Fifty-Seventh Year

MOLOTOV RENEWS DEMAND ON CHINA

World News In Brief

New Westminster, B.C.—Dr. Frank E. Kinsey, an obstetrician who contracted polio when he attempted to resuscitate a seven-week-old baby, now is able to walk with the aid of canes.

Dr. Kinsey refused to discuss his emergency treatment of the tot-breathing into his mouth — which led to his catching the disease. The baby failed to respond.

He spent 67 days in hospital and was discharged last week. However, doctors said it was too early to tell if recovery would be complete.

Ottawa—The government is not planning any extensive tests of the newly-developed poliomyelitis vaccine.

Health Minister Martin told the Commons Thursday that testing of the vaccine is in progress in the United States and that the results will be available to Canada.

Mr. Martin said research on poliomyelitis vaccine has been conducted at the Connaught Laboratories in Toronto for two or three years. However, "the value of the vaccine has not yet been established and may not be established for some time."

Berlin—(Reuters)—The Soviet delegation to the Berlin conference announced Thursday night that from today it will hold its press briefings 15 minutes after the conference sessions end. The Western reporters surmised that the Soviet delegation intended to beat the American, British and French delegations in announcing main points from the conference.

Raleigh, N.C.—A marine corps helicopter picked up a 1,000-pound house Thursday, flew it half a mile and gently set it down. "It means a new era in marine shelter," said a marine spokesman who viewed the experiment in the corps' search for durable transportable structures. The helicopter lifted the building, about 30 feet in diameter, about 100 feet into the air before moving it horizontally.

Montgomery New Aide To Eisenhower

By ED CREAGH

Washington (P)—A one-time union official and admirer of Franklin D. Roosevelt has moved into the White House.

He's been a Republican for years, however, and he's on the employer side of the bargaining tables these days. Most people know him best as an actor and television producer. His name is Robert Montgomery.

Reporters noticed that the handsome, well-dressed Montgomery had been around the presidential offices quite a bit lately. Thursday they asked about it and got the answer: Montgomery has been given a White House office — but no salary — so he'll be handy to advise President Eisenhower on radio and television techniques.

The Montgomery-to-Washington move didn't surprise the former Hollywood star's friends. Montgomery has been keenly interested in politics for a long time, and was a likely candidate for assistant secretary of the navy if Thomas E. Dewey had been elected president in 1948.

The new semi-official job of radio-TV adviser is only part-time for Montgomery. He's continuing to produce his Monday night television drama show, "Robert Montgomery Presents."

Montgomery has advised the President from time to time before this, beginning with his Christmas Eve message. He directed in effect Eisenhower's television chat with the public early this month, and made suggestions for improving delivery of the state of the union address.

Few people know it but this isn't Montgomery's first White House stint. In 1942, when in the navy, he supervised installation of a wartime operations room there, and developed a warm admiration for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In his Hollywood days he starred in such pictures as "Night Mail" and "Here Comes Mr. Jordan."

Latest Manoeuvre Seen As Effort To Block Discussion On German Unity.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Berlin (AP)—A new Soviet manoeuvre to get Red China to a big-power conference again threatened to block the Western foreign ministers' drive today to open Big Four negotiations on reunification of Germany.

Foreign Minister Molotov's latest bid for acceptance of his Asian allies took the form of a proposal at the foreign ministers' conference here late Thursday that the Big Four call a world disarmament conference this year of both United Nations members and "the non-member states" — obviously Communist China.

Earlier Molotov had appeared to clear the way for discussion of Germany by agreeing to postpone until later secret sessions on his first proposal to invite the Chinese Reds to a Big Five conference on world problems.

State Secretary Dulles, Foreign Secretary Eden and Foreign Minister Bidault turned down that idea, but finally said meetings with Asian states on strictly Asian problems might be possible.

There was no debate Thursday on Molotov's proposal for disarmament talks. It remained to be seen whether he would demand discussion of it, and consequent delay of talks on Germany, at today's conference session.

American sources viewed the new disarmament proposal as a Soviet propaganda trick to impress Red China and to put pressure on the West for a meeting by-passing the United Nations, which won't admit Peiping.

Further discussion of the Russian proposal for Big Five talks was put off after Dulles proposed that the Big Four take up the question in secret sessions apart from their work on Germany and Austrian independence.

Molotov finally indicated acceptance of this idea, but reserved the right to put forward again his idea earlier Thursday that a committee be appointed to seek understanding on the Big Five question.

Western authorities would not be surprised to see Molotov take the line that unless the West agreed to meet with Red China, solutions will be difficult in Europe, or he might hint at concessions in the Far East in exchange for Western yielding on Germany.

Western officials meanwhile are prepared for long and detailed negotiations on the German question, and probably more conferences if the Russians are ready to do business.

They insisted, however, that Molotov must accept free elections throughout Germany as the first step toward setting up an all-German government.

The Russians have been equally insistent that the proper starting point is a merger of the East and West German governments, by which they would assure the Reds great influence despite their lack of public backing.

New Device Assists In Air Attack

Ottawa—A new device which can add to the surprise element in any air-borne attack has been invented by two R.C.A.F. officers, the air force disclosed today. The device, which has been adopted by the United States air force, is a still-secret device which is a variation of a computer used by navigators during the Second World War. It enables the navigator, in a few seconds, to determine the exact moment when parachuting para-borne supplies can be dropped accurately on selected positions.

Formerly, dropping areas had to be marked by army personnel on the ground or from advance aircraft. Besides destroying the surprise element, this sometimes necessitated last-second position changes of markers or flares because of wind or other alterations.

The new system, in use by the R.C.A.F. for some time, was devised by Lt. J. H. Rivett and Capt. A. Alia, F.R.C.A.F. J. W. Michaud, 29, of Montreal worked with him during the latter stages of development.

Even before an aircraft has left the ground on a dropping mission, the exact moment when parachuting men or supplies can be determined by calculating such things as wind drift, height, speed, rate of descent and time of free fall on the computer. Adjustments can be made, if necessary, in the air.

Mr. Bourque said the government was going ahead with its inventory of 80,000 square miles of Crown lands under license at a satisfactory rate.

The government did not see why it should launch an inventory of northern areas that will not be needed for another 40 or 50 years.

Earlier, discussing forest fires, Mr. Bourque said modern equipment was used to fight them and said their proportion was less than formerly.

Employment Group Would Meet Cabinet

Ottawa—First move of a new anti-unemployment committee of Canada's two largest labor congresses is expected to be a request for a meeting with cabinet members.

The committee was set up jointly this week by the Trades and the Canadian Congress of Labor to draft plans for pressing governments at all levels for action to ease the impact of rising unemployment.

It was the first joint action in three years by the rival congresses, who said in a statement Tuesday, after their new get-together, that unemployment is the biggest problem facing the country.

The top-level committee of the two congresses will not be meeting until early next week, but informants in both congresses say it likely will propose first a meeting with key members of the federal government.

They are not expected to develop until after Feb. 11, when the employment committee reports to a larger joint body set up by the T.L.C. and C.C.L. on co-operation generally.

Apart from trying to put heat on the cabinet, the congresses—with a total membership of 955,000—will be sending out suggestions to their affiliates across the country to bring their ideas to the attention of provincial and municipal governments.

Background material, it is expected, will be prepared in the Ottawa headquarters of the congresses and sent out to the affiliates.

For the federal government, informants indicate, pressure will be applied heavily on the idea of starting up an expanded program of public works, particularly in those areas hardest hit by unemployment.

Labor Minister Gregg said Monday no great expansion is proposed for this purpose, but the congresses will take issue with him on this.

Another point to be emphasized in the T.L.C.-C.C.L. submissions, it is expected, is that provincial and municipal governments should take more advantage of proffered federal aid for housing built under joint government agreements.

There have been relatively few of these joint projects.

The unions also will bring in Continued on Page 5

Howe Doubts United States Plans Fire Sale Of Surplus

Ottawa (P)—Trade Minister Howe said Thursday he knows of no plan by the United States for a "fire sale" of its government-held surplus food stocks.

He said in the Commons that the U.S. plan of marketing its surplus stocks on world markets has "certain dangers if it is recklessly used."

However, he said he thinks it will be used "with due regard to friendly countries which have marketing problems."

Mr. Howe was asked by Opposition Leader Drew to comment on the report of a speech by External Affairs Minister Pearson Wednesday at London, Ont.

Mr. Pearson told the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture that marketing of big U.S. surpluses "through give-away programs or through sales at cut prices" are almost certain to affect ordinary exports.

Such marketing was not in the interests of needy countries because it would disorganize markets and reduce production in other countries.

Mr. Pearson said the U.S. Com-

Winter Hits At Eastern Areas Today

By The Canadian Press

Winter has swung its force to Eastern Canada after giving the west its worst blast in four years.

Ontario and the Maritimes struggle today through a foot and more of snow while the Prairies and British Columbia enjoyed a "lull" after more than two weeks of sub-zero temperatures.

Western Canada's 16-day cold wave has caused 27 deaths, directly or indirectly, while one death has been reported in the Maritimes.

Gales and 18 inches of snow caused major disruptions in New Brunswick Thursday. Planes were grounded in Saint John, and other transportation ran behind schedule.

Milder air moved into southern Alberta and most of Saskatchewan Thursday to end the cold spell. Warmest spot was Claresholm, Alta., with 36 above zero. Temperatures ranged from 12 above at Moose Jaw to zero at Saskatoon.

The threat of flooding eased in British Columbia, especially in the Fraser Valley and New Westminster, which had a record snowfall of 56 inches in 14 days. It was 42 above in Vancouver.

At least 100 persons have been left homeless in Ontario fires and a Canadian National Railway derailment during the storm near Peterborough has blocked the line.

Drifting snow blocked highways in Prince Edward Island and Cape Breton Island and stopped operations at three mines of the old Sydney collieries.

Ferry service between Borden, P.E.I., and Cape Tormentine, N.B., in Northumberland Strait, Digby, N.S., and Saint John, in the Bay of Fundy, were cancelled.

Fred J. Gallant, 64, of Summerside, P.E.I., died from over-exertion after helping push a car out of a snow drift.

On the Prairies, the weatherman predicted the following maximum temperatures for today: Edmonton five below; Calgary 20 above; Prince Albert and Saskatoon zero; Winnipeg five above; Regina zero.

Queen Says Farewell To New Zealand

Invercargill, N.Z. (Reuters)

Queen Elizabeth bade farewell to the people of New Zealand tonight in a radio broadcast and told them she and the Duke of Edinburgh "enjoyed every moment of our stay."

The Queen, who leaves for Australia Saturday, said she and the duke depart "with sorrow."

"But we also look forward to the day when we shall once more be able to visit your shores," she said.

