Attempt made on restaurant

An attempted breaking and entry was reported this morning by the restaurant at Chateau Maisonneuve.

Trespass costs five days' jail

Five days in jail were awarded Guy Leclerc, 22, 127 Claremont street, Chateaugay, following his arrest the night of Dec. 20 for trespassing at the rear of a private home on Roslyn avenue. He pleaded guilty before Westmount Judge Stalker.

Nihon Plaza beating site

A young man is due to appear in Westmount Municipal Court and a youth arrested with him Saturday night will go before the Juvenile Court, both on assault charges, following a beating received by Roland Poirier in Alexis Nihon Plaza.

New Year's shut, Thursday open Westmount rule; except City Hall

Thursday, Jan. 2, unlike Boxing Day when things were comparatively closed up tight for the day following Christmas, it is expected to be largely business as usual in Westmount following the New Year's Day break.

Chief exception will be City Hall and various unessential municipal services which this week, as last, will have a two-day work respite.

At the Westmount Public Library, once again this week closing will be from 1 pm tomorrow until Friday morning.

Garbage collections normally made Wednesdays and Thursday will again this week be made on Friday.

Not so with the chief federal government service locally, that of the Post Office. Full, regular services will obtain on Thursday this week, with carrier deliveries, normal post-office hours and collection, receipt and despatch of mails as usual. Wednesday, New Year's Day, as on Christmas Day, there will not even be street letter box collections: the only service operating will be special delivery as on Sundays.

The Westmount Examiner office will be open normal hours Thursday, though this issue takes the place of that normally published that day. Next issue will appear as usual on Thursday, Jan. 9.

Booming, buoyant trade in Westmount real estate continued unabated last month.

Forty transfers were recorded in the Montreal district registry office in November relative to Westmount properties. Full sale prices were shown for 30 of these exchanges, totalling $1,521,269.

Aggregate city valuation on these was $1,024,780, indicating that sale values exceeded by 48.4 percent. This percentage in October was 37.8 and, in September, 28.8 - indicating a sustained upward swing in local real estate prices.

There were six declarations, conveying properties from estates to heirs, and four others for $1 and other considerations. These totalled $277,300 worth by city valuation.

Biggest single sale, for $190,000, was of four houses in a row at 306, 308, 310 and 312 Lansdowne avenue, below Sherbrooke street. Their valuation together is $135,400.

Biggest single sale involving a single dwelling was at 758 Lexington avenue, near the top of the mountain, for $135,000. Its city valuation is $70,750.

Biggest single city valuation involved was $105,650 on a house at 50 Delavigne road, which changed hands for $130,000.

Smallest declared selling price was $20,000 (valuation $16,050) at 385 Clarke avenue and smallest city valuation in the Novem-

Weredale break to trial

John Howard Sheppard, 25, 3841 Barclay avenue, a shoemaker, elected trial in Sessions Court downtown when he appeared in Westmount Municipal Court last Monday on a charge of breaking and entry in an apartment building at 10 Weredale Park, Westmount, on Nov. 22.

Council cleans up '68 items

An additional December meeting of City Council was held this evening, principal business of which was to approve the 1969 budget of the city and strike the tax rate.

Other business included second and third reading to two zoning by-laws, dealing with the encroachment on city property by a house on Chesterfield avenue and to appoint a new medical officer of health.

There was no correspondence.

Last for year.

The meeting made it possible to close 1968 without unfinished business before Council and for Ald. Peter M. McEntyre, finance commissioner, to present the budget before vacating his aldermanic post upon nomination, as Westmount Municipal Association candidate, for mayor. Nomination day is Jan. 13.

The statutory January meeting of City Council is due next Monday evening. However, due to the concurrence of Epiphany it is expected that the meeting will be adjourned to the following day.

Finance Commissioner Ald. Peter M. McEntyre, CA, in his last major civic work before he is expected to become Westmount's new mayor by acclamation Jan. 13, announced however that the 1969 budget is balanced as opposed to three successive

12% inter-municipal

Most island municipalities have been announcing increases in recent weeks, many greater than Westmount's. In some instances, the boosts have been in the general rate without mention of special taxes. The 2-mill Westmount rise embraces both general and special taxes, including inter-municipal charges for such things as service of the Metro debt, Montreal Metropolitan Corporation levies, Montreal Transportation Commission deficits - which for Westmount come to $558,500, virtually unchanged from 1968 but still representing a significant 12 percent of total expenditures over which the City has little or no control.

Another factor making the tax increase inevitable is that without any new major construction to speak of during the past year, the total valuation roll is largely unchanged: a net increase of a little more than a million dollars, or $228,586,200 subject to total tax. There was an actual decrease in value of land only, which is subject to local improvement tax.

However, Council this evening adopted a proposal that, for the first time, local improvement taxes be applied to land which heretofore had escaped. Maintenance of thoroughfares, sewers and street lighting henceforth will fall on nearly $11 million worth of land owned by churches, schools, etc. (Only exempt land remaining will be the properties of the city and the provincial and federal governments.) The rate of tax in this instance will be 4.2 mills, or 42 cents per $100 of evaluation. The yield will not be large, a little over $45,000, but was believed by Council to establish a fair principle.

To achieve the balanced budget,

Fine, bond are exacted for receiving

A $500 fine, a $200 personal bond to keep the peace for two years, and the amount he presumably paid the burglars for the stolen articles was the price paid by Roger Turgeon, 23, of Ville LeMoine for possession of stolen articles.

