VOICE OF LABOR BEING HEARD IN WIDNES ELECTION

Effect of Lancashire Voting Expected to be Far-Reaching

ECONOMY POLICY

Great Push May be Given to Lloyd George's Campaign

Special Star Cable from Our Own Correspondent. Copyright.

THE MONTREAL STAR OFFICE, 20 Cockspur street, London, Sept 1.—Twenty - Thousand Englishmen mostly of the working class, and their wives, electors of Widnes, Lancashire, are doing far more than decide whether the Australian ex-Minister Fisher or the English Labor ex-Minister Henderson shall represent them in Parliament. With a political strategist like Lloyd George as Prime Minister, the result of this by-election may have a far-reaching effect on British policy.

If Henderson, who will poll the united Labor Liberal vote, manages to wipe out the coalition Unionist majority of 3,600 at the last December election, or even if the majority is largely reduced, a great push can be given to Lloyd George's new economy campaign, and also to his earnest desire to strengthen the Labor side of the coalition government. There are now four Labor ministers, namely, Barnes, Roberts, Wardle, and Parker; but none of them has the status of a Labor parliamentarian outside of the ministry like Clynes, Brace and Thomas, with, of course, Henderson, if he is now elected.

USEFUL IN MINISTRY.

Lloyd George would rejoice if he could get these four Labor privy councillors to join the Ministry, but that is only possible if the national labor conference reverses its decision of last November, declaring that no member a Labor man should become a minister except in a labor government.

Three months ago many shrewd observers, even Unionists and Liberals, were prepared to see a Labor Ministry in power next year, but Labor extremists and syndicalists like Bob Smillie, Bob Williams and Hodges have so far frightened the general public and the great mass of the moderate labor, that a Labor Ministry under their possible domination seems a far more remote possibility. But Clynes, Henderson and their colleagues cannot be expected a share this view. They will probably turn down any further Lloyd George approaches whereupon Lloyd George may be expected to try another tack. He may seek Labor co-operation in speeding up production, without which position British industrialism is very grave. He may be prepared to go a long way to buy this co-operation. He cannot pay the price of immediate nationalization of railways, coal mines and other essential services because that would mean a break up of coalition, but he could make tempting proposals for a closer partnership between employers and employed, securing for Labor a maintenance of present high wages, also a 44 hour week and an effective though restricted share for Labor in industrial control.

MUST GET TOGETHER

Labor leaders themselves speak of their realization that capital and Labor must stand together and keep together if they are to maintain the present high standard of living. The Associated Society of Engineers and Allied Trades advocates piecework on the time wage system payment instead of the premium system now so cherished by the trade unions of a daily wage with a bonus for overtime.

Another significant fact is that after consultation between employers and employed in shipbuilding and engineering trades on the Labor proposal of immediate reduction of 44 hours a week has now been accepted, ending a joint board's consideration of the effects, especially in view of American and Scandinavian competition. The truth would seem to be that English common sense is slowly asserting itself. England sees it cannot waste less produce more and so will ultimately emerge triumphantly from the present state of anarchy.

At the cadets' rifle meet at Pointe Aux Trembles, at which all school cadets of the province were represented, the Academie Desrosiers' team, Ville St. Pierre, carried off the prize in both deliberate and rapid shooting, thus winning the trophy, a picture entitled "Saving the Guns." The three first teams were: Academie Desrosiers, Church Lads' Brigade, and the Highland Cadets.

MUST KEEP SPIRIT SAYS HINDENBURG

"Must Become What We Once Were—Enemies Are Pariahs"

By Associated Press.

HANOVER, Sept. 1.—Addressing a delegation of students here on the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the battle of Tannenburg, Field-Marshal von Hindenburg said:

"If, five years ago, I was permitted to win a brilliant victory, it was due to the dispensation of Providence and the spirit of the troops assigned to me. We must hold on to this spirit in the sad days which are now overcoming us, we must not lose courage because the pariahs of society are our enemies.

"We must again become that which we once were, when in Versailles the new German Empire was proclaimed, I being among those permitted to join in the first three cheers for the Emperor. The spirit of those days must not be lost to us in these days of laxity and falseness."

ODD ITEMS

ANCESTOR SONGS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—"If the evil birds that lay "explosive eggs" don't stop flying over Santa Domingo and Haiti, the graves in every cemetery of both countries will be absolutely barren of the bones of ancestors.

Ancestor broth is about the only thing that will protect the natives from the harm of the evil birds. As for the Haitian and Dominican bandits, however, nothing will protect them, for the evil birds lay eggs with such rapidity that outlaw bands are greatly reduced as a consequence.

All of which is contained in an official report to marine corps headquarters received here yesterday from Capt. Walter E. McCaughtry, aviation force, Santa Domingo. McCaughtry is in command of six airplanes whose pilots have already demonstrated their ability to pursue bandits.

CHEAP DRESS; CHEAP HUSBAND.

GREENVILLE, O., Sept. 1. — A year ago, more or less, Gladys Lanish sued Namen Lanish for a divorce. "He's a bad, bad man," she charged. The court ruled that she failed sufficiently to blacken his character by naming any other woman. Later, she tried it again. The second time, she said Namen abused her. "When, where, how?" asked the court, and Gladys' attorney couldn't prove enough abuse. Recently, she sought another lawyer, to whom she told her troubles. "Does he support you?" asked the barrister. "He bought me a $1.98 dress and cheap, rubber soled shoes," she said. "How long married?" "A year," she explained. "Sufficient," said the lawyer. "What!" she cried. Sufficient for divorce, the judge ruled yesterday, when it was sworn to before him. "Why didn't I think of that before," said Gladys.

MEANWHILE—THE PATIENT.

GREAT YARMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 1.—Summoned to attend a patient late at night, a municipal doctor consulted a plan of his district, and found he lived half in and half out of the area. The patient's bed was exactly 27 feet from the borough boundary, and the doctor refused treatment. He was upheld in the courts here yesterday.

ELIZABETH'S GIFT TO DRAKE BRINGS $19,000

The beautiful silver gilt cup and cover, originally belonging to Sir Francis Drake, the victor of the Armada, said to have been given to him by Queen Elizabeth, and which has lain for many years bricked up in a cellar in an old house in Cornwall, was sold at auction the other day for $19,000, according to the Edinburgh Scotsman.

The cup, which is 20¾ inches high and which weighs about 24½ pounds, is in the form of a terrestrial globe, delicately engraved with a map of the world as known in the Sixteenth Century. On the British Isles are the names "Ireant," "Scotia," "Anglia." The names is gilt, and on the silver seas sailing ships, dolphins and whales are engraved. The cover of the cup is surmounted by a vase chased with cherubs, grotesque masks and fruits, forming a pedestal for an armillary sphere. The stem is finely chased with marine deities and supported on a circular base.

THE SOCIAL WORLD

Cutushman-Prentice

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Prentice, Niagara, Ont., formerly of Sherbrooke, Que., was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday last, when their only daughter, Pearl Elizabeth, was married to Mr. Roy Cushman, of Niagara Falls, N.Y. The ceremony was performed by Captain, the Rev. John Coburn, of Milforth, Ont., chaplain of the 176th Battalion, and the bride and groom stood under an arch of ferns, sweet peas and palms. Miss Grace Hodgkins played the wedding marches. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dainty gown of white Georgette and silk, with tulle veil arranged in Juliet cap fashion with sprays of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses. Miss Laura Cushman, of St Catharines, Ont., sister of the groom was the bridesmaid and was wearing a frock of pink voile and carried La France roses. Mr. Franklin Prentice, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride's mother, Mrs. Prentice, was gowned in black silk and lace with a corsage bouquet of deep red roses. A reception followed the ceremony, later Mr. Cushman and his bride left on their honeymoon.

Finnigan-McGee

At Ayer's Cliff, Que., the marriage took place recently, of Mrs. Margaret McGee to Mr. Harry Finnigan, both of Sherbrooke, Que. The Rev. J. Woodside, of Toronto, Ont., performed the ceremony.

Approaching Marriages.

A military wedding is taking place at half-past three o'clock this afternoon in Christ Church Cathedral, when Miss Aimee Katherine Stanger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Stanger, 20 Bayle street, will be married to Lieut.-Col. W. G. Turner, M.C., son of the late Richard Turner and of Mrs. Turner, of Quebec. The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Agnes Stanger, as maid of honor, and two little flower girls the Misses Mary Turpin, cousin of the bride and Helen Meredith, of Quebec. Major W. B. Howell will be the best man and the ushers will be Mr. Geoffrey Turpin and Mr. Eric Wainwright.

The marriage is taking place on September 3, in St. Louis de France Church, of Miss Aline Theoret, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Theoret of St. Denis street, to Mr Sylvio Martin, assistant manager of the Montreal City and District Savings Bank, St. Lawrence Street Branch. The Rev. Archbishop J. A. Belanger officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will then leave for Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Scanlan announce the marriage of their son, Edward Michael to Miss Laurine Redond, youngest daughter of Mr. M. Redmond, Rochester, N.Y. The wedding is arranged to take place in the Sacred Heart Chapel, Rochester, N.Y., on Sept. 3.

The marriage of Miss Hazel E. Adams second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Adams, 2345a St Urbain street to Mr. Stuart Morley, of Glace Bay, N.S., has been arranged to take place on Tuesday September 9th at three o'clock in the First Baptist Church, Sherbrooke street.

Engagements Announced.

The engagement is announced in England, of the Rev. Jas. Ferguson Colquhoun, M.C., Deputy Assistant Chaplain-General, IXth Corps, British Army of the Rhine, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Colquhoun, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia, and Frances Gladys Ryland, second daughter of the late Sir Thomas Chavasse and Lady Chavasse, The Lindhurst Hill, Barnt Green, Worcestershire.

Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Southam announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Dorothy Jean, to Mr Eric L. Harvie, of Calgary, son of Mrs. Wm. Harvie, of Barrie, Ont. The marriage will take place on September 29th.

Mr. and Mrs. William McNally announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ellen (May) to Mr James J. Burns, only son of Mr and Mrs. John Bruns. The marriage to take place early in September.

Social and Personal.

Lieut. General Sir Richard Turner, V.C., and Lady Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Turner, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Turner all of Quebec, will be out of town guests at the Turner-Stanger wedding today.

Mrs. H. Fortier motored to Sherbrooke one day last week, accompanied by her sisters, the Misses Averan of New York, and her son, Mr. R. Fortier, and spent a day or two visiting friends in the city.

Miss Florence Ritcliffe of Westmount, who has just returned from a visit to the Pacific Coast spent some time in Victoria, B.C., as the guest of Mrs. Walter E. Boucher, wife of Montreal West.

Mrs. Bernard Coghlin, 810 Sherbrooke street west, and her daughters, returned on Friday last from Little Metis Beach, where they spent the summer at their cottage.

RECORDS BROKEN AT TORONTO FAIR

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—All records for the first week of the Canadian National Exhibition have been broken this year, the total attendance having been 602,000 people. The exhibition officials confidently expect that the 1,250,000 aimed at will be obtained if the weather this week is at all favorable.

In the only year in which the million mark has been reached, 1913, the biggest attendance on any day was 112,000, whereas this number has been exceeded twice already this year, Wednesday and Saturday.

EXAMINED RIFLE, SHOT STEPSISTER

Young Woman Died in the Royal Victoria Hospital Last Night

SOLDIER HELD

Cartridge in Gun Jammed and Caused Weapon to Go Off

While examining a rifle which he was offered for sale, Thomas Swaites, aaged 21, a returned soldier, accidentally shot his step-sister, Dorothy Clark, aged 17, through the head, as she was passing through the room at 134 Springland Avenue, Ville Emard. The accident happened yesterday afternoon and she died last night at the Royal Victoria Hospital, never having regained consciousness.

Swaites, according to the information obtained by detectives who were and was looking over the rifle which sent to investigate, was in his home belonged to a lad named William Field, of 149 Woodlands Avenue. He was in a corner of the room and had just slipped a cartridge into the breach. There seemed to be a jam, and as he was pressing on the bolt the weapon went off. As the report went off his step-sister fell to the floor, bleeding profusely from the head.

Swaites rushed to the girl's side and tried to stop the rush of blood by bandages; medical help was sent for and she was sent to the hospital where an operation took place at once, but to no avail. She died at 8.30 o'clock last night.

The hospital authorities notified the coroner and the detective department of the affair, and Detectives Walsh and Savard were sent to investigate. They reported that Swaites had attempted to get in touch with the police, but that he had been unable to communicate with them. He was taken to police headquarters, anad is being held as a witness pending the coroner's inquiry this morning. Should the coroner decide for a jury inquest, the case will be postponed until next Thursday.

Both Swaites and his stepsister were cigarmakers by trade.

COLORED MAN IS HELD FOR MURDER

Alleged to Have Stabbed and Killed Bedmate

Stabbed through the heart, Alfred Pope, aged 24, a colored railroad porter, of 243 St. Antoine street, lies at the morgue, while Michael Murray, aged 33, also a colored porter, and of the same address, is at detective headquarters charged with murder.

At four o'clock this morning Pope staggered into the room of his landlady, Ida Paris, with blood pouring from his chest. The police were called and Murray was taken in charge by Detectives Walsh and Savard, to whom he admitted knifing Pope, with whom he slept. Charles Smith and Hamel Pall, roomers at the house, which is known as the Porters Club, were taken to headquarters as witnesses.

HUMAN ELEMENT IN LABOR PROBLEM

Dr. Symonds Says Conditions as Important as Wages

The present labor situation is one of human relations, not of wages, said Dr. Symonds yesterday in his Labor Day sermon at Christ Church Cathedral. In considering the labor question, the three elements which must be noted are those of wages, whether the employe should have a voice and share in the management, and the actual conditions of labor itself.

While it is not the duty of the church to lay down and definite rules, it seemed to the preacher to be the duty of those who professed to apply Christianity to modern needs to attempt to solve these difficulties as far as possible in the light of the general principle of human relationship laid down by our Lord.

The old wages system he thinks, had a tendency to divide men and created no sort of bond between them. This should be changed so that the relationship would become one of a community of interest. Dr. Symonds was convinced that a share in the management for the employes would result in greater benefits for all concerned but he felt that one in the pulpit was scarcely in the position to say so.

As to the general conditions of labor, enough has been said in the past to show that they had been shockingly bad. It seemed to him that every worker should have sufficient time and opportunity to cultivate the moral and intellectual side of his nature. It is the business of Christianity and society in general to see that the conditions of the workers' life were improved.

STOPPED FLEEING PRISONER BY GUN

A bold attempt on the part of Michael Santocapito, an Italian, to escape the arms of the law, in the person of Detective Nassa, came very near to having unpleasant consequences on Saturday when the detective was obliged to draw his revolver and fire on the fleeing man. Santocapito had been re arrested by Detective Nassa on a bench warrant charging him with bigamy. When served with the warrant on Saturday he asked that he might go inside his house to get his hat and coat. Once inside he brushed past his captor and escaped through a rear door. A bullet from the detective's weapon grazed the man's thigh however and he surrendered.

THE PRINCE OF WALES LAYING THE CORNER-STONE OF THE NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS

But this was in 1860, and the Prince was later King Edward VII. and the parliament buildings then begun were destroyed by fire in 1916. They are now almost rebuilt and the corner-stone laid by the present Prince today is that of the new tower which will be the central feature of the reconstructed buildings. RECORD HOLIDAY CROWDS LEFT CITY

Long Week-End Was Fully Taken Advantage of

Labor Day is Montreal's last summer holiday for the year. Soon after this the leaves commence to fall and it gradually becomes too cold in the country to attract the mass of week-end pleasure seekers from the city. This fact, combined with the proclamation of Tuesday as a civic holiday for the visit of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, drew thousands of Montrealers out to the rivers and lakes for the long week-end; so many indeed left town on Saturday that it would at first appear that comparatively few would be left to welcome the Prince on his arrival but the fact that large numbers of people are returning tonight for this especial purpose is eloquent testimony of His Royal Highness personal popularity.

AT THE TERMINALS.

From 11 o'clock on until late in the afternoon on Saturday thousands streamed into the railway terminals, besieging ticket offices and filling train platforms and waiting rooms. At Place Viger and Bonaventure the crowds were at their thickest. At the former depot between 1 and 2 o'clock it was literally impossible to turn without bumping into someone but everybody appeared to be too absorbed in train-catching to mind being bumped, while Bonaventure seemed most to represent a Futurist impression of babes and grips with the babes well to the foreground. A sombre touch was added to the scene by the appearance of a number of crippled lads in khaki mingling with the throng who were returning to their homes for the week-end from the hospital at Ste. Anne de Bellevue but they appeared quite as lighthearted as the other holiday makers. Possibly a week-end devoid of any form of discipline was as welcome to them as a trip to the country to a tired city worker.

TRAIN AND BOAT ARRANGEMENTS.

In order to cope with the extra traffic special arrangements were made by all the railroad companies. The C.N.R. put on extra trains between Montreal and Rawdon and Huberdeau and Montfort Junction, the Grand Trunk arranged for increased accommodation for La Prairie and Huntingdon districts while the C.P.R. despatched trains for points as far distant as Toronto and Ottawa in two sections. In addition to this, the regular trains all carried a limit of extra coaches.

Two of the most popular trips by water proved to be those conducted by the Canada Steamship Lines to Quebec and Thousand Islands respectively. In addition to the picturesque trip passengers were enabled to pay a visit to the ships of H.R.H. The Prince of Wales convoy which are now stationed there. In addition to these two trips, many people took the train to Cornwall in order to return by boat, shooting the Rapids.

UNCERTAINTY AS TO TUESDAY

In the minds of many of the workers of the city, the only drawback to the anticipation of a very pleasant week end was the uncertainty prevalent as to the celebration of Tuesday as a holiday. Although it has been proclaimed a civic holiday by the mayor and is being observed as such by the majority of the large city houses, it is nevertheless conceivable that for business reasons certain offices and stores must remain open, but what is not conceivable is that a decision one way or the other, could not have been arrived at by Friday night at the latest and the employees notified. Many employees did not know until the last minute on Saturday whether or not they were to return to work on Tuesday morning and consequently were unable to arrange accordingly.

OFFICIAL PROGRAMME OF PRINCE'S MONTREAL VISIT

Arrangements for the reception of the Prince of Wales in Montreal have been made, and the exact route which His Royal Highness will follow is given below.

The only guests allowed to go up the mountain in automobiles will be the Prince and the officers of his suite; all others must drive up in carriages drawn by horses.

The following table shows the exact hour at which the Prince will be at the different points during the procession tomorrow:

THE MOUNTAIN LUNCHEON

At one o'clock the luncheon on the mountain will be served. The table will be in the form of a large anchor and a hundred guests, civil and military, are invited.

Mayor Martin will propose the toast to the King, which the Hon. Charles Marcil, city commissioner, will second. The Prince of Wales will then reply, and this will be the end of the function inasmuch as speech-making is concerned.

Dress will be plain business suits.

After the luncheon His Royal Highness will drive at once to the Windsor Station where he will leave at 2.30 for Ottawa. There will be no military guard at the station, but the police will furnish an escort.

SOCIALISTS NOT NAMING CANDIDATE

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—A candidate for President will not be named at the National Socialist convention which opened yesterday. Resolutions to the effect were adopted after Louis Engday of Chicago, had proposed Eugene V. Debs, now serving a prison sentence for violation of the Espionage Law, for the nomination.

Seymour Steadman, temporary chairman declared that the nomination would injure Debs' chances for a pardon.

Ejection of John Reed, unrecognized Bolshevik ambassador to the United States, and 83 other members of the left wing of the party by members of the police anarchist squad on guard duty at the convention enlivened the credentials fight in the morning.

FIRE DAMAGED SILK FACTORY

Damage broadly estimated at $50,000 was done by fire, thought to have been of spontaneous origin, which early yesterday morning gutted the central portion of the Belding Paul Corticelli Limited, silk factory, at St. John, Que. The last is partly covered by insurance. The night watchman of the building, Severe Goyette, 45 years of age, was trapped in the burning building, and only by good fortune escaped with his life. He was badly burned about the arms and face.

The fire was discovered shortly after midnight on Sunday morning by a man who was passing along Richelieu street, the main business street of St. Johns. The flame, had already gained considerable headway in the building, and it was over two hours before St. Johns brigade, under Chief Joseph Turgeon, had the outbreak under partial, under control.

The entire central portion of the building was destroyed from cellar to roof, and a large amount of stock was destroyed. It is certainly doubtful if the building burned has been estimated by officials of the company as being in the neighborhood of $50,000.

BROSEN'S COMET REPORTED AGAIN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 1.—The probability that Brorsen's comet, discovered in 1849 has come into the range of observation three years before it ws again due has developed with the observations of the first of two comets reported from South Hero, Vermont, by the Rev. Joel H. Metcalf. The Harvard College Observatory today announced that Prof. Jeffers and Miss Heger, California astronomers, had reported through the Students' Observatory at Berkeley, computages which indicated that the first Metcalf comet was identical with that discovered by Brorsen. If this is correct, Professor S. I. Bailey, acting director of the Harvard Observatory, said today, it will give Brorsen's discovery a place with Halley's comet, as the only comets known to have made a return visit. Brorsen's comet, he said, had been expected to be again visible in 1922. Its orbit may have been miscalculated when its period was given as 75 years, or it may have been deflected by uneven attractions of the sun, he thought.

Preliminary observations indicate that the probable time of perihelion passage of the Brorsen-Metcalf comet will be October 16, when it will be nearest the sun. Observations of the comet have been reported by astronomers from many parts of the world.

BELGIAN COLLIERIES MAKING PROGRESS

By Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 1.—The total Belgian output of coal during July amounted to very nearly 87 per cent. of the average monthly production during 1913. In the Mons and central districts the coal output in July reached practically the pre-war output. In the Charleroi the output amounted to 85 percent. and in the Liege district 77 per cent.

BOTHA FUNERAL MOST IMPOSING

All Pretoria Gathered to Honor Africa's Dead Statesman

By Associated Press.

PRETORIA, Sept. 1.—The funeral of General Louis Botha, Premier of South Africa, was held on Saturday and was the occasion for an extraordinary display of affection and respect. It recalled the obsequies of Paul Kruger, president of the Boer Republic, many years ago. There was an enormous influx of mourners from all parts of the country. The entire city of Pretoria was draped in black and purple and impressive scenes were enacted as the funeral cortege passed through the streets.

The State service for General Botha, which will be held in the Dutch Reformed church, was imposing. The body lay in state in the church on Friday and Saturday morning. During the funeral hours and during the passage of the funeral cortege through the streets of Pretoria on Saturday, all work was suspended.

NORTH DAKOTA INSTAL STATE BANK AT MILL

Non-Partisan League to Push Campaign Despite Split in Ranks

PACKING HOUSE ALSO

Plans Include State-Ownership of Various Industries

Special Public Ledger Correspondence by Carl W. Ackerman, to The Montreal Star. Copyright.

BISMARCK, N. D., Sept. 1.—The fight within the ranks of the Non-partisan League, of this State, is on. Led by three State officials an effort is being made to oust A. C. Townley from control of the organization. According to the insurgents, the farmers will bury the league movement ten feet underground at the next election. But that is far from being the opinion of the regulars, who, from Governor Frazier down, are not very much worried. They say the opposition within the league is limited to three men, and now that the officials have authority, under the new laws approved by the referendum election in June, North Dakota will forge ahead with its campaign to buy, build or establish a State bank, State grain elevators, State mills, State packing houses, etc.

Although I came here to report what the Nonpartisan League was doing to solve the problems of reconstruction in a farming State, I encountered, within thirty minutes after stepping from the train, the charges and counter-charges of the leaders in this domestic political quarrel. In the minds of some this fight overshadows everything else in the Nonpartisan League is attempting. But whatever their conditions may be, the fact remains that a State bank, with a capital of $2,000,000, is already opened and operating, the State has purchased a first flour mill and packing house, workmen's compensation bureau has been organized, a home building association is functioning, have started a building fund for citizens who wish to build homes or buy farms, and before long the State will control the elevators.

GOOD BEGINNING.

Despite the split in the Nonpartisan League, these facts stand out. Although what the league has been able to do is very limited, very small even for a State of the size of North Dakota, with its 700,000 or 800,000 inhabitants. The first mill, for instance, which was purchased by the State last week, is valued at $75,000 and has a capacity of only 300 barrels of flour per day. But the Nonpartisan League says that is only a beginning and that the start must be made on a small scale because the radical program of the organization is an experiment. So it is with everything else.

"To obtain a true perspective of the situation here it must be said that while the Non-partisan League has controlled the State offices and Legislature some two or three years, the league did not attempt to carry out its program of State ownership until the last session of the Legislature and the referendum election of last summer. The election was held in June and most of the new law did not go into effect until July 26, a month ago. At the election the Non-partisan League carried the State, although some of the opponents read in the election figures the beginning of the end of the nonpartisan movement. However those figures may be interpreted, the fact still remains that the people at election gave the State authority to go into business for the farmers, and the State is doing so.

"I saw Governor Frazier upon his return from the governors' conference at Salt Lake City. He came down to the Hotel McKenzie where he met most of the State leaders and where the talk was divided between the family quarrel and the new program of socializing mills, elevators and packing houses.

"Most of our laws just went into effect thirty days ago," he said. "We just started our bank. The terminal elevator and mill association has just been organized and opened the first State-owned mill in the country. The workmen's compensation bureau has just been organized to build up a fund of insurance for the protection of the workingmen. The home builders' association was but recently organized to start a savings fund for the people who want to build a home or buy a farm.

"This non-partisan movement," said the governor, "was started because there was too great a difference between the cost of necessities from the time they left the producers to the time they reached the consumer. Everything passed through too many middlemen. We believed that some system should be devised to eliminate the useless middlemen and to distribute food and other necessities in quicker and cheaper manner than under the present system. That is what we hope to work out by our program of state ownership of mills, elevators and packing houses and for buying and selling agencies."

"What about the split in the non-partisan organization," I asked.

INSURGENTS WEAK.

"The vote at the special election showed the insurgents carried very little weight," replied the farmer governor. "The farmers and workers of the state, both organized and unorganized, are solidly back of our program. The majority of our people will not be satisfied until the program is carried out. They want all of our measures tried and if they are not a success, the farmer, of course, will be the first to demand a new change. But to my mind there has got to be a fundamental change in general conditions in this country, and if this change does not come about in one way it will in another. I believe in North Dakota that the safest, progressive change by ballot is much better and safer than a change by any other means and that is what we are trying to bring about."

The insurgents, however, are not so confident about the state ownership program. Led by William Langer, ex-attorney general; Carl K. Kositzky, state auditor, and Tom Hall, secretary of state, they are leading a revolt against Townley and all of his workers. And they are, at least, making it uncomfortable for the league supporters. Kositzky is not only questioning but advertising every expenditure of the new bureaus and associations authorized at the referendum election. Kositzky says the State is bankrupt and adds that only $37,80 is left in the general fund of the State to meet all State expenses from now until the next taxes come in in December after the crop is sold.