She thanked the people for making her visit "so pleasant and so memorable," and concluded: "May God bless New Zealand and watch over the destinies of her people."

The Queen's last day here was a crowded one. It included a civic reception and visits to Kew Hospital and Invercargill's Royal Agricultural Show, where she saw highland dancing competitions.

While the Queen was here the government announced that she had awarded medals to four heroes of the Christmas Eve Tangiwai rail disaster, in which 136 persons were killed.

Arthur Cyril Ellis and John Warren Holman received the George Medal—Britain's highest civilian award for bravery—for saving 21 persons after five coaches of the express train plunged from a broken bridge into a flooded river.

Trainman William Ian Inglis and Arthur Dewar Bell, a passing motorist who joined the rescue work, were awarded the British Empire Medal.

Meanwhile, four Australian naval vessels left Sydney, Australia, today to meet the Queen's ship, the Gothic, midway across the Tasman sea and escort her into Sydney. They will take over from the New Zealand cruiser Black Prince.

Denies Slur On Forestry Engineers

Quebec—Lands Minister Bourque said last night in the Legislative Assembly he had no intention of giving the impression all forestry engineers who had left his department were "dishonest" when he made a statement Wednesday that some engineers had been dismissed for "dishonesty and mismanagement."

Mr. Bourque Wednesday was reported as saying he had dismissed Marc Gerin, director of the Provincial Forestry School at Duchesnay.

The Lands Minister did not refer to this last night.

After the Assembly sitting he told The Canadian Press he had not said he had dismissed the director of the school at Duchesnay.

"I said I intended to ask the director of the school for his resignation but that he handed it in before I could do so."

Mr. Bourque made his statement in the House following a meeting with the executive council of the Quebec Association of Forestry Engineers.

Wednesday's exchange was over a list of engineers read by Jean-Paul Noel (L-M on a Jeanne-Mance). Among the names read were those of Mr. Gerin and of Robert Bellefeuille, director of the Forestry Economic Service.

Mr. Noel said the engineers had left the provincial service because their salaries were too low.

It was then that followed an exchange during which Mr. Bourque said some of the engineers had been dismissed for "dishonesty and mismanagement."

Many Firsts In Selection Of General

Ottawa—A buck private has risen to full general in the Canadian army.

Charles Foulkes, chairman of the chiefs of general staff, is the fifth to hold that position in the Canadian army. In 31 years he has worked from the lowest to the highest rank. And in mounting the ladder he has become the first Canadian to be appointed a general in peacetime. It is the first among a lot of firsts.

Promotion of the 51-year-old Lieutenant-General to General was announced unexpectedly Thursday night by Defence Minister Claxton.

The defence minister said in a statement that Gen. Foulkes will continue in his present post and as Canada's military representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gen. Foulkes, who figured prominently in the collapse of the 25th German army in Holland in 1945, first donned a uniform in 1923 as a private with a machine-gun battalion in the old non-permanent active militia.

"This new promotion to the rank of general is another first in my career," Gen. Foulkes said in an interview.

"I was the only officer to rise from the rank of captain to lieutenant-general during the last war. I was the youngest officer at 43 to become chief of the general staff. I was the first permanent chairman of the Canadian chiefs of staff and now I am the first Canadian to be appointed a general in peacetime."

The first Canadians appointed general in the Canadian army were Sir William D. Otter of Toronto, after the Boer war, and Sir Arthur Currie after the First World War.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, now chairman of the international joint commission, was promoted to general in 1942. The fourth was Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, retired, in 1944.

At least three Canadians also have served as generals in the British army. They are Sir George Macaulay Kirkpatrick, of Kingston, Ont., a general in India in 1927; Sir William Fenwick-Williams, of London, England, and Sir William G. Heneken, a graduate of Canada's Royal Military College.

On Jan. 11, 1944, Gen. Foulkes was promoted to major-general and commander of the 2nd Canadian Infantry Division.

He took the division to France and led it through the historic battle of Falaise, up the coast to Antwerp and into the low countries. He took command of the 2nd Canadian Corps in a temporary capacity in September, 1944, and fought the battle of Walcheren.

Gen. Foulkes said this was the "toughest battle for me in the last war." Gen. Eisenhower described it as Canada's greatest contribution to the allied victory.

Ottawa—Health Minister Martin said Thursday representatives of all provinces have affirmed the principles the federal government proposes including in its legislation to provide allowances for the disabled.

Mr. Martin said in the Commons this developed at the federal-provincial conference on the disabled here Tuesday. He was replying to a question from Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod).

The federal legislation to be introduced in the Commons shortly, calls for 50-50 participation between the federal government and the provinces on allowance payments for the totally and permanently disabled. The proposed payment is $40 a month, on the basis of a means test.

Near Unanimous Approval Given Housing Legislation

Ottawa—The Commons has given near-unanimous approval to the government's new housing legislation to reduce down payments, lengthen mortgage repayment periods and brings banks into the money-lending field.

Members Thursday night voted 186 to 2 to give the bill second reading — approval in principle — following a four-day debate in which opposition members criticized various parts of the measure.

The bill now goes to the banking and commerce committee for further study.

Works Minister Winters said the legislation is "an honest effort" to improve the existing National Housing Act which has encouraged construction of more than 750,000 housing units since 1945.

The bill will open the mortgage-lending field to chartered banks under a plan by which the government's Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation can insure a maximum of $2,000,000 in loans. Cost of insurance, two per cent in the cases of homes for owner occupancy, will be paid by the purchaser.

Down payments will be cut to 10 per cent from 20 per cent on the first $8,000 of lending value, but increased to 30 per cent on the remaining portions up to an unspecified maximum.

The common length of mortgages will be 25 years instead of the present 20.

Mr. Winters said earlier the mortgage interest rate, now 5 1/2 per cent, will be held below six per cent.

Replying to criticisms that allowing the banks in the mortgage field would expand credit in the country, Mr. Winters said that is the purpose of the bill.

The mortgage insurance plan was designed to ensure a continued flow of mortgage money and maintain public confidence in the Canadian banking system by guaranteeing bank investments.

Mr. Winters referred to a claim by George Hees (PC—Toronto) that the lower mortgage rate home under the National Housing Act cost $10,000 and could be bought only by those with annual incomes of $3,860 or more.

He said 25 per cent of NHA homes sold last year cost less than $10,000. Under the provision that a maximum of 23 per cent of the buyer's income should go towards carrying charges, a man with an income of $2,600 could buy an $8,600 NHA home. The percentage could be higher, however, if the lender agreed.

Replying to Quebec members who had expressed the wish that that province join the plan, Mr. Winters said the government is ready to welcome Quebec into the plan at any time.

Lower down payments urged by some members had drawbacks. They would allow more people to get a start in home-ownership, but would result in heavier mortgage repayments.

Today's child is one of those very interesting youngsters who will understand very well that "Faith without works is dead." Your progeny will have little interest in having benefits drop into his, or her lap, without working or making some effort that is required in the securing. Fine for any vocational outlets connected with the general public for pleasure, entertainment or enjoyment—or in positions requiring considerable contact and discussions with those in powerful positions.

Knowlton, Jan. 29 — The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society took place at the home of Mrs. Carl C. McClay on January 20, with the president, Mrs. E. H. Gray, in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. G. M. Ransom, and approved, and the treasurer's report was given by the president, in the absence of Mrs. Earl B. Mizener.

The annual reports were given by the convene of the various departments, and showed a very active year in all cases.

The worship service had for its theme, "The Church—An Image of the Kingdom." Hymns were sung and Bible readings were given.

Mrs. Gray gave an outline of the book, "Revolution," by Allen Bert Whittle, which tells the story of one of the outstanding Christian leaders in Europe today.

Baron von Thadden during the Second World War came under the "curse" of the Nazis because of his uncompromising stand as a member of the Confessional Church.

He was held captive at first on his own estate and forbidden to leave on pain of death. He was later interned in a northern concentration camp. Here his health was permanently impaired, yet Dr. Thadden's spirit was not broken nor his loyalty destroyed.

Convinced that all glance to God must take precedence over allegiance to the state, then the two are in conflict, he continued to witness to his faith among his fellow-prisoners. After his release Dr. Thadden sought for ways in which to make the gospel known among his contemporaries and, through his efforts, a strong religious movement has developed among laymen in Germany.

Program topic for the day was "The Four R's in Europe." Most North American and European Christians know more about the status of their faith in these fields than they know about each other.

The meeting closed with benediction after which tea was served.

Colfax Rebekah Lodge
Colfax Rebekah Lodge, No. 29, met in regular session in the I. O. O. F. Hall, on Thursday evening, January 21, with Noble Grand Sister Winnifred Taylor in the chair and presiding over the evening.

Sawyerville United Church Societies
Reviewed Year's Work At Annual Meet

Sawyerville, Jan. 29 — Members of Sawyerville United Church joined a pot-luck luncheon and spent the afternoon transacting the business of the annual meeting of the Women's Association and the congregation. Despite icy roads there was a good attendance and a lively interest in the work of the church was evident.

The treasurer's report showed that the budget, increased considerably over that of 1952, had almost been met. It is expected that when all contributions have been received, the objective, $2,046.00, will be reached. Missionary and maintenance gifts, $300, is slightly higher than in the preceding year.

Enrollment in the Sunday School stood at 38, and the average attendance was reported to be 22. The best showing in several years. Though Sunday School collections were less than the amount paid for supplies, collection at the Christmas entertainment and the returns from a sugar social, plus the balance from 1952, resulted in a balance of almost $60.00 for 1953.

Mrs. Irwin McBurney, superintendent of the kindergarten department reported an enrollment of 31 and an average attendance of 12 for the ten months of meeting.

Mr. Kenneth McBurney and Mr. Volney Hurley are the superintendent and assistant superintendent for 1954, and Miss Ina Cummings was elected secretary-treasurer.

Miss Joan King, president of the C.G.I.T., told the meeting that the group, organized in June and registered in September had 15 members. Other executive officers are Ann Cole, Ina Cummings and Aeta Cummin. The leaders are Mrs. Alden King and Mrs. Frank Jones.

Mrs. M. D. Blue, treasurer of the Women's Association, indicated a balance of $308 on the year's work. The difference between receipts of $1,029.00 and expenditures of $721.00. Mrs. Volney Hurley, Mrs. Francis Williams, Mrs. Gordon Smith, and Mrs. M. D. Blue are the executive members for 1954, and Mrs. Claris Phillips is past president.

The choir, an organization too often and too easily taken for granted by many congregations, reminded the meeting that some twenty members had helped with the singing in the church during the year. Special music had been provided at Christmas and Easter, and a special service had been held while the minister was absent on holidays. The choir had also provided music for a service at East Clifton in December. The meeting was also reminded of the help received by a visit of the Birchton-Bulwer choir and minister in August.

