Richmond citizens await oil-tank verdict

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter

RICHMOND — More than 500 Richmond citizens and merchants are still waiting to see if the 100-foot oil tanks which appeared on a site near the town centre last week will be removed.

Businessmen and citizens of Richmond started protesting the proposal to install these tanks on the site of Canadian Fuel Marketers firm, bordered by Adam, Gouin, Main and William streets, last October.

Last November, they set up several procedures to protest the measure including a petition to the town council and a request for a study to be made by Provincial Minister of the Environment and Municipal Affairs, Victor Goldbloom.

The municipal council had not pronounced themselves on the issue until Mr. Goldbloom's study of the problem was completed.

The citizens and merchants were shocked last week when they found that the tanks were being erected on the site despite these petitions and studies on the matter. In an emergency move, a representative from Mr. Goldbloom's office was dispatched to Richmond to look at the problem Tuesday this week and citizens again asked Richmond council to deny permits for the erection of the tanks.

Nothing positive has been gained by these measures so far, and the situation was described as an impasse with neither the city council nor the Minister being able to take steps to stop the installation of the oil tanks.

As well as the eyesore the tanks present, citizens and merchants think the tanks may be dangerous. "There could be oil seepage which would drain down the hill and get into the sewage system presenting a tremendous fire hazard," a concerned citizen, Mrs. C. Fleury explained. "In Richmond we have had trouble enough with the water without this added danger."

Last summer, Richmond suffered severe damage to roads and houses by floods on the St. Francis River.

The increase in traffic which the setting up of the oil tanks on this particular site would cause is also of concern because of the already busy streets in the area.

Protesters feel the city council could have the same authority as was shown in Valcourt several years ago when the council flatly refused permission to an oil company to install tanks in the town.

They stress that they do not want to hurt the company and they are not against the setting up of the business in the town — they just want to see the tanks removed from the town centre.

Le Cercle d'Affaires, made up of 80 local businessmen, has now taken over leading the protest against the tanks. They intend to arrange meetings with both the municipal council and the company within the next few days.

The weather

Somewhat cooler and cloudy today with a chance of late-afternoon showers. High today of 55-60 going down tonight to about 40. Outlook for tomorrow, little change but a chance of a warming trend moving in by Sunday.

Two dead, 10 injured in Quebec blaze

QUEBEC (CP) — Fire officials hope to be able to question an injured nun today concerning a fire and explosion which took two lives and injured 10 persons, Thursday, at a rehabilitation centre for handicapped adults here.

Chief Dominique Gonthier of the Quebec City fire department said the severity of the injuries suffered by the 10 survivors, nine women and one man, made it impossible to question them Thursday night.

A nun, less seriously injured than the others, may be questioned today, he said.

Officials at the city morgue said the two women killed were so badly burned no estimate of age could be given and identification had not been possible.

The explosion occurred at 3:50 p.m. on the second storey of a four-storey wing of the former Misericorde hospital in the city's uptown district.

Eight or nine persons were working in the workshop where the explosion occurred and about 190 others were working on the same floor.

BLEW OUT WINDOWS

The force of the explosion blew out windows and charred the workshop interior.

More than 50 firemen rushed to the scene and the fire was under control in a half hour.

A witness, Jean Clement, 19, said everyone in the building panicked at the time of the explosion and, instead of rushing to the nearest exit, ran to the opposite end of the corridor as thick smoke began to collect.

The second storey of the hospital, closed a few months ago, has been occupied by Handico, a local initiative project which gives work to handicapped persons.

The first floor houses reception offices for Ugandan immigrants to Canada.

Special prosecutor named in Watergate case next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General-designate Elliot L. Richardson is reported planning to name an independent Watergate prosecutor by the time his confirmation hearings begin next Wednesday.

Senate sources said Richardson made that pledge to Republican senators after they told him they want the Watergate investigation taken entirely out of the executive branch.

Richardson's choice for the job was not made known, but speculation centres on Philadelphia lawyer William T. Coleman, a former member of the now-defunct Price Commission. Coleman declined comment when asked whether he had been offered the position.

As one group of senators after another demanded a special prosecutor, two recently-resigned White House aides testified before a federal grand jury about Watergate.

John D. Ehrlichman, former chief domestic adviser, and H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, said they answered all questions.

Their lawyer, J. W. Wilson, said that even if his clients are indicted, "they have no fear of being convicted."

LEAKS CHARGED
Meanwhile, Martha Mitchell swore in a pre-trial statement in New York Thursday that the White House leaked false stories last year that she was in an asylum. The Associated Press learned.

Sources say Mrs. Mitchell, wife of former attorney-general John Mitchell, former director of the Nixon campaign, testified: "I have been at the mercy of the White House for four years, they have treated me abominably, half-crucified me, have sent lies out through the press... have started rumors galore about me."

Her statements were made under oath in connection with civil suits filed as a result of the break-in and wiretapping of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate office building in Washington.

Sources said Mrs. Mitchell said she has no first-hand information about the Watergate case.

Pressure has been intense for Richardson to turn the investigation over to an outsider since President Nixon gave him that option Monday night in the speech announcing he had nominated Richardson to be attorney-general and had placed him in charge of the Watergate case.

Thirty Democratic senators wrote Richardson that they assumed he would promptly name a special prosecutor. They gave him a list of qualifications and powers they said his choice should possess.

FREEDOM NEEDED
Among them were absolute freedom from official interference, and complete authority to subpoena witnesses and evidence and to grant immunity from prosecution in order to obtain testimony.

These were other Watergate developments:

—Former presidential adviser Charles W. Colson was accused by the federal elections office of handling and probably editing a false advertisement placed by the Nixon campaign committee last May 17 in the New York Times.

Citing a probable criminal violation, the office asked the justice department to investigate and take legal action. It said none of the 14 persons who signed the ad, a complaint against The Times' editorial stand on the mining of Haiphong harbor, had anything to do with it. The ad, the office said, was conceived, produced and paid for by the Nixon committee.

—Senator Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.) introduced legislation aimed at preventing future Watergate-type political scandals. It provides heavy fines and jail terms for violations.

—Egil (Bud) Krogh was reported reliably to be preparing a complete account of his involvement with Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt in their alleged burglary of the office of the psychiatrist Daniel Ellsberg. Ellsberg is on trial in Los Angeles for leaking the Pentagon papers to reporters.

Krogh went on leave of absence Wednesday from his $42,500 job as undersecretary of transportation. He supervised a crew set up in July, 1971, to investigate the leak of the Pentagon's top-secret history of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

—Transcripts of Hunt's grand jury testimony on the alleged burglary were ordered sent to U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, presiding at the Ellsberg trial.

—The Washington Star-News says federal prosecutors are seriously considering granting immunity from prosecution to former White House counsel John W. Dean III.

our ecology. As of this year the promotion will be an annual feature. The organizers of the project visited 24 municipalities in the province this week. Seen above is pollution man flanked by Mayor Bureau on the right and two of the week's organizers.

Canada, U.S. linked in Nixon policy speech

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon has linked Canada with transatlantic opportunities this year to produce a healthy world economy and peaceful society.

While placing emphasis on Europe in his world policy review Thursday, Nixon opened his arms in a wider embrace by saying:

"The United States, Canada and Western Europe have a decisive contribution to make to a healthy world economy and to a new peaceful international order. These are new creative tasks for our partnership."

Reviewing post-war developments among alliance members, the president dwelt briefly on the "challenges" offered as both Canada and the U.S. redefined their world positions.

"Frank reappraisals of our respective interests have brought some new problems to the fore, particularly in economic relations between the two countries," he said.

He had explored with Prime Minister Trudeau during a visit to Ottawa last year "how we might work together while respecting Canada's right to ensure its own identity and to chart its own economic course."

The brief reference to a possible world role for Canada, as seen by Washington, seemed to relate to Henry A. Kissinger's original proposal for a renewed Atlantic alliance. Nixon's adviser had spoken of the U.S., Europe and Canada working as a team, with Japan "ultimately" being brought in.

However, there was some surprise among observers here Wednesday when the communique dealing with Nixon's talks with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt seemed to narrow the thrust to an American-European drive, assigning a lesser role to Canada and Japan.

The communique said Europe and the U.S. must deal with "common problems as well as common opportunities and should also consider arrangements in which Japan and Canada could share."

An American official who participated in the drafting of the communique said there was no intention of implying that Canada should not take an active role in all stages of discussion.

Could it happen here?

OTTAWA (CP) — Many reasons have been offered as to why there is unlikely to be a Watergate-type scandal in Canada. But one reason consistently overlooked is that the political secrets in this country may not be worth the effort.

"You hear a lot of talk about secret strategy papers and things like that," says a Conservative. "But if a group of Grit goons were to ransack our headquarters during the campaign the most valuable discovery would be a list of Conservative supporters.

"Some haul, eh?"

"If the other parties want to keep someone sitting in our library here during the whole campaign it wouldn't bother us very much."

He said the most useful information available from competing campaign headquarters would be the itineraries of party leaders, so all will not arrive in the same city on the same day.

the campaign, and let's face it... No, I won't say it."

The most open comment of all came from Clifford Scotton, federal secretary of the New Democratic Party.

"If the other parties want to keep someone sitting in our library here during the whole campaign it wouldn't bother us very much."

He said the most useful information available from competing campaign headquarters would be the itineraries of party leaders, so all will not arrive in the same city on the same day.

SIMPLY ASK

"But you don't need to bug telephones for this information — you phone the various headquarters and simply ask."

The consensus seems to be that the Canadian political system — in effect, 264 fragmented campaigns — doesn't encourage espionage like the U.S. system where entire states must be organized as a bloc.

"And there is another thing," says Hugh Sgal, defeated Conservative candidate in Ottawa Centre who now is on the staff of party leader Robert Stanfield. "In this country there is no interest in the personal morals of individuals that could be exposed through wiretapping

Debate heats up prior to adjournment

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP) — The inquest into the deaths of seven men at a Mount Wright, Que., construction site last year was adjourned Thursday to June 29, when the presiding judge is to render his verdict.

Judge Roch Lefrancois adjourned the inquest shortly after a heated exchange between the lawyer representing Quebec Cartier Mining Ltd., and Michel Chartrand, head of the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

The exchange took place during lawyer Jacques Delisle's questioning of Jean-Luc Boudreault, a steward representing the Quebec Federation of Labor on the site where the men fell from a scaffold to their deaths.

At one point Mr. Chartrand accused the lawyer of "fiddling about with the witness."

Mr. Delisle shot back: "Shut your mouth on that one, Chartrand. I've had a bellyful of your intervention."

When Mr. Chartrand began to laugh, the lawyer threatened to put "my fist through your mouth."

"Lawyers representing big companies don't scare me," Mr. Chartrand replied. "When there are proper judges, big company lawyers get put in their places. When there are obliging judges, they (lawyers) act as boosters."

Judge Lefrancois brought a quick end to the exchange by warning Mr. Delisle to moderate his language.

