How can you discipline media, says Trudeau

Bandits pondering ways to spend $3.54 million

PARIS (AP) — Somewhere today four bandits sit and consider their loot—17 tons of shiny new coins, worth $3.54 million. They may know what they're going to do with the heavy haul, but to others it's a mystery.

"You can't buy a chateau, a car or even a pair of crocodile shoes with bags of change," the newspaper L'Aurore reminds them in an open letter. "And even if you go out to celebrate your coup, the owner of the smallest cafe will start to suspect before you drop the 10th coin on the bar."

"Please write to us and tell us how on earth you are going to get rid of it," the newspaper suggests.

The gangsters hijacked a truck carrying the coins as it left the Gare de Lyon railway station here Thursday, headed for the Paris headquarters of the Bank of France. The coins were in a container that had been shipped by rail overnight from a mint in southern France.

COINS NOT GUARDED

Identical to thousands of other containers on the French rail system, it was deliberately left unguarded so it would not attract attention. It was labelled "fabricated metal" and, the bank said, it was insured only for the value of the metal in the coins, not their monetary value, which is higher.

The loot was largely in 10-franc pieces, each worth about $2. They were recently put into circulation to replace notes and have proved unpopular with the public because they are smaller than coins of half the value and are confusing in a pocketful of change.

The driver, Jean Trotin, 51, said he simply rolled his truck into the Gare de Lyon freight yard, the container was loaded onto the rig in 15 minutes, and he drove out, unarmed and alone.

The hijackers, who officials said must have been following a carefully devised plan based on inside information, got an unexpected break when another truck stalled in front of Trotin's rig.

The gang grabbed the two drivers as they talked, drove off with them and the truck and released them 30 minutes later. Meanwhile, one of the bandits disappeared with the truck into the traffic of Paris.

ROBBERS RELAXED

"They didn't hit me or molest me," said the coin truck driver, Jean Trotin, 51. "They were relaxed, whistling in the car as they drove out to the outskirts of town. They seemed to know exactly where they were going."

A special anti-gangster brigade today led police in a search of the greater Paris area, looking for a hideout big enough to hold the container while it was unloaded.

Police said the driver of the stalled truck was not guilty of any complicity.

One official said a small number of people would have known of the shipment, which bank sources said was an unusual way to transport coins. This heightened police suspicions that an insider conspired with the thieves.

Trotin said the two gangsters were in their 30s, two dark-haired and two blonde.

Comments L'Aurore: "Their punishment is included in their success."

"They will have to spend their loot franc by franc. They can buy millions of bottles of soft drink. But what else?"

OTTAWA (CP) — The government would not know how to discipline the news media even if it wanted to, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

Accusing those who fear government control of the press of "pathological paranoia," Trudeau asked his weekly news conference, "How do you discipline the media?"

Journalists from the parliamentary press gallery concentrated heavily at the news conference on questions about themselves, more particularly about whether the government felt they were doing their jobs as they should or whether they were seen as subversive.

"I am very satisfied with the media," Trudeau said in answer to a reporter who appeared to be seeking reassurance.

"Do you think we are doing a good job?" the reporter asked.

"Super!" the prime minister replied with tongue in cheek.

And are the media putting forth the message of Canadian unity satisfactorily?

"To the best of your ability," the prime minister replied.

Trudeau tried to dissociate himself from some of the wording used in the recently tabled report on the role of broadcasting toward Canadian unity written by Harry Boyle, chairman of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

He said Boyle might have been guilty of exaggeration in using such terms as "journalistic malpractice" and "subversive propaganda" in the report, but he did not disavow Boyle's sentiments.

"He has used these words. I won't even use them now because I may be accused of using them too often, but this is what Mr. Boyle said. God bless him."

Trudeau said the media are bound by laws of libel and defamation, and some censorship is exercised to restrict portrayal of sex or violence.

He said CBC president Al Johnson's suggestion to set up a press council was a good idea because it is a form of self-discipline for the press, which is preferable to having discipline imposed.

ADMITTED MISTAKE

Trudeau admitted frankly he was wrong when he said the Quebec government's information offices were distributing separatist propaganda.

But he said nobody should be upset that the government is about to set up a special information agency to show that "Canada is not such a bad place," or that a group of civil servants was established to collect information showing the benefits of federalism.

Commenting on recent postal disruptions, Trudeau said further declines in service would lead to private courier services having an increased share of lucrative intercity business and postal workers would be the ultimate losers.

He said he has used private services to have things sent to him from Montreal because "you are sure to get them."

"By the mail, you know, it takes days," he said.

Trudeau accused Quebec Premier Rene Levesque of proposing his deal on minority language rights to the other premiers only to save face inside Quebec because some ministers have pushed him too far and he realizes he might have to back down on some aspects of his controversial language legislation.

He said Levesque's move shows the premier "believes he was dead wrong" with the legislation.

On other matters, Trudeau said:

—A decision to build a northern pipeline will be the subject of a bill in Parliament rather than being decided only by cabinet.

—The government plans to let the Canadian dollar continue to float freely on world markets. The lower value helps exports, he said.

—He hopes conditions will allow a resumption of nuclear assistance to India.

—He is in good health, and he plans a summer vacation with his three children.

US, Britain and Soviets to meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Thursday that the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union will begin preliminary talks Oct. 3 aimed at completely banning all nuclear testings.

Carter also told a news conference broadcast across the country that he believes Israel's move to legalize settlements on former Arab lands in the West Bank area has set up "obstacles to peace." But he called them "obstacles which I think we can overcome."

He said he hopes the nuclear talks, to be held in Geneva, might lead to other countries also agreeing to ban all nuclear testing.

"It is my hope," he said, "that sufficient basis for agreement can be reached that all other nations of the world will join us in the ultimate prohibition against testing of nuclear devices."

More than 100 countries—including the United States, Soviet Union and Britain—have agreed not to explode any nuclear device above ground, underwater or in outer space. China is the only country currently exploding nuclear devices in the atmosphere.

NEED RATIFICATION

Treaties also have been reached between the United States and the Soviet Union limiting the explosive power of underground atomic tests and banning underground tests except for peaceful purposes. However, the U.S. Senate has not yet ratified these agreements and they are not officially in effect.

There is no ban or pending ban on underground testing for peaceful purposes. Both the United States and the Soviet Union have exploded numerous underground bombs in recent years.

Other topics discussed during the 35-minute news conference included:

—The projected U.S. annual trade deficit of $25 billion is due wholly to oil imports and, in Carter's view, underscores the need for a national energy conservation program.

—Having interviewed six candidates to succeed Clarence Kelley as FBI director, the president said he feels no pressure to act quickly and "we reserve the right to interview more in the future if we like."

—Carter favors new congressional charters to spell out the responsibilities of the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency.

—Despite planned fresh arms shipments to the Middle East, Carter remains committed to restraining arms sales and expects them to drop in the coming year.

HURT PROSPECTS

Asked whether he believes Middle East peace prospects are hurt by Israel's decision to legalize three settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River, Carter replied:

"Yes, I think that any

2,500 demonstrators hold march to Robin Hood mill

MONTREAL (CP) — About 2,500 chanting demonstrators marched peacefully to the Robin Hood Multifoods Ltd. flour mill Thursday night to add their voices to the protests against last Friday's shooting of eight striking workers at the mill.

At the head of the demonstration were five of the shooting victims, who sat in wheelchairs and were pushed by fellow strikers the length of the route.

Trade unionists from Quebec's three major labor federations as well as union representatives from Ontario, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan were present.

But a majority of the marchers came from Quebec's radical left, including several Maoist and Trotskyite groups chanting slogans critical of the capitalist system and the Parti Quebecois government.

Three security guards hired by the company face charges in connection with the shooting.

Trade unionists from Ontario told the crowd that a boycott of Robin Hood products will be launched presently by some union locals in that province to put pressure on Robin Hood to settle with its strikers.

Robin Hood president Logan Brown stepped out of a meeting with Labor Minister John Munro in Ottawa Thursday to say the company was ready to negotiate.

Meanwhile, the Canadian wheat board revoked special permits in force since the strike began in February which allowed Robin Hood to import flour from the United States to compensate for lost production here.

The strike was launched to protest against a wage rollback ordered by the anti-inflation board.

Hatfield puts language on agenda

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick has agreed to put the question of reciprocal agreements on minority language education rights on the agenda of next month's provincial premiers' conference.

Hatfield emerged from a meeting with Quebec Premier Rene Levesque Thursday saying he was willing to discuss Levesque's proposal. "I think it is important that we have discussion on this."

He said his original reaction to the proposal was, "as a matter of principle, it seems to me not a desirable thing to do." Nevertheless, he still wanted to discuss the question of minority language mobility.

"I believe it should be recognized as a matter of right to have English and French as languages of instruction in this country," Hatfield said.

Hatfield, host of the premiers conference, also said he was pleased that Levesque had changed his mind and would attend, accompanied by Inter-governmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin. Levesque had previously said he would not make it for the Aug. 18-20 meeting because of legislative commitments.

WANTS SAFEGUARD

Hatfield said he would like to see his province's official language act entrenched in the Canadian constitution.

because "an act of the legislature can be easily repealed."

Levesque told the news conference he is still optimistic that there can be useful discussion of Quebec's proposal, despite negative replies from some provinces, notably Ontario.

"I'm not discouraged at all," he said.

Levesque wrote to the premiers last week telling them Quebec would be willing to allow English-speaking newcomers to Quebec from other provinces to attend English schools if French schools were available in the provinces for migrating Quebecers.

Under Quebec's proposed language law, all newcomers to Quebec, from the rest of Canada as well as from abroad, would have to send their children to French schools.

RIGHTS ACKNOWLEDGED

Ontario Premier William Davis said on Wednesday that language rights for minorities should be accepted as a matter of principle.

The Quebec premier said Davis's response was "sweet and sour" and "ambiguous."

Levesque also saw what he described as a "very promising" opening in a reply received by his office from Saskatchewan Premier Alan Blakeney.

Hatfield said he and other premiers were concerned about the impact an agreement with Quebec may have on the Parti Quebecois government's plan for political independence in association with the rest of Canada.

And he added: "I think it is very important if we are going to keep Canada strong and united that we understand the position of the premier of Quebec."

Levesque said there have already been agreements in the area of minority language education, signed in 1969 by Unio Nationale premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand with his counterparts in Ontario and New Brunswick.

"So it's not unprecedented except in Mr. Trudeau's and other people's panicky reactions."

Prime Minister Trudeau has urged the premiers to reject Levesque's proposals. He says minority language education rights should be protected in a revised constitution.

Levesque also said the rejection of his proposal by some premiers, notably Alex Campbell of P.E.I., may be for political reasons.

"P.E.I., after all, gets a lot of its parallel revenue, including education money, from the federal government."

The premier also squelched rumors that his government was considering dividing the language bill and leaving controversial education provisions for adoption later this year.

Quebec to hold "mini-summit" meetings

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government will hold a series of "mini-summit" meetings this September to discuss the province's troubled textile, clothing, footwear and furniture industries, says Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry.

In an interview published today in Le Devoir, Landry said the meetings will enable government and industry to discuss specific issues more precisely than was possible at last spring's conference of government, labor and business leaders at La Malbaie, northeast of Quebec City.

The earlier meeting, which included representatives from all economic sectors rather than specific industries, was billed as a "Quebec economic summit" but produced little in the way of concrete policy proposals.

