Capt. J. O. Cossette, Native Of Valleyfield, Rating 30 Years Ago, Now Naval Sec'y.

A Career Crammed With More Incidents Than Most Men Have In A Lifetime—Invested Earnings To Learn English

Thirty years ago Joseph Oscar Cossette, who had left a Montreal newspaper office with a yen for the sea, started on a naval career as a rating in Halifax unable to speak English beyond "yes" and "no."

Behind him are three decades of a career crammed with more experience that most men have in a lifetime.

He has fought with the Bolshevists in the Baltic, served on both of the Canadian coasts and in England and was one of two men who escaped uninjured when the Halifax Explosion levelled the Royal Naval College in 1917.

Perhaps Captain Cossette's desire for the navy was inherited. His father, who still lives at the old home in Valleyfield, Quebec, was one of those "twice-around-the-Horn" men who sailed around the tip of South America in the days of clipper ships and windjammers.

Leaves Newspaper

But the Naval Secretary will only say it was "something in the blood" which made him leave his newspaper job with La Patrie in Montreal and start his life on the briny. When he did so his father gave him his blessings without a murmer, but his newspaper editor told him: "This is a youthful folly which you will regret. The life of a sailor is tougher than you think."

When Cossette landed in Halifax away from French-speaking Quebec he soon found his first difficulty in being unable to talk the English language. He could read it all right, but talking it was something different and something he found he had to master in the King's Navy.

So the ambitious sailor paid his savings out to a Dalhousie University professor to teach him two hours a night for six nights a week. Later the Navy hired the same professor to teach a class or other ratings and young Cossette took that course too just to be sure.

"It nearly broke me," he says now, "but I never told anybody."

Escaped in Explosion

His progress came as steady as his desire to go ahead and by 1917 he found himself an Accountant Officer at the Halifax Royal Naval College. It was while there he escaped in the explosion.

He went to England to receive technical courses and won appointment at the British Admiralty.

He recalls his experiences while serving as a sub-lieutenant in the Baltic in the fight against the Bolshevists.

He went ashore at a port called Libau with a seafaring idea to procure a cuckoo clock as a souvenir and he took soap with him. It was while soap was scarce in Russia and they used it for money.

He walked into a little shop and scraping away the dust from a suspicious looking object found two packages of Canadian tobacco. These he had for one slice of soap.

Captain Cossette never regretted the time he left his newspaper job to start his career on the ocean. It's a life of comradeship, interesting travel and healthy exercise, he says.

His own son has been serving in the navy for two years and is now aboard the Royal Navy battleship Valiant.

In the old days, he says, an officer in the navy nearly had to have a private income, but nowadays all a man needs to get to the top is the goods, the physique and the background and enough education to back it up.

He has seen the barriers between the merchant marine and the navy disappearing and "the class distinction, I venture to say, will disappear entirely before long," he says.

He can quickly assure mothers of all that the navy holds for a young man today. "If I was 25 again and had occasion to choose a career I would not hesitate a moment to join," he says.

Captain Cossette was born in Valleyfield, October 3, 1890. His mother, nee Eleonore Baillie, died in 1896.

SUFFERS PAINFUL INJURIES AS HAND IS CUT BY PLANER

Ralph Lavery, employee at the Huntingdon Mills Limited, suffered a painful injury on Friday afternoon when he badly cut two fingers, thumb and the palm of his hand on a buzz-planer. Mr. Lavery severed two fingers on the same hand two years ago and it is now feared that he will lose a third one.

While working at the buzz-planer on Friday afternoon, Mr. Lavery's hand accidentally slipped into the planer box causing the injuries. Dr. F. G. McCrimmon rendered first aid and the patient was taken to the Barrie Memorial Hospital in Ormstown.

A surgical operation may be needed to repair the deep cuts in the palm of his hand, it was intimated.

Principal to Head Boys' Band Locally

Huntingdon Boys' Band To Start Practices Within Few Days—Officers Elected

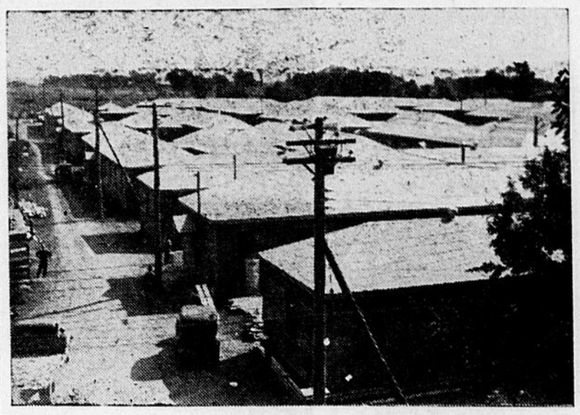

J. B. Macmillan, Principal of Huntingdon High School, was elected president of the Huntingdon Boys' Band at a meeting which was held in the School Auditorium on Monday evening. Other officers elected were Wm. Winter, vice-president; Miss Eleanor Moody, secretary and Gordon Cameron, treasurer. The advisory committee will consist of Douglas McGerrigle, Miss Elsie Salter and Lawrence Brown.

A large attendance of parents and students attended the meeting at which the formation of the Huntingdon Boys' Band was highly endorsed. Mr. Robert Ellis, promoter, presided at the meeting and briefly explained the motives of the band and its necessity in such communities as Huntingdon.

Some twenty students have already signified their intention of taking part in the practises which are scheduled to commence during the latter part of this week or at the latest, next week. The instruments have been ordered and these are to arrive in Huntingdon over the week-end.

A delegation from Ormstown also attended Monday's meeting.

THE MILITARY TRAINING BARRACKS

A sectional view of the Military Training Barracks at Huntingdon is shown above. A few weeks ago this was an open field. Today it is a village in itself, with some 33 buildings covering the grounds and swarms of men hurrying the completion of the buildings so that the trainees who are expected on October 9 may immediately occupy them.

Dirty Chimneys Greatest Fire Hazard in Huntingdon Homes

Fire Chief States Most of Fires Since Beginning of Year Originated in Chimneys—Fire Prevention Week October 6th to 12th

Commencing on Sunday, Oct. 6, up until Saturday, Oct. 12, the residents of this town and of this district are asked to exercise special caution in the prevention of fires. This week, by royal proclamation, has been designated as Fire Prevention Week throughout the Dominion of Canada.

The Town of Huntingdon and the surrounding district has been comparatively free from fires for some time past. In the town itself there have been but eleven fires since the beginning of the year, and all of them have not been at all serious. In addition to these, there was one false alarm and one alarm for inspection.

The last fire was this morning at the Woollen Mill. Of the eleven fires the majority of them originated from chimneys, which would indicate that not as much attention is given to the care of chimneys as there might be. Chimneys should be cleaned out regularly and not allowed to burn themselves out, as sparks often escape through cracks in the chimney and set fire in the attic, or they may drop on dry combustible roofing, setting fire to it. The safest type of chimney is a good brick chimney built from the ground up and lined with fire clay or vitrified clay of a thickness of at least three-quarters of an inch. Sparks on combustible roofs is another cause of fires. This hazard can obviously be eliminated by means of incombustible roofing material instead of a material that will ignite readily when exposed to sparks or flying brands from other fires.

A number of factors which cause fires is listed by the Dominion Fire Commissioner at Ottawa and are as follows: Lightning; spontaneous ignition, particularly on farms where wet hay is stored in the barn; matches, throwing them away while lighted or smouldering; using gasoline or kerosene for lighting of fires or cleaning of floors; heating equipment—wooden floors under stoves should be well protected. Sides and back of stove should be at least three feet from the woodwork or wood-lath and plaster partitions. Smoke pipes should be at least 18 inches from unprotected woodwork. They should not pass through floors or closets or enter a chimney in an attic, and they should be cleaned at least twice a year. Electrical wiring—this should be done carefully in a house and the wires should not carry an excess load. All fire hazards should be removed and some sort of fire fighting equipment should always be kept handy in case of a conflagration.

QUEBEC AYRSHIRES TO BE AT NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW

When the National Dairy Show is held at Harrisburg, Penn., on October 12 to 19 there will be a fine representation of Canadian Ayrshire cattle present.

The Canadian exhibit will be made up of 29 selected animals from Quebec which will be contributed by the herds of Premier Adelard Godbout, the estate of W. C. Pitfield, Cariterville, Que.; Geo. H. Montgomery, Montreal; R. R. Ness and Sons, Howick, Que., and the Provincial Dairy School, St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Several noted prize winners will be in this exhibit, including Le Moines Point Enterprise, grand champion at the last two Royal Winter Fairs.

Three Sets of Car Keys Are Found Missing

Culprits Take Car and Leave it Near Military Camp, Taking Ignition Keys With Them

The problem of stolen car keys in Huntingdon is becoming serious and at the same time ridiculous. Three sets of keys were reported stolen during the past two weeks and one of these was found on the person of the rightful owner twelve hours after it was reported stolen.

Shortly after 6.39 p.m. on Wednesday, George Dixon reported to Chief Emile Beauchamp that his car had been stolen from its parking place in front of his residence on Prince street. The missing vehicle was found at about 7.30 the same evening, parked near the Huntingdon Military Camp. The keys were removed from the ignition. To avoid further grievances in this respect, Mr. Dixon immediately changed the locks on the doors and the ignition.

At about ten o'clock on Friday evening, a district resident, whose car was parked also on Prince street, complained that the keys had been removed from his car while he was shopping on Chateauguay street. After a thorough search, which lasted until the next morning, the owner of the vehicle again looked in his pockets and the keys were there!

Trainees Will Swarm Into Huntingdon on Wednesday, Oct. 9, to Commence Drilling

About 1,000 Are Expected to Arrive — First Day Will See Them Getting Settled in New Quarters—Thirty-one Officers in All

Wednesday, October 9, will witness the entry into Huntingdon of the largest number of part-time residents in the history of the town. On this day practically all of the 1,000 youths destined to come to the Military Training Barracks at Huntingdon will be pouring in by train, by bus and by cars. These youths, 21 to 22 years of age, will come mostly from the Westmount and N.D.G. sections of Montreal, while a number will come from the Chateauguay Valley itself.

October 9 was the date set some time ago for the coming to Huntingdon of these men and it would appear that the buildings will be ready at this time. At present they are about 80 per cent completed, with a gang of 460 men working feverishly to have them all set for the appointed day. Some of the buildings will not be completed by this time but sufficient of them will be finished to accommodate the trainees. Work has not yet commenced on the drill hall at the far end of the field, but this will not be needed until later on when the cold weather sets in. At present the electric line is being installed which will service the drill hall.

When the 1,000 men arrive next Wednesday they will not come in a body. Allowed transportation money, they will journey to Huntingdon by whatever means of transportation they decide upon. This will mean some will come by train, some by bus, while the relatives or friends of many of them will drive them to Huntingdon. On the first day of arrival they will have a medical examination, be assigned to their quarters, clothed, fed and in general get accustomed to their surroundings.

Drill will commence soon afterwards. This will mean seven and a half hours drill each day for five days a week. On the sixth day, Saturday afternoon, it will be a holiday. One-third of the men will be allowed to have a week-end off at one time should they so desire. This will mean that every man will have the opportunity of having one week-end off during the time he is quartered here.

Although some of the officers who will be in charge arrived here last week, the majority of them came on Sunday. A special train from Montreal brought the group in on Sunday afternoon. A parade was formed at the station which marched to the Military Training Barracks. Lieut.-Col. C. C. Brooks, the officer commanding the camp here, took the salute of the passing men as he stood in front of McCoy's Store. There are at present 31 officers here. Previously it was stated that there were to be 240 officers. This number, however, referred to the number of officers being trained for the eight military training centres and were being trained at Three Rivers at the time. With the officers are 180 N.C.O.'s and service men. The officers range in age from 21 to 28 years.

The men will be off from 5 o'clock in the evening on, but must be in camp at 9.45 p.m. They have to get special permission to leave the camp every time they desire to go. The N.C.O.'s, however, are allowed to go out every night until midnight. There are about 30 of these.

The discipline of the men, both at the camp and about the district, will be in charge of the Provost Section. This will be composed of ten men, one of whom may probably be from Huntingdon. They will be Great War Veterans. Should the soldiers create a disturbance or be a nuisance in any way around Huntingdon, a phone call can be put through to the military barracks which will bring a squad of the provost section to take them in hand. The soldiers will be instructed previously in regard to any possible disturbance they might create so that it is believed they will conduct themselves in a gentlemanly manner as a result. If this is not the case, they will be quickly dealt with.

About eight or ten of the officers here belong to the 6th Hussars and were present in Huntingdon at the time the Borderers' colors were placed in St. John's Anglican Church. This division of the army is no stranger to Huntingdon. At one time Huntingdon was one of their training headquarters.

Temporary quarters are being used for a hospital but it is expected that the regular hospital will be ready for use in the near future. Major Mark Kaufman will be the officer commanding the camp hospital while the battalion medical officer will be Lieut. F. M. Bourne.

Bridesmaid Killed on Day Of Wedding

Malone Girl Falls From Speeding Car Enroute to Wedding Breakfast

On Saturday morning tragedy darkened what was to have been a happy wedding day when Miss Gertrude Eldredge, 27, daughter of Mrs. Nettie Eldredge, of Burke, N.Y., bridesmaid at the wedding of her sister, Clara, was killed instantly when she fell from a moving automobile as the bridal party left St. George's Church at Burke, N.Y.

The accident occurred at 10:15 o'clock on the Malone-Chateaugay Road, a mile and a quarter east of Burke Center. The young people were taking a short drive before the wedding breakfast at the Eldredge home.

Six automobiles were in the wedding procession with the bridal car in the lead. Miss Gertrude Eldredge was in the front seat with Wayne Fitzgerald of Burke, best man at the ceremony, who was driving the car. The bride and groom, Vernon Dumont, son of Charles Dumont of North Burke, were in the rear seat of the car.

The young women were shaking rice from their hair and Miss Gertrude Eldredge had apparently turned to talk to her sister when it is believed her knee came in contact with the door release causing it to swing open. When her sister looked up from shaking her hair the other girl had fallen out.

Her head struck the concrete abutment of the bridge over the Starch Factory Creek. Her skull was fractured and Coroner Edward Cargill said that death was instantaneous.

Mother Waiting

Meanwhile Mrs. Eldredge, mother of the victim, was waiting at the Eldredge home for the arrival of the wedding party. She had not joined the others, going home ahead to see that the wedding breakfast would be ready for them.

Miss Gertrude Eldredge had been employed in Malone for the past four years by Miss Annabel Hehr at her store on Webster St.

She is survived by her mother, Miss Nettie Eldredge; two sisters, Clara and Mabel, of Brushton; and two brothers, Milton, of Burke and Maurice of Lake Placid. Her father Rodney Eldredge, died several years ago.

HUNTINGDON R.C.M.P. IS PROMOTED TO RANK OF CORPORAL

Lance-Corporal Henry D'Aoust, of the Huntingdon detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was promoted to the rank of Corporal, it was announced over the week-end in Ottawa. Corporal D'Aoust came to Huntingdon two years ago when he replaced Lance-Corporal Spalding. Shortly after his arrival here Corporal D'Aoust was promoted from the rank of Constable to that of Lance-Corporal. Mr. D'Aoust's recent promotion is one which is well merited.

Corporal D'Aoust is assisted in Huntingdon by Constable Pierce.

HON. ANGUS L. MacDONALD, Minister of National Defence for Naval Affairs.

Liquor Endangers Not Only Boys But Girls And Mothers

So Says Speaker at Provincial W.C.T.U. Convention Here Telling of Evils of Alcohol—Mrs. W. Usher of Cushing is President

The 56th annual convention of the Quebec Provincial Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the United Church, Huntingdon, last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday when officers were elected and ways and means were devised to carry on their work.

