THE SENATORIAL STRUGGLE.

Conkling Still Sanguine as to the Result.

NEW YORK, June 5.—It is stated that Conkling, Platt and Johnston visited Arthur at his residence on Saturday evening. Conkling said to a friend to-day, "I feel very sanguine as to the result of my fight. I was never more hopeful. I shall return to Albany the moment my friends think my presence necessary, and remain there during the struggle." Platt anticipated an adjournment about the close of June when the Legislature will become tired out by the deadlock. He expects Grant in Albany on Wednesday. It is said the Stalwarts will continue striving to secure names sufficient to call a caucus.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT.

Little Excitement in England.

LONDON, June 4.—There is no excitement here over the revised New Testament. Even the denunciation by the Established Church is but little heeded. The Established Church seems to be on the waver. The only wonder is that such an institution has been allowed to remain until this time. It costs the people of England 10,000,000 pounds annually, and only the aristocracy get ten cents of benefit from it. But its time for going is near. Mr. Gladstone pulled it down in Ireland, the late Government were compelled to abolish Church patronage in Scotland, and it will be the task of Mr. Gladstone's successor in the Liberal party to separate Church and State in England. These are some of the reasons why the Revised New Testament has created little interest here outside of Church, or, as I should rather say, clerical circles. The lower classes of Englishmen care nothing about any of these things, and if we are to believe John Bright, the aristocracy, though holding to the doctrines of the Church, are not careful to put these into action in their daily lives.

HARVEST PROSPECTS IN ENGLAND.

Most of the Cereal Crops Ruined.

LONDON, June 4.—We shall again have to go to you for the larger part of our grain supply. Continued drought and cold east winds, which have prevailed with little intermission since seeding time, has ruined most of the cereal crops, except wheat, and that in most districts is poor and thin. I have been over the best agricultural sections in the South and Midland counties, and the same doleful story is told everywhere. The hay crop will be almost a total failure. Farmers have been trusting to a good harvest this year, to enable them to pay off the arrears of rent which have grown upon them, owing to the wretched harvests of the last few years, and the partial failure, which is now inevitable, will ruin thousands of them. The misfortunes of the farmers have much to do with the prevailing industrial depressions. We have had only two showers since May 4th, and the fields are parched and red as rust. Altogether, farming in these islands is in a bad case. Between short harvests and American competition, the landlords are at their wits' end. Hundreds of the best farms are unoccupied, and at least 70 per cent. of the tenants are in arrears.

THE IRISH TROUBLES.

The Situation—Eviction Scenes—Riot at Limerick—Parnell's Programme—Meeting in Hyde Park—More Arrests—Mr. Forster Challenged.

LONDON, June 5.—The Government is very reticent about the affairs in Ireland, and nothing trustworthy is to be gathered from the Irish press on the subject, the Home Rule papers concealing and the Anti-Home Rule papers exaggerating the actual situation. Moreover, local correspondents of the Central press refrain, from motives of prudence, from giving details of the collisions occurring almost daily in the disturbed districts throughout Munster. Several correspondents in smaller towns and villages have been "Boycotted," and one was roughly handled by a mob at Kilmallock, but if the evidence of persons who are in a position to obtain fairly accurate information goes for anything the country is on the brink of civil war. The disturbances are of a decidedly mixed character. At New Pallas, for instance, the tenantry on Col. Hare's estate are resisting decrees of eviction issued at the instance of his agent, whilst at Clonmel the peasantry are "Boycotting" tenants who lately stood high in the League for discharging laborers. It is a muddle that defies remedial measures, and nothing remains for the Government but to crush the disorder by sheer dint of bayonets. Ireland is incomparably worse off to-day than she was under Tory rule within living memory, and the Government has assumed powers more autocratic and unconstitutional than any found in the Tory armory since the beginning of this century. But, after all, matters have come to such a pass that the suspension of the Jury laws and the establishment of a special tribunal for the trial of prisoners are absolutely necessary, if law and order are to prevail against anarchy. Some days ago the Inspector-General of Constabulary issued a circular to the force, chiding them for not bringing the perpetrators of outrages to justice. The almost unanimous answer of the County Inspectors was: "Suppose we do arrest persons whose guilt we not only suspect, but can establish, what then?" Juries never convict. At last Assizes a hundred prisoners against whom the Crown brought overwhelming proofs were acquitted, the jurors either sympathizing with the accused or being terrorized by threats of murder and "Boycotting" from rendering a true verdict. Trial by jury in Ireland at present is a farce. No panel can be struck at any Assize town, to the exclusion of Leaguers, and the right of challenge is rarely exercised by the prisoner's counsel, for he knows that non-leaguers dare not consent in jury-room to a verdict of guilty, except at the peril of their lives the moment the trial is over. Judges are unanimously of opinion that special Commissions, resembling courts-martial in some degree, should be substituted for the jury system until the intense excitement dies out. It is useless for the Crown officers to get a change of venue. The League is everywhere, and conviction can no more be secured under the walls of Derry than on the North Mall at Cork. Another most disquieting circumstance is the espousal of the League movement by many priests in the south and west. The hierarchy, with the single exception of Dr. Croke and the priests who received their education on the continent, are hostile to it, but probably 20 per cent. of the Maynooth priests, sprung from the ranks of the peasantry, have backed the peasants' course.

LIMERICK, June 5.—It is a saddening sight to watch the evictions carried on in this neighborhood with the assistance of Her Majesty's troops. After Kennedy, of New Pallas, and his family and household goods were turned out, and the door barred up and the police had departed, your correspondent returned to the spot where the eviction had taken place. The mother and her six little children were sitting around or walking about the ruins of their once happy home. There was nothing between them and the blue sky, night was coming on, and they had nowhere to go and thus they were left without a ray of hope to cheer them. The Coldstream Guards and the police force proceeded to the next tenant to be evicted, and as these magnificent looking soldiers, the flower of Her Majesty's troops, filed down by the little cabin, one could not resist calling to mind their exploits in England's greatest wars, and comparing them with their present service. "Up, Guards, and at 'em!" were Wellington's famous words. "Up, Guards, and at Jim Kennedy!" is a paraphrase available in their present Irish campaign. They certainly do not look as if they fancied their work. A band with a green flag met the party of soldiers here, but there was not the slightest sign of hostility, except that not one drop of water or a morsel to eat would the inhabitants give the thirsty and hungry troops and police, as they passed through the country. The newspaper correspondents were moreover received with welcome, and were offered the most generous hospitality. Milk, eggs, fresh bread and butter were furnished them in abundance, and all recompence from them firmly refused. Two more evictions were accomplished, at one of which the people were so noisy that the magistrate read the Riot Act and the police dispersed them with fixed bayonets. The last eviction was in the neighborhood of Castle Quinlan, which, as it may be remembered, played an important part in the last eviction. To-day, however, it was deserted, and in fact no one has been in it for a fortnight. It was not fortified, as was reported, and no one has been in it over night. All reports of armed men holding it proved utterly false. It offered a good position from which to throw stones at the police while evictions were going on beneath its walls a fortnight ago, but no attempt has been made to take it. The police did not care to do so, and so the entire force returned to camp about sundown without further adventure. They will start to-morrow morning to continue their work on another part of Hare's estate.

LIMERICK, June 5.—This afternoon a disorderly scene occurred at the railway station here, the panic-stricken police attacking a quiet crowd of people with the butts of their rifles and afterwards charging them with fixed bayonets.

James Mannix and his son, the latter Secretary of the Mitcheltown branch of the Land League have been arrested under the Coercion Act, charged with inciting to riot. A large party of military went to Mitcheltown to-day to aid in evictions. Five persons have been arrested near Killarney for attacking a house and cutting off the tenant's ear.

LONDON, June 4.—Mr. O'Mahoney, a prominent member of the Ballydahob Land League, has been arrested under the Coercion Act. In spite of a large force of armed constabulary, the people twice succeeded in rescuing Mr. O'Mahoney, when, finally, he was captured. A part of the mob has set out to endeavor to intercept his escort at Skibbereen, County Cork.

DUBLIN, June 5.—O'Mahoney, who was arrested to-day, informed the police that if they withdrew he would go on without an escort to Limerick Gaol. He walked from Ballydahob to Skibbereen, accompanied by 2,000 people, where he took the train to Cork, and proceeded thence to Limerick. The warrant charges him with inciting to murder.

It is claimed the Government is making preparations to suppress all Land League meetings in future.

All troops stationed here will be confined to barracks on Monday. O'Gallagher, schoolteacher in Gweedore, County Donegal, has been arrested under the Coercion Act.

LONDON, June 5.—Nobody expects the Government to proceed against Mr. Parnell personally, but the Ministers consider the signs in Ireland and England of an approaching crisis far graver than yet known. Mr. Parnell's friends say he would readily adopt the policy of a general strike against rent, but fears to provoke a decisive conflict, for which the Home Rulers are not ready. Mr. Parnell adheres to the idea that the present land agitation must be made subsidiary to the promotion of the political independence of Ireland. The Ministers agree that his language seriously aggravates the troubles and increases the probability of a collision on a still greater scale, and imperils the life of every unpopular landlord. It is understood that Mr. Parnell hopes not to bring on a general rising but to incite resistance on a scale to prevent the effective use of police and military so as to paralyse evictions. English feeling is rapidly rising, and demands that the Government show more decision and energy.

The mass meeting in Hyde Park to protest against the Government's policy in regard to Ireland was held to-day. Although there was a steady drizzle of rain during the day a large number of Irishmen and women were present, but the attendance of the general public was limited. A procession of branches of the Home Rule organization with bands and banners marched from Trafalgar square to the Park where there was speaking from three platforms. The following resolutions were carried unanimously at each platform: That the Government is criminally responsible for the deplorable condition of Ireland. That this meeting summon the Government immediately to suspend evictions and liberate the persons arrested on suspicion; that Mr. Forster resign the office for which he has proved utter incapacity. Mr. Parnell appeared and was enthusiastically received. He made a speech in which he attacked the Government for encouraging unjust evictions. He read a letter from a priest of New Pallas, stating that Hare, on whose property the recent riotous evictions occurred, has, during the last 25 years, evicted nearly 450 persons. Mr. Parnell said a serious responsibility will rest on the Government if evictions continue. Irishmen are now becoming aware of the power of combination and passive resistance. Messrs. O'Connor and O'Donnell, members of Parliament, also addressed the meeting.

