FREE STEAM COAL LATEST DEMAND MADE

From a Staff Correspondent.

Washington, D.C., January 14.—Another session between the American and Canadian reciprocity treaty-makers is taking place to-day, thus completing a full week of negotiations. The general understanding upon which the negotiations were started, and a general idea of the extent of what would be asked and expected, have already been made known, but the details of what has transpired since the first general policy was decided on the negotiators are keeping very much to themselves.

That the representatives of the two countries, with their respective staffs of experts, are working hard over masses of statistics as to the foreign trade of the two countries is about all the direct information that can be got. It would also seem that they are making substantial progress in drawing up a tentative agreement to be submitted to the two governments for approval or disapproval.

That, at any rate, is the distinct impression gained by those who are close to President Taft, who, by the way, is keeping himself in direct touch with the proceedings day by day. The president still talks in a highly cheerful manner about the benefits of the reciprocity. Mr. Fielding looks wise and says, "We are still going ahead," while Secretary of State Knox came out of yesterday afternoon's conference with a happy expression on his face and the remark, "We are getting along nicely."

Nobody has the slightest idea when the negotiations are likely to be finished. Inasmuch as the treaty between Canada and France took three solid months to negotiate, it would look as though the still more important question of a commercial treaty with the United States will take a considerable time yet. It is known that President Taft is anxious to have the matter decided upon by the present administration, and that may have the effect of hurrying up the proceedings.

FREE STEAM COAL TALKED ABOUT NOW.

Although, as a result of the deputations from Canadian lumber interests who have waited upon Mr. Fielding, the general impression here is that there will be nothing done to change the present situation as to pulp and pulpwood, it is still a matter that is earnestly desired, for there is no doubt that certain strong interests in the States are anxious to get in free raw material for paper making.

It now develops that Ontario interests have been making strong representations with a view to having free steam coal from the United States, and this may help Mr. Fielding in the proposal made from the United States that Nova Scotia, in return for the competition that would be afforded by free American coal, should have her fish admitted to the American market.

That free coal would be highly acceptable to a large body of opinion in Ontario is admitted, and the question Mr. Fielding has to decide in his mind is whether Nova Scotia would be more pleased at finding a great market for her vast fishery products than she would be vexed by competition on equal terms with American coal.

At present, it is agreed, it is not commercially practicable to carry Nova Scotia coal farther west than Montreal. Free steam coal from Pennsylvania for Ontario would, therefore, meet a real public need. At any rate, that is the argument that certain representatives have endeavored to impress on Mr. Fielding.

The Gloucester fishermen have not been idle, but have been at their representatives with a view to placing protests in the proper quarter against Canadian fish being imported free, but it is said the Gloucester interests do not weigh so heavily with the political forces as they did some years ago before the price of fish products had increased to the present rates.

GO TO CORONATION ON H.M.S. NIOBE

Canadian Contingent to London in June May Journey on War Vessel.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, January 14.—Participation by members of the Canadian Parliament in the Coronation celebration of King George V. is being talked of here, and the invitation extended by a committee of the British House last year is expected to be repeated by the newly elected House.

When an invitation is received, Sir Wilfrid has stated, it will be turned over to the House for action. This time it is believed that in place of a select committee of each side, the whole House may be invited. In that event, however, probably not more than have half could go.

The country would be expected to provide transportation, and the members are saying that as the regular lines will be booked heavily, a proposal may be made to carry the contingent on the H. M. C. S. Niobe. This, it is contended, would not only add dignity to the participation, but also tend to impress upon the people of Great Britain the fact that Canada has undertaken seriously her naval obligation to the Mother Country.

Special to The Montreal Star.

London, January 14.—Before his departure for Wales yesterday, Mr. Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, saw Mr. T. Owen, editor of the Welsh newspaper, "The Druid," published at Scranton. Mr. Owen presented the Chancellor a petition with many names, inviting him to attend one of the great Welsh gatherings in America in the present year.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer regretfully expressed his inability to accept the invitation, pointing out that he had two Budgets to prepare. He was anxious, however, to go to America to meet his fellow-countrymen, and when a relaxation of his duties enabled him to do this he would, he declared, do his best to accede to their request.

BRUTAL MURDER OF AGED FARMER BY ROBBER BAND

Berlin, Ont., January 14.—A terrible crime was revealed at the village of Wellesley, near here, yesterday, when the dead body of an aged Polish-Canadian farmer named Franz Lovinski, was discovered by neighbors bound by wire to a post outside the dead man's own house.

Lovinski, a man of about 70 years, had his farm on the second concession west of the village of Wellesley, in North Waterloo, twelve miles from here. His home was an old log house, where he had lived entirely alone since the death of his wife six years ago. There are no children.

The unfortunate man's head was battered to such an extent as to be unrecognizable. About fifty yards away from the house was found a hammer covered with blood, with which the deed had apparently been committed.

The supposition is that the murderers—for there was apparently more than one—gained entrance to the house through the back door. They went upstairs to Lovinski's room, and there are evidences of a fierce struggle. Lovinski, it is known, was in the habit of wearing his clothing while sleeping.

A peculiar circumstance is the discovery in the house of a bottle containing whiskey and a liberal amount of Paris green mixed in it. The officers' theory concerning this is that Lovinski's visitors had made an effort to get him to drink some of the poisoned liquor.

Robbery was the supposed motive for the crime.

Liverpool to New York by Automobile

IT is some 2,800 miles from Liverpool to New York. About the same distance as from Halifax to Vancouver.

To run 2,800 miles at an average speed of 48 miles an hour is a feat. To run THREE TIMES that distance, and then four hundred miles more is a performance equalled by but one engine in the world.

This is the record of the Knight Sliding Valve Motor—a record of 8830 miles.

In the test given it by the Royal Automobile Club (the highest authority in Europe) a 22 horse-power Knight Motor ran as far as from Liverpool to New York, back to Liverpool, back again to New York, and four hundred miles on the second return journey, maintaining an average speed of forty-eight miles.

Every-day records come and go, but the KNIGHT ENGINE RECORD STANDS.

Despite the prestige gained by this record, no engine builder has attempted to put his product to a similar test.

The Russell car owns the exclusive Canadian rights to the Knight Motor. The claims for this motor are greater power, greater reliability, greater smoothness and silence in operation, greater economy.

Our Catalogue gives full information. Our three leading models are equipped with Knight Motor. Do not purchase a car without satisfying yourself regarding this really wonderful invention.

LONG SAULT HEARING IS AT AN END

Points Out Many Dangers to Be Incurred in Handing Over St. Lawrence to Aluminum Trust.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Washington, D.C., January 14.—A great speech for the remonstrants against the bill for granting power to dam the St. Lawrence and the Long Sault Rapids was made yesterday afternoon by their counsel, Charles E. Littlefield, of New York, and it certainly seemed to make considerable impression on the members of the Harbors and Rivers Committee of the House of Representatives.

He warned the committee of the tremendous issues involved in this project, and drew attention to the great responsibility resting on them to protect the public interests, to the complexity of the issues owing to their international aspect; to the grotesque inadequacy, as he termed it, of the compensation to be paid to the State of New York; to the natural beauties which the project would destroy; to the way in which navigation would be impeded and to the vast potentialities for destruction that would be created by interfering with the ice conditions of the river.

Project of Vast Character.

"Have you got any adequate conception?" he said, "of the vast character of this project. Here is a proposition to give to one corporation for all time at least 500,000 horse-power, at low water, and much more at high water—all the power in fact, that can be developed in the St. Lawrence River. This is the largest industrial project ever suggested since civilization began. There is nothing in this country even comparable to it. In magnificence and in importance, it transcends any single question which has ever been submitted to this country."

No Perpetual Rights.

Passing from the gravity of the issue and the responsibility it imposed upon the committee in passing upon the bill, he took up the consideration of the act passed by the State of New York conferring powers for development on the company, so far as that State is concerned. He maintained that the Legislature had not only conferred these rights of monopoly in the water powers for all time, but had done so without requiring the company to lift a finger to improve navigation.

"And I say," he remarked, "that the title of this act is deceptive and misleading in that it purposes to be an act for the improvement of navigation. It is nothing of the kind, for there is the only provision in the act in regard to navigation:

"'Upon condition that the rights hereby granted shall never be so used as to impair or obstruct navigation, but such navigation to be preserved in as good condition as, if not better than, the same is at present.'

"That," said Mr. Littlefield, "means that the works might be an obstruction to any better navigation than at present—to any future improvement—and that the promoters need do not a single thing to improve navigation.

Claims for Damages.

He drew attention to the immense claims for damages which might be made if the State wished at any time to remove these dams, pointing out that there was a clause in the Bill to the effect that if the rights granted were at any time revoked by Congress the United States would pay the owners of "any dam and any pertinent works built under the authority of the act, as full compensation therefor, the reasonable value, exclusive of the value of the franchise granted." Forty millions were to be put into the dams alone; how much more might be put into "pertinent works"?

Compliments Mr. Kennedy.

Passing to the International objections to the scheme, Mr. Littlefield paid a well deserved compliment to Mr. John Kennedy, the consulting engineer of the Montreal Harbor Commissioners.

"I was more impressed by his statement before the Committee," said Mr. Littlefield, "than by any other witness I have ever heard. I congratulate our sister country on being able to send such a distinguished representative. A man like him makes us feel proud to belong to a race that can produce men of his intellectual character and ability."

The point had been raised, Mr. Littlefield said, as to whether without Canada's consent, even the South Sault dam could be built, which dam would be wholly in American territory.

"I believe that legally that can be done," he said, "but not if we have regard to international morals and I submit that moral compulsion is stronger than legal exactitude. Here are a people of the same blood as us, the same language and the same laws, and I am sure that in this high state of christian civilization they will be always treated by us with the same consideration as our own citizens."

Destruction of Traffic.

The fact that the project would destroy the traffic of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company was next enlarged upon. Mr. Littlefield asking why 60,000 people, 85 per cent of whom were Americans, who travelled down these rapids every year, should be deprived of that pleasure for the sake of handing over the river to the Aluminum Trust of America. Meat and drinks and clothes were not everything in life; the vacations of the people were one thing that make life worth living.

Commenting on what he called the grotesque method of compensation to the State for water rights, he protested against the compensation being arbitrarily fixed at such a low figure when the scheme was so incohate and nebulous that the engineers behind the project could not even say how much it would cost to produce the power, or at what price they could sell it.

Danger of Ice Blockade.

Finally, Mr. Littlefield drew attention to the danger of creating eight or ten miles of slack water where ice could form, and where ice could be held back. This, he said, might result in some vast jam that no human power could control and that would cause great damage to property and great loss of life.

Mr. Malby, summing up the case for the Long Sault Development Company, went into the long legal argument to maintain his declaration that the State of New York had a right to grant these water powers and that the United States possessed no property, and no property rights in the Long Sault Rapids.

The Long Sault Development Company were now the riparian owners and the owners of the land under this water so far as was necessary for developing the water-powers, and had the absolute right to use the surplus water for the purpose of developing power. It had bought this right, and had paid for it, and he added, "we are wondering by what authority, human or Divine, people appear before this committee and tell us to get off from it. We own it subject only to the legitimate right of Congress to say how we shall go on and improve the property. That is the only question we have here to-day."

Claims Ownership.

He went on to question the right of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company to run their boats down the Long Sault Rapids for ever and hold up the greater benefits that would be caused to commerce by improvements in this section.

"Between these rapids," he said, "and I decline to submit to the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company any longer preventing us from making the best use of these water powers for our internal development."

He added that hundreds of thousands of people would earn their daily bread by reason of the development of this water power, and many cities would spring up in that beautiful valley. That would be a much more pleasing sight to him than to see the water rolling on uselessly as it had done for centuries, with the people of the United States giving it no more attention than the dusky Indian did when he paddled upon it in his canoe.

Hardly a soul in the United States had raised a voice against the passing of this bill, and he hoped the committee would pass it.

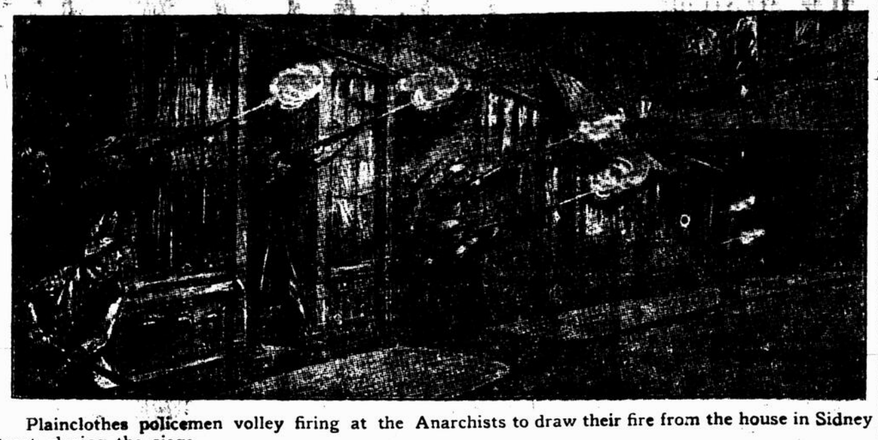

"Clothe it," he added, "with as many provisions and conditions for the preservation of navigation as you like, and we will be satisfied."

Leighton McCarthy, of Toronto, who also appeared for the company, briefly addressed the committee, his argument being to the effect that all the Canadian opposition to the scheme had been stirred up solely by the agitation of Mr. Allison as a rival producer of power. He added that he hoped Canada would join with the United States in permitting one of the most gigantic developments in the world had ever seen.

This concluded the hearing.

The bill was then referred to a subcommittee under the chairmanship of Mr. Young, for report. It was stated that the sub-committee would report to the full committee as early as possible, Mr. Malby remarking that he was anxious for the bill to be dealt with by the present Congress.

LUMBERMEN ASK FOR DOYLE SCALE

Provincial Log Scale Said to Be Unsatisfactory East of Cascades.

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 14.—President Lockman of the Mountain Lumberman's Association of the Kootenays accompanied by Mr. F. Anstie, secretary of that influential organization, and Manager McCormack of the large mills at Golden, interviewed the provincial executive as delegates from the Mountain Lumbermen's Association with respect to the log scale to be used in connection with the prosecution of the timber industry to the east of the Cascades.

The well known Doyle scale is at present in vogue, and has been for some time past. In 1897, it will be remembered, legislation was adopted conferring upon the government power to adopt a uniform scale for British Columbia, and this scale was introduced in the territory east of the Cascades by an order in council passed in January, 1908. It is now held by the lumbermen that, by reason of the smaller timber growth to the east of the Cascades, this scale is not fairly applicable, as it is with respect to the heavier timber of the sea coast, and the present request of the lumbermen is in effect that the provincial scale be not enforced, and that authority be given them to continue the use of the Doyle scale.

FIGHTING SNOW ON THE RAILWAYS

Southern and Western Pacific Railways Have Gigantic Task Ahead.

Sacramento, Calif., January 14.—With hundreds of men battling with the snow-capped passages of the Sierras in an effort to keep the railroad lines clear and bring relief to the stalled overland passenger and mail trains, all the gigantic resources of the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific Railroad companies are being brought to bear in fighting the worst snowstorm in the mountain districts in the last twenty years.

Last night eleven east and westbound trains were moving on the Southern Pacific tracks through the Sierras and the snowsheds, which were damaged by the heavy fall of snow the last two days, had been temporarily repaired.

Realizing the impossibility of forcing a passage through snow-drifts of six and eight feet deep, the Western Pacific Railroad Officials last night ordered its stalled eastbound overland trains in Belden and Greville to return to San Francisco and annulled the overland in San Francisco which was ready to depart for the East.

ONTARIO HAS BALANCE.

Government Will Ask $1,500,000 for Railway to Porcupine.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Toronto, January 14. — Hon. A. J. Mathison, Provincial Treasurer, it is intimated will be able to announce a balance when he makes his Budget speech in the Legislature, notwithstanding the fact that there have been some very heavy expenditures during the past year.

The Government, it is further stated, intend to ask the Legislature for another loan for the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, totalling about a million and a half, to be applied partly to the construction of the branch line into the Porcupine.

Churchill Sues for Libel.

London, January 14.—The unusual feature of a political slander suit likely to enliven the coming session of Parliament, for Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for Home Affairs, has issued a writ claiming damages for defamation of character against a Unionist orator, T. B. Spencer. The alleged slander was uttered in speeches made by Mr. Spencer in Devonshire during the recent election campaign.

Fifty Thousand for Farmers' Bank.

Toronto, January 14.—A new asset for the Farmers Bank has come to light in two guarantee bonds of $25,000 each, given to the bank by the United States Fidelity Company and Lloyds, of London, England, as a pledge of Traver's honesty. This sum will go into the general fund, which will be applied to meet the liabilities.

DEATH AT ALMONTE.

Mrs. P. C. McGregor Died After Long Illness.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Almonte, Ont., January 14.—After an illness extending over some months, Mrs. (Dr.) P. C. McGregor passed away yesterday at her home on Brookdale avenue. Deceased, whose maiden name was Kate F. McNabb, has lived in Almonte the greater part of her life. She was in her sixty-sixth year. Mrs. McGregor is survived by her husband, P. C. McGregor, LL.D., registrar of the North Riding of the County of Lanark, and two daughters, Miss Annie and Miss Grace. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

MUCH WHITE PINE CUT.

Big Increase Over Last Year on Ontario Crown Lands.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Toronto, January 14.—The cut of white pine on Ontario Crown Lands, during the present winter is placed at 640,000,000 feet board measure, an increase of 35,000,000 feet over the figures for the winter of 1909-1910. The cut of other timber is estimated in round figures at 100,000,000 feet, an increase of 5,000,000.

A decrease of 38,000 cords in the pulpwood cut is looked for. The cut being estimated at 100,000 cords.

Cap Rouge Ice Bridge Broken.

Quebec, January 14.—The ice bridge which formed two days ago, at Cap Rouge, has been completely broken up by the Dominion ice-breaker Montcalm, and the river is again clear of obstruction as far as Three Rivers, the bridge having disappeared and being replaced by floating ice. From Three Rivers to Montreal, however, there is a solid bridge.

BIG STEEL PLANT WILL BE ERECTED NEAR VANCOUVER

Western Steel Corporation Buys Site and Will Build Steel City.

Vancouver, B.C., January 14. Three hundred acres of land on the south side of the Fraser River directly opposite Annacis Island, have just been secured by the Canadian-incorporated subsidiary company to the Western Steel Corporation as a site for a steel plant. Contemplated in the building up of a great steel city on this property are the erection of huge blast furnaces and the expenditure of close on $2,000,000 in the construction of buildings and wharves and the installation of modern machinery. In order to provide room for a large industrial city tributary to the steel works, private capitalists connected with the company have taken options on over 1,500 acres of adjoining property, and much of this is now being purchased outright.

The location of the site, which possesses over 1,700 feet of waterfrontage along the Fraser River with excellent approaches both by land and water, has already been approved of by Mr. James A. Moore, president of the Western Steel Corporation, now operating a steel plant at Irondale, Wash.

Among the Vancouver men interested in the proposition are Messrs. R. P. McLennan, G. M. Gibbs, and S. G. Faulkner, all directors of the Canadian subsidiary company. Mr. McLennan confirmed the report that the purchase of 300 acres for a steel plant site had been approved by Mr. Moore. He announced that the latter would be in the city in a short time and preparations would then be made for an active start on construction with a view of having the plant in operation at the earliest possible time.

Great Future Claimed.

In view of the presence of one railway — a Great Northern branch to Ladner, and the anticipated entrance of two more, together with the excellent drainage possessed by the site and the deep water facilities along the Fraser River at that point with no bridges between it and the open sea a great future is prophesied for the district. In fact, the directors claim a population for the new city of 50,000 in five years.

CRUEL AUNT GOES TO PRISON TWO YEARS

Special to The Montreal Star.

Medicine Hat, Alb., January 14—Mrs. Erickson, the woman whose trial has been progressing at intervals for the last few days, on a charge of assaulting her little niece, confessed in the court that she had beaten the tiny six-year-old girl with a knotted rope.

She was sentenced to two years' imprisonment. It is not thought that the little one will ever recover her reason, owing to the brutal treatment to which she was subjected.

WANT PATRIOTIC SONG.

Daughters of Empire Protest Against Western Ruling.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Hamilton, Ont., January 14.—St. Hilda's Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire has passed a strong resolution calling on assistant Chapters to join with it in taking strenuous steps to cause the School Boards and Provincial Government concerned to order the resumption of the singing and reciting of British patriotic songs in all western schools where United States citizens lately migrated into Canada had objected to the singing and reciting of such songs.

HAMILTON MAN KILLED.

James Dow Struck by Street Car in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., January 14.—James Dow, 40 years old, of Hamilton, Ont., who had come to Detroit to visit friends, was struck by a rapidly moving street car last night and so seriously injured that he died in St. Mary's Hospital a few hours afterwards.

Dow started to cross Trumbull Avenue, but seeing the car approaching hesitated, and then attempted to cross when the car was but half a dozen feet away.

Says Unionist Revolt Supressed.

London, January 14.—According to reliable reports, Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour has succeeded in supressing a revolt in a section of the Unionist party, of which he is the leader, against his adoption of the referendum as apermanent plank in the Unionist policy. It is understood that Mr. Balfour threatened to resign the leadership of the party unless this course was approved, whereupon the discontented members yielded. Meantime, however, small committees have been appointed to investigate the electoral organ of the Unionist party in order to discover the remediable defects in it.

Toronto Reformers Divided.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Toronto, January 14. — The annual meeting of the Toronto Reform Association held last night was a lively affair. The doors were shut at 7.30, and fully 150 prominent Liberals, ex-Mayor Joseph Oliver and Controller Spence among them, vainly clamored for admittance. The attempt of the "old guard," headed by Mr. H. H. Dewart, K. C., to regain control of affairs failed, last year's officers being re-elected. President F. C. Means K. C. was among them.

Printing Bureau Inquiry Tuesday.

The Visiting Governors to the Montreal General Hospital for next week are Messrs. Samuel Hind, J. E. Wilder, C. C. McIntyre, Allan K. Starke.

CHAS. H. HYDE,
New York's missing chamberlain.

ABSENT NEW YORK CHAMBERLAIN FOUND

New York, January 14.—The World publishes a very interesting story of the discovery of the missing New York chamberlain, Charles H. Hyde, at Hotel Ormond, Floridora. The report states that Hyde was seen and recognized by a correspondent who knows him well. Yet in the face of the recognition the Chamberlain dived below deck and caused his father-in-law and even his wife, who has joined him, to persist in denying that he was aboard.

Why he is acting like a fugitive from justice remains as much of a mystery as ever, even though his whereabouts has been established.

His wife, in a semi-hysterical condition, seemed on the point of being unable to continue the deception much longer when Mr. Wiswell, her father, insisted that she go below, too.

Hyde's big houseboat lies at the confluence of the Tomoka River and Smith's Creek, which, uniting, form the Halifax River, flowing south. Into this basin enters the St. Augustine-Daytona Canal, down which Hyde and his party came from the former town, leaving there yesterday shortly before noon.

Mr. Hyde is wanted by the courts of New York in connection with what is termed the biggest steal in the history of the finances of the metropolis. Mayor Gaynor has been asked to name a man to replace him.

GALA DAY AT LINDSAY.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Lindsay, Ont., January 14. — The opening of the new Nurses' Home of the Ross Memorial Hospital, another gift to the town from Mr. James Ross, of Montreal, was celebrated as a great event. The board of governors met Mr. and Mrs. James Ross and the visitors accompanying them, at the hospital, when control of the Nurses' Home was vested in the board by Mr. Ross. Mr. John D. Flavelle, chairman, presented Mrs. Ross with a gold key, and Mr. Ross formally unlocked the door for the staff of nurses. A very representative gathering of townspeople assembled in the Academy of Music in the afternoon for the purpose of giving public expression of thanks to the generous donor for his magnificent gift.

A joint address from the town and County and Board of Governors was presented to Mr. Ross, to which that gentleman made a very modest reply.

Mr. J. K. L. Ross also replied in a very happy vein to sentiments expressed in the address.

The Annie Ross Nurses' Home is a fine structure, west and slightly to the rear of the hospital, and is of the same style of architecture as the latter building. Eight years ago Mr. Ross presented the splendid hospital which bears his name. Now he has presented a nurses' home which for neatness of design and architectural beauty is surpassed by very few similar institutions in the Dominion.

CALGARY GETS CASH.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Calgary, Alberta, January 14.—Superintendent Macauley, of the Street Railway, reports to the city council that the company, after paying for interest, depreciation, and sinking fund, yielded to the city 13 per cent. The total profit made, after paying everything, was $66,700. The railway gave $22,500 to the city funds.

Against Three-fifths Clause.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Toronto, January 14.—The executive committee of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance, in its annual meeting here yesterday, decided to issue a manifesto setting before the people of the Province clearly and definitely the protestations of the Alliance regarding the three-fifths requirement of Local Option Act, and the actual affect this clause is having upon the progress of temperance reform.

This will pave the way to the fight for local option which the Alliance intends to wage in many municipalities next year. A publicity department for the Alliance will be established shortly.

Panaman General is Dead.

Panama, January 14.—General Beenaventura Correoso, who figured conspicuously in the political events of the republic during the Colombian regimes, is dead here.

Homage.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star:

Sir,—I think Mr. Legge in his "Empress Eugene" must have mis-quoted the expression of the late King Edward VII. when Prince of Wales on the occasion of his paying a visit of condolence after the death of the Emperor Napoleon III. The sentence is: "I only want the Empress to know that I have come in the Queen's name to present my homage."

This homage as between the Empress and the Queen never existed, and how the word came to be used I am at a loss to understand.

Homage is the service or show of respect due from a knight or vassal to his lord in the feudal times. Since the abolition of tenures in England, the word has no substantial legal meaning, except in a limited sense as to copyholds, to denote the kind of acknowledgment made by a tenant to the lord of the manor. These vary very much, and it would be useless to instance them. It will be seen that there canot be any homage in Canada, except perhaps in the old French seigniories, and possibly the rentals paid cover everything.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir—Cannot the voice of the Canadian people be heard on the subject before any treaty for reciprocity, however small, is entered into with the United States?

A principle is involved in it which cuts at the root, not only of our present position in the Empire, but at the hope which lies before us of building up an independent national life in the future. That the government should act upon any question involving issues so momentous without first appealing to the country is preposterous. Surely no party in power has, by its mere majority in the house, the right to inaugurate a policy so radically opposed to our course of action during these latter years, without asking the electorate for a vote on the subject.

Already the renewal of the arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the States is endangered by the fact that a reciprocity treaty between Canada and the latter Country might produce complications. What we have we hold, and what we need, or shall need, we must, ourselves produce. If in this time of our youth we begin to lean on other peoples' crutches we shall never be able to walk in our own strength.

To open the door of reciprocity with the States is to open the way to political treachery, and to weaken that general confidence in the Stability of our national policy on which alone the future Nationhood and greatness of Canada are based. This is a time for Canadians to speak and to speak distinctly. The question of reciprocity must be banished from the arena of practical politics.

FREDERICK GEORGE SCOTT.

A Reply to Mr. Grimsdale.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star:

Sir,—I have read with interest the letter of your correspondent, James Grimsdale, published in The Star of January 9, and while agreeing with the major portion of his letter re the Englishman's opportunity in Canada, beg to take exception to his stand on the tariff question, and says:

"If your leading politicians keep on the straight road of what is best for Canada, let the Old Country fight her own battles of tariff reform."

I fail to see the connection between the two. What would Mr. Grimsdale advise us to do in regard to British tariff battles should our politicians not do their part on the straight road he refers to? In other words, what connection has Britain's tariff question with our Government's acting for Canada's best interests? To a certain extent we are in a similar position to the Irishman who, after listening to varied complaints about the recent weather, put the question: "Do you know what we do in Ireland when it rains?" And on receiving a negative answer replied, "We just let it rain." That is all that we, as Canadians, could do with regard to Britain's tariff battles whether our politicians keep on the aforesaid straight road or not. As an Imperialist, however, I condemn Mr. Grimsdale, the Englishman, for his encouraging the "Let it rain" attitude, and am of the opinion that the question of tariff reform in Britain is a question for the Empire, affecting as it does colonial development and imperial unity.

I infer from this remark, "what is good for England would not do here," that he considers free trade good for England, but is he blind to the fact that under free trade British Governments have fallen to a lower figure than ever before; or to the fact that the cost of living in Great Britain at the present time has attained a higher figure than at any other time in her history? Does he not perceive that Great Britain's adoption of protection with colonial preference would conduce both to colonial development and imperial unity, inasmuch as if the colonies could not supply all of Britain's need, they would speedily place themselves in the position to do so by the establishment and encouragement of the requisite industries? These questions may provide your correspondent with food for reflection.

Need of Better Parcels Post.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star:

Sir,—I have read with interest your recent articles on the decision of the Railway Commission on express rates. I suggest that now would be a good time to urge on the Government the great need of a better parcels post. The limit of weight might be increased to, say, ten lbs. to begin with, and, as the service became better established, this could be raised.

I understand that the question of reducing the postal rate on parcels was introduced in Parliament some few years ago, but so much objection was made by the small merchants that the question was postponed. These merchants claimed that if the rate were reduced, the large mail order houses in Montreal and Toronto would ruin their business, and, no doubt, they were right, if the rate had been reduced and kept at a flat rate, as it is now, regardless of distance carried.

When we consider that a parcel will be carried at the present rates 3,000 miles for just the same price as one carried 30 miles, or even one mile, we must see that there is something wrong in the rate now existing.

As an improvement, I would suggest that Canada be divided in districts, say, the inspector's district as at present,—the rate within each district so much per lb., and after that the rates in proportion to the distance carried, with a minimum rate.

I realize that the changing of rates could not be made without due consideration, but maintain that if the Government would appoint a commission composed of experts from the Post Office Department staff, business men, and postmasters, a much better rate could be made; also a better service given than the one now in effect.

A Complaint Against Advertisers.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star:

Sir,—I can sympathize with "A Son of Albion," whose letter appeared in The Star, my experience with advertisements being on a par with his own. Since my arrival in the country, less than two months ago, I have answered no less than 32 advertisements without receiving a single reply. My credentials are good, likewise my abilities; and I am not a son of Albion.

However, I live in hopes always of getting a satisfactory reply sooner or later; but I do think advertisers might incur a little further expense and be courteous enough to inform applicants either through the medium of The Star, or direct, that the position is filled.

A SON OF ERIN.

What Can a Woman Do?

To the Editor of The Montreal Star:

Sir—The incident brought to our notice in The Star of the treatment of Mrs. Knowlton in her endeavor to save a horse from further cruel treatment opens a subject which the writer has often wished to inquire into. What is a woman to do when she sees an animal ill-treated in our streets?

We may speak to the driver of a horse, if such it is, if we can make up our minds to do so, but the probability of a rude answer, and the improbability of doing any good, deter most women from doing so, and we pass by horses being cruelly beaten, or with frightfully tight check reins or in an unfit condition for work, and say nothing.

What are we to do?

After speaking to a man is there any use in asking his name?

If we get it, to whom shall we report it, with a certainty of having the matter looked into?

If the man is rude, to whom shall we appeal at the time, a passer-by or a policeman?

Besides that, we need some authority for speaking at all and what have we got?

"A WESTMOUNT LADY."

The Costly Toll of Aviation.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star:

Sir,—If the object of the present day aerial flights is to prove that aerial navigation is more than a perilous and spectacular amusement, it would seem that such an object is extremely far-distant, when one reads how over thirty aviators fell to an awful death during the year just ended. This terrible loss was suffered not only by the fact that this new enterprise is more or less dangerous, but also because we encourage, by our plaudits and newspaper-publicity, daring aviators to engage in sensational and positively perilous flights, when, in reality, we know that this whole problem is still in its experimental stage, and that it is not even reasonably safe to make ordinary flights. Human life is too costly a price to pay for these few extra thrills, and, besides, it serves no good purpose. Although it is true that progress is loudly calling for the conquest of the air, it is equally true that humanity is imploring us to use every means in our power to minimize the risk attached to same, so that when the history of the conquest of the air shall be written, it shall be written in ink rather than in the life-blood of our fellowmen.

Any new method or contrivance that will even tend towards the saving of the life of one human being should be given serious consideration, and in this connection kindly permit me to make mention of the fact that a Canadian inventor has perfected an "autaerocraft," in which it will be practically impossible to turn turtle, and which will give the aviator a greater control of the air, and consequently greater self-confidence than he has at present. In the interest of progress and humanity this should be thoroughly investigated.

Objects to Ten Dollars Deposit.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star:

Sir,—The Public Utilities Commission cannot probe into the affairs of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Company any too quickly, so far as the customers of that monopoly are concerned, and from amongst the many unjust charges and rates levied it will be interesting to learn whether the commission has the power to compel the company to abolish the $10 deposit, which must at present be paid by all business houses before electric light can be obtained.

It is safe to assume that at least $100,000, obtained from this source concerns in Montreal, is now lying to the credit of the M. L., H. & P. Co. on deposit at 3 per cent. interest, a respectable capital in itself on which to run a business, and without a question of a doubt the company will see to it that no loss ensues in the reinvestment of these funds. Apparently the company must have included the business of banking in their charter. But why should the M. L., H. & P. Co. be protected against bad debts any more than the ordinary commercial house? And why $10 deposit? There are hundreds of citizens and small business plants that do not consume more than $2 or $3 per month at the most, and if such bills were not paid when due, we all know how the company control the situation.

May the Public Utilities Commission do its work speedily and thoroughly is the earnest desire of A Trying Street Car Trip.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star.

Sir,—I would like to state my experience with the street cars the other night. At 6.30 p.m. I got off a Windsor car at the corner of Guy and St Catherine streets, and waited for fifteen minutes, when a Guy street car came. The conductor said he was going straight up the hill. I waited till 6.52, and then started to walk. I went to Cote St. Paul and I waited about ten minutes before a Lachine car came, and then the conductor said he was going to the shop. I waited another ten minutes, when a Notre Dame car, No. 703, came. We all got on and they dumped us off at St. Henri Church, as he was going to the shop. We left Cote St. Paul at 11.30 and got home at 12.30, taking an hour for a 20-minute ride, at the most, if the service was good.

"A CITIZEN."

Lack of Courtesy.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star:

Sir, Regarding the letter from "A Son of Albion" in a recent issue, I can support him in what he says, as my experience has been the same. I have replied to innumerable advertisements, but not in one instance have I got a reply. I have applied for all sorts of jobs, but it seems of no use, although a steady young man, with good references. It is the same old story—every man for himself, financially.

