SEVENTY-EIGHTH YEAR

$25,000 Project on St. Louis Discharge Will be Completed in the Latter Part of 1941

Poor Drainage at Ste. Barbe, a Farming Problem For the Past Twelve Years, Will be Remedied by Digging and Re-digging of St. Louis Discharge

A $25,000 provincial project at Ste. Barbe will be completed sometime in the summer of 1941 or, at latest, in the fall of that year, following an announcement made by J. L. Pelletier, agronomist for Huntingdon County. Work was started on this project in July of this year.

The St. Louis discharge which drains most of the parish of Ste. Barbe had been a subject of controversy for the past 12 years among the farmers and other residents of Ste. Barbe. Its poor drainage had been the cause of much loss of money and time for these people and it was only early this year that the provincial authorities finally agreed to take action.

The drainage was so poor along the St. Louis discharge that each year some 12 farmers in that section of the country had their lands flooded to such an extent that crops were greatly delayed. Others who were more fortunate were able to start work on the soil somewhat earlier but always later than farmers living, say, in the east end of Huntingdon County.

The provincial government agreed to pay 75 per cent of the cost of this project while the interested parties will have to pay the balance.

Eight men, divided into crews of four, work day and night on the project and the six mile stretch which they have to dig and re-dig will be sped along at a faster clip than previously. It was intimated during August that most of September the mechanical shovel struck an area which was rocky and hard and slowed up the progress of the crew. However, the men have now reached soil which is more or less clear of rocks.

Work at Half-Way Mark

Mr. Pelletier stated that work on the discharge is now at the half-way mark. Work advances at the rate of 200 feet per day. The shovel is now at work between the farms of Andre Billette and Hormidas David, north of Ste. Barbe. It started at the farm of Zephirin Brisson, on "Rang du Six," north of Ste. Barbe.

There are more than 30 farmers affected by this new development and, although it will cost them approximately $6,000, they are confident that the returns they will get from their soil will enable them to recover the cost in a comparatively short time and greater dividends later on. To prove the great benefits of the St. Louis discharge, a few more owners have approached the provincial authorities and the interested parties to have the discharge extend its boundaries so that they may also benefit by this super-draining project. No decision has been taken but agronomist Ernest Ernest Glasson said it is known that the requests will be taken under serious consideration.

Ste. Barbe is known for its rich and fertile soil and this project will continue to keep up the morale of the energetic farmers living in that northern section of Huntingdon County, and those who live in the southern section of Beauharnois County.

CORP. H. W. D'AOUST HEADS ST. JOHNS DISTRICT FOR R.C.M.P.

Corporal Henry W. D'Aoust, of the Huntingdon detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was placed in charge of the St. John's district of the R.C.M.P. It was announced over the week-end that the assignment of D'Aoust's new assignment comprises all the branches of the R.C.M.P. from Bedford to Huntingdon over which he will have total supervision. Corp. D'Aoust will have his headquarters at Huntingdon for an indefinite period of time.

Valleyfield to Reduce Land, Water Taxes

Department of Defence Asks Council's Co-operation in Keeping Roads to Barracks Open During Winter Months

At the regular weekly meeting of the Valleyfield Council on Wednesday evening the following applications were received for the constabulary force: Eugene Lepage and Oscar Leduc.

E. Tremper asked that the council install water pipes at his new home on St. Lambert Street. This petition was filed. George Leduc asked for a permit to build a moveable restaurant on Victoria Street and a special permit to park a taxi. This was referred to the finance committee.

The Department of National Defence asked the city council to co-operate with them during the winter months in keeping the roads leading to the Valleyfield Military Training Centre open. City Manager Raphael Belanger was authorized to meet Mr. Joyce, of the Department of National Defence, to get more information in regards to this request.

Lieut.-Col. W. G. E. Aird, general manager of the Montreal Cottons at Valleyfield, asked the council to send a member of the constabulary force to his plant during the noon hour and in the evening when the employees leave the premises.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Aird, Dumouchel gave notice of motion that at the next meeting of the Valleyfield Council he would ask an amendment to the land and water taxes in the city. This notice of motion is given in connection with the levying of a 2 per cent sales tax which would come into effect in Valleyfield on January 1, 1941.

VALLEYFIELD HONORS ITS WAR VICTIMS IN IMPOSING CEREMONY

Members of the Valleyfield branch of the Canadian Legion gathered at the cenotaph at Valleyfield on Armistice Day to honor their comrades who fell in the Great War. In spite of the heavy downpour and the high wind which prevailed, a large gathering witnessed the short ceremony, which was most impressive.

A parade took place from the corner of St. Lambert and St. Jacques Streets to St. Lambert Street, which was led by its president, Mr. Gontran Saintonge, and followed by a detachment from the Valleyfield Military Training Centre, Lieut.-Col. Duhaute, head of the local training centre; the Zouaves, Garde Champlain, a delegation of the Valleyfield council and other prominent citizens.

The president of the Canadian Legion, G. Saintonge, Pro-Mayor Dumouchel, and the parents of those who died in the Great War deposited wreaths of flowers at the monument, which is erected on the Valleyfield court premises.

Hemmingford C.P.C. Unit Fast Growing

First Huntingdon County C.P.C. Unit Now Has Membership of Sixty-five

Hemmingford citizens turned out in large numbers on Thursday evening to hear an address from Mr. J. Gordon Ross, Quebec, who is Chief Provincial Officer for the Civilian Protection Committee. C.P.C. has taken a real hold in the Hemmingford area. Our citizens realize what a wonderful aid C.P.C. can accord humanity in a time of war, as has been demonstrated by a similar organization known as the A.R.P. in England.

Here in Hemmingford the C.P.C. has sworn in 49 members and by the end of this week another 16 names will be inscribed. These men meet every Monday and Thursday evening. They are being taught the course of their training and realize to at least a smattering degree what people of bombed cities in England must be enduring. The more they study the combating premises of such warfare, and realize the more willing they are to support the C.P.C. movement.

Mr. Harry H. Auger, Hemmingford, is the district organizer for the C.P.C. from Cornwall, Ont. On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Auger entertained a number of the C.P.C. members to a dinner in their home. Following the dinner the C.P.C. members assembled at the town hall and sang their hearts out. The streets in Hemmingford, in the course of their march they stopped at Mr. Francois Stringer's store where they were treated by Mr. Stringer to cigars, some 40 members were wearing a C.P.C. arm badge.

In the course of the talk given by Mr. Auger in the town hall he intimated that the ladies of the committee were welcome to become C.P.C. members. The ladies would receive training as well as men in such work as was acceptable and more in line with the accomplishments of women than men.

Dr. Quintin Commends Nursing Class

The Red Cross Home Nursing Class, conducted by Mrs. Lyall Stewart, had on Tuesday evening the pleasure of listening to Dr. T. J. Quintin of Ormstown on the topic "Feeding of Infants." In opening his address Dr. Quintin paid tribute to Mrs. Stewart for her successful efforts in conducting these home nursing classes—two having been previously carried on during the summer—and said her example had stimulated other localities as Ormstown had now formed one.

For the first feeding of infants the mother's milk is the best, as it contains all the necessary elements, falling this cow's milk, preferably Holstein, came next. The essential elements in feeding a child are proteins, fats and carbohydrates with an adequate supply of fluids. Vitamin D, sunshine vitamin, found in cod liver oil (standardized) should be given from the time a child is six weeks old, starting with from 5 to 8 drops, or even 1 drop, and given even in summer time as it helps prevent rickets. Orange juice or tomato juice should be given beginning with 1 tsp. when the baby is 2 weeks old. The baby should have plenty of boiled and cooled water, never give the baby unboiled water. Milk should be boiled 3 minutes until a child is 8 or 10 months or even 2 years old. Mixed feedings should start when child is 2½ or 3 months old, beginning with well cooked cereals, vegetable purees, eggs, scraped meats, ground liver, etc. He specially stressed teaching a child to eat everything good for it, while very small. Following this address on Infant Feeding, Dr. Quintin gave a demonstration on Artificial Respiration, of those apparently drowned, suffocation, electric shocks.

WEAPON AGAINST THE TANKS

"Molotov cocktails," so named because of the use the Finns made of them against the Russians, are now being manufactured in Britain. They are considered to be an effective weapon against tanks and other vehicles of armoured divisions.

Nurses Play Vital Part in Care of Sick and Wounded

Mrs. H. R. Clouston, Huntingdon, Recalls the Story Of a Great Tragedy Before Huntingdon Women's Institute—Women in Present Conflict Help Maintain Courage

Mrs. H. R. Clouston, a nursing sister in the last war, told the Huntingdon Women's Institute that for her Remembrance Day was always a very sad time. In a quiet and unassuming manner she recalled the story of a great tragedy.

Twenty nursing sisters sailed on a camouflaged troopship from Halifax in winter during the Second World War. The height of the submarine warfare. Nearing the other side they were chased and had to make for the Clyde instead of a southern port. Mrs. Clouston was charmed with the hospitable welcome of the Scottish people. Her first trip across London was in a Canadian Red Cross ambulance to the Rest House given by the Countess of Minto and operated by our Red Cross for the use of Canadian Nurses.

Some idea of the colossal task of the hospitals and medical services in the last War is learned from the figures of 70,000 Canadian dead and over 700,000 casualties, many coming back with wounds three or four times. The battle of Vimy lasting from five in the morning until dark, cost 6,000 casualties. All wounded were cleared from the field in 24 hours. Hospitals in France were crowded with dangerously ill. Amputations and other wounds were loaded on trains and taken across the channel on ear ferries, thence by the same train direct to English hospitals. Hospitals were mostly hut arrangements similar to the one in Huntingdon barracks. As many as 400 stretcher cases would come in at one time. Once we had eighty amputation cases and 600 fractured hips. Dr. Clouston was in such a hospital taken over from Lady Astor.