Captain Bell, describing himself as an American journalist, was introduced to a Cork branch of the Land League on Saturday, said he had come amongst them in the interest of a paper which he represented. He declared that America sympathized with the grievances of Irishmen, but despised rioting and anarchy.

DUBLIN, June 5.—Mr. Foster remains in Ireland until after the Whitsuntide holidays. At Loughrea, Galway County, on Saturday, Donlan, Fahey and Keogh, charged with the murder of Connors, were discharged for lack of evidence, and were re-arrested under the Coercion Act for the same crime.

At Cork last night a serious affray occurred between the mob and a body of police. The fight began at the coal quay, where the rioters had collected, with a view, so it is said, of attacking the county gaol, while another band on the north side of the city were to attack the city gaol at Strawberry Hill, Sunday's Well. The police charged upon the coal quay, and in the melee a number of stores on Main street were gutted by the rioters. There was rioting later in the night in the neighborhood of Cat Fort, Barrack street and Bandon road, and several scrimmages in Warren place, near the metal bridge, and on the South Mall, Grand Parade and Patrick street. A large force of military went to Mitcheltown, county Cork, to-day to aid in evictions. The Cork gaols were not attacked.

NEW PALLAS, June 5.—In a disturbance at Bally Brophy, to-day, a man was shot dead and others wounded by a bailiff, who, with his three sons, has been arrested.

LONDON, June 5.—The following has been telegraphed to President Garfield by Boyton from Kilmainham prison:—"I hope the American Government will never submit me, or the honor of the Republic I fought for, to maintain, to the degradation of an appeal to the benevolence of the cowardly British Government which is incapable of exending to my countrymen the commonest justice."

The Times to-day, in a leading article upon the situation in Ireland, says: We have only to consider the condition of Ireland and the temper of the Irish peasantry on the one hand, and such speeches as those of Archbishop Croke at Holycross, and Mr. Parnell yesterday, on the other, to satisfy ourselves of the complicity of the Land League, its leaders and abettors, with what is now nothing more nor less than a conspiracy to defy the law. The cry of the League is no longer a protest against arbitrary evictions; it is now the immoral doctrine that a tenant may refuse to pay what he considers unjust rent, even though he is perfectly able to pay. Thus is the agitation revealed in all its nakedness, of which Archbishop Croke, the appointed minister of a religion professing peace and charity to all men, says it is not revolutionary, not an irreligious movement or a movement calculated to injure anybody. It is difficult to read such words with common patience. It is not landlords alone who suffer under cruel, lawless terrorism, but hundreds and thousands who are dependent on them, such as mortgagers of rent charges, holders of jointures, &c., all of whom are absolutely guiltless. No word of sympathy for these helpless victims has escaped the sacred lips of a minister of the Gospel, yet Mr. Parnell can coolly expect the Government to follow Archbishop Croke's advice. The audacity of Mr. Parnell in repeating Archbishop Croke's advice in the House of Commons is simply astounding. Let us see, said Archbishop Croke, whether there will be that willingness on the part of the people to submit quietly to the terms of the landlords or not. In other words, the Government is exhorted to leave the landlords to the mercy of a peasantry inflamed by reckless agitation in order to prove what is perfectly clear already, that they would get no mercy at all, to say nothing of justice. Force may be no remedy, but when the law is openly defied, and defiance justified as a movement calculated to injure nobody, it is necessary to vindicate the authority of the law."

Large reinforcements will be sent to Ireland next week. There are 22,000 troops now there, besides the constabulary, which is at its full strength of 14,000. The first battalion of Coldstream Guards at Dublin will be reinforced by a second battalion, lying at Wellington barracks here.

LONDON, June 6.—Mr. Healey has sent a challenge to Mr. Forster, Chief Secretary for Ireland, to meet him in Belgium.

Dr. Ryerson addressed the Conference, expressing a desire to retire from active life. He also referred to the relations existing between the English and Canadian Conferences, which subject was discussed. Rev. Messrs. Sparling and Squires, of the Montreal Conference, and Dr. Rose, of Toronto, were introduced. The session adjourned till Monday.

THE FORTUNE BAY AFFAIR.

Dissatisfaction in England at the Award.

LONDON, June 4.—Some dissatisfaction is expressed at the result of the Fortune Bay affair. Many people think it hard that England should have to pay £15,000 for the acts of a few Newfoundlanders, and ask why Newfoundland should not be called upon to foot the bill out of the $500,000 she pocketed as her share of the Halifax award, while others hold that Mr. Blaine should take the money out of the surplus he has on hand from the Alabama award. The Times says that "all such questions are uniformly decided against England, and arbitrators are always sure to conclude that the safest course is to draw upon the English taxpayer." The Canadian Government will no doubt urge its claims against the United States now. Under the Treaty of Washington Canadian lobsters are admitted free into the United States, but Massachusetts fishermen circumvented that provision by inducing the Washington Government to clap a duty on lobster cans. This, the Canadians say, is contrary to the spirit of the treaty, and I understand that Sir Alex. Galt, the Canadian Commissioner, has put the case strongly before the Foreign Office. The Tories do not say much about the Fortune Bay settlement in Parliament. They can't taunt the Premier about the Washington treaty without reflecting upon Sir Stafford Northcote, who was one of the "High Joints."

The Chateau Sabrevois.

Among the ancient historic buildings in the neighborhood of Montreal there is, perhaps, none so well preserved or of such unquestionable authenticity as that which bears the above title. It is 213 years old, having been built in 1668 by Pierre Boucher, Sieur de Boucherville, former Governor of Three Rivers, and one of the most distinguished names in the annals of New France. It is the first and oldest house in the village of Boucherville. Under its roof was celebrated the first divine service held in those parts. There the famous Jesuit missionary, Jacques Marquette, the discoverer of the Mississippi, performed the first christening in Boucherville parish, the godmother of the child being Marie Boucher, wife of M. de Varennes and mother of the celebrated M. de la Verandraye, the discoverer of Keewatin, Manitoba, the North-West, and the Upper Missouri. Madame de Varennes was also the grandmother of Madame de Youville, the saintly founder of the Order of Grey Nuns. In the same house, the equally holy Marguerite Bourgeoys, founder of the Congregation, opened the first school at Boucherville. In the days of Canadian feudalism, the Chateau Sabrevois was inhabited by M. Boucher de Sabrevois, who had received it from his father, with neighboring pieces of land, detached from the seigniory of Boucherville, and forming the fief of Sabrevois, whose seignior owed fealty and homage to the sovereign alone. Later, the fief Sabrevois and the Chateau, without going out of the family, became the property of M. de la Broquerie who, in 1832, took up his residence there with his sister, Madame Tache, and died within its walls last year. Madame Tache was the mother of Archbishop Tache, the great missionary of the North-West, to whom an oil painting of the old Chateau has just been presented at St. Boniface.

Police News.

The case of Thomas Fletcher, of Rigaud, for aggravated assault upon J. E. Durocher, bailiff of the same place, was concluded on Saturday by a verdict of "guilty," notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the defence to prove an alibi.

A Mother Sacrifices Her Life.

Mrs. McFarland, residing in Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Coryell, a neighbor, started for Brooklyn to visit Green Wood Cemetery and plant flowers on Mrs. McPherson's son's grave. They were accompanied by Mrs. Coryell's four-year old daughter. When they reached the depot Mrs. McFarland crossed the track first, and the child attempted to follow her, when an express train which does not stop at the station came thundering along. Mrs. Coryell, seeing her child's imminent peril, gave a piercing scream, and without hesitation jumped on the track and pushed the child out of danger. She then lost her presence of mind, and becoming paralyzed with fear, was unable to move in either direction. The engineer whistled down brakes, but before the train could be stopped the locomotive struck Mrs. Coryell and hurled her over to the platform. Her injuries are considered fatal.—New-York Times.

MONDAY, JUNE 6, 1881.

THE Fortune Bay affair, about which there has been so much controversy, has at last been settled so far as Great Britain and the United States are concerned. Uncle Sam has received from the plethoric coffers of John Bull adequate compensation for the alleged outrages, and all the former has now to do is to divide the said compensation among the parties so "outraged." But the party most directly interested appears not to have been consulted at all. The Newfoundland Government had no voice in the matter of the award, and it is not to be wondered at that much indignation is expressed in the colony thereat. It is even hinted that the fishermen of Newfoundland will take the law into their own hands, and, as far as possible, prevent the New England fishermen from encroaching upon what they consider their vested rights. How the matter will turn out it is difficult to say, but we fancy the affair has been too hastily dealt with by the Governments of Great Britain and the United States.

A Dastardly Manifesto.

One of the meanest things we have ever seen in print is a fly-sheet intitled "Suggestions for an Address to Prof Goldwin Smith—from a section of the Press Association." Whether there is any section of the Press Association which would echo the sentiments of this production we seriously doubt; the author we imagine has very nearly, if not quite, a monopoly on them. As a sample of the style, take the following:—"We once had nothing bu Mail or Globe whiskey to dilute, now we have Bystander gin; once we had only a Mail or Globe club to hit with, but now we can use your patent stiletto, which makes a wound not so vulgar, but lets out more blood. * * * Before you came, we are proud to admit, that we were a set of roughs, we had no style, no finish, no culture, but we are now so refined, we all write such a style, we are so finished, so cultured, we are lost in admiration of ourselves." One thing is evident and that is that the writer of this manifesto has no reason to be lost in admiration of his style: he may safely go to evening school a term or two more without any danger of putting too fine a point upon his literary education. The whole thing simply displays the resentment of a small mind at the suggestion that a man of superior culture could possibly have anything to teach to less accomplished writers. Mr. Goldwin Smith himself has never pretended or claimed to act the part of an instructor in style or anything else. He has simply borne his part in the political, literary and philosophical discussion of the day, leaving it to the public to estimate his labors at their real worth. He has always been known as the author of whatever proceeded from his pen, and has so far borne a larger share of personal responsibility than the ordinary journalist. If his style, his tone of thought, and his range of illustration have been beyond what ordinary writers can command, is that a reason why he should be sneered at, or made the mark for vicious innuendo? If so, as well let Canada advertise to the world, "No Superiorities Admitted Here." The general public, however, is not as envious or splenetic as the writer of this very Gritty production. Men of sense know that Mr. Goldwin Smith's residence and labors in Canada have been of service to the country, and above all to the cause of liberal thought. He has resisted party domination and shown the hollowness of party cries. The elegance of his style is an elegance based upon simplicity and a complete absence of all affectation. What enrages his enemies is that, in his quiet way, he has been able to hold his own, and to show that the battle is not to the man who can use the strongest and longest words ("annexationist" for example), but to the man who has most sense on his side and who can use words most fitly. The rough always expects an easy triumph over the gentleman, and is very much astonished when he finds himself encountered both with superior tactics and superior endurance. So it has been as between the Globe and Mr. Smith. The latter retires from the contest smiling; while the former is trying, somewhat ineffectually, to see out of its eyes. And this manifesto is but a poisoned shaft, shot in the interest of the defeated champion, but shot, fortunately, very wide of the mark.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

"Trust men, and they will be true to you," says Emerson. We showed this to a respectable grocer. He grew livid with rage, seized a club, and wanted to know where that Emerson feller lived, anyhow. There was murder in that grocer's eye. We did not tell him.—Boston Transcript.

