ENGLAND.

The Henri-Martini rifle is to be issued without further delay to the regiments of the line. One hundred thousand rifles are at present in course of manufacture.

The value of eggs imported into England in the seven months ended the 31st ult. was as much as £1,604,966. In the month of July alone the value was £196,485.

Recently a swimming match was arranged to take place at Eastbourne, England, between a fisherman and a mastiff dog. But there was no race, because the dog, once in the water with the man, supposed his duty there was to save the latter's life, and persisted in his endeavors to keep the man afloat by thrusting his head under his opponent's chin.

A Parliamentary Return of the number of deaths in the metropolitan district from starvation, privation, &c., in the year 1873, states that the total number of such deaths reported by the coroners of the several divisions was 107. Of these, 76 were in the Central Division (Dr. Lankester); 24 in the Eastern Division (Mr. Humphreys); three in the Western Division (Dr. Diplock); three in the City of London and borough of Southwark (Mr. Payne); and one in the new Wandsworth division (Mr. William Carter).

There is now on view in Kew Gardens, England, what an Irishman would call a rara avis—an American aloe in full bloom. It is a sight which cannot be seen every day, for, as is pretty well known, this plant flowers but once in a century. This particular specimen is of the finest. Its leaves made up a circumference of thirty feet, and its topmost bloom is twenty-two feet high. In order to make room for its magnificent efflorescence, a portion of the Succulent House, as its habitation is designated, had to be removed.

We hear from a correspondent that, in a parish where, up to September last, there was a faithful Gospel ministry, there is now an Ultra-Ritualist, who has placed a large cross on the communion table, and by his other Ritualistic vagaries has driven four-fifths of his congregation to take refuge in a neighboring chapel. Having so far succeeded, he has denounced Dissenters from the pulpit; forbids any child coming to the day school, who goes to the Sunday School at the chapel, and at last discharged the schoolmistress because she would not pledge herself not to speak to a Dissenter.—Rock.

The return of the Registrar-General, for the week ending August 22, showed that 5,320 births and 4,624 deaths were registered in London and twenty other large towns of the United Kingdom. The actual increase of population was 1,696. The mortality from all causes was at the average rate of 25 deaths annually in every 1,000 persons living. The annual death rate was 18 per 1000 in Edinburgh, 29 in Glasgow, and 23 in Dublin. The annual rates of mortality per 1,000 last week in the 18 English towns, ranged in order from the lowest, were as follows:—Portsmouth, 20; London, 20; Bristol, 22; Wolverhampt n, 22; Nott

Monday, September 14, 1874.

A QUEBEC telegram says the Local Government thus far consists of the Premier and Mr. Malhiot.

INSPECTOR GAILEY had better keep an eye on the City Hall. In this morning's Gazette City Clerk Glackmeyer moots the idea of "cutting the Mayor into three ports"!

WHILE the Protestant was paying us the compliment contained in the assertion that the STAR is the only Montreal paper liberal enough to publish a sermon preached by a Jesuit it might have added that the STAR is the only paper that makes a feature of reporting one or more sermons every Monday.

WE are informed that the Protestant is edited by a clergyman whose sermons have been reported in the STAR more frequently and at greater length than those of any other preacher, Protestant or Roman Catholic. Yet this publication has the effrontory to charge us with favoring the Jesuits and giving only "garbled extracts" of Protestant sermons!

The Cloven Foot.

In the quotation which we made from the Protestant's tirade on Saturday it will have been noticed that the rage of the poor thing is partly due to the fact, as it alleges, that the Protestant sermons which we have published "were never abusive." The italics are ours, and we use them to make prominent what may evidently be accepted as an index to the spirit which animates the conductors of the monthly in question. That we have never had occasion to publish an "abusive" Protestant sermon we regard as most creditable to that body, but our bigoted contemporary is clearly of a different opinion, and interprets "a good sermon" to mean a discourse a la Billingsgate. We are proud to know that such sermons are not often heard in Montreal.

Choirs vs. Congregations.

Choirs in churches are gradually taking over the whole of the service of praise. Time was when they were content to lead the congregation, but such fantastic tunes are now indulged in that the average church-goer is compelled to keep silent or make an exhibition of himself. (For the sake of giving the members of the choir a chance to show themselves off, the beautiful chants of the Prayer-Book are recklessly mangled, sung backwards and forward and dealt with as though purposely to puzzle the common people in the body of the church. The people are beginning to view all this as a simple performance and themselves as spectators not participants. For instance, last night, at the English Cathedral, none of the congregation joined in singing the Psalms or chants, and when the Anthem was announced, nearly the whole remained seated as though at a concert. We should like to hear the Synod discuss the question whether this anti-congregational teadency is worthy of encouragement.

A Blind Leader.

A more extraordinary article it has seldom been our lot to read than one in the Minerve of Saturday, attacking some very suggestive reflections of M. Edmond About contributed to a Parisian newspaper and reproduced in the National.

