Bill passes second reading

Money pumped into jobless fund

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Thursday night won the first round in the battle to keep the unemployment insurance fund from running out of money.

With New Democrat and Social Credit support it pushed through second reading a bill lifting the ceiling on how much money the government can make available to the unemployment insurance fund. Failure to get it passed by early next month could leave the fund without enough money to make payments to the jobless.

NDP and Social Credit members combined with the government to raise 139 votes against the 92 for the Conservatives.

The vote sent to the House manpower committee for detailed study a bill to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act. The government wishes to remove the $800-million ceiling set by legislation for government contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) for payment of benefits.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand will start debate today on a bill to extend the partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

Debate of the unemployment insurance amendment consumed two days, during which the Conservatives pressed their view that the government wants to remove the ceiling to make legal two governor-general's warrants totalling $454 million issued by the cabinet late last year.

USED FOR PAYMENTS

The warrants, issued after the previous Parliament was dissolved in August, were used to make payments to unforeseen numbers of people receiving unemployment insurance.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) said the government was looking for a blank cheque to cover up its inefficiencies.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) warned that accepting the amendment "means that the government has $454 million with which to woo more parliamentary support from NDP members."

Much of the debate revolved around three intricate amendments framed by the Conservatives to get the bill thrown out of the House. The Speaker ruled all three out of order.

Former manpower minister Bryce Mackasey, who helped originate much of the unemployment insurance legislation, poured fire on the Conservatives Thursday.

Desk-thumpers on the government side of the House underlined his every point as he lambasted the Conservatives for wanting to water down the legislation.

DON'T NEED THEM

Calling at the top of his voice, with an arm pointing in accusation at the opposition benches, Mr. Mackasey said: "Don't vote for it. We don't need your support; we don't want your support."

The uproar subsided after several minutes.

Mr. Mackasey confessed he might have made a "bad error in judgment" in not advising the cabinet soon enough before the last Parliament ended that the UIC was running short of money.

The Conservatives charged that cabinet knew full well it would have to exceed the $800-million ceiling but preferred to wait for the dissolution of Parliament to get the money through cabinet order.

Justice Minister Otto Lang said the UIC will run out of money Feb. 4 unless the ceiling is lifted. The Conservatives gave assurance they would not allow the fund to run dry. The NDP indicated support for the government early in the debate.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie told the House he expects Canada-United States trade negotiations to resume in a few weeks.

NO DETAILS

The talks will aim at resolving some of the irritants between the two countries, he said. He did not reply directly to a request by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield for an outline of the irritants.

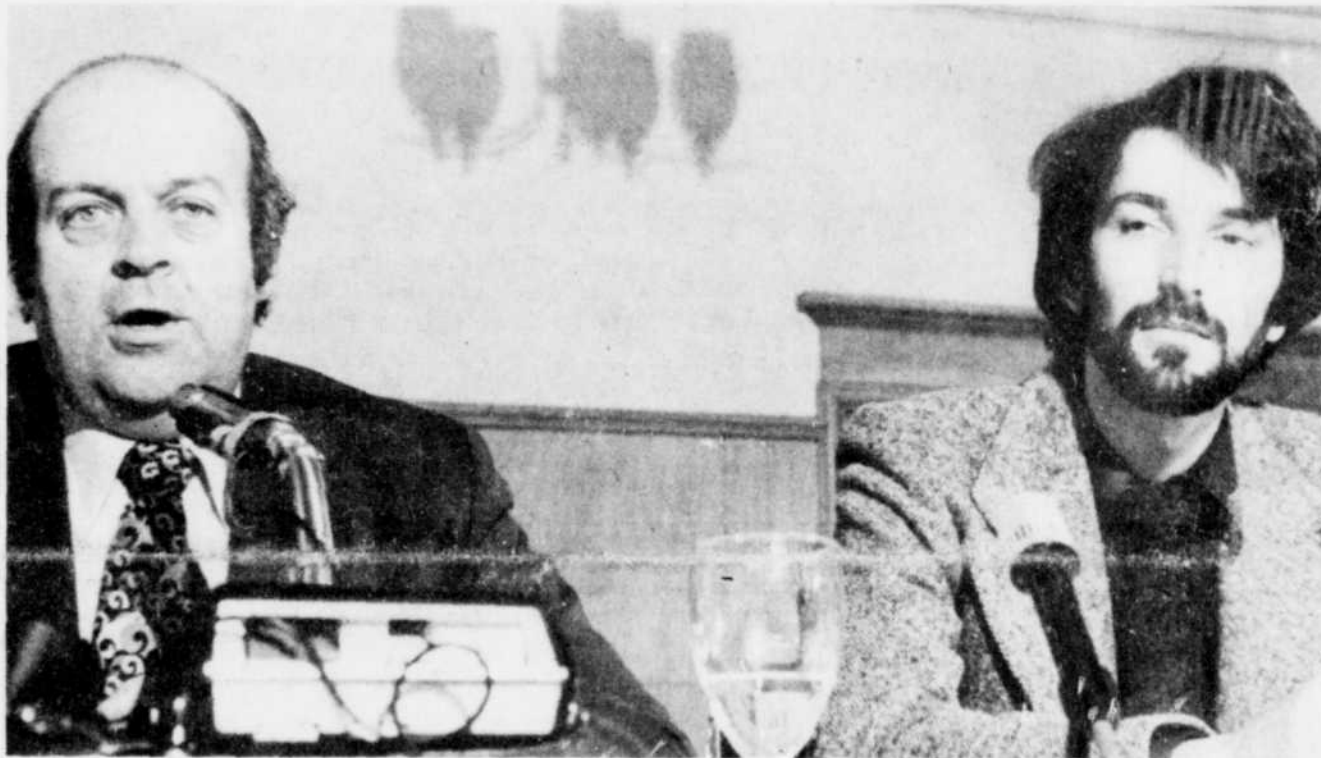

Communication Minister Gerard Pelletier, also looking to the U.S., said Canada's Anik 1 telecommunications satellite will extend service to certain U.S. companies. Anik 1 was launched by Telesat Canada Ltd., which is 60-per cent owned by the Canadian people through the government.

The satellite will bring telephone and television services to Canada's North.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) said he would like more assurance that U.S. companies will not be given channels needed by Canadians.

Mr. Pelletier said Canadian interests will have priority over those of the U.S.

Poverty a major problem here

CONSULTATION BEGINS — Jean-Jacques Lafontaine, president of the Regional Development Council, addresses journalists and other interested persons during the unveiling of the White paper on the development of the Eastern Townships. According to the president consultation is just beginning with the population. On his right is Jean Chertier, information officer for the RDC. For story, see p. 3.

●SHERBROOKE (AR) — Poverty is the major social problem in the Eastern Townships, according to the White Paper on the future orientation of the area.

●Out of a population of 225,000 anywhere between 45,000 and 55,000 are living below the poverty line established by the Castonguay-Nepveu Commission, the report said.

●The situation is particularly serious in the counties of Stanstead, Compton, Wolfe and Frontenac, areas which are far down the list of per capita incomes in Quebec.

●Some 7,200 welfare recipients lived in the region, a figure which rises to about 20,000 when their dependents are included in the total. In addition the Eastern Townships had approximately 6,000 unemployed in 1971, a figure which does not indicate important seasonal fluctuations.

●An alarming aspect of the unemployment picture, according to the White Paper, is that about 40 per cent of the jobless are under the age of 25.

●The document points out that a large number of the poor are old-age pensioners. Although their incomes are above the official poverty line, the study underlines that pensioners have several special problems which place them in a precarious social position.

●The fourth group at or below the poverty fringe are the low-income wage earners. Social aid officials note that there are as many poor workers as there are inactive poor.

●The White Paper recognizes that there are two methods of combatting poverty — attacking its effects or attacking its causes. It is clearly stated in the report that the White Paper was not intended to treat the first strategy because it had no mandate.

●This position brings the study's editors to a very important statement:

●The White Paper is a document which treats economic development and use of land space as solutions to the poverty dilemma of the region.

As ceasefire approaches

Attacks increase in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Attacks throughout South Vietnam increased Thursday, casualties multiplied on both sides, and a North Vietnamese shore battery damaged a United States warship as Saturday's ceasefire drew nearer.

Communist command units launched 112 attacks against government positions and civilian centres during the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. Thursday, the South Vietnamese military command said.

The bulk of the attacks were indirect fire by rockets and mortars, the command reported. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong strikes were the highest number reported since Jan. 3, when there were 116.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hein, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, said the Communist forces were trying to establish as much control as possible over land and people before the ceasefire goes into effect.

The spokesman said most of the attacks were in the Mekong Delta, where one-third of South Vietnam's 17.5 million people live. The delta is the nation's rice belt, and also is rich in other agricultural products.

REPORT CASUALTIES

During the one-day reporting period from 6 a.m. Wednesday to 6 a.m. Thursday, Hien said 58 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 282 wounded. North Vietnamese forces and Viet Cong troops had 242 killed in the same period, Hien claimed.

No American casualties were reported in the intensified ground action, but the U.S. 7th Fleet reported that the guided-missile frigate Preble was hit by one round of shrapnel from four other rounds from a North Vietnamese shore battery while operating off the coast of Vietnam Wednesday.

U.S. tactical fighter-bombers flew 298 strikes during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Thursday, the U.S. Command reported, while South Vietnamese pilots flew 196 strikes in jet and propeller-driven planes.

Drought poses hunger, death

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Drought is threatening India with starvation and death.

Although the government denies that anyone has died from hunger, the dry rivers and fields point to a crisis deepening by the day.

As millions of farmers are recruited in drought relief schemes, thousands of others are moving from farms into choked towns.

Tens of thousands of cattle are dying because of lack of water and feed.

Officials acknowledge that 200 million persons—more than one-third of the total 570 million population—have been hit by the drought, one of the worst in years.

International relief workers say conditions in the western state of Maharashtra are worse than those at the peak of the disastrous Bihar famine of 1967.

The experts agree that the most harrowing period is yet to come. India must wait another five months before the monsoons are due to break.

In Cambodia, military sources said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops attacked a Cambodian government outpost near the Mekong river town of Rorak Kong, 23 miles upstream from the capital, Wednesday night.

