Worldwide airline bomb hunt on

Wheelchair volleyballers ready

By LEWIS HARRIS
SHERBROOKE — The first provincial wheelchair volleyball tournament will be held in Montreal Sunday, but a Sherbrooke team has been preparing for the competition since November.

A volleyball team made up of persons confined to wheelchairs was formed Nov. 6, and since that date the team has practised regularly every Monday evening.

At first, coach Michel Boissineault, a physical education instructor at the University of Sherbrooke, stressed only conditioning to the team members. But as the team became more adept, and after the dates for the provincial tournament was announced, the team began practising on Saturday mornings as well, and the sessions now include intra-squad games.

The team includes John Byrns, Jacinthe Lambert, Gerard D'Arcy, Jacques Bourassa, Roger Bilodeau, Roger Fecteau, Armand Giguere, Denis Grenier, Gilles Desruisseaux, Jacques Tremblay and coach Boissineault.

Wheelchair volleyball is played according to conventional rules as determined by the International Volleyball Federation. The court, however, is only 40 feet long and 20 feet wide instead of the usual 58-foot length and 30-foot width. The net is about one foot shorter than normal.

As well as the Sherbrooke team, teams from Quebec City, Laval and Montreal will compete in the tournament which will take place in the Maisonneuve Centre in Montreal.

NEW YORK (AP) — A threat that one of its planes would be blown up every six hours for a day unless Trans World Airlines paid $2 million touched off a worldwide bomb hunt of TWA's jet fleet Tuesday. The threat sent one jetliner streaking back to Kennedy airport, where two trained dogs sniffed out a powerful plastic bomb in an attache case in the cockpit.

The bomb had been timed to go off at 1 p.m. EST.

The second deadline, 7 p.m., passed without incident and the search was continuing through the night, with two more deadlines impending.

Neither the FBI, TWA nor local authorities would comment late Tuesday on what was being done about the demand for $2 million.

Airports were searched from coast to coast and some TWA planes made emergency landings for precautionary reasons. An airline spokesman said:

"We have 485 flights a day. We are carefully searching every aircraft."

The bomb found in the plane at Kennedy consisted of about five or six pounds of explosive that "would have blown the plane apart," said detective William Schmidt of the city police's bomb section, which defused the device.

The plane, a Los Angeles-bound Boeing 707 with 45 passengers and a crew of seven, landed at 12:10 p.m. EST, just 50 minutes before police said the bomb was timed to go off. The plane had been in the air 30 minutes.

CHECKED BY DOGS
TWA incoming flights at both Kennedy and La Guardia airports here were checked out by the explosives-sensing dogs, who were split up between the two airports after they found the bomb on the Los Angeles flight.

An anonymous caller told TWA officials the bomb was aboard and instructed them to look in locker No. 930 at the airport. In the locker was a note demanding a $2-million ransom and threatening that a bomb would go off every six hours in one of the company's planes until 7 a.m. today if the money was not paid.

The time and place of the ransom delivery were not disclosed.

The airline immediately instituted a search of every plane in its worldwide system, but said all flights would continue as near on schedule as possible.

Police said the pilot of the 707 had paid no attention to the black case with the bomb during his pre-flight inspection, because it had a crew tag tied to the handle.

The bomb was taken to a police range and defused 12 minutes before it was set to go off.

Trudeau to visit here

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will spend 12 hours Friday in southeastern Quebec, making stops at Drummondville, Victoriaville and Thetford Mines.

Mr. Trudeau will leave Ottawa at 10 a.m. and fly to the air base in the Montreal suburb of St. Hubert, then go by helicopter to Drummondville, arriving at 11 a.m.

He is to visit the Celanese Canada Ltd. plant in Drummondville and meet with Liberal supporters.

At 4 p.m. he is scheduled to answer questions at a public meeting in Le Manège school in Victoriaville.

From there, he will travel by helicopter to Thetford Mines to take part in a local Moose Club evening at 8 p.m. He will fly back to Ottawa shortly after 11 p.m.

Deportation seen for Geoffroy

BARCELONA (CP-Reuters) — Escaped murderer Yves Geoffroy and his wife spent their second night in jail in this Spanish city Tuesday night amid indications they might be deported to Canada shortly.

Spanish police and officials have thrown a veil of secrecy around the detention of the couple.

One report earlier in the day said the couple would be flown to Canada later Tuesday, but police here and in Madrid said they had no information to substantiate this. And a spokesman at the Canadian embassy in Madrid said:

"This is the first I have heard of it. The embassy has not been informed of any deportation."

Another report earlier in the day said the couple would be flown to Canada later Tuesday, but police here and in Madrid said they had no information to substantiate this. And a spokesman at the Canadian embassy in Madrid said:

"This is the first I have heard of it. The embassy has not been informed of any deportation."

One senior Spanish official said it was unlikely that the two would leave Spain before the weekend.

In Ottawa, Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer told reporters he is confident Spanish authorities will agree soon to extradite Geoffroy and his wife.

Geoffroy, convicted of murdering his first wife, fled during Christmas leave from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in Montreal. He was married Christmas Eve to the former Carmen Parent, a 27-year-old teacher.

The two went to London and Oslo, Norway, before being arrested here Monday.

Well-informed sources said here Tuesday the two were seized during an extensive police dragnet in this northeastern city near the French border.

ROUND UP 700
The sources said about 700 "suspected common criminals" were rounded up for questioning, but most had since been freed.

Sources said Geoffroy and his wife were first taken to police headquarters here. They were then understood to have been transferred to separate cells in the Barcelona city jail.

Not all of these reports could be officially confirmed. A spokesman for the national police headquarters in Madrid said the force's director-general had issued instruction that no details of the arrest were to be made public.

Details surrounding efforts by the Canadian government to have the two returned to Canada were not known either.

In Ottawa, Goyer said Canadian lawyers are establishing the legal base for extradition with lawyers in Madrid.

He said Geoffroy and his wife have given no indication that they will return to Canada voluntarily but said it appears only a matter of time before the two are returned.

Goyer said legal procedures connected with the extradition would be finished "soon."

Reuters news agency quoted Spanish sources as saying Geoffroy and his wife were expected to leave Spain within the next few days. Reuters said this indicated that the two might be deported, since an extradition request would take at least two weeks to process.

The Canadian embassy spokesman in Madrid said the embassy had received no instructions from Ottawa on a possible extradition.

Belfast on war footing

BELFAST (AP) — The Northern Ireland capital retreated today further into a shell of defence against terrorist bombers.

Alarmed by explosions in the crowded city centre which claimed nearly 200 casualties during the weekend, Premier Brian Faulkner issued instructions to owners of stores, restaurants and other public buildings which put Belfast on a virtual war footing.

Faced with the unremitting violence, which has killed six persons since the beginning of the month, the British cabinet was reported torn over the terms of its long-awaited political offensive.

A major fear in London was reported to be that any further concessions to minority Roman Catholics in Ulster would spark a fierce backlash from Protestants.

The Protestant Loyalist Association of Workers, which claims 120,000 members, plans rallies and industrial stoppages for Thursday to show concern over whatever plans London has in mind.

TO SEARCH SHOPPERS
The security measures devised for his capital by Faulkner would make it practically impossible for anyone to enter a big shop for as much as a pack of cigarettes without being searched for bombs or arms.

Until now, stores have been reluctant to press security checks on customers in an effort to maintain business as usual. But the recent bombings at a crowded restaurant and a movie theatre, have changed the mood.

Gunfire cracked on the streets of Belfast and Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, during the night as British troops fought the guerrillas seeking to force the Protestant-dominated country under the rule of the Catholic Irish Republic.

A soldier was shot in the hand in Londonderry. An army spokesman said 20 gunmen were possibly hit by return fire.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath's outline plans for peace in Ulster—which has lost 263 dead since social-political-religious strife erupted in the fall of 1969—were discussed by his cabinet for the second time Tuesday.

Suggestions of a split were stoutly denied, but there seemed little doubt that there is profound disagreement.

Man killed

SHERBROOKE (AR) — An unidentified man was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Vincent de Paul Hospital early this morning after a collision between a snow removal truck on Galt Street West shortly before 3 a.m. today.

The unaccompanied man was proceeding west in front of 1666 Galt West when he and the truck collided. The truck driver escaped injury.

Police were withholding the name of the man early today.

Caouette denounces Ottawa grants

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit Leader Real Caouette charged Tuesday that federal grants are being given to Quebec separatists dedicated to the breaking up of Canada rather than for important social projects.

He said in the Commons that some separatists have told him that it is "stupid for Ottawa to pay us and we would be stupid to refuse."

He mentioned that Pierre Vallieres, author of White Niggers of America, who renounced his membership in the Front de Liberation du Quebec in December, received a Local Initiatives Program grant and is working among poor people and telling them to blame Ottawa for their troubles.

He was a man "working to destroy Canada."

Separatists receiving grants are "people being paid to destroy Canada."

Mr. Caouette devoted most of his time during an Opposition Day debate on the country's economy to criticizing the Local Initiatives Program.

Rene Matte (SC—Champlain), joining Mr. Caouette in criticizing the L.I.P. program, referred to "this rainfall of money" which Economic Expansion Minister Jean Marchand is "having so much fun" spending.

"There must be a dividend coming out of all this. Has he asked recipients of these funds to give a little?" Mr. Matte asked.

Mr. Marchand, administrator of the program, is a co-chairman of the Liberal election campaign committee.

Mr. Matte said municipalities spent time and money to prepare projects, had them approved by the Quebec government and then were told that there was no money left in the federal program.

He said this was dishonest. "This is fiddle fiddle, to use the prime minister's own words."

He said important projects are being turned down by the government while less important projects are getting grants.

He knew of one project where men were working in freezing weather to trim trees of branches that would only grow back in the spring and have to be cut again.

Perhaps, he suggested, the government should have a new kind of project next year where men would knit woolen mitts to keep warm. There could be a new ministry in charge of distributing wool.

"That is just as intelligent as having people cutting branches in the winter time," he said.

If approval could be given to cover a CNR debt by the federal government, why could not social projects be approved instead of giving money to revolutionaries and members of the FLQ, he asked.

He also said the labor department is "robbing" miners from the shutdown Quermont mine near Noranda, Que.

He said men who had spent their lives in the mine received $750 when the mine closed, and are now being refused unemployment insurance until the money has been used up.

Hits unions

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's civil service minister says union pressure, including the threat of a general strike, is like a "gun in the back" of government negotiators during contract talks now under way with 250,000 public employees.