The loss will be $25,000

COMMISSION IN VANCOUVER.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Vancouver, January 14.—By a vote of four to one on a plebiscite vote, the electors of Vancouver have decided against a policy of the exemption of churches from taxation. Other plebiscites advised building legislation restricting the height of buildings to ten stories, with a total of 120 feet, and also covered methods of civic government. The latter vote showed that sentiment was equally divided between the present form of mayor and council government and a board of control system.

On preference as between a Board of Control, the commission form of government fully twice the number of electors favored the last. Its establishment is expected next year.

DELEGATION SATISFIED WITH REPLY

Manufacturers' Deputation Feel Premier's Stand Protects Them

Believe Sir Wilfrid Went Far as Possible.

General Opinion That Any Reciprocal Agreement Reached Will be Very Limited.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, January 14.—The Canadian Manufacturers' delegation left Ottawa last night pretty well satisfied with their interview with the Government on the question of the tariff. Had a wholly indefinite answer been given it would have caused no surprise. But Sir Wilfrid Laurier was quite plain in indicating that the reciprocity negotiations will not result in any disturbance injuriously affecting Canadian industries.

Numerous members of the deputation who were spoken to subsequent to the interview, expressed frankly the opinion that the Premier went as far as he could be expected to go in dealing with the question.

While he does not see eye-to-eye with the manufacturers, to the extent of refusing any measure of reciprocity with the United States, if his statement means anything, it is that any treaty arranged will be limited indeed. It is palpably evident that if the stability of no Canadian industry is to be disturbed, and if this principle forms the economic basis of the negotiations, the application of any reciprocal policy must be in a very restricted sense. From the viewpoint of the manufacturer it cannot be too much so.

Not Seeking More Protection.

The attitude of yesterday's delegation was different from that of some that have preceded it. Others were accustomed to ask more protection. The manufacturers now seemingly incline more to the principle of letting well enough alone, and directing their efforts to the maintenance of the status quo. The delegation was also in contrast to that of the farmers. They were not nearly so numerous—about fifty all told—having credentials as delegates. They did not talk so much. The presentation occupied only an hour and a quarter while the farmers talked for over four hours.

Some of the members are saying that the Premier was more urbane to the manufacturers and gave them a greater measure of assurance than he did the farmers.

It is pointed out, however, that the situation was different. In one case, very radical changes in the fiscal policy were advocated. In this latter instance the only doctrine promulgated was that of abiding by obtaining conditions. It is consequently easier to say that conditions which have prevailed for thirty years, so far as stable industries are involved, will not be injuriously affected, than to peremptorily express adherence to representations calculated, if given effect, to revolutionize the situation in many trades.

Influence of West Recognized.

At the same time the movement in the West is recognized to be so strong, and so seduously propagated that it cannot be ignored, and the opinion freely expressed around the lobbies that, if for no reason other than political expediency, something will have to be done though not necessarily in a hurry.

What that something will be no one seems competent to say at this juncture.

The statistics published yesterday to the effect that Winnipeg has over two hundred industries employing fourteen thousand people was an eye-opener to many members who are wont to associate the West wholly with activity in grain growing.

Fears Somewhat Allayed.

While Messrs. Fielding and Paterson are active at Washington and the impression is produced that something substantial is aimed at, Sir Wilfrid's utterance—the first official intimation—is interpreted as calculated to allay the fears of the manufacturers that some agreement of far-reaching application and consequence may be effected.

While in the light of yesterday's development this now seems improbable, the manufacturers will nevertheless closely watch the goings-on at Washington. When there is forthcoming an official statement of what has been done, what commodities, if any, are to be reciprocally dealt with, and the general terms and conditions of any agreement, they will be better able to judge the extent to which the existing conditions will be disturbed. Meanwhile Sir Wilfrid's words are regarded as by no means discouraging, but quite the contrary.

ANOTHER PICTURE FAKE.

"The Angelus" Bought for $138,130, Said to Be a Counterfeit.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Paris, January 14.—"The Angelus," of the Chauchard collection of masterpieces just turned over to the French Government and installed in the Louvre Museum, is said to be a counterfeit. Chauchard, the eccentric millionaire, who recently died and astounded the world by his freakish funeral in Paris, paid $138,130 for the picture to an American named Sutton, of the American Art Association. Negotiations were carried on through a Frenchman named Garnier, who, after purchasing the painting, it is said, had it "restored." Garnier is not to be found.

"L'Angelus," painted by Milet, at Barbozon, France, was originally ordered by an American. The price was to be $300. He refused the picture which was then sold by Milet to Baron Falcieur, a Belgian, for $200. Artists do not consider it Milet's masterpiece, saying that though only an ordinary work it has become popular by reason of its romance. The general opinion is that if the Chauchard "Angelus" is genuine, it was ruined by the "restoration."

Special to the Montreal Star.

Ottawa, January 14.—The Marquis of Salisbury arrived in Ottawa yesterday, and is the guest of Earl Grey. In the course of a hurried interview at the station he was asked what would be done with the Lords' veto. He simply remarked: "It is hard to say just what will be done in that connection.

Accompanying the Marquis are the Marchioness of Salisbury, their son, Viscount Cranbourne; their two daughters, the Ladies Mary and Beatrice Cecil; the Dowager Countess of Arran, and Lady Winifred Gore.

Militia Plans for Coronation

Contingent to Drill at Quebec—Many Applicants.

Ottawa, January 14.—Applications are coming in daily to the Militia Department for places on the Coronation contingent, there being already several times more men listed than the maximum needed to make up the composite regiment.

While it is understood Col. H. H. Maclean, M. P., will have command, the appointment has not definitely been settled. It is understood there will be three colonels and five adjutants who will accompany the Canadians for the spectacular event when the King is crowned on June 22nd next.

One or more representatives from each corps throughout the country will be placed on the list.

This will be the second coronation contingent that Canada has sent. There were 500 in that party who saw King Edward take his place upon the throne, while there will be 700 men to go on this occasion. They will be given a week's drill at Quebec before sailing.

VANDAL MUTILATES FAMOUS REMBRANDT

Discharged Naval Employe Slashes Valuable Picture to Obtain Revenge on State.

Amsterdam, January 14.—Rembrandt's most famous picture, "The Night Watch," was badly damaged by a discharged naval cook named Sigrist, who entered the Rijks Museum to-day, and with a knife deliberately slashed the masterpiece. Sigrist, who was arrested, declared that his vandalism was an act of vengeance against the State, because of his discharge from service in the navy.

The cuts traverse the principal figures of Captain Franz Banning Cocqu's company of arquebusiers, but art experts who later viewed the work expressed the opinion that the damage was not beyond repair.

NEW WESTERN RAILWAYS SEEK INCORPORATION

Special to The Montreal Star.

The Quebec and Great Northwestern Railway Company, through E. J. Daly solicitor ,of Ottawa, seeks power to build from Port Arthur to New Liskeard, thence to Maniwaki, Quebec, and from thence easterly to the city of Quebec. Subsidiary lines are proposed (1) from a point on the main line, 75 miles west of Maniwaki, northerly to the Transcontinental, and southerly via the Coulonge Valley to Ottawa city; (2), from New Liskeard to a point on the Transcontinental east of Abitibi; (3), from New Liskeard to Temiskaming, and from the main line at Missinabie River to Michipicoten.

The People's Railway Company, already having a charter applied to build a net-work of aditional lines, connecting places in the countries of Grey, Simcoe, Oxford, Lambton, Norfolk, Perth and Wellington.

The Dominion Development Railway asks power to build from the Naas River, B.C., to the Omenica River, thence along the Peace River to Peace River Landing, and from there to Hudson's Bay. Mr. A. T. Thompson, of Ottawa ,makes the application.

The Hill Motor Car Co. has secured incorporation at Montreal, with a capital of $25,000. Messrs. Robert Hill, J. Trottier, Ernest Trottier, of Montreal; Joseph Lafontaine and Adelard Cyr, of St. Jerome, are the incorporators.

The Erie Timber and Land Company capital $100,000. is incorporated at Toronto, through Royce and Henderson, barristers.

READ THIS CAREFULLY—This offer includes Buffet Extension Table, four Diners and two Arm Diners (China Cabinet can be supplied if desired). The Buffet is 60 inches long and has the popular low back with best beveled plate mirror. The front has sweeped upper drawers, two of them lined in plush. There are six drawers altogether with cupboards on either side. This is a really fine piece. The table is 36 inches square (round table can be supplied also) and has panels to extend eight feet. The legs are the French shaped style to match Buffet. The chairs have slightly shaped front and legs with pad seat of first grade leather. All the pieces are genuine mahogany and, at the price, this suite is one of the big features of our January sale. Complete for $116.00

Everybody likes the pretty bow foot bed. Therefore, this offer should appeal to you. Only finest polished brass used, with 2-inch posts and 2¼-inch knobs. Bed is regular double size. Only a couple of samples remaining. Price $23.20

Sectional Bookcases

Have you made up your mind about that Sectional Bookcase yet? It cannot be the price that keeps it out of your home, because you can purchase a solid oak section as low as $2.40. Three sections, 8½ inches high each, with top and base, will cost you only $10.70, and you can add more sections as you need them. Will we see you Monday?

Our Special Brass Bed for $21.98

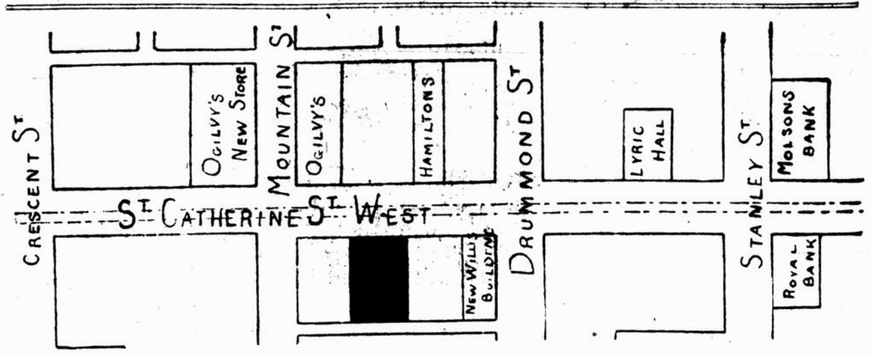

The best home in town is none too good for this double Brass Bed. The cut is small, but it gives an idea of the graceful design and general appearance of the bed. The posts are 2-inch. The fillers, head and foot are ⅛-inch. The bed looks every cent of $35.00 worth. Our leader at $21.98

2,000 Per Cent. honest profit in two years

Just think of it! 2,000 per cent! ! ! Startling, eh? But true, just the same. Yes, every bit true, and we have the books and figures to prove it.

2,000 per cent. is the HONEST profit that some of our clients have made in Montclair, New Westmount, Parkdale and Westmount Plateau land—and made in the space of two years at that. Isn't that proof enough that values are going up?

Demand makes values.

Ever since we opened up the above properties, the demand for plots has been enormous, and the consequence has been values have steadily increased.

They are still increasing—the demand persists. Buy a plot to-day and join the throng of George Marcil & Co.'s prosperous clients. The number of these lots is quickly decreasing—because the demand is quickly increasing. Hurry, then—opportunity is knocking at your door.

The Excellency Of Simplicity

Last year I had a most delightful calendar with a quotation from some author or other for every day of the year. As I tore off leaf after leaf until none were left I was struck by the excellence of the quotations. Some quotations make you to think, others leave you cold and uninterested. One of the last I tore off, a saying of Longfellow's was as follows: 'In character, in manners, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity."

This struck me as so admirable that I thought I should like to see it embazoned in every home. Simplicity of character, to begin with, is such a beautiful thing and so seldom seen. It is not slowness and stupidity as so many seem to think, but a clear directness of thought and vision. The derivation of the word helps us to get at the true meaning, it is from sine, without, and plica doubling. Without folds, without twists and turns and subterfuges,—such is the simple character. Take the man who wants to attain a certain end and sets about it with secrecy and lies and subterfuges. He twists and turns and writhes about and, perhaps, finally reaches his destination. Such tactics, in man or woman, are indicative or wrong or mistaken ends. If the desired result is not unfair nor dishonorable there is no reason why the course should not be straight and direct. The character that possesses simplicity would make it so. Oftimes these would-be diplomats would be more diplomatic if they were less diplomatic. Simplicity is something easier to understand but more difficult perhaps to attain. Those who have never had to give thought to their social position always have the most exquisitely simple manners. So also have those who although of humble birth are beautiful in mind and character. One of the women I know who has the most beautiful manners is a laundress. She is perfectly self-possessed, perfectly direct, perfectly simple and absolutely without any affectation. Artificiality, fussiness, fawning, patronizing airs are all foes to simplicity of manner. The same beautiful simplicity should rule in the home, should govern the arrangement of the house and the problem of clothes. The most artistic house is always simple. As expensive as one can afford, but never complex and consequently confusing. The best-dressed woman in any assembly is always simply dressed. The poorly dressed ones are the ones who have yielded to the weakness of over-decoration. A frock may be of the richest silk, satin, cloth or velvet, but the lines must not be confused nor the trimming fussy. Simplicity is beauty, in this as in everything.

Meetings of Women's Societies

Mortimer Lamb, Esq. is to address the Montreal Women's Club on Artistic Photography, with lantern illustrations, on Monday, 16th inst., at 3.30, in the Y. M. C. A. The music for the afternoon will be contributed by Miss Beatrice Fraser, who will sing.

The Girls' Friendly Society meets weekly in the parish rooms of each of the following churches, St. George's, St. John's and St. Jude's.

The Ladies Aid and Dorcas Society of St. Paul's Church will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday, in the church parlor, at three o'clock.

There will be an executive meeting of the Local Council of Women on Wednesday, at 3.30 oclock, in the Y. W. C. A. Hall.

The Women's Guild of Christ Church Cathedral will meet at the Cathedral Club House, 61 Union Avenue, on Monday, 16th of January, at 3 p.m. The meeting will be followed at 3.45 by the 2nd lecture on "In Memoriam," by the Rev. Dr. Symonds.

The Women's Culture Club in the neighborhood of Roslyn avenue, will meet at the residence of Mrs. Burns, 42 York avenue, on Wednesday, January 18th.

Mrs. Fred Bacon, convener of the Ladies Relief Committee, Royal Edward Institute, desires to thank all those who kindly responded to her appeal on behalf of poor consumptives by enclosing donations in the Birthday Bags sent out by the committee, the total receipts from which have amounted to $230.75. This sum will be applied directly to the relief of curable patients without means of support.

Douglas Church Literary Circle announces a lecture on January 20th, by Recorder Weir, on the Founding of Quebec. Mrs. Chas. Morton will be chairman.

The Woman's Canadian Club will hold their next luncheon on Tuesday, January 17th, when Mr. Donald Macmaster will deliver an address on "The British Elections."

The Fashionable Woman

Calling costumes for the at-homes and receptions immediately after New Year are built almost exclusively of velvet. This material unquestionably leads the winter fashions as far as street wear is concerned, and these velvet afternoon costumes are really much alike in general effect. Skirts are straight and narrow, with perhaps a line of fur at the bottom, and the little coats are similarly straight and narrow in outline, but are made delightfully individual by flat trimmings of braid and embroidery and tiny rows of satin-covered buttons.

All women seem to look alike at a little distance, and it is truly marvellous how hips are restrained and all figures, even the most ample, have the undeveloped contour of girlhood. This is due, of course, to infinitely clever corseting and the corsetieres deserve the utmost praise for their efforts. Waists are much larger than they were, but by letting out the corset in the waist measurement a flatter effect at bust and hip is obtained—more like the lines of the uncorseted figure. And this is now the ideal. Women are slimmer without having lost suppleness, and it is astonishing to meet a friend who one is quite positive tipped the scales over the fatal 150 a few months ago looking slender and actually girlish in her little velvet suit of this winter.

But in spite of the laudable efforts of the corsetieres, many women are given away—to borrow a slang phrase—by their ankles. Beneath the short, narrow skirt, sadly enough, a pair of thick and clumsy ankles often spoil the effect of lissome slimness presented by the upper portion of the figure. This is due partly to the velvet-topped boots, which add appreciably to the size of the ankles. The wonder is that women will wear these velvet boots in a season of such short petticoats. The suede and kid tops cling more closely to the ankle and have not such a distressingly thickening effect.

SOME TRIED RECIPES

Chafing Dish Savories.

Italian Eggs.—Eggs cooked with tomatoes are delicious. The following mixture makes a most delectable after-theatre dish, yet involves very little trouble. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in the blazer with one tablespoonful of chopped onion. Let cook until slightly colored, then add one and a half cupfuls of stewed or canned tomatoes and half a cupful of good dairy cheese, grated. When well blended stir in three eggs slightly beaten, season with salt and paprika and stir constantly until a creamy consistency is obtained. Serve on rounds of buttered toast.

Toothsome Cream Toast.—Everyone is familiar with the usual dish of cream toast, but this variation really means entire novelty, so completely is the dish transformed. Make the sauce by cooking one tablespoonful of butter with half a tablespoonful of flour until smooth, then add a cupful of cream and stir until the boiling point is reached. Have ready eggs that have been boiled for twenty minutes, cooled and sliced and allow two for each cupful of sauce. Heat them in the sauce and lastly stir in a half cupful of grated dairy cheese for each cupful of sauce. Cook for one moment longer, then season to taste and serve on rounds of hot toast.

Eggs With Peppers.—Sweet green peppers will be obtainable at the Italian green grocer's all during the early winter, and cooked with eggs are most satisfactory either for luncheon or for supper. Choose small, firm peppers, remove the seeds and white veins and finely shred. For three peppers allow six eggs, one cupful of cream, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese and one tablespoonful of tomato catsup. Cook the peppers in the butter until tender, then add the catsup and the cheese and stir until smooth. Have the eggs slightly beaten and mixed with the cream and stir into the mixture, and when it has thickened to the consistency of scrambled eggs season with salt and pepper and then serve it all on toast.

Eggs With Celery.—Boiled celery is not alone delicious but wholesome as well. Cut a sufficient quantity into bits to make four tablespoonfuls and put in the blazer with boiling water to cover. Let cook slowly until tender, then drain off the water and stand the celery aside until needed. Put one tablespoonful of butter in the blazer, and when melted add the celery and stir gently until well heated. Add four eggs without beating, a little salt and cayenne and stir with a silver fork until creamy. If liked, stir in a little chopped parsley just before the eggs are sufficiently cooked. Serve on toast or crisp crackers.

WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

Women in Japan.

Woman's place in Japan is a frequent topic in Lady Lawson's book, "Highways and Homes of Japan," from the first meeting with the female coaling coolies at Nagasaki to the fashionable ladies in society who have abandoned the artistic kimona for the Parisian-made garment. The chapter on women, dress and family matters is particularly interesting in this connection. Curiously enough, although Japanese women have the most exquisite taste in their own garments, yet the author was appalled by their want of taste when they donned the garb of the Western world, which, however, is confined to the high official class, and worn only on ceremonial occasions. Lady Lawson is herself photographed in the picturesque kimona, showing the correct manner of wearing this garment. It will interest English women to learn that it should always be folded left over right, the reverse way being sacred to the dead.

Lady Lawson is charmed with Japanese babies, and a picture of one of her special little friends is included in her book, described as the "sweetest of Nippon babies."

She attributes a great deal of the sweetness and serenity of Japanese women to the fact that they are not weighted with small worries. The fashion of their dress remains always the same. Their housekeeping is simplified, for there are no knives, tables, chairs or beds to be changed and dusted daily. It is a noticeable fact that Western influence has done much to the elevation of Japanese women. Lady Lawson tells us that "formerly the Japanese wife was kept entirely in the background; she did not even sit down in her husband's presence, and walked a few paces behind him in the street. Following the rule of Confucius," the high-born Japanese woman has to yield, not only obedience, but humble service as well, first to her father, then to her husband, and finally to her eldest son." The author thinks that "Suffragettes would have a poor chance in Japan, where the Government does not permit women to attend political meetings, lest politics should injure the domestic graces."

Schools for Mothers.

An important investigation into existing "Schools for Mothers, "Mothers' and Babies' Welcomes," "Weighing Centres," and similar institutions in England, conducted by the National League for Physical Education, has just been concluded and reported upon. Although the whole movement is of such recent growth the investigators received replies from over eighty institutions, and the report gives an interesting insight into the varying methods adopted. In six instances the "schools" are run by municipalities. Two "schools" are branches of Charity Organization Society work. Health societies have in several instances taken up this later development of the work. In at least one case the work is carried on in connection with a Church, and in other towns the "schools" are worked in connection with hospitals and dispensaries.

The attendance of mothers in some cases is very large. At the Glasgow Corporation centre the attendances for a year were 1,717 first, and 4,682 subsequent attendances. The Kensington "School" has nearly 600 members, St. Pancras and Stepney 300, and Leeds over 400, while the attendances at Poplar in the first half of the year were 1,184.

Infant consultations once a fortnight are part of the regulation routine of the well-conducted schools, while in addition there are regular classes for cookery, hygiene, infant care, sewing, cutting-out, &c. Cheap dinners for expectant or nursing mothers are a prominent feature, and provident funds, fire-guard clubs, meetings for fathers (at St. Pancras and Stepney), and bride's classes have also been established.

Blouse With Straight Tunic for Misses and Small Women.

Simple, straight tunics are among the smartest of all things this season, and are exceedingly attractive. This one is combined with a blouse that can be worn with or without a gulmpe. The neck edge can be cut on a round or square or V-shaped outline. The tunic can be gathered into a band or left plain as preferred. Any skirt can be worn beneath.

The blouse is made with sleeves and body portion in one, and is laid in two tucks over the shoulders that are exceptionally becoming to girlish figures. The tunic consists of one straight piece, gathered at the upper edge, and the two are joined by means of a belt.

The quantity of material required for the 16-year size is 4 yards 21 or 27, or 2½ yards 36 or 44 inches wide, with ¾ yard 18 inches wide for the trimming portion of the blouse, 1½ yards of banding 4 inches wide, for band on the tunic.

The pattern, No. 6859, is cut in sizes for misses and small women, 14, 16 and 18 years of age, and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage, which ensures more prompt delivery.)

THE POETS' CORNER.

In Memory of Julia Ward Howe.

No warrior's deeds, no statesman's fame,
No generous rich man's princely power,
Nor splendid debts to science claim
Our civic homage at this hour.
A woman's memory fills each heart;
A patriot woman wise and pure,
Whose gospel thrilled both camp and mart
With words of fire that shall endure.
Scholar and poet prest for seer,
No caste her sympathies confirmed;
To aspiration's bugle clear
Marched all her powers of heart and mind.
Who listened read upon her face
She lived with a patrician grace
Our great Republic's simple creed.
To every votary in the world
Oppressed through struggling to be free
Her heart leapt like a flag unfurled,
Knew barriers none of race or sea.
Minerva-like in many a tongue
Her wit, her eloquence, her song
Unterrified by odds she flung
To right some helpless brother's wrong.
Husband and wife! In fame's new troth
Their names forevermore are twined.
Our grateful city claims them both.
His zeal gave eyes unto the blind.
And hers, white-winged, Parnassus-born,
In each crushed cause some lode-star found;
Undaunted friend of hopes forlorn
Which spurned the solid ground.
So humanly she played her part,
So fully did she understand,
That ever younger grew her heart,
Youth's dreams were still her promised land.
The fragrant blossome on her bier
Were to her length of days an aureole,
And thus she vanished from our presence here
A dust-defying star-seeking soul.

FISHERIES COMPACT IS WELL RECEIVED IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Colonial Fishermen Pleased With the Award Against Purse Seines and Sunday Fishing.

Special to the Montreal Star.

St. John's, Nfld., January 14.—The news of the amicable settlement of the fisheries dispute was received here with much satisfaction. When Premier Morris started for Washington, little hope was entertained of an agreement being reached, owing to the hostile sentiment of the Gloucester fishing interests.

Doubtless, however, owing to the American desire for reciprocity, coupled with the recognition that any board of experts would probably award this Colony the decision on the main points involved, induced the American negotiators to assume a more friendly attitude.

The most important questions at issue were the Colony's prohibition of Sunday fishing, and the use of purse seine that destructive apparatus against the employment of which in our waters the colonists were unanimous. The Americans themselves confessed that they never expected to win the Sunday fishing issue, and the prospect of their securing a decision from the tribunal allowing the use of purse seines was considered here as very doubtful.

Besides these points a voluminous array of minor issues were involved, embodying objections against various Customs and fishery regulations of Newfoundland and Canada, but the British negotiators were prepared to assent to modifications of these in certain particulars, because such modifications would not affect the essential principle.

Details of yesterday's arrangement are yet unknown here, only the official message from Premier Morris to Attorney-General Morison, saying that a satisfactory arrangement had been concluded for submission to the Government on his return.

It is generally agreed that the Premier's declaration that the arrangement is satisfactory means that no really vital interests have been jeopardized.

Prevents Costly Litigation.

The satisfaction expressed here is due to various considerations. First, the advantages of a friendly settlement at the present juncture; second, the agreement wipes the slate clean, and closes this dispute finally; third, it saves the Colony from the enormous cost which the submission of these questions to a second arbitration would involve; fourth, the settlement will probably pave the way for reciprocity, or some scheme contemplating freer fishery trade between this Colony and the United States.

The recent decision of the American Treasury appraisers allowing the free entry into the American markets of fish purchased in Newfoundland by American traders may be regarded as a first step towards the lowering of the tariff bars against the Colony's fish. The American markets now demand more fish than the New England fishing interests can provide. The American authorities are favorably inclined towards concessions for Newfoundland, but are unwilling to extend these to Canada, because of the greater competition from Canadian fish obtained in the Bay of Fundy and the south coast of Nova Scotia, which are within a few hours' run of Boston, whereas Newfoundland and the Grand Banks are three or four days' run from this centre of distribution.

While nothing is known definitely, it is regarded as probable here that Premier Morris on his return may bring a proposal from the American Government for a new fishery arrangement between these countries.

CUBA WILL CELEBRATE.

National Exposition Will Replace Noisy Demonstrations.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Havana, Cuba, January 14.—Cuba will celebrate the second anniversary of the re-establishment of the government in a more sensible manner than she usually exhibits in her celebrations. Instead of appropriating vast sums of money for festivities, most of the money going into the pockets of the select few and no permanent good resulting therefrom, the programme for the coming celebrations is to hold a national exposition, one which will illustrate the resources of the island, agricultural, horticultural, industrial and mineral. The national show is to be opened on January 28, the second anniversary of the day when General Jose Miguel Gomez was inaugurated President of the Republic of Cuba, and also the evacuation of the island by the Army of Cuban Pacification.

There will also be other observations of the day, but this will be the most notable one. The producing wealth of Cuba has increased so much during the last twelve years that the people of Cuba are anxious to show the people of the world what they have here now, and at the same time the people of the world are a little bit interested, and if they can simply go to Havana and satisfy their curiosity without going on long and tiresome tours over the island, there will be no doubt be a large attendance.

The Exposition is to be held in the beautiful Botanical Gardens in the edge of the city. This place has such historical connections that it is in itself a point of great interest to the tourist and sightseer. It is at the former summer home of the Captains-General of Cuba. Here it was that "Butcher" Weyler lived during his stay in Cuba.

MUCH SUFFERING IN WEST.

Extreme Cold Causing Hardships Among Saskatchewan Settlers.

Moose Jaw, Sask., January 14.—The first teams since Christmas to reach this city from Leeville and Dewdrop, 65 miles southwest of here, arrived last evening. The six members of the party told a story of much hardship and suffering. They had made the journey in three days.

The party brought in two men who are badly frozen, one so badly that it is thought his feet may have to be amputated, and the dead body of a woman, who died southwest of Lake Johnston, and was being brought to the city by her husband. He had made but slow progress on his melancholy trip, it having taken him five days to travel 32 miles when he was picked up by the party.

They report great hardship among the settlers, owing to the terrible cold and storms.

RUSSO-GERMAN PACT DEATHBLOW TO TRIPLE ENTENTE

Special to The Montreal Star.

London, January 14.—The Daily Telegraph's special correspondent at St. Petersburg, discussing the situation created by the premature disclosure of the scope of the agreement arrived at by Russia and Germany since the Potsdam interview between the Kaiser and the Czar, says:

"Russia, while carrying out her treaty obligations towards France and Great Britain, has definitely withdrawn from the diplomatic and military association known as the Triple entente.

"That is the plain fact we hate to face, and it cannot be reasoned away by Mons. Pichon's assertion that the Franco-Russian entente still subsists, or by Sir Edward Grey's declaration, should he make one, that the Anglo-Russia agreement will not be departed from.

"Russia recognizes her entente with England and her alliance with France, but she has killed the Triple Entente.

"European politics, therefore, have actually entered into a new phase fraught with developments unexpected by politicians and unwelcome to taxpayers."

LAST NOT HEARD OF THE BORKHUM SPY INCIDENT

Matter Will Probably Be Ventilated in British Parliament—Press Refused Information.

Special to The Montreal Star.

London, January 14.—When Parliamen reassembles, some very searching questions will be asked from the floor of the House of Commons concerning the "Borkum espionage incident."

Whether very much will be found out is doubtful. It is certain that all the chancellories in Europe have been working desperately for a month to prevent the story from leaking out in all its details. This being the case, it is a foregone conclusion that there will be some lively ministerial dodging when the matter comes up in Parliament. At any rate, the affair is no ordinary kind of mystery and many people suspect strongly that as a result of it, an Anglo-German war was very narrowly averted.

It will be remembered that when Capt. Bernard F. Trench and Lieut. Vivian R. Brandon, of the British Royal Marine Light Infantry were caught spying upon the fortifications upon the German North Sea Island of Borkum they admitted that they were after information which they expected to turn over to the English admiralty. Tried at Leipzig, they amplified this confession with the statement that the information was to have been placed in the hands of a certain high British personage referre to by Capt. Trench simply as "Reggie."

With such a story before them it might have been supposed that the German and English newspapers would have tried to learn more. They did, but everywhere they ran up against a blank wall, and those which threatened to publish what they merely suspected received curt intimations that there would be trouble if they printed anything more than the usual official matter and ordinary mild comment.

This was effective enough in Germany, where there is a censorship. In England it wasn't quite so easy, but it can be done in emergencies. The Official Secrets Act is a pretty formidable weapon and editors have a wholesome respect for it. However, its use is never threatened except in cases of the gravest necessity. Evidently, then, the Borkum incident was considered very grave indeed.

The most natural conclusion is that Captain Trench and Lieut. Brandon were not spying on their own account, with the vague hope of reward or of serving their country, but that there was definite evidence to show that they were acting under official orders from the admiralty and that so exalted an individual could have been shown to have been implicated in the affair as to have created an international commotion. Why Germany should have aided the English in hushing the matter up is not so clear, though pressure from mutually friendly powers might have been responsible for it.

Five Years For Quebec Man.

Quebec, January 14.—Five years' incarceration was the sentence meted out in the Court of Sessions upon Philippe Nadeau, accused of collecting money under false pretences. The offence consisted of his collecting money on the strength of a paper purporting to be signed by a priest, which set forth that the money so collected was for the purpose of enabling him to study for the priesthood.

Prominent Moosomin Resident Dead.

Moosomin, Sask., January 14.—Mr. Arthur Henry Smith, B.A., who came to Moosomin, from Kincardine, Ont., is dead, after four days' illness from typhoid. He was a prominent Mason, Oddfellow and Orangeman, and a member of the Senate of the University of Saskatchewan.

Family Cured of Eczema By Cuticura Remedies

"The Cuticura treatment has absolutely cured me and family of eczema which I, my wife and two-year-old child had for eight months. It started with small pimples on the head of my child which gradually broke out in sores, and it was not long before I and my wife got the same. Our heads were one mass of sores, we could not sleep and the itching was terrible. We suffered for eight months. We tried different kinds of ointments and medicine but it did us no good and soon it began to break out on our bodies until a friend who had the same trouble told me about Cuticura of which I used two sets of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent, and I was surprised. After the first few days our heads began to heal and in two months we were absolutely cured of this terrible eczema."

No stronger evidence than this could be given of the success and economy of the Cuticura Remedies in the treatment of torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, of infants, children and adults. Sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, U.S.A., for free 32-page Cuticura book on treatment of skin and scalp diseases.

GOD SPEED.

(By Sharlot M. Hall.)

Comrade, whose eyes have seen beyond
That Last Horizon lone and far,
Remoter than the utmost star
That watches on the rim of space;
I that shall see no more your face,
Save in some vision brief and fond,

I that alone must go and come,
I that alone must stay or roam,
Bid you God speed and hearty cheer,
Bid you a joy untouched of fear
On every road a soul may take.
To fuller life, to dreamless sleep,
To all a heart may give or keep,
God speed you, guide your going —yet
The roads of earth not quite forget.

"Artistic Homes."

Those to whom architects' plans are insoluble puzzles and printed descriptions insufficient aid to the imagination will find comfort in Mrs. Mabel Luke Priestman's "Artistic Homes" (McClurg & Co.). The illustrations are taken from photographs of completed houses, often more than one view of the exterior being given. The views of the interiors give some good ideas about placing windows, their draperies, and similar details, with a few attractive arrangements of stairways. Most of the houses represent an initial cost of less than $10,000, while some of them have been built for less than $5,000. Few prices and estimates are given, which is perhaps well, as with the varying prices in different neighborhoods and seasons, such statements are apt to prove a snare to the unwary. Some converted barns and chicken farms offer temptation in the way of trying to pick up a bargain in house-building, but such luck is not for all or many.

"The Recall of Love."

Ralph Connor's only book this year is a little story-sermon entitled "The Recall of Love" (Doran, 50 cents). Its twenty-odd pages recount, with vivid description and tenderly sympathetic analysis, the actions and experiences of Peter from the time of his denial of Christ until the meeting with Him after the resurrection. "The story of Peter," the author says, "is not the most beautiful of the tales that gather about the Man of Galilee, but it is the most precious of them all, for it is the story of a man who fell, but failing, rose again." There are three full-page illustrations in color.

Chickens.

In a small volume on "Chickens, and How to Raise Them (Penn. Pub. Co.), A. T. Johnson presents information of value to those who wish to know how to hatch, house, feed and fatten chickens, and how to keep them healthy and make money out of them. He starts with the egg and winds up with the market, dealing in a thorough and practical way with every important detail of the chicken-raiser's business.

Academy Days in Old Missisquoi.

BY JULIA H. S. BUGGIA AND THEODORA CORNELL MOORE.

(Montreal: Foster Brown Co., Ltd. 1910.)