"Those boys, I could never forget," said Mrs. Clouston. "One would say, 'attend to him first, Sister, he is worse than I am.' They sacrificed everything. They had everything to complain about, but they never said a word. The Army did the best they could. You just could not do what should have been done. It was impossible. Bayonet wounds would become infected. I have worked from 7 to 10 o'clock just doing dressings. Some had as many as five tubes in an arm." The speaker described the drip method of cleaning up infections, which sounded pretty complicated.

Bramshot after the War was a place of horror. Some 12,000 troops and 7,000 hospital cases.

Adjudges the Science Room As the Finest

Dr. McNaly, Deputy Minister of Education in Alberta, at Huntingdon

Dr. G. F. McNaly, deputy minister of education in the Province of Alberta, paid a visit to the Huntingdon High School on Wednesday morning last. He was accompanied by Mr. Fraser, president of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, the chairman of the School Board, Mr. J. F. Smellie and Commissioner Austin Kelly. The commissioners welcomed their honored guests and accompanied them on a tour of inspection of the High School.

Dr. McNaly visited each room of the buildings, greeting the teachers and students and cheering them with his winning Irish smile. He spoke in glowing terms of the entire plant. He admired the household science laboratory as fine as anything he had seen in his long experience with rural and urban schools.

The educationist's visit in this Province was at the invitation of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec to give a series of lectures and visit certain schools in the Province. He dwelt particularly on the successful working of the large unit of School Administration, as it exists in the Province of Alberta.

Dr. McNaly expressed himself strongly in favor of schools finding a course to suit the needs of the pupils in their particular district, as much of the regimentation and strict classification of pupils is according to generally accepted standards. He said that in the Province of Alberta, a student may take only one subject in Grade XII, for example, and other subjects in lower forms but he is given credit for being a student in Grade XII and no attempt is made to make him appear inferior to other students who may not have his special gifts in mechanical or other lines not strictly academic.

Medical Men To Combat Hazards

The District of Beauharnois has long been noted for having medical men that have risen to high positions, not only in the various professions but in the military field and that of education.

As we think of the military field we just naturally think of the late Col. J. M. Elder, Dr. H. A. Roman and Dr. C. L. Roman of Valleyfield.

Dr. Roman served in the Great War in France and when war was declared in September 1939 he offered his services as a medical officer. He was then told to remain in Valleyfield until called. No call was forthcoming and perhaps for a very good reason, as far as the Dominion Government was concerned. The Federal Government no doubt knew his capabilities as a man of outstanding medical ability, and more especially in regards to industrial medicine. Valleyfield area is fast becoming one of the greatest industrial centers of all Canada.

The D.I.L. plant at Salaberry is presently employing some three thousand men. When the plant is put into operation it will offer hazards in some departments to employees. In making explosives, such as T.N.T., employees are exposed to the handling of tolnol, tetrol and benzol which in turn are liable to produce conditions amongst workers that call for medical supervision.

Dr. Roman is well and favorably connected with the medical fraternity not only in this District but with the various clinics and hospitals in Montreal. Having been with the Montreal Cottons Co. Limited for a long time, means that the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Commission

The specifications for the filter plant have not yet reached the council but it is hoped that they will be examined at Friday's adjourned session.

India Customs Of Living Repugnant

Mrs. Dr. Elliott, Ormstown Tells W.I. Ladies of Aubrey-Riverfield of India Hospital Work

The Aubrey-Riverfield W.I. held a very successful "hostess tea" on Saturday afternoon in the Riverfield Church Hall. Mrs. J. L. Gruber, president of the W.I., introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. (Dr.) Elliott, of Ormstown, who spoke on India—housekeeping there, food, sanitation, dress and hospital work. Mrs. Elliott, who with her husband is on tour, was dressed in the native Indian costume, which has some advantages over ours in the fact that it is all one length of cloth, requires neither needles nor thread and is not even plain to hold it in place. To the uninitiated it seemed rather hard to adjust and cumbersome to work in, let alone sleep in, as they do. The houses are one-story and have the kitchen at the back where no shadow of any person passing must fall on the food lest it be defiled, and it is best not to look too closely into how your food is prepared by the native cooks—a case of "where ignorance is bliss."

As the cow is sacred in India, beef is not eaten, and very little milk is obtained from them, and this of poor quality. The water buffalo is used for the milk and butter supply. In the part of India in which Mrs. Elliott was stationed very few vegetables could be grown, the soil being infested by white ants, so vegetables had to be imported from the hills. Rice and curries were the staple food; eggs were very small and prohibited in some castes. Sanitation was at the lowest; there were no screens in the windows and flies were plentiful, carrying diseases, one of the worst being dysentery.

In the hospitals no mattresses are used.

Pringle, Stark & Co. Firm Has Now Served Huntingdon For Forty-five Years

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan H. Heath Have Acquired Interests of the Late Mr. T. B. Pringle

During the last decade of the last century two young men worked in what was then known as Mrs. Marshall's store. Besides having a general store, Mrs. Marshall operated the post office. This store and post office was located in a three store brick building where the B-A garage of Mr. C. J. Kyle now stands. The young men were Mr. Pringle and Mr. Stark. Mr. Pringle and James W. Stark.

In 1895 these young men formed a partnership and acquired the general store of the late Mrs. Marshall. On many occasions the late Mr. Pringle and Mr. Stark have entertained their business associates and friends by telling of some of their early episodes in business, both when they worked as clerks for Mrs. Marshall and when they were in business for themselves.

The young men operated a dry goods business, and behind the long counters in the old store there appeared almost countless webs of cloth of all descriptions. His capabilities as a man of outstanding medical ability, and more especially in regards to industrial medicine. Valleyfield area is fast becoming one of the greatest industrial centers of all Canada.

The D.I.L. plant at Salaberry is presently employing some three thousand men. When the plant is put into operation it will offer hazards in some departments to employees. In making explosives, such as T.N.T., employees are exposed to the handling of tolnol, tetrol and benzol which in turn are liable to produce conditions amongst workers that call for medical supervision.

Dr. Roman is well and favorably connected with the medical fraternity not only in this District but with the various clinics and hospitals in Montreal. Having been with the Montreal Cottons Co. Limited for a long time, means that the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Commission he was sent for. If you were a stout man, you could trust John to tell you about being so.

In the latter days of the post office in this block it was located in a rooming house owned by the late Bro's hardware store and when it vacated this site the room was converted into the grocery department. The back store was heavily stocked with hardware, paints, glass, oils and a certain amount of feed.

Pringle, Stark & Co. were quite proud of their horses which they had on the village delivery express. "Bokar" was a prize horse from the famous horse stable of James McGill. The McGill fancy driving horse stable was the building now used for the badminton court on Dalhousie St. P. S. & Co. had a succession of fine horses, which in reality were an advertisement for quality merchandise sold by them. Mr. Cecil Stark was then a busy lad in his teens. If it was not convenient to hitch up the horse, to have a few deliveries made, Cecil would mount his bicycle. And, mind you, the town streets were then rough! On his shoulders might be seen a hundred of sugar or a bag of salt. It made little difference; he was a power of strength as a boy as well as when he grew to manhood.

For a few years after the Central Hotel fire, where the present Pringle, Stark and Co. store now stands, the ruins were a menace and a hazard to passers-by. Eventually the walls were battered down and at last the glad news was about the village that Pringle, Stark & Co. had purchased the property with a view to building a model general store on that site. Previous to this, these two young business men acquired the McNaughton store, where the Bank of Montreal now stands. This building was spacious and was likely to become a new home for their store, but not so when the Central Hotel property was acquired.

Eventually building operations were started in the erection of the new store. Work was proceeding just as fast as Mr. Pringle would have liked it in regards to the digging of the cellar. There were no proud

Huntingdon, Wed., Nov. 20th, 1940

We must not care for length of life, but for a life sufficient for our duties. Life is long if it is full; but it is full when the soul hath completed its development and hath shown all its latent powers.—Seneca.

Civilian Protective Committees Across Canada

CIVILIAN Protective Committee in Canada is identical to that of the Air Raid Precautions organization in England. Were it not for the capabilities of the A.R.P. in England, the morale of the people might long have been shattered due to the terrific bombing that has been directed against the English cities in particular.

Here in Canada, too many of us sit back with a self-satisfaction feeling that such catastrophes of war can never occur in Canada, therefore C.P.C. is not at all an essential of this war. That is not so. A.R.P. has definitely built up the morale of the people in England, and C.P.C. is doing that very same thing in Canada. C.P.C. tends to make us more conscious of the ravages of war. In Huntingdon, where we have the Chateaugay Military Training Camp, the populace is becoming more and more military educated and steeped in the price of war. Suppose the A.R.P. folks in England were not trained to look after innocent, aged and children, how in the world could the medical fraternity begin to cope with the situation? Aged men and women, children and others would die long before the physician could be secured. The A.R.P. members have been trained to render "first aid," and in their turn have saved thousands upon thousands of lives. What may have been a slight injury when treated by an A.R.P. would have become a major accident by the time a doctor arrived. Blood poisoning would in many cases have settled in before professional services were secured.

The bombing of England has caused many a fire, and how in the world could the ordinary staff of firemen cope with the situation. The A.R.P. members have received training in how to fight fires that were started in such an incendiary manner. Through the united co-operation of the A.R.P. the losses from fire have been minimized.