Jean-Paul L'Allier said Quebec was showing Canada a "unique example of hawling" and indicated he felt some union leaders, whom he did not identify, were acting like "tavern bums."

Mr. L'Allier, speaking in an interview, traced a series of events that he said would follow if the government yielded to demands of a common front formed by the government-paid workers.

The end result, he said, could change fundamental government priorities and shelve "for a generation" programs such as a guaranteed income and drug insurance.

The common front represents about 210,000 employees of the government and other public bodies such as schools, the provincial liquor commission and Hydro-Quebec, who belong to the Confederation of National Trade Unions, the Quebec Federation of Labor and the Quebec Teachers Corp.

McGovern showing tarnishes Muskie's win

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Senator Edmund Muskie won New Hampshire's leadoff presidential primary Tuesday night, but a strong showing by Senator George McGovern and a struggle for the landslide he called his "phantom" opponent dimmed his victory.

With half the expected Democratic vote counted, Muskie was polling 48 per cent of the ballots cast, well ahead of his challengers but short of an absolute majority on his New England home territory.

President Nixon swept to easy victory over two Republican opponents.

"I think I did very well indeed," Muskie said. He said his showing had to be measured against the fact that he is spread thin, campaigning in all the primary states, and faced the opposition of New Hampshire's biggest newspaper, the Manchester Union Leader.

McGovern said his share of the New Hampshire vote, about one-third "on what was thought to be Muskie turf" was a big boost for his Democratic presidential bid.

"I've never known a moral victory that won a nomination," Muskie countered.

The senator from Maine had said in advance that he was up against a phantom in the suggestion of his rivals and political analysts that he needed to surpass some unwritten percentage standard to score a significant primary victory.

The race in New Hampshire is what is known as a presidential preference poll, a contest which awards nothing to candidates but a show of opinion.

In some United States presidential primaries, the winner wins the support of that state's delegates at the nominating convention.

"We have every cause to be pleased," said McGovern. "I don't think Muskie is going to get 50 per cent."

With 56 per cent of the anticipated Democratic votes counted, this was the New Hampshire situation:

Muskie 21,552 votes, or 48 per cent.
McGovern 15,663, or 34 per cent.
Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, 3,179, or seven per cent.
Representative Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, a write-in entry, 2,383 votes or five per cent.
Senator Vance Hartke of Indiana, 1,527 votes, or four per cent.

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, 374 write-in votes, one per cent.

There were scattered ballots for Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, who await a confrontation with Muskie in Florida in a week.

In the Republican primary, with 37 per cent of the expected ballots counted, President Nixon had 27,006 votes, a 69-per-cent showing.

Representative Paul McCloskey of California gathered 7,716 votes, or 20 per cent. Representative John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, 3,894, or 10 per cent.

University of Sherbrooke special training

Filling the medical gaps up north

By R. J. ANDERSON
 TORONTO (CP) — "When someone comes in bleeding, you can't send him 275 miles to a hospital. We suture him, set a leg, generally look after him. We want to learn how to do more."

Kathleen Dycher told in an interview how nurses in the Canadian North meet the day-to-day medical needs of a scattered population. Indian and white, in areas remote from big-city civilization with few doctors. The setting and conditions bear little resemblance to her native Isle of Man.

She is in the first group here from northwestern Ontario taking enriched training in diagnosis, physical assessment of patients and treatment procedures under a $314,000 federal program for northern nurses in four provinces.

Medical men term the program a major step towards the training of physicians' assistants at a time when the supply of doctors cannot keep up with demand. It is expected that the specially trained northern nurses in time will return south to apply their skills in the cities. The immediate aim is to enable nurses in the North to handle patients in situations where consultation with a doctor is possible only by radio or sometimes not at all.

COVER WIDE AREA
 With Miss Dycher on the four-month course at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children are Valerie Mills from Wrexham, north Wales, Mary Flowers of Caledonia, Ont., and Susan Grimshaw, Toronto.

Fifty-six nurses with northern experience will be given the advanced training this year. The program is expected to be continued in 1973. Dr. Maurice Leclair, deputy minister of health in Ottawa, has termed it a "historical step."

The project, financed by the department of health, is operated through an agreement with six universities. Participating in Ontario are the University of Toronto and the University of Western Ontario, London; the universities of Sherbrooke and McGill in Quebec and the universities of Manitoba and Alberta.

Miss Dycher and Miss Mills came to Canada together 2½ years ago, stayed together through 16 months in Toronto and are stationed together at New Osnaburgh, a settlement of 500 persons 120 miles north of Sioux Lookout. They also serve "satellite" nursing stations by automobile on the only road in the vast region.

Miss Grimshaw's home station is Big Trout Lake, 275 miles north of Sioux Lookout, and she covers by air satellites as far north as Hudson Bay. Miss Flowers is at Sandy Lake, about 200 miles northwest, and she also is flown around her stations that stretch west almost to the Manitoba border.

PLAY VITAL ROLE

Nurses in the North are paid up to about $8,000 a year, depending upon grade and experience. This includes what they call "isolation pay"—northern allowance—which they lose while taking the special training in southern hospitals. They also pay room and board and they find this more than the $60 a month they are charged in the North.

Susan Grimshaw, the big-city Canadian girl who knew more than did nurses Dycher and Mills what she was getting into when she volunteered for northern duty, was enthusiastic about the expanding role of the nurse at a time when the need for doctors is greater than the supply.

She spoke for the group when she told of their work in the isolated stations.

"In the North, you get down to a more simple, relaxed life."

"I enjoy the involvement with the total family and the involvement with the people."

"You're not only a nurse, you're a person in the community."

Miss Mills said that before coming to Canada all she and Miss Dycher knew about Indians and the Indian way of life was what they saw in the movies. "We learned soon enough that that was all wrong."

Meantime, both like what they are doing—general clinics every morning, special child clinics twice a month and various children's programs.

They like the North, especially in winter—"the flies sometimes are bad in summer"—and participate fully in the life.

What do they do in their spare time?
 "What spare time?"

Serious about Saving?

Most Meat Buyers Are! The trouble is, how can you measure savings on something like a steak or a roast? Every store does things a little differently. Some cut off excess fat. Some leave it on. Even if you're sure the meats are of equal quality, it's hard to compare the amount of edible meat you get, at the price you pay per pound. So, we introduced a new Guarantee of Performance...a policy that guarantees you "exactly the right amount of trim". Even a new bride knows that you need some fat to preserve flavour and tenderness, but who decides how much is enough?

The Experts Say "One-Half Inch of Fat". No More! So that's all we leave on. Any more and you're paying for fat, with money that should be buying meat. Consider this example: A typical 3 lb. steak, cut one inch thick should carry no more than ONE-HALF INCH of fat around the outside edge. The same steak, with ONE INCH of fat left on, will weigh about 4 ounces more. At a price of, say, $1.37 per pound, you would pay 34¢ (11¢ per pound) extra, for unnecessary fat and waste! So "Measure Up" for yourself! Compare the trim you may be getting elsewhere with the trim you know you can get at Dominion. Our "Guarantee of Performance" is your assurance that your purchase will be trimmed the way it should be. Guaranteed Trim plus Everyday Deep Discount Prices...an unbeatable combination.

EXAMPLE: Whole Round Steak (Illustrated Above):

Whole Round Steak is a naturally lean, meaty cut of beef that promises exceptional meat value, when trimmed to Dominion specifications. Proper "natural aging" is of prime importance if the full natural flavour and tenderness is to be preserved throughout the cooking stage. Beyond this, our standards of trim are:

- No more than One-Half inch covering of outside fat, in any given area.
- All excess interior fat must be trimmed away.
- Dominion whole Round Steak must be absolutely boneless.

CANADIAN TRANSPORT COMMISSION

NOTICE RE:

Maritimes Passenger Train Operations

On February 8, 1972, the Canadian Transport Commission issued a decision requiring the continuance of passenger-train services being operated in the Maritimes by the CNR and CP Rail.

The services include the mainline operations between Saint John, Moncton, Halifax, Sydney and Montreal, as well as various connecting services to other Maritimes points and to Gaspé.

Cost studies carried out by the Commission in connection with the decision identified a total actual loss on these services of $14,834,298 in 1970. Under the law, the services now are eligible for federal subsidies of up to 80 per cent of annual losses. At the 1970 level, this could cost the taxpayers almost $12,000,000 a year or $1,000,000 a month.

The decision, by the Railway Transport Committee, saw no evidence that the services could be rendered profitable with current schedules, operating practices and equipment. It added:

"Hence, given the actual losses incurred and the demands and traffic patterns, the Committee is of the opinion that it is possible through imaginative improvements of develop a Maritimes passenger-train system which will satisfy the needs of the travelling public and, at the same time, justify whatever cost there may be to the federal treasury."

"In this decision the Committee identifies the basic rail passenger network as it presently exists in the Atlantic region east of Montreal. Pending the achievement of its objective as just stated, the Committee determines that all the passenger-train services under consideration should not be discontinued. As time goes on, and suggestions or proposals for improvement are analyzed and accepted by the Committee, it may be necessary to require alterations in the services as presently operated, having regard to the needs of the travelling public and the cost to the Canadian taxpayers."

The Commission is convinced that an improved plan of operations for passenger-train services between Montreal and the Maritimes can reduce the heavy losses while maintaining a level of service that will meet the public need.

In order to ensure that all possible methods of improvement are considered, the Commission invites suggestions from the public. Such suggestions, dealing with mainline or local aspects of the services, should be submitted in writing by April 15, 1972, addressed to:

Secretary,
 Canadian Transport Commission,
 275 Slater Street
 Ottawa, Ontario
 K1A 0N9

Persons making submissions are asked to give consideration to the following points:

1. Routing, including possible combinations of service on CNR and CP Rail lines.
2. Frequency of service on the resulting route or routes, with possible variations in summer and winter schedules.
3. Train departure-arrival times.
4. Connecting services by rail, road, air, and water.
5. Methods and costs of providing meals.
6. Methods and cost of providing sleeping car service.
7. Fare levels for coach services.
8. Improved reservation procedures to reduce the "no show" problem.

The Commission hopes to obtain responses from the appropriate departments of provincial and municipal governments, the railways, trade unions, travel agencies, public bodies and individual citizens. It is particularly interested in the views of those members of the public who have actually travelled on the trains in the last two years.