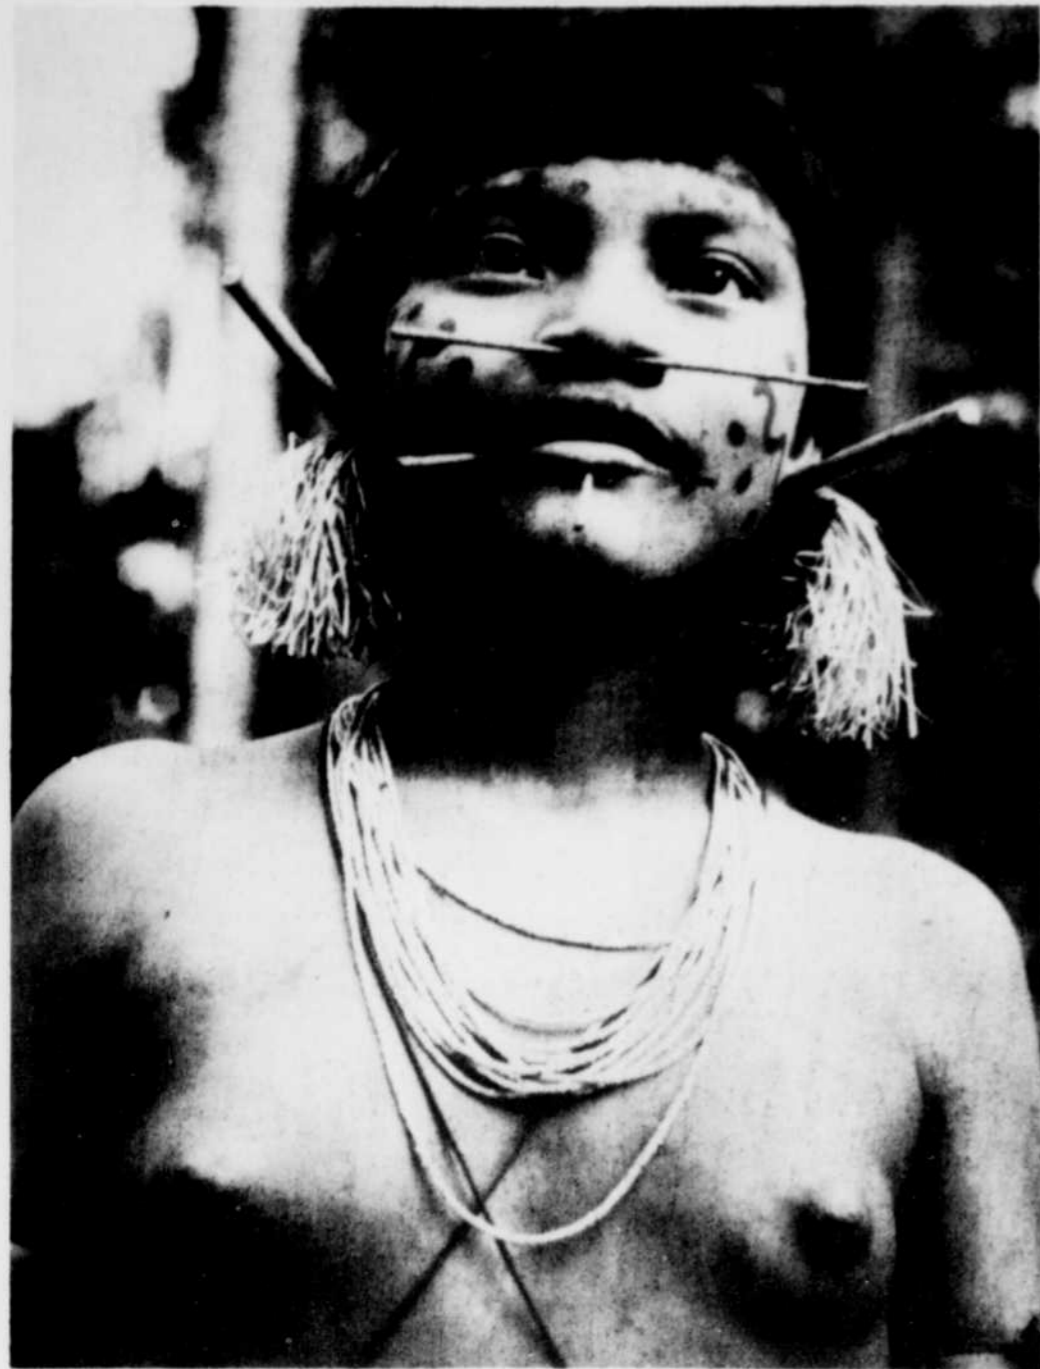

The inquest, which began a month ago, is the second into the deaths of the seven workers who fell 80 feet when the platform supporting them collapsed as they worked on a silo. They were dismantling the platform when it fell last Nov. 17.

At the first inquest, which lasted only six hours, a coroner ruled there had been no criminal negligence. Justice Minister Jerome Choquette ordered the new inquest after several Quebec labor groups said not enough evidence had been presented. Judge Lefrancois, issued warrants Wednesday for the arrest of two company officials and said the two men would be arrested the minute they set foot in Quebec.

The two are Bill Wallace, a general supervisor on the construction site where the accident occurred, and Lorne Berg, a foreman on the site at the time of the accident.

Mr. Wallace, believed to be in British Columbia or at the company's headquarters in Calgary, sent a telegram saying he no longer wished to testify. Mr. Berg refused to testify last week in Calgary, where the inquest was scheduled to continue because Mr. Berg is too ill to travel.

Dead air effective way of fighting busy-bodies

Dear Ann Landers: Since a great many people unload their pet peeves on you I think I'll give you mine.

What should I say to people who telephone me and start off on the attack because they had been trying to get my line for while and it was busy? Usually it goes something like this: "I've been trying to reach you for an hour..." Then some snide remark about how gabby I am.

What bothers me is that I allow myself to be put on the defensive, when it is really none of their business how long I talk. I sometimes find myself apologizing and even telling those who call that I know this is stupid and I hate myself for it.

Will you please supply me with a good put-down?—Ma Bell's Love Child

Dear Love Child: Try silence. Just sixty seconds of dead air. It can be very effective. Especially when you come back with a subject completely unrelated to the comment. Funny, people are always asking what to say to put someone's nose back in joint when the most devastating response can be no response at all.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in our late 40s and we have always had a good relationship. We enjoy each other's company, both in and out of the bedroom.

We looked forward to the day when we would be free of the responsibilities of raising children, so we could travel and be "honeymooners" again. Well, now that the time is here I am deeply disappointed. Our sex life has suddenly dwindled down to nothing. And I do mean nothing.

About six months ago I began to think perhaps he was seeing someone else, but now I'm sure he is completely faithful and I'm ashamed of myself for having thought otherwise.

Last year he began to take medication for high blood pressure. Is there any possibility that the medication is interfering with his ability to function sexually? Please check with your medical authorities and let me know. Thanks, Ann.

—The Big Q

Dear Q: There is indeed a possibility that the hyper-tension medication is responsible for your husband's impotence. He should discuss this with his doctor so he will have a good understanding of what has happened to him — and why — and in turn explain it to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married homosexual (male) but have not been involved in any homosexual activity since my marriage. My wife does not have the faintest idea of the conflicts I am going through. The desire for a male friend is becoming overwhelming. I want desperately to keep my marriage intact. The anguish and torture is more than I can bear.

We live in a small town where there are no psychiatrists. Time off from my job to go to the nearest city (150 miles away) is out of the question. Can you suggest anything? There is no one else I can trust or turn to.

Desperate In N. Carolina
Dear N.C.: You must discuss this problem with a doctor, clergyman or counselor — someone who can serve as a safety valve. Select the most compassionate, and get going.

Red Cross is everywhere

GREENFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The Red Cross had to reach to Washington, D.C., for one pint of rare blood, and halfway around the world to Thailand for another to aid a woman in hospital here.

Officials at Franklin County Public Hospital said one pint of blood from the rare blood bank in Washington was administered to Alma Coates Sunday.

A spokesman said another pint of the rare blood was en route from Thailand, to arrive today, and a third pint in Thailand was being readied if needed.

Mrs. Coates, who had been reported weak with a low blood count, was reported in satisfactory condition Sunday night.

The Red Cross in Boston had set up an extensive hunt for the rare blood, type A, RH negative, with the sub group JKB-JKA negative.

Hats back on top

By ANN HENCKEN
NEW YORK (AP) — Holly Halsey, 15, wore a smashing pink fedora with her teenybopper slacks and shirt as she puffed through clothes at Saks Fifth Ave.

"I've gone crazy over hats," said Holly. "Every time I make money baby-sitting, I go out and buy a hat."

Hats, she said, are the new thing at high school in Scarsdale, N.Y., and some girls even wear them to classes.

"I've got seven or eight hats," said her companion, Lisa Radano, her long hair streaming out from under a red felt hat.

Nearby, Sherri Wasserman, 14, wearing jeans and platform saddle oxfords, adjusted her large straw hat, jazzed up with a flowing pink chiffon scarf and red rose. The kids at her school in New Rochelle, N.Y., decorate their own.

MAKERS JUBILANT
After a long, dry, depressing decade in the '60s, hat manufacturers are kicking up their heels at the burst of activity this spring. Hat production was up two million in the United States last year over 1971 and business is still improving.

Hats selling well today are simple, inexpensive and sporty—roll brim felts, head-hugging cloches—big straws. They sell at $4 to $18.

"The main reason we're selling hats is because we have a customer who's never worn them before, girls ages 18-25," said Jan Bush, a buyer for Bloomingdale's. "Also, there's an emphasis on the pulled-together, co-ordinated look, and the hat completes it."

In the late 1950s, when hats were a must for special occasions, they shrank to tiny bows, placed gingerly and reluctantly on top of bubble hairdos. In the 1960s, girls were too busy preening long hair and inching up miniskirts to think of hats.

Today, hair is getting shorter, slacks are still a staple item and frantic, junked-up fashions have become simpler and more unified.

At many stores, hats are set up in great multi-colored stacks and sold along with belts and scarves. Gone is the elegant hat department, featuring the old what-is-it feather and flower creations.

Loans: After $1500 it's the law of the jungle

In this the second of a series of articles on the Quebec consumer, Record reporter Brian Hanna examines Quebecers in comparison to other Canadians in the growth of consumer spending and credit.

By BRIAN HANNA
Record Reporter

"Of course we know that some regulations are necessary, but it is no service to any country when a wave of emotionalism about consumer protection degenerates into a busy-bodyism that makes it more difficult for the competitive enterprise system to function successfully."

The words are those of Mrs. Haven Smith, chairman of the American Farm Bureau Women, speaking at the ninth annual Provincial Conference for Women in Toronto this week.

To what degree do Canadians, and specifically Quebecers, attest to the opening statement in the area of consumer buying and consumer credit industry?

The growth in consumer credit has helped to sustain prosperity, the Canadian Consumer Credit Factbook says. The increased use of credit has taken place in a setting of rising incomes, increased savings and an expansion in personal spending. The extended use of credit has helped to increase the range and quality of goods and services which enter into modern consumption standards and, since it is inevitable that which is consuming must first be produced, has contributed to the country's increasing work force. Apparently, such would tend to hold more water in Quebec than in other provinces. At first glance, that is:

While the Canadian spends $29.04 each week for his groceries and the Ontario spends $30, the Quebecer shells out $31.80 per week.

Proportionally, the Quebecer owns more dishwashers and automatic washers than the Canadian.

Even though the Quebecer's average salary is $400 below the national level ($7,680.00), the Quebecer spends more.

VOLUME JUMPS

At the same time, however, Quebec's credit volume has jumped to $3.1 billion in 1971 from $322 million in 1951. Net profits of finance companies in Canada have increased from $45 million to $73 million during the years 1967-70. In Quebec alone, in 1970, finance companies gathered in $300 million in loan interest alone.

In the midst of debts such as secured bank loans, home improvement loans, cash loans from brokers, medical bills, unpaid taxes, and mortgage debt, let us content ourselves, for the moment, with consumer debt.

The Consumer Credit Factbook (1970) shows that the proportion of family units reporting consumer debt rises with income up to the $5,000 to $6,999 income bracket and then begins to decline. In the $5,000 to $5,999 income bracket, 63 per cent of the family units had consumer debts. The average for the debtors in this group was $855.

FAMILIES HIGHEST
Family units facing the most extensive use of consumer credit are those in the $6,000 to $7,000 income group, within this group is the lowest reported percentage owing no debt (35 per cent) while 19 per cent of the family units had incurred consumer debts in excess of 20 per cent of their income.

Attempts to regulate consumer credit in Canada began with Money Lenders Act (1906). Further legislation was detailed and passed under the Small Loans Act in 1939.

This act, amended in 1956, requires all Canadian lenders, other than chartered banks and those whose rates are less than 12 per cent per annum, to be licensed by the Minister of Finance and under supervision of the Superintendent of Insurance.

The maximum interest rate credit unions can charge is one per cent per month, calculated on the unpaid balance. The act regulates rates for personal cash loans in amounts up to $1,500.

The cost of a loan is calculated on the unpaid balance, it may not be deducted in advance and the borrower may repay the loan at any time without penalty.

Does he ever stop paying?

The Associations Cooperatives d'Economie Familiale has laid down a model case of what it terms small-loan company client practices.

Hubert S. borrows the sum of $2,000 with a diminishing annual interest rate of 25.1 per cent over a period of 36 months. He will pay $800 in interest over three years. Hubert will repay the company during the course of 35 installments of $78 and a final installment of $70.

Hubert pays the first three installments, then stops. (He's paid back $234). Two months later, he decides to start paying back the rest of the loan, however, Hubert must pay a fine for delay of payment.

The amount of the penalty Hubert must pay is calculated two ways: a) fixed rate ($3 per month for the delay or to calculate the rate agreed upon in the contract (25.1 per cent per year) during the period of non-payment (two months) on the sum he delayed in repaying. (In this case, four per cent of $78 per month x 2 months equals $6.24).

As well, Hubert must pay another penalty of at least $25 at the moment he pays back the sum of the loan for having put off payments before the contract was fulfilled.

Finally, in recognizing the errors of his ways, Hubert must pay back interest according to a table set up to calculate the amount of interest owed the company over the five months. The table works according to a progression on the number of months remaining before the loan is paid off. (That is, 36 months, 35 months left to pay, 34, 33, 32 left as well as the fact that the repayment scheme is in its fifth month according to the contract.)

