Often carried $1,000.
New York, June 25.—Madge Finnie,
who keeps a boarding-house at No. 160
West Twenty-first street, made a complaint
at the West Thirtieth police station
yesterday that she had been robbed of diamonds worth $1,500. Detective Hayes visited the house and Miss Finnie
told him that when she went down to
luncheon she locked her jewel-case,
which contained $5,000 worth of jewels,
and left the keys lying on her dressing-
table. When she returned to her room
she found the keys in her bureau drawer,
and upon opening the jewel-case found a brooch, necklace and ring gone. About the same time Miss May Webster, a boarder, suddenly disappeared from the house.

May returned while the officer was
there, and the landlady at once charged her with the theft. Hayes took her into custody, and found $1,000 in her pocket.
She said it was a common thing for her
to carry that amount of money in her pockets. She was locked up in the station house, and will be arraigned in Jefferson Market Court to-day.

U.S. Sharpshooters Abroad.
HAMBURG, June 25.—Last evening the American riflemen were entertained at a banquet. President Webber declared that he was overcome by the warmth of
the reception extended to himself and his comrades. He said that the Independents, although defeated, were not discouraged. Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Newland also promised toasts. Jubilee
medals of the Hamburg Rifle Association
were presented to President Webber, Capt. Diehl and five Americans who competed for the cup. Illuminations
and fireworks in the gardens followed,
and there was a grand ball. The whole party returned at a late hour.
Most of the marksmen will start for Berlin to-morrow.

Strike of Freight Handlers.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 25.—The freight
handlers of the different roads running into East St. Louis made a demand last night for an advance in wages. It not being allowed, 1,000 men went on strike
at 11 o'clock to-day. Two men were assaulted and severely beaten by strikers
for applying to the local superintendent
for work.

A Lottery Scheme Balked.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—President
Diaz has vetoed the bill for carrying on a lottery at Tia Juana, eighteen miles from San Diego. The company was organized with a capital of $5,000,000,
about half of which was paid up. It was the intention of the company to make Tia Juana an American Monte Carlo.

Shot Him While He Slept.
GOSHEN, Ill., June 24.—Mr. and Mrs.
Henry Harvey, of Constantine, Mich.,
have been married six years, but their domestic life has been unhappy. Last evening Mrs. Harvey shot her husband dead while he was asleep. She has not yet been arrested. Both were prominent.

Fire in Milwaukee.
MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 25.—Fire this morning destroyed the Island sash and door factory. Loss $25,000. The fire set fire to the steamer "Mowat," but by
hard work the flames were extinguished
with small loss to the vessel.

Drowned While Bathing.
KINGSTON, Ont., June 25.—John Houston, a son of Rev. Mr. Houston, was drowned this evening while bathing.

ROBBING WITH VIOLENCE IN OTTAWA.

Newfoundland Troubles.—Refusing to pay
Customs Duties—Pugilistic Encounters with French Fishermen—A Young Jail-breaker
at Quebec—Sport in the Prairie Province
—Harvest Prospects of the Northwest.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 25.—A daring highway robbery took place last evening near
the western outskirts of the city. John Byrne, a well known cattle drover, was waylaid and beat into insensibility, and robbed of $295. Speaking to a reporter
Mr. Byrne said he had been out to see a friend at Fallowfield and was returning
along the Richmond road to the city,
when he was struck on the head from behind and rendered unconscious. At daylight this morning he regained consciousness to find himself lying on the road in a pool of blood. His wallet containing the money was gone.

HALIFAX NEWS NOTES.

Refusing to pay Customs Duties.—Coming
to Fislanders with the Frenchmen
Showing Spite to a Dead Man.

HALIFAX, June 25.—Capt. Farquhar,
of the Str. Harlaw, from the West Coast
of Newfoundland reports that the Custom authorities refused to allow any goods to be landed from the Harlaw at Bay St. George unless the Captain gave a bond that he would be responsible for all duties and other charges which the Consignees might refuse to pay after the goods were landed. This the Captain refused to give and proceeded on his voyage to Bonne Bay. On his return,
however, the goods were landed, con-
signees having received the regular permits.

The British warship Pelican was at Bonne Bay when the Steamer Harlaw
left. The coast is pretty well clear of ice with the exception of a small quantity seen in the vicinity of Port-au-Port. Captain Farquhar says a conflict between the natives and
the Frenchmen occurred at Port-au-Port one day last week, during which
a number on both sides received black eyes and numerous bruises. The trouble arose from the French wanting to take
bait out of one of the Newfoundlanders'
nets. The people on the west coast are still determined to pay no taxes until
they receive better protection. Rev.
Dr. Howley has gone to St. John in their behalf.

A very peculiar thing occurred during
the burial of a young Norwegian sailor
at Camp Hill Cemetery. The remains were followed to the grave by a number
of his countrymen, among whom was
a man employed as a "runner" for a sailors'
boarding-house. After the service was ended and just as the men were about
to go to the grave, the "runner" picked up a large rock and threw it down on the coffin and then walked away. Persons standing by thought it might be a
custom of the country to which deceased
belonged, but seeing the surprised look
of the other Norwegians present, they were asked the reason of the strange proceedings. They said they thought it was merely to show his hatred for the dead man.

Dangerous Company for a Ship.

HALIFAX, June 25.—Captain Taylor of the steamer Concordia reports encountering a regular field of icebergs on Saturday
last, when 200 miles east of Cape Race,
and on all day Sunday until they got within ten miles of the Cape they had
the greatest difficulty in keeping clear of the bergs. They were on all sides of them, of various shapes and sizes, and
they were fortunate in having clear
weather, which assisted them in steering clear of them. Many of them were very large, and one, Captain Taylor says, was the largest he ever saw. When it was first sighted by the lookout he reported
five miles ahead, but it proved to be a
berg and was a regular island of ice,
being fully a mile long, while it was 60
to 70 feet in height and flat on top.
Captain Taylor says it was next to impossible to form an idea of the number
of bergs as there were hundreds of them,
and each within a very short distance
of the other. The captain says he never saw so many bergs at this season.

SALVATOR BREAKS THE RECORD.

Remarkable Time in the Great Match with Tenny.

SHERKSHED BAY, June 25.—The interest in to-day's races here was centered
in the match at Suburban distance, between Salvator, the winner of that event,
and Tenny, who ran third. 20,000 persons crowded into the grounds and acted
as a crazy people when Salvator won in
the remarkable time of 2:05, beating Kingston's record by a second and a half.

It was a grand race from start to finish
and although Salvator won it, it was no disgrace to Tenny. Before the sport began books were opened on the match 65
to 100 on Salvator, and 11 to 5 against Tenny. Plenty of business was done at these figures. The weather was fine and the track was in good condition and fast.

FROM THE ANCIENT CAPITAL

Terrible Fatality to an Old Farmer—Alf Begin begins early to play "Jack Shep- herd" tricks with his Jailors.

QUEBEC, June 25.—A fatal accident occurred at Chateau Richer yesterday, which resulted in the death of an old man named Yoride Clotier, aged 50 years. Deceased was assisting his neighbor, Jacques Plante, in building a barn, when in raising one of the cross
beams for the roof, some part of the
hoisting gear gave way, precipitating
the beam to the ground and striking
the old man on the top of the head,
killing him. His head was terribly
crushed and presented a horrible appearance. He was conveyed to the hospital and word was sent to the coroner.
Deputy Coroner Garneau left town this morning to hold an inquest. Deceased,
who is one of the oldest and most respected farmers of Chateau Richer, was married, but only leaves a wife to mourn
his loss. The sad fatality has cast a gloom over the inhabitants of the vicinity.

We reported yesterday the escape from
gaol of a juvenile prisoner named Alfred Begin, who was sentenced to two years
in the Reformatory for larceny. This morning he returned to gaol of his own
accord, accompanied by one of his aunts,
and related the following story: In the morning he was in the corridor with three prisoners, all old men, and knowing that the day was the feast of St. Jean Baptiste, he had a strong desire to see the procession, and he excused himself to the old prison and went into the wash-
room, where with soap left there for some of the prisoners he soaped his head well and then squeezed it through the iron bars. Once his head was through he had little or no difficulty in squeezing his body through. Then he jumped to the ground and soon reached the Plains of Abraham. From there he travelled to town and witnessed the celebration in different parts of the city.
In the evening he was quietly walking
about the streets when he accosted one
of his aunts, who was greatly astonished
to see him. He told her he merely came out to see the demonstration of the national feast, and at her desire returned to jail. This afternoon he was conveyed to the reformatory situated on Mig-nonne street, Montreal.

THE LOUISIANA LOTTERY.

The Bill Passes the House by a Large Majority.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 25.—A special
from Baton Rouge says: The House passed
the Lottery Bill by a vote of 65 to 29,
after striking out the monopoly feature.

The Boiler Explosion Fatality.

COLCHESTER, Ont., June 25.—The verdict
of Coroners Jury on the bodies of George Craig and Thomas J. Quick, killed on Wm. Craig's farm yesterday through a boiler explosion, was "That the explosion
was the result of a defective boiler with no blame attached to anyone." Frank Quick, the third victim, died at 3 o'clock
this afternoon. Thos. Craig and Peter White's condition is critical, while Frank Bondy's is more favorable.