Halifax project probes alternatives

HALIFAX (CP) — Students in Halifax schools are getting the facts on drug use without the usual "preaching" to make it easier for them to make a decision, says Fraser Dewis, a health education consultant for the Halifax school board.

The program, now in its second year as a formal classroom instruction, is geared towards the ultimate goal of prevention through an initial discussion of the motivational and sociological influences on the students. The actual drugs are not discussed until near the end of the program.

Last year the program concentrated on Grades 6 to 9; this year the emphasis has shifted to Grades 4 to 6.

Mr. Dewis says the shift to younger students was made after it was found that they were not necessarily taking drugs, but were being exposed to them.

A curriculum guide suggests that sessions in which attitudes and feelings are discussed may provide "the key to our success."

OFFER ALTERNATIVES

"If we can determine the students who are happy, unhappy or disturbed and why, then hopefully with a little concern on the teachers' part we may be able to shift them from a negative way of changing their feelings to a positive one," says the guide.

A discussion on emotions leads to a study of methods one can use to manipulate and modify his feelings in a non-chemical way. For example, the students are asked to consider the value of physical activity, arts and crafts or even going to a movie as a method of alternating moods.

Initially, teachers receive drug education from Mr. Dewis in groups of 15 or less in three one-hour sessions. They are provided with the most up-to-date information drawn from both federal and provincial government sources.

The teachers then are free to introduce the subject as part of the total health program.

A full evaluation of the education program will be carried out at the end of the school year in June.

Townships report

Mail early for election

In a weekend press article, Mike Forestall, Conservative MP for Dartmouth-Halifax East, goes on at length about the whole melancholy business of government waste.

Nothing new, you say. The press has been putting the facts before the public for years, and still it goes on!

Mr. Forestall says, "If enough people were to write and tear a strip off their MPs, the government would get the message. They may ignore the auditor general but they can't ignore the public, not if it speaks loudly enough."

We have news for Mr. Forestall. Somebody forgot to tell the Post Office, for the MPs don't seem to be having the messages delivered to them!

Members of Parliament are sent to Ottawa by their constituents to do a job and to try to implement some of the promises they made to their people at the time they were seeking their votes. Whether they get there in government or in the role of Opposition makes no difference — their electors still want to know what is being done on their behalf. All parties are now getting down to the business of wooing the votes, feeling the pulse of the people as it were, but no party as yet will commit itself to specifics.

The Progressive Conservative Party has been accused, and rightly so, it seems, of always opposing, but never having any constructive solution to the many problems they oppose! The New Democratic Party? We can't find anything they propose to do about anything, except perhaps ride into a well paid job on the backs of the labor unions.

Where does this leave us, the pensioners and senior citizens? Mr. Stanfield has made vague references to the old people and the under-privileged, but no solid commitments as to his intentions toward the future welfare of that privileged class. Does he not see that 1,700,000 people, all voters, are looking with ever-increasing interest in the direction of the Opposition, hoping that their leaders will take note of the ever-increasing burden being placed upon older people financially?

We know only too well the government of the day has no intention of easing the load. Even the slight reduction in income tax given us is still one year away. This should give us all a lift as we make out our tax returns this year!

So let's go back to the beginning. Let's do as Mr. Forestall suggests. Again, let's write not only our MPs but the Opposition leaders, to tear a strip off them, just to see if we get a reaction! Better still, why not clip off this column and mail it to the MP of your choice?

But write as a pensioner or senior citizen who wants and intends to get action.

Parkview students observing Education Week

GRANBY — In keeping with Education Week's national theme, The Citizen and the Elected Man, Parkview Elementary School in Granby is presenting a public information meeting today at 8 p.m. as a highlight of its observance. The meeting will be held in the Wilfred Anderson Memorial Gymnasium.

Major topics for the information night will be Bill 27 — the phasing out of local school boards, the Provisional Council, election of new members of the regional school board, the role of parents' committees, equalization of school taxation and related matters — and the proposed amalgamation of St. Patrick and Parkview

Elementary Schools.

With the disappearance of local school boards," says William Munroe, principal of Parkview School, "there is a danger that the citizen becomes less well-informed about education — and even about the administration of his own local school. We are hoping that everyone interested, especially of course, the parents, will turn out to this meeting and ask as many questions as they would like. It's a golden opportunity to be well-informed about the current educational situation."

TO BE ILLUSTRATED

The presentation on Bill 27 will be accompanied by illustrations and an explanatory leaflet and will be made by Kenneth Irwin, chairman of the Provisional Council's public relations sub-committee, and Sam Wayne, coordinator of elementary education for the District of Bedford Regional School Board.

As another aspect of public information, Parkview School will be holding Open House today from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Parents are being invited to drop in on their children's classes and to see something of the work which the boys and girls are doing. If they wish, they may stay over the noon hour, joining their children for lunch in the cafeteria.

Yesterday, Parkview School was hosting the regular monthly meeting of the elementary school principals of the District of Bedford.

Parkview students were making plans to invite the visitors to their classrooms, show them some of their projects and tell them about their school. Some of the classes had already written to one or more of the principals, asking them to be sure to visit their room. Later in the day, over coffee, Parkview teachers met with the principals and compared notes on the latest trends in elementary education.

To round out a full observance of Education Week, Parkview planned a science fair for its primary classes on Monday, March 6, and a "Jour de Francais" when everyone tries to increase the amount of French in use in the school for routine communications, on Friday, March 10.

Tomorrow, the finals of the District of Bedford Basketball Championships will be held in the Wilfred Anderson Memorial Gymnasium.

St. Francis carnival held

RICHMOND — St. Francis Elementary School students took a breather Friday and enjoyed the annual Winter Carnival at the school.

Not two but four regal figures were crowned to start the festivities off on the right note.

Paul Stevens and Kelly Story were the primary school's respective King and Queen, while Bruce Macdonald and Lynda Zoney were the elementary school's monarchs.

Bradley Smith and Linda Lyster walked off with top honors in the costume event.

The elementary school students then returned to their classes for the remainder of the morning while the primary pupils headed for the outdoors and a morning of carnival events.

Mrs. Donald Chamberlain's class captured first place in the contest to build the biggest snowpile, and foot races in the snow followed in lieu of skating. Warm weather had rendered the rink unusable.

There were also such events as potato relay races and "dog" team races — with the driver encouraging other children on to ever greater speeds with his toboggan over the snow.

In a noon broomball contest, the teachers edged the pupils 1-0. The afternoon saw the elementary pupils follow the lead of the younger ones in participating in a thrilling session outside.

A program similar to that of the primary school was scheduled, and the elementary school children enjoyed foot races, relay races, ski and snowshoe races and toboggan races.

All those who took part report that St. Francis Elementary School's 1972 Winter Carnival was an outstanding success.

Elusive peace

The major immediate obstacle to a Mideast settlement is the inability of the Israeli government to agree within itself on what it would settle for.

And until the Israelis do reach some consensus on basics, there can be no meaningful peace talks with Egypt.

This is how the problem is viewed by men at the highest levels in Washington.

These American officials believe the Israeli have become so inured to Arab hard-line extremism that when Egypt's Anwar Sadat came up with extremely reasonable proposals, the Israeli found they had no contingency plans for such a situation.

The hawks and doves in the Israeli cabinet are now so divided it is impossible for top United States men to get a reasonable fix from the Israeli officials, who have in the past talked very frankly indeed to their American counterparts in private, now talk in evasive riddles.

But the time to act is now. Factors in the Arab world which have been adverse to a decision for years, now seem to be under control, at least temporarily.

Sadat has wide backing among Egyptian intellectuals, government officials, businessmen, students, and even in the military, in his moves for peace.

The Egyptians in almost all circles are tired of this war and want peace so that they can go about their business. They see little value in prolonging a conflict with Israel which threatens to go on endlessly to no purpose and which would, in any event, bring them little, even if Egypt won.

Sadat, if sources close to the White House are correct, badly wants to resume diplomatic relations with the United States and to build up a close, friendly relationship.

Sadat, himself, high U.S. officials say, is a reasonable, intelligent and ingenious man who means business. He is, of course, primarily concerned for the interests of his own country and not adverse, in his country's interest, to playing the Soviet Union and the United States off against each other.

But time will not wait.

Sadat does not have Abdel Nasser's powerful grip on the government and the army. He has powerful detractors in the military — men not satisfied with moderate solutions. These officers are lying low now.

But unless Sadat is able to show results in a reasonable time, the extremists could take over. It can be said there is some consternation at the White House that now, when time is of the essence, the Israeli turn indecisive.

New standard for fascist butchery

By Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — Referring to President Nixon's hosts at the main banquet in Peking two weeks ago, columnist William Buckley wrote: "It is unreasonable to suppose that anywhere in history have a few dozen men congregated who have been responsible for greater human mayhem than the gentlemen at the banquet, instruments and mentors of Mao Tse-tung."

It wasn't an exaggeration. There have been massacres of innocent human beings throughout history, but never on the scale of the protracted, systematic political purges undertaken by the totalitarian regimes of this century. And students of this gruesome record which boggles the mind agree that neither the Nazi nor the Soviet regimes had chalked up quite as high a number of "liquidations" of their alleged internal enemies as the Maoists — although Stalin and his heirs may be close runners-up.

Sinologists who have examined and pieced together available evidence — such as eyewitness reports of executions, testimonies of conditions in concentration camps and prisons, data culled from local Chinese broadcasts and newspapers, interrogations of ranking defectors, Mao's own references to purges, and classified sources of the far from complete pictures — have come up with the staggering figure of well over 30 million victims of the Maoist regime.

Last year the Internal Security Subcommittee of the United States Senate, headed by Democratic Senator James Eastland, published a report titled The Human Cost of Communism in China. The 46-page study, prepared by University of Southern Carolina Sinologist Dr. R.L. Walker, gave the figure of over 30 million people slaughtered by the Maoists in China and Tibet as the minimum.

Two years before publication of the Walker study, Radio Moscow listed a total of over 26 million — excluding the massacres of the "cultural revolution" — and gave a detailed breakdown of the purges during 1949-1965.

While Moscow is a suspect source, it is undoubtedly the only place outside China where precise information on this subject is readily available, for during the first years of the Peking regime Soviet "experts" were helping to shape Mao's repressive apparatus. As an accomplice in the slaughter, the Kremlin must have known every detail of the reign of terror. So it is not inconceivable that when the two totalitarian regimes fell out and started calling one another fascist, Moscow Radio may, for once, have told the truth.