With all these devastating attacks on man and property in England, can you imagine their being no pilfering by unscrupulous personages? Here again the mobile squads of the A.R.P. come into play, through their augmenting the police forces of the many cities and communities, such pilfering and stealing is well curbed.

Here in Canada, the Civilian Protective Committee is organizing from coast-to-coast in preparation for the worst, hoping upon hope their training will never be called upon due to German air raids. It seems almost reasonable to believe Germany will perhaps make an effort to bomb Canada; a country lending such industrial effort to the Empire in the way of supplying war materials, food, man power and training centers for airmen and groundmen.

Whether C.P.C. is ever called into action in this country on such a war scare or not is not known, but at any rate the training the men and women who align themselves with C.P.C. will in turn receive, is a training that will serve them a useful purpose throughout life.

At Hemmingford on Thursday evening, J. Gordon Ross, Quebec, who is Chief Provincial Officer for C.P.C. was to be present and at the same time screen a movie depicting what hazards the people of England are enduring and how the A.R.P. membership are responding to the responsibilities they assumed and how they are executing the training they received. Mr. Ross failed to be present due to the fact that he was detained in an eastern Quebec city for military reasons over which he had no control. Mr. Henry H. Auger, Hemmingford, who is the organizer of the district extending from Cornwall to Stanstead, addressed the large assembly of citizens on A.R.P. accomplishments and why C.P.C. should be furthered in Canada. His almost dramatic and convincing appeal left the audience anything but disappointed for their having responded to the Hemmingford C.P.C. invitation to be present.

Hemmingford has organized a C.P.C. unit, already 49 members have been sworn in and another 16 are expected to be duly inducted this week. In this unit they have provided for 7 mobile squads, representing 28 men. These 28 men are vested with the rights of policemen. Petty thieving in the east end of Huntingdon County can now be regarded as a thing of the past for these 28 men along with the regular police of this country will be able to keep very close tab on any unlawful actions that may take place, not the least of which may be, conscious or unconscious 5th columnist talk or actions.

For Charity

MORE than $600. was raised at the Annual Charity Party on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' of St. Anne, which sum will go a long way towards providing for needy children this winter. Fortunately, there will be fewer needy children this winter than for quite a few winters past due to the comparatively rosy employment situation existing in Huntingdon at present. With the mills all busy there are and will continue to be less people in need of aid. Care should be taken in the handing out of aid in order that no encouragement whatever might be given to those people who would prefer to do nothing and whose maxim is that the world owes them a living. There is difficulty in defining that fine line which marks off the two classes, but that line does exist.

Licensing the Hunter

ALONG the Montreal-Malone highway there have passed of late a sufficient number of cars containing hunting enthusiasts to remind one that once again there have been let loose in the woods of northern Quebec a flock of hunters and would-be hunters. No horn is needed to make the presence of some of them known for their garb is "loud" enough to attract all desirable attention. There seems to be an association between hunting, fishing and hay fever. Each takes possession of certain persons at fixed periods; and there is no escaping its attack. At this time of the year the mildest-mannered man may arm himself and fare forth to kill. Perhaps it is the chase rather than the killing that appeals; and that is a charitable view to take.

To many the hunting season is an opportunity to get away for awhile from the pressure of business. Yet it seems to us that even the ancient sport of hunting has become enveloped with business today. In the good old days the Indian needed only his bow and arrow in order to go forth and kill something for the family larder. Now it seems so much of a business that one needs many licenses before he proceeds to hunting. There are about eight licenses necessary to obtain before one can go out deer-hunting. First it is necessary to have your gun registration permit, then, of course, your deer license, and your camp license. Most camps now hunt with dogs, so two dog licenses (municipal and hunting) are necessary. Travel by car is essential, so a car license is necessary, as well as an operator's permit. If the game warden should happen to meet you in the woods it would be no surprise if he asked you for your registration card. All in all, it's a healthy list, but it gives some idea of the indirect taxation and regulation under which we are now living.

Despite the barrage of licenses the boys still insist on getting their deer in the fall. The echoing reports of shot gun fire in the otherwise still woods attest to this fact.

Poor Old Taxpayer

WE were in conversation the other day with a man who said he had just finished paying his coal bill for the winter supply, had purchased winter clothing for the children, cleaned up some old bills for which his creditors were nastily pushing him, checked over the various taxes and donations he had made during the past year together with various other sums expended, the whole total of which had sort of "got him down." After relating his financial troubles, including the fact that Christmas is just around the corner, he headed for a chest of drawers and with an ever growing grin produced therefrom a sheet of paper from which he read an account of another man's lamentations. As he did so the fog of despair seemed to lift from him and he laughed heartily as he learned of how another man chronicled his financial stringencies. It read as follows: My present financial condition is due to the effect of the federal laws, state laws, county laws, incorporation laws, by-laws, brothers-in-law and outlaws, that have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. Through these various laws I have been held down, held up, set up, walked on, flattened, squeezed and broke until I do not know what I am, where I am, or why I am.

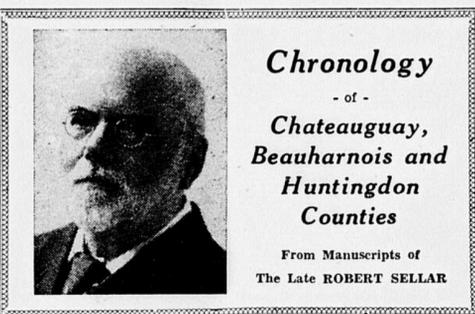

These laws compel me to pay merchant tax, capital tax, excise tax, incorporation tax, property tax, auto tax, gas tax, light tax, water tax, cigar tax, school tax, liquor tax, syntax and carpet tax, and when I am dead they look for inheritance tax.

In addition to these laws, I am requested and required to contribute to every society and organization that the inventive mind of man can invent and organize: to the Society of St. John the Baptist, the Women's Relief, Navy League, Children's Home, Policemen's Benefit, Dorcas Society, Y.M.C.A. and the Gold Diggers Home; also to every hospital and charitable institution in town—the Red Cross, Black Cross, White Cross, Purple Cross, Flaming Cross and Double Cross.

The Government has so governed my business that I do not know who owns it. I am suspected, indicted, expected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, commanded, compelled, until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known and unknown deed, desire or hope of the human race, and because I refuse to donate to all and then go out and borrow, beg or steal money to give away I am ousted, cussed, and disrobed, until I am just about ruined.

The only reason I am clinging to life at all is to see what the blazes is coming next. Poor old taxpayer!

True courage scorns to vent her prowess in a storm of words; and to the valiant action speaks alone.—Smollett.

WILLIAM McKELL—My father was a shepherd and belonged to Lochwinnoch, Renfrewshire. We came out in 1821, and stayed about Montreal during the summer. It would be in September that my father and Arthur Richey, hearing there was land to be had up the Chateaugay, started on foot to see. They stayed overnight at Reeve's and met Mills, who told them he had no lots to assign at that time on the Chateaugay, but might next year, and urged my father to stay, and to his objection as to what he would do with his family, offered to let him have the blockhouse. Hearing of there being good land on the English River, they went over in company with Captain Ogilvie, who assisted them to measure and take up lots for the land was not surveyed at that time. In his first attempt at chopping, my father felled several hemlocks which lodged. A Mrs. Lucinda Baxter, coming over to see the settlers, took the axe and showed them how to do it. It was a very poor shanty he got up, but being in the depths of a thick wood, it was not very cold. My father had money enough to pay for provisions, which Mr. Brodie got for him, and it was brought down in a canoe to Logan's Point, and we brought it up from there in a canoe we borrowed. This would be in October. Arthur Richey settled on a lot now owned by Newlands. My father's house was on that lot, and on finding that out, when the time was run, he had to abandon it and build a new one.

Richey dropped dead coming from Muir's Church. Matt McKell, my father on the lot now owned by William Knox. David Wilson, still owned by the family. William Gardner, on lot owned by John Rutherford. Patrick McNulty came in early. Stephen Patterson came in early—some time in the winter, I think.

Above Wilson's there was no clearing or house, until you reached Duncan's. There were traces of a habitation at Norton Creek, some apple trees, I think. It was said to be the place where Norton lived, who left when the war broke out. There was no clearing worth speaking of. There had been a road leading from the States (so I was told) to the English River, good enough for winter travel, but on the day the war broke out the government had sent men to block it up by felling trees across it. The only trace of the old mill at Howick was part of the dam and some burned timbers. My impression is that it was burned during the war. There was a road across to the Chateaugay (the Mill Road) about half of which was well made. I never met or heard from anyone who took part in the war, but in clearing our land, arms, rifles and bayonets were found, but no bones. We supposed they were arms thrown away by deserters or those in flight. I met a woman near Vankleek Hill who told me she had been servant to Somerville, the miller. Our nearest mill was Beauharnois, until that at St. Martine was built. It was a three-days' job to go with the grist.

When we came Reeves sold nothing but whiskey, and it was some time after that he began a store. My father never made potash. We once collected a quantity of ashes and took them down to sell to some Canadians, but on their refusing to buy them, we instead of dumping them on a field (as they expected) threw them into the river. Duncan, however, made a good deal of potash, which he brought down in a flat-bottomed boat. He had cleared a sort of channel at the rapids, and when it grew up, he tried it with a handspike. One of the Fishers of Hemmingford took down a barrel or two in a canoe and sold all.