A new sign board had been placed in front of the church during the year, and other improvements noted.

The church boards were re-elected, and L. B. Farnsworth continues his long and faithful service as treasurer of the boards of stewards and trustees.

MOE'S RIVER—
Mr. L. F. Demary is able to be out again after being confined to the house for some time with gripe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sandra, of Hyatt's Mills, and Mr. and Mrs. John Wegowski, were recent guests of Mr. Irving Lane and Mrs. Gladys Wade.

Mrs. Charles Akhurst, of Coaticook, called on Mrs. Burton Luce, Mrs. Addie Luce and also on Mr. B. Luce, who had been on the sick list, and is now much better.

Mrs. Gerald Haseltine and Mrs. Addie Luce attended the annual business meeting of the Women's Association at the home of Mrs. Arnold Todd, in Compton.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Luce, Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Stone and family, all of Coaticook, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luce.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Luce and David spent the week-end in Huntingville, at Mr. and Mrs. William Shadbol's.

Much excitement was caused when Pinard's truck, from Sherbrooke, loaded with five cords of pulpwood, tried to ascend the Mill Hill. Forced by the icy hill to back down, the truck hit the iron railing on the approach to the bridge and went over the steep embankment. Considerable damage was done to the truck but the occupants were uninjured.

There are an estimated 2000 types of corn.

PHILLIPSBURG—
Miss Jean Bombard and Charlotte Grevatt, Miss Bernice Du-mouchel, Misses Jemma and Lucia Caruso, of Montreal, spent the week-end at their homes here.

Mrs. Harold Johnston and daughter, Mrs. Betty Quigley, of Montreal, spent the week-end here.

J-M's Vice President for Production
Was Mechanic as a Youth

Thirty-seven years ago the man who is now Johns-Manville's vice president for production was a garage mechanic.

He is Kenneth W. Huffine, who has the overall responsibility for supervising the manufacture of products and the erection of plants for J-M.

Off and on, "Ker" Huffine was a garage mechanic from the ages of 14 to 21. That helped him earn his college degree of Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering. He also paid part of his way through school by playing the piano in theaters and with his own band at dances (he's still an accomplished pianist).

With doing all that, he still found time to captain the football team and was named on several All-American teams in 1919.

Since joining Johns-Manville 29 years ago he has served as manager of the plants at Alexandria, Ind., and at Waukegan, Ill. In 1945 he was made the company's director of engineering.

He was appointed vice president for production in March of 1951.

This is one of a series of brief articles bringing you facts of community interest about Johns-Manville or about conditions affecting our national economy.

Sherbrooke Chamber Elects J. L. Blue President Succeeding Gilbert Rheume

Col. John L. Blue was elected president of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce for the coming year at the 67th annual meeting of the Chamber last evening which witnessed the swearing-in of officers and newly-elected directors by Mr. Justice W. M. Mitchell, senior judge of the Superior Court, District of St. Francis.

Eugene Gingras was chosen vice-president and Henri Richard was again named treasurer. The new directors are Phil. Rennert, Edwin B. Sims, Gerard Pelletier, Jean-Paul Perrault and Roger Delisle. They reinforce the five directors who still have a year to serve, F. L. Pearson, Guy Blanchette, Bernard Deslites, George Logie and Jules Lemieux.

The report of the nominating committee composed of H. E. Walker, chairman and immediate past president of the Chamber, L. W. Dixon and Gil. M. Young, both past presidents, was submitted by Mr. Dixon in the absence of Mr. Walker.

The outgoing directors were: Maurice deLottinville, Eugene Gingras, W. S. Richardson, Roger Delisle and C. E. Gobeille. Retiring President Gilbert Rheume submitted the presidential report reviewing problems studied by the Chamber during 1953. Among activities summarized by Mr. Rheume were the submitting of a brief to the Transport Board in Ottawa recommending that the C.P.R. air lines should be allowed to cover the northern route and the submission of views on the freight rates equalization problem.

President Rheume mentioned Sherbrooke's industrial exhibit at the International Trade Fair in Toronto, where the Chamber's manager served in co-operation with civic officials. The Chamber had sponsored a Health Week in co-operation with the provincial government's Health Unit to promote interest in health and hygiene and had awarded prizes to school students for the writing of essays in French and in English on the subject of life in a democracy.

Mr. Rheume pointed especially to the work of the educational committee which had published a pamphlet dealing with the educational facilities in Sherbrooke and districts and had distributed these both to parents and to school children.

The Chamber, added its retiring president, always stood ready to assist in the implementation of members' ideas for the improvement of the city's industrial life.

Henri Richard, treasurer, in giving the financial report, praised the efficient work of Alphonse Saumier, the manager.

Three formal resolutions were then moved, the first by Robert Butler, seconded by Gaston Lamoureux; the second by Joseph Faucher, seconded by Paul McKenna, and the last by John Knutson, seconded by Gerald Miltimore.

The guest speaker of the evening was Alderman Leo Cadorette, chairman of the municipal industrial commission. Mr. Cadorette was introduced by Douglas A. Stevenson, retiring vice-president, and was thanked by Eugene Gingras, the incoming vice-president.

The alderman described in detail much of the work done by the industrial commission and spoke of the acquisition of new industries to Sherbrooke.

Following the impressive swearing-in ceremony performed by Mr. Justice Mitchell, Colonel Blue took over the chair from Mr. Rheume, who now becomes a member of the Chamber Senate.

President Blue felt that the Chamber had accomplished, and still could accomplish, much by pooling the efforts of its members in aiding the commercial life of the city. He thanked Mr. Rheume and the outgoing members of the executive.

Certificates of honor were then presented by Gil. M. Young, who is provincial director for the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, to outgoing officers and directors. Those thus honored are:

Gilbert A. Rheume, outgoing president of the Chamber who served one year as treasurer and a year as president and was twice delegate to national conventions. Douglas A. Stevenson, outgoing vice-president, who took an active part in membership recruiting and in the installation and administration of the Chamber's group insurance plan.

Maurice deLottinville, outgoing director of the Chamber who served four years as a director, being particularly active in membership, municipal affairs program and on other committees.

William S. Richardson, outgoing director, who served two years and took an active part in civic affairs and particularly in the filtration committee work.

C. E. Gobeille, outgoing director who served two years and was active in the industrial affairs committee.

Playmate Dead, Found Hanging By 4-Year-Old

Bruneau Larouche, aged six, of 68 Rioux street in Sherbrooke, was pronounced dead of strangulation on arrival at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital yesterday.

The boy, while sliding down the banister of his home, slipped and hanged himself between the rungs of the hand-rail. He was found at about 1:30 p.m. by a four-year-old neighbor's daughter, Claire Roy, who rushed to tell her mother. By the time help arrived it was too late, the boy was already dead.

An inquest into the death will be held tomorrow at 11 a.m.

Cold Wave Arrival Finds Most Streets Clear For Traffic

A cold wave struck the Sherbrooke vicinity and much of Eastern Canada again last night and this morning making the forecast temperatures look moderate. Thermometers stood at between 20 and 25 degrees below zero between eight and nine o'clock today and outskirts' reports came in of earlier readings around the 30-mark.

The majority of the city's streets were well cleared as traffic started moving today, a tribute to the effectiveness of yesterday's strenuous work by employees of the public works department. Some of the outlying roads and sidewalks had still to be cleared. Street gangs started work again four o'clock this morning with ten trucks and a blower operating and a hundred men, plus machinery, are on the job today.

While Eastern Canada had experienced several days of mildness since its last cold snap the West was still gripped in a frigid wave of still record duration. Saskatoon reported 23 below and Winnipeg, 23. The prairies have now been cold-bound for more than two weeks.

The prospects for this district: Clear and Cold.

King Of Kings Is Being Shown At Lennoxville

The Hi-Y.P.U. of the United Church of Lennoxville is showing a picture, King of Kings, in the Gertrude Scott Hall on Sunday, January 31, at 4:15 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. This picture is the most widely-shown film in the world. It was completed by Cecil B. DeMille and is a story of the life, passion and death of Jesus Christ. This picture carries the mark of authenticity.

The producer spent 18 months on research, recreating the costumes and settings of the times. The script was written with the aid of a rabbi, priest and minister. Thorns were brought from the Holy Land for the crown of Christ. The story of Christ takes human form and is portrayed with great understanding.

This is a simple Christian story under a master director and is portrayed on the screen with reverence and beauty.

A convention of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations on April 30th and May 1st, at the Windsor Hotel in Montreal, were discussed, and a decision will be made at a later date.

A list of parents who had not yet become members of the Association were read, and it was decided to contact them by letter to urge them to partake in the work of the Association.

A cheque for $25 was requested to be sent to the principal of the East Ward School to reimburse her for the expenditure made in the purchase of mugs and other equipment for the serving of soup in her school.

A committee consisting of E. Kimmis, F. Simpson and A. Savage was formed to take care of the details of Fathers' Night, a meeting of the Association at which only Fathers will be present, to be held at the High School on April 5th.

There being no further business, the meeting then adjourned.

A long awaited dream of many scouts is in the process of breaking into realization. The first letters concerning the "B. P. Old Scouts Guild" have been sent through the mail to many former scouts. Throughout Canada there are several such groups and it is intended that one be started in Sherbrooke. If you happen to be an old scout, why not contact Mr. Henry Crochetiere, P.O. Box 707 in Sherbrooke and let him know.

Recently an investiture ceremony was held by the 5th (St. Peter's) Pack in which Steve MacIntyre was welcomed into the fold of cubbing. Baloo states that Cub John Hogg has recently been appointed sixer of the whites. To top off its winter activities the Pack is planning a sleigh drive to be held in the near future.

Last week a going up ceremony was held by the St. Pat's Pack in which Cubs Lloyd Cahill, Jackie Nauau and Terry Erley were admitted into the troop.

The newly reorganized St. Peter's Troop under Skipper Lloyd Crowdis is beginning to take shape. On Thursday a hockey game was iced, with Plymouth providing the opposition. The score was 5-2 in favor of the 5th. Definite proficiency badge work has been planned and it is understood that the first badge to be tackled will be the Aulubancian.

The 7th Pack (St. Paul's) report that recently Cubs Clark and Sonny Edgecombe were promoted to Sixers while Cubs David Hutchison and Johnny Morkill were appointed second Sixers.