Mrs. William Usher of Cushing was elected president. Other officers elected were: Honorary presidents, Mrs. Henry Wilson of Athelstan, Mrs. L. G. Geggie of Beauport; immediate past president, Mrs. James Mabon, of Montreal; honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. John Scott and Mrs. William Rilance, both of Montreal; honorary corresponding secretaries, Mrs. L. M. Colcomb and Mrs. J. C. Moore of Montreal; honorary recording secretary, Mrs. A. VanVliet of Lacolle; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Roy Blair of Ormstown; recording secretary, Mrs. A. E. Rivard, of Montreal; "Y" secretary, Mrs. Henrietta Scott of Knowlton; L.T.L. secretary, Mrs. J. E. Merritt of Montreal; treasurer, Mrs. E. P. Lyon of Ayer's Cliff; editor of page in "Tidings", Mrs. A. Graham of Cushing; provincial press convenor, Mrs. Archie Graham of Cushing.

Members of committees were appointed as follows: Place of work, Mrs. Peter McArthur, convenor, Mesdames Dobbie, Levers, Orr, Blatchford, Robinson, McQuaig, Geggie and Rothney. Resolutions: Mrs. Wm. Usher, convenor, Mesdames Graham, English, Crawford, Tweedie, Fuller, Henderson, McKenna and Rider. Courtesy: Mrs. Levers, convenor, Mrs. Munro. Finance, Mrs. Lyon, Convenor, Mrs. Rennie and local treasurers. Credentials: Mrs. Badien. Press: Mrs. Archie Graham, Convenor, Mrs. Blatchford. Pages: Miss Frances Turner, Convenor, Mrs. Rennie.

Among the ministers who brought greetings to the convention were Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., and Rev. W. S. Hatcher, and those who addressed the members were Rev. W. Orr Mulligan, of Westmount, Rev. T. Knowles, of Huntingdon.

Presentations of prizes took place on "Y" night which was in charge of Mrs. N. W. Reese, of Athelstan. The annual silver cup was won by Franklin Centre Union for the greatest increase in membership and the annual "Y" cup was won by Central "Y.P.B." of Montreal. The Loyal Temperance Legion Certificate of first honors was won by Hochelaga L.T.L.

The convention opened on Wednesday afternoon. Amongst the items on the program was the presentation of a resolution by Mrs. Wilson which was as follows: "Be it resolved that we place on record our full allegiance to His Gracious Majesty, George VI and our beloved Queen Elizabeth, and pledge our loyal support to our Empire and our Dominion in this time of grave National crisis. Their duties require much patience and endurance.

They are serving as living examples of calmness to their peoples, encouraging them and exhorting them to their duty. We rejoice in the Providential escape of their Majesties from injury when bombs fell so near the Palace and pray that they may ever be protected by Divine power.

The National Anthem followed.

This resolution was ordered sent to the Secretary of State at Ottawa and to His Majesty, King George.

The Correspondence was read by Mrs. J. C. Moore, prov. cor. sec'y. It included: A reply from Buckingham Palace in response to our letter of last autumn; from the Lady Tweedsmuir, thanks for sympathy in her sore affliction; from Hon. Mackenzie King, on the death of his minister, Hon. Norman Rogers; from the British Columbia W.C.T.U. re our winning of the franchise; two communications from the Premier of our Province, Hon. Mr. Adelard Godbout; from the Hon. Norman Rogers shortly before his death; letter of greeting and kind remembrance from our National President, Mrs. Grace Knight. This latter communication was also full of instruction and suggestions for our year's work. A few of her hints were: "That we should ask that all "sales" should be confined to licence holders; 2, That hours be restricted to 3 to 8 p.m. and allowed on week days only; 3, No advertising except in their own places of business; 4, Regarding careful selection of homes for Evacuated children. One told us of a fine exhibit which the W.C.T.U. had presented at the C.N. Exhibition. This exhibit had elicited much favorable comment, tho' one of 28 presented. Mrs. Poe wrote us re Peace and International Relations, Mrs. Newton moved, seconded by Mrs. Usher that our secretary be authorized to send suitable replies. Carried.

An address of Welcome followed, presented by Mrs. Robert Sellar, of Huntingdon. The speaker said because of her age she should be permitted to reminisce a bit, but she would promise not to be long-winded. She believed this was the 4th visit our provincial W.C.T.U. had made to Huntingdon. She remembered our first visit when Mrs. Sanderson had been our president and just here paid a neat little compliment to our present presiding officer, Mrs. Mabon, who on that former occasion had been one of the younger women, but was "noticed" even at that distant date, as a member of promise. The speaker remarked on the many changes and improvements in their town since that time and remarked on the many conveniences added even in

W. McL. Clarke Secretary C.C. Died Suddenly

Deceased Had Addressed Gathering of Huntingdon Board of Trade in March

Montreal business circles were shocked and saddened at the sudden death on Wednesday morning of Wendell McLeod Clarke, B.A., F.C.I.S., secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce since its inception in 1927. He had retired as usual on Tuesday night and suffered a heart attack shortly after midnight, dying about two hours later. He was only 48 years of age.

At a banquet tendered by the Huntingdon Board of Trade on Thursday, March 28th, 1940, Mr. McL. Clarke addressed the gathering on "The Importance of Citizenship." The large attendance recall the impressive address heard that evening. His sudden death was a shock to his many friends in Huntingdon.

Mrs. Clarke, the former Mary Chalmers, of Smiths Falls, Ont., one son, George Foster Clarke, and a sister, Mrs. Leonard Morrell, survive.

Mr. Clarke, who in addition to being secretary of the Chamber of Commerce was also consulting editor of Canadian Business, was born at Saint John, N.B., and received his education at the Sussex High School, New Brunswick; the Ottawa Collegiate Institute and the University of Toronto where he graduated with his B.A., with honors in English history and classics. He also was a prize winner in economics and won five gold medals in university debates.

He was appointed a junior trade commissioner in the De-

SPEAKS TO W.C.T.U.

REV. THOMAS KNOWLES, who addressed the W.C.T.U. Provincial Convention here.

BUSINESS IS PICKING UP IN QUEBEC

Ever brightening economic conditions in the Province of Quebec are chronicled in the latest business summary of the Bank of Montreal as reproduced herewith:

"Quebec—Retail trade has been maintained in fairly large volume. Wholesale trade is generally at a high level. Collections are fair to good. Tourist traffic showed a substantial recovery during August. Lumber is in good demand at rising prices and stocks are becoming depleted. Demand for pulpwood is strong and shipments are moving in good volume. Newsprint production has shown a slight recession. Woollen and cotton mills are still operating at a high rate, but there has been a slight seasonal falling off in the latter. Some hosiery manufacturers still suffer from poor export business. Apart from a decline in orders for men's wear, clothing manufacturers are busily employed. Furniture factories continue to operate at capacity. Most shoe manufacturers are well occupied. Tanneries are operating at about 60 per cent of capacity and leather prices are firmer. Industrial activity is still rising and considerable expansion of manufacturing plants necessitated by war contracts is under way. Gold production for the month of July was 80,506 ounces ($2,817,710 U.S.) compared with 74,831 ounces (2,619,085 U.S.) in July, 1939. Farm produce and livestock are in good demand at steady prices. Crops are generally satisfactory."

Man Found Drowned in L. St. Francis

Donat Ouimet Falls Off Wharf at St. Anicet—Verdict of Accidental Death Rendered

The discovery of the body of Donat Ouimet, 26-year-old resident of St. Anicet in Lake St. Francis, caused a great deal of excitement in that peaceful community on Saturday afternoon. Ouimet had been missing from his home since Tuesday evening, September 24th. It was feared he had fallen off the wharf that evening. The victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ouimet, also of that village.

William and Eddy Hussey, along with other volunteers, had searched since Wednesday morning in hopes of locating the body. The peaceful waters of Lake St. Francis revealed the body of the drowned victim, clinging to the bottom, some twenty feet away from the wharf, when the Hussey brothers made the sad discovery on Saturday afternoon. They im-

Valleyfield Settles Action Of $4,000 With ex-Treasurer

L. J. H. Langevin's Action is Settled Out of Court—Ex-Treasurer Was Ousted From Position by Former Council—Original Claim Was $11,307.28

The City of Salaberry of Valleyfield will pay its ex-treasurer, Mr. L. J. H. Langevin, the sum of $4,000. It will be recalled that Mr. Langevin was ousted from his functions at City Hall by the former members of the council.

In connection with this action, which was settled out of court, Mayor J. A. Larin explained that it is possible that the present administration will be criticized for this decision. The motion was adopted at the last meeting of the Council. Ald. Dumouchel was opposed to the payment of this account. Mr. Langevin will receive $1,000 now and the remainder will be paid by March 1st, 1941.

The action of Mr. Langevin against the City of Valleyfield was instituted on May 5th, 1939, in the Superior Court at Valleyfield. The plaintiff claimed the sum of $11,307.28 from the defendant for personal damages following his dismissal as treasurer of the City of Valleyfield.

In its resolution the Council deemed it advisable to make a settlement out of court in order to avoid further expenses in this action.

The City Clerk read a letter of resignation from Sergeant Wilfrid Brazeau, member of the Valleyfield police force.

During the month of October, 1939, Mr. Pierre Trepanier was hired as foreman on the construction of the Municipal Building on Larocque Road at $50. per week. Mr. Trepanier has signified his intention to the Council that he would sue the City of Valleyfield for the sum of $500. as he was not advised that the work would cease before the building was completed.

The Council passed a resolution holding responsible the owners of the Bellerive bridge for any accident which might occur at that bridge. This was brought about following a written notice, without signature, which was placed near the Bellerive bridge a few days ago. The notice reads that the maximum weight on the bridge is fixed at 5,000 pounds.

The City Clerk read a letter from Leopold Major, of Ste. Barbe, applying for the position of constable in Valleyfield.

The road committee was ordered to complete the bridge situated in front of the Montreuil Restaurant in Billette Village.

Joseph Loiselle and Omer Cartier were appointed valuators and Delma Couturier as secretary of the valuators.

Domestic Science Course at Huntingdon High School

A Weekly Review of the Activities in the Science Course—Girls Are Dressed in White Aprons in The Classrooms

Friday afternoon, Sept. 20th, Grade Ten girls in the Huntingdon High School, had their first lesson in Domestic Science. Everyone wore white aprons and carried a note book. There were four groups with four girls in each. They were taken around to see where everything was, and then Miss Isobel McEwen, the teacher of Domestic Science, read and explained the four recipes. This comprised a vegetable plate suitable for a main luncheon course. Emphasis was placed on selection of vegetables with a mind to variety of flavor, colour and texture.

Miss McEwen numbered each girl. The number one girls of each group made mashed potatoes; the number two girls boiled and buttered carrots; the number three girls stuffed tomatoes and the number four girls of each group stuffed and baked green peppers.

Then Miss McEwen gave each girl a certain section to clean up. This was done while the vegetables were cooking. When they were ready, each group served their vegetable plate. Everyone, including Principal Macmillan, stood around the table and the four plates were judged. The girls enjoyed eating the food that they had prepared. About half past three, everyone returned to the class room thinking the afternoon was well spent.

On the following Friday afternoon, the girls had their second lesson in Domestic Science. The groups were divided in a similar manner as the previous lesson. This afternoon the girls baked Virginia Ham with glacéed pineapple. They also pan broiled pork chops, with glazed sweet potatoes, stuffed apples and pimiento meat loaf with tomato sauce. At half past three, after all the cleaning up was done, the girls returned to their classroom.

FINED $50. AND COSTS FOR SMUGGLING

A district resident, who was caught in possession of United States Smuggled goods was fined $50 and costs or three months in jail by Justice Lemay on Friday. The law was enforced against the offender by the Huntingdon detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, under section 217 of the Customs Act.

When he appeared before Magistrate Court in Valleyfield, the offender pleaded guilty and paid the costs imposed.

Daylight Saving to Canada Represents $4,500,000

EDITOR A. E. Dobbie, Smiths Falls Record-News, feels Daylight Saving Time should be abandoned. He has a right to his opinions, but some of the statements made in the Record-News editorial columns last week must not be allowed to go unchallenged. We consider it a privilege to be a combatant in this particular case. Editor Dobbie is an esteemed fellow publisher and is held in high regard by the publishers across Canada, yet even the greatest of all publishers make mistakes and opposition to Daylight Saving Time at this particular moment by one of eastern Canada's weekly newspapers is certainly in error.

Editor Dobbie opens his combat by writing: "Governments! People! Everybody! Keep your heads! Personally, we think the daylight saving time for the year round is not only foolish but nonsense." He goes on to lay the blame for daylight saving on Premier Hepburn and Queen's Park, Toronto. Such is not the case.

Daylight Saving Time has been requested by the officials of the Control Board in the Department of Munitions and Supply at Ottawa. Daylight Saving Time is credited with being the equivalent of saving 182,000 horse power of electricity in Ontario and Quebec provinces. If this is the correct figure then we can estimate the saving in dollars as approximately $4,500,000. This amount may not mean such a great deal in time of war, but when the day comes for us to repay such an amount in the form of taxation, we may wish we had saved the expense through adopting Daylight Saving Time.

Perhaps the Smiths Falls Record-News is opposed to Premier Mitch. Hepburn to a point where anything it can do to combat him is the correct thing to do. That is the privilege of any newspaper. Freedom of the press is granted. But at this particular time we are at war, and when the War Control Board of the Department of Munitions and Supply make such a request, it seems to us out of order to say "phooey."

We all know right well government officials are accountable for many expenditures during a war that are certainly extravagant. We can see that in the building of the barracks here in Huntingdon. However, when officials can see where millions can be saved through adopting Daylight Saving Time at no expense to the general public, then let us adopt it.

The power companies will not be penalized through not selling the people electricity, for at the present moment there is said to be a shortage of 200,000 h.p. of electricity in Canada. If, through adopting Daylight Saving Time, we can divert the power so saved to a more useful purpose in the way of aiding industry that is creating munitions or supplies towards the War Effort, let us do it—and without hesitating one day longer than is necessary to pass the required by-law in Huntingdon.

Our Industrial Hub—Valleyfield, Huntingdon, Beauharnois

ABOVE appears an editorial dealing with Daylight Saving Time. Up until 1940 this District of Beauharnois was interested primarily in dairy farming. Industry was a very secondary matter. Not so today! In the past 12 months more changes have taken place in this district than perhaps any other area of the same size in all Canada. This change to industrial expansion will continue, or we have underestimated Mr. R. A. C. Henry and Beauharnois Power Corporation.

Beauharnois Power Corporation is fast developing more electric energy. Ultimately this power plant will supply 2,000,000 h.p. plus that which comes to our district by the Shawinigan Water and Power Co. Large consumers of electric power are being created close to the buzz bars of this great power corporation. Further industrial developments are to be made, but concerning these we are not privileged to report, due to the fact that it is against the war tactics of Canada to say too much about defence industries. However, the industries being located in this area are not all Government projects. Industries located here and about to be established will represent employment for thousands of men, not only during war time but also after the war. The St. Lawrence Valley, and particularly the area in which we live, will become the greatest industrial center in the British Empire. This is a broad statement, but one we have good reason to believe time will prove to be true.

In building up these industrial plants of one kind and another, Daylight Saving Time is adopted. Thousands of men are working at these plants. The men who work on these projects come from all parts of our District as well as further afield. These men must work according to Daylight Saving Time, and that is one more reason why we should abide by that time.

Canada Steps to the Fore!

CANADA has completed her first year of war effort, and is rapidly developing into a foremost leader in world affairs. We have abundance of everything to make life worth while for everyone. Forests, farms, mines, factories, are all producing as never before. Employment is at the highest figure in our history. National income is up over 30 per cent as compared to one year ago. Export trade has increased by 33 per cent. War expenses are being paid for as far as possible on a day to day basis.

Canada, while keeping open for Britain the unlimited supplies of the North American continent through our Eastern harbours, is also playing a vital part in welding the United States and probably the rest of the Western Hemisphere into military, economic, and financial unity with the British Empire.