True history does not wholly consist of the accounts of events and the biographies of them that the world calls great. Wars and battles, constitutional changes, the rise and fall of governments, the lives of public leaders—these are like the patterns of the fabric that are woven in brilliant colors, and, while they may give character to the whole, they largely depend for their effect upon the background, which consists of an account of the affairs of every-day life—the life of the farm, of the village, of the market-place. In the writing of history it is this essential background that is so often neglected, and the result is that the so-called great events stand out with too great prominence, and the story of national life loses its true perspective. It is because of these things that the writers of local history perform such valuable service and are so richly deserving of praise.

The little book under consideration belongs to this class. It contributes to the history of Missisquoi County a valuable and exceedingly interesting chapter, which, without the labors of the two gifted writers, might have been lost. The value of the book is not, however, merely local, for it throws useful sidelights upon the lives of men who, in various walks of life and in some cases in distant fields, achieved distinction.

One merit of the little book that the reader will observe at the very outset is its literary excellence. Its style is simple and clear, and yet it possesses the charm of sympathetic treatment peculiar to writers who knew personally the characters described and took part in the events recounted.

To the general reader the most interesting chapters of the history of the Stanbridge East Academy are those devoted to biography, the lives of teachers and pupils, for among them are names familiar to thousands of people who possibly may never have heard of the Stanbridge Academy. Only a gleaning or two from these chapters can be given here.

One of the early principals of the Academy was Hobart Butler, M.A., most of whose pupils, scattered far afield, have crossed the divide on life's journey and are now on the downhill road. When Mr. Butler retired from the principalship in 1864 to remove to the neighboring town of Bedford, the chef-lieu of the county, to take up the practice of law, he was presented with an address, which was read by a pupil, the Academy's favorite boy orator, "Willie" Lynch. The boy "Willie" has long since been lost sight of, but the man into whom he grew is to-day the Hon. Mr. Justice Lynch, Judge of the Superior Court for the District of Bedford. At the Stanbridge Academy was laid the foundation of his brilliant career at the bar, in the Legislature and Government of Quebec, and on the bench of the district in which he was born.

On that occasion Mr. Butler received a letter of appreciation, which is reproduced in full in the little book. This letter closes: "I am, my dear Butler, faithfully yours, L. S. Huntington." That name is familiar to every reader of Canadian political history. When that letter was written Mr. Huntington was member of the House of Commons for Shefford County, which, with Brome and Missisquoi, makes up the District of Bedford. In later years he was Postmaster-General during the regime of the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. Among other of "the old boys" of the Academy, the stories of whose lives are briefly related in the history are Allan Gibson, the celebrated artist; the Rev. E. H. Krans, D.D., for many years one of the prominent clergymen of the Episcopal Church in New York; Dr. M. H. Meigs, a leading physician of the county, and brother of its present federal member; Major Charles Constantine, of the Royal North-West Mounted Police, who had charge of the force in the Yukon during the years of the Klondike gold fever; Mr. A. A. Ayer, to-day one of the leading exporters of dairy products from this port; Dr. Geo. McAsey, now of Worcester, Mass.; Mr. G. Stopford, for many years a journalist in San Francisco, but now a member of the staff of experts of the United States Department of Agriculture. These are but a few of the names of old pupils the little book recalls.

With this thoughtful and even poetical paragraph the historians of the Stanbridge Academy close their exceedingly interesting book: "When the great roll is called in that upper schoolroom where we have gone with ease and honors through this lower course, or desperately struggled with uncomprehended lessons, penitent and ashamed for wasted opportunities, or broken with disappointment and undeserved reproach—may every one be there at last to gladly answer 'Present!'"

Out West.

BY SECRETAN

(Ottawa. The Esdale Press. 1910.)

The modern Canadian West has recently been pretty widely exploited by writers. The West as it was before the railways has not been so generally touched upon. Mr. James H. E. Secretan, of Ottawa, in a little book called "Out West," gives a number of character sketches from the observation of an engineer running out the lines of the Canadian Pacific.

In reading it one is impressed with the idea that the author just wrote his stories for his own amusement, but they make very easy and entertaining reading. All the characters are seemingly drawn from life, and Mr. Secretan has an original and breezy style in picturing it all.

The Indian, not as Fenimore Cooper described him, but as Mr. Secretan knew him, is the opening sketch. Then we have the Homesteader, the Murderer, the Sheriff (who is a veritable Mountie—one of the West's finest Englishman), the Mounted Policeman, the Prospector, the Miner, the Sailor (to Seattle sail), the Highwayman, the Census Civil Servant (a cameo of Ottawa life), and the British Columbian. In the end of the book the exploits of Cook and Peary are enshrined in sympathetic verse. It is a bright and unpretentious little book with which one might pass a restful hour very agreeably.

The Discovery of Self.

BY JAMES M. LUDLOW

(New York. Fleming H. Revel & Co. 1910.)

"Know Thyself" is the keynote of Jas. M. Ludlow's booklet, "This Discovery of Self." The author—already known by several books, especially "Judge West's Opinions"—dwells upon the necessity of a thorough knowledge of one's own nature and capacities in order to achieve success in one's lifework and in the building of character. He devotes a section each to the discovery of the intellectual self, the moral self and the spiritual self, and in a very sensible way gives advice to young men and young women anxious to make the best of life's opportunities about setting up their standards and applying the unerring line to themselves. Apposite anecdotes and illustrative incidents make the pages readable.

"Uncle Tom's" Centenary.

To-day is the centenary of the birth of Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It is seldom that a topical book, a novel with a purpose, survives the occasion for which it was designed. "Uncle Tom" is as widely known to-day as it was sixty years ago, and its sale has probably surpassed that of any work of fiction ever published.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was begun as a serial in the National Era on June 5th, 1851, and completed on April 1st, 1852. Mrs. Stowe received the modest sum of $300 for its serial publication. Before it had run its course she signed a contract with John P. Jewett, a young Boston publisher, to bring it out in book form. This contract was dated March 13, 1852, and the book was published on March 20. By the terms of this contract, the author was to receive a 10 per cent. royalty on every copy sold. Her first cheque was for $10,000. She might have had half profits, but the future of the book was considered so doubtful, and the risk in its publication so great, that her husband and other advisers urged her to accept the 10 per cent. offer, and incur no risk. Prof. Stowe is reported to have said: "It is a very unpopular subject, and I doubt if the book has a large sale, so shall be abundantly satisfied if you get enough out of it to buy a new silk dress."

It has been estimated that over a million copies have been sold in the United States, and over a million and a half in Great Britain and the colonies. It has been translated forty times, and we may safely estimate that in all three million copies of the book have been sold. If Mrs. Stowe had received one cent per copy on this enormous circulation of her book, she would have had a modest fortune, but she actually received but little.

The Empire Builders.

M. M. C., Ottawa.—In answer to "C. I. H.," Ottawa, relative to author of short poem entitled "Empire Builders," and the verses thereof, the author is supposed to be Mr. Campbell, of Toronto, and the verses run thus:

Out o' the camp with the morning
into a world of snow,
Dragging a chain in the sun or the rain
This is the life we know.

Up to our hips in the muskegs
Into the swamps and hills,
Swinging the axe with aching backs
Sweating with fever and chills.

Survey or 'struction party,
Setting the transit true
Making the grade with the pick an' the spade,
This is the work we do.

Out of the bar or the barracks,
Doing the work of a mule,
Only a chump to be kept on the jump,
Bossed by a kid out of school

Building the glorious Empire,
Us, a disorganized mob,
Laying the rails for the easier trails,
Boys, it's a whale of a job.

English Consignments.

History in Rhyme.

H. E. P., St. Anne de Bellevue. — In your column for November 5th last you published in answer to a request the "History of England in Rhyme." As a child, my father used to recite some lines to me, but there was another version which he could not call to mind. Seeing these lines, I sent them to him, but they are not the lines he had tried so often to recall, but he gave me the beginning of the verses, and asked if I would try to get them. They are:

"Julius Caesar from Rome first invaded our land,
Whose armies the Britons strove hard to withstand,
But the Romans subdued them with little delay,
And for five hundred years did over them sway.

The Saxons were then by the Britons invited
To drive out the Scots, whom their fears had excited,
But, being the strongest, the land they divided
Into seven small kingdoms, in which they resided.

I am an old Devonian. My father is still in Devon, and he wonders if W. H. St. John, N.B., is an old class-mate of his.

Ans.—Hame, 219 Madison avenue, N. Y. City. Office, 23 Wall Street, New York City.

Were Circulated in Canada.

F. D., Montreal—I would like to know if these coins are of any value: Penny, on one side, Hibernia, 1805; on the other side, Georgius III., D. G. Rex; Irish Half-penny token; on one side a bust; on the other side a woman sitting holding out a scale, 1823; American. One five-cent silver piece I got somewhere in Canada; on the face the letter M, it half-hooped as brooch; on the back of the United States of America, 1812; American Penny, Banque Du Peuple, Montreal; Un Sou, Bas Canada; Canadian French penny, Napoleon III., 1856; half-penny, Napoleon III., 1855; French. One Centime, Vittorio Emanuele, 1863; one half-Sheasame, 1867; French.

Ans.—The coins described are recognized. They are common, without exception. The American as well as Canadian, were circulated in Canada.

Who is An Agent?

H. L., Black Lake, Que.—Kindly advise us in the following matter: In speaking of the word "agent," I claim that it refers to any party that undertakes to transact business for another party, and, for example, am taking the cause of the argument. I said, or called, Messrs. H. & A. Allan agents; that is, steamship agents, and was told that one could not call them agents, since they owned the company, and were, therefore, doing business for themselves. I claim that, in that they contract to convey goods for a party from one place to another, they are agents of that party. Is not the very meaning of the word derived from Latin and translated from, a or ab, meaning, by, gerro or gero, to carry. I am very rusty on my Latin, and see that the former of the two verbs is incorrect, or think it is. The opposition claims that an agent is one who solicits business for another. This claim I recognize, but say my own is equally right, but they will not recognise my version at all. To strengthen their argument they ask if I would call the C. P. R. and G. T. R. agents, and I reply that in my sense of the word they are railway agents. Please definitely state which is wrong, and put it beyond doubt, to prevent further argument, that is all for one or all for the other; though I think you will favor both sides.

Ans.—A railway company is the agent or mandatory of the shipper or other person for whom it transacts business.

Church Standing.

A Reader, Lachute.—To settle a dispute, will you kindly answer the following questions: 1. Is Sherbrooke, Que., a city? 2. Which is the strongest denomination in point of numbers in Canada, Methodist or Presbyterian?

Ans.—1. Sherbrooke is a city. 2. By the last census the Methodists numbered 916,886, and the Presbyterians 842,442.

The Violet-Crowned City.

T., Montreal.—Why is Athens called the Violet-Crowned City?

Ans.—It was so called by Aristophanes. Ion (a violet) was the legendary ancestor of the Greeks. Athens was thus the Ion-crowned city, or King Ion's city. Ionia (Greece in Asia Minor) and the Ionian Isles were named after the race of Ion.

The Origin of Toady.

J. P., Arnprior, Ont.—What is the origin of the epithet toady as applied to a sycophantic person?

Ans.—It is a corruption of toad-eater, which in turn is a corruption of the Spanish word todita. When the Castillians conquered the Moors, the victors made many of the vanquished their servants and they proved very servile and anxious to please. The master called such a servant mi todita (my factotum).

The Sear and Yellow Leaf.

Alec, Montreal.—Where does the expression, "In the sear and yellow leaf," as applied to old age, come from? A friend tells me that she saw it attributed to Shakespeare in a recent New York paper. I do not remember it.

Ans.—Yes; it is from Shakespeare, but it is not in the form usually given, and is in the middle of a passage. Macbeth, speaking to one of his officers, says:

Seyton! I am sick at heart
When I behold—Seyton, I say!—this push
Will cheer me ever, or disseat me now.
I have liv'd long enough: my way of life
Is fall'n into the sear, the yellow leaf;
And that which should accompany old age,
As honor, love, obedience, troops of friends,
I must not look to have, but in their stead
Curses, not loud, but deep, mouth-honor, breath,
Which the poor heart would fain deny, and dare not Seyton.

Old Silver Only.

G. A. P., Crysler, Ont. — Enclosed please find a rubbing of a coin which I have in my possession. It is silver, and is about as thick as an American silver dollar. There is also wording on the edge, as on the back of coin. Could you let me know what the coin is, its face value, and what I could get for it?

Ans.—France, Louis XV., 1730, ecu, or crown, minted at Perpignan (closed in 1837). Very common. Worth silver value only.

ORANGE WEEK!

FORTY-FIVE Carloads Coming—Are California's Finest—The "SUNKIST" Kind—ON SALE ALL NEXT WEEK!

Attractive Prices and Special Displays of "SUNKISTS" At All Dealers

Forty-five carloads of famous "Sunkist" oranges—more than 18,000 boxes—are speeding eastward by fast freight, direct from the orange groves of California.

They will be here, on sale at every dealer's next Monday morning. The sale will continue through the week. It will be the biggest affair of its kind in history.

Last year's "Sunkist" Orange Sale was such a huge success, and everybody bought so liberally, that your local dealers were simply swamped with business. They were hardly able to supply the demand. We therefore suggest that you place your order for "Sunkist" oranges as early next week as possible. Then you will be certain of being supplied.

Every orange in every box is sound, tree-ripened and hand-picked—the most luscious, healthful fruit on the market. For "Sunkist" oranges are California's choicest crop.

In "Sunkist" wrappers you get tree-ripened, hand-picked oranges of the most acceptable variety. Every orange is picked by a gloved hand. They are shipped by fast freight, and always reach your table in prime condition. Being seedless, fibreless and thin-skinned, there is but very little waste. They are the most economical oranges you can buy. Each one is packed in a germ-proof tissue paper wrapper and bears the label "Sunkist."

All Physicians Advise Oranges

Physicians and food experts advise people to eat more oranges. We are a nation of meat eaters. And in winter, especially, the system gets clogged, causing congestion, colds, fevers, etc. Those who eat fresh, wholesome fruit freely, seldom require medical treatment.

Serve Them for Breakfast and in Salads and Desserts

Oranges are the ideal breakfast fruit and "between meals" lunch. For salads, they are indispensable. Orange ices, sherbets, puddings, etc., are very popular and delicious desserts.

"Sunkist" by the Box

"Sunkist" oranges reach you in such perfect condition, fresh from the orange groves, they will keep for weeks. Your dealer can make you a handsome saving if you order a box or half box. They are cheaper than table apples, and the greatest health food.

Save Your "Sunkist" Wrappers

By saving your "Sunkist" orange wrappers you can easily secure a full set of genuine Rogers orange spoons, dessert spoons and fruit knives. The patterns shown here are our new 1911 styles, designed exclusively for us. They are as attractive and stylish as money can buy. All are Rogers quality, standard A-No. 1 plate and are fully guaranteed by the maker. No advertising appears on any of our premiums.

CHILDREN'S STORIES

THE SENIOR PRIZES.

A Faithful Dog.

(First Prize.)

One bright autumn day my brother was playing on the stairs. He was going between the steps and the jumping down. He got his head caught between two steps was hanging there when our dog saw him, and knew there was something the matter. He went to the door and started to bark.

There was a visitor in the house with my mother. The visitor heard the dog barking and thought the dog was going mad. The visitor and my mother went to the door, and as they opened it the dog caught my mother by the dress and pulled her towards the stairs.

My mother knew there was something wrong so she found out there was. As soon as they looked outside they saw my brother and took him down.

This is only one of our dog's brave acts.

Carlo's Rescue.

(Second Prize.)

Mrs. Smith was a very tidy woman who lived in a pretty little village with her only child, Jack, who thought she was too tidy because she would not let him have a dog.

Jack was sitting on his verandah one summer morning talking to his friend George, who had a lovely collie dog named Carlo, which was lying at their feet.

"I wish mother would let me have a dog," said Jack, looking longingly at the collie.

"I don't see why she won't," replied George, "father thinks they are useful."

In the afternon Jack decided he would go fishing. On the way to the river he passed George's house. Carlo was lying on the door mat, but at the sight of his friend he got up and ran after him.

He was sitting on the bank netting Carlo, when his line caught in a branch at the edge of the river. While he was untangling it, he suddenly slipped and fell into the water. He could not swim and as he was coming up for the last time, Carlo jumped in and soon succeeded in swimming to the shore with him. He then started barking so loudly that a gentleman who was passing came to the rescue and soon had Jack safe at home.

The next morning Jack's mother called him and said that as soon as he liked he could get a dog.

A Jeweller's Kindness.

(Third Prize.)

A little girl was out for a walk one day in the autumn. As she had walked quite a distance, she felt tired. She thought if she looked in some of the shop windows it might help her to forget her weariness. As she turned round, something shining in one corner of a jeweller's window, suddenly attracted her attention. This was a little gold ring. Oh, how she longed to have it! Her admiration for it was so great that she went in the store and asked the price of it, because she wanted it so much. The man answered politely, "Two dollars, my little maid."

Great was her disappointment for she knew she had only one dollar and twenty-five cents.

When the jeweller saw how disappointed the little girl looked, he said kindly: "Well, my little girl, how would you like it for one dollar and twenty-five cents?" She answered joyfully, "Oh, thank you ever so much, I will take it! It is very kind of you."

Now don't you think the jeweller would gain more by pleasing the little girl, than waiting for some one to purchase it for two dollars

THE JUNIOR PRIZES.

A Noble Deed.

(First Prize.)

One day some boys were walking along the river's edge at the foot of a steep bank. They went to the top of the hill to take some pictures, when they remembered that they had left their coats at the foot of it. They started to run down to get them, and one of the boys, whose name was Frank, slipped and took hold of an electric cable, which happened to be temporarily stretched about two feet from the ground, and received a shock which burnt all his arm. Seeing the flash another boy named Joe ran to help Frank and caught hold of the cable with both hands. The circuit being complete, he was burnt just like a coal and thrown fifty feet away.

I think this was not only a kind deed, but a very noble one, to give one's life in trying to save another. It is really true and only happened last year.

Agnes Coffrey, aged 12, 4188 St. Catherine street, Westmount.

A True Hero.

(Second Prize.)

On getting the Star on Saturday and seeing such successful stories, I thought I would send this short, but true story, which I hope to see printed.

One morning when my aunt and I were at the depot seeing off a newly married couple, we witnessed a very brave deed. Before the train had arrived for their departure, and the crowd were showering them with rice, a girl suddenly fell across the track when the train was close upon her. Seeing her close approach to death the crowd all turned their backs to the expected scene. With great presence of mind, Mr. Hugh Kippen jumped from the crowd and seized her just as the train went by.

He received a gold medal, presented by the Mayor of Cornwall.

A Dog Hero.

(Third Prize.)

I am very fond of the stories written on the children's page, and want to see what I can do.

There lived a woman in England named Mrs. Hosdon. She was coming over to Canada. She had with her a big dog called Rupo Bruno. One day her servant was out on the deck with a small child in her hands; when the child fell from her hands into the water. The dog was with her when the accident happened. When the dog saw the danger he jumped quickly into the water. Then he caught hold of the child's dress and kept it afloat. The servant saw the child was safe. So she went for the sailors and told them what had happened. The sailors let down a little boat with one of the sailors in it. Then the dog was taken up with the child and the child was saved. Don't you think he was worthy to be called Hero. I hope this will be worth reading and that I may see it printed in your Daily Star.

Recipe for 16 Ounces of Cough Syrup.

No Better Remedy at any Price, Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It loosens up the jaded appetite, and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial troubles, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequaled remedy for whooping cough.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparation will not work in this recipe.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Too Much Economy.

(By Doris Webb.)

There was once a little girl who was so economical that she would not buy a new winter hat. Her grandmother and her uncles and her aunts came to her and said: "My dear, you cannot wear a summer hat all winter."

But the little girl said: "I would rather put my pennies in my little bank than buy a foolish winter hat which I do not need at all."

So she converted all her dimes into pennies and dropped them into her little red bank, one by one. And every day when her sister sat before the mirror trying on her new winter hat at sixteen different angles, the little girl who is the much-misguided heroine of this story—her name was Matilda—would shake her head and her bank and say, "Sister Genevieve don't you think it's better to hear this pleasant sound of clinking pennies than to see yourself in a new winter hat?"

Sister Genevieve didn't think so at all, but she was too busy studying the droop of her feather to answer. Sister Genevieve was not altogether vain, but she rather liked to look her best.

One day the mother of these two little girls looked up from a letter she was reading and said, "My dear children, your godmother is coming to make us a visit."

"How lovely!" said Genevieve: "I will go to meet her at the station and wear my new winter hat."

"And will you go, Matilda?" asked the mother. "I think your godmother would be pleased to have you."

"Well, mother," said Matilda, "I hardly like to go to the station in my old summer hat."

So Genevieve went to the station and met her godmother, and the godmother thought: "What a pretty, charming girl she is in that pretty new hat!"

So on the way home she said: "Genevieve, my dear, if I should happen to turn out a fairy godmother, and should offer to give you anything you wished for, what would you choose?"

And without thinking a moment Genevieve said: "I should ask, godmother, for another new winter hat."

The godmother sighed. "I am afraid that is not a very sensible wish, my dear," she said. "I will see what your sister Matilda will choose."

The godmother was a little sorry that Matilda had not come to the station to meet her, but when she found what a pleasant, kindly girl she was she felt encouraged, and asked her the same question she had asked Genevieve.

"I think, godmother," replied Matilda, "I should choose to have all the pennies in my bank doubled."

The godmother sighed. "I am afraid that is not a very sensible wish, my dear," she said. "What do you suppose pennies are for?"

"Why, to put in banks," replied Matilda.

"Not altogether," replied the godmother.

"To buy hats with of course," said Genevieve, without hesitation.

"Not altogether that, either," replied the godmother. "Pennies are to make people happy—yourself and other people. It is quite right to put some of them in banks for a rainy day, and it is quite right to spend some of them on hats to look pretty in, so that you can go to the station to meet godmothers, but some of them should be spent in sensible things, and some of them should be spent in having a good time, and some of them should be spent in making other people happy. In themselves they are worth nothing, and it is hardly worth while making a collection of them, since they are not pretty and since they are not particularly interesting being all very much alike."

"I think you are quite right, godmother," said Matilda and Genevieve both together.

"In that case, my dears, I think I will give you both your wishes," said the godmother. And, taking a small wand out of her handbag she waved it three times in the air. There was a sudden sharp sound—and what do you think caused it? Matilda's bank, being suddenly filled with a double number of pennies, had burst open, and the pennies were rolling in every direction. And on the bed was another hatbox next to Genevieve's.

"What a lovely lot of pennies!" cried Matilda. "I think I will divide them into five even heaps and spend them as you suggested, godmother." (Matilda was an orderly soul).

"And what a beautiful new hat!" cried Genevieve, lifting from a hatbox a lovely creation made of feathers. "I think I will give it to Matilda!"

"My dears," said the godmother, "I felt all along you were nice, reasonable girls. Let us go down to luncheon."

WINTER EVENING GAMES

Cat and Mouse.

This is always a favorite. All players form a ring, joining hands, except one called the Mouse, whom they inclose within the circle, and one who is on the outside who represents the cat. They then dance around, raising their arms at intervals. The cat watches the chance to spring into the circle at one side, and the mouse dashes out at the other—public sympathy being with the mouse, his or her movements are aided when possible. When the cat is in the circle, the players lower their arms so as to keep the enemy prisoner. The cat goes around meekly, crying "meow," while the rest dance around her. With a sudden "meow!" she tries to break through any weak place in the chain of hands.

As soon as she escapes she tries to catch the mouse, who runs for safety into the ring again, hotly pursued. If the cat is so near as to follow the mouse into the ring, before her entrance can be prevented, or if she catches the mouse outside the circle, the mouse must pay a forfeit. Two more players are then named by the cat and mouse to succeed them.

ANIMAL STORY

A Cat's Sympathy.

We generally have a pet of some kind in our house. Nearly always it is a cat or a kitten, though we have had dogs, too. Our present pets are two kittens, one grey and one tortoise shelled. They are dear little things, but very mischievous, and have some of the cutest little tricks.

One day my big doll fell on the floor. Torty, as we call the tortoise-shelled one, immediately ran and lay down by the doll. Probably she thought it was a live baby, for she licked its face, lovingly. Just to see what she would do, I moved the doll. Torty went after it and repeated the same thing as before, and put her paw over it in a protecting way. That is only one of the many acts the kitten does. Sometime in the future I hope to tell you other things, which are quite as cute.

Sermon for the Readers of the "Star"

GOD'S BUILDING.

(By Rev. A. Wylie Mahon, B.D., St. Andrews-by-the-Sea.)

"Ye are God's building."—1 Cor. 3: 9.

Life is represented as a building. This is one of St. Paul's favorite metaphors. It occurs over and over again in his writings, but in no place does he develope the thought so fully as in this passage. We are all character-builders, and the Apostle warns us to go about the matter in a wise and thoughtful way, that the result of our labors may be something divine, a temple for God to dwell in.

We are told that there is only one foundation for a good life. If these characters of ours are to possess in any large measure the elements of beauty and usefulness they must rest in Christ. Other foundation of a good and useful life can no man lay. If we are to win true and lasting success in the world our lives must be in sympathetic touch with Jesus, which means in the widest sense of the terms in sympathy with everything that is good, in sympathy with high and pure and noble ideals of life.

We hear a good deal to-day about success, about men who are making life a success at home or abroad. If St. Paul could be interviewed on this subject he would say, as he did to the Corinthians, that true success always begins in coming into sympathy with Christ's ideals, into sympathy with everything that is good, everything that makes for righteousness and heaven—in grasping the thought that two worlds are ours, that the making of a life is more important than the making of a living. The person who gets this larger grasp of life, this wider outlook, possesses the more essential qualification for making the most of life.

As the foundation of a good character is Christ, so the plan of a good life is divine. An altogether human plan of life is always poor and defective. Man cannot shut God out of his life without realizing sooner or later that—

"He builds too low
Who builds beneath the skies."

It is only when life is fashioned after a merely human plan that we can say with Matthew Arnold:

"Our vaunted life is one long funeral.
Men dig graves with bitter tears

When life is fashioned after a divine plan it is not a sad, dreary, desolate thing, full of dead hopes and bitter tears, but full of hopes which never disappoint us, and full of joys which last for evermore.

In order to be successful in this work of character-building we must follow the divine plan which God has given us in His Word. When the chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever — when our grand aim is to develop the divine within us, to bring our lives into harmony with God's plans and purposes—when our grand aim is to help those about us to bear life's burdens and to do life's work, we know that the Christ-ideal has dawned upon us, and that the plan of the great Architect of our life-building has become our own.

We cannot think of life as a building without thinking of the materials which we employ in this work. The sweetest of our American poets has said:

"For the structure which we raise,
Time is with materials filled,
Our to-days and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build"

Everything which comes to us in that strange little world of thought within us, everything which comes into our affections and emotions and aspirations and wills—and everything in the great world without us which touches us and influences us, and helps or hinders us, is the material which we make use of in this life-building which is to outlast the ages.

We are reminded by St. Paul that some of the materials which we make use of are valuable and beautiful. He calls them gold and silver and precious stones. The gold and silver and precious stones of life embrace every good thought which comes to us from the books we read, every good influence which comes into our life from the friendships and fellowships of life, every good emotion awakened in our hearts by the manifold manifestations of God, every victory which the higher self gains over the lower, every joy which gladdens our hearts and brightens our days, and every sorrow which enables our spirits to climb nearer to God, and to get a larger, clearer vision of divine things—all these things are the gold and silver and precious stones which we put into our life-building, and which make our characters strong and useful and beautiful.

In Henry M. Stanley's Autobiography we learn how he, a workhouse boy in Wales, ran away, and after the most cruel hardships reached the United States, where he found Mr. Stanley, his foster-father, whose name he took. Scarcely anything in this most interesting book impresses us more deeply than the method adopted by Mr. Stanley of influencing for good the life of this poor forsaken lad who found himself friendless in a strange land. In the most beautiful way he taught the boy to understand his Bible better, and to grasp a large meaning of prayer. He taught him how to study and how to live. One day when they were travelling on a steamboat on the Mississippi Mr. Stanley found the boy listening to the unprofitable talk of a company of topers. Linking his arm in that of the lad he led him away, saying as he did so: "All the babble of these topers, if boiled down, would not give a drachm of useful knowledge." In this way the gold and silver and precious stones of life were worked into the character of this boy and helped to make him the great man he afterwards became, the man whom the world loved to honor.

We are reminded that some of the materials which we employ are not of this beautiful, valuable kind. They are represented by the wood and hay and stubble things which are not very valuable at any time, and which are of no value at all at the great testing day which comes to every life, when every man's work shall be made manifest.

How much there is which enters into almost every life which is of little value in the development of the higher and heavenly qualities of the soul, things not wrong in themselves but comparatively worthless, which cannot give a single touch of strength or beauty to any character. One who was striving to live a good and useful life was greatly troubled about this matter, about the poor worthless things which seemed to fill up so much of his life. At the close of each day he spent a little while in thinking about the experiences through which he had passed, about what he had put into his life that day which he felt might live on into a bright, beautiful immortality, and about what he felt must perish. This attempt to keep the worthless elements out of his life, the things which could not help him into larger life, was the means of transfiguring his life, of filling him with the Christ-like spirit of helpfulness.

In the ordinary course of life there are a great many things which we think and say and do which belong to the wood and hay and stubble of life, things which are not just wrong in themselves, but which are comparatively worthless in the development of a good character. The question often arises in every thoughtful mind, is it worth while to spend this little day of earthly life in this way, is it wise to employ in our life-building these poor materials, when so many things that are valuable and beautiful are within our reach?

Some of the materials which enter into life are worse than worthless, worse than wood and hay and stubble. They are represented in this passage as the things which defile life, which destroy that part of us in which God loves to dwell. In the Autobiography of Stanley the great explorer tells us of the defiling things which got into his life to make his character poorer than it might have been. After enlisting as a soldier in the American Civil War he says that modesty and tenderness were shocked by intercourse with men who had cast off sweet manners with their civilian clothes, and abandoned themselves to the rude style of military life. A host of influences were at work sapping moral scruples. He lost out of his life some of the better things and sank down to a lower plane of existence. After starting into the interior of Africa on that wonderful expedition in search of Livingstone he began to think about what he had lost out of his life through too close contact with the world. He betook himself again to his Bible that he might recover himself before it was too late.

Let us take care that nothing enters into our lives except what is valuable and enjoyable. Let us strive to "Make the house where God may dwell.

Beautiful, entire and clean.
"Else our lives are incomplete.

Standing in these walls of time,
Broken stairways, where the feet
Stumble as they seek to climb.

"Build to-day, strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base;
And ascending and secure
Shall to-morrow find its place.

"Thus alone can be attained
To those turrets, where the eye
Sees the world as one vast plain,
And one boundless reach of sky."

AN ANNIVERSARY OF METHODISM.

Centenary Methodist Church.

Centenary Methodist Church will celebrate its anniversary to-morrow. It was built in 1891, and its erection was due largely to the efforts of three Ministers. The ground was secured during the pastorate of the Rev. J. B. Saunders, whilst the money was secured and the church begun by the Rev. John Scanlon. It was completed during the time th eRev. J. Tallman was pastor.

At the services to-morrow the Rev. E. D. Hart, B.A. of Dominion Square Church will preach in the morning, and the Rev. P. Boshart, B.D., of Mountain Street Church, in the evening.

WIDOWED MOTHER OF NEW BORN BABE GETS PRACTICAL AID

Donations of Over $250 Have Been Received and Diet Dispensary Nurse in Charge.

Donations for the relief of Mrs. Wells, the unfortunate woman whose seven year old husband died of tuberculosis on Friday last, five hours before her child was born, leaving her with her baby and another child of 18 months in destitute circumstances, total up to noon to-day, considerable in excess of $250.

This money is being turned over to the Star to Miss DeWitt, of 294 Peel street, president of the Diet Dispensary, whose nurse has taken care of the young widow since the birth of her child on Friday last.

The immediate needs of the little family will be relieved under the supervision of the Diet Dispensary's officers, who will decide on the best manner of applying what remains after these are disposed of.

BISHOP CARMICHAEL MEMORIAL CHURCH.

The Bishop Carmichael Memorial Church," St. Denis Boulevard, is making rapid progress towards completion. The bricklaying work on church and tower is finished, and the roof is now being slated. The interior is also receiving attention and there is every prospect of the church being completed by Easter.

The Church is situated at the corner of St. Zotique and Labelle streets, in St. Alban's Parish and will be in charge if the Rev. H. E. Horsey, B.D.

Being a memorial, it is desired that the church may be free of debt when opened.

Irish Jarveys Enter Protest.

The Irish Jarvey, with his brogue his good humor, and his jaunting-car, is one of Dublin's most picturesque figures. The advent of the motor taxi-cab threatens to consign him to oblivion. The other week, however, a deputation from Dublin waited on the Lord Lieutenant to protest against the introduction of motor-cars. Mr. Field, M.P., introducing the deputation, declared that the Irish jaunting-car was a distinctive feature of Irish life, and that all visitors to Dublin wished to drive in a jaunting-car.

Rev. Mr. Troop Will Speak.

The Rev. G. Osborne Troop, Pastor of St. Martin's Church, will speak at the Men's Meeting, next Sunday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock, at the Young Men's Christian Association, Fairmount avenue, Branch. Mr. Troop will take as his subject, "He must Reign." All men are heartily invited.

Special Notice.

The Canadian Pacific Irrigation Company has placed an order with the Canada Cycle and Motor Company for automobiles for the use of the engineers in the extension of the irrigation ditches in the West. Some half-dozen cars of the "Thirty" type will be bought.

These cars are especially selected on account of their strength and ability to withstand the rough usage that they necessarily encounter in this class of work. They have to be sent afield over the prairie where there are no roads and where old buffalo trails and badger holes lay in wait everywhere, usually invisible to the driver. The so-called "soap holes" are likewise very dangerous to driving.

This is not the first order from the Irrigation Company, as they already have a number of Russell cars in commission. It is said to be the only car that will stand the strain of the work.

PANAMA CANAL MESSAGE ROUSES THE BRITISH PRESS

Sir Edward Grey Called Upon to Explain Apparent Indifference Regarding Fortification.

Special to The Montreal Star.

London, January 14. — Some English newspapers seem to be troubled by the announcement that President Taft has addressed a special message to Congress asking for the immediate appropriation of $5,000,000, for the fortification of the Panama Canal.

The "Daily Graphic" says: "It is not a little remarkable that, although the project has been talked about for some time past and the proposal now made was foreshadowed in the presidential message at opening of Congress, we have heard nothing of representations on behalf of Great Britain to the Government at Washington. Are we to understand that Sir Edward Grey has been dumb in the face of this scandalous proposal to trample on solemn treaties? President Taft probably argues that silence gives consent or betokens timidity. Perhaps Sir Edward Grey will have the goodness to explain. It was owing to similar silence on his part that the Bosnian affair developed into so serious an international crisis."

