COMMERCE BD. IS NOW NO MORE

Members Have Resigned And No New Appoinments Will Be Made.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 22.—(By Can. ress)—The Board of Commerce is no more. Announcement was made from the Prime Minister's office tonight that the members of the Board had tendered their resignation to the Government and that no appointment to the vacant positions would now be made.

The announcement from the Prime Minister's office followed a series of meetings of the Cabinet Council which were held today, the last of them convening at 5:30 this afternoon and lasting for a couple of hours.

The statement issued tonight says that when a decision is given by the judicial committee of the Privy Council, as to the extent of the Federal authority in relation to the Board of Commerce Act 'it will be for the Government to consider what should then be done."

Premier Meighen's statement does not occasion much surprise in the capital, as it was felt here that the resignations of the members of the Board were certain to be handed in, following the Cabinet's reversal of the Board's order with regard to the maximum price of 21 cents per pound for sugar.

The three Commissioners, who have now resigned are Captain William White, who was formerly Secretary of the Board, and who was appointed a Commissioner on the resignation of the original Commissioners; F. A. Acland, Deputy-Minister of Labor, and Major G. A. Dillon, Purchasing Agent for the Department of Justice.

The formal announcement of Captain White's resignation as chief commissioner of the Board of Commerce is gazetted in this week's Canada Gazette, published tomorrow.

The appointment of the three gentlemen who have now tendered their resignations was stated to be a temporary measure, following the resignations of Judge A. H. Robson, of Winnipeg, the first Chairman; W. F. O'Connor, K.C., and James Murdock, Labor representative on the Board. Mr. Murdock's letter or resignation, written to Premier Borden, was the subject of much discussion just prior to the ending of the last session of Parliament. The right of the Board to issue orders placing certain restraints on the export of Canadian products was challenged in connection with the export of pulp and paper. In regard to this the Prime Minister's statement tonight says:

"The jurisdiction of the Board will shortly come before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for final determination. The Dominion Government has been pressing to have this case heard with the least possible delay but as the Provinces have a right to be heard, it has not yet been possible to have the exact date of the hearing decided upon.

"When a decision is given as to the extent of the Federal authority in relation to the Board of Commerce Act, it will be for the Government to consider what should then be done."

KING NO BETTER

Paris, Oct. 22—An Athens message received at the Greek Legation at ten o'clock tonight, reports little change in the condition of King Alexander. It said hope was still entertained, however.

UNVEILING OF CENOTAPH

London, Oct. 22—(By Canadian Associated Press).—Much interesting speculation is proceeding here in regard to the details of the unveiling on Armistice Day by the King of the cenotaph in Whitehall, commemorative of the glorious dead.

A religious ceremony has been ruled out since numbers of those who fell professed no form of Christianity.

No official statement has been issued, but it is possible the matter will be decorously compromised by the unveiling of the cenotaph being undertaken in silence. His Majesty afterwards proceeding to Westminster Abbey where the body of the unknown British soldier brought from his original grave on the Somme battlefield, will be interred with the ordinary Christian rites.

MRS. M. KENYON FOUND GUILTY

Of Manslaughter In Killing Dr. Tetlow—Ten Years' Imprisonment.

Norwich, Conn., Oct. 22 — Mrs. Mabel C. Kenyon, today was found guilty of manslaughter in killing Dr. Herbert Tetlow, and was sentenced to serve from 10 to 15 years in prison

The jury was out ninety five minutes.

Mrs. Kenyon showed no emotion. The court recessed until 2 p.m.

Dr. Herbert Tetlow was a physician by graduation from Western Reserve University, but never practiced. He devoted his time to horticulture in Pawcatuck, near Westerly, R. I., his native town. He had known Mrs. Kenyon many years, and had been, according to evidence, on terms of intimate friendship. Mrs. Kenyon had been married three times, the last, thirteen years ago. She had three children by her third marriage, the third about a year ago.

The State offered evidence to show that Mrs. Kenyon had referred to the baby as "her Bert's and mine."

On June 11, Dr. Tetlow was shot while in his home. A revolver which had been discharged four times was turned over by her to officers. She had been in Dr. Tetlow's house at the time of the shooting.

In the trial the defense claimed that Dr. Tetlow was shot accidentally when he attempted to wrest a revolver from Mrs. Kenyon, who was claimed to have been about to end her own life. One bullet entered Dr. Tetlow's body, the State contending that this could not have been fired at a close range. Three other bullet marks were found in the walls and floor of the Tetlow home.

From the time of her arrest and throughout her trial, Mrs. Kenyon showed little emotion. An unusual feature was that Coroner Franklin H. Brown, who conducted the inquest questioned Mrs. Kenyon at the time of her arrest had recently died and his official statement was not available to the State. Mrs. Kenyon's husand and children were at her side during the trial.

"HERE'S WHERE I LEAVE YOU"

Man Commits Suicide At Niagara Falls Before Sight-Seers' Eyes.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 22 — Before the eyes of a score of sight-seers at Prospect Point late this afternoon, a man climbed over the railing, waded out into the river, and was carried over the American falls.

Too atonished to move, the spectators stood by while the man drifted to the brink, waving his hand and shouting "Here's where I leave you: good bye".

In a black derby found near the place where the man climbed the railing was found a piece of paper on which was written: "This hat belongs to Carl A. Ellis, of Hamburg, N.Y."

The description of the suicide corresponds to that of Ellis, who could not be located in Hamburg to-night.

The owner of a souvenir stand near the falls told the police that the man approached him and laughingly said: "Well, I can't vote for Harding, so I may as well go over the falls."

The souvenir seller thought the man was joking and paid no more attention to the incident until a short time later, when he saw the fatal leap.

SUPREME KNIGHT ISSUES STATEMENT

Denies That Knights Of Columbus Gave Assurance To Pope.

New York, Oct. 22 — James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, tonight issued a statement denying the report in the Giornale D'Italia that the order on the recent pilgrimage of its representatives to Rome, had assured Pope Benedict XV., that a United States ship would be awaiting his command should grave troubles arise in Italy.

"Of course," said Mr. Flaherty, "we could give His Holiness no such assurances on the part of the United States. What we did promise was to aid the head of our Church to our utmost ability whenever he might have need of us.

"The statement that the Knights of Columbus undertook to raise $1,000,000 for the Vatican is also incorrect. We gave His Holiness Petre's pence from our own pockets to a substantial amount, and I am sorry it was not a hundred times what we were able to give, for the Pope has unceasing callings for his charity."

TWO WOMEN ARE HELD BY POLICE

Are Said To Be The Mother And Sweetheart Of Dead Bandit.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 22—Two women are said to be mother and sweet heart of Albert Joyce, the bandit who was killed during the battle yesterday following the robbery of the leveland Trust Company's branch at Bedford, were held by police tonight for investigation.

Jewelry worth $25,000, including unset diamonds valued at $17,000 and $3,500 in cash were found on the elder woman when she was searched, according to the police. The women were seized when they attempted to get possession of Joyce's body.

The younger woman gave her name as Hazel Grey and later that of Norma Scott, and said her home was in Oakland, Calif.

While being searched, the elder woman is alleged to have offered the matron $1,000 if she would withhold the information concerning the hidden jewelry and money.

She gave her name as Mildred Johnson, and insisted she was the mother of the dead man.

Through the detention of the women, the police hope to establish the identity and activities of other members of the gang.

The members of the gang who escaped after the battle were still at large tonight, although believed to be wounded.

BIGAMIST URGES JUSTIFICATION

First Wife Left Him Years Ago—Did Not Think It Wrong.

Bryson, Que., Oct. 22.—Pleading justification for bigamy in that his first wife had deserted him, Paul Lariviere appeared in one of three cases heard before Magistrate Millar here today.

Lariviere, it was charged, married Caroline Hust, of Montreal, while he already had a wife living. In his defense he claimed that his first wife had left him years ago and that he did not think it was wrong for him to marry again. He formerly resided at Sturgeon Falls, but now lives at Fraser River. Judgment was reserved.

Mike Leglosski was charged with the murder of two men at Kipawa. It is alleged that the prisoner was one of those concerned in a game of cards which led to a quarrel as the result of which the bodies of two men were found later buried under a pile of brush and with many bullet wounds. As the Crown announced that it expected the arrest of two other men concerned shortly, the case was remanded until November 12. Paul Mathias was arraigned, charged with shooting, with intent to kill, his nephew, Michael Mathias. The parties are Indians and reside at Rapides Des Joachims. From the evidence it appears that the wounded man, 17 years of age, had been an unwelcome visitor at the Mathias home, of the two daughters of the elder Mathias, who were the younger man's cousins. Following one visit, the elder man met the nephew and fired point blank at him from a distance of 12 feet. Although the wounded man was seriously injured, he was able to appear at the trial today. The accused pleaded provocation, claiming that the nephew had caused trouble at his home. Judgment was reserved.

BALLOT-STUFFING EXTRAORDINARY

Alleged To Have Been Committed By Montreal Returning Officer.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 22—An extraordinary story of the stuffing of a ballot-box at No. 5 Poll, 157 Cartier Street, in the St. Mary's Division, this city, by the returning officer in charge of that poll on the occasion of the voting at the Provincial general election in June 1919, was told today in the proceedings before Justice Coderre in the Superior Court in the preliminary inquiry on the petition of Alfred Mathieu in contestation of the election of Napoleon Seguin to the Quebec Legislature as a member for St. Mary's Division.

J. B. Amireault, 70 years of age, a furnace man, swore that his nephew, A. Amireault, filled up 37 ballot papers and registered them, although only 25 had been legitimately cast. Of the 62 thus placed in the ballot box, only 13 were in favor of Mr. Mathieu.

J. P. Lanctot, counsel for the petitioner, wished the Court to continue the case this evening, but Justice Coderre refused and the present proceedings were adjourned until November 22.

JURY ACQUITTED DAVID M'NEAL AT WELLAND, ONT.

Found Not Guilty Of Murder Of Four Year Old Girl.

PRISONER BROKE DOWN.

Will Be Deported To States Where He Must Face Other Charges.

Welland, Oct. 22—After three hours' deliberation to-night the jury acquitted David McNeal of the murder of four year-old Margaret Boucock, of Thorold, on July 13, last. As the words "not guilty" fell from the lips of Foreman Neff, McNeal was embraced by his wife and her mother, Mrs. Honeywell, who came from Los Angeles, Calif., to comfort her daughter through the trial. A demonstration of approval was started which brought from Justice Kelly a strong rebuke. Then the nerve which the accused displayed all through the trial and his ordeal in August at Thorold, when he was almost lynched by a mob, disappeared. He sank into his chair in the prisoner's box and wept like a child. Justice Kelly informed McNeal, correct name is Walls, that he had a close call, and that another jury might have convicted him on the same evidence. As McNeal walked from the box he was taken in charge by Inspector Reynolds, of the Dominion Immigration Department, and will be held for deportation, which is expected to fit in with the plans of the United States Federal authorities, as he is wanted in Philadelphia for robbery and other charges.

The fate of McNeal was given into the hands of the jury late this afternoon. The counsel for the defence put only two witnesses on the stand, Charles Parker a night watchman on the new Welland ship canal, and Arthus Lewis, a next door neighbor of the prisoner. McNeal was not called upon by his counsel, G. F. Peterson, to testify in his own behalf.

Parker swore that he had, of his own volition, made systematic search for the missing girl in the locality where her body was afterwards found. He said he had walked over the spot, between two brushwood trees, "and there was nothing there". In his testimony Parker, said: "I declare, gentlemen, that the body was not on the spot on July 21, where it was found on August 4. If it had been I would have seen it."

The Mr. Jeffreys the Crown prosecutor, Parker admitted that his knowledge as to the spot where the body was found was based on the fact that somebody had pointed it out to him.

Arthur Lewis' evidence included the statement that he had noticed McNeal on the latter's verandah at 3:22 on the afternoon of July 13, the date of the child's disappearance. Witness had called to McNeal: "Hello, no work today?" and McNeal answered "No".

The prisoner's counsel, in addressing the jury at the conclusion of the taking of evidence, contended that no evidence had been produced to prove that a murder had been committed, and there was no evidence to connect McNeal with the child's disappearance.

The Crown prosecutor referred to the murderer of Margaret Boucock as a pervert. He said he would not say that McNeal was the murderer —that was for the jury to decide, the responsibility being upon the jury.

Mr. Justice Kelly, the presiding judge, made a brief summing up of the evidence for the guidance of the jury, and explained that it was the jury's duty to base their verdict upon the evidence, not upon personal feelings.

The court room was crowded when the trial of David McNeal, charged with the murder of four year old Margaret Boucock was resumed this morning.

Myrtle Dunn, 9 year old daughter of Constable Dunn, testified that between 1:30 and 2 on the day of the disappearance, she noticed David McNeal near Dr. Pudlows, across from the Library Margaret Boucock had hold of McNeal's hand and they were going away from Margaret's home and towards the canal. Defence did not question the girls evidence.

Florence Christie, 16 years, testified that to go to work she had to go across the new Welland ship canal and knew the spot where the body was found. She was working on 14th July, leaving to go to work about 6:30 in the morning. Witness stated she saw David McNeal that morning about 7 o'clock. He was down in the cut just below the spot where the remains were found. It would be a few minutes after seven.

Cross-examined by the defence as to why she did not give this evidence before she replied:

"I did not want to get mixed up in this trouble."

"Who did you tell of it?" asked Mr Peterson.

"My parents."

Witness said McNeal appeared to be wandering around looking for something. "The body I suppose?" asked counsel for the defence.

"I don't know" replied the girl, "I did not know the girl was lost until that night."

Constable Dunn of Thorold told of the hunt for the child at 9:30 that night. He met McNeal and asked if he had seen Margaret Boucock. McNeal answered that he had been out with her that afternoon and had left her in front of Wilson's house. George Strong, a newspaper man of Merritton, swore that McNeal told him that he slept in a box car the night the little Boucock girl had disappeared and he was going to lay low until she returned he said. Robert Bradly said McNeal told him there was just one man he wanted to get even with and that was R. Boucock, the childs father.

FOR THE WOMAN OF FULL FIGURE

By Gertrude Beresford.

The woman of generous lines is sometimes at a loss in regard to her clothes. Naturally she wishes to make the best of her figure, so when choosing a dress she should select a model that accentuates the length of her figure. An excellent model is illustrated. It is made of black duvetyn, whose soft tones help to slenderize. The sleeves are long and wide so that they conceal the size of the arms. The long front in V shaped style is also a becoming feature for the woman of generous build. The lingerie collar shows fine tucks. The tricorne of black satin is trimmed with high standing wings that modify the full cheeks of the wearer.

Pretty Gowns For Home

By Rita Stuyvesant.

Attractive little house gowns, charming in their simplicity, are one of the new season's offerings. After all, a great deal of the housekeeper's time is spent at home, and, therefore she should dress nicely and not wait for the few hours of recreation outside the home to gown herself carefully.

For morning wear checked gingham is serviceable, and may be fashioned into any number of good-looking models. Lettuce green and white check, with white organdy trimmings, develop an attractive house dress. The waist is made in a surplice style, crossed at the breast and tied in a dainty sash at the back. Short, set-in sleeves are cuffed in sheer organdy, narrowly hemstitched, and there is a deep roll collar at the neck. The rather full skirt is inclined to be short and patched with two big pockets. This model may also be cut from rose checked gingham, red and white, or Dutch blue.

The woman who is slim and likes loose clothing will be interested in a two-piece dress of small plaid gingham or plain chambray. This dress shows a sort of smock that falls below the hips, and is collared with a broad Buster Brown affair of white pique, and then has the added charm of a black silk necktie This is worn over a simple two-piece skirt, opened at the back and attached to a lining. This is also excellent for maternity wear and may be made up of navy blue cotton crepe. It is a quaint little frock and gives one a delightfully youthful appearance.

The apron dress is also very practical, and is slipped on over the head and belted at the waist. There is a sailor collar of self-material and kimono sleeves that end before they reach the elbow. A white middy lacer is used to lace up the front of the dress above the belt, and is drawn through eyelets. For holding numerous little necessary articles, two great pockets are provided.

Flowered challis, with their frilly lace collars and slim girdles of black velvet ribbon make neat, fetching afternoon gowns.

CURSE WORKED OUT TO BITTER END

London, Oct. 22—The sudden death of Michael P. Grace, father of the Countess of Donoughmore, recalls a legend connected with Battle Abbey which he rented from Sir Augustus Webster.

The great establishment was seized by Henry VIII. and it is said that the last abbott pronounced a curse that the owners of it should meet death by drowning. It is stated that Lord Montague, who owned the property in the 18th century, was drowned, and a similar fate befell his two nephews. Lady Webster, wife of the present owner, was drowned three years ago and a short time later the eldest daughter of the tenant then occupying the abbey lost her life in a similar way.

QUEER ECONOMY.

Ostervald was a Swiss and one of the most remarkable misers of modern times. He was born in Neufchatel. He followed the trade of a Parisian banker, one of those who exhibited the narrowest mind in business affairs.

When this man set out in life he was accustomed to drink a pint of beer for supper at a tavern which he daily visited. From thence he would take away with him all the bottle corks he could collect or lay hands on.

At the end of eight years he had collected so many that he realized twelve Louis-d'ors on the corks, (about fifty dollars), and with this he laid the foundation of his fortune.

So niggardly was Ostervald, that shortly before his death of starvation he would not purchase any meat. At that very moment he had about the premises of his home over eight hundred thousand francs. He died two days later.

CHIEF DONNELLY RETAINS OFFICE

City Council Refuses To Reconsider Appointment Of Fire Department Head.

By a vote of nine to three the City Council last night refused to reconsider the appointment of Mr. Lawrence Donnolly as Chief of the Fire Department to succeed Mr. Louis Talbot, who recently resigned.

Knowing that he could not debate the question of the appointment on his motion of reconsideration, Ald. Fiset moved the adjournment in order to open the discussion.

Both he and Ald. Bertrand voiced their opposition to the appointment of Chief Donnolly and maintained that it was against the will of the people. They finally suggested that the majority of the Council withdraw Chief Donnolly and they in turn would withdraw Captain Francois Jacob and let a third party be appointed.

Ald. Bedard, Ald. Martin, Ald. Lesage and Mayor Samson also spoke on the question in turn and when Ald. Fiset withdrew his motion for adjournment, the vote was called on the motion of reconsideration, which resulted as follows:

For—Aldermen Labrecque, Bertrand and Fiset, 3.

Against—Aldermen Delagrave, Bedard, Mercier, Lesage, Martin, Bouchard (St. Roche), Bouchard (Jac.-Cartier), Lantier, Collier, 9.

As at the previous meeting the galleries were crowded, but there was no manifestation and the Council transacted its business without any interruptions.

At the opening of the meeting a letter was read from the Union of Cabmen protesting against the watering of the streets at this season of the year, which makes them very slippery for horses. The letter was referred to the Public Works Committee.

MR. RENE DE DION HAS PASSED AWAY

The death occurred yesterday at the Jeffery Hale Hospital of Mr. Rene de Dion, a very popular young man of this City. Mr. de Dion served for three and a half years overseas with the 57th. Field Artillery. While at the Front he was gassed and on his return his constitution was so much impaired that he was practically an invalid. He had a host of friends in this City who will sincerely regret his premature death and will extend sympathy to his sorrowing relative. The deceased was the son of Mr. Rene de Dion, Organist, of Montreal. The funeral will take place here on Monday.

AN EXCITING CHASE

Residents of The Cape complained yesterday to Central Police Station of an individual who was causing scandal on the Glacis. Constables John Geneest and Roy were despatched to handle the case. On their arrival the man fled. He had a good start, but Constable Geneest who was a prominent long-distance runner here some years ago and is still in good condition, set out after the culprit and after an exciting chase ran this man down. The prisoner was arraigned in the Recorder's Court yesterday and heavily fined.

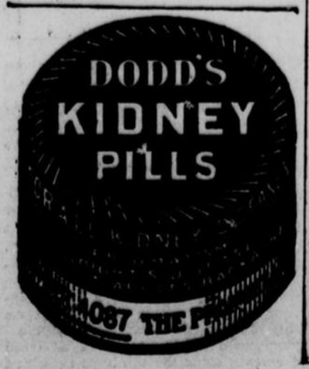
COUP D'ETAT PLANNED.

Florence, Oct. 22—The directorate of the Socialist Party at the continuation today of its meeting here heard a statement from deputy Morgari, who declared he had learned in Rome that a military coup d'etat was being organized to be sprung November 4, the anniversary of the Italian victory on the Piave in 1918.

Deputy Morgari asserted this conspiracy was to be led by former Minister of War Gladino, Gabriele D'Annunzio, Admiral Millo, and General Garibaldi, and that it aimed at the establishment of a military dictatorship.



INFORMATION RE SCHOOL MATTERS

City Council Authorizes The Mayor to Inquire Into Finances Of School Comm.