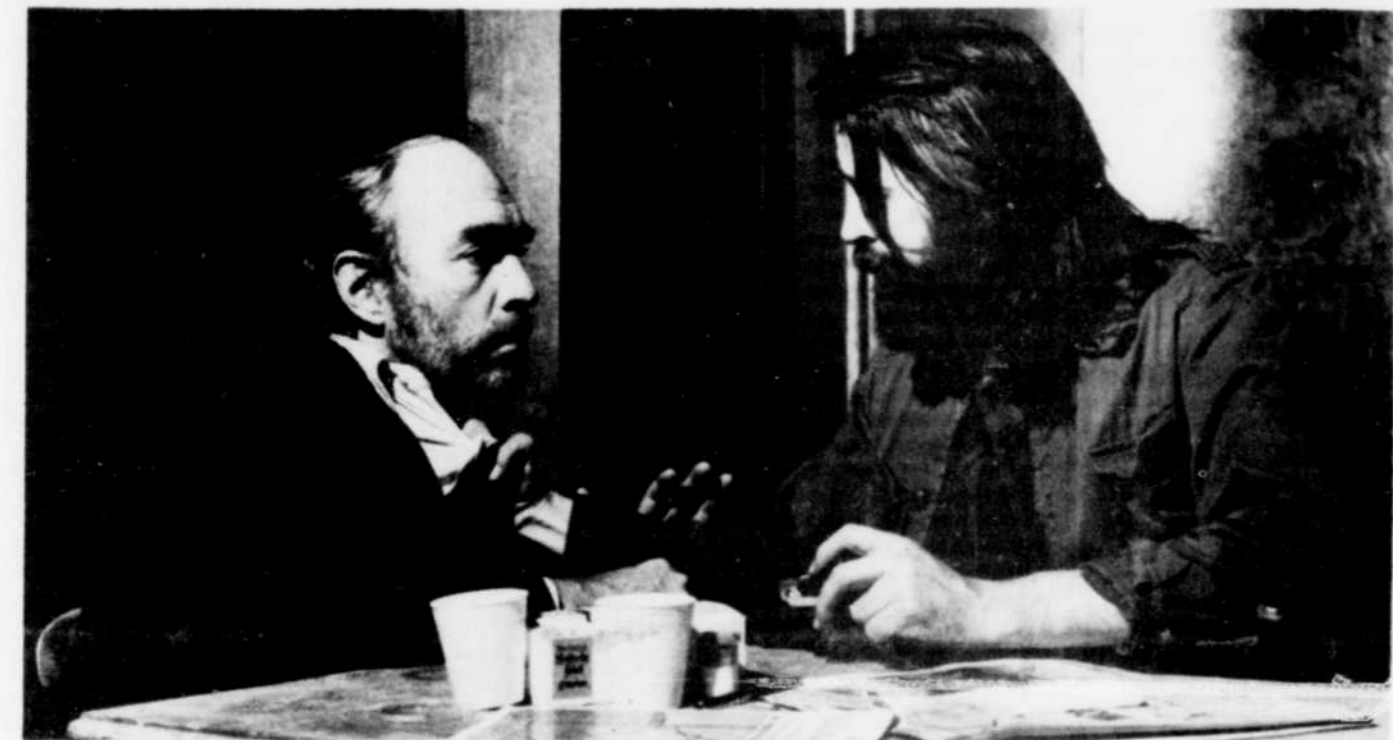

It will look something like this:
a) 36 + 35 + 34 + 33 + 32 equals $170 and
b) 170 x 800 divided by 666 (the sum of 36 + 35 + 34 down to 1), the amount of interest Hubert must pay totals $204.20 for the five-month period in the remittance of his loan.

Thus, Hubert will pay back the sum of the loan ($2,000), the interest over the five months ($204.20), the penalty for delay ($6.24), and the $25 fine for deferring payments. Total: $2,235.44 minus the three payments he has already made ($78 times three months or $234.00) equals $2,001.44.

In other words, even after paying off three months of his loan, Hubert still owes the finance company $2,001.44.

It must be remembered as well that after three faithful months of repayment, Hubert had delivered a total of $107.88 on the principal. During the two months that he did not pay, the finance company still charged Hubert the interest he would have been required to pay. This amount will likely appear on his final installment.

The amount of Hubert's monthly installment ($78) which goes to the payment of the interest begins to decrease from month to month while that amount which goes to paying off his principal increases.

CAPTIVES — Donald Davis who produced a forceful and sensitive performance in Captives of the Faceless Drummer at last season's Festival Lennoxville will be back this summer as director of Robertson Davies' Jig for the Gypsy. Seen above in one of the electrically tense scenes of the drama is Mr. Davis and Roger Bailey.

Festival Lennoxville: grants, optimism increased in year two

By WENDY McMULLEN

LENNOXVILLE — Festival Lennoxville will open its second season with five dynamic new members of the company, three new plays and increased grants.

The first play, opening July 14 is Sunrise on Sara written by George Ryga, author of the intense Captives of the Faceless Drummer presented at the Festival last season. Dana Ivey, a newcomer to the St. Francis Theatre Company, stars in this play directed by William Davis.

A Jig for the Gypsy by Robertson Davies will open two days later. Barbara Chilcott and Sandy Webster will be starring and the director is Donald Davis.

The last production, Battering Ram by David Freeman, will be directed by William Glasco, who will join the Festival Lennoxville team this year. Battering Ram opens July 31 and stars Patricia Hamilton.

Festival Lennoxville's five new company members engaged to date are actresses Barbara Chilcott and Dana Ivey, director William Glasco, production stage manager Walter Cavalieri, and, in production, Vladimir Svetlovsky.

Barbara Chilcott, one of Canada's foremost actresses, will play the role of Benoni Richards in Robertson Davies' whimsical comedy A Jig for the Gypsy. She, in fact, created this part in the original production of this play at Toronto's Crest Theatre in the early 50s.

MANY ROLES
Barbara Chilcott, equally at home in drama or light comedy, has played on Broadway, Stratford, Ontario and in London's West End where she was hailed as the season's most exciting newcomer. She has also starred in numerous television dramas both in England and Canada.

Dana Ivey takes the title role this summer in George Ryga's latest play, Sunrise on Sara. Miss Ivey, with extensive experience both in the United States and Canada, has proved her versatility as a performer in a wide variety of roles ranging from musical comedy to Greek tragedy.

She has appeared with the National Shakespeare Company as Juliet in Romeo and Juliet, as Viola in Twelfth Night and has played opposite Tony Randall in The Odd Couple with Vincent Price in Oliver and as Mrs. Mullins in Carousel. In Montreal she has appeared at Centaur as Electra, Jean in The Entertainer, Ruth in The Homecoming and as Sonya in Uncle Vanya.

Returning to Festival Lennoxville this year is Donald Davis, the star of Captives last year.

This season Mr. Davis will turn director for Robertson Davies' Jig for the Gypsy. Actors with Festival Lennoxville last season Sandy Webster and Ron Hastings will also be back this season. William Davis remains as Artistic Director of the festival.

The designer responsible for the splendid sets last season, Michel Eagan, has also been re-engaged for this second year.

GRANTS UP

Festival Lennoxville will benefit from increased grants this year.

Canada Council has increased its grant to $20,000 following last year's success and the corporation of Bishop's have given $22,000 for this second season.

A Secretary of State grant of $6,200 will permit reduced ticket prices for English-language theatre groups and both this grant and a $1,200 grant from the Quebec Drama Festival will go toward the support of two working apprenticeships at Festival Lennoxville this summer.

In addition the Town of Lennoxville has agreed to remit the amusement tax levied on Box Office receipts. This should amount to $5,000.

Festival Lennoxville still hopes to raise $28,000 more from its membership and fund raising drive. The aim of the campaign has been set at $90,000. To date, $62,000 has been raised.

The operating budget for the 1973 season has been set at $135,000 for this summer season. This does not include rental, operating and maintenance cost of the Centennial Theatre, office space and secretarial assistance.

Ticket prices will be increased to $4 and $6 this season with a $2.50 rate for students. Season tickets for all three plays will be $10.50 and $15.00.

Festival Lennoxville's new season will run for six weeks until August 25. There will be performances every evening except Sunday and matinees Thursday and Saturday. The three plays will run in repertoire throughout the summer.

Eaton Corner bears medical significance

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter

EATON CORNER — A new district has been added to the list for the Sherbrooke Hospital Campaign Fund — Eaton Corner.

Unremarkable in itself, but Eaton Corner, the little village en route to Sawyerville, is important in Canadian medical history. It is where the first operation in Canada was performed under anaesthesia.

The doctor who claimed the distinction of performing this first capital operation was Dr. Edward Dagge — Worthington then, practicing in Sherbrooke. Assisted by Doctors Andrews and Rogers of Eaton, Dr. Worthington amputated below the knee on a man suffering from disease of the ankle joint at Eaton Corner on March 11, 1847, using sulphuric ether.

In British American Journal of Medical and Physical Science of March 20, Dr. Worthington described his experience: "The patient, a man aged 30, was quite willing, indeed anxious, to try any means that promised to lessen the dreadful pain of an operation," he wrote.

Modern day squeamish patients, however, would recoil at the equipment devised to administer the sulphuric ether. "A large ox-bladder, with a stop cock attached, a mouth piece made of thick leather, covered with black silk and well padded round the edges with a connecting long brass tube that has done service as an umbrella handle in many a shower formed an apparatus that, though rude-looking and bearing marks of having been got up in haste, presented withal a very business-like, and, for the country, tolerably professional appearance," he wrote.

"Ether was then poured into the bladder and part of this contraption was then filled with air from the bellows. Despite the crudeness of the equipment, Dr. Worthington's patient at Eaton Corner felt no pain, was well aware of what was happening during the different stages of the operation and remained cheerful throughout the operation.

"He retained consciousness, talked rationally, and made some very witty remarks in answer to questions put to him, converting the scene from one of a most painful one to one of an excessively ludicrous character," the doctor commented.

"Indeed after it was over, he kindly volunteered to have half a dozen legs taken off," he added.

Not all Dr. Worthington's experiments with anaesthesia were quite so successful. In his autobiography he tells of the time he gave chloroform to a patient in St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

I gave his arm an inquiring pinch. — "Do you feel that?"

"Do you feel that?" and in a second we were tumbling over the floor, near a red-hot cooking stove, and Doctor Brooks endeavoring to prevent murder!

"I was punched in the ribs that day enough to last for a month. The operation was made on the day following, but I had to keep in the background until the man was fairly under the influence of the ether, for he is got a glimpse of me, or heard my voice even in a whisper, he was ready to renew fight."

Dr. Dagge Worthington was the first president of the St. Francis District Medical Association and helped found the Canadian Medical Association. Both Bishop's University and McGill awarded him honorary degrees for his work in medicine in Quebec.

LENNOXVILLE (WM) — A record number of nine schools will participate in this year's school play festival today and tomorrow at Bishop's University Centennial Theatre.

This is the third year that the university has organized the increasingly successful school theatre festival. Each year school theatre groups are invited to present a short play and an adjudicator later comments on the production.

The adjudicator this year is Mrs. M. Podbrey, former actress. She will speak about the plays presented after every group of three. The school plays start at 2 p.m. on Friday and Saturday May 4 and 5 in the Centennial Theatre.

In Studio 1 workshops on drama teaching and clubs will be held this afternoon and tomorrow morning. A special Children's Theatre for young children will take place in the studio at 3 p.m. this afternoon.

New blood needed?

In just over a month Eastern Townships residents will have the opportunity of either electing or acclaiming six representatives to the Eastern Townships Regional School Board of Commissioners.
On the Lennoxville side, seats currently held by Madge Paulette in Sherbrooke, Garth Fields in Magog and Aubrey Greer in the Coaticook area are up for grabs. In the Richmond-Danville-Asbestos area, seats held by William Rick in the Danville-Kingsley Falls area, Edgar Stevens in the Shipton area and Lorne Eastman in the Melbourn township-Kingsbury area may be contested this year.

A year ago elections were held for all 20 school commission seats. As well, government legislation changed many of the ways in which schools were run.
Admittedly it was much more exciting a year ago. Ten of 11 seats on the Lennoxville side were being contested. Debate was hot and heavy on the "delegation" issue. Bill 27, responsible for wholesale changes in the administration of off-island education in Quebec, gave school commissioners the option of either delegating authority for the administration of elementary school education to the Regional Board of Commissioners or setting up an independent elementary board. Those elected on the Lennoxville side chose to set up an independent board. It should be remembered that school commissioners sit on two boards — one on the elementary level and another on the regional level.

One of the drawbacks of the legislation which wrought so many changes in school administration is that it can be confusing — witness the number of boards and committees it legislated into existence.

It had one main goal, however, with which no one can quarrel — the democratization of local school administration.

According to Bill 27, just about anyone can run for election or vote in a school election. One need be only 18 years of age, a Canadian citizen and resident in the area in which the election is being held for six months in order to vote.