Anyway, in this league of political gangsterism numbers become irrelevant. Hitler was no lesser monster than Stalin because his henchmen managed to slaughter only about a third of the total number of victims of the Soviet Dictator. What is relevant is the reaction of the outside world to such atrocities, most of which have been committed not in the heat of battle but in cold blooded execution of government policy.

Experience with Nazi barbarism has shown that, once established, a modern totalitarian system cannot be dislodged except by a superior force from the outside. To stop Nazi crimes against humanity it was necessary to destroy the Nazi regime. But the outside world did not resort to force out of moral considerations. It sat still until Hitler himself precipitated a world war.

In the nuclear age a global war, for whatever reason, is unthinkable. While this prevents the totalitarian powers of our day from repeating Hitler's all-out military assault, it also makes them immune to punishment for their crimes against humanity.

Moreover, since the totalitarian regimes seek to expand their domain by a combination of subversion and limited proxy wars that could escalate into a nuclear holocaust if pushed too hard and too far, the outside world must try to reach a clear understanding with Moscow and Peking on conflict management.

Negotiations of the rules of what the Communists call peaceful co-existence, but what in fact is a relentless conflict just short of nuclear war, necessitates direct contacts with the gangster regimes.

These negotiations, which do not differ in essence from negotiations with criminals holding hostages at gunpoint, should not be allowed to create the impression of chummy cordiality and conviviality.

The Peking and Moscow versions of fascism are no less horrible than was the Hitler version. Neither political expediency, nor strategic necessity, should be allowed to distort the truth.

On the right

with William F. Buckley Jr.

The haunting philosophical questions temporarily aside, there is the practical question of the future of the island of Taiwan.

Over the years, Chiang Kai-shek has steadfastly maintained that he is the lawful head of the government not only of the province of Taiwan, but of all of mainland China.

For a long time we indulged him the title of Chief of State of all of China. Partly we did this out of sentiment, even as we recognized exile governments during the Second World War. Partly we did it thinking it just possible that mainland China's government would collapse, as once or twice it came very close to doing.

But the situation is now irrevocably changed. Even if the next cultural Revolution should succeed in deposing Mao, it will not restore Chiang Kai-shek. So that Chiang, growing old, lives by a fiction in which he is all but isolated. Meaningful, that fiction serves the purposes of his enemies.

"The United States," said the joint communiqué issued in Shanghai, "acknowledges that all Chinese on either side of the Taiwan Strait maintain there is but one China and that Taiwan is a part of China. The United States Government does not challenge that position. It reaffirms its interest in a peaceful settlement of the Taiwan question by the Chinese themselves. With this prospect in mind, it affirms the ultimate objective of the withdrawal of all U.S. forces and military installations from Taiwan."

Now it can be seen not only that the contradiction closes in on Chiang Kai-shek, but that the United States is making gleeful use of it. As long as Chiang maintains that the two territories are one, who is the United States to disagree? And if they are one, it will in due course be plain that the dog should wag the tail rather than vice versa.

We have a defence treaty, on the basis of which it continues to be strictly a matter between Taiwan and the United States how many troops we desire to keep on Taiwan territory. But we have, with China, a joint communiqué in which we pledge ourselves to Chou's Five Points, one of them non-interference in internal matters. The lowering paradox finds us, already, promising the mainland that we will reduce our military mission in Taiwan. And in the United Nations, Taiwan has only the standing of a mutinous province, an Asian Biafra.

The time has come for the government of Taiwan formally to secede from China. The instrument of secession would be at least as eloquent as our own Declaration of Independence. More, really, because however hateful King George was, he was the soul of toleration by Mao's standards. George Washington and his fellow secessionists had not had an experience of independence from Great Britain. By contrast, Taiwan has governed itself for 23 years, disturbing not the peace of the world, indeed earning the admiration of all who have come to know it.

Granted there are Taiwanese who resent Chiang Kai-shek and his government of mainlanders. But even there, there has been a considerable shift of sentiment from 15 years ago, when the mainlanders occupied almost all the positions of responsibility. Although there are Taiwanese who will continue to resent Chiang's government — there were Americans who opposed the Declaration of Independence — there are very few Taiwanese who would elect to be governed by Peking.

Accordingly, the stage is set. It is difficult to see how the United States, or for that matter any other country whose politics are not dictated by Communist capitals, could fail to recognize, instantly, the independent country of Taiwan. Even the Communists acknowledge the right of revolution, and the right of independent states. And Taiwan would be nothing less than that — an independent state, de facto and, now, de jure.

Arcy's team

Dear Sir,
 The following poem is dedicated to R.C. Gilbert of New Hampshire. Mr. Gilbert was winner of the Limited Class in the Sled Dog Derby held at the Boundary in mid-February.

Here comes Arcy down the trail,
 Snapping his whip, near the doggies' tails.
 Here comes Lika soft and sweet,
 With the sound of snow cracking under her feet.
 Proud Mishka in the lead,
 Pulling the team with fantastic speed;
 Binkie, silver and grey, proud of himself today.
 The last two of this great team, Tish and Marak
 Are beautiful to be seen.
 May they all win many more races,
 So we can see smiles on happy faces.

History today

Fremont crosses Sierra Nevada

John Charles Fremont reached Sutter's Fort, Calif., 124 years ago today — in 1848 — completing the second winter crossing of the Sierra Nevada, after losing 11 men in a blizzard attempting to find a new route. Fremont was one of the chief explorers of the American West and was associated with secessionist attempts of Americans living in Mexico. When he reached his huge California estate in 1848 he was greeted with the news that gold had been found. He became a multi-millionaire but was penniless again in 1870, after the collapse of his railway company.

1963 — The Syrian government was overthrown in a coup led by army officers friendly to president Gamel Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

1954 — Prime Minister St. Laurent visited the Canadian brigade in Korea during his round-the-world tour.

1949 — France granted Vietnam independence within the French Union.

1916 — Germany declared war on Portugal in the First World War.

1765 — The British House of Lords passed the Stamp Act which levied a tax on all manner of documents in the America colonies as a means of raising revenue.

"Relax—We can still see the ground!"

Review strike privilege

OTTAWA (CP) — It appears certain the government, if rejected, intends to make some changes in the legislation that gives public servants the right to strike.

The precise nature of the changes may be something of which even the cabinet remains unsure. Clearly, however, the main objective will be to reduce or eliminate the possibility of strikes by key groups of workers.

The desire is understandable even though only five contract disputes have ended in strikes in the five years since collective bargaining was instituted in the public service.

Four of the strikes — two by postal workers — attracted national attention and brought down the full weight of public opprobrium on both government and unions.

The criticism was particularly remorseless during the 11-day walkout in January by air traffic controllers and the three week strike last month by electronic technicians at airport control towers.

RIGHT RESPECTED
 In both cases, the government stuck by the Public Service Staff Regulations Act, under which the workers were exercising their right to strike, despite demands that it end the walkouts with special legislation.

Apparently, the display of patience has won the government little praise from the public. Editorial demands for the abolition of the right to strike by essential workers are stronger than ever.

Almost on cue, Stanley Little, president of the 155,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees, charged this week that government bargaining tactics are designed to provoke strikes and set the stage for abolition of the right.

"By deliberately provoking strikes, treasury board is hoping Canadians will throw up their hands at more strikes in the public service and demand compulsory arbitration be enforced," Mr. Little said in a statement.

Treasury board officials, of course, keep silent in public on what changes they would like to see in the act. They know too well how easily inflamed are the feelings of the unions they must deal with in their role as paymaster for 190,000 federal workers.

Undoubtedly there are strongly-held private feelings.

As the largest employer in the country, the board has never had an easy time in its effort to maintain some reasonable relationship among the pay scales negotiated with diverse and jostling groups of employees.

The job might easily become next to impossible. Under the act, each bargaining unit may choose between compulsory arbitration and the right to strike. As the union idea becomes established in the public service, the better-placed bargaining units are opting more and more for the test of strength.

The result has been the tendency towards confrontation which was admitted to exist by Treasury Board President C.M. Drury in the Commons Wednesday.

Little purpose would be served by hasty changes in the legislation "in the next month or so," he said. But the government is endeavouring "to discover what is a better arrangement and how best it can be brought about."

The search dates back at least a year to the appointment of a three-man committee to study the effect of the legislation and to make recommendations to the government. Chairman of the committee was John Bryden, former deputy justice minister of New Brunswick.

The Bryden committee heard views from a large number of interested parties, including most public service unions, and submitted a report in June to then manpower minister Otto Lang. Recently it was passed on to Allan MacEachen, the minister newly responsible for the public service, but officials in his office claim he has had time only to skim through it, if that.

Whatever the fate of the Bryden report, it seems unlikely that the government can retreat too far from the original legislation.

To do so would be to reject the philosophy it has upheld ever since 1966 — namely, that legal strikes are, in the end, less disruptive than illegal strikes.

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Guy, of Kinnear's Mills, Quebec, wish to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Linda Olive, to Mr. Donald Kenneth Rothney, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald T. Rothney, of Sand Hill, Quebec. A May wedding is planned.

The most meaningful gift is yourself

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you are sick of letters from people who write to tell you about some rotten thing somebody did, or a dirty, mean, low-down remark. Or how they were slighted at some insignificant party. Complaints, gripes, whining — bla bla bla. This letter will be different. It's proof that there are still some warm, wonderful people in the world.

I'm 29, the mother of three small children. My husband has a good job, but with layoffs we barely make ends meet. I am not complaining, merely explaining our financial situation.

If this isn't proof that there are still some wonderful people in the world, what is?

—Joy in Dubuque

I've gotten to know the young bride next door. Martha works as a secretary and is helping put her husband through law school. The other evening I baked an orange sunshine cake and took a couple of pieces next door for their dessert. Martha handed me an envelope which had already been stamped — she was going to mail it to me the next day. She told me not to open it till I got home. Do you know what was in that envelope? Forty slips of paper — and on each one was written "This entitles you to one night out. I will be your sitter. Love, Martha."

Dear Joy: Martha gave the most meaningful gift of all — herself — and it didn't cost a dime. Thank you for a lovely letter and a beautiful idea. I hope it's contagious.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who starts every telephone conversation like this: "I've been trying to get your line for half an hour. Who in the world have you been talking to?" I always answer her question by naming the person and then I get mad at myself for caving in.

After all, what business is it of hers? Also, it burns me up to think that she somehow has the idea I should leave my line free in case she should decide to honor me with a call. Isn't THAT the height of arrogance?