The City Council last night received a motion proposed by Ald. Fiset regarding the Catholic School Commission. The motion was as follows:—

1st—That His Worship the Mayor be authorized to ask the Catholic School Commission if it is true that it has decided to contract a new loan, and if so, for what amount.

2nd—If it is true that the commission has a deficit and if so, what is the amount of such deficit and what is the cause.

3rd—If a new loan has been decided what is its purpose.

4th—Has the School Commission decided to build a school in the Sacred Heart parish.

5th—Can the School Commission supply statistics to show the number of children of school age for whom there is no school accommodation. How soon can such statistics be prepared.

Ald. Martin asked the Mayor what steps had been taken regarding the repairing of the street railway in on DesFosses street.

Mayor Samson said he had sent City Engineer Baillairge's report to the Street Railway Company but had not yet received a reply.

POLICE GROUP WAS AMBUSHED

Member Of Attacking Party Seen To Fall During The Shooting.

Dublin, Oct. 22—A group of nineteen policemen were ambushed at Parkwood, King's County, today. The driver of the one of the police cars was shot dead and one constable was wounded. A member of the attacking party was seen to fall during the exchange of shots.

Three military lorries today were subjected to a twenty five minute attack at West Mullingar. Several policemen are believed to have been wounded.

Two policemen were killed today when with four of their colleagues they were attacked from ambush by fifty disguised men at Feakle, County Clare.

Soldier Died

Cork, Oct. 22—One of the five soldiers wounded this morning, when two military lorries were ambushed fourteen miles from Cork, died this evening.

According to A. H. Roberts, whose farm faces the road where the ambuscade was laid, the attacking party exploded a mine in the roadway by an electric current from a pit dug at the roadside. The leading lorry barely escaped the explosion, while the second lorry ran squarely into the hole made by it. By the explosion, an officer and one private were instantly killed.

WAS FOUND DEAD IN DESERTED CAR

Foul Play Against Maritime Lumber Cruiser Suspected By Police.

Amherst, N.S., Oct. 22—Geo. Chisholm, a lumber cruiser of Oxford, was found dead in a deserted car discovered on the Main Street of Londonderry today, at daybreak. The cause of death has not yet been ascertained, but foul play is suspected. An inquest was opened at Londonderry this afternoon and adjourned until an autopsy is held on the body.

Mr. Chisholm left Oxford by car in company with two strangers who had been in town for the past two or three days selling furs. Nothing more was heard of him. This morning when word was received that his body was found in the car jammed down between the front and back seats. It is known that Chisholm had a large sum of money in his pocket when he left Oxford.

ACCUSED THIEVES WERE CAPTURED

Three young men accused of having stolen a sum of $60. from the safe of J. E. Leblanc, Manufacturer's Agent, St. John Street, on Thursday afternoon, were captured at Three Rivers yesterday morning owing to the prompt action of Chief of Police Emile Trudel. As soon as the robbery was reported Chief Trudel learned that the accused had left the City by Auto. He immediately got in touch with Three Rivers and other points and was informed some hours later that the accused had been arrested at Three Rivers.

Commenting on the arrest, Chief Trudel stated last evening that as early as 1909, in an interview which he gave at that time he had suggested a system whereby police organizations keep in touch in connection with all cases of law-breaking. He suggested that there be a central point to which all informations of infractions be communicated at once, so that police department at all points be on the lookout for the lawbreakers and effect their arrest.

PRISON PERSONEL LACKING IN DUTY

Main Reason For Revolt At Kingston Penitentiary—Investigation To Be Held.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 22—Despite the fact that an official denial was issued yesterday at Ottawa that dynamite had been found in Kingston Penitentiary in connection with the jail delivery plot there, the Daily Standard, which printed the story a few days ago, stands by its original story of the finding of the explosives and adds that the mounted police who have been investigating the affair could give, if they would, additional and much more startling details, such as, for instance, that some of the dynamite which was discovered was found broken up in small pieces and thrown about one of the yards.

The paper asks: "Why are five of the most desperate characters in the prison in solitary confinement." It claims that the "strike", which was on at the penitentiary, Saturday, Sunday and Monday last, was the result of the knowledge of the convicts that their plot had been discovered and frustrated.

Changes Necessary

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 22—The Evening-Journal this evening publishes the following item anent affairs at Kingston Penitentiary:

"Following an extensive investigation into conditions at the Kingston Penitentiary the Department of Justice, is arranging, according to information coming from a reliable source, to make wholesale changes in the staff of the institution. It is stated that more than 75 per cent of the guards, who have resided in Kingston for years would be retired in a short time and their places would be taken by much younger men—in some instances by men who are expected to be more reliable than certain ones now employed.

"Investigation has brought out the fact that the rules and regulations of the penitentiary and even the Penitentiary Act, have been violated by guards who have held the confidence of their superiors for years. A number of strong cases have been prepared, it is alleged, and the Kingston Magistrate will be kept busy for many sessions. The charges will range from accepting bribes to trafficking in tobacco and drugs. At least one dozen cases have been completed and the evidence unearthed is considered most conclusive. It is claimed that some guards have received large sums of money for assisting convicts in their desire to secure contrabands of divers kinds. On two occasions relatives of convicts who were sent from this district have been successful in having placed in the hands of prisoners money, tobacco matches, etc. For this kind of 'service' a guard's bank account was to increase $50 weekly. These are cases taken at random, but are by no means the most serious."

MONTREAL PROTEST WAS THROWN OUT

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 22—The protest of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association with regard to a disputed touch-down in their game with Argonauts at Montreal was thrown out at the meeting of the Big Four Executive tonight upon the request of the Montreal men themselves. The latter stated that they had not made the protest with the desire of winning the game in the committee room but to call attention to the intolerable muddle in football rules which now exists. They thought it most desirable that some co-ordination between the rules of the Big Four, the Inter-Collegiate Union and the O. R. F. U. should be brought about, so that spectators, players, and, most important of all, the referees, might know what they were about. The protest having been withdrawn, therefore, long discussion followed on the rules and upon the conclusion of the meeting, President Isbester called upon the Executive of the O. R. F. U. who were in session over a protest in that association, and an informal discussion ensued on the question raised by the delegates of the M.A.A.A.

R. R. EMPLOYEES ARE NOT BARRED

From Politics Declares President Hanna—Unlike Other Civil Servants.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 22—(Canadian Press)—When shown a news despatch from Toronto to the effect that Toronto labor men objected to any regulations prohibiting employees of the Canadian National Railways from participating in politics, Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor, remarked that the matter was one which should be taken up with the management of the Canadian National Railways and not the Government.

"The Government", he said, "has nothing to do with the management of the Canadian National Railways. The Labor men should take the matter up President Hanna, who is in charge of the system."

The Minister drew attention to the fact that Geo. Palmer, Member in the Manitoba Legislature, is a train despatcher on the Canadian National System, and that Charles Hamilson, Member for East Nipissing in the Federal House, is an employee of the C. P. R. He said that civil servants were not permitted to enter into politics but that employees of the Canadian National Railway System were not civil servants, the Canadian National Railway System not being a Government Department.

In connection with the suggestion in the news despatch that Toronto labor believes there is an effort to keep labor representatives out of the House of Commons, it is interesting to note that Senator Robertson is still on the seniority list of the C. P. R. and eligible for employment by that Company.

RESIGNATION IS STILL OVERDUE

William Duff Makes Fresh Charges Against Hon. C. C. Ballantyne.

Moose Jaw, Sask., Oct. 22—Speaking here tonight, William Duff, M.P., for Lunenburg, took up the cudgels again with the Minister of Marine with reference to Mr. Ballantynes retort to the charges previously made against him in connection with his business affiliations with the sugar refineries and paint concerns.

"Mr. Ballantyne's vague insinuations will not satisfy the public," said Mr. Duff. "Perhaps he will answer some more questions which I will propound. The Minister of Marine for Canada, is the Hon. C. C. Ballantyne. Canada also possesses the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. There is, in the city of Montreal, a well-known repair engineering business known as the Hall Engineering Company. The question I want to ask Mr. Ballantyne are: first, how much stock does he own in this company, or how much of his money is invested in it. Second, why is it that practically all the repairs for ships of the Canadian Merchant Marine which enter the port of Montral are done by these people, why other responsible firms do not get a chance either tender for, or perform the work. Third, what amount of money has this company received for repairs on these ships since their launching. Fourth, what the exact relations between the President of this company and the Minister of Marine. In replying to these questions, will Mr. Ballantyne be good enough to remember that calling names is no answer, and that better than this is expected from a Minister of the Crown. Mr. Ballantyne's resignation is still overdue."

CANADIAN WOOL MARKET MOVING BUT SLOWLY

Otawa, Ont., Oct. 22—The Dominion Wool Market report for the week ending October 21 is as follows:

The wool market remains nominal Canadian wools are moving slowly. The grading of Saskatchewan, Northern Alberta and British Columbia wools have just been completed and sales have been made from these consignments, which comprise some very choice lots of wool. Prices for Canadian grades run from 18 cents to 46 cents a pound, depending on grade.

At the Sydney sales which followed the Adelaide sale, prices remained unchanged. Owing to drought the quality of the Australian offerings is not up to expectations and very little good quality wool has been offered to date. Boston prices have not reacted to Australian levels of the first two sales and good territory staple wools are held at $1.25 to $1.30, clean, the trade being firmly of the opinion that these prices will hold as a basis of price values between foreign and domestic clips.

The mills are still buying short and orders placed are for the most part to complete orders or to begin orders on spring goods. Most interest still centres on fine wools and dealers are paying particular attention to the sale of small lots in the better grades. Carpet manufacturers continue to buy suitable wools for their purpose at low prices.

WOMEN HELD AN INITIAL MEETING

Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Dobell Addressed Ladies Of Canadian Club.

A distinguished gathering of women attended the opening meeting of the Women's Canadian Club which took place yesterday afternoon in the Empire Room of the Chateau Frontenac, Mrs. Chapais, the President presided and among the gathering was included Lady Fitzpatrick and Major-General Sir Charles Dobell, the latter who addressed the Club on the same subject as his address to the Men's Canadian Club on Thursday night.

Mrs. Chapais introduced Sir Charles Dobell in English and French as an old Quebecer who had distinguished himself and his city, by his campaign in the Cameroons. Sir Charles then addressed the ladies with the aid of maps indicating the territories of his campaign.

Clearly and concisely he outlined the difficulties, geographically and otherwise, that confronted him in his task. The Cameroons were originally English, Victoria being the first town established as a mission station. The campaign did not include the conquest of Togo'and, but a young officer. Capt. Brant, acting on his own initiative and judgment, demanded the surrender from the Germans, with only a handful of men to back him and the Germans surrendered: By the middle of February, the Allied English and French troops had conquered the whole country in the face of all difficulties and on the 27th September, the troops returned home.

Sir Charles Dobell mentioned the humourous incident where an old lady reading in the Press that the Cameroon's had been captured, exclaimed. "Those poor Highlanders, how unfortunate they are". Answering the severe criticism of the United States Press on his order of deportation of women and children from the Cameroons, Sir Charles, explained clearly that his reason for doing so was that the African natives were hostile to anybody German and that he would have needed to use his limited troops to guard the women and children. Secondly the country was no place for them, when food was scarce and they were in danger of starvation. What he had done was for their own good. In conclusion he thanked the audience for their attention and expressed his pleasure in having the opportunity to address them.

Mrs. J. C. McLimont thanked the speaker in English for his interesting lecture and expressed the appreciation of the audience in having such a distinguished gentleman to address them. Mde Georges Tessier seconded the vote of thanks in French and then tea was served to the ladies present.

WAR BETWEEN HYDRO AND MACKENZIE GROUP

Over Question Of Power Supply From Electrical Development Company.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 22—War is on between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, of which Sir Adam Beck is Chairman, and the MacKenzie interests over the question of the power supply from the Electrical Development Company. For two weeks past the Hydro Commission has been making fruitless efforts to secure additional power from the Development Company and now it has appealed to the Ontario Government and to Premier Meighen direct.

The MacKenzie interests, otherwise the Electrical Development Company, is said to have refused an offer from the Hydro Commission for the purchase of the 18,000 horse power which had been supplied to the Buffalo Electric Light Company, under a contract that expired on October 20—the other being $20 a horse power for a two year contract, the price that the Hydro Commission understood was being paid by the Buffalo concern.

WILL ISSUE EXCISE STAMPS

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 22—(Canadian Press).—The Department of Customs and Inland Revenue today issued instructions that on and after November 1, 1920, the luxury taxes will be collected by means of excise tax stamps. Retail firms selling goods subject to the excise (luxury) tax, should take out a retail license at once, when they will be supplied with a perforator for the purpose of cancelling the stamps. Merchants already in possession of licenses may obtain the perforator from the Collector of Inland Revenue from whom the license was obtained.

When goods are purchased subject to the luxury tax, the merchant is required to attach to the invoice or sales slip, stamps of sufficient value to cover the tax being paid by the purchaser.

WHOLESALE RETAIL TRADE SLOWING UP

Winnipeg, Man, Oct. 22—(Canadian Press).—Summer weather is not conductive to movements in fall lines and is having a slowing effect on wholesale and retail trades. Hesitancy on the part of the farmers to part with their grain at prevailing prices is also having its bearing on retail trade, it is stated in the weekly report of the Canadian Credit-men's Trust Association.

INVITATION TO GIVE EVIDENCE

Rev. Thos. Shields Asks Where Committee Of Hundred Got Authority.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 22 — Rev. Thomas T. Shields, pastor of Jarvis Street Baptist Church, Toronto, has received an invitation from the Committee of One Hundred, to testify before the Commission of Inquiry shortly to be appointed by that body to "investigate atrocities in Ireland." The Commission is to begin its sessions at Washington early in November.

In his reply to the invitation Mr. Shields says:

"I should esteem it a great privilege to do anything which might assist toward a settlement of the Irish question, but before consenting to testify before your Commission, I venture to ask for further information.

"The Commission of Inquiry, you inform me, is to receive its commission from 'A Committee of One Hundred.' Can you tell from whom the Committee of One Hundred receives its commission?

"If the Committee of One Hundred is self-appointed who would be influenced by its findings? Could they reasonably be expected to influence opinion in Europe? When the prescriptions of the duly elected President of the United States for the settlement of a dispute, in which the United States, by an Act of its Congress, became involved, have by that same Congress been rejected, is likely Europe would attach any importance to the deliverance of a self-appointed committee in respect to a dispute with which the United States has nothing to do?"

Rev. Mr. Shields has preached for several summers recently in Spurgeons Tabernacle, London, England, and last year made a tour of Ireland. The invitation to testify before the Committee of Inquiry may have resulted from an address he recently delivered in New York on the Irish question.

GENERAL STRIKE OF WAITERS IN ST. JOHN, N.B.

St. John N.B., Oct. 22—A general strike of union employes of hotels, restaurants and clubs in St. John is said to be possible as the result of the recent discharges of waiters and other help in several places. The Executive of the Trades and Labor Council of the city tonight issued a call to consider the situation in dining rooms and restaurants and to take action towards supporting those who have been discharged. The meeting will be held early next week.

BUSINESS SKY CLEAR OF CLOUDS

Is Optimistic Opinion Of U.S. Steel Corp'n. President On Return From Europe.

New York, Oct. 22—Business prospects are unusually bright, both in the United States and abroad, Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation, declared in an address on "the situation in France and Belgium", before the American Iron and Steel Institute here today. He returned recently from an extended tour of the devastated regions of those countries.

"Although this is a time for courage, composure and caution", Mr. Gary said, "the business skies are practically without clouds. As always, there may be showers from time to time, but there is nothing in the atmosphere to indicate the approach of dangerous storms.

"If there should be a serious reaction and depression", he continued "which now seems improbable, it will be the fault of those who are connected with business operations or others who, by reason of official positions, improperly interfere and not because of any fundamental difficulties in our resources and opportunities."

Speedy recovery of industry in France and Belgium from the ravages of war, was depicted by Mr. Gary.

FATE OF THE BOARD OF COMMERCE

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 22—(Canadian Press).—Captain White, Chairman of the Board of Commerce, when questioned this afternoon in regard to a report that the members of the Board will resign as a consequence of the suspension by the Government of its sugar order, declined either to confirm or deny the report.

It is understood that the Cabinet Council today considered matters relating to the future status of the Board and an official announcement may be shortly forthcoming. Retirement of the present members of the Board would occasion no surprise at the capital.

MAN-HUNT ENDS IN RECAPTURE

Of Two Convicts Who Escaped From Sing Sing On Saturday Last.

Warner, N.H., Oct. 22—A man-hunt on the heavily wooded southern foothills of Kearsage Mountain ended today in the capture of George Stivers and Marcus Bassett, who escaped from Sing Sing Prison at Ossining, N.Y., last Saturday night. The men, tired and hungry, were surprised eating apples under a tree by the road side and surrendered without resistance. They readily admitted their identity and tonight were on their way back to the prison in custody of Warden Lewis E. Lawes and three prison keepers. They said they had been making for Canada, but that the general alarm sent out headed them off.

Stivers and Bassett talked freely after their capture. They said that their first move after escaping from the prison was to steal an automobile nearby. They drove at top speed for the State line and into Connecticut. At Derby, Conn., they held up a man in another car and stole his overcoat and that of a companion, some money and the number plate of the car, which they attached to the automobile they were driving. Always with the idea in mind of eventually reaching Canada, they drove back and forth over Connecticut roads, Saturday and Sunday, hoping to throw pursuers off the track. On Tuesday they dashed into western Massachusetts and managed to find their way to Springfield and Worcester, then turned northward again and drove to Keene, N.H. From Keene they proceeded to East Jaffrey and followed the railroad line to Concord, through Henniker and West Hopkinton. In Concord they stole another automobile and Bassett drove it off, followed by Stivers in the first car. They returned to Henniker and tried to rob a lunch room proprietor, firing one shot at him, but were frightened away by the arrival of armed neighbors. A short distance from the village they abandoned the car in which they had come into the State and proceeded in the stolen automobile obtained in Concord. On Wednesday morning their gasoline had given out, and they obtained a small quantity at Carl Jewell's garage in Warner. When this was used up, they abandoned the car and seeing men approaching, realized that they were being pursued, and took to the woods.

SUCCESSFUL EFFORTS

Residents of Sillery and Bergerville will no doubt be pleased to learn that efforts made to have the customary morning mail delivery restored to them have been eventually successful; the Chronicle receiving official notification from the Postoffice yesterday that a double daily service would be put in effect forthwith.

There is no doubt that the demands of the Street Railway for supplying the special cars by which this service had been previously maintained were prohibitive and the effort of the Postoffice Department to observe strict economy at the present juncture is most commendable. At the same time, it is possible to carry the principle of economy to unwise lengths and, as we have contended from the first, it was manifestly unjust that suburbs of this city should be placed in a position of inferiority to many remote villages in the matter of mail delivery.

It has not been easy to see why means could not have been found of giving satisfactory service at a reasonable cost but we realize that it is always much easier to find fault than to supply a remedy and the material point is that the Postoffice has consented to comply with the legitimate appeals of the considerable number of persons inconvenienced by receiving only one afternoon mail delivery each day.

Sillery and Bergerville are indebted to no small extent in this connection to Lt. Col. Hector Verret, Deputy Postmaster General, who, as an old Quebecer, was familiar with local conditions and, as soon as the grievance was brought to his personal attention, spared no efforts to have the morning delivery again put in effect, if it was at all possible to do so. Certainly the promptness with which action has followed his investigations must be taken as conclusive evidence of his energy and good will.

How it became about that decision was made to restrict the service we are unaware and it seems possible that if proper representations could have been made to the Department at the time, an unfortunate situation might have been avoided. However, all is well that ends well, and the responsiveness of the authorities should do much to atone for any temporary hardship that has been sustained.

DR. GRENFELL'S POPULARITY

The campaign to ensure the perpetuation of the work of the Labrador Medical Mission has been launched at London, Ontario, with a meeting of the combined Rotary, Canadian clubs and Chamber of Commerce. So many members put in an appearance that the room was able to accommodate only part of the guests, and a most splendid welcome was extended to Dr. Grenfell and Dr. Paddon. The Chairman challenged the meeting with a thousand dollar gift, while another member offered to add one-fourth to all the money collected in London.

The ladies' reception held at the Kennels Club was also so largely attended that only a portion of those present could get into the auditorium, and proved one of the most successful gatherings ever held there. At the mass meeting in the evening nearly as many were turned away as were able to find room in the hall: and a most unusual response was made to the appeal for endowment in that over one fourth of the number of those present signed the pledge cards.

Such a splendid start enormously encouraged the two doctors who are taking a personal part in the drives being conducted by the various Canadian cities and they express themselves as being confident that Canada will do for the Northern fishermen all that those most vitally interested in the future welfare of Labrador and Northern Newfoundland have asked its citizens to undertake.