German View Different.

Berlin, January 14.—Dealing with the question of the fortification of the Panama Canal by the United States Government, the Post, in an editorial article, says America undoubtedly is entitled to fortify under existing international law, and that fortification is imperative, because the canal would inevitably be the chief object of attack in the event of war.

STAGE IN GENERAL

Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" is shortly to be presented in Paris, where strangely enough it is to be seen after its production in Russia, England and America. The role of Tyltyl will be played by M. Delphin, and that of Mytyl by Mlle. Bleu.

"Old Heidelberg," which has been revived by the repertoire company at The New Theatre, New York, is packing the Odeon, Paris, where Andre Antoine has exhibited his managerial perspicacity by again bringing forth this delightful work. The play has met with as enthusiastic a reception on the hen it was first Antoine. A long tion. The most sanguine hopes of their admirers have been exceeded by the marked success of "When Sweet Sixteen" recently produced and stamped as one of the features of the present theatrical season. Hobart has written a coherent story, a rarity in a musical attraction, and he has filled his plot with keen epigram and most amusing comedy lines and situations. To this setting Victor Herbert has composed some of his most charming melodies, and both writer and composer are finding themselves overwhelmed with congratulations, in having joined forces. "When Sweet Sixteen" is shortly to be presented at a prominent Broadway theatre for an extended run.

American singers are apparently popular in Berlin this season. One evening, not long ago, Mme. Edyth Walker, who is to make her debut shortly on the London variety stage, sang at the Philharmonic with the co-operation of Bronislaw Hubermann, the violinist, and Emil Sauer, the pianist. Myrtle Elvyn gave her first Berlin concert of this season about the same time with the Philharmonic orchestra. Prior to this Ida Reman, known as the "American Yvette Guilbert," gave a recital in Bechstein Saal; and Miss Louise Mackay, the New York contralto, gave a concert with the Cologne Musical Society. Howard Well, of Chicago, is an American pianist who is a favorite with Berlin critics. Putnam Griswold, the American basso, is winning laurels in concert.

'London has among its holiday attractions "The Blue Bird" and "Peter Pan," both fairy tales, and "Alice in Wonderland," "Chicks in the Wood" and "The Piper." The last is being played at the St. James Theatre. Among the old-fashioned pantomimes are "Cinderella" at the Lyceum, and "Jack and the Beanstalk" at the Drury Lane.

On New Year's Day Sam Bernard in "He Came From Milwaukee" broke the record for business at the Majestic Theatre, Brooklyn. Before leaving New York, he will play a return engagement there.

THE STAGE

Mme. Sara Bernhardt is easily the most remarkable personage of the modern stage. At a time of life when most people would be resting in the ease of their parlor or library, this great actress and wonderful woman, is doing work such as no other artist on the stage dreams of attempting. Characters, juvenile and mature, covering the widest range, and all calling for the most strenuous exertion, are given with all the vigor of youth. Nine performances a week with a change of bill at each is the task this artist who refuses to grow old accomplishes right along. Of all places on this side of the Atlantic, Bernhardt secures in Montreal the most responsive audience. This is due to the fact that actress and audience know the same language.

The New Theatre, New York, announces that, following its policy of occasionally presenting plays in which stars may appear as "guest artists" with the regular company, the directors invited Miss Marie Tempest, the English actress, as such a guest artist, to play the role of Becky Sharp in a revival of "Vanity Fair." Miss Tempest accepted the invitation.

"Vanity Fair" was written by Cosmo Gordon-Lennox and Robert Hichens, and was presented in London ten years ago, with Miss Tempest in the same part which she plays at the New Theatre. While the play, which is, of course, a dramatization of Thackeray's novel of the same name, achieved instant success, it had never been seen in this country. About the time that this version was produced abroad, Mrs. Fiske appeared in the dramatization of the same novel made by Laugdon Mitchell. The two dramas, however, are wholly dissimilar, their only common ground being Thackeray's famous book. Mrs. Fiske's play had its premiere in Montreal, and Marie Tempest, who is in New York with her version, spent her girlhood in Montreal as Miss Etherington.

LOCAL THEATRES

His Majesty's.

From the prolific pens of America's distinguished composer and playwright, Victor Herbert and George V. Hobart, comes a musical novelty to be presented at His Majesty's Theatre for next week, commencing with Monday evening's performance.

In the songplay "When Sweet Sixteen," the composer and librettist have hearkened to the plea of the amusement-seeking public which has tired of the so-called musical reviews and "musical comedies" with their long familiar "show-girls" and impossible "burlesque comedians," and more impossible stage business.

In "When Sweet Sixteen," Victor Herbert and Geo. V. Hobart decided to present to the public a dainty and coherent story, one that was really a comedy, but embellished with charming musical numbers and ensemble effects. The little songplay" is a novel one, yet it describes exactly the latest product of the distinguished musician and his associate playwright.

"When Sweet Sixteen" could be presented as a comedy, pure and simple, for it is a play in every sense of the word, skilfully evolved and of that high order of merit that appeals to the cultured and the intelligent of American playgoers. Embellished with Victor Herbert's most charming compositions the songplay has a double charm, and those who have heard it declare that it is as dainty as a piece of Dresden china.

The story is a satire on the newly-rich who desire foreign aristocratic alliances, and sparkles with Hobart's keen epigrams. He skilfully introduces scenes from "As You Like It," blending the comedy of Shakespeare with his own modern creations. To review the many successes with which the names of Victor Herbert and Geo. V. Hobart are associated would be to enumerate the greatest triumphs of the past decade. In the great triumph "Naughty Marietta," now running in New York, Victor Herbert was said to have written his best, but it is claimed that he has composed even more dainty numbers for "When Sweet Sixteen." One concerted number introducing sixteen of his famous song successes is likely to capture this city when it is heard.

"When Sweet Sixteen" will be presented here on a lavish scale by the Ever-Wall Co., Inc., and the cast includes such noted singers as Eugene Cowles, Harriet Standon, Florence Nash, Frances Gordon, Gipsy Dale, May McCabe, Louis Franklin, R. M. Dolliver, Scott Welsh, Harrison Brockbank and Frank Doane. Louis F. Gottschalk will preside over the augmented orchestra. The "Sweet Sixteen" chorus will also be a feature of the production and has been trained by Madame Verhoeven, for four years ballet director at Hammerstein's Opera House, New York.

Princess.

Of all the English actors of the present day few, if any, have more persistently and piteously afflicted playgoers with the Ibsenic agonies we call laughter" than that excellent comedian, Edward Compton Terry, who comes to the Princess next week.

He knows well how to excite their risibilities and that not only by sheer incongruity or surprise, but by the finer art which recognizes and acts upon the truth that the springs of laughter and of tears lie side by side in human nature, and should be within the range of an actor of genuine power let him belong to whatever school he may.

Mr. Terry has endeared himself to English theatregoers by an exuberant humour, a daring extravagance of fancy, tempered by a dry quaint sententious philosophy underlying his most farcical impersonations. He has held us before the audience so ludicrous a specimen of humanity, some creature made up of such odd whims and weaknesses that their laughter has arisen from sudden conception of superiority in themselves, at other times there has been a dry humor that has set the wit at work and won a more discriminating tribute, or as in the role of Richard Phenyl in "Sweet Lavender," actor and author have created a character with more humor and pathos blent in it than has been known since Dickens died.

If there were not a great deal of human nature in Mr. Terry's stage figures he would never have achieved the reputation he now enjoys, but his humanity is a humanity after its kind.

In the extended opportunities offered by the plays selected for presentation here it will be possible to see this distinguished comedian in a wide range of parts and they are one and all characterizations that he has made famous.

On Monday night "Sweet Lavender" will be the bill and as Dick Phenyl the bankrupt barrister with the big heart, the whimsical humor, Mr. Terry will charm us in this most popular of all Sir Arthur Pinero's plays. Tuesday as the Magistrate in the comedy of that name the slightly broader humor is certain to tickle the popular fancy. Wednesday afternoon, "Liberty Hall" will offer the chance to see Mr. Terry as the delightfully eccentric William Toddman. Wednesday evening, "The Toymaker of Nuremberg," a quaint and fanciful play by Austin Strong, will be followed by "Bardell vs. Pickwick," and all lovers of Dickens will find in the humor of Mr. Terry's Sergeant Buzfuz infinite delight. Thursday evening "Flander's Widow" a comedy by Sydney Valentine will be presented. Friday evening, "Liberty Hall will be repeated. Saturday afternoon, "The Toymaker of Nuremburg and in the evening another performance of "Sweet Lavender."

The company supporting Mr. Terry is the same that has been playing with him this season at Terry's Theatre, London and merit.

While it that this is Mr. Terr would no should fra this vi its his Lon in estate in globe tro pastime.

VICTOR HERBERT.

Orpheum.

In presenting "The Rolfonianos" at the Orpheum, next week, Mr. B. A. Rolfe has aimed to give vaudeville patrons the very best group of musicians available. Mr. Rolfe presented "The Leading Lady" some weeks ago to the Orpheum patrons and it met with great success. Howard & North will offer their comedy "Back to Wellington," which made a hit here last season. Jolly Wild and Company will offer "Mr. P. T. Barnum, Jr.," in which much clever dialogue is used. The Cadets de Gascogne will offer an operatic surprise in the quartette, which includes three prominent people of the Grand Opera world. Wormwood's monkeys, and other animals, will close this bill, and the management have arranged for a reception on the stage after the Saturday matinee for the little ones and their parents. Rita Redfield, a dainty little girl, will offer some impersonations that are sure to meet with approval. DeVelda and Zelda will offer their artistic equilibrist novelty, and Harris and Stevens will complete a very strong bill with their comedy and singing. The Orpheumoscope will offer the latest in motiography and the orchestra will play selections from "Alma, Where Do You Live?"

THE STAGE

Mme. Sara Bernhardt is easily the most remarkable personage of the modern stage. At a time of life when most people would be resting in the ease of their parlor or library, this great actress and wonderful woman, is doing work such as no other artist on the stage dreams of attempting. Characters, versatile and mature, covering the widest range, and all calling for the most strenuous exertion, are given with all the vigor of youth. Nine performances a week, with a change of bill at each is the task this artist who refuses to grow old accomplishes right along. Of all places on this side of the Atlantic, Bernhardt secures in Montreal the most responsive audience. This is due to the fact that actress and audience know the same language.

The New Theatre, New York, announces that, following its policy of occasionally presenting plays in which stars may appear as "guest artists" with the regular company, the directors invited Miss Marie Tempest, the English actress, as such a guest artist, to play the role of Becky Sharp in a revival of "Vanity Fair." Miss Tempest accepted the invitation.

"Vanity Fair" was written by Cosmo Gordon-Lennox and Robert Hichens, and was presented in London ten years ago, with Miss Tempest in the same part which she plays at the New Theatre. While the play, which is, of course, a dramatization of Thackeray's novel of the same name, achieved instant success, it had never been seen in this country. About the time that this version was produced abroad, Mrs. Fiske appeared in the dramatization of the same novel made by Laugdon Mitchell. The dramas, however, are wholly dissimilar, their only common ground being Thackeray's famous book.

Mrs. Fiske's play had its premiere in Montreal, and Marie Tempest, who is in New York with her version, spent her girlhood in Montreal as Miss Etherington.

LOCAL THEATRES

His Majesty's.

From the prolific pens of America's distinguished composer and playwright, Victor Herbert and George V. Hobart, comes a musical novelty to be presented at His Majesty's Theatre for next week, commencing with Monday evening's performance.

In the songplay "When Sweet Sixteen," the composer and librettist have hearkened to the plea of the amusement-seeking public which has tired of the so-called 'musical reviews' and "musical comedies" with their long familiar "show-girls" and impossible "burlesque comedians," and more impossible stage business.

In "When Sweet Sixteen," Victor Herbert and Geo. V. Hobart decided to present to the public a dainty and coherent story, one that was really a comedy, but embellished with charming musical numbers and ensemble effects. The little 'songplay' is a novel one, yet it describes exactly the latest product of the distinguished musician and his associate playwright.

"When Sweet Sixteen" could be presented as a comedy, pure and simple, for it is a play in every sense of the word, skilfully evolved and of that high order of merit that appeals to the cultured and the intelligent of American playgoers. Embellished with Victor Herbert's most charming compositions the songplay has a double charm, and those who have heard it declare that it is as dainty as a piece of Dresden china.

The story is a satire on the newly-rich who desire foreign aristocratic alliances, and sparkles with Hobart's keen epigrams. He skilfully introduces scenes from "As You Like It," blending the comedy of Shakespeare with his own modern creations. To review the many successes with which the names of Victor Herbert and Geo. V. Hobart are associated would be to enumerate the greatest triumphs of the past decade. In the great triumph "Naughty Marietta," now running in New York, Victor Herbert was said to have written his best, but it is claimed that he has composed even more dainty numbers for "When Sweet Sixteen." One concerted number introducing sixteen of his famous song successes is likely to capture this city when it is heard.

"When Sweet Sixteen" will be presented here on a lavish scale by the Ever-Wall Co., Inc., and the cast includes such noted singers as Eugene Cowles, Harriet Standon, Florence Nash, Frances Gordon, Gipsy Dale, May McCabe, Louis Franklin, R. M. Dolliver, Scott Welsh, Harrison Brockbank and Frank Doane. Louis F. Gottschalk will preside over the augmented orchestra. The "Sweet Sixteen" chorus will also be a feature of the production and has been trained by Madame Verbeyden, for four years ballet director at Hammerstein's Opera House, New York.

Princess.

Of all the English actors of the present day few, if any, have more persistently and personally afflicted playgoers with the pleasant qualities we call humor? Then that excellent comedian, Edward Terry, who comes to the Princess next week.

He knows well how to excite their risibilities and that not only by sheer incongruity or surprise, but by the finer art which recognizes and acts upon the truth that the springs of laughter and of tears lie side by side in human nature, and should be within the range of an actor of genuine power let him belong to whatever school he may.

Mr Terry has endeared himself to English theatregoers by an exuberant humor, a daring extravagance of fancy and withal a dry quaint sentiveness philosophy underlying his most farcical personifications. He has held up before the audience so ludicrous a specimen of humanity, some creature made up of such odd whims and weaknesses that their laughter has arisen from sudden conception of superiority in themselves, at other times there has been a dry humor that has set the wit at work and won a more discriminating tribute, or as in the role of Richard Phenyl in "Sweet Lavender," actor and author have created a character with more humor and pathos blent in it than has been known since Dickens died.

If there were not a great deal of human nature in Mr. Terry's stage figures he would never have achieved the reputation he now enjoys, but as humanity is a humanity after its kind.

In the extended opportunities offered by the plays selected for presentation here it will be possible to see this distinguished comedian in a wide range of parts and they are one and all characterizations that he has made famous.

On Monday night "Sweet Lavender" will be the bill and as Dick Phenyl, the bankrupt barrister with the big heart, the whimsical humor, Mr. Terry will charm as in this most popular of all Sir Arthur Pinero's plays. Tuesday as the Magistrate in the comedy of that name the slightly broader humor is certain to tickle the popular fancy. Wednesday afternoon, "Liberty Hall" will offer the chance to see Mr Terry as the delightfully eccentric William Toddman. Wednesday evening, "The Toymaker of Nuremberg," a quaint and fanciful play by Austin Strong, will be followed by "Bardell vs. Pickwick," and all lovers of Dickens will find in the humor of Mr. Terry's Sergeant Buzfuz infinite delight. Thursday evening "Flander's Widow," a comedy by Sydney Valentine will be presented. Friday evening, "Liberty Hall will be repeated, Saturday afternoon, "The Toymaker of Nuremburg and in the evening another performance of "Sweet Lavender."

The company supporting Mr. Terry is the same that has been playing with him this season at Terry's Theatre, London and it is one of exceptional merit.

While it has not been announced that this is a farewell tour in view of Mr. Terry's three score years, it would not be at all surprising if he should decide on the completion of this visit to divide his time between his London theatre and his pleasant estate in Surrey and do no more globe trotting except as a vacation pastime.

SARAH BERNHARDT
As L'Aiglon at His Majesty's, Jan. 23.

The Bernhardt Engagement.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt will open her engagement at His Majesty's Theatre on Monday night, January 23rd, in "L'Aiglon," by Edmond Rostand, in which she portrays the pathetic figure of the young Duc of Reichstag, who, with the son of Napoleon is living at the Austrian court, virtually a prisoner. He is alternately strong and weak; at one time the lust of conquests surges in his blood, at another, the taint of his Austrian ancestry makes him weak and vacillating. Last summer, Mme. Bernhardt, gave one act of "L'Aiglon" at the London Coliseum. She played each night to 7,000 people. The programme will be changed each day.

Victor Herbert Will Conduct.

Victor Herbert, the renowned composer, will come to Montreal to conduct the orchestra, next Monday evening at His Majesty's, for the first performance here of his latest musical success, "When Sweet Sixteen," which will be the attraction at the theatre next week.

Victor Herbert is undoubtedly the most noted composer of America and his works are in great demand and most popular all over the continent. His "Naughty Marietta" is the biggest success of the season in New York, and "When Sweet Sixteen" has equally scored in the cities where it has been presented, and it is to go to a leading Broadway theatre, New York, for an extended engagement, after its presentations in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto. The augmented orchestra to be used next week at His Majesty's for the performances of "When Sweet Sixteen" will include many prominent musicians from New York who are soloists of the Victor Herbert Symphony Orchestra and of the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra of New York.

Mlle. Camille Toulmin, the famous harp player is one of the soloists who will be heard with the orchestra next week.

Her Strenuous Career.

Harriet Standon, the young prima donna of Victor Herbert's new operetta, "Sweet Sixteen," has decided that she must be a manhater. In the first place she was married when she was sixteen and was soon disillusioned. A stock broker in the guise of friendship attempted to invest half of her fortune so that it would be double in a year. A real friend saved her from the get-rich-quick scheme, and that friend was a woman. After her release from the bonds of matrimony, Miss Standon again went on the stage and had such a disagreeable experience with a member of the company that when the role Victoria in "Sweet Sixteen" was offered to her she gladly took it in preference to the three other roles she was considering, because there were no chorus men in it, thus minimizing the objectionable masculine element.

Miss Standon adopted a stage career in the most accidental manner. She was educated in a convent and learned most of her vocal technique there. After leaving it she was always ready to sing and dance at the musicals or drawing room parties of the inner social set in which she moved in Chicago. At one of these musicals she was seen by Richard Carle, who predicted for her a brilliant career if she should decide to adopt the stage as a vocation. The young girl thought no more about it, but two months later Mr. Carle wrote to her offering her the lead in his new musical comedy which she had the utmost difficulty in persuading her family to allow her to accept. After this first engagement, or rather during it, she married and retired "for all time" from the footlights, only to return two years ago.

Her present role is the most satisfactory that she has ever sung, and she is able to do full justice to Victor Herbert's score.

George V. Hobart.

George V. Hobart, the author of the words and lyrics of the songplay "When Sweet Sixteen" (the music of which was written by Victor Herbert) which comes to His Majesty's Theatre next week, commencing with Monday evening's performance, has delighted thousands with his "Dinkelspiel" stories.

George Vere Hobart was born in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, and his career has been a varied and interesting one. His first active newspaper work was as managing editor of the "Sunday Scimitar," published at Cumberland, Maine. He went to Baltimore in 1896, and joined the staff of "The American," and his humorous columns attracted attention far and wide.

With the publication of his "Dinkelspiel" stories Hobart was in demand, and since 1899 he has continued to write the unique features of "Dinkelspiel" for the Hearst newspapers.

His piquant up-to-date slang, which is always amusing and never offensive, and in which class of writing he was followed by George Ade, includes such favorites as "Back to the Woods," "Down the Line," "Out for the Coin," and "I Need the Money," in which John Henry's adventures at the race track and elsewhere are racily told.

Of late years George Hobart has been a prominent figure in the writing of plays, farces and comedies. Among his successes may be mentioned "Broadway to Tokio," "After Office Hours," "Sally in Our Alley," "The Ham Tree," "The Sleepy King," "Morning Glory," "Mrs. Black is Back" (for May Irwin), "Smiling Island," "Peaches," "Coming Thro the Rye," "The Song Birds," "Mrs. Wilson" (for May Irwin), "Moonshine," "The Merry Widow and the Devil," "Wildfire," (written for Lillian Russell), "The Boys and Betty" (written for Marie Cahill), "The Candy Shop" and "The Yankee Girl," the present big success of Blanche Ring.

Much interest was evinced in theatrical circles when it was announced that George V. Hobart and Victor Herbert had joined forces in writing the songplay "When Sweet Sixteen," for it is the first time that these two men had collaborated in a musical production. The most sanguine hopes of their admirers have been exceeded by the marked success of "When Sweet Sixteen" recently produced and stamped as one of the features of the present theatrical season. Hobart has written a coherent story, a rarity in a musical attaction, and he has filled his plot with keen epigram and most amusing comedy lines and situations. To this setting Victor Herbert has composed some of his most charming melodies, and both writer and composer are finding themselves overwhelmed with congratulations, in having joined forces. "When Sweet Sixteen" is shortly to be presented at a prominent Broadway theatre for an extended run.

VICTOR HERBERT.
Composer of "When Sweet Sixteen," who will direct His Majesty's orchestra on Monday night.

Orpheum.

In presenting "The Rolfonianos" at the Orpheum, next week, Mr. B. A. Rolfe has aimed to give vaudeville patrons the very best group of musicians available. Mr. Rolfe presented "The Leading Lady" some weeks ago to the Orpheum patrons and it met with great success. Howard & North will offer their comedy "Back to Wellington," which made a hit here last season. Jolly-Wild and Company will offer, "Mr. P. T. Barnum, Jr.," in which much clever dialogue is used. The Cadets de Gascogne will offer an operatic surprise in the quartette, which includes three prominent people of the Grand Opera world. Wormwood's monkeys and other animals, will close this bill, and the management have arranged for a reception on the stage after the Saturday matinee for the little ones and their parents. Rita Redfield, a dainty little girl, will offer some impersonations that are sure to meet with approval. DeVelda and Zelda will offer their artistic equilibrist novelty, and Harris and Stevens will complete, a very strong bill with their comedy and singing. The Orpheumscope will offer the latest in motiography and the orchestra will play selections from "Alma, Where Do You Live?"

Royal.

The Kentucky Belles which will be the attraction at the Royal next Monday. The company will present as a first part "Slumming in Chinatown." Following this there is an olio contributed by the Martell family of eyclists, Joe Opp, in an up-to-date monologue, Le Belle Helene, in sensational dances; Hilda Partridge, in classical bronze poses, and Bill Colton and Jeane Darow in a talking and singing act of merit. Frank Rice, a Chinese impersonator and Charles Ralyea, character comedian, are also in the cast. The performance concludes with a comedy innovation called "Friends." It is said to be replete with surprises and unique features. Matinees as usual.

Lyric Hall.

The management have secured for next week three big acts, as well as a very fine programme of moving pictures.

A very fine biograph picture to be shown, is entitled, "When a man loves." Another innovation is presenting the Gaumont Graphic, or "A record of what important events have taken place during the last few weeks"; all depicted from the actual scenes in action. Another important film to be shown is "The Boy Scouts of America," and "Scenes with the North-West Mounted Police," as well as many other fine subjects. Heading the vaudeville will be "Loret and George" in their daring athletic feats; also "Will F. Hobart," versatile comedian in songs and humor and an accomplished dancer. Also Miss Caroline Pullan, a dainty character impersonator.

STAGE IN GENERAL

Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" is shortly to be presented in Paris, where strangely enough it is to be seen after its production in Russia, England and America. The role of Tyltyl will be played by M. Delphin, and that of Mytyl by Mlle. Bleu.

"Old Heidelberg," which has been revived by the repertoire company at The New Theatre, New York, is packing the Odeon, Paris, where Andre Antoine has exhibited his managerial perspicacity by again bringing forth this delightful work. The play has met with as enthusiastic a reception on the part of the public as when it was first played at the Theatre Antoine. A long run is prophesied for it.

The theatrical novelty in London at the moment is the Palladium, a large theatre which has just been opened for grand opera with seats as cheap as ten cents each. Walter Gibbons has expended fully $2,500,000 on the building alone. The auditorium seats 5,000 people, and has, besides a pit two large galleries with a span of 100 feet. The stage ash a width of 50 feet, and all parts of it may be seen from any part of the enormous hall. Thomas Beecham and his Grand Opera Company will open the house, presenting selections from "Lohengrin," "Tannhauser," "Carmen" and "Faust," in the best Covent Garden style.

"London has among its holiday attractions "The Blue Bird" and "Peter Pan," both fairy tales, and "Alice in Wonderland;" "Chicks in the Wood" and "The Piper." The last is being played at the St. James Theatre. Among the old-fashioned pantomimes are "Cinderella" at the Lyceum, and "Jack and the Beanstalk" at the Drury Lane.

American singers are apparently popular in Berlin this season. One evening, not long ago, Mme. Edyth Walker, who is to make her debut shortly on the London variety stage, sang at the Philharmonic with the cooperation of Bronislaw Hubermann, the violinist, and Emil Sauer, the pianist. Myrtle Elvyn gave her first Berlin concert of this season about the same time with the Philharmonic orchestra. Prior to this Ida Reman, known as the "American Yvette Guilbert," gave a recital in Bechstein Saal; and Miss Louise Mackay, the New York contralto gave a concert with the Cologne Musical Society. Howard Well, of Chicago, is an American pianist who is a favorite with Berlin critics. Putnam Griswold, the American basso, is winning laurels in concert.

On New Year's Day Sam Bernard in "He Came From Milwaukee" broke the record for business at the Majestic Theatre, Brooklyn. Before leaving New York, he will play a return engagement there.

GEO. H. MUNROE ONCE MORE IN THE LIMELIGHT

An Interesting Sketch of the Meteoric Financier

His "Munroe Marconi" Stock Has Resulted in Many Complications, Including Criminal Charges.

The United States Federal Grand Jury has presented two more indictments against George H. Munroe, former stock broker, of the firm of Munroe Brothers, of New York. The charge is for using the mails for the purpose of fraud by inducing small investors to put their money in the Marconi Wireless, Limited Co., of London and Canada, and also charging the making of a worthless mortgage by an officer of the Sovereign Realty Company, to secure a debt of $30,797 issued by Alexander A. Munroe. Mr. A. A. Munroe is said to be in Canada. Mr. George Munroe at once put up the necessary bonds to secure his freedom.

Georg Munroe has had a very spectacular career in the financial world. In 1894 he and his brother opened a haberdashery store on St. Catherine street in Montreal. When the mining craze spread over Canada the Munroe Brothers both young went into mining stocks. It was generally understood that they represented other parties whose ordinary business precluded their taking part in such enterprises.

The Munroes first burst on the financial horizon of New York in the spring of 1904, with the Boston and Montreal Consolidated Copper Company.

While George Munroe looked after the New York end, his brother Alexander cared for the Canadian end of the business. Then came the crash of the firm and its pet stock. In one day this stock dropped from $3.75 a share to fifty cents. The failure of the firm caused big losses to thousands of mining stock speculators.

While George Munroe was in the height of his career he took a carload of New York financiers to inspect his so-called British Columbia mining properties, and upon his return gave a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria to the party at a cost of $20,000. The inspection party travelled aboard James J. Hill's private car.

Cash for Wash Sales.

As a result of their operations Alexander H. Loomis, vice-president of the National City Bank, was forced to resign when it became known that he let the Munroes have $60,000 a day for "wash sales" purposes, and the firm of Farson, Leach and Co. was dissolved on account of the connection of A. B. Leach with the Munroes. They went through the bankruptcy court but in the mean time took up the sale of Marconi stocks.

There were three Marconi companies, but the English company disclaimed the Munroes, and the stock they sold became known to the Street as "Munroe Marconis." They sold Marconi under the name of Robinson & Robinson, and Horace G. Robinson, who supplied the information to the Government, was one of the nominal partners of the firm, at No. 80 Wall Street. He has been arrested several times in the United States, as has been his father, who also was supposed to represent the Marconi companies.

Then Went to Toronto.

The Munroes next appeared at No. 27 William street, as agents for a carpet sweeping device, but across the hall was the Arizona Amalgamated Mines Company, in which Senator John P. Jones and Stephen Dorsey, of Nevada, both of Star Route fame, were interested, and it developed that the Munroes were connected with that firm, too. As a result of a judgment of the late Senator Warner Miller, George H. Munroe was condemned to pay $25,000 or go to jail, and he paid.

In the fall of 1908 the Munroes appeared in Toronto, where, under the name of John D. Street & Co., they promoted various companies. They spent money lavishly as ever, but at all times George H. Munroe was the apparent head of the concern, though John D. Street seemed to think that he was the real as well as the titular head. As a result of newspaper publicity on the affairs of the Bartlett Mines, Limited, and the Berna Motors and Taxicab Companies, in which they had involved a former Minister of Education in Ontario, George H. Munroe and his fellow financiers left Toronto late one evening, a few months ago, and have not returned there since.

"Shoe Shine" Trust Plan Falls.

George H. Munroe turned up in New York shortly after his disappearance from Toronto, and tried to organize a "shoe shine" trust, but publicity spoiled the game. Then he got some reputable people interested in the Dominion Bankers' Corporation plan. He was assisted in presenting this enterprise by O. P. Dorman, who was said to be connected with a bucket shop for years.

CENTRAL STATION PROJECT UP TO RAILWAY MAGNATES

The question of providing a Central Terminal Railway depot for all traction companies tapping the city was taken up yesterday by the Board of Control, when a communication embodying the main features of the project was sent to each of the railway managers in the city. In their communication the controllers ask the opinion of the various managers concerning the feasibility of the project.

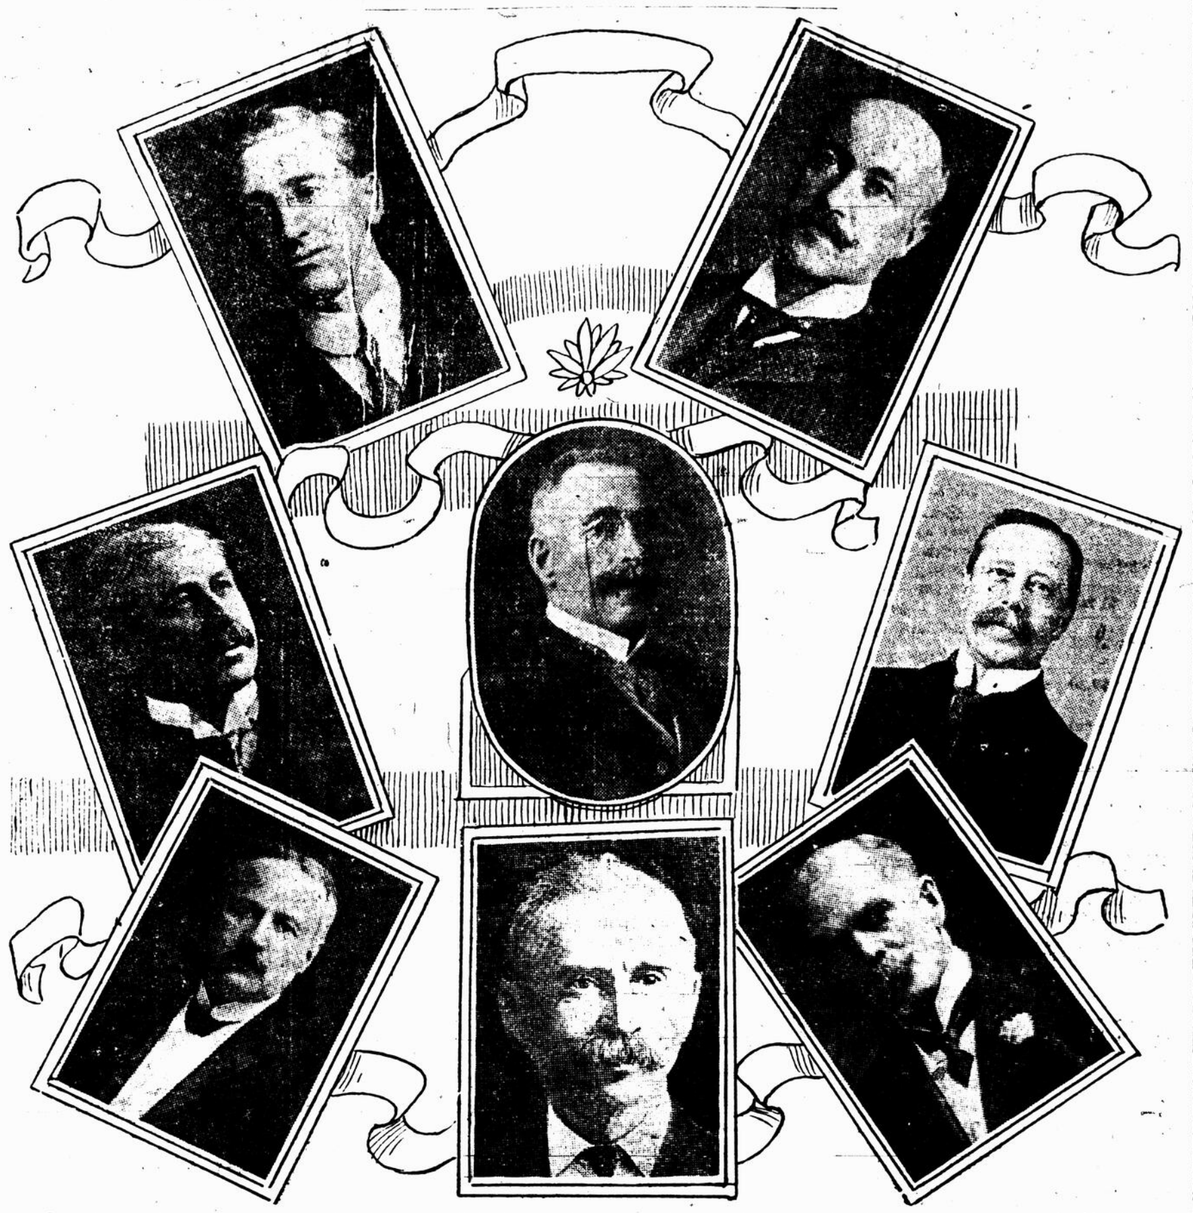

The action of the Board of Control was suggested by a circular received from the Montreal Central Railway Terminal Company, in which they say that its main object is the construction of a central terminal for all railways entering the city. The project calls for the construction of a series of subways leading from the present lines of the various railway companies to one central point. It would also provide a local train service with trains running from point to point in the city.