Canadian trained fighting forces on the sea, in the air, and on the land, are crowning themselves and their country with glory.

Canada's business index is mounting consistently month by month.

Canada's form of democratic government appeal to all of us.

Canada's financial structure is solid. Banks are paying out money and accepting deposits, making loans and financing various businesses throughout the land.

Canada's youth are going to schools and colleges and into business.

Canada's people are taking holidays, going to movies and enjoying life.

Canadian wives, mothers and young women are "carrying on" in the home and in business as usual.

Johnny Canuck, while rendering tremendous aid to John Bull, is also preparing himself to take over new and added world-wide responsibilities when the war is over.

"In war as in peace, Canadians will continue to give their best."

Did You Know

THAT Canada now has 155,000 men in the Canadian Active Service Force? One year ago there were 4,500 available for active service.

That when war was declared a year ago the Canadian Navy had 15 vessels? That now it has 120, and 100 more will be added within the next year—$16,000,000 worth of shipbuilding in all?

That over 40,000 Canadians are building ships for the Canadian and the British navies?

That Canada leads the entire world in the production of military automotive equipment, with more than 400 units a day being produced, seven days a week?

That two huge explosives plants are being brought into production this month?

That Canada is Britain's largest supplier of aluminum and its products and that $40,000,000 is being invested for making aluminum and conducting research?

Well, now that you do know it, you understand why you are asked to buy War Savings stamps and certificates!

Could He Take It?

IF one were permitted to read over all the letters that come in to insurance companies regarding claims from damages there could probably be gleaned from them sufficient humorous material to rank with such publications as the Literary Essays of Canada's humorist, Stephen Leacock. It isn't very frequently that they appear in public print. The Hydro Bulletin, however, managed to obtain one from some source and reprinted it. Signed "Can I take It?" the letter was received by an insurance company at Ottawa and is as follows:

"Gentlemen—The soullessness of corporations such as yours is astounding. Let me review my case. I carry an accident policy in your company by the terms of which you agreed to pay me $25 a week during such time as I was prevented from working because of an accident.

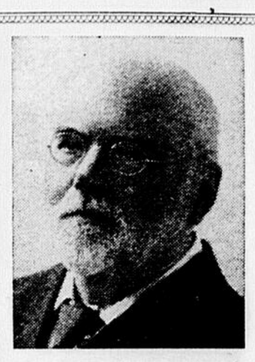

"A week ago I went around on Sunday morning to inspect a new house that is being built for me. I climbed the stairs, or rather the ladder now located where the stairs will be when the house is finished, and on the top floor I found a pile of bricks which were not needed there. Feeling industrious, I decided to remove the bricks. In the elevator shaft was a rope and pulley, and on one end of the rope was a barrel. I pulled the barrel up to the top floor, and after walking down the ladder, fastened the rope firm, at the bottom of the shaft. Then I climbed up the ladder again and filled the barrel with bricks. Down the ladder I went again, five storeys, mind you, and untied the rope to let the barrel down. The barrel was heavier than I was, and before I had time to study the proposition, I was going up the shaft with my speed increasing every minute. I thought of letting go of the rope, but before I had decided to do so, I was so high up that it seemed more dangerous to let go than to hang on. So I held on.

"Half way up the elevator shaft I met the barrel of bricks coming down. The encounter was brief but spirited. I got the worst of it and continued on my way towards the roof. That is, most of me went on, but my epidermis clung to the barrel and returned to earth. Then I struck the roof at the same time as the barrel struck the cellar. The shock knocked the breath out of me, and the bottom out of the barrel.

"Then I was heavier than the empty barrel, and I started down the shaft while the barrel started up. We met in the middle of the journey, and again the barrel uppercut me, pounded on my solar plexus, barked my shins, bruised my body and skinned my face. When we became disentangled, I resumed my journey downward and the barrel went higher. Soon I was at the bottom and stopped so suddenly that I lost my remarkable presence of mind and let go the rope. This released the barrel, which had reached the top of the shaft, and it fell five storeys and landed squarely on me, and it landed hard, too.

"Consider the heartlessness of your company. I sustained five accidents within two minutes. One on my journey up the shaft when I met the barrel of bricks; the second when I touched the roof; the third when I met the empty barrel; the fourth when I struck the bottom; the fifth when the barrel struck me.

"Your agent states that it was only one accident, not five, and instead of receiving a payment at the rate of five times $25.00 I am only entitled to one accident at the rate of one alone. I therefore request you to cancel my policy, as I have made up my mind that I will not be skinned either by a barrel or an insurance company."

The Late ROBERT SELLAR

JOHN DONALDSON—I came out in 1832 and walked all the way from Montreal to McClintock's in one day, and went back to the 2nd Concession next day. The road followed the creek, and came out at Scarlett's. The settlement had begun in June, 1827, when the lots were given out, Manuel having completed his survey that spring. Being so late in the season only a few settlers went in, and these were William Graham, David Drummond, John Russell, James Leggartt, Arch. McRussell, James Leggatt, Arch. McCampbell and Robert McClenaghan. Alex Fisher settled on the lower end. Next year McDougall, Wetherston, McCleitch, Cavers and Thos. Henry and John Tate came. The Cooks came in '29. They had a very hard time, all being poor except Russell, who had brought some money. It was potatoes three times a day with some of them. Those who got lots with Yankee clearances did better than the others, for being only covered with bushes, they soon had crop in. The land was wet and they never counted on getting crops in until June. Their main hold was potash, of which a great quantity was made. In '35 and '36 the price jumped up to $8 and even $9 per 100 pounds, or £10 a barrel of 500 pounds, and some cleared £50 and £60 a year, which was a great lift. The location tickets, $8 each, were issued in June '27, and they had no rent to pay until '30. The Seigniory gave two years without rent.

The year I came out, William Hodgins (English), John Fletcher and Isaac Phillipson were on the 3rd Concession. The side-line road to Durham had been begun in '31 and was cut out in '32, and the east half the year after.

There were just three buildings where Durham now is, when I passed through it first — Jones' house, where Dougald Graham's stands, an old barn on James Walsh's and a log building 20x26, put up I think in '29 for a church. The frame of the new church was up but it was not all boarded. It had been raised in '31. When Calhoun came it was enclosed but there was no floor until '35, only a few boards on part of it, so that many of the congregation sat on the sleepers, with their feet on the grass. In '38, when I was married, a friend told me to go into his seat, for a number of farmers had made and bought benches, some with backs and some with just forms. It was lathed and plastered and otherwise finished in '39, many subscriptions being paid in wheat. The usual annual subscription for the support of the church was $2 a family, and $4 was thought a great sum to give.

Miller came out in '31. He had been married and after his wife's death, got too intimate with a girl and had to leave without a certificate. On this becoming known the river folk would not listen to him, and he engaged as teacher at the school on Moore's lot, to preach on Sundays alternately with Huntingdon. The girl afterwards came out, and they were married at Montreal, after which he went to the States.

The first Methodist preacher was an Irishman, Charles Gaye, who had knee breeches, and in summer no stockings. He was a queer character. One Sunday on leaving after holding service (which was held in John Anderson's) a shower had fallen in the interval, when he exclaimed, "It's dammed slippery." His thrashing of his wife at last disgusted the neighborhood with him. This would be in '35. After him John Lowry, another local preacher, accompanied sometimes by Thomas Whealey, visited us and Lowry may be regarded as the first right Methodist. Dalgleish visited houses near Durham, and held religious exercises in them but did not preach in school. The Methodist congregation was formed at Durham but it was not independent of Huntingdon until the fall of '55, when Sweet was sent as minister. The church was built a year before.

I was at the induction of Mr. Anderson, the only clergymen present being Roach and Walker, the latter preaching the sermon from "Feed My Sheep," and was hard on the Catholics.

The Catholic church was standing at Finn's when I came.

There were very few graves in the Scotch burying ground in '32, a dozen or so, but there were hillocks, which some said were the mark of old potato hills and others of graves. The burying ground at the English church where Baird's store now stands had also graves.

There was frost every month of the year of '36 and winter set in on the 20th of October, and never afterwards relaxed. A great many potatoes were lost by being frozen. The snow in the winters of '36-'37 and '37-'38 was very deep, and there was great slaughter of deer, one farmer killed 40 without shot, hunting them down by dogs. I caught one on the road. The settlers called venison "bush pork." On the 26th of July, 1854, a great fire swept the concession, causing much loss of property and cattle. It was a very dry summer.

The Durham bridge was built by the brothers Mills in '45 and was swept away by the flood of '63.

I went for letters to Reeves' for a long while, for although petitions were circulated early in '33 for the opening of an office at Cross', it was not until late in '34 it was established.

I was teaching during the Rebellion so had no hand in military movements. When the St. Regis Indians, on their way down, met the corpse of King at Charles Moe's place, they gave a whoop which we heard in the concession.

The allowance of whiskey at bees was a bottle to each man. When there was a bee, the custom was for the women to gather at the house on the farm on which the bee was held. At a logging bee the women thus gathered, and one rascal saw them come out and put on the kettle for tea on a fire out-of-doors, it being summer. Taking out his plug of tobacco, he gave it to a boy to slip over and put in the kettle, the reward to be a few coppers. He was undetected by the women, who, after a while, were seen one by one to come out and begin vomiting. It shows they knew little of tea, and indeed in one year I only tasted tea four times. It was porridge for breakfast, pea soup and potatoes and perhaps a bit of meat for dinner, and often potatoes and salt for supper. There is a chest of tea used now for each pound then.

The mill resorted to was generally Buck's, until McArthur started. He made fair oatmeal, but poor flour. John Simpson was murdered in the fall of '53, if I mistake not. Perrault, though he has only a wooden leg, is still the same fighting man and shot the blacksmith, Leahy.

May Be Shortage of Electrical Power to Drive Machinery of War Industries to Supply Munitions and Equipment Next Year

The six destroyers which is was recently announced would be added to Canada's detsroyer fleet, have now been taken over, have been manned by Canadian seamen and will be immediately ready for service in any theatre of war to which they may be assigned. This brings Canada's destroyer strength to thirteen. The six vessels are part of the fifty destroyers turned over by the United States to Great Britain in return for Atlantic naval and air bases. The ceremony of transferring the six ships, which took place at an Atlantic port, was impressive. High ranking officers of the Eastern Command, representing land and air as well as sea forces, took part. About 125 officers and men of the Canadian navy are now manning each of the destroyers. Canada's air forces are being steadily strengthened by the addition of a number of corvettes or anti-submarine patrol boats which are being built in Canadian shipyards.

The government has appointed the commission which will administer National Unemployment Insurance in Canada. The chairman is Joseph Sirois, who was head of the Dominion-Provincial Relations Commision after W. N. Rowell took sick. Dr. Sirois gained experience while carrying through this monumental task which will be of great value to him and to the insurance commission. The Prime Minister, when announcing the appointment said that there would be many occasions when provincial authorities would have to be consulted and Dr. Sirois was admirably qualified for this work. The other members of the unemployment insurance commission are R. J. Tallon, secretary of the Trades and Labor Congress, who will be labor's representative, and Allan M. Mitchell of Montreal, who will represent the employers of labor.

The Unemployment Insurance Measure was passed during the last session of parliament after the necessary change was made in the British North America Act giving the federal government the authority to deal with this subject. Under the new law, employees and employers will contribute approximately equal amounts to the insurance fund with the government adding a further amount equal to one-fifth of the combined contributions of labor and employers. The federal government also pays administrative costs which will amount to about five million dollars a year.

The application of the insurance plan will be widespread, but there are certain forms of employment to which it cannot conveniently apply. The following are among those excepted from the scheme: employees of farming, horticulture, forestry,

UNDER FORCED DRAFT

(The Financial Post)

During the summer the textile plants have been operating under forced draft, and pouring out articles of uniform and clothing at the rate of tens of thousands a week. As an indication of the production, the following table lists the deliveries made to the Canadian army during the two-weeks period ending August 9. The figures for the air force and navy are in addition.

It will be seen from the table that the industry can practically equip a full division of troops in a two-weeks period.

Deliveries to Army

Two weeks ended August 9

Battle dress blouses	22,000
Battle dress trousers	22,000
Leather belts	12,000
Blankets	30,000
Boots	69,000
Braces	27,000
Caps	20,000
Comforter caps	37,000
Greatcoats	14,000
Sweaters	22,000
Overall blouses	38,000
Overall trousers	40,000
Flannel shirts	18,000
Service shirts	72,000
Socks	91,000
Underwear shirts	40,000
Underwear drawers	40,000

There are no signs yet of the woollen and knit goods division slackening up. The job of equipping troops has only started. Commencing October 1, Ottawa plans to train another 300,000 men in a one-year

THE difference between cost and selling price—the measure of your PROFIT—depends today on how your eggs grade. How they grade depends largely on the feed you use.

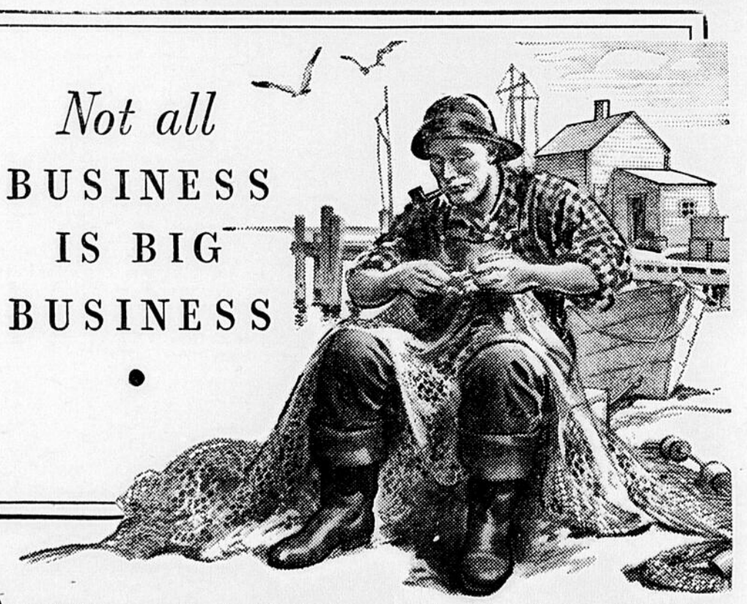

Experience has led thousands of Canadian poultry men to say: "When it comes to quality, size, colour and flavour, eggs produced the Pioneer way can't be beaten."

For results that pay, feed Pioneer Big 3 Laying Mash along with your grain. More eggs, better eggs, extra profits will prove to you that the Pioneer way is the profitable way.

A LITTLE steam lifts the lid of your tea-kettle. A lot of steam drives trains, machinery. Your bank deposit may be little, but it combines with millions of others to make a lot of "steam". It helps to run the nation's machinery of production, marketing, employment, business. It is important indeed to the country's war financing and war-time effort. The money is yours yet it helps provide the credit necessary to move the goods and services of the nation. ¶ Canada's chartered banks thus perform functions of great usefulness. They receive the deposits of millions of Canadians, and extend credit to individuals, governments, businessmen and marketing organizations. The small depositor is important to the banks. The "little fellow", popularly so-called, is welcomed by any bank, as a customer.

[In war, as in peace, Canada's Chartered Banks maintain, uninterrupted, their useful services — safeguarding depositors' funds; facilitating the nation's business — looking forward to peace with freedom as the only sure basis of enduring prosperity.]

THE FALL FRUITS

If the shelves in the fruit cupboard still seem rather empty, do not despair, for the store of home-made jams and jellies can yet be appreciably augmented. However, no time should be wasted in checking the supply on hand to decide what should still be made, for the season of fresh Canadian fruits, with apples the exception, will soon be over.

Cantaloupe and Peach Conserve

3 cups diced peaches
3 cups sugar
2 cups diced cantaloupe
2 oranges, juice and grated rind
½ cup blanched and shredded almonds

Mix all the ingredients and cook until the mixture is thick and clear. Pour into sterilized glasses. When cold cover with hot paraffin.