That was the upshot in Sessions Court last week for the man in whose home nearly $20,000 worth of goods taken Nov. 19 from the Tweedy Shop at 4209 St. Catherine street west, Westmount, were found along with loot from other thefts.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER

By ERIC NEAL

December 30 to January 11

Four inches of soft snow and a little freezing drizzle would be our normal fare at this time, then the partial thaw is replaced by a deep freeze. Blue skies and wind-driven powder snow for the New Year holiday, also next weekend for most places, 4 to 5".

Sunny days and extremely cold nights for most of next week. Very little snow until the middle of the week. No snow while temperature is below zero Fahr; only hexagon section ice needles or hexagon flat plates shimmering in gleamy sunshine. Easing from middle to end of the week, with several short snowfalls. Fog and soft snow in the south. Powder in northern counties and Laurentians, with sunny periods.

Temperature range is very wide this 13th week before Easter. Fifteen degree nights and up to 40 or 45°F some days to open the period. Sunny but frosty days from middle to end of the week, with a sudden drop to 20 to 25 degrees below zero at night. Final freeze-up for the St Lawrence, from Three-Rivers to Comeau.

Next week's: 10 below nights and some days up to 30°F in the south; Laurentians, -20 and 25°F., north, -25 and 20°F. Snow, 3 to 4". 20 to 25 hours of sunshine.

Stamp to honor Vincent Massey

Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, PC, CC, CH, Canada's first native-born Governor-General, will be commemorated on a .06 stamp to be released by the Canada Post Office on Feb. 20th, Postmaster General Eric Kierans has announced.

Twenty-four and one-half million of the new issue, designed by Prof. Imre von Mosdossy of Agincourt, Ont., will be printed by the Canadian Bank Note Co. Ltd., Ottawa, using a combination of the steel engraving and lithographic processes. An engraved portrait of the late Governor-General, printed in dark brown, occupies the upper half of the vertical 24 mm x 40 mm stamp; wording in a lower area, printed by lithography with dark brown lettering on the olive green background, has "Vincent Massey" and the years of his birth and death "1887-1967" arranged on two lines.

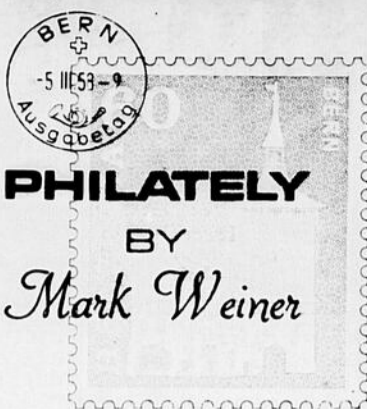

Immediately thereunder is "Governor General" placed on two lines to the left and "Gouverneur Général" similarly arranged to the right; immediately below are the years "1952-1959" indicating Governor General Massey's prolonged term of office. A dark brown denominative "6" to the upper right of the portrait and "Canada", in white on a dark brown box at the base, completes the design.

Customary First Day Cover service will be provided by the Postmaster, Ottawa 2.

Born in Toronto Mr. Massey assumed his duties as personal representative of the Queen on Feb. 28th 1952; the distinction with which he acquitted himself resulted in an extension of the customary five-year term to just over seven years, the longest of any person in such a capacity. His precedent-shattering selection as first Canadian-born Governor-General had been preceded in 1926 by his appointment as the first Canadian Ambassador to the United States.

Mr. Massey lived to enjoy all but a few hours of his nation's historic Centennial year; his death occurred on 30th December.

Lottery and the Postage Stamp

Once having been accepted by a public with the urge to gamble lotteries have now become a part of our modern day living.

Yet how many are aware that the postage stamp once played a major role in a state lottery?

The year was 1964; the country, Norway. On June 1 of that year the Norwegian postal authorities issued a semi-postal stamp with a value of 50+2Kr, which depicted the U.N. refugee emblem and was inscribed "Porto Betalt... Lykkebrevet 1964."

This stamp although on sale only until July 15, remained valid for postage until Aug. 10. Though it sold for 2.50Kr, it had only a franking value of 50 with the remaining 2Kr being used for the refugee fund.

In addition to the fore mentioned inscription, each stamp bore a serial number, in the upper left corner, representing participation in a lottery which took place in September of the same year.

This stamp is listed in the Michel Catalogue, No. 518, at 90DM mint and 100DM used, which is approximately $25.00 U.S. This only proves that this was one lottery in which there were no losers, as the original purchase price was about 35 cents.

Native costumes

Many countries have issued postage stamps depicting their native costumes, which have become very popular among stamp collectors.

lectors. The Spanish series, with 23 stamps issued, has passed the halfway mark and is due for completion during 1969.

Ethiopia and Morocco are the two latest countries to have adopted this theme for their stamps.

The Ethiopian issue, comprising seven stamps ranging in value from 5c to 60c, was issued Dec. 10, having been designed by the Ethiopian artist, Ato Afewerik Tekle, and printed by Harrison & Sons by photoengraving process.

The designs include costumes from each of the provinces of Arrussi, Gemu Gofa, Godjam, Kaffa, Harrar, Illubabor and Eritrea.

There are actually many more national costumes in Ethiopia than shown on these stamps. However, the costumes selected are, wherever possible, found to be widely known in a particular region and throughout the country.