Landry said the September meetings will take the form of four successive day-long conferences, each dealing with a single industry.

He said the government will not be content this time, as it was at La Malbaie, to merely solicit opinions from businessmen, unions and consumer groups.

"We already have a lot of data, particularly in the textile field, and we will propose our own hypotheses," he said.

The minister said the government might try to work out with other participants a "common approach to the federal government" in policy matters affecting the four industries.

It has not been decided whether the meetings will be open to reporters.

Clothing and footwear manufacturers have been particularly hard hit by foreign competition in recent years, while furniture and textile mills have suffered to a lesser but still significant extent.

Landry noted that progress in other sectors such as chemicals and transport has been offset by layoffs and plant closures in the four "soft" sectors.

Six shot at Miami, two survivors are under police guard

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two people who survived the slayings of their six companions are under police guard today.

Margaret Wooden, 24, who escaped the killers by feigning death after a bullet grazed her head, was placed under police protection Thursday as a key witness.

Johnny Hall, 45, who was at the ranch-style house for a rock band rehearsal on Wednesday when the killers struck, was in serious condition with a gunshot wound to the head. Police were guarding his hospital room.

"The female victim is being guarded by police," said a spokesman for Dade County police. "We are not giving any information on her location or her interviews with investigators. She's the only witness we have at this time."

The shootings took place in a middle-class section seldom troubled by crime.

Neighbors reported seeing three men leaving the area at the time of the shooting.

Investigators said robbery was a possible motive, but an expensive stereo system was left behind. A television set was moved but left near the door.

Police earlier quoted Miss Wooden as saying she had been alone in the home of Livingston Stocker when a man came to the door saying he was a repairman for Florida Power and Light Co.

She told police the man bound her and let an unknown number of other persons into the house.

As Stocker and others arrived, they were captured, bound and shot.

Miss Wooden fled to a neighbor's house when the men left and called the police. An anonymous caller also reported the killings.

Robin Hood returns to bargaining table

OTTAWA (CP) — Management of Robin Hood Multifoods Ltd. of Montreal agreed Thursday to return to the bargaining table to try to bring an end to a bitter, five-month long strike marked by the shooting of eight strikers last week.

The agreement followed a meeting that lasted more than two hours between federal Labor Minister John Munro and Logan Brown, president of the company's Montreal mill.

The company had refused to negotiate with the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) since early spring. The strike of about 130 workers at the mill began in February after the anti-inflation board rolled back a negotiated wage increase.

Following the meeting, Munro's officials told reporters the minister assured the company that he would not endorse a national boycott of Robin Hood products.

Munro also told reporters he did not use the meeting as a platform to discuss Robin Hood's use of armed guards to protect the plant.

A discussion of some of the bitterness that has surrounded the strike is not conducive to getting the parties back to the bargaining table, Munro said.

MONEY TALKED

He and his officials indicated that Robin Hood's decision to return to negotiations were heavily influenced by financial considerations.

Earlier Thursday, the Canadian wheat board ended its special permits to Robin Hood which allowed it to import semi-finished flour products during the strike.

Also, two of Robin Hood's competitors—Phenix Flour Ltd. and Ogilvie Mills Ltd.—have reached agreement with their striking workers and resumed production Wednesday.

Robin Hood has kept its plant in operation during the dispute by using management personnel and non-union workers hired since the start of the strike.

Later, Munro's officials said a third Montreal flour mill, Maple Leaf Mills Ltd., is also on the verge of settling its strike.

Roland Doucet, federal mediator in the flour mill disputes, said a settlement at Maple Leaf could be reached as early as next week.

SHOOTING WAS FACTOR

Beside financial considerations, the key factor in Robin Hood's decision to

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was fractionally higher at the close of light trading Thursday after rebounding from Wednesday's sharp decline of almost 13 points.

The TSE 300 index was up .93 to 1,033.61 at the close following its recovery from an early drop of more than four points.

Analysts attributed the reversal to the spectacular turnaround at New York, where the Dow Jones index was up 1.64 to 890.07. In Wednesday's trading, the Dow had declined 19.75 to 888.43, its lowest in more than 13 months. The drop was a record dating back to May 6, 1975.

Among the TSE 300's four most heavily-weighted groups, metals and minerals shot up eight points to 996.30 and oil and gas issues rose 7.76 to 1,216.21. Financial services slipped 67 to 954.32 and industrial products 21 to 913.85.

Transportation stocks led the five gainers among the other 10 groups within the 14-unit composite index, while consumer products were the biggest of the five losers.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed in active trading Thursday as the market struggled to recover its balance after a steep three-day slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 1.56 at 889.99 after bouncing around erratically throughout the session.

What stocks did:

	Thurs. Wed.
Advances	608 262
Declines	842 1,327
Unchanged	430 320
Totals	1,880 1,909

NYSE volume came to 2.34 billion shares.

The Dow had taken a 19.75-point beating Wednesday for its largest loss in more than two years, extending its decline since the start of the week to more than 35 points and finishing at an 18-month low.

Brokers said the depressed prices of the average's blue chip components attracted some cautious buying and covering of previous short sales. But they noted that traders still were bracing for some expected adverse news in the monthly U.S. government report on the index of leading economic indicators.

Another piece of news confronting the market was a hefty $5-billion rise in the basic measure of the money supply reported by the Federal Reserve at the NYSE close.

Some experts said the upsurge was at least partly the result of special one-time factors. But the question remained whether the data will raise new fears among stock traders of tighter board credit policy and a resulting rise in short term interest rates.

Standard and Poor's index of 400 industrials gained 22 to 108.44, and its 500-stock composite index rose .15 to 98.79.

Industrials showing gains included Allied Chemical, up 1 3/4 at 47 3/4.

Thousands of Ontario youths in provincial make-work program

TORONTO (CP) — More than 11,400 young people across Ontario are participating in the provincial government's summer job creation program, Experience '77.

Cindy Greeniaus, information co-ordinator for the Ontario youth secretariat program, said that this year's $15-million program is the largest in its five-year history. In 1975 and 1976, 10 million and $12.1 million were spent to create 7,800 and 9,000 jobs respectively.

The ratio of applications to jobs was 30 to one, Miss Greeniaus said.

The program began May 1 and continues through Aug. 31. Sixty-three projects are involved, lasting from eight to 14 weeks, paying an average wage of $3 an hour.

FOLLOW STUDY LINES

Projects are created and supervised by various ministries, and are designed to enhance young persons' work or education experiences while providing community services.

"It's an ideal situation for a law student to get a job in a legal aid clinic," Miss Greeniaus said. "We have medical students working as ambulance drivers, and theatre students working at the Shaw Festival."

Other projects include cleanup operations, helping the elderly and the handicapped, and helping out in art galleries, libraries, museums, the Toronto Symphony and the Hamilton Philharmonic.

No age limit is placed on the participants, but they are usually 15 to 24 years old. Both students and those in the labor force are involved. Of students, 40 per cent are in high schools, 15 per cent in community colleges and 45 per cent in universities.

Applications were made through schools, libraries and Canada Manpower offices. In most cases, projects are run in co-operation with community agencies such as recreation committees, school boards, conservation authorities or boards of institutions.

At the end of September, reports on all projects will be sent to the youth secretariat by the ministries. Miss Greeniaus said the entire program will be evaluated to see if it should be continued next year.

Hydro sells bonds to Japanese banks

MONTREAL (CP) — Hydro-Quebec has sold about $80 million worth of bonds priced at par to six Japanese financial institutions led by Mitsubishi Bank and Trust Corp.

The provincially-administered utility said in a statement Wednesday the bonds, dated Sept. 28, carry an interest rate of 8.5 per cent and will be redeemed in seven quarterly payments beginning Sept. 20, 1989.

Hydro-Quebec will add the money raised to its general funds to finance its construction program, including the James Bay project.

POWER LINK — Picture shows laying operation underway recently on world's longest buried underwater three-phase power cables. Cable laying barge is "winched" across the 13 1/2 mile crossing by cables anchored to sea bottom. Two tugs were used to handle the anchors. The barge pulled a special plow along the sea bottom while the cable was simultaneously fed below the sea bed in the trench. Consulting engineers for the overall project were Montreal Engineering Company, Limited. Sieverts Kabelverk of Sweden carried out the underwater operation.

Underwater power cables laid to PEI

MONTREAL — What is believed to be the longest buried underwater power link of its type in the world has just been completed between Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. Two three-core cables, each weighing 1000 tons and each capable of carrying 100 MW of electric energy now span the 13 1/2 mile-wide Northumberland Strait between the two provinces.

The objective of the cable is to enable P.E.I. to be connected through the New Brunswick power system to mainland networks, thus giving the Island access to power surpluses from larger and more economical generating units and to future hydro, nuclear, tidal and coal-fired development. Electric power will flow to the Island by this September.

The reason for burying the cable was two-fold. In shallow water near the shores, there is danger of damages due to heavy ice, which scours the bottom under the influence of winds, currents, and tides. In these regions the cables are buried to a depth of six feet. In the deep water comprising most of the crossing, there is danger of fouling by fishing draggers. In this section the cable is buried an average of one foot under the sea bed.

Several years of intensive study culminated in the successful and hazardous sea operation just completed. A number of alternate methods of making the crossing were investigated by Montreal Engineering, the consultants who were responsible for the design and supervision of the overall system. The Northumberland Strait posed a combination of problems due to the length of the crossing, the nature of the sea bed, severe winter conditions and fishing activities. When the method of laying was established, tenders were called on the international market. Sieverts Kabelverk of Sweden, a subsidiary of L.M. Ericsson Ltd., and one of the most experienced firms in the world in the specialized field of marine cable crossings, was awarded the contract for the cable installation.

For the relatively short portion of the cable near the shore, eight miles of underwater trenches were dug using conventional dredges. However, for the crucial and much longer deep water section, a system was employed whereby the cables were laid and buried for the whole length in one continuous operation. Plowing such power cables below sea bottom is a relatively new development throughout the world. Enough cable for the two crossings was coiled on a large barge in two huge drums or "carrousel". The barge was "winched" across the Strait using anchors laid by two heavy-duty tugs. A total of eight winches on the barge was used during the operation. The barge, in turn, pulled the plow behind it along the bottom.

Simultaneously, the cable was fed through the plow and laid below the sea bed in the trench. Of great importance was an instrumentation system used to determine the cable was being buried. Engineers of Montreal Engineering and Sieverts Kabelverk collaborated on the highly sophisticated design of the plow, the plowing procedures and on the recording system.

The total cost of the power interconnection will be $36 million, of which $21 million was required for the underwater section. $18 million of the total is furnished by a DREE grant from the Federal Government, in addition to a $9 million loan. The remaining $9 million is from the Provincial Government. The link will be owned by the Prince Edward Island Government, who will lease it to Maritime Electric Company, the Island's power utility. The rent will eventually recover the cost of the project.

EYEFUL reflected in a trucker's sunglasses is Road Boss 2 tractor and trailer, a major factor in a 25 per cent increase in heavy-duty truck sales forecast by White Motor Corp.

US Bell strike warning given

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Communications Workers of America (CWA) announced Wednesday its 500,000 members will go on strike Aug. 7 against the Bell System in the United States if contract talks fail.

The strike date set Tuesday night during a meeting of the union's executive board coincides with the expiration of current three-year contracts between the Bell System and its unions.