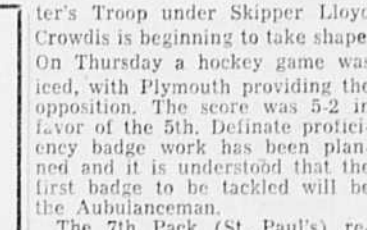

A mass going up ceremony highlighted the last meeting of the 10th (St. Pat's) Troop. Eight scouts made their promise to God and the Queen thus becoming members of the Worldwide Brotherhood of Scouting which comprises some 5,500,000 boys of the world.

The cubs of the 1st Lennoxville Troop are working diligently on their hobbies at home in preparation for a hobby show which has been planned for the early spring.

According to the "Scout Leader," the official organ of the Boy Scouts Association in Canada, many winter ski and snowshoe hikes should highlight this month's activities. It is apparent that because of inclement weather, such activities in our own district are impossible.

All Officers Re-Elected At Annual Meeting Of Local Y. M. C. A. Last Night

"I think with you, that nothing is of more importance for the public weal, than to form and train up youth in wisdom and virtue. Wise and good men are, in my opinion, the strength of a state, far more than riches or arms," wrote one of the world's greatest contributors of historical literature, Benjamin Franklin, in 1750.

Last night, January 28, of the year 1954, a little over two centuries later, and 78 years after the founding of such an organization in Sherbrooke, boys and men of the Y.M.C.A. met in the 1907 structure on Dufferin avenue, for the annual meeting.

A social association as well as spiritual, eight organizations with members ranging in ages from 8 to 80, submitted reports on the 1953 activities, which in themselves were evidence of the Y.M.C.A.'s constantly increasing importance to a community, for it has come a long way since the days when it was an association without a home, meeting weekly in a church hall to study the Bible.

Although last on the agenda, but by all means of the utmost importance, the brief meeting of the board of directors following the general assembly, unanimously re-elected last year's slate of officers for another term. The executive is as follows: Honorary president, J. Keith Edwards, president, Forest T. Keene; vice-president, Harry E. Walker; treasurer, Hawley Griffith; recording secretary, Eric T. Webster. Edward J. Shortt will serve his seventh year as General Secretary.

Due to the absence of the president, Forest Keene, who has been ill during the past week, the meeting came under the chairmanship of vice-president, Harry Walker. In the president's report, delivered by Mr. Walker, Mr. Keene said of the past year, "I feel that we may take some pride in our accomplishments during the year, but I would also like to point out that accomplishments did not just happen."

"I would like on your behalf to publicly recognize the work of our board members, for they are busy men, yet, without any recompense beyond satisfaction that they are helping in a movement which is good for the community as well as for its members, they devote time and money and effort on your behalf," Mr. Walker then called upon, Mac Bradshaw, for his report on the Y's Men's Club.

Once again the Y's Men's Club (service club of the Y.M.C.A.) has lived up to all expectations and performed a grand service in many ways, notably the Camp site at Shore Acres, owned by the Y, and the Boys' Track Meet. The camp, purchased in the first instance by the Y's Men's Club, and donated to the "Y," was the vacation paradise for 88 boys, 83 girls, (Y.W.C.A.) and 25 staff and leader personnel. Many underprivileged boys were guests at the camp again in 1953, sharing equal privileges with the paying boys.

This was made possible through assistance in providing memberships by the Rotary Club; Lion's Club and the Y's Men's Club, all of which clubs have so assisted over a period of years.

The Hi-Y Club and the Teen Town Club, both reported favorably for the year 1953, with Presidents Steve Allatt and Sam Elkas, delivering the reports respectively. The Hi-Y, under the mentorship of Mac Sanders, found many avenues of service. Among the many projects they sponsor, the Hi-Y hold regular children's movies, each Saturday afternoon at the Mitchell school, and stage the annual E.T. interscholastic girls' track meet, which established new records in participation, both by schools and individual athletes.

Teen Town, as reported by Mr. Elkas, is essentially a community service where roughly 100 alternately Saturday nights for dance parties, and hold committees and planning meetings. Working on their own initiative the teen-agers deserve the highest praise for the good they are doing in keeping the young people off the streets, and under supervised good clean fun.

The Omega Alpha, formed of young men 18 to 23 years of age, completed its first full year in the fall with a record 1,100 members. Recognizing their civic responsibilities, they attended the blood donors clinics in a body on two occasions, assisted the Y's Men and the Rotary Club two occasions, and produced an excellent minstrel show that ran three local engagements and three out of town. Sam Elkas, delivered this report, as president John Lough.

Senator Hushion Dies In Montreal

Montreal.—Senator William J. Hushion died suddenly at his home in suburban Westmount Thursday night. He was 70. Senator Hushion, in failing health for more than a year, had been Liberal representative for Victoria riding of Quebec since 1949. Previously, he had been a member of the House of Commons for Montreal St. Ann from 1924 to 1930 when he was defeated in a general election.

He was re-elected to the Commons in 1935.

Mr. Hushion was a member of the Quebec Legislature in 1923 and an alderman of the City of Montreal for 14 years.

Survivors include his widow, the former Winnifred Dempsey of Montreal, a daughter, Mrs. J. A. Farrell, and two sons, Donald E. Hushion and William J. Hushion, Jr., all of Montreal.

heed was unable to attend.

The European Club, during the first half of the year, sponsored classes in English for newcomers. A chess club was another organization of the Y.M.C.A., meeting each Monday evening and playing against other chess clubs.

The treasurer's report by Hawley Griffith showed that in 1953, the year ended with a bank overdraft of roughly $2,000 even though the association operated within its budget. In addition to the normal maintenance, the "Y" found it necessary to replace some of the plumbing in the building, to replace the motor and pump on the return heating circuit, and numerous other vitally needed changes and repairs.

A total of 58,334 individuals made use of the Y.M.C.A. building in 1953. Over 140 identifiable groups held meetings or sessions with a total attendance at group activities of 34,628. Generally, the Y's dormitories were filled to capacity throughout the year. The Fund subscribed towards the erection of a new building is still largely invested, and the total amount today stands at $11,000.

Edward J. Shortt, secretary-treasurer of the "Y" for the past six years, in his report gave the philosophical outlook on the Y.M.C.A. He stated that there is nothing wrong with the program that give enjoyment through the provision of square dancing, etc., but the Y.M.C.A. has a higher concept of what its contribution ought to be.

"Ours is a commitment to an idealistic purpose which is expressed as that of 'building Christian personalities in a Christian Society.'"

In the absence of Mrs. Wyatt Johnston, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Eric Webster delivered the annual report. Their records indicate an essential service to the other "Y" organizations, serving meals and catering at club suppers, supplying dormitory linens as needed, towels, sheets and bedspreads and other items and kept the kitchen well stocked with utensils.

Ed. Bryant, district governor of the Y's Men, passed a motion that all reports read before the assembly be adopted. Devotions were read by Rev. Canon Russell Brown, St. Peter's Anglican Church. Rev. A. V. Ottivell represented the Ministerial Association.

Thanks were also expressed to the young ladies of teen-town, who served the delicious meal prior to the business meeting, and to the Ladies' Auxiliary, who prepared it, by Eric Webster.

Parking Tickets To Unheeding Drivers

Despite police department warnings regarding parking in snow removal areas yesterday, several people had to pay fines.

At 4 p.m. yesterday police issued warnings which were broadcast over both radio stations and displayed in all the hotels in the city.

As a result of not heeding this advice seven citizens of Sherbrooke found that they had no cars to drive home. They had been towed to the police station and the drivers had to pay fines this morning as well as towing charges.

Three Held For Running Lottery

Springfield, Mass.—(AP)—Three men were arrested in Springfield and neighboring Chicopee today in connection with what police described as a lottery ring extending from New Britain, Conn., to Canada.

The men were booked as Arthur Wood, 55, John J. Stezco, 32, and John Leszczynski, 54, all of Chicopee.

They were each held on $500 bail for arraignment today on charges of setting up and promoting a lottery and possessing lottery tickets.

Police said lottery tickets found in their possession bore the inscription "St. Joseph's Parish Social Club in College Bridge, Canada." Police said a check with Canadian authorities disclosed no organization by that name.

Police said tickets for the lottery sold at $1 each with listed prizes ranging from $30,000 to $50. They said they have been unable to trace any prize payoff.

Wood and Stezco were arrested in Springfield factories where, police said, they had been selling tickets to workers.

Many Dangerous Crossings Left

Eight persons were killed when a car in which they were riding was struck broadside by a train at Napanee, Ont.

The Canadian Press report of the accident added:

"The crossing, located 600 feet west of the Napanee station, is not protected by automatic signals. View of the double-track crossing is unobstructed to the east but a small grain elevator on the west side partially hides approaching trains until they are about four car-lengths from the road."

The Board of Transport has done a great deal towards improving the safety of many level crossings. Every year sees substantial work performed to this end.

While it is, of course, incumbent upon members of the driving public to use every precaution when approaching what they know to be a danger spot the fact remains that there are far too many crossings which are still unprotected. There are still too many which do not appear, under certain conditions, to give the driver a fair chance. The Napanee crossing would seem to be a case in point.

The number of country forums and meetings which have expressed concern about this problem shows that the public mind is exercised.

More must be done.

Balance Chief Need As Science Advances

Discovery of a way to turn rays from radio-active atoms into useful electricity, announced this week by General Sarnoff, RAC chairman, and described as a tremendous shortcut to atomic peacetime power, brings our world immeasurably closer in prospect to the everyday benefits of "the atomic age."

Homes may be lighted and radios run through a battery smaller than the filter tip of a cigarette. The battery is compared, in the advance it heralds, with Michael Faraday's first production of electricity 120 years ago.

Much work must still be done to make the battery more efficient but the major knot has been unravelled.

Until this announcement, prospects for the everyday atomic marvels were still hypothetical. Now, they are coming down to earth.

And what an earth it will be!

A Chinese philosopher a few hundred years ago expressed the view that all inventions should, by decree, be suspended for a century in order to give the minds of the people time to catch up. If it would have been a good thing for the old-time Celestial Kingdom how much more necessary is such an idea in modern days when inventions crowd upon the heels of inventions and we never know when we may wake up to discover the making of a new wonder in a wondrous world!

But the progress of invention cannot be stayed. The minds of men — or of a few of the scientific elect — are constantly unfolding and Providence is speeding up the rate at which the globe is growing smaller, more comfortable, in a general way, for humans — and harder to understand.

New weapons are being provided, a prospect of a new way of surface living is being opened up, and still the minds of men and their behavior remain fundamentally the same.

Science, in the last few years, has taken gargantuan strides. Surgery and medicine, in their unlagging progress, have prolonged the expectation of life. But our thoughts and our ways of thinking have been little changed.

James Harvey Robinson, in his "The Mind in the Making," insisted that the average Senate debate in Washington disclosed less real intelligence than that displayed by the ordinary mechanic in his day's work in the corner garage.