Running is even easier; one must be 18, a Canadian citizen and have lived in the district in which the election is being held. The important word in the latter instance is district, a candidate from Stanstead, for example, can run in Sherbrooke because both are within the boundaries of the school municipality of Lennoxville. In order to run or vote, one cannot be suffering from a legal incapacity — this stipulation being a formality for the most part.

We urge those who want more information to get in touch with the school commissioner in their area or the head of the elementary board in the area.

From the above requirements, it is obvious that those who created Bill 27 wanted a more representative cross-section of the community on school boards.

Perhaps this is one of the disappointing aspects of the current board of commissioners and a strong reason for those interested in school matters to seriously consider running for election.

Our school commissioners are, for the most part, middle-aged businessmen or housewives who appear to fit the description 'establishment' quite well.

Board sessions might be more interesting and relevant if an 18-year old youth, perhaps a student, was elected as a school commissioner. In reviewing the progress made by the board over the past year it is also somewhat disturbing to note their preoccupation with maintaining a good "image" before the public. The board's primary goal, it would appear, is to look good.

They try to accomplish this by asking reporters on this newspaper not to print certain opinions voiced at public board meetings.

It is very disconcerting to a reporter who is in the midst of copying down a significant quote to be interrupted and told not to print it because the public "might get the wrong idea."

The school board also has a penchant for secrecy. While it is an obvious exaggeration to say that commissioners jump up and shout "I vote we go into committee" every time something of importance comes up, there has been a tendency on the part of some commissioners — almost a Pavlov's dog-type reflex action on the part of some — to clamp up tight when the bell of significance starts to ring.

A good example would be the recent resignation of Director-general I.A. MacLeay. The commissioners have yet to offer the public any information as to why they accepted Mr. MacLeay's resignation.

Nineteen voices united in silence. One school commissioner, it should be noted, Mrs. Kay Olsen of Bury, asked why the resolution accepting Mr. MacLeay's resignation concluded with the words "with regret." The question went unanswered and the commissioners declined to question in public the circumstances surrounding the resignation of a man who held a key position in Eastern Townships education for several years.

Has the public a right to know? The answer is 'yes,' providing the answer doesn't damage the image of the board of commissioners. What the board doesn't realize is that it does far more damage to its image by attempting to protect it than it would if it were to ignore the 'problem' altogether.

This is perhaps the most disappointing aspect of the first year of the new school commissions. The school commissioners don't appear to have much faith or confidence in the public otherwise there wouldn't be so many in camera sessions. The aims of Bill 27 insofar as the democratization of school boards are concerned have not, in our view, been adequately fulfilled.

The public must take an avid interest in next month's elections and run candidates against commissioners the public feels should be replaced.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal Le Devoir: Marc Lalonde, federal health and welfare minister, said that everyone must think first of improving the living conditions of their co-citizens before laying too much stress on the extension of their respective empires.

Indeed this spirit should inspire the work of the ministers. However, pleasant generalities must be put aside quickly to tackle concrete questions. We should, as Claude Castonguay noted, come back to the sharing of responsibilities between the two levels of government.

Then we will be able to establish whether the new spirit which seems to be blowing over the federal capital is something other than a mirage.

The federal government advocates two measures, for example, which would undoubtedly be capital elements of the new social security system: A general revenue supplement for persons with an insufficient revenue and a guaranteed income for those incapable of working.

Neither the general income supplement nor the minimum guaranteed revenue mentioned by Mr. Lalonde will be universal or automatic. By their very nature such systems would be selective, not universal.

The benefits derived from these systems would be accessible only to citizens capable of proving they have a right to them.

Now, as soon as we think of the concrete administration of selective guaranteed income programs, it falls under the provinces' direction as they are more competent than the central government to assure its efficient and economic progression, being much closer to citizens and families.

Will the federal government be prepared to recognize this?

Should the social welfare ministers' conference result only in endorsing the federal plan of family allowance increases, it would win much for thousands of Canadian families.

However, we will have dodged the fundamental problems which should have been tackled by a conference called to give way to a complete revision of all social security in Canada.

Before consenting to concessions on any one issue, in particular family allowances, Claude Castonguay first of all should verify the true spirit of his federal interlocutors.

Claude Ryan (April 26)

Ottawa Le Droit: In French Canada, we complain with reason about the small number of French-Canadian firms.

We become justifiably indignant when a business or industry owned by French-Canadians passes into the hands of English-Canadians or Americans.

All commercial and industrial firms must live if we want French Canada to own more and more of its industry and commerce. Unfortunately, each time a business prospers foreign capital desires it and often takes it over.

The opposite also is true. If a firm is in danger, foreigners buy it at low cost and make it a success.

The commercial or industrial failure of French-Canadian businessmen, it must be admitted, often occurs because they are not supported by the French-speaking community.

We all know of many examples and collectively we are all guilty.

In Hull, for example, for several months three theatres under one roof have been showing international masterpieces and the best films of the French repertoire — and the halls are never filled.

Yet there is not one nationalist, especially not one separatist, who does not wish to see Quebec prosper.

How many Hull nationalists, how many patriots in the region, visit these French-Canadian theatres? Very few, as the regular customers can testify. Our good customers go elsewhere.

They probably will support the establishment when it passes into the hands of large American companies who control almost all the theatres in Canada including Quebec.

Faced with such indifference, we say that true nationalism is not running about the streets.

What we say for this establishment goes for all French-Canadian businesses in Hull.

Marcel Gingras (April 26)

Granby La Voix de l'Est: Judging by the goodwill animating the provincial health ministers, and in particular Claude Castonguay, the federal health minister will be able to present his proposed legislation increasing family allowances — to the Commons before the holiday season.

The federal-provincial conference called to study Mr. Lalonde's important working paper took place in perfect harmony. There are obviously other aspects of the social security program which will not pass like a letter in the mail, but because this document is far more positive than previous ones, no serious opposition is foreseen.

Even Mr. Castonguay cannot hide his satisfaction. Now, for him to be satisfied, the document must surely answer Quebec's needs in the field of social security.

These new allowances will contribute to improving the situation of the Canadian family, even if they are taxable.

The federal minister says it may be possible to get the proposed legislation adopted in the fall so that Canadians can benefit from the allowances next Jan. 1. Let's hope Mr. Lalonde succeeds.

Roland Gagne (April 27)

Enlisting military misfits

WASHINGTON — Army recruiters, under pressure to meet enlistment quotas, have signed up men who had been "permanently rejected" for the draft. They include recruits with organic heart disease, psychiatric disorders, epilepsy and even a couple with missing trigger fingers.

These military misfits were discovered in Wisconsin, the only state where an investigation has been conducted. Spokesmen at the K.S. Army Recruiting Command, Hampton, Va., told us they had no reason to believe the recruiting procedures turned up in Wisconsin were practiced elsewhere. But they admitted that enlistment standards are the same in all 50 states.

Robert Levine, the Wisconsin Selective Service director, recently ordered a statewide survey of the men enlisted in his state since December 1, 1972. He found that 75 of those accepted for enlistment had flunked either physical or mental tests for the draft.

With the help of publisher John Lavine, whose newspapers in Chippewa Falls, Portage and Baraboo, Wis., carry our column, we have broken loose the results of the Selective Service survey.

BREAKDOWN

Two men had been rejected for the draft because they had missing trigger fingers; two suffered organic heart disease; two had serious psychiatric problems; two were afflicted with epilepsy; two had "deranged elbows"; one was missing a left thumb; still another had three pins in his left hip.

All of these deficiencies, according to military spokesmen, are sufficient to disqualify a man from military service. The Wisconsin survey also found that 17 men accepted by recruiters had previously failed the military's basic intelligence tests. In a letter to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., Selective Service Director Levine offered a possible explanation.

"The recruiters operate what is called 'dumb-dumb' school for volunteers who flunk the intelligence test. This consists of a full-day cram course covering previously given intelligence tests. Predictably, most men pass on re-examination."

One of Levine's inspectors told us that such "refresher" courses are routinely conducted in rented YMCA rooms in Milwaukee. Many "current enlistments," he wrote, "are failing to meet minimum standards of quality for the armed forces."

INVESTIGATION PROMISED

At the Pentagon, a spokesman said that "dumb-dumb" courses were once an accepted practice but have recently been outlawed.

Many of the men disqualified in tests for the Wisconsin draft, he suggested, had "corrective" deficiencies. But the Levine investigation, he said, has turned up what may be "fraudulent" recruiting practices. "There will be a very careful investigation of each of these cases," he promised.

Footnote: Just a few weeks ago, Defense Secretary Elliot Richardson, currently in charge of the Watergate investigation and President Nixon's nominee for attorney general, informed Congress that the draft could now be totally eliminated because of the all-volunteer effort. "The factor which may have contributed most to volunteer increases," he said, "is the improved recruiting program."

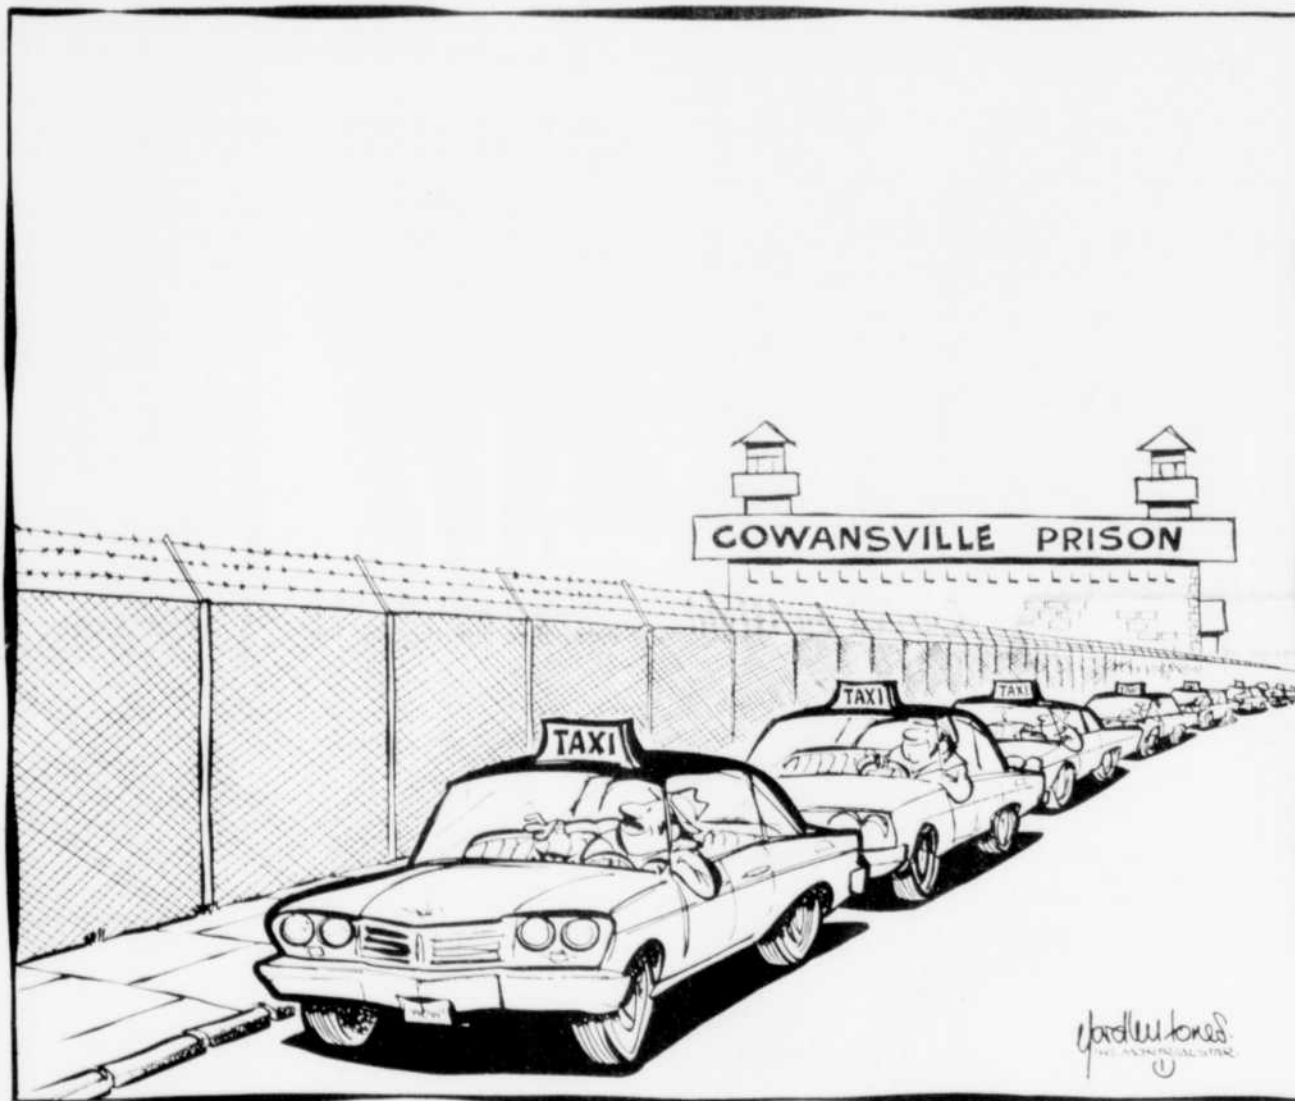

WASHINGTON WHIRL

NIXON'S GESTURE: President Nixon, showing his compassionate side while embroiled in the Watergate scandal, quietly sent Alabama's Gov. George Wallace the film "Sunrise at Campobello." Named for the island on which Franklin D. Roosevelt was born, the film documents his successful fight against crippling polio and his subsequent rise to the presidency.

