

But Nadar isn't in the club

Remember the Corvair? It's got a new role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Corvair lives—as a collector's item.
The resurgence of interest in the cars has produced a mini-industry of sorts in restoration and modification of Corvairs. A club here, the Corvair Society of America (COSA), has 1,800 members.
Missing from the membership, of course, is Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate who almost single-handedly made an orphan of the General Motors model by contending it is unsafe.
When production stopped four years ago, the car was an outcast. Now its value is increasing. There's even talk of opening a Corvair museum. So far $100 and a car have been contributed.

Sales of the Corvair, which peaked at 317,389 cars in 1963 and still exceeded 200,000 in 1965, plunged to 86,211 in 1966, a year after the publication of Nader's book, Unsafe at Any Speed. Sales continued to decline until GM halted production May 14, 1969, about 10 years after Corvair was introduced.
About 1.7 million Corvairs were built in the 10 years. About 550,000 are still in use.

Nader's chief allegation was that Corvairs had a tendency to roll over on a sharp turn, even at speeds under 30 miles an hour. Last year, the U.S. transportation department issued the results of a two-year study that showed Corvairs cited by Nader were at least as safe as similar models sold at that time.
COSA is headed by John Jackson, 25, of Anaheim, Calif. He has two Corvairs, as do most COSA members.
Some own even more. A Madison, Wis., man is said to have 80 stored on his farm as an investment.

Woody Schwartz, a young social worker in Washington, D.C., has 14 Corvairs and says:
"You generally see them on the road in one of two conditions. They're either rolling trash or nicely kept."
Book values for old Corvairs still are low, but some are selling for higher than their list value. Jackson says he sold one Corvair, supposed to be worth only $150, for $500. He knows of a man who sold a 1967 model in mint condition for $2,000.

Other COSA members enjoy racing their Corvairs. Regional affiliates of the national club hold slalom events for their members, timed runs over a serpentine course.
The course requires the sharp turns that Nader said can cause Corvairs to roll over. Although winners of such races often average 45 miles an hour, cars never roll over, club members say. They maintain a Corvair is as safe as any car on the road if the driver knows what he is doing and maintains his car properly.

Mainly sunny today and Tuesday. Winds westerly 15 to 20 becoming light at night. 10 percent probability of a shower in eastern regions today. Drying index good at 60 today and Tuesday. High today and Tuesday 75 to 80. Low tonight 55 to 60.

Rail talks resume but Quebec rotating strikes continue

MONTREAL (CP) — Rotating regional rail strikes continue today, with company and union negotiators meeting separately with a federal mediator, and with the rail issue a likely item of discussion at a federal cabinet meeting.
The newest round of strikes, involving 25,000 workers, was announced by a spokesman for the Associated Non-Operating Railway Unions Sunday.
He said employees in northwestern Ontario, Saskatchewan and Manitoba were to walk off the job at 8 a.m. today, just as other workers ended 48 to 54 hour strikes in other parts of Ontario and in Alberta. British Columbia, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

A second group of employees would walk off the job in the Maritimes at 4 p.m. today, he said.
The first group would return to work at 8 a.m. Wednesday and the second at 4 p.m. the same day, he said.
INTENSIFY PRESSURE
The non-ops began back-to-back, multi-regional and overlapping strikes last week to intensify pressure on the companies.
Negotiators for both the unions and the 11 Canadian railways have been meeting regularly since last week with Judge Alan B. Gold, the federally-appointed mediator.

Richard Smith, the chief union negotiator, said Sunday that Judge Gold had met both company and union representatives during the weekend.
Separate meetings between the mediator and each side were scheduled for today, he said.
CABINET TO MEET
In Ottawa, a cabinet meeting has been called for today to discuss food prices and other issues. The rail strikes are expected to be discussed at the meeting.
There have been some indications—flatly denied by the union leadership—that some workers within the 56,000-man non-op unions may be prepared to broaden strike action to a national scale.

In Montreal Friday, The Star quoted an unidentified union source as saying that the workers who were to strike the Maritimes today "just won't go back" when the strike ends there Wednesday.
"If this happens the rest of the country could well follow," he said.
Questioned on the report, Mr. Smith said the unions "have no plans for a national strike."
NO COMMENT
Neither company negotiators, representing the railways, nor union representatives, have commented on progress during the mediation talks.

The last offer made public by the companies was for a two-year contract with a seven per cent hourly wage increase the first year and an additional 6.5 per cent increase the second year.
An increase of 10.8 per cent for each year of a two-year contract.
The current average wage for non-ops is $3.54 an hour.
Spokesmen for both CN and CP announced Sunday that all regular service, except ferry service in the Maritimes, would be cancelled for the duration of the strikes called Sunday.

Phase 4: U.S. businesses face new guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States now is under Phase 4 wage-price regulations, which took effect today.
Under the new rules imposed by President Nixon, prices set by small and medium-size businesses may be increased to reflect cost increases since the last quarter of 1972.

However, larger firms, the 1,700 companies with business of $100 million a year, will have to give 30 days notice of any price increases.
Exempt from the new regulations will be businesses with 60 employees or less, as will the lumber industry and public-service industries.

Gasoline and petroleum products will remain frozen until Aug. 19, and beef prices will continue to be frozen until Sept. 12.
Special rules will apply to the insurance and health industries.
The 5.5-per-cent wage increase guideline is to continue from Phase 3.

Commerce Secretary Fredrick Dent says Phase 4 will probably be ended this year, but no date for ending it has been set.

The administration has not predicted the results of the new program and no target for the rate of inflation by the end of the year has been set.

Complaint lodged against Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The United Nations Security Council meets today to debate Israel's attempt to kidnap Palestinian guerrilla leaders by pirating an Arab jetliner and forcing it to land in Israel.
United States Ambassador John Scali, council president for August, called the meeting Sunday at the request of Lebanon, over whose territory the Iraqi-chartered plane was intercepted on its way to Baghdad.
Lebanon sought the meeting because of the "gravity of the incident," said Lebanese spokesmen at the UN.
Egyptian newspapers called on the UN to impose a boycott on Israel to force it "to put an end to its crimes which are spreading chaos to the international community."

Israeli jets streaked into Lebanon Friday night and intercepted the aircraft, chartered by the Iraqi airlines with a Lebanese crew, and forced it into Israel. The 74 passengers and eight crew members were questioned for two hours before the airliner was allowed to return to Beirut.
Israel at first refused to disclose its motives for the piracy, but Defence Minister Moshe Dayan later admitted the interception was mounted to kidnap four Palestinians, including Dr. George Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.
PLAN FAILED
The Israeli plan failed because the guerrilla leaders had changed flights at the last moment as a routine security precaution.
The Cairo press blamed the U.S. for the incident and called on Arab government to adopt effective measures against Tel Aviv. The daily Al Bkhar said the Arabs must use "effective weapons" available to them for the battle against Israel.

The Soviet Union "strongly condemned" the Israeli operation and characterized it as "blatant air piracy."
"The world will hardly agree to Israel's perpetrating such atrocities, grossly trampling on international law and freedom of air travel," wrote commentator Georgy Dragunov for the government news agency Tass.
"The story response to Tel Aviv's banditry and its unending playing with fire in the Middle East... should caution Israeli authorities."
In Tel Aviv, opinion about the jetliner incident was mixed. Some persons in the street told reporters the government had offended world public opinion. Others defended the Israeli strategy as necessary to protect the country from guerrilla attacks.

The chairman of the Israeli Pilots Association, Yitzhak Shaked, said his group disapproved of the action since the pilots are "fighting nonstop against air piracy and interference with civilian aviation."
But Shaked said the Israeli pilots would object if the world pilots organization tried to condemn Israel and not the Palestinians.

Quebec in focus

Work stoppages halted

ARVIDA, Que. (CP) — A union official said Sunday the union has ordered a halt to rotating work stoppages against Alcan Aluminum Co. of Canada until Wednesday to facilitate the resumption of negotiations which broke down last week when the workers voted for strike action.
Jean Halley, president of the Federation des Syndicats du Secteur de l'Aluminium, which represents 7,000 of Alcan's 8,000 Quebec workers, said a Quebec labor department mediator met separately with representatives of both sides during the weekend, but he gave no details of the discussions.
Workers have been ordered by their union to suspend work stoppages at Alcan plants at Arvida, Alma, Port-Alfred and Beauharnois. The remaining 1,000 workers are affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions.
The dispute involves wages and length of contract.

