BEVIN SAYS RUSSIA TO BLAME IF WAR COMES

World News In Brief

Paris, Sept. 27.—(P)—Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain today urged speedy United Nations action on Count Folke Bernadotte's recommendations for Palestine. He called it "the best hope for healing the breach" between Arabs and Jews.

Bevin reiterated his country's support for the Holy Land solution offered by the slain mediator "in its entirety" in Britain's major policy address to the General Assembly.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—(P)—The Socialist press claimed today that the Russians are throwing thousands of new victims into concentration camps in eastern Germany's intensified purge of anti-Communists.

The official Social Democrat described what it called "transports of misery" headed for Buchenwald, the former Nazi concentration camp in Thuringia.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—(P)—Berlin's city government told the four occupying powers today they should get out of Berlin if they cannot settle their differences.

The proposal was in a resolution drafted by the executive branch of the government and read to a meeting of the city council by acting Mayor Ferdinand Friedensburg.

Blind River, Ont., Sept. 27.—(P)—John J. Fitzgerald, president of the Social Credit League of Ontario, will oppose External Affairs Minister Pearson in the October 25 federal by-election in Algoma East.

This was announced here today as the outcome of meetings held by the Social Credit league in the four largest towns in the scattered constituency—Blind River, Thessalon, Espanola and Chapleau.

Singapore, Sept. 27.—(P)—Police said Communist gunmen killed a Malay detective and a Chinese constable yesterday at Sungai Pelek, a village in Selangor state. Police offered a $5,000 reward and a free trip to China for information leading to the arrest of the slayers.

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 27.—(P)—The newspaper El Tiempo said yesterday that lepers from a colony at Rio Agua de Dios had begun a march on Bogota. The newspaper said the lepers, 300 of whom already have left the colony, were staging the march as a protest of insufficient allotments of government funds for food and other necessities.

Western Powers Expected To Stand Firm In Berlin

By WES GALLAGHER
Berlin, Sept. 27.—(P)—The western powers will stand firm in Berlin against the Russian, foreign and German political circles here predict.

Britain and the United States are expected to throw a mighty effort into the western air shuttle to keep the Russian-blockaded city supplied with food, fuel and other necessities.

Here is the situation as it is viewed in this Russian-throttled city:

In the confusion of diplomatic talk over trade, currency, finance and the airlift, the real issues at stake can be lost in a maze of subsidiary problems. The main issue is simple enough, although none of the five have been so undiplomatic as to say so in simple language.

The Soviet Union wants to dominate Germany. To do so, the Russians must smash the proposed western German state and its economic recovery. By forcing the western allies from Berlin, the Russians could undermine the prestige of the west, not only in western Germany, but in all western Europe.

Europe would see in the fate of Berlin what it saw in Munich in 1938.

So the Russians have set out to drive the westerners from Berlin. Meanwhile, the western powers, reviewing three years of compromise, broken promises and constant retreats before the Soviet Union, decided to stand firm.

Great Demonstration By UN Delegates Marks Blistering Speech By British Minister

Western Allies Say Russia Is Threatening World Peace

By JOSEPH DYNAN
Paris, Sept. 27.—(P)—Britain, the United States and France last night accused Russia of threatening world peace by her actions in Berlin and sent the issue to the United Nations Security Council.

Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, State Secretary Marshall of the United States and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France met twice at the French Foreign Ministry and then announced their decision to break off direct negotiations with the Russians.

The Russians earlier had demanded control over Allied air traffic and a single Russian-controlled currency in the city as their price for lifting the 100-day-old blockade.

The Russian proposal was termed "unsatisfactory," and the western powers emphasized their determination to maintain their positions in Berlin. They reserved the right to take such steps as might be necessary to do so.

The three Foreign Ministers said the Russians threatened world peace by the use of force and duress in attempting to dislodge the western powers from the former German capital.

A 14-point message to the Kremlin was drafted by the Foreign Ministers and delivered last midnight to Russian ambassadors in Paris, London and Washington.

A formal note submitting the Berlin crisis to the Security Council is to be sent today to Trygve Lie, U.N. Secretary-General.

The western powers reviewed the history of the east-west bargaining sessions in the Kremlin, which began last July, and accused Russia of using force and duress in the effort to incorporate the city in the surrounding Russian occupation zone of Germany.

They said force was used in attempts by Berlin Communists to overthrow the legally-elected Berlin city government. The blockade is duress, they said.

In reviewing the prolonged negotiations in Moscow and Berlin, the western powers said agreements reached with Prime Minister Stalin for a simultaneous lifting of the blockade and circulation of only Russian money in Berlin were nullified by the position of the Russian military governor, Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, in the Berlin talks.

British officials said the appeal to the Security Council will invoke article 39 of chapter seven of the charter. Under this article the Council is empowered to use even force, if necessary, to carry through a decision. U.N. delegates have said the debate may break

Foreign Secretary Warns Russians That Britain Will Defend Herself Against Any Soviet Attack.

By LOUIS NEVIN

Paris, Sept. 27.—(P)—

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain, in a blistering attack on the Soviet Union, said today the Russians alone would be responsible for a new world war.

United Nations General Assembly delegates cheered the Foreign Secretary at the close of Britain's major policy speech in one of the greatest demonstrations in U. N. history.

Bevin, frequently departing from his prepared text, spoke to the Assembly as the three western powers turned their Berlin dispute with the Russians over to the Security Council.

Addressing Soviet deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky directly, Bevin warned that Britain would defend herself against any Russian attack.

Vishinsky took notes throughout the Foreign Secretary's speech. Bevin accused the Russians of insincerity, untruthfulness and evasion. He declared, "With all the solemnity at my disposal," that "if the black fury, the incalculable disaster of atomic war should fall upon us, all I can say is, that one power . . . will alone be responsible for the evils which may be visited upon mankind."

When he had finished talking, all except the Russian delegates and their satellites jumped to their feet to cheer and applaud the British delegate. Cries of "bravo" and "tres bien" could be heard outside the assembly hall.

Vishinsky strode from the hall, his face set in a grim mask, immediately after Bevin had finished.

As he did in a speech before the British House of Commons last Wednesday, Bevin again referred gravely to the possibility of a third world war in this generation.

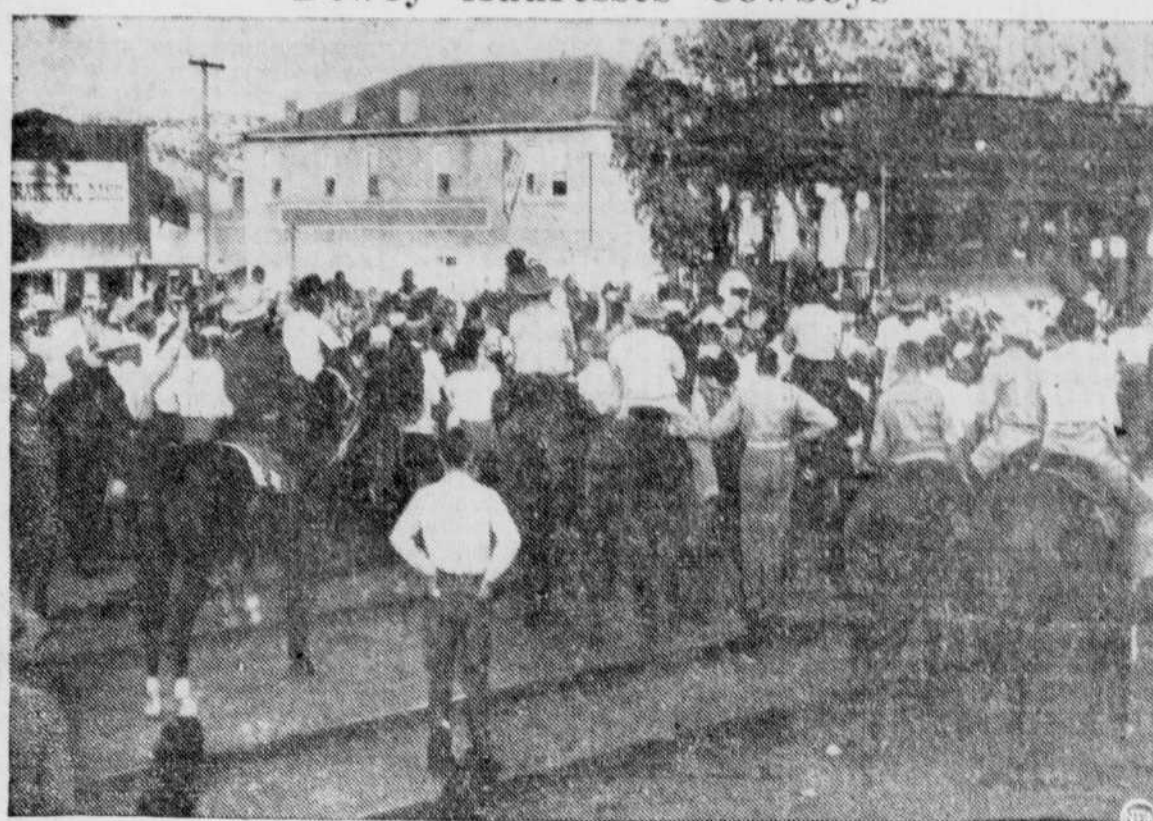

He added a new gloomy note in a hint that Britain already envisages the end of the United Nations unless the east-west conflict can be solved.

"If we cannot proceed on a world basis as we had hoped, we must proceed on a regional basis," he said.

Bevin replied directly by name to Vishinsky's speech Saturday. In that speech the Russian called

Work On PC Resolutions Will Begin

Committee to Start Drafting 500 Resolutions Tomorrow.

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

Canadian Press Staff Writer,
Ottawa, Sept. 27.—(P)—A 100-man resolutions committee will start work here tomorrow on close to 500 resolutions submitted for insertion in the Progressive Conservative party's platform.

The committee will be an advance guard of delegates to the party's national convention Sept. 30, Oct. 1-2. Headed by F. G. Gardiner of Toronto, it will work on the resolutions for the two days preceding the convention. It is expected to report to the general assembly Oct. 1.

It is not known how many of the resolutions the committee will recommend for incorporation into the party's platform.

Representation on the committee by provinces includes:

Prince Edward Island, five;

Nova Scotia, nine; New Brunswick, eight and Quebec 50.

