All Local Junior Teams In Ball Tournament At Farmers' Picnic, Cairnside

As usual, excellent weather prevailed for the annual Farmers' Picnic held at Cairnside in Grieg's Grove, on July 1st. The number attending, according to Keith Grieg, was down from other years, which he attributed to the fact that haying was earlier and many farmers were busy with this important work of farming.

Guests were provided with a lunch at noon and the Ormstown Band was in attendance to supply music at different intervals. Booth concessions were on the grounds and doing a good business in novelties and refreshments. Those attending the picnic brought along their picnic baskets and enjoyed a lunch under the trees with their family and friends.

At the opening of the ceremonies, Keith Grieg gave a few words of welcome to everyone and also a few facts on earlier picnics which have been held at this same spot for a good number of years. Following this he called on Mr. Leon Beaudin, agronome from Huntingdon for a few remarks. He said he was shown in earlier years as a competitor in sports for those under 15 years and he had been a regular attendant at the pncnic ever since 1915. In the sports he was shown as having competed in a jump and for which he had received a cash prize of 15 cents. He said he enjoys attending the picnic annually and felt it was a good practice to meet regularly to keep up with the problems and the trend of the times in farming. He said he did not see much difference from earlier years and now, the problems were the same then as they are now, except for the different way of doing things. He remembered when the farmers came in their buggies and raked their hay with hand rakes, but now the trend has gone to cars and to hay balers and such. In this way the farmer convert much of his income to industry and he feels that a successful industry makes a successful farmer. Many changes have been over the years, it is part of progress and there much be progress. He mentioned the grant paid for fertilizer and stated that this can still be applied for. Applications must be sent through the agronome's office, so be sure to file applications through me, he said. You will get it quicker that way too.

Mr. Loree was the next speaker and said he liked the band music, was interested in looking at the baseball and likes this part of Canada very much after the West. He said he was born and raised on a farm out West, but he had had more to do with wheat. He was greatly attracted to this part of Canada on account of the many fine trees and beautiful spots as this grove in which we are in today. He congratulated the people for holding the picnic each year and hoped it would continue for many more years.

Mr. John Parker, agricultural fieldman for Macdonald College, offered his best wishes for the success of the day and also reminded those present of the Farm Day to be held at Macdonald College.

Mr. Cyril Dahms, President of the Quebec Farmers' Association, said he felt that many present would be glad to know that this association had done much to see that trees on Macdonald Farm had been preserved and that efforts were still being made to see that this section is kept as forest farm. The association was also making progress in the matter of marketing boards and some of these were starting to show good results. By having these marketing boards, farmers have more rights and more say in the marketing of their products.

Mr. Ted Elliott, for farm radio broadcasts said that the program was featuring weather forecasts for the farmers. He said the CBC would very much like to know if the farmers liked this plan and for them to send in their comments for or against as that the only way they had of knowing what was wanted. He said it is the intention of putting on long range forecast in the near future. This would give weather conditions for several days of special interest to the farmer in trying to guage his work ahead.

Rev. Sutherland of Howick spoke on the hazards of agriculture and warned all farmers to remove as many as possible of these and to have safeguards to try and overcome others.

Mr. Lang said he had been a farmer for a good number of years, although not doing much of it now. It was said he was a retired farmer, but many people still asked him about their problems, so it had better be said that he was just a "tired-" farmer. He said the land was loaned by the almighty and it was up to all farmers to do the best they could with it. As to the picnic, he said it was almost a record organization, it having been operated by farmers and farmers alone for so long.

A unique feature of the sports angle of the picnic was the feat that there were 16 junior teams from Ormstown and Howick taking part in the tournament and the members were all under 16. It had been decided to encourage these local young members this year, rather than have teams from outside points entered. The money won would these teams in buying equipment and therefore do more good locally.

Following the speeches, a number of races for the children were run off, as well as other small spotting events. Winners of these and the results of the tournament follow:

Council Meeting

GODMANCHESTER

Godmanchester Council met on Monday, July 4, 1960, Councillor Hunter absent.

Mayor St. Onge reported the interview he had with the Insirance Agents, regarding a broken telephone pole on the Teafield Road.

Thomas Arnold came before the Board stating he would be interested in the job of blowing the snow off the Arnold Sideroad, if he could make arrangements with the council. After some discussion it was decided to leave the matter over to the August meeting.

Ken McNiece came before the council regards spraying the roads, it was decided to leave the matter for another year.