Cleaning up

ST. CASIMIR, Que. (CP) — Clean-up operations were under way during the weekend in this community, 45 miles west of Quebec City, after heavy rain Friday caused a brook to overflow and wash away two houses, three wooden bridges and a warehouse.
There were no injuries or missing persons reported by police.
Mayor Guy Tessier, who estimated damage at around $500,000, called out residents to aid in the clean-up by checking affected areas and setting up road blocks where roads or bridges had been washed away.
Workers from the provincial roads department began temporary repair of bridges Saturday morning but CN spokesmen said it will be four or five days before repairs are completed to 200 feet of track which collapsed when the rail embankment gave way.

Jet explodes, men jump to safety

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (CP) — Both men aboard a Canadian Forces CF-101 Voodoo jet parachuted safely Sunday when it exploded in the air during the 12th annual Abbotsford Air Show.
The pilot, Capt. John Pew, 25, of Brantford, Ont., and the navigator, Capt. Gary Raindahl, 24, of Trenton, Ont., were picked up by helicopter and taken to hospital in Vancouver. Both were reported in satisfactory condition with minor burns.
The aircraft, one of four Voodoos from 409 Squadron, CFB Comox, exploded about 10,000 feet from the ground during a vertical climb. It was just south of the airstrip at the time, within a mile of the Canada-United States border. Debris was spread through fields over a two-square-mile area, some of it plummeted down as a fireball and entire area was sealed off immediately by the Ministry of Transport.

There was almost no sound from the explosion and only the falling fireball drew the attention of the more than 50,000 spectators.

Grizzly death tale

More bodies uncovered

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — With authorities continuing the search that has unearthed 23 bodies so far, one of the youths accused in some of the homosexual slayings here goes into court today to ask for a psychiatric examination.
Sheriffs started digging again today along the Gulf of Mexico beach at High Island in the area where two bodies were found Friday.
Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, faces his first court appearance. Police say Henley has admitted slaying nine of the young victims.
Also today, Houston police chief Herman Short was to hold a news conference to answer charges from parents that police should have discovered sooner the series of murders during a three-year period.

Henley has been charged with five counts of murder.
Another Houston youth, David Owen Brooks, 18, has been charged with one count of murder. He says he witnessed some of the slayings but took no part in them.
The body count is just two short of that in California's Juan Corona mass murder case, the worst in U.S. history.
The search for bodies began Wednesday after Henley told police he had killed 33-year-old Dean Allen Corll, who the youths said was the instigator of the slayings.

SEEKS EXAMINATION
Henley's lawyer, Charles Melder, said Sunday that he would ask Judge George Walker of state District court today to set a time and place for Henley to be examined by a psychiatrist of the youth's choice.
"Henley's defence will be insanity," Melder said.
Melder also said he may ask the judge to reduce the $100,000 bail on each murder count that has been set for Henley.

Go west young men

SHERBROOKE (CC) — The Sher-Lenn little league all-star team has gone west. Local players, coaches, officials and a few die-hard fans left for Victoria yesterday morning.
The Sher-Lenn squad, now the Eastern Canada champions, will open their quest for the Canadian championship tonight. The game is scheduled to be broadcast on CKTS but local air-time is not yet known.
The Sher-Lenn dream-team advanced to the Canadian finals with an easy 11-1 victory over Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, in Dorval Friday night. The Sher-Lenn team copped the best two-out-of-three series in two games. They had won the series opener 1-0 Thursday.
Jacques Morin, Sherbrooke's starting right-hander, picked up the win, his fourth in a row.

Champlain to hold special budget over-runs meeting

By MICHAEL ISAACS
Record Reporter

QUEBEC CITY — Champlain Regional College's director-general, Frederick Turley, has arranged for a meeting between representatives of the college and those from the department of education on the matter of financing the college's operations.

At a board of governors meeting held at the college's campus in Quebec City on Friday, Turley announced to the board that such a meeting had been planned in order to examine the causes for the college's expenses in 1972-73 which were in excess of those authorized by DIGEC (the collegial branch of the department).

The move had been requested by the board of governors at a previous meeting.

The board supported the move at Friday's meeting with specific resolutions calling for a supplementary grant to cover the anticipated over-run of the actual expenditures versus the budget, and for re-examination of the operating budget estimates as authorized for 1973-74, including re-evaluation of the facilities rental agreement with Bishop's University.

WON'T UP AUTHORIZATIONS

Turley made it clear that DIGEC was not prepared to increase authorizations but only to discuss the question of presenting supplementary grants.

Turley announced also that the new St.

Lambert campus building will be nearly completed by September 4, when classes are scheduled to start. He asserted that the classrooms are ready, supplies are going in, bricklayers have finished their work, the ground crews are to begin today and only the laboratories are presenting difficulties.

The supplies for laboratories tend to present continuous problems, he explained, and declared that they will be closed for the early period of the semester until they are prepared. There had been constant but unsubstantiated reports that the building would not be finished by semester commencement.

With regard to financing, the board passed the following resolution: "That the tender submitted by Levesque, Beaubien Inc., in the name of a banking group, for the purchase of $3 million of First Mortgage Bonds, Series "B", of Champlain Regional College of General and Vocational Education, dated August 15, 1973, bearing interest at the rate of 8 1/2 per cent per annum and maturing for a first portion of bonds, in the amount of $2,400,000, on August 15, 1983, and for a second portion of Bonds, in the amount of $600,000, on August 15, 1993, at the price of 97.229 per cent for each $100 principal amount, of Series "B" Bonds plus accrued interest, if any, to the date of delivery, be and it is hereby accepted."

The board received and accepted a report on information policy within the college from Louis Sontra, the director of academic services, to whom it had delegated the responsibility of preparing the document.

CRITICIZES COMMUNICATION

The paper, which speaks harshly of the flow of information within the college, was accompanied by a preamble dated August 9, some 35 days after the issuance of the report itself, declaring that many of the problems detailed in the report had been resolved. There was evidence of skepticism among board members as to the accuracy of the preamble.

As a consequence, the board then passed a resolution calling for a study into the communication of information between the board, the administration, and other elements of the college. There was suggestion that this study might be carried out by a task force comprised of members of the academic council as well as from the board itself.

Also discussed in relation to information communication was the matter of what the board labelled "bad press" in The Sherbrooke Record.

Members of the board asserted that they hoped that the officer in charge of information and public relations would make concentrated efforts to make known to members of the community and the press several of the more positive aspects of the college.

More on inflation

By ROBERT HAMILTON

In the column some weeks back, I made mention of the fact that in light of the galloping trend of inflation, today's Pensioners could very well wind up being tomorrow's new poor. Unfortunately this prediction is becoming all too true.

The prices on all food staples have gone away out of reach of the Pensioner and of all those on fixed incomes. On top of this we find that Bell Canada has the affrontery to make yet another application for still another increase in telephone rates, just weeks after the government had given in to a previous application for an increase which went into effect April 1.

Now we have the large oil combines coming out with the promise of still more expensive heating fuels for the coming winter. Where does it all end?

The government of Mr. Trudeau takes great credit for having raised the basic pension to $100 per month. We, who are the recipients, know now that the raise was practically cancelled out by the rapid rise in living costs.

Lip Service has been paid to the low-paid and the Pensioners by all sections of the community, by government spokesmen, trade union leaders, the leaders in trade and industry and the politicians. What do we hear from Mr. Stanfield, Mr. Lewis and Mr. Caouette who were in such agony over the plight of Pensioners in today's rat-race?

They also were taking great credit for the raise to the elderly, but they do not recognize the fact that the increase gives but a crumb of comfort to the recipient and does nothing to brighten the future prospects of Pensioners or the aged on fixed incomes.

What to do about it?

Probably the most important function of the National Pensioners and Senior Citizens Federation is its annual convention to be held this year in Lethbridge, Alberta.

The federation is a powerful voice in Ottawa and has made its presence felt in previous years. The meeting will be held September 24 and 25 and a large turnout is expected.