MIGRAINE WEAPON: Confidential plans are now under study for a riot-control machine which sends out beams strong enough to give "migraine-like headaches." This futuristic weapon, proposed by advanced Pentagon scientists, is aimed at replacing "rubber bullets," electrical prods, dogs, gas, water and clubs" as a riot-dispersing device. Still in the design stage, the system would use sensors and computers to make sure that only the rioters get the full blast of head-splitting sound which would range from noiseless high frequency beams to a racket intended to drown out agitators. The proposal is called "nonlethal," but the confidential documents describing it warn that sound machines must be carefully developed to prevent "catatonic fits in schizophrenic individuals," or even death.

ROONEY'S CONFESSION: Representative John Rooney, D-N.Y., who comes from a Brooklyn district plagued by drugs, is chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee which handles funds for most of the country's federal antidrug agencies. But the old curmudgeon flaunts his ignorance of drug matters as if it were something to be proud of. In a letter replying to Brooklyn Borough President Sebastian Leone, Rooney frankly admitted he knew nothing about drug prevention facilities. "I do not know the first thing about drugs," he wrote tartly, "have no staff acquainted with the subject and under the circumstances I cannot be of any value to you to assist in your duties."

LAME DUCK LICENSE: Ex-Representative James Kee, D-W. Va., defeated in the primaries last year, continues to maintain congressional license tags on his fancy white Cadillac. "I paid for them," Kee told us, "and I'd be a fool to take them off until they expire July 1." Kee's term in Congress, however, expired last January.

A COWANSVILLE POLICE SPOKESMAN SAID, "THAT'S ALL THEY NEED!"

Amnesty for Nixon?

By Michael Kelly

VANCOUVER (CP) — Marshall Van Deussen, a 24-year-old American draft-dodger who now calls Canada home, sees the amnesty debate raging across his homeland in terms of the world forgiving President Nixon rather than Mr. Nixon forgiving the Vietnam war resisters who fled.

"Amnesty? Impossible! Absolutely not! We will never give Nixon amnesty until he gets off his high horse, rolls up his sleeves and replants a cratered ricepaddy or rebuilds a bombed-out hospital."

The youthful, soft-spoken library clerk crossed into Canada four years ago rather than serve in his homeland's armed forces and is one of six similarly situated young Americans employed at the University of British Columbia library.

To a man, they refused to discuss details of their lives before they came to Canada, where they were from, or the exact circumstances under which they fled the draft. But they did talk, volubly and bitterly, about peace in Vietnam, the post-war United States, and reported North Vietnamese atrocities against the American POWs returned from Hanoi.

"Most of the so-called atrocities are no more than politicking and propaganda, purposely fanned and encouraged by the Nixon administration," Mr. Van Deussen said.

They are skeptical, suspicious of the United States government in particular, American society in general. And they insist they will stay in Canada even if the Nixon administration eventually decides to grant unconditional amnesty to draft evaders and deserters, as the United States traditionally has at the end of other wars.

Mr. Van Deussen spends part of his time counselling other young Americans in Canada under similar circumstances through an organization called the Committee to Aid War Objectors, formed by the Unitarian Church and a group of Quakers. The committee estimates there are about 5,000 draft dodgers and deserters in the Vancouver area alone.

Predictably, he simply doesn't believe the stories of North Vietnamese atrocities against the American POWs returned from Hanoi.

Bonnie Sullivan is the attractive 24-year-old wife of a draft evader who crossed the border for keeps seven years ago. "The FBI wants my husband. He's afraid he'll be picked up if he tries to cross the border, so we take no chances."

Charles Tully described his American heritage as "an accident of birth." And he said he dislikes being identified as an American, adding that he is "deliriously happy" in Canada.

He said he does not put much credence in the war stories recounted by the returned prisoners, suggesting they are grossly exaggerated or fabricated for propaganda purposes.

Richard Moore, a 21-year-old black tied in his draft resistance with the role of the black man in American society.

"Despite the civil rights legislation, being black in America is still just too heavy," he said. "I doubt if I will ever go back."

"I came to Canada with my family and it really is like two different worlds. We are happy here. America has nothing to offer us except discrimination, poor jobs and unhappiness."

Nineteen-year-old David Wanger, who crossed the border 18 months ago, said simply: "I am a draftdodger. As such I may not return to the U.S., nor do I have the slightest desire to do so."

All six men have acquired landed immigrant status and hope eventually to become citizens. Canada does not recognize American draft laws, consequently draft dodgers and deserters cannot be deported or extradited.

Freedom of course in high schools

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

There is a lot of variation these days in what courses a student in high school will take.

Ontario leaves it almost completely to the student to decide Newfoundland lays out courses by goal. The others are scattered in between.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates there is a trend to increasing freedom of choice, though the loose, flexible system involves changes and makes demands.

Ontario has been easing its restrictions for four years. Now every high school offers a free choice and as wide a range of options as local demands and capacities allow. Students are required only to earn a set number of credits and choose an even number of subjects from each of four subject groups.

Douglas Penny, an educational officer in the provincial curriculum branch, said: "We're really saying we don't believe the state is in a position to identify the needs of individual students."

"Twenty years ago we enrolled 41 per cent of eligible students. Now we enrol 80 per cent."

"Once the system was selective, it was really for the kids who could get along academically. Now we have a tremendous range of abilities and that means you cannot have a standardized curriculum with a core of subjects."

COMPLICATIONS ARISE
The system is not as simple to administer as set-down curricula, and Mr. Penny said there have been some complaints from principals and from some teachers who have difficulty attracting students to some optional courses.

In every province, the widening choice puts a heavier onus on students, parents and guidance teachers to see that the right choices are made.

The British Columbia government liberalized its curriculum this year, and only English remains compulsory through Grade 12.

Margaret Grant, director of guidance in Vancouver's Eric Hamber secondary school, said every effort is made to tell students what subjects would be useful to them. She said one danger is that some students feel so bombarded with information they get confused.

A difference she pointed out between Ontario and B.C. is that the latter's universities are provincially funded and set more standardized entrance requirements. University or vocational college entrance requirements do not automatically set the curriculum in most provinces for students headed their way.

ABLE TO SWITCH
That can create problems for students who change their goals in mid-school. Dr. Eugene Torgunrud, Alberta director of education, said his department is negotiating with schools at all levels to organize credit transfers so that students can shift from vocational to academic or vice versa without starting from the beginning again.

Alberta students have a wide freedom of choice based on electing 55 credits out of a necessary 100.

Education officials agreed that the worry that students with options will choose the easiest course is misplaced.

Katherine Pratt, guidance counsellor at Cobeguid Educational Centre in Truro, N.S., said students tend to choose courses they need, even when easier options are offered.

She said students are seeking more electives, and the school is trying to increase its credit and non-credit courses.

Nova Scotia requires only English or French and history, and history becomes an elective course next year.

GOALS DICTATE CHOICE
Michael Pitsula, chief of program development in Saskatchewan, confirmed her opinion. The province dropped its number of required credits to 21 from 24 two years ago and a survey last year indicates most students are taking eight or more credits even though they don't have to.

Stanley Bullock, Manitoba's curriculum director, said students generally choose courses on the basis of their goals and interests, rather than on the basis of which is easiest.

He said, as did Claude Wood in the P.E.I. education department, that the range of choice depends partly on the size of the school.

Mr. Wood said the department is reorganizing course choices to widen them, but small communities cannot always manage to offer the choice available in urban areas.

Douglas MacCallum, a guidance counsellor at Fredericton high school, said he would like to see more one-year courses available that didn't depend on previous optional courses. That way students would have more opportunity to take a wider range of subjects.

New Brunswick students must take nine compulsory courses out of 15 in their three years in high school.

URGES BROAD RANGE
Jim Barr, a guidance counsellor at Westmount high school in Montreal, suggested that students who have no idea what to take get as broad a general range as possible.

He said the discussion of choice is complicated for parents by the fact that courses and school have changed so much. He estimated 75 per cent of his students' parents have called for information in the last year.

Dr. Robert Trempe, provincial curriculum director, said curriculum change in the province has been slow. He said English-language Protestant schools are more interested in increased flexibility than French-language schools, where traditional courses are favored.

Newfoundland has a denominational school system that is different from other provinces. Essentially, curriculum there is governed by streaming, depending on what students will do after high school.

Cookshire

Miss Patricia Standish, of Montreal, was an Easter weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Standish.

Mrs. R.B. Learned, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Learned, Lisa and Mark were Easter Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. D.H. Learned in East Angus.

Mrs. Mary Heatherington was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Labonte in East Angus on Easter Sunday, and presided at the organ in the United Church for their Easter and Communion service there, she also was a caller of Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Heatherington and family.

lected three club tricks and it was up to Ted to discard on the third one.

He thought quite a while and finally got rid of his ace of hearts.

East looked surprised. A kibitzer almost fell off his chair. Dummy laughed uproariously, but declared was strangely silent. He knew what was coming and he knew his contract was doomed.

Sure enough, East led a fourth club and Lightner's queen of trumps was the setting trick.

Was his play a lucky guess? Not at all. He was sure to beat the contract this way. He wasn't sure any other way.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Accept invitations for evening of quiet pleasure and fun with neighbors. Get to know them better.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Display your charm and intellect where it will make an impression on someone who can be of help to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Try to comprehend what others are saying, even though their meaning seems somewhat puzzling just now.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Don't show resentment just because someone disagrees with your views. That's what freedom's all about.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Something unusual happens that produces a better set of circumstances for you to maneuver under.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Take action now. After procrastinating for so long, you may hesitate to make a move.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): Doing a favor for someone can give the max for better understanding. Don't wait to be asked - volunteer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Answer correspondents that has been piling up. Enclose interesting clippings, cartoons, etc.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Try to add to savings instead of withdrawing at the present time. Follow conservative procedures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You're in a mood to have fun, but there may be some obstacles in your way at the present time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You only make enemies if you try to force others to go along with you when they don't want to.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Follow advice implicitly if you valued a friend's opinion enough to ask for it. You can't go wrong.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): The weekend was not too much fun and you're ready to return to the job. No "blue Monday" for you today.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): When loving hearts come to a parting of the ways, it can be sad, but sometimes it turns out for the best.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Work may be somewhat strenuous. People tend to be erratic and unstable. Interruptions upset routine.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): An important issue remains that must be solved before results can be settled once and for all.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Upsetting conditions at work are likely to continue so that you will have to avoid erratic moves.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Follow your inclinations as they are leading you in the best direction under day's benefic rays.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): A spirit of fun makes work seem more agreeable. People are easy to get along with and extra helpful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Many single Scorpios are headed for the matrimonial seas. Outlook is good for harmonious alliances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Romance and pleasure will be more important to you today than sticking to business and the monotony of work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Those who apply reason in an enlightened manner have the best chance of getting others to agree with them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Avoid any action which may seem indiscreet to others, even tho you know it is perfectly innocent.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): You extract the optimum of pleasure from your job, making you one of the lucky ones who will go far.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Not a particularly congenial day. Do not enter into any financial transactions with relatives or friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Yesterday's domestic disturbance may continue today. You'll have to compromise to restore harmony.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Some possibility of arguments, more likely with relatives than with friends. Outlook similar to Taurus.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Employment affairs under good aspects this week. You may make a change sooner than you anticipate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A latent talent may become important to you, particularly in a financial sense. Be alert for opportunity.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): In a discussion of family resources, be careful about making definite commitments at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): Don't be too quick to accept people you meet today. They may turn out to be somewhat un dependable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Work done at home, away from interruptions and noise, should go well today. Concentration accentuated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): An unsettled sort of day. Nothing too drastic denoted - just a series of unexpected calls and interruptions.

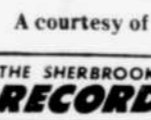

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Health is under fine rays. You will have plenty of vitality to help you get everything done on time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You should be able to patch up injured feelings left over from yesterday. Show understanding and sympathy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): There is a possibility of confusion which will make it difficult for you to make important decisions.