He is holding up vouchers and making all kinds of embarrassing investigations. A few days ago he went to the workmen's compensation bureau to examine the books and was refused permission to see them. Yesterday he carried his case to the court, fortified with an opinion of the attorney general. He is holding up the expense accounts of the director general of the State bank, whose salary of $10,000 a year irritates some of the others who are getting less, and Kositzky is balking at authorizing the payment of the director's living expenses, which include, according to Kositzky, weekly items of $30 for automobile rides from the capital to the home of the director general several miles into the country.

NOT OUT TO DEFEAT LEAGUE.

The insurgents declare they are not out to defeat the purposes of the Non-partisan League but to check up on the expenditures of the Townley supporters who are in office. Kositzky wants to know what the workmen's compensation bureau is doing with the $300,000 fund which it has, but the bureau withholds its books. Kositzky declares the State will be short $1,000,000 by February 1, and every one is complaining about the new tax law, which values property at 100 per cent of its cost and taxes accordingly.

Thus the fight goes on with every prospect of continuing not only through the special session of the Legislature which will be held shortly, but until the election next year. The opponents of the Non-partisan League is losing its strength, both among farmers and workers, but the league leaders say that 100 per cent of the old members are paying their $16 for another year and that the membership is increasing from 15 to 20 per cent. Throughout the State the league leaders are buying and organizing newspapers. They control fifty-three newspapers already and they have just organized a bureau of immigration to advertise the State among farmers outside the four borders.

However this internal fight may terminate it is evident that North Dakota is beginning a very far-reaching experiment in state socialism, and the officials have until June of next year to make good.

Between this summer and next nothing can stop them. If they carry out their program with any success at all, or if they fail, it will not be known until the verdict at the next election which should be final.

COMMISSION OF ENTENTE BRINGS EASE TO SILESIA

Has Effect of Moderating German Oppression and Reassuring Poles

AWFUL CRUELTY

Men Terribly Beaten and Tortured by Their Conquerors

London Times-Public Ledger Cable to Montreal Star. Copyright.

SOSNOWICE, Upper Silesia, Sept. 1.—With the arrival of the Entente commission in Upper Silesia the most poignant act of the tragedy is closed. Its presence will have the effect of moderating the policy of hatred and oppression which the Germans have pursued towards the Poles hitherto and will calm the Poles themselves. This result might have been achieved by the same means two months ago.

The commission began its labors Thursday at Glejwitz, where it listened to statements of the German officials, officers, mine owners, foremen and workmen with regard to the causes and character of the strike and revolution. Polish representatives were conspicuously absent. This fact was commented upon by the British representative, Lieut.-Col. Tidbury, who is head of the commission. Friday and Saturday the commission pursued their investigation at various mining centres which have been in insurrection.

INVESTIGATION WANTED.

Whatever the aims and functions of the commission may be, it can be foreseen they will be compelled to conduct some such investigation into the German methods before and after the strike as was pleaded for in the joint report drawn up by myself and Cameron McKenzie. The convictions expressed in that report have not been modified one particle by further inquiry. Since writing it I have listened first hand to the evidence of more than fifty witnesses of murder and brutal maltreatment committed by the Germans. Most of this evidence was of persons who had taken refuge in Poland. On Friday, in company with my colleague of the Morning Post, I crossed the German frontier with the object of confirming some half dozen of the worst cases on the spot. Out of eight cases thus investigated only one remained unproved, that of a man who was supposed to have had his throat blown out by a hand grenade. In this case the man in question, so far as I could discover, still is living.

Emilie Kott, of Lepina, stated that she saw on August 19, a man named Albert Siska, of the same place, arrested by soldiers because he was supposed to have fired on the Germans. She testified to this man's innocence. Siska's wrists were bound to the stirrups of two mounted soldiers. He was then dragged between their horses at a gallop about one kilometer. The witness did not know, first hand, what happened to him subsequently, but afterwards she saw his body at a mortuary at Pirsnlyi. The arms were dragged out of their sockets and the legs were broken and covered with blood. The body had five bullet wounds.

STORY CONFIRMED.

This morning I drove to the small mining town of Lepine and asked the first group of men I saw in the street if they knew a man called Siska. "You mean the man who was murdered by the Grouaschutt?" they said. In a few minutes a crowd of a hundred persons had gathered around and from a dozen different mouths I had confirmed the story. John Mockor in particular said he was attending the hospital where Siska was brought. Mockor stated that as they approached Piralki the riders of the two horses spurred their mounts apart in order to draw Siskas arms out of their sockets. One stirrup leather, however, broke, and another soldier ran after Siska and struck him on the head with a rifle butt. Mockor added the detail that Siska was an old man.

I then proceeded to the village of Rudo where according to the first hand evidence of Marie Wehrwool, on August 21, Vincenz Janas, a Polish school teacher, was visited at his house by soldiers. According to Marie Wehrwool's story he was beaten with rifle butts while in bed, then driven downstairs and told, "run, Polish swine." As he ran he was shot in the back. He fell down, but was dragged up and was told to run again. This time he took refuge in the house of Pintaro Schwartz. There the soldiers found him and dragged him downstairs by the feet and behind the house. There they beat him with rifle butts, smashing an eye out, then shot him, and after he was dead kicked his body. At Rudo this story was confirmed by several persons, and I was taken to see Janas' body, which was still lying in a mortuary. The body was mutilated in a most terrible manner, the left eye beaten out, the nose smashed flat, and the arms and body showing great masses of black bruises. Part of the right ear was torn off and the body showed at least three wounds of bullets or bayonets. My informants all agreed that the victim was an innocent man whose only fault in the eyes of the soldiers was that he was a Pole.

BOY WAS SHOT.

I then went to Hohenlinde, near Beuthen, to investigate the case of a boy named Richard Podara, who, according to the first hand testimony of Franz Golick, was shot and wounded by soldiers August 18, as he was going home. Podara dropped and lay in a heap, but was immediately fired at. Other persons, attempting to help, were also fired at. Podara subsequently died in a hospital. At Hohenlinde I visited the Podara house and found his brother. He showed me where his brother had been hit while climbing a fence.

Other witnesses gave evidence that the fire of the soldiers prevented anybody assisting him for an hour. At the same time corroborative evidence was given me by several persons of the shooting of two men, Richard Polka and Fritz Hasler, both of Hohenlinde. I already had heard of the cases from an eye witness, Silvester Woll. Both men were on the Beuthen road August 18. Soldiers suddenly shouted "street clear" but before they shouted they started firing machine guns. Both men were killed in this way.

I had heard of the execution without trial of a fifteen year old boy at Tichau. I went to Tichau and visited the parish priest Kapitza, who was supposed to have confessed the boy before his execution. Kapitza stated that about 6 o'clock on the evening of the 19th, half a dozen soldiers came and asked him to say a few words to the boy, Karl Kiska, of Emmanuelsagen, who was about to be shot. The soldiers said that Kiska had been present at the mutilation of the body of a German under-officer who had been killed fighting near Emmanuelsagen, whose nose and ears the Poles had cut off. Kapitza said that when he heard the boy's confession and administered the last sacrament he was shivering violently and hardly knew what he was doing. His neck was bleeding from a wound where he had been struck. Kapitza was not sure whether he was fifteen or sixteen.

This case more perhaps than any other I have heard during the last few days bears the stamp of Belgium. I commend these cases to the attention of the commission.

Herr Williger appears to have impressed himself on the representatives of the Entente as an exceedingly well-informed, intelligent and affable gentleman. I have no doubt he is so, but he happens to be chief of the anti-Polish plebiscite propaganda in Upper Silesia and is moving heaven and earth to prevent that country from being lost to Germany. I was much struck by the fact that Williger's garage was found by far the most convenient place by several members of the Entente commission to house their automobiles. This fact is interesting in view of the circular addressed the middle of last July by Regierungs Praisident Bitte, the German official governing the district of Oppoln, to all subordinate officials. This circular drew attention to the likelihood of the occupation of Upper Silesia by the Entente troops and instructed the recipients to take steps to see that the troops, particularly officers, were billeted as comfortably as possible in order that the Entente's opinion might be favorably influenced towards Germany.

One cannot deny the German talent for organization. The mining district of Dabrowa is all in favor of Germany. Nor can one find fault with the Allied officers for accepting the hospitality so politely offered them by the Germans, but such circumstances as these should not be allowed to load the dice in favor of Germany as they certainly appear to be doing.

WHERE THE FIGHTING RAGES IN RUSSIA

Admiral Koltchak after his forced retirement beyond Perm, has shortened his line and has taken up a strong position from where is is hoped he will soon be able to strike back. Meanwhile General Denekine is following success with success in South Russia. On the Volga he is pushing forward hard between Tzaritzin and Saratoff and following the fate of Kamischin, he is continuing to drive back the Reds. On his left wing he has met with even greater success and is reported on the outskirts of Kiev.

LONDON RECEIVES PEACE STAMPS

Japan, Switzerland and Portugal Present Postal Emblems

Public Ledger Correspondence to Montreal Star. (Copyright.)

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The first of what promises to be a vast array of special postage stamps commemorative of the world's peace have arrived from Switzerland and Japan respectively. Their allegorical designs are in striking contrast to the warlike stamps of the last five years. The Swiss ten-cent variety shows a symbolical figure of peace extending the olive branch over the world, and is the work of P. T. Robert, of St. Blaise.

Another of this series, portrays a dying gladiator seeing a vision of the peace he has helped to win. Two soldiers shaking hands on a battlefield form a subject of the third design of this series. The three stamps, of the values 7½c olive, 10c red and yellow, and 15c purple and yellow, are uniformly inscribed with the word "Helvetia" and the date "1919," and are surface printed in large oblong formation.

Japanese peace stamps received all bear a representation of a dove in different settings, designed by the eminent native artists Saburouski Okada and Somei Yuka. There are four values two for inland and two for foreign postage, viz., 1½ sen brown, 3 sen green, 4 sen carmine, and 10 sen blue.

The miniature republic of San Marino is among the latest to arrange for the issue of commemorative peace stamps while Portugal has also put in hand the preparation of a series of five stamps of distinctive design to mark the conclusion of the war.

PUTS NEW CURB ON DANGEROUS RADICALS

ALBANY, Sept. 1.—Added protection against the bomb thrower and carrier of concealed weapons is expected to result from the amendment to the penal law which became effective today.

The provisions of the new law are very strict. No boy under 16 is allowed to carry a slung shot, while a person who carries or possesses an explosive substance with intent to use it against the person or property of another is guilty of a felony.

Under the new statute, aliens are not to be given permits to carry concealed weapons. The new law defines a weapon that can be concealed as a blackjack, billy, club, sandbag, metal knuckles, bludgeon, dagger, dirk, dangerous knife, razor, stiletto, pistol or firearm of such size that it can be concealed about the person.

SEPTEMBER IS CANADA'S MONTH OF BRILLIANT PLUMAGE

To many the waterways of Canada are as yet entirely unknown—others know these lakes and rivers only through summer travel. In either case you should see them all in their September Glory. In another week the lower St. Lawrence and the Saguenay will be a riot of autumnal colors. A boat trip then will bring before you the picturesque shore-line of Quebec, river scenery at a time when the glorious greens of wooded banks are beginning to show touches of golden brown with here and there patches of crimson, where the sun has touched and ripened the leaves. With this panorama of autumn verdure unfolding before you, drink deep of the breeze that sweeps from the north, picking up on its way the tang of pine laden atmosphere that contains enough of health and vigor to last you through the winter months to come. If you are a real Septemberite, you'll stay late on deck to witness the most gorgeous and inspiring of all Nature's handiwork—The Northern Lights.

It is in September that these mysterious flashes of brilliance are at their best. Above the deep canyon through which flows the river Saguenay, each night the sky is ablaze with its glory and the eye lifts from wooded banks that tower 1800 feet above the ship to the sky above—where grander even than the day time scenery, flash their shimmering rays of light that make September Nights in Canada so wondrously beautiful.

The Steamer "Syracuse" leaves for its last two cruises on Wed., Sept. 3rd, and Sept. 10th, for a week's cruise through this scenic wonderland. For those who have been unable to get away this summer—no better trip could be provided. Full particulars from Canada Steamship Lines, 9 Victoria Square.

CONCESSIONS BY PRES. CARRANZA

Amends Reclamation Law —Damages by Rebels Are Mentioned

By Associatd Press.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1.—Important concessions are made by President Carranza in issuing a decree amending the reclamation law. Briefly, they are as follows:

Claims for damages may be presented not only for losses during the two recent revolutions ending with the installation of the present Government, May 1, 1917, but for those sustained since then in various regions where revolts are still smouldering.

Damages by rebels or outlaws to person or property subject to reclamation, when such damage is found to be the result of negligence on the part of constituted authority.

INDEMNIFICATION.

A commission on indemnification will admit any means of proofs "humanly reasonable." The claim commission can consider all cases, but the President has the right to arrange conventions with any foreign power for a mixed commission to handle claims of citizens of that power. Claims of railroad companies and other public utilities taken over by the Government be arranged either by the federal claims commission or by agreement between the companies and the Secretary of the Treasury. The claims resulting from death or injury will be paid immediately upon approval by the President.

The federal claims commission will cease receiving claims any time when at the end of three months no claim has been presented, being dissolved when it finishes consideration of cases already filed. Claims not acted upon may be presented to the Treasury Department if the claimant choose the administrative instead of the diplomatic method. The most important amendment, it is considered, is that relative to the President's power to arrange conventions for mixed commissions with foreign powers.

FRENCH HEROINE WAS SAVED BY CANADIANS

Was Tortured by Germans After Destroyed Wireless

Special to The Star by United Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—A story of hardships while held prisoner by the Germans was told by Miss Marie Louise Gombier, who arrived on the French liner La Lorraine, en route to Los Angeles, where, said, she is to become the adopted daughter of Mrs. L. Dowdy.

Going from a convent in the early part of the war to visit her parents in Ypres, she found upon her arrival there her home was in possession of German officers who had erected a wireless station in the house. She succeeded in destroying the wireless, was captured and, accused as a spy, was to have been shot.

Through the intervention of a German officer she was saved from death and placed in a cart with two wounded French soldier prisoners to be taken to a jail. She travelled in the cart from one crowded prison to another for five weeks, she said, until she was nearly dead from exhaustion.

During a drive by the 95th Canadian Regiment, she was rescued and became a nurse in a Canadian hospital and, upon verification of her story of destroying the German wireless plant, was given a Croix de Guerre, to which a palm was later added when she was wounded. She met Mrs. Dowdy while engaged in that work.

ENGINNER DIES IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

CLEVELAND, Sept. 1.—Two cars of an eastbound freight train buckled on an adjoining track to that on which the eastbound Twentieth Century Limited on the New York Central Railroad was running just east of Painesville, 26 miles east of this city at 9 o'clock last night. They landed directly in front of the oncoming passenger train. The locomotive of the Twentieth Century was derailed and its engineer killed. The passenger cars remained on the track and no passengers were injured.

June 21 is usually given as the longest day and December 21 as the shortest, but as a matter of fact there are several days of equal length between sunrise and sunset.

THREE MEALS DAY FOR $2.90 A WEEK

New York Jail Sets Low Food Record for Inmates

PRISONERS WELL FED

Miracle Accomplished by Aged Housekeeper and Assistant

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. — Snappy foods are barred, but it still doesn't seem possible that $2.90 will buy three square meals every day for a week in New York City. And yet that is the official report turned in to the city from the Ludlow street jail, where the Alimony club has its hangout, and where a few enemy aliens and political prisoners have been incarcerated.

As a matter of fact city officials have very little to do with this miracle, for a woman does the cooking. It is due to her that the price is kept down, according to Sheriff Knott.

That woman is Mrs. Rose Taylor, who, for thirty-one years, has presided over the kitchen back of the jail. Mrs. Taylor is 75 years old, but says she is just as spry and healthy as a youngster. Only her wrinkled and hardened hands give evidence that she has cooked, with the help of one assistant, three meals for an average of thirty prisoners a day, not to speak of the keepers and prison employees.

The Ludlow street jail kitchen is a big, bare room, with a stone floor. A coal stove sixty years old is at one end and a cupboard graces a side wall, and a long kitchen table occupies the centre. It is spotlessly clean, for Mrs. Taylor's life centres around that kitchen. She has neither family nor friends. Her home is in the prison.

If you ask Mrs. Taylor how on earth two hundred and ninety pennies can cover a grown man's three "squares" seven days in the week, she discreetly refers you to Warden Johnson and Sheriff Knott, who order the food and spend the money. Her part, she says, only consists of "managing to get along."

"It isn't hard to cook for a lot of people," she added, cutting the frankfurters (Monday is frankfurter day at the jail) "if you have plenty of stuff, and they're not stingy with me here. I don't have to scrimp. I wish I could have a gas stove, though."

"No, I haven't any modern conveniences around my kitchen. I have to make the coal stove every day and you certainly have to wash that stone floor to keep it clean, but I don't find the cooking or the cleaning hard, not a bit of it, though I'm seventy-five."

You notice Mrs. Taylor still hasn't explained about that $2.90 and she won't. This is how Sheriff Knott says it is done.

The daily morning menu consists of cereals, coffee, bread and butter. At night the inmates get tea, bread and butter and prunes or apple sauce. The noon meal is the big meal of the day, and it proceeds according to generally unvaried schedule:

Monday — Frankforts, sauerkraut and potatoes.

Tuesday — Hamburger steak, potatoes and beans.

Wednesday—Goulash with beans.

Thursday — Corned beef and beans.

Friday — Pea soup, fish, macaroni.

Saturday—Beef and mutton stew.

Sunday—Roast beef and potatoes.

And we have it on the authority of Warden Johnson that the portions are a lot bigger than those one gets in a restaurant.

Neither does the jail get its foodstuffs at low prices. The warden buys his provisions from stores in the neighborhood and pays for it the same price that every housewife on Ludlow street must pay.

PRINCE OF WALES TO TOUR AUSTRALIA.

Canadian Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Announcement from Melbourne that the Prince of Wales will tour the Commonwealth causes some surprise here. The message says the Prince will visit the Commonwealth at the conclusion of the Imperial Conference. This takes place next June, so it is probable that the visit of His Royal Highness will occur at the latter part of 1920.

DISTILLERS DON'T WANT SALOONS AGAIN

Say Whiskey Will Come Back, But Favor Disposal Through Stores

Special to The Star by United Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—Distillers are wondering what they are going to do with the huge stocks of liquor left on their hands when the nation went into its prohibition period.

They believe, according to O. H. Wathen, who is head of Kentucky's largest whiskey manufacturing plant, that whiskey will come back some of these days, but even they are firm against allowing it to come back in the old way.

"We don't want saloons," Wathen said to-day. "We would have liquor take its place as a commodity, to be disposed of at the grocery or the department store. We have no patience with the saloon. It got us into all our trouble. A man used to drop into a saloon, begin consuming whiskey, and walk out a staggering drunk. He went home and annoyed his wife, the neighbors saw him and pitied him. The drys pointed to him as a horrible example, and whiskey took all the blame. We believe whiskey can be handled right in this country, and we are going to make a fight to that end. Abolish the saloon and let the householder buy his whiskey and take it home. That's what we want to happen, and we want to do away with bad whiskey that made physical wrecks of people. Good whiskey won't hurt anyone unless he makes a pig of himself."

Wathen estimated that there is $77,000,000 in whiskey tied up in government warehouses. The government agents hold the key to this stock, not the distillers. A great deal of it represents the capital of distillers. They want a chance to get rid of it, and are hoping that Congress will in some way declare war prohibition at an end and give them a chance to sell off the accumulation.

"If Congress will allow us to start in September to get rid of our stocks," said Wathen, "we will come near disposing of it by the time the national prohibition law goes into effect. I think we are entitled to some consideration.

"We can't get insurance on stock unless policies had been issued before prohibition went into effect. Insurance companies fear destruction of the liquor by some fanatic, so we are facing more than merely a loss through confiscation. If a fire were to start in some of these plants it would wipe out the men who are holding the stocks."

Wathen said that when the Government banned the use of corn, barley and rye in the manufacture of whiskey, it was with the understanding that war-time prohibition would be lifted in time to allow the dealers to dispose of their stocks. This promise, he declared, has not been kept.

Asked if expert business was relieving the situation any, the distiller said the effect was hardly noticeable.

"They don't care for American whiskey in England, Ireland and Scotland," he said. "They prefer Irish and Scotch whiskeys. We are shipping some abroad but not a great deal and within a short time that avenue will be cut off. In France they prefer wines."

SAYS JAPS TO RUN SHANTUNG DOCKS

Japan's Investigator Makes Admissions Regarding Intentions

TSINGTAO ISSUE

Denies Report That Territory Will Be Internationalized

Special Cable by William R. Giles to The Montreal Star and Chicago News.

PEKIN, China, Aug. 23.—In an interview which I had to-day with Yoshisawa, Japan's Shantung investigator, he said that there was no truth in the report that Japan intended to internationalize Tsingtao, but that the Government was discussing the question. Baron Uchida's statement concerning internationalization, he said, was misinterpreted. He further said that the Japanese in Shantung were as strongly opposed to internationalization as were the Japanese at home.

He admitted that the Japanese intended to run the wharves and other public utilities, but when I pointed out that it would be impossible for any settlement in which foreigners have an interest to exist without revenue from these utilities, he said it was his opinion that Japan must set apart certain revenues to assist in their maintenance.

CHINESE BOYCOTT HARMFUL.

Mr. Yoshisawa admitted that the Chinese boycott was doing considerable damage to Japan's business interests, and that the students' movement was exerting the greatest influence. He admitted that a more generous policy must be adopted towards China, but said that a true adjustment of the Shantung question, with reference to the interests of foreigners and Chinese, was faced with a network of difficulties, while Japan's internal political views also had to be considered.

Yoshisawa is a sound and moderate official. I have known him for many years, and have always found him broad-minded, unmilitaristic and sympathetic towards China, believing that Japan's future interest rests solely upon the friendliest relations with China, and that industrial, instead of territorial, expansion should be Japan's motto. Baron Uchida's statement concerning internationalization was apparently given out to test foreign and Japanese opinion. Telegrams from Japan show that a storm of protest is raging against the plan, the militaristic party desiring to secure the whole of Shantung's mineral and industrial assets.

CHINA DUBIOUS OF JAPAN.

The advertised intention of the Japanese to restore Chinese sovereignty over Shantung is regarded here with some cynicism. It may be suitable for foreign propaganda, but students of far eastern politics know that China has never given up her sovereignty in the province. Germany leased the Shantung territory for a definite period, the stipulation being made that China still retained her sovereign rights there. Since the Japanese have occupied the district they have usurped the railway and mining rights, some of the latter never having been claimed even by the Germans. These, the Japanese intend apparently to hand back, thus making the world think that real concessions are being made.

FORESTERS DEAD . . . . HONORED IN SERVICE

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—At a large gathering of members of the Ancient Order of Foresters in Massey Hall last evening, tributes were paid to the hero dead of the order. A sermon was preached by Dr. S. D. Chown, general superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada, Sir William Hearst, Premier, presided. Sixteen thousand members of the Canadian Order of Foresters voluntarily joined the colors for service overseas.

WOMAN'S STORY OF DEALINGS WITH GEO. GASTON QUIEN

Bribed German Soldier for Conversation With Edith Cavell

PRISON FOR LIFE

Sentenced to be Shot But Saved by Spanish Minister

London Times-Public Ledger Cable to The Montreal Star. Copyright.

PARIS, Sept. 1—I had an opportunity yesterday during a break in the proceedings of the court-martial, by which Georges Gaston Quien, who is alleged to have betrayed Edith Cavell to the Germans, is being tried, of hearing from Madame Botard's own lips the connected story of the tragic events in which she played a part.

"In November, 1914," she said, "I with poor Baucq and the Abbe de Moor, was hard at work sending home first of all the English jockeys, and after that the British soldiers cut off at Mons. Many of them were wounder. The first lot numbered 47, and included men of the Connaught Rangers and the Coldstream Guards. In all we saved 800 British and 70 French.

"By March, 1915, things were getting too hot for Miss Cavell, who till then had been running her own organization. The Germans suspected her and searched her clinic. After that we worked one line to Brussels. All was going well, when, suddenly, we were pulled up sharp. We had sent Quien to Holland. In May, 1915, he was back again in Brussels. On July 29, eight days after that, we were all in prison."

I asked Madame Botard to narrate the parcel incident.

THE PARCEL INCIDENT.

"The papers in question," she replied, "were of utmost importance to me. They dealt with the war and the German Government, and also there were five hand maps made by Bacque of the Holland route. Now, I had a sure friend in Mme. Machiels, who is a Dutch subject, and keeps a big shop in Brussels. I long had been a customer. As I was expecting arrest at any moment, it was urgent that I should get these papers away to a place of safety, so I made up a packet and entrusted it to Quien. That was four days before our arrest on August 5. The Germans had been trying to get me two days before the actual arrest, but I kept away from home, and I was in the street when they captured me.

"Baucq was arrested two days after. He had been followed from Miss Cavell's house. That is how the Germans knew he was one of us. Miss Cavell was arrested the day before me, so that I was last. My 15-year-old boy was arrested because he had La Libre Belgique on his person. The Germans kept him in prison six months, and only let him go when he became seriously ill.

"As for myself, I was sentenced to be shot, but was saved by the Spanish minister, Marquis De Villalobor.

SENTENCE OF DEATH.

"Quien, by the way, had assured me that he could not deliver the parcel himself, but had given it to a little boy. I did not see him again, but when I was before the German judges there was one map on the table, and I am convinced that that map was one of the five.

"My sentence of death was changed to penal servitude for life. I was sent to Hagen in Silesia and remained there for three years and four months until the armistice.

"Mme. Thullies was arrested with Baucq, as she happened to be at his house when the Germans took him. I knew her well, because when she came to Brussels with parties of fugitives she slept in my house. Naturally, when the Germans asked me how did I know Mlle. Thullies, I did not give 'her or Miss Cavell away. I replied: 'Through a Catholic priest in Mons.' The last time I saw poor Edith Cavell was on Monday night at six o'clock, on October 2, in the prison in Brussels. We had each been placed in separate cells. I tipped a German soldier ten francs to allow me to say good-bie to her. At three o'clock that same afternoon we had all been sentenced. Edith Cavell gave me several commissions in Brussels. It was not till three years afterwards that I could fulfill them. Then she kissed me goodby and said 'I am glad to give my life rather than any of my soldiers should have fallen into the hands of the Germans.'

WONDERFULLY BRAVE.

"She was wonderfully brave, but a little nervous. We were only allowed two or three minutes together. The German soldier was trembling lest an officer should come along. The man had worked for years in Birmingham, and perhaps he pitied us."

With Madame Botard was Madame Machiels, to whom the parcel had been sent and who was also arrested. This arrest again is extremely significant, as showing that every one whose secret became known to Quieh appeared doomed.

Quien went afterwards to her and asked if she had received a parcel.

"Yes," she said. He replied, "You know that Miss Cavell and Baucq are arrested, and that they are looking for Mme. Botard." How did Quien know know this. The German judges told Mme. Machiels that 'a French officer has told us all about it. You've had your finger in this pie with Miss Cavell and Mme. Botard.'"

