RUSSIAN GUARANTEE OF POLISH INTEGRITY REMOVES FUTURE WAR DANGER — CHURCHILL

Big Three Plans Completed To Render Future Offensive Action By Reich Impossible

Great Powers Prepared for Collapse of Germany, Prime Minister Tells British House of Commons in Demanding Thumping Vote of Confidence on Yalta Conference.

London, Feb. 27.—(P)—Prime Minister Churchill declared today the great powers were completely prepared for the collapse of Germany, said the proposed Polish frontier would "not sow the seeds of future war," and gave his personal assurance of Russia's good faith in plans for the peace.

The Prime Minister demanded a vote of confidence from the House of Commons on the Crimea plans for a peaceful world, challenging particularly those who have criticized the Polish decisions.

He promised drastic and effective steps "to render offensive action by Germany utterly impossible for generations to come," and called on Germany again to surrender.

Mr. Churchill said the United States would play "a vitally important part" in a new, far-stronger World Security League "which will not shrink from establishing its will against the evil-doer" by force of arms.

Giving the first public account by one of the principals at the momentous Crimea conference, he termed the proposed Polish boundary "the fairest division which can be made between the two countries."

Marshal Stalin has given "the most solemn declarations" that Poland's sovereignty and independence would be maintained, he said, and "this decision has now been joined in both by Great Britain and by the United States."

Then Mr. Churchill added: "The impression I brought back from Crimea and from all my other contacts is that Marshal Stalin and the Soviet leaders wish to live in the most honorable friendship and equality with the Western democracies. I feel also that their word is their bond. I know of no government which stands on its obligations more solidly than the Russian Soviet Government."

He declared the objective of the great powers was "to save the world—not to rule it," and that "the world organization cannot be based upon the dictatorship of the great powers."

Mr. Churchill interrupted his address an hour for luncheon.

At one point the Prime Minister delivered a passage which indicated that the question of Russian participation in the war with Japan may have been at least raised at the Yalta conference.

He said the San Francisco World Security Conference opening April 25 would bring together "all those representatives of the United Nations who have declared war upon Germany and Japan by the first of March, 1945, and who have signed the United Nations conference declaration."

Among diplomatic and parliamentary observers the question was immediately raised of whether Mr. Churchill meant that Russia might declare war on Japan on March 1—the day after tomorrow—or whether he merely was referring to the tickets of admission to San Francisco for several smaller powers.

The Press Association first gave the Prime Minister's words as "Germany and Japan."

In a later version of the text itself, the words were "Germany or Japan."

Then, in response to a query, the Press Association corrected the text to the original version, leaving it stand at "Germany and Japan."

In shaping the new peace, "we intend to take steps far more drastic and effective than those which followed the first time yesterday."

Air Attack On Reich Now In Fifteenth Day

London, Feb. 27.—(P)—Allied heavy bombers in great strength today continued the aerial assault on Germany for the 15th consecutive day.

Two fleets of 750 R.A.F. Lancasters and Halifaxes struck the railway centre of Mainz on the Rhine's left bank and a benzol plant near Gelsenkirchen late this afternoon after 1,100 United States heavy bombers pounded Leipzig and Halle, big railway centres.

The American attack on Leipzig was made after feinting at Berlin where fires still burned from yesterday's record blow. The bomber train, protected by 700 fighters, stretched for 150 miles.

United States heavy bombers from Italy smashed railroad yards at Augsburg, 30 miles northwest of Munich, Augsburg is a junction of a main line to Munich, Nuremberg, Stuttgart and Switzerland. Rocket-firing fighters from Italy strafed rail lines in Southern Austria.

On the 8th Army front the story again was one of frequent patrol clashes with both sides sending small investigating parties across the lines.

Canadian Salmon For Australia

Vancouver, Feb. 27.—(P)—Officials of the Commonwealth of Australia War Supplies Procurement have announced today that 70,000 cases of canned salmon, group grades two and three which do not include sockeye, have been released for shipment to Australia by Canadian and United Kingdom authorities under mutual aid agreement.

Wednesday, members will resume debate on a motion by Rene Chaboult (Ind., Quebec County) to protest against enforcement of overseas conscription. To date, three members have said they would vote against the motion. They are ex-Treasurer Arthur Mathewson (Lib., Montreal), and ex-Minister of Finance, Thomas Guerin (Lib., Montreal), and David Cote (C.C.F., Rouyn-Noranda).

Members this week will sit twice a day from Tuesday to Friday, inclusive, following adoption, by a close vote of 44-39, of a motion to the effect that the purpose of the motion is believed to speed up study of several Government bills—including those for the establishment of a provincial broadcasting system and for the promoting of rural electrification.

Nothing is known of the Provincial radio bill but as regards rural electrification it is believed the Government will adopt legislation similar to that of the Farm Credits Act, introduced in 1936, which consists of grants to farmers for the better development of their lands.

RESTORE CIVIL GOVERNMENT TO MANILA REGION

Manila, Feb. 27.—(P)—Gen. MacArthur proclaimed Manila today the capital of restored civil government in the Philippines even as rifle fire against the last Japanese diehards echoed over the war-ravaged city.

While he spoke in a moving ceremony at shell-scarred Malacanang Palace, his soldiers in a new island invasion 70 miles south of Manila plied open the shortest sea route through which to rush supplies from the United States and revive the stricken city.

Gen. MacArthur, surrounded by men who fought with him three years ago at Bataan and Corregidor, told wildly cheering Filipinos he was lifting military rule from liberated areas of their commonwealth in favor of the constituted government of President Sergio Osmena.

Earlier today, Gen. MacArthur had disclosed in a communique that American forces landed Sunday on tiny Verde Island, midway in the ten-mile channel between Luzon and Mindoro Islands, to secure the west end of a direct route through the heart of the archipelago.

GERMANS STILL OFFER BITTER FIGHT IN ITALY

United States Tenth Mountain Division Throws Back Strong German Counter-Attack in Mount d'Elia Torracchia Area.

Rome, Feb. 27.—(P)—The U. S. 10th Mountain Division has thrown back a strong German counter-attack in the area of Mount d'Elia Torracchia, inflicting heavy casualties and capturing a number of prisoners, the Allied command announced today.

The Germans, who have been contesting every Allied gain, moved out in the counter-attack below Bologna after an intense artillery barrage. After being forced to withdraw, they continued to throw heavy fire against the American positions in the mountains.

Brazilian troops who had moved to Mount Castello when the U. S. mountain troops made their push to Mount Belvedere and Mount d'Elia Torracchia last week likewise were subjected to heavy enemy artillery fire. The Brazilians broke up a small counter-attack near La Serra.

On the central sector southeast of Bologna a raiding party again tested German defences and found them stubbornly held. Nevertheless, the Allied patrol cleared out three German pillboxes.

On the 8th Army front the story again was one of frequent patrol clashes with both sides sending small investigating parties across the lines.

Intense artillery and mortar fire heralded the attack and a quick response from the Canadians, guns supporting the Westerners were speedily increased in strength. Medium machine-guns in support of the western battalions fired 24,000 rounds and in beating off one wave mortarmen used 1,000 bombs.

The Germans, from the positions they held on the western bank of the Senio, came in three times, once about 7 p.m., then nearer midnight and finally at 3 a.m. Sunday.

Striking along a front which has been static for weeks, the Germans were subjected to heavy losses as they renewed their periodic drive. Other units under attack included company areas of a Western Canadian battalion under Major Frank McDougall, of Weyburn, Sask., and another B. C. unit commanded by Major Les Thirwell, of Calgary, Alta.

The initial attack fell on the positions of a platoon commanded by Lieut. Jack Harris, of Edmonton, on a dike. The German aim was to seize the positions and then use them as a base for a move to pry the remaining Canadians from the dike top.

Harris' platoon remained firm, however, and other Germans trying to infiltrate Bassett's and Thirwell's positions and link up behind them were equally foiled.

The enemy used two fresh specially-trained companies of fusiliers supported by a strong engineer company for the job and suffered casualties estimated at 40 per 60-man companies.

Unit Under Maj. John Bassett Subject To Heavy Nazi Drive

By WILLIAM BOSS
With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic Front, Feb. 26.—(P)—Commanded by Major John Bassett, son of John Bassett, President of the Montreal Gazette and the Sherbrooke Record, company areas of British Columbia infantry were heavily assaulted in a strong German attempt to roll the Canadians off their positions along the Senio river's east dike opposite Fusignano, thirteen miles west of Ravenna. EXPRESS DOUBT SEAWAY TO AID BUFFALO TRADE

Opponents of Proposal Take Issue with Declaration that St. Lawrence Scheme Will Maintain Steel Industry.