The union rejected an initial contract offer from Bell on July 21 that would have provided a 10-per-cent wage increase, plus an additional 10 per cent in cost-of-living increases, over the next three years.

In addition to wages, a key issue in the talks is the unions' demand for added job security.

Much of the U.S. telephone system is highly automated, and a strike is not expected to disrupt phone service seriously.

Rock Forest Inquiry adjourns

Chief sold confidential information to detective firm for $10 a month

By ROBERT MACPHERSON
(Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — The Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the operations of the Rock Forest Police department has adjourned until Sept. 12.

Commission members Pierre Laforest and Judge Jean Drouin announced the date yesterday, during the third day of testimony.

The first two hours of yesterday's hearings were held behind closed doors, a continuation of the sensitive testimony given Wednesday.

Afterwards, with the gallery at the University of Sherbrooke law faculty building opened to the public again, former police chief Bernard Dumesnil spent the rest of the day in the witness box, where he described a resolution passed by the town's council in 1974 asking him for a report on a robbery at a Rock Forest Diner. The diner, called La Cantine Lucie, was broken into March 16. One month later, the proprietor, Leo Vaillancourt — also a Rock Forest councillor — complained in a letter to Mr. Dumesnil about the investigation's progress. Four days later, the resolution was passed.

After discussing the resolution with the Quebec Police Commission, Mr. Dumesnil said, he ignored it. The former chief resigned last November, after Mayor Alberic Dussault and councillors told him he had a choice between quitting or being relieved.

Mr. Dumesnil also told the inquiry that he had furnished confidential police information from the Quebec Police Information Center to a detective agency for no more than $10 a month.

He said he provided the information about 30 times before he left on a year-long sabbatical at the Quebec Police Institute in Nicolet in 1975.

He added that Richard Parenteau, the current acting director of the 11-member force, had also done the same thing.

Asked about any second jobs he had when he was chief, Mr. Dumesnil said he had been a school bus driver, drove a truck on a few occasions, did some investigative work for an insurance company, and spent a day surveilling a truck for its department store owners.

He wasn't satisfied with his salary of $250 a month, he said. But he stayed on because "I liked to work in Rock Forest."

Part of the morning's public hearing was taken up by discussion between lawyers and the commissioners about the scope of the inquiry's mandate to examine allegations of bad administration and incompetence in the force.

Raynald Frechette, the lawyer for Mr. Dumesnil, expressed fears that the inquiry might prejudice his client, even though it is not a trial.

"We have the firm intention to give equal interest to all the persons we shall hear," commissioner Laforest replied.

Sutton rock festival meeting with resistance

By ROBERT MACPHERSON
and NELSON WYATT (Record Reporters)

SUTTON — A weekend rock festival is slated to take place near here next month despite objections of residents who fear the impact it may have on the area.

An associate of George Alfano — a Sutton resident whose Iron Horse Productions company is promoting the "Music in the Meadows" show — said plans are still on to stage the event on Mr. Alfano's 160 acre farm on Aug. 12 and 13, even though the proper permit has not yet been received from the Quebec department of justice.

"We're not worried about it," said Vicki Davis in a telephone interview from Montreal last night.

Rather, she told The Record, priority is going towards booking such big-name attractions as Nannette Workman and Smokin' Road for the festival, which is expected to draw 5,000 people.

But she rejected fears expressed by residents that it would cause alcohol, narcotic and crowd control problems.

"It's annoying to us," she said of the objections. "It (the festival) is not going against anything."

She said security arrangements have already been discussed with the Quebec Police Force, local police and private security firms from Montreal who are experienced with rock concerts. And a six-foot high snow fence will be installed before the show begins.

The councils of both the town of Sutton and Sutton Township have already passed resolutions and sent letters to the department of justice objecting to the festival.

"We're afraid that if the government permits them to go on, there'll be nothing we can do," township mayor Bernard Benoit told The Record yesterday.

Added councillor Winston Bresee: "People wish it would be postponed forever."

"I live a half a mile away from the site, so I'm personally concerned about the situation," Mr. Bresee said, adding that while he felt the concept was good, there could be significant property damage and other problems.

He also envisaged traffic problems because there is only a secondary road leading to Mr. Alfano's farm.

Expressions of disapproval were also made by various local citizens associations, including the Sutton branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, which is planning its annual street festival the same weekend.

And Craig Cutler, station manager of the Montreal rock music radio station

CHOM-FM, told The Record his station began receiving telephone calls from residents when it began to broadcast commercials this week announcing the festival.

Mr. Alfano was reportedly in New York yesterday, seeking more bands for the festival.

In an interview with The Record earlier this week, he said he and his associates decided to launch the festival because there was not enough "decent entertainment" in the area.

He said the festival will start at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 12, with music continuing until 2 a.m. the following day.

Performances would resume again for 16 hours Aug. 13, from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. Sunday morning.

Three days of free campers will also be offered to those paying the $10 and $15 admission fees, he said.

A native of New York, Mr. Alfano has lived in the Sutton area for about three years and operates the Iron Horse Saloon, a nightclub adjoining his farm.

Recently he had a stage platform built over the club, intended for use during the festival.

Other artists expected include Baghdad, Tungsten Steel, Phase Two, Twilight, Boule Noire and Fussy Cussy.

Record forest fires

The Southern Quebec Conservation Corporation recorded its 100th forest fire this year compared to 40 during the entire 1976 season.

The Corporation's territory begins at the Montmagny-L'Islet county lines to the United States border and includes all of the province south of the St. Lawrence River to the Quebec - New York border at Dundee-Fort Kevington as well as Vaudeuil-Soulanges ctys. and Ile Perrot.

Morris Vanchesteing, inspector for the Cowansville sector told the Record the highest fire index in the area is in the Richelieu sector which includes Southern Quebec and Vaudeuil - Soulanges at 145 which indicates extreme danger. The normal high danger level acceptable to Association standards is 131.

Meanwhile he reported fire danger in the Cowansville and Sherbrooke sectors is low to normal.

Sherbrooke tribute unveiled in France

By JANET COTTON
(Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — Thirty-three years to the day they first set foot in war-stricken France, members of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers Regiment, 27th Canadian Armoured Regiment, returned for the unveiling of a monument in their honor at Sainte-Conteste-Buron.

Forty-three Fusiliers and many of their families attended the ceremony on June 5, 1977. It was the first time the men returned as a group since the end of World War II.

In early 1977 the Regiment received a letter from the mayor of St. Conteste saying they were the only unit who had participated in the French battles to whom no honorary monument was dedicated and asked the men for their assistance in establishing such a monument. Over $4,000 was received through donations from members who had served in the war. The Regiment also received a $1,000 donation from the city of Sherbrooke.

Officers who attended the ceremonies termed the reception of the French people as "unbelievable." Representatives from the government, armed forces and the public attended the unveiling after which an official breakfast was held in honor of the Canadian soldiers.

The next day, the men attended an official military

U of S rector to Quebec post

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial government has named University of Sherbrooke professor Yves Martin to head a committee which will study the question of contract negotiations in the public service, Premier Rene Levesque said Thursday.

Premier Levesque told a news conference the committee would study the right to strike in the public service, union organization and liberties, essential services, character of negotiations and dissemination of information.

Also named to the committee were Michel Grant, former negotiator for the Quebec Federation of Labor, and Lucien Bouchard, once a lawyer for the Cliche commission inquiry into violence in the construction industry.

The former Liberal government of Quebec had chronic problems in labor relations with its unionized government-paid workers, including teachers, nurses,

Police principles questionable

American journalist I.F. Stone once told a group of Montreal University students that being a policeman is not a profession but a disease.

The statement seemed harsh even when weighed against the violent demonstrations so common on campuses across the continent at the time. It was still in vogue at the time to refer to the men in blue as "pigs" and other electronically unprintable epithets flung in the face of frustration.

After living through a Quebec Police strike, a local Sherbrooke strike and hearing about last Friday's antics by local police, there are good grounds to consider that maybe the police, if not diseased, then they are perhaps a trifle morally inconsistent, to say the least.

Friday night's raids on a Sherbrooke brasserie, partially controlled by two city councillors and the subsequent harassment at the houses of the mayor and other councillors, raise questions about the supposed principles police are to work by.

Credit for the relative crimeless streets of Sherbrooke belongs in good measure to our police department. So, their contract hassles with the city do merit a degree of sympathy from residents who believe the police are doing a good job and deserve a better break from the city administration.

What is impossible to condone is when police act above the very law they have so often enforced with violence. Quebec's labour history is filled with bloody confrontations between workers and police, workers whose only crime was to assert their right not to work in the same manner both the QPF and the Sherbrooke police have done.

Mention Murdochville, Thetford Mines, Longueuil to dedicated unionists and watch the hair on their head stand up at the memory of how police dealt with workers.

But, while the police move with such high founded principles such as enforcing the law, it is disconcerting to see them turn around and violate those very same laws. Although moral perfection can't be expected from anyone, police should have the decency to respect the laws they so often enforce with apparent zeal.

Whether it's the QPF or the Sherbrooke police, citizens have the right to expect more from their police forces than a Jekyll and Hyde approach to law enforcement.

Reverend provides view of Townships 1817

By PHYLIS POCOCK

"The climate of these Townships is more mild than that of any part of the Province North of the River St. Lawrence; and the soil is, in general, very good and easy in cultivation".

So wrote Reverend Charles Stewart in 1817 in a pamphlet entitled "A short view of the Present State of the Eastern Townships." Reverend Stewart was an interesting and exceptional person whom I will write about more in another article. At the time he wrote his booklet, he was an Anglican minister in St. Armand and very concerned with existing conditions in the Townships, and offered hints for improvement.

He reckoned the population at 20,000 at that time. The settlers were almost entirely from the United States. In the St. Armand district many were of German extraction.

By that time cultivation was underway. Indian corn was popular and so was wheat. There were large quantities of potatoes from which potato whiskey was made. In St. Armand there were several apple orchards, and cider was made.

"It is hoped that in a course of a few years it will become a common beverage in all parts of the country" wrote Rev. Stewart. It would seem the settlers had found a way of easing the burdens of pioneering!

The making of maple syrup afforded them with sugar. Hemp was grown, not too successfully. The settlers found it profitable to manufacture potash too often neglecting their farms to produce it. Farming was not, for various reasons, too high a standard. One reason cited was "high cost of labour". Land sold for two to ten dollars an acre.

In general by 1817 the Townships were proving to be quite abundant in natural resources. In Sutton and Brome Mountain iron ore was mined and Sutton had an iron forge, black lead ore was found in Newport and Eaton.

There was a lack of suitable roads in the Townships at that time and this was a deterrent to settlement. There was a road constructed from Compton towards Three Rivers in 1809. In 1810 Sir James Craig oversaw the building of a road to Quebec. It was not well constructed and poorly maintained. So was the state of the Townships by 1817.

One could not write about Reverend Stewart who became the second Anglican Bishop of Quebec, without mentioning his connection with Hatley or as it was also known, Charleston.

He came to Hatley as a travelling missionary in 1818 and remained until 1821. He was instrumental in erecting a church there on what is now called "the North Road!" while in Hatley he boarded with Mr. E. Bacon and family.

