Congressmen Visit Beauharnois Power Plant

Middle Span of Bridge Crumbles At Beauharnois

Swirling Waters of Beauharnois Power Canal Believed Partially Responsible For Unexpected Collapse—Utilities Are Disrupted—Residents Believe Sand Shifted—Supplies Power to Montreal, Valleyfield and Beauharnois War Industries

Swirling waters of the Beauharnois power canal, made swifter every week-end when sluices at the giant Beauharnois Power Company plant are opened to send a veritable cataract pouring into Lake St. Louis, were believed to have been at least partially responsible for the crumbling of the 180-foot middle span of a provincial bridge on highway No. 3 between Beauharnois and Valleyfield on Monday.

The bridge was to have been crossed on Monday by a party of 80, including members of the United States House of Representatives, Rivers and Harbors Committee, which is touring areas affected by the proposed St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Officials of the Beauharnois Power Company and the townfolk of Beauharnois did not believe there was any automobile on the span at the time it fell away and plunged into the 45-foot-deep water. The possibility of sending divers down to establish the fact without shadow of doubt is fraught with the danger of risking their lives due to water depth and swift current.

A company policeman said, however, there would be an investigation.

Utilities Are Disrupted

Telephone, electric light and traffic facilities were disrupted but only after an exceptionally short while after the span plunged at about 3 o'clock Monday morning. Traffic was re-routed over a Beauharnois Power Company bridge across the lower end of its power house and repair crews were at work within two hours setting up temporary connections of electric light and telephone services.

The Beauharnois power plant, rating as a war industry because it supplies power to Montreal, Valleyfield and the St. Lawrence Alloys Company at Beauharnois, cannot dam its water at least immediately to allow divers to find out if by ill fortune some motorist or motorists may have gone down with the span. The work of divers would be further hampered, it is held at Beauharnois, in that the current would undoubtedly have carried even an automobile far down from the scene to the bottom of Lake St. Louis.

The break in down with the span is a whistle. It looks as though the sunken part had been cut clean away with some giant knife, the breaks at both the standing extremities showing no ragged edges. Total length of the bridge is 540 feet.

Think Sand Shifted

Beauharnois townspeople were of the opinion that while the bridge built nine years ago had its foundations themselves on solid rock, those foundations themselves may possibly have been resting on quicksand. The action of the water for nearly a decade would have shifted that sand, they claimed, the rocks would have shifted and that was the doom of the span.

When the power plant sluices are closed during the week the current is about six miles per hour. When they are opened during the week-ends without going through the plant's turbines the current is automatically greatly increased.

Albert Briere, guardsman of the Civilian Corps of Commissioners at the power plant, was believed to have been the first to give the alarm although he did not see the span fall. He said, however, that coinciding with a loud splash in the middle of the night, all surrounding lights went out. Official investigation revealed that the span had vanished and that telephone and electric light poles set on its jutting pillars had gone with it.

Like the two arms of the bridge still standing, the missing span was set upon pillars and had a criss-cross of steel girders under it. It would seem that the middle span received the full power of the current rather than the side spans, the waters converging toward the middle of the flow.

Occurring as it did in the middle of the night there was every hope that the accident did not result in any single or mass fatality. During the day the bridge carries a heavy load of tourist, bus and other traffic and it was said that it would indeed have been a miracle had one or more cars not been going over the span when it loosened its foundations and plunged into what at the time probably amounted to flood waters.

G. J. CARRIGAN GETS WINGS IN CEREMONY AT MOUNTAIN VIEW

The Royal Canadian Air Force bombing and gunnery school at Mountain View, Ont., on Saturday graduated a class of air gunners, who were presented with their single-wing badges by Air Commodore G. E. Brookes, officer commanding No. 1 Training Command.

BOY LOST IN WOODS IS FOUND AFTER ALL NIGHT SEARCH

The disappearance of seven-year-old Duncan Carson one evening last week threw the residents of Franklin Centre into somewhat of a turmoil. The youngster, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Carson of Franklin Centre, got lost in the woods while going for the cows with his uncle, Mr. M. Carson.

A search party was organized when the youth failed to return home late that evening. More than one hundred men searched throughout the night for the missing youngster but to no avail.

Early the next morning Mr. Rene Enard, a farm hand employed at Mannagh Brothers, found the child. He was returned to his parents suffering from shock and badly bruised and scratched.

W.C. Gurnham Is Winner of Coveted C.A.

Young Man From Valleyfield One of First Members to Have Acquired C.A. at 21

For Valleyfield residents one of the most interesting and important items of news for the week-end was the announcement that W. C. Gurnham, better known as "Billy", had won the coveted C.A. Billy recently sat for this difficult examination whose standards are so high that a large percentage of competitors fail in meeting the very strict requirements. Consequently Billy is to be congratulated upon his unusual achievement, and particularly when it is considered that he reached his twenty-first birthday last March.

Billy's scholastic career and standing have from the beginning both indicated ability and promise. A splendid student with a talent for mathematics, Billy has consistently shown a great capacity for work and for high marks, and to his teachers and friends, he has given evidence of distinction and merit. He took his matriculation from the Gault Institute where he won the Jas. A. Robb Scholarship, then proceeded to St. Lawrence College where the work in the advanced mathematics occupied his attention. Proceeding to McGill he qualified for the degree of Bachelor of Commerce and after passing this milestone he spent a year in the office of McDonald and Currie, preparing in the meantime, for the chartered accountant's examinations, which he has just passed so brilliantly.

It is believed that he is the first member of the staff at McDonald and Currie in many years to have acquired his C.A. at the early age of twenty-one. With his slender years and his fine equipment he should go far and contribute a good share to the settlement of post war economic problems of rehabilitation.

Billy is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gurnham. Mr. Gurnham is well-known in business circles as the secretary-treasurer of The Montreal Cottons Limited.

It is reported that Victor Houghton, late of Valleyfield, was also awarded his C.A.

MODERN TRAILER DESTROYED IN $1,200 FIRE AT ORMSTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Vigier of Cardinal, Man., who have been spending the past two weeks at Ste. Agnes de Dundee, suffered considerable loss on Saturday when their modern trailer was completely destroyed by fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Vigier were returning from a trip to Ste. Anne de Beaupre, and it was when passing through the village of Ormstown that someone shouted to Mr. Vigier that his trailer was on fire. Nothing could be done to check the flames, and the trailer, along with its furnishings, equipment and personal belongings of the Vigier family, was a total loss.

The fire was stated to have been caused by a broken spring which allowed the body of the trailer to have direct contact with the tire, thus causing friction. Mr. Vigier estimated his loss to be in the neighborhood of $1,200.

Touring Convoy Passing Through Huntingdon

Hundreds of citizens viewed the elaborate display staged by the mobile unit of Military Headquarters from District No. 4, in Huntingdon, Hemmingford, Howick, Ormstown and St. Remi, Wednesday and Thursday. The convoy was officially greeted in Huntingdon by members of the Huntingdon Town Council, officials of the Chateau-guay Military Training Centre, and other representatives of recognized bodies. Hundreds of citizens jammed Chateauguay Street in Huntingdon on Wednesday afternoon to get a first hand view of the convoy as it was on its way to the training centre. The unit is shown passing the reviewing stand in the above picture.

Mobile Unit is Impressive in Demonstration

Touring Convoy Visits Towns in Huntingdon And Chateauguay Counties—Quietness Disrupted by "Bursting" Bombs

The war show staged by the touring unit of Military District No. 4 headquarters at Huntingdon, Ormstown, Howick, St. Remi and Hemmingford on Wednesday evening and Thursday afternoon and evening, gave the residents of the Chateauguay Valley a better idea of modern warfare and brought the war that much closer to their homes.

The mobile unit arrived in Huntingdon shortly after three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and was met by a delegation of the Town Council, Huntingdon Board of Trade and others at the intersection of the Ridge Road and the Port Lewis Road. It passed through some streets of Huntingdon and later journeyed to the Chateauguay Military Basic Training Centre.

The demonstration as staged at the Huntingdon fair grounds in the evening was witnessed by hundreds of Huntingdonians and many visitors. The general quietness of Huntingdon was temporarily disrupted by the actions of the assault finale as staged by members of this troop.

The battle was as thrilling as anything of this nature ever witnessed in Huntingdon, and the crowd's approval as the attackers gained their objective to the accompaniment of bursting "bombs" and terrific artillery and rifle fire.

Live Recruiting Talks

Mr. Col. W. A. MacKay, officer commanding the mobile show, gave a recruiting talk in French, and was followed by Major N. A. Fellowes, who spoke in English.

Mr. Col. MacKay explained that the mobile show's visit to Huntingdon had a definite purpose. Canada needs men immediately to fill some units in Military District No. 4. The soldiers of Canada's army are ready and prepared to defend the civil population in the advent of an attack, but healthy young men are needed immediately to help those already in service.

Major Fellowes explained that mothers should be prepared to make sacrifices today and allow their sons to join the armed forces of their country. Time is precious and young men who are of age and without dependents should not hesitate to enlist now.

Military District No. 4 Band, reported to be the best military organization in Canada, supplied music throughout the performance. Fifty trucks, Bren gun carriers and general army equipment included some of the equipment borne by the visiting show.

Performance at Hemmingford

Leaving Huntingdon shortly after noon on Thursday, the show passed through Ormstown, Howick and St. Remi, prior to staging another outstanding performance at Hemmingford in the evening. In these centres the show stopped briefly and was received by civic authorities.

Attracted by the unusual hundreds of Americans joined their Canadian friends at Hemmingford on Thursday evening to welcome the mobile show. Many from Franklin, Huntingdon, Ormstown, St. Chrysostome also witnessed the proceedings. The program was almost identical to that staged in Huntingdon and was met with as much enthusiasm.

Board of Trade Receives $250. Fine Response From Youths When Called

Members Loud in Praise of Work Accomplished by Board of Trade—Responsible For Huntingdon's Industrial Development—Dog By-law to be Rigidly Enforced

In recognition of the outstanding work accomplished by the Huntingdon Board of Trade since its founding some years ago, the members of the Huntingdon Town Council mutually agreed to grant this organization the sum of $250 to help defray current expenses.

Mr. N. F. Manning, manager of the Huntingdon branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and an active worker with the board of trade, explained to the council at its adjourned meeting on Monday evening that the board of trade had been successful in obtaining a few industries for Huntingdon, thus relieving the town council of the responsibility of supplying the daily needs to persons who might otherwise have been unemployed.

Mr. Manning stated that the only revenues of the board of trade were derived from membership fees, and these are very low.

Mayor Faubert explained to the council that the board of trade had been greatly responsible for the industrial development of Huntingdon and that the council should help them as much as possible so that this organization may continue its good work.

The council elaborated on the remarks made and voted a grant of $250 for this year.

Ordered Dog Destroyed

The council authorized the secretary to notify James Hampton to have his dog destroyed within three days after issuance of the notice, otherwise legal action would be taken.

It was reported at the council meeting that the Hampton dog had bitten a town employee, John Macrow, while passing on Wellington St.

In regards to this question, Ald. Barrett stated that the council should rigidly enforce the dog by-law in Huntingdon. There are some dogs in town who are let loose on the street without a license and threaten passers-by. Such tactics should be discontinued, and it might be well to appoint a dog catcher and place the illegal dogs in a pound as is done in other localities, concluded Ald. Barrett. The other members of the council said that this question is worthy of further consideration.

