Public, religious and official ceremonies mark Remembrance Day

During the past weekend, Memorial services for the dead of two world wars were held in churches throughout Pontiac County and at many village cenotaphs and at both the branches of the Royal Canadian Legion, Quyon and Campbell's Bay. During the weekend of remembrance ceremonies, the Shawville Community Band took part in one of each of these three categories of events.

On Friday, the actual day which annually is used to commemorate the armistice, the band played solemn music at the memorial park in Shawville where a new cenotaph has been added this year by the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hodgins. The wreathes laid at this monument and at the other monument previously used, were in memory of those dead in both first and second world wars. Many of these names were engraved on the monument as were some of the names of living veterans of the first world war.

The ceremony in the village park was attended by most of the ministers of Shawville, a few school children and a small number of other citizens.

A memorial service was held at the Bristol Cenotaph on Nov 11th with the Renfrew Canadian Legion in attendance. Rev Snowden was chairman and addresses were given by Father Morris and Rev McColl.

Wreaths were laid.

Music was suppied by the pipe band.

On Sunday, the Shawville Community Band took part in the second category of remembrance service, being a religious meeting in the United Church. The congregation overflowed the capacity of the church and included Scouts, Cubs, Guides and Brownies many little children and a large number of members and guests. Mr. Lydell was present to conduct the band and in a number of selections the band accompanied congregational singing.

On Sunday afternoon the band participated in hte official cenparticipated in the official cen-Canadian Legion, Pontiac Branch No 162 at the County Seat, Campbell's Bay. Anthems, hymns and marches were played while the well organized ceremonies took place. Veterans of both wars paraded to the call of Parade Marshall Jean-Louis Muir. Parade marker was Robert Whelan. Colour bearers were Alexander Buchanan, Cyril Lepine and William Black. Bud Rowat played the "Last Post" and, after two minutes of silence, "Reveille" during which time the flags were appropriately dipped and returned.

Wreaths were laid by Branch President Peter Kluke by Mrs. Joseph Paré representing the bereaved mothers, by Rev Shulist and Rev Rutherford for the clergy, by Tom Lefebvre, MP, Hon Raymond Johnston MPP, representing federal and provincial governments respectively and many others, numbering over seventy five and coming from every corner of the county.

After the laying of wreaths and "The Queen" the Legion President, Members of Parliaments and Clergy received a march past and salute after which the parade was dismissed and all present were invited to supper and refreshments in the Legion Hall.

At Quyon meanwhile, a large crowd attended the Armistice Parade which started at 2:15 at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, marched up John Street to Clarendon to Bristol Lane and thence to the cenotaph. The parade was accompanied by a band from Arnprior and contained a colour party and a representative group of veterans from Arnprior, Bell's Corners, Aylmer and Ottawa, as well as Quyon.

Rev E. McColl said prayers before the traditional two minutes of silence in memory of the war dead. Wreaths were laid by many organizations and individuals including Mrs. P. Moore representing bereaved motherhood, the Institutes of Quyon, of Breckenridge, Beechgrove and Eardley, Quyon Catholic Women's League. The Hilton Mines represented by Mr. Bill Brandum, the schools and churches, merchants and many others. After the ceremony at the cenotaph, all taking part reconvened in the Legion Hall for an afternoon of sociability and reminiscences.

Outaouais Region

Clergy and social workers hold conference and decide to form a Welfare Council

A conference between the clergy and the Social Workers of the Outaouais region, was held at the Hull Diocesan Center on November 4 and 5. The members of the Clergy were from all the confessions, and the social workers were from the personnel of the Regional office of the Family Welfare Department, the Hull Social Service, and the Hull Welfare Court.

The purpose of this meeting was:

1.—To provide a meeting ground for Clergy and Social Workers to share mutual concerns in the community.

2.—To obatin information on Private and Public Welfare Programs.

3.—To discuss co-ordination of social service work in the community.

The conference was sponsored jointly by the Diocesan Council for Social Service of the Anglican Diocese of Ottawa, and the Hull Social Service. Mr. Camille Gay was the General chairman of the Conference.

On Friday evening, his Excellency the Most Reverend Paul Emile Charbonneau, Bishop of the Diocese of Hull opened the conference by stressing in his address the ecumenical nature of this meeting and the apostolic aspect of social work. The guest speaker was the Right Reverend Ernest S. Reed, Bishop of Ottawa, and his address was entitled "The Relationship Between Clergy and Social Workers in the Community." The Right Reverend Reed gave a definition of the respective roles of Clergy and Social Workers to finally underline the areas of co-operation which should exist between them.