This village was part of the land granted to Ebenezer Hovey and Henry Cull in 1803. It consisted of East Hatley, Massawippi and North Hatley; and partly of Magog. The associates consisted of:-

Job Chadsey, William Taylor, Samuel Rexford, Joel Hall Ives, Stephen Burch, Jonas Martin, Peter D. Blanchard, Paul Hitchcock, Asa Daggett, John Abott, Harvey Clarke, Japhet Le Barron, Joseph Fish, Joseph Ives, Benjamin Rexford, Chester Hovey, Chauncey Haycock, Reuben Martin, Abiel Abbott the younger, Amasa Merriman, Providence Williams, Joseph Davies, Eli Ives, Samuel Fish, Ems Mix, Isaac Rexford, Abiel Abbott the elder, Daniel Green, Reuben Simons, Jesse Wadleigh, David Chamberlain, Marin Adams, Edmund Boyden.

I will be writing about these associates and their descendants, along with other historical aspects of the Hatley Townships in following articles: next week, interesting notes on Hovey and Cull. If anyone has any interesting photographs they would like to share through this column, they would be welcomed!

Young people unwilling to make final commitment towards separation

By YARDENA ARAR

MONTREAL (CP) — "We're ready to give Canada a chance, but it's their last one," said the vivacious black-haired girl sitting in the University of Montreal cafeteria.

The 24-year-old graduate student in history, who identified herself simply as Solange, had just finished a lengthy, articulate exposition on reasons for Quebec independence.

She cited her support for the Parti Quebecois, the danger of French drowning in the sea of North America's overwhelmingly English culture, feelings of alienation when she travelled in other Canadian provinces, the wish of Quebecers to control their own destiny.

But when asked if she would vote yes in a referendum on independence, she shied away from a straight answer.

Solange's wait-and-see attitude is not uncommon among many young Parti Quebecois supporters queried in interviews throughout the province.

MAKE COMMITMENT

While most seemed well-versed in arguments for independence, more than a few were unwilling to make a firm personal commitment.

Yet the PQ strategy for achieving independence relies in good part on backing in an eventual referendum from the young French-speaking voters who gave the party massive support in the Nov. 15 provincial election.

Sherbrooke resident Yves Joannis, an 18-year-old furniture repairman and a PQ supporter "for as long as I can remember," put his reservations simply: "Everyone's a bit afraid of changing."

Francois Huot, 23, president of the student organization at University of Sherbrooke where he is a social science student, worked for the PQ during the election but says he doesn't know how he would vote in a referendum.

"Right now I feel there are more important issues," he said.

A survey taken just before the election showed support for independence among 18 to 24-year-olds at less than 38 per cent—about half of that age group's support for the PQ itself.

But the party's so-called theory of inevitability says that the group of those supporting independence will continue to grow as more young people reach the voting age of 18 so that sooner or later a referendum on independence will pass.

Members of the academic community do not all agree that this will be the case.

ATTRACTS YOUNG

McGill professor Richard Hamilton, an authority on Quebec voting patterns, said in a copyright article published recently in The Star and Le Devoir in Montreal that surveys show the independence movement has gained support among young people in the last few years.

But the same surveys indicate that the movement has lost followers in older age groups.

"There is nothing inevitable about the proportions of gains and losses" to support for independence, Hamilton wrote.

"People are free to 'stay with it' or to change their outlooks as they see fit, following among other things their assessment of the issues involved."

But political analyst Andre Bernard, who predicted the outcome of the Nov. 15 election almost to the percentage point, cited studies indicating that young people generally do not greatly change their political opinions after they first acquire the vote.

FEW CHANGE

Bernard, a political science professor at University of Quebec at Montreal, said studies on voting patterns in conjunction with age show that between 10 and 15 per cent of people voting for a given party at one election will not vote for that party at the next election.

Even if PQ—and independence—support suffers this standard loss, Bernard said, it will continue to grow over-all if new young voters continue flocking to the party and the independence movement in the same proportions they did in the last election.

Bernard gives little credence to the argument that many young PQ supporters will drop the party when they become older because they will find its policies—including Quebec independence—too radical.

Contrary to popular belief, Bernard said, people do not necessarily become more conservative as they grow older; rather, the values of society itself change.

"It is society which becomes more liberal," he said.

He maintained that if current demographic and voting trends hold, the PQ would probably narrowly lose a referendum held before 1980 but would "have a chance at carrying it off in 1980 or 1981."

Jacques Lazure, a University of Quebec at Montreal professor whose specialty is the sociology of youth, is also sure that a referendum will pass sooner or later.

"For many, independence is already a psychological fact," he said.

"They talk about this or that bill but not about independence the way they did in the '60s," he added.

NOT CONTENT

Meanwhile, the PQ government itself does not take for granted youth support for a referendum.

Claude Charron, Quebec's 30-year-old minister of youth, sport and recreation and a former political science teacher, admits the party will have to prove itself to get the youth vote.

"We're not going to get support from youth automatically," Charron said in an interview. "But we'll get it more readily from them than from others."

"The referendum will make everyone young!" he added with almost Messianic fervor.

Charron emphatically denied reports that the PQ is planning to lower the voting age to 16 in time for the referendum to take advantage of the pro-PQ youth sentiment. The cabinet has already decided against such a move, he said.

But demographic considerations are certainly being taken into account in discussions on timing of the vote.

"We feel that around 1980 Quebec will be at its most biologically dynamic point," he said.

MUST KEEP PROMISES

Charron expects the PQ will get young people to vote yes in its referendum if the provincial government fulfills its campaign promises of honesty, integrity and good government.

"If we don't let them down, particularly in the area of honesty, they'll support us," he said.

"On the other hand, if we don't change things, they'll say, 'Why should we give them more now?'"

EACH OF US HAS A CROSS TO BEAR

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — There is depressing, new evidence that some of the nation's great corporations are more concerned about their profits than the lives of their workers.

A federal study has found, for example, that 150,000 petroleum and petrochemical workers now risk their lives producing and processing benzene.

This grim study, conducted by the National Institute of Occupational Health and Safety, linked benzene to the deadly cancer leukemia. An alarmed Labor Dept. ordered strict standards to protect the workers.

"The evidence is overwhelming," declared Labor Secretary Ray Marshall. "The need to act is urgent." He, therefore, set tough, new limits on benzene exposure.

Yet the giant oil and chemical corporations, instead of rushing to protect the lives of their workers, consulted their ledgers and complained that the new standards would cost too much.

Result: These companies are now engaged in an intensive campaign to kill the government regulations. Their Washington lobbying organization, the American Petroleum Institute, is spreading the word.

"Extensive medical surveillance extending over many years," the institute is claiming, "has failed to uncover adverse health effects from benzene occupational exposure in the petroleum industry."

These reassuring claims, however, conflict with the published findings of the industry's own medical experts. As early as 1973, we have learned, corporate executives had been informed of the benzene hazards.

For example, Exxon's research director, Dr. Robert Eckhardt, warned four years ago: "The accumulation in the literature of cases... leads to the inevitable conclusion that benzene is a leukemogenic agent... More recent observations seem to

Washington Merry-go-round

Oil men put profits before lives

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten establish this association beyond a doubt."

A more recent study, commissioned by the American Petroleum Institute itself, found that benzene is a cancer-causing substance. In a private letter now in our possession, the institute listed the study's most important conclusion: "Occupational exposure to benzene appears causally related to myelogenous leukemia and its acute variants."

In nonmedical terms, the oil industry's doctors found that overexposure to benzene can cause death by leukemia. Those 150,000 endangered workers would be better off, therefore, if the industry put the emphasis on its medical findings rather than its lobbying claims.

As a simple precaution, the Labor Dept. wants plants to monitor the benzene level and give medical tests to the employees. The order also calls for new technology to lower the benzene exposure.

All of this, the oil tycoons lament, is going to cost money. Responded an angry government official: "It is unconscionable that the companies continue to fight this. They knew a benzene standard was coming to protect workers. The law can't be written to guard health and safety only if there is no cost to industry. We can't have that kind of trade-off in a civilized society."

Yet the corporate persuaders are now trying to convince the government that benzene is hazardous only at high levels, that the current standards offer workers all the protection they need, that the new standards would increase the price of benzene and that it is technologically impossible to lower the benzene levels anyway.

Unfortunately for the oil barons, these claims also conflict with their own research. Exxon's Dr. Eckhardt reported, for example, that his company several years ago began "eliminating exposures where ever possible and reducing them to the lowest possible level where elimination cannot be accomplished."

Government officials insist there is no need for any of the 150,000 workers to die of leukemia.

Footnote: U.S. plants last year produced an incredible 11 billion pounds of benzene, which is used in a variety of products from aspirin to pesticide. During the manufacturing process, millions of pounds of benzene are sprayed into the atmosphere. The Environmental Protection Agency has already labeled benzene a hazardous air pollutant. It is now investigating the benzene hazard from retail gasoline pumps. Benzene exposure may be labeled a hazard to the public outside the plants as well as the workers inside.

Washington Whirl: The Advertising Council has offered to run an energy conservation drive for the Carter administration. But in a confidential letter, House Consumer Affairs Chairman Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., has warned energy czar James Schlesinger to beware. "The Ad Council's public service advertising is often biased toward the protection of corporate interests which are represented on the council," the letter charges. A spokesman denied that the Ad Council is business-biased. The council takes its advice, he said, from its own consumer board.

The CIA's new acting deputy intelligence director is a man to watch. He's a capable administrator who should be making his influence felt in the intelligence community. But he's also a fast man with an electronic device. Old CIA hands recall that John McMahon handled a prominent Soviet defector, who used the code name AELADLE. McMahon had the defector's telephone, bedroom and every hotel room he was in bugged.

 Brochures have been mailed to interested citizens of Pottou Township and elsewhere by the Brome County Historical Society regarding their edition of Yesterday's Volume three ($6.50 paperback, $10 hard cover). Brome County is well covered in this edition which includes a history of Dunkin, Que., taking in the 1920's, '30's, and '40's and descendants of Col. Hendrick Ruitter which includes the Aiken's. There is also a short history of the Highwater home where the Barnets were brought up and two poems written by Devon (Wilkins) Wilkinson when she was in her early teens. Your Correspondent wishes to take this opportunity to thank all residents who were so kind to help her in researching for historic features, making these residents joint authors and authoresses. Without them, Maria Bray's endeavours would not have been fruitful; these endeavours are a contribution to the society (without remuneration) to help perpetuate the Brome County heritage. All sales contribute to keeping our museum open for the public. Those wishing to purchase a book may send their M.O. or cheque to the B.C.H. Society, Box 690, Knowlton, P.Q. J0E 1V0, or if more convenient to order direct, you may phone 243-6782. Better still, why not visit the museum and pick up your copy there. It is located just past the police station (behind the former Post office building).