The council passed a resolution asking the Quebec Municipal Commission for permission to extend their $3,000 loan for another four months. Letters were read from the Sun Life in regards to the printing of bonds in small denominations. The secretary was authorized to have these bonds printed in the required denominations.

The council forwarded a resolution to Ald. R. E. McWhinnie, who is a patient in the Barrie Memorial Hospital at Ormstown, wishing him a speedy recovery.

The chairman of the road committee, Ald. J. H. Demers, was authorized to purchase up to 50 tons of river sand for town use. Tenders will be asked for same.

The following accounts were presented for payment: La Gazette de Valleyfield, $12; payroll, $42.45; Department of Municipal Affairs, $12.50; Department of Roads, $89; John Macrow, $33; amusement tax, $68.08; Canadian Industries Limited, $16; insane account, $570.76.

Young Men in Chateauguay Valley Should Communicate With Montreal Headquarters For Information

Officials of the National War Services Department report gratifying and ready response from young Canadians being called for military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

They state, however, that while each man receives a mailed individual and personal notice of his call to training, as his period arrives, a number of enquiries are still being sent direct to Ottawa. Major-General LaFleche, Associate Deputy Minister of the Department of National War Services, under whose direction the mobilization of trainees is being carried out, points out that the Regulations have been planned to smooth out possible difficulties for the trainee by dividing Canada into thirteen administrative divisions, with officials and headquarters offices in each division, authorized to handle procedure and operations locally.

To the Divisional Registrar of National War Services in the area in which they are registered should be forwarded all communications concerning business arising from the provisions of National War Services Regulations. All men from 19 to 45 are warned that notification must also be given promptly of change of address or marital status. Failure to do so incurs the risk of fine or imprisonment.

Strategic Points On St. Lawrence Viewed by Officials

United States Delegation Learn More of Intricacy And Magnitude of the Seaway and Power Project—Canadian Officials Greet Distinguished Guests At Trout River Lines—From Thousand Islands to Dorval via Beauharnois

Claiming that they had learned enormously more of the intricacy and magnitude of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project than they could ever have done from blueprints and reports and by examination of witnesses, the 19 members of the United States House of Representatives, who spent Saturday, Sunday and Monday on a tour of inspection of the area which would be affected, returned to Washington on Monday night to resume their inquiry there.

The party visited some of the most strategic points along the St. Lawrence River from the Thousand Islands to Dorval, Que. The party arrived in this section of the Chateauguay Valley through Trout River port of customs and stopped briefly at the new Beauharnois Canal on La-roque Road, near Valleyfield. There the party viewed the canal and chatted on its location, its possibilities, etc. After taking into consideration all the points of interest, they left for Beauharnois by way of St. Louis de Gonzague, as they could not reach that city by the regular route, a bridge over the Beauharnois Power plant having been swept away by the current.

At the Beauharnois Powerhouse the party was welcomed by B. K. Boulton and Max Sauer, representatives of the Beauharnois Company. The party arrived there at 5 p.m. and left at six o'clock, after they had viewed the huge intricacies at the plant, for Dorval, Quebec, where they were officially greeted by Ontario and Quebec government representatives.

Among those who met the congressmen and others in the group at Trout River from the Chateauguay Valley were the Huntingdon Detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Corporal Henry D'Aoust and Constable Rod Pierce, Donald E. Black, M.P., for Chateauguay-Huntingdon, Maxime Raymond, K.C., M.P., for Beauharnois-La-prairie, Mayor Daniel Faubert, of Huntingdon, Mayor J. Armand Larin, of Valleyfield; Mayor or Hormidas Roy, of Beauharnois and other official representatives of the towns in the surrounding municipalities.

John Read, K.C., of the Dept. of External Affairs at Ottawa, headed the Canadian group in the inspection tour of the Beauharnois power house, which was accompanied by the Mayors of Prescott, Cornwall and followed by the United States Congressmen and others who accompanied the delegation.

Members of the House of Representatives and Harbors Committee included: Joseph J. Mansfield, Texas, Chairman (D); Martin F. Smith, Washington (D); Hugh Peterson, Georgia (D); Graham A. Barden, N. Carolina (D); Frank W. Boykin, Alabama (D); Michael J. Kirwan, Ohio (D); Clyde T. Ellis, Arkansas (D); Alfred F. Belter, New York (D); Albert E. Carter, California (R); Francis D. Culkin, New York (R); George A. Dondero, Michigan (R); William A. Pittenger, Minnesota (R); Robert L. Rodgers, Penn. (R); Homer Angel, Oregon (R); George H. Beyer, Ohio (R); Joshua L. Johns, Wisconsin (R); Frank C. Osmer, Jr., New Jersey (R); Joseph H. McGann, Clerk; Walter F. Woodul, former Lt.-Gov. of Texas.

Members of the Advisory Committee: Brigadier-General Thomas M. Robins, Asst. Chief of Engineers; Gerald V. Cruise, Executive Secretary of N.Y. Power Auth.; Member of the Federal Power Commission: William S. Youngman, General Counsel.

Members of the Department of Commerce: Dr. N. R. Daniellian; Admiral Geo. H. Rock; New York State Government Representative: Lt.-Gov. Charles Poletti.

Members of the New York State Power Authority: Ralph G. Sucher, George E. Reed and son George S. Reed, M. P. Davidson, Darius Phillips, F. J. Freestone, W. T. Field, Tom W. Yerber.

Other guests were: Mr. Edward Noble, former Acting Secretary of Commerce; Mr. Tom McGrath, Executive Director, National St. Lawrence Seaway Project Conference; Mr. B. D. Tallamy, Engineer for Niagara Frontier Planning Board.

Although they said they had all learned a great deal on this personal tour there was no indication among the 19 Congressmen that any one of them had changed his opinion. Those who came ready to support the project declared themselves Class "A".

Fifteen babies were immunized against diphtheria at the regular monthly clinic at the county building on Tuesday afternoon by the health unit. Dr. Patenaude also stated that the milk vendors in Huntingdon are now classified in Class "A".

180 YOUNG MEN JOIN ARMED FORCES AT VALLEYFIELD

During the recruiting campaign which has just come to a close, the city of Valleyfield made a remarkable showing. Many youths enlisted and others are expected to follow their example.

Robert Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sullivan of Valleyfield, left last week for Montreal where he joined the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mr. Jean Louis Amiot, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gilles Amiot of Valleyfield, has also joined Canada's armed forces. He joined the Canadian Army for overseas service.

To date Valleyfield has furnished 180 young men to the Canadian Army.

Soldiers Help Quench Blaze At Valleyfield

Damages Estimated at $25,000 at A. H. Besner's Hardware Store—Fight Fire For Five Hours

One of the most stubborn fires of the year caused some $25,000 damage to the A. H. Besner hardware store on Ste. Cecile Street in Valleyfield on Tuesday afternoon. The Valleyfield fire brigade, aided by soldiers at the Valleyfield training centre, combatted the flames for more than five hours before they could control the blaze which threatened to destroy an entire street block.

Originated in Basement

It is believed that the fire originated somewhere in the basement of the large building, where paints, varnishes and other stock was stored. Employees at the store were first to notice the fire when heavy black smoke emerged from the stairway leading into the basement. The fire brigade was summoned but on their arrival they feared that they would be unable to control the blaze. Col. J. R. J. Duhaime, officer commanding the Valleyfield training centre, was urged to send some volunteer fire fighters. Equipped with gas masks, the soldiers worked incessantly and their efforts, combined with those of the local fire brigade, were successful in containing the flames to the basement.

No One Injured

No one was injured but several firefighters were slightly affected by smoke and fumes. Soldiers and firemen had to work in relief due to the thickness of the smoke.

Two apartments above the store, occupied by Herve Leduc and Jean Marin, were severely damaged, as well as the Annex Fruit Store. The volunteer fighters were successful in removing all the furniture in these apartments. The hat shop of Miss Eva Lefebvre was a total loss. Hundreds of hats and other ladies' wear were lost. Damage in this store are estimated at more than $500.

Records Are Removed

As it was feared that the fire would reach the store itself, the hardware store's records were removed to safety, as well as other important documents and indispensable articles.

The Belleville fire fighting apparatus was also on the scene as more fire fighting equipment was necessary. When the flames left the scene shortly after 5 o'clock, the basement was completely filled with water and much hardware in the store suffered water damage.

SCHOOL TEACHERS MUST POSSESS T.B. CERTIFICATE

Dr. J. A. Patenaude, health unit officer for Chateauguay-Huntingdon, stated on Tuesday that no children will be accepted in the schools this year without having a vaccination certificate. Schools who admit such students in their public buildings are subject to a fine of $10 per day.

Another recent decision of the Provincial Health Officer was the question of health certificates for teachers. Dr. Patenaude pointed out that all teachers, male or female, must have in their possession a health certificate against tuberculosis when school starts in September. Teachers who fail to abide by this law will have their teaching contract annulled by October 1. Clinics against tuberculosis are held every Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m. at Valleyfield, and teachers may get the required certificate there or from their family physician.

Fifteen babies were immunized against diphtheria at the regular monthly clinic at the county building on Tuesday afternoon by the health unit. Dr. Patenaude also stated that the milk vendors in Huntingdon are now classified in Class "A".

Central Span Crumbles on Beauharnois Bridge ...

The Beauharnois bridge on the Montreal-Valleyfield highway is shown after the 180-foot section collapsed early Monday morning. No cars were on the bridge at the time, it is believed. Beauharnois residents blame the collapse on shifting sand and swift current. The break in the bridge, as seen in the photo, is as clean as a whistle. Utilities were temporarily disrupted.

Huntingdon, Wed., July 23rd, 1941

Prudent men lock up their motives, letting familiars have a key to their hearts, as to their gardens.

Growth of an Industry

THE beginnings of Canada's great pulp and paper industry as we know it today date from just 75 years ago when two important developments took place in Quebec. In 1866, as Confederation was reaching its final form, Alexander Buntin established at our neighbour municipality of Valleyfield what was probably the first wood grinder in America and started to manufacture wood-pulp by the mechanical process. At Windsor Mills, in the same year, Angus Logan & Co. built the first chemical wood-pulp mill in Canada.

While paper had been manufactured on this continent since 1687 and the first paper mill in Canada had been established at St. Andrews, Quebec, in 1803, rags were the principal raw material used before the 1860's and the two plants started in Quebec in 1866 were the real beginning of Canada's use of wood for the manufacture of paper. When Canada's first census was taken in 1871 the infant industry was producing paper valued at $1,071,651. Today, 70 years later, the industry is producing a variety of products valued at over $250,000,000 and of which the great bulk are exported in manufactured form to the advantage of Canadian labour and Canadian governments.

This growth was by no means haphazard. It represents a capital investment of $595,000,000—the largest in any single Canadian industry. It provides employment for over 30,000 people and in this field holds top honours with its allied industry lumbering and sawmilling. It depends for its continuation on an adequate supply of pulpwood such as our forests, properly protected and managed, can grow in perpetuity.

Yet, upon the 75th anniversary of the use of Canadian forests for the manufacture of paper, we had forest fires ravaging the timberlands of Ontario and Quebec and we had the export of pulpwood for manufacture in foreign pulp mills, when this same wood had better be manufactured in Canada. Now, when the value of the pulp and paper industry is being brought home to us in a war-time world as never before, we should heed the lessons of the past—protect and manage our remaining forests as best we can and check the dissipation of our forest wealth through uneconomic export of pulpwood.