Bridal shower

SUTTON — Twenty-five friends and relatives greeted Karleen Place with a surprise bridal shower on April 1 in honor of her approaching marriage on May 19 to David Burnor.
Evelyn Judd the bride's step-aunt pinned a corsage of small utensils on her and escorted her to a gaily decorated chair in yellow, white, green and orchid streamers and bells formed an arch.
She was assisted by her fiancé's grandmother Mrs. Lyle Clapper and her mother Mrs. Ruth Judd in opening her gifts. She was also the recipient of a basket of goodies tied on which she was obliged to untie individually. The guests then presented her with a booklet they had created to advice to the bride. Several games were played and prizes won.
The guest of honor thanked everyone for making it such a memorable occasion. Refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, potato chips, dips and assorted cookies were served from a table with a wishing-well centerpiece of lavender a gift from the bride to be's sister Mrs. Debbie Bolio.
The shower cake made by the bride's mother was trimmed in white-yellow, green and lavender.
Hostesses, Mrs. Evelyn Judd of Highwater, step-aunt and Mrs. Debbie Bolio of Montpelier, Vt., sister of the bride were assisted by Tammy and Patanca Judd step-sisters of the bride and the bride's sister Dianne Place.
Guests were from Highwater, Sutton, and Barre, Montpelier, North Troy, Warren, St. Albans, East Franklin, Enosburg Falls, Waterville, Vt.
Miss Place is the step-daughter of Roy Judd, formerly of Sutton, now of Sheldon, Vt.

All Saints' Guild

BEEBE — Mrs. Minnie Sheldon was hostess at her home for the April 6 meeting of the Anglican Church Guild of All Saints.
Miss Rachel Sheldon presided over the meeting, opening in usual manner, followed by repeating the Lord's Prayer.
Eleven members answered the roll-call. Routine reports were read and accepted.
Ladies cleaned the church before the Easter service.

Bad weather no excuse to miss a sugar party

100 horticulturalists show up in rain and cold

HATLEY (IH) — The annual Stanstead County Horticultural Society sugaring-off was held on Sunday afternoon, April 29 at the Clifford Curtis sugar bush at Hatley.
The weather left much to be desired. It was rainy and cold, but close to 100 people wore heavy winter clothing and thoroughly enjoyed the sugar bush visit.
Cars were parked along the roadside, then all walked through the woods to the sugar house, stopping en route to pick and look at the wild spring flowers of the woodland — violets, dutchman breeches, and many others.
Mr. Curtis, a "Sugar King" of the province, many times has cooked five gallons of his beautiful syrup on the arch. When ready this was spread on snow, kept for the occasion in deep-freeze, and eaten with pickles. So delicious!
Several also took a small dish and stirred the syrup to eat, which was another spring delicacy. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis were thanked by all attending for the pleasure and opportunity afforded them. The proceeds were for the benefit of the Society.

Good year for fish and game

DERBY LINE — The annual banquet, meeting and program of the Derby Fish and Game club was held on Wednesday evening, April 25, at St. Edward's Parish hall in Derby Line.
A delicious banquet, roast turkey, all the trimmings and assorted pies for dessert was served by the church's Altar Society and enjoyed by 150 people.
Father Ronald Benoit, Parish priest, spoke the blessing. Harold Carter, president, was M.C. and after the banquet the annual meeting took place.
In his report, Mr. Carter mentioned the past year was a successful one. A new electric trap had been purchased and put into use at the range. This was paid for mostly by donations.
Last summer ten young people attended the conservation camp at Salem under sponsorship. This was partly paid for by the Club. The same is to be done this summer.
Two fish derbies had been an enjoyment, one for the youngsters, the other for senior citizens, both at the White Pond. Forestry-supervised harvesting of Pulp is taking place on the Club range property.
Mr. Carter thanked three girls of the community for their interest in the club special prize project. They sold 31 books of tickets.
A moment of silence was observed after words of tribute had been spoken by Mr. Carter about Ben Heath, a director whose death occurred recently.
The slate of nominated officers for the ensuing year was presented and the following elected. President, Harold Carter; Vice-President, Leon (Bill) Gosseil; Secretary, Gordon Swett; Treasurer, George Smith; three-year directors: Arthur Dow, Derby Line; Bob Joslyn, Derby; Paul Curtis, Newport; Gilbert (Red) Giffilan, Holland and one-year-junior, Steve Dow.
This club holds membership in the N.R.A., The National Wildlife Federation.
Perce Wheeler, N.R.A. Instructor presented the N.R.A. small-bore medal to Kurt Weissen and the Bar to Scott Gardyne.
Mr. Wheeler said this N.R.A. shooting program was started by the club about 22 years ago, since then about 1500 youngsters from the areas have been instructed in firearms safety. He mentioned that now the course runs ten hours.
Patches were presented for the top Trap shoot team in 1972. They were Red Giffilan, Bob Rowe, Guy Fortin, Ray Kelley and Dean Birchard. Hank Sanders made the presentations to those present.
Paul Bedard announced that the bear and deer trophies had not arrived although they had been ordered several weeks ago. The winners are: bear, Larry Waterman; largest deer taken in bow and arrow season, Jim Wheeler of Island Pond; largest rack (deer) bone and croquet measure of 134", Arland Bowen, Jr.
Special prizes went to Clayton Burbank of Craftsbury, Vt., $75.00, and the $25.00 for second Ulric Wright, R.R. 1, Newport.
Special guests attending and introduced by Mr. Carter were the speaker, Walter Cabell, Chief Game Warden in Orleans County; Norman Moreau, a Game Warden and Mrs. Moreau; Scott Rowden, State Game Warden and Mrs. Rowden; Kenneth Ridgewell, Vermont Federation representative, and Mrs. Ridgewell from Guidhall, Vt.; Kermit Smith, area representative in Montpelier and Mrs. Smith.

Wanzer-Griffiths

The marriage of Sydney Griffiths of Fulford and Mrs. Ruth Wanzer of Bedford took place on April 17, at 7:30 p.m. in Bedford United Church. Reverend Keith Eddy, pastor of the church officiated.
The bride was attired in a beige floor-length gown and wore a corsage of pink carnations. The attendant, her daughter, Mrs. M. Brault, was dressed in a green floor-length gown and wore a corsage of yellow carnations.
The groom wore a grey suit and a boutonniere of white carnation. The best man, Mr. G. Clow, also wore a boutonniere of white carnation. His wife Mrs. Clow was dressed in green and also wore a corsage of pink carnations.
Immediately after the ceremony the couple and friends motored to Cowansville Maurice Hotel where the reception was held.
The tables were decorated with yellow chrysanthemums sent by Mrs. Griffiths' daughter and husband Mr. and Mrs. Fisk of Chicago and a pot of flowers from the County Women's Institute in blue and gold, colors of the organization.
Toasts were given by Mr. G. Clow and Mr. and Mrs. Bidner, who is president of the County Women's Institute.
The couple responded graciously and thanked their friends for attending. They are residing in Fulford.

Jack Chamberlin, Director of Public Relations for Canada's National Gospel Telecast, CROSSROADS, will be the special speaker at meetings to be held at the South Bolton Bethel Pentecostal Church on Saturday, May 5, and May 6, 1973. Accompanying him will be the musical trio, the "PK's" who will sing original youth oriented numbers. Everyone is invited and there is no admission charge.

It has been announced by the Rev. J.D.R. Sauve that Jack Chamberlin, Director of Public Relations for the CROSSROADS Telecast, will be special speaker at a CROSSROADS Rally to be held at the South Bolton Pentecostal Church on Saturday evening, May 5, at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday morning, May 6, at 11 a.m. Accompanying Mr. Chamberlin will be the "PK's", a trio comprised of his three sons, as well as his wife Bev, and daughter Lorri. The "PK's" will sing fresh original Gospel numbers that have appealed to hundreds in their concerts across Eastern Canada.
Formerly from the Eastern Townships, the Chamberlins now live in Hamilton, Ontario where the CROSSROADS office is located. Mr. Chamberlin was educated at Knowlton High School and Sir George Williams in Montreal. For several years he was host and moderator of "The Eastern Townships Hour" on C.JAD Radio. Later the Chamberlins spent several years in the Maritime Provinces where he managed television stations.
He is now a licensed minister with the P.A.O.C., having received his training through the facilities of the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College in Peterborough, Ontario.
An invitation is extended to people of all faiths to attend these meetings and renew their acquaintances with the Chamberlins.
The Crossroads Telecast, Canada's only national Gospel Telecast, is seen locally on Sundays over C.F.C.F. TV in Montreal, and features as host, the Rev. David Maise.

Survey indicates a sunny summer for students

By VIC PARSONS
CP Staff Writer

Summer should have a generally favorable smile for students seeking seasonal work, especially those with special skills.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates that prospects are bright from the Atlantic to the Pacific, particularly as the federal government expands spending on summer jobs for students and the swifter economic pace generates demand.

As in previous years, however, it pays to work in certain fields.

Commerce and engineering students and those learning special skills such as geology and forestry will find their opportunities the brightest.

Arts students, the unskilled and females seem to face the grimmest struggle for jobs, say manpower and university personnel.

FEDERAL PLANS
Biggest single boost for the job market comes from the federal government's $85.4 million program announced Jan. 15 by State Secretary Hugh Faulkner.

The plan is designed to provide work for 67,200 students in various community services and training programs, including 7,500 summer military trainees. Another 10,000 students are expected to take part in travel and language training programs.

Included is the $40 million Opportunities for Youth (OFY) plan, which will provide 34,000 of the jobs. The OFY spending is up from $34 million in 1972.

Another 16,000 students will be hired by the government to work in career-oriented positions leading to permanent jobs, and in clerical and manual work.

SITUATION 'GOOD'
In most parts of Canada, manpower and university placement spokesmen said the job situation is "good."

In British Columbia, about 240,000 students will be seeking work.

The job placement centre at the University of British Columbia said it expects the continuation of a trend that began in 1971 toward more job openings at higher pay.

The centre agrees that arts students and the unskilled are less likely to find jobs, girls were also less likely to find work and, when they get jobs, were likely to receive lower pay.

In Alberta, a manpower spokesman said most employers are looking for more students than in the last two years, particularly hotels and the oil industry.

General industry will pay about $2.50 an hour while service industries will generally pay the Alberta hourly minimum of $1.75.

Saskatchewan will have job opportunities equal to those of last year when 90 per cent of applicants found employment, a manpower spokesman in Regina said.

Saskatoon manpower officials were also optimistic—especially for those who have a trade or who are engineering students.

PROSPECTS BETTER
Manpower spokesmen in Manitoba said job prospects are better than 1972 in that province, although definite trends are still hard to see.

Waitresses, warehousemen, truck drivers and laborers are in demand and so far there has not been much call for engineers or commerce students. However, many opportunities are just beginning to open up.

In Toronto, both manpower centres and the University of Toronto placement service predicted more jobs will be available.

The university listed more than 1,600 jobs recently ranging from furnace cleaners to library assistants. But many employers wait until June before calling manpower centres for students for low-paying and manual jobs.

Wages range from the provincial minimum wage of $1.80 an hour for those over 18 to various union rates.

Quebec said it will create 20,000 student jobs at a cost of $6.5 million.

But the manpower department in Montreal estimated that 105,000 students will be hunting jobs. About 40,000 will be high school students who get low-priority treatment.

The Quebec plan will set aside $2.5 million to encourage private industry and municipalities to hire students. This program is expected to give work to 8,000.

WILL HIRE 9,000
The province will hire another 9,000 directly and set up projects to give work to another 3,000, while Montreal will take on between 2,000 and 3,000 students.

Students may be excluded from some job possibilities because of priority given to unemployed union members.

The construction industry in Quebec remains virtually closed to students because contractors are reluctant to endanger contract negotiations now going on. Unions have opposed hiring of students on grounds that there are not enough jobs to go around.

New Brunswick students appear to have good chances with more companies than ever before moving on-campus to seek employment.

But a manpower official in Fredericton said in April it will be another month before an accurate count can be made of job prospects.

In Nova Scotia, there is a shortage of engineering students. Typists, science and commerce students are in demand. Oil exploration off the East Coast has resulted in calls for geology students.

MORE PROGRAMS

More provincial government programs dealing with economic, social and environmental problems are expected to provide work for third and fourth year university students.

But the high unemployment figures for the Atlantic region are also reflected in the search for student jobs. There are never enough in the region, a manpower official said.

In Newfoundland, government operations at the federal, provincial and municipal levels are major sources of jobs for the 7,000 students of Memorial University.

Usually, commerce students have a good chance for getting summer work.

The 100th anniversary of Prince Edward Island's entry into Confederation will increase the number of tourist and service industry jobs in that province, although the tourist season does not begin until mid-June.