For those Pensioners — organized or not — who feel they have a beef on today's conditions, why not send your gripe to our National President, Mr. J.L. Lerette, M8V 3A4. This will give Mr. Lerette the opportunity to get a good cross-section of opinion and suggestions which I am sure he will be glad to bring before the assembled delegates.

The other day I heard a customer in a store remark "It's the people on fixed incomes I feel sorry for. It cost me $19 for groceries which cost me $15 last week."

Did you ever think when you retired on pension that you would end up being an object of sympathy?

It is quite a come-down from the rosy dreams of an easy, relaxed future after long years of hard work in preparation for retiring. In a story from Surrey, England, the social service authority turned down the application of a married couple who had wanted to add to their home one extra room to accommodate their father and mother. The grant was refused because "Old age is only a temporary problem." How about that!

Does authority, local or national, really care for the elderly? Or do they consider them as nuisances who will soon shuffle off this mortal coil to bother them no more.

Pensioners must be up and ready to fight for their rights. Governments can be made to listen, the election of October 1973 is the proof of that.

But we must never let up on our efforts. The politicians may not like you too well but they will respect your opinions.

Never fear, in the words of the late president Lyndon Johnson, "Yesterday is not ours to recover, but tomorrow is ours to win or lose."

A TYRO AND A VETERAN — Mrs. Linda Barr, left, was a first-time donor at the Clairfontaine Blood Clinic Friday. Bob Madden said the Red Cross lost one of his cards in Montreal, however the one he had at the clinic listed 28 previous donations and he admitted to having donated at least 15 times as a private donor. Mrs. Barr is a Clairfontaine receptionist, Mr. Madden a line foreman. Assistant personnel manager Gerry Moore said there were 119 persons who gave 380 cc's at the second annual clinic. It was thought the heat kept donors away in droves.

Got a new pipe? Try honey

MONTREAL (CP) — Got a new pipe? Luc Robichaud recommends brushing the inside of the bowl with liquid honey to give it a better flavor.

Mr. Robichaud, a pipe and cigar wholesaler and retailer, said in a recent interview that the honey also makes the carbon in the tobacco crystallize, giving the bowl a harder surface to prevent it from burning.

He said there has been a marked increase in pipe smoking over the last five years, particularly among young people, and this has had some influence over pipe styles.

The smoker now has a wide range of pipes to choose from, ranging from conservative to Scandinavian all the way to the calabash, the pipe that was part of the famous Sherlock Holmes image.

The calabash, made out of a horn-shaped, hollowed-out gourd, is lined with meerschaum, a clay-like substance found on the seabed.

CHOOSE WITH CARE

Mr. Robichaud stressed that a new pipe smoker should look for a model — with a filter — that not only suits his height and weight but also his personality.

"A large man with a small pipe looks ridiculous and vice versa."

"We also make pipes for ladies," said Mr. Robichaud, whose wife smokes one.

"Some of the Italian models have jewels on them and come in pastel colors."

Although the ladies' models sell well, Canadian women tend to smoke their pipes more in private than they do in public.

The biggest mistake a new pipe-smoker makes is to buy an inexpensive pipe "just to see if I like it," said Mr. Robichaud.

"In pipe smoking it's quality that counts, the better the pipe, the better the smoke. The man who buys a poor-quality pipe which doesn't give a good smoke may decide to discontinue smoking before he has given pipes a fair chance."

CLEAN IT DAILY

Care of the pipe is important. Mr. Robichaud recommended cleaning the pipe once a day with a pipe cleaner and using a cleaning solution every two months.

"A well-cared for pipe can last anywhere from five to 10 years."

The regular pipe smoker should have at least two pipes and ideally one for every day of the week.

"The pipe should not be smoked every day. It should be allowed to cool down so that it can mellow."

Packing tobacco into the pipe correctly is also important. It must be put into the bowl in layers and tapped down lightly so that air can circulate, allowing the tobacco to burn evenly.

"Many people claim the pipe is a nuisance because it is always going out. These people are obviously not packing their tobacco correctly."

Mr. Robichaud said pipes are carved from the roots of the briar, a small bushy tree found in the Mediterranean area whose roots can grow to two or three feet in diameter. The roots are shipped in bulk to Canada.

The briar root is cut in blocks, working from the outside towards the centre. Pipes made from outside cuts where the briar is softest run about $10 while those cut from the heart of the root where the grain is the best can go as high as $100.

Fire halts work

MATAGAMI, Que. (CP) — Forest fires in northwestern Quebec and the threat of further fires have temporarily stopped work on the LG-2 hydroelectric power station in the James Bay area about 600 miles north of Montreal.

"The men haven't worked in a week because the risk of fire in the forests is too high," Laurent Hamel, the project's manager, said Sunday.

"We haven't had any rain in 32 days."

Last week, about half the LG2 camp's 500 workers were evacuated from their camp when a forest fire raged out of control 1,400 feet away.

The remaining 250 men stayed behind to battle the blaze, which was still burning during the weekend but had not reached the camp.

LG-2 is the site of the biggest of the four power stations to be built on the La Grande River as part of the $6-billion James Bay power project.

The department of lands and forests said four fires, three out of control, were burning in the James Bay region during the weekend. They covered more than 54,000 acres. About 10 square miles of black spruce had burned last week.

Large turnout at Border clinic

ROCK ISLAND (IH) — A letter has been received by the Mayor of Rock Island and Stanstead municipal council concerning a new post office in each community as well as one in Beebe.

The letter came from Henri Lalulippe, M.P. The new office is scheduled for Rock Island in 1973-74. The department of public works is now seeking a suitable location. The other two offices will be deferred until 1974-75.

This letter was read at the Rock Island Town Meeting held on Monday evening, August 6, in the town hall where mayor Edouard Girard presided.

It was noted that Rock Island's student labor force, employed under a Local Initiative grant, is doing good work on town projects. There are 12 young men employed. The provincial government pays 50 per cent of the costs. Wages are $68 for a 40-hour week.

Morin and Tessier and Associates will be engaged to do the revision of the town valuation roll. Quebec Hydro will be requested to install a new light on Notre Dame Blvd. where Cessnas flying in Thurs. — Fri.

MANSONVILLE (JD) — been arranged for the wives, approximately 25 Cessna 190-195's will be arriving at the airport here Thursday and Friday, marking the first Fly in Eastern. Hosts are Major Steve Werry and his wife Nuria, Traver Road.

Advance arrivals will be on Thursday. Friday sees the start of the program with a cocktail party at the Werry farm followed by a dinner at the Stage Coach Inn, Knowlton.

Saturday will be devoted to tire kicking and navigational exercises. Tours of the area have introduced the 310. Many pilots still consider the 195 to be one of the best instrument flight platforms flying today.

Its performance is not spectacular, but it delivers 160 mph at 75 per cent power, with a pilot and passenger complement of five adults.

The flap system is unique for so-called light aircraft. It is of the split flap variety and located some distance forward of the trailing edge of the wing.

The radial engine provides some visibility problems during take off, however it is equipped with cross-wind landing gear which permits take off on a sideways angle, apparently a sight which scares student pilots as they face one in another aircraft on the apron of a runway.

Anyone interested in viewing the classic craft can find them at the Mansonville airport. It is located two miles south of the town on the road leading past Mansonville Plastics.

Major Werry is stationed at CF headquarters, Ottawa.

Most work over but $ watch continues

By BORIS MISKEW

MONTREAL (CP) — The major part of the house cleaning of the Montreal securities and investment industry has been completed following two years of intensive investigation.

An official of the Quebec Securities Commission said Thursday the Commission is not through with its investigations but the bulk of the work has been finished.

A number of reports still have to be completed and these will be studied during the next few months to determine whether further disciplinary measures should be taken.

This does not mean that the commission will not continue to keep a close check on the operations of the Quebec securities industry, the official added.

However, the wholesale house-cleaning efforts that led to the toppling of a number of brokerage firms frightened other companies involved in questionable operations into clean-up actions of their own. Despite these efforts, reports are that at least two more Montreal firms have been asked by the commission to close down voluntarily rather than be ordered to do so which would mean touching off another flood of adverse publicity about the Quebec securities industry.