WHEN RAT DIES IS MAN NEXT DOOR TO BLAME?

Health Officer Does Not Know, Neither Does the Mayor, Nor the Four Controllers.

Just because a rat went into an inaccessible part of a building to die it has caused two departments and the Board of Control at the City Hall to deal with the case.

If the Health department has to tear down the building to find the cause of the trouble who has to pay for the damage done to the building? The Medical Health Officer, Dr. Louis Laberge, has referred the matter to the Board of Control and they have not been able to solve the problem; but have sent the question on to the Law Department, and, with Shylock are asking, "What if my house be troubled with a rat?"

Is the rodent the acting agent of the man next door?

Is he responsible for his own actions in dying in the wainscotting and causing all the trouble?

Is the man in whose house the dead body is found liable for maintaining a nuisance?

Should there be a crematorium for the rat family?

Why is "Le Rat Mort" popular in Paris, not so in Montreal?

These are a few of the questions which will keep city officials of several departments busy in making the proper answer during the next week.

RECEIVE NO FREIGHT AFTER FIVE O'CLOCK.

According to a joint circular issued by Mr. R. W. Scott freight agent of the G. T. R., and Mr. W. P. Martin, freight agent of the C. P. R., the railroad freight houses in Montreal will close at five o'clock each evening for the receipt of freight from customers.

This was found necessary in order to facilitate the prompt handling and forwarding of freight as under the new conditions the railway companies will be in a position to ship the freight out the same day as received.

HERO OF SLOCUM DISASTER DEAD

James J. Duane, Who Saved Many From Ill-fated Steamer, Dies in New York.

New York, January 14.—James J. Duane, who saved many lives when the excursion steamer General Slocum was burned to the water's edge on June 15, 1904, and more than 1,000 passengers, most of them women and children, were either burned to death or drowned, is dead of pneumonia, after an illness of a few days, at his home, 315 East Eighty-fifth St. He refused to accept a medal offered to him by he United States Government for the part he performed in the work of rescue.

The Slocum on that fateful day carried more than 1,500 passengers. The vessel started from her pier at East Thirty-eighth street at 9 o'clock in the morning. When somewhere in the vicinity of 130th street it was seen she was afire.

The crew of the steamer Massasoit saw the peril of the Slocum and launched a small boat. Duane, first mate of the Massasoit, and James Golden were in the boat. Between them they saved many of the women and children from the burning excursion steamer. Duane saw three children in the paddle wheel of the Slocum. He climbed into it and rescued them, while the crew of the Massasoit threw a stream of water on the children and Duane, that they might not be scorched by the intense heat.

His aged mother collapsed at his death, and the family fears that she may not recover.

Pharmaceutical Examinations.

The following, by order of merit, were successful in the pharmaceutical examinations: J. E. Lachaine, P. Gadbois, A. Weinfield, A. de Bellefeuille, Ernest St. Jacques, A. Bourgeois, R. Fillon, Max Schachter and Felix Berlin.

The following passed on all subjects but one, and will have to present themselves at the next examination for that subject: Jos. A. Lagarde, Raoul Brunelle and R. Gougeon.

PHYSICIAN FOR SIXTY-FIVE YEARS

Dr. Edmond Robillard Died Last Night—Funeral Tuesday Morning.

The death of Dr. Edmond Robillard, which took place yesterday at his residence, 293 Sherbrooke street west, closes a medical career extending over 65 years.

Born in Montreal, after the ordinary studies he attended the College of L'Assumption, later taking up medical studies. He attended the Victoria College of Medicine and Surgery, which is now a part of Laval, where in 1846 he qualified as physician. He then went to New York and was tutored by Dr. Robt. Nelson. Later he for some time was chief surgeon to the New York and Erie Railway Company. To further his knowledge, Dr. Robillard went to Paris and later continued his appointment with the railway company. Through failing health, however, he had to return to Canada, and in 1854 he was made surgeon of the Grand Trunk Railway. He continued with the G. T. R. for a long period, extending over the time of the construction of the Victoria Bridge. At the time Dr. Robillard lived at Pointe Claire, and for some time was mayor of the municipality.

Dr. Robillard secured the diploma of the Societe Clinique of Paris on a subsequent visit to France. His knowledge of bacteriology and hydrophobia got his appointment as Government inspector for this province for aliens.

For six years he was governor and examiner of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, acting also as secretary and treasurer to the Medical Association of the Dominion in the '70's.

Dr. Robillard was twice married. In 1854 he married Miss Adeline Loranger, sister of Judge Loranger, who died in 1873, leaving two children; his second wife, being Madame Antona Mazuel, who left a son and daughter. Mme. C. St. Aubin, of Montreal, and Mr. Edmond Robillard, residing in New York.

The funeral will be on Tuesday at the Church of the Gesu.

BATAVIA VICTIM WELL-KNOWN HERE

C. C. Perrin Connected With Secret Service Organizations in United States and Canada.

The deceased, who was known in commercial and fraternal circles of Montreal, was high up in the Masonic Order being a 32nd degree Mason. He was a member of Mecca Temple of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and often visited the local organization.

The late Mr. Perrin was in his 50th year. From early boyhood he was connected with the principal private detective agencies of the continent and about 20 years ago joined the Thiel Detective Agency of Chicago. Shortly after Mr. E. R. Carrington took charge of the Canadian end of the service, Mr. Perrin was at his suggestion made assistant manager in Montreal. With the reorganization of the Thiel forces, when a Canadian company was formed, Mr. Perrin was chosen to represent the organization in New York to work in conjunction with the Dominion company.

For nearly 30 years he had passed through the most startling experiences in the history of secret service work in America. In the early days of the Yukon he met daring opponents of the law and afterwards was commissioned by the Thiel service to uncover many mysteries.

Mr. Perrin came to Montreal about seven years ago, and, as the assistant to Mr. Carrington, became well known throughout the Dominion in connection with the successful detection of crime.

He was married five years ago.

Mr. E. R. Carrington, who is the general manager of the Canadian branch of the Thiel service, speaking over the long distance telephone from Toronto, last night, said to a representative of The Star:—

"I am greatly distressed at the news and feel a deep sense of personal loss. I was associated with Mr. Perrin for years, and can vouch for the fact that no better type of secret service man existed anywhere. He was entirely devoid of fear.

ROAD MACHINE SAFE AND SOUND IN CITY YARD.

The mystery is solved. The stolen goods have been recovered.

Yesterday the citizens of Notre Dame de Grace awoke to the fact that a fine new road machine weighing several tons had been lifted by some party or parties unknown, and they made complaint, so that the thief might be tracked to his lair.

This morning the thief confesses. It was none other than Superintendent Scanlan of the road department, who when the municipality joined the city sent the road machine to one of the city yards. It is there yet, and Mr. Scanlan smiles.

May Lose a Hand.

Emily Bates aged 17, 130 Coursol street, was taken to the General Hospital this morning from the Canadian Textile Co., with her hand so badly crushed that it is feared it will have to be amputated.

The Port Arthur, Ont., drydock will be opened next week. Hon. Mr. Pugsley may attend the inauguration.

McGILL VAUDEVILLE NIGHT AT HIS MAJESTY'S.

READY FOR THE FIGHT SAYS MR. BOURASSA, HOME FROM FRANCE

Has Not Thought of Politics for the Last Two Months and Has Lost Speech Habit.

"Some parties whom I had the privilege to forget for two months, were charitable enough to worry about my physical and intellectual state of health, but thank God, I came back well rested, stronger and healthier than ever. I had the privilege of being away from politics for two months and of never thinking of it during all that time."

Such were the first remarks made by Mr. Henri Bourassa, M. L. A., last night after leaving the train which had brought him from New York. With a radiant smile, he shook hands with hundreds of the crowd of a thousand that had gathered around Windsor street station to welcome him. At the steps of his Pullman, he was received amid cheers and with acclamations and songs was escorted to his sleigh in front of the station. The enthusiasm was great for the size of the crowd, and for many minutes the air sounded only the echo of the name of Mr. Bourassa alternating with the sang of O Canada.

When he had reached his sleigh and shaken all the hands outstretched, the Nationalist leader stood up and raised his hat. It was some minutes before the cheering could be stopped and then Mr. Bourassa expressed his gratitude for that spontaneous and hearty reception. "It is a proof," said he, "that there are still men who have some appreciation and gratitude for those who are devoting their energies to the public weal."

Each sentence was concluded amid cheers and applause. The member for St. Hyacinthe was sarcastic when touching lightly on the political question. He said that sometimes a man in the public life could be tired even if he was not a minister, but he added that he had recuperated very nicely and was back well prepared for a stiff fight for the rights and privileges of his country, his province, his race with its language and its religion. He claimed that two months of rest had ridden him of the speech-making habit but thought that he would reconquer it very quickly when in the saddle either as director of Le Devoir or as member of the Legislature for St. Hyacinthe. After that he invoked a very tiresome voyage of fourteen days over a rough sea for the privilege of retiring.

Over a dozen of sleighs and a few hundred admirers followed him and cheered him along the street as far as Park avenue. Speaking privately, Mr. Bourassa claimed that he had not time and did not feel disposed to give any interview. When asked whether it was true that he had had a long conference in Rome with Hon Rodolphe Lemieux, he said that it was the first news he had of such a conference. He visited the Canadian College in Rome just twenty-four hours before the Postmaster General, and met personally only the secretary of the Canadian minister.

The Nationalist leader looked in the best of health. He was accompanied by Mrs. Bourassa who met him in New York.

ONE OF THE VETERANS DEAD.

Patrick Kelly Came to His Lacrosse Home to Die.

Ottawa, January 14.—Patrick Kelly, aged 36, who a few years ago was one of the foremost figures in lacrosse in Canada, died at the Lady Grey Hospital. While holidaying in the capital last winter, Kelly caught a severe cold, which, on his return to Chicago where he had made his headquarters for the past few years, developed tuberculosis. Two months ago he came to Ottawa broken in health. He entered the Lady Grey Hospital, but gradually sank, passing away about 3 o'clock this afternoon. When the Capitals on charges of professionalism, were expelled from the National Amateur Lacrosse Union in 1896, the late "Paddy" Kelly succeeded Barney Quinn as cover point, subsequently going to the C. L. A. He played for Orangeville, Owen Sound, Toronto and London, and finally went to Chicago, where he organized and managed the Shamrock team. Kelly when in his prime was one of the most brilliant lacrosse players in the game, his speed and strength making him a star among defence men. Capt. Ed. Kelly, of the Ottawa Nationals, is a brother. The funeral takes place on Monday. Kelly was unmarried.

CONFESSES TO MURDER.

Mrs. Melber, Arrested at Rochester, Admits Killing Son.

Rochester, N.Y., January 14.—Outsped by the telegraph recognized by her luggage, Mrs. Edith Melber, of Schenectady, was arrested in the railroad station here yesterday, and charged with the murder of her son, George, 5 years old, who was found frozen in a swamp near Albany last Tuesday, with stains of acid at his lips. Less than an hour later she had confessed to the murder.

Work for British Columbia House.

Victoria, B.C., January 14.—The Legislature opened yesterday. The Speech from the Throne commented on the continued prosperity, as the previous financial statement showed marked prosperity. Amongst new legislation are a bill for the inspection of logging and railway construction camps and one for dealing with insurance. The university endowment question is also up for consideration.

LONG SAULT REPORT NOT YET REACHED THE GOVERNMENT

House Spent Three Hours in Supply—Quebec Estimates Under Discussion.

Special Staff Correspondence

Press Gallery, House of Commons, Ottawa, January 14.—The report of the American section of the International Waterways Commission on the Long Sault dam project was called to the attention of the Premier yesterday by Mr. R. L. Borden.

The Opposition leader asked Sir Wilfrid three questions in that connection; first, had the Canadian Government a copy of the report of the American section; second, had the Canadian section reported on the subject, or had it a report under consideration; third, if not, did not the Premier think the matter of sufficient gravity to be worthy or a report?

Sir Wilfrid replied that he had not seen the American report. He knew the Canadian section had not reported, but would inquire whether they had had it under consideration.

Sir Wilfrid did not answer the third question, so Mr. Borden put it once again.

"I would not pass any opinion at the present time whether they have been diligent or not," was Sir Wilfrid's reply.

Mr. Northrup's Pleasantry.

Hon. Charles Murphy was subjected to some gentle chaffing by Mr. W. B. Northrup anent the present trade negotiations in Washington. He explained that the Department of External Affairs, of which Hon. Mr. Murphy is the head, was created with much sounding of the trumpets for the express purpose of conducting our relations with other countries, yet when the first important case of negotiation came up, though there were four Ministers in Washington, able to assist, even if they did not all assist, this one Minister specially given charge of such duties was left at home.

When, asked Mr. Northrup, was Sir Wilfrid going to apologize to Mr. Murphy for the slight thus cast upon him. Mr. Northrup added that apparently the duties actually discharged by the Department of External Affairs could very well be discharged by a couple of pages from the House of Commons.

Mr. Northrup's chaff elicited no comment from the Government benches.

Forest Reserves Bill Presented.

Hon. Frank Oliver introduced a bill to create a new schedule of forest reserves. The main reserve introduced is that on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. The Minister explained that provision was being made to allow camping privileges in certain parts of the reserves, when they could be allowed with safety.

Mr. E. N. Lewis again introduced his measure to penalize the carrying of dangerous weapons. The bill gives police the right to search any individual suspected of having dangerous weapons in his possession.

Close Vote in Supply.

Three hours were spent in supply, and estimates to the value of $136,000 were passed, relating to public buildings in the Province of Quebec. The chief discussion centred about two items, one of $19,000 for a post office in Maisonneuve, and one of $17,000 for a post office in Marieville in Hon. L. P. Brodeur's riding. On the latter item Mr. G. H. Perley moved a reduction to $10,000, but his amendment was defeated by 43 to 34, a narrow Government majority of 9, which was much cheered by the Opposition.

During the discussion Mr. J. W. Edwards, of Frontenac, elicited the statement from Mr. Pugsley that the Post Office Department did not pass upon votes for post office buildings.

In reply to Opposition criticism of the custom, Mr. Pugsley added that he had been trying to persuade the Postmaster-General to do so, and had succeeded in one case.

THE FISHERIES AGREEMENT HAS NOT BEEN SIGNED

Difficulty Experienced in Drafting it in Manner Satisfactory to Both Sides.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., January 14.—A little cloud, no bigger than a man's hand, has come up on the horizon of the Fisheries situation, and what it means nobody can yet say. Yesterday the paths of the Fisheries diplomats seemed to be strewn with roses. To-day the thorns alone are there; the roses have disappeared.

As was stated yesterday, a general agreement was drawn up and signed by the representatives of Newfoundland, Canada, and the United States, by which the necessity was averted of appointing a commission of experts to decide as to the fairness and reasonableness of the Canadian and Newfoundland legislation and regulations regarding fishing in treaty waters, the fact that these countries had a right to put reasonable regulations into effect being established by the Hague Tribunal.

As far as Canada was concerned, the grounds had also been agreed upon for a further agreement settling the question of purse seine netting. Sunday fishing the licensing by Canada of American vessels in treaty waters, and the right to board and search.

All that remained to do yesterday was to draft and sign the formal agreement recognizing the reasonableness of Canada's contentions on the first three points, and waiving the right to board and search.

The wording of the agreement, however, provided a matter on which the two sides could not see eye to eye, and after a long session an adjournment was made till to-day without the agreement having been signed.

MORNING POST SUSPICIOUS OF REPORTED SETTLEMENT

Special to The Montreal Star.

London, January 14.—News of the settlement of all questions at issue in connection with the Newfoundland fisheries is regarded with suspicion by the "Morning Post."

"What has happened," says that paper, "is that the Americans are now making desperate efforts to forestall Imperial reciprocity before it is too late. Their information is not that Tariff Reform is dead, but that preference here is certain.

"Newfoundland, under another Premier, offered them preference some years ago in return for the abolition of the fish duty. They would not take it then, any more than they would accept Canadian overtures, but they would gladly take less now, in order to get in before a possible Chamberlain policy. Whether Americans are to succeed in weaving fiscal meshes over British North America is a question which may depend on whether Mr. Balfour can rise to the occasion."

"Missing Relatives"

Here is a column of The Star's "Classified" pages which clearly illustrates the usefulness and versatility of Want Ads.

Heirs to fortunes have been traced, and whole families united by these silent, quick-working agents. One case on record is that of an Englishman who was restored to his family after an absence of over forty years in the wilds of the Canadian Northwest. A Star "Want Ad." found him.

Of course the efficacy of such announcements depends upon the extent of the circulation of the paper in which they are published, and here The Star has a distinct advantage, as its circulation is known to be many thousands greater than that of any other English daily newspaper published in Canada.

THREE WEEKS IN A HOSPITAL

Patient Came Out With His Ideas Very Much Modified —Tragic Case of Young New Brunswick Man—The Remarkable Studies in Surgery Pointed Out.

(Specially written for the Star, by a gentleman who was recently operated upon in a local hospital).

Dr. ——, of Montreal, specialist on the ears, nose and throat, is a very busy man and finds impossible, except in cases of imperative urgency, to fix appointments the day of application, having a waiting list from sufferers in this direction all over America, Canada and even Europe.

My turn having been adroitly sandwiched in between two others, I was ushered into the presence of the celebrated expert who in a quickly-trained fashion made the examination necessary for the following decision and instruction.

"You have an abcess in the central ear with a hole right through the drum, and consequent inflammation of the skull bone. You must lay up for a while and I would suggest your going at once to the hospital."

I had the celebrated specialist "pull-off" and given me a straight flush between the eyes, sufficient to cause me taking the count, I don't think I should have been more struck with consternation and amazement than the last uttered, which to my ignorant prejudice of hospitals, was tantamount to pronouncing my death knell.

* * * *

I shall never forget the conglomeration of thoughts and mingled feelings that flushed through my brain, as I entered the imposing doorway to the hospital. I recalled the saying, "Abandon hope, all ye that enter here." Why such thoughts should have existed is summed up very quickly "ignorant prejudice," and yet in most things, I am not an ignorant individual, my mode of earning my living, giving the lie direct to such assertion. I am not a coward, so that the strange repugnance cannot be put down to cowardice. So being a man of just ordinary average intelligence, I tried to reason out in my own mind the cause for such aversion to being scientifically, hygienically and surgically treated for a complication, the danger of fatal result to which science, skill and the X rays have reduced to an infinitesimal degree.

Being now an accepted inmate of the hospital, I took a glance round the seven beds, which was the complement for the ward I was located in.

Next to my cot was a young Italian who was being treated for a scalded eye.

On the other side was a husky young fellow with dark colored spectacles, who during conversation told me that he was the victim of a molten slag iron accident in New Brunswick. He had to be led about, only being able to distinguish light from dark, his eye lids being blistered together through the terrible burns and having been treated at a little country hospital with unsuccessful results, had come to be operated upon in an endeavor to restore his sight. He spoke hopefully of being able to see after the operation, his only fear being whether he should come out of the anaesthetic alive.

The operation was successfully performed. He came out of the anaesthetic all right, but when they forced those poor lashless lids apart from their seared sealing, sightless orbs were all the reward for their labor of scientific skill and love for suffering humanity.

Nineteen yaers of age, on the threshold of healthy manhood to be stricken blind for life with hideous disfigurement. "Caesar's dumb ope mouths," the words which Shakespeare puts into the mouth of Mark Anthony, could not have welled more sorrow and tears from the hearts and eyes of their witnesses, than these poor sightless eyes of this New Brunswick young man, brought from those who had enjoyed this poor fellow's pleasant company, and entered into and encouraged his fond hopes of a successful result to his operation.

His father came to break the "sad news, the doctor and nurses not having the heart to acquaint him of the hideous truth.

"Well, father," said the blind youth, "I have got through it all right. You might ask the "Doc." if I can have the bandages off for an hour to-day. I would like to see you."

"It will make no difference, my boy, off or on. Your sight has gone for ever."

There was just a convulsive start beneath thet bedclothes, a stiffening of the clean shaven lips which a moment before had been parted in a smile, at the sound of his father's voice, and then silence, the father gazing with grief-stricken eyes turned towards his son, lying with bandaged eyes, the latter apparently unable to realize the hideous truth. He would never see again. The words which Shakespeare puts in the mouth of the jealous Moor, Othello, came vividly to the mind of the writer, as he gazed upon this bitter drama.

A lumber man from the far away backwoods was convalescent and took quite an intelligently curious interest in the new arrivals. He quickly button-holed me, and wanted to know my reason for being there. By a strange coincidence he was just recovering from the identical trouble which took me to the hospital. A well meaning man, according to his own lights, but of all the Job's comforters I ever struck he was the limit!

"Well now, sor, I'll tell you exactly wot yer have to goes through. Yer see this cut behind my ear, well they takes yer down to the operatin' room and gives yer heither, which makes yer as ded as ded can be, and you don't know nuthin', and they could do wot they like to yer. Of coorse, I've nuthin' to grumble at, they is the cleverest doctors in all Canady at this 'ospital, and they made a good job of me!

When the cold shiver which his description caused had travelled down my spine and finished up at my pedal extremities, and had departed, I followed its example, and got. The old chap meant well, but was horribly morbid in his talk, reminding me of a sad and solemn individual who was never so set up as when gloating over a dastardly murder, which had some revolting descriptive details, or perusing the newspaper report of a sickening railway smash, and describing the terrible details of the killed and mutilated in connection therewith.

The morbid one, however, had a noble side to his character. A poor little suffering boy in cot No. 6, nine weeks on his back, would call out, "Samson, Samson, get me a drink," or "Samson, move my pillow," and whatever the hour, day or night, Samson's big rough hand gently held the cup of water, or tenderly changed the little sufferer's pillow. It is wonderful the attraction the strong have for the weak. Samson was white all right.

It is only occasionally the laymen gets an inkling of the marvellous strides surgery aided by anaesthetics and antiseptics, has made during the last few years. It is a common fallacy among a large percentage of people, and more especially among the poorer classes, that medical practitioners are fond of operating, and that the only chance they get is in our hospitals. Such a fallacy among those who have had experience of these noble institutions was exploded long ago. No doctor will perform an operation for any trouble which is amenable to treatment. When an operation is necessary it is by the consent of the patient performed, and it is a very rare occurrence, under the new schools of modern appliances and anaesthetics, a patient is lost.

The word "operation" has lost that dreaded sound it used to have, under the perfect conditions and perfect knowledge of the human frame and the ills it is heir to. The wonderful strides surgery and anatomical skill have made, is in a minor sense illustrated when it is stated that in the male portion of Ward C there was a man over seventy, successfully operated upon for tracheotomy, and in the female portion of the one ward, a little child of two was successfully operated upon in a similar way. The former was choking to death from a growth in the throat, a tube being inserted in the centre of his windpipe. The little girl was suffering from the after effects of a diptherict throat and was treated in a similar manner. In the old man's case it was a case of prolongation of life, in the latter it was a means to a complete recovery, the throat being by surgical means brought to its former normal state, the tube giving air to the lungs in the meantime.

Two days after my arrival I was informed by a nurse that my breakfast this particular morning would consist of a cup of milk and that immediately afterwards I was to go to the X-Rays rooms, having for a companion a bright little chap of six years old, who was also to be photographed. His large eyes opened like saucers when he viewed the magnificent apparatus one of the finest in practice in Canada.

He was kept busy by the tactful operator who answered the inquisitive questions put forward in quick succession, and the little fellow was so interested in the explanation given that his X-Ray photograph was taken before he knew it.

The object of this scientific examination is to ascertain beyond all doubt in various cases, the extent of broken bones, where situated, the location of foreign substance in special cases or the abnormal growth of any bone or tissue as the case may be.

I was photographed to discover if any of the bones in the region of my ear drum were inflamed, and swollen, or to locate, if there was an abscess or growth which might possibly be the cause of my intense suffering.

I was placed on a bench or table with my head inclined upon a sensitised plate ear downwards, and all there is to it was a noise like the crick, crick of a Marconi instrument and a peculiar odor which on enquiry I was told was ozone.

The first intimation that I had of an operation was the nurse informing me that I could not have any breakfast. Dinner time came, and I was not allowed any dinner. Having a fairly hearty appetite, this was the greatest hardship in connection with the "dreaded operation," and I was glad when the nurse came along and injected some morphine into my left arm, and a little while later I was taken down to the operating theatre.

The next return to consciousness was finding myself in the hospital cot with a decided feeling of elation, when I was informed by the smart and decidedly pretty nurse that I had been singing "What do you think of the Irish now?" Which is somewhat remarkable when the fact is borne in mind that I am a Scotsman with the Scottish patriotisms and love of Scottish airs that is peculiar to the temperament of a true Scot.

Ward "C" of the institution, in which I was, only had patients for the ears, eyes, nose and throat, consequently am unable to convey any idea of the immense number of cases in other directions, not to speak of the accident ward, and out-door cases dealt with. The number of patients dealt with during my short stay in "C" ward was remarkable. At one period 70 beds were all occupied with patients from all parts of Canada, and the United States. It's sufficient to say that the commendable, thorough and expeditious manner in which they were treated and discharged was a revelation. To cite one case: A Montreal artizan arrived on the Tuesday evening of one week, apparently suffering (to the uninitiated eyes), with an incurable throat, judging by the pain he was in, and his general appearance. He was operated on that evening, and again the following evening, and went away on the Friday of the same week, as he stated himself, quite cured.

A New York State lumberman came almost blind in both eyes, with a growth over the eyeballs, caused by long exposure and neglect on the wind-swept rivers, whilst engaged in his calling. Fifty-four years of age, standing over six foot in his stockings, he was out again in ten days with the impediment to his sight removed, and with sight he had not enjoyed for twenty years.

From a review of the foregoing sketch of a three weeks' course of treatment in a public hospital, the conclusion to be arrived at is that if most hospitals are so well managed as this particular one, and there is no reasonable excuse to advance that they are not, an hospital is the only place for rich or poor to go to in times of physical infirmity, scientific treatment and attention being available which it is in many cases impossible to have at home, and this indisputable fact is corroborated by the inability at times of the institutions to find accommodation for ordinary cases, but whose doors are never closed to the unfortunate victims of accident or sudden and serious indisposition.

MONTREAL GENERAL HOSPITAL

ESTABLISHED 1823.

Supported Entirely by Voluntary Subscriptions

Through the generosity of the public, the Montreal General Hospital has been supported for the past eighty-seven years on a scale commensurate with the needs of the community.

The unprecedented growth of the city during the past five years has so enlarged the demands upon the institution by the suffering public as to necessitate the reconstruction of the Hospital buildings.

The modernized Montreal General Hospital will be fireproof and will embrace the latest improvements in hospital architecture and equipment.

This important undertaking, necessitating increased expenditure for maintenance, has been assumed by the Committee of Management, in the full hope that the public will recognize the growing claims of this venerable institution.

EXHIBITION SITE TRANSPORTATION IS CONSIDERATION

Companies Inform Association Opinions of the Problems of Each Location.

The Montreal Street Railway has answered the Montreal Industrial Exhibition Association that the railway can reach only the Marler property of the three sites offered for the exhibition in Maisonneuve. The exhibition officers had not known from the letters received from the railway company, whether the latter could run cars to all three proposed sites in the district mentioned, but they have received this definite news now.

The Canadian Northern Railway have also just expressed an opinion as to what they will be able to do in the way of transportation facilities for the exhibition. While the Canadian Northern had already joined with the other transportation interests in the view that the site of the exhibition, looking to success, should be nearer to the centre of Montreal's population than the Maisonneuve site, the company wrote that they now felt that there was some compensation offerd against the distance in connection with this ite, and that they hoped to have a line later on, going north from the river up Molson's Creek, which would enable them to give rail connection to the Maisonneuve site, and they would be willing, also later on, to make arrangements for running excursions to the site from outside points, but they could not add in the transportation of passengers from the city to the site.

The G. T. R. will place themselves on record as to which site is most favorable to them next week, while the C. P. R. have said that there can be no possible question that the best site is the Park Avenue extension.

A Mining Case Decision.

Judgment was rendered yesterday in the case of Mr. J. P. E. Leblanc vs. J. S. Oliver, in favor of the plaintiff.

In 1907 the defendant bought 10,000 shares of the Crown Reserve at $0.40, out of which the plaintiff agreed to take 1,750 shares. Crown Reserve went up to 59, dividends were paid and new stock was issued. When requested, Mr. Leblanc paid only a part of the shares he had bought and when he asked for a settlement, Mr. Oliver offered Mr. Leblanc only a part of the shares saying the balance would indemnify him for the losses sustained in carrying those shares for the plaintiff. The evidence showed that during that time the defendant had drawn the whole dividend of the ten thousand shares and that he had had all the benefit of the new stock issues. Judgment was rendered by Mr. Justice Greenshields in favor of the plaintiff, stating that he was entitled to get from the defendant 1,750 shares of the Crown Reserve and $5,000 for the profits he had not received and to which he had a right.

MISSIONARY MONTH AT ST. JAMES METHODIST.

A missionary month will be held at St. James Methodist Church beginning to-morrow, when special sermons will be preached by Rev. Dr. Sparling. A feature at the close of the evening service will be lantern views of China and the work that is being done there. On Wednesday there will be a public meeting in the lecture hall.

Subject: "What is the most Powerful Missionary Appeal to me?"

At this Service letters will be read from prominent leaders, including: John R. Mott, Rev. James Allen, George H. Wood, N. W. Rowell, K.C., etc., etc. Come prepared to discuss this subject yourself.

Special services will be held each Sunday and Wednesday during the four weeks.

BIGAMY CHARGE IS VIGOROUSLY DENIED.

Francis Guyon, 49 years of age, of 99 St. Lawrence street, was arraigned before Judge Lanctot yesterday, on a charge of bigamy. He pleaded not guilty emphatically and was remanded until the 19th for enquete.

According to the story told by the police, Guyon came to this country from France about nine years ago leaving a wife in France, who was unaware of his second marriage until a few weeks ago, when she was told about it by a friend.

ALIENS TO U. S. IN YEAR NUMBER A MILLION.

The annual report of the Commissioner General of Immigration at Washington to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor for the year ending June 30, has just been issued. Among the facts which stand out prominently in the report is the return to the million mark in the immigration of aliens, the total number being 1,041,570. It was necessary and possible to reject at the port a larger number and percentage than in any preceding like period, 24,270, or 2 per cent, of the number applying. The report also shows a larger number arrested and deported than in any preceding year, namely, 2,695.

In the body of the report are presented statistics and statements regarding the enforcement of the immigration and Chinese exclusion laws.

FORESTRY CONVENTION IN QUEBEC

Annual Gathering Will be Opened by the Governor-General

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Many Other Prominent Men are Expected to Attend.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week the Canadian Forestry Convention will open at Quebec, in accordance with the official summons issued by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. His Excellency the Governor-General has consented to open the convention, and a large number of influential men interested in forestry and conservation of natural resources will address the gatherings.

Many of Canada's leading men are expected to take part. Among these, in addition to official representatives, are Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. R. L. Borden, M.P.; Hon. Clifford Sifton, Chairman of the Commission of Conservation; Hon. Sydney Fisher, Hon. Frank Oliver, Sir Lomer Gouin, Hon. Jules Allard, Hon. Frank Cochrane, Hon. W. C. H. Grimmer, Mgr. Lapointe, Vicar General of Chicoutimi, R. H. Campbell, Dominion Superintendent of Forestry, Ottawa; Dr. H. S. Beland, M.P., Dr. B. E. Fernow, Dean of the Faculty of Forestry of the University of Toronto; Achille Gergevin, of the Quebec Fish and Game Protective Association; and Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist.

A number of representatives from the United States will also, it is hoped, be present; among those are H. S. Graves, Chief Forester of the United States, and E. E. Ring, Forest Commissioner of Maine. The president of the association, Hon. W. C. Edwards, will preside.

Forest Protection Chief Topic.

Although Canadian forests have suffered less during the past year from forest fires than for many years, forest fires and forest protection will, of course, be subjects on which a great deal of discussion will take place. The greatest risk attached to timber holdings, both from an investment standpoint and that of the production of raw material, is from fire. Within the last twenty years destructive fires have swept up the river valleys of the St. Maurice, Mattawin, Vermilion, Manouan, Du Post, in the Province of Quebec, and through the newly mapped lakes to the north, burning off everything and retarding the growth for years.

There are at present only two practical systems of fire protection, both of which require that the fire be discovered and extinguished before it has become a conflagration. Allow it to get well started before a wind, practically no power on earth can stop it. It will leap across rivers, cross high ranges of hills and even get through low wet swamp areas.

The system mostly used is the ranger or patrol system, in which as much territory as possible is patrolled by guards, who go at once to any place where smoke is seen and endeavor to extinguish the fire. A watch is kept on all persons entering the territory, and they are not only warned to be careful of their fires, but the rangers follow them around as much as possible to see that they are careful. In the west this service can be best performed by men on horseback, whose routes are laid out along the ridges where as broad a view as possible is obtained. In the Province of Quebec the rangers must use canoes, which confine their routes to water courses from which they make excursions to high ground. As practically all travel is by water they are thus enabled to watch people going through their districts. Travel, however, is slow and it is difficult to get help quickly in case of necessity.

Telephone system used in Maine.

In Maine high towers are erected, connected with each other and with the nearest source of aid by telephone. Each tower has a watchman who has an accurate map of the country properly oriented, a powerful glass and a range finder. He is thus enabled to locate a fire and direct the fighters where to go. This system, while costly to instal, is economical to maintain and operate, and has proved successful.

Generally speaking there are two kinds of fires, ground fires and top fires, the former burning along the ground, destroying the humus, young growth and bushes, and scorching the mature timber. The top fires only occur when there is much wind, and sweep through the forests with irresistible fury, completely destroying everything. Fire travels most rapidly up narrow valleys, running the same way as the wind, and up the ridges, due to the suction caused by the rapid rise of the hot air and the fresh supply of air caused by this draught.

Fires are extremely difficult to control on cut-over lands where tops and branches lie on the ground, and this question will come in for considerable discussion at the Convention. Two methods of dealing with the question are proposed: to pile the tops of branches into heaps and burn them under safe weather conditions, and the other, to lop off the branches from the tops so that the debris will lie close to the ground, keep damp and rot rapidly. The former of these two methods is entirely out of the question in Eastern Canada, according to expert bushmen, owing to the expense and the fact that the tops and branches cannot be piled until the snow is gone and by that time the choppers have left the woods.