A major battle may be fought on the question of Communism. The Alberta delegation has urged in a resolution that proper action be taken to suppress Communist activities in Canada. The Quebec delegation has urged the outright banning of the Communist party.

Resolutions from all provinces have urged that the party go on record in favor of heavy tax reductions.

The Quebec delegates have asked that the party support the calling of a new Dominion-Provincial conference which would deal with the housing problem and with redistribution of taxation rights between the Dominion and the Provinces.

Sen. Bouchard Becomes Blind

Montreal, Sept. 27.—(P)—Sen. T. D. Bouchard, director of the weekly paper Le Clarion and leader of a political school of thought among French-Canadians opposed to extreme French-Canadian nationalism, in his last article for his newspaper, announced that he had become blind while undergoing a medical examination Aug. 5 and that he would retire from his journalistic activities in which he started more than 50 years ago.

He wrote "I was losing my sight," and he described how his indisposition had forced him to leave his many organizational tasks, related to his political activities, to his friends and political supporters.

Blaming his opponents for his poor health, Sen. Bouchard said in the article "the breakdown of my health is but the consequence of the public attacks of which I have been the object on the part of the enemies of free opinions and of the subterranean manoeuvres directed against me by their partisans."

Freight Rate Increases Are Assailed

Seven Provinces Make Joint Submission to Federal Cabinet.

By JOHN LEBLANC

Canadian Press Staff Writer,
Ottawa, Sept. 27.—(P)—Appealing to the Cabinet against last spring's freight-rate increase, several provincial governments today attacked the rate award as wrong in general principle and on many specific points.

In a joint submission, the provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec—asked the Governor-in-Council to throw out the award or send the whole case back to the Board of Transport Commissioners with orders to re-examine particular aspects of the case.

Today's appeal marked the third time the provincial governments have been before the Cabinet in connection with the Board's March 23 award of a general 21 per cent increase in rates for the railways.

Earlier, they protested the decision and called for a Royal Commission on rates.

The seven governments also are fighting a current attempt by the railways to get a new 20 per cent rate hoist, but that issue was not before the Cabinet today.

Quebec Delegates Urged To Back Drew As P.C. Leader

Special to the Record

Quebec, Sept. 27.—Mark Drouin, K.C., outlined today at a press conference here a 14-point message that has been sent to Quebec's 322 delegates to the Progressive Conservative party's national convention.

The message is a plea for support for Premier George Drew of Ontario for the leadership of the party.

The message, in pamphlet form, is signed by Mr. Drouin, prominent in Progressive Conservative and National Union activities in this province, and by John Bassett, Jr., editor and vice-president of the Sherbrooke Daily Record and a member of the Provincial executive of the party.

The message was sent out "in belief that a brief statement of the outstanding qualifications of George Drew for the leadership of our party will clarify Quebec's task in helping to choose a leader who will win the next general election."

It was issued without Premier Drew's knowledge and without his bidding.

It said:

"In common with the rest of Canada, Quebec needs George Drew because:

"1. He is a truly national figure who appreciates and understands Quebec.

"2. In his own Province he has won the respect and support of the French-speaking citizens.

"3. In the last Provincial election he won six of the seven seats in Ontario that have French-speaking majorities.

"4. These seats were all formerly Liberal strongholds until George Drew won them for our party.

"5. By his appointment of a French-speaking cabinet minister for Ontario he has proven his respect for French-speaking citizens.

"6. Before all Canada George Drew has spoken with pride of his association with Quebec in his fight for Provincial rights.

"7. April 15, 1948, in the Ontario Legislature George Drew said: 'May I say to the honorable members of this Legislature, and leave no doubt, that I will be happy to walk arm in arm with Mr. Duplessis.'

"8. Later in the same speech he said: 'One of the most important questions before us today, in Canada, is whether we will fan the embers of past misunderstandings or seek in every way we can to find a broader basis for co-operation and friendship.'

"9. Again in the same speech he said: 'Mr. Duplessis: I have dealt with no man in public life who has extended a greater measure of co-operation to this government and the people of this province.'

"10. George Drew is the champion of Provincial rights. As our leader he will oppose Mr. St. Laurent, the champion of the con-

Four Rescued Fliers Taken To Ottawa

Fifth Returns to Northland to Attempt to Salvage Plane.

Ottawa, Sept. 27.—(P)—Capt. Sir Robert Stirling Hamilton, his wife, three children and a 12-year-old Chinese dog "vanished" today for four days of rest and to forget an incident described by Sir Robert as "a nightmare."

The naval adviser to the United Kingdom High Commissioner and his family left at dawn today for an undisclosed location, hoping to escape from memory the gruelling 12 days of wandering in the wilds of northern Manitoba.

His companions, Capt. Ben Scott Custer, United States naval attaché, Custer's aide, Charles Wilcox of Oskaloosa, Iowa, and U.S. Army Master Sergeant J. Sealise of Cambridge, Mass., are still in Ottawa, recuperating from experiences that might have meant their death.

Only person still waiting and still apprehensive is Mrs. Jack Kastner, wife of Chief Petty Officer Kastner of Tucson, Ariz., pilot of a beached U. S. naval aircraft. The veteran U. S. pilot returned 235 miles north of The Pas, Man., to help salvage the plane he piloted in a perfect crash landing into knee-deep muskeg.

Mrs. Kastner hopes he'll come home safely and soon. She and a six-week-old baby boy are waiting.

On Saturday night when the R.C.A.F. Lancaster brought the four men home, soiled and weary, she was there listening to Capt. Custer unfold the story of bad flying weather, failure of two compasses and the crash landing on a 450-mile trip from Churchill to The Pas.

Capt. Custer told of days of hunting and hoping and living on berries, squirrels, porcupine and blueberries, of climbing over endless fallen timbers and of falling on their knees in one final act of reverence when a Canadian plane at last came down and wagged its wings over them.

Sealise and Kastner will be recommended to the Secretary of the Navy, said Capt. Custer, "for their qualities as woodsmen and riflemen."

Berlin Dispute Is Biggest Test For United Nations

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

Canadian Press Staff Writer,
Lake Success, N.Y., Sept. 27.—

—The United Nations faces its severest test when it discusses the Berlin dispute.

When the western powers decided yesterday to take the Berlin crisis to the U.N. Security Council, they could not have overlooked the fact that it might bring Russian withdrawal from the world agency, a temporary "walkout" or a veto.

In bringing the key to the east-west cold war before the Security Council, the western powers were reported to have considered these eventualities. Nevertheless, they decided on the move as the only way to bring the facts to the world.

And possibly persuade the Russians by moral force to lift the Berlin blockade.

There seemed to be indications in Berlin last night that Russia is building up a case for a walkout. Bruno Walter, chief editor of the Soviet-controlled Radio Berlin asserted that it appears the western powers "want to torpedo the United Nations."

The records show that Russia walked out of the League of Nations when that body condemned Russia's war against Finland in 1939.

Moreover, Foreign Minister Zigmunt Modzelewski of pro-Communist Poland, indicated in his general policy address last week before the U.N. General Assembly that the Russian government will contest the competence of any organ of the U.N. to handle the Berlin situation.

The few optimists emphasize, however, that Russia did withdraw her troops from Iran shortly after the Security Council discussed the Iranian protest.

Outside of winning the support of a rest of the world in placing the blame for Berlin on Russia, moral persuasion is all the western powers can hope for their latest move.

The Security Council cannot vote the Russians into submission over the German capital.

In describing Russian actions as a "threat" to the peace, the western powers indicate that they will bring the question to the Security Council as a matter coming under chapter VII of the U.N. charter.

This chapter deals with "action with respect to threats to the peace, breaches of the peace, and acts of aggression."

The chapter contains provisions for drastic action, even going as far as war against an aggressor, if the Security Council decides one country is an aggressor.

But the Security Council is not able to vote such a course without the agreement of the big five powers—the western complainants plus Russia and China. Russia would certainly use in this case the veto she already has wielded 28 times.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

Quite some columns back, I cited the case of a gangster who raised pigeons as a hobby, and who, when forced to get rid of his flock, strangled 400 birds because he was afraid another owner might mistreat them. My favorite story of punks and their pets, however, concerns a prominent Man of Extinction who shall hereafter be referred to as Mr. G., inasmuch as he is alive and allergic to publicity.

Back in the days when gin plus caramel coloring equaled Scotch, Mr. G. was one of our high priests of homicide, and the way I heard it, he had attained this eminence by the simple expedient of marrying the boss's daughter and then machine-gunning the boss.

Mr. G., like many a moneyed mobster, had pretensions to respectability, and shortly after his marriage, he bought a 10-acre estate outside Peeskill and settled down to live the good life. He planted the customary number of petunias, and on Saturday afternoons he and his lady would attend the local ball park and root politely for the home team. On one occasion when his spouse forgot herself and hollered, "Kill the umpire!" he frowned and cautioned her to use more temperate language.

As a young man, Mr. G. had been a pigeon fancier, but when he became a country squire, he shifted his interest to turkeys. Not ordinary turkeys, but white ones which had been hatched from pedigreed petunias, and on Saturday afternoons he and his lady would attend the local ball park and root politely for the home team. On one occasion when his spouse forgot herself and hollered, "Kill the umpire!" he frowned and cautioned her to use more temperate language.

Naturally enough, the birds returned his affection, and at the sound of his footfall, a great gobble-gobble would go up, and the air would be filled with fluttering white shapes hurrying to meet their benefactor. This, of course, warmed the cockles of Mr. G.'s peanut-sized heart.

Everything went along fine until Thanksgiving. Then, on the night before the festive board was scheduled to groan, Mrs. G. handed her husband a shiny ax and said, "Pick out a plump one and we'll have it for dinner tomorrow."

"Ya mean kill one of my own birds?" asked the murder mogul. "A turkey is a turkey," said Mrs. G. rationally.

"How could I do sctch t'ing?" said the gang chief.

"With this ax," said his wife. "I godda bedda idea," said the man who had made several undertakers rich. "I'll use chloroform. It'll be more humane. Get da cook an' meet me at da coops."