Citron Preserve

Cut citron in ½-inch slices—peel, remove seeds and cut in cubes. Cover with weak brine, allowing 1 teaspoon of salt to 1 quart of water and stand overnight. In the morning drain thoroughly, place over a very low fire and cook until tender. Allow 2 cups sugar and juice and rind of 1 lemon to 6 cups of citron. Bring to a boil slowly. Cook until clear and seal in sterilized jars.

Grape Jelly

Use slightly under-ripe grapes, wash, place a layer in saucepan and mash well, then add more grapes and mash and set saucepan over hot water to draw out juices. Strain juice through double cheesecloth. Boil 10 minutes and add an equal proportion of heated sugar. Continue boiling until it reaches the jelly stage. Pour into hot sterilized glasses, cool, and seal.

Damson Plum Jam

Wash the fruit and cut in half, removing the pits. Break a few pits and add kernels to the fruit. Pour a little water over the plums and heat slowly to the boiling point. Cook gently for one-half hour. Measure and add an equal quantity of sugar. Simmer one hour and pour into sterilized containers. Seal at once.

Pear Marmalade

To every pound of peeled and cored pears which have been sliced very thinly, add ¾ lb. of sugar, ½ ounce of green ginger root, scraped or grated, and half a large lemon.

Place the pears in the preserving kettle in layers, sprinkling each with sugar, lemon juice and grated ginger root. Allow to stand 2 or 3 hours, then heat slowly to the boiling point. Cook until clear and thick. If preferred, the ginger root may be crushed and placed in a little bag which can be removed from the mixture before pouring into glasses.

Aubrey-Riverfield

A meeting of the Women's Association of Howick United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Bruce on Wednesday evening with ten ladies present, when plans were made and committees appointed for the annual chicken pie supper which is to be held the second Friday in October.

The Aubrey-Riverfield W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Hiram Reddick on Thursday at 2 p.m., with 23 ladies present, who responded to the roll call with "A law I would like to have changed." Current events were given by the convenors present. A lengthy discussion regarding the demonstration we desired to have given by Miss Rettie followed, and home economics, especially dressmaking, was decided on. Mrs. J. Gruer reported that a new mattress had been purchased for one of our hospital beds, and this bill, as well as others, was ordered paid. Subscriptions for the new Macdonald College magazine were taken and reports of the June convention at Macdonald were distributed. A very interesting paper on "The Refugee Problem" was read by Mrs. F. G. Easton. This took the form of a brief sketch of a shipload of children who were brought over from England, from their entry on board ship until the ship docked, and the reaction of the various 800 children to their life on board ship. A goodly donation of jams and jellies was received for the Barrie Memorial Hospital. Plans were discussed for the making of single bed quilts for the Red Cross. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which the hostesses, Mrs. F. G. Easton, Mrs. W. G. Allen and Mrs. Reddick served delicious refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reddick, Ruth and Hazel spent Thursday in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar McKell, Edgar, Thyra, Mrs. Edgar Nugent and children were Wednesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce E. Bruce, Franklin Centre.

Mrs. Minnie Kyle spent several days recently visiting friends in this locality.

Mrs. Math McKell and son, Wayne, spent the past week guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Corrigan, Shawville, Que.

Mr. Math McKell motored to Shawville on Saturday and Mrs. McKell returned home with him on Monday.

On Friday evening a very enjoyable reception was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Craig upon their return from their honeymoon trip. About 80 guests were present and Chinese checkers and cards were played until lunch time. Speeches and congratulations were tendered the happy couple by friends and neighbors. Then dancing was enjoyed by the younger set, music being furnished by Messrs. Mervyn Craig and C. W. Orr, with Mrs. Orr at the piano. The young couple were the recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts. Our good wishes go with them in their new life together.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cullen spent Monday in Lachine guests of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Page.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robertson, Reta and Mrs. Agnes Black spent the week-end in Morrisburgh and Ottawa. While in Ottawa they enjoyed a trip through the Parliament Buildings.

Mrs. Mary McNeil and her grandchildren, Lyndon and Brian Hooker of Ormstown, are spending some days with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robertson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Templeton, Robert and James Templeton motored to Quebec on Sunday to visit Pte. Douglas Templeton, who is ill in the hospital there. We are glad to report that he is on the road to recovery now.

Mrs. Jas. McKell, Mrs. John Orr, Mrs. M. Knox and Mrs. A. Younie accompanied by Mrs. Wallace Younie, spent Tuesday in Montreal, guests of Dr. and Mrs. Laurin.

Mrs. Andrew MacFarlane and Eva Marilyn, and Miss Doris Goundry left on Friday for a trip to Alberta, Mrs. MacFarlane going to visit her mother in Ohaton and Miss Goundrey friends in Alberta and British Columbia.

Miss Reta Robertson of Montreal spent the week-end the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Robertson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Weager, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Weager and Miss Ray Walton of Montreal spent a day last week with Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Allen.

Mrs. Melville Brown and two children spent Monday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. McKell.

Miss Edna Reddick of Macdonald College spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reddick.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Allen enjoyed a week-end motor trip to Sherbrooke, Que.

Facts of Interest To Movie Fans

Two Films Go Into Production

Production was started this week on the M-G-M lot on two features. One is temporarily titled "Comrade X" which stars Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr. Based on an original story by Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer, the production will be directed by King Vidor. Felix Bressart, Sig Rumann, Vladimir Sokoloff and Oscar Homolka are included in the cast. Producer is Gottfried Reinhardt. The other is the new and yet untitled Kildare picture, the latest in M-G-M's "Dr. Kildare" series. Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Laraine Day, Nat Pendleton, Emma Dunn, Walter Kingsford, Alma Kruger and Marie Blake continue their characterizations of former Kildare films and Robert Young is to be seen as a "guest" star.

Jackie Cooper has been signed for a leading role in "Fighting Sons," which is slated to go into production soon. Ian Hunter, Gene Reynolds, Bonita Granville, June Preisser and Edward Ashley are in the cast of this story which, originally had the tentative title "Two Sons."

Henry Blair has been added to the cast of "Little Nellie Kelly," which has Judy Garland in the title role, with George Murphy, Charles Winninger, Douglas McPhail also in the cast. Marsha Hunt is an addition to the cast of "Flight Command."

James Stewart has been signed to a new contract and will next appear opposite Hedy Lamarr in "Come Live With Me," a timely comedy on M-G-M's new production list.

Harvest Days

An orchard when the red fruit hangs heavy is a healthy sight. Three thousand trees loaded with McIntosh and Fameuse on a Franklin slope is a rich reward for a drive on a September Sunday.

Mr. Nolasque April's orchard shows a thrifty care. Eight times it was sprayed during the season and in its tenth year carries a splendid crop. McIntosh are being harvested by twenty men. In October they are to be sold during Apple Week in Montreal by the Kiwanis Club in aid of charity.

That Servant Problem

In Montreal last week I heard much lamenting about the scarcity of domestic help. Walking down Peel Street I noticed two girls carrying placards. They read: "Chambermaids labor dispute. Back wages payment. Pay cheque for two days $1.33. Local 382."

They told me that they were picketing Mount Royal Hotel, where 20 chambermaids were on strike. Wages were supposed to be $26 a month and board but all they could collect was $18 a month. Few tips were received. Since the strike, girls still remaining on the job were paid at the rate of $20. I offered to find them work in the country at this rate but they didn't seem interested.

Forward March, the Women!

In the afternoon I listened to Major Sophie Elliott, in command of the Women's Volunteer Corps, explain their work.

"I don't want you to think we are starting out to be Amazons," said Miss Elliott. "We are simply women wearing uniforms and giving our talents to our country. We have no funds and the girls pay for their own uniforms." Miss Elliott claimed that the sight of women turning out to drill had a stimulating effect on recruting activities of the regular forces. Also that the regular exercise in the drilling was having a most beneficial effect on women who would otherwise stay cooped up in the house and brood morbidly over the war news broadcasts.

Drilling is at night and recruits are housewives, domestic and office workers. Work for next spring would include instruction and activity in growing vegetables in vacant lots. Experts from Macdonald College would train them in agriculture.

In the question period I ventured the suggestion that back-yard and vacant lot gardening might be found very expensive; not to expect too much from the Macdonald College instructors. They were pretty busy already instructing the professional farmers, with sometimes not very much success.

Asked how the corps could render help to agriculture, I replied, by coming out and doing housework for the farmers already engaged therein. I explained that all young people had flocked to town and city factories and military projects for the reward offered in the way of a regular and substantial pay envelope.

Red Cross work in Ottawa is due for a set-back this season; housewives absolutely unable to procure housemaids; these women will, therefore, not be able to knit or sew, states a writer in The Standard.

Not being able to discuss the virtues and failings of their maids, the poor dears wouldn't dare to face a sewing meeting for lack of conversational material.

Dahlia's Whatnots

Ruskin's Religion.—

I have heard a woman say that school children should not be required to memorize poetry because if they did not do it of their own volition it was a waste of time to do it under compulsion. To carry this argument, if it merits the name, to its logical conclusion, one might say that it was wasting their time to have them memorize scripture, for the passages assigned are often blank verse in the original, while others fill every poetical requirement except that of mere form. But an interest in beautiful language and thoughts may be developed. The opinion that exacting such memory exercises —within reason—causes an aversion to the Bible is scarcely well founded. For that matter, one might as well contend that any study which tasks the memory, such as spelling, history, or a language other than our mother tongue, rouses such antagnonism in our minds that we never attain proficiency in it.

John Ruskin tells us how his mother trained him to commit to memory numerous Scripture passages, and how meticulously correct his recitation had to be before she allowed him to leave any given lesson. Yet he must have admired and loved the Bible for we find him constantly quoting it in his lectures and writings on art and architecture.

His suggestion that it might be no fault to have on each side of your Gothic porch a stone seat where the tired wayfarer might rest for a few moments, is supported by two verses which might apply to present war conditions, "bring the poor that are cast out to thy house," and "They are wet with the showers of the mountains, and embrace the rock, for want of a shelter." He declares that true religion is romantic (in his sense of that word) and continues thus: "If you were to ask me who of all powerful and popular writers in the cause of error had wrought most harm to their race I should hesitate in reply whether to name Voltaire or Byron, or the last most ingenious and most venomous of the degraded philosophers of Germany, or rather Cervantes (author of Don Quixote's adventures), for he cast scorn upon the holiest principles of humanity—he, of all men, most helped forward the terrible change in the soldier of Europe, from the spirit of Bayard to the spirit of Bonaparte, helped to change loyalty into license, protection into plunder, truth into treachery, chivalry into selfishness; and since his (Cervantes') time, the purest impulses and the noblest purposes have perhaps 'been oftener stayed by the devil, under the name of Quixotism, than under any other base name or false allegation. Quixotism, or Utopianism: that is another of the devil's pet words. I believe the quiet admission which we are all of us so ready to make, that, because things have long been wrong, it is impossible they should ever be right, is one of the most fatal sources of misery and crime. Whenever you hear a man, dissuading you from attempting to do well, on the ground that perfection is "Utopian," beware of that man. It is very Utopian to hope for the entire doing away with drunkenness and misery out of the Canongate (Edinburgh's slum quarter), or to hope to give every child in this kingdom the knowledge of God; but the Utopianism is not our business—the work is.

Our everyday critics appear to carry on for the happiness they derive from fault-finding. Not so Ruskin. He takes thought for his listeners' happiness, telling them that they have no conception how much they would enjoy beautiful architecture. He draws his proof from the Bible, viz: that whatever temporal things it uses as emblems of spiritual blessings must be good things in themselves. This they surely admit, he says, and asks. How, then will you evade the conclusion that there must be joy, and comfort, and instruction in the literal beauty of architecture, when God, descending in His utmost love to the distressed Jerusalem, and addressing to her His most precious and solemn promises speaks to her in such words as these

"Behold, I will lay the stones with fair colours, and thy foundations with sapphires; and I will make thy windows of agates, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones."

But not only does Ruskin promise them happiness themselves in increased beauty of environment, but he urges upon them the duty of considering the happiness and welfare of the artist who provides that beauty for them. He reminds them that the Bible says, not "Blessed is he that feedeth the poor," but "Blessed is he that considereth the poor." He allows that a little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money. Ruskin asks his wealthy hearers, or readers, to sacrifice a careless preference to what they know to be for the good and happiness of their fellow-creatures. He demands of them: When you spend a guinea upon an engraving, what have you done? You have paid a man for a certain number of hours to sit at a dirty table, in a dirty room, inhaling the fumes of nitric acid, stooping over a steel plate on which, by the help of a magnifying glass, he is, one by one, laboriously cutting out certain notches and scratches, of which the effect is to be the copy of another man's work. You cannot suppose you have done a very charitable thing in this! On the other hand, whenever you buy a small water-colour drawing, you have employed a man happily and healthily, working probably out in the pure country and fresh air, thinking about something and learning something every moment, not straining his eyesight, nor breaking his back, but working in ease and happiness. Unless we are certain not merely that we like a picture, but that we are right in liking it, we should never buy it.

Poetess Visits In Huntingdon

A few days ago we had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Janet Pollock Graham, author of a book of verses containing many lovely lines on the beauty of nature in the Ottawa Valley.

Mrs. Pollock lives in Cushing, Que., on the banks of the Ottawa River. A farmer's wife and busied with household tasks about her home, she yet finds time for a great deal of literary work, as well as social and church work. Mrs. Pollock visited Huntingdon recently to attend the W.C.T.U. convention. In her own locality she acts as treasurer for the W.C.T.U.

For a number of years, under the pseudonym of "Aunt Jean Herself," she wrote a weekly column for the children in the Lachute Watchman and the Granby Leader-Mail.

In the book Mrs. Pollock left with us, "From Hill and Dell," she very cleverly portrays the beauty of the little things of nature which we too often forget to see, forget to take time from our very busy, mercenary lives to appreciate. Better than words the following poem penned by Mrs. Polock will testify to the fertility of her gifted imagination.

WHEN I GROW OLD

When I grow old, Lord, let me live
Where tumbling waters, singing go,
Thro' ferny glens and flowery meads,
Dear childish haunts of long ago.
Where lisping winds, like little prayers
Lull tired minds to rest—
And florant shrubs draw vibrant life
From earth's o'erflowing breast.
Oh may my sight be such, dear Lord,
That my appraising eyes
May glean the beauty of the fields,
The glory of the skies.
And hearing be attuned to sounds
Of earth, while yet life's sweet
Of birdsong gay, at eve, at dawn,
The rustling of the wheat.
I crave not fame nor shining gold,
But joys like these, when I grow old.

Herdman

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wilson and son, Donald, have moved to Ormstown, into the house owned by Mr. Robt. Ovans on Depot Street. Mr. Wilson has secured a position with Mr. Raymond Graham, driving a milk truck. Although we are all sorry they are leaving our community, we wish them every success and much happiness in their new home.

Miss Florence Varin of Montreal, was the guest on Wednesday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Varin.

Mrs. W. E. Rennie, who has spent the summer with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rennie, has gone to Huntingdon, to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Varin and family of Montreal, were Sunday guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Varin.

Mrs. Cora Black spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rennie.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal E. Gamble and Beatrice, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McClatchie.

Mrs. James T. McCartney, son Mr. Lester McCartney and two daughters, the Misses Alice and Olive McCartney, were Tuesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rennie.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Gamble and son Ronald, called on Mrs. Gamble's sister, Mrs. Stanley Anderson on Sunday, who has been quite sick the past week. Her friends all wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gamble and sons Erskine and Harold, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Anderson and children Lola, Bobbie and Helen were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Erskine and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McClatchie were Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Royal E. Gamble. Mrs. William Gamble was a Monday guest at the same home.