The Saturday program was composed of informative sessions. The first address, given by Mr. Jean Paul Tremblay, Director of the Regional office of the Family and Welfare Department of the Province of Quebec, explained the Public services in the Welfare field. The second one, was given by Mr. Roch Parisien, Executive Director of the Hull Social Service. These addresses were both followed by a discussion period.

At noon the meal was served by the Hull St. James Parish Ladies. The guest speaker at this occasion was Mr. William Dyson, Director, Montreal Federation of Catholic Charities. His address treated of the necessity of co-ordination in the Welfare Council for Hull and the region.

The afternoon session consisted of special interest groups discussing the following subjects:

1.—Adoption
2—Child Welfare
3—Exceptional children
4—Marriage Counselling

1.—Adoption: On this subject the group expressed its interest in legal implications, child welfare, and the usefulness of the Clergy's participation in finding adoptive homes.

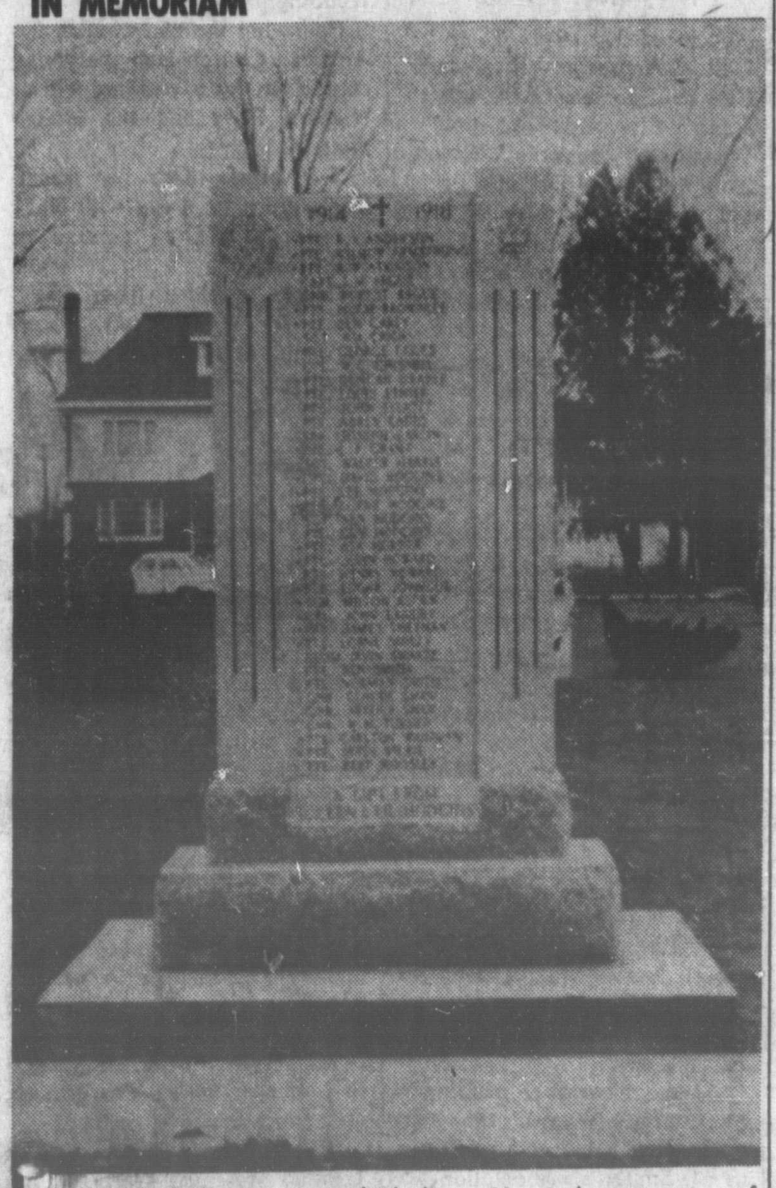

2. Child Welfare: This group underlined the important role of interpreting the services especially in municipalities outside of Metropolitan Hull, which role was assigned to a certain degree to the Clergy. The need for an organized homemakers service was also discussed since this would avoid unnecessary placements.

3. Exceptional Children: This discussion group found that the existing resources for these children were not used adequately since they are unknown to the public, but other resources were still inexistent such as homes for delinquents, a Detention Home, etc. . .

4. Marriage Counselling: In discussing the Marriage Preparation Courses, the group deplored the fact that too many people did not know about them. Changes in the marriage legislation were also suggested such as raising the age limit. The different ways of co-operating between the Clergy and Social Worker concerning couples facing marital difficulties were also studied.