The Hamilton campaign has been no less successful for the first meeting held at the Royal Connaught hotel was just as enthusiastic as those at London and the Hamilton committee declared that the Ambitions City, which boasts of never having failed in a philanthropic or patriotic enterprise, did not propose to begin with so good a friend as Dr. Grenfell.

In a few days Dr. Grenfell will reach Quebec and the question arises as to what this city is prepared to do to perpetuate the most worthy cause to which he has dedicated his life. We are aware of all the calls made upon local generosity and the frequency with which public appeals for financial assistance recur. They are all deserving of support, or they would not reach the status of national movements, and should receive it, but the friends of Labrador have a right to ask that they shall not be ignored in their request for a permanent endowment fund.

THE REAL EUGENIE

The London Times has just published a series of biographical articles on the life of the late Empress Eugenie. It is said to be composed of extracts from a book now in course of preparation by Miss Isabel Vesey, who was an intimate friend of the former Empress during the last twenty years and was much in her company both at Farnborough, England, and during her travels. The articles, which are undoubtedly authoritative, are of greatest human interest in that they convey an impression of character that by no means coincides with the popular conception of this tragic figure.

An old lady as years count, the Empress Eugenie had none of the infirmities usually associated with old age. She still possessed beautiful features and the upright carriage of a woman half her years, the same extraordinary vitality and force of character and the keen intellect which was the chief thing about her to impress those that saw her and talked with her for the first time. She was always very simply dressed in a plain black coat and skirt, and on her white hair a shady black hat, such as most old ladies wear about their garden. No ornaments, with the exception of about five or six plain gold and silver rings, were ever worn by the Empress. She always carried her stick, although it was only in later years that she became really dependent upon it.

Miss Vesey says she has often seen it written that after the death of the Prince Imperial, the Empress spent the remainder of her days in sad and melancholy seclusion, dwelling always on the tragedies and sorrows of her past life; but that nothing was farther from the truth. It is certain that the shadow of her great sorrow was always with her, but she kept it hidden in her own heart and did not allow her grief to affect those around her. The Empress still enjoyed her life in the way she lived, still took the keenest interest in all the news of the hour, and was very much alive to all the events and happenings in the outside world, especially to all political and social questions. She had the true gift of conversation and a marvellous memory even to the last, so that to listen to her was always to hear something of interest and often very amusing, for she had a great sense of humour and was an excellent raconteuse.

The Empress loved air, movement, and all outdoor exercise, and for many years after Miss Vesey first knew her her powers of walking were marvellous, and she could spend hours standing about and walking without showing any sign of fatigue, occasionally putting to shame younger members of the party. Her wheel chair she would never make use of if she could possibly help it, and she has been seen at the age of 91 pushing a wheel chair with one of her hospital patients in it and calling attention to the fact that she still had some energy left. The fact is, the Empress refused to grow old and was determined that so long as old age could be kept at bay it should not overtake her.

The Empress's greatest love was for literature. She was always surrounded by her books and papers when alone, and spent a good many hours of her day in reading. Being read to she could not bear; and when in later years cataract threatened her eyesight it was a terrible grief to feel that she would have to depend on others. The Empress was always extremely independent and would seldom let others perform little acts of service, such as fetching her cushion, carrying her cloak or books for her. She always insisted upon doing such things herself; and if necessity forced her to allow any one to wait on her in any way, she would always apologize for all the trouble she was giving.

Building was also a great hobby, and the Empress made many additions to Farnborough Hill, herself drawing out and designing plans, often solving the problem of where to put in a widow or how to enlarge a room better than the architect himself.

The Socialistic tendencies of the day gave her much food for talk and argument. She was very open minded and just in her opinions and politics, a suffragist, and a firm believer in woman's rights. The Empress it was who persuaded the Emperor to bestow the Legion of Honour upon Rosa Bonheur, the first woman recipient of that decoration. She was opposed to any sort of violence and could not understand the wish to pull down and destroy, which, she said, was the great weakness of the French character. "They have the great passion for destruction, and, like children, when angry they must break up something. Nothing is sacred to a French mob, and, like children, they are turned from their purpose in a moment by some little incident or word that touches their sense of humour." The English character she admired immensely. "You have so much commonsense, so much self-control. I do not think, if a revolution comes in England, you will lose your heads and destroy with senseless rage as happens in other countries."

It is to be deplored in the interests of Quebec harbor that two steamers should have grounded in its immediate vicinity upon the same day, more particularly as it has always been a justifiable local contention that the season of navigation could be extended by several months and even that winter navigation up the river to this port is a practical question. The Chronicle does not desire to anticipate the finding of the inquiry that will be held but it seems right to point out that neither fog nor snow should offer any serious obstacle to safe passage of the river provided that vessels anchor until such time as the weather lifts sufficiently to enable them to see their course, instead of attempting to forge ahead blind-folded.

Fog is liable to develop at any season of the year and there is probably no river in the world that can be navigated without risk if it is of any density. It has also been suggested to us that river pilots are so much in the habit of steering their courses by the aid of objects on shore as to become out of practise in steering by compass when such objects are not visible. How this may be, we do not pretend to know but, if it is all generally the case, there can be no question of the importance of pilots being no less skilled with the compass than with natural objects, which are of course sufficient guidance in ordinary weather conditions.

Complaints are being made of difficulty in finding addresses in the city, particular in the St. Roch's district, on account of the fact that street numbers are either missing, inconspicuous or at variance with the City Directory. Such a condition means inconvenience and loss of time for very many people and the city ought to see that it is rectified without loss of time. A uniform type of numeral ought to be selected and pains taken to see that street numbers are placed on every building, store or dwelling in as conspicuous and uniform a place as possible.

THE PREMIER GOES WEST

(Ottawa Journal)

With that militancy for his cause which is among his most precious assets, Mr. Meighen is preparing to carry the fiscal war into Africa. He is going West. Having rolled up the right, or eastern wing, of the Free Trade forces, he has now set himself the more formidable task of attacking the left, or western wing, heavily entrenched on the Prairies. It is a decision which stamps the Prime Minister as a leader of courage, and one which shines all the more brightly in contrast with the weather-vane revolutions of Mr. Mackenzie-King, seeking to make his policies conform with the tenor and temper of conflicting constituencies and interests in the hope of attracting votes. For Mr. Meighen is not going West with weasel words about Free Trade. The antithesis of the facing-both-ways school of politics, he is going to advocate policies in Alberta that he advocates in Ontario, to preach in Saskatchewan what he but recently preached in Quebec. In all provinces, among all classes, to farmers as to manufacturers, he will stand for a moderate tariff.

NAVY LEAGUE GRANTS

Quebec, Oct. 22, 1920

Editor, Quebec Chronicle,

Dear Sir,

As there seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to local grants made by the Navy League of Canada thus far, we think it well to state officially that endowments of $10,000 each have been given to the Quebec Seamen's Institute and to the Quebec Catholic Sailors' Club, in line with the League' announced policy of upholding every Sailor's Home, Institute and Welfare Society in the Dominion.

During the war the League granted in all over $700,000 to various relief organizations and Sailors' Institutes. Other grants made, which have already been referred to editorially by the Chronicle are as follows:

Halifax Sailors' Home	$275,000
St. John Sailors' Home	5,000
St. John Seamen's Missionary Institute Endowment	50,000
Sydney Navy League Home	25,000
Prince Edward Island	25,000
Montreal Catholic Sailors' Club	80,000
Montreal Sailors' Institute	100,000
Montreal Recreation Rooms for Naval Ratings	2,500
Port Arthur Royal Arthur Institute	17,000
Vancouver Navy League Home	65,000
Victoria, B.C., Sailors' Institute	8,000
Dr. Grenfell's Mission, Labrador and Newfoundland	5,000

From the foregoing figures we believe it can be quite plainly seen that the League, in the past, has supported every Canadian undertaking for the sailor's welfare to the extent of its resources without any partiality or discrimination. What it has already done is an earnest for its future performance. Thanking you for the courtesy of your columns, we are,

Yours sincerely,
The Campaign Sub-Committee,
Quebec Branch, Navy League of Canada.

MANY GUNMEN BID TOPEKA FAREWELL

Famous "Home of Crooks" to be Closed to Them and Their Kind Now

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 22—Topeko Joe St. Louis Jim, the Buffalo Wop, and scores of other well known gunmen shook hands tonight with their gals and other companions preparatory to their flight to destinations that will be decided by fortune or some other agent for Toledo no longer will afford a shelter to Topeka and his like, as the order went out today that the "crooks must go."

Two hundred police officers were called before Geo. P. Greenhaigh, newly appointed safety director, this morning and ordered to clean the safe blowers, post office and bank robbers out of the city, Greenhaigh, a colonel in the world war, said to his hirelings: "I don't care whether the lawbreakers be your friend or my friend, whether he is worth a million or a penny, get him."

Toledo has been justly known as "The home of the crooks," for the last twenty years, in fact ever since the days when Brand Whitlock was mayor. The statement has been denied, but during the last week or so there has been a thorough investigation by the new safety director which not only showed that crooks had a haven here, but also were promised protection by heads of the police department. Every one of the 200 patrolmen took a new oath to go out and do his duty.

WORK YOUR OWN GOLD MINE

Eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, and eight hours for—what?

One-third of each day, one-third of life, is at the disposal of every one, with a reasonable freedom of choice as to what shall be done with it.

How few of us realize that here is a gold mine in our possession ready to be worked.

Of course wisdom requires that a certain part of this third eight hours of the 24 be given to recreation, and a considerable part of it is naturally devoted to home affairs and the family circle. But even then there will be an appreciable amount of time to be made special use of, if one watched out for it and doesn't let it slip by unimproved.

Suppose there is a minimum of an hour each day thus available. What should be done with? How can it be turned to advantage? How can this hour be made 60 golden minutes.

The answer is largely an individual one depending upon many circumstances. Thought, however, can be profitably given to the problem and the time should be used in a definite way which will broaden our vision and extend our knowledge, thus increasing our value and power as members of the human family.

"Does your flat seem any more roomy than it used to?"

"Well, a little, now the varnish is beginning to get scraped off the furniture."

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

How the League Issue Is Splitting the Parties

The desertion of the Harding camp by a former Republican National Committeeman and a number of other prominent pro-League Republicans after Senator Harding's uncompromising rejection of the League of Nations in its present form in his Des Moines speech, convinces many observers that the League has taken its place at the eleventh hour as a clear-cut issue of the Presidential campaign. But if the League issue is now rending the Republican ranks, it is also a matter of common newspaper remark that earlier in the campaign it won over to the Harding banner many Irish-American and German American voters who supported Wilson in 1916. And it will be remembered that it was on this issue that the Hearst papers abandoned their traditional Democratic allegiance.

In the Democratic camp Senator Harding's Des Moines speech was greeted with every appearance of rejoicing. The New York Times (Dem.) declares that "the election of Cox means a League of Nations acceptable to President Wilson, and Republican success apparently precludes American participation in the League," but, affirms the Baltimore American (Rep.), all that Senator Harding has done in this matter has been to "turn his back upon the Wilson League and turn his face toward the Constitution and toward the Senate," and the New York Globe (Rep.) is "convinced that Senator Harding will be compelled to move for the ratification of the Treaty of Versailles."

A most interesting and instructive analysis and digest of public opinion on the League of Nations issue will be found in the leading article of THE LITERARY DIGEST for October 23d. Other striking news-features in this number are:—

INTERESTING BOOK FROM SING SING

Was Written By Chaplin, for Twenty Years a New York Editor

"Charles E. Chapin's Story," written in Sing Sing Prison, and published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, is interesting both for the subject matter and because of the circumstances of authorship. It is by no means the first time that a book has been written in prison, for from the time of Dante to that of Oscar Wilde, authors have found the atmosphere of the dungeon favorable to literaryc omposition, but we do not recall another book having any claim to importance being written by a man serving a life sentence for murder. The crime for which Charles E. Chapin is undergoing imprisonment occurred while the war was on, and attracted no attention outside of New York, where he had an eminent prosition among American newspapermen, most of whom were familiar with the murderer. The author devotes a chapter or more to the events leading up to the crime, and with acommendable lack of whining. He was apparently driven temporarily out of his mind by financial losses and ill-health, and killed his wife, whom he tenderly loved, so that she might not come to penury. He intended to commit suicide, but apparently his confused mind prevented him from carrying out his plan.

A Shocking Headline.

For twenty years Charles Chapin was city editor of the New York Evening World, a fact which sufficiently testifies to his ability as a newspaperman. Previously he had worked in St. Louis and in Chicago, and was known as a star reporter. He began as a route boy, supplemented his earnings by acting as a telegraph messenger, eventually learned telegraphing and shorthand, and after a brilliant career in Chicago went to the Pittsers, for whom he records the highest admiration. Hen entered the Chicago times office to apply to its famous editor, Wilbur F. Storey, for a position on the very day the paper had shocked its readers by putting over the story of a hanging the words, "Jerked to Jesus," an incident famous in newspaper offices. The man who wrote this heading told Chapin later that he was more ashamed of it than of anything else he had ever done.

"The Public Be Damned."

There is an interesting story of the origin of the expression, "The public be damned." It appears that William H Vanderbilt went to Chicago for the purpose of negotiating for a railroad line that had been built for the express purpose of being sold to him. The enterprising reporter who had been sent to see him came back late at night and said that Vanderbilt refused to be interviewed. Just before the paper went to press the reporter was telling the others in the room how when he had urged Vanderbilt to give an interview as a "matter of great public interest," the magnate had exclaimed "The public be damned," and "the old devil actually pushed me out of the car and slammed the door in my face," he concluded. The night editor overheard the casual remark, realized how it might be worked into an item of national interest and spread the story on the front pagt of the paper next day.

Dunne and Cobb.

Peter Finley Dunne, author of "Mr. Dooley," worked for Chapin on the Chicago imes, and when he ewnt to New York it was he who employed Irving Cobb. Cobb, he declares, was one of the finest reporters in the country, but in the opinion of Mr. Chapin he makes a mistake in considering himself a humorist, a view in which many will coincide. Nevertheless he gives a good specimen of Cobb's wit. The editor was ill and somebody informed Cobb, who replied, "Let us hope it is nothing trivial." a retort not unworthy of Mark Twain. He relates another incident of Attorney-General Miller, in Harrison's Cabinet. Returning home after a long interval of years, in which he had won national prominence, he met a stage driver who remembered him in the old days, and who admitted that he was aware of miller's position.

"Folk here generally know about it?" he inquired.

"Yep," was the reply.

"What do they say?"

"They jes laugh."

A Professional Weakness.

There are accounts that will be interesting to the general public of the covering of important news stories by metropolitan newspapers, and the ingenuity that a reporter will display in getting information and at the same time keeping it from his rivals. Mr. Chapin, like every other newspaperman who has written about his profession denounces his fellow-craftsmen who refer to themselves as "journalists". We never could see much point in the distinction, though it is one that never fails to arouse the deepest wrath and bitterest scorn of newspoper reporters.

AMERICAN AUTOS SOLD IN ENGLAND

Evidences at Detroit of Increasing Deliveries in Great Britain

Detroit, Oct. 21.—While the increasing export of American-made motor cars to the British market may not be considered by British manufacturers as a serious invasion of their industry, there are outward and visible signs in Detroit that this business is developing along encouraging lines. Truck loads of motor cars, cased, labeled and placarded for shipment, may be seen daily passing along the streets when on the initial stage of their trip to the Old Country. Cadillacs, Packards, Hudsons, Dodges and other well known standard makes are among these consignments.

The increasing demand from this source is said to indicate a far more general use of motor cars in the British Isles, and the fact also, that, in this particular at least, American manufacturers are participating in distribution of British war fortunes. It means a more diversified class of pleasure car users.

Price reductions announced by American car manufacturers have not caused even a flutter among British manufacturers. On the other hand recent cables intimate that prices on British, French and Italian cars have been advanced recently. This may result in the American wedge being driven in a little further, although it is pointed out on the other hand that there will always be a world-wide demand from a certain class for the high standard British made cars.

MALT, RAISINS AND YEAST—"OH, BOY!"

It may be injudicious to give this story out, for we should hate to put anybody in wrong with Mr. Shevlin; nevertheless—

There's a youngster plays as an extra in "Edgar Camps Out" whose father has been conducting a series of experiments in which malt, raisins, yeast, etc., have played a considerable part and in which everyone has expressed unusual interest. Director E. Mason Hopper, having remarked to the child one day that it was mighty good beer his father made, was informed that he made champagne that was lots better.

"What does he call it?" Mr Hopper wanted to know.

"Well, he calls it 'I should worry' when he first mixes it, and after it's eight days old he calls it 'Oh, boy!'"

"Papa going to be home tonight?" inquired Mr. Hopper casually.

WHEN WILL NEW DRY DOCK OPEN?

Still In Contractors' Hands —Damaged Steamers Can Get No Accomodation.

Mr. Campbell, Canadian Agent for the Elderdempster Steamship Line; Mr. J. J. McCaffery, Superintendent of the Canada Line, and other steamship men were in conference last evening with Mr. George D. Davie General Manager of the Davie Shipbuilding in regard to securing the dry dock at Levis, for effecting repairs to the Elderdempster Line steamer that went ashore at Bellechase, and the French Transatlantique Co. Steamer that went ashore at Sillery. It was made known by Mr. Davie that the old dry dock was occupied by the Government steamer Aranmore, undergoing repairs, and a Government dredge, but, while the new dry dock was empty, it could not be secured as it was still in the hands of the contractors who built it, since the Government had not accepted the work as complete. It was stated that the new dock was in a position to receive vessels, but had of late been closed in order that the contractors might be enabled to complete work demanded by the resident Government Engineer, before he would recommend its acceptance In the meantime, Mr. Campbell, agent for the Elderdempster Line, expressed his indignation that the dock, which has been in course of construction for the past ten years, was not available for damaged ships. He stated that he was in a quandry what to do, as the Steamer Chama high on the rocks at Bellechasse with her bottom all torn out, might not be able to proceed to Montreal to enter the Vickers dry dock. He said it was beyond his comprehension that two steamers, which had met with an accident almost in the harbor of Quebec, were unable to obtain dry dock accommodation, though one of the largest docks in the world was here, owing to its being closed to shipping. He called up Montreal and Ottawa over the long distance telephone and will use every effort to get his Company's steamer into the dock. The Canada Steamship Lines Ltd., operating the French Steamer Georgia, are in the same position.

Mr. A. R. Decary, Supt. Engineer for the Public Works Department, was called up by telephone at his residence last night, when it was learned that he was absent at Ottawa, and not expected to return to Quebec until tonight.

THE MIRACLE MAN AND HIS WORK

Says He Has Had No Handicaps In His Fight For Lower Prices Wherever There Was A Semi-Ready Store.

"I have been engaged in Canada for over a month, travelling hither and thither, and working day and night to increase efficiency and bring about economy," said the "Miracle Man", who is now working in conjunction with both Semi-ready stores in Quebec.

"The coal strike in England is a serious matter, and if prolonged, will produce a cloth famine. An industrial war between Labour and Capital will be even more provocative of high prices than a destructive and blood thirsty war. A cessation of labour in the great woolen centre of Yorkshire, where the Semi-ready Company have their own warehouses and mills, will cause a shortage of finer wool fabrics all over the world.

"That is why I am insistent that wise buyers should buy now—right when I have brought about such favourable conditions.

"Back to prewar prices for a fortnight in bonanza, but if the coal strike lasts a fortnight 5,000,000 toilers in England will be thrown out of work, and all production will fall off.

"Little did we think in 1914 that a little lead bullet in Austria would send the prices of clothes skyhigh in Canada. A big strike in England, if prolonged, will be even more disastrous in forcing prices upward,' concluded the Mircale Man.

JUDGMENT IN COVE FIELDS ASSAULT CASE

Hon. Judge A. Lachance, presiding over the Court of Sessions yesterday morning, rendered judgment in the case of Patrick Ryan, accused of assault on the Cove Fields on the 24th of August last. The judgment was quite lengthy, Judge Lachance going over all the evidence that had been adduced at the trial, and the prisoner was sentenced to three months imprisonment. The two months he had already been under confinement were included, which gives the accused another month's incarceration in the Quebec gaol.

ATTACK OLD LADY NEAR KENT GATE

Woman On Way To Church Was Assailed By Two Men Yesterday.

A woman between 50 and 60 ears of age on her way to Mass at the Jesuit's Church, was the object of a brutal attack shortly before six o'clock yesterday morning near Kent Gate.

The woman in question is employed as maid in a private family, and as she was on her way to church at 5.50 a.m. Friday she was molested by two men who tore her clothing. Fortunately the struggles of the woman and her cries for help attracted the attention of men passing on St. John street, who hastened to her assistance and her cowardly assailants fled.