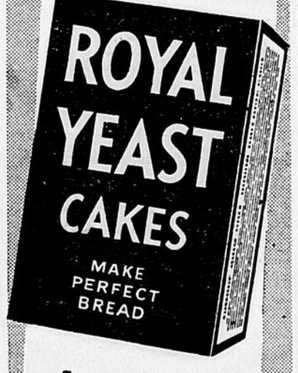

Trout River

It was announced on Sunday by the Rev. J. P. Heslin, pastor at St. Bridget's Church, Trout River, that a mission would start on Sunday, October 6th. It will be conducted by the Rev. John B. Doonan. The morning services will consist of masses at the regular church and at the temporary border line chapel. The evening services will take place in the Church. The hours of services will be announced on Sunday.

Huntingdon Boy Scout Troop is Reorganized

Huntingdon Boy Scout Troop was reorganized for the coming season at a meeting held in the manual training room at the high school on Wednesday of last week. Three patrols have been formed with the following boys as leaders: MacRae Clouston, Bill Bowden and Don Bowden. Another patrol will be organized at a later date, as several new recruits are expected to join the troop. T. Manning was appointed quartermaster and Wm. Munro secretary of the Court of Honor, which administers all troop affairs. Gordon P. Lewis is acting as scoutmaster, following the resignation of I. H. Bowden due to the pressure of other duties. Meetings will be held in the manual training room at the high school each Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock sharp.

W.C.T.U. Convenes Here For Fourth Time

The W.C.T.U. convention which was held in Huntingdon on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, was largely attended by ladies from various parts of the province. This was the fourth time the Provincial W.C.T.U. convened in Huntingdon. The ladies report having enjoyed themselves most thoroughly while here. They were entertained at local homes, while meals were served to them in all three local protestant churches. In the course of their stay in Huntingdon a large number of the ladies viewed the new high school and Gleaner plant. They were greatly taken with the many changes that have taken place in our town since they last convened here.

Officers Prefer Well Water

Not finding the water of the Town of Huntingdon water supply entirely to their liking some of the officers at the Military Barracks have been despatching the water boys to the wells of residents near the Barracks to get water. This water they have been willingly given by the residents. Only in one case did there seem to be objection. The water boys found that in one well a quantity of kerosene oil had been dumped into the well, apparently with the intention of discouraging any further attemps to get water from the well. Possibly there may have been another reason, but if this was done intentionally one can hardly regard it as anything else but a mean act.

Joins Gleaner Staff

Mr. Sam Charters, Jr., of Brampton, Ont., joined the Gleaner staff on Monday and will devote his time to photography work for the Gleaner, La Gazette de Valleyfield, Le Courrier de Beauharnois and the Y.M.C.A. News. During these uncertain days of war, as far as employees are concerned, Sam will familiarize several of the Gleaner staff with the intricacies of producing lectrocuts so that in event of military enlistments amongst the staff, others will be sufficiently well trained to carry on the work and assure our readers the pleasure of viewing pictures of local interest weekly.

Water Damages Are Heavy at Huntingdon Woollen Mills

The Huntingdon fire brigade was called to the Huntingdon Woollen Mills early this morning to help extinguish a fire. On their arrival, however, the employees of the firm had the fire under control. It was reported by one mill official that a spark flew from one of the carding machines on the second floor of the building, igniting the wall. The plant water works system easily extinguished the fire but caused a great deal of water damage on the second floor and some on the first floor where the water seeped through.

The Red Cross Drive.

The Red Cross drive for funds in this district is gaining in strength as the day for the end of the campaign, Wednesday, October 2, approaches. Yesterday Mrs. W. K. Philps stated that the sum of $900 had been either received or promised up to that time. The objective was $1,000 which is $500 more than last year. Next week a full report of the amount received from the various districts together with the names of those in charge of collecting will appear in the Gleaner.

Road in Bad State

The shoulders of the roadway on Henderson Street are in a bad state at the moment, undoubtedly due to the great amount of extra traffic that has traversed the street in recent weeks. Before an accident occurs on that street, due to such shoulders and as a further aid to comfortable driving, it is hoped these shoulders will be repaired.

mediately notified the Ouimet family who in turn asked Dr. J. R. McEwen, of Huntingdon, coroner for the district to make an investigation.

Not satisfied with the result of his investigation and questioning, Dr. McEwen invited the Provincial Police and detectives Jargaille and Forest came to the scene of the accident. The detective found that there was nothing abnormal and that some money which was at first believed to have been taken from the victim, had been disposed by the drowned man some time before the mishap is believed to have happened.

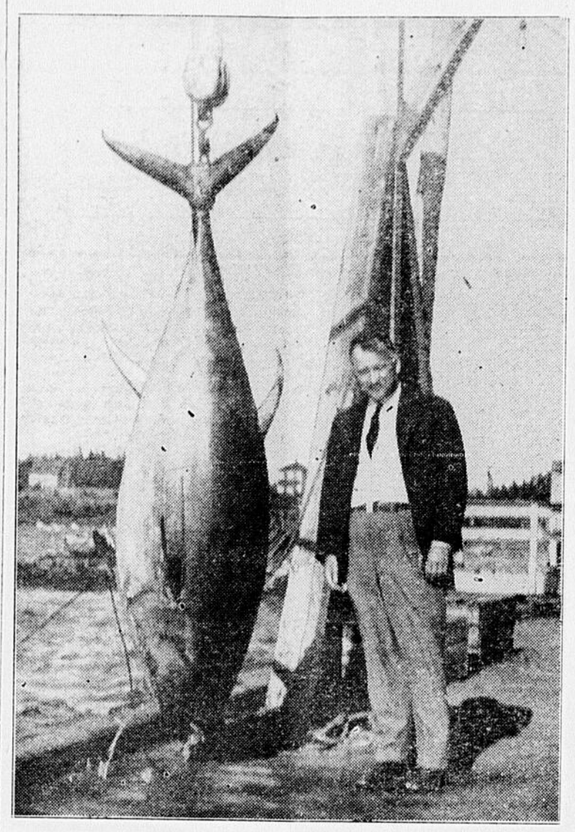

A verdict of accidental death by drowning was returned in the case by Dr. McEwen.

GETS WHAT HE GOES AFTER

It's a 530-pound tuna caught at Wedgeport, N.S., this summer after a fight of one hour and 38 minutes. And the victorious smile on the face of the gentleman standing beside the fish is justifiable since it was he who landed the big one. He is John H. Fregeau, chairman of the Red Cross Drive at Three Rivers, Quebec. Publication of the picture in the St. Maurice Valley Chronicle was prompted through the appearance in The Gleaner on September 8 of a snapshot showing Lester McGillis, genial district manager of the Shawinigan Water & Power Company, Valleyfield, holding aloft a 36-pound maskinonge which he caught at St. Anicet. A friendly rivalry exists between Mr. McGillis and Mr. Fregeau and it is hoped that, with the publicity given by the Huntingdon and Three Rivers newspapers, this rivalry will continue on until next summer when Mr. McGillis, not to be outdone, will be pulling from the waters of Lake St. Francis tons of maskinonge to surpass Mr. Fregeau's quarter of a ton of tuna. Says the St. Maurice Valley Chronicle: "Mr. Fregeau wonders how some people, particularly big grown men who infest Valleyfield, can have the presumption to be photographed alongside puny 35-pound muskies allegedly caught by them. Such minnows, he avers, may be permissably caught by little boys with bent pin and line but are scarcely suitable victims for such big, athletic types as "Spike" "Sport" or "Slug" McGillis, with Ostermoor chests."

British Newspapers Urge Total War Against Germany

London, Eng.—The call is being sounded in London with renewed vigor for a merciless "all-out" war by Great Britain and military leaders are being urged to brush aside in their sky-war against Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy any ethics associated with the old school tie.

John Gordon wrote in a Sunday Express article recently that "in my view there is no way of instilling sense and sanity into Germans at this moment except by killing them." He adds the Germans are beyond missionary work, that they have "gone back to the jungle age."

"It was the German people, not Hitler alone, who made this war. They made it a war not of soldiers against soldiers, but of people against people. As they made it, so they shall have it. They who boasted that they were without mercy deserve no mercy. Justice is all they need. Let us see that justice is what they get."

The writer says that when Germany begins to whine under the whipping by the Royal Air Force "I hope there will be no sentimental nonsense this time about Mercy for the poor, deluded Germans who never really wanted the war, but were just misled."

Must Pay the Price

"For every bomb dropped upon the soil of Britain, we shall, before this war is finished, drop ten bombs into the heart of Germany. For every innocent civilian slaughtered to satisfy the bloodlust of Hitler, a hundred Germans who now exhort their Fuehrer to greater and greater infamies shall pay the price."

Gordon finds it heartening to "see signs of a return of the old offensive spirit among our leaers . . . Defense alone . . . can never win a war." He contends to "achieve victory we must strike down Germany in Germany and Italy in Italy."

"We are still too much obsessed with the defense of our coast-line. We should be fighting the Battle of Britain in Germany. That is the only place where the knockout blow can get home. Parries are all very well but it is the solar plexus punch that ends the fight.

"When we go after wasps we don't content ourselves with a few slaps at the wasps that attack us. We go out and burn the nest. That's the way to deal with Hitler and Mussolini. Go for their nests."

Beyond Sportsmanship

The question of sportsmanship by R.A.F. pilots was raised recently by the Sunday Dispatch which reproduced in a front-page editorial an Air Ministry news bulletin relating the story of the pilot of a British bomber who, during a patrol flight, spotted a German Heinkel resting on the sea near Borkum.

"The Germans would have been easy prey, but the British crew thought it unsporting to attack a 'sitting bird'," the bulletin said. The British plane dived twice on the Nazi, with headlights on, to invite it to come up and fight. The German did so and was destroyed.

The Dispatch calls this "sitting-bird" tradition "sheer insanity in the sort of war we are fighting now."

The paper adds that the vast majority of Britain's 40,000,000 people have "not been to a public school and do not care a damn about the etiquette of pheasant shooting." The people know only, the paper continues, of the bitter facts of the struggle for existence.

Will Fight Grimly

"About this war they know one thing—that we have to fight it grimly, relentlessly, and even unscrupulously.

"Some have seen their homes blown to extinction. Some have seen their relatives and friends left in form that numbs the heart and turns the stomach sick.

"Are they interested in the niceties of sport? Must they believe that some fatuous idiot at the Air Ministry considers that their saftey comes second to playing the game and honoring the rule of school and club?

"They are a kindly and generous and appreciative people. They would not criticize British gentlemen who are fighting for them. They would not ask the obvious question—whether the Air Ministry approves of British pilots inviting Nazi defenses to shoot first before they are bombed, or warning Krupps to be on the alert because they are about to be attacked.

"They are humbly content to know that the Royal Air Force is fighting for them with a bravery excelling even their own.

"But they may wonder whether the people who issued this unctuous statement are conducting war or sport."

St-Anicet

The Provincial Transport autobus made its last trip to St. Anicet on Monday.

Mrs. Joseph Dupuis and daughter Jeanne who have spent the past three months at their summer residence have returned to Montreal to spend the winter.

Miss Rita Caza left on Monday to resume her teaching duties in St. Regis for the term 1940-41.

TO EXPORT CATTLE TO U.S.A. AT A NEW LOW RATE SOON

Canada may export to the United States up to 51,720 head of cattle, weighing 700 pounds or more, other than dairy cows, during the last quarter of 1940, the Dominion Department of Agriculture has announced. It was expected that shipments would commence on October 1.

Under the Canada-United States trade agreement, it was provided that 193,950 head of such cattle may enter the United States from Canada at the reduced rate of 1½ cents per pound, provided that not more than 51,720 are imported in any one quarter of the calendar year.

Imports of such cattle during the first three quarters of this year were sufficiently under the established quota for any quarter to permit entry at the reduced rate of the maximum quantity during the fourth quarter the department said.

"In other words, we may export to the United States up to 51,720 heavy cattle at the reduced rate," it added.

Mr. Joseph Dupuis of Montreal, is spending a few weeks in St. Anicet, visiting with relatives.

Matrimonial

Howard—Davidson

Rev. Dudley Kemp officiated at an early autumn wedding of great charm which took place in Christ Church, Elbow Park, Calgary, at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening, September 14th. The bride was Mary Susan, daughter of Mrs. Davidson of Calgary, and the late Mr. W. A. Davidson, and the bridegroom was Mr. Albert Warren Howard of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Howard of Calgary.

White cathedral tapers and baskets of Picardy gladioli were effectively arranged at the chancel steps, while candles and garden flowers were used on the altar.

Preceded by her two bridesmaids, Miss Marianne Pearson and Miss Jean Smith, the bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Major Thomas W. Cogland, M.C., of Edmonton.

The bridal gown was of creamy satin, cut on flowing lines, the skirt forming a train at the back. The quaintly fashioned bodice was shirred into a tight waistband and the skirt was shirred over the hips. The sleeves were long and becomingly cut and the neckline was finished with a pearl ornament. The bride's long net veil flowed in soft folds from under a halo of shirred satin matching the gown. Her shower bouquet was composed of white gladioli centred with American Beauty roses and having cascades of Stephanotis.

The bridesmaids wore identical gowns, Miss Pearson's African pink and Miss Smith's in Bermuda coral. They were made in peasant style of chiffon over taffeta with short trains. Both bridesmaids wore silver lockets and halos to match their gowns, trimmed at the nape of the neck with chiffon bows. Their flowers were colonial bouquets of mauve and pink sweet peas and roses.

Mr. Harold Howard was best man for his brother and Mr. Wm. Howard, also a brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. C. E. Morris, Jr., were the ushers.

Mr. K. A. Maclure, organist of the church, played the bridal music, and during the signing of the register, Miss Margaret Hutton sang "O Fair, O Sweet, O Holy."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the American Woman's Club rooms which were lovely with a profusion of pastel shaded gladioli. The bride's table was centred with the wedding cake and garlands of smilax were looped from the central chandelier to the corners of the table. Tapers and vases of rosebuds completed the decorations.

Mrs. Davidson, mother of the bride, wore a jacket dress of yacht blue with a toning hat of French felt and a corsage of rapture roses. Mrs. Howard, the bridegroom's mother, was in a dress of dusty rose with a bodice of Alencon lace and a full chiffon skirt in slipper heel length. She wore a large off-the-face black hat and a shoulder bouquet of Talisman roses.

Later the guests went to the home of the bride's mother to see the gifts. Here the top layer of the wedding cake made for the bride's paternal grandparents was on view. It bore the date 1862 and was set on a layer from the golden wedding cake of the same couple, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Irwin Davidson, formerly of Peterboro, Ont.

For the honeymoon to Banff and Jasper the bride changed to a fine wool ensemble of wood brown. The dress had a lace yoke and the coat which was of French wool crepe was in rust red with a bloused back and the skirt was embroidered in matching braid. With this she wore a brown felt pillbox trimmed with felt flowers. Around her neck the bride wore an antique silver locket, the gift of the bridegroom.

After a few days in the mountains, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Howard returned to Calgary to visit their families before going on to Montreal where they have taken up residence at 3180 Van Horne Avenue.

Matrimonial

Jenkins—Osmond

The marriage of Miss Rhoda Janet Osmond of Ormstown, Que., youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Osmond, to Mr. Frank Tristram Jenkins of Montreal, only son of the late F. M. S. Jenkins and of Mrs. Jenkins of Ottawa, took place at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon, September 28, in Erskine and American Church, Sherbrooke St., West, Montreal, the Rev. Dr. E. Leslie Pidgeon officiating.

The church decorations were carried out with white gladioli and palms. Mr. B. E. Chadwick presided at the organ and during the signing of the register Mrs. H. O. McCurry, sister of the groom, sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Harry Osmond of Ormstown, the bride wore a gown of queen's blue sheer fashioned on Grecian lines, with shoulder-length veil to match, and carried a bouquet of gardenias, bouvardia and Finch roses. She was unattended. Mr. H. O. McCurry acted as best man for Mr. Jenkins.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Salon B of the Mount Royal Hotel, where pink and white gladioli formed the decorations. Later the bridal couple left on a motor trip to the Atlantic coast. For travelling the bride wore an aquamarine wool crepe dress with grey accessories. On their return they will reside in the Highland Park Apts., Cote des Neiges Road, Montreal.