I'd like a suggestion from you as to what I should say when she puts me on the spot like that.

—Unlisted Personality

Dear Unlisted: Merely because a question has been put to you is no reason you need answer it. It is clearly none of that lady's business who you were talking to — and you should let her know it. The next time she asks, say "The Shah of Iran," or "Howard Hughes" or "Pope Paul." Make up your own names. She'll catch the drift.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 21 and feel like 91. The problem is I can't get over a lost love. I don't want to be melodramatic about it but I honestly believe a broken heart can be physical as well as emotional. I actually feel a pain in my heart. No need to go into the details but I can never get him back.

I have passed up chances to date because I'm so blue I'd be lousy company. After work I come home and play our favorite records. I read and re-read his notes, letters and poetry. I look at the photographs of us together. And I cry myself to sleep. How can a girl go on when her whole life has come apart at the seams? I need help.

—Mood Indigo

Dear M: Get rid of all those relics reminiscent of the past. If you don't want to destroy them, put them out of your reach. Force yourself to accept dates.

World Day of Prayer observed

Scotstown

SCOTSTOWN — The World Day of Prayer was held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on March 3 at 2:30 p.m. There were 60 ladies present. Mrs. John E. Nicholson and Mrs. Albert received the ladies at the door and gave out the leaflets.

Mrs. John E. MacDonald, president of St. Paul's WMS, welcomed all the ladies from the three other churches and any others attending. The leaders were Mrs. John E. MacDonald, Mrs. Gerard Pelletier, Mrs. Basil Woolley and Mrs. W. A. Ladd with Mrs. D. P. Murray, organist. The bilingual service was used.

Mrs. MacDonald gave an account of how and where the World Day of Prayer started and that in 1948 it became the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada, a part of the world organization.

After the opening hymn, Mrs. Basil Woolley read the 96th Psalm. Others taking part were Mrs. Albert Murray giving a meditation on our personal life and a prayer, this was followed by prayers by Mrs. Ross MacDonald, Mrs. Claude Langlois, Mrs. Wallace Coates, Mrs. R. Lareau, Miss Colette Avotte, Mrs. Basil Woolley and Mrs. F. B. Mayhew.

A hymn was sung by the French ladies. Mrs. Harvey MacRae gave a very interesting and helpful address in the theme All Joy be Yours, ending with a prayer.

Mrs. Ross MacDonald and Mrs. George MacDonald received the offering which amounted to $28.60. A group of six girls from the convent sang an anthem while the offering was received. Mrs. Gerard Pelletier dedicated the offering.

After the closing hymn, Mrs. MacDonald thanked all who had taken part in the service and the girls for their anthem.

All were invited to the church hall for refreshments which were served by the ladies of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Ken F. MacLeod on behalf of the ladies from St. Paul's Catholic Church and the others present for the very interesting service thanked the hostesses for the delicious refreshments. The long table in the center of the hall was decorated with spring flowers and two lighted candles. Mrs. W. A. Ladd asked the Blessing in English and the French group repeated their thanks in French.

Gould

GOULD — The service of worship for the World Day of Prayer for the women of the area, with its theme All Joy be Yours was held March 3, at the home of Mrs. K. N. McIvor.

Due to the poor road conditions and illness, the attendance was smaller than desired, but the program was re-arranged that each lady present took part, with Miss Florence Duffy acting as pianist for the singing of chosen hymns.

Mrs. Dave Hillis, now of Scotstown, but very recently of the community, was a most welcome guest. A gratifying offering was collected and, together with donations from several who were unable to attend, was forwarded to the Women's Inter-church Council of Canada.

Following the service a social time was enjoyed during which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Allan Matheson and Mrs. Roscoe Morrison.

Melbourne Ridge

MELBOURNE RIDGE — The Melbourne Ridge UCW held their World Day of Prayer service and regular meeting on March 3 at the home of Mrs. L. Driver, with Mrs. Wm. Adamson as co-hostess.

The theme of the service this year was "All Joy Be Yours." Every member and one visitor took part in the service by reading parts. The hymns that were sung throughout the service were, "O happy day that fixed my choice," "Joy to the World," "Joyful, Joyful we adore Thee," "Christ is the Lord of the Smallest Atom."

The address was given this year, as for years past, by Mary Johnston. She told a very moving story of love and devotion in a family and their neighbors, which ended with God works in mysterious ways His wonders to perform. Her story was taken from Christian talking records. The reason we all appreciate and enjoy her long talks and story is because it is all stored in her head before she starts as she is blind.

Prayers were read by Dianna Taber, Crystal Beers and Myrtle Johnston.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The business from the minutes was two answers to our inquiries about chairs and card tables. It was decided to buy 40 stacking chairs and four tables. The Ways and Means committee will do the ordering. Money was allotted to pay Rev. V. Thormin for the services he has held in the church this winter.

The treasurer Mrs. A. Smith gave a good report. There were 20 cards sent and three calls made this month by the members. A basket of fruit was presented to Mrs. Dorothy Ellis who has been sick. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Thormin's with all members helping with the lunch. A nice lunch was served by the hostess.

Island Brook

ISLAND BROOK — The World Day of Prayer service was held with Miss Mary Seale. There were eight ladies present.

Mrs. Franklin Kerr had charge of the service with all ladies taking part in the service. She filled in a couple of places with interesting readings.

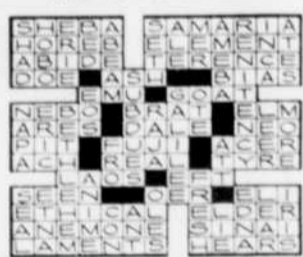

Mrs. Robert Burns gave an address dealing with the theme All Joy Be Yours. Mrs. Franklin Kerr received the offering and Mrs. Kenneth Morrow acted as organist. The service closed with the benediction.

Ham for Easter eating

Although it's eaten the year round, cured ham seems to be extra special when served at Easter. At this time most restaurants feature ham on their menus, stores display large posters of a leg of ham and newspaper advertisements list "specials" on various ham cuts.

Ham is a leg of pork which has been cured and smoked. Occasionally shoulder cuts, such as the picnic shoulder and cottage roll are termed "ham" because they are cured and smoked, too, but they are not considered true ham.

When buying ham, you will notice that there are a variety of cuts available. The whole leg weighs from 13 to 18 pounds. Usually it is divided into the shank and butt ends. The shank half contains the shank bone and part of the leg bone. The butt end may cost more per pound than the shank half because it has a greater proportion of meat. The shank and butt halves may in turn be cut into sections, too, depending on the size and shape of ham required. When the larger hams are cut, the centre may be cut into ham steaks of various thicknesses. These slices weigh 1 to 2 pounds and are ideal for serving a small family.

Boneless hams are a popular buy these days because they make carving a simple job. Whole hams, shank and butt ends, as well as smaller ham cuts may be sold boneless as well as with the bone in. A boneless ham will yield about three servings a pound while a ham with the bone provides only two. Remember to allow for extras or leftovers when you calculate the amount you need.

Hams do not need a precooking or soaking in water. They may all be baked in a 325 degrees F. oven for best flavor and tenderness. If you happen to buy a ham with rind or casing on, leave it on through cooking until you want to glaze it. It is best to follow any cooking instructions given on the label of the ham; the following directions are given only as a guide.

BAKED HAM WITH MUSTARD GLAZE

Hot baked ham (about 5 pounds)
1 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons dry mustard
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons vinegar
Whole cloves

Remove rind or casing from ham. If necessary, trim fat, and if desired, cut gashes diagonally in fat to form diamonds. Place in baking dish. To make glaze, combine sugar, mustard, flour and vinegar. Spread over meat and insert cloves in design. Bake uncovered about 15 minutes at 425 degrees F, basting occasionally. Let stand 5 minutes, then spoon glaze over top.

FRUIT-GLAZED HAM STEAK

1 pound fully cooked ham steak (1/2-inch thick)

1/2 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 tablespoons syrup from pineapple
1/2 cup finely chopped canned pineapple
1 chopped, peeled orange
1/4 cup halved maraschino cherries
2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
2 tablespoons seedless raisins

Place ham in greased baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients to make glaze. Pour over ham steak. Bake uncovered 15 minutes at 425 degrees F. Let stand 5 minutes, then spoon liquid in baking dish over top 3 servings. Note: If using a 1-inch thick ham steak (about 2 pounds), heat ham uncovered 20 minutes at 425 degrees F before adding topping, then continue as above.

HAM IS SPECIAL — A baked ham is delicious anytime of the year, but especially so at Easter. Our home economists attractively decorated this ham with a mustard glaze and cloves. They spread the hot ham with the glaze, baked it 15 minutes at 425 degrees F and basted it occasionally. Then to set the glaze, they allowed the ham to sit about 5 minutes, basting it with the glaze before starting to carve it.

Birthday!

ROCK ISLAND — Mr. Oliva Villeneuve of Rock Island was 80 years of age and celebrated his 20th birthday on February 29.

The occasion was marked by a family gathering held on Sunday, February 27, at the home of a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Emile Bouchard, in Rock Island. Dinner and supper was served and the day happily spent together. A toast was proposed to the celebrant for many more birthdays even though they occur only every four years. Mr. Villeneuve was the recipient of gifts from family and friends, and over 60 cards. At the family dinner Mr. Villeneuve was presented with a birthday cake made and decorated by Mrs. Bouchard in white with pastel trim and having 80 lighted candles.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. John Bouthillier, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Turcotte, Diane, Lise and Denis all of Longueuil, Mrs. Beatrice Roberge and a lady friend from Sherbrooke; Mr. and Mrs. Amedee Villeneuve, Beebe, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Villeneuve, Rock Island and Mrs. Oliva Villeneuve.

February 29 several neighbors, relatives and friends called at the Villeneuve home in Rock Island to extend their good wishes. That evening Mr. and Mrs. Villeneuve were supper guests of a neighbor, Mrs. Rene Rousseau. During the day, William Bowden, another neighbor, presented Mr. Villeneuve with a lovely anniversary cake. Mr. Villeneuve says, "I can only celebrate every four years and this year has been a wonderful anniversary for me."

Stephen Wintle christened

Reluctant Russians release ancient Hebrew manuscripts

By SID TAFER
MONTREAL (CP) — Since the Russian Revolution in 1917, vast collections of historic Hebrew writings from several European and Middle Eastern countries have been sealed away in Soviet state libraries, inaccessible to Western scholars.

