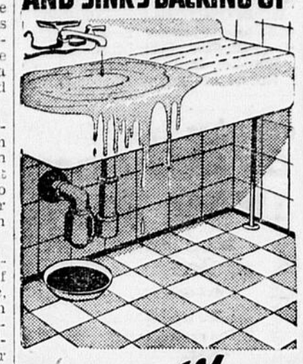

The formation of ground ice in streams is thought to be due to the bed of the stream being frozen, with the result that it freezes the water with which it comes in contact. In swift-running streams with rocky beds, it may be that all the water in the stream is at a temperature below 32 degrees Fahrenheit, the quieter water at the bottom freezing while the turbulence of the surface water keeps that portion of the stream from changing to ice.

The formation of ice on the bottoms of seas is less clearly understood. One reasonable theory holds that since fresh water freezes at a temperature considerably above that at which salt water turns to ice, anchor ice may form as a result of fresh-water springs issuing from the sea bottom. The sea water might well be cold enough to freeze any fresh water with which it comes in contact.

The presence of fresh-water springs beneath briny seas is well known, drinking water being brought up by divers from salt seas in some parts of the world.

A MESSAGE FOR THOSE WHO NEED TRAINED WORKERS

AN ARMY INSTRUMENT MECHANIC HAD TO BE GOOD!

Only one of 216 Army trades, the instrument mechanic, among other things, had to make optical, electrical or mechanical repairs to anti-aircraft fire control equipment or to any field instrument. He had to be able to use fine hand tools, watchmakers' lathes and check and calibrate instruments from a standard. He had to be able to follow blueprints, harden and temper metal parts and tools, know mathematics including trigonometry and have a knowledge of elementary electricity and optics.

Today

He brings specialized training to industry . . .

In common with thousands of other ex-servicemen and women the instrument mechanic has a real contribution to offer Canadian industry and business. World War II was a mechanized war. Canada's soldiers, sailors and airmen, represent many hundreds of industrial skills. You will find competent journeymen among those discharged. You will find many thousands of others who have basic skills which can be converted to civilian production with additional training.

Investigate the training-on-the-job provisions of Canada's re-establishment programme. Under this, the Dominion Government adds to the wages you pay ex-servicemen and ex-servicewomen while they are learning. You can secure complete details through the National Employment Service, the Department of Veterans Affairs, or Canadian Vocational Training.

Men and women for the services were carefully selected on enlistment. Service experience, training, discipline and the lessons of organization add greatly to their value. Whether tradesman or not, the veteran makes the ideal employee. Canada offers none better.

Benni Coccia Softball League

Coming events cast shadows! And at the rate the Benni Coccia field seems to be developing, it looks as though in the years to come, we shall have some excellent ball players from this group.

Work has commenced on bleachers for spectators to sit on and enjoy watching their sons and sons' friends play ball, and by the time the schedule begins again on Aug. 5th (after the two week holiday period) the field will have taken on a new appearance. Horse-shoe pitches are also being erected, and some time soon the field is going to be scraped and diamond properly laid out. All this, friends is THANKS to the Rotary Club who have found the money to cover these expenses. Many thanks are due to the Royals Ball Club and Mr. Chas. Faille who have co-operated 100 percent so that the kids can have a ball league. We have been promised some old balls and bats, and any other old equipment the Royals can no longer use. Thanks Royals, you sure are giving the younger kids a break!

Although Rene Senecal and Noel Lefebvre are fighting hard, Louis Derepentigny's Iroquois are in the lead. However, thanks to the good coaching all the boys are receiving, they are taking everything the way all good sports usually take beatings. Someone has to win the cup though, and it's anybody's guess who that will be at the moment.

Horse-shoe Pitching.

Commencing next week, there will be two horse-shoe pitches on the Benni Coccia field ready for use, so let's see that they really get a lot of good usage. All you people who are at loose ends in the evenings can come along any time and perhaps a league can be formed. If anyone cares to act as a leader in this particular sport, please contact Stan Liversidge, dial 2162 and leave the message.