With the exception of the Kaffa costume, all others selected are in use today either wholly or partially in different combinations. The Kaffa costume is now extinct, having been in use almost half a century ago. Only because of its beauty and strong characteristics was it chosen to be included in this selection instead of the present day costume. "Costume" stamps are very interesting, because from them the collector is able to learn something of the culture and way of life of the various people in far away countries.

The Turkish Post Office commemorated the 30th year of the death of Kamal Ataturk with a set of five stamps, whose validity for postage will be perpetual. In 1923, under Ataturk's leadership, the country became a republic and while at the helm for 15 years he made sure that his country was well on the road to the return of honest government and prosperity.

That he was loved and held in esteem by his people there can be little doubt, for who but a grateful nation would issue more than 15 commemorative issues in a span of 30 years, since his death. The stamps were printed by offset process in Ankara at the Ajans-Türk Matbaasi and as a note of interest I would like to add that only the 250 kurus value was printed on chalky paper.

Bulletins from Birdland

Wintering ducks

Sometimes we feel that we are continually coming across exceptions to rules. We have learned (and it really seems quite sensible) that water birds cannot stay in our part of the world during winter because they are unable to find food after the freeze-up. Yet, truth to tell, some do manage to break the general rule. A few Ducks are in this group.

The Mallard (illustrated) is extremely hardy, arrives here as soon as the ice begins to move from our lakes and ponds, and stays until they are entirely frozen over. Common in our western Prairie provinces, it is not as often found in the east but actually winters along the coast of Nova Scotia. Being a surface feeder (or sieve-billed swimmer as it is sometimes called), and primarily a seed eater, the Mallard is able to discover enough food around the edges of frozen water.

MALLARD DUCK

NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY

Corresponding to it in the east is the Black Duck, not found to any extent west of the Great Lakes. Also a river and pond Duck, it seems to be particularly clever at searching out a suitable spot for wintering, and once a few have satisfactorily spent the cold months there they bring their friends the next year. Thus a little winter colony has been gradually built up in the open waters of the Lachine Rapids just above Montreal.

Swift streams

Another Duck often found in Canada throughout cold weather is the Common Merganser. A fish eater, it subsists on prey caught just below the surface.

Swimming with its head under water to the eyes, it dives when the fish is sighted. Once the quiet lakes are frozen over, it moves to a spot where are swift streams or a fast current, and sometimes this means it is unnecessary to go very far south.

One of the Sea Ducks, the Common Golden-eye, is distributed across the continent, breeding both in the east and the west as far north as large trees grow.

It builds its nest in natural cavities in old trunks. This is one of the first Ducks to arrive in spring and one of the last to go in the fall. In winter many Golden-eyes stay in groups along the coasts and in protected bays on the borders of our large lakes and rivers, being able somehow to keep little sections free of ice by their continual movement as they dive for shrimplike crustacea, seeds, tubers, and stems and leaves of pondweeds and wild celery.

'Pizza delivery' becomes ransacking of building

No. 1310 Greene avenue is the building behind the post office. It houses perhaps 30 offices, including the studios of CKGM radio station.

About 1:30 Sunday morning, the 22nd, the watchman was summoned to the door by a man who said he was delivering a pizza, presumably to a hungry disk jockey or technician.

Admitting the man, the watchman found himself staring, instead of at an aromatic Italian dish, at the business end of a revolver. A second marauder appeared and the watchman was taken to the basement and tied up.

The duo, now armed with the master keys of the building, brought their car into the garage and over the next several hours did a systematic rifling of offices.

No major thefts were reported by tenants, other than that of a small safe whose contents were forecast to be disappointing. Items taken appear to have been petty, otherwise.

The police checks of the three entrances to the premises during the night did not, of course, indicate anything amiss until a call at 5:28 am - after the pair had made their departure.

The real mystery: why such a neat, simple plan wasted on a such seemingly un lucrative target?

Firemen busy but no serious outbreaks over Christmas

Westmount firemen, their fingers crossed, had no serious outbreaks to contend with during Christmas week.

However, they had a seemingly larger than usual rash of calls for all sorts of emergency or imagined-emergency situations, to which they responded with their usual desire to be of service to citizens in distress.

The busiest day of the lot was Christmas Day itself, with six calls answered.

Peculiar to the extreme cold, two separate calls, one on Dec. 21 and another on the 24th, were identical in nature. Automatic clothes dryers with outdoor exhausts simulated great clouds of white smoke when the moist vapors hit the chill atmosphere.

Christmas Eve, the Westmount Brigade was at the ready for a call to assist the beleaguered LaSalle Fire Department with their roaring apartment house fire. However, LaSalle drew assistance from communities to its west, as far out as Beaconsfield.

Dr. H. Angus Boright, 510 Argyle avenue and office at 4119 Sherbrooke street west, this evening was appointed medical officer of health for the City of Westmount.

Dr. Boright succeeds Dr. D. G. Mackay in the part-time post, the duties of which have been met in the interim by the deputy MOH, Dr. M. Shackleton.

The following building permits were issued at Westmount City Hall during the past week:

Only one building permit was shown as issued at Westmount City Hall over the Christmas holiday week, and that one for record purposes only, the work having been done almost two and half years ago.

This was No. 6309A relating to Alexis Nihon Plaza, for Traders Group Inc. by Cadieux Construction Co., for construction of a transition beam for highrise west apartment building.