Education and the study of man's mind have still a long way to go to keep pace with the material benefits of science and it is in these fields that work and constructive developments are most needed and must be undertaken if the essential balance of humankind is to be preserved.

IKE'S STRIKE VOTE PROPOSAL FACES DEBATE IN CONGRESS

Washington — (NEA) — When congressional hearings on President Eisenhower's proposed amendments to the Taft-Hartley labor law begin on Jan. 25, new Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell will be put on something of a spot. His embarrassment will arise over the most controversial of the President's proposals. This is for a government-supervised secret vote of employees on acceptance of the employer's offer, and whether or not there should be a strike.

As a loyal member of the cabinet, Secretary Mitchell will be bound to support the President's program, he — Mitchell — is for it.

If, however, the secretary is asked for his personal opinion as an experienced labor relations man, whether this pre-strike vote proposal will work, his answer may be something else.

That answer is fairly simple to deduce. What such a strike vote will boil down to in every case will be a question of whether the employees will accept — say five cents an hour increase, or whether they'll ask for 10 cents an hour.

When there was a provision of this kind in the wartime Smith-Connolly labor act, the vote was in favor of the higher demand and a strike in 97 per cent of the cases. This was at a time when there was an incentive of patriotism to stay on the job. Without that incentive, there is little reason to believe that the results would be much better.

Unsound, Say Labor Experts

Experienced labor relations men cite other reasons on the unsoundness of this proposal. They believe it would be wrong to get the government in on a labor dispute this early. It would run counter to the idea of returning collective bargaining to management and labor, without government interference until the negotiations have broken down.

Also, when grievances are put in writing — as they would have to be for a secret ballot — the grievances have to be answered on the specific points brought up. That means less freedom to bargain and find a settlement on compromise terms.

The grand snafu over how this proposal got into the President's message to Congress, and why it was allowed to stay there, can now be pretty well straightened out. Contrary to general belief, it can be stated authoritatively that both Secretary Mitchell and Republican Sen. Irving Ives of New York, the GOP's leading liberal on labor matters, were consulted on the matter. But they were not fully informed on the final language of the message.

The idea for the strike vote came from Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, as has been stated previously. Secretary Mitchell did not think the matter was terribly important. Secretary Weeks did. So Secretary Mitchell let the proposal go through. In so doing he misjudged the reaction of opposition from union labor leaders.

To say that the strike vote idea originated with Secretary Weeks is inaccurate. There was a similar provision in the first drafts of the original Taft-Hartley Act. There have been lots of hearings on this proposal. It was knocked out by Congress in 1947 because it had failed to function as expected in the Smith-Connolly Act. Secretary Weeks and his advisers simply made another attempt to get it back in.

May Endanger Other Proposals

There had been some hope that the strike vote proposal could be separated from the other parts of the President's message. Instead, it was made point 12 of the 14-point proposal. This inclusion may endanger some of the other 13 points if Congress tries to handle the whole thing as a package deal.

The original drafts of the message had made clear that the proposed vote of the employees be taken before any strike could begin. The White House changed this in the final draft and specified no time for the vote. This led to a further gum-up on the proposal.

The President's idea in not specifying when the vote should be taken was a deliberate attempt to state a problem in general terms and leave it up to Congress to work out the details. Sen. H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, therefore swung into action fast with a bill to have the vote conducted after the strike had begun. This bill was obviously prepared in advance of the message and with foreknowledge of its content.

Senator Smith's idea was that the vote should be conducted after the employees had been out some time, and the economic pinch had begun to hurt. The argument against this is that if the vote were taken after the employees are out on strike, the employer would be reticent to make a final offer.

Congressional debate over this and other details will be long and bitter. The prospect is that it may be talked to death.

HERE'S IDEA WORTH KEEPING IN MIND

When you are a defender, it's very dangerous to lead a suit that dummy can ruff. If declarer is also void of the suit, he will discard while dummy ruffs. This ruff-and-discard usually gives declarer a trick that he couldn't get for himself.

Since this principle is quite familiar to experienced players, it usually causes a stir when an expert deliberately gives declarer a ruff-and-discard and profits by it.

Today's hand, played at the recent national tournament in Dallas, caused a bigger stir than usual because the expert, Leonard B. Harmon, of New York, had to give declarer two ruff-and-discard plays in order to defeat the contract.

Harmon opened the ten of spades from the West hand. East won with the ace and returned the jack of spades. South naturally covered with the queen, and West won with the king.

At this point Harmon had two tricks and could confidently expect to win a third trick with the king of hearts. Where was the setting trick? East couldn't have the ace or king-queen of diamonds in view of South's strong bidding.

After some thought Harmon led a third spade, giving declarer a chance to take his ruff and discard. South discarded a diamond from dummy and ruffed in his own hand.

Now South had to draw trumps and limit the trump loss to one trick. Hoping to get a clue to the trump distribution, South began by laying down the ace of hearts. He then led a low heart towards dummy's queen.

Harmon won the second round of trumps with the king and led spades for the fourth time, giving South a second chance for a ruff and discard. But South didn't welcome the opportunity, for this fourth round of spades established East's jack of hearts as the setting trick.

If South ruffed with dummy's queen of hearts, East's jack would be the high trump later on; and if South did anything else, East could ruff with his jack and win the setting trick then and there.

South could have made the contract if he had begun the trumps by leading a low trump towards dummy's queen. West would step up with the king but could not then gain by leading a fourth round of spades. If East ruffed the fourth spade, South could over-ruff with the ace; and if East failed to ruff, South would ruff low and draw the rest of the trumps.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 Heart	Pass	2 Clubs	Pass
2 Spades	Pass	3♥	Pass

You, South, hold: Spades 7-2, Hearts 8-3, Diamonds J-5-4, Clubs A-K-Q-9-6-3. What do you do?

A—Bid three clubs. Your partner's reverse bidding shows at least 17 points and you have 10 points in high cards, so you don't dream of passing. The only bid that describes your hand is a rebid of the strong club suit.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades 7-2, Hearts 8-3, Diamonds J-5, Clubs A-K-Q-J-9-6-3. What do you do?

MATCHING DISCARDS IS TRICKY

"When do you match the discards of your right-hand opponent, and when do you concentrate on matching those made by your left-hand opponent?" asks an Oregon correspondent.

It's usually a good idea to match the discards of your right-hand opponent at your first and second turns—when you find it both possible and convenient to do so. Later on, you are less concerned with the player at your right, and you concentrate more on the player who follows you.

For example, suppose that the player at your right throws away a king at his first turn. If you are able to discard a king also, you have given no information to the player at your right.

He will have to make his next discard in the dark. He probably doesn't have another king (he's not likely to start by discarding from a pair), and whatever else he chooses may "hit" you very nicely.

He's in a better position if your first discard is something else—for example, a ten. If he has a ten, he will discard it with comparative safety. This is better for him, of course, than a completely blind discard.

You can afford to make this kind of discard (matching the player at your right) at your first turn when the pack is hardly worth picking up. You can usually afford it likewise at your second turn.

Thereafter you are afraid of losing the pack to the player who follows you. Your next course, therefore, is to match the first two discards of the player at your left. This means that you must try to be able to remember what that player discarded at his first and second turn.

Such discards are usually (but

Lucky Day

By WILLIAM J. MURDOCH

McClure Syndicate

WPU Features

Most men will work if they have to, and most men have to work.

Anders, should have worked, but he didn't. Rather than labor at a steady job or profession, even if he had learned one in his 32 years, John Anders played hunches.

As he climbed up on a stool in Charles's Diner and distastefully ordered what seemed to him his millionth bowl of soup, John Anders had a hunch that this was to be his lucky day.

"This is the last time for a long while that I'll have to take your blasted soup," he grumbled as the scowling proprietor set a bowl of the steaming stuff on the counter.

"The dishwasher's free, if you'd rather have it," Charles grunted. "That's $3.20 you owe me."

Anders was used to being sneered at and ridiculed. People thought he was a bum because he spent his time and what money he had working up hunches on horses, lucky numbers, also catch-titles and slogans for contests. Sure they thought he was a bum, but only because he never won.

Lazily, Anders toyed with the soup. Thoughtfully he stared at his spoon. A few alphabet noodles clung to it, and almost without knowing it he called them off.

P...L...L...T... H...m...m... That sounded familiar. Pilt. Anders sat a little straighter. Pilt... Pilt... Piltner's! He jumped to the ground. That was it... the big $15,000 advertising slogan contest sponsored several months before by Piltner's department store.

Anders had forgotten all about it. "Hey, Charles," he shouted excitedly. "How's that for a hunch?" Charles glared from the gas plate. "Stop shouting like a wild man," he growled. "What's biting you now?"

But John Anders wasn't listening. He stumbled down the street for his rooming house two blocks away. Maybe the mailman had left him a check for first prize — $5,000! Man, oh, man! What a hunch — $5,000!

There was a letter for him, all right, and it was from Piltner's department store. Anders' hands trembled as he took it from his landlady. It had all worked out so beautifully — the hunch, the sign, and now the letter. It was almost too good to believe. He finally managed to get the envelope open.

It was just a typewritten sheet, not a check. Anders felt as if his heart were rolling around on the dingy hallway floor. But as he read, his spirits rose. The note said that he had won a prize and could call for it any time that the store office.

Anders hurried back to Charles's. "What if it wasn't first prize?" Second prize was good, too — $2,500. And third was $1,000. And there were three prizes of $500 each.

"Come on, Charles, let's take a look!" Anders shouted from the doorway, waving his letter. "Remember my hunch? Here it is, ready to pay off!"

At the office Anders identified himself to a stenographer and presented his notice. The girl disappeared into an inner office and came out a moment later with a short, bald-headed man. He went over to Anders and Charles, beaming his pleasure. "Congratulations," he said to Anders, and from his coat pocket he withdrew a long envelope. Just big enough to hold a nice fat check. Anders thought as he took it, and he wanted to dance. His fingers wouldn't work. Charles led him to the elevators.

"They're looking at you as if you're crazy," he said. "Here—I'll open it."

"Quick—please!" Charles withdrew a letter. He shook the envelope, open end down, then glanced at Anders' stricken face and shrugged. "What is it?" Anders croaked.

"You won 257th prize, awarded by Hinkum Distributing Co.," Charles said, almost bellowing. "I buy all my alphabet soup from them," he added deliberately.

"Oh, no — surely I didn't win—" "Soup? No," Charles replied with a tiger's purr. You won't have to

This day he'd show them.

Dusty Old Book Reveals History Of 1879 Saw Mill

Pincher Creek, Alta. —

They're tearing the old mill down at Mill Creek, eight miles west of this southern Alberta town. And crumpling with it are a few yellowed pages of 19th-century Canadian history.