They reported government losses as two killed and nine wounded, including six villagers. Enemy casualties were not known.

Three nearby positions also were attacked resulting in 12 Cambodians wounded, the informants added.

The drought has forced India to resume costly grain imports. Last August Agriculture Minister Fakrudin Ali Ahmed predicted record grain production and concluded that no imports would be required.

Since then his hopes have evaporated. Government food stocks are declining rapidly. Officials estimate that 1972-73 grain production may drop to 100 million tons, about 18 million tons below target, but international experts figure that even this forecast is over-optimistic.

Meanwhile, the population continues to increase at a rate of about 1,500 an hour or 13 million a year.

The experts figure that somehow India will muddle through with the help of more imported food but, if that fails, few persons care to think of the consequences.

One expert from a major development agency commented: "Things will become very, very serious. There will be regional famine and epidemics on a vast scale."

Johnson laid to rest in Texas

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — Former president Lyndon B. Johnson was laid to rest Thursday in the ranch cemetery where his family members have been buried for three-quarters of a century.

It was a dismal afternoon, with rain falling and the threat of snow, but just before the ceremonies the skies began to clear somewhat. The ground was churned to mud by those who came to pay homage.

"Here amidst these familiar hills and under these expansive skies his earthly life has come full circle," said evangelist Billy Graham, one of Johnson's favorite ministers, in a eulogy.

"No one could ever understand Lyndon Johnson unless they understood the land and the people from which he came. His roots were deep in this hill country. They were also deep in the religious heritage of this country."

Johnson, 64, was fatally stricken Monday at the ranch house, a quarter-mile from the cemetery where he was buried.

John Connally, long a personal friend of the former president and secretary of the navy under President John Kennedy and secretary of the treasury under President Richard Nixon, also gave a eulogy.

IRONY SEEN

"It seems ironic on this day," said Connally, "that his predecessors began the war in Southeast Asia and his successor ended it."

"It was his fate to be the bridge over the intervening chasm of conflict that swept this country and the world. But he accepted that role without flinching, and no one would be happier today, no one would be more appreciative of the beginnings of peace and the president who achieved it, than the president who worked so long and so unselfishly for the tranquility that eluded him."

Earlier Thursday in Washington services, close friend Marvin Watson said in his eulogy: "The years will be lonely without him."

Among those who flew to Austin from Washington and drove to the cemetery by bus were Senators Hubert Humphrey, George McGovern, Henry Jackson, Warren Magnuson, Edward Kennedy, Edmund Muskie and Strom Thurmond. Dr. Graham told the mourners at graveside that to Johnson "the Great Society was not a wild dream but a realistic hope."

Law forces Thalidomide victims to take action in U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — A lawyer representing 18 Quebec thalidomide victims said Thursday the company that manufactured the drug has refused to negotiate settlements with his clients equal to United States settlements and Quebec law is forcing him to take the Quebec cases to a U.S. court.

Arthur Raynes of Philadelphia said in an interview he will launch a suit Monday in a New Jersey court against Richardson-Merrell Inc. on behalf of Denis Henry, a Montreal-area thalidomide victim.

Mr. Raynes said that claims for compensation must be made within a year in Quebec, but this law does not apply in the U.S. Richardson-Merrell Inc. has headquarters in Chicago.

The firm's Canadian branch mailed letters Wednesday to parents of children who may have legal claims on the company.

Mr. Raynes said that as far as he knew Quebec was the only province in Canada with known thalidomide cases. About 35 Quebec children were born crippled, some without arms and legs, after their mothers took the tranquilizing drug during pregnancy in the 11 months it was sold from April, 1961, to March, 1962.

Collin Irving, Quebec counsel for Richardson-Merrell Canada Ltd., said the company could not consider settlement of the claims for compensation "until we know the facts."

He said Mr. Raynes wrote the company last year and said he represented 12 Quebec families whose names he provided.

"Since then, with the exception of one case, he has given us no further information," Mr. Irving said in an interview.

"Mr. Raynes has been advised that we would need to know the cases' medical history, whether it was our drug which was involved, and the circumstances of the drug being taken before we would do anything further."

Canadian soldiers muster in Montreal

OTTAWA (CP) — As Canadian forces personnel mustered in Montreal for observer duty in Vietnam, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp met U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers Thursday to discuss Canada's role in the coming peace.

Mr. Sharp told reporters after his one-day trip to Washington that he sought clarification of the protocol setting up the four-country observer group, but "I didn't learn anything very new."

The minister added that the discussion with Mr. Rogers confirmed his own understanding of what the Vietnam peace agreement would mean for Canada.

He said Mr. Rogers told him there should be no hitch in the plan to sign the peace package in Paris Saturday.

Invitations for Canadian participation received in Ottawa Thursday from the combatants. If all goes as planned in Paris Saturday, Mr. Sharp said he expected the first flight of Canadian observers to leave Sunday.

Defence Minister James Richardson said 153 Canadians will leave on the first Canadian forces plane. About 130 of that group will be military men, the rest external affairs department officials and reporters.

'DUCK' HE WARNS

He stressed again that the Canadians will be unarmed observers. His advice to the men in case they are shot at:

"Duck."

Mr. Sharp said the Canadian contingent, which eventually will number about 290, will be led by an external affairs department officer.

Canada and the other three members of the supervisory group, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia, will take turns providing a chairman, Mr. Sharp said.

The external affairs minister expressed satisfaction with the groundrules set out by the protocol establishing the observer group.

Unanimity will be required for group reports, but individual members will be free to report their own findings. "I don't think it would be reasonable to expect much better."

He said the group will report to the four combatants, at least for the first 30 days, after which an international conference is to be held.

After that, Mr. Sharp said, he would like to see the United Nations security council take responsibility for overseeing the ceasefire.

Mr. Sharp did not indicate whether another Canadian request has been met: that proceedings of the observer group be public.

As for the chances of peace in South Vietnam after the ceasefire, Mr. Sharp said it is the hope of everyone that all sides are war-weary.

Hostages held in hold-up

MONTREAL (CP) — An elementary school was evacuated, several persons briefly held hostage, a man injured and a car stolen following a bank robbery in suburban Beaconsfield Thursday.

The action started in the early afternoon after police set up an ambush outside a Royal Bank of Canada branch after spotting the bandits entering the bank.

As the bandits left the bank, they spotted the police hiding behind cars in the bank parking lot. The robbers opened fire with an automatic weapon then retreated to the back of the bank taking two employees and a customer as hostage.

They broke through a rear door, and leaving their hostages behind, ran over a snow-covered field toward an elementary school where they accosted a man, injuring him slightly and seizing his car keys.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Low Blood Sugar Can Be Controlled

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I feel compelled to write after reading your recent articles on low blood sugar. This disorder has colored much of my life. One doctor removed my appendix in hopes of reducing chronic stomach discomfort and the appendix was healthy. I have been hospitalized four times and consulted with two psychiatrists, and have been subjected to sleep treatments as well.

My most traumatic experience occurred 10 years ago after I had been 11 years in religious teaching in the Order of Franciscan Monks. I had my most serious bouts of what I now know was low blood sugar and was hospitalized. My worst experiences occurred when I ate too little or the wrong things.

One doctor tested me for low blood sugar but only did a three-hour test, maintaining that it wasn't necessary to do a longer sugar tolerance test. As you would know, the findings were in the normal range. Later I went to an excellent clinic and they gave me a sugar tolerance test for a much longer period and the low blood sugar was significant during the fourth hour. I wanted to write and suggest that anybody who has this problem and is tested for it should be wary of a short test. They should have one that is at least four hours long.

To make a long story short, after my diagnosis and proper arrangement of my eating habits, I am through with years of sedative type medicines and pill popping. I am beginning to feel like a human being again. I am in love with living and my job. I even like myself and look forward to the next half century with great anticipation.

Dear Reader—Thank you for sharing your experience with others. It is true that most cases of low blood sugar or hypoglycemia require at least a four-hour and sometimes a six-hour test. Of course, if a serious episode of low blood sugar occurs early in the test, it is not necessary to continue the procedure.

Although many cases of low blood sugar are caused by living habits, including improper diet, there are rare cases caused by other problems. To detect these sometimes longer tests are needed. Low blood sugar and many other problems that people experience are often related to some of their living habits particularly diet and can frequently be corrected. When this is true, this is a much better approach than administering medicines and not correcting the underlying problem. Many of the people who have a dietary problem do very well on a diet which restricts the amount of sugar and starchy foods with an increase in the portion of their diet from proteins and some fat. More frequent small meals often help some individuals too.

Not all cases of low blood sugar are caused by diet. Some people can't absorb food properly from the digestive tract. Emotional factors contribute to the cause in some instances. Prolonged fasting and physical exhaustion can also be a cause. One should not assume the problem is low blood sugar until a proper medical evaluation.

St. James ACW

BEDFORD — A short business meeting of St. James Anglican Women was held in the parish hall, with Mrs. Harry Jones in the Chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, as was the treasurer's report. Money was voted for the hospitality convenor. There being no further business, the meeting adjourned after the saying of the Grace.

People then were given the opportunity to listen to Mrs. George Palmer give a talk on Taiwan. Mr. Palmer showed slides taken during their stay in that country. They were able to visit many places on tours organized by the YWCA, such as museums, shrines, various boats and army bases, as well as the British Consulate which is no longer there. There is no Anglican Church that they could find there, but they were able to use a non-denominational chapel at one of the bases.

Standards in Taiwan are very different from here. They are very poor by our standards, but material things are not important to them. They feel a little discomfort makes them better people. They are a happy, family-loving people. There is no unemployment in Taiwan, nor are there any unions.

The Palmers brought a number of vases, wall hangings, jewellery, etc. for people to see. Mrs. Harry Jones introduced them, and Mrs. R.S. McIntosh thanked them for a very interesting talk, as well as the lovely slides.

Coffee and refreshments brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

South led that hold; won the diamond continuation and promptly laid down the ace of hearts. West's queen fell and South came to the conclusion that the queen had been a singleton. With four spades and king-queen of hearts, West would surely have found a two-spade call.