It was all over in a few minutes. As the trio entered the enclosure, of Mr. G.'s prize turkeys ran towards him. The cook, a heavyset Hannah with no feeling for fowl, grabbed it and held on while Mr. G. wrapped a chloroform-soaked handkerchief around the bird's beak. There was a feeble fluttering of feathers, a last throaty gobble, and the betwixt bird went limp. The cook quickly plucked it and put it in the meat and poultry compartment of the four-door Frigidaire.

Spine-chilling shrieks, as they say in the thrillers, awoke Mr. G. the next morning. Rushing downstairs, he found his wife in the kitchen trying to revive the cook. This poor lady, it appeared, had received the shock of her life. All set to dress the bird, she had approached the Frigidaire. But no sooner had she opened the door wh... the nude turkey made a stately and dignified... ce into the room. The chloroform had worn off, and the cold had... rently revived the gobble. Finding the backdoor open the turkey had tottered out into the yard.

Following his wife's finger, Mr. G. went outside. Hearing his steps, the abused bird came running toward him, flapping its pitiful stumps of wings. Mr. G. took a frightened step back. In his long career of wholesale violence, this was the nearest thing to a ghost he had ever encountered.

Then great tears welled in Mr. G.'s eyes. In no time at all, the turkey was ensconced in an invalid's bed, and a hastily summoned veterinary was feeling its pulse and heartbeat. But the strain had been too much. As the family and hired help made a mourners' circle around the bedside, the unfrocked fowl gave up the ghost—this time for good. Mr. G. sadly drew a sheet over the body.

His wife, however, was more practical. "We'll have it for dinner," she said.

"I wouldn't advise eating this bird," said the vet. "It died of double pneumonia..."

Only one incident remains to be told in this tragic tale. In our society, we kill thousands of animals in the stockyards daily, but let a college boy swallow one live goldfish and the S.P.C.A. is in a tizzy. Reason: The goldfish is a pet. Well, it seems that the terrier treatment accorded the turkey had raised it to the pet status, and when the vet reported the strange events leading to its demise, a great hue and cry was raised among the fiercer members of the local S.P.C.A. One of them swore out a warrant for Mr. G.'s arrest, and for the first time in a long and dishonorable career, the gangster's name appeared on a police blotter.

"I oney got what wuz comin' ta me," he told his wife after he had paid his $10 fine. "A guy who kills his own toikey ain't fitta associate wit' decent people." (Copyright, 1948, by Billy Rose)

Weet doubled with one out. Al Zachary, who pitched fine ball after relieving starter Jack Banta, was derelict for Lefty John Van Cuyk when Syracuse Manager Jewel Ens sent Millard Howell, a left-handed swinger, in to bat for pitcher John Hetki.

But Ens changed his mind then, and called on Jodie Beeler, a right-handed hitter, to swing instead of Howell.

Van Cuyk got Beeler out, but Eddie Shokes sliced a single into left to bring in West and tied the count at 4-4.

Syracuse scored four runs in the top of the 10th and looked like sure winners, but Connors had different ideas.

A ninth-inning homer by Frank Davis that scored two mates in front of him helped the Chiefs erase a one-run deficit in Sunday's game. They added for good measure to take the contest 5-2 and even the series.

Frank Laga, Montreal submarine artist who had beaten Syracuse six times during the regular schedule, had pitched great ball until the ninth. When he walked the first two men up, Manager in Clay Hopper yanked him and called in Clarry Poddiehan. Davis promptly scored a round-tripper on the one-and-one count.

ALLEN'S ALLEY TURNS OUT FOR TEN-DAY HOLLYWOOD VACATION

Hollywood—Fred Allen was sitting in a flower-banked room at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. He lifted an eyebrow at a bowl of white gladiolus and grunted:

"I don't know why people send flowers when somebody arrives in Hollywood. I guess they think you're going to ask for a job and they hope you drop the regular salary." The eighth floor of the Beverly Wilshire is the current Allen's Alley. Fred and Portland are in Hollywood for a 10-day vacation. Portland will be a godmother for a friend's baby and Fred is talking another movie deal.

"Every four years," he said, "a man says to me: 'People don't understand you on the screen. But I've got a new idea.' So I make another picture."

Fred was amazed at the growth of Los Angeles. "It seems like there are more people than oranges. Before the war, if the oranges could have voted, the people would be hanging on the trees." Movies, he observed, have become a minor thing in Hollywood—"Did you see that new Rex-all building?"

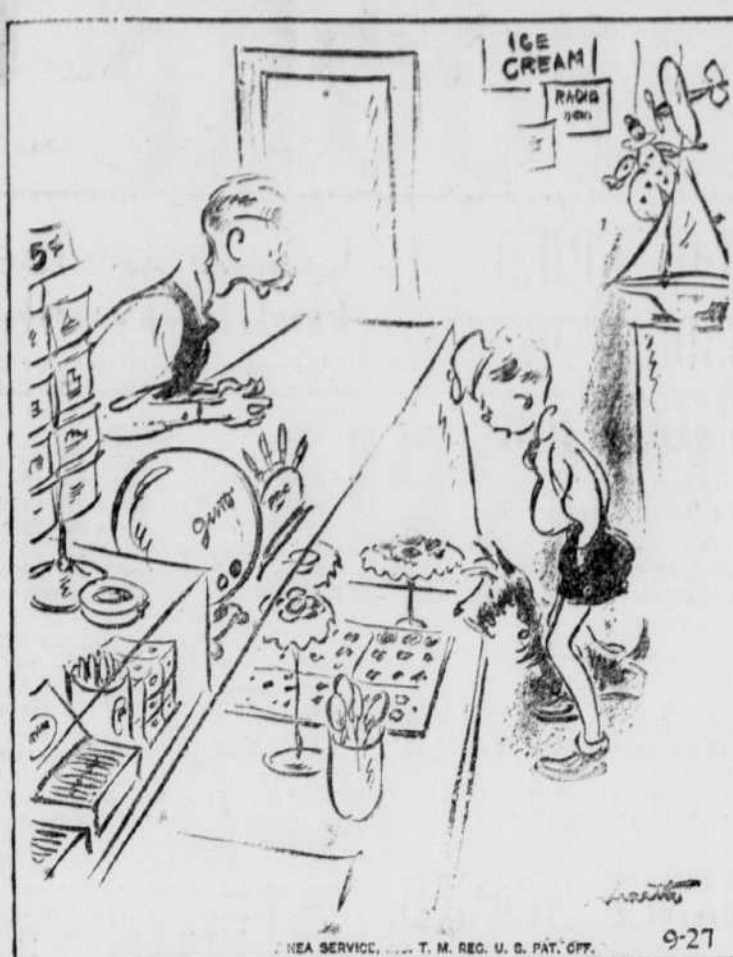

Fred's Feuds
"About this feud with that airshow, 'Stop the Music'?" I asked. He said the Hooper reports were crazy, that he couldn't believe his audience had left him and that he's cooking up a surprise this fall to combat giveaway shows.

Fred and Portland had a dinner date with Jack Benny.

Guides End Three Days Of Meetings At North Hatley

North Hatley, Sept. 27.—A successful three-day meeting of the Quebec Girl Guide leaders was brought to a close yesterday afternoon as company and division officers returned to their respective groups with new ideas and plans for the year's program.

Headquarters for the meet were at the Pleasant View Hotel and there were nine members of the Provincial Executive present, 13 Commissioners, 15 committee members, 67 leaders of Guide Companies and 23 leaders of Brownie packs, forming a total of 127 officers.

New leaders received preliminary training and experienced Guides took part in refresher courses. In addition to general sessions, there were discussions on company management, semaphore, knotting, and nature study. Outdoor meets were also held, with tracking and stalking, hikes and expeditions.

At the executive meeting of the Quebec Provincial Council held Saturday afternoon, Mrs. William J. Hyde, of Westmount, Provincial Commissioner, announced the appointment of two new Division Commissioners, Mrs. B. C. Rochester, Commissioner for Noranda, and Mrs. T. E. Pattison, Commissioner for Two Mountains Division.

Registration of seven new local associations was reported by Provincial Records Secretary—Northern and Hampstead District in Montreal Division, Waterville in Sherbrooke Division, Rosemere in Two Mountains Division, Croydon in South Shore Division, Val d'Or in Harricana Division and Chamblay-Richelieu in St. Hyacinthe-Missisquoi Division. New packs were registered at New Carlisle, Gaspe Division, Waterville, Sherbrooke Division, and a new company in Ste. Rose.

Following Saturday's meeting, the delegates were entertained at tea by members of the North Hatley Women's Institute. The guests were received by the president, Mrs. Dainty.

A church parade was held yesterday morning, when the Guides attended service in the Anglican Church, the Rev. Guy Marston officiating.

The meeting was brought to a close with a general session yesterday afternoon, at which the speakers were Mrs. R. E. Staver, of Westmount, Dominion Commissioner for Program, and Mrs. W. J. Hyde, also of Westmount, Provincial Commissioner.

MAN FINED $500 FOR SMUGGLING

Leopold Godbout, of Drummondville, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to charges of smuggling and was fined $500 and costs by Judge Dorais Parneton. He was arrested by R.C.M.P. four hours after they had seized 104,000 American cigarettes and a car.

The seizure was carried out by Constables Gorpan and Ethier of Sherbrooke and Constable Passee of Rock Island on the Rock Island Road some 16 miles from Sherbrooke early Friday morning.

Commencement Exercises Are Held By Sherbrooke High

Quoting from the words of Abraham Lincoln, "You are going out into the world to make not only a living but to live a life," Rev. R. C. Tait told graduates at the Commencement Exercises of the Sherbrooke High School Saturday evening that "We are given life to make something out of it."

"Schooling is more than books," Mr. Tait said. "Inspired personalities help us in life."

Mr. Tait congratulated the graduates and wished them success in the future. Introduced by A. C. Ross, he was thanked by George Ewing.

J. H. Wark, who acted as chairman for the evening, commented upon the increased enrolment of the school.

Other speakers were Maurice Gingues, M.P., and E. W. J. Porter, Grade XI academic teacher.

The names of the graduates were announced by Mr. Porter while W. W. Gibson, school principal, presented the certificates. Mr. Porter announced the names of the graduates in both the academic and commercial sections in the absence of Miss Helen Wilson, the commercial teacher, who is teaching elsewhere.