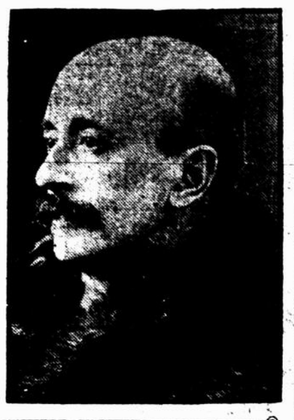

The second plan is considered more practicable as only the branches on the sides of the tree tops need be cut off, and as the snow melts the crown of the tree will settle down with its branches lying flat and close to the ground.

Forest Fires Preventable.

Reforestation of depleted areas will be another important subject for discussion, and new legislation for the prevention of forest fires will be suggested. Foresters agree that forest fires are preventable, and that the only things necessary are good laws and their enforcement. In fact, the record of the St. Maurice valley and a large part of Quebec during the past few years is a proof of this. In spite of the exceptionally dry weather no fires of any size have occurred and the loss has been practically nil; this, too, in spite of the construction of the Transcontinental Railway. One large concern with limits approximating 1,900 square miles has had only fourteen fires during the season, all but one of which were extinguished without damage, and that one swept through land which had been cut over, but with very little damage.

The Laurentide Paper Company, Limited, during the past season has used the following system of protection with excellent results. Its territory has been divided into districts through each of which a waterway existed practically dividing them in half. Two young men, from either a forestry or engineering course, with canoe, tent, sleeping bags and cooking outfit have patrolled each of these districts making complete round and return. When smoke was discovered or a fire found it was extinguished at once if possible. If not, aid was summoned. An inspector made the round of all the districts continuously and saw that the rangers did their duty. The results have been excellent, due to the intelligence and faithfulness of the men employed. All fires were stopped before becoming serious or doing much damage, and the company regards highly and will continue this form of insurance.

GERMAN STEAMSHIP OWNERS WELCOME ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Special to The Montreal Star.

Berlin, January 14. — Statements given out here on behalf of the German steamship companies indicate that they are little concerned respecting the outcome of the suit instituted in the United States courts against the so-called steerage trust.

In the opinion of the German companies the American Government not only has a weak case, but it will have great difficulty in enforcing effective penalties even if it should win its suit. Any attempt to punish foreign steamship companies by forbidding their vessels to enter American ports would bring up difficult questions of international law and invoke diplomatic reprisals.

Representatives of the leading German companies say they are rather inclined to welcome the suit, as they expect that the failure of the Government's case will settle once for all the right of foreign steamship companies to enter into rate agreements. Measures of internal legislation like the Sherman anti-trust law, they hold, cannot be enforced against foreign organizations, or at most can be applied only to American companies.

Ottawa Seeks New Armory.

Ottawa, January 14.—A vigorous movement is on among Ottawa military men to secure a new armory, and at a meeting yesterday afternoon it was decided to send a delegation to the Government about the matter.

ANGLO-JAPANESE TARIFF TREATY IS NOW REPORTED

Special to the Montreal Star.

London, January 14.—A diplomatic victory for Britain, is the view generally taken here of the tariff concessions offered to England by the Mikado's kingdom, which are now being made the basis of a special commercial treaty. Until within the last few days Japan had refused to treat with England regarding the renewal of their commercial treaty, which expires July 1, on which date the new Japanese tariff goes into effect.

English merchants brought tremendous pressure to bear to have Japan recede from her stand of heavily increasing the duty on practically all lines of goods that England exports to Japan. Japan held out on the ground that England's free trade policy shut her out of consideration on equal basis with France and Germany.

While no details of the treaty are published, it is said, that Japan has yielded on most of material points.

CHINA TO ESTABLISH QUARANTINE ALONG FAMOUS GREAT WALL

Bubonic Plague Still Spreading—Railroad Traffic May Be Stopped as Precaution.

Pekin, January 14.—Owing to the spread of the bubonic plague in Manchuria, a conference of physicians of foreign legations and missions, and a number of Chinese has decided to recommend to the Government the institution of a five days' quarantine of first class passengers at the Great Wall until observation camps can be established at Harbin, Mukden and Shanhikwan, and the immediate cessation of second and third class passenger traffic.

The Chinese Government will adequately compensate the family of the French plague expert who recently succumbed to the disease and also the families of any other doctors who may die while ministering to plague stricken patients.

The Chinese are fearful that the Russians may object to their interference with traffic in Manchuria owing to the injury that such action is likely to cause the Trans-Siberian Railway.

The foreigners in Pekin and Tien-Tsin are not alarmed over the plague epidemic, though they are taking precautionary measures to prevent possible infection.

There are almost no doctors among the afflicted in Manchuria and a large majority of the sick are dying unattended. Segregation is not being practiced, and to this fact is ascribed the rapidity of the spread of the plague.

GERMAN SOLDIER'S CONVICTIONS MAY EARN LIFE SENTENCE

Special to The Montreal Star.

Berlin, January 14.—Whether a man can be sentenced to life imprisonment because his religious convictions will not permit him to work on Saturday is a question that is perplexing German military authorities. The highest military court of the Empire has been occupied with the problem for several months. A soldier named Naumann in the third army corps has consistently refused to obey orders to perfrom his duties on Saturdays, on the ground that he is a Seventh Day Adventist and that his religious scruples will not let him work on that day. Threats and ordinary punishments are of no avail. Altogether sentences aggregating six years' imprisonment have been passed on him and these have been sustained by the highest courts.

Unless the Imperial military court finds a way of getting around the situation it will be necessary, in the opinion of the officials, to continue giving Naumann a fresh sentence every Saturday, and actually keep him a prisoner in the Spandau fortress, where he is incarcerated, for the rest of his life.

Naumann says cheerfully that he is ready to meet this fate as he prefers not to violate his convictions. In view of the extraordinary character of the case it is considered possible that the Kaiser will intervene and give the pertinacious soldier the benefit of a special order of clemency.

GERMANY STANDS PAT.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Berlin, January 14.—The German Foreign Ministry has received with extreme coolness the news that the United States Congress is ready to deal with the potash question, as well as the statement that some senators demand summary reprisals against Germany. The German reply thereto, is in effect, "no American bluff will have any effect; such threats against the German Government will not make the least impression."

Malt Fever a New Illness.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Paris, January 14.—"Malt fever," a strange new epidemic is causing the death of many people in France. According to the discoveries of Drs. Fifteen Years In One Family

"I wish to say that your remedies have been used in our family for about fofteen years. We are never without a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure in our home, and it has saved us many a doctor's bill. It is a wanderful medicine for all diseases of the kidneys and liver." — Florence E. Schmidt, R. F. D. No. 1, Dunkirk, O.

There is no case of kidney, liver or bladder trouble that Warner's Safe Cure will not relieve almost immediately, and if you have pains in the back or other symptoms of kidney disease, you should lose no time in getting a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure and begin taking it as prescribed.

Warner's Safe Cure is made from the fresh juices of plants and medicinal roots, gathered at the proper season in various quarters of the globe. Men skilled in pharmacy and chemistry compound it. It is pleasant to the taste and agreeable to the most sensitive stomach. It is put up in 50c and $1.00 sizes, and sold by all druggists.

Warner's Safe Pills, purely vegetable, sugar-coated, absolutely free from injurious substances, a perfect laxative for indigestion, billousness, torpid liver and constipation. They do not gripe or leave any bad after effects. 25 cents a package.

LONDON LETTER

London, December 31.— In my last letter I spoke of the position in which the general elections have left Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George as the foremost leaders of the Ministerialists. What, now, of Mr. Balfour? Let me give three estimates of his status with his party. First, the estimate of one of the leaders of the Confederates—that more or less mysterious group of youngish Tories, who are "thorough" or nothing, and believe it is given to them, as it was given to Mr. Balfour's own "Fourth Party" in the days of Lord Salisbury's prime, to keep the leaders toeing the line.

Loyal, But No Cecil Family Party.

"...," said this arch-Confederate, in reply to my inquiries, "of course, we are loyal to the Unionist party and loyal to its only leader, Mr. Balfour; but we believe in speaking out on occasion and mean to keep on doing it. Why, if we did not the Tory party would be dragged once again at the heels of the Cecil family. Now just look at what has been happening this very Christmas. We have come through the ordeal of a campaign which has left us Unionists just about a match in numbers for the immediate followers of Mr. Asquith. Obviously by pulling together and under skilled leadership we may evolve much out of such a situation. We know how near Mr. Asquith's cabinet came to the rocks last session when he stood at the mercy of Mr. Redmond on one hand, and the Labor Socialists on the other. We Unionists are left by the electors in a position to make this dual dependence so irksome to the self-respecting and non-Socialistic anti-Home Rule members of the Cabinet that they will stand it no longer. Surely this then is the moment for the fullest and frankest interchange of views between Mr. Balfour and the Unionist party. Instead, it is not of a full party caucus that we hear, but of a Cecil family party at Whittingehome to discuss the political situation and the future of the party. Oh, you may say, the Whittingehome party is after all only a family affair over Christmas; the party meeting will come later. I hope it may—we certainly mean to demand it; but I have a memory and I know that what has happened again and again may happen once more—we may as a party be left floundering about with no clear notion of what our policy and programme are — one saying one thing, and one another. Let us have a full meeting of the party—no hotel corner family gathering and when the party has adopted its platform let any one who dislikes it step outside—whether he be a Robert Cecil or any one else. We fighting Unionists know what we want and how to get it— a straight appeal and no wobbling; a United Kingdom and no Home Rule; a United Empire and a real reciprocal preference; a scientific tariff and no more referendum nonsense; a full-bodied policy of land ownership and social reform. The party in full meeting would demand all this and, having demanded it, the policy should stand beyond all risk of last moment defections by leaders or followers. Oh, yes, we are loyal to our leader; all we ask is that he be loyal to us and to the accepted Unionist policy."

The Tariff Reform View.

I sought next a Tariff Reform M.P. —one of the favorites of the platforms and, here is his opinion: "I speak of what I know when I say that Mr. Balfour is a sound Tariff Reformer, through and through. I know all the talk to the contrary—talk which is largely the echo of Liberal club gossip. Why, then, it may be asked, did he, on the very eve of the polling, seem to shelve Tariff Reform by his pledge to submit it to a referendum? In answering that question, you discover the weakness of Mr. Balfour as a leader. He is too easily swayed by the passing breeze, and too accessible to personal influences which he would be far better without. That is probably only another way of saying that he does not hold Tariff Reform to be the most vital of all questions—he puts the constitution before it, and I have no doubt the church also. Had Mr. Chamberlain been in command, do you suppose that he would have listened to a thousand Lord Cromers and Mr. Strachevs, bitter anti-Tariff Reformers all and eager only to give it a death blow? He knows the exact weight of the Free Trade Unionists, and would put them in the place their poverty of numbers deserves. He would have made the only true reply: 'Tariff Reform has been authoritatively declared land accepted as the first constructive plank of the Unionist platform and none but a full party gathering can remove it from that pride of place.' If you asked Mr. Balfour at this moment he would probably assure you that this is just what he holds and says, and he might go on to explain that all he did was to answer Mr. Asquith's challenge and declare 'You Liberals submit Home Rule to a referendum and we Unionists will submit Tariff Reform.' But we know how differently the electorate understood it. The placards all over the hoardings read 'This election will not decide Tariff Reform' with the 'not' underlined. But that is done with now. There is no man in public life to equal Mr. Barfour as a parliamentarian; he can and does make mincemeat of Ministerial plans and progress. We could have no better leader in the House of Commons and there is no better leader in sight outside the House of Commons. I am sure that there would be an overwelming 'Yes' should the question which Mr. "Willie" Redmond tauntingly bade us put to Unionist M.P.'s—'Shall Mr. Balfour remain the leader?' But there must be no more trifling with the one question which we hold most vital. To Tariff Reform we are pledged; it is the very life blood of the party throughout England and with another year's work in Lancashire and Yorkshire it will sweep the industrial North as it does the rest of the domain of the 'predominant partner.'"

A Change would be Suicidal.

Thirdly and lastly, I turned to an authoritative and staid member of the Constitutional Club—the home of the fighting men of the Unionist party. He would not hear of any change in the leadership. In his judgment, Mr. Balfour was supreme by virtue of his services and gifts of speech and foresight. He would not admit that there was any treachery to Tariff Reform in Mr. Balfour's referendum pledge, though the form of the pledge might, he thought, have been improved. Of course, he explained, a general election is always followed by grumblings here and there, and I grant you that Mr. Balfour should be, and ere long will be, better served in the matter of his chief whip, and party organization. Also he thought the time had come for more attention to be paid to brain than to money and titles when Union candidates were selected for parliament, any honors. "Does it not," he said, "tend to make us look ridiculous that we should not long ago have found seats in Parliament for men like Prof. Hewins, Mr. L. S. Amery, Mr. Manse and others one could name. We have a magnificent rank and file of young Unionists in the House and we want just the additional authority that these men from outside would give. But all this will come right. At all events to think of any change in the leadership would be sheer suicide. There are big issues before us and Mr. Balfour is the man to tackle them. Oh no, many things may happen bnt unless his health gives way, Mr. Balfour must remain our leader."

WINDERMERE.

Will Remove the Guillotine.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Paris, January 14.—Owing to the objection to having the guillotine as a neighbor, and the protests of the residents of the quarter, "The Red Widow" is to be removed from "her" home in the Rue Folie-Regnault, and, as soon as a hanger can be built for "her" at the prison, the guillotine will be moved there. The now rather frequent excursions of the gruesome machine get on the nerves of her neighbors.

Feet So Sore, Couldn't Walk Down Stairs—

TIZ Cured Her Quick.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett, of Jeffersonville. T I Z DID IT. Mr. Crockett says, "After the second treatment she walked downstairs one foot at a time. She had not been able to walk downstairs before in past five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. This is remarkable. Send five more boxes.

No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use T I Z. It's different. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. T I Z cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. T I Z is made only by Walter Luther Dodge and Co., Chicago, Ill., and is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box.

NO DECADENCE APPARENT IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS

To the Editor of The Montreal Daily Star.

Sir:—It was with no little surprise that I read in The Star about an article entitled "Anglo-Saxon Snobbishness." Especially do I take exception to this phrase: "To most Canadians the House of Lords is merely an Upper House consisting of men who happen to be there by accident of birth," and "most emphatically assert" that most Canadians do not believe such rubbish as they know better and I quote to the contrary from the well-known J. W. Smalley, as best representing Canadian thought: "The House of Lords is a body very unlike the body of degenerates endowed with hereditary principles which the Radicals traies his best to believe it is. It is on the whole the ablest body of men in England,—not inheritance but selection—is the principle by which its efficiency in later years has been maintained in a high degree. Some of its strongest men are there by the law of descent, a great many more are there as the best representatives the kingdom could supply of all that is most eminent in law, in science, in finance, in industry, men eminent in high political science and in the art of war."

The three foremost soldiers of our times are Lords Wolseley, Roberts and Kitchener. The three greatest pro-consuls are Lords Cromer, Milner and Curzon, all three of whom have won their peerage by their own efforts and achievements. The lawyers are among them such as Halsbury, three times Lord Chancellor and at 84 with mind undimmed. Is there anyone who does not know Lord Kelvin or Lord Lister? Has science anywhere greater men?

What to Europe financially does the name of Lord Rothschild mean? Lord Burnham owes his rank to partnership and editorship of a newspaper, Lord Northcliffe, who is well- known to Canadians, owes his title to creative genius, alike journalistic and financial Lord Morley and scores of others might be named, "whose record" before Canadians is sufficiently well known to refute this charge of incapability inherent in even hereditary peers. From official records before me, I gather that 30 per cent of the present House of Lords have not inherited their peerages but won them by conspicuous public services of a useful party work. Two hundred and sixty-nine of the 600 owe their places in the Upper House to Radical creations since 1859, as against 181 Tory appointments in the same period, and taken as a whole probably will average better in ability and record of public service than the House of Commons.

It may not be out of place here to say the war cry of idleness has no foundation of truth. Twenty peers are ex-naval officers, 211, ex-army officers, 348 auxiliary forces. 140 has seen active service, three have earned the Victoria Cross, 8 the D.S.O., 47 Viceroys or Governors, 25 have been in the diplomatic service, 27 the V.D., 8 Order of Merit, 21 civil service, 5 I.S.O., (25 years in civil service) 37 Mayors, 128 members of Governments, 171 county councillors, 131 Privy councillors." Not a bad showing this for work done, and comparing most favorably with that of the House of Commons.

Kipling, that most alert of observers, proposing the toast, at the Brighton Mayoral banquet, "the Houses of Parliament," said of the institution of the House of Lords: "Therefore, when they (our ancestors) found a man conspicuously endowed with one or other of the qualities, courage in war, wisdom in council, skill in administration, ability to sway men" etc., they promoted him regardless of birth or antecedents, mark you, to that inner council of picked man which from time immemorial stood next to the King in our Anglo-Saxon constitution.

"Generation after generation the House of Lords had been recruited from proven capacity in every walk of life. To their wise ruling no doubt is due the fact that to day we hold one square mile in every four of the land of the globe and through our representatives we are responsible for the protection of one person in five out of the entire population of this little planet."

Before closing I would like to say one word about the peerage which one would-be smart agitator has dubbed the "Beerage" owing to the fact that most of the new's creations owe their elevation to wealth accumulated in the liquor and brewing trades. The fact is, that in the last parliament there were only five representatives of the Peers' trade in the House of Lords and fourteen in the House of Commons.

"Fear God and honour the King," is a time-made precept, neither is it as yet understood and practiced as it should be. Snobbishness does not enter into the lesson to "order myself lowly and reverently to all my betters," such it is it a determining factor in British politics.

HOME FOR BENEFIT OF HORSES AND DOGS WANTED IN MONTREAL

To the Editor of The Montreal Star:

Sir,—In these days of many charities provided for the welfare of mankind and of vast sums bequeathed for the benefit of the human race, how rarely a thought is given to our poor dumb friends who depend solely for their happiness or misery upon the charity of man, who has domesticated them.

We seem to forget that the so-called lower order of animals are a part of God's universe, in that they have a perfect right to live and to enjoy life. The ownership of animals should be considered as a trust to be administered under the divine penalties which are attached to trusts. But how often do we see this trust violated, especially as the march of civilization moves ever onward; the cities growing more and more congested makes the proper accommodation and care of both man and beast more difficult. When one thinks of how faithful our four-footed friends are to us how they work for us, and, in a great many cases, contribute, by their unfailing toil, to man's daily bread—what we do to alleviate their silent sufferings, seems to sink into petty insignificance. Could we all but realize that these animals, denied the power of speech, have feelings such as ours, then might we have for them a tenderness and friendliness, which when shown, is repaid a thousand-fold by the speechless gratitude and devotion of these defenceless creatures.

One of the most deplorable sights in my estimation that one is called upon daily to witness is the formerly well-cared for and delicately-built animal hauling some express cart, poorly fed and ill looked after, who has so faithfully served his former master, only to be bartered to the highest bidder when no longer wanted. And again, the overloading of waggons and trucks. If there could only be a law enforced to prevent this, especially in slippery weather and on hills such as we have in Montreal. Not only are these poor animals exposed to injury, if not complete loss of life, but their owners, through the improper shoeing and overloading of horses, suffer from the loss of time in delivering their goods.

To get to the root of the evil, it seems to me that if parents and institutions would instil into the minds of children, kindness and consideration for dumb animals, so much needless suffering might be averted, for it is when young that the strongest impressions are formed. Surely the cause of the helpless is enobling to both young and old, and, hence, should be encouraged. I also urge all those who love and pity beasts of burden, to stand by when one is in difficulty on the street and to see it out of the trouble, reporting any cruelty to the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. In this way we can help along the good work which is being accomplished by this society.

In most cities homes have been established for the benefit of horses and dogs, such as in England and the United States. "The Home of Rest for Horses" at Cricklewood, four miles from the heart of London, was started by the Duke of Portland with the object of enabling the poorer classes to procure rest and skilled treatment for horses that are temporarily incapacitated. With timely relief of this kind, animals are enabled to work with comfort for years, instead of living a life of drudgery. It also provides a home for "old favorites" who, at a nominal fee, receive a well-earned rest and end their days in happiness. The "Ride-a-Wee Home" in New York, with its country home at Noroton, Conn., was started to provide a temporary home for animals whose owners have abandoned them, and to place them in good homes, which are inspected from time to time. It is also a hospital where anyone can bring a dog or cat to be treated free of charge.

I trust that we, too, may before long possess a home of this kind, for the benefits conferred by such a home are of a two-fold character, benefiting both man and beast.

MR. LUCIUS TUTTLE NOW RECOVERING

Special to The Montreal Star.

Boston, Mass., January 14. Mr. Lucius Tuttle, former president of the Boston and Maine Railroad is resting comfortably at the Eliot Hospital, following the amputation of his left leg, late Thursday afternoon. The operation was performed successfully, the leg being severed below the knee.

There appears to be some doubt as to exactly what caused the trouble making necessary the operation.

For some time Mr. Tuttle had been having difficulty with his left foot and it was thought that corns were responsible. He was obliged to use a cane and limped noticeably. Then the trouble became more serious, and was pronounced due to bad condition of the blood.

A THREATENED INVASION.

If there is one class of settlers which, now more than any othe. time, we have no room for in the Dominion, it is the lawless, murderous, irresponsible agitators who, under the loosely generic name of "anarchists" are being driven out of London. It is, in a measure, an open question whether or not the best cure for anarchy would not be a course of open-air treatment on a ranch somewhere in Western Canada, but the difficulty would be to apply it. Your average apostle of discontent does not want fresh air and sunlight and a healthy and invigorating life; it does not fit in with his scheme of existence. His work thrives only in the over-crowded slums and it is the seed he sows in the black and miasmic lanes and alleys, where the most ignorant of the new-comers to a great city make their homes, which ripens into murders and outrages. Clean living and fresh air are as destructive to the germs of anarchy as carbolic acid is to the germs of purely physical diseases and if we could only be sure that any of the expatriated agitators whom the efforts of the London police may send drifting in our direction could be kept going until they reached the ranch country there would be no need to worry over possible results. Unfortunately, we know by experience that, unless a rigid system of inspection turns them back at our doors, they will add themselves to the forces of unrest of which we have already too many exponents in Montreal and Toronto.

REED SMOOT ON RECIPROCITY.

Senator Reed Smot, of Utah, who, to the gentile world, is the best known of all the Mormon Apostles, expresses himself with childlike frankness upon the subject of reciprocity between the United States and Canada. He points out that, "the whole of the east of the United States, is becoming a vast workshop which may well exchange products with the agricultural and lumbering areas of Canada."

The east of the United States marches with the east of Canada, and Canadians are under the impression that they have built up a pretty good workshop of their own in eastern Canada, where Mr. Smoot sees nothing but agricultural and lumbering areas. Mr. Smoot is evidently smitten with the idea, very prevalent in the United States but not always so frankly expressed, that Canada was created to supply the United States with the raw material required for its great manufacturing industries. He must regard the Canadians as very raw material indeed. They have spent many millions of dollars in the building up of their workshop and it is paying handsome dividends on the investment. With a magnificent egotism worthy of Salt Lake, Mr. Smoot invites them to turn down the workshop and to take their proper place as hewers of wood and drawers of water for the superior people.

The atmosphere of Washington seems to have a tendency to develop economic ringers. The correspondent of the London Morning Post in that city says that "reciprocity would, in all probability, result in disaster for Canada, prostrate her manufactures, throw thousands out of work and dislocate trade generally the only compensation being that possibly some people in Canada might save a few cents on their butter and eggs."

He is all right until he comes to the butter and eggs and then he begins to see things. A few of our people may save a few cents on butter and eggs, but it will be because they will not be able to indulge in such luxuries.

GOVERNMENT LABOR BUREAUX.

If the establishment by the provincial government of free employment bureaux in Montreal and Quebec checks the outrageous practises by which foreign immigrants have been duped, swindled and turned over to contractors like so many head of cattle for years past, it will accomplish something worth far more than its cost. Whether or not it can, for the moment, do more than this is problematical for the existing system is of too much value to unscrupulous contractors to be allowed to pass out of existence if any way can be found of keeping it alive. We will have, at any rate, established our good faith and proved our willingness to accept our obligations towards new-comers who are ignorant of our language, our laws and our customs but who are here largely because we have sought them. There seems to be no limit to the fraud and deception practised by a certain class of the private employment agencies. Cases are on record where European immigrants on their way to certain already selected lands in the western provinces, have fallen into the hands of these sharpers and found themselves dumped off a train at some Quebec construction camp where they had been shipped as laborers. To charge a gang of ignorant Hungarians or Italians a fee of two dollars each for obtaining work for them and then to discharge them after the first week in order to collect the same fee from their successors has been one of the most ordinary practices. There is, indeed, plenty of room for an honestly conducted labor bureau.

RECIPROCITY IN CRIMINALS.

Reciprocity in criminals is an exchange of commodities about which the average citizen of either Canada or the United States has probably never bothered his head, yet it is one of the problems which is up for solution before the Department of Justice at Ottawa. We have known for many years that a large proportion of our importations in the criminal line were from our southern neighbors and that, after temporary but profitable employment in our midst, they drifted back across the border without the payment of any export duty. In such highly-specialized branches of industry as bank-robbery and expert pocket-picking especially has this been the case, while for the ordinary activities in the petty-theft line we have relied more or less upon the home markets. It has become almost an axiom, however, that when any special and delicate work is to be done, we supply the raw material in the way of safes to be dynamited and banks to be robbed and absorb the finished product, which is experience, while the work itself is done by imported human machinery and paid for in such by-products as may result from the blowing open of strong-boxes. It is this aspect of the situation which may be responsible for the decision of our Department of Justice to foster more carefully if it cannot protect the local industries affected. Heretofore when an aspiring young burglar has attracted the attention of the authorities, he has first been given a longer or shorter course of instruction in one of the institutions maintained by Government for that purpose, and then turned loose to practice his profession, subject to a periodical reporting to local authorities at certain specified times. If he transferred his activities to the jurisdiction of our neighbors, we have always looked upon it as a partial return for similar favors received at their hands and have tried to bear the loss with equanimity. The Department has now decided that theis drain on our national resources cannot be permitted to continue longer unchecked and is taking steps to secure the arrest and extradition of all ticket-of-leave men who are now residing in American cities. Their efforts are meeting with the hearty co-operation of the Chiefs of Police of the cities affected. Under the circumstances, we appear in duty bound to reciprocate; we should insist on sorting out and returning the American crooks who are enjoying Canadian hospitality, whether or not their original owners press the point. It would be selfish to ask for the return of our own wanderers while at the same time we are benefiting by the services of our visitors. Here is a legitimate opportunity for employing the principles of reciprocity.

OUR PAROLE SYSTEM.

If there is any faith to be put in figures, our parole system of dealing with criminals has proved its value during the eleven years it has been in operation. According to Dominion Parole Officer Archibald, of the three thousand and seventy-two prisoners who have been released from the penitentiaries on parole during that period, two thousand have justified their right to freedom by living the lives of self-respecting and industrious citizens, nine hundred and ninety-nine are still reporting to the authorities, and only sixty-two have found their way back to the courts through the lure of their old habits and activities. When only a fraction over two per cent. of the men whom we are forced to school in our penitentiaries an be classed tentatively as confirmed criminals, there are two legitimate deductions: first, the opportunities of an honest and satisfactory livelihood are not closed to the man who has made a slip but is desirous of living down the memory of it; and, second, our system of bringing this about is one which, while still protecting society against the irreducible minimum of criminals, makes the way easy for the man who honestly means to lead a better life. Mr. Archibald's statement that Canada to-day can boast of a smaller percentage of criminals who persist in their crimes than any other country in the world is one of which we have good reason to be proud.

HOSPITALITY AS AN INDUCEMENT.

One of the pleasing prospects held out at Washington as an inducement for an early entry into reciprocal trade relations is a half-promise that, if we conduct ourselves properly, the United States is prepared to buy a consulate at Ottawa, and enter on a large scale on the discharge of that portion of a nation's diplomatic duties which consists in social entertainment. This is a shrewd as well as a kindly move, for there is nothing to which a young nation like Canada responds so warmly and so immediately as this being treated like a man of the world and a good-fellow. Dining and wining is one of the chief essentials in the stock in trade of a good lobbyist and our neighbors have long enjoyed a well-earned reputation as experts in both departments. It will mean much in the way of simple and unassuming pleasure to the over-worked Member of Parliament to know that the hospitable doors of a United States consulate are always yawning to receive him and that the succulent hot-cake, the luscious dough-nut and the nourishing plate of scraple are ever ready for his consumption should desire lure and digestion permit. It will mean more still if the course of legislation is to be made smooth by the seductive mint julep and the deliberations of our statesmen periodically illuminated by the iridescence of the whiskey-sour and the brandy-smash. It was a thoughtful and neighborly thing for the United States authorities to suggest. It might also be an excellent and remunerative supplement to a reciprocity movement.

THE MANUFACTURERS AT OTTAWA.

Although the journeying of a delegation of eight hundred grain-growers from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to Ottawa was enough of a novelty to attract the attention of other nations, it need not be inferred that the representations made by the small deputation from the Manufacturers' Association yesterday are deserving of any less consideration because they have been less spectacularly presented. There is an inherent value in each of their methods of bringing matters to the conciousness of the Government and the attention of the people of Canada, and it is quite probable that the grain-growers and the manufacturers both chose the means best adapted to lend force to their arguments. The moral effect of the fact that several hundred men have thought it worth their while to travel the long distance which separates Ottawa from the wheat country was unmistakeably a powerful one. On the other hand, when a little group of a dozen or so speak in the name of industries which employ 450,000 workmen and which pay $250,000,000 in wages annually, their requests are not likely to be ignored.

As the Premier pointed out in a brief reply to the memorial presented by the delegation, there is very little in common between the recommendations urged upon the Government yesterday and the less definite if more radical suggestions made by the grain-growers a month ago, except the claim that both are in the best interests of Canada. Sir Wilfrid's assurance, "We do not intend to make any arrangement which will unsettle the prosperous conditions which we now enjoy," was, under the circumstances, tactful, if not very illuminating. There certainly was no uncertain sound in the views on reciprocity expressed in yesterday's memorial. "The United States may be ready for reciprocity; Canada is not", this was the keynote of all the arguments and the statistics quoted as a basis for this contention have not yet been refuted either at Ottawa or Washington.

Ever since the findings of the Railway Commission as regards the excessive profits express companies have been earning on their real capital, there has been a movement developing among their employes to secure an increase in wages and thus extricate the companies from the embarrassing position in which they find themselves.

With two passenger trains lost in snow-drifts for four days on one of the famous American railroads, we may hope for a temporary respite from that time-honored jest, which humorists of the United States so delight to honor, concerning the rigors of winter in Canada.

J. Pierpont Morgan is to "reorganize" the national debt of Honduras, such a course, according to the Washington authorities, being "exactly in line with the Monroe doctrine." It is wonderful what can be read into a doctrine if you only go about it the right way.

FROM THE STAR FILES THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The late Charles Stewart Parnell.

"A London despatch says: Parnell will not insist on attending the opening of Parliament, and risk a collision with the Government authorities." From The Montreal Star, January 14th, 1881.

CHARLES Stewart Parnell, although born in Wicklow, received his education in England, finishing by taking a degree at Magdalen College, Cambridge. He sat for Meath, first in 1875, but two years later he took an independent stand and became President of the Home Rule Confederacy, while nominally serving under the leadership of Mr. Shaw. In 1879 he was elected President of the Land League, and, accompanied by Mr. Dillon, he made a successful collecting trip to the United States and raised a large sum of money. The following year he was chosen leader of the Irish party, and sat for Cork during 1884 and 1885. He inspired the policy of the Irish Parliamentary party, and, after the general elections, came to Westminster with a following of 84. When the London Times published the celebrated Piggott alleged exposure, he came out of the trouble stronger than ever, and afterwards was awarded £5,000 damages. He died suddenly at Brighton, in 1891.

"New York, January 13. One thousand feet of the railway wharf at Sandy Hook has been carried away by the battering of the outflowing ice. The ocean is frozen solid from the point of the Hook to the main ship channel, the ice being from 12 to 14 inches thick. The floating ice renders navigation extremely perilous." From The Montreal Star, January 14th, 1881.

"Considerable interest was manifested to-day in the sale, by Mr. J. J. Arnton, of a portion of the old Crystal Palace property, forming part of the estate of the defunct Mechanics Bank. There were three lots on St. Catherine street, each 26 feet x 90 ft. 6 in., and four lots on Cathcart street, each 21 ft. 6 in. x 87 ft. 6 in., with lane in rear. Mr. G. W. Stephens, as attorney for Mr. Harrison Stephens, purchased the whole property, that on St. Catherine street at $1.91 per square foot, with charges amounting to about 5c more, and that on Cathcart street for 66 cents per square foot." — From The Montreal Star, January 14th, 1881.

THIS was the ground on which the Crystal Palace once stood, in which the famous Garrison concerts were held.

"Alderman Greene persists in resigning his seat in the Council for the East Ward, and Mr. L. E. Beauchamp has consented to be a candidate for the seat thus vacated." From The Montreal Star, January 13th, 1881.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

St. Catharines Couple Celebrate — Best Man a Guest.

Special to The Montreal Star.

St. Catharines, Ont., January 14. Celebrating the golden wedding tonight of himself and Mrs. Chatfield, Mr. Albert Chatfield reminiscently referred to conditions as they were in Canada and the United States a half a century ago. Mrs. Chatfield was formerly Miss Eliza Winslow, daughter of the late Alex. Winslow, of Thorold, and Mr. Chatfield came over from New York, where he lived, to get married. Returning to New York by the New York Central, the trip took them 22 hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Chatfield came to Canada in the sixties and after residing for a time in Toronto, took up their home in St. Catharines. One sister of Mr. Chatfield, Mrs. Robert Colby is living in Toronto, another, Mrs. Brady, is in the Southern States, and a brother, Walter, resides in Jamestown, N. Y. Among the guests was Samuel Braund, of Dunnville, who was best man at the wedding 50 years ago.

Named to Succeed Judge Knapp.

Washington, January 14.—Judson C. Clement C. Clements, of Georgia, was elected chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission to succeed Judge Martin A. DO IT NOW

Don't put off if you want to make money in real estate. If every man who has a "DO IT NOW" motto in his room always did it now, how much more would be accomplished in this world.

It is doubtful if the evil effects of indecision are anywhere more marked than in the case of real estate investment. By failing to seize the opportunity, many a fortune has been lost, and thousands compelled to spend their lives in poverty who might have enjoyed a competence had they acted with decision at the proper time.

It is easy to let things slide, and it is not hard to allow ourselves to drift Human nature, like motion, always tends to follow the line of least resistance.