Chamfort lays down that we have two kinds of friends—friends that don't love us, and friends that hate us. The Italians are the friends that hate us, and the English are the friends that love us not. However, in their own interest, they would do well to reflect that if Germany and France were ever to forget their rivalry and defeats in 1806 and 1870, and agree cordially to unite, there would be room for no other Powers in Europe.—Paris Evenement.

At the meeting (of Confederate Bondholders) in London, the idea was advanced that perhaps something might be done in the way of securing recognition of the bonds by a "friendly appeal" to our government. There is a truly pleasing simplicity in the notion that this government may perhaps be persuaded to take money out of its Treasury to reimburse foreigners who lent their money for the purpose of promoting the destruction of the Union. The actual value of the Confederate bonds is about two cents a bushel.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The English must give us leave to tell them that their display of temper against us is really too impertinent. It is no excuse to be born in the land of spleen—people should take things more coolly. Our poor France was so cruelly treated in 1870 that it is only decent to allow her a little consolation, if it be a consolation to her, to remove the Algerian frontier a little further to the east and disperse a few refractory Kroumirs. Surely England ought not to find fault. To hear her cry "Shocking! shocking!" like an old maid, one might suppose that her hands had never clutched anything yet.—Paris Français.

—On Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, a carpenter named Alex. Beauvais, left his tool chest on the Laprairie wharf for a moment and on returning found it broken open and all the tools, valued at $150, stolen. The tools bear his initials A. B.

—Mr. J. J. Franklin Assistant Superintendent of the Montreal C.P.R. has resigned his position to take on the 15th instant the Chief Superintendency of the Toronto C.P.R. He will be succeeded here by Mr. M. Stevenson, late superintendent of the Quebec C.P.R.

Mr. Verreau, Principal of Jacques Cartier Normal School, to St. Pierre les Becquets, his native place, for interment.

—Ovile Brouillet, a young man of this city, had a narrow escape from drowning on Friday. While fishing at the Back River, he slipped on the river bank and fell into the water. He sank several times, and only succeeded at last in getting hold of a rock and pulling himself out of the river his face disfigured by bruises, showing how hard the struggle for life had been.

—The Rev. Gavin Lang, at the close of his sermon yesterday morning, referred to the Revised New Testament. He did not propose, he said, to use it for the services of his church, but thought each member of the congregation should have a copy. The revisers had done their work well, and he did not believe in journalists who had made a cursory review of the work criticizing that which had occupied the revisers for twelve years.

The annual meeting of the corporation of this college was held at Lennoxville on Thursday last, when it was announced that Mr. Robert Hamilton of Quebec had offered a contribution of $6000 to the Harrold fund for the endowment of an additional professorship, on condition that the grant of £250 made to that fund conditionally by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel can be secured. The Rev. Dr. Reid also promised a further donation of $1000. The Rev. Professor Roe was requested to undertake the work of making collections to the fund.

After a resolution had been passed expressing confidence in the sanitary condition and prospects of the college the meeting adjourned.

Young Men's Christian Association.

A large meeting took place at the rooms, on Saturday evening, to receive the report of Messrs. S. F. Massett and C. Cushing, delegates to the Cleveland Convention. It was shown that 581 Associations in the States and Canada had reported to the International Committee; 506 of these reported a membership of 65,217, and their property as amounting to $3,232,217, or clear of mortgage, $2,7000,00.

The aggregate expenditures amounted to nearly $400,000. The chair was occupied by Mr. George Hague, President, who announced that an invitation had been sent to have the convention at Montreal next time, but Milwaukee was chosen instead. The meeting was very enthusiastic and the work of the Association much furthered thereby.

The Fire on the "Montreal."

The fire on board the steamer "Montreal," on Saturday morning, might have proved disastrous as the boat was in full Lake St. Peter, and it was the early morning when all on board were fast asleep. Some time before reaching Sorel, two of the cabin boys saw smoke issuing from the woodwork around one of the funnels on the second deck. The funnel and its cylinder had got red hot and ignited the wood. One of the boys took up a Babcock, burst open one of the panels and played upon the fire, while the other ran to awaken one of the officers. At once the little steam pump of the vessel was brought out, the hose laid in the saloon and two powerful streams turned on the fire. The officers of the boat behaved with much coolness and took care not to arouse the passengers, many of whom learned nothing of the accident till they reached the wharf at Montreal.

The Churches.

Whitsunday was generally observed in the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches yesterday, many of the clergy making the Pentecost the subject of their discourse. Rev. Canon Norman preached a beautiful sermon to children at the Choral Litany Service at St. James the Apostle in the afternoon. This service will be closed for the Summer months in a few Sundays.

The church of the Gesu was beautifully decorated yesterday for the celebration of the feast of the Pentecost. At the morning service the Rev. Superior of the order of Jesuits for the Province officiated, assisted by a deacon, and sub-deacon. Rev. Father Beaudry preached. Mercadante's "Mass for three voices" was sung by the choir with Mr. J. A. Boucher as leader. Rev. Father Hudon and Messrs. Beaudry, Menard, Brodeur, Rivet, Denis and Laverriere took the trios and duets. At the evening service which was in English, Rev. Father Doherty preached, after which the duet Rondinella's "O Cor Amorissima" was capitally given by Messrs. N. Beaudry and Jos. Rivet, and a chorus, Blumenthal's "Ave Maris Stella," by the choir. Berger's "Tontum Ergo" was also given by Mr. N. Beaudry as tenor and Mr. U. Denis as baritone, with chorus. Mr. F. Boucher accompanied with violin, and Prof. Ducharme presided at the organ.

Finance Committee.

At the meeting of the Finance Committee on Saturday afternoon there were present Ald. Stephens (Chairman), Brown, Mooney and Farrell, and Mayor Beaudry.

Before the business of the meeting was commenced the Mayor, addressing the Committee, said the press should be excluded as the interests of the city demanded it. He held generally that the press should be excluded from Committee meetings, and afterwards should be supplied only with decisions.

Ald. Stephens said his sentiments were to admit the press on all occasions, as to exclude them tended to give rise to inaccurate reports. He had always found reporters ready to pass over anything the publication of which would be detrimental to the city's interests when requested to do so.

Ald. Farrell was of the same opinion.

Ald. Brown said if reporters would only give a summary of work done, he would favor their presence, but he did not like their publishing everything that was said.

Ald. Mooney thought the press should be admitted except on special occasions. The present, he thought, was such an occasion and he accordingly moved that the press retire. Carried without dissent, Ald. Mooney, Brown and Farrell voting.

The reporters then withdrew.

"MONTREAL'S" SPRING GAMES.

The Success of Saturday's Sports on the Montreal Lacrosse Grounds.

"Weather permitting," read the announcement of the Annual Spring (Handicap) Games of the Montreal Lacrosse Club, which were held on the Club's grounds on Saturday afternoon, and it could certainly not have been more favorable even had the Hon. Secretary of the Club been in league with the clerk of the weather (not Vennor), so refreshingly did the zephyrs, that prevailed throughout, temper the rays of old Sol. The band of the Victoria Rifles occupied a position about the middle of the field and played some very good selections at rather long intervals. It is pleasing to be able to note the interest taken in these manly sports by the Montreal young ladies; the grand stand was crowded with the fair sex. This enhances the interest taken by the athletes themselves in the games to an extent that probably five, and may be even six times the same number of gentlemen would. The other stand was full and the east side of the course being lined with spectators went to make up a large assembly. Many of the delegates to the Lacrosse Convention held last Friday were present and took great interest in the proceedings, marking the result of each event in the little books furnished them for the purpose. As reported in Saturday's late edition the first event was the Three mile walk:—S. C. Maltby, C. E. Maltby and D. Stewart, all of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, entered. Shortly after the start the two latter retired from the track leaving the race a "walk over" for S. C. Maltby who finished in 27 mins. 23½ secs.

Throwing 56 lbs. weight:—George Wood, Montreal Fire Police, C. W. Trenholme, McGill University Athletic Association, and Thos. Daly, Montreal, entered. George Wood (scratch) won, throwing 20 ft. 5 in.; C. W. Trenholme (2 feet) second, 17 ft. 11½ in.

Putting the Shot—L. P. McDonnell, Jas. McGillivray, Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, scored respectively, 37 ft. 9½ ins. and 36 ft. 11½ ins.

Accurate Throwing—20, 30 and 40 yards—This accurate throwing, together with long throwing of the lacrosse ball, has not been introduced into the Montreal's sports for the past three years; they were by no means the least interesting on the programme. Wm. Aird, Montreal Lacrosse Club, scored 9 points out of a possible 18; R. Summerhayes, of the same club, was second.

100 yard run—In this race the good start made in all the heats is remarkable. In the first heat W. R. Thompson (scratch), W. G. Robertson (12 feet), James K. Bruce (24 feet), all of Montreal Lacrosse Club, and Wm. D. Aird, (14 feet), Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, ran. Bruce won in 10 seconds, Aird, second, in 10½ secs.