Leo Leblanc is to have the share of the Council's fence repaired, on the Arnold Sideroad.

Property Owners On Eastern Outskirts of Town Again Refused Water Connection

The Huntingdon Town Council met for a regular meeting in the Council Chamber at the County Building, on Monday evening, with all members present.

The reading of minutes and passing of a number of bills being disposed of, a number of ratepayers were heard as to requests and complaints.

In connection with cesspools on Fairview Road, a request was made for a sewer on this street. After discussing the matter the council said that as soon as possible they will have something done.

A petition was read for a sidewalk on East Street, the new street at the east end of town. The council said that they did not have sufficient money to do this work at the moment, but it will be studied further at a future meeting.

Godfry Leduc appeared to ask that the street into his subdivision behind Henderson Street, be graded and gravelled as promised last year. The council decided to refer this to the Quebec Road Dept. which Dept. had been asked to look after it.

A request was made to have the street line of the extension to Somerville defined. It was decided that this would be attended to as soon as possible.

Some milk reports were read and discussed.

During some excavation in Garden City a pipe belonging to the Corporation was damaged and was repaired by the Town workmen. It was decided to send the bill for this to the owner who was responsible for the excavation.

It was decided that no work must be started on new buildings until a permit has been granted for such building.

Mr. Rabodioux complained that the trafic lines had been painted past his driveway on Chateauguay Street and asked that these be altered as he did not want to be accused of violating the law.

Mr. Lazure of lower Wellington Street appeared before the council to again request that something be done to drain his lot. After some discussion it was finally decided that the council would reimburse him to the amount of $75 if he installed pipe of his own to remedy the situation.

Mr. Reynaud of the East End building project again applied for water connection for this site. As stated before, the pipes have been installed and the owners in this area want a water connection from the Town. It was further stated that if they should decide at some future date on annexation to the town, that the owners should be reimbursed by a remission of taxes for the cost of the pipes now laid, over a few years. Again this request aroused a very heated discussion among all parties. The council wanted annexation or nothing. Alderman Walsh got up and demanded quiet while he said a few words on the matter. He said he did not think the present filter plant could supply this additional amount of water and it was not fair to the taxpayers of town to expect them to have to go to extra expense to supply people outside of town. If these people want water, let them some into the town and pay their share of taxes to the town.

This precipitated a cry that the Town should annex this said area and other areas as well. More area was needed for the Town and the extra should be annexed. It was decided that the question would have to be gone into thoroughly with views to annexation proceedings.

A request for water and sewer for one year for a trailer on a private lot, was turned down.

In view of an extension in the plant of some of the mills in Garden City, it had been asked that 10% more water would be required in the future. This would involve the changing of some 705 feet of six inch water pipe to 8 inch, in order to give the required volume. It was estimated roughly that the cost would be around $5,000. Before this could be done it would mean that further investigation would have to be made to find out where the finances would come from. It was left for further study.

Alderman McGerrigle reported that the meters at the Filter Plant were in need of repair. He had enquired as to this and had been told that the services of a special technician would be needed and the cost would be $60 per day. It was said that it would be better to take out the meters and send them in to the factory as it was felt it would be cheaper to do this.

Alderman Tremblay said the roads near the mills in Garden City were being paved and as result the catch basins were much lower than the road. It was suggested that the catch basins be made higher, or road be gradually sloped to them.

The age-old question of police protection was again before the meeting, but before this had proceeded very far, Alderman McGerrigle moved that a closed session be held for a short period and the council chamber cleared. He also mentioned that this meant the Press too. The member of the Press left at this time, so there is no report on what took place behind the closed doors. The time was already quite late, but we understand it was much later before the council departed.

The report of W. J. Todd, rural inspector was read and accepted, regards the fence between Henry Smith and Leonard Goodfellow.

Letters from Sicard Inc. — and the Canadian National Railways were read and filed.

The Mayor was authorized to sign the Indigent Card for the late Lorenzo Gendron.

The following bills were read filed.

Omer Viau $9.33 — Edmund Savage $10.00 — J. E. Barrett $58.33 — Department of Social Welfare $35.49 — Ministry of Finance $173.80 — W. J. Todd $6.00.

