

'And so far nothing has been done'

Lawrence Colony is nine miles of road in Compton County, mid-way between Scotstown and Island Brook, where 34 families eke out a living on government owned land. Farmers work on a mixture of rock and bag. Illiteracy is high. Skills are non-existent. Plumbing, electricity and refrigeration are rare luxuries. The majority of the population exists on social welfare and old age pensions.

During the depression years, the Colony was a ray of hope to the destitute families who were located on a parcel of land. For a minimal fee and the obligation of clearing 32 acres settlers were promised eventual ownership.

With many of the original occupants deceased, most inhabitants are second generation colonizers and uncertain of their rights and obligations regarding colony land. And there are a multitude of differences in each individual case. One family, who has cleared 26 acres, far in excess of their neighbors, are eager to move closer to town. The more successful members of the community have sought employment elsewhere, in Bury or Scotstown. Although practised, this is directly opposed to the original intention of the establishment of the Colony.

The situation has stirred the conscience of many through the years. Clergymen, school administrators and personnel and government officials have, in some cases, worked endlessly to improve the lot of the 85 inhabitants.

This summer an SOS (Summer of Service) is operating in the Colony. Initiated by the Director of the "Y", Ben Hannan, and co-ordinated by his wife, Carol, four senior students have set up headquarters in an abandoned dwelling.

Heather Thomson, Nora Thomson, Elaine McConnachie and Marc Sheeran communicate daily from Sherbrooke, driven by a group of volunteer women. Joan Bryson has also been an active worker in the project from its inception.

Their aim — to provide recreational facilities for the inhabitants. Mrs. Hannan, who has just received her Master of Education in counselling from Boston University, told the LOCAL OMBUDSMAN — Charlie Martin has lived in the Colony for 26 years, as councillor, vet and self-professed trouble shooter. With 400 acres at his disposal and an 85 per cent disability pension, he can barely support his family. He has asthma and a lung condition. It would cost him $65 a month to take the medicine he should. His wife likes it in the Colony.

It has been her home since she was six years old. "I wouldn't want to move" she said. The women folk hold up real good, Mr. Martin added. Of course welfare is a Godsend. The SOS headquarters, in the background was scrubbed and repaired for the "Y" workers.

WIPED OUT TWICE — Curt Lloyd is 55 years old. He lost his first home in a fire, his second, he says, in a shady deal, and finally brought his wife and eight children to the Colony. With a capital of $6 they have built a home. Mr. Lloyd has a grade three education and is not well. "There is not a lazy bone in his body", a neighbor told the Record. He gets the odd days work here and there but is looking for something steady. They have had a lot of trouble. One son has a kidney condition, one is "nearly blind" and needs his glasses changed every year and two others need glasses. Their telephone was disconnected last month. Ten people live on $184 a month welfare payment.

June 1, 1969

To Whom it may Concern,
We, the undersigned, residents of Lawrence Colony have signed this petition asking the government to put on some sort of a plan that we may be able to work and earn our living. There was some talk of a reforestation program put on in Lawrence Colony where by we could work and earn a living. In fact it was definitely promised that who ever wanted to work would be able to do so this summer, starting no later than the 15th of May, 1969 and so far nothing has been done about it.

Some of these people made their plans to carry on with this work and so far they have been left sitting high and dry. We think that we showed our sincerity and willingness to work and try to better ourselves last winter when the Adult Education Program Plan was put on for us. We have been informed that this program was a huge success, so that should prove that we are willing to work if given a chance. We feel that the government is letting us down by promising something that so far has showed no sign of maturing. And we think it is time something should be done about it.

This is not the first time that we have been promised something and never received it and we feel that something should be done about this in the very very near future. After all some of us have spent twenty years hard work in Lawrence Colony and we don't feel that we should be drove into leaving and leave everything behind, with nothing to show for our hard work.

If this program is carried out the way it was explained to us, we feel that at least we have a fighting chance of making a living without being on Welfare or Social Assistance.

Hoping this will receive somebody's attention who will be interested in doing something about it.

Thanking you in advance we remain
yours truly,
Residents of Lawrence Colony

TRANSPORTATION A PROBLEM — Midway between Island Brook and Scotstown, and lacking all normal community facilities of their own, most occupants lack transportation. There are no stores, post office or community centre although an Anglican Church and another Pentecostal Church are available for services. One inhabitant who owned a car lost his license when his under age son had a car accident. Deprived of a means to get to work, the owner had no choice but to apply for welfare assistance.

PROMISES, PROMISES — Roxanne is six. She will start school in Cookshire next year. Colonists pay school taxes even though they don't own the land they live on. They have been promised deeds to it this year. Many have a deathly dread of the Regional School, where the seniors will go next year. Fear of increased taxes, of the children being swamped and the distance involved, Mr. Martin thinks, may partly have prompted many to move to Ontario to the tobacco country. Every fifth dwelling in the Colony is abandoned. Moving, he said is no expense. They just sell their few pieces of furniture and walk out. Other destitute families just come along and walk in.

The Townships

Politics, accidents mark week in ET

FRIDAY, July 25 — Yvan Cyr, of Ascot Corner, was acquitted on a charge of impaired driving by Judge Jean-Louis Pelouin of the Sherbrooke Sessions Court. Mr. Cyr had been involved in an accident which took the lives of two people in August of 1967.

Judge Pelouin gave Mr. Cyr the benefit of the doubt in the case because of a contradiction in the statements of several witnesses.

Robin Hood and the Sheriff of Nottingham was the theme of the Sherbrooke District Cub Pack holiday at Lovering Lake. Thirty-two boys and nine leaders attended the holiday.

The boys made their own outfits, and in this attire were given lessons in archery, campfires, games and the birth of three baby rabbits highlighted the evening.

Predicts security

SATURDAY, July 26 — Glen Brown, MNA for Brome County, predicts that within three months every municipality in his constituency will be equipped with one full-time policeman and ten civil defence men.

Mr. Brown recently returned from a series of talks with officials in Quebec City, where he presented the county's complaints of inadequate police protection during the construction goon raids in June.

Members of the Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment gathered in Sherbrooke for their 23rd annual reunion. Weekend events included a parade, dinner, films and a dance. Fusiliers came from as far away as New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, and Saskatchewan to relive old memories with their comrades.

To commemorate the occasion the regiment re-issued 500 copies of the Sherbrooke Record, when in 1946, this newspaper covered the Fusiliers return from active duty in the Second World War overseas.

Ambulance crashes

SUNDAY, July 27 — An ambulance carrying the body of a young American sailor killed in a motorcycle accident, crashed through a series of trees and into the wall of a general store in Massawippi as it was heading for hospital.

It is reported that the U.S. Navy man, identified as Michael James Wakefield of the Base in Boston, Mass., died as a result of injuries sustained in the first accident, which occurred when Wakefield and two Navy friends were travelling to Stanstead. The centre motorcycle belonging to Wakefield went out of control and crashed along the road.

Shortly after leaving the scene of the accident the ambulance which was travelling at a great speed, arrived at Massawippi, where a sudden curve in the road caused it to go out of control, crash through a series of pine trees and into the wall of a general store.

Forces unit break-in MONDAY, July 28 — Quebec Provincial Police are investigating a break-in at the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Unit 318 in Lennoxville that gave thieves about $800 in goods. It was reported that 50 bottles of liquor, 40 cartons of cigarettes, and $60 in cash was taken from the Unit.

City Hall was granted an East Ward building owner permission to transform a vacant lot on Lafontaine Street into a parking lot for nearby apartment house dwellers. When the owner Philip Markus erected the apartments known as the Versailles Apartments in 1964, existing regulations called for one parking lot for every three residents. Today the law calls for a parking lot for every citizen.

Council is still not sure whether it will build a parking lot on King Street near Murray. Engineer Charles Langlois warned that the venture would not pay for itself.

East Ward Alderman Romeo Quintal reminded council of the difficulties the owners of the land next to the old Raby et Freres on King Street West were having with car owners who left their vehicles in the private parking lot and kept store customers from an easy access to the same lot.

Mayor gives warning

TUESDAY, July 30 — Sherbrooke Mayor Armand Nadeau said in a special statement he would offer the new municipal manager his complete co-operation but warned the latter to have city council put into writing certain guarantees relating to his job.

Commenting on the language maintained by council Monday describing the personnel at city hall, Mr. Nadeau said the new manager, Richard Fabi, should have certain assurances he would have a job, should council decide to retire him from his new post after a year.

The Mayor said Mr. Fabi has a verbal agreement, but added he would be much more secure with a resolution from council.

Drawings for a dome over the Claire Fontaine Swimming Pool and pocket arenas prompted Alderman Raymond Bergeron to seek an audience with the minister of Fish and Game and Tourism.

Well aware of the fact that the Quebec High Commission on Sports had helped other cities in the region, Mr. Bergeron feels the city could receive some financial assistance in the realization of certain plans.

A 19-year-old Cookshire student, Real Gendreau, was acquitted of theft by Sessions Judge Roland Dugre, following what he called reasonable doubt.

Gendreau was detained by police in connection with the theft of a tachometer, luggage and a transistor radio from a car belonging to 22-year-old Pierre Goulet of Sherbrooke, during the night of July 19-20.

The Mariposa Folk Festival was held on Toronto Island from July 25-27, and top stars were on the bill this year. Joan Baez, possibly America's best-known folk singer appeared at one of the evening concerts and also held an hour-long workshop discussion session during the Saturday afternoon program. She was told previous to the discussion that she was welcome to discuss any topics, controversial or not. The U.S. political situation, her husband awaiting an appeal on a jail sentence for resisting the draft and the fact that she is expecting her first child dominated the discussion. This discussion could prove to be of interest to all Canadians, as the CBC filmed all the daytime activities for a fall special. Miss Baez's talk could turn out to be another confrontation as important and as sensational as that of John Lennon.

The biggest problem at the Festival was transportation unless you had your own launch, cared to brave choppy Lake Ontario in a canoe, walked out on the polluted waters of Toronto Harbour, or arrived early—very early. Those who did avoided the hassles of trying to catch a ferry for the evening performance only. Besides if the boats are anything like the TTC's old buses, you might as well have started swimming anyway. Overall I would say that the Festival this year was a huge success,—then again, I may be all wet.

Varied drugs frequently misused

Not so long ago parents stayed up late at night waiting for their children to return home from dates. Now the concern is: Does he or she or doesn't he or she? And it's not sex that we are concerned about.

The under-30 generation is misusing a variety of drugs. The over-30 generation seems to prefer alcohol, although they aren't averse to misusing tranquilizers, aspirins and sleeping pills.

But we don't really know how many youngsters or adults are misusing drugs. The statistics we have only account for the visible drug abuser who comes to the attention of the court, the jail, the federal, state or municipal treatment center.

This is a selective group—generally of the lower socio-economic groups. The person treated for misuses of tranquilizers or pep pills by his family doctor is not included in the statistics and, of course, many people never seek treatment. They feel they have no problem.

We know about the teen-aged middle-class child who is picked up at a pot party by the police, who call the parents, who promise that their child will never do this again. There is no arrest and no increase in statistics.