This didn't worry South. He could get to dummy with the ace of clubs and lead a trump from dummy to hold his trump losses to one. Then if the queen of clubs would fall on a second club lead South would make his contract.

West's failure to bid two spades was an example of why some people lose at bridge. His hand was worthless in defense against hearts and had tremendous potential as dummy at a spade contract. In fact there was enough potential so that with the spade finesse working East would have wrapped up a spade game.

Then to add insult to injury, South managed to bring home his four-heart contract.

South went right up with dummy's king of spades to encourage a continuation of the suit, but East was too smart for that. He took his

South decided that this was a hand where clubs would break 3-1. He led a club; took a first round finesse with dummy's jack and proceeded to make his game.

White Paper document tabled by Tessier

Economic study urges special zone status for Sherbrooke

By ALEX RADMANOVICH
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — The White Paper on the development of the Eastern Townships, released Thursday, recommends that a part of the area, including the city of Sherbrooke, be declared a special zone.

Maurice Tessier, minister of municipal affairs and also the minister in charge of economic region No. 5, launched the study during an afternoon press conference. Two other bodies, the Eastern Townships Regional Development Council and a group of researchers from the University of Sherbrooke were also involved in editing the final version of the document.

Two years in the making, the 300-page document also suggests that a regional, industrial park must be equipped in the Sherbrooke area within the briefest possible delay. The report strongly endorses the economic potential of Sherbrooke as an industrial satellite for Montreal.

On a regional level, the study offers three broad recommendations for the future orientation of economic activity. It recommends firstly that tourism offers the greatest possibility for development.

The study also underlines the importance of converting traditional industry through the choice of policy which favors competitive growth. A third recommendation is that the mining industry be consolidated.

REASONS FOR ALARM

The White Paper revealed a wide spectrum of economic problems which, although typical of many Quebec regions, nevertheless give reason for alarm. Low wages, high unemployment, a stunning rate of poverty and unequal economic activity within the region were but some of the disorders which make the Eastern Townships typical of the worst conditions existing in the province.

In supporting the viability of Sherbrooke and the built-up area surrounding it as an industrialized, urban zone, the researchers assumed that location of industry was determined by extra-economic factors. They went as far as to say that it was desirable for the province to deconcentrate industrial activity — to develop outside the Montreal region.

A further proposition was that the Sherbrooke region was blessed with features which appeal to investors: the presence of the university and medical centre and the proximity to a valuable recreation and tourist zone.

The White Paper maintained that Sherbrooke was the only city in the Eastern Townships with a diversified economy necessary to sustain major industrialization. Essentially, the document pleaded a case for including centres like Sherbrooke, Three Rivers and Quebec City in an industrial and urban province.

DISPARITY EVERYWHERE
In the analysis of the Eastern Townships economy and population distribution, the overwhelming conclusion was that great disparity between regions was in existence.

Statistics showed that only Sherbrooke county recorded a population increase in the last several years. Compton, Frontenac and Wolfe experienced among the highest declines in Quebec while Richmond and Stanstead have begun to taper off in the last decade.

The White Paper demonstrates further that in the Eastern Townships there are urban centres of medium size. In light of these findings the document concludes that, barring economic factors, the city of Sherbrooke will continue to grow in importance. The study also shows that 83 per cent of the people migrating to urban centres between 1961-66 were under 25 years of age.

A major reason for the mass exodus, according to the report, is the gradual decline in traditional industries such as pulp and paper, textiles and clothing.

An interesting aspect of the White Paper is that many of the recommendations appear to contradict current government policy, both on the provincial and federal level.

TEXTILES A PROBLEM
One notable example is the document's proposed solution for the ailing textile industry which is a major employer in the Eastern Townships.

The White Paper suggested that rather than keeping out imports through high tariffs, as is the present case, the federal government should give direct subsidies to the companies involved. The report contended that consumer loss under the present policy is equal to giving each worker a yearly subsidy of $5,000 to stay at home.

While the recommendations of the White Paper are significant, questions from the French-language press indicated that the omissions were as important. Mr. Tessier was repeatedly faced with the question of what happened to the government study on the asbestos industry.

Prepared by a civil servant one year ago, the report was, according to Mr. Tessier, "found unacceptable by the ministry of trade and commerce."

Among other things, the study recommended strongly that Canadian Johns-Manville be forced to transform raw asbestos into final product in the Eastern Townships.

"NO PRESSURE"
Faced by a continuous barrage of questions on the subject, Mr. Tessier affirmed constantly that no pressure was brought to bear on the government by the company.

"There was no pressure by the company," he said, "only consultation. I assure you that there is nothing sinister about the decision to drop the asbestos study from the White Paper."

On the other hand, the president of the Regional Development Council, Jean-Jacques Lafontaine, insisted that Canadian Johns-Manville applied strong pressure.

"There were pressures which only a powerful company can apply," he alleged. Mr. Lafontaine is a prominent union leader in the Eastern Townships.

Study provokes confrontation

SHERBROOKE (AR) — A sharp exchange of opinion between Serge Racine and Jean-Jacques Lafontaine highlighted Thursday's press conference launching the White Paper on the development of the Eastern Townships.

Mr. Racine, objecting to several statements made by the president of the Regional Development Council (RDC), challenged Mr. Lafontaine to reveal his objectives in light of the recommendations contained in the document.

The RDC president prefaced his portion of the question-and-answer period with journalists with the remark: "We (RDC) deplore the fact that the White Paper does not include recommendations about the social sector."

Mr. Lafontaine went on to explain the consultation process which will follow the release of the document. An important element in these discussions with the population, he said, would be debate on social aspects of future economic development.

Continuing his address, the prominent union leader appeared to discredit the value of a regional industrial park, suggesting that the repercussions on the quality of life would be less than desirable. Mr. Lafontaine further emphasized the need to improve the social position of Eastern Townships citizens.

Once head of the University of Sherbrooke research team which did the studies for the White Paper and now director-general for the city, Mr. Racine did not allow the RDC president to go unchallenged.

The director-general wondered aloud whether the speaker had not overstepped his jurisdiction in view of the mandate assigned to the study and the role of his organization. The RDC is an intermediary between the government and the people.

"You are compromising certain things which are coming and perhaps endangering some negotiations presently underway," he told Mr. Lafontaine. Speculation is that the city is near an agreement with the superior governments on the long-awaited special zone and industrial park, explaining Mr. Racine's remarks.

Even Maurice Tessier, the minister of municipal affairs, said that the Quebec Planning and Development Office was presently in consultation with the federal government about "something important for the region."

When he faced repeated questions on the proposed industrial zone, Mr. Lafontaine finally declared: "If the industrial park is the answer to our problems, then I have no objections to it."

Asked whether an economic solution was the best presently available to solve the social problems of the region, the RDC president stated that he did not know.

The Irish problem: no easy solution

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — While the Canadian government and mass media have reflected British policies in Northern Ireland sympathetically, a more harmful image of British activities in the strife-torn nation is being projected in Europe according to Jeremy Craig, first secretary of the Irish Embassy in Ottawa, and guest speaker at a meeting of the Sherbrooke branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs yesterday evening.

"Canada has tended to go along with British policies maintaining that it is an internal affair," Mr. Craig explained.

"When Anglo-Irish relations were at their worst in February 1972, Dr. Hillary, Irish foreign minister, visited Ottawa and requested minister Mitchell Sharp to use his influence with the British government to persuade them to moderate their policies. But the minister refused to intervene because it was considered that the problem was an internal one within the United Kingdom.

"With the entry of both Ireland and Britain into the European common market, the British government has been very concerned with its image in Europe which is being harmed by the activities in Northern Ireland," Mr. Craig added.

He cited this as one of the reasons why Britain has developed a more flexible attitude toward the Irish predicament. Another factor which, he suggested, might have initiated the change in British policy was the immense difficulties encountered when Britain took direct control and realized the sizeable number in favor of Irish unity.

REJECTS PROPOSAL

Mr. Craig rejected the proposal of Northern Ireland's Social Democrat and Labor parties, made up mainly of Catholics, who suggest a condominium — a local government under the power of both the Republic of Ireland and Britain.

"The Irish government would like to see a united Ireland but only over a period of time," the diplomat explained. "We realize that 30 years of history cannot be abolished in a short time."

At present, the Irish government favors a coalition government made up of both unionist and nationalist elements in Northern Ireland but still under British rule. Decisions would only be made if they were unanimously agreed upon which, it is felt, would provide opportunities for both parties to work together under British rule.

With the emphasis on a gradual move toward unity of the two Irelands, the Irish government is strongly opposed to the activities of the Irish Republican Army.

Mr. Craig claimed that in addition to declaring it illegal to be a member of the organization, the government had arrested over 100 people for illegal possession of firearms and had extradited several IRA members.

NO POLITICAL REFUGE

"The government has denied all allegations that members of the IRA are being given political refuge in Southern Ireland," Mr. Craig asserted.

He explained that the Irish government faced several difficulties. One is that although the government might know who IRA members are, there are great problems in proving it. The other is that an individual cannot be extradited for political acts and it is up to the court to decide whether the act was political or criminal.

"Different courts interpret whether an act is criminal or political in different ways," he commented.

However, the prospect of a united Ireland is wanted by most Catholics in Northern Ireland despite the feeling of the Republic of Ireland government that it must be approached in a gradual way to allay fears in the protestant community that "no rule is Rome rule."

DO NOT SUFFER

The first secretary for the Irish Embassy claimed that the protestant community in the Republic of Ireland, which makes up five per cent of the population, do not suffer from discrimination, retained their own schools and other institutions and were not sensitive to religion.

Asked about the economic effects on Northern Ireland — should national unity be achieved, Mr. Craig said that while separation from Britain would be detrimental to the Northern Irish economy — at present, Northern Ireland is receiving subsidies from Britain totalling 200 million dollars — the economic disadvantages would lessen as both Britain and Ireland became more dependent on the European Common Market.

"Ireland is looking outward toward Europe now and as the old idea of Queen and Empire begins to fade, Irish unity will come to seem a much more valid opportunity than it did in the past," Mr. Craig contended.