Children's Picnic was held at Somerville Beach. Nurse Benefit Fund "sweepstake" netted $1900. Boys' Club founded with a membership of 92. Students sent to Ottawa for the "Venture in Citizenship". Two new nurse candidates enrolled (Misses Susan Faille and Betty Sedgwick). Sponsored Public Speaking contestants, Marc Lefebvre and John Westrick. Paid admission for 200 children to Huntingdon Fair. James Smythe reported that the Rotary Club now owned 14 invalid wheel chairs and that all chairs were presently in use. Treasurer Rod Morrison reported that the setting up and operating the Boys' Club represented an expenditure of $700. Apart from this capital expenditure the finances of the Club remain about the same as a year ago. McKie Cluff reported that the Nurse Benefit Fund "Sweepstake" returns were commendable although he had only received $250 to date. He reported that the Rotarians had sold books of tickets, but returns had not yet been made to him. The "Sweepstake" will have to achieve a greater financial success in 1960 to meet the expenses of the additional trainees that are fully expected to entertain the Rotary Club financial assistance.

George Thompson, the new President supplied the membership with a list of officers and those who are to be the members of the various committees. Every Rotarian figures on one or more of the committees.

Legion Festival July 1st Proves Splendid Attraction

The weather was a very favourable factor in the success of the Legion Festival, held in front of the Hall Friday evening.

Despite the fact that many families were away enjoying the long weekend about 500 people thronged the field, with all attractions well patronized.

The Huntingdon Citizens' Band, for the final time under the baton of departing conductor, Don Moore, rendered several numbers, all admirably played and enthusiastically appreciated, following which Bingo and other games drew their many supporters.

At 9 p. m. entries for the Square Dance Contest were called for. Though six teams were anticipated, only three entered, namely, the Howick Junior High Steppers, the Canadian Hoedowners, from Huntingdon and the Huntingdon Guys and Dolls.

The dancing of the three teams was of a very high standard and was vociferously appreciated by the large audience with the three judges, Mr. Doug. Elder, Mr. Bob Chambers and Mr. Nicol Stark finding the margin of points very close.

The Howick Junior High steppers, composed of Malcolm Reddick, Carol Smith, Sidney Robb, Brenda Stacey, Rodney Reddick, Sandra Brown, Kirk Nussey and Nancy Ness, with Math McKell as caller were declared the winners with 91 points. Huntingdon Guys and Dolls comprising Marvin Milne, Nancy Robb, Reggie Sherry, Lynn McIntyre, Murray Milne, Betty Lindsay, Lyndon Graham and Donna Kelly with Billy MacDonald as caller were awarded 90 points, while the Canadian Howdowners, Mr. and Mrs. J. Claude Bergevin, Gerald Duheme, Lucienne Perrault, J. Paul Taillefer, Pierrette Fournier, Rosario Taillefer, Gaetane Brunette with caller Maurice Perrault received 89 points.

Mr. Jos. Boisseau served admirably as M. C. for the event, and expressed the hope that the beautiful trophy would attract more entries next year.

Following the dancing came the hilarious spot of the evening: the Pie Eating Contest. Responding to the call for entries from the platform, twenty youngsters clambered up ready to gorge on Messrs. Grant's Bakery delicious products. At the word "Go" twenty sets of jaws started working frantically, raising shrieks of laughter from the audience. The expression on the faces of the contestants as they watched each other and gulped pie down would have been a worthy subject for Rockwell. The winner by a very close margin was Master Peter Sherry.

Concluding the outdoor activities, Mr. Marcel Pronovost, star defenceman of the Detroit Red Wings, was introduced from the stage by Mr. J. Thompson, chairman of the Festival Committee and proceeded to draw the winning ticket for the trip to New York. The lucky recipient was the popular Manager of the Dominion Stores, Mr. R. Lavallee.

The evening concluded with indoor dancing to the music of the Blue Notes, the orchestra which had also accompanied very adequately, the square dances.

Truly a very successful day and the thanks of the Legion are due to the volunteer workers, donors, and those who attended and made it so.

Changes In Old Age Security Act Bring New Benefits

The Hon. J. Waldo Monteith, Minister of National Health and Welfare has announced the following changes in the Old Age Security Act as approved recently by Parliament.

1. A pensioner will no longer have his pension cheques suspended when he leaves Canada. Whatever benefits he is entitled to will be mailed to a pensioner at his foreign address.

2. A pensioner who has resided in Canada for at least twenty-five years since his twenty-first birthday may continue to draw benefits even if he lives abroad permanently.