We are also becoming concerned about the young girl who is misusing aspirins. She works at a sewing machine in a factory. She has a sensitive employer. He has bottles of 1,000 aspirins in different parts of the plant, to ease the problems associated with "that time of the month."

The misuse of aspirins causes serious medical problems lasting longer than those few days; "that time of the month." There is no arrest and no increase in statistics of drug misuse.

Some adults may take comfort in thinking that their children will grow out of the drug phase. It is a false comfort. Should we hope that our marijuana smoker will be better off by turning to alcohol after 30? The younger generation, in turn, should take little comfort in its argument about the apparent medical safety of marijuana compared to alcohol misuse, or by pointing to their parents' daily drinking.

Steel strike starts

HAMILTON (CP) — With no word to the contrary from their negotiators, about 13,400 steelworkers at Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. plants in Ontario at Hamilton, Toronto, Brantford and Ganoque went off their jobs early today, cutting off 40 per cent of Canada's basic steel production.

The Stelco workers join nearly 18,000 other members of the United Steelworkers of America who have been off work since July 10 while awaiting a new contract with the International Nickel Co. of Canada.

Talks in Toronto between Stelco and steelworker officials went two hours and 15 minutes past the midnight Thursday night deadline for expiry of a three-year contract before breaking off indefinitely.

Mediator Carl Goldenberg, who had met with the negotiators for 23 consecutive days, said early today an agreement had been reached before the deadline on everything but a few fringe benefits.

Early Thursday evening, he emerged from the negotiations long enough to tell reporters "considerable progress had been made" and shortly after a company spokesman said there was hope of a settlement by 10 p.m.

PICKET LINES FORM

Picket lines, however, appeared at Stelco's giant Hilton Works in Hamilton by 11 p.m. and by midnight, about 500 spectators were on hand to watch 1,800 shift workers leave the plant. The workers had been told by union officials the stoppage was to be effective at midnight if they received no word to the contrary.

Earlier this week, the company made its own preparations by cooling off blast furnaces and hearths and steel production was suspended.

Failure to reach a settlement also affects workers at three wire and steel mesh operations in Hamilton, a heavy nut and bolt plant in Toronto, a washer and nut plant in Brantford and a forging plant in Ganoque where picket lines were established at midnight.

Riding on the outcome of negotiations is the action of 1,200 members of five Steelworker locals in Quebec who may legally strike Aug. 15. Several hundred more steelworkers at three plants in Alberta will also be eligible to strike after compliance with provincial labor laws.

Negotiations between company and union began in April, one month earlier than stipulated by the old contract.

The union demands, presented to the company in February, included a wage and fringe benefit increase of $1.40 an hour over two years. The average wage under the old contract in Hamilton was $3.12 an hour.

An early company offer, rejected by the union, was for an 80.6-cent-an-hour increase spread over three years.

A major issue was a cost-of-living clause to provide up to 21 cents an hour based on an escalator formula.

Union negotiators have argued that steelworker productivity in Canada is highest in the world and that Stelco profits rose by 45 per cent in 1968.

In a gloomy report Wednesday, however, the company noted that profits in the first half of 1969 are 18.4 per cent down from the same period last year.

The contract between the Steelworkers and Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. in Sault Ste. Marie also expired Thursday night, but a strike will not be legal until the end of the conciliation period.

Marquis sent to trial on attempted murder charge

Twenty-four year-old Gilles Marquis of Sherbrooke, convicted for jail break recently was sent to the Assizes yesterday on a charge of attempted murder by Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel.

At the preliminary hearing, which lasted for about two minutes, crown attorney, Michel Cote presented a declaration of what the testimony would be given by Nicole Glaude, the victim of the knife assault, and from her brother and father.

Defense lawyer Yves Lafontaine said he would allow the declaration to be presented and offered no further arguments.

The unusual move on the part of the defense council was explained when he said all he wanted for his client was a quick trial leading to a sentence that would remove his client from the local prison.

Recently, Attorney Lafontaine had said his client's confinement in the jail was unbearable.

Marquis, looking tired, indicated his intention of getting the whole thing over with so that he could start serving his sentence in a penitentiary.

Attorney Lafontaine told the court his client had spent at least 17 consecutive days in solitary confinement where temperature is very hot and humid, and where he was fed bread and water.

Asks for inquest

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — District Attorney Edmund Denis asked Thursday for assignment of a superior court judge to conduct an inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, who drowned July 18 when a car driven by Senator Edward M. Kennedy plunged into a tidal pool.

Denis, whose district includes the Island of Martha's Vineyard, made the request in a letter he sent to Chief Justice G. Joseph Tauro of the Superior Court.

Denis released copies of the letter he sent to Tauro.

"As district attorney of the southern district of Massachusetts, I hereby make request that a justice of the Superior Court be assigned to conduct an inquest in and for the county of Dukes County, as provided for under chapter 38, section eight of the general laws," the letter said.

"This inquest will concern the death of one Mary Jo Kopechne of Washington, D.C.,

Drums beat as Pope starts African peace mission

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The throb of tribal drums and the wail of long, hide-covered horns welcomed Pope Paul to the heart of Africa on Thursday for a visit that quickly became a mission to bring peace to Nigeria and Biafra, torn by two years of civil war.

No sooner had the 71-year-old Roman Catholic leader landed here on the north shore of Lake Victoria than both sides in the conflict on Africa's west coast agreed at least to talk about a settlement.

On his flight from Italy, Pope Paul told correspondents that he intended to bring together today the Nigerian and Biafran delegations who had come to Kampala for his visit. A high Vatican aide said the Pope was willing to stay in Africa a month if this could pave the way to a Nigerian-Biafran peace. He is scheduled to visit Uganda for three days.

AGREE TO MEET

Both delegations have agreed to meet here if invited by the pontiff or President Milton Obote of Uganda.

The official purpose of the Pope's visit was to close the first meeting of African bishops and consecrate the altar of a church dedicated to the first saints and martyrs of black Africa, who died at the end of the 19th century.

But the visit, punctuated by the beating of jungle drums and tom-toms, songs dedicated to "His Holiness" and a turnout of around 40,000 people, turned into a full-scale effort to stage another round of Nigerian peace talks.

An Entebbe Airport, Pope Paul was awaited by Chief Anthony Enahoro, one of the federal Nigeria's top negotiators, and four African heads of state.

The Biafrans were not seen at the airport. Possibly they adhered to diplomatic protocol and remained away from official functions because Uganda does not recognize Biafra, which has broken away from Nigeria.

BIAFRA ACCEPTS

But a dispatch from Owerri, headquarters for Biafra's leadership Information Commissioner Igegwu Eketold a news conference Biafra is ready to negotiate peace without preconditions.

In Kampala, Biafra's roving ambassador, Austin Okwu, said he had accepted the Pope's offer to mediate the civil war.

Nigeria's official radio in the last few days rejected mediation by the Pope.

Although federal Nigeria has rejected him as a mediator, Pope Paul has the support of President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Keneth Kaunda of Zambia. Both recognize Biafra.

He also received backing from the 44 prelates who closed the first all-Africa bishops symposium. The bishops — including seven cardinals — sent a personal message to the leaders of both sides. The conference also issued a plea that "the fratricidal strife which stains our beloved land be brought to an end."

Nixon meets with Indian PM, suggest peace-keeping role

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — President Nixon carried his new Asian doctrine to India Thursday and discussed with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi the possibility that India might help police a settlement of the war in Vietnam.

Another prime topic on the United States president's agenda with Mrs. Gandhi was the state of Indo-Pakistani relations and the delicate question of resumption of U.S. military aid to Pakistan which was suspended during fighting over the disputed border area of Kashmir.

Mrs. Gandhi was reported to have spoken firmly with Nixon and warned that another arms race would develop if arms supplies to Pakistan were resumed. Nixon will have further talks on the touchy issue when he arrives in Pakistan.

The president flew into New Delhi earlier Thursday. The 23-hour visit was the fourth scheduled stage of Nixon's visit to five Asian countries and Communist Romania.

Mars looks like the moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Closest-ever photography of Mars showed Thursday night a starkly desolate landscape, profusely cratered and remarkably similar to the rugged surface of the moon.

Mariner VI, seeking to find if the red planet could harbor life, skimmed just 2,130 miles from its surface and, after an hour delay in processing its signals, began relaying a 24-picture sequence of the most detailed planetary pictures yet.

The relay delay was due, a spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, to a missing element in the signal sent from the spacecraft that made a computer unable to process the pictures.

The first shot received, about 9:30 p.m. EDT, showed an area of Mare Erythraeum, a bleak desert area pocked with craters, the largest two or three miles across. The whole shot covered about 50 miles.

The first picture was identified as No. 8 of the 24. Earlier shots were to be replayed later.

AIMED AT DESERTS

The spacecraft's two cameras, one with a telescopic lens to show objects as small as a football stadium, were programmed for 12 pictures each. They were aimed at equatorial deserts and dark areas that some scientists believe could be vegetation.

The equatorial belt was chosen for its variety of Martian terrain features.

Later pictures in the series also were heavily marked with craters. No. 9 showed one deep, with a smaller one inside. No. 10 looked as if pepper had been sprinkled on it, showing two quite large pits, perhaps five miles across.

A spokesman said that examination of more distant pictures taken by Mariner VI on Wednesday disclosed a crater 300 miles across, with clouds over it. There was no speculation of whether the cloud might be from a volcano. A spokesman said clouds could come from sunlight striking some form of moisture.

The two cameras, working alternately over 42½ seconds during a 17-minute sweep from 4,800 miles to flyby range of 2,130, sought a picture series that could be pieced into a panorama.

Goal of the studies was to obtain information to guide future quests for extra-terrestrial life and develop technology for future Mars orbital and unmanned landing flights in the 1970s.

The photos built up a line at a time on the laboratory's television monitors and arrived one every five minutes after crossing 58,000,000 miles of space.

Ex-Record photog wins top prizes

Gordon Alexander, of Mystic, Connecticut, who began his career in photography here at the Record in 1956, has won top prizes in the June contest of the National Press Photographer's Association. Mr. Alexander, formerly of Sherbrooke and Richmond, was with the Record for seven years.

He was awarded top prize in the New England region for his photo, "Pavement Picassos," which appeared in the New London Day on June 27.

"Pavement Picassos" depicts two children using their creative talents with chalk, drawing on the blacktop in front of their homes.

"Mod Muddle," which copped third prize in the June 17 edition, is a two-photo story of the times. The first picture is a rear view of a husband and wife sitting in the sand at the beach, but female can't be distinguished from male because of long hairdos and the similar jersey tops they are wearing.

The revelation is in the second photo after Mom has removed her jersey. There are some distinctions that even unisex can't hide, the caption denotes.

"The Long Hot Hearing" received an honorable mention in the June 14 issue. It shows a taxpayer, head bowed and resting on folded arms, at a recent public meeting during a hot night in East Lyme.

Mr. Alexander has been a member of the New London Day since leaving the Recorder in Greenfield, Mass., four months ago.