WOMEN TESTIFY.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Two women testified on Saturday in the trial of Georges Gaston Quien that he had betrayed them to the German authorities. One of them had been condemned to twelve years imprisonment. Quien presented himself to one of them as a French officer and to the other as a Belgian non-commissioned officer, and probably gained his information in that way.

Inspector Fronaille, of the Belgian Military Police, declared De Roode had no connection with the Cavell case, though he had given information against organizations similar to that formed by Miss Cavell.

M. D'Armon, Quien's counsel, demanded that the Belgian authorities be requested to give in fuliest detail the circumstances under which a Belgian named Louis Brill had shot DeRoode in Brussels in 1916 as the denouncer of Miss Cavell. This patriot, Brill, said D'Armon, had been basely condemned to death and executed by the Germans. There had been no investigation of these important facts and he asked that every effort be made to obtain them before the present case closed.

SOLDIER WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE SAYS GEN. CURRIE

Asks That Returned Men Be Given Every Help and Support

KILL SEDITION

Canada Should Adopt a Firmer Policy in This Regard

By Canadian Press.

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—Sir Arthur Currie was given a warm reception at the Canadian National Exhibition on Saturday afternoon, when he addressed an open air gathering that numbered many thousand admirers.

Gen. Mewburn, Minister of Militia, said: "Under Sir Arthur's control, with his energy, his great ability, the future organization of the military forces of Canada shall fail, I am sure, after the great success he has displayed overseas, he will be a great asset to Canada in the trying times of peace."

Gen. Currie expressed delight at the warmth of the greeting he had received and said: "It has given me the greatest pleasure to come back to see many old comrades of the field. I want every one of them to feel that in me they have a personal friend. I want to salute every badge the returned soldiers wear. It is a worthy badge, and I want every one of you to feel like saluting it, because the men who wear it are the men who exposed their bodies on the battlefields of Europe as a living bulwark against the enemy that they sought.

WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE.

The returned soldier is worthy of every confidence. He is a man you can trust. In the greatest test to which men have ever been subjected, he made good, and as long as he is treated right and fairly he will never let you or his country down. I appeal to every man here, to every employer, to everyone who is in any way able to assist in every possible way in getting these 300,000 400,000 or 500,000 men back in the national life of this country.

Feeling tribute was paid by Gen. Currie to "the 50,000 Canadians whose bodies lie buried in foreign soil.

At this juncture a returned soldier went forward to the platform and vigorously shook the Canadian commander's hands, amidst the applause of the crowd.

SUPPRESS SEDITION.

"Seditious talk should be rigidly suppressed in Canada," said Gen. Currie in giving an address at the midday luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition Directors. He pleaded for a firmer policy in this regard, and asserted that it was a false policy to "allow so much steam to escape lest the boiler should burst."

It was bound to have an evil effect, he said. The creators of unrest and the sedition mongers were seeking to get a hold on the soldiers, and it was up to Canada to see that the soldiers were fairly treated, happily housed and producing. That it would kill unrest.

"You cannot allow sedition to be preached and not have results, and wherever these utterances occur, we ought to rap it on the head and not tolerate it for one moment.

"Those pernicious influences, are going to get after the soldier, as the returned soldier is going to be one of the hopes of the country, and they must not be allowed for one moment."

The Originals' Club gave General Sir Arthur Currie, the honorary president of the club, a splendid reception at a banquet tendered to him at the Exhibition Saturday night. As Inspector-General of Canadian forces General Currie stated that Canada must have a good militia, one that could put troops in the field, should the necessity arise.

STRATHROY WELCOME.

STRATHROY, Ont., Sept. 1.—Strathroy residents turned out en-masse yesterday to welcome Gen. Sir Arthur Currie.

He arrived from Toronto shortly before noon, accompanied by Lady Currie. The Strathroy Band led an automobile parade from the station to the armories, where Mayor L. H. Dampier read an address of welcome. The address referred to Sir Arthur, and compared his work to that of Marlborough, Sir Philip Sydney and Wellington, all of whom won fame on the fields of Flanders.

Gen. Currie briefly expressed his great pleasure at being home. He said he would speak at greater length at some later date.

From the armories the parade led about two miles west of the town to the home of Gen. Currie's brother, Warden John Currie.

NEGROES PLANNING DEPARTMENT STORE

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—A co-operative department store organized, managed and for negroes was being planned here today.

A meeting is expected to provide funds for the enterprise. Stock amounting to $25,000 has been subscribed and the balance of $100,000 is expected to be raised tomorrow.

Dr. B. G. Shaw, pastor of the Metropolitan A.M.E. Zion Church and president of the Co-operative Association of Liberty, is founder of the idea. "We are going to separate ourselves," he said today. "I think it is well for us to build up a whole section commercially and otherwise."

TYPICAL GERMAN CHARGE.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—A despatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Mannheim asserts that Frenchmen, in the garb of civilians, promoted an insurrection at Ludwigshafen. They demanded entrance to the main postoffice at midnight for the purpose of telegraphing abroad news of the proclamation of a republic but were forced to retire. Later, equipped with arms and hand grenades, according to the despatch they renewed the attack. Shots were exchanged, in the course of which the chief postal official was killed and two others were seriously wounded.

SOCIALISTS IN PARIS DISAGREE

Invasion of Bolshevist Element Causes Split in Ranks

London Times-Public Ledger Cable to Montreal Star. Copyright.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The split in the Socialist party caused by the invasion of Bolshevist elements can hardly be concealed any longer, for two prominent members of the unified Socialist party have declared their intention to quit.

M. Erlich, who is a barrister in the Court of Appeals and was a member of the French Military Mission to Russia, has addressed a letter to the Secretary of his section of the unified Socialist party, whose candidate he was at the elections in 1919, in which he says:

"I cannot understand that the unified tarty, far from having the courage to repudiate and brand the excesses and crimes of Russian Bolshevism, should on the contrary, hold it up as an example to be admired by the French working classes. "For two years M. Erlich had intimate acquaintance with everything that happened in Russia. He attended Soviet meetings, heard Lenine and Trotzky deliver a great number of speeches and talked with numerous Bolshevist leaders. He speaks Russian fluently and this is his conclusion:

"What I know is that in the economic and social domains Bolshevism has ended in an immense catastrophe and general ruin. It is true the Russian bourgeoisie is ruined and with it the whole national industry has gone to pieces to the greater detriment of the Russian proletariat, but on the other hand, to the advantage of the greater part of German industry which is taking its place. Bolshevism has only been able to engender famine and want in Russia, which but yesterday fed a large part of Europe.

M. Neeteux, deputy for the Seine, takes a similar course. "Our dissentiments," he writes, "are so profound that I consider agreement impossible. I have always considered a Socialist party as a group of propelling action with a view to obtaining better organization of production by the complete utilization of all social values. Today this conception is condemned by the great majority of the party. The class struggle, which was intended to be only a means has become an end and is often replaced by a class hatred which makes it resemble rather plebeian jealousy than a social principle."

DEATH OF JOHN LAW.

LONDON, Sept. 1—It is announced that John Law, brother of Andrew Bonar Law, and son of the Rev. J. A. Law, of New Brunswick, died at Glasgow on Friday of congestion of the lungs.

FRENCH WOMEN DIVORCED IN U.S.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Sixty-two French women who have married American army officers or soldiers, and subsequently had been divorced in the United States, returned to France on the same steamer this week, according to the newspaper Avenir. Most of them, the newspaper adds, return not because of personal differences with their husbands, but because of the inability of the brides to adapt themselves to the American mode of living.

BRITISH OPERATE OLD GERMAN CABLE

Special Cable to the Philadelphia Public Ledger and Montreal Star. Copyright. By Raymond G. Carrill.

LONDON, Sept 1.—This cablegram passes over the Imperial cable, formerly the German cable, which now is operated by the British Government, relieving the cable congestion of the entire world.

This is a splended example of British enterprise. The Montreal Star and the Public Ledger are the first news papers availing themselves of the new route. The channel thus opened is utilised to convey the information that the next ambassador from Brazil to Washington will be Senor Fortoura Xavier, the present Brazilian Minister to the United Kingdom, who is a staunch friend of the Allies. He will link the ideal of North and South America and Europe.

AUSTRIAN TREATY NOW COMPLETED

PARIS, Sept. 1. — The Austrian treaty as it stands at the present time and as it will probably be handed to the Austrians on Tuesday, in no way affects the Adriatic question, so far as is known.

The Italian foreign minister, Signor Tittoni, in conferring with the British prime minister, Mr. Lloyd George at one of the small towns in France today and has for weeks been informally discussing the Fiume problems with individual members of the Supreme Council. But no positive agreement has been reached by the council. Certainly the American delegation has not approved any of the proposed settlements, although it is generally conceded that the council is not hopelessly divided, and a speedy agreement seems likely with all the Fiume internationalized.

MORE PRODUCTION IN BRITAIN SOON

Hopeful Auguries in Letter of Councillor of Amalgamated Engineers

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Hopeful auguries of increased production of labor are based on certain recent happenings here. One of these is in the nature of a letter written by Chairman Brownlee, of the Executive Council of the Amalgamated Engineers, to Chas. W. Bowerman, secretary of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, emphasizing the gravity of the present economic situation, and urging the committee as the most representative and responsible body of trade unionists in the country to take action to alleviate the situation.

Mr. Brownlee cites Herbert Hoover's warning of political, economic and moral chaos in Europe unless productivity is increased, and adds his own arguments in support of this.

Another important incident is the decision of the Amalgamated Engineers and Allied Unions to defer their demands for a 44-hour week, pending the result of a joint investigation with the employers into the relation between production and the hours of work here and elsewhere.

Interest is further attracted by a magazine article, in which Wm. Brace, Labor member of Parliament for the Abertillery Division of Monmouthshire, and leader of the Welsh miners, pleads for the resumption of piece work, instead of day wages.

IRISH AIRPLANE BASE.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Sept. 1.—A proposition to establish an aerial base here at which passengers travelling by airship from the United States may alight has been received by the Urban District Council here, and help is promised for the project. The plans contemplate a station to accommodate an airship carrying 150 persons besides the crew. It is also intended to establish a service of smaller airships carrying fifty persons for the distribution of passengers to Dublin, Liverpool, Manchester, York Hull, Norway and Denmark.

LONDON STIRRED BY RECEPTION TO PRINCE OF WALES

British Press Pleased at Warmth Shown by Canada

QUIET WEEK-END

His Royal Highness Has Respite From Arduous Duties

LONDON, Sept. 1—Reuter—The Observer says editorially: "Even Londoners, with memories still fresh of their own moving demonstrations of affection towards their sovereign and his house, must be stirred by the wonderful greeting which Canada is giving to the Prince of Wales. What does it all mean, this enthusiasm? What sort of asset is it for our imperial future? First and foremost it is a tribute to the qualities of the Prince himself, to his happy blend of freshness and earnestness, his simplicity and sincerity. He had been an undergraduate among undergraduates; he became a soldier among soldiers. To-day he is a Canadian among Canadians. In all the phases of his varied life he has displayed the royal gifts of simplicity and insight and by them had won hearts.

"He has done it all so easy and naturally that it is hard to appreciate the real difficulty of his achievement. But let us bear in mind that this young man, who is daily adding to the ties of personal comradeship which already bind him to millions is heir to the most exalted position in the world. A man with such a future awaiting him must find it hard not to become a remote, inaccessible being, obscured by the glitter and parade of ceremonial. Yet our Prince knows how to make all he does warm and spontaneous.

"His days in Canada have been few, and his daily official engagements numerous; but in those few days he has triumphed over formal programs and given Canada an impression of him that is entirely personal and intimate."

SURPASSED ANTICIPATION.

The following editorial appears in the Weekly Despatch: "The success of the Prince of Wales' Canadian tour has surpassed anticipations. At home His Royal Highness in a few months established himself as a general favorite. Without effort he gained a reputation for saying the right word and doing the right thing. This peculiar felicity has not deserted him on the other side of the Atlantic. He has caught the trans-Atlantic atmosphere, and adapted himself, as it were instinctively, to new and strange conditions. We are confident that these popular demonstrations are no passing manifestations of transient emotions. They must needs have enduring results. Not only has the Prince increased the good-will, loyalty and affection of our Canadian brethren to the royal house; he has also succeeded by the deep personal devotion which he has aroused, in immensely strengthening the bonds of Empire.

AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP.

The Daily Chronicle in its leading editorial says: "Everyone in this country who appreciates the value of Anglo-American friendship will be glad to learn that the Prince of Wales has been offered, and has consented to accept, the freedom of the city of New York, in the course of his approaching visit to the United States. Is there any other foreign country but the United States which has it in its power to pay the visitor such a characteristically British compliment? Is there any other visitor to whom Americans could offer it with such imposing significance? Just as President Wilson is the first chief of the American republic to be made a freeman, not only of London but of many other British cities, so is the Prince of Wales the first member of the British Royal family to be offered the freedom of the principal city in America.

"The Prince of Wales is the first member of his family whom Americans have decided to welcome as they would say, 'with both hands.' It will be a great event not only for the Prince but also for Britain and America."

INDEPENDENCE OF KOREA PROCLAIMED

Officers of "Republic" in U.S. Claim Nation's Freedom

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Korean independence is declared in a proclamation to the "Peoples of the World" issued here last night in the name of the "Government and people of the republic of Korea."

The proclamation is signed by Dr. Syngam Rhee, president of the "Republic" and J. Kiusic S. Kim, chairman of the Korean Commission to the Peace Conference.

Declaring that Korea was denied freedom as "one of the alleged autonomous units of a Japanese mock federation," the proclamation says that Japan's recent promise of reforming the Korean Government meant only a new form of cruel denationalising and dechristianising process from which we have suffered unspeakable tortures."

"We make this declaration," the proclamation continues "on the basis of our hereditary and unquestionable historic rights. Korea has been an independent state and nation for more than 4,000 years. Japan has recognized Korea's independence in every treaty up to and including the year 1904.

RUSSIAN DANGER.

Finally, however, Korea was induced to enter in an alliance with Japan against what was then regarded as the Russian danger. Under that treaty we never voluntarily surrendered any of our sovereignty rights. But the autocratic and militaristic Governments of Japan deliberately broke that solemn pledge and by cruel application of military force made captive our rulers and government officials; and after declaring a protectorate over our country, finally assumed to annex the Empire of Korea to the Empire of Japan. But we refuse to become an integral or component part of the Japanese Empire in any form."

From the dawn of history to the present time, the proclamation declares Japan has exhibited "nothing but a spirit of aggression and cupidity toward Korea."

Asserting that the Japanese Government is "wholly unfit" to act leader for the Korean nation, the proclamation declares that Japan by "making mere brute force the sole instrument of her imperial progress has emphasised the merely destructive agencies of society in direct contrast with the peace-loving and fundamentally constructive principles which the Korean people have demonstrated to be at the foundation of their system of culture."

GOV'T EMPLOYES RUN PRODUCTION OF ARSENAL SHOP

Actual Control of Activities Promised United States Workers

FIXING PRICES

Salaries Question Left in Hands of Workmen's Committee

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Actual control of the production activities of Rock Island arsenal harness shops, including appointment of foremen and the determination of prices to be paid workmen, has been turned over to committees of the employes. This became known when Secretary Baker made public correspondence between the War Department and representatives of the employes. Matters of administration are left with the regular management, but even bids submitted on contracts are influenced by the committees.

In carrying out the new plan, which is characterized in the correspondence as "the first recognition of the principle of democracy as applied to the manufacturing industry," an arsenal branch has been established in the Ordnance Department here to obtain orders from other governmental agencies. An advisory committee of employes' representatives is included in this branch who "actively assist in figuring cost when bidding for work."

REDUCTION IN COSTS.

Official representatives to Secretary Baker assert that the result has not only greatly increased efficiency and contentment among the men, but a radical reduction in manufacturing costs. Two examples cited are orders for mail locks, formerly cost $45 per 1,000, but produced at Rock Island for $38, and an order for azimuth optics at prices reduced from $55 each to $20.74.

Development of the new system, the announcement says, grew out of the situation immediately following the signing of the armistice when it became apparent that the repentistic force would be reduced for lack of work; but the necessity for a change had been foreseen even before the war. A condition of "antagonism and distrust" had grown up prior to the war between the management and the workmen, according to a memorandum submitted by the employes' committees, as a result of this attempted introduction of so-called scientific management methods, and the men "finally found their only recourse was to place a deliberate limit on production."

On the outbreak of war, however, it was said, the men voluntarily removed these limits, insisting only that piece-work prices should not be reduced without their consent. Instances are cited of the men recommending reduction in piece-work prices in order that the arsenal could secure additional orders, and of voluntarily agreeing to work during lunch hours in order that an order "which had been figured very closely" might be filled.

MORE TROUBLE IN WAR CANOE RACE AT GRAND TRUNK MEET

Chateauguay Were the Winners But Referee's Decision as to Who Came Second and Third Was Far from Popular

The last Saturday in August has been noted for years as Grand Trunk Boat Club's day and this year was no exception to the rule. Although the weather was not all that might be desired there was a very large attendance of spectators at the regatta who cheered the tanks and heartily cheered their own favorites. The regatta was a great success and although all the competing crews did not agree with the referee's two of his decisions, no doubt the aggrieved complaint may be averted in future by the C. C. A., appointing the referee for each regatta, the same as done in Football Association, for then all the referee is chosen from the Club holding the regatta. Secondly all War Canoe events should be straight-away, no turns. On the Grand Trunk course this event should have been run in heats, as the river is not wide enough for four canoes. The course was half mile with turn. A cold N. E. wind was blowing which made the going up to the buoys a hard pull. The prizes were excellent, consisting of 13 silver cups, including two handsome trophies given by Howard G. Wilks and S. W. Beatty. One thing that was regretted is the shooting of canoes across the course and the crowding of the competitors by motor boats, whilst the race is on. This interfered several times during the afternoon.

OFFICIALS.

Judges—H. Radford, Esq., Commodore C. C. A.; Capt. Scott, Commodore Jacques Cartier Club; E. Smith, Chateauguay B. C.; E. Drinkwater, Tecumseh, St. Lambert B. C.; A. F. Marsh, Canoe Cedars G. T. R. C.; Hon. C. F. Doherty, K.C., Mayor J. A. Leclair; Ald. H. Cohn, H. Lingo, Jas. Powell.

Also competed: G. D. Marshall and W. Frank, Grand Trunk; R. Murdock, St. Lambert, and N. Cameron, Cartierville.

Event 5, War Canoe, 4 started.

Grand Trunk No. 1 was first around the buoy but immediately afterwards struck Grand Trunk No. 2, sinking its bow into the latter. Referee Hosmer ordered race over again from place of foul. The four boats got off to a splendid start, and when half the distance was covered, Grand Trunk No. 1 crossed into Chateauguay's water, causing Chateauguay to crowd St. Lambert into Prince's Island and fouling. Chateauguay Referee stopped race and ordered all back to the buoys to start again. For the 3rd time they got off in splendid style, Chateauguay winning by about 1-4 length; to the spectators, Grand Trunk and St. Lambert ran a dead heat, but the St. Lambert 3rd. Time for 1st crew, 1:29.

Event 6—Lady and gents' skiff, club. 8 started. Time (C.)

1. Miss F. Marshall and J. A. Laing.
2. Miss Olsen and M. Flanigan.

2. D. Grant and C. Sproule, St. Lambert.
3. F. Ganley and S. Foster, Grand Trunk.

2nd heat, 6 started. Time 4:29.

1. A. Pitt and A. Coleman, Grand Trunk.
2. H. Coughlin and G. Ferguson, Grand Trunk.
3. G. Walsh and L. Muir, Finals—4 started. Time 4:26.

1. H. V. Knowles and H. Greenshields, Longueuil.
2. A. Pitt and A. Coleman, Grand Trunk.
3. D. Grant and C. Sproule, St. Lambert.

Event 9, Fair oar, Club, 2 started. Time, 4:14.

1. A. Woodward and S. Burns.
2. M. Flanigan and L. A. Gendron.

Won by 600 yards.

Event 10—Junior Four. 6 started. Time, 4:17.

1. W. Frame, R. Carroll, R. Harrison and W. Finch, Grand Trunk.
2. F. Patten, L. Brown, Gillelan Bros., St. Lambert.
3. H. Coughlin, L. Simons, P. W. Hollingsworth, C. Coughlin, Grand Trunk.

Also competed—G. Walsh, L. Muir, A. Bray, E. Bermingham, Grand Trunk; D. Howie, R. Binmare, W. Coutts, T. Tostee, Cartierville.

Event 11—Senior tandem, 4 started. Time 4:23.

1. A. Laing, W. Clements, Grand Trunk.
2. E. Woodward, A. A. Lindsay, Lachine.
3. W. Mill, A. Jennings, Lachine, immediately after turning buoy, St. Lambert boat was struck by a motor boat and knocked off the course, thus interfering with any chance they might have had of winning.

Event 12, Intermediate tandem, 4 starter, Time, 4:31.

1. N. Brownring, R. Ferguson, Grand Trunk.
2. R. Murdock, E. Albutt, St. Lambert.
3. H. Coughlin, G. Ferguson, Grand Trunk.

Also competed: F. Ganley and S. Foster, Grand Trunk.

Event 13.—Intermediate single. 7 started. Time, 3:28.

1. A. Laing, Grand Trunk.
2. N. Cameron, Cartierville.
3. W. Coutts, Cartierville.

Also competed: P. W. Hollingsworth, W. Finch and H. Coughlin, Grand Trunk; R. Albutt, St. Lambert.

Event 14.—Senior Four. 3 started. 3 Grand Trunk crews and 1 St. Lambert.

Starter got them off in good style, in coming down the course, two Grand Trunk boats and St. Lambert got very close together, the starter fired his gun a few times but no crew took any notice of it and St. Lambert made a magnificent finish, being half length ahead. The referee was watching the race from the Boat Club verandah and claimed there was a foul, and ordered the race to be run over. St. Lambert and the Grand Trunk crew refused to start and the race practically as follows:

1. A. Laing, W. Clements, J. Beattie and J. Bowden, Grand Trunk.
2. A. Coleman, A. Pitt, N. Brownring and R. Ferguson, Grand Trunk.

GIANTS NOSED OUT BROOKLYN TEAM 4 TO 3

Snappy Baseball Game at Ebbets Field—Nothing Was Lacking

Special to The Star From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The fans at Ebbets Field yesterday got their money's worth and more. Everything you can pour into a ball game to make it snappy and hectic was shown, even to a real dramatic climax. Grimes, who had been pitching real ball, and had done his bit at bat when a hit was needed, was most unfortunately spiked in the eighth, so badly that he will be out of the game for the rest of the year.

It was a great game withal, though the result for the visiting Giants and not the Brooklyn team to 3, was disappointing to the majority of the fans. Most of them really believed that if their leader and star left-fielder, Zack Wheat, had not been reported sick they would have copped the necessary two other runs. Mcgraw's men, however grabbed one in the second and the local fans held it until the fourth, when, after wild goings on the bases Kilduf slammed one out to left that scored Griffith. Things went rather blank until the seventh, when everybody seemed to get a wallop at the pill. But the Giants did it once too often, and the Dodgers were not able to even the score. During the proceedings the Brooklyn bench got so peeved that Umpire Klem sent them all to the club-house.

The Yankees, having lost all chance of being in the running for the pennant, are beginning to play real ball. They took their seventh straight victory yesterday at the expense of the Athletics, who are so deep in the cellar that it is almost suspicious to these dizzy days that Connie Mack's shut games won't matter. Carl Mays shut out the visitors and was backed to the extent of nine runs, all of which he considers most satisfactory. As a matter of fact, the callarites got to him for six hits, which is an excellent testimony to the efficiency of the others presented. In the third the Phillies just missed making a triple play, Pipp was on second and Pratt on first. Lewis popped to Dugan, who doubled Pratt at second. Pipp left for home and beat the ball by a whisker. And a man who once said a ruling would never be made on lifting a foul as of seeing a real one lifting was whisked from the stand. Triple was the late well scattered, but always was not so lucky. Another was hammered in the seventh.

PRINTERS—HOLD SPECIAL MEETING OUT THIS EVENING.

A special meeting of the all-star team of the Printers' League, which will meet the Boston Union Printers here on Wednesday afternoon, has been called for this evening (Monday), at the Shamrock grounds at 5.30 sharp. The following players are requested to be on hand:

Lorraine, Bowles, Pollock, Charron, Lavoie, Bayard, Fee, Hickstead, St. Shaw, Hayward, Menard, Marion, Taylor, Pierre, Redmond, Menard, Marion, Tellier, Gauthier, Brouillet, Morgan, Hillis, Ryan, Gauthier, Hoste and Powers.

SENSATIONAL GAME IN THE INDEPENDENT

In a hitting saturnalia, the like of which has probably never been seen in semi-professional baseball on a Montreal diamond, the Crescents yesterday performed the remarkable achievement of overcoming a twelve-inning lead gained by their opponents in the first inning, won the game, and assumed the leadership of the Independent Baseball League's second-half race. The final score was 18 to 17 in favor of Crescents, after the winners had made twenty hits. Eight pitchers were used, four by Crescents and four by Lachine. These two teams were tied for the leadership before yesterday's game.

In the first inning, Lachine, with its all-star batting array, pounded three Crescents pitchers for an even dozen runs. Deslaurier was started, and yielded four. Lefty Lorrain was next and gave two hits and two passes. They Cy Curtis was taken from second base and sent into the box. Crescents' star pitcher, Evans, having reported ill. With this lead it looked a certainty Lachine would win, but Crescents kept plugging. They scored a run here and there, and finally got underway in the seventh, when Kennison was knocked out of the box, being retired when Reagan's single scored a pair of runs. Six runs in all were scored in this session, but Curtis weakened in the next, and Lachine scored three and widened its margin. Evans despite his illness went in, and held the Lachine sluggers. In the eighth, Crescents brought the crowd up with another rally, and knocked Desjardins out of the box. With two on bases, Earl Rice slammed a single to centre and tied the score. Evans pitched brilliantly in the ninth, and when Bennet passed Flynn in the ninth, he was derricked and Ray Cutter was sent to the box. Oscar Major pickled one over the left-field fence, his fifth hit of the day, and Flynn trotted home with the winning counter.

The other game was a fight-hitting contest, in which Royal Canadiens pulled a surprise by beating Metropole 7 to 3. Duchesnil had but one bad inning and in this a combination of hits and loose support allowed the Royals to score all seven of their runs. Henri Clement pitched brilliantly in all but one inning and was given errorless support. Metro scored one in the first and two in the last after Clement eased up. The score:

VERDUN AND GRAND TRUNK TIED AGAIN

SATURDAY'S SOCCER RESULTS.

First Division.

Verdun City 1; Grand Trunks 1.
Sons of Scotland, 1; Can. Vickers, 1.
C.P.R., 2; Lyalls 2.
Locos, 2; Nomads 2.
Great War Vet. 1; Dom. Bridge, 1.

Second Division.