Business students are most in demand in P.E.I. and a relatively busy year in construction is expected to provide many jobs.

Georgeville branch hosts meeting

GEORGEVILLE — The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 180, Georgeville-Fitch Bay were host for the district command meeting, held on Sunday, April 29 with district commander Comrade Eric Flanders of the Coaticook Branch in the chair assisted by district vice-commander Comrade G. Barlow of the Sherbrooke Branch. President Mrs. Webb of the Sherbrooke Ladies Auxiliary very ably acted as Secretary.

The meeting was well attended by members from Ayer's Cliff, Sherbrooke, Coaticook and Stanstead. Georgeville members attending were, president Comrade A.M. Juby; vice-president Comrade J.C. Routledge; 2nd vice-president Comrade H.G. Brookhouse; Comrade G. Atkins; Comrade G. Woodard and Comrade Chas. Partington.

One of the items discussed was the district annual legion picnic. Comrade J.C. Routledge kindly offered to hold it this year at Belmeere Farm and plans are being made to announce a date soon.

Plans for the Georgeville church parade were also discussed and the date for this event will soon be known.

President Juby thanked Commander Flanders for allowing Branch 180 to host this district meeting.

After the close of the meeting, refreshments were served under the able direction of the chairman of catering, Comrade Chas. Partington, assisted by the Auxiliary Ladies from Sherbrooke and Ayer's Cliff.

The next district command meeting will be held in Sherbrooke on May 27.

Spring means love, dams, ditches

OTTAWA (CP) — In spring a young man's fancy turns to love.

But if he is a farmer he is also trying to figure out what to do about the beaver dams blocking local ditches, streams and culverts, putting his fields under water.

Dave Jones, a fish and wildlife deputy with the Ontario ministry of natural resources, says the flooding problem has become more and more common with an increase in the beaver population.

He says the population has gone from a serious decline in the 1930s to the point of being a nuisance in some areas.

"Throughout most of southern and southwestern Ontario there has been an increase of beaver," he said in an interview. "I think it's like a lot of animals where you have a population explosion, a cycle."

Dr. Nicholas Novakowski, a biologist with the Canadian Wildlife Service, said the increase in beaver, especially in eastern Ontario, is caused by a decline in trapping and changing agricultural patterns.

Dr. Novakowski says that more and more farmers are leaving the land and beaver move in where there is water and food and they will be undisturbed. Beaver have a particular affinity for poplar trees.

PRESENT PROBLEM

Beaver are always linked with the dams they build to collect water and it is these dams that present the problem. Culverts, ditches and streams are particular targets and the dams often create flooding during peak runoff periods such as springtime.

The traditional tactic is to tear down the obstruction and let the water flow through in its normal channel. It's also traditional for the beaver to rebuild the dam.

"You tear it down and he builds it up, you tear it down and he builds it up," said Mr. Jones.

And if all else fails, there is always dynamite. Mr. Jones said it is common for farmers to dynamite beaver dams.

"It's easier than by hand." Some farmers have been known to shoot beaver to stop them from rebuilding dams, but Mr. Jones said conservation officers will trap animals alive and move them to another area if necessary.

But if a farmer doesn't mind a little water lying around, the Bailey drain can be used to keep water levels down, conserve the beaver and save a lot of dam busting.

DRAINS OFF EXCESS

The drain is imbedded in the wall of the dam extending six to eight feet on either side. The ends are raised to prevent beaver blocking them.

The drain can be set at the level wanted and excess will be sluiced away. Mr. Jones said the use of the drain is not common and noted that while it will keep levels down, it won't drain away all the water.

One drawback to the drain is that it eventually becomes blocked and has to be cleaned. "On all beaver ponds you get weeds and debris clogging the openings," said Mr. Jones.

Dr. Novakowski said killing beaver in the spring just to remove dams is a waste. He recommended using the Bailey drain and waiting until winter when beaver pelts are in their prime.

Top price for beaver pelts at the annual North Bay sale in March was $66.

Mansonville

A large purse of money (collected from area residents by Mrs. Dianne Marcoux) was presented to the twin baby daughters, Patricia and Sonia, of Mr. and Mrs. Gilles Champagny (living in the village) at a surprise party given in their honor at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elphege Messier, on Easter Sunday afternoon. The twins also received many other gifts. Those attending from out of town were Miss Susan Messier, Boucherville, and Mr. and Mrs. Clement Marois and son, Stephen, Ste. Anne de Rochelle. The Champagnys expressed their gratitude to all those who were so kind to their babies.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Neill, Montreal, were Easter Sunday guests at the Kirpatrick-Eldridge home.

ENUMERATION

MAY 7th TO 12th

The Québec Election Act respecting the preparation of the permanent electoral list provides that the enumeration of the electors will be made at the beginning of May of each year.

In urban areas, two enumerators must visit each home from Monday, May 7th to Saturday, May 12th between 9:00 A.M. and 10:00 P.M.

In rural areas, one enumerator will prepare the electoral list by visiting each home sometime between May 7th to the 12th from 9:00 A.M. to 10:00 P.M. or by any other means.

If, for any reason (you were not home when the enumerators came by, etc.), your name does not appear on the permanent electoral list, you must go and add your name to the revised list at the time of a general election.

We're counting on you!

The Chief-Returning Officer of Québec.

Penny sale a success

LENNOXVILLE — The penny sale held in St. George's Church Hall, Lennoxville, last Friday, April 27, turned out to be a great success, even in the wet weather, both for those who prepared it and for those participating.

A special thank-you must go to Mrs. Martha Williams in her effort to sell a great number of tickets on our behalf in Waterloo and surrounding district, which enabled the Lennoxville wing of the Sherbrooke Hospital Ladies Auxiliary to increase its sale of tickets.

A list of the winners will be put into Clark's Pharmacy during the next two weeks so that participants may see who won the 71 gifts which were displayed.

Jets win 4-3

WINNIPEG (CP) — A speedy winger who missed most of the regular season with injuries, a pickup defenceman-turned-forward and the sentimental home town favorite sparked Winnipeg Jets to a 4-3 win Thursday night over New England Whalers.

The victory left Winnipeg trailing New England 2-1 in their best-of-seven World Hockey Association final series, which now moves into Boston for games Saturday and Sunday.

Playing coach Bobby Hull fired two goals, including the winner at 18:56 of the final period. The goal stopped a New England rally after the Whalers bounced back from a 3-0 deficit to tie the contest.

Other Winnipeg goal-getters were Ab McDonald and Danny Johnson.

New England replied with goals from defencemen Rick Ley and Ted Green and rightwinger Tim Sheehy.

Hull knew something drastic had to be done to salvage a home-town win over the bigger, faster Whalers, and called on Garth Rizzuto, John Shmyr, a defenceman picked up for the playoffs, and Brian Cadie to start things rolling.

FANS CHEER CADIE

Cadie, perhaps the least likely Jet to gain the starting centreman's spot, was greeted with a tremendous roar from the crowd of 7,200 fans who made him their hero during the regular season.

It was the first playoff appearance for both Cadie, a lanky, hard-hitting bone-rack of about 165 pounds, and Shmyr, brother to Cleveland defenceman Paul.

Backed by Joe Aznussi and Larry Hurnung on the blueline, they immediately starting hitting and forechecking Zanussi sent John French heavily into the boards and Hornung caught Larry Pleau solidly behind the Winnipeg net and the pattern

Injury-plagued Hawks rebound for 7-4 win

By IAN MacLAINE
 CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago's injury-plagued Black Hawks rebounded Thursday night to nail Montreal with a 7-4 setback that left the Canadiens with a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

Stan Mikita, who missed the second game of the series at Montreal with a cut middle finger on his right hand, scored once and assisted on two other goals.

And defenceman Doug Jarrett, who suffered a broken rib in a collision with Montreal's Rejean play goal early in the second period to make it 5-0.

Frank Mahovlich started a Montreal rally with his seventh goal of the playoff season in the second period and the Canadiens pulled to within one goal of the Hawks with third-period scores by Yvan Cournoyer, Guy Lapointe and Jacques Lemaire.

The Canadiens threatened to tie the game up in the last few minutes but the Hawks held on and clinched the victory with empty-net goals by Hull and Jim Pappin.

The two short-handed goals by Chicago marked the second time in as many National Hockey League championships that a team has scored twice while killing off one penalty.

Boston pulled off the trick

Secretariat, Angle Light Derby choices

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The entry of Secretariat and Angle Light was pegged Thursday as the even-money favorite for Saturday's 99th and richest running of the Kentucky Derby.

"Both of them just couldn't be better," just bring on Saturday," said trainer Lucien Laurin, a former Montreal jockey, as he entered the pair.

Angle Light, owned by Ed Whittaker of Toronto, will be ridden by John LeBlanc—a regular on the Ontario circuit and who will ride La Prevoyante for owner Jean-Louis Levesque of Montreal in today's $50,000-added Kentucky Oaks.

Jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., will be on Secretariat.

Owners of a dozen colts and one gelding plunked down $2,500 each to pass the entry box. If all 13 toss another $1,500 in the pot to start, the race will gross $198,800.

The Churchill Downs' handicapper rated Sham as probable second choice.

Our Native, winner of the Flamingo and second by only a head in last week's Blue Grass Stakes, was listed as third choice at 8-1 with the entry of My Gallant and Sheky Greene at 10-1.

Secretariat, Meadow Stable's 1972 Horse of the Year who has already been syndicated for breeding purposes, drew the No. 10 post position for the race, scheduled to start at 5:40 p.m. EDT.

Angle Light will start from the second stall in the starting gate while Sham goes from No. 4.

Secretariat had finished first in 10 straight races, including eight stakes, before Angle Light handed him his first defeat of the year in the Wood Memorial.

Attempt made to coordinate activities

RICHMOND (LH) — An effort is being made in the Richmond area to co-ordinate available recreational facilities with the need for these facilities, according to Gerard Cote.

Mr. Cote works out of the Sherbrooke regional headquarters of the Regional Leisure Council (RLC), a private organization existing mostly through provincial funding. The aim of the RLC is to coordinate leisure programs and activities in the greater Sherbrooke region as well as developing programs for the handicapped.

Mr. Cote, in a recent interview, explained the efforts being made in Richmond. He pointed out that there are four main public organizations in the area — the town administrators, the English Regional School Board, the French Regional School Board and the French Elementary School Board — all of whom could potentially contribute to an "inventory" of leisure facilities in the area.

Together, these groups have elected members to a nine-member organization known as a Board of Directors which represents organizations with something to offer in the way of recreational facilities.

A second "organizing" committee has also been formed made up of those who have requirements insofar as recreational or leisure facilities in Richmond are concerned. The organizing committee has within it different commissions involving all sport, cultural and outdoor recreational requirements in Richmond.

These two groups, by coordinating their interests, should be able to provide a much more intelligent use of recreational services in the area, according to Mr. Cote.

To accomplish this, a co-ordinating committee has been formed within the Board of Directors. Ian Hume, of Melbourne, has been elected chairman of the coordinating committee. The group with facilities to offer — gyms, halls or the ability to do cost analysis — will, hopefully, be able to provide these facilities working through the co-ordinating committee.

On a long-term basis, it is possible that the town of Richmond and the surrounding school commissions will delegate their authority for recreation and cultural activities in the area to the co-ordinating committee although, as Mr. Cote notes, this is not an immediate goal.

Mr. Hume has extensive experience in organizing leisure

'Oliver' swings merry bat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
 Pittsburgh Pirates put on their version of "Oliver" in San Francisco and it was quite a production.

Al Oliver was a virtual 1-man show with six RBI on two home runs as the Pirates brought the curtain down on the Giants in a National League baseball game 14-5 Thursday.

"Both homers were on fast balls... that was the first time I've had so many RBI in one game," said Oliver after hitting a two-run homer in the first inning and a grand slam blast in the Pirates' five-run second.

"The grand slam was on a 3-2 pitch and nine times out of 10, it's going to be a fast ball... so I was expecting it," said Oliver of the home run off San Francisco starter Jim Willoughby.

In other games Thursday, Cincinnati Reds defeated New York Mets 6-5; St. Louis Cardinals beat San Diego Padres 3-1 and Chicago Cubs whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1.

With Oliver leading the long-ball offence, the Pirates put the game away early. Milt May had a three-run homer in Pittsburgh's four-run fourth that built their lead to 13-1.

TALENT SHOWS

Oliver, who raised his RBI to 21 in 17 games, felt the awesome show of 17 base hits was a true indication of Pirate power.

"We've still got the best talent in baseball," said Oliver. "We have to show it on the field, put it to use."

Willie McCovey had a solo home run for the Giants, his sixth of the season.