Mayor should continue exerting pressure

Sherbrooke Mayor Armand Nadeau became a political drop-out the day council passed the resolution creating a municipal manager.

Effective administration by the city's elected officials is seriously threatened by the situation that has been created by the mayor's reaction. The aldermen as a group have in effect taken power. Armand Nadeau seems satisfied now to sit passively by while the council members dictate policy.

It is not the first time action on the part of a group or all the aldermen has been countered by an apathetic response from the mayor. After fighting alone against allowing the Comité des Fêtes Populaires du 24 Juin to hold parallel festivities on St. Jean the Baptist Day, Mayor Nadeau reversed his position after most of the aldermen were brought to their knees by a delegation's boisterous demonstration. The mayor broke a tie vote obviously changing his stand in angry reaction to the rebellious aldermen.

On Tuesday, Mayor Nadeau obviously feeling that he had been stabbed in the back by city council, warned Richard Fabi the city manager that the same might happen to him if and when he is forced to make unpopular decisions.

It seems evident to observers that the aldermen will carry on administering whether the mayor takes part or not.

If the mayor continues to refuse to take part in the city's decision making process a power struggle will result. There are too many ambitious aldermen who would gladly fill the vacancy. Action in this event is liable to be destructive.

We hope the mayor will meet the responsibilities he took up when elected and continue to express his opinions on all subjects no matter how much influence they carry.

Every day has a fresh beginning for the office wolf.

UN men should leave

The death of a Swedish member of the United Nations observer force in the Middle East only reinforces the suggestion of UN Secretary General U Thant that this unit be withdrawn from the Suez trouble area without delay.

Numbering less than 100 men all told it is obvious that the observer team can do little to maintain the peace between the Israelis and the Arabs and judging from the statements of some of the Arab guerrilla leaders its presence is only aggravating the situation.

When both sides to the argument showed some real desire to prevent large scale hostilities the observer team may have served some useful purpose by investigating isolated incidents of friction and making on-the-spot compromises that would localize the trouble.

But when the opposing parties engage in large-scale aerial and artillery exchanges verging on full-scale war it becomes obvious that the continued presence of the observers accomplishes little but increase the chances of trouble.

Furthermore it only banishes further the already dirtied image of the United Nations which many now regard as little more than a debating society its peace-keeping activities to expression of pious hopes.

One way of deciding to walk to reduce is to price the new cars.

TODAY in history

Aug. 1, 1969 . . .

Slavery was abolished in all British possessions 135 years ago today—in 1834—but it was not until the victory of the Union in the Civil War in 1865 that slaves were freed in the United States. The opening up of the West Indies and southern states of America had made slavery a lucrative trade in the New World. In the later part of the 18th century and the beginning of the 19th century public conscience was aroused at the horror and suffering of this traffic. But internal trade continued in the United States.

1914—Germany declared war on Russia and invaded Luxembourg.

1936—Louis Bleriot, the French air pioneer, died at 64.

Second World War
Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—Allied bombers hit German airfields near Paris; Finnish Premier Risto Ryti resigned; Canadian troops took Tilly La Campagne, five miles south of Caen, France, and then withdrew in the face of a German counter-attack.

Hellyer leaves no ripples in his wake

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

BY RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Whatever happened to Paul Theodore Hellyer that he should have sunk so swiftly, so silently, from public interest, leaving not so much as a ripple.

It was almost as if some magician had waved a magic wand.

While it wasn't, of course, like that at all, it was the slickest now-you-see-him-now-you-don't act presented on the parliamentary stage since who-can-remember-when.

And it marks the difference as prime minister between Lester Bowles Pearson and Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Paul Hellyer once threatened Lester Pearson with a resignation from the cabinet, and this most permissive and submissive of Canadian prime ministers backed off in political panic.

It happened when Paul Hellyer was busy with his two-stage destruction — integration escalating into unification — of the Armed Forces.

Unification was his baby, and his alone, a gimmick born of an inventive political mind.

In the Pearson cabinet of indecision, inertia and inaction, it was conceived with but a single self-centred motive in mind — to mark him as the decisive man of action, the doer-of-big-things among men he regarded with tolerant amusement as do-littles and do-nothings.

The Liberal party, he obviously hoped, instantly would recognize that this was the stuff of which its leaders and prime ministers were made.

Dressing the baby in the economy-cut clothing of "integration," he persuaded the prime minister and the cabinet to adopt it.

Only when it was almost too late—it could have been disowned if Lester Pearson hadn't been so easily intimidated — did they all realize it was turning into the little monster of unification.

Opposition mounted across the country and in the Commons where even a great many Liberals fought a losing fight in the privacy of the party caucus against it.

Hellyer sacked an admiral, fired a general and in National Defence Headquarters mutiny whimpered out.

But not in Parliament.

Finally, Prime Minister Pearson called in his defence minister and asked him to backtrack. Hellyer refused. It became an order — almost — with the prime minister asserting himself as political commander-in-chief. Paul Hellyer said he'd resign.

The prime minister surrendered. Unconditionally.

Hellyer got his unification, but not the Liberal leadership.

SO RESIGN:

But he did emerge in the new government as Pierre Elliott Trudeau's deputy prime minister.

Paul Hellyer was a Very Big Man. Experience, 16 years in the Commons. A member of three cabinets, Louis St. Laurent's, Lester Pearson's, and Pierre Trudeau's.

An almost-leader with a big personal following, in Toronto, in Ontario, and to some extent in the West, and especially among Liberals in the Commons.

As deputy prime minister, he was the "always available alternative" to Pierre Trudeau. He was the spokesman, even a leader-of-sorts, of English Canada in the Quebec-dominated cabinet.

Still the doer-of-big-things and the activist, as transport minister he was assigned to come up with the quick cure for the housing crisis.

He produced a prescription, but the prime minister wouldn't buy it.

He threatened, as he had with Lester Pearson, resignation.

So quit, he was told. Trudeau was no Pearson.

Hellyer called a press conference and publicly quit — a first for Parliament Hill — in the glare of TV lights.

Trudeau shrugged, came close to yawning, casually informed the Commons of the resignation without even mentioning Hellyer's name.

And that was it for the once potent Paul who could browbeat one prime minister but not so much as make another blink.

Whatever happened to Paul Hellyer? He went off on a European tour, and who missed him?

Le Devoir deplores attempted PC block

Montreal Le Devoir — If members of Parliament are truly equal in rights and dignity, they can work together only under a system of rules worked out in a climate of collaboration and reasonably accepted by everybody. A certain amount of time is always devoted to establishing the rules of the game which, in actual fact, certify the equality of the parties present. It would be inadmissible for these rules to be imposed by a single party. In a Parliament where several parties are present, the same thing applies. It ought to be possible for reasonable men to agree on rules acceptable to the great majority of members, without getting trapped in rules that would put Parliament at the mercy of a few crackpots. Above all, one must realize that, more than the rules themselves, mutual respect and confidence and the spirit of tolerance and collaboration are the essential elements of real efficiency.

Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Trudeau are confusing Parliament with government by putting the emphasis, as they have, on rigid concepts of efficiency and majority. They are mixing up the immediate objective and the end-goal, sacrificing what is essential for temporary and dubious results. They are getting, by force, what they have been looking for. But, in doing so, they will humiliate their own members. Once again, they are making them look like sheep. And for a long time to come they have forfeited the confidence of the opposition parties. — Claude Ryan designed to stimulate and guide the progress of the country and if, because of the unshakable attitude of the Opposition or its refusal to bring debate to an end, once its arguments are exhausted, the discussion drags on, then the government finds its program paralysed by the minority.

The new rules may not be perfect, but it seems only right to put them to the test before taking the position that they prejudice the rights of members of Parliament.