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 27.—(P)—Two opponents of the St. Lawrence seaway project have assailed the prediction of Hugh Thompson, Regional Director of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, that the project would "build the Niagara frontier into the most highly developed industrial area in America."

In interviews last night, Chauncey J. Hamlin, Chairman of the Niagara Frontier Planning Board, and Richard H. Templeton, Chairman of the St. Lawrence Seaway Committee of the Niagara Frontier Planning Commission, said the project would be a "dire blow to labor in this and other areas."

Mr. Thompson yesterday revealed the contents of a letter to Senator James M. Mead (Dem., N.Y.) in which he said "the steel industry, with 30,000 employees, is likely to drift away from Buffalo when supplies of Minnesota iron ore give out."

He asserted the seaway would "open a cheap, direct, all-water route for Swedish ores, assuring permanency for the steel industry in Buffalo."

Mr. Hamlin said Mr. Thompson is "dreaming dreams" if he believes it necessary to open a route to Swedish ore, "there is plenty of good ore in the Adirondacks and elsewhere."

"Unemployment for hundreds of thousands of men, both in Buffalo and the port of New York, would result from a project such as the St. Lawrence seaway," Mr. Templeton said.

Mr. Thompson predicted that within fifty years after completion of the project the "Niagara frontier will have a population of between three million and five million."

The War Today

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Guarding the western approach to the once stately but now bomb-shattered Cathedral City of Cologne is the little river Erft, which straggles northward across the rolling plain to empty into the Rhine near Duesseldorf, and if you will watch what happens when the Allied advance hits the Erft I believe you will be able to solve the mystery of whether the Germans intend to make a stand west of the Rhine.

Nazi Field Marshal von Rundstedt has issued a ringing order of the day, calling on his troops to fight to the last man in defence of the approaches to the great manufacturing centre of the Ruhr—which is the heart of Hitler's war industries. The Marshal says all will be lost if the Ruhr goes. That's true, but the Ruhr is east of the Rhine and Rundstedt's order naturally doesn't disclose how he intends to make his defence.

It won't be long before we know—perhaps it will be today—for the American 9th and 1st Armies, which are driving forward in the centre of the great battle-line, are near the Erft as this is written. That isn't much of a river but it's the last natural defence of Cologne, and Rundstedt will fight there unless he intends to retreat to the east of the Rhine. If withdrawal is his scheme, then he undoubtedly has moved some of his forces across already.

Should the Nazi commander manage to perform the tremendously difficult and dangerous feat of crossing the Rhine in full retreat, he would have deprived the Allies of the decisive victory which they would achieve by annihilating his armies on the Cologne plain. Then Gen. Eisenhower would have to follow over the Rhine and finish the job there.

However, only time will give us the answer. The great offensive goes well—far better than could have been anticipated—not only in the centre but

FOUR CHARGED WITH FAILURE TO HOLD CARDS

Quartette Arrested in Drummondville Saturday Night to Appear in Court Today on Charges of Failing to Register.

Arthabaska, Que., Feb. 27.—(P)—Arrestment is scheduled here for this afternoon before District Magistrate Philippe Marchand of 4 Drummondville youths detained without bail in this Arthabaska county judicial centre on charges of non-compliance with the 1940 Federal Act.

Roland Salvas, Paul Pouliot, Emile Perusse and Atche Morissette were arrested at Drummondville Saturday, about twenty miles east of here, when the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Canadian Army Provost Corps staged a raid in search of draft-dodgers and army deserters. The raid met with resistance on the part of the civilian population of Drummondville with an estimated 1,000 to 2,000 people participating in the demonstration.

Court officials here said that the four youths were not army deserters and that the charges under which they will appear were laid under the National Registration Act. Further developments in the draft-riot at Drummondville over the past week-end are expected shortly, it was learned here last evening.

After the names and addresses of the delinquents were taken they were allowed to leave pending further investigation. One of the rioters, a man known as "Geoffrey," was one of the few injured by the combined R.C.M.P. and Provost squads. He is alleged to have wielded a two-by-four against a police officer, following which he was struck over the head with a loaded crop, and then in the face with his own formidable weapon. He received treatment in Drummondville after he had been released pending investigation.

Four prisoners who were captured following four raids on private homes by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Provost Corps were detained as deserters. They will be handed over to the army authorities for action.

Of the five alleged delinquents taken by the combined forces of the federal government and taken

EARLY CLOSING NOW IN EFFECT ACROSS STATES

Little Effort to Evade Federal Midnight Curfew Law Reported on First Night of Application.

Washington, Feb. 27.—(P)—Amusement place operators throughout the United States hustled out the customers and turned the keys on their establishments last midnight, ending pre-dawn rally for an indefinite period.

Only non-profit events for servicemen sponsored by responsible agencies and regular all-night restaurants are exempt from the edict designed to conserve manpower, coal and transportation.

In New York there were isolated attempts to inject a little fun into the first midnight closing. The cast of Olsen and Johnson's "Laffing Room Only" trudged through the rain to a "formal" supper party at the Times Square automot. But the gaiety was a little on the strained side and didn't last very long.

At Gilmore's, an East side restaurant, Atchess J. Joy Hodges, Arlene Whelan and a large group of Powers and Conover models were hostesses at a "milk party" for several dozen servicemen.

Managers all over Manhattan reported less than ordinary business even for a Monday, the worst night of the week.

Montreal, the above mentioned four are to appear in court here soon, while the other one was turned over to the army.

Superintendent Joseph Brunet stated yesterday that it was deplorable that the citizens of Drummondville should interfere with the duties of the police, who are ceaselessly striving to uphold the law.

Statements presently emanating from that troubled community reveal that many of the townspeople were of the opinion that similar raids by the Mounties and the Provost would meet with approximately the same situation as last week-end.

Cattle have been domesticated for so long that no one knows from what wild ancestors they originated or where they lived.

SERVICEMEN ARE WELCOMED AT LOCAL "Y"

Since the beginning of the war, the Canadian Y.M.C.A. War Services have distributed to the armed services free of any charge one and a half billion sheets of writing paper, three-quarters of a billion envelopes, nearly four million post-cards, five and a half million books of matches, nearly four and a half million packs of playing cards, James Y. Murdoch, K.C. chairman of the Y.M.C.A. War Services, told a Y.M.C.A. meeting in Toronto.

Recently returned from a trip to Great Britain where he saw the Canadian Y.M.C.A. in action, Mr. Murdoch related that the "Y" had distributed to the men of the services 53,064 hockey sticks, 75,000 softballs, 11,712 badminton birds, 14,476 pairs of horse-shoes, 622,000 games of Chinese checkers, 102,252 checker sets, 49,042 gramophone records, 8,564 wall pictures, 11,462 shirts and trousers, and much other sporting equipment. Canteen supplies for Holland, Belgium and Italy total 750 tons per month since August, 1944, he said. For England, 100 tons a month since March, 1940.

Mr. Murdoch said that attendance at Y.M.C.A. programmes at home and overseas totalled 223,203,000 since war's outbreak. "Few people realize that the Y.M.C.A. has 1,842 full-time staff members working in the interest of Canada's men in uniform," he said. During 1944 the Y.M.C.A. operated 17 hostels, 93 recreation centres, 1,706 recreation centres, and served men at 506 outposts.

The Y.M.C.A. would continue to work in 1945 in Canada, Labrador, Newfoundland, Iceland, the United Kingdom, Italy, the Azores, Gibraltar, West Africa and one the Western Front in Europe.

The local Y.M.C.A. has done its share in making the above possible, always welcoming any serviceman into the building and doing all possible to provide him with services at hand and help him in any other way while in this city.

During 1944 there were not as many servicemen stationed in Sherbrooke as in previous years, yet on a per capita basis, 3,900 servicemen used the gym, 5,707 the reading room, and 6,592 the swimming pool, along with close to 5,000 sheets of writing paper and 3,000 envelopes. There were also 36 servicemen's dances held with a total attendance, including men and women, of 6,176.

Canadian Forces

trenches gave Field Marshal von Rundstedt his last chance to make a stand short of the Rhine.

The battle on the Cologne plain was not a rout, but the gains were virtually as fast as the Americans could walk and wade across the rolling country which Rundstedt had tried to convert into a field fortress. This indicated that German strength left west of the Rhine was not enough to stop the onslaught.

