Angry Lesage, not separatist but a Canadian

By CUTHBERT JONES
(Record staff writer)

GARTHBY — Quebec Liberal Party Leader Jean Lesage made two things clear last night: That he is bitterly opposed to separatism and that his once renowned temper has not been brought completely under control.

Completing a three-day grass roots trip through the ridings of Megantic, Frontenac and Wolfe, the ex-Premier affirmed his views on separatism at a news conference which for a time was threatened by the insistence by Mr. Lesage that the establishment be cleared of television and still news cameramen.

Later, however, he somewhat relented and indicated that his anti-camera outburst was aimed directly at representatives of the French network of the CBC and a few newspapers he regarded as biased.

Thus the way was cleared for a televised interview with a Sherbrooke station and the press conference, which ranged largely a constitutional solution to Quebec's difficulties proposed by Mr. Lesage's former Welfare Minister Rene Levesque.

Mr. Lesage said earlier this week that he would recommend that the provincial Liberals favor the independence of Quebec and a Canadian common market.

Mr. Lesage, apparently indignant because of what he considered undue emphasis being placed in the Levesque declaration and the repeated efforts made by newsmen to have him comment on the document, repeated several times that he was not a separatist.

Explaining his views he said: "I have the following resolution to make. It is that I am a Quebecer, proud of our Quebec, of a Quebec which I want to see attain the greatest possible degree of autonomy compatible with the existence of Canada, for I am a Canadian. I repeat it, I am a Canadian."

Mr. Lesage emphasized that he was in favor of a modified or completely new constitution "which can guarantee Quebec the maximum of autonomy possible, or compatible, with the existence of a Canada of which Quebec is a part in a federation, association, confederation of states; the words are not important."

"If there is anything important at the present time it is not to attach too great an importance to words such as particular status, associate states, federation, confederation, association or union."

The Liberal chief had a few uncomfortable moments when he was under fire by some of the more vocal members of the press.

He was asked if he was a separatist. He replied: "I am a Canadian. I repeat it, I am a Canadian."

Involved Banks extradition fight continues today

NEW YORK (CP)—An involved legal battle to force the extradition of Hal C. Banks, Quebec Liberal leader, to Canada on charges of conspiracy to commit a crime in the U.S. federal court.

Whether Canada has the legal right to extradite Banks, 55-year-old former head of the Canadian Seafarers' International Union, was the crux of the case now being heard before U.S. Commissioner S. T.

PRAISE DEFENCE

Abruzzo praised defence lawyer Abraham Brodsky for the way he had "done his home- tions on Canada. He said an attempt to establish a direct treaty of extradition between the U.S. and Canada in 1942 failed when the Canadian Parliament refused to ratify the provisions.

Banks was arrested in Brooklyn last month on a Canadian warrant charging that he committed perjury in 1963 while testifying before the Norris royal commission investigating waterfront violence on the Great Lakes.

The former union leader fled Ontario in 1964 while waiting to appeal a conviction and five-year sentence for conspiracy to assault a member of a rival union. He had been free on $25,000 bond during the appeal, which later was turned down.

Under Canadian-U.S. agreements, Banks could not be extradited on the conspiracy conviction. But Ontario says he could be extradited on the perjury charge.

If extradited and found guilty of the perjury, Banks would face a maximum of 14 years in prison.

The Ontario counsel, Kuhl, was accompanied in court by Donald McKenzie of the Ontario attorney-general's department by one.

Kuhl entered seven exhibits covering the establishment in 1962 of the Norris royal commission, various legal opinions, and treaties being relied upon in the extradition request.

Strike paralyses Montreal transport

Post office closing studied

A decision as to whether the Bondville post office will remain open, will be made in approximately two weeks after a study has been made by Montreal District Office officials and their report sent to Ottawa for a final decision.

Hercule Vallee, District Office Superintendent of Operations in Montreal, told the Record this morning although a study would have to be made, he didn't "think the post office will be closed." And, even in the event that it is closed, it will only be for the winter. Mr. Vallee said the post office in Bondville will remain open until a final decision is made.

Mr. Vallee attended a meeting in Bondville last night where a number of interested citizens presented petitions requesting the Bondville post office be kept open.

"I cannot tell you what each petition requested, for it would be unfair for those that I neglected to mention," he said in a telephone conversation. Mr. Vallee said about 40 citizens from Bondville and the surrounding area attended the meeting, and presented "quite a few petitions."

Postmaster Eric Neill said last week that the District Office in Montreal had first obtained the information the Bondville post office might be closed from an individual in Foster.

"This is not true," Mr. Vallee said this morning. He said, "our own men make the inquiries," and that an independent official, not from Foster and working under the authority of the Montreal office had made an examination of the postal service in the area.

Mr. Neill's statement that two men had tried to force their way into the post office last week, "I was speaking to Mr. Neill at the meeting last night, and he made no mention of their incident," he said. He indicated that they were not post office officials.

Mr. Vallee said there were about 11 permanent residents in Bondville, and an additional 200 summer residents last week. Mr. Neill said he received a notice that the post office would be closed because there were only six permanent residents.

Mr. Vallee said the mail comes to Foster where Mr. Neill sorts it, as he is also the letter carrier for the Bondville area. About half of the route covers Foster while the other half live in Brom Township and address their mail for Bondville.

Stanfield formally resigns

HALIFAX (CP) — Robert L. Stanfield formally resigned as leader of the Nova Scotia Progressive Conservative party Wednesday amid speculation there may be as many as four men in the running for his job.

Mr. Stanfield, the new leader of the national PC party, flew in from Ottawa in the afternoon, tendered his resignation as provincial leader and flew back to Ottawa in the evening.

Shortly after the former premier's resignation, provincial party President Maurice Fleming announced a leadership convention will be held Nov. 2-4.

G. I. Smith, 58, sworn in as Nova Scotia's 17th premier last week, is considered a certain candidate for the provincial leadership. Mr. Smith, appointed interim premier because he was next to Mr. Stanfield in seniority in the provincial cabinet, has said he will be happy to stand if he is nominated.

There are no other announced candidates but observers here say Attorney-General R. A. Donahoe and Industry Minister W. S. K. Jones may seek the leadership.

Also mentioned as a possible candidate is J. Patrick Nowland, Conservative MP for Digby-Annapolis-Kings.

The November convention is expected to be the most costly in the province's history.

Beulah is dying on flat Texas plains

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. — Hurricane Beulah spun toward extinction on the flat Texas coastal plains today, leaving a 160-mile-long scar of death and destruction, plus flooding that promised to plague the state for days to come.

The coast guard was dispatched three amphibious planes from Corpus Christi today to make a survey of the damage in Beulah's main track.

The storm's havoc continued to spread to the north during the night, mainly in a record number of tornadoes that hit as far as 250 miles from Beulah's erratic but still-active eye late Wednesday night.

Electrical power was shut off to about one-fourth of the Texas land mass. The hardest hit areas were near Brownsville.

where Beulah waded ashore early Wednesday with 160 mile-an-hour winds and rains too heavy to measure.

The storm curved northward toward San Antonio.

A 13-day-old storm that began in the Atlantic, Beulah claimed 30 lives—six in Texas. Eighteen died the first time she went inland over Haiti and the rest died in Mexico's southern regions.

In an unprecedented move, the U.S. state department announced that the United States and Mexico had declared a disaster area along the bordering Rio Grande.