He admitted also that Irish unity would mean a decrease in social welfare benefits for the Northern Irish. At present, the population of Northern Ireland benefits from the same complete welfare state system available in Britain.

In Southern Ireland welfare benefits are more limited and free health services are only available to those in a lower income bracket. Mr. Craig said, however, that the disparity between the two welfare systems had been substantially narrowed in the past six years.

Jeremy Craig, 30, has been the first secretary of the Irish Embassy in Ottawa since May 1972. Previously he was with the Irish Embassy in Washington and with the diplomatic service in Dublin.

He is a graduate in History and Political Science from the University of Dublin.

$129,000 here

SHERBROOKE (WM) — Federal government grants for five new local initiative projects in the Sherbrooke area were announced yesterday by Irene Pelletier, federal member of parliament for Sherbrooke. These five grants totalling $129,000 are expected to create employment for 36 people.

Including the grant of $950,000 for 27 projects which was announced last week, this brings the total amount in local initiative grants for the Sherbrooke area to over $1 million and the number of projects to 32. The number of people who will be provided jobs through these projects is approximately 336.

The largest grant announced yesterday is $52,000 which is to be used to paint the interior of the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital in Sherbrooke. Also in Sherbrooke, $33,000 was awarded to set up a consumer protection office, and $23,000 for a group of handicapped students.

Ascot Township, near Sherbrooke will receive a local initiative grant of $10,000 for community leisure and recreation services and Mont Ste. Anne has received $11,000 for a new skating rink.

Two or three more local initiative project grants for the Sherbrooke area could be announced within the next two weeks, Mr. Pelletier added.

IRENE PELLETIER

The Sherbrooke MP also announced that he had been named to serve on three committees in the house of commons — the committee for regional development, the committee for external affairs and the committee for internal business.

He also commented that a committee had been set up to study the rising prices of food. This committee will start work next week.

Demolition permit issued

SHERBROOKE (WM) — The permit for demolition of the New Sherbrooke Hotel requested by the owners last week will be issued today and demolition is expected to be completed within two months, city building inspector, Normand Gauthier, said yesterday.

City of Sherbrooke councillors were concerned last week about the ruins of the burnt-out hotel being a public danger and demanded the start of demolition within five days.

The hotel was destroyed by a fire in which one person died in November 1972. The cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

End of an era

WASHINGTON (AP) — Through a tortured decade, the political dialogue in the United States Congress, in election campaigns—and at times in the streets—has been shadowed by the issue of war in Vietnam.

It has been a factor in the making, and the unmaking, of presidents.

It has etched upon Congress divisions at times sharper than those of party affiliation. Hawk and dove sometimes became labels with more meaning than Republican and Democrat.

It was behind what came to be called the credibility gap between government and the people.

It was the reason that thousands upon thousands of demonstrators paraded in Washington, wrought turmoil at the Democratic national convention in Chicago five years ago, rallied almost on the eve of settlement as President Nixon was inaugurated to a second term.

DISPUTES CONTINUE

With the settlement that is to be signed in Paris Saturday, the issue of war appears to be done, but the disputes it spawned will not go away.

There is likely to be lingering debate about the terms and the timing of peace. There is some talk in Congress of legislation to bar any re-entry of U.S. forces. And there is legislation, supported by a majority of the Senate, to define specifically the conditions under which a president can in the future commit U.S. forces abroad.

It is clear that Congress will not again, as in the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution, vote to empower any president to take all measures he deems necessary in a situation such as that in Vietnam.

Like the war itself, the issue escalated gradually during the decade. It was a topic in three presidential campaigns, and may have been the pivotal one in 1968, when President Nixon was first elected.

DIVIDES PARTY

The Democratic party was divided over the war and the turmoil of its Chicago convention.

President Johnson, challenged for renomination on the war issue, had renounced candidacy for a second full term.

Only four years before, he had won the greatest of popular-vote landslides over Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater. In that campaign, Johnson had said he was not about to send American boys "to do what Asian boys ought to be doing for themselves."

That produced a bitter Republican joke: "They told me if I voted for Goldwater we'd have a half million men in Vietnam. I did and we do."

Senator George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee Nixon defeated in 1972, was a man who first came to prominence as an advocate of U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

Johnson died Monday night, on the eve of Nixon's settlement announcement.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal La Presse: Good things are willingly misused, while bad things rarely are. If there was misuse of unemployment insurance, it was probably proof that it was good. Some even found it too good.

Canadians can still remember that before the law was previously amended, maximum weekly benefits did not exceed $53 while the minimum was $9. Today these benefits can reach 75 per cent of an unemployed's average income.

It has been noticed recently that the law often leads to misuse—unavoidable misuses undoubtedly.

The restrictions the government wants to implement will make life difficult for defrauders and those unemployed voluntarily. Until now, an employee could willingly quit his job or do something to get fired, or finally, refuse all work not corresponding to his tastes and specialties.

If the restrictions proposed by the government are adopted, all this will become impossible. Whoever loses his job for bad conduct, or quits without valid reason, will not be eligible for unemployment insurance.

Furthermore, whoever is receiving benefits and refuses the job offered to him will no longer be eligible.

Another

—the period an insured will be eligible for benefits—will be limited to 53 weeks instead of 83 weeks.

Finally, from now on the rate of benefits will be 66.23 per cent of a single person's salary, but will remain at 75 per cent for a worker with a dependent.

The trend to quit a job without valid reason seems to be on the increase. Robert Andras has revealed that in 1972, about 260,000 persons in Canada—10 per cent of those getting unemployment insurance—had quit their job without valid reason.

Another curious phenomenon is the increasing number of women registering for unemployment insurance. Of the 64,708 persons unemployed in Montreal last Nov. 30, 25,798 were women, about 5,000 more than in 1971, while the increase for men was only seven per cent compared to 23 per cent for women.

The new amendments will not eliminate all the misuse, but they will surely help to stop the most flagrant and this will be so much the better for taxpayers. —Jean Pelletier (Jan. 19).

Ottawa Le Droit: The proposed modifications to the unemployment insurance system will anger only the parasites and dishonest people. In all other cases, the modifications to correct an incoherent social policy, will bring rejoicing.

Society must pity and help the real unemployed. It owes him help and support, the same as it owes it to the elderly, the poor and the forsaken, but under logical and reasonable laws and not those that constitute an encouragement of laziness.

The scandal of false unemployment is not a state of mind but a tangible reality and an injustice which honest people pay for with their taxes and the price of heavy sacrifices in certain cases. It's time to put an end to the abuses.

When they study the proposed amendments presented by Robert Andras, our legislators will have to examine them closely to assure themselves that they will correct the ills to which they must put an end.

To refuse help to a parasite who quits his job willingly and refuses to look for another is justice but it can be asked whether it will suffice.

It seems the honest worker should also be guaranteed a really decent income.

Unemployment insurance is not an income but a guarantee or a protection against a risk. With the modifications proposed by Mr. Andras, it seems the government has finally understood this, but it took its time.

In the meantime, it will have imposed on Canadian taxpayers for the current fiscal year, an expense of $2.2 billion instead of the forecast $1.1 billion.

If such an expense was part of its idea of social justice, it was clearly in error. Since it has regained its self-control, we are delighted.

However, it is hoped that the modifications will not result in new injustices to the genuinely unemployed. They have a right to our help and support. —Marcel Gignas (Jan. 19).

Quebec Le Soleil: As it was to be expected, a minority government in Ottawa has given way to a rush by provinces, at least a certain number of them, for the federal government revenues.

The federal-provincial conference of finance ministers offers an example. Wealthy provinces are trying to retain more taxation powers, consequently more revenues, in order to reduce redistribution funds aimed for the less-privileged provinces.

It is yet to be seen to what point the provinces themselves will benefit from advantages they hope to acquire from the central government.

If for the provinces, the fiscal system is a way of increasing their revenues, for the central government it is also an instrument of economic control. With taxation powers on individual incomes at its disposal, the central government responsible for economic policy can proceed with reductions or increases in taxation during periods of recession or inflation.

Taxation of individual revenues is the fastest and most direct means of action. When the central government's margin of action in this field is reduced, its efficacy is reduced.

This is a vital preoccupation in federalist systems. In the last 25 years especially, they have not stopped increasing the powers of a central government, the state bringing more and more influence to bear upon economic fluctuations.

Canada has followed an opposite course, particularly in the last 15 years.

Where Canada's development has been different from other federalist systems in industrialized societies, is that jurisdictions once considered local now have become national without always being considered as such.

Such is the case for social security, linked with income security, which is no longer a direct responsibility of municipalities for citizens directly in need.

The day when the central government loses control in this field, it will no longer be able to use income security to stabilize the economy.

The central government will then have become as useless as it is inefficient. Will the provinces be any more ahead? —Gilles Boyer (Jan. 20).

Granby La Voix d'Est: Will Prime Minister Trudeau's leadership be contested by party members at the next Liberal party convention?

It would be surprising. Unless the prime minister himself decided to quit politics, and there is no reason to believe this, the Liberal party will likely confirm his functions.

Is the state in which the federal Liberal party finds itself any different from 1968? It was, at that time, the country's most popular party. Its leader enjoyed an extraordinary support.

However, if Mr. Trudeau has since lost some feathers, it seems he still has enough to keep the confidence of his followers.

There would have to be some very significant changes for the party to consider, seriously at such a critical time in political life, to throw him overboard. There is nothing at this time to foresee such a decision by the convention.

On the contrary, even if the occasion is used to mention certain well-deserved reproaches, his post will be maintained. Mr. Trudeau has no reason to worry. —Roland Gagne (Jan. 19).

An unwieldy peace

By HAROLD MORRISON
CP Foreign Editor

So complicated and unwieldy is the ceasefire structure built by the negotiators that in the end, as in the beginning, the test of whether a lasting peace will ever come to Vietnam depends primarily on the superpowers.

As spelled out by the ceasefire agreement, the multiple structures include a four-party joint military commission to be reduced to a two-party commission; a four-country international commission of control and supervision and a 12-country international conference.

In addition there will be a national council of national reconciliation and concord aimed at what appears at the heart of the Communists' quest—to remove the unrecognized geographic boundary and turn the two Vietnams back into one.