Reference to permit No. 6309, to which it relates, goes back to Aug. 9, 1966, which was for West End Plaza Inc. by Anglin Norcross, for construction of stores, theatres and 600 apartments. The charge for the permit was $27,005 and the value of the work was shown as $18,000,000. In addition,

House found over its line

When Prof. John E. C. Brierley bought his $30,000 new home at 41 Chesterfield avenue from Richard Schouten, (see November real-estate transfers reported in this issue of The Examiner) he had it surveyed.

It was discovered that the house stood some six-tenths of a foot over a distance of 18 feet, on city property.

He won't have to tear it down, for after all it has stood there a good many years harming no one and the error not established.

However, if he or a subsequent owner should make any major changes affecting the front line of the building, the City Council of the day may require him to get off city land.

This evening Council approved a deed to, meanwhile, tolerate the encroachment.

a permit for plumbing for the same project was granted S. Engel & Son. The permit charge was $2,691 and 2,681 fixtures were to be installed.

We Say

Happy New Year to our friends

To our readers, advertisers and other friends, The Westmount Examiner wishes a happy, peaceful and prosperous 1969.

Property taxes, values both up

On the municipal scene, it is a bitter-sweet start for the New Year.

No tax increase is ever welcome, and the 2-mill boost brought down by Ald. McEntyre, as finance commissioner, on the eve of his expected assumption of the mayoralty is, at other levels of government, an uncommon way to assume office.

But unlike provincial and federal administrations, the way to popularity when responsible for Westmount's affairs is through sound policy.

The indicators here call for the city paying its way, and that is just what the boost in real estate taxes means.

It just so happens that there is a sustained and seemingly growing boom in real estate in Westmount at present, coming at a time when borrowing is expensive. There is every justification to ask the rate-payers to pay the increased cost of the services they enjoy, just as they do with everything else.

Each property-owner's share of the enlarged levy is, in fact, but a small portion of the increased value local properties have attracted as a direct result of Westmount being a well-run city. It is attractive to house-buyers, willing to pay more to live here.

Urban renewal makes much sense

There are critics of the urban-renewal plans of the City of Westmount.

Yet one of the strongest arguments in favor of a systematic and carefully-considered program of replacing worn-out areas with new structures is the effect this can have on the tax structure of the city.

There is a wide disparity between property valuations in various parts of Westmount. In the lower areas, the houses are generally older, smaller and in worse repair than in the upper reaches.

This is not to argue for expensive structures to replace the old. But it is to argue for the raising of standards to broaden the tax base for the benefit of all who live here.

A street of low-value homes costs as much to light, to repave, to drain, to police, to clean of snow. In some cases, it costs more, and certainly it presents greater potential hazards for the fire brigade.

When the renewal structures are new office buildings or shopping areas, another benefit to the city is in business taxes.

Let those who cry out for the status quo remember that to stand still is to regress.

Instead of a go-slow, the incoming Council should be pressed to get on with the imaginative proposals of the Sunderland report.

Scheduling woes at holiday time

Newspaper publishing is a crazy business. Over this period of the year it is feast and famine.

The Examiner expanded to 32 pages just before Christmas. Look at us this week! The 12-pager is almost as much work, for in reading matter this issue nearly matches the last.

The festive season has thrown our schedules out, too. The holidays last week and this rendered Thursday publication days virtually impossible and our readers and others we serve will, we hope, understand why we have had to stretch our weekly cycle into an 11-day and a 10-day gap, before returning to normal next week, with the issue of Thursday, Jan. 9.

The story of Westmount's heraldic arms

Adoption of a flag by the City of Westmount the week before Christmas has brought forth questions about its dominant and only feature apart from the plain, solid gold background: the coat of arms.

Miss M. J. Woolls, executive assistant at City Hall, who did the extensive research culminating in the flag design, came up with the following report from "Heraldry in Canada," official organ of The Heraldry Society of Canada, featured in its July, August, September 1967 issues.

We're a "first"

The City of Westmount was the first Canadian municipality to acquire arms from a lawfully constituted heraldic authority. They were granted by the Lord Lyon King of Arms of Scotland on the 12th May, 1945, (see p. 11) and are blazoned as follows:

"Per fess arched Or and Purpure, issuant from chief a demisun in his splendor Argent, rayed Gules, in base a Rose branch fesswise, slipped at either end and leaved proper, bearing two Roses of the third (Arg), and pendant from the middle of the branch between the blooms, an escutcheon of the last (Arg) charged with a Raven of Saint Anthony volant with break all proper."

Above the shield is placed a mural coronet Or, and on an escrol under the shield this Motto:

ROBUR MEUM CIVIUM FIDES

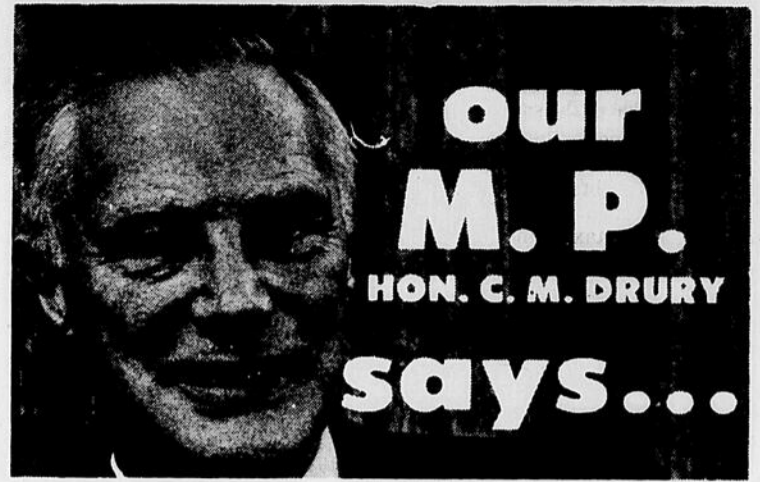

(The Faith of the Citizens is my Strength)

Why this municipality applied to the Lord Lyon of Scotland for Arms is a mystery to the editor, as there does not seem to be anything particularly Scottish about the name "Westmount." Possibly the Mayor at the time was of Scottish birth or ancestry, which could explain it.