Demand of the hard pressed Eastern Front were known to have accounted for much of the thought. Advanced elements of the 9th were well beyond Erkelenz. It was there that 9th Army tanks took over. They smashed into Venrath and were battling with the first German armored forces committed to the battle fifteen miles from Neuss (population, 45,000).

Ninth Army prisoners since Friday passed 6,000. The Canadians took another 2,000 overnight. The 3rd Army captured 2,070.

In the centre of the writhing Western Front, the 3rd Army's 5th Division advanced two miles and reached a point one mile southwest of Bitburg while the 4th Armored Division destroyed seven tanks and took high ground overlooking the Kyll river—expected to be a powerful German defence barrier to the Middle Rhine. A point two miles north of Bitburg was seized and two-mile advances were general all along the 30 miles of the Moselle Valley to the east of Saarburg.

Bitburg is a fortified road centre on the main highway to Trier and Cologne. In peacetime, 8,200 Germans lived there. Defences before Bitburg were light, indicating probably that a majority of the Germans already had abandoned the town.

The Canadian Army, forming the northern jaw of the trap that is crushing the enemy west of the Rhine, advanced 3½ miles yesterday to near the Hochwald Line, believing the Germans' last organized defence line in that sector. Stouly defended Calcar was said to have been entered.

Field Marshal von Rundstedt called upon his command to defend the Ruhr approaches to the last man, saying in an order of the day that otherwise all would be lost.

As Gen. Eisenhower's Rhine-bound offensive moved into its fifth day American 1st and 9th Army troops had swept almost halfway across the flat Cologne plain without encountering anything in the way of determined resistance. The two armies were holding a bridgehead over the Roer river 40 miles wide and nine to ten miles deep. At least 38 German towns were captured yesterday.

rations as of corporations in general, and it is common knowledge that the family corporation is a characteristic Canadian method of carrying on business," the Association said.

The brief also touched on the investigation being made by the Commission on the effect of income tax and annuities and pension plans. It asked that no change be made in the present regulation allowing for certain types of pensions, the option of having participants in a pension plan pay tax on their contributions and receive the pension tax-free.

Big Three

lowed the last war so as to render offensive action by Germany utterly impossible for generations to come," the Prime Minister said.

Mr. Churchill demanded a vote of confidence in the Yalta plans for a peaceful world, especially challenging those who have centered their criticisms upon the Polish decisions.

"If we were confronted tomorrow with a collapse of the German forces, there is nothing that has not been foreseen and arranged beforehand by the European Advisory Commission," he said.

He gave no hint as to when he believed that collapse would come, although he did say that the war in Europe had been prolonged a "good many months" beyond the hopes of last autumn while the eventual collapse of Japan was nearer than previously anticipated.

From the 70-year-old Prime Minister came definite assurance that the Great Powers had taken into consideration the role of the little nations in the future World Security League to be established at the San Francisco parley.

"The world organization," he said, "cannot be based on a dictatorship of the Great Powers. It is their duty to provide the world, not to rule it."

The Prime Minister said his Government had a "right to know" where it stood in Parliamentary opinion on the Yalta Conference.

"A strong expression of support by the House will strengthen our position among our Allies," he said. Mr. Churchill plunged into a show-down with his critics in opening a three-day foreign policy debate in which members of a small bloc have indicated they would support at the "Big Three's" plans for Poland.

The debate, heralded as one of the most important ever held in shaping Britain's future policy, drew the biggest crowd to the House in years.

Among early arrivals in the gallery was the Russian Ambassador Fedor Gusev.

At the outset Mr. Churchill gave notice that he had a "good deal of ground to cover."

He said the war against Japan was discussed by him and President Roosevelt and the joint British-American staffs at Malta before they proceeded to Yalta to meet Marshal Stalin.

Mr. Churchill said that while the war in Europe had been prolonged for a "good many months" beyond what was hoped for last autumn, the peak period against Japan had been brought forward by the American victories in the Pacific.

As for the Crimea conference, he said the Big Three "faced realities and difficulties in no exceptional a manner, that the results constitute an act of state on which Parliament should formally express its opinion."

"The Government feels," he said, "that it has the right to know where it stands with the House of Commons."

Plans already made, he declared, are far reaching that "if we were confronted tomorrow with a collapse of the German forces there is nothing that has not been foreseen and arranged beforehand by the European Advisory Commission."

Taking note of criticism from both sides of the Atlantic on the failure to invite France to the Crimea parley, Mr. Churchill said the three great powers "let them have their bearing the 'main brunt and burden' of the war, and could not allow any restriction to be placed upon their rights to meet together."

He added, however, that during the last few days the French Foreign Minister, Georges Bidault, had been "fully informed" of the Crimea Charter, and had been given an opportunity "to express in the most effective manner the views and wishes of France upon it."

"France may find many reasons for contentment with the Crimea decisions," Mr. Churchill said.

Swinging into plans for the future, the Prime Minister caused laughter in the House when he said: "The San Francisco conference will bring together all the nations who have declared war on Germany and Japan and many are declaring war or have done so since Yalta."

Mr. Churchill announced for the first time that the Secretary of State and the Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee, would represent Great Britain at San Francisco.

"The Crimea Conference," the Prime Minister declared, "finds the Allies more closely united than ever before, both in the military and political spheres."

Once more warning the German people that they had better surrender now, Mr. Churchill declared: "Let Germany recognize that it is futile to hope for a division among the Allies and that nothing can avert her utter defeat."

"Further resistance will only be the cause of suffering. The Allies are resolved Germany shall be totally disarmed, Nazism and militarism in Germany destroyed and war criminals justly and swiftly punished."

Then he gave a more detailed account of that was in store for Germany, saying:

"It is not the purpose of the Allies to destroy the people of Germany or leave them without the necessary means of subsistence. Our policy is not revenge but to take such measures as may be necessary to secure the future peace and safety of the world."

"There will be a place one day for Germany in the Comity of Nations, but only when all traces of Nazism and militarism have been effectively and finally extirpated."

He warned, however, that "German industry capable of military production shall be eliminated or controlled and Germany shall make compensation in kind to the utmost of her ability for damage done to the Allied Nations."

He did not specifically mention the demand of Russia—and some other European nations—that German labor be forced into repair work. Both Britain and the United States have clearly stated they would make no claim for such labor.

Mr. Churchill carried the fight directly to critics of his Government's Polish policy and asserted he believed the Russian claim to land east of the Curzon line was just and right.

URGES FEDERAL ACTION TO AID ROAD BUILDING

Manitoba Public Works Minister Declares Federal Assurance of Aid Would Permit Logical Development Plan.

Winnipeg, Feb. 27.—(P)—Public Works Minister Erick F. Willis said in the Manitoba Legislature last night lack of assurance from the Dominion Government that it would help build provincial roads has hampered Manitoba's post-war plans.

He said if the Federal Government would give assurance of assistance in times of unemployment, then Provincial Departments of Highways could plan the future in a more intelligent manner.

About eight per cent of the cost of building a road is used up in making the plan, said the Minister. Under the present uncertainty the Province hesitated to spend the money.

Mr. Willis said highway damage from floods last year cost the Province $250,000 and was the worst in at least thirty years. The Assembly approved the Department's estimates, totalling $2,540,000. Almost $1,700,000 will be used in maintenance, repairing and building roads.

"If I demand this frontier for Russia," he declared sternly, "it is not because I bow to force. It is the fairest division which can be made between the two countries."

"I cannot conceive that we should regard it as a well-informed and fair proposal."

"Russia," he explained, "is accepting a frontier which over immense distances is 200 to 300 miles further to the east than what was Russian territory for many generations under the Czarist regime."

He said the Polish problem was divided into two main issues—the frontier problem and the freedom of Poland—and asserted:

"The freedom, independence, integrity and sovereignty of Poland have always seemed to the British Government more important than the actual frontier."

But for the "prodigious efforts and sacrifices of Russia," he maintained, "the Polish nation and as a race were doomed by Hitler to be destroyed or reduced to a servile state."

"I repudiate and repulse any suggestion that we are making a questionable compromise or yielding to force and fear. I assert with the utmost conviction the broad justice of the policy upon which, for the first time, the three great Allies have taken their stand."

"This new Polish frontier," he said, "will not sow the seeds of future wars."

In shaping the new peace, he said, "we intend to take steps far more drastic and effective than those which followed the last war so as to render offensive action by Germany utterly impossible for generations to come."

Indicating his willingness to stake his whole case on the Polish issue, he said Marshal Stalin had given "the most solemn declarations" that the "sovereign independence of Poland would be maintained" and that "this decision has now been joined in by both Great Britain and the United States."