The Reginald Newton Trophy was presented by Dean Bishop to Norman Stafford, the 1947-48 winner, who was the recipient of a miniature silver football. This award is presented to the student who by his exemplary and gentlemanly qualities, best exhibits the principles of true sportsmanship. The trophy was originally presented by the Omega-Alpha Club in memory of Reginald Newton and is now presented by the Y's Men's Club.

The class prophecy was humorous and well presented. It was rendered as a song by seven lady graduates. It was arranged by Pearl Burbank, Heather Millar, Alice Heath, William Atkinson and Norman Stafford.

William Atkinson, president of the Student Council, gave the valedictory and the audience, silent during the delivery, heavily applauded at the end.

The school choir under the direction of W. H. Bishop, F. R. C. O., A. R. C. M., rendered several selections. Invocation was by Rev. Canon Russell Brown.

Following the exercises refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed by the students and friends. James Dick was chairman of the decorating committee.

The platform guests who handed out the various prizes and awards were: Mr. Tait, Alderman A. C. Ross and W. H. Bradley, George Ewing, Mr. Bishop, Mr. Gingues, J. BISHOP'S DANCE WAS COLORFUL AFFAIR

The Freshmen's dance, the first social event at the University of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, which took place on Friday evening, was hailed an unprecedented success.

Patrons and patronesses were, Dr. A. P. Jewett, Principal of the University, and Mrs. Jewett; Professor and Mrs. A. W. Preston; Mr. L. A. Roberts, president of the Students Association; Miss Joyce Andrews; Miss Louise MacDonald, president of the Women's Association, and Mr. J. A. Turpin.

Mrs. Jewett received in a two-piece gown. The douse fashioned in delphinium blue crepe and embroidered in silver sequins was completed by a black crepe skirt.

Mrs. Preston wore a crepe gown with an all over printed design on a white background, with long sleeves and a side drape cascading to the floor.

Miss Andrews was gowned in a black taffeta frock, with fitted bodice and a full skirt with a petticoat of pink eyelet embroidery, covered with black net and the taffeta.

Miss Louise MacDonald was dressed in light blue pattern taffeta, styled in a fitted bodice, cap sleeves, a full skirt and matching elbow length mitts.

The gymnasium, where the dance was held, featuring a "new arrivals" was decorated in pink and blue streamers. On the walls hung cartoons depicting college life and from the centre of the ceiling, fell a playpen filled with balloons and baby dolls.

Refreshments, provided by the ladies of the second and third years, were served at 11 o'clock. During this period an impromptu program was staged by the freshmen.

Leslie Beaulieu's orchestra was in attendance.

Receipts At Rotary Fair At Boundary Passed $3,000 Mark

Rock Island, Sept. 27.—With the largest crowd ever known, and receipts totalling more than $3,000, the greatest Rotary Fair in the history of the Rotary Club of the Boundary came to a close here Saturday night, as the 4th annual Fair set a record for the hard-working club members and their many public-spirited assistants.

Saturday night's crowd alone brought in a total of some $1,800, with the biggest crowd of the three nights jamming every available inch of space in the Rock Island Armoury. Games were kept in continuous operation until a late hour, as every one sought to win one or more of the many desirable and valuable prizes on display. Families sought the ham and groceries booths endeavoring to win their week-end food supplies, and many a basket of choice fruits also helped to ease the overburdened family food budget as happy winners wended their way homewards with their prizes.

Many winners ensured themselves against a cold winter by taking home a blanket, while others walked away with the broadcloth shirt, umbrellas, and articles of furniture as the various booths distributed their prizes with a lavish hand. Many a venturesome person found his or her money literally growing, as they "played the horses," while large crowds kept the ever-popular bingo booth going at a steady pace throughout the evening. In appreciation of his invaluable assistance, the Bingo Caller, Romeo Rodrigue, of Rock Island, was presented with an electric razor by the Rotary Club, the gift being presented by C. R. McLean, Past President, and Chairman of the Fair.

Complete reports of the successful fair will be made tonight at the Del Monty Hotel, when the Rotarians will entertain all their willing helpers at a special "appreciation dinner" in place of their regular weekly meeting. All those who helped in any way to operate or assist at the Fair will be guests of the club at this annual party, and

HISTORIC MEDICAL HIGHLIGHTS—No. 4

300 YEAR OLD LIFESAVER

MODERN medicine looks back to 1928 for the discovery of lifesaving quinine. The place was Peru and the means of discovery was the application of an Indian remedy to the Countess of Cinchon, wife of the Spanish Viceroy. The Countess had malaria, and was treated with a potion refined from the bark of Quinaquina tree. She recovered, returned to Spain and thus acquainted Europe and the world with the medicinal properties of this tree's bark. The tree is now known as the Cinchona — recalling the Countess and her service to mankind.

...to our young depositors

Saving is like a game, except that if you follow the rules of the game, you will always win. The rules are simple. Deposit your money with us regularly—so much every so often. And do not "withdraw" your money until you have to your "credit" enough to buy something you really want. Then start over again. You will find that saving in this way will become a habit—a good habit that you will be glad to have as you grow older.

SAVE A SECOND, LOSE A LIFE

Nowhere is the hurry and dash of modern living more exemplified than in driving an automobile, especially within city limits. To many motorists, the observance of ordinary traffic and courtesy rules is almost unthinkable as a waste of valuable time. This attitude on the part of a substantial portion of the driving public causes a bulk of the traffic death and injury toll. Therefore special interest is lent to a test conducted recently in Colorado Springs.

With the co-operation of the municipal police, a well-known racing car driver made two trips down a fifteen-block course in the heart of the city. The first time he carefully obeyed all the rules and completed the course in 9 minutes and 35.1 seconds.

The second time he broke every law in the book. He drove at an illegal speed, cut corners, went through stop-lights, gave no signals, passed other cars on the wrong side and even drove through a safety zone.

When his hair-raising trip was over, it was found that he had made the run in 9 minutes and 31.2 seconds. He had saved exactly 3.9 seconds.

SUCCESSFUL FARMING A SCIENCE

To the average person, the successful farmer is essentially a healthy man and a hard worker. But this is not enough. He must be a man of foresight and a man of sound judgment. In the city it is possible to make-shift for a living, because the employer can do the thinking for his employee. However, in the rural districts this is different.

Every landowner depends as much for his success upon his judgment and precision as he does upon manual labor. Farming has become more of a science than a trade, and a very extensive science at that. It is true that governments taking account of the situation have set up many agricultural schools and experimental establishments which can undertake research work that individuals would find impossible to undertake themselves.

But it still remains true that the individual must have sufficient intelligence to understand the importance of these researches to follow them up and enough judgment to fit services thus rendered to their own particular problems. As for a result, farming operations properly conducted demand a variety of qualities only met with in the choicest people.

STRINGENT LABOR LEGISLATION USELESS

One of the best arguments against too detailed legislation on the part of governments, federal or provincial, on the question of labor-management relations is voiced by W. L. Clark in the Windsor Star. Mr. Clark declares:

"Arguments are running across the country on Canada's labor legislation. Where there is a willingness by both sides to work together, legislation is not needed. And where either one, or both sides, are determined not to work together all the legislation in the world will not bring harmony."

One does not have to look a great distance from Sherbrooke to find proof of the ruth of this argument. In most of the labor trouble of recent months, the action of one or other parties to the disputes have been ruled "illegal," and there has been much ado by government officials as to what should be done. But the fact remained, the strike or the lockout generally continued for days or weeks and was finally ended when the disputants became tired or exhausted.

Government conciliators may prove of service in settling a percentage of the walk-outs, but in the final analysis, much more can be accomplished by goodwill and mutual understanding.

AN INEVITABLE MOVE

The decision of the Western Powers to break off all negotiations with Moscow over the control of Berlin was almost inevitable as the result of the uncompromising Russian attitude on control of traffic leading in and out of the German capital. The privileges sought by the Soviets would have rendered the position of Great Britain, France and the United States almost untenable, placing them under complete subservience to the whims of the Russian authorities for the supply of even the basic necessities of life. Had the Soviet terms been agreed upon, it would have been but a matter of days until the democracies found themselves forced completely out of Berlin and perhaps compelled to give up a substantial slice of the Germany they presently hold.

For some time it has been apparent that the only real question was how long the alleged negotiations would continue as it has been obvious that there was no real hope for any agreement that would have given satisfaction to all parties. Perhaps the reason for delay is best explained by the American State Department declaration which pictures the Soviets as having pledged themselves to lift the Berlin blockade over a month ago. Hopeful that Moscow might at last carry out one conciliatory move, the Allies held on as long as any outside possibility of an accord was visible on the horizon.

Later information revealed, however, that this was a typical Russian double-cross and that orders had gone directly from the Kremlin to the Soviet commander in Berlin to do everything in his power to wreck the agreement through undue insistence upon detail. This was no over-zealous action of some minor official but rather was a clear-cut and pre-meditated policy prepared by the Russian high command.

The Allied decision has created a critical situation, or at least has brought this situation into clear perspective. Having failed in its efforts to force the Allies out of Berlin by peaceful means, the Russians may seek to achieve their objective by armed force, thus involving the world in a fresh blood-bath. However, the increased strength and the steadily expanding might of the British and United States forces in the European theatre may give Moscow cause to pause and think. A few months ago Russia might have been able to stage a surprise move with a degree of success, but its tactics during the intervening period have been such that the Western Powers have been reinforcing their land and air bases on the Continent and the concentration of planes for the Berlin airlift resembles those of the days of the Second World War.

A strong Allied force may have a deterring effect.

DEFAULTERS ON GI HOME LOANS FACE POSSIBLE PENSION LOSS

Veterans' Administration has started to hold up pension cheques to disabled veterans of World War II who have defaulted on home loan payments. This drastic penalty is part of a new policy now being formulated by VA for the future handling of foreclosures on GI homes.

Of the millions of veterans who have bought homes under the GI Bill of Rights only 2,500 of them so far have defaulted on payments to the extent that the government has been forced to pay the lender any part of the GI guarantee. VA is not expecting any great increase in foreclosures in the near future. But it wants to be prepared. If a business recession should come, foreclosures would skyrocket.

It is feared by government officials that veterans are under the impression that the VA guarantee of part of their loan means that they can just walk out of a house if they don't like it, or if they can't keep up payments.