In the second heat, J. Bolton, M.L.C. (scratch), A. A. McDougall (12 feet), D. Stewart (20 feet), M.A.A.A.; John A. Hasley (18 feet), and H. Phillips (24 feet), Montreal Junior Lacrosse Club, ran. McDougall and Hasley came in in 10 secs.

G. Wood, Montreal Fire Police (7 feet), Duncan Bell, M.L.C. (10 feet), M. J. Whitty, Ottawa Amateur Athletic Association (12 feet), and H. A. Walmsley, St. Johns, Que. (16 feet), ran in the 3rd heat. Walmsley won in 10 secs.; Wood second in 10½ secs.

In the final heat, Bruce was first in 9¾ secs.; McDougall second, Hasley third, and Walmsley fourth.

Two Mile Run—D. D. McTaggart, M. A. A. A., won, time 10 mins. 35 secs.; C. J. Patton second, coming in about 25 yards behind McTaggart.

Throwing the Hammer—C. W. Trenholme, McGill University Athletic Association (10 feet) won, scoring 65 feet 8 inches; George Wood, Montreal Fire Police, (scratch) second, scoring 73 feet 11½ inches.

440 Yards Run—Norman Fletcher, M. A. A. A., (scratch), Jas. McCaul, Ottawa Amateur Athletic Association (15 yards), Thos. Moffatt, G. T. R. Boat Club (15 yards), H. Fisher, Montreal Junior Lacrosse Club (20 yards), A. A. McDougall, M. A. A. A. (25 yards), P. S. Hancock, Montreal (25 yards), and Alf. G. Gardner, M. L. C. (35 yards), entered. McCaul, the Ottawa athlete, won in 54½ seconds, running a good race; Fletcher was second, but had he not been crowded, as some of the others also were, would have given a better account of himself.

Long throwing.—There was lots of sport in this event and lots of fun too for every time the ball was thrown it did not go where the thrower had intended it should. It went flying into the stand among the spectators three times. Once a lady was made a short stop for it, afterwards it crushed a "Sunday go-to-meeting" silk hat and once it took an old gentleman in the pit of the stomach. Wm. Aird made some beautiful throws; he has a twist of the wrist peculiarly his own and can tip a ball an amazing distance without any aparant exertion and with but little movement of the stick. Lally of the Shamrocks also made some pretty throws. Aird won, throwing 134 yds. 2 ft. 6½ inches. W. L. Maltby has scored 160 yards in a similar throw. A. Virgil Leet, Brant Lacrosse Club, Brantford, Ont., was second.

120 yards Hurdle run.—Lewis Skaife, M. A. A. A. (scratch), W. R. Thompson, M. L. C., (10 feet) D. Stewart and (21 feet) Thos. L. Paton, (21 feet) M. A. A. A. entered.

First heat.—Paton won in 21 secs., Thompson, second in 21½ secs.

Second heat.—R. Summerhayes, M. L. C. (scratch), J. S. Sorley, McG. V. A. C. (scratch), Jas. McCaul, Ottawa Amateur Athletic Association (10 feet), and H. A. Walmsley, St. Johns (27 feet), entered. Summerhayes, first, Walmsley, second.

Final heat.—Summerhayes won in 19½ secs., Thompson, second.

One Mile Run.—Three entered, John Bolton, M.L.C. (scratch) W. E. Bennett, Toronto Lacrosse Club (40 yds.) C. W. Martin, Ottawa, Amateur Athletic Association, (40 yds.) A. W. Mann, M.L.C. (50 yds.) G. M. Smith, M.A.A.A. (60 yds.) James Baird, L.L.C. (85 yds.) R. Locke, (110 yds.) and R. G. Hood (110 yds.) Martin won in 5 minutes 46 seconds; Baird was second and Locke, third.

Three Mile Bicycle Race.—H. S. Tibbs, (scratch) G. M. Smith, (50 yds.) and F. C. Holden, (250 yds.) all of Montreal Bicycle Club, entered. Smith dropped out very soon after start. Holden, though a little fellow, kept on pluckily to the finish, winning in 12 minutes 49 seconds; Tibbs came in about 200 yards behind.

Half-mile run.—Norman Fletcher M. A. A. A. (scratch) W. E. T. L. C. (15 yards) W. G. Robertson M. L. C., (15 yards) H. Fisher, Montreal Junior Lacrosse Club (25 yards), and S. Bailey M. L. C. (25 yards) entered. Fletcher won in 2 minutes 7½ seconds; Robertson, second, Bailey, third.

ESCAPING FROM SING SING.

Clever Ruses And Skilful Re-Captures.

A reporter of the New York Herald has been chatting with the guards at Sing Sing prison and reproducing their yarns of hair breadth 'scapes': He tells the following stories of clever ruses to cheat the vigilance of the keepers:

THE DUMMY "RACKET."

"Referring, however, to the favorite methods employed of escaping the old and seemingly easily detected one of using a dummy in the cells is most frequently adopted, and more than any other method has been successful. Only a few days ago Holland, a noted English burglar, "beat" the prison in that way, and as his story has a peculiar vein of romance in it, it is interesting in itself, in addition to explaining what the dummy "racket" is. So it may be told here. Holland was sentenced to fifteen years and had only been in the prison a little while. He had received a visit from an Irish girl, who claimed she was his sister, but who being asked by Mr. Jackson to reconcile her nationality with that of her alleged brother admitted that she was his betrothed wife. Holland was employed as a hall boy, working on the galleries, carrying water, &c. When the men are locked up at night the keepers pass along in front of the cells, each man comes up and puts his hands and face to the barred door and is counted. When the keeper has counted his men and finds them all right he reports to the clerk, who adds the figures of each report, and if the tally is right the "all right" bell is rung and the prison is secured for the night. One night Holland was lying on his cot in the cell when the count was being made, and he said to the keeper, "Please don't make me get up; I am very sick." As his voice assured the keeper of his presence he went along. The next night Holland spoke up again and said he was sick, the next night the same, but the fourth night when the keeper looked in the cell he saw a pair of shoes sticking up, a man apparently asleep in the bed, his arm over his face. "Oh, that's the sick man," said the keeper, and counted along 34, 35, 36, and so on to his complete gang, and so reported. Meanwhile Holland had hidden away somewhere in the yard, and when the "all right" bell rang he had only to scale the unguarded wall and fly. Now begins the romance of this story. Detective Jackson remembered the girl who had visited Holland and he proceeded to find her. Just how he succeeded in placing her he does not divulge; but before noon of the succeeding day he had written the following note to a lady in Seventeenth street, where the fair Kitty was at service:—

In fifteen minutes I will call at your house, I will ring twice. Do not send a servant to the door. Come yourself. Say nothing about this request. My Business is of the utmost importance. Answer.

The answer came back all right and in fifteen minutes Jackson rang the bell and was admitted. He was given an opportunity to see the girl without himself being seen, and being satisfied that it was the party he wanted, and feeling confident that Holland would sooner or later communicate with her, he set himself to watch. A few hours later a telegraph boy brought her a message. After dinner she asked to go out and also to be advanced some wages, which the detective furnished and then planted himself across the street to watch. After a delay she came out and he shadowed her for nearly four hours. She went up town, down town, to all sorts of places, and after this long chase came back to the house. The officer was about to give up when out she came again and started on a run for Broadway and on to Stewart's store at Ninth street. She waited for half an hour circling about the store until finally a man came over to her and drawing her into the recess of the door, kissed her fervently. Then they walked on, the officer following. Presently, when he had made sure of his man, he caught his arms, and Holland recognizing him said, inquiringly, "Officer Jackson?"

"Right you are, Holland."

"Now I have fifteen years straight, Kitty, and all for love of you dear," was the man's answer as he put out his hands to be 'cuffed.

STEALING A LOCOMOTIVE.

The men who stole the locomotives were the ones, who more than others took great chances. There have been two escapes in that way. The first was led by Steve Boyle, who has a record of killing two men (one a deputy sheriff in Kalamazoo, Mich.), and who is now in Sing Sing working as an engineer on the stove contract. Boyle, Fowler, McKenna (a life man), Sullivan and Hawley jumped down on the railroad track which runs through the prison. A slowly moving freight train was pulling along at the time and they sprang on to the engine. One of them cast loose the coupling, and with pieces of wood shaped like pistols they assumed possession. Boyle grabbed the throttle, and the locomotive, under full steam, darted down the track, the guards firing after it as it flew along. Their aim was shaken by the fact that the convicts held before them the engineer and fireman as a protection. After they had run a short distance they took to the woods. All of them but McKenna, who is in Ireland, and Sullivan, who is serving Uncle Sam as a sailor in the navy out in China, were recaptured. The next year the experiment was again repeated successfully, as before, by James Farrell, James Carpenter (alias Pat Smith) John Quin, Frank Woods, Martin Kelly, and Thomas Flaerty. As none of them could run the engine they forced the engineer to do so. Farrell and Quin are still at large.

It would be impossible to give a list of the escapes from Sing Sing, or even the most daring of them, without giving a great deal of space to the wonderful story of Gustave F. Kindt. He is known as the best iron and steel worker in the United States; and once, by means of acids that he manufactured himself in prison, opened his doors and walked out. Another time he gave a keeper $300 in counterfeit money to count him in. He went to Canada, was traced there, and being suspected of a burglary was arrested and almost immediately walked out of prison. The same night he broke into a silk store, but was apprehended and served three years in the prison of St. Vincent de Paul. When he was released he started to the States. Jackson, who had kept him in view, met him at St. Albans and started with him to Sing Sing. At Troy he made an attack on the officer, who was forced to shoot him twice in the head. He then played crazy and was transferred to Auburn, Lunatic Asylum where he now is.

AMERICAN.

THE STAR ROUTE FRAUDS. — WASHINGTON, June 6.—It is announced that the progress already made by the Star route investigators is excellent, but they have uncovered comparatively little of the vast scheme of fraud which extends over a large part of the country. Official records show that the Rock Creek and Fort Custer route, in Montana, was let for $12,000 and the pay raised to $100,000. The increase was recommended by the poetic delegate Downey delegate Magumis, Senator Saunders (Neb), Land Commissioner Williamson other prominent gentlemen. A special agent who investigated the manner in which the service was performed in this route asserts that with one exception this is the boldest fraud on the revenue of the Post Office department he has ever known in an experience of 11 years. Postmaster General James has reduced the pay on this route to $12,000.