The Poles, he said, would have their future in their own hands, "with the single limitation that they must honestly follow in harmony with their allies a policy friendly to Russia."

Mr. Churchill said the Yalta agreement did not "so far" alter Britain's continued recognition of the Polish Government in London and explained that recognition would be maintained "until such time as the British Government considers that a new provisional government has been properly formed in Poland."

The Yalta agreement, he added, did not "involve the previous or immediate recognition by Britain of the present Soviet-sponsored provisional government now operating in Warsaw."

"There would have been no Lublin Committee if the Polish Government had accepted our faithful counsel," he contended. "They would have entered Poland as the liberating government and (Stanislaw) Mikolajczyk (former Premier of the London Government) could have gone from Moscow as the friend of Marshal Stalin to become Prime Minister of a wider government in Poland."

Answering criticism about Allied failure to feed France and other liberated countries, Mr. Churchill said "there are more hard-pressed by shipping shortages than ever before in the war."

"The reason why shipping is so tight at present," he explained, "is because the peak period of the war in Europe has been prolonged for a good many months beyond what was hoped for last autumn, and meanwhile the peak period against Japan has been brought forward by the American victories in the Pacific."

Despite the "dire needs" of the liberated territories, Mr. Churchill served frank notice he was "not prepared to have this land cut below its immediate safety reserves of food and oil except in cases where sure and speedy replacement can be made." Subject to that provision he promised to do "everything in our power" to help the newly-freed countries.

After an hour out for lunch, Mr. Churchill moved from his report on the Crimea conference to the Middle-East and welcomed declarations of war by both Egypt and Turkey—explaining Egypt was never pressed at any time to come into the war, and as for Turkey "we have never had the slightest doubt where their heart lies."

Mr. Churchill reported receipt of "perfect assurance" that the United States has no objection to any steps taken by Britain in Italy. He said he war, are "dangerously low," he said, urging that every possible step short of rationing be employed to head off a crisis next winter. The main trouble, he asserted, is the manpower shortage.

"The paralyzing effect of temporary disruptions in the coal supply because of weather conditions during the last month indicates only too clearly that we can not afford to have any general stoppage in coal mining, no matter how short," Mr. Ickes said.

"It has been emphasized to the miners and operators that agreements must be reached quickly and that there can be no suspensions of work."

Anthracite contract negotiations will begin April 1.

Comforts In Excess Of $250 Already Sent To Crew Of H.M.C.S. Sherbrooke

The following excerpts of a letter received today from Lieutenant D. A. Bimmore, Commanding Officer of H.M.C.S. Sherbrooke, were released by City Clerk Antonin Deslauriers:

"I am very happy to reply to your letter dated February 23rd, 1945. May I first of all tell you how much the officers and men on board the H. M. C.S. 'Sherbrooke' appreciate the kindness on the part of your city in the formation of the Sherbrooke Corvette Adoption Committee, as an expression of your interest in ours, and your ship. It is my wish to try to co-operate with your organization in its efforts to foster the happiness and well-being of our ship's company."

"We are all pleased to know that we will have the opportunity of displaying the colors of the City of Sherbrooke on our ship. I feel that it will give a tangible link between city and ship that would be difficult to represent in any other form. . . . We would like to have one crest, in frame approximately 10 inches by 14 inches, to be hung in our wardroom. Also two smaller ones, possibly about 8 inches by 10 inches on unframed masonite or some suitable material to be placed on the bulkheads in the crew's quarters. The latter type will avoid any possible injury from broken glass, a very real danger to our men. Everyone has shown a very keen interest in this portion of your letter and we are all looking forward to having your crests in our ship."

"We would like to thank you for your very kind gift of fresh fruit and celery which was received some days ago. They arrived in good state of preservation and were a great treat for all of us. I am sorry that our programme has not allowed me to express my thanks more promptly and I would ask you to convey our thanks to everyone concerned with the provision of the above items."

"I can assure you that every member of our ship's company joins me in my expression of our gratitude for your interest in H.M.C.S. 'Sherbrooke.' I will be only too glad to answer any queries or to lend my assistance with anything you may propose in the furtherance of our common interest, the welfare of the officers and men of the H.M.C.S. 'Sherbrooke.'"

Comforts valued at more than $250 have already been sent to the crewmembers of the R.C.N. corvette H.M.C.S. Sherbrooke, through the efforts of the local Chamber of Commerce under the chairmanship of E. E. Goodenough, it was revealed here today. Some of these articles were donated through the courtesy of J. S. Mitchell Limited, G. T. Armstrong and Sons Limited, Genest Nadeau Limited, and the Union Fruit Company of Sherbrooke Limited, while a donation of $100 was received from the City of Sherbrooke.

It was reported by the Committee that the following comforts had been dispatched and received by the crew of the 'Sherbrooke': one gramophone and records; six baskets of apples; two cases each of oranges, grapefruit, and celery; six wash boards; three monkey seats; six wash bowls; six scrub brushes; five sets of Chinese checkers; five coffee boilers; sixty-eight coat hangers; two checker boards and two sets of checkers; six glass ash trays; five cases of soap; twelve cartons of cigarettes; two cases of

Born in Albert Mines on April 28, 1925, Pte. Daigneault was educated there, coming to Lennoxville with his parents two years ago. He is survived by his parents; three sisters, Doreen, Dora, and Laura; and three brothers, Forrest, Wesley and Glen. Pte. Daigneault was a former employee of the Superheater Company here.

GOOD PROGRESS SHOWN IN LOCAL "HEALTH WEEK"

"Health Week" which is being sponsored by the Sherbrooke Branch of the Health League of Canada, is now nearing the midway point and Secretary Romeo Duford reports that everything is proceeding favorably.

In a message issued by W. H. Bradley, president of the Sherbrooke Branch, he states that "Sickness costs this country one billion dollars every year—half of which is authoritatively estimated to be preventable. Certainly any effort we can make to cut down this appalling drain of our resources, both human and material, is worth while."

"During the past five years the local branch of the Health League has organized and conducted campaigns against diphtheria, 'V.D.' and low public health standards. Hundreds have been immunized against diphtheria, and blood-tested for venereal disease."

"There is still a long way to go, however, before certain diseases can be conquered and before the general public is educated in the necessity of preventive medicine, and that the work of the League has taken a new turn in the direction of enlightening the public about their most vital health needs."

Some of the greatest benefits enjoyed by the Canadian people have been brought about by pressure of public opinion. In matters of health and public welfare, the path of progress has always been paved by public-spirited citizens and organizations who worked unceasingly to secure those laws and privileges that make life healthier and happier for millions today.

The patient work of educating the public demands experienced effort and substantial expenditures. Sometimes the objective is quickly reached; in some cases it means years of steady, faithful endeavor.

The Health League of Canada is a great public educator in matters of health. Its work is not wholly educational, however, when circumstances demand it campaigns to secure direct and immediate action. On many occasions it has been successful in winning desired objectives by forceful or diplomatic means. The League has a record of achievement in public service. At the present time great strides are being made in the prevention of disease and the fostering of higher standards of health with large numbers of people. The solving of some of the most distressing social problems is in sight.

The following is a letter issued by the Governor General of Canada, the Earl of Athlone, at Government House, Ottawa:

"I am greatly impressed with the progressive effort and widening influence of the Health League of Canada. This organization, of which I am pleased to be Patron, is putting forward an increasingly valuable programme of public service to prevent disease and improve the health of the Canadian people. I hope that its efforts for 1945 will have the greatest possible measure of support from all who wish to have a part in building a healthy and virile nation."

"The menace of disease is not lessened but aggravated in time of war. We are approaching a critical period in the physical life of our people. It is in our power to set up barriers of resistance against epidemics and adopt measures of health that will be a leading asset when we approach the hard work of rehabilitation."

"I appeal to all who receive this message to help the Health League to continue and extend its important mission among every section of the Canadian community."

Salary Revision Demands Threaten To Upset Municipal Budget Balance

Sitting as a Committee of the Whole, the City Council last night entered upon a series of discussions concerning the 1945 city budget, it was learned today through municipal circles.

One of the principal topics to be thrashed out at the private meeting was the revision of salaries, with the final decision that there will be a slight upward trend in the salaries of those municipal employees not covered by the Collective Bargaining Agreement, in order to meet and keep up with the times.