The U.S. immigration service will open the international border and it is to remain open until further notice, a spokesman said.

In the early morning hours Beulah was still rated as a hurricane but was fading. She was centred 55 miles west southwest of Corpus Christi and moving toward the north northwest at about eight m.p.h.

Already devastated were citrus and other crops in the Lower Rio Grande Valley which the state agriculture commissioner valued at $50,000,000.

Entire towns along the lower coast remained isolated today.

National guardsmen patrolled Brownsville, Harlingen, San Benito and Port Isabel.

Communications were almost non-existent. Ham radio operators kept up a constant flow of information between valley towns, whenever they had power for their transmitters.

Tornadoes spun off in record numbers from Beulah, herself the third largest hurricane in recorded history. She was responsible for 39 confirmed twisters.

Beulah's eye never reached Corpus Christi but her force at this sparkling coastal resort, fishing and industrial metropolis still ranked her as the third worst for the city.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal bus and subway workers struck suddenly early today and caused virtual paralysis of the entire public transportation system in the metropolitan area.

The surprise strike was called against the Montreal Transportation Commission a few hours after all 6,000 MTC employees had been summoned to a general meeting at midnight Wednesday.

Drivers began leaving their routes even before 11 p.m. to enable them to get to the meeting, called at the last minute by Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions with which all five MTC employee unions are affiliated.

The workers voted unanimously in favor of an immediate strike.

Mr. Pepin said he called the meeting because of the MTC's suspension of negotiations with two unions representing supervisory personnel—foremen and inspectors—until it had signed agreements with other operating and nonoperating employees.

ILLEGAL WALKOUT — The commission described the walkout as "definitely an illegal strike" and said it would make a further statement later today.

At last report the commission offered to increase the bus drivers' average wage of $2.77 an hour to $2.99, but union representatives stood firm on their demands for a $3.50 hourly wage rate for fully-qualified drivers.

An MTC spokesman said the commission's buses and subways serve about 1,300,000 passengers on an average week day. About 700,000 of these use the subway.

The commission has 2,000 buses serving 400 miles of bus routes and covering 140 square miles in Montreal and 19 municipalities in the metropolitan area.

There are 41 subway trains made up of 369 cars which provide service for the 16-mile subway line.

Of the 1,300,000 passengers, about 300,000 are persons going to and from Expo 67 which was expected to suffer a severe blow because of the strike.

National guardsmen patrolled Brownsville, Harlingen, San Benito and Port Isabel.

Charge dismissed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A federal judge Wednesday dismissed the conspiracy charges which led to Teamster Union President James Hoffa's 1964 conviction and eight-year federal prison sentence for jury tampering.

The U.S. attorney's office here asked for dismissal of the five-year-old conspiracy charge — trial of which resulted in the subsequent jury tampering charge.

ST. MARY'S, Scilly Isles (CP) — A huge haul of gold and silver coins found on the seabed near here was examined today as divers continued to bring up a treasure trove believed worth 1,000,000 ($3,000,000).

Strike settled

NEW YORK (AP) — Tentative agreement on a reported $135,400,000 wage package has apparently ended the teachers' strike that kept many of New York City's 1,100,000 public school pupils out of class for eight days.

Both school officials and union leaders said after the agreement was reached Wednesday they hope normal operations in the largest school system in the United States could begin Monday.

NAME RESENTED

The name "will be resented by a very large number of people in Scotland," fumed the party official, Gordon Wilson.

Scots nationalists protest ship's name

GLASGOW (CP) — There have been plaudits galore for the name given the latest luxury liner launched in Britain, but now come the protests—some from irate Scots whose compatriots built the ship.

The gleaming sea giant is called the Queen Elizabeth II, a title tough for Scottish nationalists to take. They insist that the present British monarch is Elizabeth I as far as Scotland is concerned.

"Ignorant and an insult" was the description flung at the new name by a top organizer of the resurgent Scottish Nationalist party. He sounded off hours after the vessel slid triumphantly from its shipyard birthplace into the River Clyde near Glasgow Wednesday.

Film producer shot to death

WHITESBURG, Ky. (AP) — A prominent Canadian film producer was shot to death Wednesday as he and a four-man production crew filmed scenes of poverty in this mountainous eastern Kentucky area.

Hugh O'Connor died soon after being hit with a .38-calibre slug in his chest. Robert Isen, 69, of the Jeremiah community, was charged with murder. A hearing was set for this afternoon.

Canadian National Film Board to produce a film called All Walks of Life in the United States for Francis Thompson, Inc., a New York firm that specializes in educational documentaries.

Isen owns a cluster of houses at a coal mine camp about five miles north of here. It was this cluster of shacks that the crew was filming when O'Connor was shot to death.

The four members of O'Connor's crew told this story to state and county authorities: They stopped to take pictures of some people beside the road. After 40 minutes of picture-taking, when they were winding up their session a car drove up and a man whom they had never seen jumped out yelling, "Get off my property!"

The crew members and O'Connor began gathering their gear when the man fired two shots above them.

One drops out, another enters North Ward race

One man goes, another comes. At least this is the story in the North Ward aldermanic contest.

Last night Jean-Marc Donahue, C.A., who earlier announced he would seek the seat left open by the retirement of Ald. Paul Gervais from municipal politics, issued a statement to the effect that he was withdrawing from the race.

But this morning Gaston M. Roy, manager of the local branch of Northern Electric, declared that he would be a candidate in the October 4 elections, opposing Daniel Roberge who has been entered as a Civic Action League representative.

In making his announcement, Mr. Roy said he would issue a formal statement later in the day.

Mr. Donahue explained that changes in his work had forced him to abandon the contest.

His declaration read: "It is with regret that I must announce my withdrawal from the present contest for the North Ward aldermanic seat."

"The reason which compels me to make such a grave decision, at an hour when things look more than favorable, is the following: Sudden developments, unexpected and unforeseen, in my work oblige me to take such a move. These new responsibilities will require my entire time."

"It is with much sincerity that I thank my many organizers, supporters and sympathizers for their devotion, attachment and testimony of confidence."

"Furthermore, I reiterate my declarations that I am always at the disposition of Sherbrooke residents and of the people of the North Ward in particular.

"I am looking forward to the day when, free from these pressing duties, I can devote myself to the welfare of our fair city."

Ayer's Cliff board hears fair report

AYER'S CLIFF — (Special)

A meeting of Stanstead County Fair Board was held in the County Building September 16 under the presidency of Howard Majury.

Most of the meeting was given over to hearing of reports of the August fair which was successful. Receipts were up in some departments and down in others but the all over picture is good.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Turner Hunter was authorized to borrow a sum of money to meet the bills, pending incoming monies.

With thoughts now turning to the 1968 fair a committee of Mr. Majury, Archie Moulton, P. E. Chagnon, Reg Connor, Tom Ride and Doug Johnston, was appointed to attend the Fair Board's Association meeting to be held in Sherbrooke in December to select midways and dates.

An offer from a benefactor from Magog was accepted. He will purchase the prize ribbons, to include champion and reserve champions for the pony classes.

The annual meeting will be held at Ayer's Cliff in early December.

Gets a day in prison for illegal painting

A 63-year-old Lake Megantic man was found guilty in Sherbrooke court of sessions of the peace, yesterday, of a charge of contracting painting without a permit.

Evidence was that Augustin Girard could not obtain a permit because he could not pass the examinations for a competency card, although he had tried four times.

