All cry 'gimme' differ on ways

By ALAN DONNELLY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA — (CP) — The cry of "Gimme" is being sounded by all the provinces at the current federal-provincial tax-sharing conference.

But this apparent unanimity of desire for Ottawa to yield a bigger share of the tax pot doesn't go much further. It doesn't conceal a fundamental split between the "have" and "have-not" provinces over basic concepts of ways and means.

The central problem is the claim of smaller provinces for federal tax arrangements enabling them to give a "national standard" of services to their people in the form of roads, education and the like.

This national standard has been a goal of past tax-sharing plans and the concurrent federal equalization payments to the less-wealthy provinces. Ottawa has relied in large part on Ontario's tax wealth to help accomplish this.

SERIOUS PROBLEM

Thus Premier Frost's demand that Ontario get a vastly enlarged slice of the tax pie—while sounding at first blush like the demands of the smaller provinces—raises serious questions as to how far Ottawa could go in continuing the equalization principle if Ontario got its way.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said the federal government is "firmly committed" to the equalization principle.

Mr. Frost told reporters this principle can be maintained, provided Ottawa opens up new fields of indirect taxation once Ontario gets its whopping request for a 50-50 split of the rich direct income taxes on individuals and corporations.

The federal government, however, views indirect taxes as regressive, adding hidden costs to goods produced both for the Canadian market and the vital export trade.

QUEBEC APPROACH

Quebec Premier Lesage has proposed a new approach in the complex, delicately balanced system of federal-provincial relations. His theme: Ottawa should get out of the shared-cost programs in which it contributes to highways, hospitals, hospital insurance, social welfare and a host of other costs. Ottawa should then give the provinces the necessary tax resources to carry these programs on their own.

But the dilemma is that some of the smaller provinces claim they are already having dire trouble carrying their own share of the cost of these programs. Proposals came thick and fast Monday from premiers of these

Double barrelled attack

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Walter Shaw of Prince Edward Island proposed today a double-barrelled attack on Canada's fiscal problems based on an immediate increase in federal payments to the provinces and a re-assessment of needs and resources of federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Concluding an address interrupted Monday when the Dominion - provincial conference adjourned, Premier Shaw proposed these changes in the current tax-sharing arrangements:

1. A payment to the provinces of 15 per cent of federal personal income tax collections, 15 per cent of corporation profits and 50 per cent of succession duties instead of the current 13-45-50 formula.

2. Equalization payments based on the wealthiest province — Ontario — instead of on the two wealthiest — Ontario and British Columbia. These payments now are made to less-wealthy provinces to raise their per capita yield from income taxes and succession duties to the level of the average yield in Ontario and B.C.

3. These two changes to be made for the final year of the current arrangement which expires March 31, 1962.

4. An adjustment grant, supplementary to the tax- and rental payments, considerably higher than the present annual adjustment grant paid to each Atlantic province. At present, P.E.I. is getting $2,500,000 and the other Atlantic provinces $7,500,000 each in annual adjustment grants ending March 31, 1962.

UNFAVORABLE POSITION

Premier Shaw said the tax-sharing agreement "does not place our province in a position where our government can provide a national standard of services to our people."

Party's greatest attraction

Big reception is set for Ike at convention

CHICAGO — (CP) — Republicans set their normal convention ritual aside today to worship at the feet of President Eisenhower, still the party's greatest attraction and most magnetic personality.

It will be a day of street processions and cheers for Ike and Mamie; a day in which residents of this traditionally Democratic city will join with Republicans to pay homage to the wartime allied commander who leaves the White House next January ending an eight-year tenancy.

Beyond the tumult and the hoopla, in a sombre committee room, a grueling inter-party struggle will reach a climactic stage, to indicate the amount of control Vice-President Richard M. Nixon has over the party he likely will lead in the 1960 presidential fight.

This is the day Nixon hopes to end southern opposition to his controversial Negro-rights platform plank proposal which he worked out in agreement with New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

Automobile for every 3.4 persons

OTTAWA (CP)—There was one motor vehicle for every 3.4 persons in nine Canadian provinces last year, the bureau of statistics reported Monday.

Registrations in all provinces except Newfoundland totalled a record 4,968,541, up 6.3 per cent from the 1958 figure of 4,672,250, the previous record.

In 1958, there had been one vehicle for every 3.7 persons.

There was one passenger car for every 4.5 persons last year compared with one for every 4.8 persons the previous year.

And there was one passenger car for every 0.95 families, compared with one for every 0.90 families in 1958.

Passenger car registrations totalled 3,774,238 up from 3,572,963 in 1958 and truck and non-farm tractors numbered 1,085,021, against 1,045,283.

All nine provinces shared in the increase in motor vehicle registrations. The figures (with 1958 registrations in brackets) include: Prince Edward Island 27,502 (25,504), Nova Scotia 189,435 (164,954), New Brunswick 129,629 (121,715), Quebec 1,040,266 (968,058).

RB-47 investigation

Expect Russia to use veto

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (AP) — Some United Nations diplomats expect Russia to cast its 88th veto today to prevent an international investigation of the downing of the American RB-47 reconnaissance plane by a Soviet fighter July 1.

Vasily Kuznetsov, Soviet first deputy foreign minister, told the Security Council Monday that his government is "resolutely opposed" to the American proposal that the United States and Soviet governments submit their dispute over the plane to an international commission or to the International Court of Justice in The Hague.

The only purpose of such an inquiry, Kuznetsov said, would be to "confuse a completely clear issue."

The UN diplomats also anticipated that a majority of the 11-nation council would vote down a Soviet resolution asking the council to condemn "continuing provocative actions by the United States Air Force" and to insist that the U.S. government stop such flights.

LODGE DENIES CHARGE

The council scheduled a morning session to continue its debate on the two resolutions. It was expected to vote on them during the afternoon.

In the debate Monday U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge denied the Soviet charge that the RB-47 was on a spy flight and was over Soviet territorial waters when it was shot down in the Barents Sea.

Lodge told the council the plane was on an "electromagnetic observation flight" and never came closer than 30 miles to the Soviet coast, 18 miles beyond the 12-mile limit the Russians put on their territorial waters.

(U.S. officials previously disclosed that the six-jet converted medium bomber was on a peaceful scientific mission that had gone on for 10 years with Soviet knowledge — the mapping of shifting magnetic fields in the Arctic.)

No bail for him, eats too many objects

TORQUAY, England (Reuters)—A man who was alleged to have swallowed a spoon handle, a four-foot piece of chain, a nail file, an open safety pin, his false teeth and a thermometer, was refused bail in a court Monday.

It was refused because, in the words of the prosecuting lawyer, the "very odd things" done by 46-year-old Francis Henry Voisey since his arrest on a charge of theft.

Then he swallowed the length of chain after concealing it while being searched.

After an operation for the removal of the spoon handle, the chain and a nail file discovered by x-ray, Voisey swallowed the safety pin.

He was transferred to another hospital where the pin was extracted but his strange appetite continued and he

Ousting Belgian troops

To spare no effort

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (CP) — Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba says UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld has promised him to "spare no effort" to get Belgian troops out of the Congo.

The Congo leader scheduled final talks with Hammarskjöld this morning, prior to the secretary-general's departure tonight for discussions with the Belgian government in Brussels and a survey of the Congo situation from Leopoldville.

Lumumba told a press conference Monday he would go to Washington and to Canada to seek French-speaking technicians for the Congo and then fly back to Leopoldville for another meeting with Hammarskjöld Aug. 5.

He said he was unable to be more specific about his Canadian trip. "I think that in the course of this week I shall probably be able to go to Canada," he declared. "It is because this country has always drawn me to it and because I have special sympathies for it and I hope to be able to meet friends there and to see whether I might there not find some French-speaking technicians and specialists who might be willing to come and work in the Congo."

The Congo premier said he had asked Hammarskjöld to set a deadline for the withdrawal of Belgian troops. He said Hammarskjöld "assured me he will spare no effort and it is in that spirit that he will negotiate in Brussels with the government of Belgium." It seemed unlikely that Hammarskjöld would try to set any deadline, however, since the Security Council in calling for the Belgian withdrawal put no time limit.