Royal Highlanders 2; Calvin 1.
Sons of England 2; Beloeil 1.
St. Paul Town 3; Sweet Caps 0.
Bakers 3; Verdun City R. 1.
M.A.A.A. 6; Rosemount 0.

Third Division.

Rosemount Jr. 1; Sons of S. A. 0.
Hamilton 1; Canoe 0.

Saturday was confined to league games in soccer circles, and in neither the First or Second Divisions did the results affect the leaders, keeping everything just as it was. The only change among the Seniors is that Locos advanced ahead of Nomads. Vickers are not yet out of danger, and must needs put on spurt.

Chippendale, of Sweet Caps, had the misfortune to break his leg, during the game with St. Paul Town, and is now in hospital. Except the victories of Locos and Sons of England, there was not a surprise in the list.

Verdun City and Grand Trunks went ninety minutes to a draw of 1-1. The crowd was an excellent one, enriching Verdun's coffers to the extent of three hundred dollars.

Miles turned out for Trunks, Smith going inside, with Sims at centre. Miles showed the effects of his long jury, not yet being in his old time trim. Much depended upon this game, as defeat would eliminate one team or the other. Smith scored for Trunks, who led at half-time 1-0.

Shortly after the restart, Norman Hill equalized from a free kick, McLogan deflecting the ball with his head. Nothing more was done, and the teams divided the points. Play was very clean, and enjoyable. The results leaves the pair still in the running.

C.P.R. and Lyalls also drew, but by the score of 2-2. Joe Angel scored C.P.R.'s two goals in the first half, Rowlands equalising for Lyalls in the second period. Though much depended upon the outcome, Referee Roberts declared the game to be the best conducted this season, not a player causing the slightest trouble.

Not since the F.Q.S.A. was founded had such a race for league championship taken place. Lyalls, C.P.R., Verdun and Grand Trunks are leading the field, running neck and neck.

Sons of Scotland gained a welcome point in their encounter with Canadian Vickers, being the third draw amongst the seniors. The Scots are struggling desperately to escape relegation, and look like avoiding the disaster. Vickers are in a similar position, but when their new men are eligible, a team something like the old Vickers is expected. To be next to the bottom in the league table is a "novelty" they would rather be without. Their next four games are "fraught with tremendous possibilities."

Locos performed a smart feat to overcome Nomads at Park Avenue Extension by 2-2, at a period of the season when two points more valuable than at present. A couple more such victories and all will be well for them in 1919. As for Nomads, the result increases their anxiety, but as the games they have yet to face are at home, a good chance for escaping the Second Division is there providing they accept the chances. Anyway, they will have a say in the championship as Grand Trunk are due at the Extension in the near future.

Great War Veterans ran away with Dominion Bridge, winning by 7-1. This result practically assures Vets. of their senior membership, and reduces Bridge's chances to zero. The Bridge have a very young team, and as they were without the services of O'Shaughnessy and Chadwick, Saturday's result offers no surprise.

Royal Highlanders can consider themselves very fortunate indeed to defeat Calvin, 2-1. All goals were scored in the first ten minutes, and while Highlanders had the best of the first half, the second belonged to Calvin, who peppered Harvey. All this availed them nothing, when they couldn't find the net. Peace, of Calvin, was the best man on the field. Montgomery, as usual, played a clever game, but was allowed too much liberty, a costly concession to so clever a player. By this victory Royal Highlanders are practically sure of promotion, and Calvins have still a chance of keeping them company.

M.A.A.A. romped away with Rosemount 5-0, after a scoreless first half, which keeps them still in the running.

Sons of England defeated Beloeil, away, by 2-1, a fine performance, and Bakers, showing continued improvement, beat Verdun City Reserves 3-1.

Chippendale, of Sweet Caps, met with a severe accident, breaking his leg, in the match with St. Paul Town. The town won, 3-0.

Rosemount Juniors have fashioned for themselves a record to be proud of:

MAN O' WAR WON AT SARATOGA TRACK

SARATOGA, Aug. 31.—Just as had been generally predicted, the rich Hopeful Stakes of $30,000, for two-year-olds, one of the two big events which brought the Saratoga meeting to a close here proved to be at the mercy of the Glen Riddle Farm's great Man o' War. This son of Fair Play won with ridiculous ease, despite the fact that he raced against the cream of his division. He was just galloping at the finish, and was six lengths in front of W. R. Coe's Cleopatra, which ran a fine race, and took second. Commander J. K. L. Ross' Constancy was third. The race was worth $24,600 to the winner.

COBS are still in the race, but shrinking like a dollar.

LESSONS IN BASEBALL

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

NO. 38.—PITCHING CONTROL.

Control is the great element in successful pitching. Without control all the curves, all the speed and all the headwork practically are waste energy.

The pitcher who has control can save his arm, can conserve his forces and always has the better of the duel with the batter. The first step toward developing into a pitcher therefore, is to study control of the ball. The majority of young fellows who aspire to be pitchers already possess some accuracy in throwing. Throwing is an American Art. Everybody learns to throw stones with some accuracy, whether either of country bred and the pitcher usually is the boy with the greatest sense of accuracy.

With this natural ability, to throw comes the temptation to use speed. As a rule the use of high speed in pitching means the loss of accuracy.

The pitcher should practice with slow balls most of the time and whenever possible he should pitch to a catcher. He should practice trying to put the ball where he wants it to go. The catcher should hold his mitt high, low, inside and outside and the pitcher should strive to throw the ball at that mark. The practice is simple and yet it brings results. Throwing at a set mark is not nearly so good as is pitching to a catcher and whenever possible, it is desirable that a batter should be in position during this practice, not to hit the ball but to swing at it. This practice is beneficial to both pitcher and catcher. If a catcher is not available a simple device can be rigged which will assist much in achieving accuracy. Suspend a string from some tree limb or timber. About eighteen inches from the ground place a round bit of card board and at shoulder height another piece of card board. Allow the string to swing free and practice throwing first at one then at the other of the swaying targets. After getting the pitching just inside and just outside, these card board targets, first low and then high.

At first the pitcher should strive for a free motion with arm, shoulder and body swinging together, but without trying to use speed. As he achieves control he should gradually increase the force of his throw. It is good practice to work twenty minutes night and morning with gradually increasing speed. Results will commence to reveal themselves within a fortnight and constant practice will bring control.

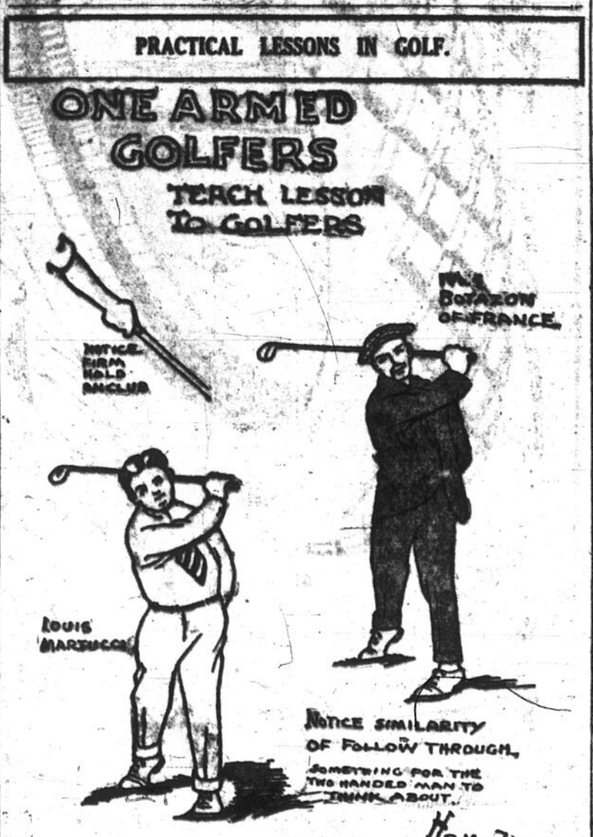
PRACTICAL LESSONS IN GOLF.



(Copyright, 1919, by The Associated Newspapers.)

How perfectly simple it is to drive a golf ball when one knows how. How easy it looks when others do it. Most of us mortals are struggling to make some respectable progress with the two hands that nature gave us and most of us are failing. Just to add to our misery and chagrin along comes a one-armed golfer and shows us that it is a simple thing to drive a long ball with one arm. But he is not a freak of nature because other one-armed men can do it. It must be that our system is all wrong and that we are working at cross purposes.

To make any success out of the drive the two-handed man must be sure that both of his hands are working in unison. Otherwise two heads are worse than one. The two handed player will find that his hands are fighting each other unless it is understood that one or the other is to take command. Golfers have argued for years over whether it is the right or the left hand that does the most work. It is a pretty well established fact now that it is the right, although there was a time when every pro would give you an argument on this and point out that the left was the one on which to put the burden.

In the pictures here Ives Botcazon, of France, who is now in this country, is drawn alongside of Louis Martucci, an American player. They have two perfectly good arms between them, yet, each is able to get a very long ball with one arm and one hand. It shows that it is not muscular effort but perfect timing or rhythm that counts. There is nothing to worry about in either case over the grip.

A lesson can be learned by noticing the finish of these two players. Both have finished in good form, showing that the ball must have been hit perfectly. Their pose at the finish is almost identical.

Young Eristowe, who met death through drowning last week and played this season with Dominion Bridge.

In paging the next opponent for Jack Dempsey, only an extremely limited few seem interested in answering the call. Which is no light boost for the average intelligence of the universe.

KING'S PLATE BLUE BONNET ATTRACTION

The renewal of the King's Plate and Provincial Nursery races by the Montreal Jockey Club, at Blue Bonnets, this afternoon, gives to Montrealers the only opportunity they will have this year of seeing the thoroughbred in action. The club has gone to the expense of deciding these two events in order that these shall be no further breaks in their history. They were not run in 1917, owing to the sudden stoppage of racing in that year, and because of the consequent upsetting of existing arrangements for the balance of the season. Last year, however, the races were run off for the benefit of the Red Cross Society, several horse show events being added to eke out an afternoon's program. This year's program will consist only of the two races and two show events for brood mares with foals at foot. Following is the schedule of events:

3:30 p.m.—The Provincial Nursery at five furlongs.

3:45 p.m.—Judging seven thoroughbred brood mares with foals at foot by thoroughbred horses.

4 p.m.—Judging four mares other than thoroughbred with foals at foot by a thoroughbred horse.

4:30 p.m.—The King's Plate at one mile and a quarter.

Entries for the races:

First race, the Provincial nursery, 5 furlongs, $250 added (4)—Brymgar, 115; Acorn, 115; Brynford, 115; Mquette, 115.

Second race, the King's Plate, one mile and a quarter, $450 added (10)—Montmorency, 131; St. Hilaire, 131; All Amiss, 121; The Lost Bird, 121; Adomai, 131; Adoreck, 121; Mayante, 113; Maladroit, 115; Mendaine, 121; Dix Rogers, 124.

TILDEN WINNER IN TENNIS MATCH AGAINST BROOKS

Tournament at Forest Hill Has All-American Finish—Semi-finals Being Played This Afternoon — Johnston, Johnson and Williams Are Meeting Next

Special to The Star, From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Brookes, the lone Australian contender who remained in the running at the great national lawn tennis championship at Forest Hill, was eliminated from the running in the singles on Saturday afternoon by William T. Tilden, second, of Philadelphia. The set went 8—6, 6—4, 7—5, 6—2. This gives the tournament an all-American finish. The semi-finals will be played this afternoon, when Tilden, William M. Johnston of San Francisco, Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, and Richard Norris Williams of Boston, meet. Johnston meets Johnson, and Tilden will fight it out with Williams. Johnston and Williams are picked to win.

Murray won the first set from Johnston, who changed his tactics Saturday, as against his match with Patterson on Friday, and endeavored to keep his opponent away from the net. He was successful to some extent, but when Murray was able to reach the barrier his smashing and placing made him invincible.

SECOND SET WAS JOHNSTON'S.

The second set went to Johnston, who took his turn at coming to the net, and from this point of vantage was able to place the ball at times where Murray could not get it. Every point, however, was hard fought, with numerous rallies, in which there was terrific stroking of the ball, clever placement, and some returns which appeared to be ungettable.

Johnston took the lead when he won the third set, and the play continued hard and fast, both players putting all their strength into the drives, and battling continually for the position. In this effort the winner was the more successful, his ability to place the ball even at high speed enabling him to keep his opponent continually on the run until he could gain a position for the finishing smash.

In the Williams-McLoughlin match the former great internationalist seemed virtually helpless before the remarkable mastery which Williams maintained over the ball. The match was followed in absolute silence, the contrast being remarkable, for during the Johnston-Murray match the spectators were in a constant uproar of applause.

BROOKES-TILDEN SET.

Brookes won the first set in his match against Tilden. The Philadelphia player opened with a terrific burst of speed, both in service and volley, but he was so erratic that he piled up numerous errors, which, combined with Brookes' steadiness, offset Tilden's occasional service ace and placements.

Tilden captured the second set, just as a heavy downpour of rain drove the players and spectators to shelter.

Tilden was able to steady his terrific stroking of the ball in the next set, and gaining control, scored some beautiful placement aces, and by the speed of his play forced Brookes into what for the Australian, was a surprising number of errors. Although Brookes would repeatedly get his racquet on the ball, the sphere would shoot off at all sorts of angles, many going far out of the court and others into the net.

Tilden won the third set in one of the most remarkable sets of tennis ever seen on the West Side Club courts. The winner opened with a perfect tornado of speed, and dropped the first two games by netting almost every shot. He eventually got the range, however, and with a continuous bombardment broke Brookes' form and threw him completely off his game. In the last set Tilden's speed and lobbing as well as placements completely baffled Brookes, who made numerous errors, and would have been defeated more decisively except for Tilden's tendency to net or out the ball in the midst of driving for points.

UNFORTUNATE INCIDENT.

There was one unfortunate incident in the match. Tilden sent one of his bullet deliveries shooting over the net and at lightning speed for Brookes' court. The great Victorian was standing, racquet poised, waiting for the ball.

In the opinion of a great majority of the spectators who could watch the ball in its flight it landed a good two inches out of the service court. Brookes, believing it out, swished his racquet through the air as the ball whizzed by him, and waited for the second service. Tilden, not certain, stood waiting with racquet raised. The linesman had said nothing, and then E. C. Conlin, the umpire, turned in his chair and asked the linesman whether the ball was "in" or "out." After a moment of hesitation, the linesman called it "in," and Conlin then announced: "Game, set and match for Mr. Tilden." And this marked the exit of the wonderful Brookes from the tournament.

SEEKING HEALTH IN SHOOTING, WINS G.A.H.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—Advised by physicians early in June to renew his acquaintance with the out-doors and to take some form of recreation if he wished to regain his health, which had been sapped by a long seige of typhoid fever, George William Lorimer, former Mayor of Piqua, and now a most respected citizen of Troy, O., went back to his first love, the shotgun, and after nine years of clay target practice he shot in and won the Grand American Handicap, the "big" event of the Grand American Handicap Trapshooting tournament and for these many years regarded as the blue ribbon event of trapdom.

We say Lorimer, when ordered to renew his acquaintance with outdoor life, went back to his first love—the scattergun. Years ago, or to be more exact, from 1898 to 1905, Lorimer was one of the best known live bird shots in the United States. He was a conspicuous figure in all the live bird shooting tournaments, but when live bird shooting cashed in its checks Lorimer laid his gun aside and for 14 years he didn't fire a shot, although a great lover of shooting and of firearms. When he started to rebuild himself he owned about 50 guns, but none of them seemed to please. There was something about all of them that did not seem just right; in other words they didn't fit.

So Lorimer set out to find the right gun. In the nine weeks previous to the Grand American Handicap he purchased 34 trapguns and on the opening day of the tournament he purchased another on the grounds, and it was this one that won the Grand American Handicap. Lorimer shot at more clay targets the last few weeks than he shot at in all the other years of his existence, and no one can say that it hasn't benefited him. It was his first appearance in a Grand American Handicap and without a record. In such cases a shooter is usually placed on the 16 yards mark, but remembering Lorimer's ability from the live bird days the Handicap Committee placed him at 18 yards, and the shooting of the man out to regain his health verified the judgment of the committee.

RECREATION HELPS EVERYBODY.

During the nine weeks that Lorimer communed with nature, with nothing to do but buy shotguns and amuse himself at breaking clay targets, he gained thirty pounds, and his breaking 98 targets in 100 and winning the shoot-off for the honors with two of the best shots in the country will soon make him his old self. This rejuvenation shows just what can be done by play. An hour a day at play will keep the doctor away and as thousands of physicians are trapshooters they must have an idea that "busting" clay targets is a regular pastime.

Lorimer was tied for first place in the Grand American Handicap with Edward Hellyer, the Alexandria, Pa., miller, and William E. Gordon, of Mobile, Ala. Both Hellyer and Gordon are champions of their respective states, which denotes their class. State champions of 1919 are not false alarms. So when the trio broke 98 targets, Lorimer, being the unknown to the vast majority of the thousands looking on, wasn't given much consideration in the shoot-off. But in this he proved that he had just a little more nerve than his competitors. Gordon was leading by one target and had four to shoot at and missed two of the four, which shows how badly he went to pieces in the pinch. Hellyer scattered his four misses all through his string, while Lorimer missed his two early in the string and finished strong.

ANOTHER BOXER KILLED.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 30.—Freddie Haefling, well-known boxer of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who was seriously injured in a bout on Thursday night, died early to-day in the City Hospital.

GEORGE ASHE IS HERE READY FOR BROSSEAU

Declaring himself to be fit and ready, George Ashe, Philadelphia light-heavyweight, arrived in Montreal yesterday to meet Eugene Brosseau in a ten-round bout tonight at Monument National. Ashe will be seconded by Frankie Brown, who recently fought Dick Loadman here.

Ashe is not a newcomer to Montreal and many fans will remember the clever display he gave at the Royal theatre a few years ago in out-pointing rugged Tommy League in a ten-round bout. Since then Ashe has been overseas, and fought many bouts in the army. He has met all the best men in the division, and will have a shade on Brosseau in weight.

An interesting card will be provided in the way of semi-finals.

TOWN GOSSIP

By K. C. B.

(Copyright)

I WAS lying there
IN THE darkness
IN THE guest's room
LISTENING to the frogs
AND THE stillness
OF THE great outdoors
AND WITHOUT any worries
ABOUT MILK waggons
AND COBBLE stones
OR THE OLD rag man
WITH HIS bells
OR THE foreign gentleman
WHO TRIES to call bananas
AND JUST makes a noise
AND I was thinking
HOW PLEASANT it was TO BE there
IN THE guest's room
ON THE ranch
AND I heard a tinkling
LIKE A cowbell
AND THERE came to my mind
THE BEAUTIFUL words
OF LONGFELLOW
AND WHATEVER it was
HE SAID about cattle
AND AS I listened
THE SOUND grew
AND CAME round the house
FROM THE north
AND RIGHT [illegible]
THE COW stopped
AND HAD a chill
OR SOMETHING
THAT SHOOK its frame
AND ALSO the bell
AND ALL the poetry
THAT WAS in my soul
FADED OUT
AND I arose
AND WENT to the window
AND SPOKE to it,
IN A firm voice,
AND IT heard me
AND TURNED its head
AND RANG the bell,
LOUDER THAN ever,
AND I went back to bed,
AND THE COW stayed
OUTSIDE MY window.
AND KEPT on ringing.
AND I made up my mind.
THAT IF I had my life
TO LIVE over again
I'D BE an butcher.
AND WHATEVER I know
OF NAUGHTY words
I USED them.
IN LOW tones.
AND SNEAKED out
IN MY bare feet
AND CHASED it,
AND IN my anger
I RAN wild.
AND STEPPED IN a ditch.
THEN RUNS through the orchard.
AND CAME back
AND GOT mud on the sheets,
AND I'VE got to keep making
MY OWN bed
TILL I go away
THE DAY after tomorrow.
AND THEN steal the sheets.
I THANK YOU.

FOOTBALL BATTLES FOR LABOR DAY

The twelfth annual soccer international between Scotland and England takes place this afternoon at the M.A.A.A. grounds, Westmount. These encounters have a fascination of their own, and club affinities cease, to fight once again the thousand year old story of the battle of the famous countries. International fires are rekindled and M. A. A. A. ground will hear the old cries as the crowd urges on their representatives to victory, for in the lines of Sir Walter Scott:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
This is mine own, my native land."

Two of Montreal's choicest teams will face each other, though a couple of alterations are made, due to injuries, neither Stott nor J. Campbell being able to turn out. Salter comes in for England, and Adams for Scotland. An exciting game is in store, and while revenge will be taken for Bannockburn and Flodden Field, at the end of ninety minutes play, international strife is forgotten, the 21 men resuming life on a firm Canadian basis.

The teams are:

Scotland: Gallacher, goal; Crossan and Clarke, backs; Rae, Montgomery and Craigie, halves; Adams, McLeish, Grant, McFarlane and Irwin, forwards.

Reserves—Harris, Frier and Simpson.

England: Sommy, N. Hill and Sumner, backs; Turton, Wright and Jones, halves; Angel, Hicks, Salter, Smith and Baxter, forwards.

Reserves: Dabb and Taylor.

Referee: Harry Roberts (Wales).

Kick-off 3.30. Admission 50 and 25 cents.

Fine weather alone is wanted to make for another grand soccer success.

There will be a football match this afternoon at the Grand Trunk grounds between two picked teams from the Third Division representing North vs South. The teams have been carefully picked and a good game is assured the public. Admission 25c. Kick-off at 11 a.m. sharp. This game is to raise funds for the medals of the league winners.

GREAT OVATION IS GIVEN CURRIE

Speaks at Directors' Luncheon at Toronto National Exhibition

DENISON'S RECORD

Colonel Has Tried 750,000 Cases in Forty Years

Special to The Star.

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—Saturday was Currie day at the Canadian National Exhibition, when the attendance was 117,000, making the total for the fair so far 602,000. The commander of the Canadian forces in France and Belgium was given a tremendous reception, when he spoke at the directors' luncheon, again in the open air a little later, and at the dinner and reception given him in the evening by the Originals' Club. At the last-named function Sir Arthur Currie defined his imperialism.

"This is my imperialism," said Sir Arthur. "England is my England, although I have no English in me. Scotland is my Scotland and Ireland my Ireland. I have a little of both. All the traditions of Britain are the traditions of Canada, too. We cannot be indifferent to England, Ireland or Scotland, nor they to us. Canada must go to war if Britain does. If we don't want to go, then we must tell Britain we don't want to belong to the British Empire."

He was glad to know that the Originals had no politics. It was not politics that made them enlist in 1914. Referring to his personal work, Sir Arthur said that no soldier was ever denied seeing him if the man requested it. If a man was worthy of promotion he got it; if he were no good, he was got rid of. He had written to every mother himself who had asked about sons.

TRIED 750,000 CASES.

Col. George Taylor Denison, LL.B., F.R.S.C., who has sat as magistrate in the Toronto Police Court for more than forty years, celebrated his 80th birthday yesterday. To those outside the circle of his immediate friends, the fact comes as a surprise, for the senior police magistrate, who believes that "a man is as young as he feels," is himself a younger man than many of his juniors.

Col. Denison's career as a magistrate commenced in May, 1877, when he accepted an appointment on the bench, which he now occupies. Since then he has tried more than three-quarters of a million indictable offences, and appeals from his findings have been remarkably few. This may perhaps be attributable to an intuition and insight into character, which have won him an enviable reputation as a police magistrate.

PLANE CAUGHT IN TELEGRAPH WIRES.

Flying low in the air testing his machine, an aviator at Mimico on Saturday caught one of the wings of his machine in the telegraph wires and nose dived to the ground. While the machine was badly smashed the two men in it got off with minor injuries.

A. D. McDonnell, of 265 McPherson avenue, the owner and passenger, had his nose broken. Edward J. Leask, 15 Galley avenue, the pilot, was badly shaken up, but is recovering in the General Hospital.

The men were flying above the Lake Side Airdrome. McDonnell has been using the airplane as a taxicab, taking sensation seekers up for $1 a minute.

CHINESE CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

Chinese Christian workers of Ontario opened their first convention in the Metropolitan Church on Saturday afternoon, when representatives from various parts of the country assembled to discuss subjects connected with the education and evangelization of Chinese resident in Canada. It was stated that there are 7,000 Chinese within easy reach of Toronto, and that five Christian churches are responsible for the evangelization.

Rev. Dr. R. P. Mackay, secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, presided over the opening meeting and spoke of the purpose of the convention. Rev. Dr. H. Trevor Davis gave an address of welcome to the delegates. The chief address was delivered by Mr. T. K. Won, who spoke mainly in Chinese.

LIQUOR FOR INDIANS.

Information disclosed to the county police authorities indicates that during the past few weeks large quantities of liquor have been dumped on Walpole Island, which has found a ready sale among the Indians. It is reported that the liquor has been landed on the island by high-powered motor launches, and indications are said to lead to the belief that it has been going on for some time. Two men have been arrested by the police on charges of selling liquor to the Indians, and will appear in Police Court at an early date.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT.

Percy Johnston, aged 27 years, died on Saturday night shortly after an automobile accident at the corner of Pine and Chatham streets, Belleville. Johnston who operated a livery was driving a car from the show grounds about 11 o'clock, when he collided with a wagon which was driven against a pole. The boy driving the cart, George Sackett, was quite seriously hurt, several stitches being required to sew up his wounds in the face. Johnston was found in an unconscious condition at the wheel of his automobile and was rushed to his home, but died soon after.

DOMINIONS SHOULD HELP BRITAIN.

At a big memorial service last night in Massey Hall the ancient Order of Foresters did honor to their heroic dead. Mr. Hearst presided and Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, delivered a forceful sermon.

Dr. Chown said the time had come for Canada to go to the aid of the Mother Country economically, as she did in a military way. He pictured Britain as financing the whole of the Allied armies, arming half the world, keeping the seven seas, and carrying on a war on a dozen fronts, yet with never a boast of what she was accomplishing. There must be some bond of union between the overseas Dominions and Great Britain far greater than sentiment.

"We should have," he said, "some tariff agreement by which the overseas Dominions will constitute themselves a League of Nations within the Empire, and will stand by the Mother Country through her present and future troubles. There must be a stiffening of the political constitution of the Empire, if we are to do our duty to the Motherland.

RAISULI IS NOW RAISING MORE MEN

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Raisuli, the Morocco bandit, who recently began a new revolt in the Spanish zone in Morocco, is raising contingents among the various tribesmen. He is paying his followers five francs daily and enrolling hundreds of men, according to advices received from Rabat.

In the region of Hasa, Raisuli troops on August 27 attacked the Djebel-Jabib blockhouse, but were repulsed with losses.

REPORT ALLIED ULTIMATUM.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Reports have reached London from Vienna and Berlin that the Allies presented an ultimatum to Premier Friedrich of Hungary, demanding his resignation. One report says Fredrich declined to acquiesce, while another asserts that he resigned and that a new list of ministers has been presented to the Allies. Neither report has been confirmed.

FIVE ARE KILLED.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Five persons were killed at Romulus, near Geneva late yesterday, when the automobile in which they were driving was struck by a train at a crossing. The dead: are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wheeler and son, Walter, and Mrs. Edward W. Quinn, all residents of Junius.