Accident Prevention

THE Province of Quebec Workmen's Compensation Commission has issued a rather interesting summary of its operation since 1931. At that time, it will be recalled, a law was passed whereby every employer of labor in this province must contribute towards the Workmen's Compensation Commission a percentage of the employee's salary. This percentage varies according to the type of work the employee is engaged to do. With the bringing of this law into force it made it that practically every employee was assured compensation should he or she suffer injury when at work. It also meant practically no business for the accident insurance companies that were doing business in this Province.

The summaries issued last week to the companies contributing towards this compensation fund show what money that particular company contributed to the Commission, what the Commission paid out in the way of settling claims and the proportion of overhead expenses involved. The final column shows the credit or debit for the years for that particular company. This information is very valuable to the employers and employees. The summary tells the employer just where he stands in regards to accidents and with that information in black and white before him he can determine whether he is careful about hazards about his plant. If the table shows accident claims have been heavy, perhaps the solution is to eliminate hazards, teach his employees to be more careful; otherwise the Compensation Commission will have but one alternate, viz: raise the rates for Workmen's Compensation.

We doubt very much if such rates need be raised if employers would take heed to the tables just issued. In connection with a war industry in this district, the rate that would be demanded by the Compensation Commission would be 4½% of the wages paid. The industry being under the control of the Federal Government operates its own compensation. As a result of "Safety First" teaching and training the accidents were reduced to about 3% of wages. Monthly reductions have been made and in June the accidents were reduced to nearly 1½% and up to the middle of July the accidents appeared to be considerably less. This industry fully expects to reduce its accident compensation for the year to 1¼% of the wage payroll. If a hazardous industry can attain such reductions in accidents, surely such can be obtained by every industry, irrespective of its type, if care and thought is given by employers and employees.

The Inspector of industrial plants, Mr. Carroll is well known to the industrial employers in this district. His counsel as to protective measures is always appreciated. If he asks that a guard rail be erected, a saw protected, goggles for employees be provided or what not else, it is right that they be provided and also that the employees use the protective measures supplied. If by chance an employee does not use the protective measures supplied and suffers accidents through not using them, it would seem fit and proper that the employee should not receive compensation, but such is not done. It is more the carelessness of employees that the cost of compensation rises than due to employers who do not co-operate with Inspector Carroll. The expense of Workmen's Compensation is added into the plant overhead just the same as are the wages. In order to sell, one must keep the costs down and here is where employees can help build a larger business for their employer, through being careful, eliminate accidents, eliminate the loss of time due to accidents; through so doing they can save their employer an overhead expense.

Air Raid Tolls

OVER here the roar of an airplane motor is a signal to rush outdoors in order to catch a glimpse of a silver or yellow ship sailing smoothly through sunlit skies but in England the same sound heralds the approach of Nazi raiders carrying packages of death and destruction.

A detailed analysis of air raid casualties in Great Britain shows a total of 39,458 killed and 50,537 wounded in the period up to the end of May. Additional information reveals 5394 killed and 5181 injured in the month of May alone and of the killed 2512 were men, 1994 women and 753 children under 16. "Unclassified dead" numbered 135 and this last grim item covers all those bodies so mutilated when removed from the wreckage as to be quite unrecognizable.

The comparative statement of casualties since the heavy raids of last September were launched by the German air force is as follows:—

	Killed	Injured	Total
September	6,954	10,615	17,569
October	6,334	8,695	15,029
November	4,588	6,202	10,790
December	3,793	5,044	8,837
January	1,502	2,012	3,514
February	789	1,068	1,857
March	4,259	4,794	9,053
April	6,065	6,926	12,991
May	5,394	5,181	10,575

This report gives no indication whatever of the tremendous property damage caused by Hitler's henchmen nor of the suffering and hardship borne by men, women and children who have seen their homes blasted and shattered and emerged from their air raid shelters physically sound but without a stick of furniture, a scrap of clothing or a morsel of food to call their own.

Over here in Canada it is difficult to realize the plight of these brave Britishers for our imaginations cannot possibly paint a true picture of the terrible hardships they are bearing with admirable courage.

"You're a great people," His Majesty the King told men and women who cheered him as he visited bomb-blasted sections of London.

Canadians can add their tribute to the courage of their cousins overseas through contributions to the Queen's Canadian Fund For Air Raid Victims. Great sums are required to provide necessities and comforts for air raid victims overseas. Churches that have been "bombed-out" are being aided by the Canadian congregations who are now appealing for contributions that may aid in providing temporary quarters for such congregations that may have lost their House of Worship, perhaps need repairs due to bombing or for the rebuilding of churches in their entirety, when times so permit. The appeals are worthy of your generous support.

An Easy Decision

MOTOR car drivers in Canada are now faced to face with the fact that the armen of the empire need the gasoline which Canadians are using for pleasure purposes.

For several months past every loyal Canadian has been nursing the fervent wish that the young flyers from Canada with their brother fighters in the R.A.F. could pay back ten-fold the unspeakable horrors which Nazi airmen have unleashed in the British Isles. Now finally the wings of hundreds of Empire planes are casting their shadows over Germany daily. The hour has come when we have the opportunity to shake the morale of Hitler's millions.

But as each new flight of aeroplanes streak into battle, and as the Empire increases its raiding groups from a handful of attackers to waves of machines which are counted by the hundreds, fuel for these fighting ships stands out as the stark need of the hour.

From London comes the urgent cry, "Give us all the gasoline you can spare."

Canada cannot turn over all her gasoline. That product is vital in our huge production of war material. We need large quantities for the hundreds of air training ships across the country, for the navy and the convoys which touch our shores, for the transportation of war goods. But there is one way in which we can supply more and more gasoline for the fighters—by refusing to use up gasoline unnecessarily in private motor cars.

Millions upon millions of gallons of gasoline are spent every year in private motor cars for purposes which may be considered unnecessary in the light of the drastic need across the Atlantic.

If our fighting forces are to get any help at all from Canada, insofar as gasoline is concerned, fuel experts declare, then owners of private motor cars must reduce their consumption of gasoline by at least 50%.

Armed with this knowledge who of us is going to refuse to co-operate?

The decision is an easy one.

Mechanical Toothbrush

WITH the invention of a mechanical toothbrush human beings are going to be relieved even of the slight effort now required to scrub their molars. The electric toothbrush cleans the teeth with rapid "up and down" motions in the manner prescribed by dentists as the bristles are vibrated. The apparatus resembles an electric razor in appearance with the exception that either a short-handled brush or a gum massager is inserted in the handle. And one electric toothbrush can be used safely by all members of the family by obtaining individual brushes and massagers.

There was a store of primitive nature opened at Ames' by one, Ketchum, in 1811, the stock comprising a few dry goods. A Dr. Buck, an American, in addition to practising his profession, taught school, which young Gentle attended and learned his letters.

The only way to Montreal was through the wood to St. Remi, then to Laprairie. There was no house until five miles beyond where St. Remi, when the first French settlement began. Potash was dragged on sleds to Laprairie, thence by bateau to Montreal. Settlers made two trips a year generally and brought back provisions. Potash sold at high prices.

In 1812 a messenger arrived with proclamation that Great Britain had declared and calling on all either to leave the country or go to Montreal for protection. Settlers were much alarmed, being nearly exclusively American. Remembers hearing one pleading with his father to leave, saying the Indians would be down on the settlement to repeat the horrors of the Revolutionary War, and that if they left it would only be temporary for the Americans would soon be in possession, when they could come and take the land. Manning resolved to stand ground. In two days from receipt of proclamation all other settlers had fled across the line, and never returned.

The Indians came from Chateauguay but behaved well. They moved in a band of forty along the frontier, waiting for incursions by the whites. They had war paint on and were dressed in Indian fashion with blankets, etc. A block house was erected and Gentle's father was ordered by the government to move there all the wheat he could find in the settlement. The period of the war was one of excitement and continual apprehension. Hampton had army at Chateauguay, and bodies of them came across the frontier occasionally. Once Gentle and his father encountered a company numbering about 100 at the Centre, who took them prisoners and marched them to Gentle's house, where they halted for the night. The soldiers killed all poultry and swung a big pot out-of-doors and cooked them with potatoes. They left next morning without further molesting.

Three French-Canadians who lived at one time in the settlement but left on account of the war and lived at Plattsburg, took advantage of the trouble to plunder the frontier. One night they stole Manning's cattle, Gentle's oxen and cows, and drove them to Chateauguay, where Douglas, the miller, recognized the oxen and stopped the men, who said they had bought them. Not believing them, Douglas called for Franklin, where he met Gentle and his son following tracks in search of them. They rejoiced when they recovered the stock. The Canadians cleared out on being suspected.

The Americans were friendly all during the war. One night a picket of Americans came to the house and found Simpson in bed. He was employed by the government to get information of enemy's movements and convey it to the post at Odelltown. He was taken prisoner, but on the flat rock south of Rockburn where the company stopped for breakfast, he seized his opportunity and plunged down the hill in the bush, bullets flying over his head. He returned to Gentle's house.

Another time three American soldiers came suddenly into the house, one firing his gun into the wall to frighten them. One stood at the door while the other two searched the house for plunder. They found a pack of dry goods and $50 belonging to a man staying there at the time. Divided goods into three bundles which each one put on his back. One of them opened trunk containing Gentle's clothes, but the others protested against taking "old man's" property, and they left without taking anything more.

There were three settlers on the 1st concession of Hinchinbrook living close together—Capt. Barrow, Nichols and McClatchie. On hearing that Hampton had marched, Barrow, who was an old army officer, borrowed Nichols' horse and buckling on his army sword, hastened to give information and take part in the fight. He was too late to take part in the skirmish, after which the woods were full of American skulkers, some with guns and others without, making for the States and terribly frightened of pursuers being on their track. Of three I saw, only one had a gun.

After the war settlers poured in and took possession of abandoned lots. On father pressing the Seigneur agent, Milne, for deed, Milne said he could not give him one until question was settled as to ownership of Gore, but offered him deed for 200 acres in Meadows, which Gentle refused. He was attracted first to the lot by the fine spring, attaching much importance to pure water. Jonathan Priest came and had with him the first wheeled vehicle and a span of horses. He was a splendid teamster and had axes to cut a road. He and others went out one summer to make a road by felling cedars across a clay slough the other side of St. J.C. in 1812. They took two days to do so. Before this his father had got a rude cart in which he made his trips to Montreal.

Chateauguay was a thriving place owing to the great influx of settlers; had two taverns, Col. Smith's (store also) and Barrow's, stores and mill, the latter patronized by Franklin. The first time he visited site of Huntingdon was in 1817, when he passed down from Nichols' lot to Chateauguay through woods. Has an impression there were more settlers near, but only remembers Falkner distinctly. Was not in his house. First preachers were Episcopal Methodists from the States, Sam Covey lived on Jas. McDiarmid's place; he was a hunter and told tall stories about his deed. He died at Gannoque, where his sons had gone at an early age. Married 70 years.

Country was full of wild animals, particularly deer, which he thinks came around settlements for protection from wolves. His father was not a huntsman.

During the war a flag of truce party, under the command of Col. Boucheville, stopped at Gentle's for dinner. Corn cake made of meal ground in malt mill, milk, eggs, etc., were set down. Officers ate first. When men sat down, Col. Boucheville slapped one on the back, saying "Eat heartily, for the cake is good." Does not know object of truce, and they did not return their way. Only served two weeks in 37 in Capt. Steele's company. Steele told him his family needed him, and advised him to get a substitute. William Anderson (Laird's brother) by offering him the pay he had acquired.