BOUFFARD CASE NEARING THE END

Judge's Charge Only Thing Remaining Before Verdict Is Returned Today.

The case of the King vs. Cecile Bouffard will come to a close this morning, the only thing remaining before the jury return their verdict being the charge by Chief Justice Pelletier.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the Court of King's Bench (Criminal Side) the remainder of the witnesses were heard, and afterwards Mr. Corriveau made an eloquent plea for the accused woman, being followed by Mr. L. Cannon for the Crown. The court then adjourned until this morning, when Chief Justice Lemieux will deliver his charge following which the jury will retire to deliberate, and then return their verdict.

t yesterday mornin's sitting, a most gruesome find was produced as evidence in the case, when the tiny skull-bones of a babe were registered as an 'exhibit', as it is legally known.

When the fragile bones were passed round to the twelve members of the jury for examination, it was noticed that as they took the bones into their hands, the latter members trembled violently.

The production of this 'find' was the sequel to a tale of callous indifference to human life and the lack of feeling on the part of the young girl, as told by detective Couture, who was the principal witness yesterday morning, and who told how the accused girl had told him that on May 12 last she had given birth to a child, and immediately afterwards had wrapped the little atom of humanity in a piece of cotton, and carried it outside the house, dropping it between a shed and another smaller building.

The accused woman had then reentered her home and gone to bed, said the detective, returning four days later to the spot where she had placed the new born babe to see if it had been removed. Some animals had torn away the cotton covering, and she had not bothered about it any further.

Detective Couture then told of his search among the heap of refuse that had been piled between the buildings, and of his final discovery of the tiny skull bones.

The girl in the case is only 17 years of age, but looks older and is very well developed. She does not, however, appear to be very bright, and her answers to questions put to her indicate either lack of ordinary intelligence or realization of her moral responsibilities.

Y.W.C.A.'S SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING

Interesting Informal Address Delivered By Miss Saxe, Westmount Librarian.

The semi-annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association took place in the club room at the Y.W.C.A. on Friday afternoon. The meeting took the form of an "At Home" when a musical programme was rendered and an informal address was given by Miss Saxe, the Librarian of the Westmount Library. Mrs. Darlington presided and there were about seventy members present.

Mrs. Darlington introduced Miss Saxe and mentioned how they had looked forward to hearing her speak last Spring and, though they had been unable to have the opportunity then, they had only looked forward with great pleasure to hearing her now. Mrs. F. H. Wentworth extended the vote of thanks to Miss Saxe at the conclusion of her interesting and delightful lecture, in a few well chosen words. Refreshments were served by the younger girls, and the singing of the National Anthem closed the afternoon.

Miss Saxe, as librarian of the Westmount Library, takes a great interest in her work and with the enthusiasm she possesses for her subject, she was able to present her views in a delightful and sympathetic manner. The two distinct functions of the mind, in regard to literature, Miss Saxe affirmed, are the creative function and the appreciative function: the first belongs to the Author, the second to the Public. It is interesting to note, in respect to the first function, that Dicken's characters are as realistic today as they were eighty years ago. In regard to the classification of books, few understand that it is an art of its own. There are books dealing with history, church education, biography, travel, politics, law, useful arts and numerous other subjects—not to mention juvenile books.

The importance of a juvenile library was not realised until the American Library Association met and discussed the subject at McGill University in 1900. Children, as a rule, have very vivid imaginations and "as the twig is bent, so the branch grows." The library is one of the great factors in the building up of the morals of the future race. The great libraries in New York, for instance, where all sorts of types and nationalities congregate, are justly called the People's University.

Continuing, Miss Saxe classified the readers in three types: the sieve reader—who read everything and retained little of what was read; the duck-back reader—who read everything and anything and retained nothing from his reading; and the sponge reader—who absorbed every bit of his reading Speaking of the great influence that books exerted on the minds and imaginations of youthful readers, the lecturer mentioned that Sir Conan Doyle affirms that his Sherlock Holmes was the result of reading the vivid, fascinating mystery tales of Edgar Allan Poe, when he was young. A gruesome yet amusing tale of a certain Captain Murderer who ate up his brides in a meat pie, as told to Charles Dickens by his nurse when he was just a lad of six years, exerted an unforeseen influence on his writings when he was a man. This was the reason that the librarian had to be careful in the selection of books for a juvenile library.

Books by L. T. Meade and Horatio Alger and other such writers, whose works were either mediocre or plainly exerted a bad influence, should not be allowed to the young, no matter how great their popularity with certain classes of readers. Stephen Leacock in an article entitled "What I Read as a Child," Twain and Jules Verne, as being the authors who afforded him the greatest enjoyment and the least mental effort.

In concluding, Miss Saxe emphasized once more the importance of the librarian entering into the spirit of her work for children and also the importance of respecting the views and tastes of the different frequenters of the library, ending with the apt Welsh proverb: "In the mists of the morning, I saw in the distance a huge monster, as I approached I perceived it was a man, as I drew nearer still, I saw it was my brother!"

Mrs. Darlington seconded Mrs Wentworth's vote of thanks and mentioned that they were holding Saturday mornings in the club rooms, where the youngsters were told stories for half an hour by Miss T. Dale and that their Juvenile Library was being added to and they hoped to have as many young readers as they possibly could.

FIVE FAMILIES ARE HOMELESS

Owing To A Fire At Sillery —Losses Amount To $12,000.

Five families are homeless owing to a conflagaration which broke out about five o'clock yesterday evening in the parish of Sillery and completely destroyed six houses and caused serious damage to another.

The fire occurred at Union Cove, situated at the lower end of Gradden's Hil, about a mile from Sillery parish, and started in Mr. A. Cadorets house, the cause of which could not be ascertained owing to stiff wind that was blowing at the time it quickly spread to the adjoining houses which, with one exception were completely razed to the ground.

Immediately the alarm was given the Sillery fire brigade was summoned and the force in charge of Mr. Wm. Cleary, with their chemical rushed to the spot and set to work to subdue the flames which by this time had got a strong hold on the dwellings. The brigade worked hard to save the houses, but the fire, fanned as it was by a strong wind, burnt fiercely and a hard task confronted the fie fighters. They succeeded, however, in confining the conflagaration to its immediate vicinity, but not before six dwellings had been entirely consumed and another one severely damaged. A call was sent to Quebec for assistance and a detachment of the City Fire Brigade with an engine was sent out, but on their arrival the fire was almost over. The city firemen, however, assisted in extinguishing the burning ruins and by eight o'clock the conflagaration was all over.

The total damage amounts to between $10,000 and $12,000, but how much of this was insured could not be learned last evening.

There was fortunately no loss of life or injury to person through the fire.

Those who lost their homes were: Arthur Cadoret, Charles Bordeleau, Francis Myrand, Edouard Frechette, Mrs. Leon Giroux. An unoccupied house owned by Mr. Julien was also burnt out, while considerable damage was done to a house owned and occupied by Mr. Ferdinand Jolin.

The owners who have suffered loss by the fire are Auguste Dore. $1,950; Charles Bordeleau $1,500; Mrs. Leon Giroux, $1,000, Mr. Julien, $700.; Mr. Falardeau $1,200 and Mr. Ferdinand Jolin, the damage to the latters house amounting to about $1,000. These losses, together with those occasioned through the destruction of household effects brings the total to about $12,000.

It was feared that the remaining nine houses situated on the hill would also be consumed, but these were fortunately saved

Much sympathy is felt throughout the parish for the unfortunate sufferers, who are being temporarily cared for by their neighbors.

REFUND ON BRITISH EXPORTS

Montreal, Que., Oct. 22—W. S. Weldon, Collector of Customs here, said today that until the British exporters start making out their invoices so as to recognize that their paper money is not worth the same as the pound sterling, as is being done in other countries, duty will be payable on the par value of $4.86 instead of the exchange value of $3.86.

He advised Canadian importers not to leave their shipments in bond, as was being done, but to pay the full duty and obtain refund from the British exporters.

SPORTING NEWS

ROYAL RIFLES' SMOKER TONIGHT

First Of Season Will Be Held At Drill Hall — Attractive Program.

Tonight's smoker at the Drill Hall, under the auspices of the Royal Rifles of Canada, promises to attract a capacity crowd. It will be the first of the season, and the powers that be who organized the affair selected a swell card of bouts for the event.

Allie Lynch and Joe Morrissey should furnish some scrap in the first mill of the evening, while Connors and Ryan will mix it up in the second affair of honor. The third bout on the card will see Guay and Despatis try to kill one another for a few rounds.

In addition to the three boxing bouts, there will be a wrestling match between Battling Lanteigne and Harris, which should do its share towards adding not a little to the evening's fun.

As there is no admission to the affair, and as local fight fans have been over a month without witnessing any scraps, there should be an overflow crowd to see the bouts, in which all the participants are Quebecers.

An excellent programme has been prepared, which contains a diversity of numbers. Everything that can be thought of is in the programme one might say, and Harry's Jazz Band to supply the music in addition to the regular regimental band, there should not be a dull moment from the time the first pair of men step into the ring until the last item on the bill is finished.

Sporting Notes.

The finals in the Croquet Tournament, concluded this week show that Mrs. A. D. Scott won the handsome cup presented by Mrs. H. C. Foy in the Singles, while Mrs. A. D. Scott and Miss M. A. Boswell were successful in capturing the Doubles championship.

Chalk up another record to the credit of Babe Ruth. According to statistics compiled by Ernest J. Lanigan, who delves deeply into the dope each year for performances not covered in the usual list of records. Ruth drew a grand total of 150 passes during the 1920 campaign, or 32 more than any other American League player ever drew in a single season. Ruth was hit three times during the year, making a total of 153 trips to first base without hitting. The great number of complimentaries unquestionably prevented Babe from setting up an American League record for runs batted. He sent 136 over the plate during the year, only eight below the record mark of 144 set up by Ty Cobb in 1911. Ruth drew one or more passes in each of 101 games. He walked four times in two different games, got three passes in eleven contests, and in twenty-four games he was twice favored.

CLAIM HAL CHASE WAS REAL 'FIXER'

Three True Bills Returned In Baseball Scandal Probe Yesterday.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22—The Cook County Grand Jury investigating the baseball scandal today voted true bills against Hal Chase, former major league player, expelled for alleged gambling, Abe Attell, former featherweight boxing champion, who is now in Montreal, and Bill Burns, ex-big league pitcher.

The jury also again voted indictments against the eight Chicago American League Club players accused of throwing games in the 1919 world's series.

This was done to overcome legal technicalities believed to have been violated in voting the indictments previously. Announcement of the jury's action was made by the State Attorney's Office.

The names of Chase, Burns and Attell have been frequently mentioned in connection with the investigation. Attell and Burns were said to have been mentioned by witnesses as some of the "fixers" of the series. An official of the State Attorney's Office said that the indictments were voted after testimony had been given to the jury that Chase was the "real fixer" of the 1919 world's series. Chase was said to have approached Attell asking him if he could place $100,000 in bets and also if he could raise money for the scheme. Attell is then said to have appointed a New York gambler whose name has been given the jury, the official said.

The name of "Sport" Sullivan, of Boston, also was mentioned by witnesses who told of Chase's activities in connection with the series "fixing", the State official said. Sullivan was appointed by Chase and his clique for financial support, he said, Claude Williams, White Sox pitcher, in his confession of accepting a bribe to throw games, said he and other White Sox players were appointed by men named Sullivan and Brown and the jury voted indictments against these men although it could not identify them further.

ALL SKIPPERS WANT TO SAIL

Difficult Time To Select Crew Of Halifax Schooner For Cup Races.

Halifax, Oct. 22—All the skippers in Lunenburg are anxious to sail on the Delawana, of that port, when she meets the Gloucester schooner Esperanto off Halifax harbor in a series of races commencing Oct. 30, for the speed supremacy of the two fishing fleets. As there are more than one hundred skippers in Lunenburg, the owner and captain of the Delawana had a difficult task in selecting the crew and are not yet ready to announce their choice. The Delawana will go on the marine railway at Lunenburg to-morrow for cleaning and painting. The vessel's underbody will be sand-papered and then given a coat of green copper paint. Gloucester reports that the Esperanto will be ballasted with pig iron but the Delawana will adhere to the old fashioned rock ballast used in fishing fleets.

Acknowledges Telegram.

Boston, Oct. 22—Premier G. H. Murray, of Nova Scotia today acknowledged the telegram yesterday of Acting Governor Channing, H. Cox, endorsing the international fishermen's race to be held off Halifax, next week. The premier reciprocated the wish that the contest would prove another link of friendship between Nova Scotia and Massachusetts.

The Esperanto, which will represent the fishing schooners of Gloucester is being rapidly put into shape for a test run around Massachusetts Bay Sunday.

..OPPOSE ATTEMPT TO INCLUDE INTL. CLUBS

New York, Oct. 22 — President David L. Fultz, of the International League, announced today that any attempt to include cities of the International Circuit in the proposed twelve club amalgamation of the National and American Leagues would be opposed by his organization.

President Fultz's statement was evoked by printed interviews with Major League club-owners, intimating that clubs in cities such as Baltimore and Toronto would be available to complete a twelve club-league composed of the present eight National League teams and the New York, Chicago and Boston clubs of the American League.

MADE GOOD ON INITIAL SHOWING

Jack Sheehan, Veteran Referee, Has Wholsome Respect For Carpentier.

By Jack Sheehan.

Boston, Oct. 22—Georges Carpentier, the French champion, made good on his first appearance under fire in America.

His quick defeat of Battling Levinsky establishes his claim to the right to offer to contest with Jack Dempsey for the world's supremacy.

Carpentier has done all that was claimed for him when he put the Battler to the mat by the sure route that left no "whys" or "becauses" to be mulled over after the contest was finished.

Never a Chance.

There was no angle of the contest that the Battler had a living chance for the reason that the French champion was all over him like a cooper around a barrel, and slugged, jabbed and sliced the American to a fare-thee-well. He was the master throughout and never during the contest did he leave anything to chance.

He well knew that he was under the keenest observation from the American critics, and all of his ring work would be subjected to the closest scrutiny by those at the ringside, and the comparisons that they would make would have a great bearing on his proposed contest with the world's champion.

The French champion was fleet of foot and showed to a greater advantage than ever before for the reason that it was expected that the Battler would, if he found the going rather rough, smother up and permit the Frenchman to whale away at his arms and neck and depend upon his covering to save him from any great amount of punishment.

Too Quick For Bat.

This he tried to do, but Carpentier was not to be denied, and took a cool and calm survey of his adversary, and then with the skill of an expert rifleman placed his hits at a point of vantage that spelled defeat for the American.

The Frenchman showed that he had everything that a pugilist of the first class should have, and he uncorked a brand of footwork that was a revelation to those who had never seen the Frenchman in action. He was clearly the master and boxed with great precision and care, snapping his punches with a power that was hard and destructive. He is a thorough-paced ringster and has a better knuowledge of the value of a punch than the average heavyweight.

Carpentier while under fire does not work on the plan of blow for blow. He is not anxious to stand and make a gruelling battle to satisfy the gore lovers. He worked more on the plan of an engineer who had a problem to solve, and did not permit the problem to fall over and crush him before he got his supports all placed and steady to take the weight off. Carpentier's left hand is a gem and he handles it with rare skill and accuracy that has a deadening effect on an opponent who seeks to make a rough house battle of it.

Freights a Kick.

His right hand has been written and spoked of as a peach, and that any time that it lands on an opponent that gentleman has a reason to sit down and listen to the numerals being tolled off. His body is that of an Apollo, his arms and shoulders showing a well developed upper structure, which he controls with the greatest of ease and finish.

Carpentier is a perfect master of foot work and he glides in and out of danger with a grace and abandon that is almost supernatural, depending gnupon his great speed and judgment of distance to outthink and outmanoeuvre his opponent. This he did against Levinsky in a way that brought the audience to its feet cheering.

It was said after the contest that the great Frenchman was not in the very best physical condition and if that is so he can be depended upon to give our Jack a mercy time if he is in good condition when they do meet. Carpentier is a more finished and a more glittering boxer than is Dempsey but I have some qualms as to his being as hard a hitter. The American champion has two deadly hands and either of them, when properly landed, will capsize anybody. The Frenchman has a better left; it is sharper and faster and lands with greater frequency, but not as destructive in poundage, and there is no doubt that he will try to use this weapon to rip, tear and subdue the American and bring him down to his size, if they meet.

Jack in Danger

The Dempsey that made big Willard yell quits at Toledo is quite a different Dempsey today, and he will have to take an extra close reef in his sails, cathead his anchor and make ready for a rough passage. Dempsey must, if he hopes to successfully defend his title against the invader, get down to real hard work. He cannot afford to underestimate the French champion or his fighting ability or leave anything to chance.

The Frenchman is a worthy opponent and one who can be depended upon to exert his best efforts to take back to France the proud title of champion that has rested secure in America for more than 50 years.

We want the best man to win, and if the Frenchman can beat us—and I personally don't think he can—I will be the first to get up on my hind legs and yell for the champion, shake his hand and testify that he is a better man than I gave him credit for being.

I am for America against the world, and I feel that we have the man who can demonstrate it if he fits himself properly.

HOUSEWARMING OF BOY SCOUTS

Moved Into New Quarters By Drill Hall Last Night—Boxing And Wrestling.

The Boy Scouts of Quebec held a "house-warming" in their new hut just off the Drill Hall last evening. The use of the hut has been allowed the Scouts in recognition of the services they rendered during the great war.

The prizes won during the recent track meet held at the Exhibition Grounds were presented to the various winners. The final standing for the Senior Championship was a draw between Perry and Kaine, so the matter was settled by Col. Wood tossing a coin. Perry won the toss and the championship.

The Clouston Cup, emblematic of the Provincial championship in the Boy Scout world on water, was also presented to No. 1 Quebec Troop, which captured the trophy in its first attempt. The cup is a magnificent piece of silverware, and around its base are shields, on which are engraved the names of the troop that captures the championship each year. This is the eleventh year it has been in competition, and was the first season that a troop from Quebec City had entered a team, so that their success is all the more gratifying.

Yesterday evening's proceedings opened with a few remarks from Col. Wood, who told the boys that if everything went well, he would get the Drill Hall some time during the winter, and would stage a real night of fun, with boxing bouts, wrestling matches, and everything.

Mr Quilter took over the duties of Assistant Scoutmaster, and will look after No. 2 Troop.

The boxing and wrestling bouts were held and saw some good fun. In the first scrap P. Matte gained the edge over S. Pfeiffer in their set-to, while J. Sleet gained the decision from T. Devine. W. Fitzgerald won from M. Prairie on points, while C Perry and G. Wright battled to a draw. R. Matthews, the Scouts' boxing instructor, and L. Kennedy, staged an exhibition bout.

In the wrestling bout A. B. Seale took straight falls out of S. Dixon.

A very enjoyable evening was spent by the boys, and it is certain that the new quarters will be well patronized during the cold months.

M.C.C. CRICKET TEAM ARRIVE IN AUSTRALIA

London, Oct. 22.—(By Canadian Associated Press).—The members of the Marylebone Cricket Club which is touring Australia landed at Freemantle, West Australia, today, but will be kept in quarantine until Tuesday next.

The ship on which the team travelled, the Osterly, had a case of typhus on board, which made it doubtful yesterday if the cricket team would be allowed to land at all until the consequent quarantine delay had expired.

BIG SOFT COAL PRICE CUT DUE

New York, Oct. 22—Prediction that the recent decline in the price of bituminous coal is to be followed by a "much more decided drop within a short time," was made here tonight by Charles S. Allen, secretary of the Wholesale Coal Trade Association of New York.

Mr. Allen said that his statement was "based on a consensus of opinion of members of that association," which he added, was due to the action this week of Attorney-General Palmer in calling upon the coal operators to take steps "to reduce prices and eliminate profiteering."

TRIPLE RECORD WAS REGISTERED

Single G. Broke Three Marks In Yesterday's Grand Circuit Races.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 22—Single G., a veteran of the Grand Circuit tracks, paced the best mile of his career here today, breaking, according to track officials, the world's record for three heats, the season's record and the Lakewood Track record for a single heat, making the three heats in 1:59, 2:00 and 2:00¼.

The bay horse entered and driven by Ed. Allen, of Indianapolis, Ind., had everything in his favor in the free-for-all pace in which he broke his own record made at Lexington for best average time in three heats. There was only one other contestant, two horses being drawn, and Allen used Sanardo, piloted by Stokes, as a wind-break for the first three-quarters of each heat and then let out his horse in the home stretch. So well did Single G. answer the demand for speed that in the first heat he made the final quarter in :28¼.

The 2:11 class pacing event for a $2,500 purse was a hard fought race. Peter Look, piloted by Cox, won in straight heats, two of them by a nose.

The 2:10 trot went to Black Diamond, driven by Irwin, which took the first two heats. The 2:20 class trot was won by Lilly Watts, piloted by Russell.