St. Aloysius Will Have a Field Day

St. Aloysius will stage a track and field meet on the afternoon of Sept. 1st. The 100 yards and 220 yards races are open to any runner in the city possessing an amateur card. Consideration has been shown the ladies who will be well represented on the list of events. Several races have been set apart for children. Suitable prizes will be awarded to the winners of the various events. The meet will wind up with a ball game between St. Mary's and the local ball team. The former have a well balanced outfit and a keen contest is anticipated.

Following is a list of events:

Value Delivered— in Mileage

A tire is worth—
—not what you pay for it.
—but what you get out of it.
A truth as old as business, yet overlooked by motorists every day.
The true cost of a tire is the price divided by the miles it serves you.
On that basis thousands of motorists have bought Goodyear Cord Tires.
And have continued to buy them.
If you, too, will buy tires on this basis, you will come to Goodyear Cords.
Check up on tire mileage with your friends who use Goodyear Cord Tires.
Ask the Goodyear Service Station Dealer about Goodyear Cord mileages.
You will have the answer to the tire question.
Find out, also, about the Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tube, a better, thicker tube which gives much extra service for a small extra price.

REFERRED TO READERS.

Coul you or any of your readers tell me whether there is a young girls' Zionist club in Montreal known as the "Daughters of Herzl," and whom I would have to apply to for membership to same?

READER.

IN THE "PAUL JONES."

I am a Constant Reader of your most interesting page and would like you to answer a few questions. What do you think it signifies when you are dancing a Paul Jones and a fellow squeezes your hand while you are dancing? Do you think the fellow cares for you?

FOR THE TWO OF US.

Ans.: No. He is just trying to see if you are silly enough to let him do it and "get away with it."

LIKES "THE BUNCH."

I accept your invitation "Assiston," and will certainly "stick up" for you and "the Bunch." I pass along St. Viateur street three or four evenings every week, if not oftener, and know you all by sight. As far as I know I have not been criticised. No flirtation was ever started, and I was never insulted by any of you. As to Pug Nose and her charming, fascinating baby-doll friends, you will never be criticised, insulted, or even spoken to by "the Bunch" if you don't start the ball rolling.
I have lived in the St. Viateur and Park region for the past twelve years, and have never become friendly with any of the girls, and consequently am not included in their set, never was in fact, even as a child with Dutch-cut, hair and starched white apron. Now, of course, they have appropriated a "beau" or rather "my boy friend," wear their heart on their sleeve and freeze you with a glance if you dare look crooked at Jack or Tom, don't you know. I may express myself bitterly, but please do not misunderstand me; such facts are more amusing and entertaining than a movie comedy.
It is absolutely O.K. for the boys to meet "around the corner" and enjoy the evening breeze 'neath the twinkling stars and silvery moon, but when it comes to their parties' once more me. Such assemblies invariably end in a cat fight; always having a row over the opposite sex. All they think about, if all twentieth century girls were a little more "distinguees" such an avalanche of agreeable (?) remarks and criticisms would be averted, or at least diminished. I presume, Pug Nose, you are having visions of a dried-up creature with tight curls and thick glasses, but, I am eighteen, like yourself probably, and very romantic and foolish with dozens of faults, but if my heart causes my romantic nature to assist itself in so pronounced a manner as to make me become a Park Ave. and St. Viateur lamp post—throw a brick at me and finish me off quick!
I expect a most indignant sermon from you, P.N., for not taking the girls' part in this discussion, but I believe I am right—and I always did like excitement. "Assiston" will take my part; "n'est-ce-pas, mon ami?"—I thank you, Miss Currie.

"TONY TOINON."

THE JEWISH RACE.

In answer to the Christian girl's letter of Boston, I wish for a little bit of space in your valuable page to express my feelings towards those people who are still ignorant enough to feel race prejudice. Are there still many people who abhor the average Jew? It is hard to believe that, for it seems to me that in these times of modern education and civilisation the people ought to have overcome that feeling.
"But he is so different!" What a funny thing to say "Iueig!" In what way is he different, pray? Is he the cream and are we the scum? My dear, everybody is the same in God's eyes, both Jew and Gentile—is that not so? Then where do we get the privilege to judge God's people? There are different nationalities in the world, I know, but then—of what nationality was Adam and Eve? Though there are millions of generations separating us from them, we can we deny the ancestry? And please let me remind you, "Iueig," of what nationality is Jesus, your Christ?
Oh, Iueig, Iueig, why are you so narrow-minded! Are we not in reality all brothers and sisters? All God's children, all living upon the same earth under the same sky and after we depart from this earth are we not all thinking upon going to the same place where there is no difference between anyone?
I must not go on any further or my feelings may run away with me and leave words that I might regret after. There is so much to say upon this topic that I could run on and on. But where is the use? I am not the first one—there were millions before me and there are still oh ever so many people who have thought and thought and even written books on race prejudice, but what has it all come to? There is no change and I am afraid that we still have very long to wait before the different races of the world will come to think about each other in the same light and follow the rule "Love One Another," which means not only one's brothers, sisters and relations, but everybody.
But I am not condemning everybody of the same sin. There are still people who understand, and I wish to thank you, Miss Currie, for your kind remarks about my race.

Proudly,
A JEWESS.

FERMENTED RASPBERRIES.

Can anything be done to save canned fruit raspberries. Once slight fermentation has set it. I have it in good sealers but suspect rubbers are not being good as they are all leaking. I have always used the same recipe for canning and never had any trouble before.

WORRIED.

Ans.—I would boil them over again with a little baking soda and more sugar. Better have jam than fermented fruit. Be sure your bottles are well-sterilized and your rubbers new and good. Test rubbers by stretching a little. If they snap back, they are all right. If they stretch and are soft, they aren't good. Sometimes, I have used two when they are soft. Also, it is a good plan to turn your bottles upside down over night before putting them away. You may be sure they are not leaking if they stand that test.

SHE LOVES HIM.

This is the first time I ever appealed to you, but I sincerely hope you can help me. I am a young Irish girl, but have been in this country fifteen years, having no father or mother. Do you think it is waste of time to love a Jewish boy? Do they ever marry a Christian? He is only a drummer, but he seemed rather fond of me, although he never talks of love. I used to like him for just a friend, but now I know different. I was engaged to his boss's brother. It was a secret even from my aunt and family, but I told him. Anyway our engagement was broken. Since then I realize it was the drummer I loved. Do you think it is because of my previous engagement he declines to speak? Please print this letter as soon as possible. Maybe he will see it, as he often says to me, "I do not know what girls would do if they had not Miss Currie." Please do print.

LONESOME MARION.

Ans.—Possibly he thinks your religion might be a barrier.

MARRY OLD MAID.

Answer to Mr. Curious's letter in last Monday's Star, from one who does not believe in marriage just now. I have been watching married couples for a few years, and find no one seems to be mated as they should be. If the husband is jolly, the wife is too quiet, or vice versa. Judging by your letter, you are too severe to marry a girl of your own age. No doubt you have gone through a terrible experience at war, which has made you feel far too old, and some of the girls that have been chasing soldiers, gave you a wrong impression of young women.— But you mind this, Mr. Curious, if you are looking for a good wife that does not dance, or is not crazy over moving pictures and so on, you might as well dig up a grave to find one who is all that you wish, you might find her to change very much after a couple years of married life, and you will rue the day you married a young girl. I would advise you to marry an old maid, who has been and seen everything under the sun, which has made her sick of everything—but a honeymoon. Same as yourself perhaps. She will then be only too glad to be a mother to you all through life, while she is supposed to be a wife.

MISS HUNNYMOON.

MADELON.

"I'll be True to the Whole Regiment."

There is a tavern way down in Brittany
Where weary soldiers take their liberty,
The keeper's daughter whose name is Madelon,
Pours out the wine while they laugh and "carry on."
And while the wine goes to their senses
Her sparkling glance goes to their hearts,
Their admiration so intense is
Each one his tale of love imparts
She coquettes with them all but favors none at all
And here's the way they banter every time they call.
Chorus:
Oh, Madelon, you are the only one
Oh, Madelon, for you we'll carry on.
It's so long since we have seen a miss
Won't you give us just a kiss?
But Madelon she takes it all in fun.
She laughs and says: "You see it cant be done.
I would like but how can I consent
When I'm true to the whole regiment."
She knows a captain who twirls a big moustache,
She knows a colonel whose eyes with anger flash.
She gives them both the sweetest kind of smile,
And now and then chats with each a little while.
Just when his talk gets interesting,
The other hollers for some wine,
She laughs and skips away suggesting.
They'll talk again some other time.
She never answers Yes, she never tells them No;
And here's the song they're singing when they come and go.
Chorus.

—Sent by "TINY."

"I'LL SAY SO."

You asked for expressions on "Does Woman Propose," Well, I'll say so and I guess all the boys are with me.
Men may be brave at war but when it comes to facing powder while on the bended knee in the parlor, our true cowardice shows up. We are brave enough to admit that we require the necessary prompting to state our love; and so the girls believe that we have done the proposing. Why bless their little hearts, they would not be happy unless they believed so.
The curtain rises; the girl begins proposing by "Do call me up." "When are you coming up to see me." "I always love to see Warren Kerrigan." "Mother would like you to come to tea on Sunday," etc. As time flies, as it does to all lovers, she becomes more frank, stating the kind of ring she adores and how lucky it is to be married on Wednesday. This all leads to the happy engagement, the young man becoming courageous enough to draw the first act to a close with the necessary words, "Oh, Helen, please be mine."
We ask you, Miss Currie, "Is this not true"? We have confessed cowardice for the men's part and are happy contented that the girls remain happy, believing us they do.

Yours, in all sincerity.
ONE WITH HOPES.

FASHIONS FOR TODAY

Tailored Street Frock for Fall.

No Patterns are sold with this.

The tailored frock for street wear is the most important garment to be chosen during the early days of either spring or fall. For several seasons the two-piece suit has enjoyed a rather doubtful vogue, while the one-piece frock has gained in favor each succeeding season since it made its initial appearance. The two-piece suit is really an expensive garment, no matter what it costs when purchased, for the reason that innumerable blouses must be purchased also, and during the past two seasons the possession of a two-piece suit has meant the purchase of several separate vests as well. The one-piece frock only requires at the most fresh collar and cuffs to complete it, and very often not even these. In addition to these recommendations, the one-piece frock is so easy to slip into and so generally becoming that no woman considers her wardrobe complete without at least one tailored street frock for every season.
The sketch offers a suggestion or a graceful dress that may be made of serge or other lightweight wool material or of a heavy satin or velvet. The skirt drapery forming a peg top flare is one of the popular silhouettes of the season. The bodice proper fastens in the centre front, the draped over section being drawn around the figure and fastened invisibly at the right side back. If the dress is made of satin or velvet, the ribbon girdle with tassel ends, as shown in the sketch, may be used; but if made of wool fabric, one of the braided cord girdles that are so much featured this season would be the smartest finish.
A little tucked vestee and collar of organdy or white net give a pretty and becoming finish to the neck.

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS.

There was a certain prejudice in some quarters last year against the pretty blue annual called cora flower in some states and bachelor button in others, because it was said to be the favorite flower of the kaiser. This is one of the best of garden blooms, its shade of blue being almost identical with that of a baby's eyes. All too often the flowers pass long before the season is over. You can keep them in bloom by clipping six inches from the tops of the plants with a pair of heavy shears now. New growth will soon come up and yield a fine second crop of blossoms.

HEALTH TALKS

By JOHN B. HUBER, A.M., M.D.

A number of readers of The Star have written Dr. Huber seeking advice, have enclosed properly addressed envelopes, but have neglected to affix the necessary postage stamps. The Star will not guarantee an answer from Dr. Huber unless a self addressed envelope with stamp is enclosed with every letter.

Motto—Beware the cancer in the fruit.

INFECTION CENTRES ONCE MORE.

"Your article on boils was interesting, if incomplete. If you had attended the recent Dental Convention in Atlantic City and heard the reports of specialists in pus infection, you would have realized that your advice as to teeth was perhaps more appropriate for Job's comforters. People who are emaciated or run down or "poor blooded" and hence have boils, may have all those unhealthy conditions from oral infections or disturbances. When the mouth is cleansed and cured, the boils, emaciation, anaemia, innutrition, rheumatism and neutritis, with other even more serious diseases, will probably disappear. Even tuberculosis and spinal meningitis have disappeared when the teeth were attended to properly. I could give a great many instances of diseases resulting from neglected or poorly treated teeth, not the least of which would be boils and carbuncles.

"Doctors will never go wrong in beginning their examination by sending their patients to a good dentist. Pardon, a non-professional criticising a doctor, but I have studied with my husband on just this line of work with much interest. Very few people as yet, realize the importance of their teeth and it seems to me the doctors ought to be the ones to teach them—which means that doctors must also appreciate oral importance also."

I have been insistently handing out the ideas expressed in this excellent letter that I have feared my constant readers (of whom if I may with gratification judge from my correspondence there are not a few) will hanker for something different, just as chronic boarders turn away from the too frequently served breakfast hash. It has been computed that only 8 per cent of us Americans have ever sat in a dentist's chair. Think of how business will pick up when those other 92 per cent see the light we are holding up before them!
As I have several times stated, there are infection centres in our body from which originate many and dangerous illnesses. And of these centres, the first in importance are decayed teeth and gums; next diseased tonsils and adenoids and so on to catarrhs, ear discharges, gall bladders gone wrong and inflamed appendices. I could not, though I wish indeed I could, go so far as to agree that tuberculosis and meningitis would disappear on the sufferers teeth being cleaned up. Appreciation and thanks are however sincerely offered for the letter.

Questions and Answers.

IMPACTED TEETH.

Do impacted teeth cause bad breath? I have in the lower jaw a third molar that has never come through, and as my lower incisors have become quiet crooked in the past two years, it would seem that the third molar has caused the trouble. A dentist recommended that I have the impacted molar removed, also the other three third molars. Now these last three are through, all right, apparently, except that one in the upper jaw is turned out a little. The incisors in the upper jaw are straight, as were the lower ones until the last year or so. Would you recommended that I have all four removed, or only the one below the gum? The dentist rather urged that I have all four removed at once, and said that I would have much better health.
Answer—I am not an authority in dentistry. But I should in your place, follow the dentist's advice. There is a theory (which appears to me valid) that impacted teeth by eroding their opposed enamel surfaces, result in Rigg's Disease—which I should, for my part, go to a great length to avoid.

EATS THEM RAW.

I am coming to you the same as the rest of them. I want to know how to reduce. I weigh 190. I like to eat vegetables raw better than the cooked ones.
Answer—Information is being mailed to you. Better eat your vegetables cooked.

Chapter XI.

In the middle of the next afternoon as she was wondering what she could do to relieve the dreadful ennui she was already beginning to feel, Blake called Patricia up. She gasped a little when she heard his voice.
"May I come up a little while?" he asked,
"Of course you may," she returned, a little wave of happiness at the thought of seeing him rushing over her.
Patricia was not in the least in love with Blake; she would have been horrified if any one had hinted such a thing. But she was bored, lonely. Unaccustomed as she was to being alone, having nothing particular to occupy her mind, it was not strange that she should welcome gladly this man with whom she had so much in common, with whom she had worked so happily.
She moved around the little living room, adjusting and readjusting the chairs, moving a table a little and placing his magazine in a more prominent position, re-arranging the ornaments on the mantel, and placing the tea things handy on the little push table. Then she went into her room to powder her nose, so see if her hair were smooth and to be sure she was dainty and attractive to greet her guest. And as she did so she sang light-heartedly.
"This is good of you," she exclaimed as she opened the door at his ring. "I was wondering what to do with myself when you saved me from doing something desperate by calling me up."
"So you are beginning to feel bored, Are you? I knew you would," he said as he released her hand after a warm pressure. "No one with your brain, your ability could be contented to let both go to seed for lack of use. But tell me how you are and is Mr. Van Brunt still an invalid?" He had changed the subject before it became necessary for Patricia to answer him. It was a relief. She didn't want to talk of herself. She longed to know how things were going at the office; if he had any new plans for the work she used to do. Who had taken her place and a thousand and one other things.
"I am quite well, thank you, and Mr. Van Brunt is improving all the time. He had a very serious fracture and the chill he had when trying to bring us to safety, the length of time that elapsed before his leg was set, naturally made it more serious than the ordinary fracture. He still walks with a crutch but hopes to lay it aside soon," she explained elaborately, then added with a little laugh: "I hope so, too. He hates to go out while so lame and I am anxious for all my friends to know him."
"As they are to meet him, I am sure—myself included." His hesitation was so slight as to be scarcely noticeable.
"Now do tell me about the office, the work!" Patricia pleaded as she poured tea for him.
"Don't ask me! I shall break my resolve and urge you to come back to me if you do. No one knows how I have missed you, Pat—Mrs. Van Brunt. The office doesn't seem the the same. I have missed your help, the quickness with which you grasped an idea and the celerity with which you worked it out. I have tried three women since you left. I am almost discouraged. I begin to think it is no use trying to replace you and that I may as well make up my mind there is only one you in the world."
"Nonsense!" Patricia answered, yet it was sweet to know she had been so appreciated, was so missed. It proved that her work had been good, that she was capable.
"Not nonsense at all, little lady. I have tried to carry out some of your ideas—with their help—and they have fallen far short of the result you would have attained. This is delightful tea; it is Ceylon, is it not? My mother used always to serve it," with one of his quick changes — one of his charms.
"Yes, it is Ceylon. I don't care for any other kind, so serve it to my friends."
"You have a charming place here. Did you furnish it before you went away? You surely haven't been back long enough to be so perfectly in order."
"No indeed. We rented it furnished from some friends of Mr. Van Brunt's. We will buy for ourselves another year when this lease is up. I am rather sorry we didn't do so when we came back. It would have given us something to do," she finished without having the least idea she was showing Homer Blake more of her feelings than she would have wished. Or that in telling him they had sub-leased she had given him hope that it might be easier to win her back to the office than if she had furnished a home of their own.
Blake remained about an hour. When he left he asked if he might run in some evening when Gates was at home. Patricia, pleased, gladly gave permission. She wanted them to know and like each other.

JAPAN PLANS BIG SUBMARINE TUNNEL

TOKIO, Sept. 1.—Officials of the imperial government railways have decided to run a submarine tunnel through the Shimonoseki-Moji strait. The work will be started this year, and it is expected it will require nine or ten years to complete it.
At present the railway systems of Honshu, which is the main island of the empire, and Kyushu are connected by ferry.
The cost of the tunnel, it is estimated, will be about 20,000,000 yen. Its construction will be attended by greater difficulties than in the English Channel, where geological formation is simpler and better understood. Experts and workmen who will be employed on the undertaking will be sent to Europe and America to study similar engineering feats.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME BY THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER FINDS HE IS MISTAKEN.

(Copyright, 1919.)

Butcher the Shrike was not the only new-comer in the Old Orchard. There was another stranger, and it did not take Peter Rabbit long to discover that he was looked on with some suspicion by all the other birds. The first time Peter saw him he was walking on the ground some distance off. He didn't hop but walked, and at that distance looked all black. The way he carried himself and his movements as he walked made Peter think of Creaker the Grackle. In fact, Peter mistook him for Creaker. That was because he didn't really look at him. If he had he would have seen at once that the stranger was smaller than Creaker.
Presently the stranger flew up in a tree, and at once Peter saw that his tail was little more than half as long as that of Creaker. At once it came over Peter that this was a stranger to him. Of course his curiosity was aroused at once. Anything like that is sure to arouse Peter's curiosity. He didn't have any doubt whatever that this was a member of the Blackbird family, but which one it could be he hadn't the least idea. "Jenny Wren will know," thought Peter, and scampered off to hunt her up.
"Who is that new member of the Blackbird family who has come to live in the Old Orchard?" Peter asked as soon as he found Jenny Wren.
Jenny's sharp little eyes snapped and she twitched her funny little tail as only she can. "What's that?" she cried.
"Who is that new member of the Blackbird family who has come to live in the Old Orchard?" repeated Peter.
"There isn't any new member of the Blackbird family living in the Old Orchard," retorted Jenny Wren tartly.
"There is too," contradicted Peter, "I saw him with my own eyes. I can see him now. He's sitting in that tree over yonder this very minute. He's all black, and of course he must be a member of the Blackbird family."
"Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut!" scolded Jenny Wren. "Tut, tut, tut, tut, tut, tut! That fellow isn't a member of the Blackbird family at all, and what's more, he isn't black. Go over there and take a good look at him and then come back and tell me if you still think he is black."
Jenny turned her back on Peter and went to hunting worms. There being nothing else to do, Peter hopped over where he could get a good look at the stranger. The sun was shining full on him, and he wasn't black at all. For the most part he was very dark green. At least that is what Peter thought at first glance. Then, as the stranger moved, he seemed to be a rich purple in places. In short, he changed color. His feathers were like those of Creaker the Grackle—iridescent.

AROUND THE HOME.

Do not use soap on gilt china.
To remove paint from window glass, rub it well with hot vinegar.
Saturate paint spots with equal parts of turpentine and spirit of ammonia.
Dip lampwicks in vinegar and let dry before using. They will not smoke if this is done.
Trim pillow cases with wide rickrack when you do not have time to make lace for them.
Fruit jar caps that are old and black can be made almost like new by standing in buttermilk a few days.
Lay green walnut leaves in cupboards or places infested by ants and they will soon leave.
To remove cake from tins, as soon as it is removed from the oven place it upon a cloth which has been wrung out of hot water.
Save all small pieces of toilet soap and when you have collected quite a quantity put them in a pan with a little water and set pan on stove until all the pieces are dissolved, then pour into a pasteboard box and let harden. Then tear the box away and you will have a cake of toilet soap.

Scotland Doesn't Ask Self-determination; She Already Has it!

By Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—A telegram asserting that "Scotland does not require to appeal for self-determination; she has it," has been sent to Senator Lodge, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, from the office of Thos. R. Gibbs, royal secretary of the Order of Scottish Clans, yesterday. It was signed by A. G. Findlay, of Portland, Ore., royal chief, and other officers of the royal clan, comprising the royal executive council.
The telegram expressed the conviction of the council that plans for self-determination for Scotland, which have been presented to the Foreign Relations Committee "Do not represent the sentiment of the great majority of the Scottish people, either at home or abroad."

QUINN MUST STAND TRIAL FOR MURDER

Will Appear Before Court Formally on Friday Next

INQUEST ENDED

Two Eye Witnesses to the Tragedy Testified Before Coronor

After the briefest of deliberations the Coroner's Jury on Saturday held John James Quinn responsible for the death by shooting of Roch Samson, who was killed in his automobile at the corner of Jurors and St. Elizabeth streets on Monday afternoon last.

Before charging the jury, Coroner McMahon told Mrs. Quinn, the wife of the accused, that while he had no desire and no right to ask her to testify against her husband, he was ready to permit her to make a statement in her husband's favor if she desired to do so, and would permit her to consult her husband's lawyer, Mr. Lavery, before making the statement. The offer, however, was declined.

Before letting Mrs. Quinn go, the coroner asked her if she was aware that the late Roch Samson owned a valuable diamond, and she replied that she did. She told the coroner, however, that she had no idea as to what could have become of it. The diamond is said to have been missing since the tragedy.

Quinn was sent to the Police Court on a charge of murder and his enquête was set for Friday.

The principal witnesses against him were a fifteen year old Italian boy, Johanni Caporicci, and a young lady, Miss Campbell, who was on her way home from work when the shooting took place, and happened to pass the spot where it occurred. Both gave detailed and distinct stories as to the tragedy and what immediately preceded it, and both positively identified the accused as the man who shot Samson.

PICKED WRONG MAN.

Another witness, Violet Dryden, a little girl of ten or twelve, who lives on Victoria Square, also saw part of the tragedy, but her testimony became useless when upon being asked to identify the man who did the shooting she passed by Quinn, who was sitting next to Detective Crowther, in charge of the case, and picked out Detective Pelletier, who is assisting him, as the guilty man. This created considerable hilarity, even the accused smiling at the mistake.

Mrs. Quinn was examined as to her marriage, and spoke so softly that the coroner insisted upon having her stand close to his chair. She could only remember that she had been married about four years ago in a church on Bernard street, but had forgotten the name of the officiating priest, and those of the witnesses, as well as the name of the church itself.

QUINN ADMITTED ACT.

Chief of Detectives Lepage was also a witness, and told of how Quinn, as soon as he was brought to his office had exclaimed that he was the man who had done the shooting.

Chief Lepage had warned him that anything he said would be taken in evidence against him, but notwithstanding Quinn had persisted in giving his version of the tragedy, which has already been published and which told how Samson followed him and his wife in an automobile and refused to keep away, in spite of Quinn's warning. Finally Samson had made as if to jump out of his auto to attack Quinn, calling him a bad name at the same time, and the shooting had resulted.

Mr. Lavery, Quinn's lawyer, objected to this evidence being given, but the coroner judged it perfectly permissible.

The revolver with which the shooting was done was produced and it appeared that it had been lent to Quinn by a former employer when he was watching the employer's grounds.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1919.

THE ALLIES OF PEACE

FOR the first time in five years Labor is able to celebrate the day consecrated especially to it free from the menace of a mighty war. For nearly five straight years Labor measured its services to the State by the degree of efficiency with which it have served the purposes of war. From its ranks there went forth host upon host of men in the prime of life to serve their country and their cause upon the firing line. By the thousands and the tens of thousands they laid down their lives for the cause in which they believed, and behind the ranks of the fighting men there clustered other multitudes, straining every nerve and muscle to keep unbroken the supplies of those things upon which the continuance of the struggle depended.

Under Providence and by the superb sacrifice of our best and bravest, victory has come, and this year Labor is free to take stock of new conditions. The months that have passed since the war came to an end have been months of trying and testing, a time scarcely less critical than those black summer days five years ago. The men from shop and factory and mine, from the sea and from the soil, stood fast then under trial. They must stand fast today if the fabric of the State, saved to us all by the valor of those who died to save us, is to endure.

For there have been forces busily at work since peace came, trying to sap the steadfastness and the loyalty of Labor to the State. Anarchy, veiled in the seductive garb of spurious "freedom," aimless discontent, deliberately fostered as legitimate aspiration toward better systems of life, militant class hatreds, bred and left to fester by those who hope to profit through the ruin of the present system—all these things have taken the places of the poison gas, the creeping mine and the bursting shell of open warfare.

The Allies won the war because they stuck together, because all classes of society in a score of the greatest nations forgot their special privileges and pooled their brain and muscle under a common commander against a common foe. England could not have won the war alone; France could not have won the war alone; nor the United States, nor Italy, nor France, nor Russia. They won it together: separated they must have lost.

We have peace today, but the State has many enemies. They can be overcome only if all the component parts of the State make the fight against them side by side. Capital alone cannot save Canada, neither can Labor, neither can the "middle class," which is neither Capital nor Labor. It is a great task, this bringing of Canada through the troubled waters of a world upheaval, a task worthy of any man, but one which can be accomplished only if Capital and Labor and Middle Class, if "intelligentsia" and "proletariat" share together in the burdens as they hope to share in the rewards. The peace of the world was secured by the alliance of the nations, the prosperity of Canada can be secured only by the alliance of all the classes and the peoples within Canada.