 Mr. and Mrs. Louis St. Onge received word that their ninth grandchild arrived and their daughter, Mrs. Brenda Paige had come to rest after having phlebitis and was a patient in a Lachine hospital, while here she became a maternity patient in the BMP at Cowansville not expecting this turn of events, giving a brother to Shelley.
 Miss Tammy Hamelin of Knowlton spent these weeks with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClure. While here, she celebrated her seventh birthday with 23 people enjoying the birthday supper.
 Mrs. Alex Rae and four children of Pierrefonds, called on Mr. and Mrs. Leon Eldridge, mid-week.
 A most interesting letter was received from Victor Coombs of Hudson, Que., which included pictures of many years ago his father's sawmill "W.A. Coombs' Sawmill", erroneously listed in a letter to the editor, as Monticello Bobbin Mill. Mr. Coombs mention in his letter that his father was a very quiet and self-effacing person and never made bobbins, and that Giroux & Giroux used to get lots of lumber from their logs sawed at Mr. Coombs sawmill. He also made lots of cedar shingles and sawed tough elm planks for Pottou culverts. He also distilled cedar oil and pine oil from green branches for a pharmaceutical firm. Victor was brought up by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Openshaw, Sr. at North Hatley. His mother died with the 1918 flu when Victor was a baby. The Coombs are looking after nine elderly people in Hudson and it was with interest that your correspondent received news from Mr. Coombs of Dr. R.J. Runnells as well, who at the age of 97 a year ago, wrote a seven page letter to Maria Bray, relating his stay in Mansonville around 1912 to 14, as the Minister for the United Church here. Mr. Coombs sent two pictures of Mr. Runnells, who was Mayor of Hudson for a time. He takes walks every day, weather permitting, and Mr. Coombs reports that the doctor is very sharp for his age (98). A picture will be posted on the United Church Bulletin Board.

 Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Aubry and son, Robin, of St. Luc, spent a few days with Mrs. Aubry's mother, Mrs. Thelma Wilkins. Mrs. Alex Rae and four children of Pierrefonds, also Mr. and Mrs. John Irwin of Dollard

Concert enjoyed at Opera House

BOUNDARY (IH) — The walls of the Haskell Opera House at the Boundary resounded to beautiful music on Saturday evening, July 23 when music from some of the world's greatest composers was sung by five opera artists whose magnificent voices rang out from the stage, in the first of two concerts presented by friends of Opera.
 Although not too many local people were in attendance, there was a full house of people who drove down on a beautiful summer day from Toronto, and Ottawa, Montreal, the Townships and Northern Vermont and paid a minimum cost of a ticket for such a quality concert.
 The artists were Gina Minicucci, soprano; Jean-Marie Bergeron, tenor; Katherina Zacko, soprano; Marika Czolij, mezzo-soprano and Andre Parent, baritone.
 They sang in English, French, Greek, Italian and Ukrainian and justified their songs with dramatic and deep expression. Each selection was complemented by Loraine Thibeault - Glogowski, a native of Sherbrooke, Que., a professional concert pianist, who played the Baby Grand at the Opera House.
 The program included Jerome Kern's Show Boat, "Make Believe" in a duet by Miss Czolij and Mr. Parent; "Ciribirin" composed by C. Tiochet, sung by Miss Minicucci, Mr. Bergeron sang "Ouvre Ton Coeur" by G. Bizet.
 "I'll Believe," by L. Graham was sung by Mr. Parent and Miss Zacko sang a Greek folksong, "To Layarni." Miss Czolij sang P.A. Trindelli's composition, "Vaticino."
 From Naughty Marietta by V. Herbert, Miss Zacko and Mr. Parent sang "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life." Miss Minicucci sang "Il Bacio" by Aldighieri and Mr. Bergeron sang "Until" by W.S. Anderson. Miss Zacko's selection was "La Jola" Manuel de Falla.
 A Ukrainian chant, "Kozaks Exiles Au-Dela Du Danube," S. Hulak, Arte Mowsky was sung by Miss Czolij. Mr. Parent sang "Tristezza" by P. Posti and an Italian Folklore song, "Santa Lucia" was a duet by Miss Czolij and Mr. Bergeron.
 After a brief intermission the second part of the Opera concert included a duet "Don Giovanni" by W.A. Mozart sung by Miss Minicucci and Mr. Parent.
 "Rigoletto" by G. Verdi Aria "Questa o Quella" was rendered by the tenor voice of Mr. Bergeron; later in the program Miss Minicucci's lovely soprano voice sang Aria "Caro Nome che il Mincior."
 "Carmen" by G. Bizet Air "Habenera" was sung by the charming mezzo-soprano voice of Miss Czolij; Air "Toreador" by the baritone voice of Mr. Parent and "Duo Seguedille" a duet by Miss Czolij and Mr. Bergeron.
 Mr. Bergeron and Mr. Parent, in a duet sang "Les Pecheurs de Perles" by G. Bizet; Mr. Parent sang "Il Barbiere Di Siviglia" G. Rossini Aria "Largo al Factotum della Citta."

 The two soprano voices of Miss Czolij and Miss Zacko sang from "Norma," by V. Bellini, "Duo Mira o Norma," later in the program Miss Zacko sang from Ernani by G. Verdi Aria "Ernani, involami."
 For the final number the five artists were on stage together to sing from "La Traviata" by G. Verdi, "Libiamo n'Lietti Calice."
 As each song was presented there was complete silence in the House, broken upon their last note by thunderous applause and bravo calls as the audience sounded their appreciation. Each artist was given curtain calls after each rendition after the final number a standing ovation and several curtain calls.
 As many of the people, in attendance were from a distance, several remarked upon the beauty of this 74-year-old Opera House and its unique location, straddling the Border. One man remarked he had never seen this or heard of the Haskell Opera House, Rock Island, Quebec or Derby Line, Vermont, yet it has appeared in "Believe it or Not" by Ripley and been written about, by many people in papers and booklets. Many expressed a deep appreciation of "what we have here, at the Border."
 The second concert will be on August 6 by another group of talented musicians and will be another concert no one will want to miss.
 In the August concert will be artist Robert Sedillot, a summer resident at Brome Lake, who, with a friend, is responsible for these two exceptionally excellent concerts in the Opera House. Loraine Thibeault - Glogowski will be the concert pianist.

 Mr. and Mrs. Andrew MacRae of Sawyerville were recent supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Luce.

Sutton Market largely attended

SUTTON (KT) — An exceptional "big day" was enjoyed by Sutton Saturday Market on July 23, with 60 vendors present and an estimated attendance of over 1,000 people. All day long there were quantities of people coming and leaving and it was a busy and rewarding day for everyone.
 Among the participants were the La Douceurs of Montreal with Macrame, which included an especially delightful display of big animal heads, both charming and unusual. The couple will appear regularly at the Market.
 Another participant was Lakeshore, who will also be back. He specializes in wood-burning, producing most delightful paintings and giving the impression of sepias on wood, which is original and extremely well done. His wife was there also, she does ceramics and is a member of the Lakeshore Potters Club.

 Paula Jarolime, one of the regulars, is also a potter and has participated in the Market for some years. Most of the vendors are in fact from this region and are handcrafters. Anke von Ginhoven of "Mosa Studio" also participates, showing pottery and weaving. The Pottery Show of two weeks ago was under her arrangement, as will be the coming Textile Show.

 Noirmouton Farm Show brought their pet ewes, which pleased youngsters and adults alike.
 The Brome County Historical Society booth created much interest and featured the Village of Sutton and the Townships. A large quantity of publications were sold and much interest shown in the various historical books. Miss Nancy Boyce and Miss Eve Marshall were in charge, and both young ladies were charming in their summery voile dresses of white eyelet embroidery, dating back to around the 1910 period.
 Another attraction was the presence of Bob Turbudy of Abercorn with his natural ice-cream. He produces this ice-cream for a number of Montreal outlets.
 Of special interest was the visit of Neil McCarty of C.J.A.D. and his wife Catherine. They were accompanied by a number of guests from Montreal and broadcasts were made several times during the afternoon from the market.
 This week another big market is anticipated with a great number of vendors already booked. No particular programme has been planned, but three special days will be presented during August. Details will be announced.
 Sutton Valley Council will be most glad to hear from vendors who may not know of the Saturday Market. Call 514-538-2454 for particulars.
 After closing of the Market, some members of Sutton Valley Council, mostly vendors, joined Mr. McCarty and his guests for dinner at the Auberge de Sutton.

MANSONVILLE & AREA

des Ormeaux, were visitors in the same home.
 Tables are now renting for the August 6th Flea Market sponsored by St. Paul's Guild. Those interested may phone Mrs. Hazel Eldridge at 292-3201.
 They did it again - the roads department of the province do not synchronize their work - the lovely orange center - painted lines put on in the spring are paved over with new black-top every so many yards, feet or what-have-you, thus wasting the taxpayers money. Oh well, let's take the popular optimistic view, it does perpetuate employment for men.
 The citizens of Pottou Township extend deepest sympathies to Mrs. Ian Lousen and family in the loss of a beloved husband, father and grandfather, Ian Lousen. The same sympathies are extended to friends of the deceased and also to Legionnaires and Veterans who will remember this wonderful man as their pension inspector in Pottou. Mr. Lousen so loved the district, that with his lovely wife, he made Bolton Center his home upon retiring from the D.V.A.
 We wish Bruce Howarth complete success in his new endeavours, having moved from Mansonville (house of the late Albert Marcoux) to Franklin Center where he will be new owner of the restaurant-store. Bruce was one of the Coordinators at Butters Center, Austin, Que. He was the capable photographer for the First Anniversary celebrations at Champagne House, Knowlton's Landing, Que., which photos will be put into a souvenir album.

family and lifestyles

EUSTIS — Mrs. Hattie Harvey was pleasantly surprised at a party given in her honour by her family on the occasion of her 80th birthday. It was held at Christ Church Eustis Hall.

Family and friends spent an enjoyable evening playing cards; after which a lovely lunch made by her family was served by the guild members, with Mrs. Stewart Nutbrown in charge.

Mrs. Harvey, who resides with her daughter and son-in-law, Gertie and Les Hetherington, has lived in Eustis over fifty years. She was happy to have her son and daughter-in-law, Gerald and Kitty, and their family visit for a few days from Toronto. Also, a niece and her husband, Georgiana and Vernon Smith of Hamilton, Ontario, were in town for the party.

Other guests were from North Hatley, Bury, Lennoxville and Sherbrooke.

It's a Happy Birthday for Champagne House

By MARIA BRAY
(Record Correspondent)
KNOWLTON'S LANDING

— "Champagne House" celebrated its First Anniversary in July, making it a very happy occasion for residents, family, friends and staff with a smorgasbord lunch deliciously prepared, and dancing to the rock band of The Flamingo Flamingos who also were wonderful vocalists with Lead Singer Peter Kandalaft. These band members showed much interest in the residents, giving them each a turn to sing over the microphone such songs as: When the Saints Come Marching In and You Are My Sunshine, rewarding the contestants with a long play record and other gift items. Most of them carried a tune in excellent fashion.

Very noticeable was the required patience and kindness towards the residents who rewarded the employees with their show of happiness which was very prevalent while they enjoyed dancing in perfect rhythm on the lawn to the rock music of the band members who were: Lloyd Perkins on the guitar, a teacher of physics at Alexander Galt Regional High School, Andre Losier on trumpet, a teacher of French in the same school, Bruce MacIver on drums, who works at E.T. Auto Supply, Eddie Nollet on guitar, who is a draftsman at S.W. Hooper and driver Geff Mooney. A souvenir picture album will be on view at The Butters Center with photos of the special day taken by Bruce Howarth.

Champagne House was set up a year ago by interested staff members, to name a few, Co-ordinator Luyse Groulx, Arlen Bonnar (Responsible) and John Castle, Director of Professional Services for both Champagne House and The Butters Center. Located on Lake Memphremagog with surrounding beautiful scenery, the home is staffed by 13 people taking in three shifts, that the residents are no longer considered patients and they are encouraged to get involved in home life, learning where their food comes from, preparing their own breakfast and other simple meals, etc. Mr. Castle also said that the second major thrust is to teach the residents life awareness and social consciousness, thus they are being taken to all sorts of outside activities, all of which leans toward the goal of self-independence. "Having come from an institutions environment, Champagne House is a half-way house towards total self-reliance and confidence in order to enter more completely into the outside world and become self-supporting."