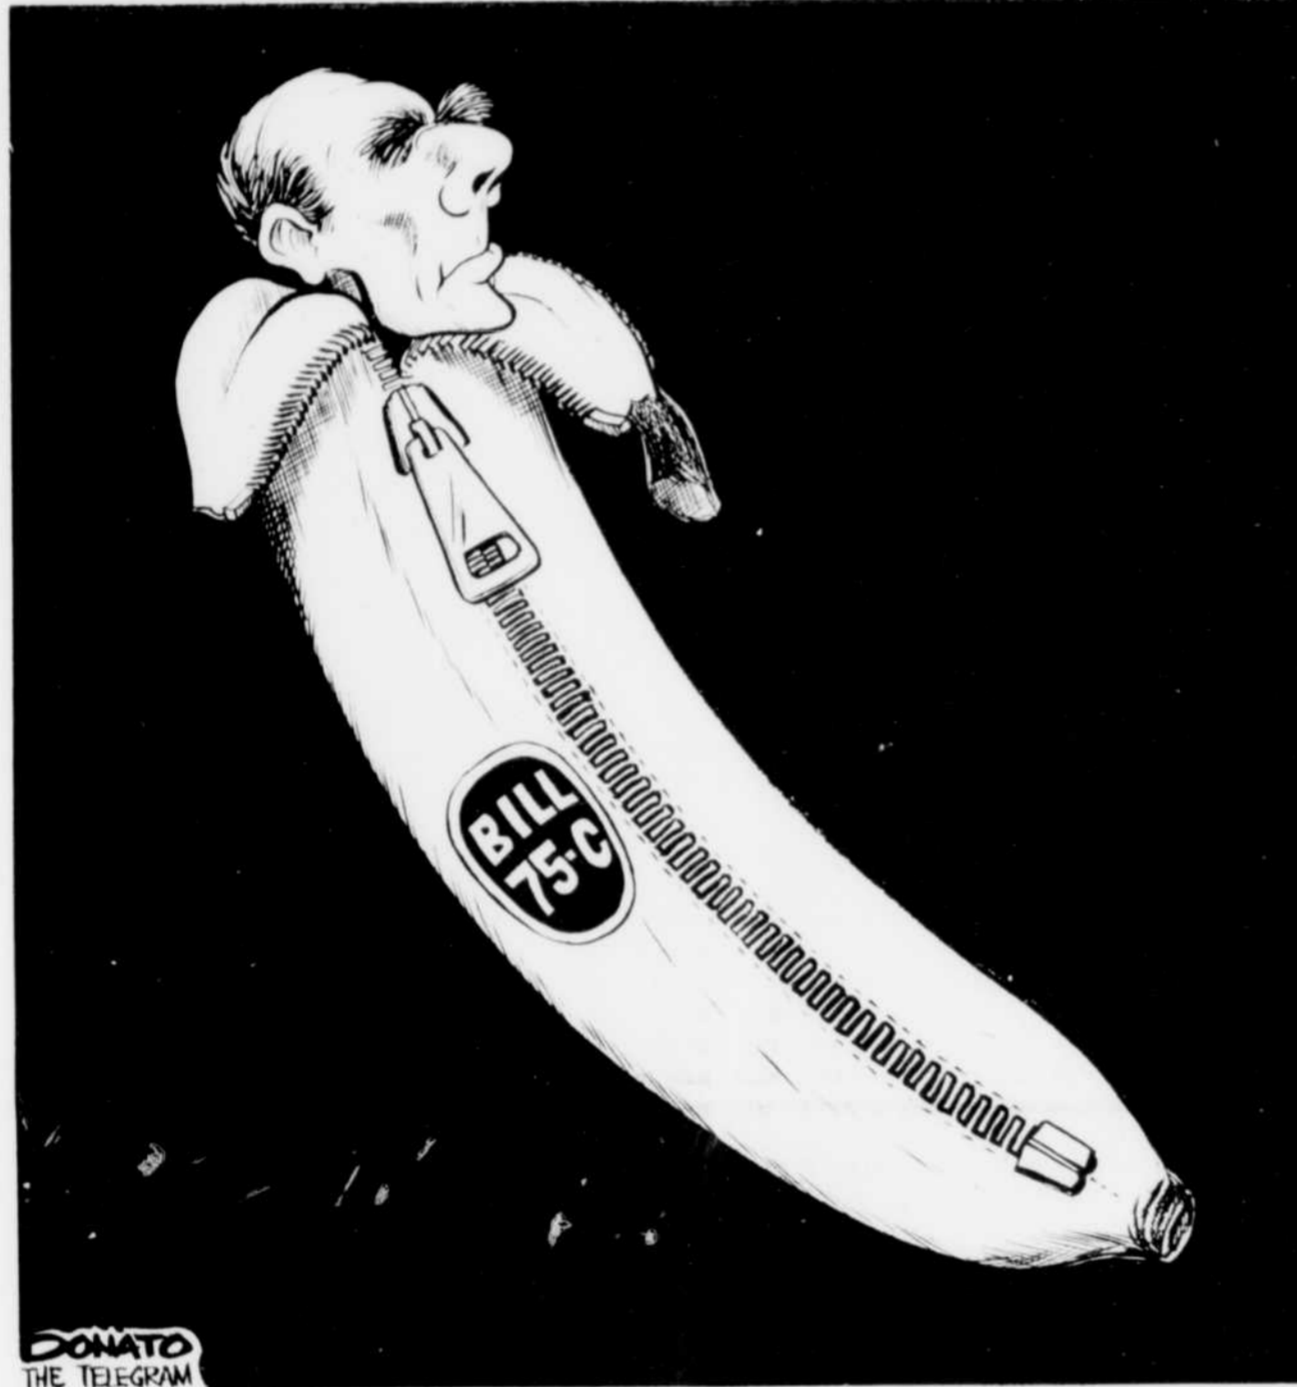

If there is reason for it, there will be time, come autumn, to amend them to permit an extension of time allocated for speeches or the various stages of procedure.

For if it is the Opposition's mission to subject government measures to a profound scrutiny, it is not its role to block action by those who have the duty of governing the country. — Roland Gagne Quebec L'Action — All those who have followed, on television or in the newspapers, the extraordinary moon voyage of the astronauts Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins will have noticed how the Americans like to associate faith with their major undertakings. And they do it quite naturally and quite properly, like something that goes without saying, and without ostentation, but also without hesitation.

The German engineer Wernher von Braun, captured by the Americans after the Second World War, father of the V-2 rocket and the man chiefly responsible for the moon voyage that the three astronauts have just accomplished, said, at the very last moment of preparation for the launching: "We have done everything in our power to assure the success of the flight. Now, we put it all in the hands of Providence." A magnificent thought that reminded us, at a most impressive moment of man's submission to a Higher Power that guides him in all his actions and helps him constantly in his quest of perfection.

Defection may cause crackdown

MOSCOW (AP) — The defection of Soviet writer Anatoli V. Kuznetsov probably will lead to a further crackdown on the arts in the Soviet Union.

The Kremlin is expected to try to make sure that no other writers critical of the Soviet system attain enough standing to be able to embarrass the Kremlin.

Kuznetsov disappeared Monday night during a visit to Britain, and the British government announced Wednesday that he had been granted permission to live permanently in Britain. The writer said he defected because he feared reprisals if he returned to Russia.

The leadership that ousted Nikita Khrushchev in 1964 has shown a consistent pattern of restricting the few outposts of liberalism that remain in Russia.

Writers Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel were given stiff prison sentences in 1966 for what the state decided were anti-Soviet writings. This was a clear warning that the Khrushchev thaw had ended.

Other actions against liberals or champions of artistic freedom followed. Recently Yevgeny Yevtushenko, perhaps the best known young Soviet poet abroad, was dropped from the editorial board of the magazine Yunost (Youth).

MAY BE OUSTED

Rumors have been circulating that Alexander Tvardovsky would be ousted from the editorship of Novy Mir (New World), a magazine that has resisted the more extreme forms of sycophancy toward the system.

Ironically, Kuznetsov was one of the new members put on the Yunost board after the purge of the Yevtushenko group. That the 39-year-old author enjoyed this trust just before his defection can be counted on to increase official wrath against him.

The last well-known Soviet writer to defect, Valery Tarsis, was deprived of his Soviet citizenship when he fled to Britain in 1966. The Soviet authorities accused him of being a madman after he asserted that communism in Russia had degenerated into "police fascism."

When Joseph Stalin's daughter Svetlana defected a year later, the Soviet press made charges of mental instability against her.

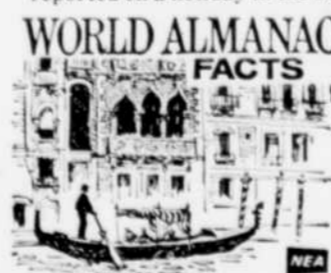

Kuznetsov's novel Babi Yar was condemned by conservative Soviet Communists because it told of Russian and Ukrainian collaboration in the Nazi massacre of the Jews during the Second World War occupation of the Ukraine. His recent novel Fire was attacked because it portrayed Soviet workers as "cynics, scoundrels, self-seekers and alcoholics," in the words of one critical journal.

The London Daily Telegraph, which Kuznetsov got in touch with when he decided to defect, said the author's wife had left him some time ago and took their nine-year-old son. She is reported on a holiday in the south of Russia.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Wouldn't it be nice if 'panty raids' come back?"

The 1,000-year-old city of Venice, made up of 100 islands, 150 canals and many historic buildings, is sinking. The wooden piles which support the buildings are sinking into the mud at a rate of eight inches a century while melting polar ice caps are raising the sea some four inches a century. The World Almanac says. Thus, Venetian buildings sink about one story in a thousand years.

Water works to start at center

The water shortage problem at the University Medical Center is on the way to being solved. Since last March, tank carriers have been transporting water from Sherbrooke to the center. The construction of an additional water reservoir capable of containing 800,000 gallons of water are scheduled to begin next Monday, it was announced. The new reservoir will bring the number of gallons of water located at the center to over a million. At the moment, the medical center has a 200,000 gallon reservoir to meet its water needs. Pipes leading the water to the center are still being installed and the entire project should be completed soon.

A spokesman for the Medical Center said yesterday the move to have tank carriers transporting water came after it was realized the artesian wells situated around the center were insufficient to meet the needs. He added that it cost the Medical Center some $35 an hour to have a truck and driver carrying water to the center.

Until recently, the water had been taken from hydrants across the city, but now operations are located at the municipal garage. An employee of the medical center stationed at the municipal garage said the three trucks were in operation for as many as 18 hours on some days. The average tank carrier holds around 4,500 gallons, one driver said.

Regarding the water, a spokesman at city hall yesterday said it was indeed being sold to the center on a gallon basis, but indicated he was unaware of the actual selling price. In addition to the water supply system being in operation, Seroc Inc., a Sherbrooke paving firm is busy this week at paving the length of the road separating the center from the city limits.

Syrian jets hit Israel

Syrian jet aircraft struck back at Israelis occupying Mount Hermon in the Golan Heights on Thursday while artillery shells fell into other Syrian areas seized by Israel in the Middle East war of 1967.

The combined air and artillery attack was in retaliation for an Israeli air strike at Arab guerrilla encampments on the Syrian-Lebanese side of the border in the same area Wednesday. The Israelis reported no casualties in the attacks but a Syrian communique claimed that 2½ hours after the air and artillery attacks began around midday the Israelis still were evacuating dead and wounded from the area. It also claimed three Israeli war planes shot down by ground fire.

One Arab infiltrator was killed by an Israeli patrol before dawn Thursday, an Israeli spokesman said.

The Syrian air raid—first since the 1967 war—was similar in nature to the fighting along the Suez canal ceasefire line separating Israel and Egypt.

The uneasiness along the Suez Canal became a point of attention at the United Nations in New York where Secretary-General U Thant expressed new concern Thursday that continued disregard of the 1967 ceasefire "could prove to be of the utmost seriousness for the peace of the world."

He appealed to members of the Security Council, which includes the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, to make every effort to influence events in the Middle East "in a new and constructive direction."

FOR AWHILE LONGER — Center on Stoke Road will continue to do so until the water pipeline linking Sherbrooke to the Medical center is fully installed and functioning.

Man is killed in Sawyerville accident

SAWYERVILLE — (Staff) — Emile Champeau early yesterday morning. An automobile accident three miles from here on the road to St. Malo took the life of Paul-Champeau, a resident of St. Malo, was 28 years old. Cookshire Quebec Provincial police believe the accident occurred between 2 and 3 a.m. when the car Champeau was driving went out of control around a corner in the road, plowed through a fence and came to rest in a field. Mr.

Champeau fell out of the car some 60 feet before the automobile came to a halt. In reconstructing the scene of the accident authorities surmise that the doors or front window of the car must have been jolted free by the force of impact with the bumpy field and that Mr.

Champeau was thrown clear. The car itself is a total wreck. Mr. Champeau is believed to have died of a fractured skull. The body was not discovered until five o'clock yesterday morning when a truck driver noticed the car in the field and went to investigate.

Three injured on road

Three persons were hospitalized early this morning following an accident on Route 5 between Sherbrooke and Bromptonville.

Reported injured are Mrs. Gerard Brown of Asbestos, Claude Beaudet of Bromptonville and David Lauzon of Bromptonville. The accident occurred around 3 a.m. this morning police said.

Other car occupants, Gerard Brown of Asbestos, Marc Talbot and Marcel Lebrun, both of Bromptonville were reported not injured. Richmond detachment of the QPP said the two cars were travelling in opposite directions when they collided in the middle of a curve near Bromptonville. The injured occupants were transported to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital in Sherbrooke. Both cars were heavily damaged.

Alberta to set up board to compensate crime victims

EDMONTON (CP) — A system of compensation for victims of violent crimes will be set up by the Alberta government within the next two weeks.

Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart said Thursday he expects the cabinet will announce soon appointment of chairman and two members of the Crimes Compensation Board.

The system is based on a report prepared by W. F. Bowker, former dean of law at the University of Alberta and head of the Institute of Law Research and Reform. Legislation was approved at the last sitting of the legislature. Compensation could be awarded to:

- A person injured as the victim of one of 28 specified violent crimes.
- Dependents of a person killed in one of the 28 crimes.
- A person injured while trying to preserve the peace or arrest someone.
- A person injured while assisting a police officer.