Halifax Flour Markets.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 25.—Flour market depressed, Hungarian Patent Man-itoban, $6.20 to $6.40. Manitoba Strong Bakers, $5.90 to $6.15. Canadian Pastry, $5.70 to $5.80. Seventy-five per cent
roller patent, $5.40 to $5.75. Eighty per cent ditto, $5.25 to $5.40. Ninety per cent ditto, $5.10 to $5.25. Straight Roller Patent, $4.90 to $5.10. Superior Extra,
$4.70 to $4.75. Extra, $4.25 to $4.60.

The Population of Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., June 24.—Supervisor
Wage of the census for the Rochester
District stated to a United States press
reporter this afternoon that there were
at least half-a-dozen enumerators who had not yet completed their work, but
from the returns already in he estimates
the population of Rochester is about 130,000. This is an increase since the census of 1880 of about 40,000.

A Pervertion of the Truth, Somewhere!

TORONTO, June 25.—The reply of Dr. Can-niff, health officer, to the charge of Alderman Gowanlock, "that on the day
the doctor visited Parkdale to obtain a sample of the water for analysis, he was
so drunk he could not stand," was handed
to the mayor this morning in the form of letter. He absolutely denies the charge.

Killed by Lightning.

CHESKA, Que., June 25.—John Cameron,
jr., son of Mr. Cameron, Gilmour's agent,
was killed during the thunder storm
last evening. He was drawing stone all day and was getting his last load when
he and the span of horses were killed.
His hired man with him was injured, but
not fatally.

Prince Ferdinand in Vienna.

SOBIA, June 25.—The report that Prince Ferdinand has suddenly and secretly departed from Vienna, is without foundation. He has not left the city and will not do so until the early part of August, when he will pay a visit to Vienna, as arranged some times ago.

THE NEW ENGLAND PAPER COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the New England Paper Company was held at the office of the company, No. 23 De Bresles
Street, Montreal, on June 20th at 12.
A. M.

The President, Mr. J. Brooks Young,
was in the chair.

The report of last year's business was duly submitted to the stockholders, and
the usual dividend of ten per cent was
declared, with a bonus of three per cent,
payable July 15th, and the old board of directors were elected for the ensuing year.

LONDON POLICE NOT LIKE- LY TO SUCCEED.

No "Benefit of Clergy"—Father Crowley
Sentenced to Jail for Boycotting and Intimidation—The Australian Federation Scheme Advances Another Pace Towards Realization—Western Australia Satisfied

LONDON, June 25.—The new Chief
Commissioner of the Metropolitan police, Sir Edward Bradford, has alighted from
his high horse and condescended to pay
a slight degree of attention to the appeals of his subordinates, for redress of the grievances. To-night he has issued an order, couched in extremely friendly
terms, setting forth his view of the situation. He cannot, he says, permit
the members of the force to hold public meetings, for the reason that that would be subversive of discipline
and in other respects demoralizing
to a body of men whose reputation for efficiency is worldwide. He assures his subordinates, however, that they may rely upon his assistance to the end of securing to them the benefits they desire, but he will permit no departure
from the ordinary methods in their attainment. Although the weight of popular sympathy is with the police in their efforts to obtain redress, the feeling is growing that the whole agitation will result in a fizzle. A movement is on foot among members of the force to raise £500 for the purchase of silverplate for ex-commissioner Munroe.

AUSTRALIAN CONFEDERATION.

A Big Grant to Western Australia of Rich Lands.

LONDON, June 25.—Another step is taken towards the confederation of the Australian Colonies by the new "Australia Constitution bill," which grants
all that the Western Australians ask in regard to the government of the great Northern territory of that continent, and hands over to them more than one-third
of Australia, with great mineral resources, large gold fields and pearl fisheries,
and a coast line of 3,500 miles.

An Irish Priest Sentenced.

CORK, June 25th.—The trial of Father Crowley, of Bantry, for boycotting and intimidation was concluded at that place
to-day. The Court sentenced him to one month's imprisonment for intimidating a Protestant parson, named Schull, and six months additional imprisonment in default of bail to keep the peace.

Many Deaths by Drowning.

BERLIN, June 25.—During the last fortnight seventeen persons have been drowned in the environs of Berlin
through careless handling of small boats.
More than half of the number were
young women.

TELEGRAMS FROM TORONTO.

Found in a Grocery—Action Against the City—Boy Drowned—The Guards in Camp—Off for Europe.

TORONTO, June 25.—Some excitement
prevails in North End to-day over the discovery of a large tarantula, the most deadly of spiders, in the store window of F. Giles, who keeps grocery at 334 Yonge street. It is supposed to be the first ever found in Toronto.

The Master in Ordinary this morning
heard argument in the case of the Attorney General of Canada vs. the city of Toronto. The case is one in which the Dominion government seeks a discount
of fifty per cent, similar to that received
by others, but which is denied by the city to institutions exempt from taxation. Judgment was reserved.

The body of William Crealey, a boy
drowned while bathing last night, was found at noon to-day by Esplanade Constable Williams, about 10 feet from St.
Albans pumping works.

The Governor-General's body guards
went into camp on Garrison Common
this morning. It is composed of 18
officers and 163 men and 140 horses. Lt-
Col. G. T. Denison, commanding officer.

PILGRIMS FOR STE. ANNES.

Political Rumors from Montmorency and Port Neuf.

QUEBEC, June 25.—Over five hundred
pilgrims from the diocese of Portland,
Maine, arrived here yesterday morning
per Grand Trunk and were conveyed to La Bonne Ste. Anne by steamer "Pilgrim."
Another lot of about 600 pilgrims from St. Hyacinthe also arrived yesterday on their way to the shrine of Ste Anne de Beaupre. The funeral of the remains of the late Dr. de St. Georges took place at Cap Sante on Monday, and was one of the largest ever witnessed in the country.
Mr. P. V. Valin, ex-M.P., will probably contest the vacant seat for Montmorency
for the Commons. Requisitions are also being signed in favor of Mr. Desjardins, ex-M.P. Meanwhile the Liberal candidate is likely to be Mr. Turcotte, advocate of this city.

The Liberals will probably run Mr.
Arthur Desile, advocate of this city, for
the vacant Federal seat for Port Neuf,
consequent upon the death of Mr. De St.
Georges. Mr. Chasse will very likely be his opponent.

Backward Solicitor.

TORONTO, June 25.—At Osgoode Hall
this morning, Justice Ferguson heard a motion to strafe the name of James H.
Scott, Kincardine, from the roll of barristers
and solicitors for Ontario. The court of common pleas ordered Scott to pay
over five hundred dollars, the amount of
a note given him for collection by Frost & Wood of Smith's Falls, but he failed to do so. The motion stands till Friday.

The Strauss Orchestra.

This celebrated organization, known as the Strauss Imperial Vienna Orchestra, is to give two concerts on Sept. 13th.
Mr. Charles G. Geddes and Mr. Hugh
Skinner returned from Ottawa yesterday,
in which city the orchestra will also perform.

Liquor Law Violations—Ecclesiastical Meet- ings—Conservative Denunciation—Hud- son Bay's City Lots—Western Harvests

WINNIPEG, Man., June 25.—R. Simpson, hotelkeeper, of Neepawa, has been fined $450 and costs, or six months imprisonment, for violation of the liquor laws. He was taken to Portage La Pra-
rie Jail in default of payment of the fine.
Two important ecclesiastical meetings
will be held in Winnipeg, in August, the Synod of the province of Ruperts Land
and a conference of delegates from various Canadian episcopal churches of the province, to consider a proposition to federalize the English churches in Canada.

Fire this morning destroyed Dick & Bennings Mill on the bank of the river.

A meeting of the Norfolk Conservatives was held on Monday. Resolutions were passed on the local Government's educational and the Hudson Bay railway policy, condemning the same.

A report was circulated in the City
to-day that the Hudson Bay Company
had withdrawn all their city lots from
the market.

In connection with Mr. Van Horne's
western trip, it is reported that several important changes are about to take place in the C. P. R. staff in Manitoba.

Lieut. Governor Royal in course of conversation to-day said the prospects
for a beautiful harvest in the West were never lighter.

Some points in Southern Manitoba
are suffering from want of rain.

Manitoba cricketers left for the East
on their special car to-night. There was a large crowd of their admirers at the station to bid them good-bye. They have decided to drop Caicago from the list of engagements as a number of men cannot remain longer than to finish the Philadelphia matches.

The next city championship lacrosse
match takes place on Saturday between Winnipeg and the Ninetieths. The Winnipeg and Brandon play for provincial championship on Tuesday.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL.

Personal Notes—Canada Central Fair—State
of the Crops—Polled Early and Often.

OTTAWA, June 25.—Sir Adolphe Caron
left last night for Quebec. He will return on Friday.

Mr. Boyle, M.P., and Dr. Montague,
M.P., go west to-night for a month's stay
in British Columbia.

Mr. M. O. Scott, the recently appointed
secretary of the Central Canada Fair,
yesterday handed in his resignation of office. At a meeting of the directors in the afternoon, Mr. Scott's resignation was accepted, whereupon Mr. P. D. Ross,
of the Evening Journal, announced his intention of resigning from the directo-
rate of the association. Mr. Scott declined to state to a reporter the cause of his withdrawal from the office, but it is said
the stop was taken in consequence
of what he considered undue interference with his duties by Mayor Erratt,
a director. The latter, however, assumed to be acting quite within his province
and solely in the interests of the association. The executive committee has appointed Mr. F. Arthur Jackson to the secretaryship vacated by Mr. Scott, who resumes to-day his position as city editor
of the Journal.