Some of the more reputable brokerage firms disagree that the clean-up operations and adverse publicity will do any long-term damage to the reputation of the Quebec securities industry.

The adverse publicity resulting from a handful of brokers having been suspended or liquidated in the last two years has deliberately breaking regulations has caused concern to the public, they said.

However, the suspensions that have been imposed are not the result of general weakness in the Quebec securities industry but are the results of stricter supervision as well as a general strengthening of the regulations through legislation, they said.

New post offices loom

BOUNDARY (IH) — People of all ages from the Boundary Villages working together with personnel of the Canadian Red Cross Blood Donor unit from Montreal felt very satisfied with the results of the donor clinic held on Monday afternoon and evening at the auditorium of Sunnyside school, Rock Island.

Some 162 persons donated blood. This is an increase over 155 pints last year and the most since 1967.

Germain Poulin was chairman for the clinic and was assisted by co-chairman Gilles Beland.

Local people to assist the Montreal Unit were Mrs. Lawrence Winter and Mrs. J.M. Thomson, registrars, Mrs. Howard Bennett who served the soft drinks donated by J.H. Bryant's of Sherbrooke.

Receptionists were Mrs. Galeon Sisco and Mrs. George Hatch. Assisting on bleeding and recovery beds were Miss Joanne MacFarlane, Miss Suzanne Gauthier, Mrs. Roger (Aileen) Roy, Mrs. Steve Bronson, Mrs. Alfred Middleton, RN; Mrs. Jean Beasse, RN retired.

The Beebe Home Extension Club served donuts and coffee. Workers were Mrs. Germain Poulin, Miss Joanne Poulin, Mrs. John Boucher Jr., Mrs. George Goudreau and Mrs. Gerard Lacroix.

Assisting with the full sacks of blood for storage were Miss Mariette Beaulac and Miss Mary Ann Poulin.

Teenage boys assisting to unload and load equipment were Billy, Lionel and Jim Hamilton, George Beaulac, Roger Haskell, Gerald and George Surprenant, Wilfred Parker, George Smith, who assisted Mr. Poulin and Douglas Putney.

It was most gratifying to the committee that there were several first time donors and so many responded to an appeal for workers.

Phnom Penh: Moment of truth approaches

By PETER ARNETT

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The minutes are ticking off quickly toward this city's moment of truth—Aug. 15, when American bombing is to cease in Cambodia.

In Phnom Penh you can measure the approach of zero hour—11 a.m. Wednesday, midnight Tuesday EDT—by the clock as well as by the ear. The crescendo of U.S. bombing has increased.

Windows rattle and shake through the night from the vibrations of explosives. Each morning Phnom Penh is ringing with bomb smoke.

The United States is trying to inflict maximum punishment in the shortest possible time on the Communist-led insurgents, yet they continue to press forward.

"The little blighters are mad," commented a Western military attache this week when he heard that the guerrillas had launched another abortive attack on the Prek Ho bridge stronghold on Route 2, six miles from Phnom Penh.

Around-the-clock U.S. air strikes have saved the bridge, plus the three other major strongpoints that form the outer crust of Phnom Penh's defences.

THEY WON'T WAIT

"Why don't the insurgents just wait until Aug. 15?" the Western attache asked.

Why the Communists fight on through the bombs, and what will happen to this city of nearly two million people and Lon Nol's government after the bombs stop falling are the two most important questions asked here now.

There seems little doubt any more in the most informed circles about why the insurgents are fighting hard.

"They are coming for the city, it's as simple as that," said an Australian diplomat.

The intensified American bombing has slowed the steady Communist advance. The thrust from the south and southeast has bogged down at Prek Ho bridge and the village of Wat Sleng eight miles from the city.

The north and northwest thrusts toward Phnom Penh are hung up in an arc about 15 miles away. The Communists seem only temporarily held up, like heavy theatre curtains about to drop on the stage at the end of a play.

Despite the bombing, the insurgents have been able to: —Frighten off a defensive force of 100 men at the international radio transmission centre near the airport, and blow it up.

—Cut minor highways south and southeast of the city, and strike at the government relief forces.

—Infiltrate increasing numbers of men and materials into the city. Estimates of commando forces now in and around Phnom Penh go as high as 1,000. They probably are just waiting for the signal to attack.

FULL ARMY READY

In addition to the infiltrators, the Communist side has amassed about 60 battalions of soldiers in the Phnom Penh war region.

American officials estimate the total insurgent force at 50,000 men, but that is lower than estimates by representatives here of other Western countries.

The Australian embassy believes the insurgents now are fielding 60,000 men, backed up by a 100,000-man village and local militia force "ranging from armed men to little boys carrying messages in forked sticks."

The enemy force is estimated to have from 2,000 to 5,000 North Vietnamese advisers.

What will happen when the American bombing stops Aug. 15?

"There are a lot of unknowns at this stage—psychological unknowns," commented one senior U.S. official. He spoke of increased American equipment being brought in, a larger army recruited from Phnom Penh, and the "back to the wall" syndrome that might finally push the Cambodian army into fighting.

WEATHER MAY HELP

The Americans also see help from the monsoons.

"Phnom Penh becomes an island in September," said one U.S. diplomat. "If we can keep them off the island, then we can hold out at least 'til later in the year. That gives us time."

That is the best that could happen: that Phnom Penh hold out for a couple of months until political negotiations get under way to determine Cambodia's destiny.

But some American officials, and many other senior Western diplomats, see a much blacker scenario shaping up.

They see the bombing halt leading inevitably to the crumbling of Phnom Penh's outer defences.

"I am absolutely convinced that the government will not hold the Prek Ho bridge for long after the bombing ends," said one diplomat.

He said Wat Sleng in the southeast also will fall along with the north and northwestern defences.

"The Communist insurgents now want the city—they do not want to negotiate," he added.

This black view of the next few weeks sees Pochentung Airport destroyed by guerrilla attacks launched through extremely weak defences.

ARMY WILL GIVE UP

It sees the Cambodian army, now four divisions strong but with all its reserves committed, forced from the strongpoints at the outer defence crusts. The town of Tak Mau at the southern edge of town will fall, pushing another 50,000 refugees into the already swollen city.

Diplomats who hold this view expect the Cambodian army to give up and not fight to the end.

"The people of Phnom Penh are not committed to the government on this," a Western diplomat said. "They will go home and lock their shutters."

Does emotional life suffer?

Dear Sir:

Having read the article on "Education: Does the emotional life suffer?", I must ask on what grounds does Mr. Isaacs make such statements? Is he a psychologist, teacher, psychiatrist, or student?

There are a few patches of discrepancies and vagueness in the article which starts off with Mr. Isaacs "two factors" and ends with two short paragraphs about CEGEP level education.

In what way is it ironic that "students are deluged with descriptions of experiences which they have not had nor even approached and are expected to learn from them?" There are many things which must be accepted as facts even though the student has not established them on her-his own. If we were to expect to experience everything personally, in order to learn, then we would have to start the educational experience perhaps at the stone age level. Do we nullify the experiences of the astronauts because we ourselves have not exited from this globe?

Vicarious experiences compose a large segment of our lives. Television is an example. In a documentary, do we doubt the information being presented to us because we ourselves are not actually gathering it? Or do we accept that it exists and hence learn because we are not able to be there? All students learn from the observations and studies of their predecessors for it is in this process that new knowledge can be searched out.

It is quite true that today's students have a set of different experiences from those of the generation before. But this is true of every generation. The new generation always inherits the world from the former without any help, in an eternal cycle.

In the article it seems that the students of today cannot comprehend this world, need assistance, relevant education. Surely this portrays the new generation as weak and incapable of autonomy!

To ask for education that is relevant, "meaningful in terms of their own experience", would be an insurmountable task. By saying "their own experience", strips away that very individuality which Mr. Isaacs is trying to preserve. No one can lump a generation under any title and pretend that homogeneity has been achieved. Students are individual who thus have unique, individual experiences. Therefore, how can education be relevant to every person? Perhaps the only shared factor is age, who can say?

Are emotions ignored? More likely, no one has ever thought that today's young people need to be guided on what is really an innate path. To try and have "emotions" taught (for this is what comes out of the criticism of the educational system) would be to introduce uniformity into an area of human life where diversity is the key to pleasant social interaction.