Possibility of Forming
New Cabinet Post to Look After Economic
Side of War Effort

The spirit of economy is in the air of the Capital these days. This is naturally not an economy implying any slackening of the war effort, quite the reverse. War orders have now reached or just about reached the two billion dollar mark. But to wage war there is more to be done than the training of men and the production of equipment. The whole population has to make sacrifices and mould their method of life into harmony with the war machine. And this does not mean the war machine of this country alone but that of other countries as well, particularly Britain. The British need oil and gasoline; they need all the ocean tankers they can get to carry the oil from foreign wells in various parts of the world to their ports. This is a primary reason for the new gasoline regulations in Canada which close filling stations in this country for twelve hours at night and all day Sundays. Besides this, there is the steadily increasing demand of Canada's war industries. The non-essential use of oil and gas has to be drastically reduced. Otherwise a rationing system will be introduced. At present Canada's annual consumption of oil is about 65 million barrels. About 9,500,000 barrels are produced domestically, mainly in the Turner Valley; about 11 million barrels are imported from the States. The rationing system will be introduced through the pipe line to flow through the pipe line to (Continued on page 7)

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

SHOULD CHURCHES ADVERTISE?

(Canadian Statesman, Bowmanville)

ADDRESSING the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, Rev. Stuart Parker of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, mentioned the use of advertising in promoting church work, especially in the raising of money.

"I may be ahead of my time, but I believe large scale advertising for church purposes will come, even with huge posters," he said. "Money must be spent in order to get money. Do you expect it will simply come to us? The situation must be remedied, but not with traditional means. Publicity is needed and don't let anyone speak of the vulgarity of giving Christ and his cause proper publicity." "A minister of the gospel is not a collector of funds, but he is a teacher of spiritual devotion to Christ which will make his people givers," Mr. Parker added.

Churches are advertising now, in newspapers, by circulars and, for special appeals, by the use of large posters. Some of the advertising space used is paid for. Much is given without charge, especially by the weekly newspaper. Such advertising is deemed useful or clergy-men would not use it. If a few lines bring results, would generous space have the effect appeals from the pulpit have failed to produce? These are questions clergymen and church officials are evidently asking themselves, so states the Brampton Conservator.

At the same conference Rev. C. L. Cowan of St. Andrew's Church, Hamilton, discussing "Church Worship," referred to the decreasing church attendance and objected to some of the methods adopted to get people to church. "I have frequently noticed sermons advertised on church bulletin boards," he said, and mentioned the following: One was "Amos and Andy"; another was "Mussolini 666"; another, "Jonah's Three Nights in a Submarine." The reverend gentleman's belief is that the use of these things to attract crowds instead of using the "true gospel of our Lord" is a serious mistake. One thing is quite apparent to all who think of such matters. Many people never go to church, the evening service is poorly attended; two, and sometimes three, congregations do not fill the one building. Frequently the evening service is discontinued during the summer months.

LYING GERMAN CLAIMS (The Monitor, N.D.G.)

GERMAN news reporting takes as a basic principle the distortion of events to suit the Nazi legend of invincibility. This is the reason for their blantly ridiculous claims. In Mein Kampf, Hitler wrote: "Propaganda must not investigate the truth objectively, or present it according to theoretical claims of justice, but must present only that aspect of the truth which is favorable to its own side." We are not deceived by German propaganda; we have had too much proof of lying. Consequently, when the German High Command promised "successes which would stagger the imagination" against the Russians, we took it with a large grain of salt. We remember the triumphal return of H.M.S. Exeter, which the Germans announced had been sunk. We remember the Battle of Britain which the Germans declared had been won by the Luftwaffe. And we remember the sinking of the Art. Royal by the German radio and the mysterious reappearance of that vessel apparently unscathed.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS

designed to facilitate equitable conditions of mobilization

Deferring of Training Periods to Avoid Individual Hardship

If the Board is satisfied that the calling out of any man for military training will cause extreme hardship to those dependent upon such man, the Board may, from time to time, postpone the training period of the man: Provided that such man shall apply for a postponement order in accordance with the provisions of subsection one of section ten of the regulations.

Postponement Applications Must be Made in Writing

QUENCHERS FOR HOT WEATHER

It was too hot for golf but we were playing. That's always the way with a game like golf. An enterprising citizen had erected a booth near the twelfth tee with seats for those who craved a breathing spell while a more ambitious foursome or two went through. I sat there for half an hour and found that almost every golfer stopped long enough for at least one cooling drink. Some had two—and even three. Summer was here and cooling thirst quenchers were popular.

This craving for cooling drinks in hot weather is a natural one. It is with us at the bridge party, in the home, at the ball game—wherever we may be. Really, it is old Mother Nature clamoring for liquid to take the place of that lost through perspiration.

When cooling drinks are carefully chosen and iced drinks sipped slowly, they are extremely beneficial. Fruit drinks, such as orange juice and lemonade, are particularly desirable. They give us various needed vitamins and minerals. An eight-ounce glass of orange juice supplies enough vitamin C for a full day—and this is the vitamin that must be obtained daily, as the body refuses to store a reserve.

Here are a few excellent summer thirst quenchers. Try them one by one and choose your favorite. Drink them daily and you'll find they will repay you over and over again for the slight preparation effort needed.

Household Hints

Modernize Hall

If a hall is of the long, narrow type, one of the simplest ways in which it may be modernized is by doing the walls and ceiling in a washable water paint or a semi-glossy oil paint. Frequently this kind of hall is inclined to be dark, and the color chosen for the walls should therefore be cream, pale yellow, or light stone, as these will increase the light by reflection.

In most instances the ceiling should be lighter than the walls. But if the hall happens to be exceptionally high, the opposite treatment may be advisable. If the ceiling is slightly darker than the walls it will seem lower.

To Remove Soot

To remove soot from a rug or carpet, sprinkle with salt, then sweep. Soot will sweep up with the salt.

Place Hooks Low

If hooks are placed in the clothes closet low enough to be within the reach of the little boys and girls, on which they can hang up their sweaters and coats, it will teach them to care for themselves at an early age, and to cultivate habits of tidiness and neatness.

New Use for the Waffle Iron

A waffle iron need not spend its entire life making waffles. Try waffle bread. Trim the crusts from slices of bread, brush both sides lightly with butter and brown in the centre of a hot waffle iron. Delicious as a foundation for creamed foods, or as a "shortcake" with fruit and whipped cream.

Sunkist Cocktail

(Serves 4)
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup orange juice
1 cup carbonated or iced water or ginger ale
1 cup sugar
Combine and pour over cracked ice in cocktail glasses. Garnish, if desired, with mint sprigs, or maraschino cherries.

Lemonades

Plain Lemonade: For each one served allow—
1 lemon
1 to 3 tablespoons sugar or honey
1 cup cold water
Crushed ice
Extract lemon juice, add sugar to taste, stir to dissolve. Add water. Serve over ice in large glasses with lemon slice on rim.

Lemon Fizz

Substitute carbonated water for plain.

Lemon Float

To each glass of lemonade, add a scoop of Lemon or Orange Sherbet.

Lemon Juice Bracer

Juice of 1 lemon in glass of hot or cold water. Drink on rising in morning.

Hot Lemonade for a Cold

To juice of 2 lemons add 1 cup boiling water. Sweeten to taste.

Outstanding Canadian Economist

BEHIND the scenes of what is probably the foremost problem today with most Canadian families—the problem of the budget—is Mrs. Phyllis G. Turner, one of the most outstanding economists of the Dominion.

Her job is to help investigate, balance and figure ways of keeping commodities at a sane level. Receiving her first appointment with the government in January of 1934, Mrs. Turner is today receiving the highest salary of any woman in the government service—$4,500 a year.

Named Economic Adviser

Recently appointed technical adviser to the Office of the Minister of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Mrs. Turner before the war was chief research economist of the Tariff Board and Dominion Trade and Industry Commission. Since the war she has also been seconded to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board as an economic adviser. Now, combining these positions, Mrs. Turner is without doubt an important figure in the setting and establishing of the prices of commodities in the Dominion.

The wives and daughters of Ontario farmers are having to live on a shoestring at the having this summer on account of the shortage of labor, and find it very hard. It is hard, but in some cases the women of Quebec have never stopped doing such work. An elderly woman of my acquaintance had to help build a haystack not very long ago, and our grandmothers thought nothing of piling hay for hours. Little girls picked stones and did other strenuous work, and just the other day a young high school girl pulled mustard out of a grain field in a broiling sun.

Speaking of mustard, it is a pity that it is not the commercial species imported from Europe. But a Canadian farmer, I read, is trying to grow the bigger seeded cultivated kind. For mustard is one of the things which may be very scarce and very expensive on account of the shipping condition. The same is partially true of sage. When you read about herb gardens last spring, did you decide just which herbs you would grow—and did you manage even sage? Happy you if you did. Sage used to be shipped from Italy's colony of Tripoli by the ton. Now, and for over a year, exports have been shut off and this has sent the price of sage sky-high.

Singapore is the main point of export for the pepper, allspice, and other spices which come to us from India, China, Malaysia, and other Asiatic regions. In some cases the price of spices and condiments has increased 100% due to the decrease of shipping space, and the canning and pickling factories have been hard hit.

Those leaders of public thought who are planning for social security in Europe after the war have had to draw wisdom from the Bible. Gilbert E. Jackson of Toronto, lecturing at McGill, gets his inspiration from Paul's Epistle to the Romans, in which the apostle enjoins upon his readers to feed their enemies, and clothe and help them. Mr. Jackson, like Mr. Churchill and Anthony Eden, believes that reserves of our surplus food should be stored

FAITHFUL JIM

By Nona Keen Duffy
I have a horse, a working horse, I call him "Faithful Jim."
He works for me, and loves me, too. And I am fond of him.

I put him in a barn at night, And brush him every day;
I give him water in a trough And feed him oats and hay.

I do not whip my working horse, Nor jerk him with a lead;
I put a blanket on his back To shelter him from cold.

I let him stand in shade of trees Instead of in the sun;
I put him safely in his stall When all his work is done!

"MY MASTER BIDS YOU DO AS I DO"

For all those children who are fond of a little exercise no better game than this can be chosen. When the chairs are placed in order round the room the first player commences by saying: "My master bids you do as I do," at the same time working away with the right hand as if hammering at the knees. The second player then asks: "What does he bid me do?" in answer to which the first player says: "To work with one as I do." The second player, working in the same

Mrs. Carrow was also dressed in blue and white and her corsage was the same as the bride's.

A wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carrow and a buffet supper and reception were held Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents. There were about 100 guests at the reception and the young couple received many lovely gifts and money.

The bride received her education at Fort Covington High School. For the past few years she has remained at home to assist her mother, who is afflicted with blindness and deafness. The young couple are remaining in Fort Covington until Sunday, when they will leave for Schenectady to take up their residence.

PULP AND PAPER FOR FREEDOM

THIS "ARMY" FIGHTS TOO!

THE PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY is an army of over 100,000 Canadians who work in the woods, in the mills, in the offices. This army is making a wide variety of products which are a vital part of Canada's fight against Nazi slavery—to hold the freedom our fathers won.

Many pulp and paper products are directly used for war needs. Nearly all of them are also sold in the United States and other countries and thus provide the money Canada must have to pay for planes and ships and guns. Last year the pulp and paper industry provided Canada with nearly 250 million dollars of foreign exchange. Exports of mined gold were 203 millions; wheat and flour exports amounted to 145 millions.

The industry's maintenance machine shops have been geared to Canada's munitions output—providing essential units not otherwise available quickly enough to speed the tools of war to Britain.