Begun in 1874

In 1874, this community was incorporated as the "Village of Notre Dame de Grace," but in 1879 the name was changed to the "Village of Cote St. Antoine," and in 1890 to the "Town of Cote St. Antoine." By 1895 it had become the "Town of Westmount," and in 1908 it was again changed to the "City of Westmount," as it is today.

The devices in the shield symbolize the corporate history of the community. The arched division "per fess," represents Mount Royal with the setting sun behind it, thus "Westmount." The rose branch is said to be an emblem of the Blessed Virgin Mary and refers to the former "Village of Notre Dame de Grace," while the small shield in base commemorates Saint Anthony and the legend of how when he chose to live a solitary hermit's life he was fed by ravens that dropped bread into his place of refuge from the world. This naturally refers to the former name "Cote Saint Antoine."

A lesson from the Mother of Parliaments

Last week in the article "Procedural Reform of the Commons," I discussed in general terms the urgent need for some orderly scheduling of business in the House of Commons and the Opposition parties' fundamental disagreement with such an urgent need.

In our adversary system of Parliament the traditional role of the Opposition is to oppose and criticise. In their eyes any allocation of time for debate on proposed legislation would limit their freedom of action to fulfil that basic role.

The at least temporary shelving of proposed Standing Order 16-A in no way lessens the overriding necessity of organizing Parliamentary time on a more coherent basis. No matter how comparable the British and Canadian parliaments may be, the fact remains that our House of Commons has made little significant progress in updating the rules of procedure since Confederation, while the Mother of Parliaments has made some truly radical changes in the allocation of time in the same period.

Consequently, British parliamentarians and students of government are, ironic as it may seem, appalled by our conservative approach to parliamentary reform.

When the British Government house leader, Richard Crossman, met with a Canadian procedural committee in London, he told the group: "You are way back where we were in the last century." The Mother of Parliaments is more progressive than at least one of her daughters! This has been more necessary under Britain's unitary system of government which comprehends all spheres of jurisdiction.

Dates from 1881

But, as I mentioned last week, the British use of timetables dates from 1881. The current volume of business of the Canadian Parliament indicates the need for such timetables.

In this regard, the Leader of the Opposition claims that the power the present Government is seeking would be greater than that of any government in the free world.

This statement was answered indirectly by Prof. Robert McKenzie of the London School of Economics in a recent television interview with Charles Lynch when, with reference to the Government's proposed changes, he said:

"There's nothing revolutionary about them. I'm not now saying that because I happen to live in London; I think they do things inevitably better there, but this is an absolutely clearly established principle that governments control parliamentary time."

The need for planning the business of the House has, unfortunately, not just arisen. The need has existed for some time. The Canadian Parliament long has attempted to deal with the increasing amount of necessary legislation under the existing rules simply by extending the annual session of Parliament.

Met few months

Initially, Parliament met a few months a year, as the volume of business was relatively small. Members were often more concerned with their law practices and business than with their parliamentary duties and thus were loath to prolong sessions. Since, the Second World War, and especially in recent years, the amount of necessary and more detailed legislation has grown to the extent that parliamentary sessions soon may extend to a full 12 months.

The need for both urgent and extensive reforms was and is blatantly obvious to all. The conservatism or lack of foresight of the past must yield to a revolution in the means for dealing effectively with legislation. Whatever the fate of proposed Standing Order 16-A, our Parliament must seek a solution along the lines of that described by Lord Campion some 36 years ago when he said:

"Most modern legislatures have found it necessary to adopt rules for limiting debate, whether by providing for the termination of debate, at the will of the majority or by laying down the time limit in advance or by limiting the duration of speeches, or by some similar device."

Library holds filmstrip show

A bilingual filmstrip show will be given in the children's room of the Westmount Library on Friday, at 3 p.m. Shown will be: Crow Boy, The Tomten, Les cinq freres chinois and Une drôle de soupe. Everybody is welcome.

Liquor Board asked for local permit

Nick and George Tzakas have applied to the Quebec Liquor Board for a restaurant permit for their establishment at 4022 St. Catherine street west, Westmount. Objections will be received by the board until Jan. 11.

City taxes...

total revenues (including the new taxes) are up $966,900 to $8,399,200 while total expenses are up by $543,000 to the same total.

On the revenue side, municipal and intermunicipal taxes are expected to bring in $521,600 additional, or a total of $4,537,200; business taxes another $16,700 for $416,700; amusement taxes an additional $45,000 (thanks to three new cinemas in Westmount) for $120,000; rents and concessions a new $20,500, or $150,000; interest and penalties, $20,000 (the charge for unpaid taxes has just been put up to 7 1/2 percent from 6 percent) for $110,000, and $4,900 more is expected from government contributions, for $83,500.