Red Cross Learn-to-Swim Campaign

Although it's a little late for any more entrants, the boys and girls who are at present taking swimming lessons are making wonderful progress. The water looked a little cold and black the first week, but believe it or not, the children are now ducking their heads under, opening their eyes under water, and some have got to the stage where they can pick an object from the bottom of the pool just as easy as eating their breakfast. Two of the pupils have reached the point where they can glide halfway across the pool, and at that rate it won't be long before they can swim a little bit. One pupil in particular is really "going to town" and it looks as though Huntingdon has a potential entrant into bigger things if he keeps up the good work. I haven't mentioned any names to-day, but maybe soon we'll have something to really brag about.

Lawn Bowling.

The Lawn Bowling league started off with a bang on Friday, July 26th, and although it happened to be the night before a lot of people were going on vacation, there were about twenty people there during the course of the evening. Of those who will be staying in town, we were able to form a small league and the games will be played on Mondays and Fridays each week. The green may be used any evening whatever though and if there are any others who are not leaving town for a few weeks yet, come along and get on a team. The present schedule although made up, is subject to change when we get more entrants, so don't hesitate to get started. Following is the set-up:

TEAM A—Skip, Mrs. Goundrey, George Tannahill, Keith Fawcett, Mrs. Liversidge.

TEAM B—Skip, Mr. Dewhurst, D. McGerrigle, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Sparrow.

TEAM C—Skip, Mr. Fox, Gordon Tannahill, Miss Kimball, Mrs. Philps.

Lawn Bowling Schedule

A vs B Monday, July 29, 7.30 p.m.
C vs A Friday, Aug. 2, 7.30 p.m.
B vs C Monday, Aug. 5, 7.30 p.m.
A vs B Friday, Aug. 9, 7.30 p.m.
C vs A Monday, Aug. 12, 7.30 p.m.
B vs C Friday, Aug. 16, 7.30 p.m.
A vs B Monday, Aug. 19, 7.30 p.m.
C vs A Friday, Aug. 23, 7.30 p.m.
B vs C Monday, Aug. 26, 7.30 p.m.

Games should start at 8 p.m. if possible.

If necessary to postpone any games, Mondays will be played on Tuesdays following. Fridays will be played on Wednesdays following.

Skips are asked to see that players are on hand according to schedule.

Key for clubhouse may be had from Stan Liversidge, Adam Sellar, Keith Fawcett or Doug. McGerrigle.

Junior Cycle Club

The Junior cycle club has made its first trip, and a grand time was had by all. They rode out to the lake and through the kind permission of Mr. Francois Cleyn, they were able to use his lawn and waterfront for bathing. Lunches and suppers were packed and taken along and after a few pitches of a softball that someone happened to bring, everyone was ready for a cooling dip in the lake. Nothing much was done after supper, and in the cool of the evening tracks were made for home. Plans for their next trip are now going ahead, and anyone who would like to join the club, are asked to contact Keith Fawcett, dial 497, or Stan Liversidge, dial 2162.

WARM! Isn't It?

IT is these days that retard the appetite and make eating a chore instead of a pleasure. It is also on these days that the cook has to use her ingenuity to make meals both pleasing and nutritious, so that they will tempt the jaded appetites. Carelessly and poorly prepared meals served on hot days, fail to give the right atmosphere required for enjoyment and satisfaction. Sometimes it is a good idea to plan a picnic lunch, even if it is only served on the back lawn. It often provides lots of fun for the family to prepare the meal on an outdoor fire and unlike the ordinary type picnic, all the dishes and all the facilities for washing the dishes are right at hand in the house. The idea provides something a little different from the ordinary routine and helping to prepare the meal helps to jack up the appetite. It also allows the cook some measure of relaxation as she can get help on the hot day. The fresh air and sunshine are needed for health just as much as well prepared meals.