Where does Mr. Isaacs glean his information? How does Mr. Isaacs know that "people seeking to become more sensitive to their environment are able to do so in part through smoking marijuana or ingesting certain forms of drugs"? How was this "fact" established? Are there statistics or figures or questionnaires which can substantiate this?

To continue — drug use and withdrawal from "accepted activities" are linked with a conjunction in one sentence. Are not "accepted activities" those activities which society has established? And if society is the villain which maintains a system which strips away individuality and has no "relevant education" (which Mr. Isaacs insists is wanted by all students) then are not the "accepted activities", irrelevant and inconsequential to the student? And if that is the case, is not withdrawal from them justified?

After all, by participating in those "accepted activities" would be to continue turning the wheels of a system which has just been described as ineffectual and cold. Is there a similarity between drug use and conscious withdrawal from undesirable activities? If there is, perhaps it should have been clarified.

After three paragraphs on drug use, the article enters the terrain of high school. If it is true that the personality evolves through a series of stages, at each a crisis arising, then the conflicts faced at that time of life will neither be the only nor last conflicts that the individual will be faced with. A personal resolution of conflicts is far superior to one which has utilized an external influence. By realizing that internal crisis can be resolved individually, the person will acquire strength of character for future crisis.

This is all stated in the same generalities which the author has used in his article. Of course there are the few individuals who are weak and unable to create personal solutions to their conflicts, but there are counseling centres, for this very purpose in all places of learning, including CEGEPs.

If the conflicts are so incapacitating to the individual entering CEGEP, then perhaps that person should seek an option to further education after the high school level. Again, on what grounds is the dogmatic statement made: "When he arrives at CEGEP his work has suffered and he has not resolved the conflicts"? If Mr. Isaacs writes from his personal experience, then perhaps his opinion should not be presented as fact. It is my opinion that it is in CEGEP that the greatest disillusionment and crises arise.

After the description of education and society, a tour of the system, a peak at drug use and speculation on mysterious "significant psychological problems", we finally arrive at the summit: the choice which Mr. Isaacs has given to CEGEPs.

The first choice involves relinquishing personal matters to high school (which is erroneous in that personal problems are continuously arising) and that CEGEP "is to provide needed training for employment or knowledge for continued study"; the second choice, "or else it can assume the burden of developing awareness and methods of problem-solving which are psychological in nature when it sees a need."

What exactly does the conglomeration of words which constitute the second choice, mean? There is an awareness, otherwise there would be no counselling centres.

After all the generalities in the expose, the article concludes with "when it sees a need". Really! Having described a seemingly desperate situation and to conclude on such a flat note is anticlimactic on the part of the author.

The end of NATO?

Are we observing the beginning of the end of NATO? After the shock registered in the European capitals at the dropping of the word "balanced" from the Mutual Balanced Reduction of Forces talks in Vienna, NATO is said to have accepted the inevitable and, having swallowed the bitter pill, is about to propose an even-handed cut in forces on both sides of the iron curtain, a percentage cut of NATO forces and an equal percentage for the Warsaw Pact forces, which have a three-to-one preponderance over NATO. A special agreement will provide for a somewhat larger reduction of the German forces on both sides of the line dividing the two Germanies. The East Germans can safely reduce their troops. The Soviet divisions will stay on. However, the West German reduction must be viewed in the light of the forthcoming departure of the Americans from Germany.

This departure can no longer be delayed. Senator Mike Mansfield is riding high and his bill providing for the 500,000 American forces overseas — 313,000 of these are in Europe — to be cut by half, will undoubtedly be passed by Congress. The senator's argument is truly worth enshrining in marble: "Unilateral action on our part... could very well stimulate a similar, independently arrived at response on the part of the Soviet Union."

For sheer emotional, irrational gush this statement surely deserves some sort of a prize. The Soviet navy is now the largest in the world and is growing. On June 29, the Soviet Communist party passed a resolution demanding a further increase in "the power and might of the Soviet motherland." Last month Leonid Brezhnev made an hour-long speech in which he repeated all the cliches about the Soviet Union being surrounded by enemies and, as the world's largest power, requiring "a substantial growth in the might of our native land." None of these seem to reflect Sen. Mansfield's blissful view of the world.

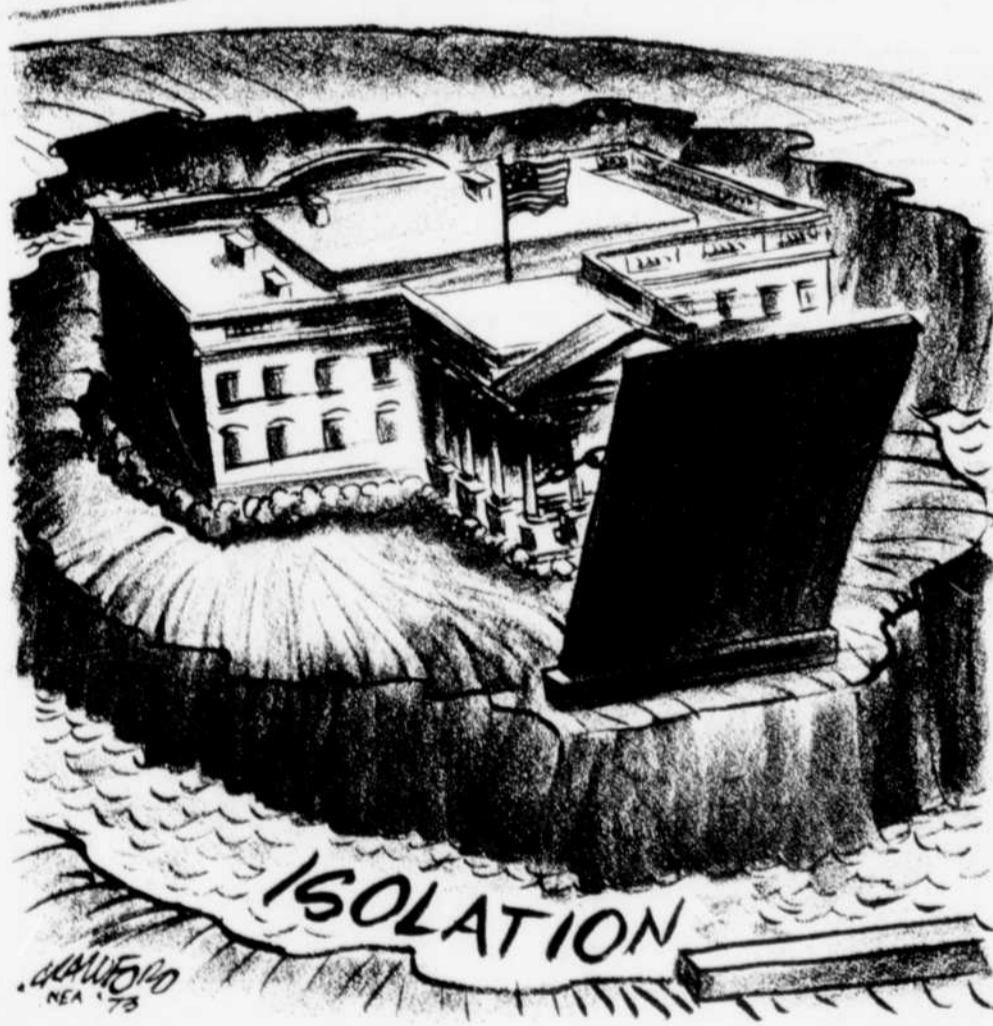

Unfortunately, the fact that the senator is about to bring the boys home has not concentrated the minds of the Europeans in the measure once predicted by Dr. Samuel Johnson. They are still at odds with one another over joint foreign and economic policies. Last week the European Common Market ministers had to travel to Copenhagen for half a day of futile discussions on European integration because the French had objected to any such discussions taking place in Brussels. The French had argued that foreign policy co-operation was not among the attributes of the European Community, nor was it within the competence of the EEC commission in Brussels. So off went the ministers to consume Danish pastries and decide to study their agreements and disagreements in an attempt to define meaning of "European identity."