DAVID WILSON—My father was a blaster and farm labourer, and came from near Glasgow. The first year I came I worked for Mr. Auley, and after that lumbered myself. A fine flat by the river induced my father to take the lot he settled on, but when the dam was put up, it drowned 12 acres. He sought recompense at Brown & Richardson's hands, but never got anything more than a remission of the rent on seven acres. None of those whose lands were thus lost ever got any compensation. Increased Demand of Agricultural Products For War—Hon. J. G. Gardiner Announces a "Five Year Plan" for the Selling of Canada's Wheat

CANADIAN farmers are assured of increased sales of their products to Britain during the coming year. In the House of Commons, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, has given particulars of the arrangements he made with the British ministry of food on his recent visit to London. Aside from wheat, agreements have been made for the export to Britain of various other agricultural products, such as cheese, canned foods, fish, etc. to the value of $105,000,000. In this bitter life and death struggle to free the world from Nazi tyranny, Britain looks to Canada for a continuous supply of essential foodstuffs which are as much the sinews of war as munitions and planes. Cheese stands high among these essentials, and Britain has agreed to take 112 million pounds of Canadian cheese in the coming year compared with 90 million pounds in the past year.

Britain has agreed to buy from Canada a minimum of 425 million pounds of bacon (Wiltshire sides) and by-products with an aggregate value of nearly $70,000,000, an increase of about $10,000,000 over the past year. Canada has now definitely taken in the bacon market of Britain the place of Denmark which prior to the war supplied Britain with over half her bacon imports.

The price which the British will pay for the bacon will, Mr. Gardiner said, "hold a favorable relationship to last year's average price." Canada will also sell to Britain $3,750,000 worth of evaporated milk, $4,540,000 worth of canned and processed fruits and vegetables, and $12,050,000 worth of canned and frozen fish. All these sales represent a substantial increase on last year. Butter, poultry and eggs, if purchased by the British, will be bought through the usual channels. The British do not want to buy butter to an amount that would curtail Canada's shipments of cheese, and poultry has to be classed in these days of belt-tightening as something of a luxury.

No Agreement on Wheat The minister of agriculture did not make an agreement on wheat. He said, however, that in recent months British purchases of wheat have been 70 per cent of Canadian origin, and he suggested to the British that the same ratio might continue. If it did, this would mean an annual sale to Britain of 160,000,000 bushels. Looking to the future, Mr. Gardiner calculated prospects for the next five years in the following way. With an average crop of 380,000,000 bushels, the five-year crop total would be 1,900,000,000 bushels. Adding this year's carryover of 280,000,000 there would be for the five years 2,180,000,000 bushels available for domestic and world markets. If the present domestic consumption of 140,000,000 bushels annually were placed at a more reasonable figure of 160,000,000, the consumption in Canada would be 800,000,000 bushels, while British purchases would amount to a similar figure. If the British blockade continued for two years, he estimated in the succeeding three years about 480,000,000 bushels would be needed for the countries now blockaded. If the present sales of 30,000,000 bushels continued, the full available supplies of the five years on the basis of his estimate would be disposed of. He did not feel that farm-

Opinions of Others ...

WE REMEMBER—WHAT? (The Northern News)

We have remembered, those of us who turned out in yesterday's damp chill to honor the dead of the Great War, to pay our respects to its survivors who live in our midst.

We have remembered the sacrifice of others. We in all probability have remembered also to be grateful for the readiness of those who have offered themselves in this war for the defense of our Empire and our homes.

But have we remembered that to us, too, there is a call for sacrifice in some form or another? A call to think a little less of ourselves, a little more of others. A call to us who cannot be, and perhaps would not be, if we had the chance, very heroic, to give the comfort of our backing, our thoughts, yes, and our prayers to those who are ready to meet whatever comes.

It's all very well to turn out once a year and be, for ten minutes or so, impressed with a deep solemnity. To stand silent with the others, to raise our hats and bow our heads.

True, that is even more than some did yesterday, but what does our observance mean unless we are ready to serve in some way, not with gushing enthusiasm or maudlin and occasional fervor, but day in, day out.

We don't think that weeping or sighing help very much. We don't believe in adopting a note of lasting solemnity, or a perpetual "shushing" and walking on tiptoe. We don't believe that there should not be life, and love and laughter, for there is that even in the face of death.

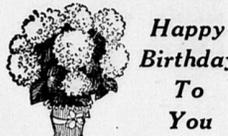

But we do believe—and probably you will get our meaning—that there are still some people "who don't yet know what it's all about."

Is Ormstown Forgetting Armistice?

A stranger driving through Ormstown on Armistice Day would have undoubtedly gathered the impression that our citizens are forgetting, or already have forgotten, those gallant young men, who during 1914-18 were willing to, and many did, pay the supreme sacrifice, so that our country and Empire could attain victory.

How would one gather this impression? You must admit that the citizens respond courageously to appeals sent out on behalf of ex-servicemen. In an equal manner they give cheerfully to the Red Cross or other organizations connected with the C.A.S.F. Well, let's waste no more time—here's your answer. Every business establishment with the exception of the bank disregards this national holiday and welcomes business. The proprietors shrug their

CHECKERBOARD LOVE

CHAPTER IV

"Carry her to the house," was Anthony's order to Jeff. "Audrey, you go with him. Lay her on a bed and call the doctor. I'll be there . . . wait." The last was to Victor, as Anthony ran over and took a quick look at the prostrate Eileen. "I fancied as much," he reported grimly. "Mr. Quinn, will you be good enough to stop at the stables and ask for Jim? Tell him it's a broken leg. He'll know what to do."

When Anthony Swan hurried in to the front hall he encountered his wife at the foot of the stairs. "No doctor yet? I'll have a look at the girl. Where did you put her?" "Jeffrey laid her on Audrey's bed," Martha led the way.

Jeff, white and shaken, stood beside the bed looking down at Olive, who lay with closed eyes.

"Do you think she's badly hurt, Swan?" was his low-voiced question. "I fancy not," was the quiet rejoinder. Anthony elbowed the young man aside, bent over the bed and began a gentle but thorough investigation. "It will be an arm or leg if anything worse than a shaking up. She's breathing well enough." He pulled a knife from his pocket and opened its heavy sharp blade. He looked up quite apologetically at Jeff. "Sorry to cut a new book like that, but it's uncommonly tight. I'm afraid to drag it off."

"Go ahead," Jeffrey urged nervously.

Audrey watched her father part the leather with cautious strokes, drag the boot off carefully and drop it. Then he turned to her. "Maybe you can do a better job, my girl, getting that stocking off."

As the sheer silk hose was freed from the breeches cuff, Audrey rolled it down with gentle fingers. "What do you think, Dad?"

"I can't say. It may be no more than a sprain, or there may be broken bones or torn ligaments."

"Listen, Swan," Jeff whispered somewhat irritably. "What was the matter with that darned mare, anyway? My man brought word that you said she was O.K. at the jumps. Were you watching? She acted as if she had never been put at a fence."

"There was nothing the matter with the mare, whatever, Mr. Jeffrey." The last word scarcely had left his lips when the silence was punctured by the distant crack of a rifle. "She'll not be jumping again," he added with grim bitterness.

It seemed as if the report might have startled Olive into wakefulness, for her eyelids fluttered, then opened wide. There was a helpless dazed expression in the large dark eyes. She must have recognized Jeff for she called his name faintly and he copped to his knees at her side. "Olive! Are you all right?"

"What happened?" She was looking wonderingly at the others. "Oh! I remember."

"You had a spill," Jeff explained hurriedly. "You're all right now."

"Fancy that wretched mare refusing an easy jump like that!" said Olive. "I hope she broke her neck. Oh, my ankle!"

"You wrenched it a bit," Jeff soothed. "The doctor will be here shortly."

Olive looked at the faces about the bed and managed a smile. "Sorry I made such a spectacle of myself. I'm all right now. If you'll help me up, Jeffrey . . ."

"You stay right where you are, Mrs. Cooper," Martha directed. "I think that's Dr. Bardsley coming up now," as steps were heard on the stairs. "Yes, it is. In here, doctor."

The others, save Jeff, left the room as the physician entered and Audrey found herself being escorted below stairs by Victor Quinn. "Audrey," Vic said, "my equestrian ignorance is depressing. But I couldn't help thinking from some remark your father made that this accident shouldn't be charged fairly to . . ."

"The horse had nothing to do with it but I can see where it definitely puts an end to the party."

"I'm sorry but I imagine you're right, Mrs. Cooper won't be up to much of anything for a little while, I suppose."

"Maybe she'll have to stay on with you," Vic suggested maliciously. "We'll try to take good care of her."

"I was spooking, Mrs. Castle will have her over there before sundown. You'll see. May I come back? I mean it terribly."

"You will be welcome any time, of course."

"Thanks a lot for everything. You're a cute number, Audrey. Good-bye." And he was gone.

Audrey was in the dining room, standing by the sideboard when her mother entered. "Audrey, did you have a chance to get acquainted with that woman?"

"Mrs. Cooper, you mean?" she returned guardedly. "Why, no. I didn't have much of a chance at the dinner. And you know she had the spill only a few moments after they came over."

"She's pretty," Martha admitted. "But I hate to see Jeffrey taking up with a divorced woman."

"Oh, that's nothing these days," Audrey was thinking of what Vic had said regarding modern marriages. "Besides," she added with a faint smile, "she isn't divorced . . . yet."

"Then she should wait till she is before she lets men start fussing around her. Jeffrey's clear out of his head over her. Your father is really upset about that horse."