The board could make awards of up to $10,000 for physical disability, disfigurement, pain and suffering. A person could receive compensation for expenses incurred as a result of injury, financial loss through inability to work or financial loss to dependents.

Prisoner jumps plane

MIAMI (AP) — A hulking prisoner escaped from two guards, placed a razor blade to a stewardess' neck and hijacked a jetliner with 131 persons aboard to Cuba Thursday, officials reported.

The prisoner was identified only as L. Perry, travelling in a first class compartment in the custody of two federal government agents, William Lavin and Joseph Hart.

"He must be the man," said Nancy McLemore, a public relations officer for Trans World Airlines. "He was the only one who didn't get off."

One passenger said neither of the federal agents were armed because airline rules barred them from carrying weapons aboard the plane. The TWA jet, bound for Los Angeles with 123 passengers, was hijacked as it passed west of Tulsa, Okla., Thursday afternoon.

The hijacker, tall, heavy-set and wearing a sports jacket and tie, remained in the cabin until the Boeing 727 landed at Havana's Jose Marti airport. The craft returned safely to Miami Thursday night.

The stony-faced hijacker calmly walked out of the cabin as the plane pulled to a stop, picked up a wrinkled brown paper bag from his seat and met two uniformed Cuban militiamen at the plane's exit door.

It was the 37th plane forced to fly to Cuba this year. Seven other attempts were foiled.

Hunting and fishing in the E.T.

By NORM NICHOLL

BLACK BEAR OPEN SEASON has been criticized by many in respect to the carrying of rifles in the woods year round. This excuse has been used by many poachers when, in effect, they have been hunting deer.

In some cases black bear and deer have been nuisances to some farm areas both here in the Townships and other parts of the province.

It would seem that for practical application of the game laws, a season should be applied to this species. It would stop the killing of the species outside a regular season. If they become a nuisance by entering apple orchards or toppling beehives either special permits should be granted or the landowners and the wardens should remove or kill the animals. This, in my opinion, would curtail the year-round hunters' one excuse. "We are hunting black bear."

MOOSE HUNTERS while we haven't received any news regarding the names on the moose draw, they are now on file at the Sherbrooke Protection Service office. Anyone having made application for the hunts and haven't heard how they stand can easily find out by telephoning 563-4460, locals 271 or 272.

MATANE SALMON run this year is running ahead of previous years. The run has now reached 1,200 salmon compared with 269 for the same time last year. The total run last year was 471.

A WILDLIFE SERVICE tank truck has been seen at the Magog River here in Sherbrooke. They are taking minnows to the hatchery at Baldwin's Mills to feed the muskellunge being reared. Louis Auger, head of the local Wildlife Service states that the "muskies" will be planted in some local lakes as a continuation of introducing them for local anglers. They have been stocked in lakes around Victoriaville, Asbestos, Lac Megantic and Little Lake during the past couple of years.

CARELESSNESS COST FISH — Recently in Vermont in the third branch of the White River, fish were found on the banks and floating in the river.

Investigation of the matter allegedly showed that servicemen had used 2,000 gallons of a 10 percent solution of hydrochloric acid to clean out a boiler. When the cleaning operation was completed, it was dumped into the nearby river. The fish died along a one-mile stretch below the drain pipe. While the majority of fish were cull, there were some 200 brown and rainbow trout killed.

This is one instance where a little thought of what could happen to a water supply could have saved some fish.

Indians' winning streak broken, Twins win

Little League oop

By Ted Anderson

The Sher-Lenn Little League All-Stars hit that old stumbling block again last Saturday at Valleyfield, going down to a 3-1 defeat. The long interval before the game got underway did not help the Sher-Lenn cause. The team played Green Giants on the previous evening could have meant that the boys were a little tired.

There was some question of why Coach Gosselin did not go with his lefthander Michel Murray in this tilt. Murray in his previous outing against Valleyfield had held his opponents to two hits in the four innings he worked, and for three innings he had deadened the Valleyfield offense. This is taking nothing away from young Terry Kerridge. Terry pitched a good game and did all he was asked to do.

The Sher-Lenn batting power was not amply demonstrated. A few more hits and it might have been a different story. The team did well, winning three out of five, and who knows, Sher-Lenn could come back next season. It had to come some time and it did last Wednesday night. The Indians went down to their first defeat against the Twins. Young Terry Kerridge pitched his heart out in this one and it was a big win for him. It could mean that winning this one could vault the Twins into the play-offs. The Twins have never played better. Each man rose to the occasion. Peter Bishop, perhaps the most improved player in the league along with Jacques Gendron were the big stars in the Twins' win.

The Orioles' loss to the White Sox on Wednesday might mean they have missed their chances of finishing in the first division and getting a spot in the play-offs. They are now six points behind the Twins and from now on they will have to get going to catch up.

The original league schedule finished up Thursday evening. Now the postponed games must be played before the play-offs. All games are important and will have a vital say in the final league standings.

The Regional and Provincial play-offs get underway this evening at Ville d'Anjou. These games will certainly be the ones to see with the Provincial finals a two out of three series between the Maritime winners and the Quebec winners. They get underway next Thursday, Friday and Saturday with the winner going on to Victoria to play in the Canadian finals.

Stars this week are Terry Kerridge, Peter Bishop and Jacques Gendron.

Canadians out to win Roosevelt Trot

TORONTO — Canada's entrant in the Aug. 16 $10,000 Roosevelt International Trot (The Silk in 1962 and Armbr Flight in 1966 both won it in Canuck colors) will march out of the winner's circle of the $17,500 Civic Holiday Trot Aug. 4 at Toronto Greenwood Raceway.

That Camper, the 4-year-old owned by John Harris of Aylmer and Hal Swartzentruber of Kitchener, won't be taking a share of the pity of things this year. The one-time $325 bargain priced weanling grew into such a game and rapid (2:01.1 at 4 this year h.m.t.) trotter, winner of $64,300 in really just a season and a half at the raceways of North America.

Camper was sidelined for the year, maybe forever, when he broke the long pastern bone in his left foreleg warming up for the $20,000 Galophone Mile at Yonkers, N.Y. July 11.

That race, incidentally, was won by a horse that could have worked into a Canadian challenger for the International spot for the winner was Happy Newport, still record trot holder at several Western Canada tracks when he was owned by Freeman Lamb, a Trotting Association director from Calgary. Happy Newport was sold earlier this year to Brooklyn, N.Y. interests for $15,000 by Lamb.

Chief among the likeliest to start in the Civic holiday and the Roosevelt classic at one and one-quarter miles are Duncan McDonald's Fresh Yankee from Sydney, N.S. but an outstanding member of trainer Joe O'Brien's U.S.-based outfit and earlier this year, winner of the Lite Trot in Stockholm, Sweden and Bert James' Angelo Pick, currently racing out of ex-Torontonian John Chapman's New York outfit for his Windsor, Ont., owner.

H. Allan Dickenson, president of Canadian Trotting Association, left his Mount Hope, Ont. home today for a week-long Western Canada tour of harness plants. Stops will be made at Paterson Park, Delta, B.C. back to Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Regina.

Up to the minute membership count for 1969 in Canadian Trotting Association is 11,002. To the end of July, 1968, the Association membership numbered 10,330.

Saturday night at Marquis Downs, Saskatoon's new five-eighth mile track 4-year-old Dixie's Adios, place finisher for owner-driver Nealie Oliver in last year's Western Canada Colt Futurity at Edmonton's Exhibition Raceway, clocked a record 2:03.4 mile.

Marquis' publicist Michael Some said the area patrons well appreciated the nine-race program, wagering $65,215, an all time high mutual handle for harness racing in the province.

Thirty-nine native Canadian harness horsemen have had at least one two minute mile behind either trotter or pacer.

Rufin Barrieau, a native of Moncton, N.B., became that 39th when he wheeled the 5-year-old pacer, Amortizer Direct, owned by Eric and Harry Whubby, of Dartmouth, N.S., home in 1:59.4 at Scarborough Downs, Portland, Me., recently.

Ink was hardly dry on Canada's all time 2-year-old pacing filly race record (Armbr Kerry for A.B.C. Farms of Brampton at Toronto Greenwood July 14 — 2:04.3) when Dag Mir (by Adios Mir and second in Armbr Kerry's record trip at Toronto) won in 2:03.3 in the Canadianne Series last weekend at Ottawa's Rideau Carleton Raceway.