He has difficulty mixing his colors but his employers are satisfied with his work.

Carrier Fortin, prosecutor for the painter's committee, said that the accused charged $2 an hour for his work instead of the $2.60 set down by the committee.

Girard said that painting was the only way by which he could support himself and his family. He was fined $25 and costs for the offence.

Girard informed the court that he would have to serve time in jail rather than pay the fine.

Mr. Fortin said a fine of $25 would merit 15 days in jail. Judge Benoit Turmel said 15 days were a little harsh and set the sentence at a day.

"What am I going to do now?" said the accused. He told the court that he had already been convicted of a similar offence in Lake Megantic.

Judge Turmel suggested that Girard should write the minister of works and get the affair straightened out.

Two brothers and another youth from St. Denis de Brompton appeared before Judge Benoit Turmel on charges of robbery with violence of $125 from Gerard Lirette and $26 from Marguerite Leblanc at St. Elie d'Orford.

Preliminary hearing for Normand Duhamel, 21, Jacques Trepanier and Andre Duhamel, both 19 has been set for Friday.

Marcel Poulin of Coaticook elected trial by judge and jury on two charges of being an accomplice to robbery and three of receiving stolen goods. His preliminary hearing has been set for Monday.

Alex Vignault, 56 of Asbestos pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $100 and costs. His licence was suspended for six months.

Its calm and quiet around this home until rocks start flying

FLYING SAUCER? — Once every three or four weeks rocks having been popping into the yard of Mr. Frank Eaves of Rock Forest, as uninvited dinner guests.

About 200 yards away from the little white board house with blue trim around the windows and doors, looms a craggy, black rock cliff. It's usually pretty quiet around this home — that is until the rocks start to whoosh and whiz by, especially around suppertime.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eaves with their four children from three to 17 years old, have lived in the house since last April.

It is on the Chemin de Grotte about three miles from Sherbrooke's city limits.

And, the rocks that have been periodically dropping in as uninvited dinner guests around 6 or 7 o'clock, come from a rock quarry owned by Victor Hebert, Les Carrières Hebert Inc., which is located behind the cliff which borders on the road.

The Eaves are becoming quite annoyed over the bombardment of their property every three or four weeks when the rock quarry company does its blasting.

Last night, Mr. Eaves thrust his hands in his pockets and glared up at the rock cliff. "When the first blast went off we went to the Coaticook Provincial Police. They warned Mr. Hebert to be more careful in his blasting, but they also told us that nothing could really be done until someone is injured," he shrugged.

Mrs. Eaves, a soft-spoken woman who had been standing behind her husband with their two youngest children and Collie dog, added, "when they start blasting it's just like a war movie with bits of rock and earth flying all over — it's really terrific." She pointed to one of the rocks in the front yard. It was about 8 inches in diameter.

They used to warn us about two o'clock the same day whenever they were going to blast," said Mr. Eaves. "But a month ago when we were getting ready to sit down for dinner, one of the men from the quarry told us they would be blasting in five minutes. We headed out behind the house but two of our daughters were riding in the field and so we had to grab them too," Mr. Eaves eyes narrowed in anger. "One rock landed only five yards away from us," he snapped.

On one occasion a flying rock broke one of the basement windows. But so far, this is the only damage gone to the house and none of the Eaves' have been injured.

According to the Eaves, another property near by didn't fare so well as damage was caused by a recent blast, and Mr. Hebert later bought the property.

What does Mr. Eaves want to be done about the blasting? He quickly replies that as he's a property owner he should not be told when to get out of his house as is the case whenever they are going to be a blast. And he says crisply, "the blasting area should be covered over."

The Eaves are thinking of taking out an injunction against the rock quarry company but it still isn't definite. "I have got a lot of the neighbors to sign a petition we are going to present at the first Asot council meeting next month," she said, her chin thrust slightly forward. Mr. Hebert lives in Asot Township.

Seated at his desk at the rock quarry Victor Hebert, a swarthy complexioned man gave his side of the story, while outside the window big orange dump trucks rolled by kicking up clouds of dust, and yellow-colored bulldozers nibbled away at the rising mounds of greyish gravel.

Mr. Hebert said very few rocks had fallen on the Eaves property. "We blast in such a way that the rocks are thrown back into the quarry," he explained. The quarry is bowl-shaped and the blasting is done first from the higher levels and progressively works down.

Mr. Hebert said he wanted to co-operate with the Eaves and added if any damage is done to their house the company would pay.

He emphasized that the quarry, which has been in operation for about five years had no intention of closing down. In fact, he sees many busy years of operation ahead.

In answer to Mr. Eaves suggestion that the blasting area be covered over he replied, "It's impossible because the area is too big."

Last week, Mrs. Eaves dropped in to see Lucien Sevigny, secretary of municipal affairs for Rock Forest. She had also sent a letter to mayor Alberic Dussault earlier.

"As a result of Mrs. Eaves visit I am sending a letter to Mr. Hebert asking him to be more obliging and give the Eaves a little more time to get out of the house before the blasting begins," Mr. Dussault told the Record yesterday afternoon.

He added there really wasn't much that could be done because Les Carrières Hebert Inc. has a provincial licence to operate the quarry.

For awhile, the municipal authorities of Rock Forest didn't know that the Eaves were tax payers. "We had a changeover of staff recently," Mr. Sevigny explained, and not all of the records were complete.

One drops out, another enters North Ward race

One man goes, another comes. At least this is the story in the North Ward aldermanic contest.

Last night Jean-Marc Donahue, C.A., who earlier announced he would seek the seat left open by the retirement of Ald. Paul Gervais from municipal politics, issued a statement to the effect that he was withdrawing from the race.

But this morning Gaston M. Roy, manager of the local branch of Northern Electric, declared that he would be a candidate in the October 4 elections, opposing Daniel Roberge who has been entered as a Civic Action League representative.

In making his announcement, Mr. Roy said he would issue a formal statement later in the day.

Mr. Donahue explained that changes in his work had forced him to abandon the contest.

His declaration read: "It is with regret that I must announce my withdrawal from the present contest for the North Ward aldermanic seat."

"The reason which compels me to make such a grave decision, at an hour when things look more than favorable, is the following: Sudden developments, unexpected and unforeseen, in my work oblige me to take such a move. These new responsibilities will require my entire time."

"It is with much sincerity that I thank my many organizers, supporters and sympathizers for their devotion, attachment and testimony of confidence."

"Furthermore, I reiterate my declarations that I am always at the disposition of Sherbrooke residents and of the people of the North Ward in particular.

"I am looking forward to the day when, free from these pressing duties, I can devote myself to the welfare of our fair city."

Ayer's Cliff board hears fair report

AYER'S CLIFF — (Special)

A meeting of Stanstead County Fair Board was held in the County Building September 16 under the presidency of Howard Majury.

Most of the meeting was given over to hearing of reports of the August fair which was successful. Receipts were up in some departments and down in others but the all over picture is good.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Turner Hunter was authorized to borrow a sum of money to meet the bills, pending incoming monies.

With thoughts now turning to the 1968 fair a committee of Mr. Majury, Archie Moulton, P. E. Chagnon, Reg Connor, Tom Ride and Doug Johnston, was appointed to attend the Fair Board's Association meeting to be held in Sherbrooke in December to select midways and dates.

An offer from a benefactor from Magog was accepted. He will purchase the prize ribbons, to include champion and reserve champions for the pony classes.