This promises to be a long process and might well be overtaken by events. The main event that might soon put this new "identity" to a test is the energy crisis and the proposed threat of the Arab oil-producing countries to ban the export of crude oil to the United States while keeping the flow open to Europe. The Europeans, particularly the French and the British, are angry at the United States veto of the frankly pro-Arab resolution at the Security Council last month. Thus a clash over the Middle East between Europe and the United States is building up.

Should the Arabs implement their threats, particularly if a boycott is then accompanied by terrorist action against the United States as has been forecast in Beirut, it cannot be excluded that the United States will take military measures in the Middle East to safeguard her oil supplies.

Because of the impact of an oil boycott on the United States economy and employment, it seems unlikely that Congress would seriously oppose such a measure.

Do-It-Yourself Home Improvement

Help wanted male

By DAVE AGNEW

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Vegetable growers in Essex and Kent Counties are watching their 15,000 acres of tomatoes ripen and wondering whether they will get them to market.

Some say they have lost confidence in Canada Manpower as a source of seasonal help and are looking to Mexico to supply harvest help.

Vern Toews, a director of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, says he would be able to bring in enough help from Mexico in one week to harvest the entire crop.

"But if we stand back and wait for Manpower to supply the help, we may never get the crops harvested," he says.

He estimates farmers in the area will need about 16,000 workers just to bring in the tomato crop. The problem is compounded since the harvest runs into October, long after students have returned to school.

And Mr. Toews estimates only about 10 per cent of Canadian help supplied by Manpower will remain on the job through the harvest.

A Kent County grower said he was forced to plow under 15 acres of tomatoes last year when most of his help left.

Jim Dickie of Toronto, Canada Manpower agricultural programs co-ordinator for Ontario, agrees that local labor is a problem this year.

He says about 15,000 workers from Trinidad, Barbados and Jamaica work in the Florida sugar cane crop and these same workers are available for the Ontario crops.

Last year, only 1,271 workers were brought in under the program, but Mr. Dickie expects there will be about 3,000 this year.

But growers are reluctant to tap the Caribbean labor because they must pay a $280 return air fare.

To escape costly transportation costs, growers would like to tap the Mexican and Portuguese markets.

Mr. Dickie says the major problem associated with "off-shore" help is the policing to make sure all the workers leave the country after the harvest.

"There have been many people who came to Canada over the last few years and then stayed. We are still trying to find some of these people."

Al Dingemans, Windsor area Manpower manager, has assured the growers they will be able to get work visas for the foreign help only after all sources of Canadian help have been exhausted.

He concedes, however, that by September the labor supply may be exhausted and growers will be granted permits to bring in Mexican or Portuguese help.

MORE NEEDED

In addition to the tomato harvest, tobacco growers this year will need about 36,000 persons, an increase of 6,000 over last year.

John Cervini, a Leamington area farmer, says he has replaced about 100 acres of vegetable crops with wheat and similar crops that don't require the same amount of labor.

And Mr. Toews says until the growers' perennial labor shortage problem is solved, there will not be an appreciable increase in production.

"If the consumer thinks prices are high now, wait until about two years when prices will double again," he says.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Blood count and the stomach

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you tell me why, after most of the stomach is removed, the blood will not stay built up and one gets very little food value out of what is eaten.

The first few years after most of my stomach was removed, because of a duodenal ulcer, a vitamin tablet was taken every day, and a B-12 shot once, and sometimes twice a month. But, within a year blood transfusions were necessary. Now I take another vitamin which includes iron and liver plus B-12 and an iron shot once a week. So far the blood count is staying up. I eat three regular meals a day plus small meals in between and at bedtime, but am unable to gain much weight. Have you heard of this before? I sure have not.

Dear Reader — This sometimes happens after such surgery. There are two problems involved. The lining of the stomach produces a substance called "intrinsic factor" which is necessary for the absorption of B-12. As long as your stomach is working properly and there is some acid and intrinsic factor formed, you will absorb the sources of B-12 in your diet, and in turn, this will help the blood-forming organs to produce the proper amount of red blood cells.

If the stomach fails to produce intrinsic factor, then your ability to absorb B-12 and vital substances important to blood formation disappears. This may result in pernicious anemia. Giving liver shots as you described provides these substances directly to the body, thereby avoiding the problem of not being absorbed from the digestive tract. Following the surgery you are either not producing enough intrinsic factor, or you have poor intestinal absorption, which causes you to be susceptible to anemia. This is a form of pernicious anemia occurring as a complication of your surgery, and this fits with the type of treatment that you are getting.

The other problems you are describing are related to "dumping syndrome." Your small stomach is not able to store food. One of the functions of the stomach is to be a large food reservoir to store the large volume of food we eat. A small amount is then passed progressively into the small intestine. In the total absence of the stomach, or if your stomach is very small, the food you eat is rapidly "dumped" into the small intestine. This overloads the small intestine's capacity, and causes it to move the food along too rapidly.

All important digestion and absorption of food material occurs in the small intestine. When it moves through too rapidly this interferes with absorption of the food material, and you don't get the full benefit from the calories, vitamins, and nutrients in your diet. One treatment for this problem is to have multiple small meals. In the course of time, the stomach often enlarges, and the condition is partially relieved.

The small meals that you eat should avoid large amounts of starches and sweets. With your type of problem — which is entirely different from people with normal digestive functions — you need to concentrate on a diet that has a higher portion of its food from protein and fat and less from carbohydrate. This does not mean, however, that you should eliminate carbohydrates entirely.

Approximately 90 children attended the party. Music was furnished by Ed Stiles' Orchestra. It was a pleasant sight to see the smiling faces of these children throughout the evening, especially during the Wheelchair Quadrille.

The counsellors seemed to take a genuine interest in their charges. They had their share of the fun. Ice cream and chocolate bars were furnished by the lodges.

Mr. Carman C. Bradley, director of the camp, thanked the lodges for their hospitality with a special word of thanks to Brother Melville McHarg for his work in organizing this event. The singing of O Canada brought the pleasant evening to a close.

COWANSVILLE — Members of Cowansville and Stanbridge East Branches held a joint picnic on the grounds of The Missisquoi County Museum, Stanbridge East, on August 7.

On our arrival at the Museum, they were welcomed by the Curator, Mrs. Ruby Moore, and Mrs. Tait, President of the Stanbridge East Branch. A tour of the Museum followed and much interest was shown in the various articles on display.

The group then gathered on the lawn and, prior to having lunch, Mrs. Tait asked that we observe a moment of silence in memory of the late Louis St. Laurent, Prime Minister of Canada — 1948 to 1958.

Following the lunch, the group walked a short distance to the Hodge Store, which is a part of the Museum, and which typifies the Country Store about which someone declared in the long ago, "Ask what you will and the chances are we have it."

The tour of the store brought to a close a very pleasant day which will long be remembered by the members of the two Women's Institutes.

Boy with terminal bone disease wants no sympathy from friends

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I coach a Little League baseball team here in Nashville. One 14-year-old boy, call him Johnny, was on my team for two years.

During the last season, Johnny's father was killed in a car accident and it fell to me to inform Johnny of the death.

Since then I've become Johnny's "big brother." I travel quite a bit and Johnny frequently accompanies me. He's been a guest in the homes of my friends and acquaintances. Because he is so likeable he has endeared himself to many of these professional people.

We recently learned that Johnny has a terminal bone disease and will probably not live to see another winter. We want to do everything we can to make him happy. Johnny wants to revisit some of the places we've been and see our mutual friends again.

How can I tell those we will visit of Johnny's condition without provoking an over-response? We want everything to be as normal as possible. Johnny knows and he doesn't want any sympathy. How should I handle it? Thank you — From Tennessee

Dear F.T.: I see no reason to say anything if one boy is will enough to travel he need not be treated as a sick child and no one has to know. And I might add, you sound like a beautiful guy.

Aspects of marriage. When sex is used as payment for favors and withheld as punishment, the marriage is pegged at the prostitution level. Tell your wife you want her to go with you for counseling or you will put up a wall of your own. Like legal.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a middle-aged woman who has been reading your column for many years. I don't like to criticize because I think you do a world of good, but your language is becoming unbelievably crude.