"I don't wonder," was the grim retort. "That was rotten! I suppose she didn't know any better, but . . ."

"Did you hear what she said about it?"

"Yes, I heard."

"Do you know," said Martha. "I would have liked to see more of that Mr. Quinn. He talks a heap of foolishness, but anybody with half an eye can see there's a lot to him. He's smart. A lawyer, did you say?"

"Yes, maybe you will be pleased to learn, Mrs. Swan, that he has asked your daughter's permission to come back again. Do you mind?"

"Indeed, no!" Martha regarded her daughter curiously. She could not quite understand this sudden light mood. "I think that would be very nice," she amended. "He seems to like you."

"Oh, he does. He thinks I'm a cute number. He just told me so."

"Well, for . . . Audrey, isn't that Mrs. Castle's car?"

Audrey turned quickly, in time to see a blue limousine roll past the windows. A chauffeur in smart livery, a portly, white-clad passenger in the rear.

"It's her Royal Highness," she reported briefly.

"I've never done more than speak to her!" Martha recalled in sudden consternation. "You go to the door. I'm not dressed."

"Why, good morning Mrs. Castle," Audrey tried to put delighted surprise in her tones. "Come in."

"I just heard about this dreadful thing and drove right down," the caller began a trifle breathlessly. "Is the poor child hurt?"

Dr. Bardsley said, "The young lady appears to have a badly wrenched ankle. I was just suggesting to Mr. Castle that it would be well to drive her to the hospital and let them take an X-ray as soon as she feels up to it."

Mrs. Castle turned to Audrey. "It's a miracle the child wasn't killed! I should have warned her. She is not accustomed to the reckless way you young people in the country ride. I dare say it was one of your father's horses."

"No, Mrs. Castle," Mrs. Cooper came explained quietly. "Mrs. Castle was over here on one of your horses . . . Jeff's. But it is dead now."

"How shocking! It might so easily have been just the other way."

"Yes. They had to shoot the horse."

Mrs. Castle stared uncertainly as this information was imparted, but before she could decide whether or not some implication was intended, Jeffrey appeared on the stairs with Olive in his arms. White-faced, and with her hair in disorder, she looked very small and childish. One arm was about her aide's neck, her other hand held her hat dangling by its elastic cord.

"Hello, Mrs. Castle," she called with attempted gaiety. "Aren't I a mess?"

"You poor darling!" The other woman hurried forward and brushed a kiss on the patient's cheek. "Are you in great pain? I'm so relieved to know that you are not badly hurt."

Olive turned her head and looked at Audrey. "So sorry, dear, to have caused all this commotion. It spoils everything. But you'll come to see me, won't you? And please do thank your father and mother for their kindness."

The late afternoon found Audrey on the side porch trying to forget everything in the pages of a new novel. When the sudden crunch of tires on the gravel drive caused her to look up, she was startled to see Jeff in his yellow roadster.

She was more puzzled when she discovered that her caller was decidedly ill at ease. "How is the lady now?" she inquired dutifully.

"Olive? Oh, she's all right. Sleeping when I came away. She decided not to go to the hospital until tomorrow. I believe we left Olive's best behind in the excitement," he remarked offhandedly. "I thought I'd drop in and pick it up for you."

"I'll run up and get it for you."

She went in and appeared with it almost at once. "Phy Dad had had cut it," she remarked.

"Oh, well . . . You know, Cylie . . . hang it all. I feel pretty rotten about the whole affair. It was my fault, after all."

"I don't see why."

"Sure you do. I know you well enough to guess what it would do to you to see a good horse done in like that. When I sent Eileen over here, I figured that you'd ride her. Same as I knew you wouldn't say she was all right at the bars if she wasn't."

"I had no trouble with her," Audrey observed quietly.

"Olive told me to ask you up to the house if I saw you. I wish you would come, Cylie. Will you?"

"Let's see," Audrey mused. "Tomorrow's Sunday, isn't it? I'll run in during the afternoon. Will that do?"

"Thanks a lot, Cylie." He rose to his feet. "See you tomorrow, then."

True to her promise, Audrey drove to the house on the hill.

There was little about Olive Cooper to suggest the invalid. She was propped up in a nest of pillows and wearing a lacy negligee of bright yellow that set off her coloring. Her hair was perfectly arranged, her eyes shining, her cheeks flushed. She extended her nearest hand, her left, in a graceful greeting.

"So sweet of you to run in, Cylie . . . you don't mind if I call you by Jeffrey's name, do you? It's so cute. This is one time I really am going to have a chance to visit with you."

"How's the ankle?"

MILITARY NEWS

A Young Trainee Expresses Satisfaction and Contentment

"L'illustration," one of Montreal's leading French pictorial newspapers, issued a few days ago a detailed account of the activities at the Chateaugay Military Training Centre during the first month of training. Contrary to some metropolitan newspapers, "L'illustration" reported the impressions of some trainees who attended the training here in October and their complete contentment during their 30-day stay. One boy said in his interview: "Physically and mentally, our 30-day training has been more than profitable. When our training day was completed, or during noon hour, we played rugby and softball. There are ping-pong tables and other games in the halls for the entertainment of the soldiers. The meals were as good if not better than the other training centres in the province."

notice of motion was given two weeks ago and now some members of the council wish to get the reaction of the public bodies of the city before proceeding further.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce informed the council that they were in favor of such a levy on the condition that the water and land taxes be reduced, while the Senior Chamber of Commerce would prefer more details on the question before expressing itself. The Proprietors' League has failed to commit itself but the council will approach their executive within the next few days to get an answer.

AGRICULTURE IN WAR

"It must be remembered that while agriculture is a vital arm in war, the full impact of the demand for farm products is not felt until accumulated stores disappear and production areas are restricted. Agriculture may be regarded, therefore, as something of a reserve force, the power of which is not felt in the early stages, and the needs for which and the nature of which can only be accurately determined in the light of developments."—Dr. G. H. S. Barton, Deputy Minister, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

ST. LAMBERT AND VALLEYFIELD DRAW IN WEEK-END GAME

Valleyfield's high powered Braves in the Montreal and District League were nearly short-circuited by St. Lambert in the second game of a double-header at Verdun Auditorium over the week-end, when they had to come from behind twice to gain a 2-2 draw.

Highly rated in the pre-season books, the Braves stepped out against the South Shore team which in its previous game had lost 10-1, with an air of over-confidence. Following a scoreless first period, however, the Braves realized they were in a locker game, as St. Lambert played a smashing two-way game with its goaler, Louis Larivee, at his best form between the posts.

Harry Poulton, who tallied both St. Lambert's goals, got in the first counter at the seconds of the second period, when he took Macey's pass in close to beat Johnny Lascelles. The Braves were not long in squaring the issue when Jeanette tallied a minute later. Through the rest of the session and well into the third period, the teams battled on even terms, and Poulton came through again for St. Lambert at 10:19, with Jules Cholette putting Braves back on even footing with his tally at 15:06.

Letters to The Editor

Howick, P.Q.,
November 18, 1940

The Huntingdon Gleaner, Huntingdon, P.Q.
Gentlemen:

A few weeks ago I wrote, in regard to the 50-day training scheme, that it had some value, not as a means of training a man to be a soldier, but to show him what army life might be like, and also to perhaps start him on adopting a correct posture, which would benefit him physically. I also gave it as my opinion that our political leaders, or Government, were intelligent, and that in their efforts to put into proper gear Canada's war machine they had used the advice of experts, and no doubt look that advice. However, in the latest newspaper announcements in regard to military service is a correct reporting of the intention of the Government, and that perhaps they are asking for, and asking the advice of, their experts. Just think, after over twelve months of war they are considering trying some plan, after twelve months of war they are asking for, and asking the advice of, their experts. Just think, after over twelve months of war they are considering trying some plan, after twelve months of war they are asking for, and asking the advice of, their experts.

During 1914-1916 Canada had a reasonably efficient war machine. It was built largely upon the men who had served in the military in the previous war, and who were well trained, and who were well equipped. It was built largely upon the men who had served in the military in the previous war, and who were well trained, and who were well equipped. Canadian Legion to Operate Canteen in Chateaugay Military Training Camp

Local Citizens Committee Along With Members of Legion to Work in Conjunction With Canteen Officials

Monday noon a number of townsmen met in the Huntingdon Chateau with the Canadian Legion. President C. M. Oney of the local branch introduced the visitors.

Captain Norman R. Southward of Montreal, and Captain St. G. Hall of St. Lambert informed those present that the canteen at the Chateaugay Military Training Camp was to be operated by the Legion. They intimated that besides supplying refreshments to the trainees, it became a part of their lot to provide them with facilities for their entertainment when off duty.

The Legion also strives to provide a few extra comforts that are not provided for by the regular army issue.

Lieut.-Col. C. C. Brooks, Officer Commanding, stated that the camp was in a moisture-proof, dust-proof, wrapping called "cellophane" and all is put on display behind electrically operated refrigerators and the like. The result is that just about everything that a man in the army needs can be purchased without going to the camp area. For that reason canteens are now for practical purposes referred to as "departmental" stores.

Canadian Legion War Services, which operates such establishments in many training centres throughout the Dominion, stocks all manner of articles that the average soldier requires. These include flashlights, soap containers, kitbag handles and socks, shaving cream, tooth paste, shoe laces, socks, braces, belt, sun glasses and so on for nearly half a column of type. Everything is sold without profit to the Legion, which hands over five per cent of the gross receipts to the units served. The rest of the profits, after operating expenses are deducted, are placed in a fund for the benefit of the men now serving and their dependents.