The pulp and paper industry is in the war. It is Canada's biggest industry and Canada relies on it. "This is a serious responsibility. Every worker in this great industry has his part to play in the fight for survival. Every log that comes to the block-pile and every ton that leaves the mill is a blow against Nazi slavery—a blow for freedom.

THE PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY OF CANADA

972 SUN LIFE BUILDING, MONTREAL

Dahlia's Whatnots

THE possibility of a Federal election has called for a fresh criticism of the tendency to dissipate millions of public money at such a critical time as the present. Besides, it is considered a very mistaken course for the Opposition to take steps to interrupt plans now on foot for the prosecution of the war. Even shrewd Conservatives say, "Leave the Government unhindered to carry out its war projects, and it alone will be responsible for the outcome." They grasp the fact that for another party to take charge at this stage would only cause confusion and delay when speed is imperative.

But one change for which the nation has grown impatient has been voiced by the Montreal Gazette when it asks why Rene Rielhuber, Vichy envoy, is still retained at Ottawa. The Gazette editorial says: "The situation is absurd and can be exceedingly dangerous. He is responsible to an Axis-controlled government and whatever that government asks of him he must do or resign—and he has not resigned." When one reflects what opportunities for mischief-making are afforded such an official by his diplomatic position in our country's capital, one is tempted to ask whether our leaders are wise or witless, patriotic or self-seeking. If Mr. Rielhuber has outstayed the Syrian campaign his feeling for us Canadians must be quite liberal, almost chummy, in fact. Nice fellow—Rene. As a letter-writer in the Financial Post remarks, "It's a poor time to play politics."

Hon. L. D. Currie, Nova Scotia's Minister of Mines and Labour, knows what it is to mine and to labor. He once worked in the coal pits of Cape Breton; next he worked on a newspaper and became its editor. Then he went through college and got to be a lawyer and a "K.C."

The editor of a weekly paper says: "Newspaper men are blamed for a lot of things they can't help, such as partiality in mentioning the activities of some people, leaving others out, etc. But he simply prints the news he can find. Some people inform him about things and others do not. Newspapermen are always glad to learn the news."

Some of the things in the funny columns do sound far-fetched. One forced style of joke always sounds to me as though it had crossed the Atlantic in one of the old sailing vessels. Truth is not only stranger, but also funnier, than fiction. Believe it or not, it is a lady bearing the name of Mrs. Drinkwater who is secretary to the Smith's Falls Waterworks Commission!

A punster suggests that Hitler's mortal remains be sent to a glue factory so that as the mail goes out he may be licked a million times a day. But he should remember the recipe for rabbit pie which starts with, "First get your rabbit."

The wives and daughters of Ontario farmers are having to live on a shoestring at the having this summer on account of the shortage of labor, and find it very hard. It is hard, but in some cases the women of Quebec have never stopped doing such work. An elderly woman of my acquaintance had to help build a haystack not very long ago, and our grandmothers thought nothing of piling hay for hours. Little girls picked stones and did other strenuous work, and just the other day a young high school girl pulled mustard out of a grain field in a broiling sun.

Speaking of mustard, it is a pity that it is not the commercial species imported from Europe. But a Canadian farmer, I read, is trying to grow the bigger seeded cultivated kind. For mustard is one of the things which may be very scarce and very expensive on account of the shipping condition. The same is partially true of sage. When you read about herb gardens last spring, did you decide just which herbs you would grow—and did you manage even sage? Happy you if you did. Sage used to be shipped from Italy's colony of Tripoli by the ton. Now, and for over a year, exports have been shut off and this has sent the price of sage sky-high.

Singapore is the main point of export for the pepper, allspice, and other spices which come to us from India, China, Malaysia, and other Asiatic regions. In some cases the price of spices and condiments has increased 100% due to the decrease of shipping space, and the canning and pickling factories have been hard hit.

Those leaders of public thought who are planning for social security in Europe after the war have had to draw wisdom from the Bible. Gilbert E. Jackson of Toronto, lecturing at McGill, gets his inspiration from Paul's Epistle to the Romans, in which the apostle enjoins upon his readers to feed their enemies, and clothe and help them. Mr. Jackson, like Mr. Churchill and Anthony Eden, believes that reserves of our surplus food should be stored

Covey Hill

A decidedly unique and interesting object may be seen in the east gable of Minden Cottage. This is in the form of a marble tablet bearing the date "1946" when the original log house was built. The tablet was made from a headstone erected in the Union Church cemetery to the memory of William Dowling, but later replaced by a larger family monument. A son, William Dowling Jr., improved the dwelling by cladding it, and placed the tablet in its present position, the back of the marble showing on the exterior. His own death occurred some years ago in New Jersey, where he was a successful building contractor. It is interesting to note that 10-year-old Jean Sweet McTavish, a first prize winner in the B.C. Musical Festival, has a number of musical relatives native to this district. These include sweet singers of the McTavish families, whose grandmother's maiden name was Sweet, and also Jean's great-uncle, Mr. Fred Sweet of Hemmingford.

Red Cross Notes

The National Work Committee has issued a warning against any decrease in Red Cross work. The need for civilian clothing and knitted articles in Britain is as great as ever.

The Chairman of the National Committee stated: "It is hoped that every woman will realize how necessary it is to redouble our efforts for any cause, there should be a falling off in the quantity of Red Cross supplies."

"Warm clothing for bombed victims and quilts and knitted comforts for the sailors and civilians, as well as sweaters, gloves and mitts are all needed. Supplies sent overseas now, will scarcely reach England before the cold weather."

The local work committee branch reports that many of the women are doing well. However, still more knitters and sewers are needed. Wool and cut-out garments are distributed each Thursday afternoon, from 2 to 4:30 o'clock at the Town Hall.

The Appeal! Will not many more women, old and young, enlist in this service, as willingly and promptly as the boys of Canada have done?

Enjoyable Social Held Under the chairmanship of Rev. W. H. Brown the Ladies' Aid of the Upper and Lower Concessions of the Church held an enjoyable social in the Church Hall on Thursday evening. Incorporated in the very fine program were a number of vocal solos by Miss Mary Hoodson, selections by the Boys' Band and a cornet solo by Bamister Don Moore. A drill song by five girls, vocal selections by four members of the choir, Mrs. Harold Kerr, Mrs. Frank Weale, Mrs. Alan Hooker, and Miss Marion Swan added further variety to the performance. During the intermission the selling of ice cream and cake was well patronized. The entertainment concluded with Mary Bryson, Jean Thompson, Carita Orr, Vera Barrington, Myrtle Cullen and Lyla Greer singing a number of favorite songs, a reading by Alan Hooker, a duet by Miss Mary Hoodson and Rev. J. C. Hudson, an enacted song by the Orr sisters, and a singing led by the members of the choir.

Rev. A. Nimmo, of Beauharnois was scheduled to give a brief address. Due to unexpected developments he was unable to be present.

Geo. Hall and "Wanderings With His Camera" Anyone who has not had the privilege of exploring some of nature's wonders, and viewing a few of man's achievements certainly missed a very fine display on Saturday evening in Macdougall Hall. On that evening, under the auspices of St. Paul's United Sunday School, Mr. George Hall, of Montreal, showed views and at the time gave brief explanations of his travels.

For nearly two hours a most interesting audience made an imaginative trip to Great Britain, Western Canada, the Rockies, Niagara Falls, down the Richelieu River and visited Fort Chambly, then on to New York. Upon returning to Montreal considerable time was spent upon the Sun Life building. There a visit with the much talked about Falcon Family proved to be extremely interesting. The Falcon was described by Mr. Hall as the perfect dive bomber. This statement was borne out by snaps which he had been fortunate enough in getting. In one view of the falcon making a bombing attack, Mr. Hall explained that it had been necessary for him to get the shutter on his camera at 1-1200 of a second. The trip continued on to the Geopie Peninsula and finally to the Maritimes.

Valleyfield Commanding Officer Created "Ranennine"

Col. J. R. J. Duhaute Does Redskin Dance—Honored by Caughnawaga Indians—Mobile War Show Forms Background—All Valleyfield Sees Army Display

As the beat of tom-toms sounded over Caughnawaga last Tuesday and Indian dancers swayed and dipped to the rhythmic beat, Lt.-Col. J. R. J. Duhaute, O.B.E., was created Chief Ranennine (Leader) of the Caughnawaga Indians. Resplendent in feather headdresses and buckskin circled the new chief in a ceremonial dance while he smoked a pipe of peace with Chief Poking Fire.

The ancient ceremony took place in a strange setting with 45 howitzers, universal carriers, artillery tractors and other mechanized military equipment forming an incongruous background for the colorful rites. The equipment belonged to the mobile war show on its way to give a demonstration at Valleyfield, of which training centre Col. Duhaute is officer commanding.

The convoy of 45 vehicles and 300 men was met on the outskirts of Caughnawaga reservation by Indian guides in full regalia and the ceremony took place. Chief Poking Fire first welcomed the mobile show to the reservation and presented the key to Caughnawaga to Lt.-Col. W. E. Mackay, officer commanding the cavalcade and this ceremony was followed by Indian songs and dances.

POKING FIRE OFFICIATES

A large group of gayly bedecked Indian braves, squaws and youngsters circled about the new chief-to-be, intoning a ritual chant. Chief Poking Fire, assisted by several other chiefs and elders of the Iroquois tribe, examined Col. Duhaute as to his fitness for his new role. The beautiful feathered bonnet was then placed on his head by Chief Poking Fire and his wife, Princess Gathering Words. At the same time a blanket was placed around his shoulders and he was proclaimed Chief Ranennine.

A pipe of peace was lit and the new chief intoned a prayer for the satisfaction of his new brothers and the edification of the hundreds of troops. After his dance he spoke to the gathering, first thanking the Indians for the high honor conferred upon him.

"There are many braves here today," he told his listeners, "both among you and among us. We are soldiers to defend a cause dear to you and dear to us and I believe we braves have the same hearts, the same ambitions, and the same God and with His help we will attain an early victory."

Following the ceremony Chief Poking Fire and Walking Sky each fired a shot from the howitzers, enjoying the experience immensely. The troops then boarded the vehicles and were escorted from the reservation with the new chief leading the way.

En route to Valleyfield the convoy stopped briefly at Chateaugay, Beauharnois and St. Timothee. In each village crowds gathered at the centre of the town to witness the short military demonstration and listen to recruiting speeches.

At Valleyfield Col. Mackay and Col. Duhaute were joined by Mayor Armand Larin, City Clerk Charles Codebecq, Capt. M. Lamarre and Lt. P. Levesque to review the motorized column as it passed the city hall. The streets were lined with townspeople as the convoy took a circuitous route through the town.

Seek to Close Business Places Wednesday Afternoons

Valleyfield Merchants Present Petition to Valleyfield Council—Give Employees Well-earned Half Day Rest—Protest Against Pole Erection—Proposed Market on St. Laurent Street

A group of Valleyfield merchants forwarded a petition to the Valleyfield Council at its session on Wednesday evening asking that the council pass a by-law whereby the Valleyfield stores would close on Wednesday afternoon of each week during the months of June, July and August.

Committing on this request Mayor J. Armand Larin stated: "I am very much in favor of this request, which would give the store employees an opportunity to relax and enjoy one afternoon a week during the summer months. On the other hand, however, if the restaurant owners do not abide by this by-law, it would be unjust to pass it." A few members of the council commented on the idea and Ald. Mallette concluded the discussion by saying that a vote of motion would be presented at the next regular meeting of the council.