WAGING PEACE.

THE war proved propaganda the sparking force to throw into intelligent operation great waves of popular energy. To wage peace, it is necessary to adapt to present tasks the assistance offered by accelerated education. The unusual productive exertions required to replace the terrific losses by destruction and win a rebirth of normal conditions can be invoked most quickly by the mass action to be stimulated by propaganda. A vital present need is the flashing of all available searchlights upon the road ahead.

The democratic peoples like to know where they are going before they lift the heavy burden and "carry on." They cannot be driven in the dark. They refuse to function as mere cogs in a machine.

The present generation demands an idea of the larger plan. When the plan is explained, it will throw itself into whatever task is necessary to save the situation.

Labor, for instance, insists today that it is not a commodity nor a tool. The modern worker has a definite and self-respecting status to be observed. He wants to know why he is doing his daily work, which may in itself be monotonous and drab.

To let him have all available information about it is to make him feel better and to make his task easier to perform with efficiency. Not for Art's sake did the great General Electric Company of Schenectady, N.Y., commission a literary expert to describe the romance of its factory's daily hum.

The London Times has embarked on a campaign to stimulate British foreign trade and production by telling the British workmen what happens to the things he helps to produce after these go out on the trade routes of the globe. It interests the man who makes a knife in Birmingham to know that a sailor will use it to skin seals in far Arctic waters. It gives him a better idea of his value in life and his part in the world's work.

The producer in Canada is open to similar stimulation. Farming takes on a new dignity when men know the urgent need of food to stave off the twin horrors of starvation and Bolshevism in Europe. Manufacturing is more of a popular enterprise if the workers realize the need in devastated countries for all manner of commodities.

So, also, as regards legislation and government. The citizen wants to know the "why" and "wherefore" of public action or inaction which is not transparently sound to those outside official circles. He will not obey without questionings curt orders from authority, however excellent these may be.

The world has arrived at a new road to travel and it wishes to go in the right direction. Democracy can be trusted to speed in safety to the proper goal when each man knows the map and can see the dangers for himself.

MAKING SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

"YOU can't make a silk purse of a sow's ear."

That was our grandfathers' belief, anyhow. It may have been shaken, like other traditional beliefs. In the forward rush of science we now and then catch a breathless hurried glimpse of all sorts of things being made out of totally different things. The handsomest nutmegs from wood, first-class reputations from gas, and so forth and so on. Silk itself is now largely composed of tin!

Making silk purses from sows' ears, therefore, would be only a nine days' wonder. In a week or so the commercial editor would be quoting, among his market prices, so much a dozen for number one saws' ears, so much a head for sows of the best silk breed, and we should read it without a smile. "Science can do anything nowadays," we should casually observe, and let it go at that.

But even Science has to draw the line somewhere, and she draws it at making something out of nothing.

By an effort of imagination we can fancy her making silk purses of sows' ears (if it were in the least worth while), or even spinning gold from straw, like the dwarf in the fairy tale. But we cannot, by any stretch of the most elastic imagination, fancy her keeping it up after the sows' ears and straw have run out.

Magic, not science, is wanted for that; and the supply of magic itself has apparently run out, except on the vaudeville stage.

* * * *

In this every-day world, a world of hard facts and no magic, work is the raw material which the worker brings to be turned into wages.

The process by which this is done, the complicated system of organization and machinery and buying and selling, evolved and maintained by the unstinted use of brains and of the accumulated savings that we call capital—that seems about as near as the world comes to the magic of spinning gold from straw.

It is by means of this skilfully organized and directed commercial mechanism that labor is made productive. By methodically and economically producing sufficient quantities of what can be sold,—wheat, or engines, or clothes, or books, or transportation service, or anything else that people will buy,—only by doing this can labour bring in the money for its own wages.

To expect wages without work or out of proportion to the work done, would be as sensible as to expect gold without supplying even straw to spin it from.

To be sure, few lunatics outside Russia think they can go on drawing wages without giving any work at all in exchange. But many seem to think it quite possible to cut down the supply of work indefinitely without cutting down the wages given in return; and the common demand is for more wages and less work at the same time.

The result of many years' experimenting along that line was good, up to a certain point. In most industries, people had been working too many hours a day. Cutting down their hours gave them not only more enjoyment of leisure but more energy for work. In some cases, at any rate, the shorter day produced a larger output, and therefore a higher sum to be distributed in wages.

It is a pity we cannot carry the delightful process on as far as we should like.

Speeding up can do much to increase the output, and is by all means to be encouraged; but even the best man has his limit of speed and cannot exceed his maximum of production.

If reduction of hours is to continue, with increase of wages, after the maximum production per hour has been reached, where are extra wages to come from? Wages for work which is not done,—that means that something is to be made out of nothing, which is impossible.

The richest employer cannot keep on paying out more than comes in.

* * * *

The fact is, we are faced with a limiting stone wall built of the laws of arithmetic, and they are hard as fate. We can break our heads against them if we like, but they themselves remain unscratched. There is no getting around them. Two and two calmly persist in making four, however fiercely we command them to make five.

In the Old Country, the limit seems to have been already reached, and great industries have ben stunned in the attempt to butt a way through the stone wall.

Even Mr. Lloyd George, who would certainly not risk offending his wage-earnings followers without grave cause, gives a shout of alarm. Those who asked higher pay and shorter hours, he says, promised larger production in return. The promise, he declares, has not been kept; and if it remains unkept he sees nothing short of disaster ahead of the country.

And what of ourselves?

Thousands of wage-earners in Canada are not only getting vastly higher pay than before the war, but working shorter hours for it.

Some employers have made these concessions because increased profits enabled them to do so without risk.

Others did so without any margin of profit to justify it as a pure matter of business. They knew that he high cost of living bore hardly on their employees; and they hoped that the increased wages given on that account would eventually be justified also by better work and a speeding up of production.

Only if this hope is fulfilled can we escape the penalty that Nature never fails to inflict on a nation of take-it-easies.

To produce less, when the country's most urgent ned is to produce more,—to raise prices, by raising wages, beyond the buyer's power to give,—this would simply mean drying up the spring and source of wages.

If we fail to understand the critical situation and act as it imperatively demands, the result will speedily be seen in falling exports, higher prices levied on home consumers, ruin for many employers, destruction of livelihood for thousands of workers,—in short, the whole country will get a black eye.

* * * *

It is no pleasure to prophesy black eyes and blue ruin. It is in fact a most unpleasant duty, a duty we dare not shirk, to point out that certain causes are bound to have certian effects.

It is much more agreeable to look forward to the prosperous future which is well within our grasp if we all pull together and act with foresight and self-control,—employers giving all the wages and other advantages that their business can possibly afford, and employes exercising all the energy and intelligence they possess for their country's sake and their own, if not from any particular regard for their employer.

This is the future we look forward to; and our chief ground of hope for the country is, frankly, a sense of the inborn shrewdness of the workers.

They are quite capable of seeing ahead, as well as remembering the past. They know very well that life is not going to be possible, let alone comfortable, without hard work and a lot of it.

Ther are some men who lie as fast as a dog can trot, and others who pour out falsehood without knowing it from truth. Between them, they delude the ignorant, in Russia and elsewhere, by dream pictures of life as a perfumed avenue of roses, with trees at conveniently short intervals dropping ripe fruit into every saunterer's mouth.

The hard-headed men of our better educated races cannot be easily decoyed into a painted landscape, to starve among the imitation fruit. They know all about the primrose way to the everlasting bonfire; any they have not the slightest hankering for any conflagration, here or hereafter, in which they themselves would be the fuel.

THE WORLD'S PRESS

A Terrible Crime!

Winnipeg Free Press: Edward Thomas, colored, and Helen Scott, charged with the same offence, were remanded until Thursday.

Must Get to Work.

Kansas City Times: Increased production, of course, will lower the cost of living and raise living standards, and do a lot of good in several other ways. But probably it is out of the question, because in order to attain increased production, somebody is going to have to work several hours several days for several weeks.

Love of the Sea.

New York Times: Love of the sea, a hankering for it that will not down and that inhabits individuals and families and races. Perhaps love is a poor word. Your seaman may hate the sea and curse it out, but he can't resist signing up for a new voyage. The sea stirs farmer boys on the prairies and sends them around the world. Its grip on certain humans is the strongest fact in their lives, and whatever else the scientists may prove as to its inheritance and its pedigree, it is one of the fates that control the lives and destinies of men and nations.

Film Bachelors.

London Daily Express: The cinema has certainly come into its own in the United States. The range of studies and degrees has always been much wider in American than in English universities, and now the University of California (the home State of the film-making industry) has inaugurated a chair of scenario writing. The first occupant is Professor Carl Snell, and the students who obtain the scenario writing degree will be entitled to add to their names the letters "S.W.D. Cal."

Great Men and Little Men.

Boston Globe: Is it a great thing to be a Senator—to have your name in print and on men's' tongues? That is a brief and trivial glory. It is a greater thing to dignify an obscure position by the excellence and integrity of one's service. To do that is to wear invisibly the jeweled emblem of high office which flashed and glittered on the breast of him who came robed in the coarse garb of a monk, but with spiritual authority in his eye. The world is far better served by a great man in a small job than by a small man in a great job.

Plain Speaking.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Let us have peace. Let us begin the works of peace. Let us set our house in order. Let us stand on a firm basis of international amity as we turn to the needful business of readjustment. Let us have a free hand to deal with our profiteers; let us have a clear brain to grapple with the problems of labor and economics. And let us, at the same time, give the rest of the world a chance to get on its feet. Let us clear the way for the great recovery instead of blocking the path of those in darkness who are struggling toward the light. et us have our interpretations; volumes of them, if necessary; but let us cease to stand as a nation of gabblers playing at oratory while all the world cries for our help and our leadership.

Nothing New Under the Sun.

Christian Science Monitor: The very drastic measure of punishment which is being advocated by two deputies of the Pas de Calais as the only sufficient deterrent to profiteers is apparently no new thing. It is, in fact, just a modern edition of a demand which was made some two thousand years ago and more in Athens, and acceded to. One of the brilliant orations of Lysias deals with this very subject of profiteering, and advocates, with all the persuasiveness of the Greek orator, punishment by execution. The French press treats this proposal by the Pas de Calais deputies as something of a joke, albeit an unpleasant one. Paris of today is not Athens two thousand and some hundred years ago, and as a French paper wisely remarks. "Once erect the guillotine and it would take a wise man to say whose head would escape the basket."

Chicago's View of Imperialism.

Chicago Tribune: The imperial motive remains, although two great empires have been temporarily and one permanently removed from the world contest. Imperial Russia and Imperial Germany are helpless at this moment, but imperial Britain, imperial France, imperial Italy, imperial Japan have not changed their policies or principles, their ambitions or "aspirations." On the contrary, we see the British enormously aggrandized by the virtual acquisition of Germany's African dominion and by the absorption of Persia; we see France and Italy taking spheres carved from Turkey; we see Japan in possession of Shantung and the German island possessions north of the equator. We do not see any disposition to treat "self-determination" in anything but a Pickwickian sense.

Possession.

Life has joy for everyone
  Who has a mind to find it.
The soul must see immediately,
  Nor stop, nor look behind it;
A bright wing flashing in the sun
  Has power to lift up anyone.

Life has joy for any man
  Who lifts his hand to take it—
Prism of the morning and
  The great sun that can make it;
Rain upon a dusty leaf
  Can comfort even bullen grief.

—Louise Driscoll, in The Nation.

London—Mr. Chamberlain has proposed another conference with President Kruger, Germany has plainly intimated to the Boers that they must expect no help from them in case of hostilities with Britain.

Shakespeare's People

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The characters in Shakespeare's plays are just as real in the mind of the world as the characters in history.

The first class in literature will now stand up and answer the following questions, to see how well they are acquainted with these people. Give the name of the play in which the character occurs, and, if possible, add some bit of information.

1. Ariel. 2. Mark Antony. 3. Antonio. 4. Sir Andrew Aguecheek. 5. Audrey. 6. Bassanio. 7. Sir Toby Belch. 8. Benedick. 9. Benvolio. 10. Bottom. 11. Brutus. 12. Ann Bullen. 13. Caliban. 14. French-Canadian Views

GENERAL BOTHA.

La Patrie: — The death of General Botha will be an irreparable loss to South Africa. To him more than to anyone else the people of the Transvaal owe the liberties which they enjoy and the democratic form of government with which the country has been endowed. When the Boers, vanquished and spent laid down their arms Britain with a graciousness and a generosity that history will record called together the leaders of the rebellion and entrusted the direction of affairs to them. General Botha who had particularly distinguished himself in the field proved a statesman of renown. He preached peace, conciliation and harmony. There is still some uneasines in certain sections of South Africa but it is to be hoped that soon all peace-loving people will accept the free institutions that Britain has bestowed upon them.

La Presse. — The sudden death of General Louis Botha, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa will afford keen regrets not only in the country which he has made famous by his war exploits and which he has governed so successfully for some years past, but also throughout the whole length of the United Kingdom and the British colonies. General Louis Botha quite as much during the time as when he was a simple Boer Patriot as when he freely accepted the opportunity of becoming a loyal subject of His Majesty the King of England gave proof of the civilian and military virtues which every good citizen would be well to imitate.

Le Canada. — With the passing of General Botha one of the most eminent statesmen of the Empire has gone,—a man who perhaps expressed better than anyone else the principle of colonial liberty to which we wish the governments of the different dominions to remain faithful.

Sir,—We all know how the above letters have been parodied—You May Call Again, etc. Therefore, in this time of tumult, it is correct to ask when will the energies of the administrators of the Young Men's Christian Associations be directed Rightly, so that Procrastination will be changed into Persuaded To Do The Very Best. I Thess. 5:22, Matt. 8:26. AGE.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star:

Sir,—I read the letters of the English lady, who compares the conduct of people in Montreal, to those of England, but she certainly fergets that to call a number of children "a bunch" is not becoming; then another lady reproves her of this phrase and before she gets through she herself calls them "kids," another slang term. Then to crown it all another says if people are "unfortunate enough" "to have a bunch of children!" Whatever does she mean? Does she not realize that children are created by God himself, who said "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." We have just passed through the great war, where thousands of our noble men have fallen and without children we can never hold our place in the world. God bless the children.

A STREET SCENE.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—It has been my intention to write to you several times in regard to the cruelty to animals that goes on in this city, but have not had sufficient courage to do so, until I saw an act of cruelty yesterday which fairly made my blood boil. As I was passing through Bonsecours Market I noticed a butcher in the act of killing a hen. The manner in which he killed the hen was by simply bending the hen's head backward, then pressing body of the hen towards his stomach Now it took nearly two minutes to kill that hen, and you can just imagine the pain the hen suffered before dying. What astonishes me is this: How on earth can any one stand there and see the thing killed in such a heartless manner and then go home and make a meal of it? Have we no S. P. C. A. in this city to take care of such things, or, if there is one, has it gone to sleep?

CORN PROFITEERS.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—This is the season when those, who have a liking for the succulent young corn on the cob, may indulge in their gastronomic enjoyment. The harvest of these is generous, but, unfortunately the paper serviette restaurants, charge an enormous price. Retailers sell for 25c per dozen, so that restauranteurs, buying wholesale, cannot pay more than 1¼c each. They assess patrons 10c each. At 5c the profit would be 275 per cent and to it, no one would object, but it is monstrous that the common garden, paper-serviette variety of restaurants should soak their patrons 550 pe cent (five hundred and fifty per cent). This is some more of the 500 to 1,000 per cent stuff, of which the Government is well aware, as per the investigation of its experts, but it refuses to budge. Why? Probably, because the interests of The Interests are involved. Government restaurants could sell one morceau for 5c and make a profit. But, as the small boy, said, "Nothing Doing."

Montreal. SANQUHAR.

SYMBOLS OF SACRIFICE.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—We all take much pride in seeing so many of our soldier boys wearing the button which indicates service for King, Country and Humanity. It is an inspiration to the younger generation and has an influence in building up a spirit of manhood which is of so much value to Canada. Can we not, however, go further and furnish to the next of kin of those brave boys who paid the supreme sacrifice, a distinctive button or other emblem to be worn in a manner similar to that worn by the returned soldier. While it may be true some of the next of kin would hesitate to wear such a badge, I am convinced that upon second thought they would appreciate they were paying a tribute to those who can never be included in the ranks of the boys who came home.

My boy is home and wears a button, but what of his comrades sleeping in France? Are there not many who would wear a badge in memory of those who have been less fortunate than our boys who have come back to us. In our pride of the living, we should not fail to honor the fallen.

I offer this suggestion hoping that it will interest your readers, and that you will find it worthy of consideration.

SMOKING ON TRAINS.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star:

Sir, A man signing himself "Country Air," says as much as that smokers have a right to indulge in the weed in trains on the N.Y. Central and presumably in other public places, and that regulations that prohibit smoking are absurd, etc.

He terms those who object to being compelled to breathe smoke-laden atmosphere "cranks" and thinks this an "age of democracy." Is it democracy in Russia that assumes to dictate who may hold money or any personal freedom or is it Bolshevism?

As a smoker the writer holds that he does not wish to force on others anything of any nature that may cause discomfort and there are many similarly minded.

It is a fact that there are people who cannot smell certain things, as tobacco and coffee, without becoming nauseated. Not long since a non-smoker had to be helped off an excursion train into Bonaventure station, because of illness caused by the smoke he had inhaled on the car. At the time he did not know the source of the trouble. I have seen a lady violently sick from smoke, breathed on a street car.

CHAPTER XXI—(Continued)

And as Torres passed out of the shop, not in any way attempting to hide the scorn and contempt he felt for the fool he had made of the jeweller, he knew elation in that Fernandez, the Spanish fox, must have cut his estimate of the gem's value fully in half when he uttered it.

* * *

In the meanwhile, descending the Gualca River by canoe, Leoncia, the queen, and the two Morgans, had made better time than Torres to the coast. But ere their arrival and briefly pending it, a matter of moment that was not appreciated at the time, had occurred at the Solano hacienda. Climbing the winding pathway to the hacienda, accompanied by a decrepit old crone whose black shawl over head and shoulders could not quite hide the lean and withered face of blasted volcanic fire, came as strange a call as the hacienda had ever received.

He was a Chinaman, middle-aged and fat, whose moon-face beamed the beneficient good nature that seems usual with fat persons. By name, Yi Peon, meaning "the Cream of the Custard Apple," his manners were as softly and richly oily as his name. To the old crone, who tottered beside him and was half-supported by him, he was the quintessence of gentleness and consideration.

When she faltered from shear physical weakness and would have fallen, he paused and gave her chance to gain strength and breath. Thrice, at such times, on the climb to the hacienda, he fed her a spoonful of French brandy from a screw-cap pocket flask.

WITH A SECRET.

Seating the old woman in a selected, shady corner of the piazza, Yi Peon boldly knocked for admittance at the front door. To him, and in his business, back-stairs was the accustomed way, but his business and his wit had taught him the times when front entrances were imperative.

The Indian maid who answered his knock, took his message into the living room, where sat the disconsolate Enrico Solano among his sons—disconsolate at the report Ricardo had brought in of the loss of Leoncia in the Maya Mountain. The Indian maid returned to the door. The Senor Solano, was indisposed and would see nobody, was her report, humbly delivered, even though the recipient was a Chinaman.

"Hugh!" observed Yi Poen, with Braggart confidence for the purpose of swing the maid to carrying a second message. "I am no coolie. I am smart Chinaman. I go to school plenty much. I speak Spanish. I speak English. I write Spanish. I write English. See—I write now in Spanish for the Senor Solano. You cannot write, so you cannot thus place to see Senor Solano. Big business. Much important. Very secret. I write all this here on paper which you cannot read."

But he did not say that he had further written:

"The Senorita Solano. I have great secret."

It was Alesandro, the oldest of the tall sons of Solano, who evidently had received the note, for he came bounding to the door, far outstripping the returning maid.

"Tell me your business," he almost shouted at the fat Chinese, "What is it? Quick."

"Very good business," was the reply." Yi Peon noting the other's excitement with satisfaction. "I make much money. I buy—what you call—secrets. I sell secrets. Very nice business."

"What do you know about the Senorita Solano?" Alesandro shouted, gripping him by the shoulder.

"Everything. Very important information——"

But Alesandro could no longer control himself. He almost hurled the Chinaman into the house, and, not relaxing his grip, rushed him on into the living room and up to Enrico.

"He has news of Leoncia?" Alesandro shouted.

"Where is she?" Enrico and his son shouted in chorus.

Hah!—was Yi Peon's thought. Such excitement, although it augured well for his business, was rather for him as well.

Mistaking his busy thinking for fright, Enrico stilled his sons back with an upraised hand, and addressed the visitor quietly.

"Where is she?" Enrico asked.

WHAT HE KNEW.

Hah!—thought Yi Peon. The Senorita was lost. That was a new secret. It might be worth something some day, or any day. A nice girl, of high family and wealth such as the Solano, lost in a Latin-American country, was information well worth possessing. Some day she might be married—there was that gossip he had heard in Colon—and some later day might have trouble with her husband or her husband have trouble with her—at which time, she or her husband, it mattered not which, might be eager to pay high for the secret.

"This Senorita Leoncia," he said, finally, with sleek suavity. "She is not your girl. She has other pap and mama."

But Enrico's present grief at her loss was too great to permit startlement at this explicit statement of an old secret.

"Yes?" he nodded. "Though it is not known outside my family. I adopted her when she was a baby. It is strange that you should know this. But I am not interested in having you tell me what I have long since known. What I want to know now is: Where is she now?"

Yi Peon gravely and sympathetically shook his head.

"That is different secret," he explained. "Maybe I find that secret. Then I sell it to you. But I have old secret. You do not know that name of the Senorita Leoncia's papa and mama. I know."

And old Enrico Solano could not hide his interest at the temptation of such information.

"Speak," he commanded. "Name the names, and prove them, and I shall reward."

"No." Yi Peon shook his head. "Very poor business. I no do business that way. You pay me I tell you. My secrets good secrets. I prove my secrets. You give me five hundred pesos and big expenses from Colon to San Antonio and back to Colon and I tell you name of papa and mama."

Enrico Solano bowed acquiescence and was just in the act of ordering Alesandro to go and fetch the money when the quiet, spirit-subdued Indian maid created a diversion. Running into the room and up to Enrico, as they had never seen her run before, she wrung her hands and wept so incoherently that they knew her paroxysm was of joy, not of sadness.

"The Senorita?" she was finally able to whisper hoarsely as she indicated the side piazza with a nod of head and glance of eyes. "The Senorita?"

And Yi Peon and his secret were forgotten. Enrico and his sons streamed out to the side piazza to behold Leoncia and the Queen and the two Morgans, dropping dust-covered off the back of riding mules recognizable as from the pastures of the mouth of the Qualaca River. At the same time two Indians man servants, summoned by the maid, cleared the house and grounds of the fat Chinaman and his old crone of a companion.

"Come some other time," they told him, "Just now the Senor Solano is very importantly busy."

"Sure, I come some other time," Yi Poen assured them pleasantly, without resentment and without betrayal of the disappointment that was his at his deal interrupted just ere the money was paid into his hands.

HE DEPARTED RELUCTANTLY.

But he departed reluctantly. The place was good for his business. It was sprouting secrets. Never was there a riper harvest in Canaan out of which, sickle in hand, a husbandman was driven. Had it not been for the zealous Indian attendants, Yi Peon would have darted around the corner of the hacienda to note the newcomers. As it was, half way down the rill, finding the weight of the crone too fatiguing, he put into her the life and ability to carry her own weight a little farther by feeding her a double teaspoon of brandy from his screw-top flask.

Enrico swept Leoncia off her mule ere she could dismount, so passionately eager was he to fold her into his arms. For several minutes ensued naught but noisy Latin affection as her brothers all strove to greet and embrace her at once. When they recollected themselves, Francis had already helped the Lady Who Dreams from her mount, and beside her, her hand in his, was waiting recognition.

"This is my wife," Francis told Enrico. "I went to Cordilleras after treasure and behold what I found. Was there ever better fortune?"

"And she sacrificed a great treasure herself," Leoncia murmured bravely.

"She was Queen of a little kingdom," Francis added, with a grateful and admiring flash of eyes to Leoncia, who quickly added:

"And she saved all our lives but sacrificed her little kingdom in so doing."

And Leoncia put her arm around the Queen's waist, took her away from Francis, and led her into the hacienda.

CHAPTER XXII.

In all the magnificence of a medieval Spanish and New World costume such as was still affected by certain of the great haciendos of Panama, Torres rode along the beach road to the home of the Solanos. Running with him at so easy a lope that it promised an extension that would outspeed the best of Torres's steed, was the great white hound that had followed him down the subterranean river.

As Torres turned to take the winding road up the hill to the hacienda, he passed Yi Peon who had paused to let the old crone gather strength. He merely noticed the strange couple as dirt of the common people. The hauteur that he put on with his magnificence of apparel forbade that he should betray any interest further than an unseeing glance.

But him Yi Peon noted with slant Oriental eyes that missed no details. And Yi Peon thought: He looks very rich. He is a friend of the Solanos. He rides to the house. He may even be a lover of the Senorita Leoncia—or a worsted rival for her love. In almost any case he might be expected to buy the secret of the Senorita Leoncia's birth, and he certainly looks rich, most rich.

Inside the hacienda, assembled in the living room were the returned adventurers and all the Solanos. The Queen taking her turn in piecing out the narrative of all that had occurred with flashing eyes was denouncing Torres for his theft of her jewels and describing his fall into the whirlpool before the onslaught of the hound, when Leoncia, at the window with Henry, uttered a sharp exclamation.

"Speak of the devil!" said Henry. "Here comes Torres himself."

"Me first!" Francis cried, doubling his fist and flexing his biceps significantly.

"No," decreed Leoncia. "He is a wonderful liar. He is a very wonderful liar, as we've all found out. Let us have some fun. He is dismounting now. Let the four of us disappear. Father!" With a wave of hand she indicated Enrico and all his sons. "You will sit around desolated over the loss of me. This scoundrel Torres will enter. You will be thirsty for information. He will tell you no one can guess what astounding lies about us. As for us, we'll hide behind the screen there. Come! All of you."

READY FOR TORRES.

And, catching the Queen by the hand and leading the way, with her eyes she commanded Francis and Henry to follow to the hiding place.

And Torres entered upon a scene of sorrow which had been so recently real that Enrico and his sons had no difficulty in acting it. Enrico started up from his chair in eagerness of welcome and sank weakly back. Torres caught the other's hand in both his own and manifested deep sympathy and could not speak from emotion.

"Alas!" he finally managed heartbrokenly. "They are dead, your beautiful daughter, Leoncia. And the two Gringo Morgans are dead with her. As Ricardo, there, must know, they died in the heart of the Maya Mountain.