The annual meeting will be held at Ayer's Cliff in early December.

Gets a day in prison for illegal painting

A 63-year-old Lake Megantic man was found guilty in Sherbrooke court of sessions of the peace, yesterday, of a charge of contracting painting without a permit.

Evidence was that Augustin Girard could not obtain a permit because he could not pass the examinations for a competency card, although he had tried four times.

He has difficulty mixing his colors but his employers are satisfied with his work.

Carrier Fortin, prosecutor for the painter's committee, said that the accused charged $2 an hour for his work instead of the $2.60 set down by the committee.

Girard said that painting was the only way by which he could support himself and his family. He was fined $25 and costs for the offence.

Girard informed the court that he would have to serve time in jail rather than pay the fine.

Mr. Fortin said a fine of $25

would merit 15 days in jail. Judge Benoit Turmel said 15 days were a little harsh and set the sentence at a day.

"What am I going to do now?" said the accused. He told the court that he had already been convicted of a similar offence in Lake Megantic.

Judge Turmel suggested that Girard should write the minister of works and get the affair straightened out.

Two brothers and another youth from St. Denis de Brompton appeared before Judge Benoit Turmel on charges of robbery with violence of $125 from Gerard Lirette and $26 from Marguerite Leblanc at St. Elie d'Orford.

Preliminary hearing for Normand Duhamel, 21, Jacques Trepanier and Andre Duhamel, both 19 has been set for Friday.

Marcel Poulin of Coaticook elected trial by judge and jury on two charges of being an accomplice to robbery and three of receiving stolen goods. His preliminary hearing has been set for Monday.

Alex Vignault, 56 of Asbestos pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $100 and costs. His licence was suspended for six months.

Its calm and quiet around this home until rocks start flying

About 200 yards away from the little white board house with blue trim around the windows and doors, looms a craggy, black rock cliff. It's usually pretty quiet around this home — that is until the rocks start to whoosh and whiz by, especially around suppertime.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eaves with their four children from three to 17 years old, have lived in the house since last April.

It is on the Chemin de Grotte about three miles from Sherbrooke's city limits.

And, the rocks that have been periodically dropping in as uninvited dinner guests around 6 or 7 o'clock, come from a rock quarry owned by Victor Hebert, Les Carrières Hebert Inc., which is located behind the cliff which borders on the road.

The Eaves are becoming quite annoyed over the bombardment of their property every three or four weeks when the rock quarry company does its blasting.

Last night, Mr. Eaves thrust his hands in his pockets and glared up at the rock cliff. "When the first blast went off we went to the Coaticook Provincial Police. They warned Mr. Hebert to

Mrs. Eaves, a soft-spoken woman who had been standing behind her husband with their two youngest children and Collie dog, added, "when they start blasting it's just like a war movie with bits of rock and earth flying all over — it's really terrific." She pointed to one of the rocks in the front yard. It was about 8 inches in diameter.

They used to warn us about two o'clock the same day whenever they were going to blast," said Mr. Eaves. "But a month ago when we were getting ready to sit down for dinner, one of the men from the quarry told us they would be blasting in five minutes. We headed out behind the house but two of our daughters were riding in the field and so we had to grab them too," Mr. Eaves eyes narrowed in anger. "One rock landed only five yards away from us," he snapped.

On one occasion a flying rock broke one of the basement windows. But so far, this is the only damage gone to the house and none of the Eaves' have been injured.

According to the Eaves, another property near by didn't fare so well as damage was caused by a recent blast, and Mr. Hebert later bought the property.

What does Mr. Eaves want to be done about the blasting? He quickly replies that as he's a property owner he should not be told when to get out of his house as is the case whenever they are going to be a blast. And he says crisply, "the blasting area should be covered over."

The Eaves are thinking of taking out an injunction against the rock quarry company but it still isn't definite. "I have got a lot of the neighbors to sign a petition we are going to present at the first Asot council meeting next month," she said, her chin thrust slightly forward. Mr. Hebert lives in Asot Township.

Seated at his desk at the rock quarry Victor Hebert, a swarthy complexioned man gave his side of the story, while outside the window big orange dump trucks rolled by kicking up clouds of dust, and yellow-colored bulldozers nibbled away at the rising mounds of greyish gravel.

Mr. Hebert said very few rocks had fallen on the Eaves property. "We blast in such a way that the rocks are thrown back into the quarry," he explained. The quarry is bowl-shaped and the blasting is done first from the higher levels and progressively works down.

Mr. Hebert said he wanted to co-operate with the Eaves and added if any damage is done to their house the company would pay.

He emphasized that the quarry, which has been in operation for about five years had no intention of closing down. In fact, he sees many busy years of operation ahead.

In answer to Mr. Eaves suggestion that the blasting area be covered over he replied, "It's impossible because the area is too big."

Last week, Mrs. Eaves dropped in to see Lucien Sevigny, secretary of municipal affairs for Rock Forest. She had also sent a letter to mayor Alberic Dussault earlier.

Rene Levesque seeks it both ways

Rene Levesque's "document" on his proposals to solve the constitutional problems of Quebec is a queer mixture of wishful thinking and realism, but it is in keeping with the character of its author.

Mr. Levesque makes no bones about his desire to establish an independent or sovereign state of Quebec, but he appears convinced that any effort on the part of this province to go it alone would face almost insurmountable economic road-blocks.

So he proposes to establish the sovereign state but would continue economic co-operation with the rest of the country.

In other words, he wants Quebec to have its cake and eat it too.

Quebec, he implies, must have complete control over all its actions, with no interference from the rest of the country over its decisions.

But if these actions and decisions involve Quebec in troubles which it cannot meet from its own resources, the associate — the rest of Canada — must be prepared to make good on these mistakes.

One of the most significant implications in Mr. Levesque's manifesto is that he would have Quebec abandon its position as a protector of French culture in the rest of Canada — a responsibility it assumed for itself during the Liberal administration of which he was a member.

And he also ignores the substantial segment population of Quebec — the non French-speaking residents of the province, many of whom while not of Anglo-Saxon origin have adopted the English-language as their working tongue.

He talks much of working with English Canadians but from the wording of his manifesto, the English Canadians to whom he refers are the residents of the rest of Canada, whose goodwill must be retained so they will be prepared to meet the bills if some of Mr. Levesque's projects bog down.

From the viewpoint of practical everyday politics, Mr. Levesque's manifesto may be taken as a direct challenge to the leadership of Jean Lesage.

Mr. Lesage has declared his party goes not favor separatism and Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, goes even further to declare it is anti-separatist.

With Mr. Levesque and a number of other provincial Liberals espousing the separatist cause it will be interesting to follow the outcome of the Federation Congress next month.

If Mr. Levesque's proposals are turned down by the delegates, will he and his fellow radicals walk out and join Francois Aquin, MLA for Dorion, who has announced his intention of sitting as a Separatist?

Or will they seek Liberal party backing while preaching doctrines to which the party is opposed?

If they win, what will be the future of Messrs. Lesage and Kierans?

Move towards two-party system

Decision of H. A. Olson, Social Credit MP for Medicine Hat, to seek entry into the federal Liberal party cannot but bring a certain amount of satisfaction to Prime Minister Pearson's minority government at Ottawa.