The question of salaries has invariably been the basis of the city's budget and one of Sherbrooke's biggest expenditures and as a result of last year's marked decrease in the city's surplus, the Committee is exercising great caution in raising the civic expenses. General belief has it that regardless of the amount of care exercised in the mapping of this year's budget, it will take some pretty shrewd figuring to balance the annual financial statement that will be submitted to the Council in the early part of 1946.

It is believed that it will take another five or six sittings of the Committee before the new budget will be ready for adoption.

Representatives of the City of Sherbrooke will be in Quebec City on March 8 in order that they may act in an advisory capacity when the "Sherbrooke Bill" comes up before the Private Bills Committee.

Members of the delegates have not as yet been decided, but it is expected that they will include His Worship, Major J. W. Genest, City Clerk Antonin Deslauriers, City Treasurer Maurice Cormier, and several of the aldermen.

City Attorney Edouard Boisvert, K.C., received a long distance telephone call from Albert Gaudreau, M.P., of Richmond, sponsor of the bill, advising him that the bill will be studied further on March 8, and requesting a delegation.

FINAL TRIBUTE WAS PAID TO W. G. HUNTER

Funeral services for Walter G. Hunter, whose death occurred at his late residence, 88 High Street, on Monday, February 19, 1945, were held at St. Peter's Church on Wednesday afternoon, February 21, at 2:30 p.m., with the rector, the Rev. Russel Brown, officiating. Following the services the remains were taken to Danville and placed in the cemetery vault awaiting burial in the spring.

The honorary bearers, all members of the Odd Fellow and Masonic lodges, of which the deceased was a member, were Messrs. Alex Davidson, W. Byham, Reid Moe, George Davidson, James Johnston, Alex Johnston, E. J. Astle and Carl Brynson. The bearers were Messrs. Norman Flint, Albert Vallee, W. McCabe, B. E. Lee, George Mulvagh and Howard Moffatt.

Mourners at the service included his widow, the former Emma Giroux, his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hunter; his stepdaughter, Mrs. Horace Lawrence, of Keene, N.H.; his brother-in-law, Norman H. Slack, of Knowlton, and two sisters-in-law, Miss M. E. Giroux, of Sherbrooke, and Miss Doris Giroux, of Montreal.

The beautiful flowers received by the family and the numerous expressions of sympathy testified to the high esteem in which he was held and the sorrow which is felt at his passing.

RECEIVES WINGS

Capt. W. E. Pennoyer, son of Mrs. A. J. Pennoyer, of Cookshire, was one of the fourteen Canadian Artillery Officers serving overseas, who were recently presented with their pilot's wings at a ceremony in Southern England.

Now a member of the Air Observation Post, who are the "seeing eyes" of the Artillery, Capt. Pennoyer was promoted to his present rank following the completion of the course, which was provided by the Royal Air Force.

Two other officers from the Eastern Townships, Capt. Nixon, of Granby, and Capt. Duncan, of Magog, also received their wings at the same time as Capt. Pennoyer.

TWO CLERGYMEN FROM E.T. FREED FROM JAP CAMP

Two Eastern Townships' clergymen, Rev. Clovis H. Thibault, whose father, M. Jude Thibault, lives in Danville, and Rev. Gerard Campagne, whose father, Trefle Campagne, lives in St. Paul de Chester, Arthabaska County, were among the 16 Canadians released by American troops from the Santo Tomas internment camp in Manila. The names were received through the United States Government by the Department of External Affairs in Canada on Saturday.

The list included the names of sixteen Canadians, while eight persons had relatives in Canada—next-of-kin of the 24 have been notified. It was announced. Eight of the persons, including the two mentioned from the E.T., were from this province.

Committee Action Probable On Tax Rates Of Local School Commissions

The ratification of the joint decision of the Protestant and Roman Catholic School Commissions in Sherbrooke will probably be one of the matters for committee action during the coming week in the Provincial Legislature, it was announced at Quebec. At present the two school boards of this city strike a joint rate and so notify the City Council which then has the task of collecting the money at the same time as it collects its own municipal taxes on realty.

At the joint meeting held here on October 27, 1944, an agreement was reached that the rate would be seven mills on the dollar, that is 70 cents per one hundred dollars of valuation, and that the rate on neutral property, owned by companies, should be ten mills. The Protestant School Board has also asked for a special school tax of three mills for Protestants.

The Provincial Legislature has been asked to ratify these decisions, and in addition, to authorize the Roman Catholic School Commission to borrow up to $200,000 by an issue of bonds not exceeding thirty years and at an interest of 5 per cent or less. In this connection it may be noted that school commissions have lately been borrowing at a rate of three per cent, and that the Provincial Government has just negotiated a loan of $15,000,000 at two per cent interest; hence the Roman Catholic School Commission is asking for a wide margin of latitude.

The issue of these bonds will be subject to the approval of the Minister of Municipal Affairs and the Superintendent of Education. It was revealed that the money was required for the construction of additional buildings and the purchase of new furniture and accessories in local schools.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR LIONS' BI-NO

Plans for the Bi-No which is to be held tonight at eight o'clock at the Granada Theatre, have been completed, it was announced by Gerard Marchessault, Chairman of the Bi-No Committee, at the regular dinner-meeting of the Lions Club, which was held at the New Sherbrooke House last evening.

A brief description of the prizes was also given, and it was noted that not one had a value less than $12. It was also reported that instead of the $750 originally announced as the cost of the prizes, some $848 had been spent.

Neil Tracy, in reporting on the Institute for the Blind current campaign, announced that at present results were very gratifying, although he could not release the actual figures. The Lions Club had verily done a lion's share, Mr. Tracy revealed.

It was unanimously agreed that each month one meeting be set aside as a business session. This motion was adopted on a motion submitted by Percy Francis.

Gilles Brosseau, a new member in the club, was presented with his certificate of membership by the President.

Walter Goddard, reporting for the Blood Donor Committee, issued an appeal for more blood donors to attend the next few clinics, and as a result recruit several.

Other new business of a minor nature was also discussed, under the presidency of Don Elliott, President of the local club. Prior to the beginning of the business session a brief sing-song was enjoyed by all those present.

Seated at the head table were President Don Elliott, George H. Carr, Gerry Marchessault, Alex Al-lard and Gilles Brosseau.

A TRAGIC SITUATION

Certainly the week-end occurrences at Drummondville where a number of young hoodlums of both sexes sought to prevent members of the Canadian Army provost corps and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police from carrying out their legal responsibilities is a severe blow to those well-meaning people who have sought to bring about a better feeling among the various sections and races in the Dominion. Incidents such as these serve no useful purpose but give agitators and self-interested individuals a fine opportunity to stir up further trouble.

The incidents are useless and short-sighted in that the authorities have the power to enforce their actions and the resistance only serves to add to the degree of the original crime.

But to a great degree the responsibility for these outbreaks must be accepted by the Dominion Government itself. From the earlier days of the war it has adopted a weak-kneed and vacillating policy in dealing with the whole manpower issue. There has been no clear-cut statement from the responsible ministers as to what the citizens are expected to do and there is no doubt that the regulations have been interpreted with varying degrees of efficiency in different sections of the country.

This has led to the attitude in many areas that for some reason or another the people of these parts were entitled to special privileges and concessions—an idea that has been aggravated by the activities and utterances of political leaders who seek personal aggrandisement and advancement through the stirring up of racial and sectional hatreds. Thus, when the authorities seek to enforce the law as it should be enforced, the residents of the formerly favored areas adopt the attitude that they are subject to special persecution.

Had a definite policy been adopted in the early days of the war and had it been made clearly understood by the Government that these regulations would have been enforced with equal determination in all sections of Canada, much of the trouble that faces the country today would have been avoided.

And in the meantime, Quebec Province has suffered a definite black eye in the opinion of the people of the rest of Canada.

ARE THE NAZIS INCURABLE?

While many individuals and organizations are talking vaguely of plans for inculcating a new spirit into the Germans who have been steeped in Nazi doctrine and practices for the past twenty years, reports received from many soldiers and guards who have had charge of Nazi prisoners indicate that this will be almost an impossible task. They say that while many of the Germans have been chastened by recent events on the Continent, a large proportion of them remain snarling, bitter implacable beasts, who will never by anything else.

This feeling has long been apparent in the prison camps on the North American Continent, but as the majority of the prisoners on this side of the water fell into the Allied hands months or even years ago, there has been some doubt expressed that the views voiced here by men who have lost touch with the actual situation are indicative of the beliefs of the men more recently captured. But a recent interview by Leland Stowe, correspondent of the New York Post, with a number of German prisoners in Italy should dispel any illusions. During the course of a talk, one Nazi officer declared:

"We have lost—that's all. In thirty years we shall have to fight again." Another Pan-Teuton declared: "One thing is certain. We are still the master race. We are incomparable!"