TAMPERING WITH EMIGRANTS.—Trouble is likely to be made over a recent discovery that the porters and hotel runners at the Union Station are in the habit of persuading emigrants to go to the States instead of going to the North-West or remaining in Ontario. They buy their tickets at a "scalp" and re-sell their tickets over roads in the States, which pay them a commission. An investigation into the extent of this traffic will be made at once.

Along the line of the Central Vermont Railway white frosts prevailed last night and young crops suffered, especially beans and potatoes.

Although the air was keen this morning it was by no means as cold as it might have been, or for that matter has been in Canada even later in June. Apopros of the low state of the mercury Mr. J. H. Dorwin writes:—

Laval and Montreal.

There was a meeting at Longueuil yesterday over which Mayor Bandon presided, and at which Dr. G. D. Beaudry championed the cause of Montreal, along with Dr. Paguin. Mr. Prefontaine, M.P.P., for Chambly County, upheld the claims of Laval and was answered in rebuttal by Mr. C. H. Cornellier, advocate. The sense of the meeting could not be ascertained owing to the departure of the boat. At Hochelaga last night, a similar meeting took place, presided by Mr. Prefontaine, M.P.P., Mayor of the town. Mr. Desjardins, M.P., for the County, made a rousing speech against the pretensions of Laval and followed in the same sense by Hon. Mr. Beaubien, representative of Hochelaga at Quebec. Mr. Prefontaine then defended the interests of Laval and Hon. Senator Trudel answered him. A resolution was then put and carried to the effect that the Provincial Legislature would commit a great injustice to Montreal by allowing Laval University to multiply its courses of lectures, and calling upon the members of the two Houses to prevent the consummation of such a misfortune.

Abbe Chandonnet.

This gentleman, whose sudden death was chronicled last Saturday, was an active member of the journalistic profession, being one of the founders and the editor of the Revue de Montreal, a monthly periodical chiefly devoted to theology, philosophy and history. He was born at St. Pierre les Becquets, about 48 years ago, and from an early age distinguished himself by exceptional talents. At Laval, where he went through his classical course, he outstripped all his fellows, and so promising was his career that he was sent to the College of the Propaganda at Rome where he went through the higher branches of theological studies with unusual brilliancy. On his return he occupied a chair at his alma mater for some years, and latterly his review particularly championed the cause of Laval in the controversy now pending between that University and the Montreal school of Medicine and Surgery. Later on, he was employed at the Laval Normal School, and resided for some time with his friend, Abbe Verreau, at the Jacques Cartier Normal School, where the Revue de Montreal saw the day. The Abbe had a special talent for imparting instruction to others and his lessons in philosophy were very well attended. He was also a clear and vigorous writer. One of his aims was the raising of the educational standard among his countrymen, having been stimulated to this by his experience at the Centennial Exhibition which he attended in some capacity under the appointment of Mr. Mackenzie. M. Chandonnet was found on his bed lying prone with face buried in the pillow. It is the opinion of Dr. Brosseau that he might have been saved if any one had been near to turn him over and bathe his head in water.

The G. T. R. Debt to the City.

The history of this matter, which came before the Finance Committee on Saturday afternoon, is as follows:—

In the year 1849, it appears the city loaned $500,000 to the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railway Company and took as collateral 5,000 shares of the Company's stock. In 1853, the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Company amalgamated with the G. T. R. Company, the latter assuming the debts of the former company. The first and second instalments amounting to $200,000 of the debt to the city, were paid by the G. T. R. In 1863, the city took action against the Company to recover the third instalment and got judgment, which, however, seems never to have been executed. The amount now due the city, counting interest at four per cent, is $631,650. Last October, the Finance Committee undertook to settle the claim and received an offer from the G. T. R. of $400,000 in the "ordinary stock" of the Company, worth about 22 cents on the dollar. They reported to Council, advising a settlement on the offer, but the Council did not adopt the report.

The matter was again brought up before the Committee a short time ago, and the city attorney reported that it would be very difficult to recover their claim as the Grand Trunk Arrangement Act of 1862 had deprived the creditors of the Company of legal remedies, except their share of Postal Service money, etc., etc.

The Chairman of the Committee, Ald. Stephens, however, having looked into the Act, finds that clause 36 of 25 Vic., cap. 56, reads: "The rights of the City of Montreal as holder of shares in the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Railway Company are not to be affected or prejudiced by this legislation." At the meeting on Saturday the above clause was laid before the Committee, and after discussion the Committee resolved to report to Council, recommending immediate proceedings against the G. T. R. for the collection of the full amount of the debt.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

Annual General Meeting of Shareholders.

The annual meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held this afternoon. There was a large attendance, the President, Mr. George Stephen, in the chair.

Mr. Smithers, the General Manager, read the 63rd annual report of the directors, the substance of which we have already published. He said there had been during the past year a decrease in deposits which was accounted for by the withdrawal of Government and other deposits but not private funds. The agency of the Bank at Cobourg had been found to be unprofitable and had therefore been closed.

Mr. George Stephen then moved, seconded by Dr. G. W. Campbell, that the report be adopted. Before the motion was put, Mr. Smithers made some satisfactory explanations, in course of which he referred to the much more prosperous condition of the bank this year than last. He showed that the affairs of the bank had been steadily progressing ever since the time of depression in Canada some years ago. He would like, he said, to repeat what he had said often before, namely, that it was far better to avoid losses than to make profits. The bad and doubtful debts had been written off during the past year with great carefulness and now they had a remarkably clean balance sheet to show, there being an unusual exemption from unsatisfactory accounts. If Canada was to enjoy a period of prosperity he thought the bank had a very good chance of taking advantage of it. Some complained of there having been no addition to the "Rest" made, these being of opinion that this should have been done instead of paying the bonus. One important point he would have them notice that the dividend that was being paid this June was not a half-yearly dividend of six per cent. but it brings the whole rate up to ten per cent., The retiring board have not abandoned their idea of bringing the "rest" up to $6,000,000, but they had thought it wise to bring the rate up to ten per cent. first. He wished to correct an impression which had gone abroad to the effect that it was owing chiefly to the success of their Chicago business that the bonus had been paid. He would say that as a rule the profits made in the United States were very uncertain and could not be depended upon, though of late years the business they had done there had been singularly free from losses. He would not undertake to say to what extent the bank would prosper during the coming year, as they had yet no means of knowing how good the crops would be, but he hoped that, as there was a marked tendency for people to go into all kinds of enterprises, they might thus obtain a higher rate for their money. All the offices of the bank had been inspected, the London office included, and they had all been found in a satisfactory state. He stated the regret he felt at the resignation by Mr. Stephen, who had been a Director of the bank for ten years, Vice-President for three and President for five years. He had always found him a wise counsellor, and always ready to place his time at the Manager's disposal.

There were 291 stockholders, an average of 29 shares for each stockholder, and 6,086 shares held by bankers and brokers.

The report was then unanimously adopted.

On motion of Mr. Drummond a vote of thanks was passed to the President, Vice-President and Board of Directors of the Bank.

The Hon. D. A. Smith alluded to the good fortune the Bank had had in always securing able officers. He referred to the loss it would sustain in the resignation of Mr. Stephen, but held that the prosperity of the Bank of Montreal was such as not to be dependent on any one individual. He moved, seconded by Hon. Thomas Ryan, that a vote of thanks be given the General Manager the Manager and other officers of the Bank for their services. Carried.

Mr. Smithers replied fitly.

The Manager of the Bank in Chicago, Mr. Munro, on being called upon said the Bank must be thankful for the good business it had got in Chicago in the past, but it must not expect so much in the future.

It was then moved by Mr. A Murray, seconded by Mr. Brown, and carried, that by-law No. 13 of the Board of Directors be amended so as to read:—"In case the General Manager or other officer of the Bank shall be elected Director and become President; he shall be entitled to receive, while he holds that office, and devotes his time and attention exclusively to the interests of the company, the same annual amount previously received as salary, and the same may be taken from the fund appointed in addition to the sum set apart as remuneration for services of Directors."

On motion Dr. Campbell took the chair, and a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. George Stephen for his services, coupled with an expression of regret at the severance of his connection with the Bank.

Mr. Stephen made a suitable reply.

The meeting then adjourned to receive the report of the scrutineers on the election of the Board of Directors.

The following are the names of the new Directors for the ensuing year:—Alfred Brown, G. W. Campbell, M.D., Edward Mackay, Alexander Murray, A. T. Paterson, Peter Redpath, Gilbert Scott, Hon. D. A. Smith and C. F. Smithers.

A meeting of Directors will be held to-morrow when no doubt Mr. Smithers will be elected President.

LINDSAY'S LUCK.

BY

MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

Author of "That Lass o' Lowries"—"Haworths," etc.

CHAPTER XI.

THREE DAYS AGO!

Certainly Blanche Charnley had her girlish hands full during the following week? Perhaps no young lady in the world had ever felt a greater consciousness of secret guilt than that beautiful, arrant coward, Lady Laura Tresham, and this consciousness by no means rendered her the most animated of companions. She was harassed and dejected, and even Blanche's most spirited arguments failed to inspire her with anything of courage. Consequently Blanche waited with some impatience for Robert Lindsay's appearance. She had not decided as yet what his appearance would bring forth, or what he would do; but, having infinite faith in his powers, she had at least decided that he would settle the matter one way or the other.

"If I were in your place," she said, severely, to Laura, when she had arrived at this decision, "I would not wait for any one to settle my love affairs for me. I would settle them myself. I would write to Geoffrey Treherne, and tell him that I wouldn't marry him. I should like to know what calamity such a course would bring forth. You are not a Circassian, I hope, or a Turk, or a Chinese woman. If you are," with excessive tartness, "I have not heard of it yet."

"I am not waiting for any one to settle my love affairs," said Laura. "It is too late now," with a little sigh.

Blanche shrugged her shoulders, satirically.

"Too late!" she began. "Robert Lindsay—"

Lady Laura rose from her chair, pale-faced and subjugated, and walked to the window.

"Don't, Blanche!" she exclaimed. "Don't talk to me about Robert Lindsay. It is too late, and I am miserable enough." And she had scarcely uttered the words, before she turned paler, still, and started from the window, crying out, suddenly, "Oh, Blanche, there he is!"