The Conference ended by the assembly of all the groups to hear the reports and to make plans for the future. It was decided that such meetings are necessary and others should follow not only with the Clergy, but also with other professions concerned in the well-being of the Community. The second decision was to create a Welfare Council for the entire region.

'Pontiacs' start is slow as usual

by Wayne Chamberlain

The Shawville Pontiacs opened up the 1966-67 hockey season last Friday in their usual manner as they dropped a 7-4 decision to the Buckingham Aces. The game was the first for the Pontiacs as a member of the St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League.

The Pontiacs have not been able to win one league opener during the past several seasons.

The game was a hard skating, bruising affair with goals and penalties coming with unusual frequency. Buckingham drew first blood with Bob Aube connecting at 1:04 of the first period and before the openin frame was over, the Aces had a commanding 5—1 lead as Glenn Richardson counted the lone Shawville marker.

The Pontiacs roared back in the second to cut the Buckingham lead to 5—4 as Reid Mick, Des Keon, and Royce Richardson connected within a 10 minute space. Richardson's goal came on a seldom seen penalty shot for the Pontiac's second goal.

In the third frame Buckingham took advantage of a pair of Pontiac penalties as they went ahead 6—4 as Bert Aube fired home his third goal of the evening. Jacques Gauthier completed the scoring with his second of the night at 19:00 of the third to make the final score Buckingham 7 Shawville 4. The other Buckingham goal was scored by Jacques Lanthier in the first period.

The Pontiacs received 13 of the 19 penalties handed out, and this was much of the cause for the early 5—1 Buckingham lead after 20 minutes of play. The Buckingham Club is a well organized team and led by the slick Aube brothers, they were able to take full advantage of the Shawville penaties throughout the game.

The next start for Shawvile is this Friday in Renfrew against the Ottawa Nationals, and then on Sunday they play the Buckingham Aces in Buckingham in a Sunday afternoon game.

TAKEN, NOT GIVEN

To say that the fighting of a war (any war; the first world war, the second world war, or any of the current wars) is condoned by God (any God; the catholic God, the protestant God or any of the non-Christian Gods) is pure rationalization for the sake of conscience saving.

Yet, year after year, in pulpits and at ceremonies all over the world, in countries which have fought side by side and which have fought against one another, when people feel impelled to say words of remembrance for the war dead they repeat the notion that these dead soldiers gave their lives for the sake of something to do with God.

The facts which the loud speakers will not proclaim are that war is not a tool of God and that these men did not give their lives. The wars that men engage in are fought despite God, engineered by people who need but cannot see God. And the men who die have their lives taken by the Godlessness of war.

When it finally gets through to those who congregate at monuments to the war dead that those fine lives were taken by a streak of Godlessness not given for some religious reasons, then perhaps the world will be able to hope for an end of war as a means to solve problems.

As long as leaders go on proclaiming to the people, and especially to the young people, that war can be condoned if "God is on our side" and that people who get killed in battle are giving their lives voluntarily, the war method will survive as acceptable.

We could hope for something a little more realistic, especially from believers in the Prince of Peace.

THE TROUBLE WITH PEOPLE

People are imperfect, have you ever noticed? The things people do are therefor imperfect. Some people, in fact most people, would rather do nothing than take the almost certain chance of having done something which could be later criticized by others. And these very "do nothings" are the ones who spend a great part of their waking hours finding fault with the things which the few brave "doers" have done.

Fortunately for us all, there ARE a few doers, and one such man in Shawville is Ken Hodgins. Ken has been honoured by his country and proudly wears his medals, and has also been honoured right at home by the Shawville Lions Club which has presented him with an honorary life membership.

In gratitude and in remembrance of a number of his old friends who were killed in the first world war, Ken and his wife have donated a monument to the Shawville Memorial Park which already owes much to Ken's care and consideration throughout the years. The names engraved on the monument include men who were killed and men who survived the war. The gathering of these names was difficult and represents a great deal of time, energy and money spent by Ken and Lil Hodgins. Difficulties in compiling such a list are numerous. Even the Royal Canadian Legion itself would have a hard time to make up a satisfactory list of people from here who fought and died over there.

Among the problems faced is the fact that most people from this immediate area enlisted in Ottawa, not even in the Province of Quebec. Also there is the question of people who were born here, went west and en listed out there; people who were born elsewhere, lived here for a while and enlisted with a Shawville address; people who lived within a few miles of Shawville but are listed on the veterans roles of other nearby municipalities; people whose relatives have no information or wish their names to be left off for unfathomable reasons. Despite the seeming impossibility of the task, Ken Hodgins persisted and the monument in the park became an actuality. He has called it his own special Centennial Project. A very solemn and impressive ceremony took place on November 11th, during which the monument was unveiled.