Certainly there is little indication of a change of heart in these declarations, nor is much hope of better feeling contained in the words of another prisoner whose rank is not stated, when he declared:

"I loathe everything that isn't German. If I manage to get back to Germany somehow during this war, I shall keep on fighting till I fall dead. Anyhow, we had a fine time while it lasted."

From his personal interview and from his talks with prison camp officers and men, Mr. Stowe gathered the opinion that a great many Germans, especially those under thirty-five years of age, will be ready to listen to another Hitler when they return to their homeland, and five years hence they will begin to prepare in hundreds of thousands for World War No. 3.

Thus it is essential that Allied peace terms must take care that these snarling, concealed, bitter beasts are not given a chance as long as they live. By the time they die out, the lessons of the peace terms and of history may have sunk into the minds of generations yet unborn.

But it will be long and difficult and the people of the United Nations must prepare themselves for the fact that many, many hard, unprofitable years must elapse before they can give up the task of controlling and educating Germany if another holocaust is to be avoided.

BRITISH POST-WAR PLANNING

That the average British Member of Parliament realizes that there is more involved in the reconstruction of industry and agriculture after the present war than mere financial compensation for properties that are subject to compulsory transfer is made apparent by the fact that for the second time in less than four months the Government has met with stiff opposition from all parties against measures designed to regulate the post-war use of land in those densely populated islands. In each case details, not general principles, were in dispute, but in each case the Opposition was so heavy that amendments had to be agreed to before the House of Commons would approve the measure.

The $2,500,000 Town and Country Planning Bill finally was passed last autumn by a 324 to 58 vote after sharp debate on account of the compensation to be paid owners of land and buildings compulsorily acquired by local planning authorities. Now the Requisitioned Land and War Works Bill has been given second reading, but in this case the prospect is for more fireworks before it is finally adopted. Sir John Anderson, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, has promised that changes will be made but critics of the bill say it is still unsatisfactory.

The expenditure on war works that come under the bill is some $3,150,000,000 of which about $270,000,000 represents factories alone. Land requisitioned for war works has taken some 800,000 acres out of cultivation.

Under existing legislation, the land with the buildings and works on it would have to be handed back to the private owner with compensation for damage. But the Government attached importance to the systematic and orderly disposal of factories that would become available after the war, to mention one typical case. They claim that there must be power for the Government to acquire land in such circumstances. In most cases, works carried out on requisitioned land would be returned to the original owner. When compulsion to acquire land was used, compensation would be at the value of the land when the Government acquired it.

Many members, dissatisfied with the Chancellor's pledged amendments, urged complete redrafting of the bill which one called a "Fascist Measure" and another said needed "a major surgical operation."

Some speakers complained that finance had been given too great consideration and the amenities of the country not enough. Colonel Ralph Clarke, the Conservative Member for East Grinstead, brought up the damage to the Sussex Downs and Ashford Forest in the areas where the Canadian army was stationed before D-Day. He said three things were needed: Return and restoration of all open land, the granting of equivalent areas where restoration could not be made, and the cleaning up of agricultural land.

BRITAIN'S NEED FOR OVERSEAS TRADE

Emphasis on the vital need by Great Britain for the full re-establishment and ever-increasing expansion of her overseas trade is the feature of virtually all the addresses delivered at the annual meetings of the shareholders of the leading United Kingdom Banks.

For instance, Frederic Alan Bates, chairman of Martins Bank Limited, as quoted in a supplement to the Bank of Montreal's current monthly letter, declared that, among the national problems demanding early attention, housing and employment would undoubtedly come first. In considering employment, he declared that Great Britain's position and, indeed, existence in anything comparable to her present status depends upon overseas trade.

Great Britain, he continued, will require large quantities of imported goods of many kinds, but to pay for these she must export. It is, therefore, her foreign trade that calls for experienced and untrammelled consideration at the present time. The standard of living and employment can best be improved by the development of that trade. Other nations will be eager to establish markets, and he admits that the British trader can only hope to gain a fair share of the world commerce by preparedness and efficiency, and by the quality, price and suitability of his goods.

Commenting on the same line, Edwin Fisher, Chairman of Barclay's Bank Limited, warns that the degree of efficiency and adaptability required in competition is such as to call for the avoidance of any unnecessary restraint upon the production of goods and services, including the handicap imposed on industry by abnormally high taxation.

Another factor in the situation is dealt with by Hon. Rupert E. Beckett, chairman of the Westminster Bank Limited, who stresses that in many cases British industry will not only have to make up the leeway of development in the war years, but will have entirely to modernize equipment which has failed to keep pace with research.

PRESS COMMENTS

WON'T STAND FOR IT
St. Thomas Times-Journal
The socialists keep telling us that they do not intend to take away small items of property from the owners, but only great corporations, and it might be a good thing to examine this remark, and see if it means anything.

The first thing we should do is to find out who owns the big corporations. Every study which has been made shows that almost all the big corporations are very widely owned, a great majority having more shareholders than employees.

Now, if you owe one share in the C.P.R., or the Bell Telephone, or International Harvester, that does not make you a wealthy capitalist. Why then should you have your investments taken away from you by the government, because you and others happen to own a corporation which is a big one? Suppose instead of buying these shares you put your money into a life insurance policy. Do the socialists really think that this makes you a big capitalist, and liable to have your money taken over by the government? Certainly they do not. They will deny this. All that the insurance company is doing is investing your money. If it happens to have put your money in a big corporation, is that any reason why it should be taken over by the Government?

If you buy a taxi cab the socialists say they will not take it away. If a little later on in life you have saved some money and you give up the taxi business, and live on what you have saved, you may decide to invest this in some company which you think pays good dividends. Why do the socialists think that it was right for you to enjoy the fruits of industry and thrift as long as you ran the taxi, but to enjoy them if you risked your savings in shares in a corporation doing a legitimate business?

The fact is that the socialists are just talking nonsense at this point. They are trying to create a prejudice on the part of average men and women who do not realize that there is no such thing as a corporation owning any wealth of its own. All that any corporation is, is an agent for thousands of people who put their money into it.

Once that idea becomes generally understood, all the social talk of taking over big corporations is going to come to an end for the average man will not stand for it.

WAKE UP, SHERBROOKE, AND GIVE

To the Editor of the Record,
Dear Sir: As a reader of the Sherbrooke Daily Record naturally I have noticed the very small number of donors attending the Blood Clinic.

I am sure there must be many boys and men from this City who are at this very moment fighting and giving not only their blood, but also their lives. Are there not any people in Sherbrooke who consider this sacrifice made so willingly, worthy of giving a pint of blood to save one of these boys? He may be your own brother, son or a relative. How would you feel if Ottawa informed you that one of your loved ones had died of wounds because you had failed to give a blood donation and there was not enough blood plasma to save him? It is just what will happen in many of your families if your donations do not increase.

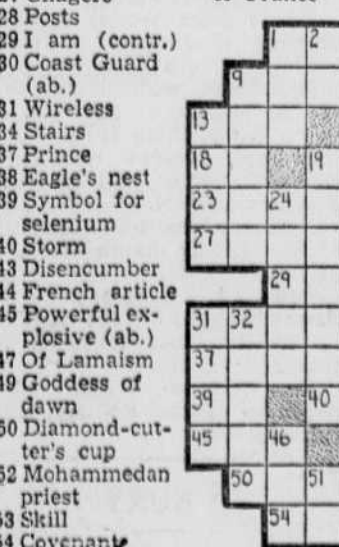

I am a patient in the St. Francis Sanatorium, so, unfortunately, I am unable to donate. Nevertheless I am proud of Beebe, my home town, where they are doing their utmost to save our boys, and can read their Clinic report with great pride. I should think the people of Sherbrooke would be ashamed to submit a report consisting of only three donors for a city of this size and population.

Come on, everyone who wants to see this war over and the boys back home, give, give to save our boys. It will not hurt you.

Yours truly,
MISS MABEL MUNROE,
St. Francis Sanatorium,
Sherbrooke.

FORCES TRUMPING TO MAKE CONTRACT

I received today's interesting hand from Thomas H. Givan, of Rixford, Pa., and it is a rather unusual grand coup situation.