3. A pensioner who has not resided in Canada for at least twenty-five years since his twenty-first birthday may be paid his pension outside of Canada for the month in which he leaves the country and for an additional six months' absence.

According to records of the Department of National Health and Welfare, most recipients of Old Age Security have the necessary residence requirements to qualify for permanent out-of-country benefits.

It should be pointed out further that the required 25 years after 21 does not have to be a continuous period.

In addition, any residence after age 70 can contribute to the 25 year requirement. For example, a person coming to Canada at age 47 and living continuously in the country until age 72 would meet this qualification.

Persons who cannot meet the 25 years requirement represent only a small proportion of Old Age Security recipients. They will, however, enjoy two advantages over their previous position:

(a) On leaving Canada, they will not have their pension cheques suspended but will continue receiving them at their foreign address.

(b) They will be able to remain out of the country for eight months less two days without loss of benefit as against seven months less two days as was previously the case. They could, for example, leave on October 1st and return as late as the following May 31st.

A pensioner who is away from Canada and who has the necessary 25 years residence after 21 can have his pension benefits reinstated without returning to Canada. He need only make an application to the Reginal Director of Old Age Security in his former place of residence in Canada. No matter when this application is filed, his pension will be reinstated with effect from July 1st, 1960.

A pensioner who is away from Canada and who does not have the necessary 25 years residence after 21 will be eligible, on his return to Canada, for any benefits due him under the previous legislation.

When considering leaving Canada either for temporary or indefinite absences, pensioners are asked to contact the Regional Director of Old Age Security in their area to make arrangements for the continued payment of their benefits.

Winners Of B. Of M. Scholarships To Be Selected In August

Montreal, July 4 — Six-hundred-and-fifty-seven young Quebec students including one from Huntingdon and four from Valleyfield, are in the running for the 13 Bank of Montreal Canada Centennial Scholarships which are to be awarded in their province in 1960, the bank has announced. Applications for the scholarships — each worth $750, in the first year — have now closed.

The Quebec boys and girls are among 2,208 of this year's high-school graduates across Canada competing for the first year's 50 scholarships for the study of arts and sciences at Canadian universities. Every application had to be accompanied by the recommendation of the student's principal, so that there has already been considerable "pre-selection" in the high schools.

Final selection will be made in August by the ten provincial selection committees, each composed of leading educationalists from universities in the provinces concerned.

The scholarships to be awarded this year are the first step in a seven-year plan announced by the B of M in May to provide bank-aided university study. The program will culminate in 1967, the year of the centennial of Canadian Confederation and the bank's 150th anniversary, when two final B of M Canada centennial awards will be made. One award will be in arts and one in science — each in the amount of $5,000 for study anywhere in the world.

The scheme provides for a total of 124 awards in the years 1960-67, ranging from $750 to $5,000. When the plan was announced, G. Arnold Hart, president of the B of M, said the bank hoped the scholarships would provide "a tangible and worthwhile observance of the national centennial to the future national advantage."

Mr. Bruce McCanse acted as best man for Mr. Ellerton and the ushers were Mr. Reay Ellerton, brother of the bridegroom and Mr. Robert Skanes cousin of the bride.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Ellerton left for Bermuda, the bride travelling in a frock of orchid printed silk under a matching coat and wearing a hat of white straw, matching accessories and an orchid en corsage.

Eight Decades Of Recollections

By A. K. Cameron

Adam Kirk Cameron, the author of these Recollections, never held a seat in parliament but "no one in Canada has known more public men," says Senator T. A. Crerar. As a youth of 18 he attended the Liberal convention of 1893 which paved the way for Sir Wilfred Laurier's election victory of 1896, and probably no one was closer to Laurier during the last 20 years of the Liberal chieftain's life. Born in Ontario Nov. 3, 1874, Mr. Cameron was a prominent industrialist in Eastern Canada and a member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction in Quebec province.

People took their politics seriously in the early years of this country. But then, they were not distracted by television, the screech of super-sonic jets, and the rumbles of distant nuclear explosions.

I know whereof I speak for my memory spans eight decades of Canadian politics.

My first political recollections are as a boy of six holding a candle while my father read aloud the speeches of George Brown, Edward Blake, Oliver Mowat, and Joseph Howe — those Liberal stalwarts of Confederation days and immediately after. Ours was a large family — nine boys, four girls — and each took his or her turn at holding the candle.