Lumumba accused the Belgians of provoking the mutiny in the Congo Army by failing to give promotions to native personnel when independence was granted June 30. He also accused the Belgians of trying to detach the rich province of Katanga, whose government has declared its independence of the central government.

B.C. forest fires

Firefighter is killed aircraft crash lands

KAMLOOPS, B.C. — (CP) — One firefighter was killed and a plane was damaged in a crash landing Monday as an army of 5,000 men continued their battle against British Columbia's forest blazes.

Edward Paul, 25-year-old farm laborer and father of four, was fatally hurt by a falling tree at a 1,000-acre fire near Radium, 100 miles northwest of Nelson. Another man escaped with minor injuries.

It was the second forest fire death in three weeks in the Nelson and Kamloops forest districts, which comprise most of the southern interior of the province and brought to nine the death toll in Western Canada and the U.S. Victor Jackson, 24, of Edmonton was killed Friday when his water-bombing plane crashed near Kelowna.

Some 3,500 firefighters in the 11,000-square-mile Kamloops forest district were left without valuable water-bombing support when a B-47 Flying Fortress crash landed at the air strip here. The aircraft will be out of commission for several days. The airstrip was chewed up. Pilot Ivor Beisel of Arizona and his two crew members were not hurt.

The forest service said 32 new fires were reported Monday, raising the total to around 400 burning in spruce, cedar, pine and fir.

In the U.S., two men died in Washington from burns suffered earlier while fighting blazes in the Umatilla National Forest. They were Raymond Pike, 41, a Washington convict who had volunteered for fire duty, and James Spencer Jr., 48, of Toppenish.

Disarmament proposals

Mr. K. accuses West of obstructing peace

MOSCOW — (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev has again accused the West of following "an obstructionist policy with regard to disarmament."

The Soviet premier has said the latest American disarmament proposals "do not have disarmament as their real aim but are designed to deceive world public opinion."

His views were contained in letters to prime ministers Macmillan and Diefenbaker. The letters were sent three days ago and published here Monday night.

The two Western leaders had asked Khrushchev to reconsider the Soviet decisions last month to withdraw from the work of the 10-nation East-West disarmament commission in Geneva and to refer the matter to the United Nations General Assembly.

Khrushchev told Macmillan the five Communist nations withdrew because the Western side "do not want earnest negotiations" and were using the talks "to deceive the peoples."

He wrote Diefenbaker that the Western plan did not have real disarmament as its aim.

"We have every reason for saying that these proposals represent one more attempt to mislead world opinion and to make it easier for the exponents of the arms race to continue the arms buildup with all the ensuing dangerous consequences."

Khrushchev charged that Canada's delegate at Geneva, Lt. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, hadn't discussed Russian proposals in a concrete manner and had made extremely vague dissertations on the subject of "balanced concessions."

About Television

Written for The Associated Press
By DWAYNE HICKMAN

My brother Darryl is an actor. Been one for a long time—much longer than I have. In fact, it wasn't until recently that the truth dawned on me that I might as well make show business a career. (The moment of truth just happened to be when Dobby Gillis was renewed for next season.)

But to get back to my brother Darryl. I got my first taste of show business through him. We were just kids and it was a rainy Saturday afternoon. My mother, unappreciative of the artistic impressions we were adding to the new bathroom wallpaper, suggested that Darryl, my sister Dore and I repair to the attic and put on a play.

In short order Darryl had devised a plot, if you can call a monologue a plot, which called for him to be on stage the entire time. My sister, who was all of three years old, had to be the love interest.

MOM RECONSIDERED

I'm sure I was the most enthusiastic six-year-old in history to simulate the approach of an entire cavalry division. Mother soon arrived in the attic with a piece of the ceiling in one hand and a box of crayons in the other. Her advice: Go back to redecorating the bathroom wallpaper.

Later Darryl transferred his enthusiasm into actual cash and made a name for himself as a boy actor. Since I had not quite lost the urge to decorate wallpaper, my mother, in the interests of the household, used to take me to the studios whenever Darryl obtained a role.

Well, I started my film career the day I removed the hinges from a door on the set and the star made a most unusual entrance. I thought the scene hilarious but mother explained it would have to be reshot because the star had invented some new words and the sound track was, therefore, unusable. To prevent further incidents, I was given a small role and told to study it. If memory serves me, I became "a crippled waif of the streets."

As time passed I became one of "a group of children playing in the distance," "a newsboy seen briefly," and "a little child's hand hanging limply from beneath the covers."

APPEARED WITH STARS

Eventually I even played scenes with such famous stars as Jeanette MacDonald and Claudette Colbert. But alas, the days of "horses approach" were over and the fun seemed to have gone out of it for me. I found myself going to school on a regular basis.

Years later I was given a part on The Bob Cummings Show. I learned a lot from Bob during those five years but sometimes felt I was back in the "horses approach" days. I'd be there to open a door and spill some milk, and then I'd go home.

Dobby Gillis, on the other hand, would give me great scope and the chance to do a variety of things. And so, after receiving the blessings of Max Shulman, the creator of Dobby Gillis, and several executives at 20th Century-Fox, I found my head in a bucket of bleach. I emerged as Dobby.

Cut duplication, lower taxes

The provincial premiers, in their current meeting at Ottawa, might be sharply divided upon many issues but on one matter they are in common accord — all need more money from the taxpayer, either through increased sharing by Ottawa of the taxation it collects or by the reservation of specific tax fields for the provinces. Whichever course is adopted one thing seems clear. The taxpayer must hand over a larger share of his earnings to the state.

If the federal government yields one-half the income tax revenues to the provinces, as suggested by Premier Frost, it must obtain nearly one billion dollars elsewhere. If it grants the provinces the right of an indirect sales tax, the consumer prices will go up. In either way the public loses.

All the premiers emphasize that this extra money is needed to meet expanding costs.

None of them seems to offer any suggestion for cutting government costs through the elimination of frills and cutting unnecessary services. A broad scheme of co-operation between various levels of government to eliminate duplication, and sometimes triplication of services, might bring about substantial cuts in governmental costs.

For instance, both federal and provincial governments maintain extensive agriculture services, designed to aid the farmer in his problems. Too often these departments overlap and the farmer finds himself flooded with conflicting advice.

Similarly, both Ottawa and Quebec maintain separate agencies for collection income tax and other imposts. By reasonable co-operation, one of these agencies could be abolished with benefit for both sides — and the taxpayer.

No one wants to scrap the various constitutional guarantees provided in the Canadian parliamentary system, but it would seem that there is some way that the use of these safeguards as a pretext for expanding bureaucracies at all levels could be reduced.

The RB-47 incident

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge put before the United Nations Security Council yesterday what he claimed was documentary proof that Soviet fighters deliberately pushed an American RB-47 reconnaissance plane off its course and shot the craft down over international waters.

He called the Soviet charges that the plane violated Russian air space July 1 "a complete fabrication" which must be dismissed as a poor attempt to cloak a wanton attack on a plane over international waters.

If Mr. Lodge's evidence is correct — and there is no reason to believe it is not — then the Soviets have more than lost anything they gained with the U-2 incident.

That episode displayed an unfortunate lack of coordination and timing on the part of the American government.

The latest Soviet display, on the other hand, was a crude, unprovoked violation of international right. It was obviously done with the intention of downing an American plane on Soviet territory. In part, it was to have been another propaganda move aimed at discrediting the United States and her allies.

But the whole affair was bungled, then kept quiet for several weeks, then disclosed in a manner which can be described in its kindest terms as false and malicious.

No one would ever describe Russian policy and actions as particularly subtle at best, but the RB-47 fiasco stands as a peak of Russian brutality and stupidity.

Mr. Lodge has asked that the Security Council have an impartial investigation conducted into the incident. If this is done, then the RB-47 case, while a tragedy for those personally concerned, will serve to pull the U.S. clear out of the U-2 morass.