The McLaren grist and saw mill was established by the government in 1879 to encourage the growing of crops and the use of lumber by Indians.

The mill was built of stone and wood and equipped with machinery transported up the Missouri River to Fort Benton, Mont., then hauled overland to the site. Lumber was contracted for and taken by string teams to Fort Macleod and Lethbridge, about 50 miles to the east. Many houses in the district were constructed with timber from the McLaren mill.

Rummaging in the attic of the mill-house, present owner Fred Link found a dusty account book detailing mill operations between 1888 and 1890. It contained more than 300 names of western pioneers.

The book shows accounts were settled by services rendered, medical attention, and deliveries of hay, steers, butter, potatoes and pork.

Five Horses Were Foundation For Noted Laboratory

Toronto — An institution which has served Canadians in towns and cities, in mines and at sea for the last 40 years, had its start when a young medical graduate bought five horses and went into the business of producing vaccine.

The Connaught Medical Research Laboratories of the University of Toronto have since produced a steady stream of vaccines, serums, antibiotics and other life-saving products.

The late Dr. John G. Fitzgerald returned to the University of Toronto from California soon after the university established a department of hygiene, at the time when researchers were first realizing the value of preventive medicine.

At that time diphtheria vaccine cost between $20 and $80. Fitzgerald believed it could be produced cheaper. He bought five horses and inoculated them and thus began production by collecting bacteria from the infected animals.

Officials were so impressed with the work that a laboratory was opened and named in honor of the

Penal Reform Abolishes Use Of Iron Chains

Paris. — (Reuters) — French prisoners sentenced to have their heads cut off by the guillotine will no longer be shackled in their cells at night.

The iron chains which bound the condemned men's wrists and ankles have been abolished for "humanitarian reasons," the justice ministry has announced.

Twenty-six prisoners are at present awaiting death in French jails. Some have been there for two or three years. Some have been shackled during the day as well as at night.

The government action arises at least partly from a strong movement for penal reform in France. The movement reached a peak recently with a motion picture entitled "We Are All Killers."

The film dealt with four men condemned to death, their long wait under continual electric light, and finally the sudden arrival of the executioners, padding silently down the corridors to seize their victim who knew not when he was to die.

The guillotine itself, France's standard means of execution since 1792, was described recently by Prof. Rene Piedievre as an instrument of "murderous vivisection" which leaves the hearts of its victims still beating after decapitation.

"Humanitarian" Method

The guillotine was introduced in France as a humanitarian method to provide a swift and easy death. Its use was first suggested in modern times during the revolutionary period.

Some say it was first used by the Persians. At any rate, it was in use in England and Scotland and much of continental Europe during the Middle Ages.

In 13th-century Italy, nobles had the privilege of being executed by a similar device. In Edinburgh, a "Maiden" as it was known is still on display at a museum.

Duke of Connaught, then governor-general.

With the end of the First World War the laboratory began the production of vaccines and toxoids to meet civilian needs. By 1921 when the late Sir Frederick Banting and Dr. C. H. Best discovered insulin it was ready to undertake production.

In the early 1920s the department became a school of hygiene and the Rockefeller Foundation contributed $650,000 for a new combined school and laboratories building, of which $250,000 was to be the nucleus of a research fund. Further expansion was made in 1931 with aid from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Contributions from the research laboratories have helped to create a health record that places Canada high among all countries. New production methods also have provided Canadians with cheaper drugs. Canadians now buy insulin and many other drugs and serums cheaper than they can be purchased elsewhere.

they always chose a plentiful supply of water!

In the old days as now, people were always looking for ways and means to make life easier, and when they could choose between ordinary shovel dug wells and artesian wells, if they could afford it, they chose the latter. In the same way, when pumping systems were introduced, the most popular make was Fairbanks-Morse, noted then as now for efficiency and dependability.

Marlene Stewart Wins Tournament 5-4 In Florida

Miami, Fla. — Marlene Stewart, British and Canadian amateur champion from Fonthill, Ont., played steady golf Thursday to win her first round match in the Helen Lee Dougherty amateur golf tournament.

Now a student at Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., Marlene ousted Helen MacDougall of Saskatoon, 5-4.

Marlene said her game Thursday was "all right—nothing sensational."

"I hit my drives pretty good. My chips were good. I was okay with my irons and putted all right. I didn't sink any long ones. I just played a steady game."

She got off to a bad start, losing the first hole when she missed a short putt which gave her a five on the par-four hole. Miss MacDougall sank a four-footer for par.

But Marlene recovered quickly, evening things on the fourth by dropping a five-footer and taking the sixth and seventh after beautiful chip shots from about 30 yards out, both times placing the ball about two feet from the pin.

The "A" competition semi-finals saw Sam Wilson's Sudbury foursome defeat Three Rivers, led by W. J. Miller, 9-6, and Sutherland's Kirkland Lake farm 10-7 victory over Bob Masse's Granby, Que., quartet.

In the "B" semi-finals, veteran Pat Ross led his St. Johns, Que., team to an 8-4 triumph over another Sudbury rink, skipped by George Von Zuban, and Ed Robertson's Ottawa West four downed Olivier Samson's Quebec Jacques Cartier 11-10.

Other semi-finals are due to be decided today when Ray Benoit's Montreal Heather, C. Davis' Midland, Ont., crew, Paul Beggs' Quebec Etchemin Club and Mac Capapin's Copper Cliff, Ont., side, will battle it out for "D" competition trophy.

Comparatively few women show the same tendency as men toward coronary artery insufficiency, with resultant angina pectoris, until old age.

Heart specialists have an amusing but highly expressive saying: "To avoid coronary disease, pick your ancestors and be a woman!"

Angina pectoris is not a disease in itself; it is the manifestation of disease. The true cause of angina pectoris, with its excruciating chest pains, is not known. But it is associated with lack of blood supply to the heart, when the arteries are narrowed or blocked.

The heart has four chambers for receiving blood and two for pumping blood back through the body. The left ventricle—the left pumping station—keeps the blood pressure up. It is usually the one in trouble. It receives its supply from the left coronary artery.

The left coronary artery divides itself into two branches. Approximately 65 per cent of disease is found in what is called the anterior descending branch; 35 per cent in the circumflex branch. These two arteries spread themselves over the surface of the left ventricle. They branch off as they go to the vessels within the heart muscle.

Pathological studies have shown that coronary artery disease is confined to the most part to the surface vessels. It does not enter the myriad little branches forming the coronary "tree" within the heart muscle itself but may occur anywhere along the outside path of the artery proper.

For this reason, Dr. Vineburg has written in published articles, he does not consider coronary artery disease a finalized disease.

Coronary artery insufficiency is progressive, which means a steady lessening supply of blood to the heart. With a decreased supply, the heart muscle begins wasting away and becomes scar tissue.

Medical science has given long study to coronary artery insufficiency. With medical treatment alone, recorded data shows that approximately one of every two sufferers dies within five years following infarction—the scar tissue condition.

Other methods of surgery have been tried patiently in an effort to give the heart additional arterial blood supply, but to date the results have not been too satisfactory.

The internal mammary artery implant is the new hope. With due regard to the conservatism of Dr. Vineburg in his appraisal, the new surgical procedure may rightfully be regarded as a success.

When the internal mammary artery is used for the implant operation, other vessels become good neighbors and take over. Any impairment to the chest muscles through loss of the main supply is infinitesimal compared with the possible benefit to the heart. The difference conceivably can be as great as that between life and death.

New Process Provides Third Artery To Heart

This is the second in a series of four stories about a revolutionary surgical procedure originated and developed by Dr. Arthur Vineburg, Montreal surgeon, for treatment of coronary artery disease and related angina pectoris.

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal—Dr. Arthur Vineburg, the Montreal surgeon who is boldly challenging angina pectoris, gives the heart a third artery.

It is the internal mammary artery and is utilized when there is coronary artery disease and a consequent diminution in the amount of blood reaching the heart.

Through the surgical procedure termed internal mammary artery implant a blood supply to the heart is restored by placing the artery within the heart muscle.

The internal mammary artery is large and carries a generous supply of blood. It is easily transplanted. Normally it carries a blood supply to the front of the chest and the intercostal between-the-ribs muscles. As its name indicates, it also aids in providing lactation for the breast in women.

When the internal mammary artery is used for the implant operation, other vessels become good neighbors and take over. Any impairment to the chest muscles through loss of the main supply is infinitesimal compared with the possible benefit to the heart. The difference conceivably can be as great as that between life and death.

MODERN LIVING RUTH MILLET

BUILD UP SPOUSE TO FRIENDS AND YOU BUILD UP YOURSELF

She has been married for more than a dozen years but never have Marge's friends heard her complain about her husband.

They know his good qualities—Marge has seen to that. But they couldn't tell you what Marge wishes he would do that he doesn't or what she wishes he wouldn't do that he does.

Consequently Marge's friends not only have a lot of admiration and respect for her husband, they all think that Marge is a lucky wife.

She isn't lucky, she's wise. Wise enough to realize how foolish it is for a woman to go around talking about her husband's faults to women who will be sure to mentally check them up against the husband.

And she's wise enough to know that if a wife lets her husband's good qualities be known she'll do him more good than the best of press agents. For what a wife says about her husband is taken as gospel. After all, who should know him better?

Soon They'll Think of You as A "Lucky Woman"

It may not have occurred to Marge that in building up a husband a wife is also building up herself, by putting herself in the class of "lucky" women.

But it's true just the same. Next time you are tempted to make a wish upon your husband, stop at your bridge club, stop and think of something you can say about him that will put him in a good light, instead.

You won't have to do that very long before your husband is respected by all your friends, and before they'll start thinking of you as a "lucky" woman.

Almost Ready

Canada's First Subway To Start Operations In Toronto March 30

By WALTER GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO. —(CP)— The underground stations are shiny in their newness, the turnstiles ready. A subway train in spanking red with black trim, stands empty by a station platform.

Only the pushing mass of workers and tired shoppers is missing. They will come soon. At 2 p.m. Tuesday, March 30, Canada's first subway will begin operation. An investment of $38,500,000 and four years of construction will begin to pay off.

Carved out of the heart of Toronto is a 4½-mile rapid transit route, built by the Toronto Transportation Commission. It runs under or parallels Yonge street, 150-year-old, traffic-clogged artery running north from Lake Ontario.

Starting at Front street at the Union station and the Royal York Hotel, the underground section curves sharply north beneath the city's main thoroughfare, through the commercial district. The double track line emerges from the tunnel to the east of Yonge street at the outer reaches of the downtown section and goes through the central residential area. It goes underground again to cross Yonge street and comes out once more at its nerve centre in the Davisville yards. It ends at the northern terminal on Eglinton avenue.