This was before coal-oil lamps came to light the gloom of the big farmhouse kitchen. When, a few years later, my father bought our first oil lamp, he put us all outside while he lighted it. We expected an explosion. A few years before, the first oil well in Canada was brought into production at Petrolia, Ont.

MY FATHER never read the speeches of Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir Charles Tupper. My people were from Nova Scotia, Joe Howe Liberals, and to them Sir John and Sir Charles were of the devil. Often I had heard my father say that Sir John ought to be hanged.

This led to an amusing incident in school. The Inspector was on his halfyearly visit, and following the afternoon recess he gave the classes a checkup. The first question he asked was, "Which of you can tell me the name of the prime minister of Canada" There were no volunteers. Then I put up my hand.

"Well, my boy?"

I replied, "Sir John A. Macdonald, but he ought to be hanged."

The inspector walked to the window and looked up the road, his shoulders heaving. Then he turned and asked me my name. "Cameron," I said. He chuckled and said, "I might have known."

LIFE WAS STERN any way you looked at it. Every member of the family past grade six had to summarize the speeches and sermons read aloud each week. The summaries were written on salvaged wrapping paper and brown paper bags, and woe betide us if they were not well done!

Moreover, old and young alike were required to memorize portions of the Psalms, paraphrases, the longer and shorter catechisms with reasons and proofs. I also memorized much of Isaiah, the Gospels, and the Epistles of St. Paul. What would our children think of such a regimen? But all of us survived it, along with wicked winters and hot summers. And it paid off in scores of ways in later years. Even now I would not put a price on what I know of the Scriptures, Milton, Tennyson, Whitman, Abraham Lincoln, George Washington and many others.

MY FATHER FARMED 100 acres a mile north of the village of Arthur, Ontario. It is unlikely the net cash income ever exceeded $500 a year until I reached the age of 16. Yet four of my brothers graduated in medicine, and all members of the family went through high school or the equivalent.

How was it possible? I don't know.

In those days most trading was by barter at the local store. The grist mill and woollen mill charged tolls for milling wheat and cleaning, carding and making wool into rolls. This wool was then spun by my mother and older sisters into yarn which they in turn, on hand looms, wove into homespun, and made into garments for all the family. I wore homespun until I left home at 16.

The cash crops were a few fat shorthorns sold in the spring, bought by drovers and exported to England. Lambs were marketed in the fall, for the Toronto market. Long boots could be bought for two dollars, and paid for with butter and eggs. In summer we went barefoot, and summer usually extended into late fall. We saw little of sugar, but black strap molasses was bought by the barrel.

Four newspapers and two religious weeklies came to our home — the Toronto Globe, the Springfield Republican, The Christian Herald, The Montreal Weekly Witness, the Northern Messenger and the Manchester Guardian. In the Globe were the speeches of George Brown, Edward Blake, Oliver Mowat, Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir John Tupper et al. In the Christian Herald were the sermons of Talmadge and Spurgeon. The Manchester Guardian kept us up to date on all the political debates at Westminster, and the Springfield Republican educated us in U. S. politics.

As a result of reading aloud the speeches of public men in Canada and the U.S.A., I can relate the highlights of every presidential campaign since 1884, and every Canadian general election since the middle of the 1830's.

EDWARD BLAKE, who led the Liberals against Sir John A. Macdonald, was the most towering intellect the Canadian parliament has ever seen. But he was the weakest politician I have ever known, with one exception, Arthur Meighen.

Meighen, now 86, came to Ottawa in 1908, almost half a century after Blake entered the Ontario and Dominium houses. Meighen and Blake were, I think, the two greatest debaters in parliament since Confederation. Meighen made his first great speech in the fall session of 1908. Sir Wilfrid Laurier after hearing it told me, "Borden (Sir Robert Borden, prime minister during the First World War) has found a man."

Almost in Blake's and Meighen's class was Sir Richard Cartwright. Sir John once dubbed him, in Disraeli's words, "A master of jibes, flouts and sneers. But both Blake and Cartwright failed in their great ambition to be prime minister. Each lacked the virtue of team work.

Blake's Speeches and letters and Cartwright's reminiscences should be must reading in our universities. Both were masters in the classics.

Cartwright had a sardonic wit that seared but rarely brought a chuckle. Blake was entirely devoid of humor. Some of his followers once suggested that his speeches, always ponderous, would be improved if he injected a little humor. Blake asked Joe Rhymal, then the humorist of the House of Commons, for a sample of humor. Rhymal said: "You are walking to the House, a friend meets you and says, 'Looks like a storm, Mr. Blake.' You reply, 'Snow matter.' " The next day it so happened that a friend did remark to Blake on the likelihood of a storm. Blake muffed his line and answered, "It's immaterial."