Judging from the Minerve's article one would think that the France of to-day was the France of 100 years ago. Our contemporary cannot comprehend what Napoleon III. happily called "The Logic of Facts." To dream of France becoming stromg through the restoration of the temporal power and the enthronization of absolute government in Spain is about as idle as to dream of turning the course of the St. Lawrence. The fact is that the overthrow of stable government in France, and its present humiliation, is simply owing to the nation not minding her own business and constantly interfering in the business of other countries, a truth which all sensible Frenchmen have begun to realize Why was it the business of France to keep an army of 10,000 men at Rome to protect the Holy See and defraud the Italians of their capital, so making an enemy of the nation, which on the ground of race was her natural ally? Restore the prestige of the Latin nations by such a policy as the Minerve points out? Why the only Latin nation that is great and prosperous, is great and prosperous precisely because she has seen the fallacacy of autocratic and sacerdotal government, and determined to submit to it no longer. Italy has risen from her long sleep of degradation and moral death and stands before the world as a nation, and no longer a conglomeration of petty principalities subject to the dictation of the Austrian. She is the true pattern which France and Spain should put before their eyes, if their former greatness is to be restored and maintained

The Minerve seems utterly to misunderstand the whole drift of modern thought and intelligence, and would put back the hand on the dial of time at least a century. It would have us believe in the good old times before the revolution, when the principle of legitimate monarchy had not in France and other continental nations been called in question, and when the prosperity of France meant the prosperity of the courts of Louis XIV. and XV., and of the satellites whom these monarchs favored. We should indeed rejoice to see the Latin nations exercise their due preponderance in the Councils of Europe, but this can only be done on principles of mutual respect and good will. It was a great misfortune that there was a large body of politicians in France who fancied that in order for France to be strong, Italy must be kept weak. They spurned the aspirations for unity, they said that Italy was a geographical expression. But nationality is a fact of human nature which has proved too strong for France both in Germany and Italy. Could she have recognized it generously, there need have been no German war, and Italy might be her firm ally. Any policy based on the notion of breaking up the German Empire or the Italian Kingdom can only end in fresh disorder, and this the clear eat heads in France know sufficiently well. There is little fear of their being fooled by such theories as are advocated in La Minerve. We only regret in the interests of truth that such attempts should be made to mislead the French-speaking population of Canada.

PROVINCIAL SYNOD.

Fourth Day.

After recess on Saturday the debate on the canon providing for the election of Bishops was resumed and continued up to six o'clock without a vote being reached.

Rev. Mr. Allan and Rev. Mr. Burke supported the canon.

Chancellor Bethune said it must be well-known that if they passed the canon they would be interfering with their rights. In his judgment the passing of such a canon would be a reflection on our own Diocesan Synods. When it required a majority of votes from each order to elect a Bishop, it would be folly to accept a cast-iron rule like this, which would make their choice useless. He could see no necessity for the change. Looking at the question in a legal point of view there was no precedent for such a change being made. The Archbishop of Canterbury was commanded by the Crown to sanction the choice of the laity and clergy of the Church. He moved in amendment that the third clause of the canon be struck out.

The Ven. Dean Bond seconded the amendment. He contended that the liberties of the Church was bound up in the liberties of the Diocesan Synod. It was an inherant right in each Diocesan Synod to elect its own bishop, and it was throwing away that right to place it in the hands of other people to nullify their selection. They could not too jealously guard the liberties of Diocesan Synods, for in these liberties the liberty of the Church was largely bound up.

Vice-Chancellor Blake spoke against the canon; he wished that what they had been doing for twenty years should be continued. What right had this Synod to curtail the rights of Diocesan Synods, to take a power out of their hands and place it in the hands of the House of Bishops? They must meet the question fairly. By passing the canon, they would virtually say to the Diocesan Synods—We shall allow you the power—to do what? To elect your bishops? No, but to nominate a man for the Bishops to elect. That was what the canon amounted to. The present system had worked well in the past, and he had no desire for these constant changes, the result of which it was impossible to foretell.

Dr. Hodgins (Toronto) moved in amendment to the amendment:

That as the Bishops have now power to refuse the consecration of any bishop elect whose election may be objected to, it is not expedient to give that House the additional power without giving any reason to veto one of the highest acts of the Diocesan Synod, the election of a bishop, nor should this Synod interfere with the rights of Diocesan Synods in this matter without first submitting the question for the consideration of such Synods.

A permit of order was raised that this amendment was equivalent to a postponement, and it had been decided that according to the rules a question sent down by the Bishops must be disposed of and could not be postponed.

Chief Justice Ritchie called attention to the fact that at the last session of the Synod a question sent down by the Bishops was disposed of by postponement, and he therefore held that his amendment, which had been ruled out of order, was in order, and he appealed from the decision of the chair.

The question being put, the decision of the chair was reversed, and Chief Justice Ritchie's motion was put before the Synod.

THE PULPIT.

Christ Church Cathedral.

The Bishop of Saskatchewan preached yesterday morning at the English Cathedral, taking his text from Numbers xvi. 48:—"And he stood between the dead and the living and the plague was stayed."