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

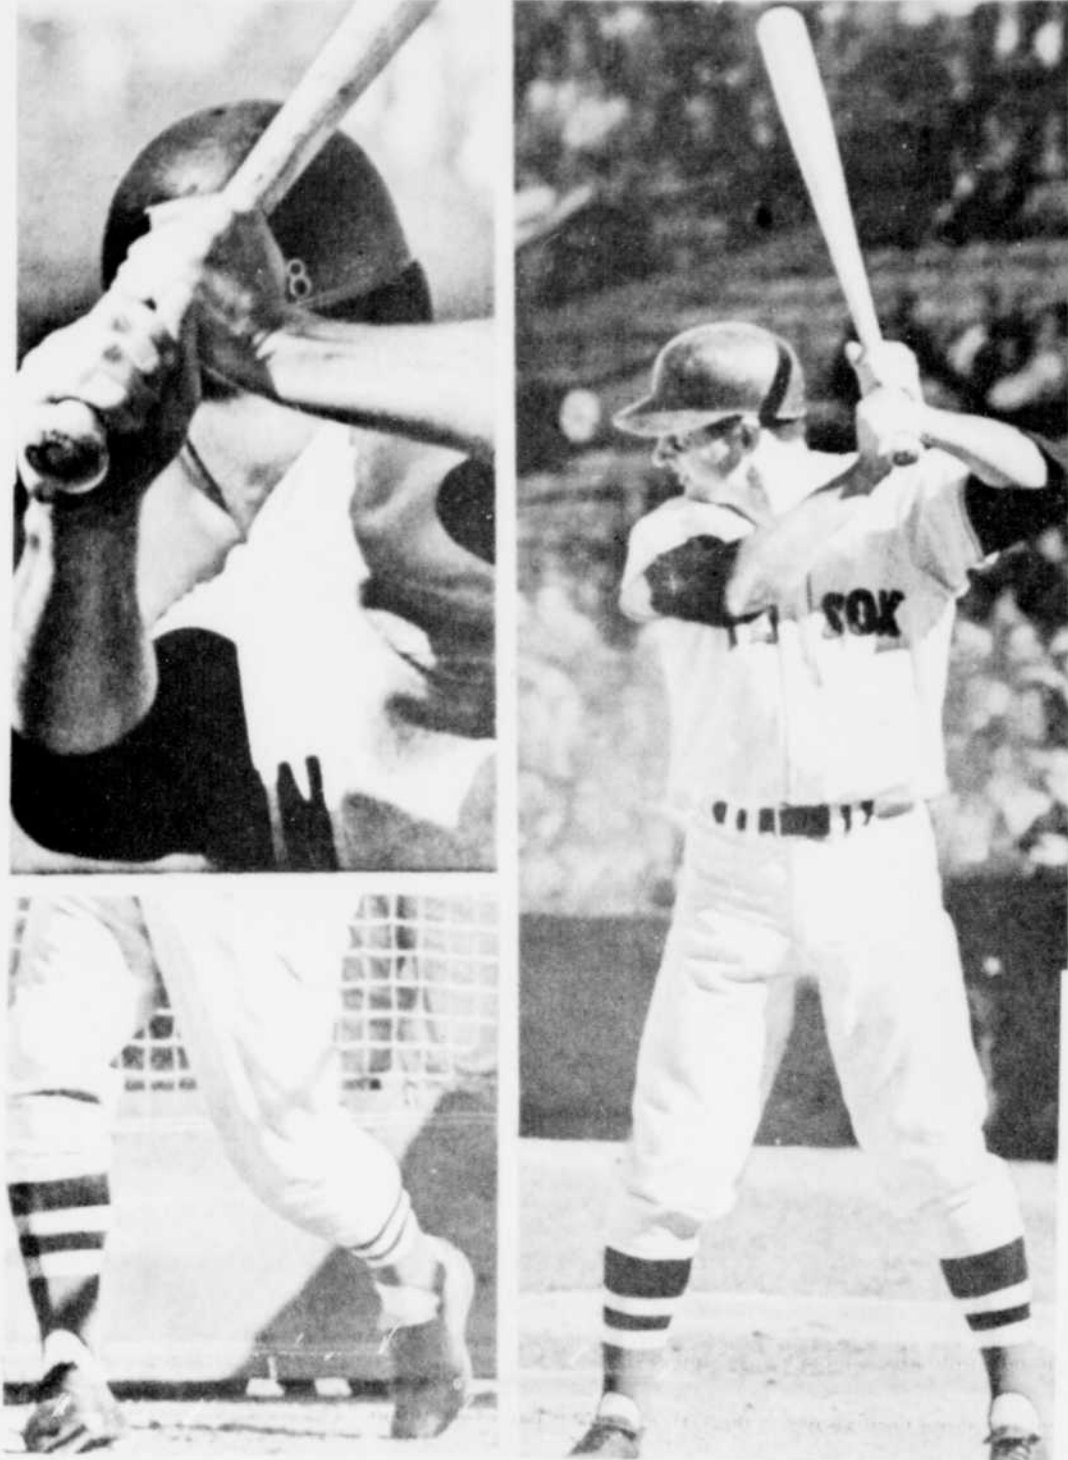

Percy Williams, an unknown 20-year-old from Vancouver, won his second Olympic gold medal 41 years ago today—in 1928—at Amsterdam, finishing first in the 200-metre sprint. Two years later he equalled the world record but a torn muscle ended his career only three weeks later.

Alcan golf in Europe

European golf and golfers are regarded about as important in the eyes of North Americans as is North American Soccer in the eyes of Europeans. But this is going to change explosively in very short order as the popularity of golf on the Continent is in for enormous expansion in the next few years.

The West German Open Championship, played over the past weekend at the Frankfurt Golf Club, close to downtown Frankfurt, Germany, underscored the size of entries, galleries and standards of scoring.

The Frankfurt Golf Club is 56 years old, measures 6,700 yards. It is well trapped with large undulating greens, quite the equal of our better North American layouts. This event is one of our national championships in Europe nominated as the 1969 Alcan Gopher of the Year Championship to be played in Portland, Oregon, September 25-28. The latter features a field of professionals all of whom have qualified from around the world under the uniform, season-long, Alcan system. This system is installed in seven theatres of world play. — Canada, USA, United Kingdom, South Africa, Australia-New Zealand and the Far Eastern Golf Circuit.

Europe was introduced to the Alcan list for 1969. The four European "Leader Events" are the French, Spanish, West German and the Swiss Opens. The first three are already completed. Each was won by a very methodical French professional, Jean Garaialde, La Boulie Golf Club, Paris. Garaialde, 34, is a sound swinger, medium long and very straight off the tees. He is an excellent iron player with a great putting stroke from around 15 feet. Off what we saw of him at Frankfurt, the only slight weakness was exhibited from the sand. Of course, he doesn't get into it often. But he certainly rates as the finest all-round French-speaking golfer yet to emerge. His scores at Frankfurt were 66 - 68 - 67 - 71 - 272. This gave him the third 1969 European national title, three shots ahead of South Africa's Cobie Legrange at 275. Garaialde plays with a set method on every shot. He never varies his procedure. If he is able to continue this concentration in America, he must do well in any country.

And it becomes apparent that he will get his chance in September because with just one Alcan qualifying event to go — the Swiss Open, September 14, Crans-sur-Sierre Golf Club, Crans-sur-Sierre, Switzerland, he is leading for the lone European Alcan qualifying spot by a comfortable 32 shots. He is not a very big man — about 5'9" and 160 pounds, but he is aiming directly at that $55,000 Alcan first prize money at Portland.

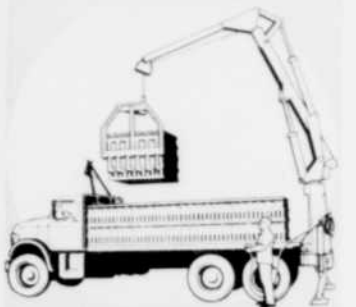

Garaialde's Open victory was preceded by a win in the ladies West German Open by his attractive, diminutive wife, Odile Garaialde, making them the only husband-wife joint national champions in any country.

As exciting as the sight of a truly solid European golf star at Frankfurt was the play of the greatest boy golfer yet to show. He is Dale Hayes, Pretoria, South Africa. Dale opened the German championship with a new course record, 65. He put a 76-72 in for his next two days' play. Then he capped this with still a new course record 30-33-63 for 276 and third place. The amazing fact is that Dale is just 17 years old. Prior to the Open, Hayes had walked off with the German Amateur title. He has great length, is a fine iron player and he puts like he fully expects everything to drop — and it does most of the time. Like a great many young South Africans Hayes has been inspired to devote his whole energies to golf by the great 1968 showing of his young fellow-countryman, Bobby Cole, who picked up a lot of American dollars on the United States Professional tour last year. Hayes is a big fellow, well over six feet and about 200 pounds. His ultimate goal is, of course, the pro tour in the USA where he is a sure bet to make good under the watchful eye of Gary Player.

A large contingent of wealthy, USA golfers follow and play in many European Circuit events as well as golfers from over 20 countries. Many-time British Ryder Cupper, Bernard Hunt, is a regular, placing fourth this year at Frankfurt with 278.

9-Pitching

The pitching wedge, some people have said, has been the biggest single improvement in golf since the game was developed.

A "trouble" club as well as an extremely useful fairway stick, the pitching wedge still gives many people trouble. It's hard to get the average player to go out and practice with it. Most of them would much rather hit a driver.

Yet, the truly successful touring pros are usually outstanding wedge players. Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer, Dave Marr, Gary Player, Doug Sanders and Lee Trevino all excel at this delicate, finesse type of shot.

The keys to Trevino's fine wedge game would seem to be his open stance — which restricts his backswing and makes him extremely solid over the ball — and his firm left side coming down and through the hitting area.

Trevino's movement is at a minimum during the take-away and downswing, and his turn is actually more of a slight shifting of weight from one leg to the other rather than a pivot.

For a normal wedge shot, a golfer should try to use the same swing he employs with the other clubs. Don't try to pick up the club too fast or drag it back too slow.

Lee Trevino

Marr, for example, lets his hands take the wedge back on the same path he uses for a driver — the only difference being that there is little transferring of weight. His swing is more or less a hands, arms and shoulder movement.

Als settle for a doubleheader split with Indians

Sherbrooke Alouettes split their doubleheader last night playing against the Quebec Indians in the Provincial Baseball League. The Als took the first game of the twin bill by a 2-1 score but were scalped by the Indians in the second 12-5. Matt Gaveski went all the way in the first tilt and was the winner. E. Gutierrez was the loser in the second.

In the opener it was Willie Madison's long single with Juan Joa on second base that sent in the winning run in the bottom of the fifth inning. Gaveski held the opposition hitless in the first four innings, in these innings only 17 men faced him, a double play and smart outfield defence kept his slate clean in the first four.

In the bottom of the first inning Teofilo James, third man up, belted out a home run, giving the Als a 1-0 lead. Willie Madison's single was all for the Als in the second and third. Indians at this stage of the game could do nothing with Gaveski's pitching. Erasmo Felipe got on with a single for the Als in the fourth but Luis Deleon, the Indians' hurler, stopped any threat for further scoring by the Als.

Top of the fifth Indians finally got to the Als' hurler, getting hits from Larry Calton, Gerry Marshall and Contramery. These were good for one run, tying up the game at one all. Last of the fifth, Juan Joa singled and then Madison came up with his game winning single to give the Als a narrow 2-1 win. The teams in the remaining two innings of the seventh inning game did no more scoring. Madison, Gaveski and James were the Als' stars.

The second game was a different story and saw the Als use four pitchers. Gutierrez started, followed by Reuben Rodriguez, then T. Rowe who was relieved by Erasmo Felipe to finish off the last three innings.

Indians went scoreless in the first two innings, while the Als in the second on three hits tallied two runs. Madison, Tejada and Van Ornum were the hitters. Top of the third, a base on balls, an error and five hits were good for six runs, giving the Indians a 6-2 lead. A double by Calton, singles from Silva, Muzario, Poole and Heron scored the runs.

Indians got one more run in the fourth and in the next four they went hitless. Five more runs for the Indians in the top of the seventh salted the game away. Hits from Silva, Muzario and Yancey coupled with three bases on balls were responsible for the tallies.

top of the eighth Als with two men out in the bottom of the ninth came up with three runs. Van Ornum, Ernie Rodriguez, Erasmo Felipe all with singles and Willie Madison hitting a triple scored the runs. Indians won on the long end of a 12-5 score. Eduardo Acosta was the Coach of equestrian team to give courses

Hans Renz, the coach of the three-day event for The Canadian Equestrian Team will be giving a course at Dr. and Mrs. A. Johansson's Larch Tree Farm, R.R. 2, West Brome, Quebec, from August 4 to August 10. Participants from many Canadian centres will take part. Anybody interested in our Canadian Equestrian Team is invited to attend.

On January 20, 1969, in an endeavor to arouse interest in Three-Day Event the chairman of the Canadian Equestrian Team, Brigadier W. D. Whitaker, sent the following letter to all provinces in Canada.

"During the Olympic Games held in Mexico in 1968 Canada fielded a Three-Day-Event Team which, although lacking in experience performed most creditably. Of fourteen nations competing, only three succeeded in having all four riders negotiate the difficult cross country course. Canada was one of these.

In 1972 Canada must be assured of a team which will win an Olympic Three-Day-Event Medal in Munich, Germany.

As a step towards accomplishing this objective, the Canadian Equestrian Team is sponsoring a series of courses across the country under the direction of our Three-Day-Event Coach, Hans Renz. The purpose of these courses is as follows:

1. To search out likely talent for our team.
2. To improve the calibre of our horses and riders.
3. To develop interest in Three-Day Eventing.