Faced with increasingly grave problems and a rejuvenated Official Opposition party under a new leader, the Government must be thankful for any development that would increase its House membership by a single seat, even if Mr. Olson's adhesion does not give the Liberals a clear majority.

Strength needed to halt Que. demands

Dear Sir:

Reference to remarks in Friday's Record re the proposed plan to enforce if necessary the use of French in the business world of the Province of Quebec.

May I add further to this gentleman's view. The official language is good enough for the millions of people in the USA and in Canada from Atlantic to Pacific and from the far north to the USA border with our several million people excluding the piddling little Province of Quebec.

Why should Quebec be allowed to dictate and continually demand special status, the universal use of French in Canada? They have demanded and got bilingual money, cheques and numerous concessions, why are they so desperately afraid of assimilation.

When are we going to have men in Parliament with the intestinal fortitude to stand up and call a halt to these continuous demands from a small minority of the Canadian population.

My great-grandparents located in these parts in the late 1790's have always resided in Quebec, but sometimes I am ashamed to admit it, knowing of how we look in the eyes of the rest of Canada.

A Canadian.

Negro just might make it

Cleveland elections boil down to Black and White final fight

By DON GRAFF

CLEVELAND — (NEA) — Some Clevelanders see the city elections coming up this fall as a potential milestone in American political history. Others, as a step on the road to Armageddon.

The reason in both cases is Carl Burton Stokes, a 40-year-old attorney and state legislator who wants to be mayor of the nation's eighth largest city.

If he makes it — and at this point his chances look very good — he'll be a guaranteed standout among big city mayors. Not, however, because of whatever native ability he may possess.

Stokes is a Negro. He is making his second try for a job he lost two years ago by just 2,143 votes. The hairbreadth victory was incumbent Mayor Ralph S. Locher, a lackluster product of Cleveland's Balkan-style politics who has since become something of a standstill himself, thanks to the city's race and urban renewal hangups, as an example for the national press of reckless leadership in a sick city.

The spotlight is again on Stokes and Locher, but in most other respects this election is a new ball game. The 1965 near-upset, which thoroughly shook a semi-fossilized power structure, turned out to be a victory of sorts for Stokes after all. He is much more than just a Negro candidate this time. His power base remains the massive and long-neglected ghetto (current estimates run as high as 300,000 Negroes in an 810,000 city population), but his appeal transcends it. He has become a focus for many disenfranchised white Clevelanders.

Stokes ran as an independent last time. This time, with reported encouragement from Washington where Locher is about as popular as an Israeli in Cairo, he is meeting the mayor head on in the Democratic primary. A third entry, Frank Celeste, running on a good record as mayor of suburban Lakewood, is given little chance but could siphon off sufficient votes to tip the balance.

If Stokes manages to clear the primary hurdle Oct. 3, he will face, come November and the general election, Seth Taft, of the Ohio political dynasty and the most promising candidate Republicans have fielded in this Democratic town in years.

And if he makes it all the way, what then for Cleveland? Stokes is emphatic on one point. He would not be a "Negro" mayor.

"They'll get a guy at the top who has a unique understanding of the problems of northern industrial cities, who has a personal and public commitment to all the people and a realization that it takes special skills, tools and insight to cope with problems that often happen to weigh most heavily on the Negro in the ghetto."

"But the problems are general. They are not confined to Negroes. Deteriorating tax duplicates, business following the middle-class flight from the city, traffic congestion, overcrowded schools — all are problems that afflict cities in general, whites and Negroes alike."

Stokes has had a lifetime of lessons in the problems of the city. He was born in the East Side neighborhood where he resides today. His father, a laundry worker, died when he was two. Raised by a mother on welfare, he dropped out of school in his teens (a point opponents complain he makes too much of) but returned after an Army stint to go on to a law degree, supporting himself part of the time as a dining car waiter.

He has been a state liquor control agent, a court probation officer, an assistant city prosecutor and, in 1962, the first Negro elected to the Ohio legislature.

If the ghetto produced Stokes, the product today is refined and thoroughly polished. Personable, articulate and boyishly handsome, he alternates wit and a flashing smile with Boy Scout sincerity. Words pour out about life in the cities, the problems and prospects. If at times he can seem almost too good to be true, the effect can still be mesmerizing even upon the skeptical. There is a word for the Stokes personality — charisma.

Zeroing in on white neighborhoods, where the election will be decided, Stokes' campaign takes a cue from the Kennedy tactic on Catholicism, in this case challenging audiences to rise above awareness of the candidate as a Negro.

A campaign slogan urges: "Don't vote for a Negro. Vote for a man."

"I don't say I am the best man in Cleveland," Stokes tells voters, "but I do say I am the best man on the ballot."

Comparison with Kennedy is not unwelcome. Like Kennedy, Stokes projects an image of youthful vigor and good humor. And a point is made of "personal friendship" with the martyred president.

More to the practical point, the line to Washington did not end with the Kennedy administration.

"The President (Johnson) will help me make a model city of Cleveland," Stokes promises listeners, well-aware that the most notable result of Locher's capital influence has been a cutoff in urban renewal aid. "Of all the candidates, I can get the maximum amount of federal funds."

Rumors that the administration was actively behind Stokes brought a public denial from Vice President Humphrey and Stokes himself tends to play coy on the Washington angles.

Stokes' line on Locher personally is one of amicable disdain ("If Ralph Locher had deliberately worked the last four years to bring the city to its knees, he couldn't have done it"). The heavy fire is directed at such establishment pillars as Police Chief Richard Wagner, and the man painted as a Svengali of City Hall, Law Director Bronis Klementowicz, the "man to see" if you want anything done...

"While Locher plays the role of simple 'good guy'... there is a wheeler and dealer behind the scenes who has his hand on the city's throttle."

If elected, Stokes says "it will be a toss-up who goes first — Wagner or Klementowicz. It's just a question of who cleans out his desk first."

Wagner's successor would not be a Negro, however. No names have been mentioned, but Stokes had said his choice would be one of the department's four senior officers, all white.

The Negro vote is huge and sewed up, but still a minority.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — Most people relate everything the information media present to them in word, sound and picture to their own mental image of reality which is rooted in their own experiences. It is an automatic and largely subconscious process.

A writer or broadcaster has no difficulty in establishing instant rapport with his audience when he operates within the narrow confines of reality framed by his audience's commonly shared experiences, for everything he says relates to the common denominator of familiarity that exists within the national, socio-economic or cultural entity.

Above all, the facts he presents or analyses are easily verifiable. The moment he leaves the safe ground of shared experiences he runs into serious, often unsurmountable difficulties, especially if the facts he presents lack photographic evidence and directly contradict the established image of reality.

For example, North Americans find no difficulty in accepting reports of gangland murders as everyday facts, because these reports fit their image of organized crime, the existence of which they do not doubt.

Fictitious stories and films about such crime syndicates as the Mafia, Cosa Nostra or Murder Incorporated do not throw doubt on the existence and reported activities of these and similar underworld organizations.

In case the facts boggle the law-abiding citizen's imagination, he absorbs the shock with the phrase that the truth can be stranger than fiction.

The truth stranger than fiction must, however, fit the general image of society in which organized crime is the preserve of despicable crooks who are hounded by the law enforcement agencies serving the will of the people embodied in the government.

This picture of the reality of our social structure and ethics is so deeply ingrained in our collective mind and conscience that we find reports about societies where murder is the instrument of government policy unbelievable. Our own experiences simply rule out the existence of such abomination.