MOVIE ACTOR MAKES GOOD A DISH WASHER

It has not been made clear whether Raymond Hatton was cast for the part of Bunty's sweetheart in the Goldwyn picturization of "Bunty Pulls the Strings" because of skill displayed at home in dish-washing, or whether Mr. Hatton assigned him that particular job because he does it so expertly in the picture. At any rate, it's the sad truth that both as Mrs. Hatton's husband and as Bunty's sweetheart he does have to wash dishes, and he has been discoursing mournfully for the past few days about the monotony of work.. In his new capacity he has achieved considerable fame and people keep inquiring significantly, "Well, how's the job?"

"How malicious gossip does travel", complains Mr. Hatton bitterly.

A Canadian Piano

That Europe Appreciates

When, in 1900, the Pratte firm, of Montreal, decided to exhibit one of its pianos at the Universal Exhibition of Paris, the musical world in Canada was astonished.

The temerity of the Pratte firm astounded everybody.

Nevertheless, the judges of the Exhibition noted the value of this Canadian product, and the Pratte piano captured one of the most sought for prizes.

Our studio today is offering you this same instrument with improvements which have been made since that time. Besides, we have a complete assortment of pianos, automatic pianos, graphophones, from the Pratte firm as well as other leading makes.

WORK OF SPANISH IN MOROCCO

Gen. Berenguer Says Work Of Colonization Is Advancing On Military Side.

Tetuan, Morocco, Oct. 22—While Spanish military forces in the eastern section of the zone rested in the summer heats awaiting developments elsewhere, those working from the north, being the columns that had Tetuan and Ceuta for their base, and those in the west, based at Larache and Regaia, showed signs of activity. It is the northern or central army, the one driving down the valleys in the direction of the "mysterious city" of Sheshuan, to which most interest has all along been attached, though for a week or two the eastern, with its base at Melilla, accomplished such excellent progress as to draw attention to itself. Now the northern soldiers have taken up the tale again, and anticiption grew to mild excitement as the prospect increased of an early capture of Sheshuan, the city in which no Spaniard has ever trodden and at most only one or two other Europeans—even this last suggestion being now discredited.

A further southward advance of fourteen kilometers has now been made as the result of one operation which was under the control of General Vallejo, who had at his disposal two columns, one commanded by Colonel Saliquot and the other by Colonel Castro. These pressed on through most difficult country in which rugged peaks and precipitous gorges prominently figured, with the heights of Beni Hosmar and Beni Idor on either side, up to the entrance to the valley of the tribe of Beni Hassman, and here positions were established, fortified and garrisoned, after which the troops returen to Ben Karrick, from which General Vallejo had watched the proceedings.

Rebel's Tenacity.

During the whole of this operation the rebel Moors fought with great tenacity and gathered the fullest advantage from their mountain positions. They frequently appeared suddenly in force on different heights and were most pertinacious, but by this time the Spanish troops and their leaders have become very adept in dealing with them, and before the excellent work accomplished by the infantry, artillery and the aeroplanes, they were soon disposed of. This further advance is regarded as extremely good business and does more than ever to encourage the belief that the Spanish Army is now doing as good work in smoothing out Morocco as has ver been done in the country by anybody up to date.

There has been some casual sort of fighting out at the western side near Larache, a rebel contingent, consisting of rom 600 to 800 men, attempting a series of raids on the camps of riendly Moors, but without any success, the friendlies having the better of it.

Now at Melilla there are great preparations for festival, the success of the Spanish troops being an adjunct to the occasion, as it were and not the prime cause of it. A few days ago the Moorish feast of the Passover was celebraterd, the Calipha proceeding to the Mexala and there sacrificing a lamb. This was done with much ceremony, a considerable cavalcade accompanying the Calipha.

Affection for Spain.

On his return by the Plaza de Espana he was met by Colonel Caballero, the High Commissioner's representative, who made a speech of greeting to him, which was duly translated by an interpreter, his highness, Muley Mehdi, answering in terms of affectiol for Spain. At the end of the eight days the Calipha returned to the Mexala to pray. This, however, has nothing to do with the September feasts which were to make Melilla joyful, and which were to last a whole week, the program comprinsing a comprehensive mixture of athletics, fencing, football matches, cylce and other races, musical band performances, firework displays, religious ceremonies, tombolas and most other things that could be thought of as appropriate to such an occasion, concluding with the opening of the Aveniad del General Gomez Jordana, and a dinner for the poor people. General Jordana, who thus has a street named in remembrance of him, was, of course, the predecessor of General Berenguer in Morocco. It is the intention of the people of Melilla to make this the occasion for acclaiming the army for the successes it has lately achieved.

And on the subject of war and armies it may be mentioned that there has just now turned up at Melilla a Bulgarian subject who is a kind of human relic of the recent European war and must surely be the last person sent adrift during that upheaval to the found again. This man is named Constantino Istof and he has just come in from Penon de la Gomera along the coast At the beginning of the war in 914 he had been absent from Sofia for five years and subsequently at Salonika fell a prisoner to the French who sent him to Marseilles and afterwards to Oran

Spanish Progress.

From Oran, he escaped and for a long time then led a wild, wandering life in Algeria until he was captured by the Arabs in the southern limits of the country. There he was put through many tortures, but at last he escaped again and started wandering afresh, getting himself lost in the Riff. Here in this wild country he wandered aimlessly about, not having the slightest idea where he was, until suddenly one day he heard the notes of a cornet and knew there must be civilization near. A few strides and he saw the coast and opposite to him the Spanish post at Penon de la Gomera. He leaped into the sea and swam out to it, and here he is. Evidently the Spanish progress at Morocco is in a good way now, much better than people abroad have been led to believe. The number of those in Spain who talk of the mistakes of the campaign and the folly of pursuing it has shown a striking diminution in recent times, but still the country generally is evidently unaware of the excellence of the progress made, the splendid skill displayed by the soldiers and the good quality of the administrative work that is being done. Accordingly, General Berenguer has taken this occasion to make a statement which he hopes will strike home.

Spain to Work Truth.

"I want Spain to know the truth," he says. "Our work of colonization is advancing on the military side more rapidly than in the French zone, having regard to our respective engagements and the issue thereof. The French newspapers only call the attention of my dear friend, General Lyautey to this point to give him a stimulus which the eminent French general has never needed. Since I came here we have doubled the extent of the occupied territory. In taking such important positions as Beni Karrick we have had but a single native non-commissioned officer wounded. The occuption of the Fondak was prepared by me politicallay and militarily with the greatest care.

"The French, whom I look upon as if they were my masters, have not advanced with such great rapidity in their zone. We are now contemplating the taking of Sheshuan; the holy city whose soil has never yet been trodden upon by any stranger. I could have been there already had I not been obliged always to proceed in accordance with the French, who have important operations to carry through in connection with ours Now I am constantly expecting material which is necessary for the campaign and for fortification purposes. When this expedition is made Raisuli will be encircled, and we shall then be able to devote ourselves to the conquest of the Riff. The military problem does not present any difficulty to us. But our military effort will be of no avail in Spain does not profit by it to pour her goods into the markets that have been opened to her by our success, if she does not cultivate the lands of which we have taken possession, and if she does not establish here such industries as will be capable by large profits of paying the expenses of the conquest."

As a last word, let it be said that what has happened so far is well known to be but the prelude to a vaster scheme of tranquillization throughout the zone, and that Spain is bent not only for her own material advantage but for the sake of her prestige in showing in the most striking way that she can solve her own part of the Moroccan problem at least as effectively and expeditiously as any others can solve theirs.

GENEROUS PATRONS

New York, Oct. 22—Facing a local count on a charge of theft, Mrs. Aadolina Soucholz, a waitress, stated that she worked for five dollars a week in a Manhattan restaurant, but admitted that her tips averaged $75.00 per week. She said she stole two diamond dings and pawned them in order to obtain money to dress her 11-year-old daughter.

MASONS PURCHASE VALUABLE LAND

Grand Lodge Acquires Freehold Of Land On Side Of Freemasons Hall.

London, Eng., Oct. 22—Very rapid progress has been made during the last few days with regard to the Masonic Million Memorial Fund, thanks to the activity of the president of the Board of General Purposes, Sir Alfred Robbins, and afterward of his colleagues American visitors to Grand Lodge of England will recall the long strip of shops on the western side of Freemasons Hall, extending to Wild Street, almost up to Drury Lane. In the height of the holiday season, when the principal officials were away, information was received by Sir Alfred Robbins that it might be possible to acquire the freehold of his property, which for many years the authorities of Grand Lodge had wished for, but had not found it practicable to secure. It was at that moment under the consideration of others for purchase.

Sir Alfred Robbins was the only member of Grand Lodge executive that day in London and on investigating the circumstances he at once took the responsibility for entering into such an arrangement as would preserve the chance of purchasing the property until he could fully consult others on the project. His action was indorsed by other members of the executive including the Pro Grand Master, who were unanimous in agreeing that the negotiations should be proceeded with. Grand Lodge, as a body, has now indorsed the purchase of the strip for £42,500, the total area being 13,368 super feet.

Action Commended.

The congratulations of the craft have been warmly extended to Sir Alfred Robbins for his promptitude in dealing with the matter, for it is to him that future generations of brethern, as well as the present, will forever be indebted. It is perhaps too early to speak of the possibilities opened up by such a purchase, or of its important bearing upon the Memorial Fund, but it will doubtless bring peace and comfort to the traditionalists who have been fearful lest a break with Great Queen Street should be the result of the response to the Grand Master's appeal.

The committee of this fund reports that though the summer period is less fruitful in Masonic activities than any other period of the year yet the past three months have brought encouraging testimony of the reality of the enedeavor to give full support to the appeal. The provincial grand lodges of Essex, Somerset, Staffordshire, Buckinghamshire, Middlesex, Kent, Cumberland and Westmoreland, North and East Yorkshire, Surrey, West Lancashire, Durham, and West Yorkshire, are taking active steps to support the fund in every possible manner

In addition, important assistance has come from the District Grand Lodges of Japan, Hong Kong, the Transvaal, Madras, South America (southern division), and Newfoundland, while among the individual subscriptions is one of £10,000. It is anticipated that within a short time a full plan of operations for carrying out the Grand Master's proposals will be submitted for consideration by Grand Lodge.

Rapid Growth in Provinces.

The portrait of the Deputy Grand Master, the Right Hon. Sir Frederick Halsey, has now been unveiled and placed in Grand Lodge. This "grand old gntleman of Freemasonry" as he is frequently and reverently termed, has held the office of provincial Grand Master of Hertfordshire since 873, and that of Deputy Grand Master since 1903, and took part in the first of the series of great Masonic meetings which have been held in the Royal Albert Hall, the occasion being when King King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, was installed as Grand Master of the craft.

The provincial reports which are sent in in great numbers at this time of the year tell of a continuous and rapid growth in the membership of lodges formed during the past 12 months Somersetshire reports a new craft lodge, Mark Lodge, Knights Templar preceptory, and Red Cross conclave, while a chapter of the Ancient and Accepted Rite has been resuscitated Warrants have also been obtained for yet another Craft lodge as well as for a Royal Arch chapter. The number of subscribing members in the province, excluding duplicates is now 2016, as compared with 1003, including duplicates, in 1881.

There are now 31 craft lodges in the province, 15 of which have lodges of instruction, while 13 have Royal Arch chapters attached. There are 11 Mark lodges, two Royal Ark Mariner lodges, five perceptories of Knights Templar, four chapters of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, one conclave of the Red Cross of Constantine, and one college of the Societies Rosicrucians. Not a bad record for a comparatively small country.

Many Offices Held.

It is given to few to edit an annual publication for 36 years in succession, but the Essex Masonic Calendar, which has just been issued for the thirty-sixth successive year, has been edited during the whole of that period by Thomas J. Ralling, past grand deacon, who has just completed his forty-third year as provincial grand secretary. His work in this connection is no sinecure for Essex has now 70 craft lodges, with 25 Royal Arch chapter attached. There are also nine Mark lodges, two with Royal Ark Mariner lodges attached. Mr. Ralling also holds the office of provincial grand secretary in all these branches, in addition to the secretaryship and treasureship of several private lodges, chapters, and other Masonic bodies.

The Sultan of Johore has just been invested as senor warden of the lodge Johore Royal, No. 3946, under the English constitution at the annual meeting held at Johore Bahru.

A new lodge to meet at Forest Gate has just been consecrated, another at Bath, and another at Newport, Monmouthshire. This last is named the Joseph Tudor to commemorate the Masonic activities of Jasper Tudor, Duke of Bedford, Earl of Pembroke, and Lord of Newport, to whom is attributed, among other things the completion of the tower of the parish church of Newport and the Jasper tower of Llandaff cathedral. There are 50 founders of this lodge and none with less than seven years' Masonic standing.

U.S. LOCOMOTIVES FOR FRANCE

Saint Nazaire, France, Oct. 22—French railway stock will shortly be increased by 176 American heavy freight locomotives. They were shipped from America, dismounted, just before the armistice. They have now been set up and soon will be ready for service.

GREATEST NEEDS IN SERBIA TODAY

Are Sanitation and Preventive Medicine — Country to Combat Typhus

Nish, Serbia Oct 22—Sanitation and preventive medicine are the greatest needs of Serbia today. With the approach of cold weather, the country will be called upon to combat her old enemy, typhus. American and foreign relief organizations will aid the Siberian authorities in this work.

Human conservation is one of Serbia's greatest problems war and disease have sadly depleted the population. Before the war the birth-rate of Serbia was higher than her death rate. In spite of the inroads of epidemics, her population was increasing at the rate of 85,000 a year Now it is decreasing. Bereft of her man power an with her women and cildren organically wasted, the question of population to till the soil and build up the country is a most serious one Another pressing problem facing the country is the immense number of orphans. In Old Serbia there are 60,000 full orphans and 300,000 half orphans. Only 5,000 of these are cared for in orphanages supported by the government or foreign relief agencies. The rest are placed in private homes, where they are not always welcome guests on account of the scarcity of food and the other necessaries of life.

Do This For Constipation

PEOPLE are beginning to realize that it is not at all necessary to take a strong purgative pill, and be weakened and upset all day, to relieve constipation no matter how old or chronic it is. The bowel muscles will get just the proper amount of stimulation from a teaspoonful of mild, gentle Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple herbs with pepsin. The full formula is on the package. A sixty-cent bottle will last months, and last year over eight million were bought in drug stores. It relieves constipation overnight, headaches, biliousness, indigestion and feverishness.

If you would like to test Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin free of charge before buying it in the regular way of your druggist, send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front St., Bridgeburg, Ont., and a free trial bottle will be sent you promptly, postpaid.

CHASING PRICES BY WAGES FUTILE

Labor Investigators Of High Prices Would Start With Deflation Of Currency.

London, Eng., Oct. 21—The joint committee appointed by the Trades Unions Congress, the Labor Party, the Co-operative Union, the Triple Alliance, and some individual trade unions to investigate the problem of high prices has now produced an interim report. This deals with problems of credit and currency, and its main recommendations may be summaried as follows:

The rise in prices is due more to currency expansion than to contraction of production. The first step, therefore, is to deal with the expansion of the currency in this and other countries and to deflate it, wher this is possible, to an extent which will eliminate the depreciation of currency in terms of gold. Such a process will not, it is expected, restore prices to the pre-war level, but it is considered that it would mean perhaps a reduction of the general level of prices by about 20 per cent, and also cut at the root of the automatic rise of prices due to currency influence

Increased Productivity.

The committee feels that an attempt to secure a fall of prices to the pre-war level by a drastic restriction of the currency would inevitably result in widespread unemployment and, most probably, in a considerable fall in wages. By the operation of a steady improvement in productivity (through the participation of all countries in the trade of the world, the improvement of methods and machinery, and a far-reaching reorganization of industry) it is believed that the standard of life of the people would be maintained and automatically raised as prices fell.

As regards the question of currency, the joint committee feels: that legislation is necessary to regulate the conditions of the issue of notes by fixing an absolute amount which the fiduciary issue must not exceed, this amount to be gradually and periodically reduced until the depreciation of British paper currency in terms of gold disappears, that the government should cease entirely to resort to bank credits to meet expenditure; and that the floating debt should be wholly or largely repaid, the remainder, if any, being funded. It is also recommended that the banking system of the country should be publicly controlled, and that government expenditure on military and naval enterprises should cease.

International Aspect.

Regarding the international aspects of the problem, the committee considers that the reestablishment of peace throughout the world is a prime essential; that war indemnities should be required to take all possible steps to rehabilitate its currency.

In countries where a return to the gold standard is impracticable, it is advocated that a new parity of exchange should be established. Until the machinery of exchange is reestablished, it is recommended that the import and export of goods between different countries should be conducted, where other methods are not possible, by means of direct barter. The committee further recommends that an international loan should be floated by the League of Nations (under conditions laid down by the League) in order to provide impoverished countries with a means of restoring their productive capacity.

Credit and Currency.

In presenting the report to the Trades Unions Congress, recently at Portsmouth, Arthur Greenwood, secretary of the joint committee, said it must be recognized that the policy of chasing high prices by means of small additions to wages was futile. The committee felt it necessary in dealing with the problem to start first on the question of currency and credit.

The, he said, was a technical question, but the wasteful methods of this and other countries in financing the war were primarily responsible for raising prices. If they could squeeze the water out of British paper money, American bacon would be 5d a pound cheaper. The crying need of the world was peace, and they must have peace with Russia in the next few weeks. The world could not do without the supply of wheat from Russia.

FRAUDS UPON IMMIGRANTS

Fake Agents and Organizations to be Prosecuted

New York, Oct. 22—Names and addresses of many fake organizations and their agents here and abroad, suspected of fleecing thousands of immigrants by accepting money for assurance of aid in obtaining their admission to the United States, will be forwarded to Washington authorities for prosecution, it was announced at Ellis Island today.

Harry H. Schlact newly appointed head of immigrant aid at Ellis Island who reported to Commissioner of Immigration Watkis on the subject, declared that the ramifications of the fraud are international in scope. American and other agents abroad, purporting to represent various organizations or societies whose aims seemingly are designed to assist immigrants about to sail for America, in many cases secured victims through the medium of advertisements in the foreign press, Schlact said.

In this connection he declared that it is a violation of the law to send delegates or agents to Europe to induce immigration and arrange for transportation with the assurance of protection and assistance.

To-Day, Saturday, Will Be a Big Event for Bargains

It will be fruitful for those who hear our call and are guided by it. New lines at new prices. To-day's goods at pre-war prices.

The public will have the satisfaction of buying without any feeling that they are committing an error.

We give special prices which can only be offered by those who sacrifice all profits. Our firm unquestionably leads in quoting the right prices in this period of reconstruction.

There are obstacles which crop up, but the stream will follow its course. From the first to the last day of the year, our prices are always unsurpassable.

Come and see the extraordinary offers which we are making, today, Saturday, October 23rd. You will long remember it.

Sudden Death.

Quebec lost a good citizen yesterday morning in the person of Mr. Cleophas Rochette, tanner and manufacturer, who died at five o'clock in the morning after an illness of a few hours only. The deceased was born in the County of Portneuf 52 years ago, and had amassed a considerable fortune here. His tannery business and brickyard will probably be operated by his sons. Mr. Rochette had been to Pointe aux Trembles the day before his death. About midnight he complained of feeling ill and a doctor was summoned, but he grew rapidly worse and succumbed to an attack of paralysis. His tannery gives employment to two hundred men

Hymneal.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday morning in St. Patrick's Church, the Rev. Father Maloney officiating, when Miss Annie Shee, one of the most attractive and prepossessing of our young people, was united in marriage to Mr. C. E. Schnell, of Philadelphia, in the presence of a large number of friends of the bride. The musical portion of the service was admirably carried out, and several fine solos were sung, one by the bride's cousin, Mr. H. Lamb, who gave her away. The bridegroom had for his best man his brother, Mr. Schnell, who with his wife had come up from Philadelphia to be present at the ceremony. The bride looked very charming in a blue-grey dress, with blue trimmings and blue velvet hat with grey feathers. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The wedding presents were numerous and costly, and testified to the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends. The happy couple left by the Quebec Central en route, via Boston and New York, for their new home in Philadelphia, where a hearty reception awaits them

Shareholders of the McIntyre-Porcupine Mines, Ltd., and the Timiskaming Mining Company, have granted permission to the directors of these two companies to purchase the Blue Diamond Coal Mines and secure an option on Canadian Coalfields, two properties located 200 miles west of Edmonton. J. P. Bickell, the head of both mining companies, pointed out that such purchase would be to the advantage of present shareholders as the output of the Blue Diamond Mine could be readily increased from present production of 430 tons daily to 2,000 by the end of the year. A market is available in the requirements of the Canadian National Railway which runs close by this mine.