Circulars have been sent out by the Department of Agriculture to experimental farm superintendents and Government agents asking information
to the state of the crops throughout the country.

The election of Mr. Rochon in Ottawa
county is to be protested. It is claimed that in some places the vote polled exceeded the number on the list.

Mr. J. W. McFee waited this morning
on Mr. Trudeau, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, and petitioned for
the dredging of the pool or reservoir lying between St. Louis dam and the canal, and generally known as Dow's
Lake, so as to give boats ready access to Mr. J. R. Booth's and the other lumber yards. This it is promised should be done, and it is the intention of the lumbermen to build wharves there. The petitioners also asked that a branch of the Canal should be constructed from the Dam to the Ottawa river, above the Chaudiere Falls.
It is probable that the survey will be made and the plans prepared at an early date.

Mr. Collingwood Schriber, whilst
driving, was thrown out of his carriage,
and fell, fracturing the bones of her
wrist.

Detroit to Succeed Rochester.

ROCHESTER, June 24.—The persistent
attempts of the citizens of Irondequoit
to break up Sunday ball playing add color
to a pretty well authenticated report that negotiations for the purchase of the Rochester club by Detroit are in progress.
The negotiations have made sufficient headway to lead to the expectation that the sale will be completed within two days. There is some difference as to price, but it is expected that will be satisfactorily adjust-
ed. The Rochester Association Club
wants $25,000 for its franchise and players
while the latest offer of the Detroit gentlemen, it is stated, is $20,000. There is no question as to the negotiations. They are in progress and it is probable they will be adjusted within two days. President Brinker and Treasurer Sidney Mc-Kay are out of town, presumably at Detroit.

WHERE THE DIFFICULTY LIES.

It has been thought, when the subject of leadership of parties was on the carpet, that the future of the Conservative party was not unnaturally a matter of anxiety to its rank and file. Perhaps the painful reflections caused by pondering on this matter may be the explanation of an unexpected interest which the professional guides of the Conservative party are taking in the question of who shall lead the Liberal party. A little friendly interest on their part, is a graceful way of admitting their conviction that the time is at hand when the Liberal leaders will frame the policy of this country, but they must not forget that, while the Liberal party has a large number of able and practiced men to select from, whenever they may, through unforeseen circumstances, decide on making a change, the Conservative household is depending upon one who, at best, can only be regarded as a temporary prop, and that the horizon presents an unbroken line of mediocrity. It is contended that, although the Conservative party in the country districts is changing its views concerning protection, no party can change half as rapidly as Sir John can, and that while he lives and retains his power he will make it impossible for the party to dismiss him. But Sir John is not at all the man he used to be. He has of late years led the party into many false positions, and has sometimes compelled his followers in the House of Commons to look very foolish indeed. The circumstance at the moment is passed off with a joke, but the men who have been made ridiculous remember it, and the rank and file in the country instinctively feel that neither their leader nor their guides are what they were wont to be. Besides the failings of age, it is beginning to dawn on many men in the Conservative ranks that Sir John has committed himself so deeply to the interests of the monopolists that he is no longer his own master, and that while the thinking men of the country are considering how some modification of what they see to be a disastrous policy can be effected, Sir John has bound himself to a wheel which will not allow him to stop. They feel that it is time a new leader was found, but they cannot find one. There is a strain of good-bye even in their public compliments. They regard him as one who has run his course, and a more or less tender farewell is breathed in their references to his services. The system of political leggedness, which none other than Sir John could so long have practiced with success, has lost its charm. An audience cannot sit all night watching a conjuror, he never so expert, particularly after the secret of his art has been exposed, nor can a people continue to wonder at and applaud the political jugglery of a politician when the revelation of his methods is accompanied by proof of the fact that they are not only discreditable to him, but also that they are not too creditable to those who by their presence or otherwise permit them to be repeated. Moreover Sir John has endeavored to nurse several infants of different and inharmonious parentage, and, like the nurse in H.M.S. Pinafore, he has mixed those babies up. The McCarthy and Orange wing of the party are at odds with Sir Hector Langevin, Sir John Thompson, and their friends; Sir Hector is at odds with Mr. Chapleau and his following, and those members of the party so aptly described by Mr. Rykert as sitting there to vote money into their own pockets, are out of harmony with Mr. Weldon, Col. O'Brien, and others who have higher notions of the duties and functions of a member of Parliament. With a leader who cannot keep his followers in the one direction, with the time of his retirement necessarily at hand, and with no one to take his place, it would almost seem that anxiety on the subject of leadership should be felt by Conservatives not so much on account of the Liberals as on their own.

A LITTLE PATIENCE.

A Maritime Province journal says:

"The formation of the three Lower Provinces into a federated whole, regulating their own tariff, and exercising entire control over all their affairs, would without doubt be a move in the right direction. These three Provinces have nothing to gain, but everything to lose, by remaining in the clutches of Upper Canada. One year after uniting their fortunes they could have an absolute free trade treaty with the United States. This would mean the doubling of our wealth and population in ten years."

We sincerely hope and entirely believe that things are not so bad that disintegration of the Dominion alone can mend them. But there must be some dangerous unrest in our confederation when we find not only the provinces of the extreme East, and the extreme Western provinces flouting the flag of the Dominion and declaring their preference for what may be called the unadulterated British Ensign, or the Stars and Stripes, but find also that the keystone of the great West—Manitoba to wit—is quite as impatient of the system that at present prevails at Ottawa as are the sisters by sea. A great number of that party which is running us upon the rocks are frank enough to say that they do not care; they can get on as well in a Canada of distinct divisions as in one of amalgamated form. Perhaps if some of these, particularly when actively engaged in politics, were entirely frank they would add that they would "sooner see the whole thing broken up than their own side turned out of office". We hope such people are in a minority of the Conservative party and that the majority will, while there is yet time, insist upon a complete change of methods at Ottawa. It is quite safe to say that it would be impossible to hold this Dominion together much longer, except for the reflection that even if the general elections failed to end the ruinous courses we are pursuing, nature herself will ere long require the retirement from active politics of many of the country's woe.

BLAINE'S NEW DEPARTURE.

Secretary Blaine's new departure on the trade question is the subject of keen discussion throughout the United States. He has declared himself in opposition to the McKinley tariff bill, and takes the ground that the best way to help the farmers is to provide them with profitable markets for their surplus products by the negotiation of reciprocity treaties. The stand taken by the Secretary of State has given great satisfaction to those who hold that extreme protection has been long enough bolstered up, and that the time has come when the burdens of taxation should be lightened and foreign trade relieved from some of the obstacles by which it is handicapped. Representative Butterworth of Ohio, who vigorously attacked the McKinley Bill when first introduced in the House, regards Blaine's attitude as both significant and timely, as the fresh avowing of a "commercial policy which has for its object the extension of our trade and commerce to every part of this continent." In a jubilant mood he says: "Thank God for the indication that the sun of narrow-gauge statesmanship is about to set and our international trade relations will be dictated no longer from cabbage and potato patches along our Northern and Southern border." It is just possible that too much is being made out of Blaine's deliverance; but the fact of his having taken even moderate ground against tariff revision which increases instead of reducing taxation, and in favor of a more liberal commercial policy towards other nations, is a point of no small importance. It indicates the steady growth in the United States of a feeling that what the country requires is a relaxation rather than an increase of tariff restrictions on foreign trade. The campaign of education is progressing steadily and favorably.

At Washington yesterday the House of Representatives killed the silver bill by refusing concurrence in the Senate amendments. The free coinage proposition was defeated on a vote of 135 yeas to 152 nays. The other Senate amendments were non-concurred in without division. This relieves President Harrison from the responsibility of vetoing the measure.

ST. JOHN TELEGRAPH:—Why did Pa-card refuse to testify before the commission? The Conservative press are asking. But they have no comments on the fact that Messrs. Tarte and Whelan, both Conservatives, also declined to answer.

The Conservative leaders of this Province do not want to hear anything more about the boodle operations which the Commission was appointed to enquire into, for two very good reasons: (1) They have a shrewd suspicion that it would prove a veritable boomerang to the Conservative party; (2) Having been badly beaten in the local elections, they have no further use for scandals until the next general election approaches.

The St. John, N.B., Globe is hauling some of the Supreme Court judges of that province over the coals. Judge King is absent on leave. Judge Palmer is absent without leave, attending to some legal business of his own in the United States. The result is that Chief Justice Allen and Judges Wetmore, Fraser and Tuck have to attend to the appeal business of the court, and Judge Fraser, having only recently recovered from a dangerous illness, can hardly be considered equal to the task of sitting day after day on the Bench for any great length of time. The Globe also charges that Judges King and Tuck are stockholders in the St. John Conservative organ, the Sun. It hardly seems the correct thing for judges to have a proprietary interest in a partisan newspaper. This point becomes all the more interesting from the fact that Judge Tuck is to preside in a libel suit brought by County Court Judge Steadman against the Sun Publishing Co. Assuming the Globe's statements to be correct, it would seem that the Supreme Court of New Brunswick would be the better of a little reorganization.

The Western Hospital.

A meeting of the governors of the Western Hospital was held last evening, when a satisfactory report as to the progress of the new work was made and several alterations were suggested of an important nature.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

IS THIS SO, WILLIAM?

Mr. William Clendinning has been so long canvassing for votes for the Dominion ministry on the ground that "it is the duty of all good citizens to support the government of the day," that the Tories will find it difficult to persuade him that the same rule should not govern his course in provincial politics.—Ottawa Free Press.