The maximum resident privileges at Champagne House is from nine months to two years and from this place, a resident may go to a group home with house parents where they will continue with normal school activities or receive vocational oriented work adapted services which The Butters Center is now seeking to

HAPPY BIRTHDAY — Everyone enjoyed the anniversary celebrations at Champagne House. The smorgasbord lunch was a delightful treat.

Surprenant-Emslie exchange wedding vows

DERBY LINE — St. Edward's church, Derby Line, was on Saturday afternoon, July 16, the scene of a pretty summer wedding at three o'clock when Susan Diane Hovey, fourth daughter of Mrs. Harold Emslie and Mr. Emslie of Beebe, Que., became the bride of Gerald Rudy Surprenant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Surprenant of Rock Island, Que.

Father Donald Roy officiated for the double-ring ceremony and was celebrant for the nuptial mass. Mrs. Denise Gaudreau played organ selections and accompanied the soloist, Miss Ruth Ann Haselton who sang Ave Maria in Latin during the Holy Eucharist. Miss Haselton accompanied herself playing the guitar to sing Annie's Song after the nuptial vows were exchanged.

The guest pews were marked with white satin ribbon bows and sprays of lily of the valley.

The bride, on the arm of her father, walked down the aisle to meet the groom at the chancel steps where her father placed Susan's hand in Gerald's thus giving her in marriage.

The bride was wearing a gown of white voile over peau de soie fashioned with a skirt of triple ruffles, each topped with wide lace inserts, lace outlined the open V neckline with the sleeves gathered at the shoulders and straight to the elbows having lace inserts then very full to the lace trimmed cuffs. Lace accented the empire waistline having a white satin ribbon sash with ties and streamers at the back. Her fingertip length veil of silk illusion was draped from a white nylon straw picture hat, she carried a trailing bouquet of red sweetheart roses, white carnations and gypsophila.

Miss Kathy Hovey, maid of honor for her sister, was in a gown of white voile sprinkled with outlined pansies in red and trimmed with red lace on the bodice and cape sleeves. The gown was complemented with a white nylon picture hat having a spray of red roses on the wide brim.

The bridesmaids, Miss Laurie Hovey and Miss Linda Hovey, sisters of the bride and Miss Mary Ellen Seguin, were gowned alike in pink to mauve voile sprinkled with harmonizing flowers, having lace on the bodices and cape sleeves. Their white nylon picture hats were accented with a spray of pink roses. All the attendants carried a long stem single red rose with gypsophila and tied with red satin ribbons.

Miss Monica Szollosy, niece of the groom, as flower girl, was in a gown of rose pink nylon crystalettte having a tiered floor-length skirt with a pink satin sash and streamers at the back, the bodice featured short puff sleeves and a ruffle at the round neckline. Pink satin ribbons tipped with flowers were in her hair and she carried a basket of mixed flowers and sprinkled white and pink rose petals upon the white linen carpet for the bride to walk upon.

The groom was in a white Prince Albert tuxedo with black trim and trousers and his white shirt front featured lace ruffles, his boutonniere was a red rose bud.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — The automatic ice maker in my refrigerator has a plastic tray that worked well when it was new but for the last few months ice cubes stick in the tray causing the next flow of water to pour on top of the cubes. This happens about once a week. I have tried rubbing the cube compartments with vinegar and with cream of tartar and have also used a spray vegetable oil but none of these treatments last more than a week.
HELP! — MARILYN.
DEAR MARILYN — I was advised that this may be caused by an accumulation of silicates that come in the water and stick on after a time. These can be cleaned off with a scrubbing brush or by wiping away all the film with rubber gloves on the hands. Vinegar will clean this off but without a thorough rinsing with clear water the silicates will again be attracted to the plastic. Any roughness will also make them cling. One suggestion is to get a new cube tray and then take it out every two or three weeks, soak in white vinegar and rinse well before putting back. It seems some people keep two of these trays so they have one working while the other is soaking. Good luck! — POLLY.

DANCE!

300 young ballet students at Bishop's dance clinic

By JANET COTTON (Record Reporter)
LENNOXVILLE — Almost 300 students began lessons this week with the world's greatest dance teachers at the Quebec Summer Dance clinic at Bishop's University.

The three week clinic offers students from around the world courses in classical ballet, jazz and modern dance. The students, ranging in age from 11 to 30 are housed on the University campus.

Jacqueline Lemieux-Lopez, founder and director of the clinic said the school was founded on the principle that every dancer should have access to professional training.

"My dream was to bring together the best team in the world, so that all dancers, beginners or advanced, could have the very best," said Ms. Lopez.

The clinic's only stipulation is that students be at least 11 years of age, and have one year of ballet training.

Attendance at the clinic has almost doubled since it opened last summer. Ms. Lopez said that almost all publicity is by word of mouth, and attributed the success to the high quality of teachers.

"The international dance world is very small, and when something happens everyone knows about it. The internationally renowned quality of our teachers is attracting more and more people."

Ms. Lopez, a native of Montreal studied dance in Montreal and Europe. A dancer and teacher of 15 years, she is Assistant director of Les Grands Ballets in Montreal, vice-president of Dance Canada, and a member of the Advisory Board of the Canada Council. She is also Director of Entre-Six Dance Company in Montreal.

Among the 11 instructors at the clinic, four teach classical ballet, four teach modern, and three teach jazz. Classical ballet teachers are Madame Nora, of Paris, who is in her second year with the clinic, Mary Aslamazoma of Russia, Sandra Caverly, teacher at York University and Leo Griffith, who starred as a soloist with the Stuttgart Dance Company in Germany.

Heading the modern teachers is Phyllis Lambut, who directs her own company in New York. She has danced professionally for 30 years; 20 years with Alvin Nicholi and 10 with Nary Lewis. Other modern teachers are Rudy Perez, who also directs his own company in New York, Eliza Paternoster of the Rudy Perez Co., and Paco Garcia of New York.

Acclaimed as New York's top jazz teacher, Liz Williamson heads the jazz group of Larl Becham, Pennie Stalneck and Darcy Pifer, all of New York.

Ms. Lopez said the response in getting the teachers to participate in the clinic has been great. "They're enthusiastic about it. They know they'll be well treated. The land around here is so beautiful and clean, that the clinic is almost like a holiday for our teachers."

Ms. Lopez is hoping to set the school up permanently at the university.

"The people have been so kind to us. When we were looking for a location last summer, Bishop's was the only campus that opened their doors to us, and we're hoping to come back again."

The students and teachers of Quebec Summer Dance will put on a production on Aug. 13 in the gymnasium of the University Sports Complex.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT — And perfection is the only goal in ballet. Members of Madame Nora's advanced classical group at the Quebec Summer Dance clinic, now underway at Bishop's University, refine their movements.

"My dream was to bring together the best team in the world, so that all dancers could have the best."

EXERCISE — Neophyte classical ballet students at the Clinic do leg exercises on the balance bar.

He farms, directs choral

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — It didn't take much to keep Abner Martin, former music professor at Mount Allison University at Sackville, N.B., down on the farm.

Martin found he would rather spend the day listening to the cows rather than being confined listening to aspiring singers and musicians in classrooms.

He hasn't given up music entirely, however. Between haying and harvesting he finds the time to whip the 50-member choral group known locally as the Menno Singers into shape for its opening concert in October.

Martin has been appointed conductor of the Menno Singers which is marking its 23rd season. He squeezed eight two-hour rehearsals into two weeks this month during the summer lull on the farm.

"It shows a real commitment to the cause," said choir president Lew Weber. When the October concert is over and the Martin farm is snowbound he will go all out to rehearse the Menno singers for their Christmas carol concert and a spring concert.

The musician grew up on a Waterloo County farm and later bought one at Atwood.

When he accepted the post at Mount Allison he leased the farm. At university, however, he yearned for the open spaces and was concerned about his prized herd of cattle.

Now he can enjoy the best of his two worlds and at convenient times switch a hay fork for a baton.

And Martin points out, music and farming seem to go hand in hand. There is Jon Vickers, the Canadian opera star, who enjoys farm life between international opera appearances, and Rudolph Serkin who enjoys pitching hay when he is not giving piano concerts.

Jazz-rock artist DiMeola launches his own group

BERGENFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Al DiMeola was an 18-year-old college student in Boston, coming home to visit his family here on holidays, when Chick Corea invited him to leave school and play guitar in his Return To Forever (RTF) jazz group.

Four years later, DiMeola is on his own, fronting a six-member jazz-rock lineup that combines the soaring melodies of RTF with his own classical Latin guitar-picking.

DiMeola first picked up a guitar at age seven and was in high school when The Mahavishnu Orchestra released its first album in the early 1970s, ushering in the fusion era of modern jazz-rock sounds.

After several semesters at the Berklee College of Music and a short stint with jazz keyboard player Barry Miles, DiMeola was ready to get out of the classroom and on to a stage.

"When I got the call from Chick in 1972-73 asking me to join the band, I said sure—it was a dream come true. At the time he was my favorite musician and it was my favorite band."

He stayed with RTF for three albums until early this year when Corea reformed the band, stressing an acoustic sound and playing down DiMeola's fiery guitar runs.

PRODUCED ALBUM

While with RTF, DiMeola cut his first solo album, Land of the Midnight Sun, with the help of fellow band members Corea, drummer Lenny White and bassist Stanley Clarke. He arranged, produced and paid for the album himself, presenting a finished product to Columbia Record executives, who liked what they heard and released it.

The album sold 100,000 copies and DiMeola's solo identity was launched.

In concert, DiMeola, who just finished a short tour with Weather Report and now is headlining at small concert halls, concentrates on material from the debut disk and his April release, Elegant Gypsy. The album includes a duet, Mediterranean Sundance, on which DiMeola plays with flamenco guitarist Paco De Lucia.

Despite the Latin classical orientation, DiMeola faces the problem that his louder, more aggressive material is similar to the fusion music of Jan Hammer, Jean Luc Ponty, Jeff Beck and many others.

Sher-Lenn eliminates Little Burgundy

Sher-Lenn, Sher-Mont showdown set

By STEVE BELL
(Sports Editor)

LITTLE BURGUNDY — The much hoped for showdown between the Sher-Lenn and Sher-Mont little leagues in this weekend's regional final, has finally become a reality.

Sher-Lenn won the vacant spot in the final with a resounding 11-4 victory over the Little Burgundy All-Stars last night in St. Laurent. The loss eliminates Little Burgundy from the regional competition.

And with the two pressure wins behind them, Sher-Lenn will be taking it easy today as they prepare for tomorrow's final battle with the All-Stars from the Sher-Mont little league. Sher-Lenn will have to win both

Saturday and Sunday, handing Sher-Mont its first two defeats of the tournament, if they have any hopes of making it to Dorval for the Quebec Little League Championships.

Marc Desbiens collected the win for the All-Stars, giving up only four runs and eight hits, while at the same time leaving eight men stranded on base.

Sher-Lenn put the game away early, scoring nine runs in the third inning to take a commanding 10-4 lead. They picked up single runs in both the second and fourth innings.