The words, said the preacher, describe the position of Aaron during the great plague which fell on the Children of Israel. The dead on one side; the living looking up to Heaven for help on the other. The High Priest was standing between and making incense rise to God like earnest prayer. Aaron was, as they knew, the High Priest of the highly ceremonial Jewish dispensation. But Christ was the High Priest of the present dispensation, which was accompanied with little or no ceremonial. He, too, stood between the dead and the living—the dead for whom there was no longer hope, as for them there was no repentance, no purgatorial fires to cleanse from sin; and the living, among whom, thank God, we still were, for whose cleansing the blood of His High Priest was completely effectual. In calling attention to the circumstances spoken of in the text he noticed especially the earnestness of Aaron. His place was a dignified one in the sanctuary, but he ran down from thence among the people, thinking nothing of his dignity, but anxious only for the safety of his brethren; and so the High Priest of the present Church, whose place was in the sanctuary of the Heavens at the right hand of the Majesty of God, was not content only to take pity on His dying people, but He came down from Heaven in the likeness of flesh, took His stand amongst the perishing population of this world, and finally offered His own precious blood on Calvary. He was a child of sorrows before He was the man of sorrows. He was one of those against whom the tyrant of Judea directed a more cruel persecution than those of savage Indians when they drive before them, not men only, but women and children. Though rich He became poor, and how rich He was could not be computed by human mathematics or arithmetic, and yet could be somewhat imagined by reflecting that with the most powerful telescope it was possible for man only to approach the outside verge of the Universe of God, and that if penetrating beyond those limits ages were occupied in passing forward into space, it would still be impossible to reach the boundary beyond which no more worlds would acknowledge the rule of this Great Creator and rich High Priest. But then how describe the depth of his poverty? He himself best described it when he said, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has not where to lay his head." Again, Aaron's attitude was that of intercession, and in offering the bloody sacrifice he was also the type of the great High Priest, now in Heaven, where St. John saw him as a lamb that had been slain. If it were given now to him to see the Heavens open, therefore in what form would he see this great High Priest? As he was described in the psalm, received into glory with loud acclamations and cries of "lift up your heads oh ye gates"—crowned with many crowns, and surrounded with Cherubin and Seraphin? No, he would see him as the Evangelist saw him, as the slain and bleeding lamb; offering his blood, as the high priest once a year sprinkled with sacrificial blood, the mercy seat, through which the Almighty could look down on the broken law. From considerations deduced from the above remarks, he asked the congregations for contributions for the Diocese of Saskatchewan—one of the four Dioceses into which that of Rupert's Land had been divided. Liberal contributions had been made in England; but the greater part of the $40,000 which he had collected there had been invested, and the remainder would go a very little way to meet the necessities of the cause. There were thirty thousand Indians in the Diocese, and he hoped soon to begin the work with five fellow laborers, of whom one was an Indian educated for the Ministry by himself, and, as he hoped, two would be from Canada. He was sure that he would not make this appeal in vain. In conclusion, he made a strong appeal to the liberality of the congregation, and remarked upon the great efforts that the Roman Catholics were making to establish their faith in the Saskatchewan district.

The Bishop of Lichfield preached in the evening in behalf of the Algoma mission. The church was crowded, and the heat so great that several ladies had to leave at an early stage of the service. The singing by the choir was very good, viewed as a musical performance, but the chants, &c., were sung in such a way as to make them much longer than as written. At the singing of the anthem nearly the whole congregation remained seated.

ROUND TOWN.

—Judgment in the Molson Bank vs. McMinn case to morrow.

—The night promises to be fine for the "moonlight excursion."

—The St. George's Church Temperance Society holds a meeting to-night.

—Michael Fox, Chenneville street, is under arrest for having cruelly ill-treated his child.

—A meeting of medical men will be held in the Jacques Cartier Normal School on Tuesday at three p. m., to deal with the pictures put out by Dr. Coderre & Co. to retard vaccination.

—There was a French-Canadian procession yesterday in honor of the Virgin Mary. The bells were rung and flags were displayed from the towers of Notre Dame, and many houses along the line of march.

—A stranger, described as tall, with a beard, and dressed in a light suit, was drowned about 1 o'clock on Sunday morning by falling off the steamer "Quarta," where he appears to have had no business.

—"The Marble Heart" to-night at the Theatre Royal with a New Orleans amateur as Diogenes. Mr. T. C. King will appear to-morrow night. Pat. Sullivan is getting up something unique for his benefit on October 14th.

—It seems there is no place for the paralytic poor. An unfortunate man thus afflicted was, on Saturday, refused admision at both hospitals, and was last seen lying in front of the General Hospital.

—It might be inferred from our account of the conflict of authority in the Crystal Palace case that Chief McLaughlin was taken off a prisoner to the Police Court. Such was not the case. He remained at his post, giving his word that he would be at the court at three o'clock.

—The mountain is just now charming. A ramble beneath the quiet, leafy avenues takes one's thoughts far from the wear and tear of city life. Pic-nic parties are very plentiful every day, and on Sundays there is a constant stream of big and little ascending and descending the Peel street steps.

—Cabin passengers per SS. "Austrian," Quebec to Liverpool:—Colonel and Mrs. Mounsell, Mr. and Mrs. Aylwin, child and servant, W. J. Cox, Miss Gillespie, Miss Stuart, Dep. Cont. Irvine, Mr. Stewart, J. M. Stedman, Mr. and Mrs. Drayton, Misses Carvell, Messrs. Breakey, Doctor and Mrs. Joice and two children, Mr. Davenport, Mr. Burnell, Mr. Ball, Richard Heaton, Miss Smyth, Miss Cormack, John Marshall, T. D. Acland, J. B. Tyrman.

IMPORTANT TO BANKS, ETC.

An American gentleman informs us that a gang of expert New York bank burglars were noticed walking up St. James street last evening, two being convicts. The members of the gang are some six or seven in number, are said to be fine looking, and well dressed. Our informant looked about for a policeman, but in the meantime the party disappeared.

THE CORNWALL FIRE.

A fire at Cornwall yesterday morning destroyed Cully's paper mill, Hodge's planing mill, the Stormont cotton mill and Adams' saw mills. Loss, $250,000.