TTC officials say 98 per cent of the work is complete. The remaining two per cent consists of work at the Eglinton terminal where feeder buses will fan out through the residential districts to the north, east and west.

Seventy of the 104 subway cars, costing $8,000,000 have been delivered from England. Training programs for operators have been established and already supervisory personnel are running trains along the system. Hiring of operators is under way.

Construction figures are impressive. Since the first pile driver dug into the pavement on Front street Sept. 8, 1949, the TTC has spent $50,500,000. A total of 287 homes and buildings were razed in the subway's path. Workmen used up 10,000,000 board feet of lumber, 1,140,000 bags of cement, 145,000 tons of sand, 150,000 tons of gravel, 12,000 tons of reinforcing steel, 10,000 tons of structural steel and 3,850 tons of rail steel. Power shovels dug up 1,390,000 cubic yards of earth.

And the job was done without a fatality. There were only two major delays: A gas main exploded in the tunnel in the downtown area and a burst water main flooded part of the tunnel and a nightclub dining room.

TTC officials say the subway has been hailed by visiting experts as the "finest and cleanest" in the world. It looks it.

Simple in design and bright in color, the 12 stations—five of them underground—fairly shout cleanliness. Glass-faced masonry and tiled walls are "public proof"—that is they cannot be defaced by the public.

The rails are imbedded in concrete, except for the switches which are filled with ballast. The tunnel dividing wall, partitioned to cut down wind resistance, is lined with fibre glass to prevent reverberations.

Although each station is built to different specifications, each has the same basic plant of off-street entrances, control area and platform level.

The Queen street station in the downtown area is the most complex. It is built on three levels. Passengers have a choice of seven entrances—four on the Queen children of Kor. A card party was planned for the evening of February 12, to be held at the church social rooms, with canasta, bridge and "500" to be played. Mrs. Bacon was appointed as convener of the advance sale of tickets.

Ladies were asked to send "get well" cards to Miss Orpha Durland who has been a surgical patient at the Montreal General Hospital. The meeting adjourned and all helped to fold and assemble the club program for this year.

The next meeting will be held on February 3, with Mrs. Iola Keeley and Mrs. Ruby Lanther acting as hostesses. Mrs. Bacon, with her mother, Mrs. Mamie Aldrich, served lunch.

Holy Name Society
On Friday evening, January 22, the Holy Name Society of St. Edward's Parish, Derby Line, met at the Derby Line Village Hall. Approximately seventy members attended this regular meeting, at which the new constitutions and by-laws were adopted by unanimous vote.

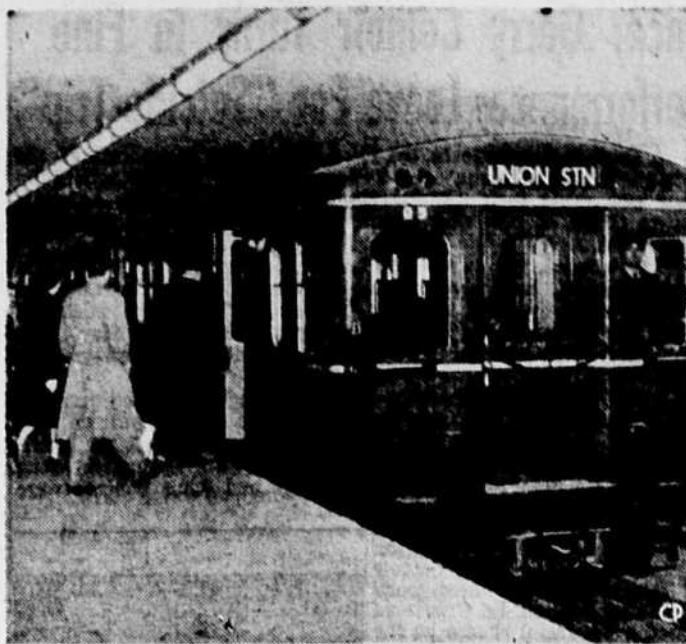

Minutes of the prior meeting, as well as the minutes of the executive board were read and accepted. Several suggestions for future activities were referred to the advisory board to study and report to the next regular meeting of the society.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the group enjoyed an inspiring talk by David B. Essenfield, a student at St. Michael's College, Winooski, Vt.

At the conclusion of Mr. Essenfield's talk, Joseph Brislin, diocesan director of the C.Y.O., was introduced and spoke briefly to the group.

Refreshments served by the program committee, with Rocco Novia in charge, were enjoyed by the members.

The executive will meet on Sunday evening, January 31, at St. Edward's rectory following the evening benediction.

RAPID TRANSIT—Toronto's shiny red trains are ready for the opening March 30 of Canada's first subway. This picture shows the downtown-bound platform in one of the five underground stations. The riders entering the car are members of one of the groups which took demonstration rides prior to the official opening of the rapid-transit system. (CP Photo)

Yonge street intersection and three from the two main department stores, Eaton's and Simpson's, and the Woolworth store.

Passengers descend to the control area, where they purchase tokens at three for 25 cents, pass through the turnstile and pick up their transfers from a transferring machine. Reversible motor stairs then carry them down to the 500-foot long platform level. Beneath the platform level is an underpass which may eventually carry traffic along a proposed east-west subway system.

The stations are decorated in three basic colors—canary yellow, light grey and pale green with contrasting station identification bands—which run in series from the Union station north.

Once the subway begins operation the travelling habits of a huge slice of metropolitan Toronto's 1,300,000 population will change. Streetcars will be taken off Yonge and Bay streets, the two north-south thoroughfares which carry the main load of passengers to and from the downtown area. TTC officials estimate that during the peak rush hour from 4:45 to 5:45 p.m. the two lines carry 18,000 passengers. They predict that the subway during the same period will carry a greater load but are not estimating the total until they study the public's new habits.

During the peak hour the Yonge street-car with a trailer carries a maximum load of 300 passengers. One subway car is expected to carry 62 passengers seated and 200 standing.

During normal hours two-car trains, operated by a motorman on the left-hand side at the front of the car, will ply the system. During rush hours the trains will be increased to four- and six-car units.

Surface buses on Yonge and Bay streets will carry short-haul passengers and will operate during the period when the subway is closed.

The subway will operate from approximately 4:30 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. daily the TTC has not yet decided on a definite schedule. The off-hours will give cleaning staffs time to go over the stations and cars.

Sutton Anglican Church Annual Vestry Meeting

Sutton, Jan. 29 — The annual vestry meeting of Grace Anglican Church was held in the parish hall with the pastor, Rev. M. Brett, presiding.

Reports were read from all the organizations or groups in the church, including the minutes of the last vestry meeting and rector's and warden's reports. All showed that good progress is being made in carrying on the work of the church and meeting obligations.

The debt incurred a few years ago due to extensive repairs to the church and to the building of the cloister has been greatly reduced.

An outstanding addition to the church equipment has been the installation of a new organ. Generous donations from many of the members have helped greatly towards raising the funds for this beautiful instrument. The church property has been further beautified by extensive repairs in the parish hall kitchen and by redecorating in the rectory.

The annual church auction which was made successful through the efforts of the men of the church, and successful activities sponsored by the Ladies' Sewing Society have also been an important means of raising funds.

The Sunday School has been largely attended, which gives a very favorable outlook for the future of the church.

Rev. Mr. Brett in his report expressed how much he and his family enjoy being in Sutton and for the friendly way in which they had been received. He then outlined a few plans which he hoped might be carried out during the year. Among them the pointing up of the walls of the church, and a revival of the badminton group in which interest has seemed to die out in the last few years. The courts will be laid out in the parish hall.

He also reminded the parents of the importance of encouraging their children to attend Sunday School regularly in order that the continuity of the lessons may be maintained.

At the election of officers all were returned. The Church Council will remain as it exists at present.

Rev. Mr. Brett was named as one of the signers for the building committee to replace Rev. K. B. Keefe.

The meeting had been preceded by a parish supper which was largely attended.

Bishop's University Cagers Divide Bill; Win From Magog But Drop A 50-38 Decision To Orleans High

John Rochon, Bishop's University hoopsster split two exhibition tilts during the week, downing Magog Lakers 55-39 Tuesday night, and losing out to the Orleans High School quintet from Vermont 50-38 Wednesday night, at the Memorial Gymnasium.

The Magog town team, featuring a forward line made up of four Whittiers, were outplayed in every department by the Purple and White collegians, and were behind 22-18 at the half. In the second half the Bishop's attack rolled into high gear and poured 31 points through the hoop to 21 for the Magog cagers.

Pacing the Purple and White second half assault was Don Wells, who moved up from the guard slot where he played during the first half to centre, and popped in 15 points. Together with his four points scored in the first half, this gave him a total of 19 points for the evening's work.

Freshman George Mitchell also was a deciding factor in the Bishop's victory, piling up 13 points from his left guard position. Bishop's ace scorer, speedy forward Murray Greenwood left the game early in the final quarter after scoring four points in the initial half.

Orleans High School cagers presented a smooth, fast and accurate shooting ball club Wednesday night. In their own high school league, the tall youngsters have piled up an impressive record of eleven wins as against only one loss.

Taking a 14 to 8 lead at the first quarter, the Orleans quintet were never headed and combined a steady defence with sure ball handling to keep the ball away from Bishop's scorers.

Late in the second quarter, the Purple and White squad did manage to pull to within one point of the visitors, and a few minutes later tied it up, but the Bishop's men couldn't forge ahead and were still down six points, 24-18 at the half.

In the second half, the school team increased their lead 26-22 and won going away. Don Wells played a stellar game at guard for the Purple and White squad, and was in action every minute of the tilt. Diving for Orleans was a standout defensively also, andopped in 10 points at the same time to aid the offensive cause.

Point getter for the Orleans squad was Green with 13 points on eight field goals and two foul shots, while the Bishop's scorers were led by Murray Greenwood with 10 points closely followed by Lynch with 8.

Orleans High School: Barton (5), Lacoss, Gallup (10), Flowers, Green (18), Healy (2), Dewing (10), Rundgren, Austin, Smith (2) - 50.

Bishop's: Wadsworth (6), Fullerton, Steeves, Greenwood (10), Wood (2), Lynch (8), Mitchell (6), Wells (6), Rowsell, Angrave - 38.

By GLEN BROWN

"Hi, Glen," said Bill, "this will be my first look at a hockey game for about ten years." So Billy and I journeyed from Bromo to Knowlton to see the Knowlton and area Pee Wees play their first game of their regular season. Bill's son Buzzy was wrapped around his goalie pads and equipment in the back seat.

"Last game I played in was in Cowansville in 1939," ruminated Billy. "I slipped on a small piece of stick, headed into the boards, stuck my foot up to ward off the impact, and there I was with a broken leg. Doc had some time setting that one."