I sincerely feel that a series of courses taking place over the next three or four years will go a long way towards developing a winning combination by 1972."

So far, Brigadier Whitaker's suggestion has aroused interest and co-operation in many centres. Hans Renz welcomes all riders in these courses, pointing out that many people who have never thought of Three-Day Event competition before become keen when exposed to the thrill and sense of achievement experienced in this event, and those who are unable to compete frequently become enthusiastic supporters.

The Three-Day Event is better described by the French term 'Concours Complet'. The same horse and rider perform all the phases of the event. On the first day they perform a medium dressage test, which shows the obedience and suppleness of the horse. On the second day, the endurance test is performed, this consists of about fifteen miles of roads and trails, three miles of steeplechase, and four miles of cross-country jumping, which are performed in sequence and at required speeds. On the third day a medium-sized show jumping course is performed to prove that the horse is still in good condition.

THE SCENE — Larch Tree Farm located on R.R. 2 in West Brome will be hosting the week long event.

Bench powers Reds over Expos, NL race tightens

Pat Jarvis made a couple of mistakes in the ninth inning after flirting with a brilliant pitching performance, but everything turned out OK.

His Atlanta team-mates made a lot of mistakes against Philadelphia a short time later—but because of Pittsburgh's Al Oliver, it didn't cause much harm to the Braves' pennant hopes.

Jarvis turned the Phillies on one hit for 8-2-3 in Thursday night before he was chased by a rally in Atlanta's 4-2 victory in the opener of a doubleheader.

Then, in the next game, the Phillies battered Jim Britton, Claude Raymond and Gary Niebauer for eight runs in the sixth inning—Philadelphia's biggest one-inning explosion in more than three years—en route to a 9-0 victory.

But, despite the nightcap loss, the Braves were able to widen their lead in the National League torrid Western Division race to two games—thanks to Oliver DODGERS LOSE GROUND.

Oliver delivered the winning run in the 15th inning with a single as Pittsburgh Pirates dropped Los Angeles Dodgers out of second place with a 2-1 win.

That triumph—combined with Cincinnati Reds 6-1 win over Montreal Expos and San Francisco Giants 12-2 loss to Chicago Cubs—left the runner-up spot in the West in a mess.

Cincinnati is second with a 552 percentage. Los Angeles is only 503 percentage points back and fourth-place San Francisco trails the Dodgers by only .001. All three are two games behind the Braves.

New York Mets lost to Houston 2-0 in the only other National League game and fell six games behind the Cubs in the Eastern Division race.

Jarvis was coasting along with his one-hit shutout with two outs and two strikes on Larry Hise when the Phillies rookie lashed his 14th homer of the season.

Richie Allen's double and a single by John Callison produced another run before Raymond came in to get the last out.

Tilman backed Jarvis with three RBIs and Hank Aaron hit a solo homer, his 28th of the season and 538th of his career.

Sunday Sermon Subject for August 3, 1969

The difference between unselfish affection and emotional possessiveness will be brought out at the services in the Christian Science churches this Sunday, in the reading of the week's Bible Lesson on the subject "Love." Scripture selections will include this admonition of the Apostle Paul (I Corinthians): "And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." A correlative passage from the denominational textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "To love one's neighbor as one's self, is a divine idea; but this idea can never be seen, felt, nor understood through the physical senses."

BRIDES-TO-BE ENTERTAINED

SOUTH BOLTON — On Thursday evening, July 25, a surprise variety shower was held in honor of Miss Veda Perkins, an August bride-to-be, in the South Bolton WI Hall where approximately 60 people attended.

The hall was decorated by hostesses Mrs. William Nolan, Verdun, and Mrs. Morris Burbank (Veda's cousin and aunt respectively), in pink and white crepe paper streamers, fresh tea and Sweetheart roses, delphiniums and lythiums. Hostesses, Mrs. Burbank and Mrs. Lorraine Jasper greeted the guest of honor at the door and Mrs. Burbank pinned a corsage of roses and miniature everlasting white flowers while Mrs. Jasper pinned a kitchen utensil corsage (made up by Mrs. Burbank) on Veda's shoulder. She was then led to the seat of honor which was decorated in white and pink with a pink flowered umbrella and white wedding bells overhead. This was followed by several people taking souvenir snapshots of Miss Perkins and her many beautifully wrapped gifts. She looked lovely in her canary yellow pant-suit.

Veda's mother, Mrs. Gordon Perkins, and her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Alfred Rumbolt, Cowansville, helped her in unwrapping the gifts, and her future sister-in-law, Mrs. Alex MacDonald, Sherbrooke, made a paper pie-plate hat of the bows that decorated the gifts, which was later placed on the guest of honor's head.

Mrs. Burbank presented Miss Perkins with a shower cake made by Mrs. Ralph Knowlton, Knowlton's Landing, which was decorated as an old-fashioned ruffled white hoop skirt around a doll, with pink trimmings. Refreshments were served assisted by Misses Barbara Burbank and Marsha St. Pierre. Out-of-town guests came from Montreal, Verdun, Sherbrooke, Cowansville, South Stukely, Mansonville, Knowlton, Knowlton's Landing, Glen Sutton and Bolton Center.

Travel Color, pageantry at Indian festival

In autumn — more specifically October 17 to 20 in 1969 — India celebrates one of its most popular festivals: Dussehra, also called Dasara. A great event everywhere in the country, Dussehra is also one of the longer Hindu festivals lasting ten days, and has the particular interest of many regional variations in the way it is celebrated. No matter how it is observed, however, Dussehra is one of the most colorful of India's many festivals and will delight the visitor in whichever part of the country he might be touring during this season.

Known as Navaratri (nine nights) in Mysore, India, the pageantry of the Dussehra celebrations here recalls the traditions of long ago. Dussehra becomes a magnificent royal festival of the 15th century capital of the Vijayanagar Empire, now represented by the ruins at Hampi. This contemporary account of that era tells us of the glittering ceremonies which the king went through in the presence of a host of nobles and officers: the wrestling, dancing, elephant fights and mock battles; of the torches so many and so bright that night was transformed into day; of the fireworks that followed and the procession of many triumphal carriages; of the horses covered with rich trappings, the gaily caparisoned elephants and the review of the imperial troops.

To be in the city of Mysore during Dussehra is the closest you can come to experiencing something of the splendor and thrill of a ceremony as celebrated over four centuries ago. The colors, the crowds and the pageantry at the Mysore Palace are still evocative of their medieval grandeur. The age-old court ceremonies are still performed by the Maharaja, a descendant of the ancient ruling family of the state, and interested tourists can obtain invitations to attend some of these events.

The city is at its best at this time of the year. The air is cool and fresh after the monsoons. Special archways decorate the streets and the houses wear a festive look with their decorated doors. At night the city is turned into a fairyland of lights: the Palace is brilliantly lighted and all public buildings are floodlit.

The climax of the festival in Mysore comes on the tenth day, the "Vijayadasami" or "tenth day of victory". In ancient days Hindu monarchs considered this an auspicious time for commencing state ventures, particularly military expeditions. The event is celebrated in Mysore when the Maharaja goes in a special procession, seated in a gold and silver howdah on an exquisitely painted and caparisoned elephant and led by the cavalry, infantry and camel corps.

In Kulu, Dussehra is the occasion for a big fair. All of the household gods of the valley are borne to an open ground where thousands of people from all over the valley gather. The highlights of the fair are community dances and variety entertainment.

No less interesting is Dussehra as celebrated in North India where it is known as "Ramlila". Here it becomes a ten-day festival in honor of the exploits of the legendary King Rama. Through music, drama and devotional congregations, the Ramlila enacts the early story of Rama: his exile; the abduction of his wife, Sita, by Ravana, the demon king; the battle between Rama and Ravana; and Rama's ultimate victory and triumphant return, all in the form of a serial play.

The Ramlila celebrations in New Delhi are particularly spectacular. Though the story is enacted in all parts of the city by amateur troupes, thousands of the city's populace converge on the Ramlila grounds on the 10th day to witness the burning of the effigies and the fireworks.

SPECTACULAR — The palace of the Maharaja in Mysore brilliantly lighted for the Dussehra festival.

Old Montreal - story of history and beauty

The old quarter of Montreal is a concentration of some of the first buildings in North America. Disturbed at its deterioration, in 1961 municipal and provincial authorities formed the Jacques Viger Commission, named for a former mayor of Montreal, to lead private and corporate citizens in a program of restoration.

"Le vieux Montreal" has come alive in the few years the commission has been at work. Canadian Industries Limited bought a two-and-a-half storey stone house at the corner of St. Paul Street and Place Jacques Cartier in 1966. As one of the company's projects to celebrate Canada's one-hundredth birthday the following year it was restored as closely as possible to its original condition.

La Maison Del Vecchio is only a few blocks from the spot where Paul de Chomedey, Sieur de Maisonneuve, landed in 1642 with a band of 45 settlers to establish Ville Marie, now Montreal, the first permanent settlement of Europeans west of what is today Quebec City. Bronze plaques in nearby Place Royale and d'Youville Square mark the locations of their first fort, chapel, cemetery and dwellings.

About 1655 Maisonneuve made the original grants involving the land on which the house stands. In 1672, la rue St-Charles, now part of the square, was surveyed as part of the Sieur Charles d'Ailleboust des Musseaux, chairman of the seigneur's tribunal of Ville Marie. This street was at the extreme east end of the town and was little used until the end of the eighteenth century.

Philippe de Rigaud, Marquis de Vaudreuil, a former governor of Montreal and governor-general of New France, decided to have a house built close to the one where his friend Claude de Ramezay lived. (The Chateau de Ramezay is now a museum not far from La Maison Del Vecchio.) Starting in 1721 he bought all the lots situated between St. Charles, Notre Dame and St. Paul streets and the backs of the houses on the east side of St. Vincent.

On this huge area the Marquis had a chateau built, facing St. Paul street and the St. Lawrence River. Behind it was a garden stretching to Notre Dame, the present north side of Place Jacques Cartier.

Unfortunately the Marquis did not live to see his house completed. He died in 1725 and it was finished for his family in 1728.

"It was said that the Chateau de Vaudreuil rivaled the house of the Sulpicians, the Chateau de Ramezay and the Intendant's palace," writes an historian.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

When the Europeans arrived in North America, 60 million bison grazed the land, even though the Indians had hunted the animal for centuries. By 1888, a census reported that only 541 bison remained in the United States. The World Almanac notes.

now found on Sherbrooke Street west.

In 1803, a significant year on two counts, the population of Montreal was growing quickly and the old open air market, which since the beginning of Ville Marie had been situated on the south side of St. Paul on the site now occupied by the Custom House and Place Royale, was no longer sufficient for the needs of farmers and townspeople. They wanted a large, covered market.

In June of the same year a fire broke out in St. Lawrence District, and the wind carried the flames towards Notre Dame Street and the lower town. The college, the prison, two chapels, and 11 houses were destroyed.