The cotton mill destroyed is partly owned by Gault Bros. & Co., of this city. The British American Insurance Company hold risks to the extent of $5,000, and $2,000 on other property destroyed.

The Etna is in for $10,000, and the Royal Canadian for the same. It is thought some Toronto offices are interested.

On the paper mill the Scottish Imperial had $2,000 and the Provincial $2,000.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

The sale of the late Government Reserve Property on Dorchester Avenue and Dorchester street took place on Saturday afternoon, under the management of Mr. John J. Arnton. Although the afternoon was very fine, the audience was not as numerous as at recent sales, six lots only were sold; this, however, can be accounted for from the fact that many who were present were afraid to buy, doubting the validity of the title, and not wishing to be mixed up in any legal proceedings of which there has been so much talk recently, this being the expression of most of the audience.

The following is the result:—

Lot No. 28, St. Catherine street west, irregular, about 50 by 142, area about 7,810 feet, at 26 cents per foot, $2,030.60, Henry Hogan, Esq.

Lot No. 23, adjoining, 50 by 142, 7,100 feet, at 26 cents, $1,846, Alex. C. Hutchison, Esq.

Lot No. 22, adjoining, same size, 7,100 feet, at 23 cents, $1,633, Mr. John Allen.

Lot No. 21, same size, adjoining, 7,100 feet, at 22 cents, $1,562, A. Hutchison, Esq.

Lot No. 20, adjoining, same size, 7,100 feet, at 21¼ cents, $1,526.50, Messrs. W. B. Smith and J. Starke.

Lot No. 19, adjoining, same size, 7,100 feet, at 20 cents, $1,420, Mr. Allan Cameron.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

The old National School building, Bonsecours street, has been converted into a well-appointed vinegar factory, of which Mr. Michel Lefebvre is proprietor. On Saturday a large party, including medical men, merchants and representatives of the press, attended per invitation to witness an analysis of the Canadian article as compared with that imported. The visitors were first invited to inspect the factory. Here were ranged vats capable of containing from three to five thousand gallons, in which the processes of fermentation, &c., take place, and in which the vinegar is stored. The establishment is adapted for the manufacture of over three hundred gallons per day. The vinegar is manufactured by a fermentative process lately discovered in France, and according to which no acid whatever enters into the composition of the article.

After inspecting the factory, the visitors were conducted to a large hall in front, where a table was covered with samples of imported vinegars, and also of Mr. Lefebvre's manufacture.

At the request of Mr. Lefebvre, Dr. Leprohon took the chair, and in opening the proceedings spoke of the enterprise which had been displayed by Mr. Lefebvre in establishing this branch of industry, he having invested nearly $20,000 in apparatus and material, upon which he had as yet secured no return, although he hoped soon to do so, now that his establishment had been put in full working order. He spoke of what he believed to be the excellence of the manufacture of Mr. Lefebvre, and added that Dr. Lussier would make a few experiments.

Dr. Lussier then spoke of the facilities which Mr. Lefebvre had for manufacturing vinegar, stating also that his vinegar possessed greater strength than any other article on the market, with none of the deleterious qualities. He then proceeded to test several samples of the best vinegars to be purchased in stores, showing the presence of nitric and sulphuric acid, which was not to be found in Mr. Lefebvre's vinegar. He also tested the strength of Mr. Lefebvre's vinegar, the result being that, while the imported article registered 46 degrees, that of Mr. Lefebvre showed 66 degrees.

The experiments were pronounced ample satisfactory by the visitors, who were subsequently entertained at luncheon, Dr. Leprohon presiding very happily.

LATE EUROPEAN NEWS.

[From Papers received this Morning.]

Mr. Albert Grant has offered to lay out and improve Soho square at a cost of £7,000.

During the past twenty-five years 1,158 miles of new streets and squares have been added to London.

According to a Parliamentary return, 106 deaths resulted from starvation in London in the year 1873.

From statistics just issued it appears that the total population of the British possessions abroad is 202,405,690.

Another English tourist has met with an untimely death. Mr. J. A. Garth Marshall, of Leeds, has been killed by falling down a crevasse on Mont Blanc along with his guide.

The "Countess of Derwentwater" has served a notice upon the trustees of several Nonconformist churches on the Derwentwater estate, requesting them to pay ground-rent to her agent.

A tablet, towards which more than one thousand children have contributed, is about to be erected at Ecclesfield in memory of the late Mrs. Alfred Gatty, formerly editor of Aunt Judy's Magazine.

Addressing his men at the harvest home on his estate at Glynde, on Saturday, the Speaker of the House of Commons expressed himself favorable to unions of agricultural laborers, and hoped that his proposal, that labor should be compensated from the profits of capital, might yet be carried out.

The eldest son of the Imperial Crown Prince of Germany was confirmed at Potsdam on Tuesday in the presence of a brilliant assemblage, including the Prince of Wales. The 25th ultimo, being the anniversary of the birth of the Prince Consort, the servants and tenants on the Royal estates in Scotland assembled at the Obelisk, by invitation of the Queen, and drank to the memory of the Prince. Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice visited the tenants and servants, and made them presents. On the following day the Queen witnessed the Highland sports at Mar Castle.

It is believed that the late fire at the factory of Mr. Samuel Morley, M.P., near Nottingham, was the work of an incendiary, as a prejudice had been excited against some machinery which had been introduced. Mr. Morley attributes the act to strangers, and has not only exonerated his own workpeople, but has promised to allow them two-thirds of what they would have earned with him until they meet with work. The extent of this liberality will be the better understood when we repeat that Morley was a very heavy loser by the fire.