ONLY A FEW CASES SO FAR

Only a few isolated cases have come up so far in which VA is holding up pensions to disabled vets who have had to give up their new home, leaving the government holding part of an unpaid mortgage. The Department of Justice is studying these cases and is trying to work out some other kind of an arrangement for the government to recover its money.

But the VA has already gone ahead with the pension withholding. A VA spokesman says that this method for collecting a bad debt from a veteran is part of the U. S. financial code. He says that if VA didn't do it, the General Accounting Office would insist on it when the books came up for audit.

It is known, however, that VA Administrator Carl Gray is planning to set up special clemency boards to study each of these cases. It would have the authority to waive the debts of disabled veterans in hardship situations. VA also has the authority to collect by deducting small amounts from each disability cheque instead of stopping the benefit entirely.

When a veteran is forced to give up a house, there are several alternative actions for the VA. The house can be sold immediately at public auction. If the sale brings less than the unpaid mortgage, the government pays the lender the difference.

The lender can acquire title to the house. This is done by the VA setting a price on the house and agreeing to pay the lender the difference between the appraisal price and the unpaid mortgage. The lender can do anything he wants with the house then. In each of these cases, however, the veteran owes a debt to the government for the amount of the money which he has to be paid to the lender.

The third method of handling a foreclosure will probably be the one most used, especially if there is a break in the housing market. The VA can set a price on the foreclosed house, pay the lender that price plus the difference between it and the unpaid mortgage, and then take title to the house. This has already been done on 324 houses, 139 of which have been resold.

UNCLE SAM BECOMES LANDLORD

The VA, however, can make a new deal with the veteran. It can take over the vet's mortgage and adjust the terms. A large-scale use of this method will obviously put Uncle Sam in the real estate business. This policy on this is now being worked out.

It is expected that if a depression should come, considerable pressure would be put on the VA by the veterans' organizations to make this sort of deal the general policy. Under this same authority the VA could rent the house back to the veteran who had failed to keep up payments. If this is done to any extent, the VA could become the greatest landlord in history.

Thousands of veterans who have been stuck with shoddily-built homes complicate the picture. It means that as the houses become more ramshackled, more veterans will give up trying to make payments. When the VA then comes to re-appraise the houses, their value will obviously have gone down far below the first sale price. This will stick the government for large payments to the lenders, even though it was the lenders' mistake in financing a bad house.

Any way you look at it, VA is destined to get into the real estate business in a big way. This function could become almost as big as the whole GI insurance program.

THE DEED WEIGHS HEAVILY

The Gazette

"I can give ecstatic hours to meditation but moments spent in original deed, such as putting a button upon my coat or cleansing my gardenwalk of weeds, weigh very heavily upon my shoulders."

These were the words used a hundred years ago by the American philosopher, Henry James Sr., in describing his mental state. And perhaps no better description could be found to describe the state of mind that seems to control the foreign policy of the Canadian Government.

Announcements have been made by members of the cabinet, and by one in particular, of grand designs and alliances which Canada is contemplating to protect civilization from war. But when some original deed is called for by circumstances, some small but immediately practical help, the descent from meditative generalities to practical particulars causes distaste, and a score of reasons can be found to postpone action.

There is a clear call by circumstances for some action on Canada's part in Berlin. The organization of the "air-lift" to Berlin has made a profound challenge to resolution and resourcefulness. Here is the practical matter, the immediate call for Canada to demonstrate the reality of its professions. But it requires an original deed. And the prospect of such a deed seems to weigh very heavily upon the Government's shoulders.

Many reasons are being presented to justify this country's non-cooperation. It is being said, in the first place, that we have no "status" in Berlin. We are not one of the occupying powers. We have, in effect, no business there. If the Russians found us in the air-lift they might well ask us to explain our presence. And that would be hard to explain. The Canadian Government withdrew its occupation forces from Europe, and when the crisis arises (as it was bound to rise) we say that we have no right to go back.

Other reasons are offered. It is said that we would have to place our planes and pilots under the command of some other power, and this is a principle to which the Government is opposed. But two other dominions, Australia and South Africa, have both undertaken to send planes and pilots to Berlin and they do not consider that they have no status, nor that they have impaired their independence as dominions.

When this point is pressed, it produces an other explanation. It is said that Canadians in the Berlin air-lift would especially attract trouble. For the Soviet Union had a particular grudge against Canada, presumably because Canada uncovered its spy activities. If it were known that Canadian planes were flying to Berlin, they might be singled out to be shot at, and a most unfortunate situation would arise.

In any case, it is said that we have received no request to take part in the air-lift. But Mr. MacKenzie King's explanation is interesting. He said that Mr. Bevin, in conversation with the Canadian High Commissioner to London, "touched upon the question of the adequacy of present air transport facilities for supplying the civilian population of Berlin." But no formal request had been received from the Government of the United Kingdom. Evidently a wink is as good as a nod to a blind horse. But if action is bitter, meditation remains sweet. The Canadian people are being told that "we shall not evade our international duties."

Yet when it becomes a matter of sending so much as a single plane or a single pilot to give aid in the greatest test of moral and physical strength since 1945, it becomes another matter. It is like putting the button on the coat or cleansing the weed from the garden-walk. It is by no means as satisfying as meditation. But they are jobs that have got to be done, and somebody will have to do them.

SEVEN-CENT COIN

Calgary Herald

What the United States needs is a good seven-cent nickel. At least that's the opinion of Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts. He already introduced a bill to provide for such a coin, and it will again come before Congress at its next session.

The United States mint has experimented with odd coins before now. At various times such curiosities as 20-cent pieces, three and two-cent pieces, and even a half-cent piece (for church collection plates, no doubt) were in circulation.

They are now sought by collectors only. A 12½-cent coin was also considered, but never authorized.

WHAT WILL THEY OFFER?

Toronto Saturday Night

At the end of this month the Progressive Conservative party will be working out a new platform. We shall be specially interested in seeing what they propose to do for the Maritime Provinces.

Halifax is a very busy, active place in wartime, but it goes to sleep between wars. So do Saint John and many other Maritime towns. This Rip Van Winkle sort of life is not their choosing; it is not only bad for them, it is bad for the rest of us too. It would be better for us all if they led a more steady existence.

Quite a lot of new firms are starting up there, and this is a welcome sign, but there are still a lot of sore spots. In the last of her series of articles, Miss Parsons suggests some ways of dealing with these: further equalization of freight rates, a shipbuilding program, maintenance of coal and steel production, steady year-round use of the harbors of Halifax and Saint John, and building the Canso causeway. These remedies are not new, but they need to be thought over again in the light of new, post-war (or should we say pre-war?) conditions.

The C. C. F. have not made much headway in the Maritimes, but with the development of industry there they are sure to make some gains. One of their talking points will, no doubt, be Saskatchewan where the C. C. F. government has gone in for a dozen experiments in state enterprise for the deliberate purpose of building up and stabilizing the prosperity of the province.

There is no indication that the Maritime Provinces are yet ready to embrace socialism. On the other hand they form a part of Canada that clearly needs a good deal of state guidance and assistance. This is just the sort of thing that the Conservatives, by tradition, fitted to offer. We shall be watching to see whether they will in fact offer it.

Letters To The Editor

FAVORS THE RETENTION OF BRITISH CONTROL OVER ERITREA

The Editor.

Sir:—It should require no great statesmanship to settle the matter of the Italian Colonies insofar as Eritrea and Somaliland are concerned. Abyssinia or Ethiopia dates back before the Christian era and itself embraced Christianity in the 4th century. Italy as a kingdom dates back to 1870 and that same year set foot on Eritrea and after a prolonged struggle was won by the Abyssinians but through some cockeyed treaty with an equally cockeyed name was allowed to remain. By that same token England, France and Italy became established in the Somalilands. Italy, however, planned a war of revenge and in 1935-36 made short work of the conquest of the Abyssinians, and with great pomp and jubilation made an Emperor of their King.

Few people outside of Abyssinia knew what happened following the wounding of Marshal Graziani by a bomb in Addis Ababa, February 17, 1941. The throwing of the missile was an act of one individual and no proof could be obtained that it was the forerunner of a rebellion. Nevertheless 9,000 Abyssinians were murdered in the capital alone, and surviving ruling families in the provinces were exterminated by execution. Throughout the Province of Gofjam churches were burned. At the monasteries of Debra Libanos and Maheber Selassie, batches of monks were dragged out, shot, and their bodies thrown in a common grave. Every Abyssinian who had received a foreign education was murdered or deported.

This fearful massacre brought its own retribution in the shape of smouldering rebellion which was never extinguished right up to Italian entry into World War II.

These are the things which a lot of people in allied countries, Canada included, would favor returning the colonies to Italy.

The Patriots of Abyssinia were greatly disappointed that Italy kept out of the war for eighteen months and following the fall of France were not too sure that it would be a good policy to foment a general insurrection. It was a master stroke of strategy that the Abyssian campaign was decided upon. Without it Montgomery's great trek to Tripoli would have been impossible. The earlier retreats from Bengazi were caused by withdrawing troops for the East African affair and the latter was slowed up by returning the troops for another rush to Bengazi and points beyond.

The Italians were defeated by the British in less time than they themselves conquered the ill-equipped and poorly led natives. With the fall of Mussolini, President Roosevelt permitted American ships to use the Red Sea and Montgomery's supply troubles were considerably relieved. Montgomery's capture of Tripoli won the war. "What?" Sure, everything that happened afterwards was analogous to so much added capital to a going concern. Alherton Millar's History (save the name) of World War II devotes six lines to the Abyssinian Campaign. The Ministry of Information (England) published a 7 x 9, 150 page two column book on the subject, profusely illustrated and furnishing incidents as thrilling as any that occurred during the war. The fifteen to one and never at any time less than ten to one. As to Libya, it seems to be doing pretty well under its present British control. At the same time there seems to be nothing to prevent them holding a referendum as to what form of government they wish, i. e. To go back to the Italian fold, govern themselves or remain under British control and United Nations trusteeship.

As to the British winning the war early in 1943 I came into conflict with one of my grandsons aged eight (an American by birth and

McKENNY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenny, America's Card Authority

HERE IS EXAMPLE OF GOOD DEFENSE

A great player must have two qualifications. First, he must play good bridge. And second, he must be able to handle his partner well. One of the greatest players in the country today is George Rapee, of New York City. He never fails to compliment a partner on a good bid or play, and this pays big dividends.