"It is the home of mystery," he continued, after giving due time for the subsidence of the first violent outburst of Enrico's grief. "I was with them when they died. Had they followed my counsel they would all have lived. But not even Leoncia would listen to the old friend of the Solanos. No, she must listen to the two Gringos. After incredible dangers I won my way out through the heart of the mountain, gazed down into the Valley of Lost Souls, and returned into the mountain to find them dying——"

Here, pursued by an Indian manservant, the white hound bounded into the room, trembling and whining in excitement as with its nose it quested the multitudinous scents of the room that advertised his mistress. Before he could follow up to where the Queen hid behind the screen, Torres caught him by the neck and turned him over to a couple of Indian housemen to hold.

"Let the brute remain," said Torres. "I will tell you about him afterward. But first look at this." He pulled forth a handful of gems. "I knocked on the doors of the dead, and, behold, the Maya treasure is mine. I am the richest man in Panama, in all the Americas. I shall be powerfull——"

"But you were with my daughter when she died," Enrico interrupted to sob. "Had she no word for me?"

"Yes," Torres sobbed back, genuinely affected by the death scene of his fancy. "She died with your name on her lips. Her last words were——"

But with bulging eyes, he failed to complete his sentence, for he was watching Henry and Leonica, in the most natural, casual manner in the world stroll down the room, immersed in quiet conversation. Not noticing Torres, they crossed over to the window still deep in talk.

"You were telling what her last words were . . .?" Enrico prompted.

"I—I have lied to you," Torres stammered, while he sparred for time in which to lie himself out of the scrape. "I was confident that they were as good as dead and would never find their way to the world again. And I thought to soften the blow to you, Senor Solano, by telling what I am confident would be her last words were she dying. Also, this man, Francis, whom you have elected to like. I thought it better for you to believe him dead than know him for the Gringo cur he is."

Here the hound barked joyfully at the screen, giving the two Indians all they could do to hold him back. But Torres, instead of suspecting, blundered on to his fate.

"In the valley there is a silly, weak, demented creature who pretends to read the future by magic. An altogether atrocious and blood-thirsty female is me. I am not denying that in physical beauty she is beautiful. For beautiful she is, as a centipede is beautiful. You see what has happened. He has sent Henry and Leonica out of the valley by some secret way, while Francis has elected to remain there with her in sin—for sin it is since there exists in the valley no Catholic priest to make their relation lawful. Oh, not that Francis is infatuated with the terrible creature. But he is infatuated with a paltry treasure the creature possesses.

"And this is the Gringo Francis you have welcomed into the bosom of your family, the slimy snake of a Gringo Francis who has even dared to sully the fair Leonica by casting upon her the looks of a lover. Oh, I know of what I speak. I have seen . . ."

A joyous outburst from the hound drowned his voice, and he beheld Francis and the Queen, as deep in conversation as the two who had preceded them, walk down the room. The Queen paused to caress the hound, who stood so tall against her that his forepaws, on her shoulders, elevated his head above hers; while Torres licked his suddenly dry lips and vainly cudgelled his brains for some fresh lie with which to extricate himself from the impossible situation.

Enrico Solano was the first to break down in mirth. All his sons joined with him, while tears of sheer delight welled out of his eyes.

"I could have married her myself," Torres sneered, malignantly. "She begged me on her knees."

"And now," said Francis, "I shall save you all a dirty job by throwing him out."

WILL LABOR STAND FOR SOCIALISM?

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—A financial crisis is ahead of the country, according to leading bankers of New York, which may be one of the most serious situations the country has ever faced.

There seems to be little doubt in the minds of Wall Street leaders, judging from views expressed to a United Press reporter, but that the crisis will take a decidedly political turn. Financiers expect the radical elements among labor leaders to make a stand for communism.

While Wall Street admits that there has been a perceptible slowing down on the part of moneyed interests, bankers say they are confident of the outcome of the issue between labor and capital.

"Capital is doing some watchful waiting," explained one vice-president, connected with one of the largest institutions of the country. "Many of our clients are apprehensive. Some are scared.

"Many wealthy interests no longer care about making money. For example, this morning a client was in here, a man who keeps a million-dollar account with us. He had drawn no interest, and I asked him to wait a few minutes so that we pay him what was due.

"He didn't want it. 'What is the use,' he replied. 'More money is simply more taxes and more trouble. Never mind the interest.' Such lack of interest in pushing developments is noticeable among most of the big interests."

The crisis will be a good tonic for the country in that it will be a showdown and will end agitation, say the bankers, who predict that the decision will be along the lines of "the democracy and freedom for which our forefathers fought," as one man put it.

Wall Street is prepared for the crisis when it comes, and will be "nimble," to use the terms of finance. The bankers say the people of the country will be hardest hit, especially investors. If a drop in stocks comes, Wall Street will not be especially hard hit, according to predictions, since it does not hold the majority of the securities, contrary to the popular idea.

The bankers point out that the public's idea of Wall Street is a small group of banks which own practically all of the securities in the country. According to financiers, Wall Street owns very few securities, and is merely an exchange for savings banks of the country. Either the savings banks or small private investors own by far the largest parts of American stocks. The Pennsylvania Railroad, with its one hundred thousand stockholders, and the Santa Fe, with its forty thousand owners, as well as many other large corporations, are cited as examples.

AMERICANS TO HELP IN PRESERVING FISH

Co-operation in Keeping Marauding Anglers off St. Lawrence Grounds

BROCKVILLE, Sept. 1. — Recent developments in the work of northern New York residents, and members of the summer colony of the St. Lawrence River" in bringing about co-operation between American and Canadian sportsmen and officials in an effort to improve the fishing laws on the St. Lawrence in the Thousand Islands section, point to definite action which leads to a tightening of the regulations against legal fishing.

Among those most active are Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways and Canals; H. C. Ellis, Ottawa, and William Gilbert of Cincinnati, Ohio; prominent members of the summer colony. Both Dr. Reid and Mr. Gilbert are willing to give $200 each towards a fund to pay a man who will protect the fishing on the Canadian side from Gananoque, across from Clayton to Dark Island, a few miles below Alexandria Bay. It is expected that enough others will contribute to insure a protector being on duty this fall and winter. Marauding anglers and netters are alleged to be playing hob with the fish.

AGUINALDO NOW CAPTAIN OF INDUSTRY

Word comes from the Philippines, via Seattle, that Emilio Aguinaldo, famed in his youth as a captain of the insurrectos, is winning new fame in his sedate middle age as a captain of industry, so to speak. Not only is he the owner of valuable agricultural holdings in the islands, returned travelers report, but he is vice-president of two big cocoanut oil concerns recently organized. One-third of the world's supply of cocoanut oil, it is explained, comes from the Philippine islands, and the two companies in which Aguinaldo is interested are important factors in that trade. Back in the nineties, at the age of 26, Aguinaldo headed a formidable revolution against the Spanish Government, then administering the Philippines. When the Spanish-American War broke and the American expedition against those far-away Spanish possessions was organized his aid was sought by the American commanders. His ragged troops co-operated with the American forces, but their young captain broke with the Americans when the peace treaty with Spain gave over the islands to American control instead of granting them independence. He took the warpath again, with the title of provisional president, and during the campaign that followed his name was by way of being a household word in America. Finally, in March, 1901, he and his staff were captured by an American force, led by Funston, and soon afterward took the oath of allegiance. During the eighteen years that have passed since his surrender and acceptance of American control in the Philippines, both Aguinaldo and the islands have prospered probably beyond his own expectations. His influence with his Filipino countrymen continues very great, according to report. But his liking for revolution seems to have vanished entirely, and the writer of an article on the Philippines, recently published by an American periodical, intimated that this one-time passionate champion of Philippine independence is not now disposed to favor the grant of immediate independence.—New Orleans Times.

BIG RECONSTRUCTION ORDER PLACED

Vancouver—The British Government has placed an order here for 70,000,000 feet of lumber to be used in Europe for reconstruction purposes. The mills have already shipped 12,000,000 feet by the sea route. It is expected 50,000,000 feet will be sent by the end of the year.

FORMER PREMIUMS ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE

The Canadian Bank of Commerce August letter recalls that prior to Confederation a high premium on New York funds was not unknown. A minute of the Board of the Gore Bank on January 9, 1838, orders "that no drafts on New York shall be sold at less than 3 per cent and only then to persons who keep a regular account at the bank, unless the same is paid in specie, Upper Canada, or Gore Bank notes." A monetary crisis in Great Britain in 1836 had precipitated the panic of 1837 in the United States owing to the endeavor to withdraw large amounts of British capital recently invested in that country. During this panic large numbers of the banks in the United States suspended payment and for a short time a similar suspension took place in Canada. The Gore Bank acted as redemption agent in Hamilton for the notes of the Bank of Upper Canada, which explains the allusion to notes of that bank.

Again, in December, 1838, the cashier of the Gore Bank writes the cashier of the City Bank, Montreal: "The Bank of Upper Canada sells on New York at 5 per cent advance, and I am told some of the other banks charge a still higher rate." Then, as now, the trade of Canada was largely with the United States, and the balances were frequently against us.

The position of the Canadian buyer in the United States, although not a desirable one just now, is relatively speaking more advantageous than that of the buyer from any other country, excepting Japan, Spain and Argentina. German money is at a discount of 74 per cent, Italian 39 per cent, Belgian 30½ per cent, French 30 per cent, English 10 per cent, Swiss 7½ per cent, Dutch 6 per cent, Danish 17 per cent, Norwegian 11 per cent, and Swedish, 7.6 per cent.

GOLD MOVEMENT FROM UNITED STATES HEAVY

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—While gold exports from the United States in July, 1919, fell to $54,673,227 from $82,972,840 for June, they have been exceeded in amount but four times since January, 1914. Adverse balance on the monthly movement was $52,826,732 as against $56,838,380 for June, 1919; imports for July amounting to but $1,846,495, compared with $26,134,460 in June.

For seven months of the current year exports exceed imports by $89,390,211, as compared with a favorable balance of $30,975,930 for twelve months in 1918 and of $180,570,490 for the whole year 1917.

Figures for 1919, and the yearly gold movement since 1914, follow:

	Imports.	Exports.	Exc. Imps.
1919*..	$ 62,291,582	$165,481,793†$	99,390,211

TAKES HOPEFUL VIEW OF MEXICAN OUTLOOK

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—A Wall Street man with substantial interests in Mexico expresses himself hopeful over the outlook despite conditions in some respects south of the Rio Grande are about as bad as they could be.

He points to the fact that some of the large oil companies operating in Mexico are going forward with developments and making large expenditures, which, he says, they certainly would not do were conditions not such as to warrant some measure of confidence in the situation. Oil production is declared to be about the only operation showing any sign of life in Mexico.

The reason for this is said to be that oil operations afford revenue for the revolutionist group that happens to be in control in any particular production district. Consequently, the militarists levy their tax or tribute, and in turn see that no harm comes to the source of their revenue.

This situation temporarily is affording protection to these interests in which so much American capital is invested and is expected to continue to do so until there is some change. The firmer hand with which Washington is handling the situation is gratifying to affected interests. There is a feeling in some quarters that there may be further developments, as it is believed to be becoming a question of United States untangling the snarl or stepping aside and allowing some other responsible party to do it.

From private and highly reliable sources of information word comes that living conditions in Mexico, except in the more developed and protected sections, are frightful in the extreme. People are reported to be searching for food like animals, and in some sections even women and children are said to be going without clothing of any kind.

The feeling is that nothing short of a hand as vigorous as that of the former dictator, Diaz, only more benevolent, will be able to bring some semblance of order out of the chaos.

NOBLE OWNS HALF OF MORAVIA

Brunn—Half of all the land in Moravia, which comprises a fourth of Czecho-Slovakia, is owned by one man, an old Austrian nobleman now in exile. The government will now split it up in small farms for the people.

Of the 60,000 or more daily and weekly newspapers in the world, more than half are printed in the English language.

SHORT HOURS HIT BRITISH METAL TRADE

Special Star Cable:

LONDON, Sept. 1. — At the annual meeting of Walter Scott Limited, at Newcastle it was said that the production of finished steel was 10 per cent down on the year, that the cost of production had greatly increased and that a fair number of orders was on hand, but America is here selling billets, blooms, rails and tramway rails below the company's cost of manufacture.

The general tendency of the workmen is to produce less per shift than formerly. The outlook is most uncertain and in no way encouraging.

The chairman of the United Steel Companies claims that prior to the war the average price of steel roducts was £5 :o £6 per ton and that now it is £15 to £16, an additional 6s per ton in the cost of coal had increased the cost of production of a ton of steel 25s.

The South Wales tin plats trade is active, especially on the export side—notably Germany. Also there are heavy inquiries from Austria, South America and Japan.

Tin plate and galsanized sheet manufacturers are anxious regarding supplies of steel bars, especially in view of the probable cessation of imports from America.

The South Wales coal output is still 20 per cent below that of early in July. Twelve and one half per cent of the reduction is due to shorter hours.

A continuation of the export trade, meanwhile is impossible, as many vessels have been ordered to remain in coastal trade.

Approximate coal export quotations for the end of September are: Large bunkers, 70s to 85s per ton; small, 70s; others 50s to 65s.

THE COMPRADORE IS CHINA'S CREDIT MAN

When a foreign firm opens up in China, one of its first cares is to select a compradore. This individual is usually a wealthy merchant of the town with considerable real property. He becomes, not an employe, but a kind of associate of the foreign business man, and while keeping up in many cases his own independent commercial ventures, he establishes an office connection with the firm's offices, where he acts as intermediary for all transactions with Chinese customers. No Chinese order is booked without his approval, for he takes the place of our "credit man" and knows who can be trusted and to what extent. But he differs from the credit man in that he, in return for a commission on the transaction, assumes full responsibility for it, and pays up himself if the customer defaults. Being a man of property he can do this, and to make assurance doubly sure, the foreigner usually requires him to deposit security in the form of title deeds to land or even cash in some cases. When the goods are finally delivered it is not usual to give long credits. In one of the principal ports of China payments are usually made at once through what are called native bank orders, i.e., cheques dated five or ten days ahead and certified by some Chinese bank. In other words, very little real credit business is done, according to our idea of that term, and it is consequently not surprising that there are so few losses.—From Asia Magazine for August.

NOTES ON 'CHANGE

The new scale of wheat prices announced yesterday by Julius H. Barnes, and posted in the Chicago board of Trade ars as follow: The price for numbers 1 and 2 northern remains the same as last year $2.21½, for No. 1 and $2.18½ for No. 2, at Minneapolis. Other prices follow:

No. 3, northern $2.15½; No. 4 northern 2.11½ and No. 5 northern $2.07½.

Under the regulations of the grain corporation all dealers will be required to pay producers not less than the proper country point reflection of the terminal guaranteed price for wheat grading No. 1, and with the return for other grades as follows:

No. 2 wheat three cents under No. 1. No. 3 wheat three cents under No. 2; No. 4 wheat four cents under No. 3 and No. 5 wheat four cents under No. 4.

The exportation of wool from Australia to the United States will become possible after June 30, 1920, when the Central Wool Committee, which has controlled the output of the commodity for the British Government, ceases its activities.

According to an arrangement between the British Government and Australia, all Australian wool had been sold to Great Britain until the end of the 1920 fiscal year. Further control of the commonwealth may be necessary it is believed unless an effort is made to increase the available shipping.

Salt to the extent of 5,000,000 square miles, with a layer one mile in thickness, is the estimated result of the sea drying up.

Since the graph was prepared New York echange has fallen as low as 3¼ per cent. annum.—Canadian Bank of Commerce chart.

EXPECT VERY LITTLE TRADE WITH GERMANY

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—So far trade with Germany is not reviving to any extent. The arrival here of the steamer Keresan from Hamburg with a cargo consisting of only 181 packages of glassware confirms the opinion of shipping men that there will be little freight available for westbound trip of vessels plying between the United States and Germany. Such news as has been received from the other side respecting Germany's ability to resume her export commerce has been the basis of this supposition, which has existed for some time in the shipping trade, and the coming of the Keresan, the first ship to arrive from Hamburg, was accepted as in line with expectations.

The lifting of the ban on the importation of German potash has opened up a possible source of cargoes from Hamburg to this country. Shipping men report that they have received inquiries from several firms here relative to a supply of this material from Germany. No information has been forthcoming from Germany, however, to indicate the extent to which potash exports may be anticipated.

SAY SWISS SILKS ARE CHEAPER IN CANADA

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. — Swiss silk manufacturers are reported to be competing successfully in the markets of Canada against American products. Canadian buyers now in New York say that Swiss exporters are able to undersell grades of silk, and what is of greater importance, the Canadian merchants get quick deliveries from Switzerland.

American silk exporters are optimistic regarding the future, nevertheless. They point out that the trade advantages, such as a most favored nation clause, and a favorable rate of exchange between Switzerland and Canada, have made it possible for the Swiss to undersell them in Canada, but in the South American countries, where the merchants of both countries must compete on an equal footing, they do not believe a similar situation will arise.

Better Wool Market, But Sales Not Heavy

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—The commercial Bulletin says:

"There is a better tone to the market this week. Sales have not been of large proportions, but there has been somewhat more business and with the improvement in exchange and with the manufacturers a long way from "covered" on raw material more confidence exists.

"The foreign markets are firm and the tendency is higher in Europe. The manufacturing situation is hardly changed, the call for deliveries being very insistent."

BANK CLEARINGS ARE WELL BELOW RECORD

August bank clearings in Montreal were well under the high record in May having shown a monthly decline since then. The May was $567,107,133.

June, July and August rank next, the total for the banking month ended today being $498,289,157, or $68,817,976 less than in May. The month's total is, however, $106,527,349 ahead of the same month last year.

For the first eight months of the year to date the clearings total $3,852,516,728, an increase of $945,796,683 over the same number of months last year. By months the clearings have been as follows:

	1919.	1918.

TONNAGE IN WAR TIMES MADE GAIN

LONDON, Sept. 1. — The newly issued edition of "Lloyd's Register of Shipping" for 1919-20 is of much interest, says a review of the work published in the "Board of Trade Journal." This is the first issue of the "Register" entirely free from censorship since the war began. The main body of the book, which contains particulars of all sea-going vessels of 100 tons and upwards, has been revised and brought up to date, the necessity of all concealment as to losses having been eliminated.

Most interesting of the many tables presented is that which sets forth the tonnage owned by different countries. The figures contained in the corresponding table for July, 1914, showed that at that time there were about 45,404,000 tons gross of steamers and 3,686,000 tons net (approximately equal to 4,050,000 tons gross) of sailing vessels. The present figures are: Steam tonnage, 47,897,000 tons and sailing tonnage 3,022,000 tons. It will thus be seen that the tonnage of steamers has increased by nearly 2,500,000 tons, while the sail tonnage has decreased by about 1,020,000 tons gross.

Since 1914 it is shown that the seagoing tonnage of the United States has increased by about 7,750,000 tons, equal to more than 382 per cent as compared with the 1914 totals. Japan has added 617,000 tons to her merchant tonnage, equal to over 36 per cent, and the British Dominions have added 231,000 tons, or over 14 per cent more. On the other hand, the countries where the greatest decrease has taken place are: The United Kingdom, showing a loss of more than 2,500,000 tons; Greece, 530,000 tons Norway, 360,000 tons; Italy, 185,000 tons; Spain 175,000 tons, and Denmark, 139,000 tons.

One of the most striking results of the comparison of the 1919 and the 1914 figures is the relative position of the United Kingdom and the United States. In 1914, 41.6 per cent of the world's tonnage was owned in the United Kingdom, and 4.46 per cent was composed of seagoing tonnage of the United States; the present figures are: United Kingdom, 34.1 per cent, United States, 24.9 per cent, including 20.4 per cent of the seagoing tonnage.

After the United Kingdom and the United States—and excluding Germany—Norway, France and Japan were the leading countries in 1914. The order, however, has now been reversed as regards Norway and Japan, the latter country now leading with 2,325,000 tons. France, notwithstanding her large losses during the war, has actually added 40,000 tons to the steam tonnage owned in 1914. Greece has suffered seriously owing to the war. In 1902 this country had 283,000 tons of steam tonnage, which in 1914 had grown to 821,000 tons. The present total, 291,000 tons, is practically the same as was owned in that country seventeen years ago. The loss of tonnage as compared with 1914 of the Scandinavian countries — Norway, Sweden and Denmark — amounts to about 600,000 tons, equal to 16 per cent of the total tonnage owned by these countries in 1914.

Norway has lost the largest amount, 360,000 tons; Denmark, 139,000, and Sweden, 98,000. Of the other principal neutral countries Spain has lost 175,000 tons, while the present figures for Holland shows an increase of 102,000 tons. The combined net gain of France, Italy and Japan amounts to 465,000 tons.

STOPS IMMIGRATION FOR YEAR.

SYDNEY, Sept. 1.—The state of New South Wales has informed the Commonwealth Government of Australia that it will not permit any immigration for one year, in order to more successfully cope with the problem of repatriating its soldiers and sailors. This ban against immigration includes the British Isles, despite the fact that all other states of the Commonwealth have opened their doors to emigrants from England.

READY FOR MOTOR CAR INVASION OF ENGLAND

Times Cable. (Copyright).

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Regarding the lifting of the embargo on automobiles by the Government it is difficult to say as yet what will be the actual effect on the British trade. As a matter of fact the shortage is worldwide and every country could easily sell its full output in its home market, whether this course will be generally folowed remains to be seen. American industry will be in full swing again long before any other but even here, although the factories will never go on to the 100 per cent. war basis, manufacturing difficulties common to all industries and countries are being experienced.

Americans will to some extent keep their home market short in order to extend and consolidate their overseas trade. We shall have the 5,000 machines Sir Auckland Geddes talked about and probably more as soon as the freight can be found to bring them over but the cost of the new American cars will not compare with the 1914 prices. Two typical six cylindered American cars for which a good market is expected are to be approximately $5,000 and no doubt an effort will also be made to get big numbers of cheaper cars over—machines such as Ford, Maxwell, Saxon and Dodge—the prices of which will range between $1,100 and $2,000.

We understand that one American motor car firm in this country ordered 4,000 cars from the United States to be her between September 1 and Christmas.

EUROPEAN SHIPPING CONTINUES

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. — The general cargo shipment to Europe continues uninterrupted, although some hesitancy is noted on the part of foreign buyers for certain commodities, which it is hoped will soon show a decline in price. The exchange market continues to be the greatest restraint to trade in all directions, many exporters refusing to act until better conditions prevail in the money markets of the world. Business with South America, West Indies, Australia and the Far East has undergone no material change. Rates hold firm at quotations and although in some directions competition is keen it cannot be said that rate-cutting has ensued. It is not likely that shippers will exert themselves while the present congested condition of the foreign ports exists as ships are obliged to wait several days to discharge cargoes. Moreover, it is difficult to obtain return cargoes from these ports. This condition prevails at most of the British and French ports. Tonnage appears to be in good supply, and when the impending factors mentioned are removed, exports will show immediate increase not only from this port of New York, but from all the ports along the Atlantic seaboard.

There is a good demand for cargo ships to carry grain to Swiss relief, ore from the West Indies, phosphate rock from Florida, coke and coal to Chile, coal to Genoa, Havre, Rotterdam, Buenos Ayres and Rio. Just at present there is not much doing in grain from Canadian and North Atlantic ports to the United Kingdom, and the market is lower, with New York to the French Atlantic quoted at $23. Great Britain is paying 200s for oats from Argentina. Directed tonnage is getting 62s 6d to the United Kingdom, subject to license.

Around the Motion Pictures in Town

Feature at New Grand

The presentation of some of Mack Sennett's Bathing Beauties drew large audiences to the New Grand Theatre all yesterday. Montrealers are obviously interested in the latest Californian designs of bathing costumes intended strictly NOT to be subjected to the treatment of the bad sea waves. Some of the ladies who appeared in person were also presented, for purposes of identification, in motion pictures. Whether the audience was as much interested in this as in their own vivid personalities is a moot point.

The enterprise of the New Grand management in securing this particular form of attraction for Montreal is likely to be rewarded, if Sunday's attendance may be taken as a criterion. After all, motion pictures are—motion pictures; and bathing beauties are—not motion pictures.

It is understood that later in the week some details may be forthcoming which will indicate what the bathing beauties think of motion picture studio work. In this event, their visit here will prove even more interesting, no doubt, than it would otherwise be.

AT THE IMPERIAL

David Belasco in "A Star Overnight," at the Imperial this week.

Features at Imperial

Quite apart from the star picture of "Tangled Threads," in which Bessie Barriscale holds Imperial patrons in thrall with a tense drama of marital infelicity, the Imperial has many features on the bill of fare for the current week.

The orchestra alone could have kept the house full judging by the applause and encores and will be probably the outstanding turn of the week.

The British News film is also a draw in itself. To see the march past of the Allies under the Arc de Triomphe is to see history. The pictures are worthy of the occasion and are absolutely unforgetable. They are immediately followed by close-up pictures of all the leaders of the Allied forces.

Pictures of the Prince of Wales in Ottawa are also in the bill of fare.

Thriller at Holman

The Holman has many attractive features this week. Mrs. Charlie Chaplin (Mildred Harris) stars in the role of the college girl who is ashamed of her home connections, who aims to marry above her station and ends up by making a general mess of things and finally discovers that there is no place like home.

J. T. Fiddes in solo singing is one of the new features of the Holman. There is also a terribly swift action film in which the daughter of a lumber king is abducted and where motor launches scrap with ocean going steamers and practically all of the caste swim for it at one time or another. The film is in serial form and is evidently working up to its climax.

Mr. Fiddes also introduced community singing, and, inspired by the singer, it was not long before the crowded audience were singing the choruses with the utmost zeal and enthusiasm. The audience were also keen on filling out the request slips for any particular piece to be played by the orchestra on two nights a week. It looks as if this innovation will prove very popular.

AT THE HOLMAN

John T. Fiddes, manager of the Holman Theatre, who will introduce community singing at the Holman this week.

Florence Reed at Strand

Florence Reed, the talented emotional screen and stage star, did brilliant work in "Her Code of Honor" at the Strand last night. The story itself offers her plenty of opportunity. It starts with artistic life in the Latin Quarter, Paris, and then shifts to society life in New York. With a dual role, that of an artist in Paris and then as the daughter, a well-to-do girl in New York, both having to suffer from the same error, Miss Reed offers what is probably the most powerful work of her screen career. In fact, the star states that "Her Code of Honor" is the best picture she has ever made.

Versatile, emotional and of sound artistry, Miss Reed mades a very strong appeal. The cast is of unusual strength, consisting of William Desmond and Irving Cummings.

The comedy by Harold Lloyd was very much enjoyed, though perhaps saddened by the thought of the terrible accident from which the star recently suffered preventing, maybe, any more of his delightful work.

Alice Brady at Regent

"In the Hollow of Her Hand," shown at the Regent last night, is a story full of charm and interest, never losing action for one moment. Alice Brady, who takes the principal role, and who is supported by a good cast, never lets one forget that she has a distinct personality. She is lovable and charming as the English girl who comes to a strange country alone, only to kill a man in self-defence, and then to be protected from the law by the wife of the man she killed.