It is seldom that we have to record so many distressing murders and attempted murders as have occurred within the past few days. A coffee-shop keeper at Camberwell has caused the death of his wife. A similar crime has been perpetrated by a barge owner at Bristol. A returned convict has killed a child at Kilmarnock. A young man attempted to murder his sweetheart near Oxford, and a similar case has been investigated at Marlborough street. At Newcastle-on-Tyne, a Jewess attempted to murder her husband, and afterwards cut the throats of two children belonging to a neighbour, the youngest of whom has since died.

The Tribune contains an exposure of the causes of the malady said to have prevailed so extensively at the Gregory House, Lake Mahopac this summer, from which several deaths have occurred, and scores of people made sick, some of whom are still suffering. The origin of the malady is supposed to be in the water from a well on the premises. The Tribune says the proprietor of the hotel has attempted to stamp it out by threatening to prosecute those who should give it currency.

Chas. O'Connor has been interviewed on the subject of Southern outrages and the war of races. He regards exile or extirpation as the only alternative for the negro. Civil rights and universal suffrage, in his opinion, will never answer for the negro.

Chamberlain, the nominee for Governor in South Carolina, is a native of Worcester, Mass., 37 years old, and a graduate of Yale College. ROUND TOWN.

—General Beauregard, United States Army, is at the St. Lawrence Hall.

—The British mail per Allan steamer was delivered at the post office this morning.

—The Sheriff of Gaspe arrived yesterday with two prisoners charged with housebreaking, one destined for the Penitentiary at St. Vincent de Paul and the other for the Mignonne Reformatory.

—A match between the second eleven of the St. George and Grand Trunk Cricket Clubs was played on Saturday afternoon, resulting in a victory for the St. George by 19 runs, the match being decided by the first innings.

—A match was played last Saturday between the St. Charles and Victoria Cricket Clubs on the grounds of the latter, the Victorias winning easily in one innings with 48 runs to spare. The score stood:—St. Charles, 1st innings, 22; 2nd do, 30; Victorias, 1st innings, 101.

—A cricket match was played on Saturday between the first eleven of the Royal Arthur School and the first eleven of the Victoria School (Mr. Bristow's). The former made 41 in the two innings, the latter 175. For the new school E. Doucet made 50, J. Fowler 32, J. Watt, 30.

—The return base ball match between the employees of Messrs. Mitchell & Co. and the employees of Mr. R. Patton took place on Saturday, the 13th, on Logan's farm, and ended in a victory for the latter. The score being as follows: Mitchell, 34; Patton, 37. Umpire, Mr. Chaplin, of the "Dominion." Scorer for the Patton team, Mr. H. Johnston, of the "Excelsior." Scorer for the Mitchell team, Mr. Harvey, of the Mitchell.

—It may not be generally known that with a small outlay three pretty miniature lakes might be made in different parts of the Mountain Park. The lake at Beleil is much talked of, but that is not half way up the mountain, whereas in the case of our park we could have a lake at the very summit. It is said the Corporation has some idea of thus utilizing the springs in question, and in the far distance we look for three pretty lakes well stocked with speckled trout.

TO-MORROW (Tuesday) morning at 10 o'clock H. J. Shaw will sell at the residence, No. 14 Brunswick street, the whole of the household furniture, carpets, bedding, crockery, glass ware, stone, &c., &c.

Devany & Co. sell, by order of the executors to the estate of the late Luke Moore, Esq., that desirable first-class cut-stone house formerly occupied by the Montreal Literary Club, being the east corner of University and Cathcart streets, three stories high, finished basement, all modern improvements, in excellent repair, fashionable locality and convenient to business portion of the city. The hour is eleven o'clock.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.

A sad accident occurred yesterday evening about six o'clock whereby one man lost his life, owing to the careless use of firearms. Napoleon Joubaine, 36 years of age, ship carpenter; Charles Leirue, Perrre Macon and Charles Haynes got a couple of boats here and went down the river shooting as far as Pointe aux Trembles. Towards evening they crossed over to Longue Pointe, Joubaine and Haynes in one boat, Leirue and Macon in the other. As they landed, Haynes got out of his boat and Joubaine, in leaving the boat, took his gun by the muzzle to draw it towards him, when the trigger caught on the seat and the gun exploded, lodging the charge in the unfortunate man's breast, in the immediate neighborhood of the heart. He exclaimed: "I'm shot!" "I'm killed!" and expired almost immediately. An inquest was held by Coroner Jones, and a verdict of "accidental death" returned.

"Pray, my lord, be seated," cried Pharisee, in a low, hurried tone, "be not disturbed or alarmed. It is I, your faithful and devoted servant, Pharisee. I have great and important news for your lordship."

Lord Kingswood, recovering his composure, regarded him sternly.

"What is the meaning of this mummery, man?" he said, in a slow, scornful voice.

"It means, my lord, that my life is not for the present safe in my natural appearance," he returned, in a whisper.

"My lord, my lord, I have, at the peril of my life, obtained for you information of the usmost value to your future peace of mind, and when I tell your lordship that, concealed, I overheard Horace Vernon, Esquire, of Eaton-square and Huntingford, confer with that old man of whom I have spoken to your lordship—when I inform your lordship that believing themselves to be alone, they let out secrets worth half your lordship's fortune to purchase—you will say I could hardly have bought those secrets too dearly myself at the risk of my life."