Mountain of evidence

Although there is a readily available mountain of incontrovertible evidence of the use of murder, kidnapping and every conceivable method of terror by the totalitarian regimes behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains, these facts tend to be dismissed as exaggerated, anti-Communist propaganda, "hate mongering" or ridiculous inventions.

Earlier this week a letter to the editor appeared in The Telegram describing my column on the Soviet government's murder squad called SMERSH as an "atavistic sore which dripped from Page Seven."

SMERSH, said W. F. Gray with touching concern for my sanity, was a James Bond invention which Hollywood turned into movies in glorious technicolor. Only a deranged mind could take such fantasy seriously.

"No readers' list contains the name Seth," Mr. Gray wrote. "No library catalogue lists his name. The only Seth that our researchers could find was in the Holy Bible."

Mr. Gray's researchers should try again. They will find that Ronald Seth is a well known British counter-intelligence expert. He is the author of some 40 books, many of which (including the latest) were put out by the reputable Cassell Publishing House of London.

However, if Mr. Gray has trouble locating Seth's books, I can give him a list of books whose authors deal with the existence and activities of SMERSH with even greater authority than the British expert.

The first title on my list is The Secret World by Peter Derabin (published by Doubleday in 1959). A graduate of the SMERSH school for assassins, Derabin's account of SMERSH is based on personal experiences.

Canadians concerned with foreign policy

COWANSVILLE — (Special) — Heward Graffey MP addressed the Cowansville Industrial Management Club at the opening monthly meeting in the Maurice Hotel, here Monday night.

The club, an affiliate of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada, had about 70 members at the dinner, presided over by the branch president, Jacques Bernard.

Heward Graffey was introduced by the program chairman, N. G. Ashby.

Mr. Graffey mentioned the merits of industrial management clubs of which he is an ardent supporter, but the theme of his address dealt with the results of the nation wide survey that he and several students carried out this past summer. Mr. Graffey pointed out that the survey team asked one question of thousands of people from Newfoundland to British Columbia. "What, in your view, are the most important matters in which you wish your government in Ottawa would concern itself."

While 80 per cent of those asked had opinions, Mr. Graffey said that he was surprised that the matter uppermost in the minds of those questioned was foreign policy, followed by the taxes and cost of living, national unity and good government direction.

He said that he felt that Canadian foreign policy was the number one concern because of the population becoming suddenly aware of the nations problems through television and the programs it produces of government and related subjects.

Canadians are up to date, and are well versed in questions that a few years ago were not readily available to them, said the MP.

The last half hour of Mr. Graffey's talk was devoted to a question and answer period. He spoke in both languages.

Superior Council in favor of non-denominational education

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's Superior Council of Education came out yesterday in favor of a system of non-denominational regional school boards across Quebec province and the eventual disappearance of local Roman Catholic and Protestant school boards.

In a report to Education Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, the 24-member advisory body expressed support for the regional system recommended last year by the parent royal commission on education.

It said the question of denominationalism should be handled at the local level, by committees of parents and teachers formed in each individual school.

The council, which itself results from a recommendation of the Parent report, made its report after holding public hearings across the province and listening to the views of 87 groups.

It acts as an advisory body to the education department, which called the hearings last winter after a province-wide controversy arose over the Parent recommendation that "neutral" or non-denominational regional boards be established, to be responsible for all schooling.

Referendum wins vote 82 per cent

SUTTON — (Staff) — A special referendum of Sutton taxpayers September 18 and 19, on bylaw 195 resulted in a favorable vote of 82 per cent.

The referendum was concerned with the ordering of a loan of $30,000 to replace the current revenues of the municipalities which have been or will be spent on capital expenses in 1967-68.

The $30,000 will be raised by obtaining a loan through the issuance of a bond issue up to this amount.

The result of a public opinion poll taken on September 18, to see if police chief Jacques Jourdain should be hired for another year, was not disclosed to the public. His term of office ends this February.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blots disappears—how much better you feel. Czech women hike to Olympic games

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Four stouthearted Czechoslovak women are preparing to hike to the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City.

Members of a mountaineering club, the women—three single girls and a divorcee—were scheduled to leave before the end of September and arrive in Mexico City by next August. They will not walk back to Prague.

A daily sports newspaper here offered to buy them air tickets home in exchange for help in reporting the Olympic Games.

During the month before the Games start, the women plan to scale Mount Popocatepetl, a 17,281-foot peak in central Mexico.

The four women will carry with them everything they need including reserve clothing, shoes, tent, sleeping bags and cooking utensils. They also will carry one week's rations at a time. They have to stay inside a weight limit of 33 pounds a person set by their doctor.

STARTED AS JOKE

One of the four, Kvetoslava Tarantova, a 22-year-old technician, described how the idea started: "We were resting after a climb when someone said it would be fine to go to Mexico City for the Games. Another climber joked 'Let's go out.' We laughed at such a fantastic idea—but we began to plan."

The first thing was to toughen up and this they did by embarking on a special program of hard climbs. Then came languages. Between them, they now can speak four foreign tongues—English, French, German and Spanish.

The four worked out a route which will take them through Vienna, Munich, Bern, Geneva, Paris, Calais, Dover, London, Southampton, by sea to Quebec, then Montreal, New York, Washington, St. Louis, Kansas City, Pueblo, Alamos, Santa Fe, El Paso, Chihuahua, San Luis Potosi and Mexico City.

They plan to cover 25 miles a day and every 10 days the Czechoslovak state radio will broadcast reports on their progress and experiences for Czechoslovak and Mexican listeners.

The others marching with Miss Tarantova will be Jarmila Ocaszkova, 36, a technician, Vera Komarova, 25, a student, and Zdenaopatra, 21, a worker.

To Clean Casseroles — The problem of making scalloped or au gratin potatoes is the hard-to-clean casserole dish. But those days are past. After dinner fill the empty dish with water, add a few drops of ammonia, replace the lid, and in a short while everything wipes right off — even if the container has been scorched.

Apartments taboo for single women in Mexico

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Isabel Nieto presides as a judge in the Mexican city of Guanajuato but her country's strict moral code won't allow her to have her own apartment there. That's because she is single "and unmarried girls must live with their parents until they are married."

"In Guanajuato I am only considered a judge while I am in court. The rest of the time I am just Isabel Nieto, daughter of the engineer Andrew Nieto, and must abide by the social etiquette of a small town."

"In larger cities, girls no longer are restricted in such a way. But Guanajuato has only a population of 32,000 and the old customs are still followed."

The attractive 33-year-old judge was one of eight Mexicans in Canada taking part in the Experiment in International Living. She sat in on a court session here and also visited the Osgoode Law School in Toronto seeking to learn about Canadian court procedures.

Judge Nieto said the moral code also requires that girls take along a chaperone when they go out on dates. One result of all this is that there are few unwed mothers and no homes for unmarried mothers.

"The only babies put out for adoption are those whose mothers die in giving birth."

SUITS IN WOOL CHECK—From the Hardy Amies autumn collection this year, a pair of clear-checked British wool suits with shaddy hats — on the left, "so-branie," a jaunty pleat-skirt outfit in tobacco-brown, wind-down-checked in black; and on the right, "flyover," a crisp travel number in light gray wool, window-checked in white.

Hunters and fishermen outnumbered by the gribnik in Moscow

MOSCOW (CP)—The woods which press in on every side of Moscow are alive these days with a particular brand of humanity known as a gribnik.