Ernest Gendron was granted permission to build a stairway near his establishment on Victoria Street. Donat Mailoux was informed that he could proceed with the installation of a water main. Fidele Leduc made application to rejoin the constabulary force. Adair Touchette, resident of Alexander Street, asked the council to ask the council limit to 75 or 80 the number of cars which can gather on Market Street at the city hall. The question was tabled for further discussion.

The council fully supported the remarks of Ald. Viau, who protested against the erection of poles in the city. Ald. Viau stated that Valleyfield was one of the few cities in the Dominion of Canada where posts are so poorly placed. The city controller was authorized to study the matter and see what could be done to remedy this situation.

City Controller Raphael Belanger informed the Council that he expected the newly drawn up lease for the Belleville Bridge within ten days.

In regards to establishing a market on St. Laurent Street, Ald. Mallette reported that he had visited the Jean Talon Market in Montreal with City Controller Belanger. He explained what plan had been adopted by the Montrealers and suggested that a similar plan on a smaller scale be adopted at Valleyfield. Ald. Mallette said that he had received many suggestions in regards to the proposed market. One of these dealt with its erection on Saucy Park; another citizen asked that the council limit to 75 or 80 the number of cars which can gather on Market Street at the city hall. The question was tabled for further discussion.

Royals Lose Double-header To Provincials

Huntingdon Girls Make Remarkable Showing in Exhibition Games in Montreal—Scores of 8-4 and 2-1—McCallum, Herdman, McCartney Star

The Huntingdon Royals girls softball team made a remarkable showing in their double-header played in Montreal on Sunday afternoon against the Montreal Provincials, members of the Montreal Senior Girls' Softball League. Although they were defeated in both encounters, the results of the last innings in each game decided upon the final issue of the battle. The first game ended 8-4, while the second finished 2-1 in favor of the Montrealers.

In the first game of the afternoon the Royals were somewhat nervous, and the final result might have been different had they settled down earlier in the game.

Eight innings were needed in the final game to decide a winner. Finally, a Montreal player poked out a deep high hit which allowed the runner a round trip, to end the hostilities for the afternoon.

J. A. "Pat" Ross, manager of the girls' team, was well pleased with the exhibition and the brilliant performance of his players.

Ruth McCartney, the McCallum sisters and Eileen Herdman starred for Huntingdon, both in the field and at bat. The latter made some sensational catches. Claire McCallum and Eileen Herdman officiated on the mound for the Royals.

The line-up of the players was as follows:

HUNTINGDON—C. McCallum, E. McCallum, A. Rolf, E. Herdman, R. Levers, E. Marshall, M. Stark, B. Rock, E. Anderson, F. Leahy, R. McCartney, A. Anderson.

MONTREAL—Deans, Brisebois, Miller, Kennedy, Bienvenue, Kenak, A. Kennedy, D. Deans, Draper, Rochette, Dufort.

Girl Seriously Hurt in Jump From U.S. Car

Another Badly Shaken Up When Driver Would Not Stop Car—Police Are Investigating—"Step on Gas"

Jumping out of an American automobile when its driver would not stop to let her and a companion out, a 26-year-old girl was seriously injured early Friday morning.

The injured girl is Jeannette Bleau, 26. Authorities said she was suffering from severe head injuries, probably a fractured skull. Her companion, Marie Rose Perreault, of 1233 Conde street, Montreal, who also jumped from the moving American car, escaped with minor bruises and scratches.

The incident occurred at about 9 o'clock on the highway between Montreal and Laprairie. The Perreault girl told Det. Henri of the Provincial Police that the automobile was travelling at 45 miles an hour when her friend pushed her out of the open and sprang into the street.

There were three men in the automobile, which bore New York State licence plates, the girl told Det. Pinard. The men were strangers to the girls, who had been offered a "lift" by Laprairie by the trio at Victoria Bridge.

According to further information given the detective by the Perreault girl, as the car proceeded towards Laprairie they began to have misgivings about their having accepted the lift and decided to get out of the car although the machine had not reached their destination.

Pointing to a farmhouse which they were approaching as her home, the elder girl asked the driver to let them out, but neither the driver nor the other occupants of the vehicle paid any attention to the request.

As the car continued past the farmhouse, the girls became desperate and started to scream to be let out. Finally, Miss Bleau started to push at one of the doors of the auto. It suddenly opened and she hurled herself from the vehicle.

"I looked at the speedometer of the car," Miss Perreault reportedly stated later, "and it was at 45 miles an hour. I started towards the door, too, and I tried to jump out. One of the men grabbed both my hands and I was dragged for a short distance before he let me go. As I fell I heard a voice say, 'Step on the gas.'"

Passing motorists picked up both girls and took them to a Laprairie physician. One autoist chased after the American car but lost it. Meanwhile, Provincial Police headquarters was notified and a general alarm describing the auto and its occupants was sent out to all police posts between Montreal and the border.

Key Figure In Smuggling Ring is Seized

Theodore Sirkos, 25, Linked to Plot to Sneak Deserter Over Border at Dundee and Trout River

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigation of an international smuggling racket involving the illegal transfer of a deserter through Canada into the United States rapidly gathered momentum following the arrest at Montreal of Theodore Sirkos, 25-year-old Montrealer, sought for some time as one of the principal figures in the smuggling plot.

Sirkos was arrested in the central section of Montreal by police of the radio patrol co-operating with R.C.M.P. authorities and investigators of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The prisoner, tenth man to be arrested in connection with the case to date, will be arraigned on a charge of violating Defence of Canada Regulations. Two other Greeks, Pendaris Bououlis, 36, and Leberis Mehalapoulos, 39, who collected $1,000 from four ship deserters to smuggle them across the U.S. border, have pleaded guilty to a similar charge and are awaiting sentence. It is reported that some were smuggled through or near Trout River and Dundee port of customs.

The seven other men under arrest consist of the four deserters who paid Bououlis and Mehalapoulos $250 apiece for their abortive attempt to enter the United States illegally. Two other deserters who were arrested by U.S. immigration authorities some time ago and Samuel Roeman, of Glens Falls, N.Y., who is at present awaiting trial in St. Albans, Vt., on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the smuggling ring.

Although the arrest of Sirkos was regarded as an important development in the case, R.C.M.P. authorities indicated that more arrests may be made as the investigation net draws tighter.

Trusted by the Montreal police department for its co-operation in the case was paid by Inspector James R. Lemieux, of the criminal investigation branch, R.C.M.P., and formerly of Valleyfield, who has been in charge of the probe on the Canadian side.

Sirkos, it was later revealed, is a son of Sotiros, alias Sam Sirkos, who was sentenced in Brooklyn, N.Y., to a term of seven years imprisonment for smuggling aliens in the United States in March, 1939.

Congressmen Visit ...

more convinced than ever of its necessity and even its urgency. Those who came opposed to the scheme found plenty of reasons ready to hand, they said, for even stronger opposition while the four or five who have not yet committed themselves seemed more hesitant and circumspect than ever.

From their headquarters at the Thousand Islands Country Club the Congressmen on Saturday by bus and boat inspected the effects of the project on the United States bank of the river. Sunday was a partial day of rest although over half the party visited the Canadian Parliament buildings in Ottawa and were entertained at lunch on Monday they made the complete tour of the Canadian side of the river passing through the villages of Iroquois and Morrisburg which will be submerged and inspected the slices of the main dam just below the Long Sault Rapids and the proposed power houses near Cornwall. In the afternoon the Beauharnois ship canal and power house were inspected and the party was entertained to dinner that evening at the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club there by the Dominion Government.

OPINIONS STRENGTHENED

Opinions at the end of the tour differed if anything more widely than they did at the beginning. Speaking for the opponents, George H. Bender of Ohio declared that he for one was not convinced that the dam to go on with the scheme and especially at this moment was to throw good money after bad. "It's a monstrosity," he declared. "It would destroy the established economic system," he said, "and to spend all this money on it at a time when we and the English need planes and tanks and guns would be criminal." Congressmen Francis D. Culkin of New York, presented the other view. Looking down on the same tearing rapids he said: "What a waste of power. It would be criminal not to take advantage of this real gift of nature. The cost would be so low this additional power apart from the advantages of the seaway would help develop enormous areas without damage to existing utilities."

BACKERS CLAIM MAJORITY

Among the visitors, those in favor of the project claimed that they had the majority and that the committee will end in reporting it favorably. Even they, however, admit that there is still a great deal to be done and that the first fight in congress will be whether such an important international agreement as this can be adequately disposed of as an "agreement" only and not as a treaty.

At a luncheon given by Mayor Phillips of Cornwall, at which the United States Minister, Jay Pierpont Moffat, was the guest of honor, something of the Canadian viewpoint was expressed by Lionel Chevrier, Member of Parliament for Stormont, speaking for the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, which will be most affected. These three counties, he said, were among the most beautiful and most historic in Canada and almost a third of their surface would be submerged if the project was adopted. Even so, the people were ready to accept that sacrifice which involved the disappearance of the homes they loved along the banks of the St. Lawrence if the Dominion as a whole and their good neighbours to the south should greatly benefit. He, however, asked that if after most careful consideration it was found that this sacrifice they were called on to make was necessary, the utmost care should be taken to assure three things: first that the power developed shouldn't be all exported but that a fair share should be allotted for the development of the industries of Cornwall and the neighbourhood; second, that they should have the same navigation privileges as heretofore; and third that rightful compensation and good town planning should be assured to those who were dispossessed.

Nothing that comes in jars, tubes, bottles or compacts can improve a woman's face half so much as a smile.

Nine of these females are from daughters of Howie's Top Grade, Imp., the majority of which have first class records to their credit. It is scarcely necessary to mention that Howie's Top Grade is listed as Preferential Sire No. 2 "Three Star" and that he now has 95 qualified daughters to his credit.

Five of the other daughters of Barr Peter Pan are from daughters of Burnside Lucky Boy and, here again, we find a great combination of outstanding bloodlines. "Lucky Boy," Class AA and R.O.P. with 30 qualified progeny, was sired by Howie's Top Grade, Imp. and was out of the noted champion and Hundred Thousand Pound Producer, Burnside Blossom Andrietta.

Of the other daughters of Barr Peter Pan, two are from daughters of Hobland Magnate, Imp.; and one each from daughters of Beauty's Master; Milantae Better Still (the dam being a half-sister of Howie's Top Grade) and Kowallan Menelaus, a Proven Scottish Sire.

Needless to say these Barr Peter Pan daughters are of noted Burnside strains on the female side, including the Lucky Darling, the Pearlina, the Stately Blossom, etc. strains.

There are two daughters of Burnside Barr Top Grade, prominent winner at U.S.A. and Canadian Shows for several years and a son of Barr Peter Pan and of a daughter of Howie's Top Grade. One of these females is from a daughter of Howie's Top Grade, whilst the other is from a daughter of Burnside Top Grade's Gift.

There are three females by Burnside Lucky Boy, already mentioned, and one of them is from a daughter of Barr Peter Pan.

Two of the other females are by sons of Howie's Top Grade, Imp., one being by Burnside Top Grade's Perfection, a son of Burnside Perfect Lady, and the other by Burnside Top Grade's Gift.

Whilst he figures quite frequently as one of the service sires of the animals in the sale, the bull Nether Craig Royal Blood also figures as the sire of Burnside Royal Ethel, a November 17, 1940 heifer in the sale. It will be recalled that Nether Craig Royal Blood is by Whitehill Endeavour and from Killoch Betsy. Whitehill Endeavour is by Melville Kilnory Flashlight and his dam is Bargerower Miss Donald, Imp., one of the noted winning and producing Bargerower matrons and a noted winner at the London Dairy Show.