He paused, for he saw that Lord Kingswood bent upon him a searching, anxious, eager gaze.

"Go on, Pharisee, my good, faithful fellow," cried his lordship, excitedly, as Pharisee did not attempt to proceed beyond what he had stated. "Do not keep me in suspense, it is possible what you may have to communicate may prove invaluable to me."

"I believe it will, my lord," returned Pharisee; "but your lordship will remember that, while you are great, powerful, and wealthy, I am but a poor servant."

"Pharisee, you shall have no cause to doubt my liberality if your information be of the service to me which you intimate it is," returned his lordship, hastily.

"Pardon me, my lord, if I appear mercenary," returned Pharisee, slowly, purposely to increase his lordship's eagerness, "but liberality is but a vague term. I am but a poor servant, and I am anxious to secure an income for my declining years. I have drawn up a small paper——"

He drew one from his breast as he spoke.

Lord Kingswood opened it, and observed that it was very lengthy for an agreement of such a character; but Pharisee rather anxiously assured him that it contained only the necessary and usual provisions to make it a legal instrument.

"Enough," said Lord Kingswood, displaying some irritability of manner. "I presume, after so many years' servitude with me, I can trust you in so simple a matter as this. Where is my signature to be affixed?"

"There, my lord," returned Pharisee, pointing out the space left for the purpose.

Lord Kingswood seized a pen and scrawled his accustomed signature on the spot indicated, and then handed the paper back to Pharisee, whose fingers absolutely clutched it as they took possession of it. Carefully applying some blotting-paper to the wet ink, he dried it, folded the paper, and put it into his vest with a look of triumph upon his face.

"My lord, one fact must be of importance to you, I believe," said Pharisee, "and that is the death of the mother of Mr. Erle Gower."

A livid tint rendered the features of Lord Kingswood for a moment ghastly, and in a low voice he replied—

"Most important."

"Your lordship is, I have no doubt, conscious that Mr. Vernon of Huntingford, is deeply interested in Mr. Erle's affairs?"

Lord Kingswood waved his hand.

"You referred to an event," he said, confine yourself for the present to that."

"I merely, my lord, intended to preface what I had to say on that point," returned Pharisee, "by informing your lordship that the old knave of whom I have several times spoken to your lordship is Mr. Vernon's secret agent, and has been engaged by him from the time a false charge was brought against the mother of Mr. Erle up to the present moment."

"His secret agent?" echoed Lord Kingswood, with a look of inquiry.

"Yes, my lord; when the lady to whom I have alluded to disappeared, I suppose from her friends, this old man Pengreep was employed by Mr. Vernon to track her," continued Pharisee.

"Indeed!" exclaimed Lord Kingswood, sharply. "With what success?"

"To give his own words," answered Pharisee, "he said that he had in his possession written notes of all the incidents of some trial which the lady had to undergo, her acquittal and subsequent death and burial, a description of the place where she was interred, together with all the necessary official papers relating to it."

"Death and interment, you are sure of that?" exclaimed Lord Kingswood, with eager excitement.

"Quite sure, my lord," returned Pharisee. "That was not all; he not only pointed to a chest in which the documents of which he spoke were, he said, deposited, but also stated that the same box contained the certificate of your marriage with the mother of Mr. Erle."

Lord Kingswood started, and caught Pharisee by the arm.

"My good Pharisee," he said, in an earnest tone, "are you sure—quite sure—that he said the mother of Mr. Erle?"

"Ye—let me remember—a—well—a no—I am not sure on that point," answered Pharisee, dubiously, but added quickly, "I am sure that he said he was in possession of the certificate of the marriage and the official registers——"

"Extracted from the book?" exclaimed Lord Kingswood.

"From what I gathered, my lord, I should say substracted—torn out," replied Pharisee.

"I have some reason to suppose that your supposition is correct," observed Lord Kingswood; "but proceed, your information is indeed interesting and important to me."

"It will prove, my lord, yet more interesting to you, I suspect," continued Pharisee, rubbing one hand slowly over the other. "The death of the lady is an important fact."

"A most important fact," replied Lord Kingswood.

"So, my lord, is that of the death of clergyman who performed the ceremony of marriage between you and the lady of whom we have been speaking."

A low groan burst from Lord Kingswood's lips.

"The individual who performed the—the ceremony was not—I have, I think, the strongest authority to believe, an ordained clergyman of the Church of England," said his lordship, in a hesitating tone.

"But an imposter," suggested Pharisee.

"In that sense, yes," replied his lordship.

"My lord, have you any objection to name to me that authority?" asked Pharisee. "Your lordship can depend upon my secrecy."

"I quite believe I can, Pharisee, in this matter at least," returned Lord Kingswood. "The fact is, Sir Harris Stanhope in some degree assisted me in the—in the—intri—a, I should say—affair, and he subsequently assured me, and does at the present moment positively assert, that the person engaged was not a clergyman."

"Sir Harris Stanhope, my lord, has an interest in deceiving you," rejoined Pharisee. "The clergyman was his friend, but some years since a quarrel took place between them which was never healed. The revered gentleman married a lady of fortune, changed his name and residence, and his death has been known only through his adopted name."

Lord Kingswood in a state of nervous excitement paced up and down the room for a few moments, his breast filled with tumultuous emotions; several times he essayed to speak, but found it impossible to do so. At length, after wiping the clammy moisture from his forehead, and drawing several deep breaths, he returned to Pharisee.