BREVITIES.

Including the Wimbledon team, the SS. Parisian, yesterday morning, had a list of 210 saloon passengers for Liverpool.

The City Council will meet again on Monday afternoon and will try to wipe out several orders which are now on the sheets.

The Royal Society has accepted the invitation of the Natural History Society to hold its next annual convention in this city.

Rev. Mr. Pulsford, now of Dumfries, Scotland, has been called to fill the pulpit of Emmanuel church, rendered vacant in April last.

A rumor was current yesterday that Ald. Jeannotte contemplated retiring from public life. His friends do not place much reliance on the rumor.

The Fire Committee will meet this afternoon when contracts will be awarded for the winter clothing and also for repairs to some of the stations.

The civic sub-committee will meet Sir Joseph Hickson at noon to-day with a view of having the Grand Trunk Railway Co. erect a station at Point St. Charles.

The Sixty-fifth battalion under Major Prevost were out having a good hour's drill last night. It is not likely that their inspection will take place before the fall.

The Provincial Board of Health will meet this afternoon, to consider the necessary steps to be taken to protect the Province in view of the epidemic of cholera in Spain.

Coroner Jones finished the inquest last night on the body of Alphonse Malouin, who was supposed to have been killed by quackery. The verdict was accidental death, imputing blame to no one.

The five year old son of Mr. Joseph Charrier, of Moreau Street, on Tuesday, fell a distance of forty feet from a gallery to the ground. The child received some dangerous injuries, and will likely be maimed for life.

The plans for the new public bath at Hochelaga will be completed to-day, and tenders for its construction will be opened on Saturday, and bidding accidents it is expected to be formally opened by Ald. Hamelin taking the first plunge.

Ald. Prefontaine, P. Kennedy and Tansey and Mr. St. George, will meet this afternoon and settle the question of allowing the Street Railway Co. to lay a temporary track on Mullin street. At present the people have to walk over 200 yards in changing cars.

An individual who was too drunk to give his name received several severe cuts and bruises last night through running into a G. T. R. engine as it was moving away from Coteau station. He was brought to the city and taken in the ambulance to the General Hospital.

The stock in trade and plant of the Henderson Manufacturing Company was sold by auction yesterday by Mr. J. H. Stewart. The stock, valued per inventory at $1600, realized 33 1/2 cents on the dollar, and the plant and machinery, valued at $2500, realized 30 cents on the dollar.

Near the Champ de Mars on Craig st. is a building in course of erection, and at present the cellar is used as a mortar bed. Last night a number of boys were playing near it when one of them, Philip LeFebvre, tumbled head foremost into the mortar. He was taken up and conveyed home more frightened than hurt.

The Redemptorist Fathers, of St. Ann's church, announce that the annual solemn Requiem Mass, for the repose of the souls of the victims of the ship fever of 1847, will be celebrated in their Church this morning at seven o'clock. These services, which are always of a most impressive character, are usually attended by large numbers of the faithful.

Hitherto the courts have decided that there is no appeal from the decisions of expropriation commissioners, but yesterday morning Mr. Justice Jetté decided otherwise in the case of ex-Ald. Roy. The expropriation commissioners had awarded Mr. Roy $1000 for a piece of land through which Miguonno Street is to be extended and the Court allowed Mr. Roy $1700.

Queen's Evidence

Is still drawing large audiences to the Theatre Royal. "Monte Cristo," a drama which always takes when well presented, is to close the season next week. The star is Mr. J. H. Gilmore, who will be seen in the leading role Dantes. The company, it is understood, are all picked people and are being specially engaged for the production.

Acknowledgments.

The treasurer of the Montreal General Hospital acknowledges with thanks the sum of $400 from the Grand Trunk Railway Company.

BATTLE IN THE DARK.

How a Tame White Rat Fought Out a Fatal Duel.

Mrs. Sarah Daggett, a widow, lives in an old house, about a mile from the Passaic River, in Kingsland, N. J. Thursday night she lay awake in the dark for two hours and listened, cold with terror, to a battle that raged behind the wainscot of her bedroom.

Mrs. Daggett's house was currently reported to be haunted, until the ghostly noises that frightened the occupants were found to emanate from a big gray rat that lived alone in the walls and under the floors, his unobscured disposition making it impossible for any other rat to share the premises with him. He was not tempted by poison nor deceived by traps, and, in point of age, he was credited with being the Methuselah of his race.

One day last week Mrs. Daggett's nine-year old son Willie carelessly allowed a tame white rat that had been given to him to escape in the garret and failed to lure him back to captivity. The white rat made his way behind the plaster to the surface of the room below, and it was a duel between the large wild animal and his little domesticated brother that kept Mrs. Daggett awake after she had blown out her light.

She says it was a very one-sided contest from the beginning, accompanied by piteous squeals and savage growls. Knowing that the white rat was little more than half the size of his opponent, her heart went out to her son's pet, and several times she arose and tapped the wainscot with the heel of her slipper. When she did this she could hear the stronger animal scurrying away, but his victim was evidently badly injured to crawl to safety, and he lay where he had fallen. When Mrs. Daggett went back to her bed his assailant returned and renewed the onslaught.

As it was clear to the frightened but sympathizing lady that she could not sit in her night attire on the floor, hammering the wall with her shoe until dawn, she decided that the only mercy she could show to the whiterat would be to leave him to his fate and allow his antagonist to put him out of his misery as speedily as possible. She ceased to interfere, and the sounds of battle were soon over.

In the morning, when a joiner took down the wainscot to enable Willie to give to all that remained of his pet a decent burial, he was found, not dead, but in a semi-comatose condition, caused by over feeding and fragments of the big gray rat were lying among plaster. The white rat had won.

STARVATION CAMP.

After informing the unfortunate cripples of our intention to proceed forward until we could find food, that we might not all be lost, and send relief as quickly as it could be obtained, I consigned the fifty-two men, eighty-one horses and ten canoes in charge of Capt. Nelson, to the care of good cheer, and hoisting our loads and boats on our shoulders, we marched away.

No more gloomy spot could have been selected for a camp than that sandy terrace, encompassed by rocks and hemmed in narrowly by those dark woods, which rose from the river's edge to the height of 600 feet and pent in the never-ceasing uproar which was created by the writhing and tortured stream, and the twin cataracts which ever rivalled each other in thunder.

The imagination shudders at the hapless position of those helpless men, who were doomed to remain inactive, to listen every moment to the awful sound of that irreconcilable fury of wrathful waters, and the monotonous and continuous roar of plunging rivers; to watch the leaping waves coiling and twisting into uprising columns as they ever wrestled for mastery with each other, and were dashed in white fragments of foam far apart by the ceaseless force of driven currents, to gaze at the dark, relentless woods spreading upward and around, standing perpetually fixed in dull green, mourning over past ages, past times, and past generations; then think of the night with its palable blackness; the dead, black shadows of the wooded hills; that eternal sound of fury, that ceaseless boom of the cataract, the indefinite forms born of nervousness and fearfulness; that misery engendered by loneliness, and creeping sense of abandonment; then will be understood something of the true position of these poor men.

And what of us, trudging up those wooded slopes to gain the crest of the forest upland, to tramp on and on, whither, we know not, for how long a time we dare not think, seeking for food, with the double responsibility weighing us down for these trustful, brave fellows with us, and for those, no less brave and trustful, whom we had left behind at the bottom of the horrible canon—H. M. Stanley in Scribner's Magazine.

THE KREUTZER SONATA.

The title of Count Tolstoy's last novel, admirably suggestive to musicians and to the great majority of even moderately cultivated amateurs of music, seems, says the Speaker, to have puzzled many of the Russian authors, commentators and translators. The Kreutzer Sonata is the most beautiful, as it is also the most popular of Beethoven's many beautiful duets for violin and piano; and the two evenly balanced, and constantly responsive parts, full of tender and passionate phrases, cannot but give the idea of a love duet. No one but Beethoven could have written it, and, as a matter of fact, Beethoven did write it. Yet the French papers appear to think that it was composed by Kreutzer and boldly call it "La Sonate de Kreutzer," whereas it is only dedicated to Kreutzer, the composer of "Lodoiska" and the principal violinist of Marie Antoinette's concert orchestra. The named Kreutzer ought to be known to the French, though Berlioz has told us that his countrymen could never master either its orthography or its pronunciation. They now attribute to Kreutzer one of the most characteristic and most fascinating of Beethoven's works. The writer of the interesting account of Count Tolstoy's book published in the Universal Review makes the performer of the string part in the Kreutzer Sonata play it on the violoncello. If this prodigious mistake occurs in the novel it is a supposition scarcely tenable, Count Tolstoy's eloquent rhapsodies as to the dangerously seductive character of the work lose a good deal of the value which might otherwise belong to them.

The Kreutzer Sonata is the most beautiful, as it is also the most popular of Beethoven's many beautiful duets for violin and piano; and the two evenly balanced, and constantly responsive parts, full of tender and passionate phrases, cannot but give the idea of a love duet. No one but Beethoven could have written it, and, as a matter of fact, Beethoven did write it. Yet the French papers appear to think that it was composed by Kreutzer and boldly call it "La Sonate de Kreutzer," whereas it is only dedicated to Kreutzer, the composer of "Lodoiska" and the principal violinist of Marie Antoinette's concert orchestra. The named Kreutzer ought to be known to the French, though Berlioz has told us that his countrymen could never master either its orthography or its pronunciation. They now attribute to Kreutzer one of the most characteristic and most fascinating of Beethoven's works. The writer of the interesting account of Count Tolstoy's book published in the Universal Review makes the performer of the string part in the Kreutzer Sonata play it on the violoncello. If this prodigious mistake occurs in the novel it is a supposition scarcely tenable, Count Tolstoy's eloquent rhapsodies as to the dangerously seductive character of the work lose a good deal of the value which might otherwise belong to them.