There are of course a number of other females in the sale which are worthy of mention. In addition, however, there will be some ten cows of the better commercial kind, well bred animals that are good producers and from ancestors that have been equally good producers.

The same boy, Rowland Ross Ness, son of Douglas A. Ness, at the halter of both calves. At left, Burnside Maple Leaf, donated by R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick, Que., to the British War Relief Fund and sold at time of National Sale for $140.00. At right, Burnside Victory Bond which has been donated by R. R. Ness & Sons to the Red Cross and which will be sold at the Burnside Annual Sale on Aug. 2nd.

OBITUARIES

The Late John Powers

A representative citizen of the town of Clinton, N.Y., and a man of high character passed away on Wednesday evening in the person of John Powers, who had been ill for several months, at his home on the "Lost" Nation road in the town of Clinton. Mr. Powers had enjoyed excellent health for his age until his last illness.

Mr. Powers was born on the homestead farm, a short distance from where he died, on June 15, 1882, a son of John and Mary (Fitzpatrick) Powers, and his entire lifetime was passed in that section where he followed the occupation of farming.

Mr. Powers lived the life of an honest, honorable and upright man and these qualities impressed themselves upon his fellow citizens in so marked a degree as to win for him the highest regard and esteem of all who knew him.

On May 2, 1932, he was united in marriage to Miss Catherine McMullen, of Hinchinbrooke, Que., who died on September 15, 1932. The survivors are two sons, William T., of Mechanicsville, and Edwin J., who resides at home. One daughter, Veronica, wife of John Brady, of Clinton, died in 1911.

Funeral services were held at St. Philomena's church at Chur-

Telephone Research Improves Recording

The soft notes of a distant flute, the roar of the crowd, the rumble of thunder, and terrific crescendos unequalled by any orchestra all coming from a stage unpeopled by any players whatsoever — were presented recently by Bell Telephone Laboratories in a demonstration of its latest development in sound recording — stereophonic reproduction of "enhanced" music. By the new technique, sound can be reproduced with a clarity, range, and spatial sense hitherto unknown.

For example, the usual motion picture sound track cannot record the full range of a large orchestra. In the stereophonic process a special sound track is provided to "make a note" of the overtones lost and re-introduce them when the record is played back. The listener hears every sound he could have heard when the orchestra itself was playing.

Secondly, the sounds are picked up by three microphones placed near each section of the orchestra, and thus each group of instruments is recorded on a sound track of its own. In reproduction, loudspeakers are located on the stage in the places occupied by the original sections of the orchestra. The listener hears — let us say — the drums from the left, and the flutes from the right, and the other instruments in between. The whole width, breadth, and depth of the orchestra is reproduced.

Finally, before being played to an audience, the stereophonic record is heard by the orchestra conductor. Seated at a control board, he varies the volume or tone of the music as he desires. The volume can be increased by as much as ten times over that of the loudest orchestra. Pianissimo, on the other hand, are the merest hush. The recording is actually better than the original performance.

THE MARCH OF SCIENCE

Telephone Research Improves Recording

How does it happen that telephone engineers should make improvements in recording? As a matter of fact, the association between the telephone and the phonograph dates back to the earliest days of the latter. Thomas Alva Edison invented the phonograph, but it was Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, who first perfected the talking machine for commercial purposes.

Moreover, telephone research discovered the orthophonic principle, which revived the record industry from the great slump of 1924. In the old days, the power of the voice or music alone drove the stylus by which a sound track was engraved on the master record. Even the tremendous voice of a Caruso, however, could not make a satisfactory recording by this method. Then, Bell Telephone Laboratories, studying speech in all its aspects with a view to improving telephone transmission, came forward with the orthophonic principle. By this method, sounds to be recorded are first picked up by microphones, and powerful electric currents from these microphones drive the recording stylus, which is thus able to catch all the delicate overtones formerly missed.

Recently, the telephone engineers came through with still another improvement — "hill and dale" recording. On the old type of phonograph record, the needle bumped from side to side in the groove, producing blurred and dragging musical notes. On the new type of hill and dale record, the needle slides up and down in the groove instead of waggling from side to side. The groove is much narrower than formerly, so that more grooves can be made on a standard size disc. Furthermore, all blurred and dragging notes are eliminated, and the range of overtones which can be recorded is still further increased.

about three months ago went to his daughter's home where he remained until his death.

Mr. Humiston was born at Powerscourt in February, 1865, but had always resided at Chateaugay, N.Y. He was one of a family of ten brothers, four of whom still survive. He conducted a farm in the north section of Chateaugay for a number of years, where his youngest son, Earl, now resides, and also followed the occupation of carpenter until failing health made it necessary for him to relinquish active labors.

Mr. Humiston was always of a cheerful disposition and had the faculty of making warm friendships and this together with an honest and upright character and his well-earned member of the community.

On April 7, 1891, he was united in marriage with Miss Susan Doherty, of Huntingdon, Que., who passed away on October 8, 1933. Surviving after her death, daughters and three sons, Mr. Comer Brown, of Burke, Mrs. Raymond Norton, of Kendall, N.Y.; Mrs. Charles Ashfield, of Burke, Sylvester, Elmer and Earl, of Chateaugay. Four brothers, Harlow, of Burke, George, of Skerry, David, of Lebanon, N.H., and Charles, of Chateaugay.

Funeral services were held at St. Patrick's church, Chateaugay, N.Y., on Thursday morning, Rev. J. R. McClure officiating, and interment was made in St. Patrick's cemetery.

The Late Mr. James Kinley Massey

The residents of Herdman were shocked and saddened on Thursday afternoon, July 3rd, when they heard of the sudden passing of one of their most respected citizens in the person of Mr. James Massey, Sr. Mr. Massey had apparently been in his usual health, which had been impaired by rheumatism for the past ten years. He was the son of the late James Massey and of his wife, the late Elizabeth McGinnis, who were formerly natives of County Down, Ireland. Mr. Massey was born in Huntingdon. There were also four daughters in this family. They were: Elizabeth (Mrs. John Elliott), Margaret (Mrs. William Farquhar), Henrietta (Mrs. Jas.

Irwin), May (Mrs. D. A. McMillan) of Glendale, Ont., who is the only surviving member of the family.

When a young man, Mr. Massey was a cheese-maker for several years. He was united in marriage to Annie May Elliott in 1896. They moved to Holyoke, Mass., where Mr. Massey worked three years with the Street Railway Co. They returned to Canada in 1898 and bought the farm on which they lived throughout the remainder of their life. To this union two children were born, one daughter, Millicent Jamine, who predeceased her father twenty years ago, and one son James on the farm.

Mr. Massey was a quiet, industrious man, a good neighbor and friend, who was always willing to lend a helping hand. He took a keen interest in the welfare of the community and could give helpful advice to anyone who wished it.

The funeral service was held in Rennie's United Church on Saturday afternoon, July 5th, and was conducted by his pastor, the Rev. T. F. Duncan. The funeral was largely attended. The pall-bearers were four nephews, Messrs. Walter Elliott, James Sweet, Charles Farquhar and Roy Simpson. Burial took place in Huntingdon Cemetery. Sincere sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Thinking Back ... and ... Looking Ahead

Difficult Art of Lying and Deception Has Been Carried by Hitler to a Greater Degree of Perfection Than Napoleon Ever Dreamed—"V" For Victory Campaign Launched Over Europe

By DONALD C. MACDONALD

In the fall of 1939, just after the war had begun, I wrote an article entitled "The Way of All Tyrants," drawing a parallel between Hitler and Napoleon. The article was submitted to one—two, and if I recall correctly, even a third magazine for publication. All refused. Not that that is anything very much out of the ordinary, for those attempting to "crash the pages" of national publications always have a great bulging folder in their files, marked "Articles Returned," and a measly thin folder holding the clippings of those which were accepted. At least, I have!

But my main purpose in recalling this fruitless journalistic effort of nearly two years ago is this: two of the magazines gave as their reason for refusal the fact that publication of any article drawing such a parallel might offend an ally, that ally being France. A lot of water has dashed under the bridge since then. During the past four weeks every columnist on the continent has had a hand at the Hitler-Napoleon parallel, so I dug deep into the files to find what I had written. It started with this quotation:

"He Dreamed of Empire"
"Knowing what he desired, he was ready and willing to employ any means to attain his ends. No love for theories, principles, nothing could deter him from striving to realize his vaulting ambition. He dreamed of empires and triumphs. . . . And in the difficult art of lying and deception, Bonaparte has never been surpassed."

I fear it must be added now that the "difficult art of lying and deception" has been carried by Hitler to a greater degree of perfection than Napoleon ever dreamed. But the parallel is deepened. In the first place, behind the general figures were thrown up by a great revolution. The people of France, after centuries of an oppressive rule burst their chains and turned upon their oppressors with terrifying fury. "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" became the battle-cry which echoed throughout the continent as the French people, themselves freed, marched to carry the same freedom to all Europe's down-trodden people. Out of that turmoil of bloodshed, of wild hysterical people, of marching armies, there emerged the figure of Napoleon.

In 1918 Germany was defeated. Of the Versailles Treaty, even though it was far more than any peace treaty dictated from Berlin might have been, one of her leaders said, "The hand that signs it shall wither." A disastrous period of inflation wrecked her financial structure, wiped out the savings of the middle class. Really matters about this question of whether or not Germany was mistreated in the postwar years is the fact that Hitler propagandized them into believing they were. He used the supposedly tyrannical oppression of the Versailles Treaty to do it. Even yet, he cannot deliver an address without going on to a tirade about Versailles. "Hitler was not born in Linz, Austria," someone has said in tones of feigned indignation. "Hitler was born at Versailles."

Ambition Cloaked in Idealism
In each case this new-found leader headed a crusade which whipped the people into a frenzy of enthusiasm. Napoleon with France's armies of freed people, crossing the Alps to carry the revolutionary cry of Liberty, Equality, Fraternity to the Italian people in the grip of Austrian rule; Hitler, leading Germany's army of "freed" people (free within the Reich "from the dictates of Versailles and meddling foreigners") marching to carry the same freedom to their brothers living under the tyrannical rule of neighbors!

It is interesting to note, too, that both these would-be dictators of Europe professed for a time to be attempting only to realize this dream of a free people—that and nothing more. While they cloaked their ambitions in this idealism, there was sympathy for their cause beyond the borders of their own country. Until 1939, until Napoleon overthrew the Government by a coup d'etat, he was the great "Liberator." He had marched into Italy in 1797 as the saviour of the Italian people—not as a foreign conqueror. In the new century, however, the veil was torn aside and in 1804 his personal ambitions were revealed in all their stark reality as he plunged into ten years of war. The French people, who had learned to love and admire him, were dying on Europe's battlefields to satisfy his personal lust for conquest and power. The parallel with Germany today is too obvious for comment.

Britain Standing Alone
Meanwhile, England organized coalition after coalition among nations of the continent of Europe, trying to create an effective opposition to Napoleon. Each time they crumbled before the blows of the "invincible" French army. Britain was left alone. But just as Winston Churchill today symbolizes the determination of Britons as they declare that Hitlerism must be smashed once and for all, so was William Pitt the embodiment of British determination in that struggle of yesterday.