The opening lead was won by North with the king, the ace cashed and the small diamond returned, which was won in dummy with the queen. The king of spades was played and North jumped right in with the ace and returned the ten of diamonds. Mr. Givan trumped the trick with the five of spades but South overtrumped with the ten spot, forcing him to ruff in dummy with the queen. Now you can see that it looks as if Mr. Givan will have to lose another spade trick to North's nine spot.

At this point, a heart was led to the king, a small heart was played to dummy's ace and the seven of hearts ruffed with the six of spades. The queen of clubs was overtaken in dummy with the ace and the ten of hearts was trumped with the seven of spades. This left East with the

Mr. Givan won the next trick in dummy with the ace of clubs and now led a club, which North had to trump. Mr. Givan overtrumped and won the last trick with the jack of spades, making his contract.

IN THE WOMEN'S SPHERE

DOROTHY DIX

Gossip-Mongering Saboteurs

Nothing so Wanton as Idle Talk Affecting Families of Soldiers

With all the trouble there is in the world just now it seems incredible anyone would be so inhuman as to wantonly add to it, but the war has produced a type of friends who are guilty of committing atrocities, every whit as cruel as any the Japs and Germans have inflicted on their victims. These are men and women who gratify some sadistic streak in their natures by torturing soldiers overseas and their wives and sweethearts at home, by arousing suspicions in the minds of those they love, and filling them with a bitter jealousy that adds the last drop of gall to the cup they are being forced to drink.

DOROTHY DIX

God knows the lot of the man who has left all he cares for in the world to fight for his country is hard enough and full enough of anxiety and agony. The only thing that enables him to bear it is the picture he keeps before his mind of the girl who is waiting for his return, or the wife and children and home to which he will go back when the war is over. Take that away from him, shake his faith in the woman into whose hands he has given not only his heart but his name and his honor, and you leave him nothing but despair.

Nor is the case of the war sweetheart or the war wife a pleasant one. When Johnny went marching away, he took with him everything that gave zest and point to their lives. Without him they are bored and lonely and filled with doubts and fears. Often the war wife has to break up her home, take her children and go to live with relatives who do not want them. She has less income to live on than she has been accustomed to. And many a night she weeps her pillow with tears.

Surely it would seem no one could be malignant enough to want to add a feather's weight to the burden of the serviceman at the front, or his wife at home, but there are such devils in human form. There are alleged friends who feel it their sacred duty to write the boy overseas that his girl or his wife is looking very pretty and gay and is getting around a lot. And there are mothers who keep tab on every movement their sons' wives make and who never fail to report to them every act of Mamie or Susie to which they can give a sinister turn, and which will arouse suspicions in their husbands' minds.

And there are a multitude of vicious women who find a grisly pleasure in sabotaging what little peace and happiness the war wives have by trying to shake their faith in their husbands. Their theme song is that you never can trust a man; that no husband is true to his wife if he is separated from her, and that a wife is just plain silly who doesn't know that her husband is dancing with the pretty girls at the canteens while she is putting the baby to bed, and that, oh, well, you can't blame men for falling for foreign women, they are so fascinating.

And in vain does the poor wife read over her husband's last letter that is overflowing with tenderness and love. The troublemaker has gotten in her work. She has filled her with suspicions of her husband that are like a knife in her heart, and added another sorrow to one who already has plenty of grief.

"Knickerbocker Holiday" Is Comedy At New Premier

Nelson Eddy and Constance Dowling, the gay lovers in "Knickerbocker Holiday," comedy hit now playing at the New Premier Theatre.

Acclaimed by critics as one of the top musical comedies of the past few years, "Knickerbocker Holiday," starring baritone Nelson Eddy, will be presented for the first time in this city at the New Premier Theatre starting Wednesday and showing till Saturday.

Producers Corporation of America's "Knickerbocker Holiday" has brought on the screen all the charm, great music and romance that made it a highly successful hit on Broadway not many seasons ago. Capturing all the special quality that made the stage version a great play, the film has had something new added in the way of additional tune and a cast of leading players which cannot help but get all of the fun out of a great musical comedy.

Perhaps the foremost singer in Hollywood today, Nelson Eddy plays the leading role in the kind of part which has kept him a perennial favorite. He appears as Brom Broeck, devil-may-care newspaper man who was sort of the Ralph Ingersoll of early New York. Eddy gets seven chances to raise his famous baritone in lusty song.

Starring along with Eddy are Charles Coburn and Constance Dowling.

The girl in the case is Constance Dowling, a newcomer to filmdom, whose outstanding beauty won her immediate stardom.

Featured players lending tonal support to Eddy, Coburn and Dowling are Ernest Cossart, Shelley Winter, Johnny "Scat" Davis, Otto Kruger, Percy Kilbride, Richard Hale, Charles Judels, Chester Conklin, Fritz Feld and Ferdinand Munier.

"Knickerbocker Holiday," a comedy set to music, is laid in old New Amsterdam of Peter Stuyvesant's day. It deals with the gay, singing but fighting printer, Brom Broeck (Nelson Eddy), who publishes a newspaper which fights for freedom in the colony. He crosses swords with the crafty, humorous Governor Stuyvesant both for the hand of a girl and for freedom of the press. And how he comes out makes a charming climax to an altogether charming film.

Much of the music from the original stage production including the Anderson-Weill tunes "Nowhere to Go But Up," "Indispensable Man," "September Song," and "It Was Never Anywhere You," are included in the film. New songs have been written by Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn, authors of many popular tunes and by Nelson Eddy.

As an added attraction on the same bill, Republic's "My Buddy," starring Donald Barry, is the dramatic history of Eddie Ballinger, which is the story of a returned hero who forsakes his G.I. heritage, when embittered with the civilian world, for one of crime.

ALBERT MINES

Boy Scouts Of Waterloo Entertained By Kiwanis Club At Dinner-Meeting

Waterloo, Feb. 27.—In honor of Boy Scout Week, the local Kiwanis Club paid tribute to the Boy Scouts of the town by acting as their hosts at their regular meeting held one evening in the Waterloo Hotel Dining Hall. Thirty members of the club were on hand, along with twenty-three Scouts and Cubs. Mr. O. R. (Toby) Jackman, of Granby, was the guest speaker, and with him came Messrs. W. H. Miner, Samuel McLaughlin and Clifford Porter, the Granby Scoutmaster. Also from Granby were four King Scouts in full regalia, Messrs. Muir Hayes, Alan Lawrence, Frank Jackman and John Shutt.

After the out-of-towners had been introduced by Charles Ritchie, the local boys were introduced individually, John Pinder, Tenny Hall, William Davidson, Ernest Tetreault, Douglas McKergow, Wesley Jones, James Watkins, Roy Parker, Stanley Atkinson, Howard Wiegman, Kenny Blake, Kenneth Tibbitts, John Porter, John Macdonald, Wallace Plunkett, Hugh Dalton, Lorimer Bockus, Curtis Frost, Lorenzo Campbell, Waldron Smith, Fred Bresse, William Gannon and Donald Wallace. The President welcomed this excellent gathering in a few words and expressed the belief that a good representation of "Young Canada" was on hand at this time in the form of these Scouts.

Bert Fisher was asked to report on the Boys' and Girls' Committee, and stated that 380 tickets to the carnival had already been sold, and the prospects of more being sold were good.

Charles Robidoux very capably led in the sing-song, with Roger McKergow at the piano, following which Fred St. Denis introduced Mr. Jackman. The guest speaker has just been made the District Scoutmaster, taking in all the territory from St. John's to Drummondville, and it was his wish, he said, to present before the gathering just what a Scout has to learn in his progress.

At eight years of age they are eligible to become a Cub, and when they reach the age of twelve, they become a Scout by means of a very impressive ceremony to which all boys look forward. Their first lesson is in learning the rules, regulations and Scout Promise, and to learn the fundamentals from the bottom. They then become a Second-Class Scout, at which time they are to learn the general rules of health, trail blazing, kinsmanship, which means that they must be able to remember sixteen articles out of twenty-four that they have been allowed to look at for one minute only.

One of the hardest tests, Mr. Jackman said, was to run a mile in ten minutes with the Scout pack, and also to build a fire in the open using not more than two matches, and to box the compass.

To become a First Class Scout, the boy must have served at least one year as a Second-Class Scout, swim fifty yards free-style, have a savings account in the bank, send and receive messages in the International Code at a rate of fifteen words minute, advanced first aid, they are also trained for emergency and can perform artificial respiration when called upon.