A stupid decision

Whether Charles Chaplin, jr., is well advised in seeking Superior Court aid to force the Los Angeles City Council to include the name of his father among the movie greats engraved in the cement of Hollywood's sidewalks, there can be no questioning his claim that the career of Charles Chaplin, sr., was a milestone in the history of picture-making.

The elder Chaplin, now living in Switzerland, developed a particular technique for amusing his audiences. Although of the slapstick variety, his antics were so artfully portrayed that they lacked those insulting features which so often aggravated the viewers of less skillfully done presentations.

Charlie Chaplin had one objective in his earlier years — to amuse and delight. His works were not designed to be masterpieces or to teach a moral lesson. But in many respects they achieved this higher purpose. Undoubtedly they were masterpieces of their type and came so near perfection that when throwbacks are shown on the television screens they provide as much amusement to the youngsters of the present generation as the originals did to the parents and even grandparents. For a moral lesson, they proved that honesty and simplicity will get further than the artificial grandeur of many of the super-colossals appearing during the past half century.

Most of those who have enjoyed the exploits of Charles Chaplin will agree that any decision to bar him from inclusion in the list of "movie greats" was taken "arbitrarily and with malice, prejudice and bias." — or maybe just ignorance.

For sub-Arctic tundra listeners

"Kokjuak Okakpok" -- Churchill Calling, This is Simeon Akgunark, Eskimo deejay

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)— "Kokjuak okakpok" — Churchill calling.

With these words spoken in his native tongue, a 22-year-old Eskimo disc jockey introduces a weekly half-hour program of recorded music beamed to residents of the sub-Arctic tundra surrounding this Hudson Bay port.

The program, broadcast by the CBC's 250-watt Churchill radio station, CHFC, is handled by Simeon Akgunark, a native of Wager Bay, N.W.T., 550 miles north of here near the Arctic Circle.

Working from a few notes pencilled in Eskimo script, he adds his soft-spoken comments between records.

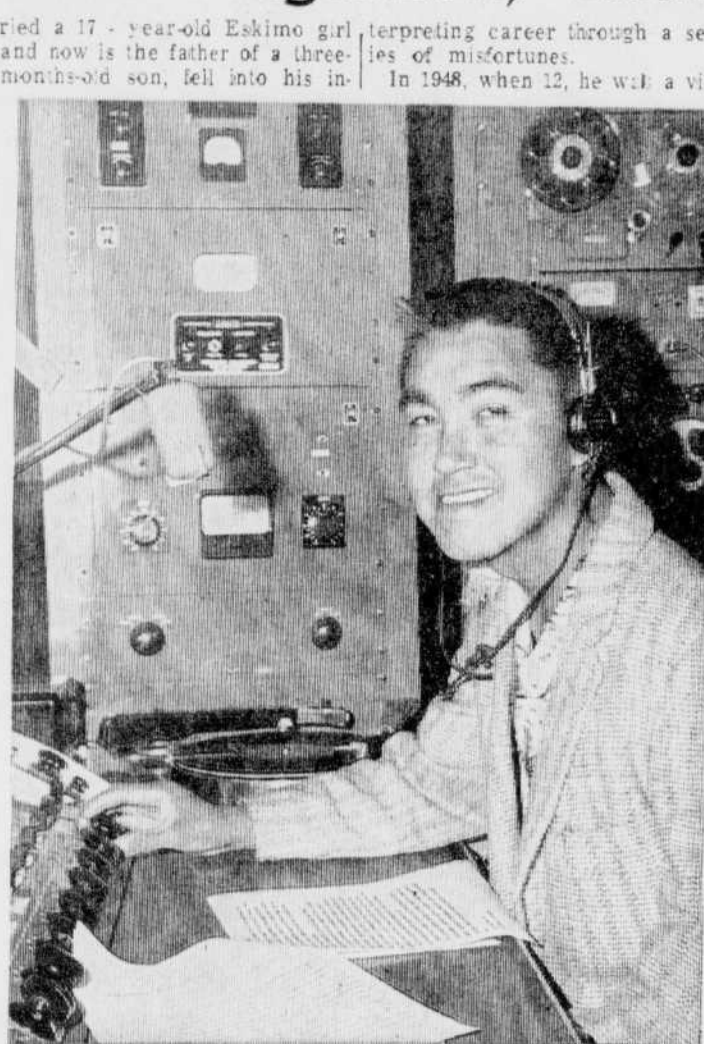

COWBOY MUSIC

The music Simeon plays is mainly in the western cowboy and country style, with a few rollicking Scottish dances thrown in. These, he says, are his people's favorites.

Simeon, who dresses nattily in sports jacket and slacks, works regularly as an interpreter for the federal northern affairs department officials who administer a model Eskimo village near here.

The village was built by the government to house Eskimo employees of government agencies and their families. It has a permanent population of about 150, plus 70 transient residents.

Simeon, who last year mar-

ried a 17-year-old Eskimo girl and now is the father of a three-month-old son, fell into his interpreting career through a series of misfortunes.

In 1948, when 12, he was a victim of a northern polo epidemic. He was taken to Winnipeg, together with many other Eskimos, for treatment in an isolation hospital. It was there that he started to learn English.

Simeon returned to the north, only to be stricken by tuberculosis in 1954. This time, he spent four years in hospitals at Winnipeg and Brandon. While recuperating, he completed his Grade 8 education.

Shortly after his release from hospital two years ago, Simeon started work as an interpreter here. He now is virtually right-hand man to the federal administrator at the village.

Simeon's disc jockey career began about two months ago when the CBC station began its first Eskimo-language program.

WELL RECEIVED

From its studios at Fort Churchill, the nearby military base, the station's beam reaches as far north as Rankin Inlet, on the western shore of Hudson Bay, 300 miles north of here. There, about 400 Eskimos are employed by a nickel mine.

Station manager R.R. Bear says the Churchill Calling program is being well received. Simeon, he says, has plenty of confidence in front of the microphone and shows great promise. The manager said he is considering putting the young announcer in charge of a weekly news broadcast for Eskimo listeners.

Common Market — government dilemma

Britain lingers on indecision

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The late Aneurin Bevan once convulsed the British House of Commons by comparing Sir Winston Churchill's approach to a particular problem with that of an old man's attitude to a young bride — fascinated, sluggish and apprehensive.

Today, it may not be unfair to say that Bevan's sally applies with equal force to the British government in its conduct toward continental Europe. After studying lengthy reports and looking at the subject from all angles, it still seems frozen into a mused immobility, unable to decide whether to take the final, fateful step of joining the European Common Market.

A few months ago, the government made known that it was willing to go part of the way and join some of the European community's institutions, as a kind of halfway house to unity. The common market six quickly made plain that it was all or nothing — Britain must sign the Treaty of Rome or stay out.

Thus rebuffed, British ministers seemed almost relieved. The decision, in a sense, had been made for them. The six simply didn't want them, and that was all there was to it. A few weeks later, however, the action committee of the six publicly called on Britain to join the community.

The latest word in Whitehall is that the question is still under consideration, with no decision expected in the next few months. Ministers still say privately that the question of Commonwealth preferences is the biggest obstacle to British membership, but the suspicion is that psychological attitudes lie at the root of the matter.

Understandably, Britain still is reluctant to make the sacrifice of sovereignty inherent in the leap across the Channel. Insularity remains a strong emotional force.

Yet pressure for Britain to join Europe appears to be mounting, internally and externally. Ministers admit that the decision can hardly be postponed many more months. As the common market tempo speeds up, an increasing number of companies are joining hands in cartels and other institutionalized arrangements that will be hard to dismantle.

Some feel Britain must make up her mind quickly or ultimately face a diminution to something akin to her physical shape, a tiny tear-drop on the cheek of the Euro-Asian land mass.

Report From Ottawa

by Clyde Blackburn

OTTAWA — The House of Commons this week completed 131 sitting days of the current session which opened last Jan. 14—and on Thursday, its 129th day, it took nearly four hours to dispose of the Prime Minister's motion to add Friday evenings and Saturdays to the work week.