THE KREUTZER SONATA.

The title of Count Tolstoy's last novel, admirably suggestive to musicians and to the great majority of even moderately cultivated amateurs of music, seems, says the Speaker, to have puzzled many of the Russian authors, commentators and translators. Fresh Air Fund Cottage.

The frightful mortality among children is not inevitable by reason of tender years but is mainly caused by neglect. The heated term is the period of greatest mortality for those who dwell in cities and large towns. When the brick walls and stone pavements become heated like an oven and remain heated during the nights, the poor children literally gasp their lives away.

At this time thousands of these young lives may be saved by giving them a "cottage" in the country. A month, or a fortnight, or even a week of fresh air and wholesome food will fortify them to endure the miseries of their lot. Do not call it charity or alms—these are unmeaning words to describe a duty that the well-to-do owe to the unfortunate.

PERSPECTIVE.

A practical way to commence is for two or three ladies to lay the matter before some lawyer friend and have him prepare a clear statement of purposes and preliminary papers of organization, including a subscription list. Then fully acquaint the press with the movement. With all their alleged faults, which carping critics magnify, the newspapers are the staunchest friends of every good movement. The committee will be strengthened by volunteers following the newspaper notices, and then by a concerted effort it ought to be short work to raise sufficient funds. Then follows purchasing the ground, building the cottage, and furnishing, much of which ought to come in the form of donation. Finally the appointment of a matron and the reception of the children.

FIRST FLOOR.

During the summer, as detachment after detachment of rosy cheeks vacate the Fresh Air Fund Cottage to make room for pale and emaciated brothers and sisters, the patrons of this modest institution will experience an exquisite pleasure that will be apt to find expression in tears, if they be women, or in violent blowings of the nose, if they be men. Following will be found a detailed description of a cottage that will answer the requirements referred to:

General Dimensions: Width, including verandas, 35 feet; depth, including verandas, 53 feet. Heights of stories: First story, 9 feet; second story, 8 feet 6 inches.

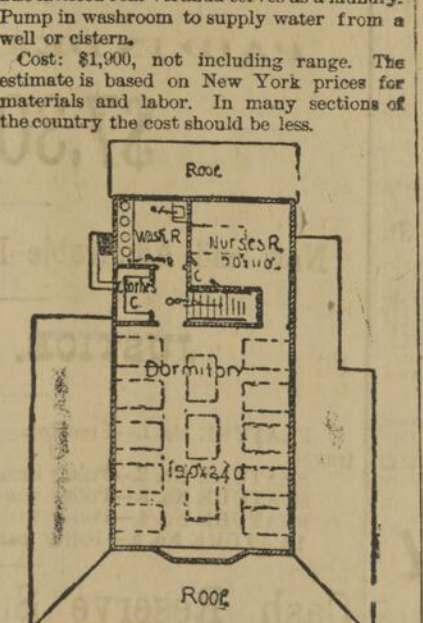

Exterior Materials: Foundation, brick piers; first story, clapboards; second story, gables and roof, shingles. Outside blinds to all outer doors and windows.

Interior Finish: Two coats plaster. Soft wood flooring, trim and stairs. All interior wood work finished with hard oil.

Colors: All clapboards medium green. Trim, veranda posts, all cornices and mouldings, frames of all lattice-work and outside blinds dark green; veranda floor dark red; veranda ceiling, oiled natural color; wall shingles of second story dipped and brushed coat red stain.

Accommodations: The principal rooms and their sizes, etc., are shown by the floor plans. No cellar. Attic is floored for storage purposes, and is reached by a scuttle over second-story hall. Dormitory has space for twelve or thirteen cots. Nurses' room connects directly with the dormitory. Clothes-closet and washroom conveniently accessible from dormitory. Kitchen isolated from main part. Range is deeply recessed, with a window at either side to carry off heat and odors. Pantries are all well lighted. Entry and staircase so arranged that second story is accessible without passing through living-room, which is intended to serve as dining, reading and recreation room. Veranda, wide and extensive. Glazed Dutch doors from three sides of the living-room. Bay window in second story with seat. The latticed rear veranda serves as a laundry. Pump in washroom to supply water from a well or cistern.

Cost: $1,000, not including range. The estimate is based on New York prices for materials and labor. In many sections of the country the cost should be less.

SECOND FLOOR.

Possible Modifications: Heights of stories, sizes of rooms, materials and colors may be changed. Part or all of outside blinds may be omitted. Size of veranda may be reduced or extended. Washroom and clothes-closet may be planned for first floor, thus giving space for three additional cots in the dormitory. That portion of rear veranda used for laundry purposes may also be inclosed. Part or all of plumbing may be omitted, or placed in a separate building connected by a suitable covered passage. All plastering may be omitted by planing all timbers and papering between, thus saving about $100.—R. W. Shoppell

Horse's Big Swim.

The toughest two miles that any horse in New Haven ever covered fell to the lot of a big bay yesterday morning as a result of his own indiscretion. It was two miles straight away across the harbor from the end of Long Wharf to the East Haven shore. That is a long swim for anything of the horse family, and the performance was watched by hundreds of people, who cheered loudly at its successful conclusion. The animal belonged to Truckman Clark L. Smalley, and was one of a handsome pair worth over $500. They were harnessed to a heavy truck, and their driver, Lew Woods, was taking them down to the end of Long Wharf to get a load of merchandise. Near the shore end of the wharf the bit of the off horse was broken. He took fright immediately, and dragged his mate along the wharf at a mad gallop. Dozens of loaded wagons were standing in the way of the frightened horses, and the excitement among the teamsters, who expected their own horses to join in the race or suffer by collision with Smalley's team, combined with apprehensions for Wood's safety, tended to make the scene exceedingly lively.

Driver Woods hung to the reins and either by nice judgment or good luck steered his team clear of everything. He hoped that they would stop at the end of the wharf, but they gave no sign of such an intention, and just at the last moment he jumped. He struck on his feet and was not hurt, but the team, without checking their speed for an instant, dashed clear off of the wharf and disappeared in fifteen feet of water. There was no sign of the truck or the near horse, but in about a minute the animal that had caused the trouble came to the surface entirely clear of the truck and struck out for the other shore, two miles away. Longshoreman John Taylor and two deck hands from the steamer Elm City jumped into a row-boat and pursued the swimmer. They overtook him after a chase of about three hundred feet, but dared not go near him for fear that he would upset the boat. There was nothing to do but to follow along and render assistance if it became possible.

Meanwhile John Angus, with a fast team, started around the shore to meet the horse if he should beach himself. Angus carried blankets and stimulating drinks to revive the horse, which would naturally be much exhausted after his swim. The horse, watched by a great crowd, swam steadily through the deep water and showed little signs of weariness. But about a quarter of a mile from the shore he struck shoal water and a muddy bottom. Here he floundered and seemed likely to drown. Taylor and his companions in the boat came to the rescue, however, and after a hard struggle in which the little craft was more than once in danger of being swamped, the unruly bay, doubtless by this time repentant, was helped over the shoals.

A few rods further ahead he struck some mud again, and floundered about till at last he turned over on his back. It was a delicate operation to right him, for his hoofs beat the water into foam, but Taylor and his companions were equal to the task, and the bay was once more set "on an even keel." Now the shore there is a ledge with slippery, sloping sides, and here the bay got into trouble again. He tried to get a footing but slid off and sank in the deep water. Again he was rescued and started toward the shore. Fortunately a narrow strip of water now lay before the tired animal, and in a few minutes he struck hard bottom and walked ashore, while a great cheer went up from the crowd.

Angus was ready to meet him with a warm blanket and the drinks. The former was accepted with dumb thanks, but the drinks were respectfully though firmly declined. The horse was not bruised except over the eyes and his injuries were not serious.—New Haven News.

Back to Her Side.

An old, dilapidated prairie schooner or camper's wagon came cracking through the December wind, bound westward. As it came nearer in its slow course across the plain I saw that the horses were thin and spiritless and the driver, who sat on a rough board seat beneath the faded and torn canvas cover, was as we began to say.

He had once been a good looking man, but his face and unkempt clothing told too well the story of sorrow and disappointment. "How far is it to the next town?" he asked as he came opposite to me. "About five miles."

"How is the road? Can get there before night?"

"I am afraid not, without hurrying." The clouds were skimming across the sky and a storm seemed riding on the back of the north wind that blew fiercely over the prairie.

"Guess I'll go on, though," he ejaculated after having considered a moment. Then he alighted from the wagon and commenced fixing a broken strap of the harness with some cord he drew from the wagon box.

"What's your hurry? Where are you bound for were my queries. "I'm going to Smith county," he replied, wearily, as he thought of the long trip, almost to the foot of the Rockies, "and I must get there before the first of the month."

"Why, got some land there?" "No, not exactly, but something better. I lived there two years ago. Mary and I. The hot winds came and the times grew hard for us. We worked night and day, but there wasn't no use—the sun just dried up the ground and we almost give up. Then Mary died; she was my wife, you know," he said, in half apologetic words. "She helped all she could, but her strength wouldn't hold out."