Actually it's not the things you say in your column that I take exception to, it's the headlines you write. For example, the one I am looking at now: "STINKY HUSBAND CAN BE CURED."

I find such language offensive and I'm registering a complaint. — Upstate New York Reader

Opening lead—♥7

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "One of the great advantages of the Jacoby transfer bid is that it makes it hard for the defenders when they have to play against a strong concealed hand with the trump length in dummy."

Jim: "This last is in addition to the fact that the opening lead is likely to help declarer."

Oswald: "North's two-diamond response was a Jacoby transfer and South dutifully bid two hearts. North was delighted to pass and East saw no reason to reopen."

Jim: "West certainly didn't have any sort of attractive lead. What did he open?"

Oswald: "He opened the seven of trumps. Dummy played low as did East and South was on lead with the jack. He led a club toward dummy. East's ace captured the queen and East led the seven of diamonds. South played the nine. West took the trick with the 10, cashed the ace and then decided to keep on with his original plan of trump leads. This was just what declarer wanted. He pulled the last trump; discarded dummy's last diamond and one spade on good clubs and conceded a spade to make one overtrick."

Jim: "A third diamond lead by West would have established a trump trick for East and held declarer to two for a reasonable score, instead of a top."

In Memoriam

BLISS — In sad and loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Wallace Bliss, who passed away a year ago, August 13, 1972.

A long and sad year since you left us. I am sad within my memory, lonely is my heart today. The one I loved so dearly, has forever been called away. I think of him in silence, no eyes can see me weep. Many silent tears are shed when others are asleep. A shadow rests upon my home, I miss his smiling face. Wherever I turn, wherever I go, I see his vacant place. God is good, he gives me strength to bear my heavy cross. He is the only one who knows how bitter is my loss.

Always remembered and sadly missed by

Obituary

RICHARD WAYNE CLARK of Mansonville
Ricky Clark died on Sunday, July 15, 1973, at the Orleans County Memorial Hospital, Newport, Vt. the same hospital in which he was born, on May 9, 1954. He died from fatal injuries which he received in a motorcycle accident near Newport Centre, Vt.

He was in his 20th year, the dearly beloved son of Rupert and Gilda Clark, and loving brother of Cynthia, James and Brenda.

He attended the Mansonville School for nine years and later the Massey-Vanier at Cowansville.

He worked at different jobs in Mansonville and was employed in Roxton in Waterloo during which time he resided with his aunt Alice. His last job which he found very interesting, was at the Space Research Corporation, Highwater, Que.

Ricky loved the outdoors and was very active in various sports such as swimming, softball, hockey, skiing, skidooing, motorcycling as well as hunting and fishing.

As a young boy he belonged to the Boy Scouts. His greatest joy was camping outdoors, even in the winter.

At school he received the silver pin for marksmanship in the Rifle Club.

He attended the United Church Sunday School for several years. Ricky had many hobbies, a few were playing guitar, making candles and doing various artistic works.

Because of his friendly manner towards everyone, Ricky had countless friends who will hold treasured memories of him always.

The funeral service was held on Wednesday, July 18 at 4:00 p.m., in the Mansonville United Church with Rev. Carl Gustafson officiating.

Two of his close friends played guitars and sang Morning Has Broken and the choir and congregation sang Just As I Am accompanied on the organ by Mr. David Bailey.

The funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends from Vermont, Ottawa, Ont., Montreal, Beebe, Waterloo, Warden, Acton Vale, Sutton, Knowlton, Bolton Centre, South Bolton and surrounding district.

The bearers, very close cousins of his, were Messrs Steve, Franky, David, Stanley and Roger Heath and Larry Anderson.

Interment was in the Mansonville Protestant Cemetery.

High flying Reds take aim on Dodgers

Surging Cincinnati Reds continue to pressure Los Angeles front-running Dodgers in the suddenly tight National League West.

When the Reds whipped St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 Sunday, it stretched Cincinnati's current winning streak to five straight and eight victories in the last nine games. Manager Sparky Anderson's crew has logged a 33-10 record since July 1, chopping 9 1/2 games off the Dodgers' once-awful West Division bulge.

The Los Angeles lead remained at 1 1/2 games over the streaking Reds Sunday as the Dodgers rallied to beat Philadelphia Phillies 2-1.

In other National League games Sunday, San Francisco Giants defeated New York Mets 4-1, Pittsburgh Pirates took Atlanta Braves 5-2, Houston Astros shaded Chicago Cubs 3-2, and Montreal Expos split a doubleheader with San Diego Padres, winning the first game 2-0 and dropping the second 4-3 in 10 innings.

Saturday the Reds beat St. Louis 7-5 in 10 innings, while in other games it was San Francisco over New York 8-7 in 13 innings, Philadelphia over Los Angeles 3-1, Houston over Chicago 6-4 and Atlanta over Pittsburgh 9-3. The Expos and Padres were idle.

In the first game of the Montreal-San Diego doubleheader Sunday, Expo rookie Steve Rogers allowed just four hits in eight innings and Mike Marshall nailed the victory down in the ninth. Bob Bailey tripped home one run and scored the other for the Expos.

In the nightcap, Clarence Gaston's pinch double tied the score for the Padres in the bottom of the ninth inning and then Dave Roberts reached Marshall for the game-winning homer in the 10th as San Diego earned the split.

The sparkplug for Cincinnati continues to be peppery Pete Rose, the National League's leading hitter. Rose upped his batting average to .345 with a pair of doubles that stretched his hitting streak to 14 games.

Rose's second double keyed a five-run second inning that carried the Reds past the struggling Cardinals. It was the seventh straight loss for St. Louis and chopped the Redbirds' NL East lead to three games over Montreal and Pittsburgh.

The Dodgers came from behind to beat Steve Carlton and the Phillies 2-1. Greg Luzinski's 19th homer of the season had accounted for the game's only run until the eighth inning. Then rookie catcher Joe Ferguson tagged a pinch homer, tying the score for Los Angeles.

In the ninth, the Dodgers pushed across the deciding run on consecutive singles by rookies Tom Paciorek, Steve Yeager and Dave Lopes.

TITO CARRIES GIANTS
 Tito Fuentes knocked in all of San Francisco's runs with a three-run homer and a double, leading the Giants to a 4-1 victory over New York. Ron Bryant throttled New York on six hits and became the National League's winningest pitcher with 17 victories against eight losses.

Bryant also started the Giants' winning rally when he walked with two out in the fifth inning.

John Milner doubled and Fuentes followed with his fifth homer of the season.

Stumbling Chicago dropped its eighth straight with Jimmy Wynn scoring Houston's winning run in the eighth inning. Wynn walked, raced to third on Cesar Cedeno's single and scored on an infield out.

Pittsburgh closed to within three games of first place in the NL East as Willie Stargell drove in two runs with a triple and a double, leading the Pirates to their 5-2 decision over Atlanta.

Stargell's two hits extended the slugger's batting streak to 12 games. Dave Johnson hit his 31st homer for the Braves.

Following PGA win
Only one man says
Jack isn't greatest

CLEVELAND (AP) — No matter what his rivals say, Jack Nicklaus remains unconvinced he's golf's greatest player ever.

"I don't know if Bobby Jones is better or I am," he said Sunday after cracking Jones' revered 43-year-old major title record of 13 victories.

"I do know he achieved his in shorter time," said the Golden Bear, whose final-round charge to a three-under-par 69 gave him a 277 total and a bulging four-shot decision over runnerup Bruce Crampton.

"At 33, I know I'm going to play a long time, and the only way to compare is when you're through."

PRaise FROM PROS
 Nicklaus's powering game crumbled his Canterbury Golf Club opponents and brought these testimonials:

Crampton: "It was a pleasure to be an eyewitness to history being made. He borders on the unbelievable. Here's a man in his early 30s who could do this so early and with such ease."

Tom Weiskopf: "Jack's the greatest player who ever played the game. There isn't a shot he can't make. He's the greatest ever because the calibre of play is so much better now. It's tougher to win."

Consider these accomplishments for a man just reaching pro golf's prime age:

—Four Masters, three PGA, three U.S. Open, two British Open, two U.S. Amateur.

—Just over $50,000 short of $2 million in official tour earnings since 1962.