The intention was to get through sooner by working longer hours.

Angry Liberals and CCFers wailed about their weariness, and the impossibility of attending committee meetings morning, afternoon and evenings while still attending House sittings.

The wrangle went on and on, and then a formal vote was forced by the opposition. Naturally, it sustained the Government 147 to 40—but the whole thing took three hours and 45 minutes.

And that proceeding neatly symbolized the whole story of the House of Commons and its slow, tedious plodding through the parliamentary program.

Last November I suggested the House might be talking itself to death, meaning that its behavior might undermine it and make it an easy prey to some other, less desirable form of legislating—but now it seems members might physically talk themselves to death, for there will be sittings for about 52 hours a week, and several committees are still sitting day and night.

Mr. Diefenbaker's motion — one that has appeared about this time for many years, and which used to make the Conservative opposition squirm — was met with unprecedented wails of anger and hurt from both Liberals and Conservatives.

Mr. Diefenbaker and his friends were accused of "ineptness, bumbling and fumbling," in presenting and directing the business of the House.

The remedy is in the hands of the members. They should not need repressive rules, and probably in fact will never get them. It may go on like this until there is a depression or some other influence that will bring Parliament down in ruins.

Take a look at the North hand only. Your partner opens one heart and you respond one spade. He goes to two hearts and you bid three clubs. He rebids to three hearts. Now what do you do?

The pessimist has no problem. He passes! The optimist chooses between three no-trump and four hearts. The rest of us have to decide between a bid and a pass.

Now look at all the cards. Playing in hearts South wins the first club in dummy and plays the ten of hearts. East wins with the ace and South will almost surely lose two more heart tricks and the ace of diamonds to wind up with exactly nine tricks. I say almost surely because if East leads a club back and South plays double dummy he will be able to shorten himself in trumps and end-play West.

However, South would have no reason to play that way and anyone in game would be set.

Does this mean that the pass to three hearts is correct? Not at all. Looking at the North and South cards only you want to be in four hearts and those players who pass and those players who pass at three will be taking the worst of it in the long run.

BRITISH INGENUITY

(Daily Times Journal)

A tape recorder which allows the user to listen and transmit at the same time has been developed in Great Britain. An automatic handling and sorting machine for timber that can do the work of 60 men is being manufactured. A British magazine can now have a color photograph taken, processed and paper printed: a set of four-color blocks produced etched and proofed; a full-color brochure printed and distributed—all in the space of 12 hours. British inventor has come up with a burglar warning system which "hones" the police. Of interest to Canada, yet another invention is a machine which "eats" its way through snow at speeds up to five miles an hour — a country model handling snow up to seven feet deep.

Industrial Britain apparently has not lost its touch for ingenuity.

LICKING THE DASHER IN THE OLD DAYS

(From the Ottawa Journal)

A one-horse, hillside farmer does not pretend to understand the tangled currents of the contemporary social order; but he feels the juvenile problem would decrease if all boys had the opportunity to lick the dasher of home-made ice cream.

There are those who remember the farm days when father would say about four o'clock of a Sum-mer-noon, "son, why don't you see if mother will stir

Five-day mock battle

6,000 Canadian Army troops are tested on capabilities in event of nuclear war

By IRA DRYSDALE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
CAMP GAGETOWN, N.B. — (CP) — A nuclear battle fought with blank ammunition ran into its second day here today as 6,000 Canadian army troops were tested on their capabilities in field manoeuvres.

The five-day mock war — directed by Maj-Gen. M. P. Bogert, general officer commanding Eastern Command — climaxes six weeks of field training for the 3rd Brigade comprising the Eastern and Quebec commands.

Maj-Gen. J. M. Rockingham, general officer commanding Quebec Command, will visit the battlefield today as enemy troops from the fictitious land of Fantasia move across the St. John River for brief skirmishes with the Canadian troops and troops of the fictitious Blueand.

The manoeuvres cover most of the 427 square miles of the camp's rugged terrain. Most of the activities are carried on at night, while the troops remain under cover during the day. Battle began at dawn Monday, and will end Friday noon.

About 25 army officers known as "umpires" are assessing and controlling the manoeuvres.

Wife Is Ready to Dine Out Anytime—but Hubby . . .

"Housewives are the restaurant industry's biggest competitor," says Harry Akin, president of the National Restaurant Assn.

Akin sees his job as selling the American housewife on the pleasures of dining out. From what I know of housewives, I don't think Akin is going to have too much trouble persuading the little woman to get out of the kitchen at least one night a week.

But he may have quite a job in selling her husband on the idea.

From a man's point of view nothing is simpler than eating at home.

He doesn't have to plan the menu, buy the food, cook it, get it on the table, clear the table, wash the dishes and clean the kitchen at meal's end.

All he has to do is sit down and eat when his wife sings out: "dinner's ready." So persuading him that eating out is a nice break from eating in may not be so easy.

The best chance a wife has to sell her husband on the idea that he ought to take her out to dinner at least one night a week is to get him started on the routine in the very first months of marriage.

If he knows from the start that dinner out occasionally is important to his bride—then she's got a chance of keeping him from settling down to the dull routine of dinner at home every night, followed by an evening before the TV set.

So the smart bride will dress up in her best one night a week and get her husband to take her out for dinner—the way he used to before they were married.

Sitting across from each other at a candlelit table in a quiet restaurant, they'll find themselves discussing all sorts of fascinating subjects, building dreams together and planning for the future.

And "dinner out one night a week" shouldn't be discontinued when the children come along. For then, more than ever a husband and wife need to get off by themselves for an occasional, quiet, peaceful evening.

So Akin's plan of getting the housewife out of the kitchen ought not to meet with any resistance from the housewife.

And if she in turn can just sell the idea to her husband, it ought to go a long way toward building the kind of companionship that keeps a marriage happy.

The distinctive embroidered costumes of Dalarna in Sweden are often handed down from mother to daughter.

TEA BAGS

Tea bags were accidentally introduced in 1904 by Thomas Sullivan, a New York tea merchant who distributed samples in small silk sacks.

Denmark Fashion Editor Finds American Women Youthful Dressers

MONTREAL (CP) — North American women dress a little more youthfully than those in Denmark, says Tove Castenskiold, fashion editor of the Danish magazine Tidens Kvinder (Women of Today).

In Canada to represent Scandinavian countries at Zonta Clubs' international convention in Toronto, she said Pierre Balmain of Paris is the Dand's favorite designer.

"He makes such ladylike clothes. His designs make women beautiful and elegant, but never elaborate."

Mrs. Castenskiold keeps a close watch on European fashions and also finds time to study North American styles.

"I read American fashion magazines and keep in touch with the adaptations which U.S. designers evolve from Paris fashions. On the whole I think we dress in similar style, though perhaps with somewhat less trimming."

She said the Italians are work-

Slim Lines Make Evening Dresses

A many-layered, slinky, silk chiffon gown is magnificently embroidered in brown and silver bugle beads for fall evenings. Side slit permits ease of movement in this design by Bill Bass for Maurice Rentner.

NEW YORK—NEA—There's a really new look to autumn evening gowns this year. It comes from a combination of rich fabrics with slim, sheathlike lines.

The slim lines appear in both long and short evening gowns. One top designer showed a magnificent short evening coat in turquoise and coral silk brocade collared in sable. It was worn over a companion dress cut on simple, very nearly straight lines. But the fabric made it the absolute height of luxury.

These new evening gowns are frequently beaded throughout with bugle beads, paillettes, crystals or sequins. Or, sometimes the top is solidly beaded and combined with a domed skirt in rich satin. (When this is done in one of the amethyst or grape shades, it's dazzling.)

There are slim formalists with a two-piece look, usually combining a longer top with a slender skirt. Sometimes an elaborately jeweled "sweater" top is worn with narrow crepe skirt.

The elongated, fitted bodice appears again and again in both long and short evening dresses. (There are more long evening gowns this year, many of them slit at the hemline to permit graceful movement.) Where the skirt is not slinky, it's arched and rounded at the hipline. It's pretty in both short and long lengths.