The purchase price of Blue Diamond is $450,000, and $150,000 is being paid for the option on Canadian coalfields. The balance of $1,000,000 to be paid for the latter property is to come out of earnings within the next fifteen years. The Blue Diamond is estimated to contain 6,000,000 tons of marketable coal. President Bickell stated while Coalfields is estimated to contain 18,000,000 tons. Profit from Blue Diamond is estimated at $500,000 a year with the production in view. The two Ontario companies will enter the contract upon a fifty-fifty basis. Mr. Bickell pointed out to Timiskaming shareholders that the profits from the coal company should enable the company to go on a dividend basis with fair prospects of maintaining it.

A MATRIMONIAL ARMISTICE

New York, Oct. 22—Mr. and Mrs. Washington L. Stevens are living under a matrimonial armistice. Mrs. Stevens sued for a separation recently and at the suggestion of the court the hearing was adjourned for two weeks for the couple to see whether they can rekindle the embers of their love. The truce expires on October 25, and if a definite treaty of peace has not been drafted by the Stevens family by that date the case will be resumed by the court. The Stevens are prominent in New York society.

HARDIEST HORSES IN FRENCH CANADA

Breed Descended From Old-Time French-Canadian Pony--Encourage Breeding

(By H. A. SEED)

"He never gives out, it does not matter what he is at."

So says a lover of the French-Canadian horse, a breed with a history, and now the subject of much commendation to the farmers of this Dominion by the federal department of agriculture.

Dr. Gustave A. Langelier turns out a nice paean of praise anent this equine in a pamphlet for the "printer to the King's most excellent majesty." And to Dr. Langelier the habitant's docile nag is superior to automotive transport in whatever form. "They are fast walkers and that counts at the end of a day's ploughing," reads one item, which may or may not delight that almost extinct species, the hired man.

But hearken to Dr. Langelier, who superintends the Cap Rouge experimental station, where they are working to fix the character of this very interesting and promising farm worker.

"This breed is descended from the old-time French-Canadian pony, sent from France to Canada by Louis XIV. These ponies were of the best that could be procured in their native land. They remained for three years the property of the king, and were then distributed among the farmers of Canada, in order to encourage the development of agriculture.

Start Breeding Farms.

"Some few years ago the pedigree records for the French-Canadian horse maintained by the Quebec Government were transferred to the national live stock records. Other steps have been taken to maintain the breed as pure as possible. One of the latest methods has been the establishment of a horse-breeding farm at St. Joachim, situated some twenty-five miles east of Quebec City. This farm, which is operated under the experimental farms system, has thirty well-selected brood mares. These, together with fifteen of similar quality, kept on the experimental station at Cap Rouge, Que., form a collection from which it is hoped to produce a superior new foundation stock for the breed."

Director E. S. Archibald, of the Dominion experimental farms, ventures to say, "In my opinion the breeding of French-Canadian horses should be encouraged: 1. Because of the wonderful utility, hardiness and easy-keeping qualities of the breed. 8. Because the breed comes very close to the ideal general purpose horse, so much required on our farms and in our towns and cities. 3. It is strictly a Canadian breed."

Just to indicate that this is no revival of the bilingual dispute, Col. John A. Currie, M.P. for North Simcoe, is also quoted: "I saw on one occasion several teams of French-Canadian horses that the Royal Canadian Artillery had. I never saw such magnificent teams in my life. I understand that these horses went through all the South African war and came back home safe and sound."

Works Mates to Death.

A disinterested party, Mr. J. W. Ingham in The Breeders' Gazette (Chicago): "A lumberman bought a Canadian horse not weighing over 1050 pounds and worked him beside a horse weighing 200 pounds more on an even whiffletree. The Canadian kept up his end at all times and never showed as much weariness as his larger mate. After they had worked together two years, the big horse died. When asked what was the matter, the driver said 'The Canadian worked him to death.' A large horse that was mated with him afterwards died within a year, leaving the Canadian still well and sound. The Canadians are undoubtedly descended from a large breed of horse brought over from France in the early settlement of the country. The colts, not being as well fed and warmly stabled as their ancestors, and exposed much of the time to a rigorous climate and hard work, degenerated in size, but improved in hardiness and endurance."

Five minutes after he had stabbed himself he changed his mind about committing suicide and summoned a taxi by telephone. "I have tried to kill myself but I don't want to die," he told the chauffeur. "Please take me to a hospital." The physicians say he will recover.

Chronicle's Review of Coming Attractions For Next Week

THE VICTORIA

For four days, starting to-morrow "Dr. Jekyll And Mr. Hyde" will be the feature attraction. This picture in which John Barrymore has the leading role, is one of the most startling productions of the year, and thrills are present in practically every foot of the film.

Other versions of the same film have been seen in the Ancient Capital, but this will be the first showing of Dr. Jekyll And Mr. Hyde with John Barrymore in the leading role.

Attendance records were shattered in both New York and Montreal by the film, while Barrymore's acting will astonish everyone. His portrayal of the characters of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, two men as totally unlike as night and day, is simply marvelous. All the papers in New York and Canada, wherever this picture has been shown, pay Barrymore a wonderful tribute for his characterization of the dual role, and it is a sure thing that local film lovers who witness the picture will get their money's worth.

On the same bill there will be another episode of the Ruth Roland serial "Ruth Of The Rockies" while a Christie comedy entitled "Tell Your Wife Everything" is also scheduled.

"Soldiers Of Fortune" is the title of the attraction for the last three days of the week. It is an Allan Dwan production and to those in whose minds the "Luck Of The Irish" is still fresh, this means a lot, for it was Dwan who directed that famous photoplay.

An all star cast, including Anna Q. Nilsson, Pauline Starke, Ward Crane and Norman Kerry, comprise one of the best companies that ever attempted a picture, while there are real Mexican bandits, followers of the famous Francisco Villa, in the picture.

Exciting moments are numerous in the film, which is one of the kind that keeps the spectator in suspense not knowing what the next move will be.

The tenth episode of "The Third Eye" the Warner Oland serial, and an Al St. John comedy, billed as "Gleaning Up", complete the card for the week.

THE EMPIRE

Marguerite Clark's new picture, "A Girl Named Mary," will be the attraction at the Empire Theatre for four days commencing tomorrow. It is a picturization of Juliet Wilbor Tompkins' magazine story of the same name and is said to be ideally suited to the talents of the little star.

The plot centers around the search of a wealthy widow, Mrs. Jaffrey, for her daughter, who has been missing since the railroad wreck in which Mr. Jaffrey was killed. In the course of her seeking she becomes acquainted with a vivacious little person named Mary Healy, the role played by Miss Clark. Later it developed that Mary, who lives quite plainly with a foster mother and is loved by a youth named Henry Martin, is the missing girl. Mrs. Jaffrey is overjoyed at the discovery but her atempts to inject the girl into a luxurious environment are at first failures. When the widow at last sees the light and consents to Mary's marriage to Henry, the happy ending is in sight. Kathlyn Williams and Wallace MacDonald have the chief supporting roles. A Prizma natural color subject (Gowns Venus Would Envy), the Illiterate Digest, Screen Magazine and Comedyart reel complete the program.

For Thursday a big dramatic subject "The Marriage Pit" will be the feature attraction, along with the Eddie Polo serial and other subjects.

THE AUDITORIUM

For the coming week the management of the Auditorium have again booked an excellent program, both of vaudeville and motion pictures. There will be five good acts of vaudeville, and feature pictures. For to-morrow afternoon and evening, there will be "The Clouded Name" a real gripping melodrama of the Northern woods featuring John Lowell, supported by an all star cast.

The second episode of "The Branded Four" the super-serial and a two real comedy complete the bill.

The vaudeville program, starting on Monday afternoon, has Gordon Wilde & Co., in a singing and shadowgraph act that should register a big hit. Kindler, the whistler, who was supposed to be at the Auditorium this week, will be seen in action during the coming seven days, while Phillmers, a wire-walker, is bound to be popular.

Eddie & Hilda, in a trapeze act are reputed to have some new stunts, and should go well, while the last, but not the last act on the bill, is Professor Vandac, a hypnotist.

The photoplay end of the attraction will comprise Will Rogers in "Honest Hutch", a typical Rogers picture, while Charlie Chaplin will be seen in one of the funniest of all his production "The Rink".

THE ALLEN

For tomorrow, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the management of the Allen will offer to their patrons one of the greatest pictures ever produced. It is a story of newspaper life, and is entitled "Go and Get It," and has thrills, loves, pathos and romance galore.

This picture has created a sensation wherever it has been shown and is breaking attendance records in Montreal this week, at the New Grand Theatre.

It is a Marshall Neilan production, and when it is remembered that Neilan produced "The River's End," which was one of the big successes of the year, little more need be said regarding the quality of the picture.

The methods pursued in the big cities by the star newspaper men, and the way they gather news, is one of the features of the picture, which describes a chief editor telling a reporter to find out what was the cause of the death of several prominnt men who were found with their backs broken, and not a mark on their bodies.

The reporter went after the story, and after using trains, automobiles, airplanes and other means of locomotion in his journey, uncorked one of the biggest 'scoops' of the season.

It is the most sensational and fascinating romance of newspaper life ever pictured and should draw big crowds.

A good comedy and other subjects are on the same bill.

For today and tomorrow Ernest Lavoie, the popular tenor, will render "Le Reve Passe," the famous patriotic song which scored a triumph in the Ancient Capital. This musical entertainment is directed by F. X. Mercier; and is seconded by Sid Hoffman, the leader of the Allen Concert Orchestra.

For the last half of the week, a big special, the name of which will be made known later, will be shown, combined with an excellent comedy and other subjects.

THE CLASSIC

For the first half of the coming week, Olive Thomas, described as "the most beautiful girl on the screen" is featured at the Classic in "The Follies Girl". This is a picture that is specially adaptable to the acting capacities of the late artist, and her fresh beauty has numbers of opportunities to shine in the film.

It will be remembered that before Olive went into pictures she was famous as a dancer in the universally known Ziegfield Follies in New York. Well, in this picture she does some of the dancing that made her famous, and that alone ought to be enough to pack 'em in, but there is in addition, a capital story, one of the best, in fact that she ever had a chance to work on, is there. It is the sort of picture that will appeal to men and women in all classes, and has drama and humor delightfully mixed. The story is told in settings and locations of more than ordinary beauty. Topics of the Day, the Classic Weekly News, a scenic and a particularly good comedy completes the bill for the first three days of the week.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday,a Tex picture is billed It is entitled "The Wall Street Mystery," and with Glen White in the title role, supported by Jane McAlpine and a host of capable artists, offers mystery lovers and devotees of detective picture an opportunity to sit back and enjoy themselves to the utmost.

The story is that of a man who is a prisoner in Mexico City and sends some valuable bonds by his daughter to New York to Tex, who sympathizes with the girl, and tells her he will take the bonds to his broker for safekeeping. The next day the broker incurs the hatred of his valet by striking him, and the latter swears vengeance.

The broker is murdered, and several people are suspected, among whom is one of the broker's employees. Tex is sent for, and after making a tour of investigation, dons a disguise and goes to Chinatown, where he ferrets out the Japanese valet, who is in hiding, but is discovered by a Chinaman, and a rough and tumble follows. Finally, after a whole series of adventures, the mystery is solved, and the guilty man punished.

Another episode of "Hidden Dangers" the Joe Ryan and Jean Paige serial, and a capital comedy, as well as other features, are on the bill.

LITTLE INCENTIVE GIVEN EFFICIENCY

In New Zealand Legislation Has Taken Away Inducements To Hard Work.

Wellington, N. Z., Oct. 21—"The poor standard of efficiency among your workers today is due to the Arbitration Act, and the scarcity of apprentices for the skilled trades is also due to the Arbitration Act," said an Independent Labor member of the New Zealand Parliament. The statements are sufficiently accurate to be worth the attention of those who are interested in the results of advanced industrial legislation in this country. The trouble is that the worker has been protected at so many points by the State that he has lost, to a certain extent, the incentive to efficiency that is provided by competition. The industrial legislation undoubtedly has produced more good than harm, but the latter cannot be ignored.

Apprenticeship Unpopular.

"The apprentices," continued the Labor member, "know that under the law they are entitled to increase of pay at fixed intervals. They know also that they must receive journeymen's pay at the completion of their term of apprenticeship, whether they are efficient or not. The employer must pay the rate fixed by the Arbitration Court or else dismiss the man, and since labor is scarce in all branches of industry he pays. The court has almost abolished piecework. It fixes a minimum weekly or hourly wage and so the worker has no inducement to seek high efficiency in order to increase his production. The unions regard with deep suspicion any movement in the direction of what they call 'speeding up', even when it takes the form of the payment of wages in excess of the fixd minimum rate."

Another difficulty, indicated in the words quoted at the head of this article, is important. The arbitration court is expected to see that every worker has a full living wage. The unskilled worker gets this wage, either through the court or through unions that, working outside the court, have yet the advantage of the rules that the court has laid down. Therefore a young man can make good mnoey more quickly in an unskilled trade than in a skilled trade requiring a period of apprenticeship. A general laborer or a driver, generaly speaking will not earn as much as a fully qualified carpenter or engineer. But the margin is not wide and the unskilled trade will give the better results during the first two or three years.

Policy Short-Sighted.

Workers as well as employers are recognizing these difficulties and others arising from the operation of the Labor laws. They are tending to cooperate in the search for remedies. The unions, which long discouraged apprenticeship in the belief that it was a method of providing the employer with cheap leabor, are asking now that the aprenticeship system shall be improved. They are not as keen as they used to be on the limitation of the number of apprentices. They are pointing out, with justice, that the employer often fails to give the apprentice a proper training.

The employer, if he were quite frank, would reply that since he is compelled to pay the apprentice a large wage, he finds it more profitable to get the boy quickly into productive work than to give him an all-round training. This is short-sighted policy, since later it means a shortage of skilled workers. This shortage is the most serious industrial difficulty that faces New Zealand today.

PILGRIM FATHERS HAVE HARDSHIPS

Ship Fell Amongst Audience at Performance in English Theatre

London, Oct. 22—Twentieth century Pilgrim Fathers have hardships of their own. Last night while Ben Great players were lustily singing from the poop deck of a stage reproduction of the Mayflower at the Surrey theater, stage properties gave way, the ship heeled, crashed toward the audience and precipitated the hapless Pilgrims to the stage amid sails, masts and splintered woodwork.

After anxious moments it was determined that no broken bones had resulted from the unhistorical presentation. Thus assured, the notable gathering of first nighters, including American diplomatic officials and influential Anglo-Americans, were prepared for the humor of the situation at the rise of the curtain on the second act—the Pilgrim Fathers offering thanks for their safe voyage across the Atlantic. London critics say the audience could hardly be blamed for bursting into laughter.

The production of "The Mayflower" a play which is a part of the tercentenary celebrations in London, according to The Times shows once again how difficult it is for a play of this kind be anything but a series of episodes very loosely strung together "Abraham Lincoln" was, of course the exception. There is no drama in The Mayflower play, says The Chronicle calls the play a crude melodrama, the love story which threads it having been taken almost line by line from Longfellow's 'Courtship of Miles Standish', but arranged with hardly any dramatic skill.

Growing Old Together

THIS aged couple, mellowed by time and the experiences of life, are happily growing old together.

They are happy because they are healthy. Life is still full of interest to them, and they are wide awake to new ideas.

These are the kind of old people that everybody likes. For, in spite of the years, they are cheerful and optimistic.

It is only natural that the blood should get thin and vitality wane as age advances, but there are ways of keeping up the quality of the blood and maintaining health and vigor.

Very many men and women have found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food exactly what they need to restore energy and strength and keep them healthy and happy.

As an example Mr. Stephen J. Leard, North Tryon, P.E.I., writes: "At seventy-five years of age my heart gave out and became very irregular and weak in action and would palpitate. My nerves also became weak, and I could do nothing but lie in bed in a languishing condition, losing strength and weight. In that condition I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am cured. Had I not obtained this treatment I would now be in the box with the roof over my nose. At eighty-one I have an energy which means go, and I am writing this letter so that old people like myself may prolong their health and strength by using this great medicine."

There can be no doubt that this treatment contained exactly what was required to build up Mr. Leard's system.

We are constantly receiving so many letters of this kind that we can, with the greatest confidence, recommend people of advanced years to put Dr. Chase's Nerve Food on trial, as a means of restoring and maintaining health and vigor.

Here is another interesting letter. This time from a lady:

Mrs. Joseph Lalonde, Hydro Glen, Ont., writes: "I have to thank you very much for what your medicines have done for me, especially the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I was so run down and nervous last summer that I was in bed most of the time, unable to do any work. I have also been troubled with my kidneys for over twenty years, and tried every doctor I knew of without any permanent results, but I can say that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills have made me feel quite different. Since taking this combined treatment I have been able to do my housework, and although I am now 76 years old, I feel better than I have for years."

("I know Mrs. Joseph Lalonde, and believe her statement regarding Dr. Chase's medicines to be true."—W. P. Flannery, Postmaster.)

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Only the genuine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on every box.

SNEEZES CAUSE OF MANY DEATHS

In India, Combined With Superstition — Sneeze Means Great Impending Calamity

New ork, Oct. 22—Sneezes and superstitition cost many lives annually in India.

This was the statement of Dr. Anna Degenring of the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, who has just returned here, on a year's furlough after 14 years as a doctor in India.

"A sneeze means a great impending calamity to the Indian mind", said Dr. Degenring. "Whatever happens on the day that one hears a sneeze is sure to turn out ill, and the Indian will enter upon no undertaking of importance on such a day. Many of our patients have refused to have operations on which their lives depended on the day that had been arranged, for, because they happened to sneeze that morning, or even to hear someone else sneeze."

Indian belief in auspicious days is another "hobgoblin" in the path of the medical missionary there, Dr. Degenring said. Soon after an Indian child is born, the soothsayer tra! News.
reveals to the family its lucky star and its lucky days. Indians who fall ill or are hurt in an accident persist in waiting for their auspicious days before sending for a doctor.

The Indians, the physician explained, attribute epidemics to the wrath of various goddesses of ill health, adding "there is a goddess of malaria and a goddess of smallpox—a goddess, in fact of every recurring epidemic."

Though they believe in goddesses, they are hard to convince concerning germs and they have no idea of quarantine for contagious diseases, Dr. Degenring said.

HAS BEEN HAVING BIG CELEBRATION

Bermuda Feasting Three Hundredth Anniversary of Founding of Parliament

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 22—Bermuda has been celebrating the 200th anniversary of the founding of its House of Assembly one of the oldest representatives bodies in existence and coming next in age to the British Parliament.

Bermuda shares with Virginia the honor of the earliest representative institutions on this side of the Atlantic Its history is closely linked with that of the Old Dominion.

The first general assembly for Virginia was held a Jamestown July 30, 1619, while the first general assembly for Bermuda was convened at St. Georges, the ancient capital for this colony, on August 1, 1620.

Virginia was settled in 1607 while Bermuda was settled in 1612, though the latter reached the stage of self government more quickly than their Virginian fellow colonists.

When Sir George Somers was wrecked on this Island in 1609, he and his company of adventurers were bound for Virginia to settle. But after their unexpected landing in Bermuda they decided to stay on here and later secured letters patent from the crown which included the Bermudas in the limits of the Virginian Company.

The distinction of being the oldest self-governing British possession is proudly borne by Bermuda and its tercentenary is one of the notable celebrations in connection with the English settlement of America recently held at Plymouth and Southampton, England.

The ceremonies included meetings in the old St Peters Church at St. Georges where the first legislature met 300 years ago, and in the former state house in that town. They are now concluded with the visit of the Prince of Wales.

IN PITIABLE PLIGHT.

London, Oct. 22—Charles Solloay, who used to train the racehorses of the Russian Emperor is now selling matches and chocolates in the streets here.

DRAWING ON YOUR RESERVE STRENGTH

This is What Thousands of People Throughout the Country Are Doing.

Thousands of Canadian housewives are working from day to day on their nerve. They are daily drawing more and more on their reserve strength, knowing full well that they are using up that vital force which often means life or death in the crisis of disease They are the victims of a feeling of hopeless exhaustion after the performance of even the small tasks which were once the simplest and easiest parts of the day's work. They find the appetite failing, sleep is disturbed and unrefreshing; they lose weight and always feel tired and depressed. In this condition a blood-building tonic is needed to restore health and activity, and for this purpose Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed. Often the trouble will have progressed to a point which makes full recovery slow, but the treatment should be persisted in, and renewed health and activity will be the result.