When he gave me today's hand, he said, "This is one of the greatest defensive plays I have ever seen." The defensive play was made by Sidney Meyer, of Miami Beach, Fla. Rapee said that although Meyer has never played in tournaments, he has nevertheless picked up the knack of instantaneous, daring decision that marks a fine player.

Rapee opened the trump of spades against the three no trump contract. Declarer played the ten from dummy, and the natural play for Meyer was to win the trick with the queen. However, he took a quick count. He knew that declarer had four club tricks. South had bid a diamond, and with the queen-ten in his own hand, Meyer felt sure that declarer had four diamond tricks. He probably held the ace of hearts, which made nine tricks.

In rubber bridge it does not make much difference whether or not an extra trick is lost. The object of defensive play is to defeat the contract. So Meyer played the ace of spades on the first trick and immediately returned the king of hearts.

Declarer held off until the third round, and now he knew that he would have to guess the diamond situation—but why bother to guess the diamond when he had located the queen of spades? Erst would not have won the first spade trick with the ace if he held the queen. So South led a spade and when West played low, he put on dummy's jack. Meyer won with the queen and cashed his other heart trick, defeating the contract.

Yankees finished it," which is the shortest history of the war that I've come across so far.

MAGOG COUPLE HOLD 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Magog, Sept. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chamberlin, well-known residents of Magog, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary, on September 14.

During the day a steady flow of good wishes poured in from friends in the form of telegrams, greeting cards and flowers.

To climax a memorable day, representatives of the congregation of St. Paul's United Church gathered at the Chamberlin home on Pine Street, in the evening.

On behalf of the congregation, Dr. M. E. Adams presented an illuminated address to Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlin and after speaking of the high regard in which they have always been held in Magog, he presented Mr. Chamberlin with a Cogswell chair and foot stool and Mrs. Chamberlin with a satin comforter.

Following the presentation, refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

The Doctor Says

TYPHOID, ONCE SERIOUS KILLER, NOW CHECKED BY SANITATION

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

Typhoid fever is a condition which was formerly a serious killer but now is comparatively unusual in civilized countries which have good sanitation. Where sanitary control is lax, however, typhoid is still a serious problem. This is true even today in certain parts of New Mexico and Arizona where many people are still unaware of the dangers of contaminated drinking water and poor methods of sewage disposal, and the typhoid rate is relatively high.

The cause of typhoid is known. It is a germ called bacillus typhosus which can be seen under the microscope and grown in the laboratory. This germ enters the system through food or drink. The germ leaves an infected patient (or an apparently well person who is known as a carrier) through the intestinal tract.

Strikes In Two Weeks

As is true of so many infectious germ diseases, the person who swallows the germ remains well for about two weeks—this is called the incubation period. Muscular pains, loss of appetite, and a feeling of chilliness are common early symptoms. Fever appears fairly soon. Intestinal symptoms such as diarrhea are particularly common. There is no satisfactory treatment for typhoid fever once it has been contracted. For this reason, prevention by proper sanitary methods is particularly important.

In addition to improvements in methods of disposal of sewage and in guarding the drinking water against contamination with the germ, we now have another method of fighting the disease. This consists of vaccine, which should be given to anyone who is likely to be exposed to insanitary living conditions.

The vaccine does not prevent typhoid absolutely, but it does increase the body resistance so that there is far less risk of contracting the disease. It has been used in World War I and World War II, and is undoubtedly partly responsible for the exceedingly small number of wartime cases of the disease.

CHAPTER I.

The column of cavalry rounded the corner of the narrow, ancient street, the horses' hoofs clapping noisily over the Spanish cobblestones. The day was hot and lazy. The sun beat down on the plumed helmets and the yellow tunics of the dragons in the columns as they rode toward the great Sevillian square.

They rode easily with a pored indifference. All excepting one, a young, fresh-faced and handsome fellow. His sleeve held a corporal's chevrons and he did his best to appear as professionally disinterested in the new and exciting sights of Seville as were his comrades, but it was impossible for him to hold his eyes in check. They darted from side to side along the narrow streets.

The column rode across the square toward the great gate of the military barracks. Even with the color and the clank and the hoof-clapping of the company, few citizens were out to watch. It was siesta time and the square was almost empty.

As the column crossed the square, the corporal had all he could do to keep from twisting in his saddle to view all sides of his new place of duty.

Once through the gate the column lined up abreast and dismounted at an order from the hard-faced sergeant. The sergeant walked directly to the corporal.

"Your name?"

The corporal saluted smartly.

"Don Jose Lizarrabengoa of Navarre, reporting for duty."

"The colonel will see you now. Follow me."

The colonel was a handsome, handsome man in his early forties, with perceptive, heavy-lidded eyes. He was standing before a desk bare of papers and he observed the corporal with cool detachment as the young soldier stumbled nervously to attention before him.

"Don Jose Lizarrabengoa of Navarre reporting for duty, sir."

"It is my duty and my pleasure, Don Jose," the colonel said, taking a paper from the top drawer and glancing at it as though to verify what he had to say, "to welcome you to our regiment."

"Thank you, sir."

The colonel gave the younger man a long, appraising look. When he spoke again his tones were deliberate. "No doubt you have heard that life is pleasant in this regiment; that it is a fashionable catch-all for young men of good family with no talents to speak of. You may have heard that we are called the gay policemen, because we do little more than stand guard here and there a few hours a day and keep the peace, such as it is, in Seville."

The colonel paused as an orderly came into the room with a bottle of wine and a glass on a tray. As the orderly put the tray down and started to uncork the bottle, he continued, "The rest—of—the time—you may have heard—"

"Oh no, sir," the corporal murmured.

The colonel ignored the interruption. "Is spent in the consumption of many bottles of wine, in gambling, and in making love to the girls from the cigarette factory. There are approximately 200 of these girls. The factory is next door to our barracks." He nodded his head toward the window. "A great blessing and a convenience for the dragons."

The orderly started to fill the glass of wine.

"Yes, sir," said Don Jose, agreeing blindly.

The orderly paid more attention to the conversation than to what he was doing and poured the glass too full, spilling wine upon the polished desk. By not so much as the flicker of an eye did the colonel appear to notice this, and the orderly, in quick panic, leaned over to mop it up with the end of his sash. The colonel continued talking to Don Jose.

"I say you may have heard these things and they are quite true," he turned slightly and with a vicious movement slapped the orderly across the face with the back of his hand. The suddenness and the sound of the blow made Don Jose's eyes blink. The colonel said, "Get out!" The orderly almost ran out of the room, eyes watering. Don Jose stood stiffly, belying the fact that anything untoward had happened. The colonel sat down comfortably in his desk chair.

"Let me inform you Don Jose, that a young man willing to work and to maintain a degree of integrity, sobriety, and honor has a bright future in this regiment. There are altogether too few I can trust. Your record is good. You Navarros are hard-working, moral,

"You may have heard that our time is spent in the consumption of many bottles of wine, in gambling, and in making love to the girls from the cigarette factory," the colonel told Don Jose. Then he added deliberately, "I say you may have heard these things and they are quite true."

and proud. We need more like you here. I hope you are ambitious?"

Don Jose answered automatically, "Yes, sir." Then as though he were confiding precious information, he said, "I am told that in Seville a promotion in the Dragons is a step toward a Government position."

The colonel nodded, his mouth twisting into a wry half-smile. He turned in his chair and looked at the corporal obliquely as though he were looking back across many years at himself and his own ambitions and seeing also the hopelessness that they had brought. He put his fingers together in front of his chest, making a steeple, stared into them for a moment and then said, "A good thing to keep in mind, I am sure. I will do what I can to help you." He glanced up at Don Jose. "Have you ever been in Seville before? Do you know the city?"

"No, sir."

The colonel leaned over and scribbled a few words on a piece of paper from the same carry-all drawer in his desk. "You are relieved of duties for 48 hours. Look about the city. Familiarize yourself with it. The people here and in Andalusia generally are a different breed from you northerners. Look them over." He handed Don Jose the slip of paper. "Dismissed."

When Don Jose walked along down the narrow street on the other side of the square, the city was beginning to wake from its siesta, but there were still few people in sight.

It was an extremely picturesque street. On one side there were buildings; some three, some four stories high. On the other side was a stone embankment, below which ran the trickle of a stream. It was a city stream, just as the people were city people; flowing weakly downhill, muddied and purposeless. In no way did it remind the country boy of the clear, strong rapids of Navarre that threw themselves from mountain tops into rich valleys. Nor were the people like the direct, clear-eyed robust people of his home.

The somewhat ramshackle buildings had pillars which upheld balconies, and the general effect was poor but spacious. There was none of the narrow confinement that characterized most of the streets in Seville.

Don Jose strolled slowly. He pulled out his watch, a large gold object at the end of a heavy chain, and looked at it casually. He swung it for a moment idly, looking absently to his pocket. One or two men, a dog, a woman carrying a duck, and two ragged urchins trotting along the stone embankment were all that seemed to be moving in Seville so far that afternoon.

As he reached the foot of the street, Don Jose stopped and leaned on a post to get his bearings, or rather to decide whether he should walk to the right, to the left, or to continue straight ahead. Suddenly an orange peel landed with flung force on the pavement at his feet. He looked up.

About two feet above his head he saw a pretty foot encased in a red shoe. They were red morocco shoes fastened with flame-colored ribbons, covering white silk stockings with more than one hole in them. Above the legs he saw a full short red skirt, then a blouse, then the head of a wild, tousled hoyden, as beautiful as sin. She had thrown her shawl back to show her shoulders, and a rose was thrust into the low-cut bosom of her blouse.

In his own country, had Don Jose seen a woman dressed like that, he would have crossed himself.

Fitch Bay Women's Institute Heard Fine Talk On Conditions In England

Fitch Bay, Sept. 27. — The September meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. M. MacDonald with six members and three visitors present.

The meeting was opened with the recital of the "Mary Stewart Collect" and the roll call was answered by members naming a quality necessary for Leadership. The minutes of the June meeting were read and approved. No meetings were held during July and August. The treasurer's report showed a small balance on hand.