Satin, brocade, chiffon, velvet and peau de soie, silk damask and cut velvet are magnificent fabrics used for evening. And they're cut in clear, light colors: pink, lilac, gold and turquoise.

The vintage shades are reserved for gowns with a really royal look: plum, amethyst, claret and burgundy. There are jade and moss greens, silvery grays and creamy whites.

Social and Personal

Miss Clara Aitkenhead, Director of Nursing at the Sherbrooke Hospital, returned by air on Thursday from a vacation spent in Cavendish, P.E.I.

A delightful family reunion was held at MacKenzie Beach on the shore of Brompton Lake, on Sunday when members of the Barton family got together for a day of fun and reminiscing.

Among those present were Mr. Otis Sylvester of Coaticook, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sylvester and daughter, Betty Ann, Douglas Beaucage of Waterville, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sylvester, Mr. Jim Elson of Lennoxville, Mrs. Sarah Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Barton and children, James, Nancy and Steven, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Beaucage and children, Thomas and Jean, and Dale Stonebridge, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, all of St. Elie Road, also Miss Mildred Smith of Toronto, Ont., who is spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, and their grandchildren, Miss Betty and Master Larry Samson of Kitchener, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Norrey Davey and family, Miss Frances Davey and Mrs. J. Davey have returned from a vacation at Cape Cod, Mass. They were also guests of Mrs. J. Davey's niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and family at their cottage at Curtis Fine Grove, Dennis Port, Mass.

Miss M. Goodwin and Miss Marion Mackie left on Sunday for a holiday visiting points of interest in Alberta and British Columbia.

Prior to her departure for Winnipeg, Man., Mrs. L. Mickie Povey of Lennoxville, had as her guests Mrs. E. W. Burgess of Bury, Que., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burgess and three children of Nashua, N.H. The Burgess are now visiting relatives in Bury.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. James Hargreaves of Massawippi, Que., announce the engagement of their daughter Judith, to Mr. Warren L. Nelson, of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Nelson of Moose Jaw, Sask.

Beauty Tips

A good way to keep your combs and brushes clean is to soak them for a few minutes in a basin of warm water to which you've added a couple of tablespoons of baking soda. The alkaline action of the soda solution cuts and removes odors and oil.

FAMED DANCER

Anna Pavlova, famed Russian ballerina who died in 1931, entered the Imperial ballet school at age 10 in 1895.

Daytime Lowers Waistline

Fur trim lends a new elegance to daytime dresses for autumn. This red wool walking dress (left) from Pattullo-Jo Copeland buttons down the front, has a detachable ring collar of fisher fur. Dress itself is collarless. Dolman-sleeved dress in coral worsted wool (right) poses wide top over slim, slightly gathered skirt. It is a Donald Brooks design for Townley.

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The lowered waistline is the single outstanding characteristic that stamps a day dress, fall, 1960.

It's handled in many ways: through a belt that rests on the hipbone; through a lengthened torso; through gentle blousing or self-piping set in at the hipbone.

The skirt below this elongated top may be straight or full. Either way, it takes on a new ease. The straight skirt is curved at the top and shaped to allow graceful movement. It's definitely not the straight and narrow skirt of other years. The full skirt and the pleated skirt both are cut artfully to hang perfectly straight.

Though the one-piece dress leads off the fashion parade this fall, many collections show two-piece dresses with gently-fitted overblouses and eased skirts.

There are many jacket costumes this year. This fashion of dress plus jacket is done with a hipbone jacket or with jacket cropped just at the waistline. Some of these jackets offer beautiful curving collars: sable, mink, fox or fisher.

The dress beneath the jacket in these costumes is usually sleeves and cut on straight, slim lines with the lowered waistline. Those intended for cocktail or dinner wear are cut high in front and plunged to a low V at the back.

Woolens star for fall in all collections. There are fine jerseys, woollens nearly as sheer and light as cotton voile, chiffon-weight tweeds, sheer mohair and beautiful broadcloth.

Color sparkles in shades of amethyst, strawberry red and turquoise, turns somber in hues of brown, eggplant, purple and grape.

If You're Plump Avoid Shorts

Your choice of clothes for summertime activities should be dictated by good taste as well as comfort. Yet every summer women by the thousands squeeze themselves into inadequate bathing suits, shorts, tight tiorador pants and strapless sun dresses which reveal vast rolls of billowing flesh.

The worst offenders are mature women but teen-agers aren't far behind them. They appear on beaches and, worse, on the street in such get-ups. They don't seem conscious of the fact that not only are they displaying poor taste, they look ludicrous.

If you are overweight and your figure is poor pay the penalty. Stay out of shorts of any kind. Stay away from strapless dresses. Be sure that your swim suit is not only your correct size but that it is modestly cut and has a skirt. Don't be as concerned about what "they" are wearing as you are about the kind of figure you cut in public.

Take a good, long, honest look at yourself in the mirror and decide what you can or cannot wear to be in good taste.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

Be careful not to embarrass your teen-ager by scoffing at his ideas or hawling him out in front of others.

Fashion

When you purchase a robe, buy it with as much care as you would a dress. Remember that other people will see you in it. Don't pick the first wadded robe you can find, just for warmth and comfort. Have your comfort and, with it, a little charm.

Enjoy Party Fare From Outdoor Grill

HORS D'OEUVRES FROM THE GRILL

Food prepared on your outdoor grill can be as simple or elegant as you wish and for a "fun" barbecue you might like to try your hand at these hors d'oeuvres ideas. Remember when setting up your grill to line it with aluminum foil . . . it acts as a heat reflector . . . saves on clean-up work and cooks beautifully.

These appetizers are easy to make and can be prepared either the day before or early in the cool of morning, stored in the refrigerator and whisked onto the grill for the party.

SHRIMP SCAMPI

1 lb. fresh OR frozen shrimp, 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted, 1 small clove garlic, minced, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons minced parsley,

Pinch mixed herbs.

Cook, shell and devein shrimp. If fresh, thaw if frozen. Place on a small, shallow pan made from two thicknesses of heavy duty aluminum foil. Make this yourself by turning up sides and mitering corners of foil. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over shrimp. Place pan on grill and cook until shrimp are heated through.

HOT CHEEZETTES

1/2 lb. grated cheese, 1 cup chopped ham OR 1 can devilled ham, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1/4 teaspoon salt, dash Worcestershire sauce, if desired, softened butter or margarine, white OR wholewheat bread.

Combine cheese, ham and seasonings. Make sandwiches of mixture and cut crusts from bread. Spread outside of sandwiches with softened butter or margarine. Cut sandwiches in four pieces. Place each sandwich on a square of aluminum foil. Wrap and seal. Store in the refrigerator or freezer until ready to use. Place packages on grill and toast about 8 minutes on a side. The bread will toast to a golden brown right through the foil and the filling will be hot and delicious.

KABOBS

Make delicious cocktail kabobs by spearing pieces of frankfurter, stuffed olive and watermelon pickle on small metal skewers. The skewers used in lacing turkey are ideal. Grill kabobs, turning occasionally, until frankfurter is heated through. For variety, use cocktail onions, strips of bacon, pickles or sausage pieces.

White Sox Dump Red Sox 14-4 In Little League Action Last Night

Raymond Farrell Is Outstanding On Mound For Victors, One Tilt Tonight

White Sox, coasting along in top spot in the Sher-Lenn Little League, added one more to their win column last night dumping the Red Sox by a 14-4 score. Raymond Farrell held the Red Sox in the six innings he worked to nine scattered hits and two walks for his win.

Tonight the Senators travel to Lennoxville to take on the Yankees. This is an important game for the Yanks and a win here could just about give them a spot in the playoffs.

Last night's tussle between the White Sox and Red Sox was a close ball game for the first four innings with only one run separating the teams. In the fifth however, the White Sox batters got to hurler Begbie and came up with a barrage of eight hits which netted them twelve runs. Two errors by the Red Sox helped the White Sox cause in the frame.