Pinch-hitter Larry Stahl's three-run homer capped a six-run uprising in the fourth inning as Cincinnati defeated New York. The rally wiped out a 4-0 New York lead built on Rusty Staub's grand slam homer in the first.

The Reds knocked out New York starter Jon Matlack with the rally. They scored runs on a double by Tony Perez, a single by Bobby Tolan and a doubleplay boner by Dave Concepcion before Stahl's blast over the centre field fence.

Reggie Cleveland scattered nine hits and St. Louis capitalized on San Diego errors to beat the Padres. The Cards scored their winning runs in the fifth. One run scored on an error by San Diego shortstop Derrel Thomas and another on Tim McCarver's sacrifice fly.

Don Kessinger's two-run single keyed a four-run rally in the ninth as Chicago came back to beat Los Angeles. Dodger starter Andy Messersmith had held the Cubs scoreless on six hits before their ninth-inning uprising.

Aussies breeze to first-round wins

By CHRYS GOYENS
 MONTREAL (CP) — Australian veterans Roy Emerson and Rod Laver breezed through a three-set sweep of their younger countrymen Thursday to register a victory as first-round play at the $80,000 world doubles tennis championship got under way here.

Laver and Emerson defeated Terry Addison and Colin Dibley 6-4, 7-5, 6-1 to advance to Saturday's semi-final round.

In the only other match played Thursday, Americans Bob Lutz and Stan Smith downed Allan Stone of Australia and Yugoslavia's Nikki Pilic 7-6, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6.

Eight doubles teams, four each from Groups A and B on the split World Championship Tennis (WCT), tour are competing here for the $40,000 first prize. The second-place finishers are to share $16,000, with $8,000 going to the third-place team.

First-round losers, Addison and Dibley, take home $3,000.

Emerson and Laver, after taking the first set, ran into trouble in the second set and found themselves down 5-2.

"Yes, they were coming back then and we were pressing just a little too much," Emerson said after the match.

"So we got together and slowed the game down a little."

Emerson held his serve to make it 5-3 and an eight game streak was under way.

TOOK LEAD

After breaking Addison's serve to make it 5-4, Emerson and Laver gained momentum and were up 3-0 in the final set before losing a game when Laver lost his serve.

However the two veterans dug in again to shut out the younger players and the match was all over.

"We had a lucky break when we were down 5-3 and took advantage of it," Emerson said.

"All they had to do was keep service and it could have been a very different match."

"Despite the score, Terry and Colin played well and had they not missed a few close shots we'd probably still be playing now."

Other WCT stars to qualify for the event include Americans Roscoe Tanner and Arthur Ashe, Mark Cox and Graham Stilwell of England, Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Marty Riessen of the U.S., and Australians Ken Rosewall and Fred Stolle.

The four-day event ends Sunday and the players are to move on to Dallas for the WCT singles championship.

50 years at the keys

DERBY LINE — Easter Sunday was a very special day at the Universalist Church in Derby Line. People came, many from a distance to attend the service in a church that is well over 100 years old.

Not only was it Easter Sunday, it was the 50th anniversary of Mrs. Lillian Patton as organist in the church.

The service was especially beautiful. The carillons, playing Easter music in the belfry, greeted the people. At 11:15 a.m. the service commenced.

Mrs. Patton at the organ and Mrs. Malcolm Keir at the piano played one of Mrs. Patton's favorite selections, "Come, Gentle Spring" from Haydn's Oratorio "Seasons".

Rev. Malcolm Keir was the presiding minister and gave the Call To Worship and Invocation. The service continued with appropriate scripture readings, prayers and hymns.

During the offertory the congregation again heard an organ

HALF A CENTURY — Mrs. Lillian Patton has been playing the organ at the Universalist Church in Derby Line since the Easter of 1923. She also directed the church choir for well over a decade.

piano duet by Mrs. Patton and Mrs. Keir "Easter Chimes" based on the tune "Lyla Davidica" and the postlude, a march, from the Fifth Symphony "Beethoven".

Certainly those who attended the service left with a feeling of inspiration from the beauty of the hour.

Mrs. Patton received a pot of beautiful daffodils from the congregation in appreciation of her 50 years as organist.

After the blooms are dead and the plant dies, they will be planted in a special place in Mrs. Patton's gardens as a reminder of April 22, for the daffodils will grow again and bloom, much the same as Christ died on the Cross and rose from the dead on an Easter Sunday 2000 years ago.

Mrs. Patton was wearing a gold orchid on her choir gown, a gift from Miss Aline Ricard, a former co-worker at Spencer Supports and a close friend. Tributes, letters and cards came to Mrs. Patton from friends. It all began way back on Easter Sunday in 1923. It was then that Mrs. Lillian Nason Moore Patton began to play the organ in the Universalist Church.

She was musically gifted and started playing the organ by ear. Her mother was a musician and has an organ in her home which she played often. Lillian watching her mother soon mastered the ivories.

In 1923, Miss Gertrude Butterfield was church organist but she wanted to be away that Easter weekend and was able to talk Lillian into playing for the hour of service. That service has continued for 50 years.

The organ is a Tractor Action, the old original. It has one pipe, an E.W. Lane, built in Waltham, Mass. Although no record is available as to when it was installed in the church, it is believed to have been at least 60 years ago.

When Mrs. Patton was employed in the office at Butterfields it was suggested she attend the Eastern Townships Conservatory of Music at Stanstead College. At first, she thought she could not do it. She had her work, a home and two young boys, a lot of responsibility. But the more she thought about it, the more she desired to learn to read and play music by note.

She registered and studied under Professor A. Harlow Martin, who started and taught at the Stanstead College conservatory for many years. Mrs. Patton played at many a College baccalaureate service that was held in Centenary Church. And of course, with her knowledge and love of music graduated with Honors.

The organ pedal notes were taught to her by Miss Alma Alger, who died about a year ago.

Music has been a part of Mrs. Patton's life, she played piano in the days of silent movies in Derby Line and for dances; her beloved church organ, for weddings, funerals and other events. She has taught many youngsters music, she still teaches a few.

In her home she has a beautiful electronic organ and a small grand piano. But she said, "I don't play as much at home as I used to, I listen to the music recorded by the artists."

Perhaps the greatest thrill in her life was her trip made a few years ago to Europe. In Germany she attended a church service in the Dr. Switzer church. After the service she was handed the keys to his organ and invited to play it.

Mrs. Patton was also director of the Universalist Church choir from 1939 until the 1950's.

James Wilkins The Lafontaines stayed for several days and the group called on Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Sherrer and family.

Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Ommerli were Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ulman and Nancy. Mr. and Mrs. David Showler and two sons, Mr. Kurt Jonason and family, and Mr. Maurice Gilchrist, Montreal. Mr. Keith Showler and two friends, Cobourg, Ont.

On April 14, Saturday evening, the Ommerlis celebrated their 40th Wedding Anniversary (actual date April 15) with several friends from the surrounding area and a surprise visit for the occasion by their son Mr. Hermann Ommerli, Jr., and their grandson, Peter of Ottawa. Also present were Montrealeers Mr. Anstie Young and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ulmann with their daughter, Nancy Mrs. Ulmann and Mrs. Hermann Steinbach of Mansenville, brought specially made and beautifully decorated cakes for the occasion.

Returned home from hospital and feeling much better are Fred Smith and Ronny Barnes, the latter having had treatment for kidney stones.

Jackie Webb may undergo a small operation and we all wish him well again. His mother, Mrs. Bertha Webb, Brian and Mary and Mr. Bruce Nicholls, visited him in Room 5547, CHU Hospital, Stoke Rd., Sherbrooke, on Easter Sunday.

Mrs. Heather DeFelicis's mother, Mrs. Peggy (Charles) Keene is quite ill in hospital, Room 6625, CHU (as above), undergoing tests to determine the cause of her illness. Cards and letters will be most appreciated. She has done secretarial work for the Knowlton United Church for many years. Speedy recovery, Peggy.

We wish a speedy recovery to Mr. Harry Salls, Sherbrooke Hospital, Argyle Ave. Good health Mr. Salls.

The maple syrup season of 1973 is now history. Enormous quantities of sap were collected, with much going to waste, as well, due to inability of the larger operators to cope with such a flow. However, a good yield per tree, of splendid quality was harvested. This, with higher prices prevailing, has left our sugar makers smiling broadly after a long and strenuous season.

UCW meetings

SOUTH DURHAM — The April meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Evan Cote with seven members present. Mrs. Lloyd Millar, President, opened the meeting by all repeating the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Evan Cote gave the devotional, theme, Looking for and finding God. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Talent money and money for the Silent Food Sale to be handed in at the May meeting.

Since there were so few members present it was decided to make final plans for our Turkey Salad Tea at the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Hartley Gunter on May 9.

Meeting closed with Mizpah prayer and lunch was served when a social hour was enjoyed.

The devotions were under the leadership of Mrs. O. Taylor who had a theme Palm Sunday. During roll call it was reported that five Wales Home and six local calls had been made. This unit has been asked for two loaves of white bread, sliced and buttered for the general meeting of the Richmond area U.C.W. This unit will hold a May Tea on May 9, at 2 p.m. in the Sunday School room of Chalmers United Church, Richmond. Remnants were received which were priced for the May sale.

Donations for the June meeting are to be brought in by Mrs. Douglas Fletcher and Mrs. Ralph Healy. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The report of the secretary

RICHMOND — The U.C.W. of the Richmond and Melbourn United Church met in the church parlour on Wed. April 4, with 30 in attendance. The captain, Mrs. D. Dykeman was in the chair and welcomed everyone.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary Mrs. Florence Roster, and Miss Jean Pepler gave her treasurer's report.

Mrs. Dykeman then thanked all who helped to make the St. Patrick's Supper a success. Mrs. B. Rodgers is to take the duties of card convener.

Mrs. W. Moreland reported 54 Wales Home and 33 local calls had been made. The Manse committee reported that new fixtures in the Manse had been looked after. The Unit reports were then given. Chalmers Unit did not have the regular March meeting but helped with St. Patrick's Supper. The Melbourn Unit helped with the St. Patrick's Supper, visited the Wales Home and will have a Bring and Buy sale at the April meeting. The New London Unit helped with St. Patrick's Supper and expect to have a Tea and Sale in the church hall in May. The Evening Unit convened the St. Patrick's Supper.

Mrs. Dykeman offered to drive her car and take members to Knowlton on April 9, for the U.C.W. Presbyterian.

Chalmers Unit will have charge of flowers for the Easter church services and have the kitchen duties in April, May and June.

On May 2, there will be no business meeting but food and tea will be prepared for visits to shut-ins in the area. Food was then solicited and cars were offered.

More cook books have been received and are now available. Several were sold at the meeting. The meeting was then adjourned.

A Thank Offering program followed with Mrs. Dykeman as leader and Mrs. E. Wentworth, Mrs. A. Galbraith, Mrs. B. Rodgers, Mrs. J. Barrington, Mrs. D. Kerr and Miss M. Kerr helped as readers. Rev. R.A. Cameron afterwards held a comments and discussion session.

Tea and cookies were later served by the New London Unit and a social hour enjoyed.

It was announced that Mrs. Stevens had taken 80 pounds of good used clothing to Barton for the World Clothing Drive. It was voted to make a donation of $5.00 to the Memorial Scholarship fund in the name of the late Russell Heath whose death occurred a few days previous. Mr. Heath on the teaching staff as Principal were residents in Newport and members of this congregation. Leaving Newport they were residents in Springfield, Vt.

Easter cards were signed to be sent to shut-ins. Mrs. Walsh announced the May 15 meeting at the home of Mrs. Millie Adam will feature a Chinese auction.

AUW hold meeting

DERBY LINE — Members of the AUW and their guests assembled in the Universalist church vestry on April 17 for a delicious supper brought by the women of the society.

After all had enjoyed the beautiful supper a program took place and was followed by the society business meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sessions of Newport showed a travelogue on Africa which was made the more interesting by the narration of Mrs. Sessions. The couple were introduced by Mrs. James Stevens Jr., and thanked by Mrs. Myrtle Bacon. As a gesture of appreciation Mr. and Mrs. Sessions were presented with an Easter lily plant from the group.

Mrs. Howard Walsh presided for the business of the evening. Using material from The Upper Room, Mrs. Millie Adam conducted the period of devotions.

was heard. In the absence of the treasurer there was no report. It was announced that Mrs. Stevens had taken 80 pounds of good used clothing to Barton for the World Clothing Drive.

It was voted to make a donation of $5.00 to the Memorial Scholarship fund in the name of the late Russell Heath whose death occurred a few days previous. Mr. Heath on the teaching staff as Principal were residents in Newport and members of this congregation. Leaving Newport they were residents in Springfield, Vt.

Easter cards were signed to be sent to shut-ins. Mrs. Walsh announced the May 15 meeting at the home of Mrs. Millie Adam will feature a Chinese auction.