Military Camp Draftees to Drill 7 1-2 Hrs.

Month in Camp Will Provide Training Given N.P.A.M. Outdoor Parades Planned

Draftees going to militia camps throughout the country starting October 9 will get approximately the same basic training as was given members of N.P.A.M. units in camp this summer, Lt.-Col. H. Wyatt Johnston, V.D., has stated.

Plans are well up to schedule, Col. Johnston said, and camps now under construction will be ready in a few days to receive the first of the instructors who are now in training at Three Rivers for the job of looking after and teaching those going to the camps.

The basic training will be common to all arms, that is, the men will learn things which will be of value to them if they decide to join the army, the navy or the air force later. In the case of those who decide not to join up, and are attached to a non-permanent unit for training one or two nights a week during the winter, they will be able to start at the same place as those who went to N.P.A.M. camps.

The men will get drill, physical training, small arms instruction, including training in the use of the rifle against aircraft, bayonet drill, gas protection drill, marching, tactics, fieldcraft, including scouting, patrol work and digging. They will also get lectures on such subjects as the history of the N.P.A.M. unit to which they wil be attach and the general set-up of the allied branches of the service.

The training day will be one of seven and a half hours, divided into 10 periods of 45 minutes each. The men will get Saturday afternoon off, and all day Sunday, as well as certain recreation periods.

Get Week-end Passes

Week-end passes will be available, and the men will be able to go to their homes, at their own expense. Travel to and from the camp at the opening and closing will be paid for by the government.

Training will be undertaken outdoors as much as possible. In the last war, said Col. Johnston, experience with officers training corps camps proved this can be done satisfactorily to a greater extent than would be believed. In cases where it is not possible the work will be done in drill halls.

"The main thing we will try to teach those going to the camps is how a soldier lives and what the army is all about. The local communities are behind the camps in every instance and we think many more people besides those attending the training will get a better idea of the war effort as far as the camp plan is concerned."

The draftees will have it easier, in many respects, than those who went to N.P.A.M. camps. There will be hot water to shave with in the mornings, from a tap, as well as hot showers. The camps will have recreation halls, libraries and other facilities which were not available at Farnham or St. Bruno camps. Messing arrangements, too, have been improved. Besides, clothing like socks and underwear is being provided by the government, as well as the uniforms which were given those going to camps earlier.

Hemmingford

The True Blue C.G.I.T. Group of St. Andrew's United Church, Hemmingford, held a mother and daughter banquet at the manse on Friday evening, Sept. 27, from 5 to 8 o'clock.

The evening opened with a short program with all members taking some part. Miss H. Cunningham of Montreal gave an interesting reading which was much enjoyed. Ann Brown, the president, welcomed the mothers and friends on behalf of the group. After the program the regular meeting followed. Pearl White, the leader, conducted the devotional part of the meeting. Mrs. Dean, the assistant leader, then invited the mothers and their daughters to come to the table and find their places by the prettily decorated place cards made in two shades of blue, the group colors. The tables were decorated with these colors and fall flowers.

Mrs. Cunningham, president of the Women's Misionary Society, assisted in serving a delicious supper. The evening was much enjoyed by all, and the mothers were pleased with this opportunity of seeing the work carried on by the group.

Miss Bessie Cairns, United Church missionary of the Honan Mission Station, at present on furlough, was the speaker at a special Sunday evening service in St. Andrew's United Church, Hemmingford. Miss Cairns spoke of the splendid work done by all the members of the mission, doctors and members of the hospital staff, teachers, missionary workers and the native helpers in their care of the wounded, sick and suffering, caused by the Japanese invasion of China. The mission stations became the centre for the care of refugees rendered homeless by the advancing troops and repeated bombings from the air. Besides providing meals and medical attention, school was carried on for the refugee children.

During the three years of the invasion, with bombing attacks almost a daily occurence, and shells from long range guns whistling overhead, the missionaries remained at their posts, ministering to the needs of these war-stricken people, refusing to leave until the women workers were ordered to do so by the British consul.

Miss Cairns made an earnest appeal for continued support of these missionaries and native workers, who, caring nothing for danger, continue to carry on their daily ministrations to those suffering from the ravages of war. A special offering was taken for the missionary work of the church.

their homes. She told us also that even the church in which we were meeting was a new one, owing to a disastrous fire which had demolished their former edifice. She said the W.C.T.U. was expected to bring uplift and improvements, morally and spiritually to humanity. She reminded us of the strength and craftiness of our foe and of his resources. Of the present day respectability of drinking parties. She told us when her boys were small—her greatest fear for them was the danger of the liquor traffic. Now, she said, not only boys are in danger, but girls and their mothers also. The reply to this address had to be deferred until Thursday.

The first vice-president took the chair at this juncture while the president read her annual address. She first reminded us of the strenuous times in which we were living, of the great conflict between Right and Might. When we met last year the war had been in its infancy and its colossal growth during the year was noted. But, said she, "God still lives, still cares, still rules." She referred with pride and gratitude to the contribution being made by Canada in both men and munitions of war. To the Providential escape of our beloved King and Queen and of fine stamina shown by all the peoples of Britain. She reminded us of the suggestions contained in the letter to us from the National President, of the successful conclusion of our fight for the Franchise, begun as long ago as 1884. She told how the Hon Mr. Godbout, the premier, gave credit to the W.C.T.U. for being the first organization which had included "Franchise for Women" in its original platform. But, she continued—"there are still disabilities to be overcome." During the past year two women had been appointed on the Board of Protestant Education and two women had for the first time been permitted to enter the Faculty of Architecture at McGill. She recommended two books for Study Groups. She advocated that some restrictions should be put on the sale of Liquors—as had been done during the Great War and which had worked to such good advantage. She felt the inroads of that traffic on our young men—so many of them absent from home and its restraining influences—was already apparent.

Her recommendations to us were: Campaign for new members. Win one; Increased effort in behalf of our young people; Every local organize or mother a Y.P.B.; Hold Mother's meetings and at them advocate White Ribboners department as beneficial; Renewed effort to reach and hold our S.S. scholars; Stress anew our National Campaign Work; Study Causes of and cure for WARS; Advocate restriction of liquor sales as a war time measure; Stress all departmental work; advertise more; secure sympathy of churches by keeping our activities before W.M.S and W.A. organizations.

There are 789 members and 129 Honorary members in the Society.

Balance on hand, Oct. 15, '40	$240.80

Moved by Mrs. John Ross, seconded by Mrs. Badien that we purchase $200.00 of our new War Loan Bonds. Carried.

Moved by Mrs. Orr and Mrs. Merritt, that our provincial prizes this year consist of War Saving Stamps. And it was suggested that counties follow this procedure as far as possible.

A motion, sponsored by Mrs. Blatchford and Mrs. Ball recommended that our members interest themselves as far as possible in behalf of homes for evacuated children. This was in response to Mrs. Knight's letter to a communication from Willard Hall. Carried.

Convention requested the Corresponding secretary to send a reply according to above motion to Willard Hall.

Address by Rev. T. Knowles

"There came into my hands recently," said Rev. Thomas Knowles, "a pamphlet with the most striking and damaging evidence against the liquor traffic, in the form of a statement by the most outstanding men and women of the British Empire, representing the brains of several nations, who had openly expressed themselves against the liquor traffic. Names such as the Rt. Hon. John Simon, Lloyd George, Mrs. Bowes Lyon, late Cardinal Mercier, Father Matthew, Justice Jeff and Justice Riddell, along with many others.

"But with such an array of evidence against drink, why is it that the traffic has been allowed to make such progress throughout the world? The late Ramsay MacDonald said, it was a fool's policy to suppose that you could not make people sober by Act of Parliament, that we had made many drunk by such a measure, then why not reverse it?

"The late Cardinal Mercier once said liquor had killed more people than war, but it had killed them more dishonorably.

"Roger Babson, a leading statistician, said, 'If ever Fascism controls the U.S.A., we can blame the liquor traffic.' That 'this traffic claims to put 500 million dollars in the Federal State reasury annually. True,' says Babson, 'but it costs the U.S.A. more than that to offset the damage caused by the traffic.'

"The same is true in Canada, which offsets the misleading ads. on beer in our daily newspapers, besides giving the least employment and wages for the amount of money invested, the profits made and dividends paid out. Add to this all the misery, suffering, wrecked homes and characters, and the youth prevented from getting their education. Yes, that is what beer is doing for some of our young people who should be in college.

"Next, the war—I wonder if we know there is a war on? I wonder if the Government knows there is a war on? Listen to what General Evangeline Booth had to say about this evil and she knew of what she was speaking. 'Drink has drained more blood, hung more crepe, plunged more people into bankruptcy, armed more villians, slain more children, snapped more wedding rings, blinded more eyes, dethroned more reason, wrecked more manhood, dishonored more womanhood, broken more hearts, blasted more lives, driven more to suicide and dug more graves than any other poisoned scourge that ever swept its death-dealing waves across the world.' That is the kind of business the Government is engaged in, and I protest against our leaders exposing our soldiers to all manner of temptation to drink and this interfere with their efficiency, besides destroying their souls before they risk their lives in the great cause in which we are engaged, and need every man's best.

"We are supposed to be out to win this war with all our might and main, but we let a greater evil throttle our efforts and the Government lets this fifth column activity go scot free to do its incalculable damage. One speaker the night before said we, the Temperance Forces, had been double crossed by governments in the past. They still treat us as though we should be seen and not heard, but I notice that these same leaders engaged in this monstrous business turn to the churches and ask them to hold a Day of Prayer, that God may give us victory, which to my mind is rank hypocrisy. What this country needs is that the people bow humbly before God and confess their sin and wrong, for as yet we have failed to change our methods of living. When we obey God's commands, put our evil doings behind us forever and stamp the liquor evil out, then we can look hopefully into the future. Then I have no fear of Hitler and his beasts. They, too, will be stamped out along with the other curses of mankind."

partment of Trade and Commerce in 1915 and two years later was promoted to trade commissioner with jurisdiction over Italy and the Mediterranean countries. Later he conducted special trade missions to Spain, Switzerland, Central Europe, the Balkans, Turkey, Rumania, Algeria and Morocco. In 1922 he represented the Canadian Government at the inter-parliamentarian conference at Venice and conducted the Canadian Government's negotiations with Spain which resulted in the 1925 commercial treaty with that country. That same year he returned to Canada to assume the duties of director of commercial intelligence, in the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa.

Mr. Clarke resigned the Ottawa post in 1927 to assume the secretaryship of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

When the Canadian trade mission went to the Orient in 1930, Mr. Clarke went with it as secretary and the following year performed similar duties with the Canadian trade mission in Latin America. He wrote a number of books on trade matters.

Last year he accompanied the Canadian Trade Mission to the International Chamber of Commerce held in Copenhagen, Denmark, later visiting the other Scandinavian countries and England. In recent years he made many addresses throughout Canada and in the United States and was well known to numerous business bodies and business executives.

Among the clubs of which he was a member were the Rotary, Canada, Royal Montreal Curling, Royal Montreal Golf and the University Club. He was also a member of the Masonic Order, of Scottish Rite, and played golf and tennis.

HEARTS WALKING

Mrs. Harry Pugh Smith

It was the next night. Berenice was pacing her living room floor. She had had almost no rest for two weeks.

"If I could only go to sleep and forget for a while," she whispered.

She was going to take only two veronals, she told herself. It was not as if she meant to do anything desperate. She had to have some rest. She moved slowly toward the bathroom. She kept looking over her shoulder and shivering.

She opened the medicine cabinet. Her hands rattled on the glass shelves. She picked up the first tube and shook the contents into her palm. There were only four tablets.

She filled a glass with water. She put the tablets in her mouth and drank the water. She kept watching her drawn face in the mirror. She felt no different. Her brain was still crawling with thoughts.

"I have to have some rest," she whispered.

She picked up the other tube. It was over half full. She emptied it jerkily into her mouth and drank more water. She had a terrible time swallowing. She kept drinking water till all the tablets were gone.

Berenice went back into the living room and lay down on the couch. She closed her eyes. She thought, in a few moments I'll go off to sleep. Only she did not feel sleepy. Her head began to swell. It felt giddy, as if it were floating away from her body.

Somehow she was going down the street. She did not remember how she got there. After a while she was standing at the bottom of the back stairs at the flat. She sat down on the lower landing. She could scarcely get up. She was drowsy at last, terribly drowsy. She had reached the point where she could sleep anywhere and she had forgotten why she had ever thought it necessary to climb the stairs, but her sick brain clung to its fixed idea.

"Got to get to Mother," she whispered, and pulled herself step by step up the stairs.

The screen door at the back was latched. Berenice's body was numb from feet to waist. She glanced longingly at a porch chair. Nobody would disturb her there before morning. No one ever came out on the back porch late at night.

"I'm—so—tired," she whispered, and slumped to her knees and then forward on her face.

"What's that?" exclaimed Tony Ryan.

He and Janet and her mother and Stephen Hill were playing Monopoly in the living room. The other stared at Tony. "I heard a noise out back," he explained. "Think I'll have a look."

Anne followed him. Janet and Steve, after a moment's hesitation, trailed along. Tony opened the screen door at the back. He stooped swiftly and gathered up what Anne had taken for a shadow on the porch.

"Berenice!" she cried.

Tony stood Berenice on her feet. "It's—all—right, Mother," she said in a slow thick voice. "I haven't been sleeping lately. I'm—so—tired. I want to sleep in my old bed."

"Dearest!" cried Anne. "You're ill."

"Bill's left her, mother," faltered Janet. "Two weeks ago. She made me promise not to tell you."

Anne flinched as if she had been struck and Berenice shook her head. "Didn't want to worry you. Nobody's fault but mine. Can I go to bed now, Mother? I'm—so—sleepy."

Tears were running down Anne's cheeks. "Of course, dearest, Mother will tuck you in."

"Wait," said Tony Ryan.

Anne glanced at him. Her face blanched at the look in his eyes. "What is it," she gasped. "Why do you look like that?"

"I'm sorry," he said. He turned to Steve. "Call a doctor. Call Dr. Reynolds."

"Oh, what is it?" whispered Anne.

"She—" Tony took a long breath and shook his head. He took Berenice's arm. He began to walk her up and down the kitchen. He slapped her wrists, her hands.

"Make some strong black coffee," he said to Anne. "Hurry. Take her other arm, Janet. Help me to keep her moving. We mustn't let her go to sleep. She's taken something, some kind of poison."

They pried Berenice's rigid jaws apart. Anne's hands did not flinch. She refilled the coffee cup. She forced another cupful between her child's colorless lips.

"Let—me'rest," panted Berenice.

"No," said Anne.

Berenice moaned pitifully. Tony and Janet took up their dreadful march again, half carrying, half dragging Berenice's slack body between them. Steve came back into the kitchen.

"The doctor will be here in ten minutes," he said.

"She isn't coming out of it," said Tony. "Get ice and towels, somebody. Whip her face and neck with them."

"I'll do it," said Anne.

"Bill," whispered Berenice.

Tony glanced at Steve. "Here are the keys to my car. Take it and go after him. The name's Carter. He's the one I told you about, sells radio advertising."

"Any idea where he is?" asked Steve hoarsely.

"He came to see me last week. Said he was staying down in a cheap rooming house across the branch. He's a very dark, big chap, looks as if he's been ill."

"I'll find him," said Steve.

He wanted to do something, anything. He did not believe he could stand it if he had to go on helplessly watching the agony in Anne's drawn face.

"There's the doctor," said Tony.

Anne ran to open the door. She brought the doctor back to the kitchen. He took one glance at her and opened his medicine case.