Along that path of national reconciliation there likely will be many shots fired, many bodies found in lonely ditches and many furious charges that each side had breached the peace. Small wonder that External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, in announcing Canadian agreement to participate in the policing for 60 days, said "we have serious doubts" about the ceasefire operation.

LASTS 60 DAYS

The four-party joint military commission, made up of the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong, is designed to function for 60 days when American bases in South Vietnam are to be dismantled, troops withdrawn and captured American prisoners returned.

After that, North Vietnam and the U.S. are to withdraw from this commission which will be turned into a two-party operation by South Vietnam and the Viet Cong. Their big job will be to prepare for the national elections which will determine South Vietnam's political future.

Meanwhile the four-country international commission of control and supervision—the policing body made up of Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary—will be trying to assist in keeping the peace.

They will be watching fixed points for possible violation of restrictions on arms build-ups and ready to report on clashes and other ceasefire breaches. But to get any real action, reports of the four policing countries will have to be unanimous on what they see or who may be the guilty party.

The futile attempt to police Laos demonstrated how difficult it is to get agreement among the policing powers. In this case the four-country policemen will report initially to the four-party joint military commission and later to the two-party commission—a prospect that may bring political shenanigans rather than efforts to punish those considered guilty.

MEETS IN MONTH

Perhaps more serious consideration may be given to the complaints of peace breaches when the 12-country international conference is convened in a month or so.

The peace-keeping force is to report directly to the conference which will include China, the Soviet Union, U.S., France, Britain, as well as the policing members and the Vietnam representatives.

Since it is likely, however, that the super-powers will be juggling for political advantage, complaints of peace breaches may be subjected to political bias. The international conference may turn out to be more than a minuscule United Nations and appropriately the UN Secretary-General, Kurt Waldheim, will be a member.

The conference will be a major test whether the super-powers can co-operate on broad peace policy. Experience suggests that the upshot of such conference meetings is to demonstrate how elusive is the quality of political co-operation.

Meanwhile the Viet Cong and the Saigon officials will be trying to scale the heights to national reconciliation through the national council. South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu has already warned his soldiers to keep a sharp eye and stand by their guns. The old Viet Cong trick of infiltration and intimidation is as strongly feared as ever.

The war is over children!...Children?

Reaction to settlement

China welcomed the agreement to end the Vietnam fighting as a contribution to the relaxation of tensions in Asia and a Moscow politburo member described the pact announced Tuesday night as a victory for North Vietnam.

In Hanoi, loudspeakers that a month ago had been warning of air raids blared out news of a ceasefire to take effect Saturday and the North Vietnamese capital began preparing for its first peaceful lunar new year celebration in years.

The South Vietnamese in Saigon seemed restrained in contrast after hearing word from President Nguyen Van Thieu that their struggle to achieve lasting peace may be more dangerous and difficult than war.

For American soldiers in South Vietnam, President Nixon's announcement Tuesday night that agreement on a ceasefire in the Vietnam war had been reached, it was a time for parties. There was a run on liquor, beer and soft drinks in U.S. canteens.

Leaders around the world hailed the ceasefire agreement but said more effort and goodwill is necessary to make peace lasting.

A Tass dispatch from Hanoi said the street loudspeakers, which had been used to warn of U.S. air raids, were continually broadcasting word of the Vietnam peace agreement and that reconstruction work has begun in North Vietnamese capital.

Markets were filled with goods and decorations were going up for the Tet—lunar new year—celebrations, Tass correspondent Alexander Mineyev said.

"For the first time in years the Vietnamese are sure that the quietness of the holiday will be broken only by firecrackers and not anti-aircraft guns," Mineyev's dispatch from Hanoi said.

In Saigon, some South Vietnamese said they would delay any celebrations until they see whether the Viet Cong adhere to the ceasefire that is to begin Saturday. But others said they were ready to celebrate Tet Feb. 3. Some were wondering whether the South Vietnamese regime would lift its ban on the use of fireworks, traditional at Tet.

In Moscow, politburo member Andrei Kirilenko saw the agreement as a "great victory" for the Vietnamese Communists. The government newspaper Izvestia reported the pact met most of the Communist demands and "the task is now to ensure that the agreement is observed and carried out exactly."

A government spokesman in Poland, which with Canada, Indonesia and Hungary will police the ceasefire, sounded a similar note when he called the agreement "a victory for healthy common sense."

Foreign correspondents in Peking reported that China welcomed the agreement not only in the interest of the Vietnamese and American people, but also as a step toward easing tension in the Far East and Asia in general.

The Chinese expect the war in Cambodia to continue, despite the ceasefire in Vietnam, and also foresee further political struggle between President Nguyen Van Thieu and the Viet Cong guerrillas. Japan's Kyodo news service reported.

Elsewhere in Asia leaders welcomed the agreement as an important first step toward peace.

Reconstruction was also a foremost consideration in other countries.

"We are certainly looking forward to playing our role as Canadians in the reconstruction of that part of Southeast Asia," Prime Minister Trudeau said in Ottawa.

The U.S. is expected to provide the major contribution toward reconstruction. No figure is set in the ceasefire agreement, but the U.S. promised aid to both parts of the country and officials earlier estimated the figure at $7½ billion over a five-year period.

Sweden, a main centre of anti-American demonstrations over Vietnam, switched its political offensive Wednesday to aid projects for the war-damaged country. The government has earmarked $22 million for rebuilding in North Vietnam.

Missisquoi Chapter IODE

BEDFORD — The January meeting of the Missisquoi Chapter IODE was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lennox Ames, the regent who opened the meeting with the Prayer of the Order, after which the minutes of the November meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Ralph Oakes.

February 13 will mark the 73rd birthday of the IODE. The organization was founded in 1900 in Montreal and has spread into every province and territory in Canada. Many are the thankful recipients of help from the chapters. The initials IODE stand for many things to many people. In the far north of Canada among Indians and Eskimo mothers the scattered villages of northern Canada, it has meant the survival of many babies, due to the IODE incubator and layettes. In the middle East, Hong Kong and Korea, IODE stands for new clothing, X-ray equipment, blankets and powdered milk, to students in the Commonwealth and Canada the organization means scholarships, bursaries and special awards. In the West Indies school children have benefited from books, sports equipment and teaching aids. The Ugandan refugees recently arrived in Canada were given a warm welcome and help in the new country, by the IODE.

Eighty-six students applied for the IODE War Memorial scholarships. Fifteen scholarships for post-graduates were awarded at a cost of fifty-six thousand dollars. Each year about a million dollars is raised and spent annually, in addition many hours of voluntary service to hospitals and institutions, "Head Start" and safety programmes.

Junior Chapters have ably contributed to the work in making toys and buying for their new project, T.N.T. (Toys for Northern Tots). Toys and Good Grooming kits are being sent to nursing stations in the far north for small patients who are often far from home.

A float depicting the national scope of the Order was entered in the Grey Cup parade in Hamilton, Ont. This was a new field for the IODE, this modern method of advertising was made possible through donations from chapters across Canada.

DERBY LINE — The AUWUW of the Derby Line Universalist church met for the January meeting at the home of Mrs. Bertha Stevens in Derby Line.

Mrs. Howard Walsh, the president, opened the meeting. Mrs. Stevens gave a reading for What Are We Thankful For. Routine reports were heard and two thank you notes read from persons remembered at Christmas time. Mrs. Walsh read the treasurer's report in the

This year many IODE chapters will celebrate the Order's 73rd birthday with IODE week, this is being done to publicize their chapter work and actively seek new members. Those who are eligible to join are all Canadian women or girls, there is a special category of membership for those who are interested in IODE work and who are not yet Canadian citizens.

An interesting letter was read from a former Missisquoi Chapter member, Mrs. Cyril Chrysler of White Rock, B.C. who was instrumental in the formation of a new Chapter in White Rock, which has at present, twenty-three members. A letter of sympathy was directed to be sent to the family of Mr. Ron, Boula, whose sudden death occurred on December 25.

The semi-annual meeting (provincial) will be held in Longueuil at the Holiday Inn on April 25-26. A letter of thanks was received from Frontier College for the Chapter's donation, Missisquoi Chapter is one of the few chapters who contribute to this very worthwhile cause. Bills for wool and calendars were ordered and paid. A letter of thanks was also received from Cynthia Blakeslee of Stanbridge East, who was the recipient of one of the Chapter's French prizes.

Mrs. Richard Craighead, Social Services, reported sending a box to Montreal, with a value of $145.30, consisting of clothing, socks and baby apparel. A letter was received from the local Red Cross, asking for a donation, which was voted to be sent.

Letters of thanks were read by Mrs. Neil Creller from recipients at Christmas. A sunshine box will be prepared at the next meeting for a member who is ill, donations to be brought to February meeting, to which Mrs. Oakes extended an invitation for members to meet at her home on February 12, when the birthday of the Order will be observed.

Mrs. Creller read a most thought-provoking article on the discrimination and treatment of the Indians and their treatment as second class citizens.

Following the closing of the meeting with the signing of God Save the Queen, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Plans were discussed to have a card party but nothing definite decided upon. The meeting was adjourned and the group worked on clinic capes for the local public nurse. Mrs. James Stevens, Jr. will entertain the February 20 meeting at her home at 8:00 p.m. Mrs. Bertha Stevens and Mrs. Lloyd Gilbert, the hostesses served refreshments.

Marsh World

Ducks Unlimited (Canada)

MASKED RAIDER — The raccoon has earned itself a very shady reputation in duck marshes. Clever and adaptable, this animal has become a major predator of duck nests in many areas. Largely a night hunter, the raccoon is an expert climber and good swimmer. Favored haunts are the vicinity of wet areas such as lakes, rivers, marshes and swamps. A fully grown adult will weigh 15 lbs. or more. In Canada the raccoon ranges from British Columbia eastward into the Maritimes.

Royal drugs commission played very important role

By GLENNIS ZILM
OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on the non-medical use of drugs, which will release its third and final report this spring, has played a much more important role than just information-gathering, says its chairman.