Red Sox in the bottom of the sixth making a bid to get into the game came along with three runs but it was not enough and the White Sox took the game on the long end of a 14-4 count.

White Sox in this one used a few of their youngest players and pinstriped Danny Farrell at second base showed plenty of baseball savvy, other players shining for the White Sox were Raymond Farrell on the mound and Wayne Gilbert at third base.

Red Sox for four innings were in the game but in the closing frames their players looked listless and they had few stars. O'Conner, Griffin and C. Clark were the umpires.

Saskatchewan To Meet Ottawa In Exhibition Match

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Ken Carpenter wasted no time Monday after his Saskatchewan Roughriders arrived here for their exhibition game tonight against Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union Riders were soon on their way to Lansdowne Park for a workout.

The Ottawa Big Four squad is continuing a twice-a-day program.

Coach Frank Clair of Ottawa told reporters he would hate to spoil his winning record — he hasn't lost a home exhibition game since coming here in 1956. But he also wanted to give some new hopefuls plenty of action.

Batting—Bob Skinner, Pirates —his home run in the seventh snapped a 2-2 tie and led to a 4-2 victory for Pittsburgh over St. Louis.

Beebe Posts 9-6 Win Over Ayer's Cliff in MVIBL

Beebe defeated Ayer's Cliff 9-6 Sunday afternoon in the only action over the weekend in the Massachusetts Valley Intermediate Baseball League. The victory by the Beebe ninesome puts them in second place.

The game was a close one throughout but, in the eighth inning, the Beebe squad pulled ahead for keeps. Johnny Goudreau went the distance on the mound for Beebe, pitching excellent ball to chalk up his win. Alan Wing opposed Goudreau for Ayer's Cliff.

Saturday, Ayer's Cliff travels to Beebe while, on Sunday Waterloo visits Ayer's Cliff and Magog hosts Bolton.

Sandy Cross Takes Lead In Little Lake Magog Boat Racing Competition

Sandy Cross, racing his Y-Flyer for the first time on Little Lake Magog, defeated favorites Lothrop and Gadbois to take over first place in the annual boat racing competition for the Jean-Paul Perrault Trophy.

Despite Lothrop's smaller boat, it is the first time he has been forced to concede first position since the inauguration of the event.

In the first race, Sailor Cross quickly attacked the nine other boats in the race to the windward mark and then increased his lead during the downwind and leeward legs of the course.

Ashford Lothrop was less than a minute behind winner Cross to take second place in the race while the next three boats were five seconds apart with Peter Cross, Ledoux and Gadbois finishing in that order.

The second race saw Gadbois' mates tacking brilliantly to the windward mark, arriving well ahead of the fleet to win the race. Sandy Cross pulled off a second in the race to win the weekend series while Lothrop finished third.

The next races will be during the Little Lake Regatta Sunday, August 7 on Little Lake Magog. The standings after four races are as follows:

32 Years Since Canada's Running Champ Percy Williams Scored Upset Victories In 100,200 Metre Races

VANCOUVER (CP) — It has been 32 years since Percy Williams, an obscure Canadian runner, astounded the sport world with stunning upset victories in the 1928 Olympic Games 100- and 200-metre sprints.

It was Canada's brightest moment in the Olympics and her prime athletic contribution to the Roaring Twenties.

In 1928 Williams entered the Olympics at Amsterdam as a shy, modest 20-year-old. He left the Games as Peerless Percy, a national idol.

Today Williams is an insurance salesman, greying slightly, a bit paunchy. He enjoys golf, a game he took up after a friend gave him a set of clubs in the 1930s, and has a creditable five handicap. But he has little interest in the sport that made him famous.

DISLIKED RUNNING

"I never did like running," he said in an interview. "Anything

I accomplished I did because of the determination of Bob Granger, my track coach."

A bachelor, he lives with his widowed mother in a comfortable home in the university district of Vancouver.

Explaining why he didn't make coaching a career after his retirement from active running following the 1932 Olympics, he said:

"A runner needs two coaches, one to get him in shape and keep him there and another to teach him to run. I wasn't qualified to do either. When asked to help after the 1932 Olympics I tried, but officials and athletes didn't, or wouldn't, accept the theories I put forward."

INDOOR MEETS NEEDED

Though he hasn't taken an active interest in the sport in recent years, he has some views on what Canada needs.

"Canada has two problems in developing track men. There is a woeful lack of good coaches and our seasons are too short. I've always believed that Canada must turn to indoor meets to give runners a chance to run all year long and take part in more competitions. . . .

"After the 1932 Games I helped arrange an indoor meet at Victoria. It was a success for both athletes and fans. But no one followed up the start and another was never held. Since it appeared they didn't want my advice I pulled out of the picture."

He has remained aloof, refusing invitations to appear on radio and television shows and at sports dinners.

OUT OF TOUCH

"I'm out of touch with the sport now and not qualified to speak on track today. I never attend sports dinners because few people want to see a lot of old men, in their day world beaters, but now just a memory."

"I never looked the part of an athlete. I'm 32 and look even less the part now. But I'm happy. I have many friends, live comfortably and who can ask for more?"

Williams began running in high school in 1924. It was a compulsory part of the school's program. That year he contracted rheumatic fever and doctors said he would never run again because his heart had been damaged.

When he entered the Olympics in 1928, the experts said he was too slight at five-foot-six and 125 pounds. He had had no international experience and little love for the sport.

But on July 30 he won the 100 metres and two days later the 200 metres. He came home to the cheers of thousands.

In 1929 he made a brilliant invasion of U.S. indoor track meets and won 14 of 15 starts. On Aug. 9, 1930, at Toronto he equalled the world record of 10.3 seconds for the 100 metres, his fastest ever.

Canada began to eye more Olympic crowns. But 14 days later in the British Empire Games 100-yard final at Hamilton, Williams caught a chill while waiting for the start, delayed nine minutes by a medal presentation.

Betty Henri Wins City Of Sherbrooke Tennis Crown

Betty Henri last night took the ladies' singles crown in the City of Sherbrooke Tennis Tournament when she defeated Louise Fernet in two consecutive sets - winning 6-2, 6-2.

Champion Henri replaces the 1959 champ Marthe Tanguay who was unable to defend her title on the courts this year.

Betty Henri was presented with the Hiram-Walker Trophy by Sherbrooke Tennis Association President Majella Charest.

Visibly nervous at the outset of the match, the two finalists soon settled down after several minutes of play and presented to the large crowd in attendance a very interesting battle.

The new champion pressed her opponent with regular long hard shots which forced Louise Fernet to commit several errors.

Then with varying types of shots, she quickly picked up points and won the match due to superior skill on the court.

The men's singles finals get underway this evening at 8:00. Richard Royer goes up against his brother Raymond who is the defending champion. In the doubles matches, the two Royer brothers meet Yves Laberge and Michel Rivard in the semifinals while the winner of the match goes on to meet Claude Metras and Denis Royer.

Eastern Townships Tennis Tourney To Start Tuesday Night, August 9

The Eastern Townships Tennis Tournament is scheduled to start Tuesday night, August 9 at the Sherbrooke Tennis Association Courts on Fraser Street.

This is the most important undertaking of the local tennis group and it will include five categories of play - men's singles and doubles, women's singles and doubles, and the mixed doubles.

Association members are reminded that their names are automatically registered and they must give the name of their partner to Claude Metras at the Club.

Other amateur tennis enthusiasts may take part in the annual event by sending their names and addresses to Codere Lee or to Boisvert and Fils. A $1.00 fee must be accompanied with the entry.

This annual senior meet puts together the best tennis players of the Townships from such centres as Granby, Sherbrooke, Waterloo, Thetford, Megantic, Victoriaville, Drummondville, Asbestos, Windsor, Brompton, and East Angus. Officials of the tourney expect over 200 participants at the event this year.

Entrants are asked to obey rules of etiquette regarding tennis and are reminded that, if they are more than 15 minutes late for their scheduled match, they will lose by default. All starting times for the matches will be released in plenty of time for participants.