With so much green stuff and fresh vegetables in the gardens at this time of year, salads should form a good part of each meal. Salads also make a splendid way of serving a vegetable with a cold lunch and have the effect of appearing cooling and refreshing. The serving of such a meal is also an important part of it. If the plate is nicely arranged, it has a much more appealing and appetizing attraction on these warm days. Besides, the green leafy vegetables are a must on Canada's Food Rules. Drinks made of citrus fruits are also appealing when served with such meals, and don't forget the milk for the children.

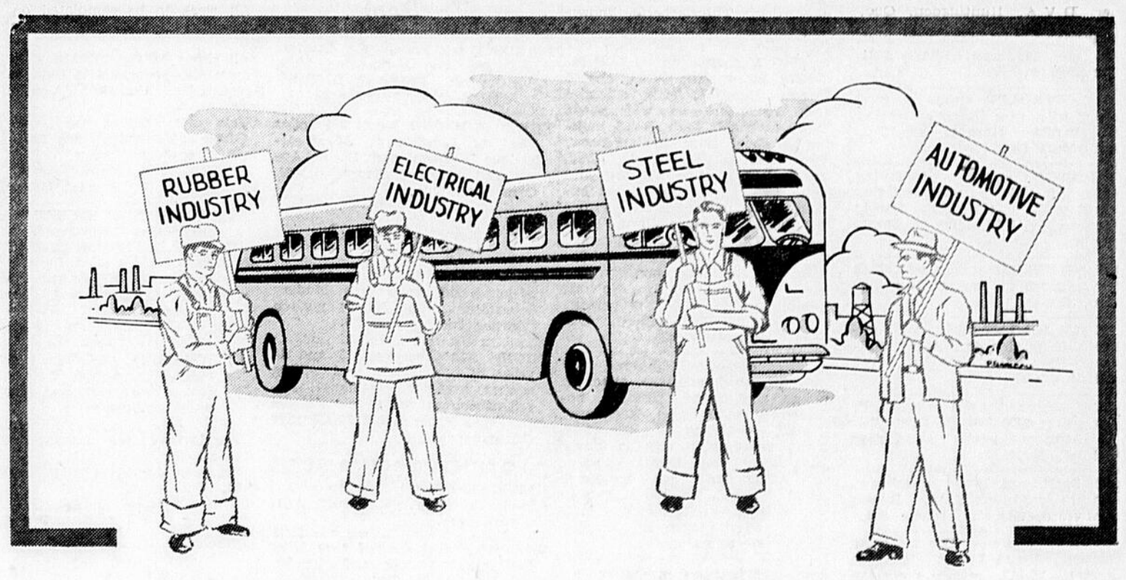

Why not try this idea some of these warm days and see if you can get better enjoyment and greater entertainment from your meals served in this way?

The "Invisible" Picket Lines...

have delayed delivery of Buses from 4 to 8 months!

THERE are many industries involved in the building and maintenance of a bus . . . and anything that happens in any one of these industries is reflected in the delivery dates of new buses on order, and in the delivery of the parts and supplies necessary for their operation.

Nearly a year ago, when wartime restrictions were relaxed, this Company carefully planned bus requirements for this summer's record motorcoach travel.

We ordered more than 70 new buses for delivery early this year, and sufficient bus parts and automotive supplies to cover all maintenance needs.

BUT . . . strikes in the steel industry, in the automotive industry, in the electrical industry, in the rubber industry, in the automotive parts industry, have one after another delayed deliveries. New buses expected last May will not reach us until the autumn at least; maintenance parts and supplies are not arriving fast enough to keep up with our needs, and some of our existing buses are tied up for want of them.

There is nothing we can do to improve matters, for delivery delays are caused by troubles in other industries.

So, we must rely on the public's kindly understanding of the situation.

We are giving maximum service now with all available equipment. We'll increase and improve that service the moment our urgently required new supplies reach us.