Blanche flung down her book, and hurried to the window, and to her excitement and delight, her first glance fell upon the careless, stalwart figure, which had so often been the object of her good-natured admiration—the figure of Robert Lindsay in person.

Laura drew back, excited and nervous.

"I—I can't see him," she cried. "I—I really can't! What shall I do?"

Blanche fired in an instant like some small order of domestic fire-work. If she was to defeat Geoffrey Treherne, she must defeat him now, if she was to help this indefatigable, tender-hearted Rob, she must help him now; if she was to save Lady Laura from a life of half-love and slow disappointment, she must save her from it this very instant.

"You cannot see him!" she exclaimed. "Say you have not the courage to see him, and you will be right once; say you are weak-minded enough to be wicked, and you will be right again. You have been weak enough to treat Geoffrey Treherne shamefully (not that he does not deserve it, because he does;) but you have still treated him shamefully, and now you are too weak to right him, and right yourself, and right the man who loves you, and who is worth five hundred thousand Geoffrey Trehernes. You won't see him?" with terrible calmness. "Very well don't see him, and I will go back to Northumberland before breakfast to-morrow morning, and you can marry Geoffrey Treherne, and be wretched for life.

Lady Laura put both her hands up to her face, and covered it, her cheeks burning, her brow burning, the very tips of her ears burning; her heart beating so loudly that she was sure the room echoed with it.

Blanche drew from her trim little belt a trim little jewel of a watch.

"I will give you two minutes to decide," she said, emphatically. "The footman will be here in three, and if, by that time, you have not spoken, I shall ring for your maid to pack my trunks."

The first minute had passed, and the second was half gone, when Laura lifted her face, and broke the ominous silence.

"I—I will see him," she faltered.

Blanche shut her watch with a little click, just as the servant opened the door.

"Show the gentleman into this room, Martin," she said; and, as the man withdrew, she turned to Laura. "I shall stay in the room long enough to speak a dozen words to Mr. Lindsay, and then I shall go down stairs," she said. "Laura, you have no need to be afraid that you are not ready to meet him. Your cheeks are on fire, and you look like an angel. There, my dear, be sensible, and think what Lady Laura Treherne would be twenty years hence."

Laura had no time to speak. Her breath was fairly taken by this master stroke of rapidity and diplomatic movement. The fact was, that if she had had time to speak, or even to think, she would have been so full of misgiving that she would have upset the best laid plans in the universe, and of this Blanche Charnley was very well aware. But, with the shock of Blanche's sudden indignation, and that last stroke concerning Lady Laura Treherne's future, accumulating at once, she found herself absolutely free to let things take their own course.

She did not know how much Blanche had written to Robert Lindsay; she had not even dared to guess heretofore; but when the two met, a full recognition of the truth flashed upon her.

"I am not going to ask you any question now," said Blanche, after the first greetings had been exchanged. "I am going to leave you to say what you have to say to Laura. Mr. Lindsay, two weeks ago, the young lady told me that she was wretched and despairing, and guess why! Because, if she is not saved from it, in less than three months from now, she is to marry Geoffrey Treherne. Once you told me that if you could save her from it, you would; and so, as there was no time to lose I sent for you. Save her if you can."

Lady Laura did not look at her visitor when Blanche's exit left them alone. She dared not even glance up, but waited in silence, her burning blushes almost stinging her delicate skin. She was thinking that this was worse than all the rest. Rob Lindsay was thinking that this was his last chance, and that there would be a hard struggle, before he would let it slip away from him, and be lost.

"You see that I have come back again, Lady Laura," were his first words. "And I think there is no need of telling you why I came."

"Excuse my saying so—" she said, trying to appear cold, and quite conscious that she appeared nervous. "But I really don't know why, Mr. Lindsay."

"Then I suppose I must even tell you again," Rob replied quietly. "The reason is an old one, Lady Laura, and one I have given more than once before. It is a simple one, too. I came back because I love you."

She was conscious of a sudden throb of the smoothly-beating heart that Geoffrey Treherne's warmest words had never had the power to stir. She was conscious, too, of a quicker pulsebeating and an odd, exultant thrill ruling her in spite of her confusion. He had not given her up after all. He loved her yet.

"Do you understand me?" he said again. "I think you do, and I will tell you something else, Lady Laura. I think if Col. Treherne were here, he would understand too, for he is an honorable man, at least, and I think sometimes that the worst of men are more merciful than the best of women. I told you I loved you when we were in Northumberland, and I said I would not give you up; and I have not given you up yet."

There was a slight pause before the last word, and a slight stress upon it, when it was uttered, that Laura Tresham's heart beat hard.

She could see there was more steadiness in his manner than there had ever been before, and she fancied there was more bitterness, for, though he had not wholly flung aside his careless, good humored audacity, he stood before her a man who felt that to some extent he had been wronged, and who was now throwing his last stake.

"But I have not come back to ask you to pity me," he went on. "Perhaps sentiment is not my forte; at any rate, it seems that I am always oddly at a loss for fair speeches. I have not come to say that my heart will be broken, if, three months hence, Lady Laura Tresham is lost to me forever in Lady Laura Treherne. Hearts are not easily broken in the nineteenth century. I will not even say my life would be blighted; but this I will say, Lady Laura Tresham, simply and honestly, I have loved you—I do love you; and the true woman who hears such words from the lips of a gentleman, will understand, simply and honestly, all that they mean. The last time," he went, on, "that we were alone together at the Priory, I said to you that if you would tell me that you loved Geoffrey Treherne, I would leave you at once. You dared not tell me so, and yet Geoffrey Treherne's ring is on your finger now and you are almost his wife. Is that quite fair to Col. Treherne, Lady Laura? Asking pardon for the apparent irreverence of the remark, is it exactly what Basil de Tresham (whose patrician blood is supposed to be as honorable as it is blue) would be likely to countenance?"

"I wish Basil de Tresham—" Lady Laura was beginning, disrespectfully, when she recollected herself and stopped. In her desperation she had almost been sacrilegious.

"If you were going to say that you wished Basil de Tresham had never been born," said Rob, sagaciously, "I am compelled to say that my wishes coincide with yours most heartily. I am inclined to think that, perhaps, it would have been as well. Ah, Laura! but for Basil de Tresham, my love would not have been an audacity, and Geoffrey Treherne's success his birthright."

But the next moment his mood changed. She was only a girl, and she had made a mistake, and her rashness had brought to her its own retributive pangs, and the reproach in his tone forced them to reveal themselves. Rob forgot his satire and his bitterness. He crossed the hearth, and stood before her an instant, the full strength of a man's chivalrous love warming him, and stirring him to his heart's core.

"Lady Laura," he said, "there are tears in your eyes;" and then in a breath's space he was down upon one knee by her chair, with his arm around her waist.

"Laura," he said, "I will not lose you. If I have seemed bitter and careless, it was because I have suffered. I cannot lose you, I say again. I love you, and I will not let you go. It is not too late yet. I do not ask you to say that you love me. I only ask you to give the Treherne diamond back to its owner, and free yourself from this miserable engagement. I can wait for the rest. I will wait for the rest, patiently, until you choose to say to me that my probation is ended."

There were tears in her eyes—tears heavy and large, and, before he had finished speaking, they were dropping fast. Laura Tresham had not been made for a heroine; and her intention to immolate herself upon the altar of her ancestral greatness had resulted in too much of real martyrdom. It had not been easy, at first, to determine to give up this earnest, untiring lover for Geoffrey Treherne; but now it would cost her a struggle too great to be borne. Her own natural weakness was quite as much in favor of the earnestness and untiring zeal, as if she had been fortunate enough to be a young lady of far less patrician antecedents. With her trouble and excitement, and with Rob Lindsay's strong persuasive arm around her waist, dignity, even self-control was out of the question; and so she dropped her beatiful face upon his shoulder.

"But—it—it is too late," she faltered, trembling like a lovely coward as she was. "Oh, Robert (with a little catch of the breath at her own temerity), what could I say—to Colonel Treherne?"

"Say?" echoed Rob, in a glow of enthusiastic fire. "Say to him what I should wish a woman to say to me, if she had bound herself to me rashly. Say to him 'I have done you a wrong; and, by marrying you, I should make it a crime. I do not love you, and time has proved to me that I was mistaken in fancying that I could; and I appeal to you, as an honorable gentleman, to release me from my promise.' It might not be easy to say, Laura, but, by saying it you could save yourself from dishonor and wretchedness."

It is unnecessary to record all the circumstances connected with the remainder of the interview. Suffice it to say that, having love, and tears, and vanquished pride all on his side, Robbert Lindsay gained the victory which was to bring to a conclusion his daring campaign, and that upon his departure, Lady Laura had gained courage almost marvelously.

She went up stairs to Blanche Charnley all a-bloom with blush roses. Blanche had been awaiting her return with some impatience and a little fear, notwithstanding her faith in Rob, but, when she saw her, she experienced an immediate sense of relief.

"Well," she said, "does Mr. Lindsay leave England?"

Lady Laura slipped into a chair, with a soft, expressive little sigh, and an equally expressive little deprecating smile.

"No—" she hesitated. "At least, I don't think so. I—am going to write a letter to Col. Treherne."

"Then you had better write it at once," advised Blanche, "before your courage oozes out of your finger ends, as usual, my dear."

"It—is written already," confessed her young ladyship, with considerable confusion of manner. "I—the fact is, Blanche, I wrote it two or three days ago, but—you see I was—I did not like to seal it—then."

Blanche sprang up from her chair, her amusement and exultation getting the better of her, at this guilelessly significant acknowledgment.

"Oh, ye daughters of men!" she exclaimed, laughing until the tears started to her eyes. "Oh fairest and most courageous of the descendants of De Tresham! and you did not know whether you wanted to marry Robert Lindsay or not!"

"I have not said that I wanted to marry him yet," said her ladyship, blushing more than ever. "He—has not even asked me if I would."

"Of course not," said Blanche. "And of course he does not know what you would say, if he did. Oh, Laura, Laura! and you wrote it two or three days ago!"

Summer Resort Notes.

Long Branch is to have a number of bathing masters on its beach this summer to guard against drowning accidents.

Blondes are patiently waiting until warm weather comes to triumph over brunettes, who then will look hot and uncomfortable in the shades of red color in which now they make conquests without end.