If, for a serious reason, a player cannot take part in the tournament at the allotted times of his matches, he or she, is asked to let the directors of the tourney know at least 24 hours in advance of the match.

The addresses of the two tournament directors are: Jean-Louis de Leseleuc, 1369 St. Gilles, Sherbrooke and Claude Metras, 123 Ontario, Sherbrooke. The telephone number of the club is Lo. 9-5445.

Dotted Swiss Easily Wins $109,200 Sunset Handicap; Nickel Boy Second

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (CP)—Dotted Swiss, Cornelius V. Whitney's big chestnut colt, completed one of the finest seasons in California track history Monday when he easily won his second $100,000 added race on the final day of the 55-day Hollywood Park meet.

He scored by nearly four lengths in the $109,200 Sunset Handicap over the one-mile, five-furlong distance. When jockey Eddie Burns let the 3-5 favorite loose, the four-year-old speedster swept to victory by 3 1/2 lengths over Nickel Boy from the Elmhurst Farm.

Johnny Longden came in third on the pacesetter, Turin, in the field of seven. Dotted Swiss paid $3.20, $2.60 and $2.40; Nickel Boy $5.80 and $4, and Turin $3.60.

The 19th running of the Sunset Handicap was witnessed by a crowd estimated at 40,000.

WON THE GOLD CUP

Dotted Swiss' victory followed by a little more than a week his triumph in the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup. He thus became the fourth horse in the track's history to take the two big races for handicap performers. Cover Up in 1947, Swaps in 1956 and Gallant Man in 1958 turned the trick.

Dotted Swiss, son of Counterspoint, carried 120 pounds against 107 in the Gold Cup, but he won even more easily. His time was 2:40 1-5, just two seconds slower than the track and world record set by Swaps in 1956.

It was the fifth straight victory of the meeting for the Whitney colt and brought his owner $63,100 and a total of $194,250 for the entire Hollywood Park season.

Bruce Fry Tops Field In Qualifying 18-Hole Round Of Quebec Junior Golf

MONTREAL (CP)—Bruce Fry of Montreal Summerlea carded a 76 for 18 holes Monday to top the field in the qualifying round for the Quebec junior golf championships at nearby Laval-sur-le-Lac.

Sixteen young golfers in the 16-18 age group shot 81 or less to qualify for 36 holes of match play to start today. The final round is to be played Wednesday.

Tied for second place behind Fry, an 18-year-old high school student, were three players. Andre Gingras of Quebec City's Orleans Club, Gordon LeRiche of Montreal Hampstead and Peter Winsby of Summerlea all shot 77.

Emile Griffith Wins Decision Over Fernandez

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile Griffith showed dazzling footwork and speed of hand Monday night in winning a unanimous decision over Argentina's Jorge Fernandez in a 10-round boxing match at Madison Square Garden. Griffith weighed 150 pounds to Fernandez' 148 1/2.

There were no knockdowns in the hard-fought rematch of a disputed June 3 battle that almost touched off a riot at St. Nicholas Arena.

All three officials called this the same way, making Griffith the winner by a 5-4-1 margin in rounds.

In the final analysis, Fernandez lost the fight when he was penalized in the fourth round for repeated low blows. Referee Al Berl warned him twice and then took away the round which he appeared to have won otherwise.

Brompton Royals To Visit Fuller At Municipal Stadium, Gametime Is 8:30

Brompton Royals visit Fuller this evening in a Junior Baseball League tilt slated to start at 8:30 in the Municipal Stadium. The result of tonight's game will not change the standings as regards position.

The Royals are in an almost hopeless situation at the present as they are deep in the cellar position with over half the season finished. Fuller, on the other hand, has a chance to pull further upward into the top two spots by the end of the year and they are not finished by any means.

Brompton was blanked 3-0 Sunday by the Coaticook Canadians and, even though they put up a good fight, the Brompton club was simply outplayed. However, the Royals still have such players as Maurice Audet and Mike Raymond who add plenty of punch to an already well-formed team.

Fuller - Hamel's squad - put up an excellent battle on Sunday night when the Indians pulled off two homers to take the tilt 2-1. It was a heart-breaking loss for the Fuller nine and tonight they should be out there battling with all their worth. Bob Desrochers of Fuller, who was suspended for the duration of Sunday evening's game, will be back in the starting lineup and his presence will certainly be noticed as Bob is one of the steadiest and most reliable players on the team.

Spectators are cordially invited to attend tonight's tilt and should be in for some good Junior League ball. Attendance of late has been picking up and league officials, as well as the teams, hope for a continued rise in interest in the League.

Bucs Drop Cards 4-2, Take Half-Tilt Lead Over Second-Place Milwaukee

They said the trouble with the Pittsburgh Pirates is that they're just a bunch of singles hitters. They lacked the ingredient that helps win pennants i.e. the long ball.

So what did the Bucs do about getting back to first place Monday night? They banged out three home runs and halted the oncoming St. Louis Cardinals with a 4-2 victory that gave them a half game lead over the idle second place Milwaukee Braves.

Bill Virdon, Bob Skinner and Roberto Clemente provided the long ball. Virdon hit his homer in the sixth. The blow came off Larry Jackson and tied the score at 1-1. Pittsburgh went ahead 2-1 in the sixth and St. Louis tied it 2-2 in the seventh, when Jackson went out for a pinch hitter.

In the eighth, with Ronnie Kline, a former Pirate on the mound, Skinner hit one into the seats to regain the lead for the Pirates. Then, for insurance, Roberto Clemente homered in the ninth and relief artist Elroy Face came in to seal Bob Friend's 11th triumph of the season.

REDS WIN HECTIC GAME
In the only other game scheduled in either league, the Cincinnati Reds overcame a 5-0 deficit to defeat the Chicago Cubs 6-5. The Cincinnati 1-1 triumph, achieved with two runs in the ninth, climaxed an action-packed game in which Ernie Banks of the Cubs was carried off the field after being hit with a pitch and Cincinnati pitcher Joe Nuxhall had to be restrained from assaulting umpire Ed Vargo. Banks, batting against Don Novicomb in the second inning, was struck on the left knee by a pitch. He fell writhing to the ground and it was feared he had suffered serious injury. Examination showed only a bruise and he was expected to be in the lineup today for his 580th consecutive game.

Nuxhall's big blowup came in the eighth when George Altman, who had hit a three-run homer off Newcomb earlier, beat out an infield hit. Nuxhall, covering first on the play, took the throw from first baseman Gordon Coleman. When Varga called Altman safe, Nuxhall charged him and nearly knocked him off his feet.

Manager Fred Hutchinson had to restrain Nuxhall. Then Billy Martin and Coleman jumped on the southpaw pitcher and wrestled him to the ground.

The Cubs carried a 3-0 lead into the seventh when a walk and two singles gave Cincinnati a run. Cub starter Bob Anderson was shelved in a three-run eighth sparked by singles by Eddie Kasko and Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson's double.

The victory snapped a four-game losing streak for the Reds. The loss for the last place Cubs put them a game and half behind the seventh place Philadelphia Phillies.

Richmond Solid In Second, Downs Bisons 3-2; Montreal, Toronto Lose

Like any enterprising organization, the Richmond Vees are trying to strengthen and consolidate their position.

For them it is second place in the International League, and today they have the spot for at least two more games after Monday night's 3-2 victory over third-place Buffalo. The two meet twice more this week but Richmond will stay in second place no matter what happens.

First-place Toronto, 13 games in front, left before Jersey City 3-4 while Rochester edged Columbus 7-4 in 15 innings on home runs by Jim Frey and Ben Mateosky. Miami defeated Montreal 5-1.

Richmond scored three runs with two out in the fourth inning against loser Bud Podbielan, making his first start for the Bisons. Winner Gary Blaylock doubled in the first run, and scored along with Wayne Terwilliger, a moment later on Jim Pisoni's single.