"Yes, so you alone that I buried her all by myself on our little claim and then started for the old home back east to try and make a livin'." I lost my right to the claim, he went on wearily after a pause, "but I didn't care much, except that she was there. Now I must go through and see to it."

"Do you expect to get it back?" "Not all of it; I don't want it. But they tell me the land is being plowed up in that neighborhood, an' I'm afraid they'll plow over her grave."

"And so you'll buy the land?" "A little of it that holds her. I kin make a livin' I know, an' I'll stay by her side till the end. It seemed like the sun went out when she left me there."

He resisted all my efforts to induce him to remain for the night. He must hurry, he said. And the last I saw of him he was urging the tired horses towards the angry sunset sky so eager to reach the grave of the one he loved so well.

Humble in station though he was, crude though his surroundings, his lonely vigil on the far western prairies with the wide spreading sea of grass around and only the tiny mound of earth to attract his lonely heart, has often seemed a picture worthy of a true artist's touch.—Detroit Free Press.

SOME SIMPLE EXPERIMENTS THAT WILL INTEREST AND AMUSE.

The Laws that Govern the Human Eye—
Photographers' Camera are the Same—
A Lesson in Optics Graphically Illustrated by Nature.

Take a piece of cardboard or opaque paper and pierce a small, clean cut hole through it, about the diameter of the head of a large pin. On holding the opening before the eye and looking through it, the first effect noticed will be that the depth of focus of the eyes is greatly improved. Objects can be placed very near to the eye and seen plainly, while if viewed in the usual way they would be indistinct. At the same time distinct objects can be seen with clearness. The effect of the minute opening placed before the eye is exactly the same as when a photographer puts a "stop" in front of his objective; greater depth of focus and clearness of definition, but a loss of illuminating power.

FIG. 1.—EXPERIMENTS IN OPTICS.

A more curious experiment may be shown by holding the card between the eye and a strong light—e.g. lamp shade, for instance, or a window curtain through which the light is shining. Then hold a pin between the eye and the hole in the card, as shown in Fig. 1. The head of the pin will be visible, but reversed, as shown in Fig. 1. The cause is explained in the accompanying diagrams of the eye (Fig. 2), which represents the experiment under ordinary conditions; the rays of light from the source are refracted by the lenses of the eye so that they cross each other, giving a reversed image on the retina. In fact, we really see everything upside down, and it is probably only on account of long experience that we perceive objects in their natural position, just as the photographer soon forgets that the images formed on the ground glass of his camera are reversed, but selects his points of view and poses his sitters without thinking of the inverted position in which they appear.

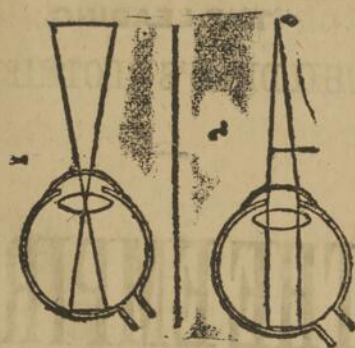

FIG. 2.—EXPERIMENTS IN OPTICS.

In 2, however, the conditions are changed. The illuminated opening in the card acts as an independent source of light, and casts the shadow of the pin directly upon the retina; the head of the pin being held so close to it that the shadow is cast directly upon the retina, without the usual reversal of the image, which, therefore, appears to our mind as upside down, whereas it is really in an upright position. This automatic correction by the eye or brain of the images thrown upon the retina is a curious fact, and cannot be said to be fully understood.

When first we met it was agreed
That we should banish Cupid.
She thought him simple; so indeed
Did I, and called him stupid.
"And what's the use," said she, "of his Impertinent attentions?"
Adding, with zest, "my motto is,
A friendly independence!"
So in the waltz around her waist
She let my arm go stealing;
Meanwhile with constant gaze she traced
The cherubs on the ceiling.
And what I could not understand—
Though ignorance was pleasing—
Was that her tiny, plump white hand
Did not object to squeezing.
Then out of friendship I began
Directly to discover
The naturally girl and man
Grew into so; and when I did—
I told her so; and when I did—
Her modest love confessing—
Her face upon my breast she hid,
And Cupid asked the blessing!

WHEN THE SHIP COMES IN.

SOME INCIDENTS AT THE LANDING OF AN OCEAN STEAMSHIP.

Welcoming the Father of the Family—
What John Brought Home—The Pretty Girls Who Greet Him—The Widow and Her Dead.

The dock is crowded. Men, women and children in every variety of attire stand near the stringpiles or walk slowly up and down the pier. Longshoremen and dock hands are busily engaged in getting everything ready for the arrival of the vessel. The stevedore stands on a pile of boxes and shouts in deep bass tones, his orders mixed with oaths.

A customs officer in a neat blue uniform struts up and down, apparently indifferent to the admiring glances of the women.

At one corner of the dock a jolly German family, minus the head thereof, gayly chatters. The mother is a stout comfortable woman. The scion of the house talks to her, but is not too much engrossed to gaze admiringly at the group of pretty girls opposite. He takes in every detail of their personality, and his glance, after wandering from one to the other, finally rests upon the girl in whose wavy brown hair the sun brings out sparkling shades of red and whose mischievous blue eyes when resting for an instant in apparent indifference on the young man nevertheless sends a pang to his left side. His face expresses admiration, and the maiden, although she feigns indifference, looks coquettishly at him from beneath her long eye-lashes. Suddenly she smiles; the youth looks uneasy, listens with terror to the ripple of laughter that arises from the group, and finally transfers his gaze to the opposite shore. He is still young enough to be afraid of real or fancied ridicule. The pretty girl tosses her head and selects another victim.

A pale little woman sits on a crate in a secluded corner. Her widow's cap and mourning are new, and the tears stream down her face behind the heavy black veil. Her eyes are red with long weeping, and she restrains her sobs with difficulty. She is waiting for her dead.

The customs officer suddenly stops his promenade and looks down the river. He speaks to those about him, and the crowd surges toward the end of the pier. The vessel is in sight. Her broad bows loom up just beyond the Statue of Liberty, and a long stream of blue smoke curls up almost as high as the torch of the goddess.

Slowly the great ship veers and hugs the right shore of the river. Her canvas flutters gracefully, and the sunlight strikes the white bands of her smokestacks. As the ship comes nearer little white patches appear on all parts of her decks; they are the passengers' handkerchiefs, the fluttering of which the waiters on the dock quickly return the friendly signals.

The vessel strikes across to the Jersey shore, turning at a sharp angle almost within her own length. Her speed slackens and her sharp outwater scarcely disturbs the smoothness of the stream.

"Hullo, John, how are you?"

"The question is quickly answered by one of the passengers.

"First rate. How are all the folks?"

"Fine. Rough passage?"

"So-so. Gotta fine collie from the other side."

"Lessee him," and John holds the magnificent dog up for inspection.

"Papa! There's papa!" scream the children of the comfortable German family, as they rush to the edge of the dock.

"Papa" only smiles, but his smile expresses more tenderness and paternal pride than could be found in the whole of Dr. Webster's little book. "Papa" is evidently proud of his little ones.

The great steamship is now only twenty feet from the end of the pier. Is she going to lay to there? No. A sailor throws a rope from the bows, which is neatly caught by a longshoreman and made fast to a capstan.

The boat's stands on the prow and echoes the Captain's orders. Slowly the vessel swings around the corner of the dock.

"Now, all together, pull in on the fore'd ropes!"

"Gangway!"

There is a rush of feet across the pier as the dock hands run the gangplank up to the steamship's main deck. A longshoreman hastily lashes it to the rail, the bar is removed, and the purser comes down the gangway with a bundle of documents in his hand. He is tall and dashing, and salutes his friends with a military air.

The comfortable German family rushes toward the gangplank and welcomes its paternal head with outstretched arms. There is a sound like a volley of musketry, and "Papa" disappears in a cloud of chubby legs and faces.

The passengers descend the gangway in single file, some laughing, others crying for joy. John leads his collie carefully, and is instantly surrounded by the pretty girls, who shower affectionate epithets upon him with a degree of prodigality that is tantalizing to the outsider. Whether they are his sisters, cousins, or admirers, John, as well as his collie, is a lucky dog.

But what is that long, pine box, which the dock hands bear so carefully! The low cry of the little woman in black answers the question as she throws herself upon it in utter abandonment of grief. Rush! Don't stand around gazing at her.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's
CHLOROZYNE

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

Vice-Chancellor, SIR W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, and that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was literally untrue, and he regretted to say that it had been a story—Times, July 13, 1884.

JAMES FENIMORE COOPER.

Cooper's novels are as widely read. They are wonderfully interesting and true to life, and a general of them will enable the reader to form a better idea of the manners and customs, as well as the struggles and trials of American frontier life in its early history, than can be had from any other source. COOPER'S LEATHER STOCKING TALES are Romantic, exciting and Graphically written. Those who enjoy reading of Indians and their methods of War with their peculiar habits and customs, should read these most thrilling and fascinating of Cooper's novels.

WAS CLEVERLY DONE

HOW LOUIS MAYER MANAGED HIS OPERATIONS.

An Interesting Trio—Their Victims Quite Numerous—Eighty Thousand Dollars Gone—Shuffling Notes—Their Whereabouts Unknown—Detective Gross Has the Matter in Hand.

Another chapter has been added to the Mayer scandal in the disappearance of James Nolan, who succeeded Louis Mayer in his retail clothing store on Notre Dame street.