Then came the critics. Within the day noises were being heard. Some names had been left off! It was reminiscent of the flurry of criticism when after a century of namelessness the streets of Shawville were named by a committee of Lions.

But that one simmered down and this one will too. Ken's monument will stand long after the critics are stilled .The names to be added will doubtless be added. There is room for fifty more names on the sides and back of the stone and with reference to church roles, the Legion records, municipal records and family bibles, there could be, by this time next year, a further list of those who served and those who died in that first world war which the monument stands for. To hope that the list would ever be complete to everyone's satisfaction would be too much but with time it can be improved.

Meanwhile, the town is richer for the addition of this monument in the park and most of the people here will feel deeply grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hodgins for this very fine gift to us all.

As for the complainers, their point is well taken. There could easily be imperfections in the deed done by Ken Hodgins. Nobody is perfect. That's the trouble with people!

Doctor honoured by home town

When Annie Elliott, sister of the late Alfred and Rugles Elliott of Clarendon went down to the Carleton County General Protestant Hospital for nurses training, she came away with more than an RN. She graduated in 1913 and became the bride of Dr. Arthur McAllister.

Now, fifty three years later, the town of Georgetown, Ontario, has seen fit to honor Dr. McAllister on the occasion of his nintieth birthday. Two years ago they presented him with a certificate and scroll at a special celebration of more than fifty years of service to the community as a physician, and to the church as an elder.

The Georgetown Herald congratulates Dr. McAllister in a lead editorial. It says "A general practitioner here for over a half a century, the doctor belonged to an almost vanished breed of men who was on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to minister to the needs of the community . . . Georgetown had no hospital then, and house calls were part of the daily chore . . . minor operations, and some major ones too, were performed when occasion necessitated in the doctor's office or the patient's home.

"It was a rugged life which men of Dr. McAllister's generation chose for their life's career. They had to possess a great deal of medical knowledge and be able to carry on with little sleep. There were country calls on winter nights, before we had today's rapid snow clearance. With office and home in one location, a doctor's day was never quite ended, for if the office was closed, people knew they could always contact the doctor by knocking on the other door".

They think a lot of Dr. McAllister in Georgetown, and of his wife, who was a Clarendon girl. The couple had a daughter, Helen Mary, who died nine years ago, a daughter, Jean Mackie, and a son, Arthur Elliott.

Pontiac historical treasures now in Gatineau Museum

The Historical Society of the Gatineau, at Old Chelsea, has fallen heir to some things which were to have gone to the Shawville pioneer farm, the collection of Mrs. Elizabeth Laird and her daughter Mrs. Pitts of Bristol.

In the collection, among other valuable things, are a horse hair trunk full of beautifully handmade clothing of the past century with priceless and irreplacable shawls.

Mrs. Laird was greatly disappointed when the Pontiac Centennial pioneer farm fell through and wished for her treasures to have a permanent home. The Gatineau group at Old Chelsea will care for them and display them to interested visitors so that this pioneer family of Pontiac will always be remembered.

The Gatineau Historical Society has a tea room and museum at Kingsmere and a library at Wakefield in the old Maclaren house which they are furnishing with Canadiana from the surrounding area.

McCALLUM—In memory of a dear husband and father, George McCallum who passed away Nov 16, 1965
He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near
Days of sadness will come o'er us
Many think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies in the heart concealed.
Wife and son 47336b

McCLEARY—In loving memory of our dear son Cecil who passed away Nov 17, 1962
We are sad within our memory

No eye may see us weep
But many silent tears are shed
While others are asleep.

COUNTRY NOTEBOOK

Lachute as well as the Chateauguay Valley and Shawville had its bad storm last summer. But I didn't hear about this one until the other day when I was poking around Argenteuil County. It left a real mess. It came out of a blue sky late one August afternoon, cutting a swath two miles wide from the Ottawa River to Arundel. Sugar bushes went down before the wind, and the hail threshed out the standing grain.

It is small compensation to have a thick field of green oats for fall pasture. It is for this kind of disaster that I can see the sense of crop insurance. But I can't see crop insurance as a substitute for the cultural practices which will lessen the risks from normal variations of climate.

According to Meat Packers Council one quarter of the B grade hogs fail to make the A grade because of weight. Sixteen percent of hogs graded B were above the A grade weight range. Eight percent were under. Of those B carcasses within the A grade weight range (135-170 lbs) 97% failed because of too much fat.