Jersey City erased a 3-1 deficit with four runs in the eighth inning against Toronto and loser Steve Ridzik (10-6). Jersey City bunched four hits, two errors, a pair of walks and a hit batsmen to do the damage. Bob Miller (8-9) was the winner in relief. Jim Pendleton homered for Jersey City and Ridzik hit one for Toronto.

Frey's homer, his eighth, came after he failed twice to sacrifice Ellis Burton along. Mateosky then followed with his eighth home run, both coming against losing reliever George Spencer. Burton hit a two-run homer for Rochester in the 13th but the Jets tied it on Pidge Browne's single, a triple by Ray Mejias and Dick Gray's single. Bob Tiefenauer won his eighth in nine decisions. Leon Wagner also had a two-run inside-the-park homer for the Wings.

Miami outfielder Leo Burke's home run broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh and Dick Brown added a two-run shot in the eighth as Rodolfo Arias scattered seven Montreal hits. Babe Birrer lost.

Bill Skowron Leads AL Batting Race While Norm Larker Heads National

NEW YORK (AP)—Nellie Fox isn't having nearly as good a season as he did a year ago. Neither is Luis Aparicio nor Early Wynn.

So, why are Chicago White Sox holding down first place in the American League?

Minnie Minoso's consistent hitting had a lot to do with it. So has Roy Sievers' run-producing ability. However, the major reason could be the unexpected comeback of Al Smith.

Smith batted only .237 in 1959. Last week he hit his 1963 average nine points to .322 with 11 hits in 26 tries. The 32-year-old outfielder trails only batting leader Bill Skowron of New York, .334 and Minoso, the runner-up at .323.

Smith finished with a .306 mark for Cleveland in 1958. He slumped to .274 and .247 in his next two campaigns with the Indians and then wound up at .232 in 1958—his first year with the White Sox.

IN THIRD SPOT
Minoso gained eight points in last week's action. He had 12 safeties in 30 at bats and climbed from third place.

Skowron enjoyed his best week of the season while his club dipped into second place behind the defending league champions. The muscular first baseman boosted his average 24 points on the strength of 16 hits in 28 trips (a .571 pace).

The National League batting race has developed into a two-man affair between Norm Larker of Los Angeles and Willie Mays of San Francisco. Both lost ground last week. Larker slumping seven points to .344 and Mays five points to .343. The figures include Sunday's games. Larker had six hits in 21 times at bat and Mays had 6-for-22.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee took over the senior circuit's home run lead from Chicago's Ernie Banks. The Braves' star slammed four homers, giving him 38 for the campaign. Banks had only a single circuit blow, putting his total at 27. Banks, however, maintained his lead in runs batted in with 80—four more than Aaron.

MARIS HOMER PACE
Roger Maris continued to pace the American League in home runs with 31 and RBI, 78. Skowron is second in RBI with 67 followed by Jim Gentile of Baltimore and Minoso with 61 apiece and Jim Lemon of Washington, 60.

Sievers, a .305 batter, has driven in 55 runs. Fox, the AL's most valuable player in 1959 when he hit .306, is down to .270. Aparicio's average is .251 while Wynn a 22-game winner last year, has only five 1960 victories.

LIVELY WEEKEND
Piersall—who got a rest earlier this season on orders of the Cleveland management—jeered and chatted with fans, harassed umpires and squatted behind the centre field flat pole during the weekend series. He ripped off electric wiring on a dugout water cooler. He also got five hits, including two home runs.

Piersall's teammates reportedly are irked by his ballpark antics. Some charged it has brought the team to the verge of revolt.

Jim Piersall Vows That Pranks Are Over; Draws $100 Fine, No Suspension

BOSTON (AP)—Cleveland outfielder Jim Piersall, after a weekend of wild antics at Boston's Fenway Park, got some fatherly advice Monday from American League president Joe Cronin.

The fiery Piersall, having his best American League season, emerged from Cronin's office subdued and vowing that his umpire-baiting and ball park pranks are over.

Piersall could have been suspended, but Cronin said there was no talk of that. "All I am interested in is what is going to happen in the future, not what has gone by," Cronin said.

He added they had "rather a personal talk." It wasn't their first.

Piersall suffered a mental breakdown in 1952, and Cronin, then Red Sox general manager, helped him during that crisis. Piersall went from Boston to Cleveland in a 1958 trade.

ADmits MISTAKE
After Monday's talk, Piersall told newsmen "I am wrong in this situation. From now on I'm just going to play baseball."

Said Cronin: "That's all he has to do, because he is a fine ballplayer. It's a shame that his antics detract from his ballplaying."

Piersall wound up the half-hour meeting by handing Cronin a $100 cheque. It covered a fine levied by the league president after the Cleveland centre fielder got into a heated argument with umpire Ed Hurley Saturday.

Cronin, who watched on television, said Piersall made obscene gestures. The ballplayer denied that.

From far enough back

The best place to study the potential break in a green is from far enough back of the ball to get a general appreciation of the entire green's contour tendencies and a specific impression of the contour or contours over which the ball must roll.

Many times you won't be able to pick out a break by studying the line of the putt, but you will notice a break tendency by studying the left and right edges of the green and noting the high and low side.

Few greens are entirely flat.

NEXT: Uniform putting speed.

Pressed the button

After 39 years, a simple action marks timing, building perfection

On July 1, 1958, Dr. Otto Holden pressed a button.

With that simple action he marked his most dramatic experience in a 47-year career with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

The button did a big job—it set off the charge that blew up the coffer dam that loosed the water which was to create the new Lake St. Lawrence and set into operation the St. Lawrence power and seaway project.

PERFECT TIMING

It was also dramatic because the exact date of the button-pushing had been set four years before when the first sod was turned, and the ceremony marked a perfection of timing.

As chief engineer for Ontario Hydro for most of the period, Dr. Holden was in charge of general design on the Canadian side of the power job, and was in continuous negotiation with the New York Power Authority, the seaway authorities, the International Joint Commission and many other bodies.

Work on the St. Lawrence river-bottom had to proceed in such a manner that it would not affect the levels of Lake Ontario nor interrupt the flow of water downstream—and navigation had to be maintained through the existing 14-foot canals.

Commenting on the experience in an interview just before his retirement on July 15, Dr. Holden said:

"It called for close scheduling of every operation and interlocking arrangements with the contractors and all other interests—watching everybody's progress and seeing that things were done in their proper sequence."

CREDIT TO TEAM

Then, lest he be given too much credit, Dr. Holden—a quiet, almost shy, mannered man, with a warm smile that lights up his face—added:

"Such jobs are not the product of any one person but of a team—and no one, no matter who he is, is better than the team he has with him."

"One of the most memorable things was the wonderful partners we had in the New York Power Authority—Robert Moses, chairman; W. S. Chapin, general manager; J. B. McMorran, chief engineer, and all their staff.

"There were no frictions, no quibbling. We spent $600,000,000 together and we are all good friends. We started the water flowing July 1 and it was at operation level July 4—so we celebrated both national holidays."

To Dr. Holden the St. Lawrence project may be his most dramatic moment, but to his co-workers and friends it was just the culmination of a career of many accomplishments. One friend commented:

"His work is all over Ontario—and he can't be given too much credit for what he did on the St. Lawrence. As a citizen he is top; as a man and an engineer he is the ultimate in integrity; at all levels he generates warmth with a smile; he greets an office boy the same way as he would the head of a firm. And, behind the twinkle in his eye, he is a diplomat too—he knows when to press and when to give."

YOUNG RECRUIT

As a young engineer just out of the University of Toronto, Dr. Holden joined the hydraulic section of Ontario Hydro as a draughtsman in 1913.

In that year Hydro had at its disposal a capacity of 57,770 horsepower, all of it purchased from other companies. Today its capacity is some 8,250,000 horsepower—90 per cent of which it develops itself.

Dr. Holden's career has been part of that growth and his hand as a designer and engineer may be seen at Niagara and the Ottawa River as well as on the St. Lawrence, and wherever Hydro has set a plant. One plant on the Ottawa River is named after him.

He became chief hydraulic engineer in 1937; assistant general manager, engineering, in 1947.