"I think then, my faithful Pharisee," he said, still panting for breath, "that I am to understand that the—the unhappy lady who has given me much cause lately for uneasiness is—is dead, and has been so for many years?"

"Exactly so, my lord," returned Pharisee with a bend of the head.

"And that the clergyman, being dead, no living witnesses of the ceremony can now be produced?" continued Lord Kingswood.

"From what I gathered, my lord, I should say substracted—torn out," replied Pharisee.

"I have some reason to suppose that your supposition is correct," observed Lord Kingswood; "but proceed, your information is indeed interesting and important to me."

"It will prove, my lord, yet more interesting to you, I suspect," continued Pharisee, rubbing one hand slowly over the other. "The death of the lady is an important fact."

"A most important fact," replied Lord Kingswood.

"So, my lord, is that of the death of clergyman who performed the ceremony of marriage between you and the lady of whom we have been speaking."

A low groan burst from Lord Kingswood's lips.

"The individual who performed the—the ceremony was not—I have, I think, the strongest authority to believe, an ordained clergyman of the Church of England," said his lordship, in a hesitating tone.

"In that sense, yes," replied his lordship.

"My lord, have you any objection to name to me that authority?" asked Pharisee. "Your lordship can depend upon my secrecy."

"I quite believe I can, Pharisee, in this matter at least," returned Lord Kingswood. "The fact is, Sir Harris Stanhope in some degree assisted me in the—in the—intri—a, I should say—affair, and he subsequently assured me,

FAMILY MATTERS.

To Prevent Rust.—Boiled linseed oil protects saws, files, guns, etc., from rust. Wipe the metal with a cloth dipped in the oil, and let it dry, which will require only a few minutes. If it is unnecessary to have the iron bright and shining, you need not scour it before the application of oil; this will combine with the rust and form a firm durable coating.

Waterproof Cement.—Soak plaster of Paris in a concentrated solution of alum, then dry it and bake in an oven, at such a heat as is used to change gypsum or alabaster into plaster of Paris; then grind to powder and use with water like plaster. It is white, but may of course be colored; sets very quick, becomes very hard, so as to take a high polish, and is nearly as cheap as plaster of Paris. —Manufacturer and Builder.

How to cure Corns.—Never let anything harder than your finger nail touch a corn. The worst kind are controllable as follows:—Soak the feet in quite warm water for half an hour before going to bed, then rub on the corn with your finger, for several minutes, some common sweet oil. Do this every night; and every morning repeat this rubbing in of oil with the finger. Bind on the toe during the day two or three thicknesses of buckskin, with a hole in the centre to receive the corn. In less than a week, in ordinary cases, it the corn does not fall out, you can pinch it out with your finger nail.

Mending Tins—Every housekeeper may not know of what they are capable in the line of keeping their tinware in order. If a pan or any other vessel leaks, take a sharpe knife and scrape the tin around the leak until it is bright, so that the solder will stick. Then sprinkle on it a little powdered resin, and with your soldering iron melt it on. Do not have the iron too hot or the solder will adhere to that. After two or three trials you will do a job to be proud of. If you do not own a soldering iron, procure one by all means; but when hard pressed, the knob on the end of a fire shovel or a smooth piece of iron will do, or you may hold a candle under the spot to be mended.

"Making Over" Dresses.—The number of people in the world who have more money than they know what to do with is very small. The number who have enough for the uses to which they wish to put it is not a majority, so that there are few indeed who can indulge their fancies to any very great extent, or who are not obliged to think twice in making a purchase. It is said of the Princess of Wales that she rarely buys a dress for herself without a view to making it over for the children, and this "making over" process is far more general than might be supposed, and is, singularly enough, more practised by the rich than the poor—possibly for the reason that the first-named are able to buy fabrics worth making over.

Our Cellars.—All the refuse of a house is stored in its cellar, therefore look to your cellars occasionally. Old boxes, bins and barrels, which have contained vegetable matter, meat, fish, etc., need thorough overhauling. It is not that standing in a dark corner, they look empty; there may be enough poison left sticking on the side and bottom to affect the health of the household. This work of cleansing is often left to the women and boys of the family. A man had much better leave his work a day, to make a thorough examination and purification of the cellar, than to be unduly anxious about getting in his crops in extra season. After all garbage is carried out, let the ceilings and walls be faithfully brushed with an old broom; and, if this in done once a month, the atmosphere will be all the sweeter. Use plenty of lime, and, in dry weather, keep the doors and windows open a part of every day. Old tin and wooden ware should not be allowed to stand year after year upon the cellar shelves. If it is not fit to be used, throw it away.

ALLEGED CRUELTY AT SEA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.

An alleged aggravated case of cruel treatment of a sailor was before Commissioner Stillwell yesterday, and according to the affidavits in it, which were taken before J. A. Bridgland, the American Consul at Havre, the facts are as follows:

Carli Bron, an Italian who could speak no English, and who was evidently in a feeble state of health, was employed as a common sailor on the American ship "Sovereign of the Seas," from San Francisco to Havre, and J. W. Carey, the first mate of the ship, finding that Bron did not understand what was said to him, in a most brutal manner, seized a chain-hook and struck him several times with it, and during the voyage Carey repeatedly beat Bron with his fists and belaying pins till he was completely black and blue, and covered all over with bruises; and he became, in consequence of the systematic and persistent attacks of Carey, wholly crazed. Edward Linch, the ship's carpenter, corroborated, by his testimony, the statements contained in the affidavits, and said that upon one occasion, when Carey had knocked Bron down, he stamped on his head with his heavy boots. The case was then adjourned.