Canada's new army, too, is fully aware of the value of calories and vitamins. For example, during one month in a typical Legion hut, 42,975 bottles of plain milk, chocolate milk and soft drinks were consumed to quench their thirst after eating 120 chocolate bars and 13,622 cup cakes. Then the boys sat back in complete relaxation and enjoyed some 195,200 cigarettes and 4,560 packages of pipe and cigarette tobacco.

A large number of games, lounge furnishings and a piano will certainly be included in the requirements. It is the custom of the Legion to have a piano in the canteen.

The canteen is to be in charge of W. W. Beckingham, assisted by Ambrose Tetro, both Great War veterans. Mr. Beckingham is to be in charge of the camp with the Legion representatives, the local Legion members and Lieut.-Col. C. C. Brooks, Officer Commanding, and his staff. They in turn will see just what is required, and how the essentials can be obtained.

The many friends of Miss M. A. Sadler will be pleased to hear that she is home again, much improved in health, after having been a patient for three weeks at the Base and General Hospital, St. Peter of Rockburn, Que., is caring for Miss Sadler during her convalescence.

Miss Gertrude Boyd of Huntingdon spent Sunday with Mrs. Fred Boyd.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Winter spent the week-end with relatives in Montreal.

W.A. Meeting
The W.A. of St. Paul's United Church met on Tuesday afternoon in McDougall Hall, forty-nine members and four visitors being present.

A letter of thanks from W. G. McClellan, church secretary, was read, for the gift of $200 to the board of stewards. The Sunshine Committee reported four boxes and three cards sent, while six boxes were sent overseas, and donations of food and money received. Letters of thanks were also read. The treasurer's report was given. A pleasing event of the afternoon was the presence of four of the recent brides as guests of the W.A. Mrs. Raymond Ross of Huntingdon presented regrets at not being able to attend. The program was in charge of Miss Elizabeth Sadler. Interesting current events were read by Mrs. Raymond Groom. Humorous readings by Mrs. Eger and solo by Miss L. Walsh were very enjoyable items. A guessing game brought the program to a close. The hostesses of the afternoon served refreshments and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

Powerscourt
Mrs. Eldon Ross, Mrs. Russell Myatt, Miss Bertha Rosevear and Miss Grace Ross were hostesses at a miscellaneous social held Wednesday evening at Miss Ross' home in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Erma Acheson.

The home was beautifully decorated in pink and white and a chair of beauty decorated in which the bride-to-be was seated.

There were about 30 ladies present which showed the esteem in which Miss Acheson is held in this community, and the large box of beautiful and useful gifts which she received also showed their good wishes. Miss Acheson kindly thanked every one present, after which Miss Bertha Rosevear sang "I Love Myself and Everyone I Joined in Singing" and everyone joined in singing "For He is a Joy Good Fellow" in honor of the groom, and other folk songs were enjoyed, after which the hostess served lunch.

Miss Patricia Hoy of Montreal, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Wood.

Mrs. Jas. McMillan from Huntingdon, spent Saturday with Mrs. Thos. Wood.

Thinking Back ... and ... Looking Ahead

Greeks Prove They Are Not a Race to be Mowed Down by Italians—Italians Again Show Their Inability in Army Preparations

By DONALD C. MACDONALD

The Italian army of the world over is regarded by military men with emotion ranging from contempt to hilarity. Outside of Italy—and least of all among the German people—there are few who have any admiration for Mussolini's soldiers.

At that stage of the Italian invasion of Greece, not even the cheeriest optimist would have predicted such success for the Greek forces as have been achieved. For after all, a courageous spirit alone cannot triumph in modern warfare, as we recall from the Battle of Flander.

Greece Invades Albania! The most obvious is the admirable co-operation between the Greek and the British forces. On land the Greeks have used to full advantage their familiarity with the terrain of their country.

BOY SCOUT NEWS Ist HUNTINGDON TROOP Receipts from the annual Remembrance Day poppy campaign in Huntingdon, conducted by the Boy Scouts for the local branch of the Canadian Legion, were turned in at last week's meeting.

Prof. Tarchiani asserted that Mussolini dared not start any campaign which would demand of his people a whole-hearted co-operation. If he did, he was not sure that his nation would follow.

small Greek force to harass the Italian communication and bases with amazing effectiveness. Even more dramatic has been the action at sea. For months now the royal navy has been acting to sea a crack at the Italian fleet, at only it would come out of hiding.

Another reason for the sorry spectacle of Italian reverses seems to have been their complete underestimation of the Greek strength. Reports have it that they attempted a mechanized attack on the advice of the Germans. Certainly the Nazis succeeded with such an attack in mountainous Norway, but the chief reason for that success was a thoroughness and an efficiency of preparation, of which the Italians are incapable in military affairs.

Win or Lose, Italy Loses The Italian people are not by temperament the type of people who had been herded together, beaten together, forced to sacrifice their all for a perpetual struggle to achieve a futile world domination. Once they have fallen into the control of a man like Mussolini, they may appear to put on a show like the Germans, who are by temperament a people capable of such. But when the strain comes, the truth will be revealed.

Living in Canada today is a Polish refugee, Madame Frankowska, and her two children. The story of their epic escape from Poland last fall after two months in the Soviet area was climaxed during the past few days by the news that her husband, who was chief of the defences of Poland, was held out on the Peninsula of Hela on into October, has died in a German prison camp and her father has died in Warsaw.

Dr. A. Patenaude of Ste. Martine was repeatedly told last week that there were a few cases of typhoid fever in these training camps and that the trainees more or less filled the local hospitals. A personal investigation at the military hospitals at Valleyfield and Huntingdon revealed that the rumours were false and had been engendered by hearsay.

he recalled the then recent news of the capture of an Italian submarine by a small boat in the Red Sea. "When you hear such stories as that, you can be sure that what happened was the crew of the submarine gave themselves up. The weariness of the people after war that has gone on almost continuously since 1935 is shared by the fighting forces. Their support is so half-hearted that Mussolini is never sure that when he sends them out, they will not go over to the other side."

How correct that estimation of the situation may be, it is impossible to say. Certainly it would seem that no forces holding such superiority in numbers as the Italians have on the Albania front could ever put up such a lamentable showing if their hour was in the struggle. In yet another way, Tarchiani's views seem plausible enough.

Had the boys asked for a treat, they would more than likely have received it, but they tried the disposition of Wm. Tedstone, Sr. and as a result he rebuffed the boys for their self-served feast. The boys retaliated by plastering his store windows on Halloween with funny papers, principally titled "Hawshaw Detective."

Gleaner News Editor Joins Staff of Windsor Daily Star

Mr. George L. Ellis, news editor of The Gleaner for the past three years, has been sought by The Windsor Daily Star, Windsor, Ont., to join their editorial staff. It was a case of one of Canada's finest daily newspapers seeking a newsman from the weekly newspaper field. Therefore, both Mr. Ellis and The Gleaner have good reason to consider this a compliment. During Mr. Ellis' stay in Huntingdon he proved himself a capable and worthy citizen of the town, exemplifying a keen interest in everything that was for the welfare of the community at large. We regret his leaving The Gleaner staff, but we all unite in wishing George good fortune in his new field of endeavor. Mr. Ellis left for Windsor on Saturday.

Route Indicators Are in Need of Immediate Repairs

For the past three weeks route indicators in Huntingdon point in the wrong direction, thus making it more than inconvenient for tourists who are unfamiliar with our countryside. One indicator, placed in front of the Huntingdon United Church, was formerly used to point the route to Athelstan and Malone. Now it has Malone pointing toward the church and Athelstan towards Malone. Quite a nuisance! A short distance south the route indicator pointed to a dangerous curve ahead. This sign is now lying on the grass of one of the neighboring properties.

To Organize C.P.C. Here

Mayor Daniel Faubert has called a meeting of Huntingdonians to be held in the county building on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Mr. Harry Auger of Hemmingford, the district organizer from Cornwall to Stanstead, is to be present along with a few members of the Hemmingford C.P.C. unit. The C.P.C. can render our community and individuals a valuable service whether it be wartime or peacetime. It is to be hoped the attendance will be representative and that C.P.C. will get off to a good start.

Mr. C. J. Kyle has received a contract for the supplying of 7,000 cubic yards of gravel to Chateaugay Military Training Camp. This gravel is being used for the filling up of mud holes. In order to build acceptable roads it would appear as though the order will have to be considerably augmented. Five trucks started hauling on Monday but we now understand the number of trucks so engaged has been considerably increased.

Hon. H. Perrier Gets Big Vote In Terrebonne

National Union Wins Seat by Small Margin In Megantic

The two provincial by-elections were held Tuesday, one in Terrebonne and the other in Megantic. The elections were spirited, more especially due to the fact that Premier Godbout has for several weeks been making public statements advocating that our educational systems be advanced and that the French-speaking people make a greater effort to learn the English language, and likewise, that the English learn the French language. To many people the speeches of Premier Godbout were considered bad politics, but displaying a wonderful spirit of true loyalty to the Empire, which is so much needed during a time of war. The leader of the opposition, Maurice Duplessis, took advantage of Premier Godbout's remarks and framed them so as to make them appear as though the Liberals under Godbout were traitors to their race as to language, and in so doing were smacking the Roman Catholic clergy on the educational score.