Louis Mayer, Frederick Lewis and James Nolan were a trio who evidently came to this city to "do up" anybody and everybody who were green enough to fall victims to their well laid and carefully carried out plans. There is no doubt whatever, that the whole thing was so well planned that there was little chance of their defalcations being discovered before they knew it. No one has for a moment expected that anything was wrong and now that the denouement has come the public verdict is that Mayer was a very clever rogue.

It was in September last that he first came to this city and went into the retail clothing business. How this business prospered is Only Known to Mayer Himself, but certain it is that he found a buyer. The buyer was James Nolan and he a once laid in a fresh stock of goods from the new wholesale house opened by Mayer. The next move of the two was to open a store on St. Lawrence Main St. and this also was stocked by Mayer. The object was palpable. Nolan and Lewis paid large sums of money to Mayer; that is, they paid him notes, and with these notes in his possession, Lewis endorsed by Nolan and vice versa, he added to his credit. In the meantime the three men bought goods from everybody who would sell for paper endorsed by the purchaser's two friends. Thus it will be seen that they dragged merchant after merchant into their net until to-day they are somewhere with from $70,000 to $80,000 of other people's money.

Where they are is at present a mystery, but the case is in competent hands and Detective Gross expresses himself as confident that they will finally be caught. It is understood that against Mayer, at least, a charge is pending in the United States and that he dare not show his face across the line.

Yesterday the unfortunate creditors undertook to look into the matter as far as assets were concerned. They are worse off than they at first thought. No one who had looked inside Nolan's store would have dreamed for a moment that that the stock would at least be worth a few thousand dollars, but an inspection told a very different story. There are hundreds of dollars in assets, but all the goods left will realize. On the closely packed shelves were many boxes of not goods but ashes. First he bought the coal on credit and then stocked his shelves with the ashes. They wouldn't sell, but made a very good showing.

One thing is worth noting—the banks would not accept Mayer's paper, but he managed to float it in other quarters, and also succeeded in getting about $35,000 from a Private Banker.

One of his victims is a working jeweler, who loses about $1,000, but he is only one of the many. Mrs. Mayer, who always dressed very stylish, carries with her all her dresses and other articles to the value of at least $2,000. How much of this is paid for is not known, but at least $600 is due a retail house for the dresses. This is not the first time Louis Mayer has been written up in the press. Shortly before his arrival in this city he was arrested for obtaining money under false pretences, and it was then proven by paper in his possession that he was not Louis Mayer but Louis Jacob. Of course this has only come to light since the disappearance of the two.

"This Comes Hopping." "This comes 'hopping' to find you well as it leaves me at this present," was the quaint finish to many a letter in days gone by. The "hopping" was odd spelling for hoping. This comes hopping to point some weary woman, the victim of functional derangements or uterine troubles, internal inflammation and ulceration or any other ailments peculiar to the sex, the way of hope, health and happiness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is the only medicine for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, of satisfaction, being given in every case or money refunded. Stanley A. D. C. L.

LONDON, June 25.—At the Oxford University commemoration today an uproarious scene occurred, when Mr. Henry Stanley was introduced. Upon his presentation to the undergraduates, the explorer was very good naturedly chaffed by the college lads, who sang "For he's a jolly good fellow," following up the rendition of the old song with a salvo of cheers for Stanley and "one more for the bride-elect," who was also present. The degree of doctor of civil law was conferred upon Mr. Stanley, and also upon Prof. Goodwin of Harvard.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

To keep cool in hot weather take Turkish Baths. This may seem paradoxical to the unlearned in physiology and the inexperienced, but it is so nevertheless. Facts, now-a-days, are taking precedence of mere impression, and are pushing many a pretty looking theory to the wall. When scores of gentlemen, in the habit of taking Turkish Baths, say they feel comparatively cool and comfortable, when others are used up by the heat, that settles it. After all it is only common sense. Pure blood engenders no abnormal heat; open the pores of the skin and perspiration finds easy vent and evaporation. Write Manager, Turkish Baths, Montreal, for circulars.

AT THE CITY HALL.

What Was Done at the Meetings of the Road and Park and Ferries Committees.

The Parks and Ferries Committee met yesterday, with acting-Mayor Stephens in the chair. It was decided to apply to council for power to vary their appropriations to enable them to pay clothing accounts. Mr. Depatie was granted a five years' privilege of erecting swings, cane boards, and babies on the block, for the sum of $240 per annum. Mr. J. Phillips was granted permission to erect a galvanic battery on the island on the payment of $20 yearly. The question of the R. & O. N. Co's contract was brought up and discussed, it ending in the acting-Mayor being authorized to protest them for not keeping to the terms of agreement.

ROAD COMMITTEE.

Ald. Preontaine presided at the meeting of the Roads Committee. Ald. Robert presented a petition from the proprietors asking that the name of Papineau Road be changed to Papineau Avenue. The following drains were ordered to be constructed. Those on Roy, Berri, Panet, Sherbrooke, Bleury, Dorchester and Wellington Streets to be done by contract, and those on Cavell and Harbor Streets and Seymour Avenue by open work. Tenders for sewers were then opened and awarded as follows: Bonsecour, from Champ de Mars to Notre Dame, N. Laporte @ $7.50 per square yard; Gain, from Dorchester northwards, Bellemare @ $6.95; Lagache, from Germain to St. Elizabeth, N. Laporte @ $7.90; Notre Dame de Lourdes Lane, from St. Catherine to Dorchester, Bellemare @ $7.48; Notre Dame, from Monarque to east of Shaw, N. Laporte @ $7.15; Papineau Road, from Mignonne to Lafontaine, M. F. Sheridan @ $7.45.

It was decided to recommend that permanent sidewalks be laid on the following streets with the material named, at the estimated cost, as follows: Papineau road from Papineau square to St. Catherine, with 6-foot flagstone and coal tar sides @ $8,250; St. Catherine from De Lorimier avenue to Papineau road, 6-foot flagstone, coal tar sides, $3,400; St. Catherine from Papineau road to Bleury street, 6-foot flagstone and cement, $8,000; Windsor, from St. James to Oshorne, 6-foot flagstone and cement, $5,775; Lacroix, from Notre Dame to Craig, 12-foot asphalt, $4,200; Fortification lane, from Victoria square to St. Gabriel, 3-foot asphalt, $4,550; St. Lawrence, west side from Craig to Lagache, 12-foot cement, $2,820; St. Peter from Notre Dame to St. Paul, 4-foot 6-inch flagstone, $2,625; Peel, from Cypress to St. Catherine, 6-foot flagstone, coal tar sides, $2,025; Barrack, from Notre Dame to Commissioners, 12-foot asphalt, $2,275; St. Lambert, Craig to St. James, 12-foot asphalt, $1,855; St. Gabriel from Notre Dame to St. Paul, 6-foot asphalt, $1,645; St. Vincent, from Notre Dame to St. Paul, 5-foot asphalt, $1,575; Place d'Armes Hill from Craig to St. James, 12-foot asphalt, $1,050; St. Therese, from St. Vincent to St. Gabriel, 4 foot cement, $875; St. George, from Craig to Fortification Lane, 6 foot cement, $560; St. Patrick, from Wellington to Conde, 4 foot flagstone, and coal tar sides, $5,000. The whole at an estimated cost of $101,480.

On the Chairman's suggestion it was decided to ask an advance of $5,500 to erect the necessary shops and houses on the new yard on De Lorimier avenue. A letter was read from Mr. Geo. Hadriell, secretary of the Board of Trade, asking that the paying of St. Peter Street be delayed until the drains were put into connection with the Board's new building. A sub-committee consisting of Ald. Frefontaine and Pat Kennedy, with the City Surveyor, were appointed to see about allowing the Street Railway Company to temporarily place their track on Mullins instead of Wellington street. The committee concurred in the request of the proprietors of Papineau Square that the square should be extended to Dorchester street.

The Recounts.

A recount in St. Lawrence division took place yesterday before Mr. Justice Wurtels. There were also present Ald. Stephens and Clendinning, with their agents, the returning officer and his clerk. The result was that Ald. Clendinning's majority was reduced by 2, which now leaves it at 16.

Mr. N. Brisson has been declared elected by the casting vote of the returning officer, after a recount, in Beauharnois. Mr. Beland's majority in St. Mary's division has been reduced from 87 to 67. Mr. Ange has applied for a recount in St. James ward, which will take place on Saturday. Ald. Jeannotte has no intention of contesting Mr. Beland's election. The recount which was to have taken place yesterday of the ballots cast in Laprairie at the recent election has been discontinued, as Mr. C. Pelletier's deposit, though made on the 23rd, was by mistake only entered on the 24th, or a day too late. Hon. Mr. Duhamel is therefore elected for that constituency.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

By proper, healthful exercise, and the judicious use of Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites, which contains the healing and strength-giving virtues of these two valuable specifics in their fullest form. Dr. D. I. McDonald, Petticoat, N. B., says: "I have been prescribing Scott's Emulsion with good results. It is especially useful in persons of consumptive tendencies." Sold by Druggists, 50c. and $1.00.

Looking for Business.

A party of capitalists representing others in England, Antwerp and Berlin, together with Americans with whom they are associated, have been travelling through the United States examining localities for the establishment of land banks. One of the number, Mr. Birchall, of Liverpool, was in Montreal yesterday, but not it is understood, with the view of extending operations to Canada at present. The scheme is in connection with the Equitable Mortgage Company, of New York, and is planned out with considerable judgment and foresight. The party has visited mainly in the southern and south-western states, but will probably extend their operations.