AN EGYPTIAN SCANDAL.

(Boston Globe.)

Some weeks ago a very good joke ran through the American papers that Bayard Taylor, who had been writing letters from Egypt to The Tribune, had discovered all the love letters that passed between Joseph and Potiphars wife, and that they put quite a new phase on the current story. "It must be remembered," said the paragraphist, "that Mrs. Potiphar's version of the occurrence has never yet been told." The learned Academy of London is too thick-headed to see that a joke was intended, explains how the rumor may have arisen from confusion with an Egyptian novel lately translated by Dr. Renge, and "fears the enterprising editors of the American papers will be disappointed." We opine they will not be disappointed, but The Academy has been "sold."

The captain of the Toronto steamer "Clyde" was greatly puzzled at finding his course to Port Dalhousie was two points out of the reckoning. On returning to Toronto he found himself three points out. A close investigation of the compass then discovered the fact that some scoundrel had contrived to introduce a piece of iron which had caused the needle to act in the eccentric fashion which led to a wrong course being pursued.

The friends of T. K. Morgan and T. D. Groves, victims of the "Sphinx" yacht disaster last year, have presented a silver Communion service to St. Matthias' Church, Toronto, the parish of which the unfortunate young men belonged, and the congregation have affixed a stone tablet to one of the walls of the edifice in commemoration of the sad event. It is also intended to erect a memorial window.

THE CALIFORNIA WHEAT-CROP.

Ten years ago California produced only wheat enough for her own consumption, if, indeed, enough was raised in the State for that purpose. The immense proportions which that crop has reached in a single decade is one of the most astonishing events of the century. The Chronicle well remarks that "If this immense mass of wheat had come down upon us in a shower from heaven it could not have been more unlooked for than it was a few years ago. The surprise in California in an agricultural way have been greater than those of the mineral, astonishing and bewildering as they have been."

The amount of the surplus is stated in figures at 20,000,000 bushels, or about 600,000 tons. To form a definite idea of what these figures mean is a very different matter.

The New York Herald, in order to assist the understanding, says that, if loaded in carts, each containing a ton, to be hauled to New York, the first would be at its destination when, the last was leaving San Francisco. This, at first thought, seems extravagant; but, in order to travel comfortably, not much more than 200 could be ranged upon a mile, and hence the statement is not very wide of the mark.

The Bulletin suggests that, if loaded into vessels of 1,000 tons burden, and the 600 ships were to sail in sight of each other, say, 20 miles apart, the line would extend 12,000 miles, or half-way round the globe. The last one might just be leaving the Golden Gate when the first one was entering the harbor of Liverpool. Such illustrations, though not very original, may serve to show how great an element in the economy of the civilized world the wheat crop of California has become.—Chicago Tribune.

MUTTON FATTENED ON MUMMIES.

A correspondent of the London Times writing from Alexandria, remarks: "Fancy mutton fattened on ancient Egyptians! The other day, at Sakhara, I saw nine camels pacing down from the mummy-pits to the bank of the river, laden with nets, in which were femera, tibia, and other bony bits of the human form, some two hundred weight in each net on each side of the camel. Among the pits there were people busily engaged in picking out sifting, and sorting out the bones which almost crust the ground. On inquiry, I learned the cargoes with which the camels were laden would be sent down to Alexandra, and thence be shipped to English manufacturers. They make excellent manure, I am told for Swedes and other turnips. The trade is brisk, and has been going on for years, and may go on for many more. It is a strange fate—to preserve one's skeleton for thousands of years in order that they may be fine Southdowns and cheviots in a distant land! But Egypt is always a place of wonders."

MEDICINES, &c.

NOTICE TO THE WHOLESALE AND Retail DRUGGISTS OF CANADA.

The constantly increasing demand for the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE at the Manufactory rendered it necessary for the proprietors to establish in each of the Provinces of Canada a wholesale depot, where dealers in medicine could be supplied with despatch, and without much trouble, at the same time making it more pleasant for dealers and parties with whom they have traded long to assist in the selection of their general stock. The following are agents for the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE in Ontario are the well-known firm of NORTHRUP & LYMAN, Scott street, Toronto, and for the Province of Quebec, Messrs. DEVINS & BOLTON, of Notre Dame street, Montreal.

The efficacy of the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE as a remedy for Gout, Rheumatism and kindred diseases is an acknowledged fact by thousands of Canadians. Experience has settled that point. The man who disputes it would deny that the earth goes round the sun. The editor of the best Medical periodical in England, The Medico Chirurgical Review and Journal of Practical Medicine, speaking in the name of his professional brethren, gives the receipt from which the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE is compounded the preference over all other ever prescribed for these terrible diseases, because it opens the secretory organs, as the skin, the liver, and the kidneys, besides improving the condition of the blood, and restraining febrile action in the constitution.

It is for these good and sufficient reasons that now physicians everywhere are prescribing to their rheumatic and gouty patients the Diamond Rheumatic Cure.

Let any sufferer who reads this purchase a small bottle and take it according to the instructions around the package, and it will not take long to convince him that paying doctor's fees is money thrown away—Liniments of all kinds are useless.