"What did she take?" he asked Tony.

"Some kind of narcotic, not an acid, thank God!"

The doctor nodded. "Take her into a bedroom, get clothes off."

Tony picked Berenice up and carried her down the hall. Janet ran ahead to turn down the bed. Between them they undressed Berenice. No one spoke. The only sound was Berenice's labored moaning.

After a long while the doctor stood up. Still no one spoke, but Anne's eyes were fixed on his in anguished entreaty.

"It depends on the patient's resistance," said the doctor gravely, "on whether she wants to live."

"Bill, Bill," moaned Berenice.

Anne held her close. "We've sent for Bill, dearest," she said tenderly.

"Steve will bring him," said Tony.

Steve did bring Bill, a Bill whose clothes hung on him, whose face was gaunt. Berenice's eyes were closed. She did not open them when he came in. Bill dropped on his knees beside her. His lips worked, but he could not speak.

Berenice stirred feverishly. "Bill," she whispered.

He took her thin, limp hand and laid it against his cheek. "I'm here, Berenice."

With a tired sigh Berenice rested her head on hs shoulder. "You'll be here when—when I wake?"

"I'll always be with you, sweet."

Like an exhausted child she fell asleep in his arms.

Berenice had not been back to her apartment since her illness. She said she never wanted to see it again or anyone connected with her life there, anyone except Bill. It was pathetic how Berenice clung to Bill, how she could scarcely bear to let him out of her sight or he, her.

Tony first interested Steve Hill in Bill. Steve's word carried weight in the radio world. He had Bill promoted to the script department on the local station. Steve said Bill had ideas, ideas that were needed on scenarios and advertising programs.

"The boy's no salesman," he explained, "but he'll rise and shine in the writing field if I know creative talent when I see it."

In the meantime, although his promotion carried a modest rise in salary, Bill and Berenice were going back to three housekeeping rooms in an old brick house.

Janet had imagined it would take them all afternoon to get settled in the new place. Both she and Bill were determined that Berenice should do nothing except lie on the couch in the living room and direct proceedings. However, everything was finished by four o'clock. Janet decided while she had Jim's flivver to run an errand for Anne. Old Mrs. Givens who lived on a back road behind the Country Club earned her living by making patchwork quilts. Anne saved samples of materials for her. Janet stopped at the flat for the bundle and delivered it. It was after five, the hottest time in the afternoon, when she started back to town and until it joined the highway the road was unpaved.

"Thank heaven, there's only a mile of this," she muttered, choking on the cloud of red dust she had kicked up.

She felt apprehensive about the tires on the car. They were badly worn. Jim was dickering for new ones.

"I knew it," she exclaimed when with a slap, bang, whoosh, the left rear tire went flat.

"As I live and breathe," cried Janet. "A rescue!"

Dupree-Oram

The marriage of Miss Alice Lorette Oram, daughter of the late Alfred Oram, and of Mrs. Oram, of Outremont, to Mr. E. Charles Dupree, son of the lat Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dupree, of Fort Covington, N.Y., took place on Saturday, September 28, at nine o'clock at St. Raphael's Church, Outremont. The Reverend John L. O'Rourke officiated. Pink and white gladioli and ferns formed the church decorations. Miss Irene Dawson sang "O Promise Me" and "Ave Maria." The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. Stanley Oram, and attended by her sister, Miss Winnifred Oram. Mr. Edward H. Connolly was best man. The bride wore a model frock of Bagdad blue crepe with hat to match, silver fox furs and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The bridesmand was in a frock of redwood crepe and wore a corsage of sweetheart roses. Mrs. Oram, mother of the bride, was dressed in black and wore a corsage of American Beauty roses. Autumn flowers were used to decorate the bride's home for the reception which followed in the ceremony. Later Mr. and Mrs. Dupree left for a short wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride wearing a Nino dress with fox jacket and black accessories. On their return will reside at Fort Covington, N.Y.

period. The production of uniforms and equipment for this army will tax every facility of the industry for an indefinite period.

The cotton division has tended to slacken during the summer, but this is due to a decline in civilian rather than military demand.

Price to woollen manufacturers for military orders is determined by the government's analysis of costs in the industry. Net profits allowed amount to 5 per cent of all costs, including taxes and depreciation.

Costs for the industry have risen substantially since the outbreak of war. Wage increases of 10 per cent were instituted directly after the outbreak as protecting against possible strikes. This production is too important to the war effort to be interrupted, so companies have taken obvious steps to guard against labor troubles. Some upward revisions in wages have been made again during the spring and summer months.

Prices of raw supplies have advanced.

Difficulties were had in the early months of the war in obtaining wool supplies, and the situation was not clarified until early in March. Arrangements were made with the United Kingdom wool control for adequate supplies from Australia and New Zealand. The Canadian duty on raw imports was temporarily suspended to permit supplies from South America and the United States to be brought in. Prices have been stabilized at an average level of about 60 to 70 per cent over pre-war levels.

Supplies of cotton have not been interrupted. The price at New York, however, advanced more than 20 per cent following the outbreak of war and has remained around that level since.

Obituary

The Late Mrs. William Dain

Mrs. Mary F. Dain, widow of William Dain, of Albany, N.Y., passed away on September 16 at Albany, N.Y., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert S. Murphy, 11 Freeman Road. Mrs. Dain was the oldest daughter of John and Mary Finlayson Ferns and granddaughter of the late John Ferns of Dewittville, Que. She was born in Huntingdon in 1873. Besides her daughter and son, she leaves to mourn her loss a brother, Donald Ferns, of Bridgeport, Conn., one niece and several nephews. One brother, John, and a sister, Annie, died several years ago. Mrs. Dain had lived in Albany for the past 40 years. Interment was made in Albany with Rev. Paul Prokopy of St. Paul's Lutheran Church officiating at the funeral service.

fishing, trapping, transportation by water, air and stevedoring, teachers and government employees. The commission, however, may add to those to whom the law applies. There was a good deal of discussion about western lumbermen, for example. It was held by B.C. members that these should be included in the insured class.

The commission will operate a national employment service. It will probably work in close collaboration with those in charge of the lists of national registration bureau so that unemployment is kept at a minimum. There is likely to be a steadily decreasing number of unemployed as war industries expand. The insurance scheme is a guarantee, however, that when war industry is curtailed at the end of the war, there will be a fund at hand to aid the unemployed in tiding over the time until they can get placed in new employment.

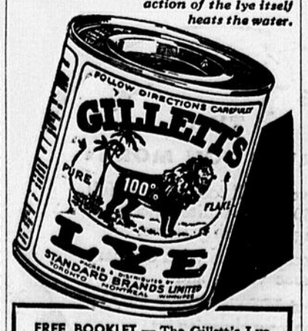

Because of congestion of population in certain Canadian centres caused by war activities, with a consequent shortage and a rise in rentals, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has issued an order pegging rental rates at levels of January 2. This so-called "standstill" order affects particularly a number of cities and towns in Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Ontario where the rental situation has aroused a good deal of complaint. Among these centres are Ottawa, Kingston, Trenton, Barrie, Windsor and Parry Sound in Ontario, and Halifax, Dartmouth, New Glasgow and Sydney, Nova Scotia. In Quebec the centres affected are Brownsburg and Thetford Mines. In Manitoba, Brandon is designated and in British Columbia, Vancouver, Victoria and Esquimalt. These towns and cities are designated as controlled areas. It has been announced that Justice William M. Martin of the Saskatchewan Appeal Court has been appointed administrator of rentals and Frank W. Nicolls, director of housing in the finance department at Ottawa will be technical advisor.

The demand for electrical power to drive the machinery of war industries to supply munitions and equipment has become so heavy that there is some fear that a shortage of this power may develop next year. A measure of economy has been instituted by requesting municipalities in Ontario and Quebec which have been on daylight saving time to continue on this basis during the coming months and not revert to standard time. Electrical needs for heating, domestic uses, tramways and in industries under standard time form peaks about noon and in the late afternoon. Under daylight saving these combined peaks can be tapered off and the strain on power distribution is eased. The whole question of conserving power so that war industries may have a continuously adequate supply is in the hands of H. J. Symington, the new power controller.

Thinking Back ... and ... Looking Ahead

Hitler is Driving the English-Speaking People Together Into A Unity the Like of Which Has Not Heretofore Existed—French Public Opinion Becoming More Pro British

By DONALD C. MACDONALD

Last week world trends became more distinct. In the Far East Japan is going about creating a new Asiatic order. In Europe, Germany and Italy are creating a new European order. Of course, in spite of all its idealistic implications, a new Asiatic order means simply an order in which all the people of Asia will do as Japan wishes. And similarly, a new European order is nothing but an enslaved Europe with all its peoples, including Italians, doing the will of Berlin.

Fully occupied at Home, Britain is unable to halt the expansion of Japan, but behind Britain there is the power of United States, which may or may not come into play. The scheming little Japs can never be sure that some day they will not wake up to find that Britain has given the United States another 99-year lease—on Singapore. In spite of all Tokio's bravado, that come what may, they are going about their destined task of recreating Asia, they might halt for a little consideration should the American fleet move a little too close for comfort. Similarly in Europe, behind the invincible might of Britain, and the indomitable spirit of her people, the Unted States looms ever larger to the gangsters who thought that when they had conquered Europe the rest of the world would come to them and beg for mercy.

Rome-Berlin-Tokio Axis

Now the logical thing for these redistributors of the world to do—with such a situation shaping up—is get together. And that's exactly what they did last week. The Rome-Berlin axis was extended to the Far East to include Tokio. But the question is this: How exactly has that changed the situation? And the answer, briefly put, is: Not one iota.

Japan has been increasingly hostile for years to anybody's interference in the Far East, except her own. That, for practical purposes, means that she has been hostile to both Britain and the United States, who have interests there. But for Japan suddenly to proclaim such hostility to the world in some sort of formal agreement with Germany, and Hitler's puppet in Rome, doesn't meant anything more than we have known to be Japan's intentions for quite some time. Furthermore, be it noted that when Goebbels turned on the propaganda machine just a little too heavily from Berlin, with all the suggestions of what this agreement implied, Japan was quick to announce to the world, and formally too, that they had no intention of entering into a war with Britain and the United States.

The chief result of this latest alignment, I venture to suggest with some others, will be an even closer identification of British and American interests. It is taken for granted that when the three-month agreement is up, Britain will open the Burma road again, thus permitting supplies to go in "the back door" of China. Washington quickly announced that supplies to Britain would flow in an ever-increasing stream, and do not be surprised if President Roosevelt, who knows how to time actions for their greatest impact upon world opinion, as well as that of America, suddenly announces the sale to Britain of American "flying fortress," huge bombing planes that have a flight radius which would permit them travelling to the most distant points in Germany.

English Speaking Unity

With a persistence for which we may some day thank him, Hitler is driving the English-speaking peoples together. It is they who are going to usher in a new world order, and not one in which smaller nations are crushed, and humanity enslaved, but one in which every effort will be bent toward bringing permanent peace, with freedom, to the distracted world. In his inimitable way Churchill has said the same thing: "He has lighted a fire which will burn with a steady and consuming flame until the last vestiges of Nazi tyranny have been burned out of Europe and until the Old World and the New can join hands to rebuild the temples of man's freedom and man's honor upon foundations which will not soon or easily be overthrown."

Last week produced a fiasco off the west African port of Dakar. Somebody blundered, or somebody was double-crossed. Just who it was is not known, and will not likely be until the war is over and today's official secrets may be revealed.

What Happened at Dakar?

Was de Gaulle misinformed? Did he believe that if he appeared off the port of Dakar with a show of naval and military strength that the colonies would capitulate, or was he correctly informed, and then Germany got wind of what was about to happen and applied pressure by a little more blackmailing in France? It is not known. De Gaulle was not willing to shed French blood, and with nine out of every ten Frenchmen at home now reported to have arrived at the conclusion that their future is bound up in a British victory, Britain was not willing to alienate that public opinion by fighting the affair to a finish. A favorable French public opinion will one day be very useful, in fact, necessary for rebuilding Europe. We must never forget that we are not fighting only to win the war, but to win the peace too. The supreme tragedy of the last war, we recall, was that we won the war, but lost the peace.

But the greatest puzzle of the Dakar incident preceded it: Why were the three French cruisers and three French destrayers that presumably escaped the Battle of Oran Bay and had been lying up in the French port of Toulon, permitted to sail out past the quiet guns of Gibraltar? They went down to Dakar and formed the core of the resistance. There is only one possible answer for it: The British perhaps considered that no matter where they were going, they were safer out of the Mediterranean, far from Hitler's hands. Out where they could not be used for Hitler's purposes, the British fleet could handle them, if the need arose. But they'll require careful watching. It is inconceivable that they should suddenly arrive in the English Channel along with the repaired battleship, Richelieu, and take part in an invasion of Britain. That is to say, it is inconceivable that they should do so in French hands. They will be watched carefully.

A Modern Sparta

The course of the war for this fall and winter—assuming that an invasion attempt is definitely off, which apparently the R.A.F. does not assume as it pounds away at the "invasion ports" along the European coast—looks as though it will be one of constant air siege of Britain, combined with an attempt to destroy the British Empire throughout the Mediterranean, and extend Fascist domination into the Near East and Africa.

Meanwhile Germany is going to reorganize the whole of Europe economically. Already reports are seeping through that French industries which are competitive with those of Germany—such as their pottery industries—are being closed down. France, along with the other conquered areas of the continent is to be confined to agriculture. Germany is to be the sole industrial nation, fed by the outlying parts which are stripped of their armed force and can do nothing about it. A modern Sparta, the mission of the German people is envisaged by their fuehrer as that of the elite which supplies the soldiers, who join with the Nazi administrators (and of course, the Gestapo) in ruling all the other inferior races.

But Germans are doing a great deal of reorganizing within their own country too. Some weeks ago the information leaked out that no letters are permitted to be sent from the Ruhr area to the rest of Germany. The reason is simply that the R.A.F. has destroyed so much of the industrial area there that the truth must not be known. The Nazis are moving much of their heavy industry, so vital for war production, to the eastern parts of the country, where it will not be so subjected to air-raids, undoubtedly, that will be an important part of this winter's preparation for the campaigns of 1941. Of course, British planes can reach there too, but for the types of bombers now in use it is a very lengthly flight. That is where these American Boeing bombers—the "flying fortress," which are reported in Washington to be under negotiation for sale to Britain—will play an important role. A round trip of 6,000 miles for them is the ordinary thing, and these giant machines with their four engines can carry tons of bombs.

"Haw! Haw!"

And what of British morale under this terrific strain? Time magazine carries a letter from England. "The boys are well," this woman writes. "Snoops is in Alexandria, Baba has just sailed under sealed orders, John seems to get a lot of nasty raids on the coast. Jack is having his tonsils out next week. Irene has eleven chicks and hopes that they will lay in the winter. But I believe about six are cocks. . . . I hope if the war is over next year you will come home. . . . I wish someone would strangle Lindbergh. . . . We are knocking the Germans down like ninepins. . . . Much love, Mother."

And here is a copy of a London paper which announces that "Soccer Will Start Under 'If They Come' Rules." Rule A: The match should be suspended until the "raiders past" is sounded. Rule C: The match should not be abandoned unless either the warning occurs shortly before the end, or there is no cover on the ground for spectators.

And the Nazis think they'll break British morale! It reminds me of the comment made by one Toronto paper when the dispatch came through that Lord Haw Haw's brother had been interned in Britain. Said the Toronto paper: "We understand that Lord Haw Haw's brother has been interned in Britain. Haw! Haw!"

PASSES AWAY

J. W. GOODFELLOW, whose death occurred suddenly at his home on Monday afternoon.

W. Goodfellow Suddenly Passes at Home

Was One of Community's Most Worthy Citizens

Early Monday afternoon Mr. J. Wesley Goodfellow was about his farm when he was apparently seized with another stroke and was immediately removed to his home where he passed away about four o'clock.