The case of Mrs. W. Schooley, R. R. No. 2 Tilsonburg, Ont., well illustrates the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of health breakdown, through weak, watery blood. Mrs. Schooley says: "For upwards of five years I felt my strength declining, until at last I could not do light chores around the place. Then a doctor was called about a month he said that only an operation would help me. I did not feel like going through this, and decided that in any event I would wait a while I had no appetite, often had headaches accompanied by dizzy spells several times I had fainting spells, and my legs would swell, and I could not even sweep a floor without resting several times. Again a doctor was called in and he said the trouble was general debility and nervous breakdown. The treatment, however, did not help me, and then one evening as my husband was reading the paper, he came across a case in many respects similar to mine, cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The next day he got me a supply of the Pills, and to their continued faithful use for several months, I owe my present splendid health. I may say that soon after beginning the use of the pills I felt a gradual improvement in my conditon, my appetite improved, I began to feel rested after a night's sleep and I gained in weight My friends were continually expressing surprise at my improved conditon, as it was generally believed I had become a a chronic invalid. I always take a delight in telling them that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are responsible for my present good health, and as they have been a real blessing to me I shall always continue to praise them."

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or weak nerves, begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GREAT DECREASE IN BIRTHRATE

Practically No More Children Born in Russian Cities — Mortality Increases

Constantinople, Oct. 22—T. A. Kuhn, a Lucerne business man who has just arrived here after a five months' trip to Moscow told the correspondent of The Associated Press that the birthrate in the Russian cities had decreased almost to a point where no more children were born, while the deathrate were constantly increasing. The metal industries are the only ones operating, he said. Speaking of the high prices for food and clothing, he added:

"Women in the cities are wearing nondescript dresses made of patched cloth and scraps of lace, scarfs, etc. I cannot see how anyone can live through another winter except the peasants.

"The fact that in Moscow there are many passports of all nations makes it possible to send bolshevist, propagandists all over the world."

Mr. Kuhn returned to Constantinople via Turkestan and Baku. He said that it would be virtually impossible for bolshevists to penetrate India through Turkestan because of the trackless desert and unfriendly Mussulman tribesmen. He said there are 100,000 German prisoners along the railway from Orenburg to Taskent, most of when did not know who won the war.

"In Baku the British and American prisoners were made to clean the streets and they were compelled to live in filth," said Mr. Kuhn.

"I came through Tiflic and was able to observe that the Georgians are subjected to a tyrannous rule imposed by a delegation from Moscow, against which they do not protest."

DRASTIC PUNISHMENT TO AVOID TROUBLE

Striking Ringleaders Threatened With Tieing in Front of Locomotives

Johannesburg, South Africa, Oct. 22—The authorities of Lorenzo Marques, Portuguese East Africa, have given warning to striking railway men in that province that if they attempt to dynamite trains, as threatened, the ringleaders will be bound with ropes and put on a truck in front of locomotives, says the Central News.

Lorenzo Marques has been almost cut off from communication with the hinterland for several days owing to the strike. Martial law has been proclaimed and the railway brigade which is composed of ordinary railway workers, has been ordered out for service. It is reported however, that the majority of the men ignored this order. Work at the port has been at a standstill.

GENERAL UNITY IN FRENCH ELECTION

Mr. Millerand's Candidature Evoked Utmost Enthusiasm and All Parties Agreed Upon His Name

Paris, Oct. 22.—The recent presidential election in Franch must have a great bearing upon French politics for a long time to come, and the controversy that sprang up concerning the powers of the President indicates at least the possibility of a complete change in the constitution which would have the effect of making the powers and functions of the French President approximate to those of the American President.

It is true that on the very eve of the election there sprang up considerable opposition to Mr. Millerand precisely because of his declaration in favor of a revision of the Constitution.

The election was obviously maneuvered from the beginning in favor of Mr. Millerand. For some time it has been known that the Premier could at any moment compel the resignation of the absentee President. It was only a question of awaiting the suitable hour. That hour corresponded with the hour of Mr. Millerand's greatest popularity and political success.

No Lobby Negotiations.

What is more the members of Parliament were scattered all over France. There was no time for the usual negotiations of the lobby. There could be little campaigning and little intriguing. The first intimation of Mr. Deschanel's imminent resignation was made on the Wednesday of one week and on Thursday of the following week the election of Mr. Deschanel's successor was an accomplished fact. When it is remembered that in this single week Parliament had to be called together, candidates chosen and the assembly at Versailles convoked, it will be seen that the odds were all on Mr. Millerand as the man who at that moment was most in the public eye, was the virtual master of France, and who was reaping the reward of his Polish policy which had just triumphed.

To select an opponent in this short space of time was practically impossible. It is true that a number of names were at once mentioned but none of them could, in the circumstances arouse any enthusiasm. None of them had the requisite time to sink into the parliamentary and the public mind.

Thus one after another those who were designated as candidates and enjoyed one or two days' notoriety withdrew from the unenviable position in which they were placed by the insistence of their friends or their own ambition. They realized that their chances were, in the circumstances, hopeless. This was a rush election.

Paradoxes of Politics.

Politics are always paradoxical. Mr. Millerand, a little while before, certainly did not satisfy Parliament. There was even a movement on foot to overthrow him as soon as Parliament reassembled. He had given great dissatisfaction because of his conduct of foreign policy, especially in respect of the German indemnity.

But a change came over the scene. Warsaw was in peril. The Bolsheviki were advancing and were victorious. Nearly every other European country except France, counseled the surrender of the Poles and sought to make peace with the Bolsheviki. It was than that Mr. Millerand played what seemed to be an extraordinary card. It was one on which he stood to win or to lose outright. If he lost he would have lost all. He told the Poles to keep on fighting. He sent General Weygand to their assistance. He recognized General Wrangel, thus flouting the British policy and declaring in a sense war on the Bolsheviki. He angered Mr. Lloyd George. He overthrew all the allied plans for the re-establishment of Europe on a peaceful basis. It seemed a desperate policy in which France stood almost alone although afterward America rallied to her side. France appeared isolated. Mr. Millerand appeared to be strong-headed foolhardy, acting rather in haste than as a steady statesman conscious of the immense issues involved. Even his best friends reproached him for his petulance, for the maner in which he recognized General Wrangel, even though they approved generally of his anti-Bolshvist stand.

There is no doubt that this increased the rupture of France and Great Britain, which had been growing for some time. In short, Mr. Millerand was considered even by those who approved his policy to be too brusque. Events, however, dramatically turned in his favor and seemed to justify him. The Bolsheviki were repulsed. Warsaw did not fall. Mr. Lloyd George himself found cause to quarrel with the Russian representatives with whom he was negotiating, and Mr. Millerand was thus represented to be the only statesman in Europe who had saved the Allies from entering upon the path which led to the recognition and triumph of the Soviets. The Bloc National was overjoyed and Mr. Millerand became its hero again.

Capitol and Tarpeian Rock.

His so-called weakness on the question of the German indemnity was forgiven. His strength on the Russian question had saved him. There is perhaps no country in the world where there are such rapid turns of appreciation of persons as in France. Suddenly a man is carried to the Capitol ,but always the Tarpeian rock is close by. Probably Mr. Millerand's Tarpeian rock awaits him as it awaited Mr. Clemenceau. Had not this crisis arisen exactly when it did, attention would once more have been paid to the German question.

Still, even on the German question, Mr. Millerand has become stronger since the success of his policy of strength against Russia. At San Remo he gave way after stormy interviews to the demand of Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Nitti that the Germans should be met in open conference. At Boulogne the amount of the German debt was tentatively fixed. Mr. Millerand actually met the Germans at Spa, but on this occasion th eproblem of reparations was evaded. Mr. Millerand was, however savagely criticized for having made surrenders both to England and to Germany, reducing the amount of coal to be delivered by Germany and agreeing to the advance of credits to Germany. In fact, Mr. Millerand is a strange mixture of strength and weakenss. Sometimes he will take a stand which he will maintain in the face of all adversaries and apparently against all reason, and at other times his policy shifts and veers.

On the German question he has changed several times. He really seems to agree with the British and with the majority of financial experts that the German indemnity shall be fixed at an early date, but he permits himself to be influenced by the political considerations put forward by the French Parliament. The Geneva Conference was to have been a continuation of Spa, but Mr. Millerand, after giving way to Mr. Lloyd George, on his return to Paris gave way to the French Parliament.

Mr. Millerand Redeemed.

Geneva was postponed, and if Mr. Poincare's flat assertion is to be accepted Geneva is, so far as the French are concerned, definitely abandoned, at least if the Germans are present French policy has reverted to the slow machinery of the Reparations Commission. On this matter the vacillations of Mr. Millerand are by no means to the taste of the Bloc National. But the Polish victory, nevertheless redeems Mr. Millerand.

With regard to home politics he had smashed the great general strike of May last and had been severe against all agitation and revolutionary propaganda in the country. This, of course, won the approval of the Bloc National.

It was in these circumstances that the candidature of Mr. Millerand to the presidency evoked the utmost enthusiasm. All parties agreed upon his name and although there were attempts to bring forward other names the efforts, for want of time and due preparation, were doomed to failure. There was a general unity. From the first moment, from the Wednesday on which it was intimated that Mr. Deschanel would resign, the election of Mr. Millerand seemed to be a certainty.

PASSENGER TRAINS ARE STOPPED IN IRELAND

Dublin, Oct. 22—Refusal of Irish railwaymen to carry munitions or armed men which from time to time holds up trains for which soldiers or police are tendered as passengers has now led to the stoppage of passenger trains over nearly 600 miles of railway.

Every time a train crew refused to carry soldiers, police or munitions they were dismissed. There is now not enough men to keep the traffic moving and the service has had to be cut down accordingly. This has led to great inconvenience and traders are everywhere entering protests. An attempt has been made to relieve the situation by motor truck lines which in many places are regulated by Sinn Fein order.

CHINESE VIEW OF THE CONSORTIUM

It Will Result in Wiping Out of Spheres of Influence in China

New York, Oct. 22—That, under the operation of the international consortium, spheres of influence in China will be wiped out, and that this includes Japan's strangle hold on that country, is the conviction expressed by a high Chinese authority.

It was explained that the agreement under which concessions and holdings by England, France, Japan and the United States in China will be pooled includes all except those which now stand completed; and that this would include a major portion of the Japanese holdings which make it justifiable to speak of that country's position in China as a strangle hold on the economic sovereignty of that Republic.

The exact position of the Peking Government toward the consortium may be stated as follows: The government appreciates the availability for development of the nation's resources, of an international arrangement which takes care to insert in the agreement under which it operates a clause stating that the member groups are working as a unit primarily for the advancement of China herself, with all selfish interests forced into the background by an intention to work for the mutual good of all concerned.

Advantage To China.

The advantage of such an arrangement to China is recognized. That China needs such assistance may readily be seen, because the plans of constructive work of the government will require large sums of money for their effective financing. But China has not, up to this time, asked for a loan, and it cannot be said now whether she intends to ask for one in the near future.

The Chinese people at large are represented as caring little about the consortium, one way or the other; they go along about their business, and pay little, if any, attention to consideration of such an intricate, international character. Whether this indifference would operate against a movement on the part of some of the Chinese financiers to arouse Chinese investment in a plan to take advantage of the consortium's announced intention to welcome Chinese cooperation, could not be said with any definiteness.

Japan's Hold On Chinese Railways.

It was admitted that only by the Japanese surrender of the strangle hold over Chinese railways could China be released from Japanese domination. And it was asserted with all confidence that the consortium stood for exactly this surrender.

NO DIGNITY IN YOUTHS OF TODAY

Italian Count Dislikes Attitude Adopted by the Generation of the Present

Middleboro, October 22.—Count Primo Magri, leaving for an hour the scene of an auction at which were being sold the possessions he had shared for 43 years as the husband of Tom Thumb's widow, discussed life this afternoon.

Not The Same Man.

Today at the age of 71 Count Magri is not the same merry little man who entertained the children of an earlier generation. The death of Countess Magri has left a void which not the biggest person in the world can fill. The fortune that once they made together—made and lost in the risk and extravagance of show life—is now entirely gone. The very furnishings of their household were at the moment being sold to provide him a slender income for his closing days.

As he perched himself on the edge of a chair Count Magri expressed to the reporter this feeling of isolation. He cannot avoid the idea that he belongs to another day. To recall the time when he made his triumphal tours throughout the world with the countess is to bring the light back into his eyes, the smile to his lips. He enoys those reminiscences of how Queen Victoria, Napoleon the Little and Frederick Wilhelm III. entertained them at court, and most of all he loves to tell of his vsit to Egypt in the 80s, when he was the guest of the Khedive and when his midget company put on a special show for the Khedive's harem.

Lack Of Respect Noticeable.

The reporter asked him what, in all these years of travel and observation was his outstanding impression of the changes that are coming in life.

"I think it is in the young people," the count replied, to the astonishment of his interrogator. "They are not the same," he added. "They lack the dignity and restraint.

"My wife and I had occasion to notice this change. The young people of today do not have the respect their fathers and mothers had for other people and for objects worthy of respect.

"Naturally in the show business we were subject to much embarrassment, for we were in a way on exhibition. My wife was always very sensitive in this matter, and although I did not mind it so much, no one likes to be insulted by impudence and impertinence. Of late years when some schoolboy would inquire, 'How small were you when you were young?" or something of that kind, my wife would say, 'Count, do not answer him—do not pay any attention to such a rude young man.'

Says Morals Of Young Bad.

"It seems to me in morals, too, our young people are getting very bad. Think how sad it is to be asked vulgar questions by mere children who aren't old enough even to know such things!

"I suppose," sighed the count, "parents may be somewhat to blame If our models walk with a limp, we limp also. But there is something wrong somewhere. Children are not what they used to be.

"That is one of the trials of our life. When I was 16 years old I weighed just 20 pounds (I weigh 68 today), and my parents sent me to college. Rich friends of our family came to my father and said: 'But why do you send him to college? He cannot be a lawyer or a doctor he is too small:,' Too many people think that because you are small in size that your brains is tiny too.

"I went ahead and secured my education, and it has helped me much. I can speak three languages—Italian, my native tongue English and French. I know history and something of art. All these things have helped me in the show business."

Deplores Modern Tendencies.

"What do you think of tendencies in the show business?" he was asked.

The count shrugged his shoulders expressively and gestured.

"They are making more money than they ever did, but I don't know what to think. The people nowadays want to see a jumble of girls, a jumble of nonsense, a jumble of noise. What is it they do want to see? I have no use for such things. I long for the days of a generation ago, the days of tragedy. Our great actors are all gone now since Mansfield's death. There has never been anyone to take the place of Booth and Barrett."

"Of all the countries you have visited, Count, which one do you like best?"

America Greatest Country.

"Oh!" he said quickly, "there is no question about that. America is the greatest country in the world. I am an American citizen, you know. Yes, we have liberty here, and opportunity. In Italy if a man loses his fortune, it is gone. In America," he paused, "if he is young—he can build it up again.

"It will be sad to leave America when I go back to Italy," he said. "But I have no one left here now, and my nephew in Bologna has told me he will take care of me. And my little money, it will go farther in Bologna than it will go in America."

Portrait of Mrs. GOFF, of Beeches Cottage, Saltney Ferry, near Chester, England, who writes:—

"For five years I suffered greatly from an ulcerated leg, which at one time was covered with open wounds from knee to foot, there being as many as 21 wounds in it at once. I tried all sorts of preparations, and attended the infirmary, but nothing seemed to do me any good and I was sent away from the infirmary as incurable. One day my daughter saw Clarke's Blood Mixture advertised in a newspaper and read it to me, and I decided to give it a trial. Finding the first lot was doing me good I persevered with it, and after having four bottles my leg was completely healed. All this happened some eight years ago, and I have had no return of the trouble ever since."

Sufferers from Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Piles, Eczema, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Gout, should realise that lotions and ointments can but give temporary relief—to be sure of complete and lasting benefit the blood must be thoroughly cleansed of the impure waste matter, the true cause of such troubles. Clarke's Blood Mixture quickly attacks, overcomes, and expels the impurities, that is why so many remarkable recoveries stand to its credit. Pleasant to take and free from injurious ingredients.

COTTON GOODS PRICES LOWER

Many Mills Make Temporary Shutdown While Price Readjustments Are Made

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 22.—Primary cotton goods markets have been more completely at a standstill during the past week than at any time since the end of the war, and the dullness of the market has equaled anything seen in 10 years. There has been practically no buying, either of yarn or fabric and, furthermore, the mills have received little inquiry for prices. Many of the manufacturing plants have remained closed throughout the week, while nearly all remained idle over the week-end until after the holiday, and then ran only two or three days.

Even in second-hand circles trading has been very limited, despite the very low priced offerings made on some staple constructions. Mills find it impossible, at present wage rates, to make and attempt to compete with price levels current on second-hand sales, and buyers are so uncertain that they have ceased to be attracted by price considerations.

In print cloth markets, the week has witnessed the lowest point in the way of prices seen since the war, staple 38½-inch 5.35 yard 65 by 60s being sold for 10 cents a yard. This level is conceded to ve very materially below the present cost of production and compares with 26 cents a yard received for the same kind of goods last May and June. At this new level there was some buying, and it is said that there is an outlet for more goods at 10 cents then were available this week. Southern manufacturers are generally credited with having taken these low-priced orders, the eastern mills not being able to handle business at such levels. Fall River reports total sales for the week of scarcely 10,000 pieces, or considerably less than a normal output for a single day.

The demand for fine fabrics made from combed yarns was absolutely flat and mills making such goods were struggling during the week to ward off cancellations of orders. It has been found that even some of the recently placed orders for fancies and novelty goods either have been cancelled or had the deliveries postponed indefinitely. Aside from the general price tendency downward, the lack of confidence of buyers, and the demoralised state of the raw cotton markets, the fine goods trade has had an additional factor to contend with in the shape of very heavy increases in the imports of this character of fabrics. Foreign textile markets have been going through the same readjustment and experiencing the same price declines and lack of business seen in this country. The result has been that many foreign countries making fine goods have turned to the United States as the only possible outlet for their surplus stock of goods made on the high cost of production England, particularly, has been sending to America great quantities of her highest class of cotton goods Forced liquidation of silks at extremely low prices have also been competitive with the finer kinds of cottons, and althoug there was very little demand felt in this division of the market, what little there was seemed to be completely monopolized by the imported lines. Curtailment at New Bedford reached the highest point seen in several years, the total output being hardly 20 percent of normal for the week.

The bright spot in the outlook was the naming of new prices on certain lines of bleached goods including Fruit of the Loom, and Hope muslin, made by Converse & Co., now selling agents for the B. P. & R. Knight chain of mills. The move is expected to lead the way for other lines to a new trading basis and, if passed along through jobbing and retail circles, is likely to lead to a recovery of confidence among buyers and a gradual resumption of business, although no sudden revival or no rapid advance in prices is looked for.

London, Oct. 22—A society craze for things Spanish seems to be imminent in England. Two Spanish plays are running in London and Spanish singers and dancers are in great demand. Many fashionable women are wearing the high Spanish comb and one sees tentative attempts at the mantilla, or mantilla effects. All the new fashionable dances are said to show distinct leanings toward Spanish interpretation.

IS IMPORTANT IN ARGENTINE TRADE

South American Lawyer Says Relations With Chicago Should be Cultivated

Buenos Aires Oct. 22—Chicago is the most important city in the world from the standpoint of Argentina's foreign trade, both export and import, and should, therefore, be the seat of Argentina's principal consulate, according to Dr. Enrique Gil, an Argentine lawyer, who has just arrived in Buenos Aires from New York. Dr. Gil declared that both exporters and importers in Argentina are losing money because they are not in touch with Chicago conditions and prices, this being especially true in the meat-packing industry. He pointed out that Chicago is the world center for cereals and packed meat, the two principal industries of Argentina, and that it consequently is the center for the production of agricultural machinery used in Argentina.

As specific examples of money losses to Argentines through lack of information regarding Chicago, he said that cattle-raisers receive 17 cents gold a pound from the Chicago packers for the same grade of meat that these same packers refuse to pay more than 17 centavos for in Argentina, the Chicago price being 50 per cent. above the Argentine price; and that certain Chicago agricultural machinery is sold to Chile at lower prices than to Argentina. These conditions, he maintained, could be overcome by obtaining proper information for the Argentine business men through a first-class consulate.

Dr. Gil's declaration that Chicago packers pay the same gold prices in the United States that they pay in Argentine currency here bears out the charges recently made by cattle growers here, which charges are now being investigated for presentation to Congress. He did not criticize the methods of the Chicago packers, however, but put all the blame on the Argentine Government and Argentine cattle growers for not keeping themselves fully informed as to what is going on in Chicago.

Under present conditions the price paid in Buenos Aires for Argentine cereals and cattle are fixed in Chicago and not in Buenos Aires, according to Dr. Gil, in addition to which the maritime freight service is in foreign hands, to the further prejudice of Argentine interests. He urged closer co-operation among Argentine interests in each industry to the end that they might be freed from foreign domination.