Many Real Estate Transfers in The Centre Districts Recorded

Several Big Transactions Reported During the Week—Big Eight-Storey Building Will be Erected on Guy Street—Total Transfers for December Amounted To Over One Million Dollars.

Real estate transfers for the week have been the heaviest for months past, and the deals are assuming larger proportions. This applies mainly to business properties and flats and tenements, while of course there are the usual trades passing in vacant land in the outlying parts of the city.

"There is a big demand for inside properties," said Mr. Fred. B. Robins, president of the Robins Company, to a representative of the Star to-day. "We have put through a number of medium-sized sales since opening our offices here a short time ago. I must say that I am very much impressed with Montreal so far as the central properties and residential sections are concerned. Values on St. Catherine street as a retail proposition, and on St. James street, as a banking section, though they have increased recently, are nothing now compared to what they will eventually bring. I consider properties on these streets and their immediate vicinity good value for the prices now asked.

"The suburban lot proposition is overdone. Farms are being cut up for miles, in fact, nearly every farm on the Island of Montreal is either plotted out or going to be, and it seems to me that the market is overdone. Under the circumstances I believe there will be a re-action if the speculation in this class of property continues. We confine our efforts to selling business properties, residential properties, and vacant land within the city limits, and in this way sell to people and have them satisfied so that they will not have to come to us later on and complain of loading them up with outside properties when we could have sold them inside the city with a bigger and better return on their investment."

Among the big transactions of the week was that of the sale of the vacant lot at the corner of Sherbrooke and Guy streets to a syndicate for about $75,000.

The purchase was made in the interests of a syndicate composed of well-known Montreal business men who will erect an eight storey apartment house at a cost of $500,000.

Among the sales of farm properties was that of the old St. Germain farm in St. Laurent, just adjoining Outremont. This property contains over 167 acres and was bought by the Ross Realty Company for a sum exceeding $100,000. It will be sub-divided into lots and offered to the public as building sites.

Why Are So Many Going To Kelowna To Grow Fruit?

BECAUSE fruit growing offers the maximum of profit with the minimum of risk; it is the most pleasant and the safest business in the world; the Kelowna District ins the most favored fruit-growing section on this Continent. This Valley is especially adapted to apple growing; and apples are no longer a luxury, but a necessity. In the Okanagan, fruits will not only produce in abundance, but the quality is equal to any and superior to most. The varieties of apples and pears which are cultivated in the Kelowna Distrfict prove to be of better quality, flavor and size than those produced elsewhere in British Columbia.

The Kelowna District has the soil, (light loamy clay), which has been proven beyond further question to be the most strikingly suited to the highest state of fruit culture.

Kelowna has an ideal climate, the suitability of which for fruit-growing we need not elaborate here.

Together with these splendid growing conditions, the Kelowna District has unlimited markets for its produce in the prairie Provinces, Australia and China. Both rail and water facilities serve this favored region.

Now, given suitable soil, favorable climate and plenty of hungry markets at the door, who cannot forsee a remarkable degree of prosperity for the man who is segacious enough to select the Kelowna District as his home?

Call at our office and we will enumerate further inducements Kelowna has to offer to people seeking a life of refinement and opportunity, with returns which cannot be expected for the same amount of money invested in any other part of the Dominion. Investors are learning by experience to place their money in productive investments, instead of those more speculative. Investors can have their properties developed in their absence under a guarantee. Others select fruit-growing in Kelowna District to go to an ideal life in an ideal climate. What about you?

COLLISION AT DOMINION.

Freight Train and Radial Car Tried Conclusions.

There was a collision of a Park & Island electric car, and a freight train, at the Bridge Works crossing, near Dominion, a day or two ago, when the car got the worst of it, being left leaning against a telegraph post in a damaged condition. No one was hurt, however, and after being replaced on the metal, the car made its way back to the city for repairs.

The Dominion Wire Co. is at work again with almost its full complement of employes, though it is understood that business is dull both in wire and in small goods. There is talk again of the erection of a furnace by this company and a plant to produce steel rods, but it is evident that if such additions are contemplated, plans have not yet been perfected. There is a site for the plant on the Wire Co.'s premises.

Church Social Held.

St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Ahuntsic, held a very enjoyable social, last evening, the student in charge, Mr. Percival, being present and proving himself to be an admirable host.

RIVIERE DES PRAIRIE.

The landowners in the municipality of Riviere des Prairie are looking forward to the coming of the Georgian Bay Canal, which they feel confident will be accomplished in the very near future. It is pointed out that there would be very little deepening required at this point, which is opposite St. Vincent de Paul. With the advent of this canal business would be greatly stimulated and the shores of this quiet farming district would be dotted with houses and other buildings. At present the new houses along the river shore are occupied only in the summer months, being owned by Montrealers, who spend the summer here. It is said that an effort will shortly be made to have the Park and Island Railway run its cars further down towards the end of the Island, with the idea of eventually reaching Bout de l'Isle and connecting with the Terminal or old Belt Line, thus taking in the east end of the Island of Montreal.

SPOKE ON CEYLON.

Rev. Father Mathieu Delivered Interesting Address.

Rev. Father Mathieu, who recently returned from a trip to Ceylon, was entertained last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lefebvre, of Montreal South. Among those present were Rev. J. A. Beauchamp, parish priest of Montreal South; Mayor Labonte and Mrs. Labonte, Mr. and Mrs. Lortie, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lortie, Miss Beatrice Lortie, Miss Corrine Lortie, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gervais, Mr. and Mrs. N. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. G. Breton, Mr. and Mrs. E. Breton, Mr. and Mrs. G. Favreau, Mr. and Mrs. N. Laflamme, Mr. and Mrs. N. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. N. Cyr, Mr. and Mrs. N. McKay, Mr. Riopelle, Miss Hattie Lefebvre, Miss R. A. Lefebvre, Miss Sarah Lefebvre, Miss A. Lefebvre, and others. The euchre match was keenly contested. The prizes were won by Mrs. Oscar Lortie, Miss C. Lortie and Mrs. Napoleon Labonte, Rev. Father Mathieu, Mr. N. Labonte and Mr. Oscar Lortie. After refreshments had been served Rev. Father Mathieu gave an interesting talk on the habits and customs of the people of Ceylon.

News From Rockfield.

There is an important movement afoot to run a public road through the at present closed stone arch of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's viaduct connecting West Rockfield with Dominion on the north side of the Grand Trunk track. This would open out some valuable real estate for new streets, in near proximity to the factories, and would certainly add to the convenience of dwellers in Victoria Park, who are practically without a highway at present.

The thaw has greatly hindered the improvements upon the toboggan slide, which promised to be a most important feature in the winter's amusements.

NOTES FROM LACHINE.

Municipal Campaign Does Not Attract Much Attention.

Masquerades are the order of the day here just now. The last one was on the George V. rink, the one started by W. E. Ranger, on the canal basin. The costumes were many of them new and striking, though some were heirlooms from across the water, and elsewhere. It is surprising how soon the newcomers from England learn to skate well, and how fond they are of these fancy dress affairs.

The Dominion rink has its first masquerade of the season on Saturday night.

Mr. Sourie has taken the position of organist at St. Stephen's, in the place of Mr. Lucas, resigned.

There is not much excitement over the municipal elections, though the feeling is strongly in favor of new men to replace some of the present aldermen.

THE LAURA SECORD MONUMENT READY FOR UNVEILING

Special to The Montreal Star.

Queenston, Ont., January 14.—Upon the historic sod of Queenston Heights, overlooking the Niagara River, where General Sir Isaac Brock drove back the American invaders a hundred years ago, adjacent to Brock's monument, stands a granite pillar, which next spring will be unveiled with due ceremony. This pillar, erected by the Dominion Government to Laura Secord, commemorates a deed by a woman, which for pluck and bravery stands well to the front in Canadian history among deeds of devotion and daring.

Laura Secord lived with her husband near Niagara-on-the-Lakes, the ancient capital of Upper Canada. During the troublesome times of 1812-14, her husband took up arms to protect his home and country. Wounded in battle, he was taken to his home to be tenderly nursed by his devoted wife. One day two American officers called at the Secord home and demanded food. While serving them, Mrs. Secord caught a few words of their conversation, which satisfied her that the Americans contemplated a surprise attack on the British army which was stationed at Beverdams, near Thorold.

How to warn the British was the question. Her husband was ill and unable to go, and there was nobody to undertake the perilous trip through dense woods beset with wild animals, still wilder Indians and guerilla bands, but herself. But, nothing daunted, under cover of darkness, she started out and how she succeeded in reaching the British army and warning the commanding officer is of historic record. She had to travel 22 miles, and one of her dangers was in getting through the American lines. She was stopped several times by American soldiers, but she told them she was looking for a lost cow and they believed her and let her pass, never dreaming what an important bearing it would have on future events. Being warned of the proposed attack, the British army was prepared and at the subsequent Battle of Beaverdams, gave the invaders a severe defeat.

A CANADIAN AVIATOR TO MAKE FLIGHTS HERE DURING THE SUMMER

The first English-speaking Canadian aviator to burst upon the world, Mr. St. Croix Johnstone, arrived in Montreal yesterday.

He is a bright-looking, smooth-shaven young man of medium height, weighing about a hundred and forty-five pounds, and apparently without any nerves to speak of.

He is quite prepared, according to what he says, to risk his life in taking charge of Mr. Laurendeau's aeroplane stable at King Edward Park, where next season, a properly equipped School of Aviation will be established.

"And at that," said Mr. Johnstone to The Star, "there is not such a tremendous risk."

"Then how do you account for all the accidents that have taken place of late?"

"I would not like to set myself up as a judge," replied Mr. Johnstone, "for I have had some accidents myself, but I am almost convinced that when I say that the majority of the accidents are caused by carelessness and by recklessness, I am not far out.

"In the first place one's machine should be overhauled every day, and examined before every trip. And unfortunately in this as in almost every other case, familiarity breeds contempt.

"Then the competition amongst the aviators at exhibitions is so strong that it leads to recklessness. They will do the most criminally wonderful things to outfly a competitor that can be well imagined. They will, for instance, slide down from a tremendous height with their engine going at full speed, and then when they suddenly reverse the strain upon the delicate parts of the machine becomes too great; something breaks, the machine becomes uncontrollable, and they are dead men."

Liability to Accident.

"Do you mean to say that any aviator who is properly careful need not fear accidents or death?"

"Not that exactly, because one is just as liable to meet with an accident in the air as on land, but I think that many valuable lives have been needlessly wasted through the causes mentioned."

"Isn't it possible," he was asked, "that in these exciting contests a sort of an aeral intoxication seizes the aviators, and makes them do things which they would not do under ordinary circumstances?"

"I do not say that it is impossible, but," and he shook his head, "I am afraid that mere sordid motives, like the idea of gaining special approval of their employers, and the hope of an increase of wages are the things that influence these aviators, who thus take their lives in their hands."

"But isn't it a fact that the men who control machines and employ men to fly them, as a rule warn their employes against taking unnecessary risks, and in fact forbid them to do so?"

"I have read so in the papers," was all he said.

Spills From a Monoplane.

"Have you ever had any accidents yourself?"

"Yes, two. The first time I fell thirty feet, and came near getting killed, had I been in anything but a Blerlot monoplane I would have been killed."

"Then you believe a monoplane is safer than a bi-plane?"

"I do. As it was I managed to break every bit of the machine. The second time I did not fall so far, and there was hardly any injury. Of course I was only a beginner."

"What is the sensation when you feel that the machine has got beyond control, and that you are bound to fall?"

"I suppose everybody who is interested in flying has asked that question. Well from my own experience, from the experiences I have heard others tell, and from what I have read of the fatal accident to my namesake, Johnstone, I have come to the conclusion that the aviator does not think first of himself at such a critical point, but of his machine.

First Thought in Fall.

"It is well established by those who watched the Ralph Johnstone accident with their glasses that the aviator tried his very best to fix his machine after he lost control. During my accident I felt the same way. My first thought was of my machine. Then when I knew I could not do anything I tried to save myself as best I could, and tried at least to fall so that my legs would strike the ground first. Real fear I did not feel."

"How did you come to go in for aviation?" "I was a motor-cyclist and at one time held the hour's record on a track in a continuous ride, having done 54 1-2 miles.

A Task for a Canadian.

"After that I thought for a while of going in for automobile racing, but then the aviation work attracted me, and hearing that Mr. Laurendeau was starting an aereal stable at King Edward Park, and was looking for a real Canadian aviator, who could manage Blerlots, I decided to qualify for that position.

"Outside of Count de Lesseps there are only two or three men on this side who can successfully manage these machines, and so I went to Blerlot's Aviation School in London.

"I have been at it three months making myself familliar with every bit of information that may be of use, and I finished on the 28th of December. Then I obtained my certificate of the Royal Kingdom. The examination consisted of making three flights of ten minutes each, and landing within fifty feet of the place where the instructor stands

Local Outfit Good.

"The outfit at King Edward Park is a very fine one and I am glad I am going to be connected with it. The Scarabee, which everybody saw under Count de Lesseps' management at Lakeside, and hovering over the city last year, is one of the finest Blerlot machines extant at the present time, and its engine is one of the best."

"Yes," said Mr. J. T. P. Laurendeau, who accompanied Mr. Johnstone, "he is going to do some great flying for us, if he does not break his neck;" and," and here his voice took on a confidential note, "You need not be a bit surprised if in addition to seeing a real Canadian aviator, you also see a real Canadian aeroplane in practical use next season."

Mr. Laurendeau also hinted that there might be another aviation meet. Mr. Jonnstone intends to go to New Orleans to keep in practice, and it is barely possible that he might have a surprise up his sleeve for foreign aviators.

Mr. Johnstone was born in Toronto, but lived for some time in Chicago.

A Halifax, N.S., despatch states that suspicion has been aroused regarding the reported loss of Captain Gullian, of the schooner Emma H., reported swept overboard during a gale.

Sharp Knifey Kidney Pains

They come on so suddenly without a moments warning. You experience a sharp knifey pain almost piercing you asunder. The kidneys have gone on strike. They have got to the limit of endurance. Overworked, they are now feeling the strain and this is one way they have of calling your attention to the fact. Neglect the warning and serious results will follow. Take a course of Booth's Kidney Pills and the kidneys will receive fresh energy. They are to the kidneys what oil is to a lamp or steam to an engine.

You cannot make any mistake by treating the kidneys at once, for if neglected dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease will quickly follow.

There is no medicine more helpful than Booth's Kidney Pills. They are a simple remedy for the kidneys yet so powerful that it quickly cures the cause and so ends all the painful and annoying symptoms of diseased kidneys. Prompt relief follows the taking of Booth's Kidney Pills. They rouse the sluggish liver and dispel all uric acid from the system, the pains get less frequent until they disappear entirely. Proofs of the unfailing merit of Booth's Kidney Pills, given on application.

A sudden warning that your kidneys are failing, are those sharp back pains. Be wise and at once take Booth's Kidney Pills, the Guaranteed Remedy.

Mrs. Eliza L. Avey, of Stover Street, Norwich, Ont., says: "For some months I endured sharp, knifey pains in my back and through my loins, sides and over the region of the kidneys. There has also been many aches and pains in my limbs and joints. The kidney action was not correct and gave me untold annoyance. I used several remedies without any apparent relief. I saw Booth's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a treatment at Macwhirter's drug store. I used this remedy for a while and found that they appealed to my case exactly; continuing with the treatment I was soon freed from any kidney trouble or backache and give entire credit for the cure to Booth's Kidney Pills."

Keep the kidneys well and the kidneys will keep you well. Well kidneys filter the blood and keep it pure. Neglect your kidneys and you open the door for a long list of serious disorders having their origin in kidney weakness.

The simplest and most effective remedy for sick kidneys is Booth's Kidney Pills. If you cannot obtain them from your druggist, send price to the proprietors who will mail you a package postpaid.

AAS, that President Taft's pious aspirations for everlasting peace with Great Britain should be set at naught by the same pen that expected would sign an arbitration ... When Mr. Taft, the other day, is note to Walter J. Travis, he shot heard round the world. That istoric document reads as follows ave yours of December 7. I think striction imposed by St. Andrews is ow. I think putting with a Schedy putter is sportsmanlike, and to due advantage."

The Schenectady putter may be rusting in the dust-bins at St. Andrews, but spirit is marching to a quickstep ...out the length and breadth of the States, and now the President has himself at its head. In other s, there is blood upon the moon.

Cannig the Schenectady.

...a what is this Schenectady putter, the non-golfing reader, always interested in a rumpus whether about golf ...gher criticism. It is an American ...ention in the shape of a croquet mallet which has been used for ten years ... United States by golf players, and ...some years in England and Scotland ... British body governing the rules of ... which is the Royal and Ancient ...b of St. Andrews, has declared the ... of the club improper, and in British ...ountries it has been discarded. In the United States, however, the golfers seem be much more attached to the club, ...bably since it is a purely American ...ention, like gold brick and wooden ...gs. They want to retain it, but as ...are all more or less governed by the ... of the St. Andrews, some of them ...e to flatly refuse to bow to the ...sh edict. Now, however, that the ...ent, as the First Golfer in the ...ed States, has given his approval to ... putter, it is likely that the United ...tes Golf Association will openly rebel, ...w off the foreign yoke, and draw up ...t of purely American rules, whereby ...Schenectady will be played in the United ...tes in future.

The Spirit of Revolt.

...On Saturday the American Association ...s meet in Chicago to review the work ... the year, and to make rules for the ...r in 1911. The most interesting business before the meeting will be the discussion of the Schenectady putter. As far as the writer is competent to judge, it seems sure that the St. Andrews rulings will be rejected, and the putter receive official endorsation of the American golf magnates. This means the beginning of the end. At present the rules of golf are the same the world over, and a player from Mexico could play a match with a player from Aberdeen, neither exchanging a word throughout the round, and yet each perfectly understanding what the other was doing. It is only reasonable to supply that once the innovation of separate rules is established, there will be more new rules every year, and finally American and British golf will be as different as Rugby and American football, or even as cricket and lacrosse.

Putting with a Billiard Cue.

Heretofore the method of play in the United States has left a player pretty free to use any sort of club or implement he chose. If any objection was taken by an opponent to one of the instruments, a request was sent over to St. Andrews for a ruling, and that august body decided the point as it was raised. For instance, a player once used a billiard cue to put with, and St. Andrews was called on to declare this tool improper in golf. Then, in New Zealand a year or so ago, an ingenious player turned up with a croquet mallet, and did some fine putting with it, until St. Andrews stopped the practice. In different American games the croquet mallet has been used, but American golfers made no objection to the banning of this implement. As a matter of fact, the prohibition of the mallet should have meant the abandonment of the Schenectady, for it is a mallet pure and simple. The mallet, as applied to golf, is in the shaft of the club, being centrally placed. The cleek principle is that of a goose-necked club, and this is the principle that the custodians of the golfers' conscience declare to be the only true one for putting.

The Schenectady Boom.

The Schenectady putter was given a great boom a few years ago by Walter J. Travis. In several British matches he made such brilliant use of the Schenectady that a profound sensation was created throughout the world of golf. Bad putters everywhere—and they were then and remain to-day far more numerous than good putters—thought that their troubles were at an end. All that they required to do was to equip themselves with Schenectady putters, and become runners up at the club tournaments. Hundreds of them, if not thousands, took up the club, but they soon found that, though the goose-necked putter had been indeed a tricky implement, the new and seemingly more substantial Schenectady had peculiarities of its own, one of them being a strong tendency to drive the ball to the right of the hole. In fact, it may be doubted if the Schenectady ever made a good putter out of a bad one. In the hands of experts like Travis, Fairlie, Hutchinson and Williams, it was admirable, but the enthusiastic dub never paused to consider that these men were first rate putters before they ever saw the American tool.

St. Andrews' Ruling.

Last May the news came to the United States that St. Andrews had put the rollers under the Schenectady, and, since it was being used by three golfers out of four on this continent, consternation spread rapidly. The secretary of the United States Golf Association cabled the St. Andrews' Secretary on Rules, asking if the news were true. He answered that it was, that St. Andrews had barred the Schenectady. As a matter of fact, this reply does not appear to have been quite accurate, since all that had been done at that time was the giving of authority to the Rules Committee to "add to the clause on form and make of golf clubs words which shall declare that all clubs with heads of the mallet type are a substantial departure from the traditional and accepted form and make of golf clubs.' It was not until the September meeting of the Rules Committee that this rule was finally put through, so that in May the Schenectady had not been officially prohibited.

Off With the Foreign Yoke.

Now there is nothing contradictory in the president's statement that the use of the Schenectady is sportsmanlike, and the statement of the Ancient and Honorable that it is a substantial departure from traditions. It is quite possible that it should be both. The thing that has aroused so much feeling in the United States is that the golfers there take the ground that they should have been consulted by St. Andrews before the prohibition was made effective, since the Scottish club was well aware of the general use of the putter in the United States. The principle that American golfers have a right to make suggestions and alterations to golf rules, governing not only themselves but the British golfers, has long been recognized. In the past St. Andrews has been ready to listen to their representations, and the result is incorporated in the universal rules of golf. Shall the Americans be compelled to bow their necks to the foreign tyrant? Shall they not have some voice in the making of the laws that govern them? These are the questions, and, since the president seems to have cast in his lot with the insurgents, a split is inevitable.

Not lightly, we may be sure, will thousands of American golfers break with the old mother of the game. Yet to advocate humble submission would be to call down the contempt of the Spirit of 1911. So a compromise has been suggested. It is proposed that the Americans shall bow to the dictum of St. Andrews, but shall accept the rules in a Pickwickian sense. They shall abolish the Schenectady, but continue to use it just the same. It is pointed out that such Pickwickianism would not be an innovation in American golf. For instance, the St. Andrews' rules forbid a practice swing; yet it is allowed in the United States. Despite this precedent, it is not likely that the voice of moderation and Pickwickianism will make itself heard in Chicago on Saturday. There is blood on the moon.

A NEW KING'S PLATE OFFERED BY KING

That King George will follow in the footsteps of his father, the late King Edward, as an active participant in the affairs of the turf is an assurance that the race courses in England and the colonies will lose none of their popularity with the public. His Majesty will grace several of the notable meetings with his presence during the coming season and many of the horses from his stables will be seen under the royal colors. As a further instance of His Majesty's interest in the thoroughbred the following letter received yesterday by Mr. Northey, Secretary of the Montreal Jockey Club, from Lord Carrington, Keeper of His Majesty's Privy Purse, would go to show that the interest extends beyond the Kingdom, and that the King will perpetuate that which in the past has been done for racing in this province, by his father and grandmother:

Buckingham Palace, 31st December, 1910.

Sir,—I have it in command to say that the King is graciously pleased to grant permission for a Race being held, during His Majesty's pleasure over the Blue Bonnets Course, to be known as The King's Plate of the Province of Quebec, and further that His Majesty will be pleased to give Fifty Guineas to the owner of the winner.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
(Signed), Carrington.
Keeper of His Majesty's Privy Purse.
The Secretary,
Montreal Jockey Club.

A recent issue of the Racing Calendar, the official journal of the English Jockey Club, contained details of the entries for next season's meetings that have been already entered into on behalf of the King. The engagements relate to the Newmarket Second October, Bath Bibury Club, Doncaster Spring, Newbury, October, Hurst Park Whitsun, Newbury Summer and Sandown Park First Summer meetings. His Majesty also subscribes to several important weight-for-age races to be decided in 1912 and 1913.

According to the plans already laid for this season the King and Queen will be present at the Epsom races on Derby and Oaks days, and the arrangements for the visit of the Court to Ascot will be the same as during the reign of King Edward. It is very likely that the King will attend the Goodwood races on three days of the meetings and in the Autumn His Majesty may be seen at Newmarket during either the Second October or the Houghton meeting.

WELL KNOWN ATHLETES AMONGST THE MINES

Hockey players as gold and silver miners are depicted in the photographs published here, the originals of which were brought down from the gold and silver country by Wallace Nicholson, who himself used to play on the Intermediate Wanderers, and a brother of Billie Nicholson, who used to be the goalkeeper of the Senior Wanderers, afterwards of the Shamrocks, and still later of the Haileybury team.

It was the backer of that Haileybury team, Mr. Charles Richardson, who started the mining idea in the heads of the hockey players, and he now has a grubstake interest in seven claims in Porcupine, which the holders value at such a price that they expect to sell three-fourths of them for thirty thousand dollars. Outside of Mr. Richardson, who grubstaked them, the owners of these claims, which they say is only a mile from the Timmins claims, are: Horace Gaul, Steve Ronan, Con. Corbeau, Louis Berlinquet, Pat McLaughlin and Wallace Nicholson.

Mr. Nicholson claims that they have a quartz lead a hundred feet wide in this mine.

After arranging for his own interests in the Porcupine, young Nicholson went with Robert Bruce, said to be the first man to find gold in the Porcupine, to New Quebec, and there staked out a claim of two hundred acres. To hold this claim they either have to work it within six months, or pay one dollar a year per acre for the next five years.

To get free from Haileybury and stake out their claims, a distance of eighty-five miles, it took them fourteen days, and on the way back when they were three days from the nearest settlement, two of their dogs, who were drawing the supply toboggan—there were six of them—ate themselves out of their straps, and gobbled up all the bacon there was, and all the butter, and the last three days they had to subsist upon flour and water and tea.

Mr. Nicholson says that there is lots of gold in New Quebec, and that many claims have been staked out there now, but that it will probably be six months before Montreal will really hear the particulars about it, these things being known much more quickly in New York and Boston than here. He is now on his way to New York and Boston, in connection with certain mining deals.

MILLER HUGGINS LED IN 'GRAFTING PASSES'

New York, January 14.—Secretary John A. Heydler, of the National League, has compiled the strike-out and the base-on-balls records of the players who took part in ten or more championship games during the season of 1910.

Miller Hugging, of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Johnny Evers, of the Chicago Cubs, were the most successful in drawing passes from the twirlers of the league. In 151 games Huggins received 'transportation' 116 times, and Evers in 125 games got to first by the free pass route 108 times.

Two players of the Brooklyn Club had the doubtful honor of leading in strikeouts. Billy Bergen was fanned 8 times, and John Hummel hit nothing but air 81 times.

Otis Crandall, of the Giants, who led the league in batting with .342 per cent., struck out only seven times in 43 games. Josh Devore was the leading strike-out man with the Giants, doing the whiff act 67 times. Fred. Merkle was the runner-up, with 59 strike-outs. Al Bridwell drew the most passes. In 141 games he got a walk 74 times. Larry Doyle and Fred. Snodgrass each got 71 bases on balls during the season.

FOOTBALLERS TO MEET.

President G. M. Millard Has Called Meeting for Tuesday.

A special meeting of the Montreal Football Association has been called by the president, Mr. G. M. Millard, to be held at his house, 7 Brunswick St., on Tuesday next at 8.30 p.m.

The business will be to hear the report of the secretary-treasurer and to consider a few suggestions made by some of the prominent football enthusiasts, for the future welfare of the grand old game, which promises to become more popular here every year.

It is earnestly requested that every club of the association send representatives.

THE ST. PATRICK'S A.A.A. FANCY FAIR

The officers and members of this energetic organization and their lady friends, under the guidance and advice of their beloved chaplain, Rev. Father McShane, are fast getting everything in readiness for the monster fair to be held under the Association's auspices in Nazareth Hall, corner Mance and St. Catherine streets, February 14th to 18th. If hard work counts for anything, and it certainly does, the officers can rest assured that this, the greatest event in the Association's history will be a crowning success. The members are determined to make this Fair the most novel of its kind ever held in this city, new ideas in the form of booths and fancy electrical displays and devices different from anything usually seen at Fairs or Bazaars previously held in the Metropolis, as well as high class amusements, will be the features. A goodly sum has been allotted to the members of the Publicity Committee for advertising purposes, etc. The officers are greatly encouraged at the number of letters which they are receiving daily from prominent ladies interested in the welfare of the Association, offering their support towards the success of this great undertaking. Meetings will be held at the club rooms, 492 St. Urbain street, on Monday afternoon and evening next, the 16th inst., at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m., respectively, at which lady friends who have already signified their willingness to help as well as all those wishing to do so, are requested to attend. The officers realize that the success of this great event depends to a great extent on the support and energy to be displayed by the ladies, and when the ultimate object, or ambition of the Association has been realized (the purchasing of a club house and gymnasium) the honor of being partly responsible for the installation of the Association in their own quarters can never be denied them. The description of the various booths, which are to be named after the different counties and cities of Ireland, with the names of the ladies in charge and their assistants, will be announced later.

ST. PATRICK'S SNOWSHOERS.

First Ladies' Tramp to Take Place Tuesday.

The first ladies trap of the St. Patrick's Snowshoe Club will take place on Tuesday, the 17th inst., starting from the Club Rooms, 492 St. Urbain street, at 8 p. m. After tramping across the mountain the snowshoers will return to the club rooms, where refreshments will be served, after which a most enjoyable evening will be spent. The snowshoe committee have spared no pains to make this, the first ladies' tramp of the season, the most successful and enjoyable event of its kind in the history of the club. As the association now possesses their own quarters, the gymnasium of which is to be converted into an entertainment hall for this occasion, a large turnout of members and their lady friends is expected.

HELPLESS CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

4 HOME PLACE, TORONTO, DEC. 15th, 1909.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism for nearly a year, and my right arm was swollen and the pain was fearful. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful, and I could hardly move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians but their medicine did me no good, and I tried numerous other remedies but received no benefit. I was simply a helpless cripple and suffered from Rheumatism all during last winter.

I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised in "The Telegram" and decided to try this remedy. After I had taken one box, I was much better and the pain less, and I continued the treatment with good hopes. When I had taken three boxes, I was so well that I could use my arm again and the pain was practically gone. After I had taken five boxes, I was entirely well again—no pain—no suffering—and now I am as WELL as I ever was.

The cure of my case by "Fruit-a-tives" was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me of my sufferings.

For the sake of others who may suffer from this terrible disease, Rheumatism, I give you permission to publish this statement."

MRS. LIZZIE BAXTER.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy that actually cures Rheumatism, and Sciatica because "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that actually prevents Uric Acid being formed in any quantity in the body. If there is no excess of uric acid in the blood, there can be no Rheumatism.

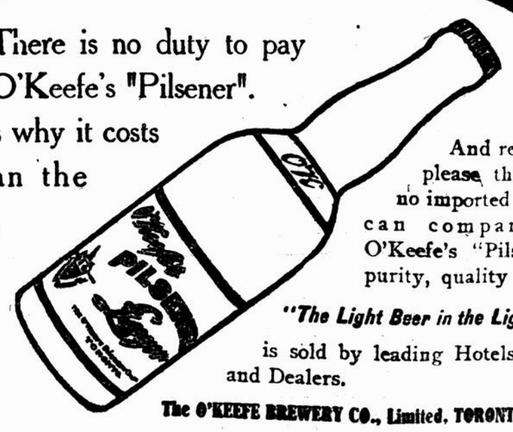

"Fruit-a-tives" keeps the stomach clean—the liver active—the bowels regular—the kidneys strong and the skin healthy. These are the organs that rid the body of all waste. When "Fruit-a-tives" so regulates the system that all waste is eliminated, then there can be no waste or "urea" to be changed into uric acid. Thus, there can be no uric acid in the blood, to inflame nerves and cause the pain which we know by the names of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia. "Fruit-a-tives" will cure every trace of Rheumatism, Pain in the Back, Swollen Hands and Feet, and other troubles due to the blood being poisoned by uric acid.

A $5,500,000 Decline in Calumet and Hecla Concern Shares

Special to The Montreal Star.

Boston, January 14. — The rather general decline in prices of Boston copper stocks during the past week, or since the announcement of the Calumet and Hecla consolidation plan, has resulted in forcing the average price of 20 stocks to the lowest point reached since last July.

Wednesday's average closing price was 43.30, and compares with 40.86, the record low figure of the year 1910. That year was notable for severe liquidation in copper stock quotations, the extent of which is forcefully conveyed in the statement that between the opening and closing days of the year an average of no less than 26 points was lopped off the selling value of the 20 stocks entering into the average compilations.

In the declining market of the past week the eight so-called Calumet and Hecla stocks listed on the local board have been most conspicuous, helping materially to force the average down. Aggregate depreciation in selling value of these securities during the eight trading days of the present year was $5,458,699, of which Calumet itself, with a drop of 25 points for its 100,000 shares, contributed almost one-half. Osceola lost 9 points, Centennial, Allouez and Superior, each 4, and Tamarack 5½.

	Close. Dec. 31.	Jan. 11.	Deprec.
Calumet and Hecla	525	500	$2,500,000
Centennial	16	12	360,000
Osceola	121	112	865,350
Isle Royale	16¼	15	262,500
Allouez	20	16	400,000
La Salle	6	4½	340,849
Tamarack	49½	44	330,000
Superior	44½	37½	400,000
Total			$5,458,699

MAY TAKE $10,000,000.

Europe is expected to take upwards of $10,000,000 of the coming $60,000,000 New York City 4½ per cent. loan.

Want Higher Tariff Help Flour Trade

The American millers are becoming alarmed at the decline in the export trade in flour and grain, and the following taken from the Minneapolis Market Record, one of the best authorities on the grain trade across the border, will, no doubt, be of interest to those who are endeavoring to secure a lower duty on flour and grain from Canada.

"That exports of flour from the United States to foreign countries, that have been so severely cut down in the last few years will be still further reduced unless rescued by more reasonable tariff laws and export regulations, is quite certain. Under the leadership of Germany and France other European countries have adopted tariff provisions to manufacture flour from imported wheat to export the flour under regulations that will in the end destroy the flour export industry of this country unless wiser laws and more accommodating regulations be adopted.

"European countries having become assured that live stock farming is the foundation for profitable crop raising, they have formulated customs duties and domestic regulations whereby they are enabled to increase their acreage production of grain, to double the production an acre as compared with the production in the United States. This is done by increasing milling capacity beyond domestic requirements for bread, while retaining all the by-products for stock feeding and ultimate increase of soil fertility.

"Before the adoption of this system this country was able to do a very large export trade in flour and leave an abundance of by-products for home use. These by-products are now some 200 per cent. dearer than under the more profuse flour making, increasing the cost to that extent of soil fertilization."

MAKE BIG CASH GAINS.

New York banks have made record gains of cash this week of over $21,000,000, and time and call rates continue to decline.

High Finance Was Charge Against Them

Financial methods of George Gould, Jacob H. Schiff, James Stillman, and E. H. Harriman were criticized in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, at Chicago, by Charles S. Holt, who appeared for the minority stockholders of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Co., and charged that "high finance" caused the insolvency of the company.