Let a pelting summer cloudburst soak the ground and Ivan will be up at dawn the next day to put on his oldest work clothes, summon his wife and board a bus for the suburbs. Once there, the couple disappear into the nearest forest.

When they emerge hours later, they are likely to be carrying trophies that many Canadians would be dubious about—wild mushrooms.

The gribnik, or mushroom-hunter, is one of the most traditional figures on the Russian landscape, probably outnumbering hunters and fishermen combined.

It's not an activity that Canadians generally take to, largely out of fear of picking the wrong kind of fungus and paying fatally for the error.

The Russians, on the other hand, have been taught from childhood to tell a grib (mushroom) from a poganka (toadstool) and tend to scoff at the possibility of being poisoned. Their confidence in shared by fellow mushroom-lovers in most of continental Europe.

Hard to find. Sooner or later, foreigners in Moscow find themselves being lured into the sport by enthusiastic friends, so I agreed recently to go along on a day's hunt.

As it turned out, the weather was too dry and the mushrooms too scarce—other gribniki and insects had obviously got there first—but it proved to be an experience worth repeating.

Driving about 15 miles into the countryside past open horse villages with communal outdoor wells and past lines of modest wooden dachas, or summer houses, we turned onto a rough side road and made for a series of wooded expanses beyond the suburban settlements.

The Russian forests seem downright hospitable in summer. The sunlight glances through the trees and settles on quiet glades. The ground feels soft after the city pavements. There's a tang of spruce in the air and a promise of secret forest places.

Wild mushrooms can be elusive at the best of times. It takes a more practised eye than mine to spot some of the darker varieties hiding among fallen leaves or tucked among the tree roots.

FEW POISONOUS But on a good day, right after a rainy spell, a sharp-eyed Russian can usually fill a spacious straw basket with an assortment of fungus.

Experts say the poisonous varieties are few and easy to identify while there are dozens that can be eaten in complete safety. But it's hard for a novice to be that confident about it.

The qualms are particularly strong when the fruits of the day's labor turn up on a plate afterward. Even though our harvest after two hours in the woods was small, we found enough for the feast that inevitably follows such excursions.

The meal began with a thick mushroom-and-potato broth. It continued with mushrooms picked earlier and marinated in a spiced wine or vinegar. And it reached its savory peak with chopped mushrooms fried lightly in butter.

The wild mushrooms turned out to have a flavor that seemed more pleasantly earthy than the button type of mushroom most common in Canadian stores. There was also a lot more variety and texture in the eating.

Once the initial nervousness had passed, I found myself looking for second helpings.

When the gribnik is not out in the woods, he can pore over a host of written material on the subject.

One of the newest examples was an ecstatic series which ran recently in the popular Soviet monthly Nauka i Zhizn—Science and Life. For three consecutive issues, the editors published long illustrated articles by a connoisseur named Vladimir Soloukhin about the joys of mushroom hunting and eating.

"I like to arrive in the forest when it is still asleep in the morning light, when it is quiet and untrodden," he wrote in one typical passage. "Then you have a chance to catch that moment when the slanting sunbeams first pierce the forest like golden needles, sticking on the shaggy paws of the fir trees."

IN AID OF OUR FIRST CITIZENS — The Canadian Indian Centre, Toronto, works to help Canadian Indians to adjust and in some measure combat the loneliness and isolation that some of our first citizens feel in the quick pace of our cities. One way of raising funds for the Centre is through the sale of Christmas cards and Hasty Notes. This year the Indian Centre card is a reproduction of an oil painting by an Indian artist, Arthur Shilling. Shilling, a 26-year-old impressionist, has portrayed his young brother sleeping. The cards are in full color, printed on heavy stock, with, inside, the message 'Season's Greetings' in Christmas green. These cards and similar Hasty Notes sell at ten for $1 and are available through the Canadian Indian Centre, 210 Beverley Street, Toronto 26, Ontario.

Problem of unconventional pupils

VICTORIA (CP)—Teaching is a difficult profession at the best of times. But when students 15 years-old cannot read nor write, and some show up drunk, it's something else.

One day a child was missing and she asked "Where's Eddie?" "Eddie out window," the others told her. Sure enough, Eddie had climbed out the window to play in the snow.

She finds the children intelligent in many ways, but generally uninterested in school work, and so unconventional.

"Unconventional to the point where one of the older boys turned up at school drunk."

Only one student has successfully completed grade 13. He was 21. His superior education gained him the position of president of the Klondike Indian Association.

Despite the depressing aspects, Miss Burkhard said she enjoys her work and plans to return again next year—but only after clearing her thoughts with a trip to Expo 67, New York, Switzerland and London.

"Burkhard. Here. Come see." Or, "you go Anchorage Burkhard, they got buildings two stories."

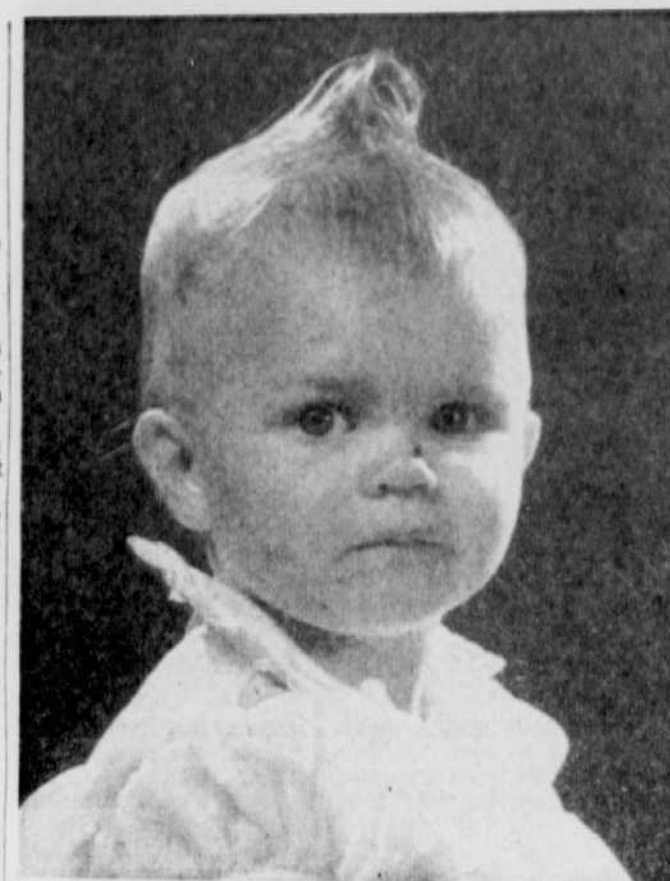

"Eddie out window," the others told her. Sure enough, Eddie had climbed out the window to play in the snow.

Beware of imitation when buying a chunk of Eskimo sculpture

OTTAWA (CP)—If you've bought a chunk of Eskimo sculpture lately, pick it up and give it a thoughtful left. If it doesn't feel noticeably heavy you may have one of the headaches of the native art co-operatives on your hands.

Imitation Eskimo carvings have been flooding the country, says Bill Larmour of the northern development department's industrial branch.

The most common imitations are of the polished black stone called steatite. The imitations are cast in a shiner black material, probably plastic, and are much lighter than the stone.

"Some of the best stores in the country sell the imitations and when you ask them why they are doing it they say they make money," says Mr. Larmour, who helps the Eskimo craftsmen promote their carvings in the south.