Why anyone would want to keep a pig around for one day after it is ready for market feeding it, cleaning its pan, and listening to it I will never know. It reminds me of the silly story about the town cousin admiring a pen of good hogs, and asking how much it cost to raise them "Oh, the little pigs cost me $15 each and they will eat about $30 worth of feed". "And how much will you sell them for?" "About $45." "Not very profitable, is it?" "No, but I have the pleasure of their company for six months."

Somewhere in this must be a grain of hard truth. I don't know how much a set of scales cost, but I bet it is less than the lost bonus on 50 hogs and the cost of converting corn into fat no one wants to buy.

Clearing familiar stones out of one more field used up one precious day of the annual three weeks on the old farm. Each was named in memory of a broken pitman, a bent binder bottom, a twisted seed-drill tongue, or a smashed tractor oil-plug. We asked a neighbor, please would he come over for two or three hours with his back-hoe and bury these obstacles that had been making heathens of us for three generations.

Well, I should have known that any stone that could have been moved would have been two generations ago. But $63 and nine hours later, I added another acre and a half to the farm plan. And I won't have to apologize when I ask the custom combine to cut the wheat next July.

Fences are coming out on the College farm. It is Farm Director Rudi Dallenbach's answer to the loss of land for the Trans-Canada Highway. From now on, the seventy-cow dairy herd will be fed in the feed lot. Their feed, winter and summer will come out of storage, or at times, when the crop is being cut at its peak, directly from the field.

Rudi is sure he will gain two ways—more production from the field by cutting the crop at its best, and more production from the cows. He figures a cow will use up too much energy if she has to walk any great distance for her pasture.

I asked Rudi if he figured the practice of feeding out of storage was the coming thing for all dairy farms. "Every farm is different. What works on one farm might not be the answer for the farm across the road. Where land values are high, or where you want to expand and can't buy more land, or where there isn't enough rain for good summer pasture, it is an idea worth looking at," he replied. "But in the Eastern Townships they have ideal weather for growing grass all summer long. I expect you will see cattle on pasture there for quite a few years yet."

Pastoral comment...

Rev. Jos. E. Gravelle

In nearly every community we find one particular person that everybody likes. All seem attracted to him, enjoy his company, accept his advice, respect his opinions. All speak kindly of him and are ready to defend him, if necessary, on any occasion. Yet nobody seems to know the reason why this person is being held in such high esteem, what secret he possesses which give him this magnetic power of drawing all others to him and making them his friends.

Is it because he is thoughtful of others' needs, because he is truly sincere and honest, because he is simple and not overbearing in his manners and speech, or thoughtful and sympathetic for the needs of others? No one will deny that he possesses all these fine qualities, yet each one of them or all these qualities together do not seem to answer the question. There must be something more, something deeper, some unknown charm, some secret virtue.

Yes. The real reason why he exerts such power over other men, is this: "He is a humble man". HUMILITY is his great, his magnetic virtue. He is humble in his thoughts, his ways, his speech, his giving advice, his asking of other's opinions, in being the last, when all others have spoken, to pronounce, in a shy manner, what his humble solution would be. True humility is so rare today among men, that when one comes in contact with it, he is immediately overcome by its power. We have no better example than that of Our Lord, drawing to Him, by His HUMILITY, the early christians.

Real humility covers a vast field, being the foundation of all virtue Its penetrating effect can be felt more readily than seen. It can conquer all obstacles, it can enslave even the most wicked opponents. It can only be employed to do good, as pride can only do evil.

There can be no real virtue of any kind without humility. This is the reason for its importance. One writer puts it this way" Virtue without humility is like a Christmas tree planted in wet-sand pretty now, but doomed to wither and die". Yet how many proud persons seem to ignore this.

Were we to acknowledge our total dependence on God, for both existence and continuation of life, and then keep this terrible thought in mind, it would be very easy to be humble. But human nature is weak and does not entice us that way. Humility therefore calls for a continual struggle against natural tendencies. By winning this battle, we can become guiding lights in the lives of others.

Higher edhcation, without proper guidance, has a tendency to lead one to forget or to ignore our dependence on God and to place unlimited confidence in our own judgment and strength. And the result is that many of our most educated students have made fools of themselves, through lack of humility and have bcome stumbling blocks to others who accept their guidance. The history of the world has given, and is still giving us, sad examples of this.

Our houes of education today have neglected to teach what Christ considered the most essental element of education, the virtue of humility: "Learn of Me, for I am meek and humble of heart.'