Prof. Gerald LeDain of Toronto, head of the five-member commission, said it has not only observed and recorded and recommended change but has actually been a force in bringing about change in the public's attitudes toward drugs. It had helped make people aware that drugs are only one symptom of a greater social problem that will have to be faced in the 1970s.

"We were part of the social process, you know," he said reflectively during an interview. "We reacted, we felt that we observed it, we influenced it probably to some extent."

Many changes have taken place since the commission was appointed in June, 1969, he said. At that time drugs such as marijuana, hashish (together referred to as cannabis from the plant they come from), LSD, Speed and mescaline were relatively new, frightening and unknown quantities and people could not react logically, only emotionally.

RECONCILED VIEWS
"There's no question that there was in this country a polarization, a very strong and disturbing polarization, of views. In some ways our public hearings might be thought to have sharpened this or emphasized it, but I believe that they had the effect of also dissolving it some extent, to reconciling the views."

There was "considerable confrontation" between individuals and generations, often with shouting, at the public hearings, he said.

But he now feels that there was little knowledge about drugs expressed, either by the generation that wanted to try them or by the generation that was afraid of them.

"We need public occasions for this type of exchange. People needed a chance to say that they felt very deeply."

We could see people learning about other views for the very first time, even from others with whom they had lived."

On the whole, this had a reconciling effect although it often came about through confrontation, he said.

"It was unique in my experience, in all our experiences."

The publication of the interim report, which was released in April, 1970, and has since become a best-seller among drug researchers around the world, also was a part of the social process of change, Prof. LeDain said. This was not entirely accidental, although the commissioners did considerable "soul-searching" over whether they would publish the chapter on effects of drugs.

Among other things, this chapter said little was known about the harmful effects of cannabis and that drugs had been part of the history of all cultures.

BLOW TO SOME
To those who were emotionally opposed to drug use and who had anticipated the commission would take a "straight" position labelling drug use as irresponsible, bad, harmful and possibly even deadly, the chapter came as a blow.

"We saw the interim report as a sounding board," Prof. LeDain said. "But these were not trial balloons... these were our considered, responsible opinions."

Instead, he favored reduction of penalties for use and simple possession.

GOVERNMENT POLICY
In July, John Munro, then health minister, released the government's policy on cannabis. It was closest to the stand taken by Dean Campbell. Mr. Munro said the government could not consider legalizing use of cannabis and repeated the commission's views about the harmful effects of the drugs.

The policy did, however, make legal penalties less strict for first offenders and it removed cannabis from the narcotic control section to a section under food and drugs.

Prof. LeDain called the government's action "a step in the right direction."

Confusion reigns over sex in the West

By JOHN DODD
EDMONTON (CP) — When The Stewardesses and some of their relatives hit town in the West, even governments joined in a merry romp.

The confusion still hasn't been cleared.

The romp started in 1971 when films showing plenty of sex and nudity appeared at a time when standards of what is obscene—and interpretation of laws reflecting these standards—appeared to be changing rapidly. Standards in the West, however, were often different from the East. What might be shown on Yonge Street in Toronto was often forbidden to appear on Jasper Avenue in Edmonton.

Two of the films in the forefront of the invasion were The Stewardesses, supposedly about the off-duty lives of airline stewardesses, and Without A Stitch, whose title explains the contents.

Their effect went much deeper than lineups in front of theatres and indignant letters to the editor.

LED TO CONFLICT
They caused Crown agencies to act in direct opposition to other Crown agencies and were believed to be a factor in one government's decision to re-examine its whole system of film censorship.

What happened, said Judge E. N. Hughes of Saskatoon, was "a classic example of speaking out of both sides of the mouth at the same time."

In Alberta, for example, the censorship board that in 1964 banned Tom Jones passed Without A Stitch with a restricted adult rating. But there were complaints to the police about the film and Odeon Mid-Western Theatres was charged with showing obscene entertainment.

Judge Lucien Maynard of Edmonton dismissed the charges, saying that police action in prosecuting the theatre after the film had been passed by the board was "contrary to the basic, elementary principles of natural justice."

being prosecuted in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

ALLOWED IN B.C.
Without A Stitch, however, played B.C. theatres last summer without incident. A Prince Rupert Famous Players outlet teamed it as a double-bill with Twenty Great Years, the Social Credit party promotional film used during the B.C. provincial election campaign in August.

Provincial governments have appeared anxious in the last few years to get out of their jobs of guardians of public morality.

The same outcry that the commission had not taken a moral stand was heard when the report on cannabis—the second of the final series—was issued in May, 1972. The outcry, however, was not so loud.

Still, this criticism annoys Prof. LeDain.

"We couldn't have been clearer on the moral issue. We did take a stand. Marijuana (and hashish) are harmful."

The commission is fully agreed on this, he said. However, it also agreed that the effects of legal penalties enforced against cannabis users, especially for simple possession of small amounts of the drugs, are much more harmful.

COMMISSION SPLIT
Three of the five commissioners—Prof. LeDain, Dr. Heinz Lehmann of Montreal and social worker Peter Stein of Vancouver—turned in a majority report on cannabis that recommended, among other things, that simple possession of cannabis should be legal. It was on this point the commissioners had a major difference of opinion.

Oddities in the news

WINTHROP, Mass. (CP) — Police, crashing in from all sides, had the right street but the wrong house.

The 15 plainclothes officers shattered the front and back doors of Bill Pine's house and held Mr. Pine, his wife and 13-year-old daughter at gunpoint, says Pine.

But the target of their efforts—a drug source—was next door.

"I sat up in bed and there was a gun at my head," Pine recalls. "And I heard someone say, 'don't move.'"

"I saw the man's eyes and the gun, and all I could think of was the mass killings by the Manson gang in California."

"The confrontation lasted about 15 minutes. I turned around and there was surprise on their faces. They went into full retreat. I heard someone downstairs say 'state police.' My fear turned to rage."

Pine said that one policeman came back and commented:

"Look, I'm sorry we made a mistake."

When police officially announced later the success of their raid next door, they said it capped a 2½-month investigation. They arrested three persons on a variety of drug charges.

However, Mrs. Pine had an unofficial announcement of her own:

"It's unbelievable how they can investigate a case for 2½ months and then knock down the wrong door."

Pine said his landlord repaired their doors—and sent the bill to the police.

CHICAGO (AP) — "You just can't believe how much money $72,000 is until you start counting it in nickels, dimes and quarters."

That's what Chicago police said Saturday after spending more than 13 hours counting nearly $73,000 in small change and $1 bills found in the home of a retired doctor, Reginald H. Smith, 80, who died Friday night.

"It was all over the house," Hager said, "in paper sacks and pillow cases, and some of it was in the dresser drawers."

They found about $2,000 in loose change and the rest in $1 bills.

When he reached the general's headquarters, a staff officer told him the general wanted only to chat about "things in general."

Churchill wrote that as he trudged back to the trenches he cursed the general's stupidity.

But when he reached the trenches, he found that a German shell had hit his dugout 15 minutes after he left, only a few feet from where he had been sitting. It killed a soldier.

The letter describing the escape is one of dozens to be published in full for the first time today in companion volumes to the official Churchill biography by historian Martin Gilbert.

Canadian play at Bish. soon

LENNOXVILLE — Outport, a Canadian play written by Nova Scotia Angus Braid and directed by Professor Thomas Lytle, will be presented in the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre from February 22 to 24.

Set in a Newfoundland fishing village in the early 1950's, it is the story of a family and how their lives are changed by the events of one day. Because of these sudden occurrences, an awareness is suddenly fostered of each individual's relationship to the family and vice versa.

The father, who delivers mail on foot, loses his job because a new road has been built, and the owner of the only vehicle in the village gets the father's job because he can deliver the mail faster.

In direct contrast, the son feels liberated by the new road. A chance to escape the shackles of the town, however, is foiled by his new responsibility of being the family breadwinner.

The daughter assumes the mother's role and is in conflict with her step-mother, who pretends she does not need the family, only to discover by day's end that she can not live without them.

Penetrating into this scene of both joy and sorrow is the father's uncle, "Boot," the family drunk.

Although the public will only see a cast of eight actors on stage, over 30 people are presently working six evenings a week putting together the many elements that make up a successful stage presentation.

Professor Thomas Lytle, the director, is in his third year with the Bishop's University drama department. He is a graduate of the University of Rochester, and the University of Queensland (Australia).

He is presently pursuing doctoral work at the Graduate Centre for the Study of Drama, University of Toronto.

On Friday night January 19 Bishop's hosted their arch-rivals, the Macdonald Clansmen and won 84-75. The win enabled the Gaiters to move into sole possession of second place in the 10-team league.

Bishop's took control of the game early and led 34-17 at the end of the first quarter and 49-34 at the half.

The second half was not as exciting, with Bishop's going ahead by 21 points at the three-quarter mark and the 4th quarter saw most of the bench in action.

Strong games were turned in by Dudgeon, Gagnon and Stevenson defensively and on the boards, and offensively by Haig, Ivy and Dundon.

Worsley retires but Stars' GM 'leaving door open'

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Gump Worsley, veteran National Hockey League goaltender, is retiring from Minnesota North Stars, general manager Wren Blair announced Wednesday.

The 43-year-old goalie has played only 12 games for the North Stars this season while Cesare Maniago has been carrying most of the load with rookie Gilles Gilbert as backup netminder. "He's been a great goaltender and I am very reluctant to accept his wishes," said Blair after a late afternoon meeting with Worsley.

"I am leaving the door open—maybe I can change his mind. I'm not going to send in the voluntary retirement papers just yet."

The 5-foot-7, 180-pound Worsley, one of the last of the unmasked goalies, forged a 6-2-3 won-lost-tied record with the North Stars early this season before suffering a pulled hamstring muscle.

Last Thursday in Philadelphia, the Flyers skated to a 4-0 first-period lead, and North Stars coach Jack Gordon took Worsley out of the nets.

Worsley was acquired by Minnesota from Montreal Canadiens midway through the 1969-70 season after the goalie threatened to retire rather than accept a demotion to Montreal's American Hockey League farm club.

Claude Ruel, then Canadiens coach, had wanted Worsley to play himself back into shape after failing to apply himself in Canadiens practice sessions.