A New York correspondent says that the belle of the summer resorts will be dressed in fluffy white stuffs somewhat bunched and obscuring above her hips, but short enough in skirt to make a compensatory show of her feet.

Many summer resorts along the Hudson, which of late years have been neglected, have this season experienced the effects of the boom, and once again loom up prominently. This is particularly true of Tarrytown, one of the prettiest and most attractive places on the river.

Southern and Cuban families promise to be unusually numerous at Saratoga, especially at the Grand Union Hotel, where many rooms have been engaged by them. "Before the war" the favorite of all the resorts among Southerners was Saratoga Springs.

A few lazy people who are very much afraid of a little trouble are having awnings at seaside houses put up to extend over all the windows of a room, in place of having a separate awning at each window. In that way they manage to destroy the effect both inside and outside of the house.

His Conscience Smote Him.

"What's the feelin' in this yere office about lending me a quarter?" asked an attenuated tramp at the cashier's desk of the Eagle office yesterday afternoon.

"There are strong prejudices against it," returned the cashier.

"Does it go so fur as to reach itself to a dime?" inquired the suppliant.

"I think it reaches to that extent," said the cashier.

"You don't appear to recognize me, pardner."

"Well, you don't refer to anything of which I have extended information."

"There's a great deal of money in me, if I'm properly worked. I only need keerful handling."

"Money in you, how?" asked the cashier becoming interested.

"If I was taken where I belonged, there'd be great wealth for us both. I'm priceless in the proper quarter."

"Give me your address and I'll send you over," said the cashier.

"Make it twenty-five cents and I'll give you the information. Put up somethin' as a guarantee of good faith and you've got me. Two bits in cash invested in me will make your eyes hang out."

"I'll go a quarter on you," said the cashier, handing over the money. "Who are you? How's anything to be made out of you?"

"Stranger," said the grateful tramp, bursting into tears; "stranger, I won't deceive a kind hearted man like you. I was going to tell you that I was Sitting Bull, but I ain't; I'm only Alexander T. Stewart's long lost dead body."—Brooklyn Eagle.

LATEST MAIL NEWS.

England.

A London hatter puts forward a claim to patronage on the ground of Lord Beaconsfield having bought his last hat of him.

The chairman of Brecon Quarter Sessions, England, recently sentenced a private soldier to ten months' hard labor for breaking a window when he was drunk.

The Dean and Chapter of Canterbury have announced that they intend to make a permanent reduction in the rents of their agricultural tenants of from 20 to 25 per cent.

British consols touched 103 a fortnight ago. This is a higher figure than they have reached since 1731, but in that year they paid four per cent. interest, instead of three, as at present.

Lunacy has increased in Lancashire to such an extent, that the county magistrates have just decided to build a new county asylum, at a cost of £120,000. It is to accommodate a thousand patients.

An example of the terrible effect of giving credit was recently cited by Lord Randolph Churchill in the House of Commons. A gentlemen owed his poor green grocer above £14,000. He was indeed a green grocer.

The last panacea for the woes of the British farmer is that he should grow tobacco. A writer advocates its cultivation in the midland and southern counties of England, and asserts that it would yield, if properly grown, a profit of £20 an acre.

People do not always mean what they say. At least, such was the case when the builder of a church in a London suburb, on returning thanks for the toast of his health, which had been proposed, remarked:—"I fancy I am more fitted for the scaffold than for public speaking."

An officer commanding the depot of his regiment at Winchester says he has only three privates available in his two companies for duty. At Aldershot a commanding officer's parade of one hundred men is considered a good muster. However, the new territorial system is to work wonders.

Lord Denman, a friend of the domestic quadruped creation, drives a horse about the streets of London that wears spectacles. The animal was found to be near-sighted, and its owner has successfully tried the experiment of remedying the defect in the same way as is done with human beings.

Chairmen of railroad companies in England do not indulge in sumptuous private cars at the shareholders' expense. Special cars are provided for the Queen (whose journeys are estimated at $40,000 a year), and Lord Londonderry and the Duke of Sutherland have private cars, but they pay for them.

A curious bet illustrating the glorious uncertainty of whist was made at the Whist Club in London, recently, according to the London World. A player on taking his seat bet an adversary, who had been in very bad luck lately, £200 to £5 that he would not win six rubbers in succession. This, however, he succeeded in doing, and netted altogether £270.

Gunner James Colliss, Royal Horse Artillery, was decorated lately for conspicuous bravery during the retreat from Maiwand to Candahar on the 28th July, 1880, when the officer commanding the battery was endeavoring to bring on a limber with wounded men under a cross fire, in running forward and drawing the enemy's fire on himself, thus taking off their attention from the limber.

Lance-Corporal Joseph Farmer has just received the Victoria Cross for bravery displayed at Majuba Mountain. While the Boers closed with the British troops near the wells, Corporal Farmer held a white flag over the wounded, and when the arm holding the flag was shot through, he called out that he had "another." He then raised the flag with the other arm, and continued to do so until that also was pierced with a bullet.

Six persons were burned to death recently in a fire which occurred at Portobello-road, London. A furniture dealer named Nash occupied the lower part of the premises, and a dairyman and his family, who lived on the first floor, escaped; but the lodgers on the second floor, consisting of a man, two women, and four children, were burned almost beyond identification, the flames having spread so rapidly as to render all attempts to rescue them of no avail.

A "Colonel" of Don Carlo's army is writing to persons in the Midland Counties, stating that he was entrusted some years back with a large amount of treasure (£120,000), and that he buried it in England. He is now in prison in Spain, and a trifle is required to liberate him. If anyone will send it, he will give the donor one-third of the treasure. Already he has written to one person to say that the treasure is buried near Derby, and to another that it is buried near Leicester.

Mr. Labouchere, whose paper (Truth) has to pay 1d. postage instead of ½d., because it is stitched, has introduced a short Bill into Parliament, which most think he is likely to carry, and that is saying a good deal for anything that bears his name. The advantage derived from his measure, if carried, is that such papers as the Illustrated London News, the Graphic, the Field, Truth, and others could be sent out to subscribers stitched and with cut edges, so as not to require the use of a paper-knife.

The actual construction of the masonry of the New Eddystone Lighthouse, now being built on the English coast, is all but completed, and within a few weeks the last stone will be in its place. There will then remain the fixing of the lantern and the fitting of the lighting apparatus, for which the engineers have now the best time of the year before them. There is not one of the granite blocks in the lighthouse that shows the slightest speck of discoloration, making it a very remarkable and beautiful piece of workmanship.

The London World says:—The block of beautiful Greek marble so appropriately sent by the Government of Athens as the pediment to the statue of Lord Byron has now, I observe, been put in its place, and I can only say that I wish the statue was more worthy of the base. Mr. Belt, the sculptor, is no doubt an artist of eminence, but in this case his greatest admirers must admit his failure is signal and depressing. Could Byron but see this effigy of himself and express an opinion, he would more than ever desire that "his name should be his epitaph."

It is said that fifty miles to the south of Leicester, in North Buck and Bedfordshire, the farmers are so badly off that the laborers, on whom their employers' condition tells disastrously, cannot be trusted with a week's supply of bread on credit. It is also stated with respect to an estate on the northern edge of Salisbury Plain that all the tenants have left, and the land is now covered with grass and weeds. Farms are also let at a reduction of fifty per cent, under the ordinary rent, with the first year free. The results, in fact, everywhere, attributable to continuous wet seasons, are alarming.

The work of exploring the Roman villa near Brading, in the Isle of Wight, is now proceeding with undiminished interest and spirit. At a depth of fourteen feet the skeleton of a young person was discovered, which presented in several bones the appearance of severe injury during life. The bones have not yet been submitted to anthropological examination, but some peculiarities in them, such as the size of the supraciliary prominence, seem to afford ground for interesting speculation. The teeth of one jaw were perfect, beautifully white and pearly, showing no sign of decay.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

Management of Children.

The world is more indebted to mothers than to fathers for the character of its leading men and women. A man or woman becomes good or bad as he or she is well or ill trained. How enormous is the responsibility of a parent, remembering what everlasting and wide spreading results for evil or for good may happen from the management of a child! And yet how much is it made the merest matter of accident and momentary impulse. Of course much effect is depending upon the character of the parent, but in the main, or indeed with very few exceptions, parents mean well and want to do the best they can for their children. If this is so, what serious mistakes are made by mothers who go about continually scolding and fault-finding, and slapping and punishing their little ones at the least provocation, and without the formality of a thought as to the propriety of the hasty act. Now every individual charged with wrong doing should be accorded a trial and even a child is entitled to it, although, the accuser should be jury, judge and executioner, too. This trial should be a deliberate weighing of the motives and excuses for the acts complained of; and if these are found to be free from evil intent, violent punishment should be out of the question. It is even worth considering if corporal punishment of any kind could not possibly be entirely abolished in the family, and moral influences brought to bear. A kind and conscientious parent too often feel bitter regrets that he or she has permitted annoyances and hasty passion to control the mind, when a child has been punished for trifling faults which might happen to be mere errors of immature and childish judgment. This is a subject which appeals very strongly to the most careful consideration of parents, but most especially to the mothers.

MOTHS.—Great care should be exercised in packing away furs and Winter clothing to preserve them from moths and mildew. The safest and easiest method is to fold them neatly and pack them in bags of paper or fine bleached muslin, or in a sheet, and tie or sew them up very closely. If plenty of pepper, camphor, snuff or leaf tobacco is packed with them this will be an additional safeguard. Before the goods are packed away, they should be taken out of doors on a bright sunny day and dried, beaten and brushed thoroughly, as dust rots the material. When all have been packed the bags should be hung up or laid away on shelves in an airy dry room.

ENQUIRIES.

F. C. B.—What can I do for a canary whose feet are sore? ANS.—Take the bird in the hand or wrap it carefully in a soft handkerchief and soak the feet in warm water, brushing them with a soft nail brush to get any dirt out of the small cracks. Then apply a little sweet oil to which has been added as much glycerine and a few drops of compound tincture of benzine. Keep the cage deeply sanded with well washed sand, fresh twice a week. Brass wire cages often cause sore feet from the poisonous effect of the metal; iron or nickel plated wire is the best for the cages.