The warrens decided not to rebuild the college on the same site because the area was becoming too populated. It was relocated on St. Paul street west of McGill and a committee was formed to look after the sale of the land on which the old college had stood. Joseph Perinault and J. B. Durocher arranged for the division of the area into lots, presented a large portion to the city for the new market, and sold the lots down the west side to private individuals, all in December 1803.

The lot on which La Maison Del Vecchio is situated was sold to Dame Angelique Blondeau, widow of Gabriel Cotte, a well-known fur trader and one of the founders of the Beaver Club, an association of fur traders who had spent at least one season in the north. Dame Cotte's lot was number 424 and it was sold on the condition that the owner build a two-storey stone house on it.

In 1806, without having built on the property, she sold it to Pierre Del Vecchio, with the same condition attached to the sale.

Pierre and his brother Thomas were among the first Italians to immigrate to Canada. They were part of a small group from the Italian Village of Montrosso on Lake Como, who came to Quebec between 1776 and 1797.

Most of the members of this group were innkeepers, "aubergistes". One or two may have come to New France with a Swiss regiment in 1776; they settled here and the rest followed.

The family lived first in Pointe aux Trembles, east of Montreal, and Pierre had a tavern there. He started building his Montreal house on the land he bought from Dame Cotte in 1807. There is a lease for the house dated October 3, 1808, for premises already occupied by Mr. Alexander Hart, and a baptismal certificate in September 1808 shows that the Del Vecchios resided there. Pierre's wife was a Canadian, Marie-Louise Beaudry.

The new market opened the year before they moved to their new home. This may have been more than a coincidence, because the new location was ideal for a tavern which, according to documents, Pierre may have run in part of his home. The market was an important social gathering place in its time.

The new market was a wooden building with stalls. The monument in honor of Lord Nelson at the top of Place Jacques Cartier was in the planning stage at this time and completed in 1809.

Del Vecchio-Marchildon and the grandfather of Dr. Marc Del Vecchio and Eno Del Vecchio who still live in Montreal.

From the time of Pierre Del Vecchio's death in 1819, his house on Place Jacques Cartier turned to strictly commercial uses.

In 1847, the first year the city kept assessment records, the property is listed as being occupied by two firms of grocers, two merchants and a shoemaker. During the years following this, other tenants included traders, a saddle maker and various tailors.

In 1875, the house was "in repairs." A study of the maker's name on cast iron columns found on the front of the house prove that this was the year the original front and side windows and walls on the ground floor were converted to shop fronts with large windows.

In 1879 the house was used as an inn for the first time. It is listed as occupied by Francois Corbeil, innkeeper. A trader had his premises there at the same time.

Its history continues along much the same lines until recently. In 1897 the upper floors were used as a "pension et logs," and in 1929 one of the tenants used his shop in the building as a grain depot.

In 1946, Ness M. Neessrallah, who had operated a restaurant in the house for several years, bought it from the Del Vecchio heirs. When CIL purchased it in September 1966, he still had a coffee shop and store there, and Record, they started with a three-day a week program with children ranging from 5 to 13 years. A little uncertain of their reception, they simply wanted to get to know the people and find out their needs.

Children who first attended, gradually phoned their friends and spread the word. A teenager in the Colony spontaneously picked up the youngsters without means of transportation and suddenly the group grew to 25.

On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays the children play, partake in sport activities, games and just have fun. Tuesdays and Thursdays are spent on re-evaluation and supervision of the program with the beginnings of a project for 14-19-year-olds well underway.

The SOS held an Open House soon after their arrival. Sixty people from six weeks to 84 years old attended the community get-together.

Camp fires, weiner roasts, sing songs and movies are provided in evening programs. Plans exist for a tour of spots the children would like to visit in Sherbrooke, with tentative arrangements being made to visit Man and His World.

"Our welcome into the community was heartwarming" Mrs. Hannan said. "We found the 'Y' headquarters scrubbed and equipped and the hay cot. SOS is also providing the opportunity for its students to experience other aspects of society, to which they are unaccustomed."

Speculations on power return crushed, Kennedy rules out '72 presidential race

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy has crushed speculation of a swift return to power for the Kennedy dynasty by firmly ruling himself out as a possible presidential contender in 1972.

The 37-year-old senator's statement Thursday implicitly confirmed widespread feeling that his involvement in the tragic drowning of secretary Mary Jo Kopechne had erected a major stumbling block in his political career.

Kennedy said Wednesday night that he would run again for the United States Senate as scheduled next year and if elected would serve out a full six-year term as the Democratic senator for Massachusetts.

As he returned to the Senate on Thursday — for the first time since his car crashed into a pond on a Massachusetts island and killed Miss Kopechne — he was asked whether his statement meant he would not be a candidate for the 1972 Democratic nomination.

"That's right," Kennedy replied. Asked whether the decision was irrevocable under any circumstances, he added: "Yes."

Prior to the July 18 crash Kennedy had been considered a shoo-in for the 1972 nomination. Following the assassination of his brother, Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York, there was a move to have the Massachusetts senator pick up the standard or at least join in a "Dream Ticket" as No. 2 man with Hubert H. Humphrey.

At that time Kennedy politely spurned such offers, saying it was "too soon" and hinting by implication he would be ready in 1972.

A crowd of some 200 tourists were waiting outside the Senate building when Kennedy — wearing a charcoal-grey suit and light-blue shirt — arrived in a car driven by an aide.

Police prevented reporters and spectators from following Kennedy into the building.

Kennedy, assistant Democratic leader in the upper chamber, arrived shortly before the Senate went into session to vote on extension of an income tax surcharge.

He joined a pre-session briefing for reporters given by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who greeted his young assistant and said: "You are right back where you belong."

Other senators, Republicans as well as Democrats, also greeted their colleague.

Senator Eugene McCarthy Dem. Minn. and Senator Barry Goldwater, (Rep. Ariz.) initially ignored Kennedy.

However, about two hours after the Senate session began, McCarthy went over to Kennedy's desk and the two men shook hands.

Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem. Me.), now rated a top contender for the next Democratic presidential nomination, shook Kennedy's hand warmly and sat next to him, chatting for a while.

Kennedy appeared nervous as he sat beside Mansfield during the pre-session press briefing.

Country notebook

By WALKER RILEY
Macdonald College

I have no idea who Mike Marvel was, but one hundred and one years ago, he was quoted in the Canada Farmer in this description of the month of July.

"I picture July as a stout woman perspiring fearfully, yet she wears a cheery, honest face, and if she have none of the bridal freshness of May and June, she wears the honors of maternity, and leads in a great brood of flowers and fruits in her train."

My July 1968 Canada Farmer goes on to comment, "We are still having a splendid season. The June frost put in a very feeble appearance, just enough to be identified, but doing no mischief. Copious rains have fallen from time to time.

"Nature seldom wears robes of such gorgeous green as the present summer... Grain and grass are most luxurious. The face of the earth is radiant with smiles, and bewitching with beauty. There is promise of abundant fruit, and crop prospects are all that could be desired.

"Will farmers find any cause for grumbling this year? As a class, they are so given to complaining, and so fearful it should be thought they are doing well, that we have our misgivings lest even the present season may not escape without some fault being found with it. The grain stalks will be so heavy that there will be lodging, the midge will commit a world of havoc, some of the best trees will break down under the weight of fruit, produce will be so plentiful that the prices will be low—

"Through cultivation of the soil, unrelenting slaughter of the weeds, turnip hoeing, hay making, and wheat harvesting are the chief labours of the month. All crops that admit of it are greatly benefited by the frequent stirring of the soil about them.

"July is a most favorable time for the extirpation of weeds. Only scratch them out of the ground, and the sun will do for them very quickly—

"Almost the only bit of advice necessary about haying is to be sure and cut at the proper time, not too soon, or the fodder will be deficient in substance and nutritious properties, nor too late, or it will be tough, woody, and sapless. Grass ought to be mowed between blossoming and seeding—

"A word about turnips. Early in July is the time to secure a good plant, and attend to proper thinning of the rows. Resow if there be extensive failure, through fault of the seed or depredations of the fly. Gaps in the row may be filled by transplanting or by sowing again. When too late for swedes, Yellow Aberdeens or White Globes may be sown— A sharp hoe, about eight inches wide in the blade is the best tool to thin with, and a skilful hand will go over the land very fast—

"Happy is the farmer who has green corn, vetches, or other soiling crops, where with to eke out the pasturage so apt to fail under the fervid heats of July. His milk pails shall be full to overflowing, his butter and cheese rich as in June; his young stock shall grow without check, and his teams continue fat, sleek and strong to labour—"

Before you rush out to put the self-propelled swather back in the shed to wait for the hay to mature a bit more, grab a turnip hoe to expirate the weeds, and plant the vetches, may I remind you this is how the editor of the Canada Farmer saw Agriculture — in July in the year after Confederation. Whatever the emotion we feel toward the good old days, certainly we have lost in poetic imagination. Too, the gentle art of husbandry of fields and animals is rapidly giving way to factual science, flashing with neon lights that look uncomfortably like dollar signs.

Closer to home and to the present, crops on the College Farm look exceptionally good in this third week of July. We could do with a bit of rain; drought patches are showing up especially in those areas of the corn fields that were waterlogged a month ago. Apparently the excess wetness promoted shallow-root growth. Now the plants cannot reach the moisture. The earliest planted corn, Warwick SL209, tasselled on July 15.

This weekend will see the alfalfa fields clear of the second cut. It was just thirty-four days between bud stage on June 20 and bud stage again on July 24.

A story of Montreal

a basket maker had his premises on the rest of the ground floor. The top floors were being used as a rooming house.

Only 30 minutes by foot from Montreal's "Skyscraper Row" along Dorchester Boulevard is an area of a few square miles around the site of the original stockaded village of Ville Marie.

This core area, the section of Montreal which was enclosed by walls which until the early nineteenth century protected the city from attacks by invaders, has been declared an historical monument. Anyone who buys a building or land in the area has to submit his plans for it to the Jacques Viger Commission, the group responsible for its restoration, preservation and rehabilitation.

When the fur trade was North America's biggest industry, Montreal was the commercial centre of the continent. Ships from Europe and the rest of the world put into Montreal harbour, part of which you can see from Place Jacques Cartier.

Most of the buildings are of nineteenth century origin and built of cut stone, but there are at least a score of eighteenth century and some seventeenth century fieldstone houses also.

Warehouses, parking lots and garages threatened to dominate Old Montreal. Since the Viger Commission began its work, the transformation is amazing. Canadian Industries Limited is one of a number of businesses which, along with private citizens, have ensured the preservation and active life of the diminishing number of historic buildings. The marketing activity which began with the construction of the new market in 1808 continued in the huge nearby Bonsecours Market building and the surrounding area until after the construction of the city's new Central Market in 1960, several miles away.

Le vieux Montreal has become once again sophisticated and fashionable, and CIL is proud to participate.

There are fashionable night clubs, discotheques, antique shops, fashion boutiques and art galleries, and in summer artists and flower sellers in the streets. Also, superb restaurants have opened up in the quarter.

The view of Montreal has become once again sophisticated and fashionable, and CIL is proud to participate.