Recently, shipments of microfilm copies of some of the documents have arrived at the National Library in Ottawa, part of a new cultural exchange between Russian and Canadian scholars.

Jewish sources here attribute the development to improved relations between Canada and the Soviet Union as symbolized by last year's exchange of visits by Premier Kosygin and Prime Minister Trudeau.

The project was initiated by David Rome, former director of the Montreal Jewish Public Library, who calls it "the rescue of the whole manuscript lore of East European Jewish learnings."

So far, some 20,000 frames of microfilm, representing about 40,000 pages of manuscripts, have been received. Exactly how many more frames can be expected is unknown.

HARD TO IDENTIFY
But, as Mr. Rome explains, it is difficult and time-consuming to identify and evaluate much of the collection.

"In ancient times, scholars wrote on papyrus or parchment that was used several times because it was so valuable."

Thus, centuries-old works are often written on top of other writings. Sometimes six different writings, ranging from a casual note to a valuable commentary on the five books of Moses, are on the same piece of parchment.

The documents are all pre-18th century and some are at least 1,000 years old. It is too early to tell the age of the oldest documents, Mr. Rome said.

Much of the value of the works is comparative, as well as religious and historical, he stressed.

Some of the documents are the oldest copies of certain works known to the Western world, and when compared with available printings they sometimes prove to be different.

"All the ancient documents were written by hand and then recopied," explained Rabbi Nathan Kops of Shevet Achim Synagogue in Montreal. "Sometimes the copyist would make a mistake and other times he would inadvertently omit certain things and add others."

SCHOLAR CHEATED
The transcriber would usually sign his name at the bottom of the manuscript to identify himself. In one case, observed Rabbi Kops, an ambitious scholar transcribed the works of Ibn Ezra, a 12th-century Jewish sage living in Spain, and identified himself as "the author of this book." "Even in those days we had plagiarism," Rabbi Kops said. "Of course, it happened very rarely."

Funds to finance the project and pay the Russians are being collected from private concerns. Ernest Sabloff, a Montreal notary who is head of the committee to raise the money, said it has collected some $50,000 and hopes to extend this figure to $500,000. State Secretary Gerard Pelletier is an honorary chairman of the fund-raising committee.

Raymond Davies, Montreal book-dealer with extensive contacts behind the Iron Curtain, administers the mechanics of the program.

He makes late-night telephone calls to the State Public Library of Leningrad, the Fundamental Library of Science in Moscow and other Russian institutions to arrange shipments and negotiate reimbursements.

BARGAIN SHREWDLY
"There is very little cash involved in the deal," Mr. Davies said. "What the Russians want in return are books, subscriptions and microfilms, many of which are very expensive. And the Russians are hard bargainers."

Mr. Davies arranged to send the Russians microfilm copies of Alaskan documents dated before the Americans purchased the territory in 1867.

Another difficult order was for original copies of Montreal Star, from the date of the first publication in 1869.

Mr. Davies knew of a library that had just microfilm its copies of The Star and was turning them over to a disposal company.

He bought the entire lot as scrap for $29 and shipped the collection to the Soviet Union.

The Russians want subscriptions to Canadian periodicals, and copies of Russian and East European historical and cultural documents that have found their way to Western countries.

"The biggest problem involved is that the Russians are not anxious to share their cultural wealth," Mr. Davies said. "Only the fact that the microfilms are going to the National Library of Canada and not to a private collector convinced them to co-operate."

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Tests reveal pernicious anemia

Dear Dr. Lamb—Can you tell me why I am always so tired? I go to bed tired and get up tired. I have been told that I have pernicious anemia. I was tested but the test did not show any proof of this condition. I have been getting B-12 shots for the past four years once a month and sometimes more often. Besides always being tired I sometimes feel short of breath and a little dizzy. I also feel like something in my throat is choking me. I have low blood pressure. It stays around 102 to 110. My doctor says not let me go for blood tests or any kind of check on my blood. He tells me it is not necessary as long as I get B-12 shots. Blood tests will not reveal anything, anemia will not show up. I am thinking of changing doctors because I feel these shots should build me up and I shouldn't feel so tired all the time.

Dear Reader—In the first place, if you don't have pernicious anemia or B-12 deficiency, there is no reason for you to be taking B-12 shots. In the second place, if you do have pernicious anemia and need shots for it, the one useful way of telling whether your anemia is corrected or not is by a blood test. In fact, it is very difficult to tell whether a person is anemic or not without blood tests. Most doctors would say impossible.

There are many reasons for being tired and anemia is only one. Very often emotional factors are involved in fatigue. Other times it is inactivity (which also may be a manifestation of emotional problems) and sometimes it is improper diet. Less often it is from physical fatigue.

Fatigue is a sign of many different diseases. It covers the gamut from tuberculosis to diabetes so I am not going to try to tell you what causes your fatigue. It may indeed be related to your low blood pressure, although many people who have low blood pressure have normal amounts of energy, are very healthy, and usually live longer than individuals with normal or higher blood pressure. This, of course, presupposes that the relatively low blood pressure is not a sign of some important underlying disease. Low blood pressure and fatigue can be two symptoms. Of course, I don't know that you have quoted your doctor correctly, but if you cannot feel certain that your blood is being tested and have some idea of whether or not you have anemia, I think, indeed, you should get another doctor.

East put his ace of spades on dummy's queen and led back the queen of diamonds. South ducked and East continued with the jack. South played his ace this time. Then he cashed his club ace. West played the four spot and South was home with the bacon. He entered dummy with a trump, ruffed the six of spades; entered dummy with a second trump; discarded his last diamond on the king of spades; ruffed dummy's last diamond and led one of his low clubs.

West was stuck in with the king of clubs and had to lead a spade or a diamond. It did not matter which South ruffed in dummy and discarded his last club. South was lucky. He found West with king and one club and each opponent with exactly two trumps but South had given the cards every chance.

Note that he led the ace of clubs as soon as he got in. If he had postponed that play the chances are that West would have dropped the king under the ace.

Textile breakthrough grounds static electricity

Electricity in textiles has never been a blessing. Static has long been a nuisance, particularly in dry, well-heated buildings. Static can build up on any surface, but since the development of nylon, the bunch-up slip and the charge-up carpet have become all too familiar.

Many attempts have been made by the Canadian textile industry to overcome static problems, which can occur even with cotton. Chemical sprays, finishes, special conducting yarns are all used in various types of textiles. Now, the development of new anti-static nylon fibres is hailed as the end of static in clothing.

Researchers at three major textile fibre companies have achieved permanently anti-static fibres by different processes described as: (1) a re-composition of the chemistry of the fibre; (2) a chemical conductor spun into the yarn; (3) and an additive put into the fibre at the polymerization stage.

Permanent anti-static means the property will not wash out or wear out, as was the case with previous processes. The anti-statics do not eliminate static, they dissipate it more quickly and the new nylon fibres have been changed somewhat by the processes.

We all know nylon's ability to shed water, the quality that made it drip-dry quickly. This same ability gave it a reputation for feeling "clammy." The new nylon fibres have a greater ability to absorb moisture which thus dissipates static and give the fibre new comfort and coolness.

As so often happens with new developments in textiles, some unexpected side-effects become apparent. In the case of the new fibres these are a bonus.

Fabrics made from the anti-static yarns also resist and release soil more readily than before. Static was the villain which attracted dirt particles and helped accumulate the build-up of soaps which discolored fabrics. Nylon is by no means the only fibre that creates electricity. Other man-made polyester and acrylic have the same problem, though to a lesser degree. This has become more apparent since the popularity of knitted clothes. For instance, the "tingling" between men's polyester dress suit slacks and nylon socks is the male equivalent of the clinging slip.

In Canada the new anti-static nylons first appeared in lingerie, underwear and sportswear. Now heavy yarns are being perfected although these presented a bit of a problem with the need to preserve the stretch properties of the yarns while also making them anti-cling.

Soon we will see blouses and other outerwear garments on the market and we can be sure that the industry will find other uses and applications for a development that promises to eliminate one of life's little annoyances.

Quebec gives Kennedy curtains

A petite French-Canadian textile designer and a Quebec weaving mill created a monumental piece of art for the famous John F. Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts in Washington which opened in a blaze of publicity last month.

The stage curtain in the Centre's 1100-seat Esplanade Theatre was designed by Madame Mariette Rousseau-Vermette of Sainte-Adèle and woven by Cleyn & Tinker Ltd., in Huntington, Que. It cost $75,000 and was a gift of the Canadian government.

The theatre curtain, 34 feet high and 44½ feet wide, is a woollen tapestry with red and black interlaced panels. Mme. Rousseau-Vermette describes the design as "symbolic of unity, unity of natural forces and unity of all nations in friendship and progress."

The Hon. Gérard Pelletier, Secretary of State for Canada, made the formal presentation and said, "It is to show the esteem and affection which both Presidents Kennedy and Eisenhower were held in Canada and to emphasize the friendship that has linked our two peoples for so long."

Textile design is seldom on such a vast scale as the theatre curtain and its manufacture presents unusual production problems. The highly sophisticated textile skills required to produce the gift are as important as the artistic achievement.

Mme. Rousseau-Vermette has won several international competitions for similar projects which she has executed by the same Huntington mill. These include the theatre curtain in Montreal's Place des Arts and another in the National Arts Centre in Ottawa. Designs were invited from world-renowned artists in each case. Once accepted, the prize-winning design sets the colour scheme for the decoration of the entire theatre.

Mme. Rousseau-Vermette was born in Trois-Rivières, Que., and graduated from Ecole des Beaux Arts, Montreal. Her tapestries have appeared in major exhibitions in Europe, Japan and in New York at the Museum of Modern Art, as well as in Montreal, the Maritimes and in Vancouver.

Her Canadian creation at the $70 million Washington centre ranks with the fabricator's artistic gifts contributed by 30 different countries in honour of the late President Kennedy.

Implement maker may leave Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Massey-Ferguson Ltd. hinted Tuesday the farm implement manufacturing company may relocate its head office outside Canada because of new federal tax legislation.

Some provisions of the legislation "attempt to extend Canadian tax practices into foreign jurisdictions, a development which could jeopardize the practicability of Canada as a home base for companies operating internationally." A.A. Thornbrough, chief executive officer, told the annual meeting.

He also said that, pending the introduction of any significant amendments to the tax legislation mapped out by former finance minister Edgar Benson, it is impossible to determine the total impact of the new law on the company.