Blake, after the elections of 1887, resigned his seat in a huff over unrestricted reciprocity, left Canada and was elected to the British House of Commons, where he supported John Redmond in his fight for Home Rule. But at Westminster he failed to catch the temper of the House. (Blake died in Canada at an advanced age, almost forgotten.)

JOSEPH HOWE, editor, orator and poet, the father of responsible government in Nova Scotia — the first colony to have it after Massachussets Bay — and an authority on Calhoun and John Redmond, was in the top flight of orators of all time. Redmond ranked him with Fox and Burke, and Calhoun said you had to go back to Demosthenes to find his equal. A fine sample of his oratory is his famous speech in Detroit on Reciprocity, which Dr. George N. Grant, principal of Queen's University and no mean speaker himself, said was almost perfect.

At one time Howe was so popular that opposition melted like snow in June. Then came Confederation. He fought it fiercely right to the foot of the throne. Defeat came from the most unexpected quarter — Sir Charles Tupper, "the warhorse of Cumberland," tumbled his government. Howe, like Sir Winston Churchill in 1945, discovered that gratitude is a lively sense of favors to come and has no relation to favors already bestowed.

After Confederation, Howe entered Sir John's government. He was a profligate spender, and in 1867 his debts were so mountainous that he could have been declared bankrupt. Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding, who later inherited his Liberal leader's mantle, claimed Sir John and Sir Charles Tupper took advantage of Howe's financial plight to lure him into the Conservative government.

But he was not happy in Ottawa. He was sent on a mission to Manitoba, and the mission failed. Sir John then appointed him Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia. He returned to Halifax by way of Boston, and on his arrival, only one man welcomed him, though in the past he had been acclaimed by scores of thousands. Howe died broken hearted a short time afterwards.

Howe must have been an amazing man. The hardfact Fielding and the poetic Angus L. Macdonald (onetime Prime Minister of Nova Scotia and Navy Minister during the Second World War) both would grow lyrical when talking of Howe. Fielding knew him intimately; Angus L. not at all.

By such men, the foundations of the Canadian nation were well laid.

Peaceful Rule To Follow Final War

A record convention audience of 26,702 at the Peace-pursuing District Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses held in Toronto enthusiastically received the featured discourse of F. W. Franz, Vice-President of the Watch Tower Society, in the Grandstand Exhibition Park Sunday afternoon. C. E. Morrell, convention chairman, described it as "the biggest and most successful gathering of Jehovah's witnesses ever held in Canada."

"Unselfish lovers of righteousness, peace and brotherhood have looked to the war that will end all wars," said Mr. Franz. "We are not just threatened with bombardment by missiles of the four nations that are already in the nuclear club. We stand in horrible danger of destruction by gas warfare. Russia has a six year start on the U. S. A. in developing a whole arsenal of various gases. Seemingly within the next ten years all mankind stands in danger of madly destroying itself by its own means."

Franz sternly warned, "The nations have ignored the proclamation of God's message of warning and are rather being gathered by Satan the Devil and his demons to the war of the great day of God the Almighty, Armageddon... not a third world war, but something much more terrible and destructive."

Concluding on a note of encouragement, Mr. Franz said, "Seeking Jehovah today means taking steps also to come into harmony with God's Son who sits as King on Jehovah's throne, at Jehovah's right hand in the heavens. Here then is the place of security, namely, on the side of God Almighty and his Christ, and under their protection."

Feature of interest was the mass outdoor baptism of 619 ministers at Sunnyside Pool. The oldest candidate for immersion was 83, the youngest 12. A police-directed motorcade of more than 275 cars took applicants from the Grandstand to the pool. "This baptism was also the largest ever held in Canada by the Witnesses," said Mr. Morrell.

Led by conductor Paul Couture of Montreal, an orchestra of 52 pieces and a choir of 51 voices, all Witness volunteers, provided music for the Convention. Oldest musician was 'cellist Raymond Browning, age 78, of Montreal.

The cafeteria served 63,500 meals during the four days, making this the largest restaurant operation in the city.

Focal point of the convention was the release of the concluding volume of the New World Translation of the Bible, a modern-language translation published by the Watch Tower Society, the first part of which was released in 1950. This translation has been widely recognized by Bible scholars as having features of exceptional interest and accuracy.