Their nine run blitz last night was accomplished on only six hits and three errors, not one of Little Burgundy's stronger defensive performances.

Little Burgundy's offence proved as shaky as their defence, only managing two runs in the first inning and two more in the third. The 2-1 lead they enjoyed up until the third inning didn't seem to help the team at all.

Sher-Lenn started the game a little shakily, as Bertrand Aube, coach of the All-Stars, tried to cut corners and save his best pitcher, Marc Desbiens, for Saturday's game against Sher-Mont. Instead of starting Desbiens, Aube chose to send Christian Lennon, a relatively unexperienced pitcher, to the mound.

But Lennon ran into trouble early in the game, giving up a triple to the first batter, walking the next two and with one ball on the fourth batter, Aube elected to send in Desbiens to ensure the win. Desbiens pitched well throughout the remainder of the game.

Desbiens also proved invaluable at the plate last night, picking up two singles and a triple which resulted in two RBIs.

Rene Sanschagrin, who will be pitching in tomorrow's final picked up three singles, Richard Hallee, two singles and a walk which resulted in three RBIs. Jeff Bray and Denis Theroux both picked up singles.

The Little Burgundy team wore out three pitchers trying to contain the Sher-Lenn batters. Trevor Williams was the losing pitcher for Little Burgundy. The three pitchers combined gave up 11 runs, 10 hits, leaving eight men on. Trevor Williams proved to be Little Burgundy's best batter with a triple and two singles.

Tomorrow's final between Sher-Lenn and Sher-Mont is slated for 1:00 p.m. at the Parade Grounds in Sherbrooke.

Eastern Canada Swimming Championships

Ontario-Quebec dominate swim meet

HALIFAX (CP) — Ontario and Quebec swimmers maintained their domination of the division-two Eastern Canada swimming championships here Thursday in both men's and women's competitions.

In the 110-metre freestyle event, Julien Tillman of the London, Ont., Y Aquatic Club swept through a small field to win in a time of 1:01.98. Lyne Royer of the Sherbrooke, Que., Swim Club finished second followed by Sylvia Kennedy of the Pointe Claire, Que., Swim Club which had dominated opening day competitions Wednesday.

In the women's 100-metre breaststroke, Louise Murray of the Nepean Swim Club finished with the gold in a time of 1:20.57 followed by Johanne Chevalier of the Club Aquatic de Montreal in second and Cathy Maquire of the Ottawa Kingfish Club in third.

Nathalie Gringras, a teammate of Murray, fought to a 5:16.15 win in the 400-metre individual medley event. Katie Fleming of the Thunder Bay Swim Club was second followed by Kim Druiven.

In the women's 800-metre freestyle relay the Pointe Claire Club took first place in a time of 9:07.81. Ann Fitzgerald, Sylvia Kennedy, Terry Bond, and Coleen Maloney were members of the winning team.

In the men's 800-metre freestyle relay, the Hamilton-Wentworth Swim Club swam to an 8:23.66 victory. The winners were Steve Shoemith, Simon Levin, George Gambioli and Mike Rahu.

The Montreal aquatic club finished second followed by the Dartmouth, N.S., Crusaders.

Phil Jones, representing the Swimtec entry at the competitions, won the 100-metre freestyle event in 0:56.65. Andre Theoret of the Pointe Claire club finished second and Nick Whittington of the Olympian Club of Etobicoke third.

Edges San Diego 5-4

Expos split four game series

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Andre Dawson's two-run homer in the eighth inning helped Montreal Expos to a 5-4 victory over San Diego Padres Thursday and a split of the four-game series.

With two out and Tony Perez on first with a single, Dawson rapped his 12th home run of the season to erase a 4-3 San Diego lead.

Dawson paced Montreal's 10-hit attack with three hits while Perez and Larry Parrish had two hits apiece. Joe Kerrigan, 2-3, picked up the 2 in relief.

The Padres took a 4-0 lead in the sixth inning, highlighted by a two-run double by George Hendrick sandwiched between RBI singles by Bill Almon and Jerry Truner.

Before Dawson's homer off losing pitcher Bob Owchinko, 37, the Expos cut their deficit to 4-3 with a three-run rally in the seventh.

Expos starter Wayne Twitchell had a no-hitter going through five innings but ran into big trouble in the sixth when San Diego exploded for all of its runs on five hits.

Owchinko, who 11 days ago pitched 7 1-3 innings of perfect ball against Los Angeles Dodgers only to lose 1-0, was not completely discouraged.

"Sure, I'm aggravated, but it's my job to solve this problem," said the left-hander. "I'm getting a lot out of the experience and feel like I've been pitching well enough to win. I'm learning to try to stay ahead of every hitter with every pitch."

Owchinko, who has won only three times in 15 starts, said he needs a few breaks, "but they will come some time."

Twitchell, who came into the game with a 4-1 lifetime record against San Diego, faced only one man over the minimum during that stretch—Hendrick reached base on catcher's interference in the first.

Cubs edge Reds 16-15

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Rick Reuschel singled with two out in the 13th inning and scored on singles by Steve Ontiveros and Dave Rosello Thursday to give Chicago Cubs a 16-15 victory over Cincinnati Reds in a National League baseball game featuring a record-tying 11 home runs.

Reuschel, coming in relief in the top of the 13th as the Cubs' seventh pitcher, improved his major league-leading record to 15-3 after having blanked Cincinnati on Tuesday on five hits, Jack Billingham, 8-8, took the loss.

The Reds took the lead in the 12th when George Foster doubled and scored on Dave Rosello's error to give Cincinnati a 15-14 lead, but the Cubs tied it in the bottom of the 12th on George Mitterwald's second homer of the game.

It was the 11th of the game and tied a major league record. The last time 11 homers were hit in an extra inning game was August 12, 1966 when Pittsburgh Pirates hit six and Cincinnati five in 13 innings.

Foster doubled and Johnny Bench walked to open the 12th. Cesar Geronimo flied out. Dave Concepcion tapped to the mound and Pete Broberg threw to second only to have the ball get through Rosello for an error as Foster scored.

The Cubs tied the game in the bottom of the ninth when Bobby Murcer singled, went to second on a walk to Jerry Morales and scored on Steve Ontiveros' single to left.

The Reds smashed five home runs—three in the first inning—and the Cubs had six—two in the first. The five homers in one inning by both teams also tied a major league record.

Rangers blank Jays

TORONTO (CP) — Gaylord Perry scattered 11 hits and struck out eight Thursday night as Texas Rangers defeated Toronto Blue Jays 3-0 for their sixth victory in a row—equalling their longest winning streak of the American League baseball season.

Perry, 9-8, recorded his fourth shutout of the season despite having to pitch out of numerous jams.

The Rangers handed the Blue Jays their seventh loss in a row—their longest losing streak this season—and spoiled a four-hit pitching performance by Jerry Garvin, 7-11, who has lost his last eight games.

Texas, leading 1-0 on Toby Harrah's first-inning sacrifice fly, scored two runs in the ninth on Harrah's single, a triple by Curt Bevaqua and Jim Sundberg's squeeze bunt.

Yankees dump Orioles

NEW YORK (AP) — Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles and Roy White hit home runs in a 15-hit attack and Mike Torrez pitched a four-hitter Thursday to lead New York Yankees in a 14-2 win over Baltimore Orioles.

Munson's 14th homer of the year leading off the third inning started a three-run New York rally and Nettles hit No. 23, a two-run shot in the fifth, as the Yankees exceeded their biggest run production of the American League baseball season.

Nettles, who also had a runscore single that knocked out loser Rudy May, 11-9, in the third inning rally, had three RBIs for the day along with White and Chris Chambliss, who was perfect at the plate with two singles, a double and two walks.

White capped the Yankees scoring with a two-run blast in the eighth inning, the left fielder's eighth home run of the season.

The power show was more than enough for Torrez, 9-10, who breezed through the first five innings without allowing a Baltimore hit. He gave up a run in the first inning on a sacrifice fly by Eddie Murray and another on Doug DeCinces' 11th home run of the year in the seventh. Torrez walked four and struck out six as he won for the first time since June 25 and it was only his second victory in his last eight decisions.

N.B. native wins gold medal in women's discus

STOKE MANDEVILLE, England (CP) — Lucy Raiche, 21, of Bathurst, N.B., won a gold medal in the women's discus Thursday at the international games for the disabled.

Raiche, who is a class-4 athlete paralysed from the waist down, hurled the discus 16.36 metres to win the event.

Doug Lyons of Drummondville, Que., a former policeman who was gunned down in a bank robbery in Montreal several years ago and is paralysed from the middle of the back down, won a bronze medal in the men's discus. His throw was 22.85 metres in the event, won by Leon Labashagne of South Africa with a toss of 26.13 metres.

Labashagne had earlier broken Lyons' world record for the shot put, an event in which the Canadian also exceeded his old mark. Canada's men's basketball team defeated Spain 68-61 and assured itself of finishing no worse than fifth and retaining its place in the A group. The win was Canada's first after two defeats. Kevin Earl of Edmonton led the Canadians with 30 points.

In women's basketball, Canada defeated the United States 35-22 and assured itself of at least a silver medal in the three-nation tournament. Joanne McDonald of St. John's, Nfld., was leading scorer with 19 points.

The Canadian women have beaten the U.S. twice and have lost once to West Germany, their opponent in the fight for the gold.

Dean Mellway of Hamilton was another Canada, medalwinner, taking a bronze in snooker Wednesday night.

Poland, which has sent the largest overseas team to the games, dominated action on Thursday, winning 13 golds.

Tony Levis, captain of the U.S. team, won his third gold medal of the week, taking the class-3 javelin throw with a toss of 23.83 metres.

Shorthorn conference held at Sawyerville

SAWYERVILLE (AW) — Rosebloom Farm, home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Smith of Sawyerville was the site chosen this year to hold the annual Canadian Dual-Purpose Shorthorn Type Conference and Field Day on July 22 and 23.

Each year the approved judges across the country gather together to reach a common agreement on what traits they will be looking for in the placing of Shorthorns at the forthcoming Fairs.

Most of the judges and their families arrived on Thursday evening and commenced work at 10 a.m. on Friday. A class of bred heifers was judged and placed. There is always considerable constructive criticism and most are strong in their convictions but this is carried out in a feeling of fun and good-will. At noon, lunch was served by the hosts.

In the afternoon, two classes of cows were discussed and placed followed by a tour of the farm giving the visitors a chance to see the remainder of the herd. In the meantime, the ladies were taken on a shopping tour and visited points of interest in the area. Friday evening an executive meeting was held at the Sawyerville Hotel.

On Saturday morning the visitors were taken on a tour

WI meeting

MELBOURNE (JW) — The Gore Branch W.I. met on Wednesday, July 6 at the home of Mrs. Jessie Griffith. Eleven members answered the roll call by giving an "Old Time Remedy."

Motto for the month was "Two of life's greatest blessings are good health and good sense."

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, also the treasurer's report which was accepted.

The correspondence consisted of thanks from Guides and Brownies for a donation, CanSave for knitting done by this branch and Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Husk for sympathy card.

Welfare and Health Convener Mrs. Jessie Griffith reported five pairs slippers handed in, as well as used cotton, for the Wales Home. A reading was also given entitled "Angina Drug approved."

Miss Audrey Millar, Citizenship convener gave a very interesting reading about Marion Fulton, A.C.W.W. Member whom she had met at Macdonald College Convention.