The second feature on the program, Jack Pickford in "Bill Apperson's Boy," was equally enjoyable. Mr. Pickford gives a fine depiction of the mountain boy who is so brave and yet so bashful and willing to face the world alone through devotion to his mother's memory. Gloria Hope has beauty and a charming personality, and makes a splendid foil for Pickford.

THE only way to avoid being annoyed by people who persist in reading the sub-titles of a motion picture aloud is to go to sleep in their vicinity—and snore loudly.

Monroe Salisbury loves to drop quietly into the meetings of queer religious sects and listen to the remarks of the congregation and orator.

One Sunday night he dropped into the colored session of an erratic offshoot of a certain sect and heard one brother exclaiming:

"Lord, descend on this meeting. Oh, Lord, come down into our midst. Come through the roof and I'll pay for half the shingles."

Harry Mann is authority for the statement that the smartest kid in the world lives right in Los Angeles. The infant prodigy's mother requested her son "to run over to the store and get a quarter's worth of bird seed."

"Oh, maw," answered the smartest kid, "you can't fool me with that seed stuff, 'cause I know birds come from eggs."

Josephine Hill, now playing in western dramas, is fond of telling funny stories while sitting around at the studio between scenes. She sprang this one on her leading man, Jack Perrin, recently:

Two colored ladies were conversing on the street corner.

"Mandy, you all hear 'bout my brother Rastus bein' discharged from the army?" said one of the dusky duo.

"Good Lawd, child, ain't that a terrible shame? An' I just heard that he was doing such fine work there, too."

Another cast composed of persons who are constantly in the gaze of the play-going public or the musical world was chosen for the film production of "The Madonna of the Slums," the tenth of the Stage Women's War Relief Series of twelve pictures.

Madame Amelita Galli-Curci, one of the most famous singers in the world; Holbrook Blinn, Jeanne Eagels and Helen McKellar, the latter three of nation-wide fame as stage players, are to be seen in this production, which was written by Jessie Bonstelle.

A means of providing additional funds with which to maintain the soldiers' debarkation hospital in the east was the object of the Stage Women's organization in arranging for the notable series. Many of the players seen in the twelve productions had never appeared before the motion picture camera, and many among whom is David Belasco, America's foremost theatrical producer, declare that the charitable purpose of the series was all that persuaded them in this instance.

Pauline Frederick is a motor boat enthusiast. She owns a twenty-five foot racing boat and spends her time between pictures racing about Catalina Bay. In her latest picture, "Bonds of Love," by Louis Sherwin, Miss Frederick was called upon to exploit her hobby before the camera. The action demanded that she race after a runaway motor launch and rescue a little boy without stopping her own boat She turned the trick had a most enjoyable time doing it, and, incidentally, put a new kind of thrill on the screen.

* * *

William C. Dowlan, directing "Loot," recently arranged to have his players "loot" the biggest jewelry store in Los Angeles. The story provides that the gang of robbers escape by blocking traffic on the street during the robbery.

As Los Angeles pursued its lawful business four motor trucks drove up Broadway at breakneck speed and slurred lengthwise across the street.

Traffic policemen, who had been advised beforehand, rushed from all directions in an attempt to straighten out the Saragossa sea of vehicles.

At that moment ten masked men ran from the jewelry store and forced their way through the crowds.

Jack Wells assistant director, raised a hue and cry. The crowd took up the shout: "Stop Thief" and gave chase.

Ten cameras, hidden on the roofs of nearby buildings, recorded the man hunt, which included more than 5,000 Los Angelans.

Three of the "bandits" reached a waiting machine and smashed their way through the traffic jam. The other seven were caught by the crowd.

Not until the police arrived would the mob relinquish the players.

The Capitol in New York said to be the largest motion picture house in the world, with a seating capacity of 5,300, will open in a week or two. The building, situated on the corner of Broadway and Fifty First street, is rapidly approaching completion.

It is owned and will be operated by the Moredall Realty Corporation, of which Messmore Kendall, lawyer and financier, is president. Edward J. Bowes, vice-president of the company and managing director of the theatre, is the only officer of the company, who has been previously identified with the theatre. He was for several years associated with the Selwyns.

The directors, in addition to Messrs. Kendall and Bowes, are William Braden, copper operator; George Armsby of the California Packing corporation; Robert W. Chambers, the writer; General T. Coleman Du Pont, George H. Doran, the publisher, and Frank H. Hitchcock, former postmaster-general.

The gentlemen who stand outside motion picture houses and express their opinions of the outcoming audience in audible terms have still something to learn. S. M. P.

Belgian Sister Appreciates Little Niagara Boy for Gifts

Special to The Star.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, ONT., Sept. 1—Master Francis Doyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Doyle of this town, has received the following letter from Belgium in acknowledgment of articles sent to Belgium relief. The letter which is signed by Sister Oppelonia, directress of the Orphans, Women, Belgium, says:

"In the name of my little orphans I thank you for the little trousers they received of you. I was finding in the bag your address and this gave me great pleasure as I can write to you. Can you understand my English? I am a Belgian sister. I can speak French and Flemish but of the English language only a few words. I was four years with the orphans of our "Institute Refugee" in France and now we are back in Belgium at Brugge. We are longing to return to Woumeu, by Dixmude up the Yser, but our institute is entirely demolished. Can you give me, dear little friend, several addresses of generous persons to whom I can write and interest in the cause of restoring our orphans' home, money for which is needed. Perhaps a little word at your school among the children might interest them so they could help in the reconstruction of the orphans' home. Please be so good as to send the names of parents of children who help, as the orphans would be happy to know the names, so as to send a little souvenir. Whilst I thank you and your family in advance, I beg you to accept the assurance of my esteem. I am much at Woumeu, so will you please send your answer to the address."

AUSTRALIA AIDING SOLDIERS.

MELBORUNE, Sept. 1.—The Commonwealth of Australia has spent more than $2,500,000 in the past fiscal year in aiding returned soldiers and sailors and their dependents, according to the first annual review of the Repatriation Department. Nearly 90,000 persons benefited by the work of the department.

BAND PROGRAMME ON DOMINION SQ.

The Salvation Army Band Closed Sunday Evening Services

What is probably the last of the Sunday evening band and vocal programs given under the past twelve weeks under the auspicies of the Red Triangle Hut on Dominion Square was given last night when the Salvation Army provided the band numbers. A program of sacred selections was given and throughly enjoyed by the crowd who packed the square outside the Hut to the number of about five thousand.

While the September Sunday evening program of the Hut has not yet been definitely decided upon the song services will be continued and if a band can be procured a band program will also be given next Sunday. Failing the band however, some special religious feature will be provided.

An excellent vocal program was given. Miss E. Bardo, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, gave two solos which were applauded by the crowd and Miss Bardo was called upon for an encore. Mrs. James Laing, convenor of the ladies committee of the Hut, also sang two very pleasing solos which were appreciated by the crowd. Prof. McCreary was the accompanist.

The crowd again joined with hearty voice in the mass numbers in which all the old favorite and popular hymns were sung and both men and women were called upon to sing verses separately. The words of the hymns were thrown upon the screen by lantern and during the band numbers an illustrated Bible story was also shown.

At the conclusion of the musical program the returned men in the crowd and Hut were entertained and Adjutant Layman of the Salvation Army spoke to the men.

CARGO SPACE IS PLENTIFUL

Shipping Men Here Say Cargo Space is Begging Today

"There is plenty of cargo space for shipping to the United Kingdom, and I do not understand recent press despatches in the Montreal papers, presumably from the other side of the water, which would indicate that there is a lack of space," said an official of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, when seen in his office this morning in reference to a special cable despatch that the Ministry of Shipping expected to be satisfied with fifty per cent of cargo space instead of sixty as has been heretofore stated.

"It is not necessary to give any leeway as I see the situation," said the official, "for there is plenty of space available, and has been for the past ten months, to meet Canadian demands for general cargoes. The fact is shipowners are looking for cargoes, so why this cry of lack of space."

Similar expressions of opinion were forthcoming from officials of the Furness-Withy company and other steamship operators. The Elder Dempster line is unaffected in any way, their shipments being entirely for South African ports.

As regards cargo space for wheat, it is stated there is a lull at present time, the old crop having gone out and the new crop not yet being available. There is interest, however, as to whether the Dominion is to handle its own crop free from British Ministry control. If so, the Canadian situation is not as good as that of the United States, where there is an abundance of capital for the extension of long credits.

IRISH TRADING COMPANY FORMED

Plan to Development of Industries and Improve National Ports

London Times-Public Ledger Cable to Montreal Star. Copyright.

BELFAST, Sept. 1.—The National Development Company of Ireland is about to be formed to undertake a number of enterprises, including the reconstruction and development of existing Irish industries, to foster and develop agriculture and forestry, to develop Irish ports, harbours and waterways, and to obtain foreign markets for Irish goods, while it will also advance money to municipal and urban authorities at a reasonable rate of interest for housing schemes.

If the company is conducted upon strict business lines, and does not undertake too much at once, but tackles each problem separately until it achieves success, there is undoubtedly a future for its operations. The leading spirit of the company, it is stated, is P. J. Kiernan, of New York, and associated with him will be several members of the Dublin Corporation, while it is also announced that Lord Willoughby de Broke is interested in the company.

The registered capital of the company is only $50,000, but the directors will have power to increase this to $25,000,000. The company will afford the opportunity to Irishmen to develop and assist their own industries, also to extend assistance to a proposed line of steamers to trade between Ireland and France.

ROBBED ORDNANCE STORES WHOLESALE

Whole Workmen's Council at German Depot Arrested

London Times-Public Ledger Cable to Montreal Star. Copyright.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—The Spandau police recently arrested a second-hand dealer, discovered receiving enormous quantities of army property such as saddles, harness and leather work. His arrest led to the discovery of a well-organized scheme where large numbers of lorries and drays delivered goods nightly from the ordnance depot at Spandau.

Examination of the depot books proved that thefts dated back as far as the November revolution. The whole workmen's council employed at the depot has been arrested. The large sums amassed by the thieves may be gauged from the fact that they have bought shops in Spandau and Berlin.

VILLAGE IN NORFOLK HAS BRAVE WAR RECORD

One Hundred and Seventy Out of 264 Served in Army

London Times-Public Ledger Cable to Montreal Star. Copyright.

OLD BUCKINGHAM, Eng. Sept. 1. This little Norfolk village is proud of its war record.

Its total male population between the ages of 18 and 50 in 1914 was 264. Of that number 170 served with the forces and 30 have given their lives for their country.

In their honor a memorial cross has been erected on the village green, an exact replica of the Cross of Sacrifice, designed by Sir Reginald Bloomfield, R.A., for all British military cemeteries abroad. The total height from the ground line to the top of the cross is 24 feet 6 inches. It is built of stone and the names of those men of the village who fell in the war is incised in gilt on a drum below the base of the cross.

The sacrifice of Old Buckingham is typical of every British village.

INVENTS NEW CRUTCH.

SYDNEY, Sept. 1.—A new crutch for the use of those inured in the war, designed to prevent crutch paralysis, has been invented by two Sydney mechanicians. The new device, it is expected, will be adopted by the military authorities.

VERDUN FLOWER SHOW A SUCCESS

Distribution of Prizes Will Take Place Tuesday Evening

The fifth annual exhibition of the Verdun Horticultural Society was held on Saturday afternoon and evening in the City Hall, Verdun. The exhibition was a great success. In some classes, owing to the wet weather, the exhibits fell behind previous years, while in others they were far above. The society has decorated and planted the public squares during the year, planting chestnuts received from Verdun, (France), in memory of the fallen soldiers. Nearly all the exhibits were grown on vacant lots and more in home gardens. The judges were Messrs. Hayward and Trussell and the prizes will be distributed on Tuesday in La Salle Road School at 8 p.m.

All unclaimed flowers and vegetables will be sold at the close of the show for the benefit of the Baby Welfare, Verdun.

The show was opened by Mayor Leclair, who was accompanied by Hon. C. J. Doherty, Ald. H. Cohn, Messrs. P. C. O'Brien and others.

The awards were as follows:

ALCOHOL IMPAIRS TYPISTS' SPEED

Test in London Shows Even Small Doses Cause Mistakes

London Times-Public Ledger Cable to Montreal Star, Copyright.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The effect of alcohol, even in moderate doses, is to impair both speed and accuracy of work. Such is the general conclusion arrived at by Dr. H. M. Vernon as the result of experiments made by him for the medical research committee of the National Insurance Commission, who have published his report on "The Influence of Alcohol on Manual Work and Neuro-Muscular Co-ordination."

The experiments lasted several weeks, and the work chosen for test purposes was typewriting, the use of the adding machine, and pricking a spot on a target set up vertically at arm's length. The effect of taking alcohol with food and upon an empty stomach and also the effect of pure and diluted doses were studied. Speed and accuracy being variables, which might be affected differently, Dr. Vernon decided to eliminate the first by limiting it voluntarily (after ascertainly that, it is lessened by alcohol), and thus obtained simple results in terms of accuracy only.

In stating his general conclusions, Doctor Vernon says that experiments were made upon eight men and five women altogether, and "all of them, with one doubtful exception, showed some reaction to the very moderate doses of alcohol and alcohol liquids employed." He goes on to say that "this reaction was invariably in the direction of diminished control of the muscles, as was proved by the increase in the number of typing and adding machines mistakes, by diminished typing speed, and by increased error in pricking a target. * † *At the same time it was found that in some of the subjects a small dose of alcohol, if taken with food, might induce no measurable reaction whatever."

This non-reactive dose did not exceed four ounces of port (a little more than a glass), and in the more susceptible cases would be considerably less. "When taken on an empty stomach, alcohol was found to be about twice as toxic as when taken with food." Doctor Vernon says: "In all work with the hands requiring skill and delicacy of muscular control one may be confident that, whilst strictly moderate quantities of alcoholic liquors, taken by persons accustomed to alcohol, may not appreciatably reduce manual skill, they can seldom, if ever, improve it. Moreover, such persons continually run the risk of finding their manual skill quite appreciably reduced if they happen to take their alcohol on an empty stomach instead of a full one. It would be far better for them to avoid the risk altogether by postponing their consumption of alcohol till the day's work is over."

MILITARY NEWS AND VIEWS

The C.A.M.C.—The first establishment of the Canadian Army Medical Corps was authorized in 1911, and embraced a complete scheme for mobilization in case of hostilities. The first of the medical services to go overseas reached England with the First Canadian Division in October, 1914, and No. 2 Canadian Stationary Hospital has the distinction of being the only Canadian unit entitled to the Mons Star, having arrived in France November 8, 1914.

On August 10, 1915 the total Overseas personnel of the Canadian Army Medical Corps amounted to 4,583, of which 535 were Nursing Sisters, and on November 30, 1918 the total strength was 15,580, of which 1,886 were Nursing Sisters.

On the latter date the Corps comprised 67 units, of which in France there were six General Hospitals, six stationary Hospitals, four Casualty Clearing Stations, 14 Field Ambulances, five Sanitary Sections, one Laboratory unit, and one Depot Stores. The total bed accommodation of Canadian Military Hospitals in England and France had risen from 2,000 in 1915 to 13,522 on November 3, 1918.

Thousands of troops died in the South African War of enteric fever, but as a result of precautionary measures in the late war, out of over 100,000 Canadian patients only one man was found to have typhoid, and he had for some reason not been inoculated.

The Canadian Army Medical Corps did not escape its share of outrage from the enemy, and three events will be for ever remembered—the foul murder of Canadian sick and wounded in the bombing of hospitals at Etaples and Doullens, and the sinking of the Canadian Hospital ship Llandovery Castle.

In the air raids of November 1 and 7 last on the Canadian General Hospitals at Etaples there were 70 killed (including three Nursing Sisters) and 138 wounded, while at the bombing of Doullens on the night of May 29, 1918 there were 32 killed, including three Nursing Sisters.

The Hospital ship Llandovery Castle was torpedoed and sunk on June 27, 1918, and out of a total of 258 on board 30 were saved but all the Nursing Sisters were lost.

MILITARY EVENTS

TONIGHT.

The Army and Navy Veterans are holding an informal smoker and dance Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the Club Room, 602 St. Catherine st. west. Ex-service men and those still in uniform are invited with their lady friends. Admission will be free. Billiards, cards, dancing and singing will be provided.

TUESDAY.

All returned pipers and drummers of the Royal Highlanders Overseas unit are requested to attend a special meeting in the Bleury Street Armory Tuesday, September 2, at 8:30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY.

Wednesday evening next the G.W.V.A., Montreal District, will conclude the adjourned general meeting in the 5th. Royal Highlanders Armory, Bleury street. All members of this Veterans' Association are asked to attend.

SOLDIER CONSUMPTIVES

Previous to the war there existed in Canada a considerable percentage of people suffering from tuberculosis, who had been dealt with rather spasmodically, largely through private philanthropy. But Canadian soldiers affected by the disease are not being left to the haphazard care of individual effort. Their treatment is conducted with the greatest possible degree of efficiency by the Medical Branch of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment. For this purpose a chain of sanatoria, twenty-eight in number, has been established throughout the Dominion, and these represent the most determined effort yet made in Canada to combat the insidious disease.

These establishments are maintained under the best possible conditions, and each one is provided with the results of proven discoveries under the direction of skilled physicians and sympathetic trained nurses.

The Government has established new sanatoria, and has also made arrangements for the use of existing sanatoria in conjunction with Provincial Authorities and private organizations. Later, when the tide of soldier patients has turned, these will be available for general use.

Each sanatoria is under the charge of a medical superintendent, and each staff includes a trained dietitian who supervises the catering of the establishment. To overcome the great evil of enforced hours of idleness treatment, bedside occupation has been introduced in all sanatoria, and aides give lessons to the patients in suitable handicraft, and by this means greatly alleviate the condition of the men.

Pay and allowances are provided, and these continue after discharge to cover the quiet period which should follow before any work is undertaken.

There are at present undergoing treatment in Canada 1,807 patients, 1,660 being in-patients of sanatoria, and 147 are out-patients, reporting at regular intervals to the Medical Superintendent of the sanatorium for examination and advice. It is only in exceptional cases that men are permitted to become out-patients of sanatoria, as they require careful nursing and supervision to enable them to reach the stage when they may again take up the normal routine of the healthy individual.

OVERSEAS

Soldiers to Benefit—General Byng has been explaining what he proposes to do as administrator of the huge sum, somewhere between six and seven million pounds, which represents the profits made by the Imperial army canteens during the war. The money has been invested in what is called the United Service Fund, of which General Byng is in charge. He stipulated that the fund should be quite clear of Government control, and for that reason he has resigned his army commission so as to have a free hand to work in the interests of soldiers and ex-soldiers and their dependents. The money came from the fighting men, and General Byng intends that it shall be spent so as to help them.

All the United Kingdom associations that are now working to help ex-service men are to be gathered into one organization to save overlapping, and this organization will draw upon General Byng's fund. Through the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Association those whom the fallen fighting men have left behind will be aided, and a great deal will be done too in the way of social welfare work for men of the old army. Part of the money will be applied to improving the canteens and recreation grounds of the army of today.

MICE IN 9 SHADES.

CLEVELAND. — More than 200 mice of 9 different colors, including Japanese waltzing mice, besides 500 guinea pigs and 1500 rabbits are entered for the exhibit of the National Breeders' and Fanciers' Association, which is holding its convention here.

Cheques Awaiting Owners

The following is a list of soldiers and their dependents for whom cheques have been mailed from the local Military Pay Office, Peel Street Barracks, and been returned. These cheques can be had on application at the Inquiry Office, top floor, Peel Street Barracks, and it is desirable that those who see the names of their acquaintances should communicate with them and tell them that there is some money waiting for them that they can get by calling:

SEEKS DOUGHBOYS FOR LITHUANIA

Agent in Paris Offers Glittering Hopes for Officers and Men

Special Cable by William E. Nash.
Copyright.

PARIS, France, Aug. 23.—In a third story suite of a typical French apartment house, in the Rue Jean Goujon, sits a persuasive, rosy-faced gentleman, who holds out glittering hopes to American doughboys still full of fight. His proposition turns about a Lithuanian legion under the control of the Lithuanian Government, to be recruited among officers and soldiers of the American Expeditionary force. Here is the speech he makes to all comers:

"Lithuania is menaced by foreign foes, especially Bolsheviki and Germans. She has no trained soldiers of her own and to repulse these enemies, therefore, she must seek help abroad. Encouraged by the success of the Polish legion, she has determined to raise soldiers in America. The plan has already gone beyond the stage of mere theory. We have actually enlisted 5,000 soldiers in the United States and are receiving more applications daily. The men enlist for one year, the Lithuanian government having the option to retain them for three years. The pay is low, it is true, —only $10 per month—but just think of the bonuses at the end! Each legionnaire will receive $1,000 after three years of service and possibly land grants as well. American recruits will be led by American officers who will receive pay equivalent to that of the rank they held in the American army, which will be just under the one they hold in the Lithuanian legion.

WILL WESTERNIZE LITHUANIA.

"Not only will these soldiers fight the Bolsheviki, but they will also start the great task of westernizing Lithuania. She has need of American energy and resourcefulness. Every officer and soldier will be employed in the job best suited to his qualifications even though this may not be strictly military in character. If possible our battalion will be widened into a division. If not, its ranks will be filled by Lithuanians in Lithuania. This is really an opportunity which no American, endowed with a spirit of adventure, can afford to neglect. Counting the $1,000 bonus, his pay will be better than that in the A. E. F., and will give him a splendid chance to see new parts of the world. Finally, who knows whether he will not grow rich on grants of land in fertile Lithuania?"

"How many men have you enlisted in Paris?" I asked.

"About 100," he promptly replied.

MANY VILLAGES ARE THREATENED BY FIRE

People Flee From Hotels and Take Refuge on Beach

By Associated Press.

TOULON, Sept. 1.—Vast forest fires are ravaging the region between Toulon and Cannes. The fire reached the seashore resorts around Calaire Bay, and the people in the hotels and restaurants were compelled to get out and take refuge on the beach.

Strong westerly and northeasterly winds are aiding the spread of the fire, both in the centre of the Maures range and on the southern slope. According to the latest advices the flames are assuming alarming proportions and threatening the towns of Cranz and Antibes. Despatches from Sardinaux say that between eight and ten villages, notably Grimaud and Cogolin, are surrounded by firec.(Aid is being rushed to the fire. Aid is being rushed to the

REFERENCES ARE NOW SUPERSEDED

The Company Finds This Method Does Away With Reference Letters

DENVER.—An effective substitute for the old-fashioned letter of recommendation, that "reference" document which for a century has been a thorn or a joke to the busy business man, is an industrial innovation just announced by Charles C. Gates, president of the Gates Rubber Co.

"Factory certificates," says Mr. Gates, "have been adopted by the Gates company as a more truthful, practicable means than letters for showing the merits of a worker.

"That doesn't mean we have abolished the letter of recommendation," the rubber manufacturer added. "We still give references to any deserving employe. But men who carry Gates factory certificates to new fields of prospective employment need no commendatory letters to present to the next boss. The certificates speak for themselves. They're "totems' of ability."

"These documents," continued Mr. Gates, "are more effective than any letter an employer might give to persons leaving his services. The common form of recommendation letter means little. On the other hand, the factory certificate shows on its face that the holder is capable of constructive thought. It proves the owner is more than a mere human routine machine.

"The plan was inaugurated as a means of encouraging constructive thinking among Gates employes. Its value to workers and to the company cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. It is a spur to ambition, for naturally it is to the list of prize winners that we turn when an attractive position is to be filled.

"An average of 200 suggestions is made each month," Mr. Gates said, "and the winners are numbered among employes of every department of the factory. The list includes several young women."

That no favoritism may be shown, the committee on awards consists of employes who are not eligible in the competition and who cannot learn the names of those offering suggestions until after awards have been made.

Each suggestion is numbered as it is turned in and the name of the author removed.

Factory executives cannot compete.

In several instances more than one prize has been awarded to the same person in one contest, and it is not impossible for a single employe to win the entire thirteen awards.

Mr. Gates believes some system eventually will be evolved and adopted by all big businesses to encourage constructive thought, and that this plan will in a measure replace the formal recommendation or character letter.

REAL "DIAMONDS" ARE ACES IN THESE CLUBS

Antwerp Dealers, at Green Top Tables, Handle Stones as if They Were Poker Chips

ANTWERP, Aug. 26.—Antwerp is in the throes of a "diamond fever" such as has never been known anywhere before.

No less than six "diamond clubs" have been opened in the last three months.

The main feature of these clubs is a large room filled with rows of small card tables. The rooms look for all the world like card playing establishments.

It is the guests, however who present the strangest appearance. There are smart young men dressed in the latest styles, and important looking men bearing the unmistakable mark of the stock exchange habitue, and peculiar old men with long beards and soiled linen, and ancient Prince Albert suits, all mingled together and driving bargains among themselves at figures that would rejoice any banker in America.

Two by two they sit, opposite each other fingering handfuls of uncut diamonds as if they were common poker chips.

The conversations are pretty much the same all over the room: "How much did you pay for this lot?"

"Two hundred thousand crowns."

"All right; I buy it with 8 per cent. profit for you."

"Done."

And the money is handed over at once in cash. Then the sellers look around, lean over the shoulders of an acquaintance at another table and drive another bargain.

Thus the prices are pushed up in this extraordinary world "diamond exchange."

Before the war the uncut stone cost $28 a carat and $32 after cutting. Immediately after the declaration of war the price slumped to $23 and remained that low as long as 1915, when the Germans beginning to get nervous about the value of paper money, started buying all the diamonds they could find.

Today a carat of uncut stones find an easy market at $150. Merchants need no longer seek customers. Credit is no longer given. As soon as a new consignment arrives from London the diamond clubs are filled to overflowing and the bidding starts with unheard of zeet.

The fact that Germans have been the heaviest purchasers of cut and uncut stones since 1915 is beginning to worry the Allies who find in it the explanation for the apparent optimism in Germany toward the economic future of the country.

It is said the greatest stock of diamonds in the world is now safely stored away by Germans who, when they choose, are in a position to command the market.

"For he's a jolly good fellow!"

That's how we feel about the Prince. And, on this occasion of his informal visit, it's just the sort of informal greeting that we want to make on behalf of Montreal and Goodwin's Limited.

On a friendly visit, divested of all ceremony, we feel sure that the heartiness and spontaneity of the handshake will be excused.

We're delighted—we're not only delighted, we're proud—to have Prince Edward with us, and the welcome that goes out to him is from the heart of Montreal.

No man could have a nobler motto than that borne on the Prince's crest: "I serve."

It's the motto we've adopted.

The Latest in Voiles

These American Voiles have many new tones and designs, some of them being startlingly original. At the present time blues are the hardest to obtain, and we were really very fortunate in getting so large a selection.

These advance designs for 1920 are exclusive in Montreal to Goodwin's. They are different to anything we have seen in Voiles, and are particularly suitable for inexpensive party dresses.

We noticed some very striking shadow effects, and a design that was very pleasing was a navy ground covered with white daisies. The same pattern also with golden daisies on the blue. Widths 38 and 40 inches.