Delegates to the convention came from eight provinces, 28 states of the Union, Jamaica, Bahamas, Haiti, San Salvador, Australia and the Philippine islands.

Program presentations were from an attractive floral-bedecked platform, designed by Canadian witnesses. It included 16,000 specially grown plants, 50 evergreen trees, a miniature mountain range and a pool, decked with swans. The pleasing combination pictured a miniature paradise.

"Exceptionally fine co-operation was given by civic officials, the Exhibition executive and staff, the police department, and the householders of Toronto who opened their homes to visiting delegates after hotels and motels were filled, Toronto's hospitality is a credit to the community," Chairman Morrell stated, "and speaking for Jehovah's Witnesses I wish to express our warmest appreciation."

There is a bit of vanity in every man and woman, whether they wish to admit it or otherwise. Women seem to remain at the age of 39 for a good many years, however the birthday anniversary need not be overlooked. A pleasant way to mark the event is to have a little party for the 'little woman' away from home, so that she does not have to, so to speak, put on her own show. Monday evening a happy gathering of friends celebrated the anniversary of Mrs. Adam Sellar at Knotty Pine Restaurant, on lower Chateauguay Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roach and son saw to it that catering details were carried out in an excellent manner.

Few are the countries of the world where the livestock owner does not live in dread of seeing the above notice tacked upon his gate. For he knows that if his animals become infected with this disease they will waste away and never regain normal weight and milk production.

He also knows that once aftosa hits the only way to stop it is to kill off all livestock in the entire infected area!

But the economic losses caused by this animal ill—formally named foot-and-mouth disease, but more commonly known as "aftosa" — are not limited to stock owners. Today aftosa is a world problem. Here are a few reasons why:

— Because aftosa control and eradication measures are expensive to governments.

— Because in a world where too many millions are already undernourished, aftosa is the number one cause of loss of animal protein.

— Because aftosa cuts down international trade by forcing aftosa-free countries to bar animal products coming from infected lands.

Only Australia, the Guianas, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, and the western hemisphere north of Panama are free of aftosa. Yet even these areas run danger of infection as the aftosa virus can be carried in bones, blood, milk and hides as well as fresh, dried, canned or even frozen meats.

Taxes National Economies

In stamping out six aftosa epidemics between 1900 and 1930, the United States suffered direct and indirect costs totalling almost $200 million.

Therefore when aftosa broke out in Mexico in 1946, the U.S. found the need to protect its own livestock at one with its sympathy for a sister republic's plight. Both countries fought shoulder to shoulder for six years before aftosa was eradicated. The cost: $130 million to the U.S. and more than $500 million to Mexico.

In South America, Argentina alone estimates aftosa costs it $150 million a year.

When aftosa suddenly appeared in limited areas of Canada's Saskatchewan province in 1954 all shipment to the United States of Canadian breeder and feeder cattle was abruptly halted. In the few months before the outbreak was put down Canadian farmers lost millions of dollars of customary revenue.

Pan American Center Set Up

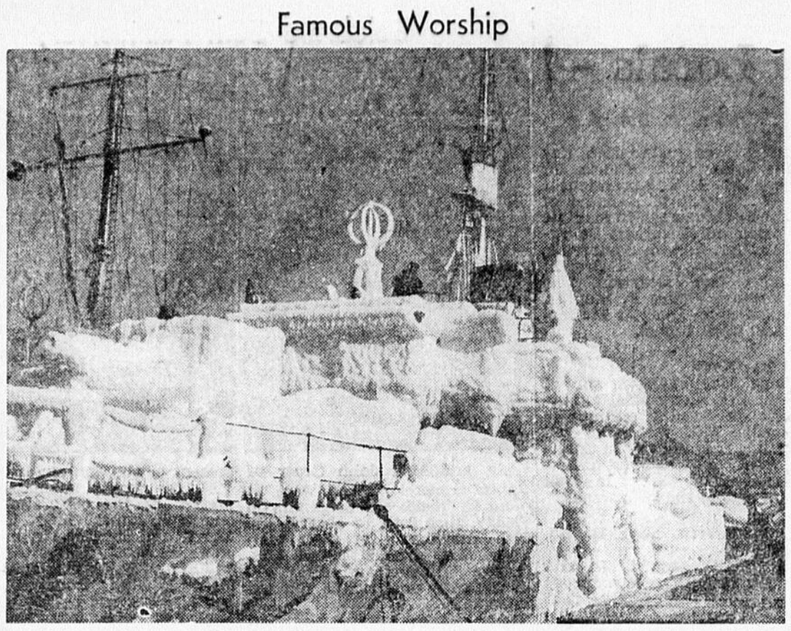
It was in recognition of aftosa's international dimensions that the 21 American Republics jointly founded the Pan American Foot-and-Mouth Disease Center on the outskirts of Rio de Janeiro in 1951.