Such was the basis of the discourses in these two by-elections. Feeling naturally became bitter, yet Premier Godbout wanted especially to see his newly-appointed provincial secretary, the Hon. Hector Perrier, elected in Terrebonne County. Educational matters will come under the jurisdiction of his office, therefore it is indeed complimentary to Premier Godbout that he was elected by a majority of over 1,000 votes over the N.U. candidate, Leonard Blanchard. The third candidate, Henri Grou, Independent, lost his deposit. Premier Godbout's statements have therefore received the endorsement of Terrebonne County, the election was very evenly contested. According to The Gazette, Trancoree Labbe, N.U., was elected by a majority of 53 votes over the Liberal candidate, J. A. Olivier. A recount will take place as Mr. Olivier claims the apparent majority is but 10 votes.

Parcels Sent To Soldiers From Huntingdon Now in England

Ten soldiers from Huntingdon town are now on duty in England so on Friday last Christmas boxes were packed and sent to each of these lads, in addition to a gift of 300 cigarettes. The Red Cross group which looks after this work solicited donations from people in town. Each of the ten boxes contained the following items: 2 lbs. fruit cake, pair of socks, handkerchiefs, writing pad and envelopes, two battery cells, flashlight, flashlight bulb, shoe laces, shaving soap, 2 pkgs. razor blades, 2 pkgs. cigarettes, chewing gum, Life Savers, chocolate bars, tea, oxi pencil.

Mr. Hector Provost Purchases Land For Building Purposes

Mr. Hector Provost has purchased the vacant lots of land adjacent to the St. John's Church cemetery. On this land Mr. Provost is to break land today for the erection of a self-contained brick veneer dwelling for his own use. Mr. Provost has sufficient land for the erection of a duplex dwelling, which he contemplates building in the future date.

Mrs. James Ferns spent Sunday in Montreal, guest of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Branton. Mrs. Branton accompanied her home for a week.

Hemmingford

Despite the fact that Sunday evening services are not usually well attended at Hemmingford, at least seventy-five persons attended a special Sunday evening service in the Presbyterian Church there last Sunday, when the pastor, Mr. J. Gordon Troyer, introduced to the congregation Mr. Gordon Bastedo and Mr. Stephan Lookman.

"In these days of crisis we have felt here in Canada that in Europe there still exists a group of people with Christian faith that can never be daunted by the ruthless attempt of Hitler to re-introduce paganism. We join our prayers with such people, yet we have wondered at the little what those European Christians are really like. Mr. Lookman was reared in the orthodox of a strict Calvinistic home," stated Mr. Troyer.

"The church has compromised," stated Mr. Lookman, in an inspiring address. "Christ says 'Come unto me,' but we do not come—any more. Why do you go away from the Church? Do not go away. Stay with us a little longer—yet, I saw a beautiful picture of a pair of hands clasped in prayer. They remain in the hands of Christ as mentioned so many times in the New Testament: calling hands, warning hands, healing hands. Oh, those hands of Jesus! Why do we not come to Him and let Him put those hands upon us—His arms around us, as He did at Capernaum in days of old."

"Of course I would like to hear how my parents are in Amsterdam, but if a bomb falls on them I know the arms of Christ are about them for this is their faith. Do not forget our sermons today or our song 'Stay away from Jesus.' Pray for us and we will pray for you. I am glad to have been here."

In the morning Mr. Bastedo preached the sermon and the two gentlemen rendered inspiring solos, duets and instrumental music. Both of the visitors are candidates for the ministry of the Presbyterian Church and are now studying at Montreal.

A deep impression was created upon the congregation, which was composed of members of the church and friends from other churches in the community.

DUNDEE HOPES TO KUNEP WINTER ROADS OPENED IN 1940-41

The Dundee Municipal Council are making an effort to once again have the municipal roads maintained for automobile traffic during the coming winter season. At a special session of the Council Board held on Monday night it was decided to call for tenders for the maintenance of winter roads.

Several sections, principally byroads are not to be kept open during the winter months, except for horse-drawn vehicles. High cost of snow cleaning operations and lack of regular travel on the roads affected by the order were the reasons given for not opening them in the same manner as other town roads.

The Council hope through their local M.L.A., James W. Ross, to secure some financial assistance toward winter road maintenance.

HUNTINGDON HIGH BASKETBALL TEAM WINS OVER LACOLLE

The playing time was divided into four-eight minute periods with two minutes rests at each quarter and ten minutes intermission.

A return engagement is expected to take place in the near future and other games will be arranged with St. Lambert, Granby and Dundee basketball teams.

Valleyfield spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Quesnel.

Huntingdon Club Entertains Valleyfield ...

The Huntingdon Badminton Club played host to the newly formed Valleyfield club on Monday evening. The 25 visitors played well against their more experienced opponents, but when the scores were tallied at the end of the evening's play, Huntingdon led 134-99. One of the snappiest games of the tourney was the men's doubles match. The Huntingdon team defeated Valleyfield 15-2. Seen here are G. Garwood and Les Nixon of Valleyfield, and Achille Bergevin and Major D. MacRitchie of Huntingdon club.

In their first exhibition games of the season on Monday evening, the members of the Huntingdon Badminton Club defeated a newly organized Valleyfield team by the aggregate score of 134-99. Huntingdon won all the games listed that evening but four of them which went to J. Young and D. Whalley, M. Horgan and G. Garwood. Whalley caused a great surprise when he defeated one of Huntingdon's stars, Major MacRitchie, who is affiliated with the Chateaugay Training Centre.

The Huntingdon doubles' combinations showed smart style, with the ladies' doubles in the limelight, Miss Rucie O'Hare and Mrs. Jean Rowat, Mrs. Helen Cameron and Mrs. Gladys Hogle won their one-sided games, 15-3.

HOW DO YOU LIVE TO BE 100?

All of us are interested in long life, and many are the recipes for it. A daily pint of beer—no beer—smoking—no smoking—healthy breakfasts—no meat—every centarian has a different tale to tell. There is, however, just one point on which all doctors agree—that no man or woman ever reached extreme old age without a healthy colon. It is impossible to have a healthy colon if you are the victim of constipation. Waste matter stagnating in the intestines sets up toxic poisons, which seep into your bloodstream, and cause lingering ill-health. The main cause of constipation is lack of moisture in your large bowel. Relief comes only when that moisture can be induced to return.

What Kruschen does

Kruschen contains several mineral salts, which are blended in exactly the right proportion, to bring back moisture to the large bowel. They stimulate the organs of evacuation to smooth, gentle action. At the same time, Kruschen has a diuretic action which helps to flush your kidneys and liver, and assists in ridding your bloodstream of the poisons which previous constipation left behind. Naturally, the amount of Kruschen required to clear up a stubborn case of constipation depends on the individual. But once health and spirits have been regained, the dose should be reduced to just enough to cover a dime, first thing every morning.

You can buy Kruschen from any drug store—25c and 75c.

The guests will be received by the Chairman of the Board and Mrs. McEwen, the Principal and Mrs. Munroe, Russell Pearce, President and Vice-President of the Student's Council respectively. The various committees are functioning smoothly and present indications are that the decoration committee are intending to do a mighty job of their task. Farmers of the surrounding district will be exceedingly pleased to learn that certain necessary repairs are to be made on Walsin's gristmill within the next few days. As the present water-wheel is worn out, it is impossible to get sufficient power to drive the grinder at its required speed. It is planned to run a belt from the water wheel, which at one time drove the electricity, over the grinder. This, however, is no small job, and requires the setting up of certain new equipment. These repairs have now been ordered for some time and as soon as they arrive, will be installed immediately. In the meantime, the mill will continue to operate at its much reduced speed. Miss B. The Dupont laboratories in Wilmington, Delaware have been active in practical and theoretical work in this field. At the Beloit plant of C.I.L. a considerable amount of similar information is to be obtained to aid Dr. Roman in his new field of work for humanity which at the time the meeting was held, the Empire a valuable service. To these plants of C.I.L. and Dupont, Dr. Roman is now visiting. A staff of medical men is being gathered together to work at the D.I.L. plant. REV. WHITE IS GUEST SPEAKER AT ORMSTOWN W.I.

On Wednesday afternoon, the Orms town Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Cecil Bryson when thirty members and two visitors were present. It was decided to bring the contributions to the December meeting at Mrs. Grant McLauren's. Mrs. Cecil Bryson had communicated with Miss Reade and inquired about the use of the school in regard to demonstrations on home cooking and dressmaking. India Customs ...

Continued from Page 1 used on the beds for sanitary reasons, tapes being woven across the iron beds and a woven mat laid on this. The patients brought their own cooks with them to the hospital as well as their cooking utensils for the caste system is so rigid in India. Mrs. Elliott told many interesting stories of her work in connection with the hospital, and also of entertaining some high caste Brahmins to afternoon tea. As they (the Brahmins) must not eat anything with eggs in it, Mrs. Elliott made as many cakes, etc., as she could without eggs, but they preferred the ones made with the eggs, saying the others "tasted of eggs." As the conclusion of the address a very hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mrs. James Bruce, after which afternoon tea was served and the curious of India brought by Mrs. Elliott viewed by the guests. The meeting closed with "There'll Always Be An England," followed by "God Save the King." Proceeds from the tea amounted to $22.00.

Medical Men ...

Continued from page 1 also views him as the logical man to be in charge of the staff of medical men at the D.I.L. plant. In connection with such an industry the C.I.L. plants in Canada and the Duponts in the United States are past masters in the manufacturing of explosives. We gather from the meeting that there is not a great deal of written information for medical guidance in regard to the maladies that might be expected in such plants. The Dupont laboratories in Wilmington, Delaware have been active in practical and theoretical work in this field. At the Beloit plant of C.I.L. a considerable amount of similar information is to be obtained to aid Dr. Roman in his new field of work for humanity which at the time the meeting was held, the Empire a valuable service. To these plants of C.I.L. and Dupont, Dr. Roman is now visiting. A staff of medical men is being gathered together to work at the D.I.L. plant. No doubt, Dr. Roman feels honored with the position accorded him, but likewise is the D.I.L. fortunate to have such an able and experienced physician for such a position.