"He was a great asset to the team. As a general manager, it was a privilege to have Gump play for me. I hope he decides to stay in hockey. There is a place for him in our organization."

Blair said he would offer Worsley a scouting position if he could not convince him to change his plans.

The Montreal native started his professional career in 1949 with New Haven of the AHL, and he was named NHL rookie of the year in his first major league season with New York Rangers in 1952-53.

He was traded to Montreal in 1963 and shared the Vezina Trophy for the best-goals-against average in the league with Charlie Hodge in 1965-66 and with Rogatien Vachon in 1967-68. Worsley saw action in 831 regular-season NHL games and 70 Stanley Cup playoff games.

One of his major problems was his fear of flying and this was aggravated by expansion of the league in recent years which meant more travelling. But his performances in the nets remained consistently strong and his career average up to this year was 2.89 goals a game. His average in the 70 playoff games was 2.82 and in the 12 games this season, 2.88. He collected a total of 43 shutouts in regular-season NHL play.

Lucky legs

John Hunter's muscular legs have been about as vulnerable as Mickey Mantle's limbs late in his career, and well, you know what the Yankees were without their superstar.

Hunter doesn't carry the entire Massey-Vanier Regional High School senior basketball team on his shoulder blades, mind you, but without him the club becomes as ordinary as Mama Catelli's spaghetti without the meat sauce. Without him, Butch Staples' cagers are susceptible to upsets by second rate squads like Lemoyne High School, a liability which the latter transformed into reality last Tuesday.

"There's no doubt we miss John," affirmed the MVRHS bench boss, "but we just didn't have a good game against Lemoyne. We outscored them in baskets, but from the foul line we were three for 15. It's the most points scored against us this season and offensively we didn't shoot well at all," he added, in an analysis of the 54-48 setback.

Still, in spite of being swallowed by Lemoyne's unexpected whirlwind, the MVRHS seniors aren't in need of welfare benefits, based on their highly commendable 10-2 mark in appearances on the court to date. No one would be fibbing if they tapped the Cowansville-based team as the leading high-school cagers in Quebec, since they hold the Holiday Festival tournament at Dawson College as credentials.

Curiously, the pair of defeats were pinned by South Shore League rivals — Lemoyne, last week, and Chambly County High School in the first regularly-scheduled game of the SSIAA season. In the latter instance, though, Staples doesn't regard the outcome as abominable.

"They beat us by a couple of points in a league game, and then we met them in a tournament here, and beat them by a few points," he revealed. "There's really not much to choose between the two teams, and we definitely regard them as one of our primary foes, as well as one of the finest clubs in the province."

And, oh yes, just for ye old record book, the CCHS squad sent Massey-Vanier Regional feeling to defeat even with Hunter in the lineup, a further reason to survey them as an opponent with a stingy wallop. Now, if Doc Welby will permit, the latest bulletin on the limping wounded, or more specifically John Hunter's busted set of wheels reads, "patient coming along fine — should be ready for action by the weekend."

The most recent mishap which put Hunter in mothballs occurred following the Holiday Festival while warming up prior to a game against Alexander Galt Regional.

"Yeah, this time it was my left leg that gave out," related Hunter. "I was just doing a routine lay-up in pre-game practice, and when I landed on the court, my leg was straight and it suddenly locked. I played the entire game, but the next morning my leg was so stiff I couldn't walk."

The diagnosis: ligament miseries to replace the one incurred a couple of months previous on the right leg. After all, it just wouldn't be just to let one limb absorb all the punishment.

"I was playing tight-end with the MVRHS football team," Hunter recalled in reference to his initial ailment. "It was a freak accident — someone made a clean tackle on me, and when I got up the ligaments had been pulled, and I was in a cast for two weeks."

The injury had healed before the start of the basketball season, but I didn't begin to play well until about the sixth game of the season," he admitted.

Still, even a notch or two below his capacity was enough to maintain Massey-Vanier Regional's renown as a basketball power, because as a third year veteran, Hunter has acquired the knack of popping points in crucial situations, a talent which can often shake a club from a lethargic performance, such as the one offered against Lemoyne High School.

"No doubt we miss having John in there," agreed Staples. "As the team's leading scorer and rebounder, he makes a difference of 15 or 20 points a game. But, equally important, is that while players from opposing teams key on him, it allows some of our guys to get in the open."

"Now, with John on the sidelines we've had to make a few adjustments. Since we don't have his rebounding strength in there, I've attempted to get the boys to control the ball more, work harder on defence, and be more cautious with their shots. But, after the Lemoyne game, indications are we haven't accomplished what was intended."

Under most circumstances when you remove someone's leaning post, you can expect the person to tumble. So, the beady eyes have been at work searching for an MVRHS collapse without John Hunter acting as a support. But, Staples doesn't believe his squad was putting its entire pressure upon the team cornerstone.

"I don't think we rely that heavily upon Hunter," Staples said. "We have a good bench and any one of six or seven guys could step in and adequately fill the gap. For instance, in the tournament we won, John was fouled out of two games, and it was our bench strength that carried us."

Sure, the solid tenure of the bench brigade eased some of Hunter's torture on the sidelines as he itched to snare just one rebound, but it didn't mellow his view on the hors-de-combat role.

"I hate watching the game from the bench," he emphasized. "It's a lot harder just sitting here, than it is to be out on the court. Playing is the main thing, and once you've been in the lineup it's hard to sit and watch. I'll say one thing, though, you sure see the mistakes more clearly from here."

While Hunter was allowing his battered limb a short period of recuperation, the young man whom many consider the finest high-school cager in the province pulled farther away from one of his leading contenders. But, there are bound to be other days when Hunter and Chambly County's David Kurtz resume a head-to-head match-up.

Not that the MVRHS kingpin is a bitter rival of Kurtz. "I love to play against him," admitted Hunter.

"Last year we were about even in games where we were pitted against each other. This year, in our first meeting, he outscored me 20-8. He's the best there is, everybody knows that."

East all-stars win NBA tilt easily

CHICAGO (AP) — Boston's Dave Cowens and John Havlicek combined for 29 points to lead the East to a relatively easy 104-84 victory over the favored West in the National Basketball Association's 23rd all-star game Tuesday night.

The West, despite the efforts of flashy Nate Archibald, was thwarted in a try for an unprecedented third successive all-star triumph by the second-half power of the hustling East squad, which now leads in the series 15-8. Although the West trailed only 50-45 at halftime after blowing an early 10-point lead, the third quarter shooting of Cowens and Havlicek opened up a 12-point lead at 73-61.

Thereafter, the East steadily took command before a crowd of 17,527.

Archibald, the 6-foot-1 sensation of Kansas City-Omaha, led the West with 15 points. Without Milwaukee Bucks superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, a last-minute withdrawal because of "personal reasons," the West was outmuscled under the boards by the bruising East strongmen.

Jabbar's replacement, Wilt Chamberlain, was effective in the early going but was on the sidelines much of the time in his record-matching 13th all-star game appearance. For a while in the first period, Archibald and Sidney Wicks of Portland teamed in a shooting spree that led the West to a 19-9 edge. But after the pair had combined for a 21 first-period points, the East moved ahead 50-39 in the second quarter.

Cowens wound up with 15 points and Havlicek, who pumped in five second-half baskets, wound up with 14.

First Border carnival set to go

By IVY HATCH
BOUNDARY — Plans are well on the way to have the first winter Carnival at the Boundary — one which may well be long remembered as the greatest.

Events will start off Feb. 2 and continue until Feb. 11. February 2, a panel will be judge of the snow sculpturing at the schools. The schools will be Sunnyside Elementary, Sacred Heart, Stansied Ursuline Convent, Stansied College and Our Lady of Mercy School in Rock Island.

Each school will receive a trophy for the best work. Saturday, Feb. 3, the Beebe Fire department plan their snowmobile races which will start at 10:30 a.m. with the children's events and continue throughout the day. That evening at 8 p.m. the adults' trophies and prize money will be presented the winners at the Del Monty.

Sunday, Feb. 4, an amateur program in French and English will take place at 8 p.m. at Sacred Heart school in Stansied. There will be much local talent participating in the program.

On Monday evening the special feature will be hockey games by teams in the Border Minor Hockey League at the Stansied College Arena in Rock Island starting at 6:30 p.m.

A masquerade on ice will be the special attraction on Tuesday evening, Feb. 6, at 8:30 p.m. This might remind one of the annual masquerades held many years ago at Channells rink in Stansied.

The Carnival Bonhomme from CJRS, Sherbrooke, will be at the masquerade and he will judge the costumes. If there is sufficient talent there will also be fancy skating.

Wednesday night is the big game of Bingo at the Rock Island Theatre with a special grand prize to be offered some lucky winner.

Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m., the community's Senior Citizens and guests will gather in the hall of the Stansied South Church in Rock Island for a program, card games and supper.

Friday in the evening, there will be a tractor drawn sleigh ride so it will be on the highway, no matter what the weather conditions are. Battle for fourth place

Red Wings flying but Sabres won't be Buffaloed

The Red Wings were still flying and the Sabres sharpened up after a dull start in National Hockey League action Thursday night.

Detroit, all but counted out of the post-season games as early as mid-December, continued their bid to overtake Buffalo's Sabres by stopping the faltering Boston Bruins.

The Sabres kept their four-point margin in the battle for fourth in the East, however, by overcoming a 2-0 deficit to handle Minnesota North Stars 5-2.

The results left Buffalo in fourth, five points behind Boston and four ahead of Detroit.

In the only other game, Philadelphia Flyers moved into third in the West by stopping Pittsburgh 6-3, leaving the Penguins in a challenging position two points behind Los Angeles Kings and Atlanta Flames and three back of the Flyers.

The Flames and Los Angeles meet tonight at Atlanta when New York Islanders visit Vancouver Canucks at California Golden Seals are at home to St. Louis Blues.

The Wings, who stormed into the early lead with their fastest start in history, just as suddenly grounded and there was apparent dissension in the camp over coach Johnny Wilson's training program—devised by Toronto physical-fitness expert Lloyd Percival.

The Wings suddenly discovered themselves 12 points behind Buffalo and with the playoff picture becoming increasingly hazy even before the midway mark.