"But I do not want to be understood as saying that the Chicago interests are exploiting Argentine interests," emphasized Dr. Gil, "or that they are trying to predominate our markets. The directors of the Chicago organizations are too intelligent and have too fine a sense of economic laws to permit anything like that. But the production of our agricultural and animal riches is without any kind of organization, while everything that has to do with the fixing of prices and transportation is in the hands of well-organized foreigners which automatically puts us in our present inferior position."

What little information there is in Buenos Aires regarding Chicago quotations, according to Dr. Gil, is in the hands of a few business men who profit by it, whereas such information ought to be furnished to the public at large by the Argentine Government. He even suggested that the Chicago consulate be put in charge of the Commercial Attache to the Argentine Embassy in Washington, this officer being a diplomat, instead of a commercial official. While the Chicago consulate, if in charge of a high-salaried officer of career, would not at present be self-supporting from the fees received, Dr. Gil believes that the benefits that would accrue to Argentina through such a consulate would more than recompense any expense. While he believes that many manufactured goods can be purchased in the United States cheaper than they can be produced here, he believes that consuls af career in the principal cities could advise Argentine capitalists regarding many goods that could be produced to advantage here.

Dr. Gil said that commercial relations between the United States and the Argentine Republic could be materially improved if all the Argentine consuls in the United States were paid a salary in keeping with their position, he charging that most of them are not paid as much as good stenographers, to say nothing of electricians.

ENGLISH NOW IN SERBIAN SCHOOLS

Being Introduced All Over Country — Compulsory in Normal Schools

Belgrade, Serbia, Oct. 22—English is being introduced throughout the schools of Serbia. It is now made a compulsory subject in the normal schools. The first courses in English, which were inaugurated in Belgrade a year ago under an American teacher, Dr James Wild, of Chicago, have yielded such excellent results that the government has decided to make the language a part of the circular of all schools.

Hitherto the dominating language of the Serbians, apart from their native tongue, has been German. The Germans were quick to see the advantages of introducing their language as a means of acquainting the school children with the ways and customs of the German people. The pupils were given little chance of acquiring the things that go to make up the life and culture of Anglo-Saxon civilization.

A very large proportion of Serbia's school teachers were killed in war, 800 having died during the Bulgarian occupation. Scores of school buildings were destroyed, and most of the school-books printed in the Serbian language were deliberately confiscated and burned by the Bulgars. Even Bibles were carried off, the object of the Bulgarians being to displace all books in the Serbian language with publications in their own tongue.

Notwithstanding these disasters, out of 2100 schools in Serbia, nearly 2,000 have reopened. So great is the thirst for education in Serbia that it is a common thing for children in the country districts to leave their homes before daybreak and walk for several hours to reach school, not returning home until late in the evening. The school buildings, owing to the ravages of war, often are without window panes, heating, desks, books and even writing material.

So great is the shortage of teachers and the influx of pupils that the former have to work from dawn until night, taking their classes in "relays."

CHAMA'S PLIGHT IS SERIOUS ONE

Stern Well Down, Bottom Torn Open, No. 1 Hold Full Of Water.

The Elder-Dempster Line steamer Chama, which went ashore during a fog on Thursday morning on the South Shore at Bellechasse, some thirty miles east of Quebec in the St Lawrence River, is said to be in a more serious position than was at first thought. Her stem is reported to be well down with the bottom torn open and No. 1 hold full of water, while her stern is standing up at an angle of some forty degrees. The wrecking steamer Lord Strathcona, with the tug Gopher and the wrecking schooner G. T. D., that went to her assistance yesterday afternoon, are standing by the vessel, with a gang of Quebec ship laborers to assist in the lightering of the vessel. The Chama was on her way from Montreal to South Africa with a full cargo when the accident occurred, and yesterday the wrecking crew of the Strathcona and the G. T. D. were engaged in pumping out the water, while the cargo in hola No. 1, comprising automobiles and heavy machinery, was being removed to lighters. Mr. E. W. Campbell, Canadian Agent for the Elder-Dempster Line, arrived in Quebec yesterday morning and proceeded down to the wreck, where the operations of salvage is in charge of Capt. H. Kjerland, Superintendent of the Quebec Salvage and Wrecking Company. It is the intention as soon as the cargo is out of No. 1 hold, to seal the ship with the aid of lumber and install an air pressure plant. An effort will then be made to haul the vessel from her stranded position into deep water.

No details as to how the accident occurred have as yet been given out. The captain of the steamer, the pilot and officers refuse to make a statement until they are called upon to give evidence at the official investigation.

TRAWLER TURNS UP.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 22— Aspecial cable from London to the Evening Echo states that the C. D.-37, one of the small fleet of trawlers and drifters, which left Halifax on October 1 for the North of Scotland, via the Azores, and which was thought to have foundered in mid-Atlantic, has arrived safely at Queenstown, Ireland.

SCHOONER WATERLOGGED

Fort Pierce, Florida, Oct. 22— Waterlogged with sails fully set and lifeboats intact but not a soul on board, the Canadian schooner Adonia has drifted ashore opposite Jensen and is fast being battered to pieces by the heavy seas The crew, according to a message from Jupiter Lighthouse, was picked up by a passing steamer and saved, though their present whereabouts had not been learned.

The Adonia is a three-masted schooner owned by the Adonis Co., of Wolfville, N.S.

DOUBLE BUNKER COAL FOR LINERS REQUESTED

Montreal, Oct. 22—Cable notification was received by the Robert Reford Co. today from Britain asking for the double bunkering of the Saturnia and Cassandra running between here and Glasgow. The impression in shipping circles in Montreal is that the present strike situation will be saved by its very seriousness.

"We are informed," said one shipping authority, "that the present situation is so serious that it cannot last any length of time. The worse it becomes the sooner it will come to an end."

When queried regarding a probable walk-out of the dock workers, third in the triple-alliance of labor, another local shipping authority said that it would mean the complete disorganization of Canadian shipping schedules.

GEORGIE PULLED INTO DEEP WATER

Was Re-Floated Much Earlier Than Had Been Thought Possible.

The French Co. steamer Georgie, under charter by the Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., which went ashore at Sillery on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, was refloated at 2:35 o'clock yesterday afternoon and will proceed on to Montreal. The Georgie, a 7,000-ton gross steamer, was on her way from Bordeaux, France, with 800 tons of wines and brandies, and passed Quebec harbor on her way up at 12:20 Thursday afternoon, but forty minutes later went ashore during a prevailing fog. Ship laborers worked all Thursday night and yesterday morning unloading cargo into lighters, and had removed 140 tons, which were shipped yesterday to Montreal by the Canada Steamship Lines steamer Montreal. In the meantime, Mr. P. P. McCaffrey, Superintendent of the Canada Steamship Lines, came on to Quebec and conferred with the Quebec Agent and Mr. George D. Davie, manager of the Davie shipbuilding plant and an experienced wrecker. The latter went to Sillery and, after inspecting the condition of the Georgie, said he thought he could pull her off with high tide in the afternoon. Accordingly the Busy Bee, with Captain Alphonse Bernier, was engaged, and yesterday at two o'clock made fast a four-inch hawser to the steamer at high tide. She commenced to pull when the hawser broke with the strain. The steamer Georgie then furnished a seven-inch hawser, and the Busy Bee with full steam on again hauled at the big vessel and succeeded in hauling her into deep water at 2:35 o'clock, much to the surprise of the steamship men, who were fully convinced that they would have to wait for a higher tide next Sunday with all the cargo out, before they would make the attempt to pull the vessel off. The Georgie is not making any water in her hold, but the extent of the damage done to her bottom cannot be determined until the ship goes into dry dock. In the meantime the steamer will continue on to Montreal to discharge the balance of her cargo, and, if she can be accommodated, will return to Quebec and be placed in the Levis drydock.

CHANGE IN LOCATION OF COTTON INDUSTRY

Atlanta, Oct. 22—That the cotton manufacturing industry is rapidly moving toward the cotton growing states and decreasing in other sections of the country is pointed out in statistics recently prepared by Hal M. Stanley, state commissioner of commerce and labor. "While there are still 4,244,847 more active spindles in all the other states than in the cotton growing commonwealths," Mr. Stanley says, "it is fast being realized that much better results can be had by manufacturing cotton where it is grown, and in a few years it seems certain that the states growing the fleecy staple will soon outnumber all of the others in the number of active spindles", for the year ending Aug. 1920, there was an increase in active Spindles in the cotton growing states of 579,163, according to Mr. Stanley's statistics, as against a decrease in all of the other states during the same period of 312,831 spindles.

CANADA'S LAST INWARD TRIP

Dominion Liner Docked Yesterday From Liverpool—Fine Bit Of Seamanship.

The Dominion Line steamer Canada, from Liverpool with Capt. J. W. Christie in command, bringing 985 passengers, 485 cabin and 520 third-class, arrived at Quebec yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. The tide being on the rise the Canada proceeded up the river a short distance, and turning without the aid of tug boats, came to her dockage at the Louise Docks Breakwater in line with Shed 18. The clean-cut dockage of the Canada, without assistance, was a piece of good seamanship that evoked the favorable comment of the river men and other spectators.

At 11:30 o'clock the third-class passengers were landed and conducted to the immigration buildings for civil and medical inspection, and at three o'clock were forwarded to their destinations West by two special trains, one supplied by the C. P. R. and the other by the C. N. R. Besides the British immigrants there were a number of Jews, all young men and women. This is the last trip for this season of the SS. Canada in the St. Lawrence route. Her next trip from Liverpool will be to Portland, Me.

NEWSPRINT FROM FINLAND OFFERED IN U. S.

Makers Arrive in New York to Place 210,000 Tons on the Market — Will Meet all Competition

New York, Oct. 22—Finland is about to become a competitor in the American print paper market. Hjalmar Gronvik, managing director of the Finnish Paper Mill Union, and Walter Grassbeck, managing director of the Finnish Cellulose Association, made that fact known yesterday upon their arrival on board the steamship Stockholm, of the Swedish American line, from Gothensberg, Sweden. They said that about 210,000 tons of paper will be put on the American market, and that the foreign manufacturers will be prepared to meet all competition. Finland's paper makers, according to the two visitors, realize the crisis in the newsprint situation in the United States, and are prepared to make the most of the opportunity.

"Finlands main industry is the making of wood pulp and paper," Mr. Grassbeck said. "She now produces 50,000 tons of chemical pulp, which goes into all grades, especially the highest grades of paper, and 30 per cent. is coming to the United States."

CLOTHING AT COST.

U. S. Dealers Say They Are Prepared To Forget Profits.

Chicago, Oct. 22—Retail clothing dealers throughout the country have determined to sell to the public at cost, according to Andrew Burkhardt president of the National Association of Retail Clothiers.

"I know I am speaking for the entire retail clothing trade," Mr. Burkhardt's statement read. "Rightfully or wrongfully, the public is determined to get lower prices. Continual increases in costs during recent years have brought consumers to a state where they no longer can be appealed to by sheer reason. Arguments and facts do not budge them.

"It is of no avail to show our costs on the goods we are selling today have not come down. The public wants cheaper goods, and does not care how it gets them.

"Both manufacturer and retailer have bought their goods at highest prices, but it does no good for us to tell that to our consumers. So all parties in the clothing industry, from manufacturer to retailer, have determined to forget their usual profits and the result is that today clothing is being retailed in many places at prices that represent no profit at all, while, in some establishments, certain lines are being sold at less than the cost of production.

"Retailers are doing these things neither from panic nor necessity, but for the reason they know the country just now is passing through a temporary period of deflation and unsettlement, and that at such times it is important, above all things, to regard the good-will of the consuming public, and keep the wheels of business turning."

A New Principle in Complexion Treatment

Most creams are injurious when used habitually. They clog the pores and eventually form a permament, soggy, stifling film which interferes with eliminative action and makes the skin sickly and pasty. There is an application — mercolized wax—which acts upon an entirely different principle. While perfectly harmless it has the peculiar property of removing by absorption the dead and half-dead particles of scarf-skin as well as unhealthy matter in the pores. Thus it takes away from instead of adding to the complexion, differing in this respect from cosmetics. The result is a perfectly natural and healthy young complexion. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient) is applied at night like cold cream.

The correct principle in the treatment of wrinkles is to tighten the skin, which naturally irons out the lines. A face bath, remarkably effective in this direction, may be made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel.

Deferred Buying

Shortage of liquid capital is forcing on the market goods carried by producers and distributors. The public demand for these commodities—temporarily deferred by a universal revolt against high prices—must ultimately be filled. It will be filled by increase in production on a more reasonable basis of cost.

The view that contraction in business will not be of long duration is backed up by a careful analysis of prevailing trade conditions in the current issue of the Greenshields Review.

ABOLITION OF LAW ADVOCATED

Comptroller Of U.S. Currency Gives Opinion On High Interest Rates Remedy.

(Christian Science Monitor)

Abolition of the New York state law which permits banks to charge any rate they may wish on call loans of $5000 or more is the principal necessity to remedy the call money situation, according to John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency.

At present, he said, New York is the only city where such latitude is permitted the banks. Usury regulation is urgently needed, and in particular secret fixing of an artificial renewal rate, by a committee of men not even known to the public, should be liminated.

The causes are so clear, Mr. Williams contended, that the remedy practically suggests itself. Proper cooperation of banks to avoid, rather than to stimulate, high interest on call money would have avoided, Mr. Williams thought, a shrinkage of billions of dollars in security values.

The artificial renewal rate fixed by the committee mentioned was charged by all banks in New York, and those obliged to borrow money had to accept it without any means of protecting themselves in case it should prove unjust. Mr. Williams said that he had obtained, on oath, statements from New York financiers showing only a few thousand dollars loaned at 7 per cent, whereas hundreds of millions were loaned at much higher rates.

Many letters of congratulation have reached him during the last few days, since his statement on the call money situation was given to the public. Some of the letters asked for the names of banks not connected with the two great financial groups which are said to dominate New York, and therefore the entire country.

Mr. Williams in connection with his assertion that usury regulations should be adequate and effective, recalled his views on the subject as expressed in his annual report for 1918, in which he cited the results of an investigation conducted in that year by the Treasury Department. It showed that 1247 national banks out ort 7600 were then openly charging more than the legal rate of interest in their states, and that 2743 were charging as much as 10 per cent on some loans. One bank admitted charging an average of 40 per cent on all loans Rates as high as 77 per cent were discovered.

The provision of the New York banking law, Mr. Williams pointed out now enables lenders to escape the penalties for usury which exist in most other states. When renewal rates are fixed by this secret committee, he said, the borrower has no alternative. The banks generally conform to the posted rates.

Public sentiment, Mr. Williams believed, should be able to bring reforms. Secret and arbitrary manipulation of money rates must be ended and can be if banks realize that they not only owe a duty to their customers quite as important as earning questionable dividends for stock holders, but that enduring business must be based on constructive effort rather than speculation.

In connection with the controversy between Mr. Williams and the bankers now in session at Washington, J. N. C. Stockton of Jacksonville, Florida, a banker of 25 years' experience, sent a message to the bankers' convention on Tuesday, a copy of which also was delivered to Mr. Williams, protesting against the bankers' view that money is a commodity to be sold to the highest bidder.

"Money is not a commodity, but money is a trust, and those that have a surplus of money in excess of their needs and business requirements to let to the public as lenders become masters, and the borrowers become slaves", Mr. Stockton asserted. "Therefore the highest sense of fairness and justice should prevail in the mind of the money lender, who would dispense credit at a rate of interest whereby the borrower can make a profit."

Commercial and Financial News

CLOSING LETTERS BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

(By Canadian Press)

New York, Oct. 22—The Stock Market again rose and fell mostly within a contracted area today, the aimless drift of prices and light dealings expressing the further indecision of traders in the absence of definite factors.

Gains predominated among the usual leaders, however, until the final half hour when the rate for demand loans suddenly rose to 10 per cent, the maximum of the week, on the withdrawal of funds by local and interior banks.

Despite the late reaction a few stocks such as Canadian Pacific, Utah Copper, Studebaker, Mexican Petroleum and United Fruit, registered net gains, ranging from 1 to 1 1-2 points. Losses among the industrial leaders, notably steels, equipments and food specialties were limited to fractions. Sales amounted to 425,000 shares.

Apart from the money, flurry, which seemed to be regarded as a temporary incident most of the day's developments were of an encouraging character.

Favorable inferences were drawn from the deadlock in the British industrial situation.

The success of the $25,000,000 loan to Denmark offered by local banking interests and indications of extensive accumulation of highgrade bonds bore further testimony to the stability of the investment market.

Moderate recoveries in the foreign exchange market, particularly the British rate, resulted primarily, according to dealers, from relaxation of recent pressure caused by extensive offerings of grain and cotton bills.

Usual leaders in the bonds market were overshadowed in speculative interest by the new foreign flotations. Interborough issues lost some of their recent advances. Liberty issues were irregular and most of the other domestic rails and industrials eased slightly.

Total sales (par value) were $16,475,000.

Old United States bonds were unchanged on call.

The improvement is a result of higher prices, both for ground wood and sulphite pulp, as well as to a liberal saving in the operators of the Chandler Sulphite mill, where it is said that a saving in coal consumption of as much as fifty tons per day has been made. A further rumor associated the company with Price Bros in a possible merger through which would be settled the dispute re certain water power besides other economies would be effected.

SIR HENRY DRAYTON WILL MEET TORONTONIANS

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 22—Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, has expressed a desire to meet the various financial groups of Toronto to discuss various current financial topics. A meeting has accordingly been called to be held on Monday, October 25, on the floor of the Toronto Stock Exchange, to which stock brokers, members of the Bond Dealers and Bankers' Association, and life and loan companies have been invited.

Not a few of the stock brokers declare that they are eager to take up both the question of the securities embargo and that of the control of the Victory Bonds with the Minister of Finance, and it is probable that the latter will hear some pretty vigorous expressions of opinion in condemnation of both these institutions

CLOSING LETTERS BY THE LOCAL BROKERS

(By Bruneau & Dupuis)

New York, Oct. 22—The market today has been dull and uninteresting, somewhat heavy in the early afternoon owing to the advance in money. The advance came in the afternoon when there was but little supply for the late requirements. The matter of main interest is still the English labor situation. There is still however, some possibilities of a settlement of the difficulty and a hopeful sign is the advance in the exchange rate. There was a reaction in local tractions due to the decision of the court of appeals that the public service committee did not have any authority to alter fares fixed by franchise agreements.

Total sales 409,800.

(By Breen & Gourdeau)

New York, Oct. 22—The week's fluctuations in stock market prices were decidedly irregular, and at no time did the market actually emerge from the comparatively narrow trading rut into which it settled some time ago. Trading, also, was still very professional in character. Public interest found little of an encouraging nature in the news and, therefore, failed to participate in speculative commitments to any marked extent.

In the early sessions a positively hesitant mood was reflected with prices moving within a rather small area, but a gradually improving tendency was witnessed during midweek. Subsequently unfavorable British labor developments tended to have an unsettling effect, with the result that prices broke sharply to new low levels for the current movement.

Selling by professional traders for the short account was attributed for the decline, and which was confirmed later when prices received virtually all of the losses in an almost equally rapid manner.

The advance in the call money rate to ten per cent around the close of the week led to a further restriction in trading.

On the whole, the news and developments of the week that might be construed as of marketwise importance were not of sufficient influence upon sentiment to bring about a renewal of speculative activity.

Briefly, the market is a waiting one, and until a definite improvement may be seen as to the future the indications are that little or no change from present conditions may be had.

Sales, stocks, 409,800; bonds, $15,614,000.

ALLEGE TO SHOW DISPOSITION OF GOLD

Moscow, Oct. 22—Extracts alleged to be taken from the reports of Admiral Kolchak's minister of finance, M. Bourychkin, printed today in the newspaper, Economic Life, purport to show the disposition of part of the Russian gold reserve seized by the Czecho-Slovaks at Kasan during the summer of 1918. It is claimed that the documents which are the basis from the disclosures, were captured when the reds took Omsk, Kolchak's capital, in November last year.

According to the newspaper's statement $1,696,887 worth of the gold was used to purchase war material from the Allies or placed on deposit in foreign banks to guarantee loans from Japan and an Anglo-American syndicate

THE EXCHANGE RATE

III.—What Controls It?

IN No. II. of this series we explained why foreign dollars in a banker's hands are merely an evidence of indebtedness, a commodity to be bought or sold.

In order to make use of the credit these represent, he must first exchange them for the currency of his own country and this he does by sending them to a bank in the country in which they were issued. This means not only the labor of counting and sealing the parcel, but the cost of postage and the premium for insuring it against loss on the way.

The Bank to which he sends it must either remit payment for the foreign dollars in gold (the intrinsic value of pure gold being equal in all countries) paying express charges and insurance on the parcel, or if the bank has a credit balance in the country from which the foreign dollars came, it may give a cheque against that balance to the sending banker.

It was to avoid this cumbersome, risky and unsatisfactory way of settling international debts by the transfer of gold that the system of Bills of Exchange was brought into use, and we will try to explain that system next week.