The boys are also taught to cook over the open fire, and the District Scoutmaster said that this was a very tough job on the poor fellow training them, as he was the one who had to taste the flour and water smudged on the end of a stick over a smoking fire. Mapping plays a very important role in a Scout's curriculum, as does woodcraft and the use of an axe, estimating distances, and doing a seven-mile hike overnight, cooking his own meals, building his own bivouac and making a detailed map of his course.

The King Scout is the highest honor to be received by a boy, and must be preceded by the winning of the four King Scout badges, the Ambulance Man, Pathfinder's, Fireman's and Rescuer's. The Ambulance badge is won by an advanced course in first aid; the Pathfinder's test is a detailed map of the city or district where the boy lives, and a knowledge of twenty-five miles of the surrounding district; while the Fireman's badge consists of training with ladders, rope, rescuing and resuscitation, while the rescuer's badge weaver must perform in water over his depth a rescue and learn the proper way to carry a drowning person and how to break the death holds that might be clamped on them by a desperate person. A special war badge has been provided for a Scout which enables him to fill in during an emergency and take an active part during and after a catastrophe. This particular training has been practically invaluable in England during the bombing, and the Scouts had lived up to their name and training in an admirable manner.

The Hours Badge, which is also given for war work, is donated to a boy who has freely given of his time in benefit of such work as the Blood Donors' Clinic, Red Cross and Salvage, and the number of hours in hundreds only is his prize possession.

In closing, the speaker said that this brief resume of work that a Scout learns gives one the insight necessary to realize just what the Scout Movement really is, and should be backed up in every way possible. Young Scouts are future Canadians, and the welfare of our fair country depends on whether these boys make a success of their good work or not. This is the true way along the rough road of life.

In thanking the speaker, Kenneth Nish, the local Scout Leader, said that the address had been most beneficial to all present, and in particular to the Scouts. Mr. Nish pointed out that the Scout Movement in Italy had just begun to awaken again after twenty years of suppression. Germany is still without its Scout troops, as a Scout is taught to think for himself and this is not what the Nazi desires in his idea of a true German. "However, there will be another Scout organization in Germany," the speaker said, "and it will be a happy day for all when it does come."

The meeting closed with the singing of "O Canada," and a meeting of the Public Affairs Committee followed.

A SONG TO REMEMBER

by Willard Wiener

Copyright, 1945, Willard Wiener
Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: The disastrous news he receives just before his concert so unnerves Chopin that his entire performance is a fiasco. He dreams that night of Professor Elsner's prophecy long ago that his music would one day speak for the voice of Poland. The unfinished Polish now occupies all of his thoughts.

THE INVITATION

In the morning he was at the piano, in his dressing gown, working out the great themes when Jozef Elsner, rubbing the sleep (and perhaps the dreams also) from his eyes, looked into the room, Frederic heard him.

"Good morning, Professor?"

"Humph. You slept?"

"Not very much."

"I am not going to quarrel, Frederic. How can I quarrel? I know what was in your head. I don't even blame you."

"Any notices?"

"Tch, tch—"

Frederic continued playing. The themes were taking shape.

"Good. Very strong."

"Do you catch it, Professor?"

"Eh?"

"The spirit of Poland?"

"Yes, of course. Indeed."

"Well, Professor, what did they say—the critics—the great critics of Paris? Come, come, you have room—and I know it. Why, without your papers—"

"Madame Mercier did bring a few up. I don't lie, Frederic. There's no need to lie."

"And how bad are they?"

Jozef Elsner put his chubby hand to his hair. "Well, not bad. But not enthusiastic, I would say. Just more or less ordinary—"

"Really?"

"Not exactly ordinary—not exactly. What's said is said. Critics! What do they know? Nothing! There is not a critic in the world—"

He returned to his room and came back with a bundle of morning papers. "Stuff—stuff—nothing but stuff—the most abominable—enough to turn your stomach—"

Then something caught his eye as he was contemptuously leafing through them. He held the paper to his nose. He adjusted his spectacles. He held the paper farther away, at arm's length. "Tch, tch—this looks almost intelligent—"

"Read it, Professor. I am in a mood for anything."

Jozef Elsner read. "—A genius—"

"Sarcasm," Frederic said.

"Not exactly, Frederic." He continued. "—A genius such as this Frederic Chopin appears only once in a hundred years—"

"Umm! How is that! In print!—Right here—just as I said—tch, tch—"

He read. "A star has risen among us—"

Jozef Elsner's chest swelled. "A star has risen among us brighter than we have ever known—"

He removed his spectacles. He wiped them on his sleeve.

Frederic stared.

Jozef Elsner returned his spectacles to his nose. He fastened them behind his ears in a businesslike manner, then read the article, a long one, down to the very end without saying another word. Then he looked up. "What I always say, Frederic—no one so important in all the world as a critic."

"Who wrote it? Some schoolboy?"

Jozef Elsner adjusted his spectacles again, though certainly they didn't need adjusting. "Schoolboy, nothing! Whoever it is—it's the most brilliant critic in Paris! I don't think it. I have the knowledge! I know!"

"Someone you called on the other day, no doubt."

"No doubt," Elsner scanned the column again. "George Sand!"

"Madame Sand?"

"No! Just plain George Sand!"

"—The lady we met the other day."

"Tch, tch. It doesn't make a bit of difference—"

Madame Mercier came into the room without knocking.

"For you," She handed Jozef Elsner a letter, then waited for him to open it. It was not every lodger who received letters by special messenger—a messenger, by the way, who came and left by carriage.

"I don't have to sign?"

"No, Monsieur. It came by carriage."

"What?"

"Yes, Monsieur."

"Tch, tch." Jozef Elsner looked at the letter. "Humph. Not for me."

He handed it to the astonished Frederic. "For you."

Madame Mercier stretched her neck as Frederic tore open the letter.

"Bad news? You know what they say, Frederic, it never rains—"

Frederic read the letter twice in silence.

"How can it be worse?" Jozef Elsner asked. "Read it, Frederic."

Frederic read in a quiet voice: "My dear Chopin! It would please the Duchess of Orleans—"

"—What?"

Frederic continued: "—if you and your teacher would attend a reception at her home tonight."

Jozef Elsner's chest expanded. He worked his jaw, his head stretched from his collar in the direction of Madame Mercier.

"—From the Duchess of Orleans, Madame!"

"No," said Frederic.

"—What?"

"No, Professor, not from the Duchess of Orleans—"

"Tch, tch."

"The letter is signed—"

"The Duchess of Orleans—"

Jozef Elsner gazed into the startled face of Madame Mercier. "George Sand? Humph. How could she know it would please the Duchess?"

Frederic stared.

Jozef Elsner returned his spectacles to his nose. He fastened them behind his ears in a businesslike manner, then read the article, a long one, down to the very end without saying another word. Then he looked up. "What I always say, Frederic—no one so important in all the world as a critic."

"Bad news? You know what they say, Frederic, it never rains—"

Frederic read the letter twice in silence.

"How can it be worse?" Jozef Elsner asked. "Read it, Frederic."

Frederic read in a quiet voice: "My dear Chopin! It would please the Duchess of Orleans—"

"—What?"

Frederic continued: "—if you and your teacher would attend a reception at her home tonight."

Jozef Elsner's chest expanded. He worked his jaw, his head stretched from his collar in the direction of Madame Mercier.

"—From the Duchess of Orleans, Madame!"

"No," said Frederic.

"—What?"

"No, Professor, not from the Duchess of Orleans—"

"Tch, tch."

"The letter is signed—"

"The Duchess of Orleans—"

Jozef Elsner gazed into the startled face of Madame Mercier. "George Sand? Humph. How could she know it would please the Duchess?"

Frederic stared.

Neighbourly co-operation counts more than ever these days. Please use your party line sparingly—use it sharingly—and you'll find your telephone "partner" doing the same.

A "Good Neighbour" Party Line Policy

1. Make sure the line is not in use. If it is, hang up gently.
2. Be brief—someone may be waiting to place an important call.
3. Do not make several calls in succession—give others a chance to use the line.
4. Answer calls promptly; replace the receiver promptly.
5. Make courtesy and consideration your motto.

The Rotary Movement, founded on February 23rd, 1905, was but fourteen years old, when, in May, 1919, the Rotary Club of Sherbrooke was organized with a membership of seventeen. Today, the Sherbrooke Club numbers one hundred and seven active members, four honorary members and eight members on His Majesty's Active Service.

To the efficiency of this Club; to the great service which it is rendering to the community; to the loyalty of each Rotarian we truly pay tribute as we dedicate this page to furthering of the great work of Rotary with the wish that it may continue to grow and to spread with renewed vigor the great motto of Rotary