The light department revenues show a $344,000 increase for a gross of $1,963,000. However, the net increase in this department's revenue will be $84,900 after allowing for increase in expense, mainly the purchase of power, of $259,100. (The total excess of revenue over expense for the light department should be $355,000.)

Sundry revenues from other departments are expected to drop $5,800, to $36,000.

Sales tax worry

No change is expected in the city's share of the provincial sales tax, at $715,000. This is a matter of concern to city officials, since it is a major revenue source yet in common with other municipalities the return from the provincial government has been disappointingly smaller than expected and no satisfactory accounting has been forthcoming from Quebec.

No changes are expected, either, in licence and permit revenues, at $45,000; fines and fees, $162,500, and Victoria Hall receipts, $60,000.

On the expense side of the budget, most departments are up as may be expected, thanks in many cases to salary and wage increases under contract terms - despite an actual decrease of one in salaried employees, to 276, and an increase in only 7 1/2 wage-rated employees to 290. (The "1/2" is accounted for by

TEXT OF TAX BY-LAW

Following is the text of the 1969 tax by-law adopted by Westmount City Council this evening:

Section 1-
By-law to levy an assessment to meet the current expenses and other expenses of the city for the fiscal year 1969.

seasonal or part-time employees being so counted!)

Administration expense shows the biggest increase, by $147,100 to $2,815,600. The major item here is the introduction of computer facilities upon which the commensurate savings have not yet been realized.)

Police, works up

Police costs go up $35,900 to $720,300 and public works climb by $75,200 to $1,481,900. The latter is highly subject to such things as the vagaries of the weather; one city official stated last week that the extraordinarily heavy winter thus far has boosted snow clearance costs by about $60,000 over normal.

Services are up $17,400 to $289,300 and parks will cost $11,200 more, or $267,800 total. Recreation is up $7,500 to $183,100.

The light and power department, mentioned earlier, experts its outlays to go up by $259,100, to $1,608,400; more than offset, of course, by its revenue increase.

Departments showing actual cuts in expenses for 1969 are public safety by $1,500, for $203,100; fire, $8,400 for $531,700; Victoria Hall, $900 for $82,100 (that makes a net cost to the city of operating the hall $21,300); $2,200 drop in health expenses to $81,300 and a $300 cut in welfare costs to $4,700.

16.83 general

The net effect is that of the increase of 20 cents per $100 in taxes, 16.83 cents is general taxation against the foregoing, 3.23 cents will go toward increased debt service costs while there is a cut of .06 cents in Metro special levy.

A reminder: these taxes are due by Feb. 17!

The Lincoln University choir is to present a program at the Temple on Friday Evening, Jan. 31st. The Lincoln University Chorale of Oxford, Pa., will participate in the Worship and present a program of song following the Sabbath Worship in the Grover Auditorium. Lincoln University is primarily a Negro school and these Negro singers as guests of Emanu-El give emphasis to brotherhood, fellowship and interfaith. The presence of the Choir also marks the opening of the observance of Jewish music month in the calendar of Temple Emanu-El.

The Temple Youth Group will hold an educational meeting on Tuesday evening, Jan. 7, at 7:15 o'clock in the Grover Auditorium when Benjamin Hersen, director of Adult Education at the Shaar Hashomayim Congregation, will speak on "Conservative Judaism." This meeting is open to all Temple Youth and their friends.

Story of Daniel Scientist theme

In Christian Science churches next Sunday, attention will focus on the Bible story of Daniel, who was cast into the den of lions, but upon whom "no manner of hurt was found... because he believed in his God."

Related passages from the denominational textbook will include "Citizens of the world, accept the 'glorious liberty of the children of God' and be free! This is your divine right."

LEADING ROLES IN 'PINOCCHIO'

Ronald Rorr (left) and Amber Wendelborg have leading roles in the Youtheatre performance of the children's favorite "Pinocchio", which takes place Thursday afternoon at 1:30 and 3 pm in Victoria Hall.

By STEPHEN SCHOFIELD

DUNSFOLD, Surrey — Mr. Greenway is here today, neatly dressed in a suit of plus fours and well polished shoes. Bespectacled and cheerful, as usual. I would say he is a man of about 62, and I know he averages 45 miles a day on his bicycle. He tunes the piano.

Tuning instruments are rolled up together with a yellow sou'wester and cape in the saddlebag, and his bicycle, a highly geared black and yellow racing model, is as spic as a pin.

Ireland

He has just been in Ireland on holiday; alone, this time, he says, because he wanted relief, not from his mother-in-law, but his father-in-law. He toured in the north and south on his bicycle.

Mr. Greenway prefers the south because the north is "too English". Too many factories and traffic lights. In the south, the countryside is unspoiled.

"I could ride for days without seeing a car or a traffic light; sometimes not even signposts at junctions. And lots of donkeys, thousands of them. They use donkeys to pull little carts.

"And the people in the south are very friendly, always ready for a drink. They drink a lot of Guinness. And they have church festivals from time to time, very religious, all morning. And then after lunch, booze-up; they all get drunk.

"The pubs are almost always open. And if they're not open at the front, the back door is usually open and the crowd inside is about the same size as it would be if the front door was open.

Lazy

"The Irish are lazy. They won't work unless they've got to. In fact the Government brought in foreign capital to build factories, mostly from Germany. The idea was to employ local people.