The report of the quarterly meeting on August 15, at the Brick Schoolhouse in North Stanstead was given by Mrs. C. P. Rider. Plans to tie a quilt and pack a box of food for overseas were made. Mrs. Corbett kindly offered her home for this, on Wednesday evening, September 29. Members and friends are asked to bring or send donations for the overseas box before this date.

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald, who took for her subject, "Living Conditions in England." As Mrs. MacDonald had spent two months at her old home in England this summer she was able to give a very vivid description of the restrictions on food, clothing and fuel with which the people are still faced.

After living more than two years in Canada, Mrs. MacDonald found the lack of every-day things which people in Canada take for granted, most forcibly brought home to her.

After nine years the people in England still have enough food, clothing and fuel, said Mrs. MacDonald, but their courage and faith in the future of their country is unshaken.

Mrs. Rider moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. MacDonald for her splendid talk. This was seconded by Mrs. Alger.

Following the adjournment of the meeting refreshments were served and a social time was spent.

Juvenile Marriages

Teen-Agers Wed Before Tastes Develop,
Miserable In Bonds Of Domesticity

There can be no doubt that the appalling increase in the number of divorces is mainly due to the child-marriages that are taking place all about us, most of which are foredoomed to disaster. For marriage is not a pastime with which kids are free to divert themselves and which they can drop when they are tired of it. It is the taking upon one's self obligations that affect not only the individual boy and girl, but that may determine the fate of generations yet unborn.

Certainly there is no more pathetic sight in the world than that of immature youngsters rushing into marriage for which they are totally unfitted and which are almost sure to bring misery to them. Yet we see this happening every day. Girls mistake having a crush on a boy for the grand passion and marry for the sake of having a swanky wedding. Boys, who think that they cannot survive without some doll-faced little cutie, marry before they finish grammar school, or have any way of making a dollar to support a wife.

Then comes the inevitable awakening from their dope dream. The boy and girl find out that they have made a wrong diagnosis of their symptoms. They are not in love with each other. They are just in love with love. Also, they discover that they are bored with domesticity and that they desire to play about and have good times. And the boy husband begins to step out at night, and the girl wife craves pretty clothes and diversion and she is tired of being a baby-sitter, so another marriage goes on the rocks.

FEW SUCCEED

Of course, not every young marriage is a failure. There are teenagers who are capable of the grand passion and who marry and live happily ever afterwards, as the old story book says. But these cases are rare as hens' teeth, because the success of a marriage depends upon the congeniality of the husband and wife. And nobody can tell beforehand how a growing boy and girl are going to develop. That is the unanswerable argument against juvenile marriages. They may turn out all right, but the chances are even-odds that they will not have a single idea or taste in common, and that they will spend their lives in wondering whatever made them pick out the ones they did for their life mates. So it doesn't take much gumption to see why the best bet in marriage is the husband and wife whose characters and ways have jelled, and with whom one knows where one stands.

Strangely enough, in discussing the marriage problem we put greater stress on love and youth and beauty than we do on anything else, yet they are the danger signals about which every man and woman who are seeking a mate should walk high, wide and handsome. The safety zone, according to the scientists, is when a man is in his thirties and a woman in her early twenties. For by then they have found themselves. They know what they want in a mate and have acquired the patience and the diplomacy and the sense of humor that enables them to live together, and like it.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

Gould W.M.S. Held Study Period
With The Book, 'West Of The Gorges'

Gould, Sept. 27.—The September meeting of the Lingwick Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society met at the "Manse."

In the absence of the president, Mrs. K. N. MacIver, Mrs. Matthews presided. The worship service in the "Missionary Monthly" was followed. The business period was observed.

There were seven members, three associate helpers and five visitors present.

In loving memory of Mrs. George Martin, verses 3-6 from Revelations XXII were read. All deeply mourn the passing of this devoted sister, who was an officer and faithful worker. A card of thanks for flowers sent by the society was read from Mr. Martin and family.

Also, the members regret the prolonged absence from the meetings of the president, Mrs. K. N. MacIver, owing to illness in her home. The stewardship secretary, Mrs. John MacIver, and the secretary, Mrs. Alexander Morrison, have gone to Danville for the winter and early spring months. All look forward to their return here.

Mrs. Gates, Miss Katie MacDonald and Miss M. MacMillan read portions of Scripture. The new study book, "West of the Gorges," by Rev. Kenneth Beaton, was introduced by Mrs. Matthews, with the use of a map of China, a picture sheet and chart showing the growth and expansion of the West China Mission from 1892 to 1947.

Mrs. Matthews told briefly of the arrival of the first missionaries and of the coming of Dr. Hartwell to the home of Margaret Lee.

Mrs. MacKay gave a summary of the first period of Margaret's life from six, when she first met the missionary; her baptism, and of the opposition she met in her home until her mother caught a vision of the Christ.

Rev. Mr. Matthews continued Margaret's life from the time she became a teacher to the death of her father. Mrs. MacDonald concluded the story, telling of Margaret's evangelistic work, especially of her wartime service.

Mrs. Matheson brought in one dollar, which had been donated by Mrs. Murdo MacKay. Mrs. Matthews requested prayer for the pioneer missionaries and for Miss Isabel Millar, of Knowlton, who is en route to West China to give her services as a nurse to this great work.

The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Matthews. The service was brought to a close by singing verses of the hymn, "O Master of the Waking World," and prayer offered by Mrs. Matthews.

The hostesses were Mrs. D. A. MacIver and Miss M. MacMillan.

Athletics Lost 34-11 Decision To Rockland In Montreal Yesterday In Q.R.F.U. Intermediate Section

Montreal, Sept. 27.—A last-half drive good for 24 points on four converted touchdowns carried Rockland to a 34-11 victory over Sherbrooke Athletics here yesterday in an Intermediate Quebec Rugby Football Union game.

The victory placed Rockland in three-way tie with Lakeshore and Quebec for first place and left the Athletics winless in two games and sharing the cellar spot with Eastward.

Yesterday's game was a wide-open crowd-pleasing encounter, marred only by the poor condition of the Rockland field. The players kicked up so much dust on the dry, dirt gridiron that it times it was impossible for even the players themselves to tell who had the ball.

Athletics, despite the big score against them, played far better football than they showed against Quebec in the first game of the season when they were beaten 11-0. Their line stood up well against all the Rockland attackers except dusky Danny Johnson.

Their attack was weak, however, and their defence against forward passes bogged down at crucial moments. Three Rockland touchdowns came on forwards and another was the result of an intercepted lateral.

Speedy Mac Sanders scored the first major for Sherbrooke when he raced into the open for 55 yards after receiving a forward pass. Phil Hovey kicked the convert from placement. Charlie Clarke, who played a standout game all afternoon both offensively and defensively, took another forward for Sherbrooke's second major score.

Mickey McGuire was top scorer for Rockland with two touchdowns and a convert, while Boright scored two majors. Kasper and Johnson got the other touchdowns while converts were marked up by Libman and Chambers who got two.

Johnson was the big ground-gainer for Rockland, however, as time and again he drove for long gains, usually carrying four or five Sherbrooke players on his back.

Hovey and Lorne Campbell more than held their own with the Rockland kickers. Gordie (Beef) Ross was a power of strength on the line.

As in Quebec, Athletics lacked offensive punch and Rockland marked up 28 first downs to Sherbrooke's fifth. Sherbrooke completed three out of ten forwards and Rockland made 11 out of 32 good.

First Quarter

Rockland moved in front early in the game when Segalowitz tossed a pass over centre to Kasper that caught the Sherbrooke secondary defence flat-footed. The pass went 20 yards and Kasper ran another 20 for the major. The convert was blocked.

Sherbrooke took command for the balance of the quarter, three times recovering fumbles in Rockland territory. Rockland began to move up the field on Johnson's plunges. R. Be Boulanger halted them temporarily by intercepting a pass, but the drive continued, sending Athletics right back to their own 10.

Second Quarter

Hovey got away a 60-yard boot to take Athletics out of danger and Sherbrooke drove Rockland back again when Larry Gallagher intercepted a pass at midfield. Gallagher kicked to the Rockland 35 and the home team then moved right down the field for a touchdown. Passes and plunges brought them to the Sherbrooke 10 from where Segalowitz tried four passes before clicking for the major. Three of the passes were grounded and an offside gave Rockland another chance. This one was completed by McGuire, standing in the crowd behind the goal-line. It looked as though McGuire outside the playing field when he took the pass, but it was ruled good. The convert was wide.

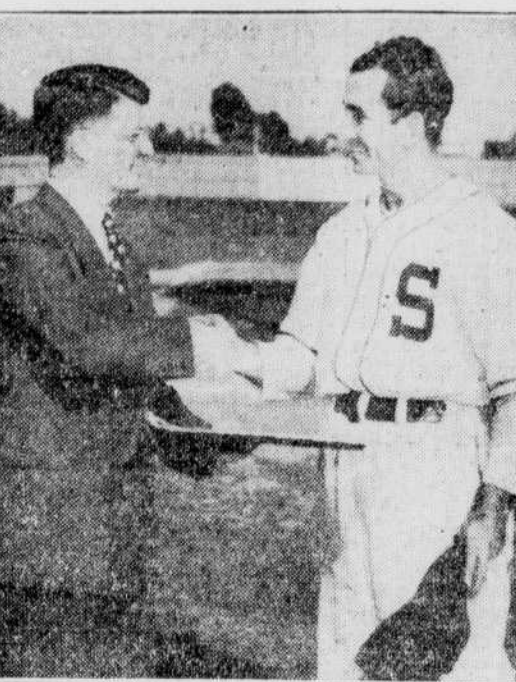

Sherbrooke threatened again as the half ended when Clark intercepted a pass and ran the ball 35 yards into Rockland territory. That was the last play of the half, however.

Third Quarter

Rockland raised the score to 16-0 soon after the half began when they started a drive from the Sherbrooke 38 and crossed the line on eight plunges. Johnson spear-headed the attack and made the major which Libman converted.

Rockland came right back again and drove from their 40 to Sherbrooke's 30, but Clarke intercepted a pass and raced 55 yards down the sidelines before Johnson pulled him down. Two Sherbrooke passes were grounded and Hovey kicked to the 10. Rockland kicked back to Sherbrooke's 40 and Athletics made their first score of the year when Sanders snared a forward at mid-field and outsped the Rockland defenders for his major. Hovey converted.