Some time ago Mr. Goodfellow had an accident when his horse ran away and he suffered injuries. Although he recovered from the injuries then sustained, he never seemed to completely regain his good health and not a great while elapsed before he was seized with a stroke. From this first stroke he recovered sufficiently so as to be able to drive about with his daughter, Miss Marjorie Goodfellow, and was able to attend the Huntingdon Fair and meet a great number of his friends of long standing.

Mr. Goodfellow was 70 years of age and throughout his life lived in this community. When a school boy he attended the Huntingdon Academy along with his brother, Williams H. Goodfellow, and was taught in school by Mrs. Robert Sellar. Mr. Goodfellow was the youngest member of a family of nine children of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Goodfellow.

Many years ago Messrs. J. W. and W. H. Goodfellow entered into the business of supplying milk to the citizens of Huntingdon. At all times they have maintained an excellent record for the supplying of milk that rated high according to the health inspectors. The inspectors have always been loud in their praise of the capable and efficient manner in which these two brothers respectively operated their dairies and milk delivery routes. During the many years of difficult financing for poor people, Mr. Goodfellow exemplified a great deal of kindness to them through supplying milk gratis. He was indeed generous to a fault.

In public life he was a willing and able worker. He liked to have work done in its season and have things kept attractive, as his farm home testified. His services on the Cemetery Board as a director and past president were highly praised. To a very considerable extent credit is due Mr. Goodfellow for the excellent manner in which the Huntingdon Protestant Cemetery has been maintained.

For years he was also a member of the Hinchinbrook Council and was likewise a member of the directorate of the Agricultural Society. Being a lover of good driving horses he was head of the horse division at the fall fair for many years and at all times he saw to it that the horsemen were fairly treated and duly encouraged to participate in the annual fall fair.

Though Mr. Goodfellow exemplified interest in many community activities, perhaps the United Church was his greatest of all interests. He was a most regular attendant throughout his life and for years was chairman of the Board of Stewards. The stewards liked Mr. Goodfellow and worked co-operatively under his guidance.

Mr. Goodfellow was predeceased by his wife, Elizabeth Helena McClenaghan, eight years ago. They had a family of two daughters, Miss Marjorie at home and Miss Bertha of Montreal and four sons, Howard of Redditt, Ont., Delbert and Ralph of Huntingdon, and Charles, deceased. Two sisters survive, Mrs. William Morin of Vankleek Hill, Ont., and Mrs. Hanna Kenniburgh, of Vancouver, B.C.

The funeral service was held from the Huntingdon United Church on Wednesday afternoon, October 2, and was largely attended by a great number of friends of the deceased.

To Form C.P.C. In the County Of Huntingdon

Hemmingford to be Headquarters For the Organization

The Hemmingford arena was the scene last Wednesday evening of a gathering for the purpose of approving of the formation of the Civil Protection Corps and a mobile unit of 120 men in Huntingdon County. This the gathering did and within the course of a week or so it is expected that men will be in Ormstown, Huntingdon, Howick, Dundee and other centres for the formation of parts of the unit in those centres. At Hemmingford, Dundee and Howick, for example, there will be from 20 to 30 men while at Huntingdon there will be 30 or more. Mr. C. E. Petch will be amongst those in the work of organization. The headquarters of the organization will be at Hemmingford. When the unit is finally completed it will have six branches, four of which will be the First Aid, the Air Raid Precaution, the Intelligence staff and the Mobile Squad. The Mobile Squad will be the first to be organized.

The meeting at Hemmingford was addressed by J. Gordon Ross, head of the C.P.C. for the Province of Quebec and Col. D. R. McCuaig, commanding the Auxiliary Mobile Police Force for Quebec Col. McCuaig emphasized the fact that the County of Huntingdon was an important point at which to have a mobile force because of the long distance that it touches the International border. Mr. H. Auger of Hemmingford also addressed the gathering.

The total strength of the Auxiliary Mobile Police Force in the Montreal district is now 500 men with 109 at Three Rivers and 80 in Quebec City, a total strength of 689.

HIS RING

"Now we're engaged, Albert, you'll give me a ring, won't you?"

"Ay! What's your number?"

EASILY CURED

Lillie had the toothache, and cried. Her mother tried to pacify her. "I am ashamed of you; I wouldn't be such a baby before everybody."

"Oh, yes, it's all very well for you."

"Why?"

"Because if your teeth ache you can take them out!"

Comedy And Tragedy in Police Role

Unusual Requests Are Received by Town Policeman

"What does the town policeman do?"

This is a subject which one frequently hears, so Police Chief Emile Beauchamp was asked this question.

To enumerate the numerous regular duties in connection with the carrying out of law and order would not be of particular interest. The telephone calls received with respect to unusual requests for assistance provide more interesting reading matter.

For instance, there's the call received a short while ago from a woman who demanded that the "cop" come immediately and stop a youth who insisted on shooting off a shotgun at the children in the neighborhood. She claimed that one of the leads from a shot had struck her child in the leg and to prove this she endeavored to point out a very faintly discernable red mark on the leg of the child where, according to her, one of the leads landed. How the situation eventually turned out we do not know.

Another call came from a resident who stated there was a young boy monkeying around with the pumps used in putting in a sewer on Lake Street. He might do damage and the attention of the "cop" was immediately requested to attend to the matter.

A farmer living close to Huntingdon brought in his domestic troubles. His wife had gone off leaving him with several children and a lot of work to look after. What could the "cop" do about having her brought back?

Several calls from police chiefs of towns nearby have been received who have been seeking to enquire if certain men are in Huntingdon for whom they have been searching.

The registration of guns was responsible, a short while ago, for at least half a dozen calls a day from men seeking forms or information about it.

One call came regarding the theft of tools at the military training barracks, a matter under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Police.

There are, of course, always a certain number of calls regarding trouble caused by excess drinking.

One woman sought the aid of the policeman to help keep her son from marrying a certain girl, which girl insisted on marrying the youth.

There's comedy and tragedy in many of the calls that a town policeman receives.

HON. P. E. COTE ISSUES WARNING RE FIRES

Montreal, Aug. 28.—Save the forest and thereby save industry and employment urged Hon. Pierre-Emile Côté, Minister of Lands and Forests of Quebec, in an appeal to the public issued through the Canadian Forestry Association. Said the Minister:

"Summer and autumn represent the most dangerous periods for the development of forest fires. All of you who enjoy travelling in the forests in search of rest and quiet, you who like the thrill of hunting and fishing, do you stop to consider the important role that the forests play in our national well-being? Have you given thought to the consequences of a forest fire very often resulting from some imprudent act?

"Bear in mind that those areas of woodland, sometimes of considerable extent, which are ravaged by forest fire, rob certain industries of their raw material and inflict idleness on many workers. Take every precaution when you travel in the forest."

SCIENTIFIC WAR THRO' RESEARCH

Born and conceived during the last great war to compete against a scientifically highly-developed enemy power, the National Research Council of Canada was ready and equipped to renew the struggle against the same enemy at the start of the present conflict.

Virtually overnight scientists of the Research Council, with a minimum of apparent effort that suggested careful planning and preparedness, abandoned their peacetime pursuits to bend all efforts towards greater efficiency in the war effort. In many cases, however, peacetime activities, were found to be closely related to problems arising out of war.

Now well over 80 per cent of the Council's work is directly connected with the war. Hundreds of projects, tests, examinations and studies have been undertaken. Valuable assistance is rendered to the Department of Munitions and Supply in regards the equivalency of British and Canadian specifications.

So that no valuable war invention would be pigeon-holed, a special inventions board was set up to examine innumerable ideas and inventions, which pour in upon the government at the rate of about 300 per month.

In the mechanical engineering laboratories, with equipment for the study of aeronautical and hydrodynamical problems, every war day is crowded with new research. Wind tunnels, engine testing apparatus, model-testing basins for water crafts, are used for scores of studies on fighter aircraft, tests of fuel, plane engines, flying instruments, minesweepers, corvettes and other craft of the Canadian Navy.

A modern building to house aerodynamics laboratories is being rushed to completion. Planned by the Council when Major General G. L. MacNaughton was its president and inspiration, this new laboratory, of great importance in a war of aerial combat, has been espoused by Dean C. J. Mackenzie, Acting President of the Research Council, as a favourite enterprise.

The physics division has rendered particularly useful service through its metrology section, where a gauge testing laboratory has been set up. A supply of gauges, accurately tested and verified, has been built up and made available for industrial plants engaged in the production of munitions and war equipment.

The attention of experts, in the chemistry section, is focused on numerous problems on war supplies, the subjects ranging from gas masks and airplane deicers to textiles and alloys.

MRS. R. J. BLAIR ADDRESSES W.I. AT HEMMINGFORD

Mrs. R. J. Blair, the county president, was the guest speaker at a well attended meeting of the Women's Institute held on Sept. 13th in the Hemmingford United Church Hall.

Mrs. Blair in her usual business-like manner, mentioned various problems of interest to the county as a whole and asked the members to give their decisions to the representatives to the Board meeting. In an inspiring talk, she mentioned the actualities for service offered if one has the vision to recognize the possibilities.

A splendid display of bouquets of flowers was a feature of the meeting. These were commented on by Mrs. Blair. The strong and weak points of their selection and arrangement pointed out. The flowers were later taken to the cemeteries and placed on the graves of former W.I. members.

Christmas cheer from the Hemmingford boys overseas was discussed and a sum of money was voted to buy wool for this purpose.

Mrs. D. M. Laurie, convenor of Education took charge of the meeting and called the roll which was answered by naming a favorite educational radio program. She then warmly welcomed the teachers to the community and meetings. She assured them of co-operation both as an organization and as individuals. She then read Dean Brittain's article in the Macdonald College Journal on Education for Democracy and several other timely clippings.

The meeting closed with the National anthem and refreshments were served by Mrs. A. A. Clayland and Mrs. G. S. Walsh assisted by Miss Barbara Walsh.

TWO HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT; DRIVER ESCAPES UNINJURED

Two men were seriously hurt and a third narrowly escaped injury near Valleyfield on Sunday when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a ditch.

The mishap occurred at 5 p.m. on Sunday as the auto missed a curve on the highway on the outskirts of Valleyfield.

The injured, Leo Sauve, 35, and Jack Ryan, 55, both of Valleyfield, were treated on the scene of the mishap by Dr. J. A. Deguire, and then taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital, where Sauve was reported to be suffering from severe head injuries, bruises and cuts, and Ryan from a fractured jaw and severe cuts and bruises.

Elmer R. Casey, driver of the auto, was unhurt.

Miss Winnifred Hay has returned to The Gables from a holiday spent at Toronto, Ont.

Mr. John Long of Moosomin, Ont. who visited with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dickenson, left on Monday night for Manitou, Man.

Mr. and Mrs. Yates of Toronto, Ont., and Miss Dorothy Barrow of Montreal, were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hay, The Gables.

Kilbain

Miss Agatha Sherry of Connaught Road, visited with her friend, Miss Rita O'Connor on Thursday.

Several from here were in Huntingdon, on Sunday to welcome the soldiers as they landed off the train, and they followed them in their march to their new headquarters at the barracks.

Obituary

The Late Henry Charles McCallum

Henry Charles McCallum, for the past 25 years provincial treasurer of the Quebec Jurisdiction of the Catholic Order of Foresters and connected at various times during his career of over half a century with the printing, grocery and jute bag businesses, died Tuesday at St. Mary's Hospital at the age of 81. He had been in retirement for about five years. Born, July 13, 1859, at St. Chrysostome, Mr. McCallum was a son of the late Archibald and Rosina Rooney McCallum. As a young man in the 70's he was apprenticed to the printing trade and, like many others looking for new opportunity for journeymen in those days, he went west. Arriving in Chicago on January 9, 1881 he was employed the next day by the National Show Printing Company, becoming superintendent of that firm's printing department three months later and holding that position until the company went out of business in 1887.

The following year Mr. McCallum returned to Montreal and entered the grocery trade, remaining in business for two years, when he entered the employ of the Canada Jute Manufacturing Company and some time after the Woods Manufacturing Company. When he retired from the latter firm he had been connected with the bag industry for over 45 years. Mr. McCallum joined the Catholic Order of Foresters in St. Patrick's Court No. 95 in April, 1889. Later that year he organized and transferred to St. Anthony's Court No. 126 and was elected its first Chief Ranger, holding that office at different periods over 14 years. He later organized two courts in Ottawa; Loyola No. 1461, Montreal; one at Hull and one at Brockville.

Surviving are two sons, William A. McCallum, manager of the Montreal City & District Savings Bank branch at Oxford avenue and Sherbrooke street west, and Henry R. McCallum of the Montreal Tramways Company; a daughter, Mrs. E. J. Colfer, and two grandchildren, Bernard Henry McCallum and John Henry Colfer. His wife, the former Miss Alice Connelly, of Montreal, predeceased him.

The funeral will be held on Friday with interment taking place in Cote des Neiges Cemetery.

110 Carloads Of Lumber Go Into Camp

Sewer From Training Barracks Into the River Is Being Laid

Slipping quietly into Huntingdon over the railroad and into the military training barracks by trucks also there has been a lot of lumber come to erect the buildings. To date there has been a total of about 110 carloads of lumber, with another ten or so to come yet. Of this amount 80 carloads have come by rail and 30 by trucks.

There are 33 buildings in all being erected. It was stated that more would be but as yet there is no definite confirmation of this rumour.

A sewer is being laid at the present time from the camp into the Chateauguay River. It will be a 15-inch sewer with three manholes. This sewer, after emerging from the camp, will proceed along Fairview Road to Centre Street, then along this street to cross the Atholstan property on the east side into the Chateauguay River. The water pipes are also being installed. There will be two four-inch pipes into the camp which will be the equivalent of an eight-inch pipe, which is expected to supply the water needs for the present at least.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Wood of Utica, N.Y., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peck and son Francis of Chateaugay, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wilson and son Donald of Ormstown, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Wilson.

Mr. Joseph Burditt and Miss Laura Burditt of Malone, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson.

British humor is one of the country's best assets in this war, as in every other. An old man sat on a bench in a schoolroom during a German air raid. As he tucked a rug about his wife he said: "There now, mother, you always said you didn't have enough schooling. Now's your chance." . . . Tea was being served in the same room a little later and one woman said to another: "Nice, isn't it, saving our own rations?" While bombs were falling!

FAREWELL FOR DEPARTING PTE.

Private Danny Bryson of the Black Watch, son of George Bryson, formerly of Allan's Corners, paid a farewell visit to his home at St. Andrew's East last week before going overseas. While there, the Young People's Club of the Presbyterian Church, arranged a social evening, and presented him with a purse of money.

A laudatory address was read, to which Private Bryson replied in a very pleasing manner. His brother, Russell, is employed in airplane production work at the Canadian Vickers plant. His brother William, has an important post in the Woollen Mills, St. Andrew's.

Have you noticed our new SOUND SYSTEM?

Probably you haven't, and that is why we are so proud of it. Unless you consciously compare the sound you hear in our theatre with the sound you hear in theatres which do not have the modern RCA Photophone "Magic Voice of the Screen" Sound Equipment, you do not realize the degree of perfection we have achieved in bringing you great pictures just as they sounded when recorded in the studio.

A good sound reproducing system should not be noticed. It should merely be a part of that twentieth-century miracle, the illusion of the talking screen. It should perform its task so well that it adds to your enjoyment of the screen play without reminding you that the actors are the orchestra is not actually present.

To give you the fullest enjoyment of the magnificent array of glorious films we have booked for you this season, we have just installed at great expense the very latest type of RCA Photophone "Magic Voice of the Screen" Sound Equipment. The apparatus is similar to that installed by RCA in the world's largest theatre, Radio City Music Hall in New York. It was designed by the same staff of engineers who developed the modern sound recording methods and equipment for leading Hollywood studios.