"But they wouldn't work and they had to fire them and bring labor from Germany to operate these factories built in Ireland. But it's perfect country for bicycle riding."

Montreal

Mr. Greenway plays the piano and he can sightread anything. For years he played in a theatre as Willy Ekstein played in the Montreal Strand theatre, to accompany silent films. And before that he played in a three-piece orchestra.

Westmounter in Britain:

Three men as a horse

One night the orchestra was assigned to play for a dance at a club that had no piano. The drummer knew a man who had a one-stall horsebox who agreed to lend it to them: just the horsebox, not the horse that drew it.

The horsebox, actually a cart or wagon, was very low-slung, the floor being just a few inches above the ground, such that the three men managed to lift the piano in quite easily.

The drummer

The drummer wore a bowler hat. And he took the place of the horse, pulling and steering the cart by the shafts, while Mr. Henwood and the violinist pushed from behind.

All went well, at first, on the level, until they began to descend a long hill. As the cart gathered speed the drummer ran faster and faster, and his bowler hat fell further down on his head.

There was nothing Mr. Greenway and the violinist could do to slow the vehicle. They stood on the step at the back and cheered the drummer for his deft steering of the shafts.

All the way down the hill, the drummer never faltered, though the brim of the bowler nearly blocked his vision. Arriving safely, they moved the piano inside and the dance went off very well, although the piano did effuse a slight odor of manure.

Returning

Returning here to our own bungalow, an odor quite different and for quite a different reason, pervaded the whole place yesterday.

Our little boy, Wood, aged six, had a birthday party. As each guest arrived he went out to meet him most eagerly. Not, alas, to greet the guest but to enquire, "what have you got for me?"

Two of the guests, twins, Tony and Chico, classmates of Wood's at the village school, are Spanish. Nattily attired in suits and bow ties, their hair was thoroughly saturated with perfume that soon became noticeable throughout the house.

This prompts the lines of an old song: "Oh, I am a gay caballero. I come from Rio de Janeiro. I've got nice oily hair. And I'm full of hot air. And I'm expert at shooting cabolo..." (plunk, plunk).

A Montreal boy I knew very well, one of the best, used to sing that song with gusto. He played squash and golf and didn't work too hard. And his easy manner and smile were irresistible. Everybody liked him.

From the very start of war, he was with the RCAF and was forced to bail out over the English Channel. His picture hangs here on the wall.

Zoning by-law changes pass

One citizen showed up, found there was no discussion going on, and departed.

That was City Clerk R. B. Seaman's report, in essence, on two "public meetings" Thursday evening, Dec. 19, at 8 and 8:10 o'clock to allow for any possible objections to the passage of two by-laws to amend the city zoning by-law.

Accordingly, this evening City Council gave second and third readings to the two enactments, giving them lawful effect with regard to the establishment of grade levels of properties and permitting the operation of animal hospitals.

The two measures were given first reading at the Nov. 18 Council meeting, under the sponsorship of Ald. Irving S. Backler, commissioner of public works.

for WW Club

Friday the 13th of December turned out to be a lucky day for the large number of members and their friends who attended the Christmas party of the Westmount Women's Club for they were treated to some excellent Christmas music and entertainment as well as a combined Christmas and birthday cake.

The occasion also marked the 50th year since the founding of the club.

Two former presidents, Mrs. Harold Mills and Mrs. W. H. Harrison, collaborated in cutting and slicing the cake. Mrs. R. T. Stackhouse, president, presided at the festivities.

Art group thriving
75 years

The Women's Art Society, now in its 75th year, was known originally as the Montreal Branch of the Women's Art Association of Canada, and was from the beginning affiliated with National Council of Women of Canada. During the year of the inauguration, 21 members were enrolled.

From an address given at the inaugural meeting, June 6, 1894, by Mrs. Ashley Carus-Wilson, B.A., it is interesting to note some of the aims and aspirations of the newly formed organization... "to consider the advisability of forming an art association for the women of Montreal."

Further on she added: "to afford to women who make a profession of art, in an increasing number here as elsewhere, opportunities of meeting each other and taking counsel together over their work."

It is remembered that in 1894 recognition for achievement in the arts was seldom accorded to "lady painters". Also one can infer from the text of this inaugural speech the awareness of this group of Montrealers of their remoteness from the great art centres of the world, and their desire to bring to the community a greater interest in the arts.

Over the years the Society has grown and evolved, but its basic aims have not changed.

Membership of the Women's Art Society is now over 400.

Hatley waters' protection is aim of new association

A general meeting in mid-August in North Hatley of concerned residents of the area — many of whom make their permanent homes in Westmount — has not gone into limbo.

Mrs. H. E. Worrall, 384 Lansdowne avenue, who is president of the North Hatley Village Improvement Society, reports that a meeting was held recently of the newly-formed Massawippi Water Protection Incorporated at North Hatley at which it was learned that the group expects to receive both federal and provincial charters soon, after which they hope to proceed with their program of conservation in the area.

Chairman is Leo W. Bedard.

Concern for future

The main idea is that Lake Massawippi might become contaminated in the future, and since the area attracts a large number of tourists enjoying swimming, fishing and boating, clear waters are economically important.

The group plans a complete survey of Lake Massawippi and its watershed, and plans on presenting the Quebec Water Board with a comprehensive report once the survey is completed. The survey will be supervised by Dr. J. K. Lowther, a vice-president of Massawippi water Protection and their technical advisor.