However, "if major changes are not made before the international provisions begin to apply in 1973, there will be a significant increase in the total world-wide tax burden on the Massey-Ferguson group of companies, with resultant implications for our competitive position."

The company reported a net income for the three months ended Jan. 31 of $672,000 or four cents a share, up from $363,000 or two cents a share for the corresponding period of 1970.

Agricultural policies to affect meat men

MONTREAL — The future of the meat industry is largely dependent on the impact of overall policies for agriculture. W. A. Mill told delegates during the presidential address yesterday at the 52nd annual meeting of the Meat Packers Council of Canada in Montreal.

Mr. Mill noted with satisfaction that policy-makers seem to be becoming more aware of the livestock and meat industry as a source of greater income and employment relative to grains, so that future policies will be oriented to stimulate greater growth of this important industry.

Mr. Mill said that agricultural policies should direct agricultural resources so that Canada may take advantage of developing exports through increased meat production.

He noted opportunities for consistent expansion in the hog and pork industry exists through exports, provided we are competitive. With an assured supply, Canada can sell on world markets, and Mr. Mill noted as one example, increased exports to the United States and Japan in 1971.

Mr. Mill called for better communication between government and industry. Proposed legislation should be reviewed by the industries affected by it on a constructive basis, at an early point in its presentation to ensure it is clear and workable.

Industry must be prepared to take a stand, said Mr. Mill, and insist that proposed legislation and regulations are in the best long-term interest of the total Canadian economy. Mr. Mill told the audience that the Meat Packers Council welcomes participation in any government policies involving or affecting animal agriculture as early in discussions as possible.

"GAP HAS DEVELOPED"

On the subject of consumerism, Mr. Mill said, "It appears a gap has developed in the minds of many consumers between the way they perceive the goods and services they buy and what they think those goods and services should be." The speaker went on to point out that, in his opinion, where such a gap exists, it is due either to a failure to identify properly consumer wants and needs or a failure to maintain a dialogue with consumers so they can understand the various alternatives and the costs.

shared by society," said Mr. Mill. He called for co-ordinated planning between government, industry and agriculture at the federal, provincial and municipal levels to ensure there are no sudden, unreasonable environmental requirements.

In the past 10 years, many old, obsolete plants that were beyond economic rehabilitation have been closed. The trend in Canada has not proceeded as far as it has in the U.S. but it will continue perhaps at an accelerated rate. The locating of slaughtering facilities in concentrated areas of livestock production will continue, according to Mr. Mill.

Claim crop losses

QUEBEC — According to a recent announcement by the Quebec minister of agriculture, the Quebec Crop Insurance Board has received 8,953 claims for losses suffered during 1971 by the 8,000 farmers whose field crops it insured.

Normand Toupin said that the reason there were more claims than claimants is that an insured party may apply for compensation for losses sustained by two or more crops included in the four categories of crops insurable under the field crop plan.

Field crop claims for the 1971 season were as follows: 4,962 for forage crop losses; 3,587 for grain crops; 286 for silage corn; and 117 for grain corn.

Alouettes vs. Jets

There won't be any prize riding on the outcome of this Friday's hockey game at the Farnham Sports Palace, but it will have just as much meaning as a Stanley Cup final.

While the exhibition encounter between the Montreal Alouettes' hockey team and the home town Farnham Jets promises to be a treat for those present, the score becomes a secondary item in comparison to the main purpose of the get-together.

The big winner on this particular evening will hopefully be the District of Bedford Mentally Retarded Association, which will be the recipient of all gate receipts from the contest. These funds will be directed toward aiding many of the estimated 3,000 mentally retarded individuals in this area.

"We hope to use some of the profits to make building improvements at Camp Garagona," says Association president Tom Stafford. "We would also like to sponsor one or two campers from Farnham this summer."

The camp, situated in Frelighsburg, is available to retardates throughout July and August, and with an enrollment of 52 persons last summer, Mr. Stafford is anticipating approximately 70 campers this year. While there are numerous programs offered, ranging from nature study and arts and crafts to swimming and hiking, the chief function is to "teach the children to live with other people."

The contribution of the Alouettes to this and similar worthy causes has been considerable since the club formed a hockey team as an off-season pastime. Since Stafford is familiar with Bob Storey, a recently-retired Alouette and a member of the hockey squad, as a former classmate, the boys heartily accepted his offer to stage a benefit game at the arena.

"We try to get in at least one game a week," explains team coach Ron Dutil, who serves as equipment manager during the football season. "I feel playing hockey keeps the boys in shape and keeps them together during the off-season."

"Almost all our games are played for charity or minor sports," he continues. "I don't exactly know how much we've raised so far this year, but I can tell you we netted $550 in a benefit match at Ville Brossard recently. That's not bad for a small town."

According to Storey, the involvement of Dutil in the hockey program is the vital cog which enables the club to function.

Promoter, coach, launderer

"Ronnie deserves all the credit because he does all the hard work like promoting the game, coaching and even washing our uniforms," lauds the former Alouette defensive halfback. "He doesn't get to play himself, but he sure does a lot of work. All we have to do is show up for the game."

Many of the personnel which forms the roster of the hockey club are familiar figures in the Canadian Football League. Among the more recognized performers are such names as Terry Evanshen, Bruce Van Ness, Gary Lefebvre, Steve Smear and Barry Randle. But the lineup boasts a flock of athletes, both noted and obscure, who have left a mark upon the sports scene. This group includes George Springate, Allan Globensky, Jackie Wallace, Serge Lebus — a former senior player in Cowansville — and the incomparable Doug Harvey. The latter's dedication toward the mentally retarded program prompted Stafford to claim that "without Doug there just wouldn't be a camp. He was the first guy there hammering the nails."

In a brief scouting summary offered by Storey, there is little doubt that observers will be witnessing a hockey squad of surprising skills.

"Our team is real good," he reports. "The defence is particularly strong with Doug Harvey out there and Gary Lefebvre beside him. Then we have another good pair in Claude Boyer and Serge Lebus, both of whom have played hockey before. You might be inclined to think that a guy like Bruce Van Ness, who is from the United States, can't play the game too well. But Bruce has been on skates before. He's practised a lot and is an improved player."

One team member whose name might immediately raise a few eyebrows and among keen hockey fans is that of Globensky, a former bruising defenceman with the Montreal Junior Canadiens widely touted for his fistic exploits.

Dutil believes that Allan has been branded unjustly by those associated with the game of hockey. "I've known him for a long time, and I don't think he's the type of hockey player everyone makes him out to be. The big reason he gave up on hockey is because wherever he went, someone was always telling him to board this guy or pick a fight with that one. Finally, he just got fed up with the whole thing and turned to football."

10 years too soon

"I think he has a good chance in football because he's still young, but even if he is cut from the squad in July, there's always the chance to go back to hockey," he pointed out.

The hockey-football conflict was magnified in the case of Bob Storey, particularly since he evolved in a hockey background, his father, Red being one of the NHL's most famous referees. The matter was compounded when Bob had to choose between a hockey scholarship and a football freebie at the University of Tulsa. He opted for the latter.

"At that time, which was 1963, I just felt there would be more instant success in football. With only six clubs in the NHL, you almost had to be a superstar to make the grade, or spend years in the minor leagues. I wasn't prepared to waste those years while missing a free college education."

What reaction did his father have over the choice?

"He didn't say too much about it, but I think now he probably prefers that I'd have chosen hockey. As far as myself, if the opportunity arose again today, I would be more inclined to take the hockey offer, because it's much easier now to reach the top. But I can't say I have any regrets, because I managed to play five years in the CFL and on two Grey Cup winners."

Now an executive with the Seagram Distilleries firm and soon to be transferred to Toronto, Storey lends this analysis of his hockey ability.

"I guess it's about average," he claims. "I think you'll discover that most Canadian boys are decent hockey players."

As a result of this winter activity, the football members in particular are exposing themselves to the risk of injury, but there is little fear of a calamity.

"The players don't strain themselves too much, and they're mostly out for the exercise," Dutil mentions. "Skating is very good for the knees because it strengthens them, so there's no worry of being hurt. Besides, we stop playing hockey six weeks before training camp."

Despite the occasional antics of Harvey and Wallace, a 42-year-old bundle of energy who barely reaches the belly-button on most of his teammates, the boys are extremely serious towards winning. "It's just a matter of pride," explains Storey. "An athlete always goes out there with the intention of winning."

Although the Alouettes will not be overly disappointed at the prospect of suffering defeat, the game promises to be a worthwhile attraction for those who enjoy being entertained.

And despite the result which appears on the scoreboard, the only figure that really counts is the amount of cash collected to bring some ray of sunshine into the lives of the mentally deficient.

Sullivan had to study

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CP) — Paul Sullivan has one more year to go to obtain an economics degree from the University of Toronto.

That may not be overly exciting, but Sullivan's quest for his degree has something to do with his being here in Montreal Expos' spring training camp rather than with the Boston Red Sox camp in Winter Haven, Fla., about 100 miles north of here.

Sullivan, a native of Toronto, was signed by the Red Sox in 1968 after he graduated from the La Salle high school in Toronto.

Then Sullivan, a right-handed pitcher, enrolled in university.

For two consecutive years he reported late to the Red Sox, refusing to go south until he finished his spring exams at the University of Toronto.

Following the 1969 season, the Red Sox thanked Sullivan for his services with their Jamestown Class A affiliate, but told them they were no longer interested in him.

It was then the Expos moved in and picked him up.

"I thought of quitting when the Red Sox dropped me," said Sullivan. "But usually you quit when you think you can do no more."

"I thought I still could do

Tests show Orr hockey's straightest shooter

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins is the only defenceman ever to win the National Hockey League scoring championship and perhaps one of the reasons is that he can shoot 15 pucks into the goal in 10 seconds.

Not only that, but he can fit all 15 nearly in the same top corner, from a distance of 35 feet.

A few months after Orr won the scoring title in 1970, Ed Enos, director of athletics at Loyola College, invited Orr and some of the other Bruins to take part in a series of tests Enos was conducting as part of his doctoral thesis.

"He was the only one who shot all the pucks in the same corner—the top, right-hand side of the net—in an area about so big," said Enos, holding his hands about six inches apart.

THAT'S BEST PLACE. Enos said Orr told him he shoots for that corner because "most goalies hold their goalstick in their right hand, so that's the best place to shoot it from that distance."