He says it is not possible at present to prohibit the sale of the imitation art "though legislation to protect the Eskimo is being considered."

"But you can't prevent free enterprise nor would we wish to."

The best a buyer can do is look for the tag marking genuine products of the seven Eskimo co-ops. This is a barrel-shaped symbol with a black igloo in a white circle and the words Canadian Eskimo Art.

Though the imitation-carvings have been produced for about 10 years, since Eskimo art became popular, production seems to have reached a peak during Centennial Year with increased demand for Canadian souvenirs.

The copies appeal to tourists because they usually cost $5 or $6. An Eskimo carving of similar size would probably cost $50.

The imitations tend to be pretty reproductions of Eskimo subjects such as seal hunters. They usually look cute, lacking the stark, clean realism of the genuine carvings.

Though the imitations don't actually claim to have been made by Eskimos, some come with tags telling about Eskimo life, or little poems sprinkled with pseudo-Eskimo words.

Another problem is the debasing of the value of native art by companies who persuade whole villages to carve one design over and over.

George Elliott of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Eskimo Arts Council, says this has been done by souvenir companies who commission, for instance, hundreds of snow geese.

Little Brown Jug may get break from Weather Man today

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—County Fairgrounds is dry, the weatherman gave a promising morning line for today's 22nd annual running of the Little Brown Jug.

Cloudy skies, temperatures in the 70s and only a slight chance of light showers were forecast, but the memory of torrential rains which drenched the track during the last two runnings of the pacing classic for three-year-olds still lingered in the memory of harness racing fans.

Romulus Hanover, sporting a 14-2 record for the year including a victory in the Messenger Stakes, first jewel in pacing's Triple Crown, was the 4-10.5 favorite to win the $84,778 event. He'll also be out to match last year's victory here by a full brother—Rome Hanover.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Batting — Carl Yastrzemski,

Red Sox, had four hits, including his 41st homer and scored the winning run as Boston edged Cleveland Indians 5-4.

Pitching — Joe Sparna,

Tigers, held New York to seven hits as Detroit bombed the Yankees 10-1.

Red Sox had to go all out to nick Indians 5-4, Twins belt A's as both clubs are still tied Al Kaline, who struck early and often, got an early good night. Carl Yastrzemski, who saved his best shots for the late innings, had to stay around to the bitter end.

Kaline hit his 25th homer in the first inning of Detroit Tigers' 10-1 rout of New York Yankees Wednesday night. After he doubled in the Tigers' run-scoring third and fifth innings, Al was sent home to put his feet up.

But Boston Red Sox, who have made comeback victories a way of life lately needed Yastrzemski every inch of the way against Cleveland Indians.

He hit his 41st homer in the sixth inning then got his fourth hit in the ninth, a single, and rode home on Reggie Smith's single with the run that won the game 5-4.

The Red Sox stayed tied with the American League lead with Minnesota Twins who beat Kansas City Athletics 6-2 earlier in the day. The Tigers remained in fourth place, one game out and a half-game behind third-place Chicago White Sox, 6-4 the ninth.

Baltimore Orioles took a doubleheader from Washington Senators, 4-3 and 6-3 in 10 innings.

PRESSURE GAMES

"These one-run games are more of a strain on you," said Yastrzemski. "It'd be less of a strain if we'd win 9-1 and lose by the same score."

Yastrzemski, who got his homer and two of his other hits off Cleveland's ace Sam McDowell, said: "I hit his mistakes. I have a day like this about every three weeks."

Tiger manager Mayo Smith said Kaline's first-inning shot unplugged Yankee starter Al Downing, who usually gives the Tigers a tough time. Don Wert, who seems completely recovered from his hamstring pull, added a homer in the eighth.

Joe Sparna lost his shutout when Charlie Smith homered in the ninth.

The Twins got solid hitting from Tony Oliva and Bob Allison, who each hit two-run homers. Harmon Killebrew drove in a couple of runs with singles. Dean Chance won his 19th game, giving up just four hits and striking out 13.

The White Sox got a homer and three runs batted in from Tommie Agee and clutch relief pitching from Bob Locker, who pitched three innings of hitless ball before giving up a final run in the ninth. Rick Reichardt homered for the Angels.

Brooks Robinson hit his 21st homer and two doubles in the first Orioles' victory and Dave May's two-out double drove in the tie-breaking runs in the 10th inning of the nightcap.

DOUBLE THAT SNAPPED A SCORELESS TIE in the sixth inning and helped Don Drysdale pitch Los Angeles past the Mets.

Ed Kranepool and Tommy Davis had three hits each for New York.

Vada Pinson and John Bench walloped three-run homers for the Reds. Pinson connected in the first inning and Bench's first major league shot came in the sixth. Hank Aaron hit his 38th for the Braves.

Houston rallied for three ninth inning runs. Doubles by Jim Wynn and Doug Rader started the winning rally and pinch hitter Jim Davis's bases-loaded single climaxed it.

Al Ferrara tagged a two-run double that snapped a scoreless tie in the sixth inning and helped Don Drysdale pitch Los Angeles past the Mets.

He also gave a resume of subjects to be taught, new types of teaching to be used, curricula, subject promotion, promotional policy and organization. The aim of the school will be to teach boys and girls how to develop good mental attitudes to wards their work and life in general.

The speaker had numerous charts, giving explicit information, also a replica of the new buildings to be built. Commencing work this fall, it is hoped the buildings will be ready for use in 1969. A question and answer period followed the lecture. Mrs. A. Rogers and Mrs. Dowd, consultants, accompanied Mr. MacLeay. Mrs. D. J. MacMillan introduced the guest speaker and he was thanked by Mrs. Heatherington.

Mrs. R. B. Learned presided at the short business meeting prior to the lecture. A letter of thanks was received from Mrs. John B. Lewis, convener for Christmas Stockings project for the Canadian Save the Children Fund.

The annual meeting of the Compton County Historical and Museum Society will take place on Friday evening, Sept. 29, and a calcade will be held on Sept. 30, commencing at 1 p.m. from the museum at Eaton.

Ideas for leadership training courses at Macdonald College would be appreciated by the program committee.

The pooling of fares for the annual convention at Macdonald College is to be increased from $10 to $12 and six counties will be featuring plays next year.

The home economics convener, Mrs. O. C. Farnsworth, stated that it was wise to look for good bargains, but to be a label watcher, or one might be fooled. There will be courses in rug-making, dress-making and weaving available. If requests are sent to Macdonald College, they will be sent the Department in Quebec in order to obtain technicians.

The publicity convener, Mrs. E. S. Heatherington, gave excerpts from the United Nations Magazine, drawing attention to the fact that the Rev. J. Robin Skuce, head of the French Department at Appleby College, Oakville, Ont., had been appointed first education secretary under the national office's new bilingual policy. Mr. Skuce was at one time minister in Trinity United Church, and his parishioners are proud of the honor bestowed on him.

The ladies were asked to continue to give Pennies for Friendship, to make up Christmas stockings, and to keep up their interest in the Northern Canada Women's Institutes.

The High School principal and teachers were present, and later a reception was given in their honor. Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Filshie and Rev. and Mrs. Fairbairn were also present.

The next meeting will be held on Oct. 14 at the home of Mrs. A. Apps, Richmond. Teachers from St. Francis High School will be invited as guests.