LAURA VALE.—What is the best way to root cuttings of house plants? ANS.—Procure some light sandy soil and put it in the common red earthen saucers of flower pots or in small flower pots called "thumb pots." Set the cuttings in the sand around the edge of the saucers or pots, so that they touch the edge. Keep the soil moist, but not too wet, and put them in a shady but not a dark place. They will soon throw out roots, and when they have begun to make leaves, take up each with a ball of soil, by dipping it up with a spoon or knife blade, and set each one in a pot already prepared with soil for them.

W. H.—How is bakers' bread made, and how do bakers prepare their yeast? ANS.—Bakers use potatoes in their bread, which make it very light and spongy. Five pounds of potatoes are generally used to 14 pounds of flour. The potatoes are boiled and rubbed through a sieve, and then mixed with the flour while they are warm, and the yeast is then stirred into the flour. The yeast is made as follows:—A quart of boiling water is poured over four ounces of crushed malt and two ounces of hops; the whole is then boiled for half an hour and strained; half a pound of flour is then stirred into the liquor, a little old yeast added, and the mixture is set in a warm place to ferment. As soon as it rises it is ready for use. It requires to be made fresh for each baking.

MAGNETARAN.—Please give me directions for making ginger-snaps and molasses cake? ANS.—Melt 8 ounces of butter in the oven with 8 ounces of white sugar; add a pint of the best molasses; mix with 2 pounds of flour the grated rind of a lemon, one ounce of powdered ginger (more if desired), and quarter of an ounce of ground cinnamon; add this gradually to the molasses and butter, adding as well half an ounce of baking soda, dissolved in two table spoonfuls of warm milk; knead the paste until it is firm and smooth, roll it out into a thin sheet, and cut it into strips six inches long and an inch wide, or stamp it out with tin shapes of any desired form. Bake on buttered paper in pans for one hour in a mild oven. For molasses cake, mix oatmeal with maple molasses to a stiff paste, add sufficient ginger, and bake one hour in a slow oven.

C.F.L.—Please describe how fire and snap crackers are made. ANS.—The common Chinese fire crackers are made by rolling small tubes of brown paper with paste to hold them over a thin round rod; these are closed at the bottom by pressing the pasted paper firmly. A little gunpowder is rammed hard in the bottom, a strip of paper steeped in a solution of saltpetre and twisted up is put in so that it reaches the powder, and the powder is then rammed down. The top of the cracker is filled with soft paper. Snap crackers are made of thin strips of card board; the ends are dipped in glue and then in finely powdered glass. A little fulminate of mercury is then laid on the prepared end of one strip and the other is carefully laid over it, a band of paper is then glued around the ends to keep the strips together. When the ends are drawn apart, the explosion takes place.

LENA.—How is painting on silks and velvet done? ANS.—For velvet the material is prepared by passing a warm iron over the back of it. The outline of the figures is then made with a black lead pencil. The colors, common water colors, are laid on with camel hair pencils cut short and to a point, so as to be able to force the color into the pile. The colors are made of the consistence of cream. If they do not take hold well the velvet is to be made damp on the back. Silk is prepared by first outlining the figure and then laying on a coat of very thin solution of isinglass upon which the colors are laid.

J. C.—Please inform me what will exterminate ants from a house which they infest? ANS.—As ants are very fond of anything sweet they may be trapped in immense numbers by placing pieces of sponge dipped in molasses and water, in plates placed where they abound; the sponges should be taken once an hour and oftener, and dipped in boiling water and squeezed out two or three times, and then sweetened and replaced. Many ants will come, but none will go until in a few days all will be killed off, or some sugar of lead may be dissolved in the water and molasses which will poison the ants, and the trap then needs no attention.

W. M. M.—How can I prevent the gum from oozing out of some cherry and plum trees? ANS.—Mix cowdung and clay into a paste, add a little sand and common tar, work the whole up into a thick semi-liquid paste and smear this over the stems of the trees with a short handled worn out corn broom or a stiff brush. This preparation will exclude borers from apple and peach trees, and prevents moss and scale on the bark.

MRS. M.—Our cellar has a disagreeable musty smell in it although it has been well cleaned. What can be done for it? ANS.—Have a quantity of hay cut fine in a fodder cutter, or else take sawdust, sprinkle it well with water, and then scatter chloride of lime upon it. Put it in a bag and hang it in the cellar or in a basket, and leave it for some days. It may need to be renewed.

A READER.—How can I make a durable wash for fences and buildings on the outside of a light brown color. ANS.—Take a clean, water tight barrel or other suitable cask, and put into it about half a bushel of lime; slack it by pouring water over it boiling hot, and put in a sufficient quantity of water to cover it five inches deep, and stir it briskly till thoroughly slacked; when the slacking has been thoroughly effected, dissolve it in water, and add two pounds of sulphate of zinc and common salt. These will cause the wash to harden and prevent its cracking, which gives an unseemly appearance to the work. If desirable, a beautiful cream color may be given to the above wash by adding three pounds of yellow ochre; or a good pearl by lead, lamp, vine or ivy black. For fawn color, add four pounds of umber, Turkish or American—the latter is the cheaper—one pound of Indian red, one pound of common lamp black.

WALTON.—How is sealing wax made? ANS.—The best wax is made of shell lac powdered, 2 parts; the best white resin powdered, 1 part. These are mixed and melted over a gentle fire, then well stirred, and when cool enough formed into sticks. The sticks are then warmed before a fire to melt the surface which leaves them polished. The coloring matter is vermilion for red; ivory black for black; smalt and verditer for blue; verdigris for green; for purple, half vermilion and half smalt; golden bronze, one part ivory black one part vermilion and sufficient gold leaf rubbed with these in a mortar.

OLD SUBSCRIBER.—Is lard used in shortening the common soda biscuits? ANS.—Yes; the paste is rolled into a sheet between smooth iron rollers; then spread with lard, doubled and rerolled, and again doubled and rolled, continually; lard being added as required. This causes the paste to be divided into many very thin layers with a portion of lard between them, and so produces the lightness and tenderness of the biscuits.

CAPE BRETON.—How can I take stains out of a suit of clothes? ANS.—Ammonia mixed with water is a solvent of grease, and nearly all kinds of dirt. Benzine is also an excellent cleansing material. Lay the garment on a table, brush out the dust; then sponge the cloth with a mixture of one part of ammonia water in 5 parts of soft water; or with benzine alone. Then hang up to air.

HOUSEKEEPER.—What will settle coffee? ANS.—There are several methods, one is to break an egg and drop in the shell, another to pour in a tablespoonful of cold water, another and perhaps the best is to drop in a pinch of salt. An excellent way is when the coffee is roasted and hot, break an egg into every 3 pounds of it and immediately stir it well until thoroughly mixed; this covers the coffee grains with a film of albumen which preserves the aroma and when the coffee is ground and made, the egg clears it.

ELLA B.—Is there a way to kill moths in a floor without painting. ANS.—Yes. Make strong brine and heat it to boiling; then wash the floor with this, with a stiff brush, especially about the skirting boards; then brush dry salt into the cracks and leave it for a day when the surplus may be swept off.

A READER.—What will make sad irons smooth and clear? ANS.—Take beeswax and melt it, add an equal part of salt and stir both while cooling. Rub the irons with this and then upon a piece of woolen felt sprinkled with fine salt.

EXPERIENCE.—What will improve the flavor of old potatoes? ANS.—The potatoes have parted with some of their water and are deteriorated; to restore their flavor keep them in cold water several hour before cooking them.

BATH BUNS.—Mix a pound of fine sugar with one pound of the finest flour, add a teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon and one tablespoonful of fresh yeast, one pint of milk with a quarter of a pound of melted butter is well beaten with the yolks of four eggs and the whites of two, and the flour is stirred in it. The whole is well mixed, left to rise 10 minutes and formed into buns. These are baked on tins in a slow oven for 15 minutes.

Two Hundred and Forty-four Miles of Stove Polish.

Messrs. Morse Bros., of Canton, Mass., are now making large shipments of "The Rising Sun" Stove Polish to London, England. Their labor-saving machinery enables them to overcome the difference in cost of labor and compete successfully with European manufacturers. Their goods have now been sold in the United States for sixteen years, and in the Maritime Provinces for ten years. The sale of "The Rising Sun" Stove Polish in the United States, Canada, Great Britain and Sandwich Islands in 1880 reached the enormous quantity of 724 tons, 3,864,528 packages. As the cakes are four inches long, the product of 1880, placed in a line, would extend two hundred and forty-four miles. Each package of the genuine bears their long established trade mark—a picture of the rising sun—registered in the United States, England and Canada. The trade and consumers are especially cautioned against dangerous imitations in the market of their long-established trade mark, a picture of the rising sun, by which unprincipled manufacturers are seeking to reap the advantage of the great reputation and superior quality of the genuine article. Their Montreal agents are Messrs. Lyman, Sons & Co., wholesale druggists.

C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo an employee of the U.S. Express Co., says:—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of Piles of 8 years standing, having tried almost every known remedy, "besides two Buffalo Physicians" without relief: but the Oil cured him; he thinks it cannot be recommended too highly. 18

SYR: HYPOPHOS. FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES COMP: FELLOWS.

Consumption Cured.

GRAND RAPIDS, May 24, 1880.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS, St. John, N.B.

My Dear Sir,—In gratitude for the benefit received by the use of your "Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites," I do most cheerfully add my testimony to its wonderful effects in permanently raising me almost from the grave. For several years I have been a great sufferer. My lungs were affected, and I was completely run down by general debility, so that my life was despaired of by many of those who knew me here in Grand Rapids. I had the best medical advice, but it availed me nothing, and I kept getting worse and worse. At last, I was induced to try your Hypophosphites, and in doing so was pleased to notice that it gave me almost immediate relief. At the time I commenced using them I weighed about 120 pounds, and coughed continually; now (eight months later) I have gained my weight and over, and I hardly think there is a man in Grand Rapids enjoying better health. In concluding this rather long testimonial, allow me, Mr. Fellows, to congratulate you on your Hypophosphites, for I think it the greatest of all medicines, and my friends as well as myself, that it saved me from a consumptive's grave.

Yours gratefully,

J. E. LEONARD, of Leonard Bro's., Grand Rapids, Mich.