Phil Esposito, Derek Sanderson, Johnny McKenzie,

Terry Harper and J. C. Tremblay also took part in the tests.

"At first we were worried that there would be a problem motivating the players," Enos said. "But they really tried hard to out-do each other in the drills."

Enos's tests are quite simple. He had devised skating, shooting, passing and stick-handling tests, using standards established at every level of competition from NHL down through college to bantam hockey.

The Bruins took their tests at their training camp in London, Ont., in the fall of 1970.

PROS DOING OK.

"It really wasn't our objective to test the pros alone," Enos laughed. "Heck, they're just a small percentage of society, and they're doing all right by themselves."

"I hope the tests will provide some kind of objective tool for assessing a player's skill—other than just the judgment of a coach who may not spend that much time watching some of the players."

"Look," Enos explained, "if a coach feels some of his players are weak in certain areas, he can show them in black-and-white statistics—the test results—how they compare to the other players.

"That will give him all the excuse he needs to tell a player he must devote more time to the weak areas. It gets away from the subjective judgments that athletes are reacting against in this day and age."

"It used to be, when a coach told a player to go bang his head against the wall, the player did it without any questions. But not anymore. Now the little soansos want to know why and we've got to be able to give them the answers."

"I think the tests I've designed can provide coaches with objective facts about their players. And there is a real need for this in hockey, particularly in the United States, where the expansion of the game has rapidly outgrown the expertise available to teach it."

Enos said other professional sports have been using videotape and movie films for years.

BOBBY ORR OF BOSTON BRUINS WINDS UP FOR ONE OF HIS PATENTED RUSHES

Rousseau fills in for finish

NEW YORK (CP) — There were a few raised eyebrows last season when Emile Francis, coach-general manager of New York Rangers, traded team captain Bob Nevin to Minnesota North Stars for Bobby Rousseau.

Rousseau scored just four goals with Minnesota last season while Nevin had 21 for New York.

But even the most skeptical critics now must admit it was a good trade for the Rangers. Rousseau has just taken over as centre on the Rangers top line with Rod Gilbert on right wing and Vic Hadfield on left. The position became available when centre Jean Ratelle, in a race for scoring leadership of the National Hockey League, suffered a cracked ankle bone and was lost to the Rangers for the rest of the regular season.

Rousseau lost no time in proving he belonged on the line, scoring two goals Sunday night as the Rangers defeated Vancouver Canucks 6-1. He now has 21 goals and 51 points for the season.

THOUGHT OF RETIRING. Rousseau admits the thought of retiring occurred to him last season.

"Oh, sure... a few times," he said after the victory over the Canucks.

"I was naturally very disappointed with myself," he said. "Quitting would have been the easy way out. I knew I had to bid my time, stay in there, keep skating and shooting and eventually things would work out for me."

Rousseau plays down any suggestions of difficulty he may have fitting into the line with Hadfield and Gilbert.

"Sure we have to get used to playing together as a line," he said. "But I don't think it should be so difficult. We've all been around a while and are familiar with each other's moves. We've skated together in practice and on power plays."

Rousseau's style fits in with Vic and Rod "as well as anyone we have," says Francis. "He's an old pro who knows how to make all the plays."

WINGERS MUST ADJUST.

"I feel the wingers must adjust to the centre's style more than the centre adjusting to the wingers' styles," said Rousseau. "The centre controls the tempo of play, does most of the play-making and governs the line's speed and timing."

"If the centre tries to adjust his game to wingers' games, he throws the whole line off."

Joseph Jean-Paul Robert Rousseau was born in Montreal July 26, 1940. In his first full season in the NHL, with Montreal Canadiens in 1961-62, he scored 21 goals and 24 assists and was named Rookie of the Year. He had 30-goal seasons with the Canadiens in 65-66 and 68-69. He was traded to Minnesota for Claude Larose in 1970.

something in baseball and the way things turned out I'm glad I stayed in it."

In his first season in the Montreal organization, Sullivan pitched with their Watertown affiliate in the Class A Northern League.

Last season, Sullivan was promoted to the Expos' Class AA club at Quebec City.

BCS cops ETIAC crown

LENNOXVILLE - In a spectacular come-from-behind effort yesterday, Bishop's College School's senior hockey team won the Abbott Trophy emblematic of the Eastern Townships Interscholastic Athletic Conference championship over Alexander Galt Regional High School Pipers.

BCS was full value for its win, defeating the Pipers 7-1 after dropping the first game of the two-game total-point series 6-1. Sparked by two early goals from the stick of Jere Gillis, BCS went on to a convincing display of fore-checking, passing and skating. Peter Smith scored twice for the winners, with singles coming from Pete Marchuk, Mark Stephen and Neil Robinson. Guthrie Stewart in the BCS nets was called on to make some good saves, but for sheer hard work, the nod goes to Steve Dowbiggin in the Piper nets. The lone Piper score came at 10:11 of the third period when Norm Kerwin tucked an unassisted goal behind Stewart. The next step for BCS is the Off-Island Provincial playoffs being held at Bishop's University March 10-11. The first game sees BCS going against Massey-Vanier Regional High School of Cowansville on Friday, with the winner going on to the second round Saturday.

Gaiterette cagers No. 4 in nation

LENNOXVILLE (AR) - Bishop's University Gaiterettes, reigning queens of the Quebec University Athletic Association women's basketball league, finished fourth in Canada at the national finals held in Saskatoon last weekend.

The Gaiterettes faced experienced competitors in the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union nationals, dropping two decisions: University of British Columbia downed Bishop's 63-32 in one semi-final, and the Lennoxville squad dropped a 54-42 encounter to the University of Western Ontario in the consolation final.

In the championship game UBC fought to a 74-69 victory over second-place University of New Brunswick. UNB reached the final by edging Western 57-52.

Although they came home without a win, the Bishop's girls gained valuable cage experience. The winning UBC squad included three members of Canada's national women's basketball team. Against UBC the Gaiterettes played well defensively but could not get untracked from the pressing man-to-man defence employed by the well-drilled western representatives.

Anne Williams hooped 12 points for Bishop's and Helen Castonguay contributed nine in a losing effort. When they faced Western, the Gaiterettes fell behind 34-17 at the half as coach Dodie Goodwin went to the bench for most of the period. The second stanza saw Bishop's outscore their Ontario rivals 25-20 but it was a case of too little, too late.

Nancy Knowlton topped the Gaiterettes with 13 points while Anne Williams added 12 in the final game for the Lennoxville crew.

A young team, the Gaiterettes were certainly the most inexperienced squad in the four-team championship. With hard work and the newly-acquired experience under their belts, the Bishop's girls could even the score next year.

Blues win 4-2

Jack Eggers biggest break occurred last Nov. 15 when New York Rangers, riding high in the National Hockey League's East Division, traded him to St. Louis Blues, struggling for a West-Division playoff berth.

Louis He added two more Tuesday night in a 4-2 over Los Angeles Kings in the only schedule game.

It marked the second straight game he'd scored two goals and gave him 23 for the season, tied with Gary Sabourin as the second most productive scorers on the Blues.

Transition gets Dube education

SHERBROOKE (AR) - When Normand Dube, a 72-goal scorer for Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League in 1970-71, entered college ranks, the event was hailed as a triumph for university hockey.

In 19 games with University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold, the versatile athlete netted 24 goals and accumulated more points than any of his teammates, leading his club to a third-place finish in the Quebec University Athletic Association schedule.

Dube was drafted last June by Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League but chose to forego professional hockey, for the moment at least.

"Right now my main ambition is to get an education," said Dube. "I didn't feel secure in the Los Angeles organization and that's why I'm at university today."

The transition from junior to college hockey wasn't much of a problem for Dube, although he is quick to cite one difference between the two.

"College hockey is definitely rougher than at the junior level," Dube says, "because you always have to be on your guard for a high stick. In junior hockey, though, there are more fights."

Green and Gold coach Georges Guibault uses his talented recruit as much as he can. Dube kills penalties, occupies the left point on power plays and takes a regular shift either at centre or on the left side.

In addition to being an excellent skater, Dube also possesses one of the best shots in the league. "I always use the wrist shot," explained Normand, "because I have much more accuracy and quickness than with the slapshot."

During the past QUAA season, Sherbrooke defeated Sir George Williams University Georgians twice in three meetings. Looking forward to tonight's semi-final encounter between the two teams in Montreal, coach Guibault is confident his squad will win.

"We have more depth than Sir George," offers Guibault, "and we have solid goaltending and more strength down the middle. If our defensive play is up to par, and if our defencemen move the puck out of danger, we should have no problem at all."

To Dube and his fellow players, the Georgians do not loom as formidable opponents.

"We are a better balanced team and we have a lot of pride," says Dube. "I think we will beat them easily."

Tonight the Green and Gold will get their chance.

Centre said key for SGWU

MONTREAL (AR) - Early in the Quebec University Athletic Association hockey schedule, Mark Shewchuck and the Sir George Williams University Georgians threatened to run away with league honors.

Although the Georgians faltered after the Christmas break, coach Paul Arseneault doesn't think the situation has deteriorated beyond control. "We have 14 rookies on the roster and probably the youngest team in college hockey," Arseneault points out. Their average age is 19 and the Georgians have been hot and cold all season.

The consistent play of Mark Shewchuck, however, has been a blessing to Arseneault. A rookie, Shewchuck has scored 33 goals in 32 games for the Georgians in league and exhibition play.

Last month Shewchuck was drafted by the World Hockey Association, and his coach rates Mark as a solid pro prospect. "He is one of the strongest athletes I've ever coached," said Arseneault, "and he has excellent balance on his skates."

Prior to joining the Georgians, Shewchuck played in a Montreal industrial league for two seasons. During that time he picked up a few bad habits, says his coach.

"If he hopes to play professional hockey, Mark must learn to skate more smoothly instead of taking choppy strides," says the Sir George athletic director. Arseneault also declared that the situation could easily be remedied with a few more years of college experience.

Analyzing tonight's semi-final game against University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold, the Georgian mentor said strength up the centre and goaltending are the keys to his team's success.

Arseneault lamented the inconsistent performance of sophomore goalie Bernie Wolfe and the lack of experience at the centre position which has plagued his charges.

For tonight's game, the SGWU coach will not employ any special strategy to thwart Sherbrooke's explosive Normand Dube. He has confidence that his team will play up to its potential and win.

"If I'm forced to put a man on Dube, it'll mean that we aren't playing as well as we should be," he offered.