—49 official tour victories, not counting his two British Opens.

—Five victories in 15 tour appearances this year including 13 times in the top ten and six in the first 11.

—$245,424 in 1973 earnings, second to Crampton's $270,841, with the $45,000 PGA first prize cheque.

BRUCE FINISHES STRONG
 Crampton, still void of a major American crown, finished at 281 with a final 70.

Mason Rudolph, one stroke behind Nicklaus with upstart Don Iverson through 54 holes, struggled to a 73. He shared third at 282 with J. C. Snead and Lanny Wadkins, both with 69s.

Iverson, playing in his first major tournament, was at 283 with Dan Sikes and Weiskopf.

George Knudson of Toronto, only Canadian in the tournament, finished with a 71 for a 295 total and $360.

Nicklaus had five bogeys and 11 birdies in 72 holes.

He put his rivals away with consecutive birdies on six and seven for a two-shot lead. His advantage never dwindled under that figure down the stretch.

HERE COME DA SLUGGER — Max Patkin, the clown-prince of baseball, will be appearing at the Amedee Roy stadium in Sherbrooke on Tuesday, August 21, when the Pirates play the Quebec Carnivals in an 8 p.m. game. Patkin is known far and wide for his antics and has performed in both Yankee and Shea stadia this year. His naturally funny appearance makes him a natural clown and the show promises to be a good one.

Athletes biggest winners at Canada Games

By GORDON GRANT
CP General Sports Editor
 BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — British Columbia won the overall championship and Saskatchewan the "most-improved" title Sunday when the Canada Summer Games closed.

But the feeling among Games organizers was that all athletes were big winners following the largest single athletic event ever held in Canada.

Jack Davis, federal minister of the environment, told a closing ceremonies crowd of more than 5,000 the Burnaby-New Westminster Games were "the greatest non-professional sport event in Canadian history."

Attendance at the 16 sports was 250,690, about what had been projected.

In the games, B.C. picked up 176 1/2 points to replace Ontario as champion. Ontario, which led the 1969 Summer Games in Halifax and the Winter Games of 1967 and 1971 in Quebec City and Saskatoon, finished with 170 1/2. Quebec was third with 152. Alberta fourth with 128. Then came Manitoba with 123 1/2, Nova Scotia with 118 1/2, Saskatchewan with 112, New Brunswick with 78, Newfoundland at 54, Prince Edward Island at 41, the Northwest Territories with 10 and the Yukon with seven.

Ontario picked up the most medals, 100, with B.C. a close second at 95. Quebec had 72, Alberta 30, Manitoba 19, Nova Scotia 16, Saskatchewan seven and New Brunswick four.

INDIVIDUALS STAR
 As at most major sporting events there were some outstanding individual performances.

Becky Smith, 14, of Edmonton and Stephen Pickell, 15, of Vancouver each earned five gold medals. Gail Amundred, 16, of dropped Three Rivers and Quebec beat West Haven twice, 6-5 and 1-0. The Reading-Pittsfield twinnbill was rained out when the downpour came with the score 4-4 in the ninth inning of the first game.

TWO-HITTER
 A masterful two-hitter by southpaw Steve Barr combined with an 11-hit attack gave Bristol Red Sox a 6-1 victory Sunday. Barr struck out eight and walked only two in picking up his seventh win.

He lost his shutout in the ninth inning when Terry Collins worked him for a leadoff walk, took second on a wild pitch and went to third on a bloop single by pinch hitter Mario Mendoza. Collins scored on Alfredo Zavala's ground out.

Barr walked Ron Mitchell in the first and then retired 12 batters in a row before Ken Ottawa and Michael Ker, 15, of Vancouver got four each.

Their performances were in the magnificent new olympic-size pool in New Westminster. The pool, which cost $1.2 million, is one of the benefits derived from the Games.

Jean Sparling, 18, of Vancouver was a triple gold winner in track. However, Dodge's performance in canoeing was perhaps the outstanding feat of the Games. She won her medals in less than four hours.

Another great feat was turned in by Phil Olsen, a 16-year-old from Vancouver, who threw the javelin 235 feet, two inches—four feet, four inches farther than it has been thrown by any other competitor of his age in the world. Janis Lusis of Russia set the mark more than 20 years ago.

"I was a little surprised at the throw, but ... I'd been throwing well in practice," said Olsen.

NEW-COMER WINS
 Another B.C. athlete, Mike Cullin, 17, of Victoria provided a shock in rowing, winning the single sculls despite having taken it up only last February.

In water polo—a crowd of 1,200 watched one game and officials said that was the largest single-game crowd in water polo history in Canada—Quebec took the gold medal with an upset over Alberta.

In a preliminary game, Alberta, Canadian champions, came from behind a 9-3 deficit to win 10-9 over Quebec.

DH does OK in AL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 If the American League has any promotional sense, it will designate every second Sunday in August Designated Hitter Day.

Sunday, Aug. 12 was the day fans were forced to recognize that the DH was not just another hitter.

—Boston's Orlando Cepeda went five-for-five with a home run and California's Frank Robinson went three-for-four with two homers in the Red Sox' 14-8 victory over the Angels.

—Oakland's Deron Johnson scored three runs and belted a homer while New York's Jim Ray Hart smacked three hits, including a homer and triple for three RBI in the A's 13-12 squeaker over the Yankees.

—Detroit's Gates Brown belted a two-run homer in the Tigers' 6-2 triumph over Chicago White Sox.

—Baltimore's Tommy Davis had two hits, including a decisive two-run triple, in the Orioles' 10-6 victory over Kansas City Royals.

—Cleveland's Charlie Spikes laced two singles, scored two runs and knocked in another in the Indians' 7-6 victory over Texas Rangers in 11 innings.

In Sunday's other contest Milwaukee Brewers edged Minnesota Twins 10-9 to complete a weekend swap. They had beaten the Twins 7-6 Saturday, while in the rest of the league it was Cleveland 5 Texas 2, Detroit 4 Chicago 2, Kansas City 9 Baltimore 4, Oakland 7 New York 3, Boston 2 California 1.

Cepeda has hit in 16 consecutive games for Boston, and his five-hit performance Sunday raised his average to .302. But the more impressive figure is that he is 17-for-31 with men on base.

Frank Robinson smashed two homers and was involved in a beanball war that empties both benches twice late in the game.

In the bottom of the eighth, both benches spilled on to the field after Angels' reliever Dave Sellis threw two pitches behind Tommy Harper and drew an automatic $50 fine.

Then in the ninth, Bob Bolin brushed back Robinson, who had harsh words with Boston catcher Fisk and both benches emptied again. After the incident, Robinson cracked his second homer of the game and 22nd of the season.

Doucet charges into 2nd

By ROB MATTHEWS
 CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — Bob Pansiuik says he has a goal to make at least $1,000 a week on the Canadian professional golf tour.

The Windsor, Ont., pro exceeded that goal for last week when he won the Newfoundland Open golf championship Saturday at the Blomidun Country Club course here. He collected first prize of $1,200 for his 54-hole score of 203, seven under par.

Pansiuik, a cool 32-year-old who aided amateurs here with his long drives, said he didn't plan to celebrate his first victory on the tour.

"I'm going to deposit it (the $1,200) along with this," he said, showing a $1,425 cheque he received for finishing second in last week's Atlantic Open. He wasn't going home either.

"No sir, I'm packing my clubs for Quebec City. I'll get in a couple of practice rounds."

The 1973 Quebec Open begins in Quebec City Friday.

Pansiuik finished the tournament three strokes ahead of Duke Doucet, a Victoria, B.C., pro who fired a closing round 66. Doucet, who won $900, was in fifth place starting Saturday's final round but charged into contention with his four-under-par effort while Pansiuik, who began the day five strokes in the lead, took a 74.

PACE SLACKENS
 Bill Thompson of Toronto, who set a course record in the opening round Thursday with a 63, shared third spot with Tom Nettles of San Diego, Calif. Both had 208 totals and won $550 apiece.

Nettles had been holding down second place after two rounds but shot a two-over-par 72 Saturday after a pair of 68s.

Gary Pithford of Toronto was the only other golfer to better par on the three rounds. He wound up at 209, one under, and collected $450 from the $8,000 purse.