Massawippi Water Protection have budgeted $10,000 for their 1969 activities.

They hope to receive the co-operation of all the municipalities in Stanstead County, as well as their financial support.

They are planning an educational program for all school children in early 1969, when a film depicting the death of a river through pollution and solutions to the problem will be shown.

Now 150 members

To date the association counts 150 members, but wishes to increase this number considerably.

Any Massawippi area residents who wish to have further information on the plans aimed at correcting the possible spoilation of the area are asked to contact Mr. Bruce A. Bishop, North Hatley.

The aims of Massawippi Water Protection are to conserve, improve and restore all natural resources; to cooperate with all other organizations that have similar problems; to promote the prevention of land, air, and water pollution; to promote the protection and conservation of wild life; to promote the prevention and correction of soil erosion problems; to promote and engage in scientific research,

India-Canada body elects Rao; year reported success

The India Canada Association held its annual meeting shortly before Christmas at Dominion Douglas United Church hall at which time a highly successful 1968 was reported.

The following slate of officers for 1969 was elected: Past president, Chand Tarneja; president, Nanduri Rao; vice-president, Rev. Robert Vachon; secretary, Mrs. G. R. Stephen and directors, Mrs. A. P. Blackburn, Mrs. J. Mirchandani, Mrs. A. Hazra, Roman Mukerjee, V. Planthara, M. Moitra and J. G. Larin.

The outgoing secretary, Ram Sainani, in summarizing the activities for 1968 indicated a highly successful year. A very substantial increase in membership was noted. Of great interest, also, was the merger of "The Friends of India Association" with India Canada Association to function as one organization.

Six meetings were held. The first was the celebration of India Republic Day in January. This was attended by over 400 members and friends, when the guest speaker was Dr. M. D. Lewis, dean of graduate studies and professor of history at Sir George Williams University, who spoke on the "History of India".

In March, Nobel Prize Winner Dr. Rabindranath Tagore's play, "Shap-Mochan", was given to a capacity audience in Victoria Hall.

In December, a program of international music and dance was arranged by Dr. Arya Bal.

Mr. Rao, the new president, in his opening remarks, stressed the need for increased membership and continued co-operation.

Westmouter Lydia Randolph executes fine TNM costumes

The complex but magnificent costumes for the Théâtre du Nouveau Monde's third production this season, Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, were executed by the staff of the TNM's workshop under the direction of a Westmouter, Mrs. Gerald Randolph, 324 Redfern avenue.

Twelfth Night opened Dec. 13 at the Théâtre Port-Royal of Place des Arts. Alfred Pellan was the designer of the costumes, who declares the finished work of "each costume is like a piece of sculpture", despite many problems he posed for the workshop's experienced and efficient team.

Three years ago TNM set up a permanent workshop of its own to cope with all its costume needs, and Mrs. Lydia Randolph was entrusted with its organization.

After studying in Europe, Mrs. Randolph spent several years designing costumes for the movies. She worked with Associated Screen News and with Columbia Pictures in the United States, and returned later to Canada to work for the National Film Board.

She also designed costumes for the stage, first with the Montreal Repertory Theatre and the Mountain Playhouse, and then at Stratford before her appointment as director of the TNM Workshop. Her wide knowledge of this exacting profession is therefore based on many years of training.

Experienced team

Mrs. Randolph has also brought together a team of experienced cutters and first hands. Her principal collaborators are Erika Hoffer, Christel Marx and Werner Kulovitz, who had all worked for many years as costume cutters for the movies and the stage both in Canada and abroad before joining the TNM. The workshop now produces all the costumes required for the TNM productions each season.

Nuit des Rois (Twelfth Night), translated and directed by Jean-Louis Roux, will play until Jan. 19.

Need for blood urgent; huge clinic Thursday

No blood donor clinics are scheduled in Westmount this week - despite the urgent, general seasonal need for the precious, life-saving fluid.

Instead, the efforts of the Canadian Red Cross Society are being directed primarily toward the annual drive Thursday for donors at Montreal's City Hall, known as the "Mayor's Christmas Clinic" for the 15th successive year.

Citizens of the entire metropolitan area are being urged to turn out, between 10 am and 10 pm, to help achieve the objective of 1,800 donations that day.

There is ample parking space at Champs-de-Mars with access to the clinic by the west entrance of the city hall. In addition, pulmonary X-rays are being offered free to anyone wishing them courtesy of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Montreal.

While the permanent centres will be closed Wednesday and Thursday this week, those who may find the Jan. 2 date inconvenient are reminded that these clinics, at 2180 Dorchester boulevard west and 3131 Sherbrooke street east, will be open to 7 pm Monday, 3 pm Tuesday and 5 pm Friday, from 9 am in each instance.

SPORTS

Unity ready for New Year

The New Year will bring old and new activities - tap gym program, woodwork with Louis Thomas, arts and crafts, Mrs. E. Dube; a new clay modelling program with Mrs. L. Echenberg; cooking, cake decorating, acting, judo and many others. We will be starting our modelling course for the older girls (12-14) with Model Krista Fisher.

We are still open for enrolments for the majorette classes with Miss Claire Riley of the Alouette Majorettes. This course of 10 lessons cost $2.50.

We look forward to welcoming old and new members at Unity in the New Year. The Club will be closed on the Dec. 31, and Jan. 1 and 2, after which our club will be "swinging again!"