Who am I talking of? Why, Billy Hamilton — who else? Billy, whom we regard in these parts to be just about the best sport in the area, has finally given that back trouble a belting around, and is back at his old stand in Bromo and all the old guard were chewing the fat and talking over old times and events. Finally the game got under way with Rangers taking on the Maple Leafs, and Billy was surprised and delighted to recognize the sons of some of his old friends such as Billy and John Patterson, Fred Whitehead, Frankie Stanbridge, Don Cousens, Arthur Duboyce and many others. When Lyndon Paige scored the winner for Canadiens on Billy's son Buzzy playing for the Wings, Bill didn't blink an eyebrow, but muttered to himself: "Imagine Bernard's boy doing that on me."

When the games were over, Bill, Buzzy and I headed home to Bromo, and Bill just about put into words the sentiment of the evening when he said, "Golly, don't these kids get some good breaks?"

CHAFF: Knowlton cleaned Cowansville High out in a full sweep with the seniors winning one of the high school hockey games played in days by a 5-2 count. Dex Jolley scored three, Dave Crandall one and Gerald Leblanc one for the Purple.

Cowansville put up some stiff resistance and Blair Bowling their fine goalie, kicked out some rubber. John Delaine wielded that oversized stick nicely for Knowlton. Knowlton hockey reps then went on to a 7-2 victory.

In the gym events the K.H.S. intermediate girls played nicely to dunk their C.H.S. counterparts 31-13 with Sally Sadler showing some class for the Flewellling clan, along with Bev Page and Betty Levey.

For C.H.S. Pettes, Douglas and Sharman were the leading point-getters. The senior girls then gained impetus with the Knowlton reps whinging in 73 points to 45 for the Red team. Ona Boswick with 23 markers, Nancy Sanborn with 28 and Pee Wee Wright with 18 were tops for K.H.S. on the scoring angle, while Shirley Reynolds, M. Mason and Sue Pilsen did some good guarding. Alta Peron of course was tops for C.H.S. with 26 loopers while Alice Longway and K. King dropped in 15 and 13 points. Grace Peron did a fine job of guarding but her helpers lacked experience and the Knowlton senior girls knocked off Waterloo in basketball with Betty Levrault of the G.H.S. showing some fine form, and Janet Russell tried to keep Waterloo in the running with her fine set shots from away out.

Jim Young's Mansenville hockey team won their first hockey game over a younger and smaller Knowlton squad.

They say young Smith of Knowlton was kicking the rubber out like a veteran.

Nels Podolsky Tallies Two To Set Pace; Gerry Cotnoir Turns In Fine Performance; Leave For "Suicide Trip"

A four-goal plunge in the third period last night enabled the Sherbrooke Saints to run up a 7-4 verdict over the Springfield Indians who made their farewell appearance at the Arena before a meagre crowd of fans who braved the sub-zero weather to witness the contest.

The win left the Saints in third position as they failed to gain on the leaders, both who chalked up wins in their fixtures. The locals now hit the road for their "suicide trip" over the week-end. Tomorrow evening they play in the Capital City and Sunday afternoon they move into the Forum to tangle with the front-running Royals.

Nels Podolsky was the pace-setter last night when he came up with one of his best two-way performances so far this year to tally two goals. Chick Johnson, Bert Giesebrecht, Gerry Ehnman, Ed Bruneteau and Mott McLean chalked up the others. For Springfield Doug McMurdy, George Power, Graham Hastings and John Bobenic were the marksmen.

Graham Hastings came very close on a near shot as Chick Johnson fell into the net knocking Cotnoir off balance but the Sherbrooke net-minder held on. Ed Bruneteau missed a wonderful chance on the first goal when his tip-in just missed the open corner.

Gilles Dube set up the first goal when he walked out of his own zone flipped the disc over to Ed Stankiewicz and he in turn put Johnson in the clear and the hard-driving winger pulled the trigger from close range on which O'Hearn had no chance.

A couple of minutes later the Saints extended the lead when Gerry Ehnman picked up a loose disc in the corner to walk out and fire with Bert Giesebrecht standing by to bat in the rebound behind O'Hearn when the Indian defense was slow in clearing.

Doug McMurdy got the nod for the first Indian penalty of the period and during his absence the Saints turned on the heat. Ed Bruneteau cleared up to Moe Irving and he in turn faked the defense and slid the rubber over to Nels Podolsky and the red light went on to put the Saints out in front 3-0.

Just before the end Giesebrecht got the thumb for charging and during his absence the Indians forced the issue but the Saints held on until the final whistle.

Doug McMurdy broke out of his own zone to coast in on the defense and when he was close enough he let go with a hard shot which Cotnoir failed to see in time and duel but nothing happened before the end of the period.

Just after the start of the third period McNab got the nod leaving his mates short handed but nothing happened until he returned. O'Hearn came up with a nice save for Irving when he got in alone. Gerry Ehnman came up with the Saints' next marker when he finished off a play with Giesebrecht and Arbour.

The Indians bounced right back a few minutes later when Power snared a loose rubber to bat it by Cotnoir from the edge of the goal crease. John Bobenic drew the nod for tripping and during his absence the Saints batted home two goals by Podolsky and Bruneteau. With both teams at full strength the Indians came back when Bobenic let with a hard slap-shot to beat Cotnoir from ten feet out.

A minute later Mott McLean picked up Giesebrecht's rebound to drive it home for the final goal of the evening.

Springfield—Goal: O'Hearn; defence: Mulligan, McNab, Telford, Currie; forwards: Power, Schinkel, Hastings, Tarala, McLeod, Powell, Bobenic, McMurdy, Pogue, Leier.

Irish Hunter Top Weight For Grand Jumping Classics

London. —(AP)—Knock Hard, an Irish hunter who won the Cheltenham Gold Cup last year, was assigned top weight of 173 pounds Thursday for the 108th grand national steeplechase at Aintree March 27.

Official weights were announced Thursday for the world's toughest jumping race, upon which an Irish hospital sweepstakes are based.

Should Knock Hard, owned by Mrs. M. H. Keogh, win under that weight he would become the second highest handicapped horse to take steeplechasing's greatest test. Poethlyn, defending his 1918 victory, repeated under 175 pounds in 1919.

Dorothy Page's Mont Tremblant, second last year to Early Mist, was given 172 pounds for this year's race of four miles, 356 yards over 30 stiff jumps. Early Mist got 168 pounds, 12 more than last year.

Bob Bedard Drops Tilt To Mulloy

West Palm Beach, Fla. — (AP) — Fincked Gardner Mulloy of Miami won over Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., seeded third among foreign players, in the south Florida tennis championships Thursday. Mulloy won 7-5, 7-5 after being down 1-5 in the opening set.

Night Ball Not Tonic For Cubs, Owner Declares

Chicago — (AP) — The Chicago Cubs may be wallowing in red ink as well as the lower National League strata, but owner Phil Wrigley isn't planning to sell out, nor will he try night baseball at Wrigley Field as a tonic.

T club Wednesday disclosed a 1953 operating loss of $410,000. However, this reflects farm system maintenance as well as an attendance slump.

Wrigley said Thursday last year's loss actually could be scaled down to $209,000 by reckoning carry-over reserves and tax refunds.

He replied "no" when asked if he might not be tempted to sell his seventh-place team.

"No, I'm trying to get a winner," said Wrigley. "We released those figures because the public thinks the Cubs make money, win or lose."

"I hope some of the fans will realize that the money they pay at the gate really comes nowhere near matching the money it requires to put a major league team on the field. The concessions and radio-TV carry much of the load."

Lattner Says "Interested" In Pittsburgh

Chicago — (AP) — Halfback Johnny Lattner of Notre Dame says he is interested in playing with Pittsburgh Steelers who drafted him Thursday, but will have to study salary terms. Two Canadian football teams are reportedly seeking his services.

Lattner, 21, said Steelers officials called him after his selection, but no terms were mentioned.

"Pittsburgh is a nice town and I'd like to play for the Steelers," said the versatile all-America player.

However, he said he would confer with a South Bend, Ind., acquaintance, Julius Tucker, who has served as "agent without fee" for other Notre Dame players turning pro.

Last Saturday Tucker said Ottawa Rough Riders and British Columbia Lions sought to sign Lattner and that the National Football League team which drafted him must "at least match their offers."

Cards Buy Walsh From Hollywood

St. Louis — (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals Thursday bought right-hander Jim Walsh, top pitcher last season for Hollywood Stars in the Pacific Coast League.

The purchase price was not announced but the deal hinges on whether the Cards keep him.

Manager Eddie Stanky said he would go off the Cardinals' active list to make room for Walsh.

Stanky, an infielder, started his major league career with Chicago Cubs in 1943. Walsh had 16 victories and nine defeats in 1953.

In the first game, Windsor Rockettes, defending E. T. ladies' champions will take on the Lennoxville girls team. Their last time out, Lennoxville Grads dropped Sherbrooke Athletics, 49-42, to tie the Independents for the league leadership. Independents' last game was an exhibition against Butterfield Basks at the Boundary, which the Sherbrooke quintet lost by 66-53.

Both teams will be out trying to take sole possession of the top spot in the League lead and Windsor Rockettes will be out to preserve their unbeaten mark this season against the ladies from Lennoxville.

Red Wings Rally With Two Third Period Goals To Tie Rangers 3-3

Detroit — (AP) — Detroit Red Wings played fumbling, disorganized hockey for the first 50 minutes, then snapped to life in the last 10 minutes last night and tied New York Rangers 3-3 on goals by Marty Pavelich and Marcel Pronovost.

Led by Wally Hergesheimer, who scored twice, the Rangers held a 3-1 lead after two periods. They seemed headed for their second straight victory over the Red Wings at Olympia Stadium, as goalie Johnny Bower was handling everything the Detroiters poured at him.

But his brilliant defence crumbled in the final 10 minutes when Pavelich jumped from the penalty box, took a pass from Gordie Howe and scored a 10-footer. That was at 11:49.

Less than two minutes later, at 13:42, Pronovost split the Ranger defence and converted a pass from Johnny Wilson.

The tie hurt the Rangers' chances of gaining a playoff berth. They fell three points behind the fourth-place Boston Bruins, who defeated Chicago Black Hawks last night, 3-2.

The victory, meanwhile, boosted Detroit's lead over Montreal to four points.

Nick Mickoski opened New York scoring after only 1:13, drilling a 35-footer over the glove of Wing goalie Terry Sawchuk. In the second period, Hergesheimer scored his 21st and 22nd goals of the season. In between these, Dutch Reibel scored on a close-up shot for Detroit's first goal.

Attendance was 11,378.