TROTTERING.

A Capital Day's Sport at Lepine Park.

Taking advantage of the beautiful summer weather which prevailed yesterday, over one thousand persons journeyed down to Lepine Park to witness what turned out to be some of the keenest trotting seen in this vicinity for a long period. The track, thanks to the rain which fell overnight, and to the care which Mr. Lepine had bestowed upon it in the early morning, was in excellent condition for fast time to be recorded.

The first race disposed of was the 2.30 class, two heats of which had been trotted the day before. Grand Isle who was the favorite at the start, had very little difficulty in securing the next two heats and the race.

The 2.40 class was next continued and it was the means of affording a series of exciting struggles right up to the wire in the sixth heat. Mr. Sinclair's bay stallion, General Riel, had been bad luck during the contest, as on three occasions he passed the wire first, he was put back for running, thereby allowing Blackstone to be awarded the race.

The third event was that for the twenty-six class, for which four horses scored, viz.: Holmdel, H.E.B., Bonnie Annie, and Sergeant. In the first heat the quartet were sent away to a beautiful start, but after two hundred yards Mr. Vail took Holmdel to the front and sent him along at a rattling gallop; and at the half, which he covered in one minute ten seconds, he was seven lengths ahead of H.E.B., the other two away off. From this out it was merely a procession. Holmdel under a strong pull easily kept the lead, and passed under the wire an easy winner.

The second and third heats, which were also won by Holmdel handily, clearly demonstrated that the Blue Bonnets Stallion is rapidly coming into his proper form, and before the season is ended there is very little doubt he will lower his present mark down several notches. The management was of the best, very little time being lost between heats, and the judges acted impartially throughout the afternoon, giving entire satisfaction to owners and spectators alike.

The Expropriation Commissioners.

The Commissioners in expropriation for St. Catherine Street, east, met yesterday. The Canadian Pacific Railway claimed the sum of $38,000, while the city witnesses put the loss to them at $7,000. The Notre Dame street commissioners have finished taking evidence relative to values. They will now meet to decide on the amounts to be awarded. At their last meeting to hear evidence, Messrs. Philon Brothers, shoemakers, asked $450, which the city's witnesses placed at $36. Mr. Felix Archambault, tinsmith, asked $619 which was placed at $111. Mr. E. P. Ronayne, for lease of a store not occupied, claimed $3,500, which the city's witnesses considered worth $500. Mr. Tormaldo, confectioner, asked $2,600, and was reduced to $445 by the city's witnesses.

FOR COLD OR PAIN.

YELLOW OIL is the best remedy I ever used. I had a healing remedy 15 months ago, which was very sore. I got no relief until I tried Haggard's Yellow Oil, which gave instant relief.

No Files on Him.

Jack the Baboon, so well known to all who have ever had occasion to pass through the Uitenhage (Cape Colony) Railway Station, has gone to that bourne from which no baboon ever returns, much to regret of the country side. Jack was one of the most intelligent specimens of the ape tribe ever captured, and he was regarded as quite a regular railway employee at Uitenhage. He took his turn at working the signals and shoving trolleys about. When required to do so, he would go to his master's cottage, hunt for and find any article required, and then after carefully looking the door, he would remove the key, and bring both it and the article he was sent to fetch to his master. The latter had lost both his legs, and consequently found Jack a valuable helpmate. The baboon was also noted through the district as a fair light-weight boxer, and he had also been trained to use the singletick with singular adroitness. He never drank anything stronger than water, and was unmarried.

End of the Litigation.

A cable was received yesterday from London, by Mr. Selkirk Cross, the solicitor for respondents, in the cases of La Banque d'Hecheval vs. Murray and others, that the Privy Council had rejected the appeal taken by the Bank, and confirmed the decision of the Court of Appeals here, which declared Murray and the others not to be liable, as shareholders of the Pioneer Beet Root Sugar Co. This is the termination of a long series of litigation involving about $50,000, and no small satisfaction is felt by those in whose favor the decision has turned.

Florists and Gardeners.

A meeting of the Florists and Gardeners Society was held last evening at their rooms on University street. A large number of members were present. After discussion it was decided to hold the annual picnic at Ile Perrot, next month. It was also decided to hold the fall Flower show of the Society in November, the dates to be agreed upon at their meeting next month.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment.

Bilious affections, with all their concomitant annoyances induced by atmospheric changes, or too liberal diet, should be checked at once, or serious consequences may ensue. When any one finds his ideas less clear than usual, his eyesight dimmed, and his head dizzy, accompanied by a disinclination for all exertion, physical or mental, he may be quite sure that he is in immediate need of some alternative medicine. Let him at once send for a box of Holloway's Pills, a mild course of which will remove the symptoms, and speedily renew his usual healthful feeling. If the bowels be irritable, Holloway's Ointment should be diligently rubbed over the stomach and liver every night and morning.

More Alarm than Fire.

The central division of the fire brigade were called out last night about 11 o'clock for a fire which had broken out in the grocery store of P. J. Rowan, at the corner of St. Urban and Vitre streets. Smoke filled the apartments above, causing the hasty exit of the occupants. During the excitement a woman fainted and the Notre Dame hospital ambulance was telephoned for, but by the time it arrived she had recovered. The fire in the store was easily extinguished.

A NATIONAL MONUMENT.

Conclusion of the French-Canadian Festival.

The picnic at Sohmer Park under the auspices of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, in aid of the National Monument, and which was postponed yesterday in consequence of the inclement state of the weather, was continued yesterday afternoon, there being a large attendance of sympathizers in the movement on both occasions. During the afternoon the chairs in front of the grand stand were but poorly patronized owing to the excessive heat and the unprotected state of the surroundings, most of those present having chosen the shadiest nooks available.

In consequence it was decided to postpone the speech-making till the evening, the more especially so as the speakers who had been advertised to deliver addresses failed to put in an appearance.

In the evening the grounds presented a fairly spectacle. Chinese lanterns were hung in great profusion from the lower branches of all the trees on the grounds, and fairy lamps of different colors were grouped together in the most tasteful style in different parts of the park, and these, together with the electric lights, and the gay attire of the ladies, made up a spectacle that will long be remembered by those who witnessed it. Those who had charge of the illuminations are, without doubt, deserving of all praise for the artistic manner in which they placed the hundreds of lanterns and lamps. During the evening there was also a display of fireworks which was greatly enjoyed by the audience, which numbered between five and six thousand persons. The city band, as usual, was in attendance, and during the evening discoursed a choice programme of music. While they were doing so the young ladies in charge of the different booths were busy coaxing those present to subscribe in one way or another toward the object for which the picnic was held.

About nine o'clock Mr. L. O. David ascended the platform and delivered an address. He treated upon the importance of the festival which they were celebrating, and on the important part which the French-Canadians had played in the history of this country.

He foretold that certain speakers who were expected to attend had not turned up, among them particularly Hon. J. A. Chaplain, who had not even deigned to reply to the invitation sent him. He then urged the large crowd present to liberally patronize the young ladies, who would go among them, in order that at a very early date they might see the completion of the "Monument National," which, it was his desire, should soon become a realized fact.

After an intermission of about fifteen minutes, Mr. David again ascended the platform, being accompanied by Mr. Frechette, Ald. Cunningham and Mr. Boivin, and shortly after Mr. R. Lemieux and La Durantaye appeared.

Mr. Frechette, upon being introduced, paid a high compliment to Mr. David for being the first who had conceived the idea of erecting a "National Monument." He urged his hearers to assist him in his noble work, so that one day he might be able to see the triumph of his glorious idea. He concluded by reciting a poem of his own, entitled "Fort Monheur," which was filled with beautiful sentiments touching the bravery and patriotism of the French Canadian race.

Ald. Cunningham was then introduced as representing the corporation of Montreal in the absence of the Mayor, and said that of all displays of a national character he had witnessed none greater than that made by the St. Jean Baptiste society on Tuesday last. He stated that the forefathers of the French Canadians had been the pioneers of this country, and that the people of other nations knew this, and that the French Canadians had come here to stay and to promote the moral and national rights of this country. It afforded him, he said, great pleasure to be present as representing the Mayor of Montreal, to be able to how the interest he took in the present progress of Montreal, which was in great part due to the French Canadians. In the line of statement he mentioned the names of Mercier, Chaplain, Langevin and Laurier, each of whom the French Canadians should feel proud of. In the field of literature they had their poet Frechette, and there was also their artist Hebert. In all branches they had made themselves felt and thus conveyed to those abroad an idea of the mental outfit of the Canadian people.

Mr. R. Lemieux was next introduced, and indulged in recalling some recollections very popular with the French Canadian people. He referred to the men who had died for their country, perhaps on the very ground where they were standing, and whose blood had saturated at one time the grass in the immediate vicinity. His speech completely captured the audience and they applauded him to the echo. In concluding he, too, urged the necessity of giving every aid to Mr. David in the construction of the national monument.

Mr. La Durantaye was next brought forward and delivered an address of a similar strain, tracing the origin of the French Canadian people, and referring to their patriotism. He dwelt particularly on the love the French Canadian people had for old France, and expressed his confidence that they would ever preserve that love. The band then resumed its programme of music, which was of a very choice character and the gathering dispersed about midnight. A very creditable feature of the event was the decorum and quietude which characterized the conduct of those attending.