But the parallel becomes even more striking. By 1810 Napoleon had extended French borders to include the present day Belgium and Holland, Germany west of the Rhine and a strip of land along the north coast as far as Denmark, Northern and Central Italy along with the Illyrian Provinces, today part of Yugoslavia and Albania. But that was just the beginning. Just as Hitler has created puppet states after his actual annexations, so did Napoleon. The remainder of Italy and Spain were subjugated and set up as separate kingdoms, with his brothers on the thrones. A whole host of smaller states in Central Europe, completely cowed by the strength of the conqueror, submitted and were grouped into the "Confederation of the Rhine," a dependent state of France. Poland was rescued from her greedy neighbors who had shortly before finished gobbling her up, and was recreated as the Duchy of Warsaw, another dependent state of France. Austria and Prussia were defeated and forced to become allies of Napoleon, as well as Denmark, which at that time included Norway. Europe from Madrid to Warsaw, from Narvik to Rome, was under the direct control of the dominating influence of one man.

Road Back From Moscow
But there is one name missing in this list of subjugated powers, that of Russia. Here events of today are patterned with an uncanny exactitude. In 1807, fresh from crushing the Prussians and the Austrians, Napoleon met Czar Alexander in a raft in the River Niemen, near Tilsit. There they signed the counterpart of the Hitler-Stalin deal of 1939, agreeing that they should control the continent together. But relationships between the two signatories, as with Stalin and Hitler, were very uncertain. By 1812, Napoleon tried to persuade Alexander to change the non-aggression pact into an active alliance against England, which, then as now, had persisted successfully, even if alone. Both failed. The Czar was willing to maintain a benevolent neutrality toward Napoleon, but not to join him against England. So Napoleon invaded Russia in order to force her into an alliance against Britain. Instead Alexander made an alliance with Britain with a promise of no separate peace. Napoleon reached Moscow with "the greatest army of history," but Moscow was in burning ruins. The scorched earth policy left his armies starving, and when winter came on, the sad remnant of his army dragged itself home to face a hostile Europe.

Will it happen again? Can Hitler reach Moscow? And if he does, will he have conquered the Russians any more than Napoleon by so doing? Over the week-end, in the first indication of all-out imaginative action on the part of the British Ministry of Information, a "V for Victory" campaign was launched over Europe. If and when Hitler does conquer Russia, is it possible that he may not return home to a continent of people waiting to strike when the tyrant is weakened. Napoleon eventually found himself alone on the wind-swept island of St. Helena, and died of stomach ulcers. "The way of all tyrants" is the same.

HUNTINGDON LOCALS

A Mutual Agreement Between Garage Owners

In this issue appears an advertisement of the various vendors of gasoline in Huntingdon. The garages that sell gasoline and oil have always remained open on Sundays in order to accord the public a service. They now feel that as gasoline is not to be sold over the week-ends they can well afford to abide by the law and keep their garage repair departments closed too. The garage proprietors, we are given to understand, are arranging among themselves that one garage will remain open each Sunday, thereby making it possible to give the public a garage service, yet all other garage repair shops will remain closed. The garage proprietors, as well as the employees, are looking forward to having one day a week off to themselves. The medical fraternity might well consider adopting the same practice as far as office calls are concerned. The doctors are entitled to Sunday off just the same as any other man, yet how often it happens that people make it a point to visit a doctor on Sunday, simply because it does not interfere with their own time.

Rev. Capt. Andrews Preaches In Local Protestant Churches

The Rev. W. S. Hatcher being away on a holiday, the pulpit in St. John's Church was occupied on Sunday by Rev. Capt. Andrews of the Chateaugay Military Basic Training Centre No. 41. The congregation was very much taken with Capt. Andrews' discourse on "Lord's Day Observance." During the next four weeks Capt. Andrews will extend a helping hand, and will conduct some services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when Dr. Maclean is away on his holidays. In September he plans upon holding a service in the United Church when a military church parade will be held. Capt. Andrews' reciprocation to the Protestant clergy, who for several Sundays held military services for the soldiers, is much appreciated by the ministers and the respective congregations. Attendance at church services usually goes down during the summer months but this year the attendance at the churches in Huntingdon indicates a distinct rise over previous summers.

of the season on Thursday evening at the Log Lodge diamond, when they met the potential Beaver team. After battling through seven innings of close play, the game ended 15-5. A good attendance witnessed the Beaver girls, who are fast becoming serious challengers for softball supremacy among girls' teams in the district, come back from behind in the last innings and even the count. A return game at the Beaver diamond is scheduled to take place this week.

MOVIE FASHIONS

You'll love the fluffy pink wedding frock Ginger Rogers will wear in "Tom, Dick and Harry." The dress is soufflé, high of neck, fitted of bodice, bouffant of skirt. A cascade of delicate pink ruffles (candemmed with split silk threads!) trims the bodice, with matching ruffles round the neck, at the shoulders, and at the wrists of the bishop sleeves. With the gown, Ginger wears a pink tulle veil bound to her hair with a coronet of pink camellias. The bouquet is pink camellias and lilies of the valley.

Michele Morgan has a quaint pinaflore dress she just received from her family in France. The frock, made entirely by hand by her 14-year-old grandmother, is French linen in white, printed with a pattern of leaves in Michele's favorite turquoise. The pinaflore bodice is hand-bound with turquoise linen.

A creamy lace dinner gown which Joan Fontaine will wear in "Before the Fact," is cut princess style form-fitted and with long, tight sleeves. Bodice is low cut, the irregular neckline cut to follow the pattern in the lace. Outlining the slim waistline are leaves made of copper and gold beads.

Sarnia, and when completed the new line from Portland, Maine to Montreal will carry about 15 million. It will still be necessary to cut down the 65 million consumption to about 50 million and to do this, non-essential use, in private cars, etc., will have to be reduced by one-half.

Gasoline is just one item. The hand of the nation at war will be stretched out to other materials and services. There is certain to be increasing diversion of goods and services to war needs, entailing increasing voluntary sacrifices from the people. As evidenced in the support given the new regulations on oil, there is quite clearly a growing appreciation in the general community of the urgent need of turning the faucets of production from civilian to war channels.

The success of the appeal to the youth of the country to join the army, bringing about 35,000 new recruits to the army, 12,000 to the air force and 3,500 to the navy, has gratified defence authorities, and the general public. A considerable number who tried to enlist, but were found medically unfit, will have priority rights with veterans of receiving training in vocational schools to enable them to take up work in war industry. The work of enlistment goes on and will go on steadily, for the limit of Canada's war effort is set by the great danger which threatens, and by nothing else. About 7,000 additional men will be needed monthly by the army. That is the present quota asked from Canadian youth.

In a short time now the call will go out for 1,500 women to join the Women's Auxiliary Corps. This is not the full number required. Other calls will follow. The first women called by the Department of National War Services will be engaged in administrative and maintenance work. They will drive ambulances and cars, will be stenographers, dental assistants and will assist with X-ray machines. Women's ability to help in the heavy tasks of war has been well demonstrated in Britain where they are on the front line, and taking their part in a way that has gained the approval and admiration of the world. War is no longer a man's affair. All have their part to play, and even if we are for the present at least outside of the bombing zone, Canada will be looking to her women to play an increasingly important part in the work of carrying on the war effort. The R.O.A.F. is forming a women's auxiliary service. The navy has not as yet announced its plans.

Concern is still felt over the curtailment of coal production in some mines in Nova Scotia. The trouble is based on differences between the coal miners and the executives of the union, but the result is a slackening of effort in the production of a vital commodity. The government has thus far taken no drastic action.

A good deal of talk is heard just now about the possibility of a new cabinet post being created to look after the economic side of the war effort. This is still a matter of speculation. The control of commodities and prices, the supply of basic materials in which there is a shortage looming and the curtailment of domestic use of vital commodities and services would come under his direction. There is no doubt that with our own production expansion, the demands of the British, the basic materials and the growth of the industrial effort in the United States, there are acute difficulties. The appointment of the new Dept. would lighten the burden of some ministers, but the question is whether an increase in the duties and responsibilities of the economic boards and the heads of departments looking after specific commodities, thus increasing close co-operation among them might not serve the

From a physical standpoint we are much inferior to prehistoric man, a writer says. And for us we'd rather be inferior than prehistoric.

Save Gasoline

A NATIONAL EMERGENCY

Canada is right up against an acute shortage of gasoline and fuel oil. Tankers that normally supply our country have been commandeered for vitally important overseas service.

The Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the rapid development of Canada's mechanized army units and the great work carried on by our corvettes make the demand for fuel urgent.

Our crude oil intake is limited. There is just one thing to do if our fighting forces are to carry on with a "full tank". Every Canadian motorist is asked to cut his daily gas consumption in half!

There are many ways by which this 50% saving can be made... ways and means to give you more mileage per gallon. You can drive slower so that you will use less gasoline. You can go fifty-fifty with your neighbours, inviting each other to share cars... for business, and for pleasure. People can readily go to and from work together, using one car instead of four... using one gallon of gasoline instead of several. Women as well as men can make these savings.

The amount of gasoline used in Canada for business, social and non-essential activities is amazingly high in proportion to that used by our fighting forces. One look at the figures would convince you that this situation must be reversed.

Canada does not ask or request you to put your car up. She merely asks for your help... asks that you walk sometimes when the distance isn't too great... that you take a shorter drive on Sunday afternoon... that you look after your car and keep it in good condition... that you say to your neighbour: "Let's use my car today, Jim; we'll use yours tomorrow."

Every day, in greater and greater quantity, we must release gasoline and oil by the thousands of gallons to our throbbing munitions plants... to our tanks and armoured cars... to our fighting planes and bombers... to our corvettes and merchant ships that ply the vital sea-lanes... so that the day of victory may sooner be at hand.

Will YOU help?

It is also vitally important that you reduce the use of domestic and commercial fuel oil.

17 easy ways towards a 50% GASOLINE SAVING
(Approved by Automobile Experts)

- Reduce driving speed from 60 to 40 on the open road.
- Avoid jack-rabbit starts.
- Avoid useless or non-essential driving.
- Turn motor off when not in use, do not leave idling.
- Don't race your engine; let it warm up slowly.
- Don't strain your engine; change gears.
- Keep carburetor cleaned and properly adjusted.
- Tune up motor, timing, etc.
- Keep spark plugs and valves clean.
- Check cooling system; overheating wastes gasoline.
- Maintain tires at right pressure.
- Lubricate efficiently; worn engines waste gasoline.
- Drive in groups to and from work, using cars alternate days.
- For golf, picnics and other outings, use one car instead of four.
- Take those short shopping trips ON FOOT and carry parcels home.
- Walk to and from the movies.
- Boat owners, too, can help by reducing speed.

Your regular service station man will gladly explain these and other ways of saving gasoline. Consult him.

Dundee

The spacious lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fraser, Dundee Centre, was the setting for an interesting social event on Friday evening, July 18, when Mrs. Fraser was hostess at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Bernice Fraser, whose marriage is taking place in August. About a hundred guests were seated on chairs arranged in front of the house when the guest of honor, Miss Fraser, arrived at about 8.45. She was escorted to a special chair, gaily decorated for the occasion, amid the hearty welcome voiced by her many friends. Little Miss Bernice, dressed as bride and groom, drew a coaster wagon laden with many gifts across the lawn to the chair of the bride-to-be, as Charles Fraser played the wedding march.

Miss Fraser graciously received them and in a few well-chosen words thanked all present for their kindness and generosity in presenting her with so many useful and pretty household gifts. She invited everyone to visit her in her new home. The assembled guests all sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow," after which delicious refreshments were served by a number of the ladies.