A donation of wool was received by the branch and distributed for knitting.

A contest was held by Mrs. Jessie Griffith on "The Flower Wedding," and was won by Miss Muriel Watt.

Black Berets: low profile, steely discipline Army strike force on constant alert

By Tom Tiede

FT. STEWART, Ga. — (NEA) — The conventional wisdom is that the Army isn't what it used to be: though pay and privileges are up, standards and discipline are down; washouts proliferate, so do minority members who can't get civilian jobs; as for esprit de corps it has gone the way of brown boots, rolling caissons and George S. Patton.

Yet here in the Georgian piney woods, tixist Plains and the sea, there is at least one vestige of good old gung ho: the airborne Rangers. Heads shaved, uniforms crisp, every man from Krypton, the "Black Berets" are a mirror of what sentimentalists say the Army once was: the best trained and toughest fighting force on the globe.

Assuredly, the Rangers are tough. The physical program would weary an ox. Each man must be able to run 10 miles in 90 minutes, and march 100 miles carrying 100 pounds of gear. The commander of the Ft. Stewart hospital says physicians hate to schedule surgery for the men, because "we have to go through all that muscle."

And too, the Black Berets receive extraordinary training. They are as familiar with foreign weapons as they are their own. They are proficient in first aid, land survival, hand to hand combat, and must be prepared to fight on any terrain. In recent months Rangers have been in Panama jungles, Texas deserts and Alaskan tundra.

But principally the Rangers are set apart by their attitude. In a time of military change, they are stiff, obedient and patriotic. No Afros are permitted. On holidays 85 per cent of the force is working. Some Rangers refuse to take any leave. As for bearing, the Black Berets' motto is also old fashioned: "Cool, Calm and Hard."

In short, the Rangers are traditionalists, and of the best customs of the military experience. Conceived as British allies before the Revolution, they have since

"COOL, CALM and hard" is the motto of the Black Berets. But, says Col. Ed Yaugo, the Rangers are also trying to cultivate a "gentlemanly" image. "Being tough is one thing," says Yaugo, "but being decent is more important."

fought in every American conflict, including both sides in the war of the states. "We're proud of the history," says Ranger commander Ed Yaugo, "we've been around."

Presently, there are 1,000 Rangers around Yaugo commands a 500 man battalion here, and a group of equal size is stationed in Washington state. The men wear jungle fatigues as regulation uniform. The black beret, of course, is a variation of a theme made popular by another elite unit, the Special Forces of the Vietnam era.

Not incidentally, Col. Yaugo says the similarities between the Rangers and the Special Forces end with the cap. The Green Berets were the supermen who came a cropper in Southeast Asia. They were nearly devastated by excessive publicity, and now are fighting for existence in the Army structure. Yaugo insists Rangers will not follow in kind.

Unlike Special Forces, Yaugo says the Rangers are trying to cultivate a "gentlemanly" image: "We love it when our people open doors for the ladies at the commissary, very often we get notes from others saying how courteous and considerate our men are." Being tough is one thing, Yaugo adds, "being decent is more important."

Ranger rules insist on rigid decency. Recently a trooper confessed to stealing nine weapons from a gun store; he was quickly dismissed from the battalion. Marijuana is forbidden, disobedience is nearly a capital offense. "If a Ranger receives two citations for drunk driving," says Ed Yaugo, "we can't keep him."

This piety has its social consequence. For example, Rangers are not allowed to fight, partly because of their unfair advantage. Hence many of the men have given up going to bars and other public places. "I know it's strict," says Yaugo, "but we mind our manners; besides, really tough people don't have to go around proving it."

The colonel says Rangers save their muscle for their mission, which in peace and war is that of a strike force. Presently, the Black Berets constitute the nation's best hope in case of terrorist attack. If the secretary of state is kidnapped, or a nuclear power plant overrun, authorities would likely call on the Rangers for help.

Yaugo says his unit is qualified for any eventuality. As modified by the late Gen. Creighton Abrams, the Rangers own no heavy equipment (Yaugo has only one vehicle: a jeep); instead of brute force, they rely on stealth and ingenuity. Primarily Rangers work at night, dropping silently by parachute, with resupplies on their backs.

To date, the Ranger missions have been merely practice. Yaugo's group has rescued an "American consul" who was being held in a barbed wire compound. They also have extracted 30 actors who were being held "hostage" in an oil refinery. If the real thing happens, however, Col. Yaugo says his men can be ready in "minutes."

Until the real thing does happen, the Black Berets will continue to keep their noses clean, their waistlines trim, and the doors open at the commissary. Other troops may laugh at their white sidewalls and tailored fatigues, but, as Ed Yaugo puts it, "I would think most Americans are glad that folks like us still exist."

Girl Guide Camp has 2,000 in attendance

By CAROLYN GREEN
TWO RIVERS PARK, N.S. (CP) — The 1977 International Girl Guide camp at Two Rivers Park, N.S., is a dream come true for Sheila Crosby.

"I have to feel a great deal of satisfaction that the sort of dream I had for the camp is coming true," Mrs. Crosby of Scarborough, Ont., said in an interview Wednesday.

Mrs. Crosby is guide in charge of the camp and has been instrumental in its planning since the idea was conceived three years ago.

The 450-acre campsite, at which 2,000 girls and their leaders have been living since July 20, is situated at Two Rivers Park in Cape Breton and overlooks the Mira River.

The park, set up by the Nova Scotia department of lands and forests, was developed after Girl Guide officials approached the department. When the camp ends Aug. 1, it will be turned over to the public.

The campsite is about 16 miles south of Sydney.

Activities available to the guides include water sports, handicrafts, team sports, side trips, outreach programs, drama, music and even winter sports. Facilities have been set up for skiing on artificial slopes and skating on artificial ice.

ACCENT ON DECISIONS
But the emphasis at this year's camp is on giving guides the opportunity to make decisions, Mrs. Crosby said. "A lot of girls have been used to being programmed and a lot of leaders are used to programming."

The 1977 camp, however, allows girls to choose their own activities. After daily chores are completed "they can then decide individually what they want to do."

Mrs. Crosby said another objective of the camp is to teach girls to live together "and learn about one another in Canada and around the world."

"I think that's been met," Barbara Hayes, chief commissioner of the Girl Guides of Canada, says the purpose of the camp is to develop international friendship.

Asked if the camp, at which 29 countries are represented, has achieved this, she said:

"I think it's meeting our greatest expectations. The girls say there is so much to do."

Mrs. Crosby said the idea to have a camp in Canada this year came from guides in British Columbia. After they returned from an international camp outside the country, they decided they wanted to return the hospitality they had received.

JOINS PLANNING
When the national Girl Guide council agreed to hold the camp, the first since 1967, the girls were asked to participate in its planning. Total cost of the camp is about $1 million. Of that amount, half goes to transportation and about $250,000 is budgeted for food and supplies. Each guide pays $300 and staff members $150.

Although the association has received numerous government grants and private financial assistance, Mrs. Crosby said there would be a deficit but she did not know how much.

She said the guides decided they wanted to look at choices available to women in leisure and service activities.

From this idea came talks in which 19 outstanding women are participating in informal discussions. Among the most prominent guests were Flora MacDonald, member of Parliament for Kingston and the Islands, and National Ballet star Karen Kain.

Mrs. Crosby said the most outstanding aspect of the camp is the spirit—"the feeling of unity, happiness, participation and commitment."

She said there have been no major problems in either the planning stage or the actual camp.

"I think I would have been heartbroken if it didn't come off but I really didn't question it because I knew the guides could do it," she said.

ASTRO-GRAPH Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

July 30, 1977

This coming year will be different in that you may form more partnerships than usual. Some will pan out — others may cause you headaches.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Irrespective of who you deal with on a one-to-one basis today, don't feel you have them under your thumb. A bolt from the blue may bring any encounter to push-and-shove. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Extra strength and fortitude may be needed for you to deal with unusual pressures today. Keep your recall — you, too, have limitations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't gamble today on yourself or others, no matter how well you know them. Even if you win, you're going to wind up a loser.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Shun any remarks that could trigger a domestic rumble today. If you get one started, chances are old wounds will be reopened.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Once in a while you tend to express yourself bluntly. If you do so today, there's a good chance you'll have to eat your words.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others may covet what you have today. If you leave your house or car, lock up well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your self-interests are extremely pronounced today, but those you must deal with match you in this area. You may have to make concessions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll know the signs if someone's trying to take advantage of you today. Don't be wishy-washy or you'll play right into their hands.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You must be extremely careful socially today. If something catches you off-guard, you could handle it poorly and later have regrets.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The most valuable thing you have is your reputation. Keep this in mind today so that your ambitions don't lead you to step on too many toes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a chance today you lack the ability to see merit in others' ideas. It's O.K. to push your causes, but don't feel you're the only fish in the sea.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The claws of the lions in the commercial arena are extremely sharp today. Don't go into the fray without your armor.

For Sunday, July 31, 1977

July 31, 1977

Try your hand at new and different things this coming year. They could prove lucky and profitable for you. This doesn't mean to forsake the old stand-bys.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your mate may have ideas today that you'll try to dismiss as outlandish when you first hear them. Listen closer. You could find your conservatism is showing. Find out more of what lies ahead for you by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be willing to serve if called on today. You may be reluctant, but you could get back gallons of gain from a pint of perspiration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're popular, charismatic and well-received today. If you have the chance to hobnob with people you want to impress, by all means do so.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep some strength in reserve in any situation today. You may never have to use it but you'll be glad to know it's there.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's important today to acknowledge and praise those who do good works. You'll be a public relations man for yourself that none can equal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You never shirk duties nor do you look for a free ride. This will stand you in good stead today. Rewards for these qualities have been magnified.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be lighthearted and happy in your involvements today. That's your ticket to getting it all together. It's easier to smile than to frown your brow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those days when good things happen provided you don't make waves. Sit back and harvest the seeds you so carefully planted.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Get out and circulate today. It's important to be around people you like. The bigger the crowd, the more you'll enjoy it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're lucky today in ways that could further your career or put bucks in the bank. To take advantage, you must be able to recognize opportunity's knock.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A king-sized idea may pop into your head today and you might dismiss it because of its scope. Don't — there's a good reason why it is there.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) One for whom you've done things may want to return the favor today, but you'll think it's too much. To refuse would deprive him of deserved pleasure.

Opening lead — 2♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Inspired defense usually starts with the choice of the opening lead. Today's hand shows Belladonna and Garozzo of Italy beating an expert declarer at an apparently unbeatable contract.

Both South players arrived at four spades in an IMP match. The king of clubs was opened against the Italian declarer who proceeded to make five odd by eventually discarding three of dummy's diamonds on clubs.

Belladonna opened a trump. His unfortunate opponent won in his hand and played the king of hearts. Belladonna was in with the ace and promptly led the seven of diamonds.

South studied the situation for a long time. He knew that Belladonna was perfectly capable of underleading the ace-king of a suit. He also knew that he was equally capable of leading from ace-jack or king-jack which were two other possible combinations. Finally, declarer went wrong and played low from dummy whereupon the defenders had three diamond tricks and a 13 IMP profit.

ASK THE GOODBYES

An Ottawa reader wants to know if it is ever good defense to open a trump, and if so, when.

Today's hand is a good example of a very successful trump opening. There is no general rule as to when, but the usual time is when you think declarer may need to use dummy's trumps to ruff losers in his own hand.