Some men use the bank merely as a place to keep their surplus cash, and carry in their pocket the money they need to pay living or working expenses. Giving a cheque is handier and safer than paying cash. It introduces system into your private accounts.

Alberta Has To Borrow in London Again

London, January 14. — There was an issue of Province of Alberta six months' treasury bills in London this week, with Lloyds' Bank on a 4 per cent. basis.

The largeness of the amount is supposed to be due to the large sums tied up locally in connection with the Alberta Waterways scheme.

WINDERMERE.

Deposits of the Dominion Bank last year increased $4,000,000, and not $4,000, as stated last Thursday.

C.P.R. BOUGHT BY BERLIN YESTERDAY

Special to The Montreal Star.

New York, January 13.—It is said that the rise in Canadian Pacific stock yesterday was helped greatly by heavy buying on Berlin account.

It also looked as though many New York speculators had taken hold of the stock.

BANK OF TORONTO STRONG.

The Bank of Toronto meeting heard the announcement that Mr. Coulson, who long and efficiently served the institution as general manager, had accepted the presidency, and would be succeeded in the managership by Mr. Thomas F. How. Mr. Coulson's connection with the bank extends over a period of 54 years, for the greater part of which he held a post of the highest trust and responsibility. The position of the institution today is the proof of his capacity and fitness. It has assets of over fifty million dollars. Its capital of $1,000,000 is supported by a reserve of $4,750,000. Its earnings last year were $589,656, of which only $400,000 was used for the 10 per cent. dividend, the balance going to strengthen the general position and improve the prospects of the officers. Such a record speaks for itself. What is said in the report of the directors about the general situation of the country gives reason to expect also that the favorable record will be maintained.

MORGAN ADDS 20 MILLIONS TO CONTROL

By Merely Lending His Name to the Two Banks in Trouble

The New York World says that J. P. Morgan & Co. added about $20,000,000 to their banking control by the mere lending of their name to the Madison Trust Co. and to the 12th and 19th Ward Banks.

According to its information, the Madison Trust Co. was virtually forced into Morgan's arms when the Carnegie Trust Co. closed its doors last Saturday morning, the 19th Ward Bank had about 25 per cent. of its deposits in actual cash and about $1,500,000 in good commercial paper.

The State Banking Department, it is asserted, would not give the bank time to dispose of the paper, and informed the institution that it would take possession Monday morning unless it could obtain strong banking support.

It went to J. P. Morgan & Co., and the merger of the Madison Trust and the Equitable Trust, practically controlled by the house of Morgan, was the result.

Morgan & Co. did not charge anything for the support rendered to the 19th Ward Bank, says the World, but certain terms were made in respect to the taking over of the Carnegie management's holdings in the Madison Trust Co.

Best to Buy Stocks When They are Low

Financial Editor Montreal Star.

Sir,—The discussion as to whether or not it is best to wait for a panic in order to invest seems to permit of but one answer—it is best to wait.

I will illustrate my own case. Early in 1907 I had some $11,000 to invest for an estate, and as the markets seemed to be declining, I awaited developments. It is true, I had no thoughts of a panic in mind at the time, and it is also true that when it came I was too apprehensive to invest even in C. P. R., and thus take advantage of its extremely low price, which, if I am not mistaken was somewhere about 140.

As the skies began to clear, however, I bought at 159½, and have had no reason to regret the purchase.

Had I money of my own to invest, I would certainly keep it in the bank and await some of the periodical revulsions in the price of shares.

GAMBLING IN COBALT STOCKS ON THE WANE

Decrease of 8,000,000 Shares in the Dealings

Computations on the 1910 transactions in Cobalt shares on the Toronto Standard Mining Exchange do not seem to have attracted the analysis they deserve, possibly because the interest in mines waned throughout the period in review.

Taking 36 companies, the shares of which were traded in, the market value of those shares as compared with a year ago shows a depreciation of about $11,000,000. The depreciation, in fact, almost equals the total value of the shares dealt in, which was $10,797,767, as applied to the 36 companies, and 28,126,029 shares. Transactions decreased some 8,000,000 shares, and while nearly one-half the business related to paper—and nothing more—it is worthy of comment that the proportion of dealings in dividend-paying stocks was greater than it ever was, as follows:

	No. shares.	Value.
Coniagas	6,581	61,584.05
Crown Reserve	89,744	272,621.44
Hudson Bay	435	54,635.10
Kerr Lake	62,733	486,987.91
La Rose	77,929	656,028.93
McKinley-Darragh	303,335	308,656.11
Nipissing	41,862	393,216.84
Right of Way	578,087	96,767.68
Temiskaming	3,502,565	2,702,611.84

A. G. Hepburn Heads New Navigation Co

Special to The Montreal Star.

Trenton, Ont., January 14. — At a meeting of the Ontario and Quebec Navigation Company, held at Picton, Mr. A. Leslie was elected chairman of the board, and Mr. R. G. Hepburn, secretary.

Other directors are: Messrs. B. R. Hepburn, J. De C. Hepburn, J. F. Chapman, H. Dempsey and W. B. Cooper.

The new company has a Dominion charter, and has purchased the Hepburn Line, of Picton, as well as several other Bay of Quinte lines.

The fleet, it is stated, will include about twenty passenger and freight boats, besides a fine new passenger and freight steamer, now being built at Collingwood at a cost of $200,000.

HUDSON BAY SHARES FOR OUR MARKET

Movement Will Likely be Made to List Them on Our Board

The rise to £21½ in Hudson's Bay shares in London is not a record, as the shares hit £12½ in 1906.

About five years ago an effort was made to have Hudsons listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange, but the suggestion was not well received by Lord Strathcona, who has always frowned upon speculation in the shares.

An effort will likely be made to list the shares here now, however, as a new group of directors are now practically in control.

	High.	Low.
1902	27½	21
1903	45½	33
1904	51⅞	35½
1905	$4	49⅜

Another Victim of Batavia Crash.

Batavia, N.Y., January 14.—H. H. Cade, of 6,211 Lexington Avenue, died at the hospital here this morning from injuries received in yesterday's rear-end collision on the New York Central Railroad. This makes the death list six.

For the first time in living memory a convict has escaped from Schlusselburg Fortress, in Russia. While working in the afternoon in the open air the convict scaled the wall with the aid of a rope, and subsequently, though chained, walked all night across the ice of Lake Ladoga towards Bugrovsky Lighthouse. Early on the following morning the man was discovered by some peasants, and was seized and taken back to Schlusselburg Prison.

Canada N.W. Land Co. for Past Year

During December the sales of land by the Canada Northwest Land Company amounted to 2,859 acres, returning the Company $2,388; an average price per acre of $11.89, while during December, 1909, the sale of 1,439 acres brought $17,600, or an average of $12.15.

During the whole year, 1910, 62,137 acres were sold for a total of $747,131, as compared with 16,957 acres for $193,340 in 1909.

The average of the two years is $12.03 and $11.39 respectively. The price received by this company and the amount of land sold during the course of 17 years is interesting. The advance in price is regular and substantial, advancing over 240 per cent. in that period.

MORE SENSATIONAL DETAILS EXPECTED AT SCHENK TRIAL

Hypothetical Question Covering All the Facts of the Case Will Be Presented To-day.

Wheeling, W.Va., January 14.—Many persons who have been on hand as early and as regularly as days every day this week in order to assure themselves of admission to the Schenk trial and many more whose interest was stirred by the announcement of sensational testimony were lined up at the county court house at 5 o'clock this morning. They looked for a continuance of such testimony as Daniel Phillips, a well-known plano salesman, gave yesterday in admitting that he and Mrs. Schenk had been taking night automobile rides in her Limousin for the past year or more.

The effort of Prosecuting Attorney J. B. Handlan to prove that Mrs. Schenk attempted to poison her wealthy husband, John O. Schenk, last fall, was to be directed at the morning session to-day to a hypothetical question covering all the facts in the case, so far as they have developed. This question began yesterday, while Dr. J. T. Thornton, who was called to attend Schenk during his illness, was on the stand. Dr. Thornton had concluded yesterday with the admission on cross-examination that the symptoms of poisoning in Schenk's case might have been due to "serious stomach disorders." In his direct questioning he had stated that certain symptoms indicated lead poisoning and others arsenic.

Pawn-Broking in France.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star.

Sir,—With the recent talk of a municipal pawnshop in Montreal, it might be interesting to glance at the regulations governing pledges placed in Mont de Piete, or the Government pawnshop of France, a huge affair. Practically for more than fifty years the Mont de Piete has enjoyed a complete monopoly of the pawnbroking business in France. By article XVII. of the Penal Code any person lending money on pledges is liable to imprisonment for from fifteen days to three months, and a fine of 100 to 1,000 francs (1 franc equals 19.3 cents). There are persons called ticket brokers (marchands des reconnaissances), who advance money (about 20 per cent. of the face value) on the Mont de Piete vouchers and charge interest at the rate of 10 per cent. a month. They keep within the law by making the contract, a purchase within three months redeemable, but in practice there appears to be no limit of time.

The sole rate of interest charged by the Mont de Piete is 7 per cent., plus 1 per cent., fixed interest being charged by the half month at the rate of 8 per cent per annum. The valuation of pledges is performed by a syndicate of auctioneers. They are supposed to advance four-fifths of the value of jewelery, etc., and two-thirds of the value of wearing apparel, etc., but as they are liable for any loss on the sale of unredeemed pledges they seldom err against themselves.

Nominally the contract is for a year, but every effort is made to give pledger a chance to redeem his goods, and it is usually nineteen to twenty months before they come under the hammer. Facilities are accorded for paying the money by instalments at the option of the pledger, the money loaned and the interest charges thus diminishing until the amount is repaid and the article redeemed.

Statistics for 1910 have not yet been published, but I presume the figures have not differed greatly from preceding report, which showed that the business could be reckoned at close upon $11,000,000 a year, the average loan being $7.00. About 100,000 unredeemed pledges are sold annually at an average of $3.20 to $3.40 each.

Extraordinary fortitude was shown recently by a Swiss guide named Genoud, who, while driving a diligence to Bourg St. Pierre, was thrown into a ravine thirty feet deep, breaking his left arm and shoulder and several ribs. The diligence was smashed. Despite his painful injuries, Genoud walked eighty-one miles across the mountains through Osieres to Geneva, refusing assistance on the way, and declaring that he preferred to be treated in the Geneva Hospital.

WANT THE RECALL, THE INITIATIVE AND THE REFERENDUM

Winnipeg, January 14.—There is now a strong movement on in Manitoba to establish direct legislation with the recall, referendum and initiative as they have it in Oregon. The next big issue in the Province promises to be on this subject and the movement is gaining such strength that many believe the Government will be forced to adopt this reform within a few years. Manitoba has a strong direct legislation league which at the present time is carrying on a vigorous educational propaganda through the Province. Mr. C. Coulter, of Oregon, is carrying on a series of meetings through the Province. Joseph Fels, the Philadelphia millionaire, is taking a great interest in the campaign and has offered to put up dollar for dollar for all amounts subscribed by the local league. The local league has raised fifteen hundred and expect Fels has sent his cheque for the same amount. Fels will visit Winnipeg Sunday and Monday, January 15th and 16th and a number of meetings have been arranged at which he will speak.

The Direct Legislation League is also planning to have a monster deputation appear before the House at the coming session which opens on February 9th, when a plea will be made for legislation. The Liberal Party before the last Provincial election, placed direct legislation in its platform. However, it was not taken very seriously, as it was believed that few of the party leaders even appreciated what the plank meant and it did not form an issue. At the next session the Liberals, however, intend to force it to the front and a resolution will be moved on the subject.

Three powerful Manitoba organizations, in addition to the Liberal party are behind the Direct Legislation League and are represented on its executive. They are the Grain Growers' Association, the Royal Templars and the Trades and Labor Council. The Royal Templars are the most recent converts, as they want the Government to take a referendum on the subject to banish the bar. They have decided the only way to secure this is to have direct legislation on the statute book. The Royal Templars will also visit the Government in force this session and will ask for direct legislation in general and specifically on the banish of the bar movement.

A glance over the officers of the Direct Legislation Leagues which have offices in Winnipeg, from which tons of literature is being shipped, shows the strong backing of the movement. J. H. Ashdown, the millionaire hardware man, is honorary president. Dr. Hutchison, a prominent Liberal and temperance advocate, is president. John Kennedy, vice president of the Grain Growers' Grain Company, is vice president. On the list of the executive are R. L. Richardson, the editor, and a number of prominent Winnipeg barristers and business men.

POLICY GAME WAS GOING MERRILY, SAYS THE CHIEF

That there were two drawings daily is the information given out by the Chief of Police regarding the policy game which he interrupted yesterday. He says that Parsons, who was arrested with tickets, was watched for several days and that he made two visits daily, one to Plessis street and the other to Craig, where the drawings took place. The tickets were all put into a bag and the drawing was made from the bag.

Several other policy games are going on, it is said, and the police expect to make further arrests.

MORE THAN HE ASKED FOR IS WHAT HE GOT.

A Toronto speaker got his answer last evening at the dinner of the Baptist men in Olivet Church. In the course of his speech wishing to emphasize a point, Rev. Mr. Norton propounded the conundrum "Why is Toronto like Alexander Pope?"

"Dead long ago" came from the back of the hall and the speaker joined in the laugh and forgot to give his explanation of the resemblance of the city to the poet.

CHINATOWN VISITED BY BIG FLOOD

Oriental's Efforts to Stem Tide With Chair Futile

The bursting of a water main at the corner of St. Urbain and Lagauchetiere streets at three o'clock this morning caused thousands of dollars worth of damage, and all the efforts of a poor lone Chinaman to stop the break with a chair, as he stood in the street in his bare feet were of no avail.

The places in the immediate vicinity were nearly all flooded out, and the water in some of the boarding houses rose to the height of ten feet.

In front of the spot where the main broke stands the Maison Ste. Marthe, where there are dozens of lodgers and boarders, mostly all young women, and the fact that there were few men in the house led to complications when the deluge came. Across the way on the opposite corner is the Patronage d'Youville, where there are some 126 girl residents, while in the basement slept one of the men attendants, who was in a plight when the crash came. The water rushed into the place at such a rate that he had not time to get his clothes on, and the nuns had to hastily go in search of garments in which to clothe the unfortunate. They first went to the Maison Ste. Marthe, but men's wearing apparel was not to be found there, and it was with difficulty that the man was eventually provided for.

The basements of both the institutions referred to were completely flooded and the damages put at the present time at a couple of thousand dollars. The young ladies of the Maison Ste. Marthe, dressed in the hurry and in the excitement some of them rushed into the streets for safety, since the water was already on a level with the ground floor, having climbed a distance of ten feet, and was rushing through the front door into the street.

Here they encountered one of the Chinamen standing in his bare feet on a chair with the water all around him, trying to stem the tide with another chair. He was frightened out of his senses, and his frantic and useless efforts were, even under the circumstances, laughable.

The store of Wing Lung and Company, Chinese grocers, on the opposite corner had the cellar completely spoiled of the goods which were stored in plenty in the depths of the place. All the teas and other commodities of the company are ruined and there is consternation among the Celestials around that part of the city.

Across the road the business place of Wing He, and Company, the damage is considerable, and the anxious Chinaman was very much agitated this morning, for he is not sure whether or not he will get his fire insurance.

He thought at first an earthquake had begun and rushed for the door, where he succeeded in so fixing the lock, which broke as he tried to open the door, that he had himself imprisoned, and it was only with the aid of an axe that he finally was able to get out on the street. He was afraid also that it might be a scheme of burglars to get him in a good position for "knocking," as he termed it, and did not know just what to do. His whole stock in the cellar is put out of commission.

Farther down the street at 118 St. Urbain the house of Thomas Cunningham was flooded in the bottom part, so that this morning the potatoes and the coal are on the best of terms, and the people of the house cannot tell which is which. The whole basement was deluged, and it was only the timely arrival of the police and waterworks officials which saved them from a far worse plight.

David Boucher, who keeps house at 86 St. Urbain street, was only saved he says, by the presence of his dog in the basement. He keeps the animal tied to the furnace and when the water rushed in it was the dog that gave the alarm to those who sleep close to the animal's resting place. There would have been no chance to escape alive, Mr. Boucher asserts, if the canine had not set up the howl.

To Control Ontario Barbers' Trade.

MUST BUILD UP A POWERFUL CANADIAN COMMONWEALTH

Berlin, Ont., January 14.—"Canadian policy and Imperial Relations," was the subject of an address delivered by Mr. J. S. Willison, of Toronto, before the Canadian Club of Waterloo County. Over one hundred members were present.

Mr. Willison argued that if Canada was to become a nation in competition with the mighty nation to the south that we must have a Canadian national policy that will protect our industries, keep our people at home, provide employment for our own workmen and create and enlarge home markets. He pointed out that our situation was different from that of any other nation in the world. In Europe the movement of people from country to country was prevented by differences of speech and customs.

We, however, lay for hundreds of miles along a country with a population of nearly one hundred millions with the same traditions, the same speech and very much the same customs. If our dream of a great Canadian commonwealth was to be realized we must therefore continue a policy that will resist the immense attraction of the neighboring country, that will bring American capital and industries into the Dominion and prevent the outward flight of all those elements of our population who will not engage in agricultural pursuits.

Mr. Willison dealt also at length with the preferential policy which has attracted so much attention in Great Britain, and insisted that greater advantages for Canadian farmers were to be had from a preference in British markets where, in any event, the bulk of our farm products must go, than in reciprocity with the United States, while there was the immense danger that reciprocity in natural products would make it impossible for the Mother Country to extend a preference to Canada inasmuch as American products would seek an outlet at Canadian ports in order to obtain the benefits of the British preference.

SEPARATE ROOMS FOR PRISONERS AT THE GUELPH FARM

New System in the Treatment of Criminals Will Be Tried by the Ontario Government.

Toronto, January 14.— For several months past Hon. W. J. Hanna has had under advisement the question of how best to house the prisoners in the new Central Prison Farm at Guelph, and it is understood that the arrangements now are complete. In the new building the prisoners will be given every freedom. When Major St. John was in Ontario last autumn he visited the new prison farm at Guelph, and when he returned he stated that if the Government could deal with the prisoners in such a way as to give them accommodation which would not cause them to lose their self-respect, it would be taking a step which never before had been accomplished in criminal proceedings. Hon. Mr. Hanna will take that step. When the new buildings at Guelph are completed, fifteen per cent. of the accommodation for prisoners will be cells. In these will be placed those men who cannot be trusted to be at large, or those who become unruly while in prison.

Sixty-five per cent. of the accommodation will be in the form of dormitories, with fourteen beds in each dormitory, where the men will sleep, as they now do in the temporary buildings, with the windows open and the doors unlocked. No armed guards will parade up and down the corridors or stand at the doors. There will be locks on the doors, of course, but these never will be used. The dormitories will not be locked.

The remaining 20 per cent. of the accommodation will be in the form of small rooms, and those prisoners whose conduct is good will be allowed to have a room each. In each room will be hung some pictures, while newspapers and magazines will be provided for the occupants. Thus a prisoner will not lose his self-respect by being locked in a cell. The fact that they will be allowed to have a room to themselves is expected to have a good effect on the prisoners.

Periodical Payment Plan

A SAFEGUARD FOR SMALL INVESTORS.
IN STOCK EXCHANGE SECURITIES.

The small investor buying stocks outright must pay the entire amount at the moment of purchase. This necessarily limits his purchase to the amount for which he can put down ready money.

To buy any larger amount than he can actually pay for in cash he must buy "on margin," at best always a risky practice.

The modern way is to buy OUTRIGHT on the PERIODICAL PAYMENT PLAN, by means of which he can buy as much stock as he would usually buy "on margin" without the attendant risks.

If the market declines, it does not imperil the purchase, even in the case of a sudden slump.

THERE ARE NO MARGIN CALLS.
No payments made on account can be forfeited.
The payment period can be extended or shortened at will.
The Periodical Payment Plan has been successfully operated for years, without margin loss to any client.
Write for full particulars and market Letter No. 60.

PAYABLE TO YOU IN GOLD

at a selected date, can be bought on yearly, half yearly or quarterly instalments. A portion of your income can be so wisely placed that you will be certain of receiving a sum of $5,000 or $10,000 when you reach the age of 55 or 60; a time in life when energies usually wane and a competence is needed.

Almost any provident young man can, with a little effort, save at least from $12 to $15 a month. This amount, invested in a Canada Life Endowment Policy, will give him an investment of unsurpassed security, and will return him at age 55 or 60, the sum of $5,000, together with the accumulated Profits, which on Canada Life Policies are most satisfactory. Should death occur at any time before maturity of Policy, the whole amount will be paid to his family or other beneficiary.

In 1910 over $2,000,000 in Profits were allotted to Canada Life Policyholders. It will pay you to ask for a proposition suited to your age and means. It will gladly be given.

AMAZING THINGS WOMAN INVENTOR TOLD RAILWAY MEN

An Engine That Burned Its Own Cinders and a Cow-catcher to Handle Cows.

A little woman, walked into the general passenger agent's office of the Canadian Pacific Railway ,Windsor station yesterday, and asked for the manager of the whole road. After clerks had worried over her mission for some time she sent word to Mr. William Stitt, General Passenger Agent of the railway that she desired to see him.

Mr. Stitt was very busp, but he answered the call and asked the lady what he could do for her. She replied in pretty sharp language that he could do a lot for her in view of the fact that she wished to reach her home in Roxburgh near Boston, Mass. She had been away three years she said, and she had spent one year of this in Quebec city.

"What special claim have you on the C. P. R.?" Mr. Stitt asked her.

"What special claim have I not got" she replied; "I have made the most remarkable discoveries of the age. I have invented an engine which is by far the greatest of any that you have on the line of the C. P. R. It is an engine which will burn its own cinders. They are sent by a circuitous route back through a sifter and into the furnace so that they are again used."

"Just a minute" said the General Passenger Agent.

"Just a minute yourself, put in the lady" That is not all. I have a greater invention. It is new cowcatchers. It will replace the old one. You see as it is now when a cow is run down there is a danger of the cow throwing the train off the track and killing many people. My invention will—"

Just then Mr. George Ham, put in an appearance.

"You see," the lady continued, "my invention provides that when the cow is in the front of a fifty mile an hour train the arms of my invention will stretch out and pick up the cow and land it safely at the next stop."

Mr. Ham put in: "Pardon me suppose the cow did not want to go in that direction!"

"You are facetious sir" she said, "and now about my ticket."

Caught Cold!

How often it happens that serious illness, and sometimes death, is directly traceable to neglect of a "common" cold. After it is too late, what wouldn't you give to have checked the cold at the start, when it would quickly yield to simple home treatment.

A most effective remedy, that will usually break up a cold over night and quickly relieve the most irritating cough, is made by mixing 2 ounces of glycerine, a half-ounce of virgin oil of pine and 8 ounces of pure whiskey. Shake well, and take a teaspoonful four times a day. The ingredients for this mixture can be bought in any good drug store, and easily mixed together in a large bottle. This formula was used and recommended for many years by the late Dr. W. A. Leach, who founded the Leach Chemical Co., of Windsor, Ont., in whose laboratories the virgin oil of pine is compounded.

LIBERALS DOOMED DECLARE PROPHETS OF M'GILL PARTY

Inaugural Ceremonial of University Mock Parliament Promises Spectacular Features.

The political storm and stress incident to the formation of the Mock Parliament at McGill will have pretty well subsided with the session this evening, when the inaugural ceremonies are scheduled to take place.

It was arranged previously that the initial session should be opened last evening, but, owing to another undergraduate fixture, the date of opening was necessarily postponed until tonight. Principal Peterson, who had at first consented to officiate in the capacity of Governor-General, will be unable to be present, owing to another engagement, but in his absence Dean Moyse, the vice-principal, will assume the responsibilities of the office.

The early part of to-night's session will be marked by practically all the pomp and ceremony attendant upon the opening of the Federal Parliament at Ottawa.

Dean Moyse, upon whom several very distinguished, lengthy and high-sounding titles have been conferred, at the instance of the Mock Parliament, will officially open the session accompanied by a delegation of the boy scouts as a guard of honor, and having two scout masters as his aide-de-camps.

The speech from the throne, which he will read, is a lengthy document, outlining the legislation to be introduced during the coming session, and laying special emphasis upon the naval policy and the advocacy of a Canadian navy. Several humorous bills affecting more particularly the University and Royal Victoria College, will also come in for due mention.

Previous to the speech from the throne, Joseph Chearlhue will be elected Speaker for the session, and at the conclusion of the speech Messrs. Fineberg and Mathewson, for the Liberals, and Messrs. Clawson and Bruneau, for the Conservatives, will respectively make the motion and amendement in the debate on the address.

Mr. Lavery, leader of the Nationalist party, and H. F. Angus, who holds a similar position in the councils of the Socialist party, will also criticize the forthcoming legislation to be introduced during the session. This is expected to conclude this evening's programme, while next Friday evening the debate will be resumed, following the introduction of bills asking of questions, orders of the day and such other business as may arise. On Friday evening also the great test as to the strength of the different parties will be made, and a division will take place. It is believed that with the combined votes of the Conservatives, Socialists and Nationalists against them the Liberals are doomed to certain defeat.

DEAFNESS

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED

By the Simplest Method Yet Discovered.

Ninety-five per cent. of the cases of deafness brought to our attention are the result of chronic catarrh of the throat and middle ear. The air passages become clogged by catarrhal deposits, stopping the action of the vibratory bones. Until these deposits are removed relief is impossible. The inner ear can not be reached by probing or syringing, hence the inability of specialists to always effect a cure. Neither can ear drums restore deafness. But there is a scientific treatment for deafness and catarrh which is demonstrated every day by the use of Actina. Actina is applied in the Actina passes through the Eustachian tubes into the middle ear, removing the catarrhal obstructions and loosens up the bones (hammer, anvil and stirrup) in the inner ear, making them respond to the vibration of sound. Actina has also been very successful in relieving ringing noises in the head. We have known people afflicted with this distressing trouble for years to be entirely relieved by a few weeks' use. Actina has also been very successful in the treatment of hay fever, asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, weak lungs, colds, headache and other troubles that are directly or indirectly due to catarrh. Actina will be sent on trial, postpaid, while we tell about your case. Our styles, diagrams also as well as a valuable book—Prof. Wilson's Treatise on disease. METROPOLITAN

January Furniture Sale

AN UNPARALLELED PRICE REDUCTION ON QUALITY FURNITURE.

Goods that linger soon eat up their value in rent. It is more profitable to clear stock at cost price, or even at a little loss and keep it moving. So we stimulate business in a month naturally dull, and make a very thorough clearance of furniture, that shows a tendency for any reason, or no reason, to be overlooked, by making price reductions on all furniture in stock during January.

The quality of these can be appreciated only by those who see them.

Our prices are as low as it is possible to make them, and it will surely repay you to compare them with others before purchasing.

IS GOOD FOR BOTH SHIPPERS AND CO., SAY EXPRESS MEN

Officials of the express companies doing business in Eastern Canada today discussed the recent decision of the Board of Railway Commissioners.

"The rates per 100 pounds affecting points between Winnipeg and the Atlantic are not altered materially, if at all," said one of them to-day. "The graduated charges—or those on packages weighing less than 100 pounds are altered slightly but even on these there is no radical change; the change, in fact, will not amount to over 5 per cent. Rates west of Winnipeg, covering both through and local business, are ordered by the Commission to be lowered by about 15 per cent. at the most, but this will still give us a fair revenue."

Questioned as to what the express companies thought of the decision, considered generally, an official of another concern said:

"Judge Mabee's finding on the whole is very satisfactory to us. Rates in the East are affected very little and favor us in many important ways. The revenues of the express companies will be left very much as they are at present. Much of the excitement on the part of the public is caused by the inability of the average shipper to understand, after a superficial examination of the finding of the Commission what is really meant. It has taken us several weeks to study it in detail and digest it thoroughly. After doing this we are satisfied entirely so and consider it a fair, square deal to both parties concerned."

Criticism of the chairman, the same official said, regarding certain conditions that existed in the past was in many ways, warranted, but some of these were by no means the fault of the express companies entirely; they were rather the growth of years and due in a large measure to the changed conditions of to-day as compared with those of years ago.

"One good thing effected by the ruling of the Commission is the new receipt form brought into force. This will, certainly, be better for both parties as the one used in the past was almost obsolete and seldom, if ever, enforced. The new one is the best and fairest receipt form ever given the public and at the same time safeguards the rights of the express companies. All we ever wanted in the past is assured us under the decision, to speak generally: that was fair rates for reasonable service given. Since the decision of the Commission was handed down we are on a better footing with our clients; our relations towards each other are more clearly defined and the conditions under which we are to do business are now confirmed by an authoritative tribunal."

The general impression seems to exist in express circles that the big companies have reason to congratulate themselves on the outcome of the long investigation conducted by the Commission.

South African War Suit Begun.

Ottawa, January 14.—Mr. Justice Cassels held a session of the Exchequer Court yesterday to hear evidence in the case of Alphonse Poirier vs. the King. The case arises out of a contract to supply the Dominion Government with a certain quantity of hay for use in South Africa during the Boer war. Some of the hay was rejected as not up to the requirements of the contract by the Government officers, and sold by them for a less sum than the contract price, the money realized on the sale being handed over to the suppliant. The plaintiff claims that this hay was improperly rejected and sold by the Crown's officers, and asks damages in the amount of $1,331.75.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING
—AND—
HOW TO MEET IT.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star:

Sir,—The cost of living is due to one or two primary reasons, and a greater number of incidental ones.

1. Our farmers do not grow all the food supplies they might.

2. Because their boys—the natural source of assistance in operating their lands—are lured to the city and to the centres where wages are paid each week or month. They thus become consumers instead of producers.

3. In Canada—Eastern Canada—industrialism is outdistancing agriculture.

4. Eastern Canadian farmers have been drained off to the West.

5. Thus, not only the boys but the men, have deserted the Eastern farms in a great many instances.

6. There has been a rush to our West from the rest of the world, and the newcomers there constitute a first-class home market for most of the foo' supply outside of wheat and export cattle, which are drawn off to Europe by reason of the high prices there.

7. This is an age of cold storage; of doling out a supply to the market in a manner that suggests scarcity and its necessary accompaniment, higher prices. A Government enquiry into middlemen's methods would reveal a world of manipulation in this respect. It passes current in business circles as "clever." No doubt it is, but it is of doubtful morality.

8. The products of foreign countries, such as tea, coffee, jams and like preserved goods have not materially increased in price. It is the domestic supply of foodstuffs which has jumped up—eggs, butter, milk, meat, vegetables and (but not to so great an extent) flour and the products from other cereals, and poultry.

9. Then, again, Canadians are becoming wealthier, and being an open-air-loving people go to the country in vast numbers in the summer. Whole rural sections are invaded and household supplies there feel the stimulus of the city coin.

10. We, and our neighbors of the United States, are paying the penalty of rapid development in artificial prices, which are, however, only a natural result of conditions that are not normal.

And the remedy?

Back to the farm! A thousand arguments are ready to hand in support of that suggestion, and I hope this communication may have the effect of drawing them forth from abler pens than mine.

AUSTRALIAN IMPRESSIONS.

Mr. H. B. Ames Will Tell Canadian Club of His Trip.

"Some impressions of Australia" will be the subject of an address by Mr. H. B. Ames, M.P., before the Canadian Club, at the Sailors Institute, on Monday at one o'clock.

Mr. Ames, as a Canadian Representative of the Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, held at Sydney, Australia, in 1909 had an opportunity to study the conditions in the Commonwealth; therefore, his address should prove one of much interest.

REFUSED SEVEN LICENSE RENEWALS; WARN SOME OTHERS

Commissioners Grant Licenses Conditional on Improvement to Accommodation and Morals.

In addition to the cancellation of the license of the Hotel Metropole recorded in yesterday's Star, the Commissioners refused renewals in seven other instances.

Because they considered the places absolutely unnecessary the License Commissioners refused licenses to Desmarteau at 212 Delisle street, and 1311 St. Dominique, 1616 Notre Dame street west; A. Frigon, 1373 Notre Dame; N. Leclair, 1451 St. Catherine east; M. Dame, 173 Church street.

The license of J. N. Fraid, 131 Commons street was refused because it was said by a number of witnesses that the proprietor sold liquor to persons in a state of intoxication. Chas. Kelly, corner Centre and Richmond street, and J. Murray will be allowed to sell out their places, but the Commission refuses to renew the licenses in their names.

The licenses of A. Owen, and Geo. Wray on Bleury street were granted conditionally, the places must be improved by the proprietors and they must show themselves competent to have a license.

The Stanley Hotel, on Windsor st., was granted its license conditionally also. Judge Choquet said: "This is one of the best located places in town, but as it has always had a very bad reputation and is right at the terminus of the C. P. R., we will be compelled to close it the moment there is any well-founded complaint against it. I would suggest that the name of this hotel be changed as the one it bears at present is tarnished by the hotel's past reputation."

The decision of the Commission in the cases of Burns and McGoogan will be announced at some future meeting. The next meeting will be on January 26th.

From November 18th to January 13th, the License Commission has held eighteen meetings, heard 131 cases, granted thirty-six transfers, heard ninety-five reports from detectives and police, had 200 complaints, and 504 applications for hotel and restaurant licenses.

The following applications were granted, including the St. Lawrence Hall, and the Carslake:—

Z. St. Jean, 891 Atwater; S. McEway, 341 Bleury; G. Wray, 274 Bleury; E. Brabant, 471 Craig east; L. P. Godin, 131 Windsor; A. Dorion, 47 Richardson; J. Durand, 385 St. Lawrence; H. Noel, 2710 Park avenue; A. Desmarteau, 152 St. Lawrence; H. Auger, 456 St. Catherine east; C. Dequoy, 413 St. James; N. Gagne, 1113 St. Catherine east; L. Archambault, 1290 Notre Dame west; A. Higgins, 120 Craig west; J. Mines, 146 St. Antoine; Carslake Hotel, 571 St. James; C. Raymond, 12 St. James; A. Blouin, 27 Craig street.

Our Loom Ends Sale of Embroidery

Takes on a fresh start Monday for the final Grand Clearance; and we expect Monday will see this great event coming to a close. We therefore urge all who have not been fortunate enough to attend this sale to be here when our doors open; also our customers who have attended might have secured an insufficient supply; they too should be here. The embroidery is all on special tables in different lots to allow easy inspection and choosing.

When we state this embroidery is "simply beautiful," we are putting it mildly. You have to see the handsome designs and patterns to appreciate to the full extent, their loveliness. They are the most exquisite embroideries made and come direct from the makers of St. Gall, Switzerland.