Wilson had words with spirited little Marcel Dionne, the record-setting rookie of last year, and the centre was suspended.

Perhaps Detroit management saw the light, the Wings' training program was cut back and the club finally started hitting the stride that featured its late-season bid for a playoff berth last year that just fell short.

Henry Boucha, the ex-Olympian ace of the U.S. team, scored twice to lead his teammates at Boston on offence and the rugged Detroit defence threw up a blanket in front of goaltender Denis DeJordy that limited Bruins to just 29 shots.

The Wings hammered Boston rookie John Adams with 41 shots, including Red Berenson's seventh goal of the year that broke up a 2-2 struggle.

The Sabres, too, have had their ups-and-downs on the NHL chart this year and their most recent slump has dropped them out of a challenge at the division lead.

But their conditioning program, implemented this year by general manager Punch Imlach and practised by ex-wrestler Fred Atkins, paid off against the North Stars.

Buffalo fell behind 2-0 before Jim Schoenfeld put them on the scoreboard at 16:26 of the second period. Within two minutes, the Sabres had taken the lead on Gerry Meehan's 27th of the year and Gil Perreault's 18th, pelting Minnesota goalie Gilles Gilbert with a 21 shots in the period.

Eighty shots were fired in the game at Philadelphia, 42 of them by the Penguins. But the ones that counted most were by Bobby Clarke, at 18:27 of the first period to break a 1-1 score, Ray Dupont, Don Saleski and Ross Lonsberry that gave the Flyers a 5-1 lead.

Saleski, who also scored later in the game, ended a 19-game scoreless drought.

Leafs laid low

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs head toward Montreal today and a Saturday night date with the Canadiens laboring under an assortment of injuries.

Ron Low, knocked out of action early in Wednesday's game at Pittsburgh with a damaged elbow, is expected to start in goal against the Canadiens, leaders in the National Hockey League's East Division.

But his back-up spot will be handled by Gord McCrae, recalled from the Leafs Central League farmclub, Tulsa Oilers, to sub for veteran Jacques

Plante, who played all but three minutes of a 5-2 loss to the Penguins after replacing Low, was struck on the ankle and suffered a pulled thigh muscle.

The Toronto defence has taken on the appearance of a hospital out-patient clinic.

Rookies Joe Lundrigan and Larry McIntyre made only brief appearances in the Pittsburgh game and are doubtful starters at Montreal.

Lundrigan is suffering from pulled rib muscles and McIntyre has a groin injury.

Healthy Parent puts Blazers on the trail

The World Hockey Association's two premier goaltenders hooked up Thursday night in what was billed as a defensive struggle in Cleveland.

When the final buzzer sounded, it was Philadelphia Blazers' Bernie Parent surviving 7-4 over the Crusaders' Gerry Cheevers.

The loss dropped Cleveland out of first place in the Eastern Division after New England Whalers defeated Ottawa Nationals 4-2.

And the Blazers, with a healthy Parent finally showing the form that Philadelphia expected for their lucrative $750,000-plus multi-year contract, are challenging at the tailend of the east.

Elsewhere, Chicago Cougars, who have also been showing some life recently at the lower end of the Western Division, routed New York Raiders 9-2 while Houston Aeros romped 5-2 over Minnesota's Fighting Saints at St. Paul, Minn., to climb within four points of Western-leading Winnipeg Jets.

NO. 38 FOR LAWSON
Danny Lawson and Don Burgess were the chief offensive thrusts in front of Parent, scoring two apiece. Lawson's second, his 38th of the year, gave Philadelphia the lead they never lost. It came after Paul Andrea had tallied twice early in the second period to lift Cleveland into a 2-2 tie.

John Migeneault, Don O'Donoghue and Bryan Campbell also tallied for the Blazers who now trail Ottawa by one point and are four behind Quebec Les Nordiques and a playoff berth.

Garry Jarrett, with two, was the only other Crusader to beat Parent.

There were reports that the 27-year-old goaltender, lured from Toronto Maple Leafs, showed up at the Blazers' camp out of shape. The other 11 WHA teams added fire to the rumors by padding their goal totals at Parent's expense in the early weeks.

A series of injuries didn't help the native of Montreal.

Offence was never any problem with the club. They stand fifth over-all in WHA scoring—even with their star tenant, Derek Sanderson, on the sidelines for most of the year.

Now with the defensive ailments shored up by Parent's return to respectability, the Blazers can be considered serious challengers wherever they play.

BLOWS PENALTY SHOT

The Nats surprised 4,439 home fans by holding a territorial edge in play, but they were held in check by New England's Al Smith who stopped 22 of 24 shots directed his way.

And rangy Wayne Carleton didn't improve their moral when he was awarded a penalty shot with the score tied 2-2 early in the third period, after being tackled on a breakaway by New England's Paul Hurley, and missed the net entirely.

Tom Webster, with two, Terry Caffery and John Danby scored for New England, handing the Nats their fourth straight loss. Rick Sentes and Bob Charlebois replied for Ottawa.

The Cougars scored five goals on New York within a span of three minutes and 48 seconds of the third period to hand the Raiders their crushing setback before 3,247 Chicago fans.

Dan Lodboa scored three goals and team-mates Rick Morris and Bob Whitlock added two apiece in the onslaught against goaltenders Gary Kurt and Pete Donnelly.

RESCUES GOALIE

New York coach Camille Henry lifted Kurt after Morris' second goal of the game, at 8:40 of the third period, had moved the Cougars into a 5-1 lead.

Chicago shelled New York's goaltending tandem with 50 shots, 20 in the third period. Jan Popiel and Jim Benzelock completed the rout. Wayne Rivers and Mike Laughton scored for New York.

Gord Lobosiere scored once, to give Houston a 2-1 lead, and set up the winner by Murray Hall, to lead the Aeros past Minnesota. Paul Popiel, Jack Stanfield and Ted Taylor had the other Houston goals.

Frank Saunders, who gave the Saints an early lead, and John Arbour tallied for Minnesota in front of 5,372 fans.

Berger hopes Levy will turn things around

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Berger hoped a sign of relief. "Well I hope we have finally made the move that will turn this thing around."

The move was the naming Thursday of the new head coach for the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League—Marv Levy, a veteran National Football League assistant.

The "thing" Als owner Berger hopes to turn is his club, their dismissal record in the CFL last season and dwindling fan support.

The Als, Grey Cup champions in 1970, dropped to a 4-10 won, loss record last season and attendance dipped to less than an average 12,000 a game.

MUCH SPECULATION

The search for the new head coach started when Sam Etchevery resigned after three seasons as the Als' head mentor. A lot of names, mostly from the ranks of the NFL, figured in speculation about his replacement.

But the one person not mentioned until the last moment was Levy, a 46-year-old former assistant with three NFL teams, Philadelphia Eagles, Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins.

With George Allen's Redskins, Levy was coach of specialty teams, kickoff, punt and field goal units, and is highly regarded in both college and professional football quarters.

Discipline, for which his former boss Allen was famous, is "a matter of letting the players know early what we are going to do, what procedures we are going to follow." But he is "not a yell."

Levy feels the Als need to start by naming their No. 1 quarterback before the season starts. Quarterback problems have plagued the Als for the last two seasons.

KNOWS QUARTERBACKS

Montreal signal-callers Sonny Wade and George Mira are not new to Levy who knew them from coaching duties at William and Mary College and the Eagles respectively.

No wholesale player changes are planned because he thinks there is a "good basis of player talent" although new faces are likely in the punting and field-goal aspects of the team.

Low morale, reportedly a problem with the Als can be overcome with the players knowing "what is expected of them."

"You don't put morale on like a coat and you don't work on morale this week—it comes from the players gaining confidence."

NO INSTANT WINNER

Besides the players, a good coaching staff is also needed, he said. "Don't think you hire a coach on Thursday and have an instant winner on Sunday."

Levy said he has several people in mind for two assistant jobs, plus one player-coach. He did not reveal any names but Gene Gaines was player-coach last season.

Fred Wallner has a year remaining in his contract as an assistant coach with the Als.

But Levy knows that Montreal fans want a winner. And Berger wants a winner to fill the empty stands.

"Losing breeds disenchantment, but winning changes that," Levy said. "When you win it generates fan enthusiasm and that enthusiasm generates winning."

Hopes hang on funds

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Salt Lake City's chances of playing host to the 1976 Winter Olympics appeared to hang Thursday on the thin final hope that federal funds would be committed before the International Olympic Committee meets Feb. 4.

But city officials said such a commitment was unlikely. Mayor Jake Garn's administrative assistant, Jeff Bingham, said the city would not even make its presentation to the IOC unless a commitment for federal funds was received.

Garn has estimated it would cost $30 million to hold the games in Utah, and he has joined with Gov. Calvin Rampton in insisting that no state or local government funds be applied toward the cost.

Garn had asked the IOC to delay its Feb. 4 meeting at Lausanne, Switzerland, at which the site selection is to be made, until Salt Lake City has a chance to explore the fund question further.

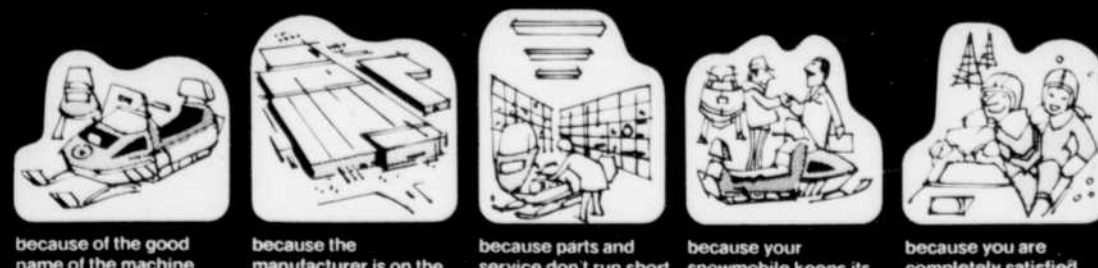

But Bingham said Thursday Garn was notified by Cliff Buck, U.S. Olympic Committee president, that IOC president Lord Killanin had declined the request.