LARGE GATHERING AT W.M.S. OF KNOX U.C. AT ST. LOUIS

A special meeting of the auxiliary of the W.M.S. of Knox United Church, St. Louis, was held in the church on Thursday afternoon.

Four members from the Montreal Presbyterian, as well as a number of members from Howick, were present. The meeting opened with the singing of "Come Holy Spirit Heavenly Dove." Miss Dickson led in the scripture reading, followed by prayer. Mrs. Gray introduced Mrs. W. Patterson of Montreal West. Mrs. Patterson brought a stirring message in her own delightful way of the work being carried on in the district of Montreal known as "below the hill." Mrs. Reilly, also of Montreal West, sang two beautiful solos. Later Mrs. Reilly spoke of the importance of the work being carried on by the Associate Helpers. Mrs. Grainger, who acted as organist for the meeting, spoke of the need of greater activity in the cause of temperance and peace.

The treasurer of the Presbyterian Miss Cunningham reminded the members that they can give without loving, but they cannot love without giving. Mrs. Patterson on behalf of the St. Louis and Howick Auxiliaries, presented a life membership to Mrs. Gray, who expressed her deep gratitude for the honor thus shown her.

Dr. Gray closed the meeting with prayer, after expressing appreciation of the splendid contributions given by the friends from Montreal West. Delicious refreshments were served by the St. Louis members.

Ethics of Etiquette

DRESS OF THE BUSINESS WOMAN

A girl who is planning to have an illustrious career and who wishes to put aside her earnings with a view toward future investments need not spend a large sum on clothes. With one very smart tailored suit of good material, and several blouses, she can always look neat and well dressed. A simple blouse of linen, broadcloth, or silk is appropriate for the office. A soft, fluffy little blouse of georgette transforms the suit into quite an appropriate costume for visiting and entertaining.

Dark colors and heavy materials are always better for business frocks than light, colorful materials (except during the warm months when light clothes are so much more comfortable). Good taste is undeniably evident in the simple, one-piece business dress of navy-blue serge or tricotine. A bit of lace at the throat or perhaps a touch of bright color, relieves the danger of being too conservative. She is never self-conscious, never uncomfortable. She is never the centre of attraction, because she is never conspicuous.

Whether one happens to be a society woman or business woman, city woman or country woman, hostess or guest, one should always remember that "There's a time for every dress, and every dress in its time!"

School Notes

HUNTINGDON HIGH SCHOOL
The Huntingdon High School Cadets begin their training with rifles this week. In connection with the school cadets' work in the past the following is worthy of mention:
Sergeant Coburn Cleland, a former student of Huntingdon Academy, was recently awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal. In connection with this honor, Sergt. Cleland writes to a friend in Huntingdon, stating that he did not deserve this mention in comparison to the great work which was accomplished by his comrades who fell near him during the struggles. Sergt. Cleland, who is in England, ranked among the best during his cadet training at Huntingdon. Another Huntingdon High Student who has won a reputation for himself overseas since the outbreak of war is Sergeant-Instructor Gerald Lewis. Sergt. Lewis will be well remembered in Huntingdon by baseball and hockey fans, starting at both these popular sports. Corporal Birnie Dawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dawson, of the Huntingdon, was been in the air force for more than four years, is another recent graduate of Huntingdon High School. He is stationed "somewhere" in Ontario. The promotions awarded these lads in this struggle for freedom and liberty speaks well for the efficiency of the Cadet Corps at Huntingdon High School.

The students at the high school will stage a concert in the school auditorium on Friday evening, December 13, to raise funds for the extra-curricular activities at the school. This concert, the details of which will appear later, will include a debate conducted by four students in grade 11. Other items to be included in the program. It is hoped that this concert will meet with a favorable response from the general public.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. ARCHIBALD CAMERON. Tullochorum, who along with their family and friends celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on November 11th.

Dahlia's Whatnots

For sheer romance, the life of many a clergyman and missionary outrivals the career of a film hero. Such is the impression made by a perusal of the life of another Norman Macleod. About three months ago I sketched the missionary tour and meetings with the Gaelic-speaking pioneers of another Norman Macleod, sent out from Scotland in 1849, to visit Canadian churches. He was Queen Victoria's chaplain at Balmoral and wrote a considerable amount. But our present subject did not come under such favourable auspices. He had greater obstacles in Scotland and even in Canada to overcome, and he never returned to his native land after emigrating with his people who were evicted from their tender nothings under the bar of Sutherland. This Norman Macleod was a native of Sutherlandshire. Always resolute and capable, he graduated from Aberdeen University, and was a student of philosophy. After teaching for several years he decided to study for the ministry at Edinburgh University. In his final years he repudiated one of the professors and was dismissed from the university. In connection with this he found his people in a state of distress of eviction. He joined a company of 400 disinherited men, women, and children, who sailed for Canada in July 1847. This occasion has been described thus: "There have been many scenes in history, but few can exceed the grimness, bitterness, and desolation of the Highland crofters bidding an eternal farewell to their homes among their beloved mountains and glens."

Sir Walter Scott is claimed to be the author of these lines from a song still sung in Nova Scotia: "From the lone shieling in the misty island, Mountains divide us and the waste of seas, But yet the blood is strong, the heart is Highland, And we in dreams behold the Hebrides." These emigrant crofters arrived in Pictou and settled on Macleod's skilful guidance. Erected homes, while his ministry extended to neighbouring settlements. His preaching attracted hearers from a distance, and he possessed a greater influence than any one else in the Highland settlements.

But before long the scene of his activities changed. He and his people were invited to join a colony of their countrymen in Ohio, U.S.A. He supervised the building of a vessel for the journey, calling it The Ark. In May 1820, they started on their voyage, but a terrific gale drove them into St. Ann's Bay on the coast of Cape Breton Island. They disembarked and there he remained for thirty-one years, establishing the first Presbyterian Church on the Island.

WEEK AT OTTAWA

ers should hold a pessimistic view of the future although the financing of unsold stocks in the five years would likely cost the government over $600,000,000.

The British blockade of Europe was essential to victory. "Having witnessed the bombardment of Britain," Mr. Gardiner said, "I would not remain in any government of Canada which would seek markets for farm products anywhere in the world if their marketing would in any way tend to weaken Britain's blockade of Europe." It is our duty, he said, "to place the food supplies available for the Empire through the food and shipping ministries of Britain." In return, he felt the British should give for these supplies "sufficient to make it possible for our farmers to carry on producing supplies which are greatly needed and may be even more essential to ultimate victory."

War Effort Is Criticized
Parliament has now plunged into a long and sharp discussion of what Canada is doing to ensure victory in this war. Mr. R. B. Hanson has laid the broad line of criticism which will be followed by the members of his party. He has claimed that the country has been lulled by the government into a "false sense of security," while those aware of the situation were "alarmed and anxious." He suggested the appointment of two committees of the house who would report on the exact position of the military, naval and air forces and on the production of war materials and equipment. His attack of the government's war policy was made on a wide front, and he posed a number of specific questions which he requested should be answered in the house by the ministers in direct charge of Canada's war program. He considered, for one thing, that the 30-day military training of Canadian youth was inadequate. In the senate, Conservative leader Meighen also said that the 30-day training was "a waste of

Grenfell had, that to show which the sponsor of a good cause needs above any other equipment in order to sway people's minds and hearts and to enlist their sympathy to that degree where they are moved to put their hands in their pockets. ## BOTTLE NEED NOT BOTHER BABY

IF IT DOES Mrs. Robert E. Brandon, of Markham, Ontario, has this message for you: "As it happens to bottled babies, stomach trouble and constipation were so troublesome we despaired of ever raising our first baby. A neighbour recommended Baby's Own Tablets and they proved so satisfactory we have never been without them for over thirteen years, with the result we have five extra sturdy children. So far they have missed all the so-called children's diseases and four of the five were bottle fed."

money, of substance and human energy."
The prime minister, describing the present war situation and outlining Canada's growing contribution to the cause, said, "I should like to remind the house that the only limit the government is prepared to place upon Canada's war effort are those imposed by the extent of our resources, both human and material, and by our capacity for sacrifice. We will make financially possible the utmost effort the Canadian people are physically and morally capable of making." The harmony of sentiment between the British Commonwealth and the U.S.A. which found expression in the rapidly expanding material aid from the United States and the measures of joint defence for this continent, far surpassed in ultimate importance the formations of the triple axis (Germany, Italy and Japan).
IT'LL BE A LOT TOUGHER!
We read the other day that the Germans are sick of war. Perhaps they are. It makes a considerable difference whether they are winning or losing. It was great sport when they were over-running Poland, Norway, Belgium, etc. Lately the going has been pretty tough for the Nazis, but it will be a lot worse before it is better.

God wrought for us in times of old;
The Great Armada felt His power;
United now in danger's hour,
We strive again, while war clouds lower,
The right to do, the cause upheld.

Help us to rise to our great claim;
Help us to wield the sword and lance
—Since must be—for deliverance—
And keep us still, whatever may chance,
From means which are our great foe's shame!

Open our eyes that we may see
Thy mighty power in leash for aid;
Then pray on, fight on, undismayed,
Remembering those with Thee arrayed—
The saints who strove for liberty!