A few minutes later Boright intercepted a Sherbrooke lateral at mid-field and ran 50 yards un-

Vipond Wins Track Meet At Bishop's

Milton Vipond took top individual honors in a track and field meet held at Bishop's University over the week-end, when he ran up a personal total of 32 points, made up of four victories and four seconds.

Second place fell to Jim Alexander, who won two events, came second in two more and third in another. Between them, these two took every event with the exception of the shot-put, the half mile race, the mile race and the pole vault. First places in those competitions were respectively won by Harry Andrews, Tony Price, Brian Kelley and Gene Zinniger.

On an inter-year basis third year swept the event as the team made up of Vipond, Andrews, Kelley and Pilgrim piled up 48 team points. The class of 1950 placed second, while the freshmen were third.

Following are the complete results:

Discus: Vipond, Birch, Irwin.
Javelin: Vipond, Irwin, Vass.
Shot put: Andrews, Vipond, Irwin.
100 yard race: Vipond, Steves, Alexander.
220 yard race: Vipond, Alexander, Vass.

Broad jump: Alexander, Vipond, Steves.

molested for another Rockland touchdown which McGuire converted. Johnson went 50 yards two plays later for another touch when he intercepted a forward but he stepped out of touch at the 25 yard line and the play was called back.

Fourth Quarter
Soon after the final quarter began Segalowitz tossed a 40-yard pass to McGuire for another Rockland touchdown and then heaved to Chambers for the convert. A fumbled ball on third down on the Rockland 40 set Athletics up for their second major. Clarke went 15 yards around the end and a penalty gave Sherbrooke another 10. From there Campbell heaved a forward to Clarke for the touchdown. Another forward try for the convert failed.

A 25-yard roughing penalty brought Rockland back into Sherbrooke territory near the end of the game and Boright caught a pass behind the line for the final major score. Chambers caught another pass for the convert, last play of the game.

Manager Roland Gladu and his crew of fighting ball players last night demonstrated that they are never licked until the last man has swung out, when coming into the ninth inning trailing St. Hyacinthe 2-0 they drove nine runs across the plate to turn defeat into victory and stalemate the best-of-nine playoff series of the Provincial Baseball League at 4-4.

The teams will meet tonight at the local ball park in the ninth and deciding game of the series. Sherbrooke dropped a hard one Saturday in St. Hyacinthe, to give the Saints a 4-2 lead in the series, but bounced right back yesterday to take both games in the Sunday fixture and knot the series at 4-4. Paul Calvert held the Saints down in the afternoon tilt and then Adrian Zabala, who was voted the most useful player to his team in the afternoon, came back in St. Hyacinthe last night and hurled the locals to a 9-4 victory.

In St. Hyacinthe the heavy bats of the Sherbrooke squad paid off as in the ninth frame when on the short end of 2-0 count Manager Gladu stepped up and banged out a lusty double. Frank Coimbre then followed suit, connected for a single and drove Gladu home with the first Sherbrooke run. Big Claro Duany, the local home run king, lived up to his name as he picked out one of Herr's offerings and lifted it over centre field fence to put the locals back in the ball game 3-2, for their first lead in the game.

Sherbrooke with victory in sight then went to work and before MR. HERR could retire the side the locals had accounted for nine and put them in the driver's seat for two runs in the bottom half of the inning as Creeden homered but then Zabala bore down and got the side retired to give the A's the victory.

Yesterday afternoon at the ball park the executive of the local club presented Roland Gladu with a sterling silver tea service for his wonderful job as manager. Normie Dussault, who left last night's game in St. Hyacinthe, was presented with a travelling clock by Jean Paul Perrault, a travelling bag by the Elks Club presented by Frank Gravel, and a hat by Gaston Gagnon presented by Gagnon and Brunelle. Claro Duany was presented with a pen and pencil set by Lucien Dugre for leading the local club in home runs and Paul Calvert was given a travelling bag, which was presented by His Worship Mayor Alphonse Trudeau, on behalf of a group of local business men. Adrian Zabala was presented with a sterling silver tray by Conrad Larose, of Larose and company for being the most useful player to his club.

SATURDAY

St. Hyacinthe, September 27.—With errors playing a big part the Sherbrooke Athletics, although outhitting the Saints of St. Hyacinthe, dropped the sixth tilt of the Provincial League playoffs here Saturday night 3-1.

Lou Shapiro, who held the Saints to five hits, turned in one of his best hurling performances and should have barring the errors, best Pete Blumette in the tilt. Shapiro gave up a singleton in the initial frame, one in the fifth and seventh and two in the eighth, while his mates got safeties in every frame except the fifth and ninth. Shapiro sent five men down swinging while Blumette accounted for seven at the plate.

In the opening frame McNeeley, the 'Saints' lead-off man, reached first when Torres committed a miscue on the play. Lipka hit a single and McNeeley pulled up a third. Edwards, who was replacing Creeden in rightfield, flied out Torres. Nance went out, third to first, but McNeeley came racing home with the opening tally of the game.

On the other side of the ledger the locals started off with Dussault getting a single. Torres flied out to centre field, and Gladu lined

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Four thousand four hundred fans jammed the local ball park yesterday afternoon to see Paul Calvert hurl a five-hit performance to blank the Saints of St. Hyacinthe 9-0 and cap the seventh tilt of the playoffs in the Provincial Baseball League.

Calvert, who went the route for the A's, gave up two two-baggers and three singles and was at no time in difficulty. He whiffed five men at the plate and issued only two free passes to first and at no time did the Saints get more than one man on base at once.

On the other hand Weisler, who started for the Saints, was not around at the finish. He was relieved by Jean Paul Tetreault in the fifth.

The Athletics banged eleven safeties off of Weisler, and nicked him for all of the nine tallies. He gave up six lifts to first, got only one man at the plate. Tetreault was touched for three hits and struck out two for his share of the day.

Adrian Zabala, replacing Manager Roland Gladu at first, was the top man for the A's. He drove in three runs and got three hits

Cliff Goupille And Gerry Gravel Affix Signatures To Local Contracts; Training Starts Tomorrow Morning

Gerry Gravel, last year with the Gauls of St. Hyacinthe, will turn out with the Sherbrooke St. Francis Hockey Club at St. Hyacinthe and Cliff Goupille has signed his contract with the local club for his third consecutive year, announced Coach Ivan Dugre yesterday afternoon.

Manny McIntyre, left winger with the famous colored line of Carnegie-Carnegie McIntyre, arrived in town over the week-end, and will start practicing with Sherbrooke at the St. Hyacinthe Arena tomorrow.

The Sherbrooke club will open their training with two goalkeepers, Lew Crowdis and Paul Leclerc, five defense men, Raynald Bonin, Phil Vitale, Bill Heindl, Cliff Goupille and Vince Lecours, recommended to Coach Dugre by Ray Valenti, of the Victoriaville Tigers, and with the following forwards, Bernie Vinet, Kelvin Burnett, Armand Bourdon, Ossie Carnegie, Manny McIntyre, Gerry Gravel and Neil Gordon of Toronto and formerly with Guelph Juniors.

Coach Dugre has not heard from Herbie Carnegie, who is training with the Rangers at Lake Placid, but he expects news this week. About twenty players are expected to turn out with Sherbrooke for the pre-training period which starts tomorrow morning at 10.00.

Gaston Plouffe, trainer with the local baseball club, will also take over the same duties with the hockey outfit, announced Forest Keene, business manager, of the club. Plouffe was the trainer with the Victoriaville Tigers last year and in the years past looked after Gerard Cote, of St. Hyacinthe, in the same capacity.

During their training period at St. Hyacinthe the locals will play a few exhibition games, announced Forest Keene, and it is quite possible that they might play Thursday against Dallas, farm team of the Montreal Canadiens, who are at present in St. Hyacinthe holding workouts.

Gerry Gravel is well-known in the Provincial Senior Hockey League as he has played with the Gauls of St. Hyacinthe for the past two years. He is 24 years-old, weighs 175 and stands 5'9". He learnt his hockey around Montreal. While he was playing with Concordia under Sylvio Mantha, in the J.A.H.A., he was picked up by Philadelphia, of the American League, but he fractured a leg during a practice with Concordia and failed to report to the Phillies.

While only twenty years old he played with Providence Reds, then returned to perform with the Flyers of Cornwall and from there to the Cataracts of Shawinigan Falls, in the Senior Group.

With the Gauls last year he tallied a total of 76 points, 41 goals and 35 assists, and was one of the top forwards for the Gauls. The previous season he joined the Gauls, in December, and tallied 49 points, 19 goals and 30 assists, for the season.

Cliff "Red" Goupille since his arrival in Sherbrooke has been one of the standouts on the blue-line for the locals, and Red with his sound judgment will be great help for the Royals in the third curtain he was the leading scorer among the defencemen in the Provincial League having accounted for 43 points in 50 games, 12 goals and 31 assists.

The St. Francis squad will open their schedule October 17, at the Montreal Forum when they tackle the Royals in the initial curtain raiser while the local season will open on the 31 of October.

A meeting of the Senior Group will be held this evening in Montreal at the Windsor Hotel to study and accept the schedule for the coming year.

Royals And Chiefs Split First Two Games; Move To Syracuse For Next Three Contests Of Playoffs

Montreal, Sept. 27.—Both semi-final series in the International Baseball League playoffs went the limit of seven games before a winner was decided, and now Syracuse Chiefs and Montreal Royals appear headed for a long and hard battle before one club emerges on top with the Governors Cup.

And this is all right with the club owners who stand to collect heavy gravy from the healthiest gate receipts in the league's playoff history.

Royals won the opener of the best-of-seven set Saturday night 9-8 in a game that went ten innings before 16,294 fans. Yesterday 21,112 rabid Royal noters largest crowd of the season—cramped every corner of the ball park to watch their heroes drop a 5-2 decision to the pesky Chiefs. An estimated 5,000 more were turned away Sunday.

The scene shifts to Syracuse for the next three games with Negro ace Don Newcombe of Royals slated to oppose Eddie Evers of Chiefs on the mound tonight. Timely home run belts in the late innings were the deciding factors in both week-end games.