Administered by the Pan American Sanitary Bureau, and financed through the Organization of American States' Technical Cooperation Program, the Center's purpose is to aid the countries in controlling and eventually eradicating aftosa from the hemisphere.

The Center trains anti-aftosa workers, provides the countries with consultants, organizes multi-national campaigns, furnishes reference laboratory and diagnostic services, and carries out research.

Center experts hope soon to produce a vaccine that will protect livestock for much longer periods than do any in present use. Such a vaccine could mean aftosa's eradication.

Famous Worship



One of the best-known ships in the RCN's 50-year history, HMCS Assiniboine saw war action in nearly every corner of the Atlantic from the Caribbean to Iceland. Commissioned in 1939, she took part in the capture of the German merchant ship Hannover in the Caribbean shortly after the outbreak of war.

In 1942, in one of the most notable engagements of the entire Atlantic battle, she tracked down a surfaced U.boat and after a heated action at close quarters rammed and sank the under-seas craft. In 1941, she was assigned for escort duties at the historic Churchill-Roosevelt Atlantic Charter meeting and embarked the British Prime Minister for several hours at Iceland. Sold in 1945, she was taken in tow from Sorel, P.Q., for Baltimore for breaking up. On Nov. 7, 1945, the tow parted and the ship went aground of the coast of Prince Edward Island. She still lies, bows to west, near East Point, P.E.I. A new Assiniboine was commissioned into the RCN in 1956 and serves today in the Pacific Command. (RCN Photo)

Magic with beans

Long, tapered green and wax beans are now plentiful. They have a deliciously fresh flavour and can be served often in a variety of ways. Buy beans by the pound: 1 pound of fresh beans will give 4 servings and 1½ pounds, 6 servings. Buy just the right amount, as beans like most vegetables, taste best when fresh.

Beans are easy to prepare and cook. Wash them carefully and remove the ends. Cook them whole or, for more variety cut them into 1-inch pieces or diagonally into long thin pieces or "french" them with the end of a vegetable peeler. Place beans in a saucepan, sprinkle with salt, then add boiling water (1½ cups for 6 cups beans). Cover tightly, bring to a boil, reduce heat, then boil gently for 10 minutes. Add some butter and cook uncovered until beans are tender and liquid has evaporated, about 4 to 6 minutes longer.

When you change the seasoning, you change the flavour and in this way, you may serve beans often. Add finely chopped celery, rosemary, chopped chives, bay leaves, chopped onion or slivers of garlic to the cooking water. Add garlic salt, tarragon, basil or savoury with the butter.

Beans blend well with sauces both their flavour and appearance are enhanced. Try these sauces and your beans will disappear like magic from your table.

Mustard Butter Sauce — Cook 6 cups beans in boiling water without adding any butter. Drain thoroughly, reserving about ¾ cup liquid. In a small saucepan mix 2 ½ teaspoons dry mustard, 2½ teaspoons sugar and 1½ tablespoons flour. Blend in liquid from beans, 1/3 to ½ cup butter and 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, then simmer for 3 minutes. Pour over 6 cups cooked beans then return to heat for 2 to 3 minutes.

Cheese Sauce — Pour 1 cup table cream over 6 cups cooked beans. Add 2½ cups grated Cheddar chese. Toss lightly with a fork then return to heat for 4 to 5 minutes until chese melts and sauce is hot.

Sauce Cream and Onion Sauce — Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a saucepan. Add ¾ cup coarsely chopped onion and cook over low heat until transparent. Add 6 cups uncooked beans, 1/3 cup water, and ¾ teaspoon salt. Cover and cook over low heat until beans are tender, 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from heat and add ½ cup sour cream and 1/3 cup chopped parsley. Serve immediately.

It's raspberry time!

Raspberries follow on the heels of strawberries. The season is short and sweet so buy some as soon as they appear on the market. For best eating choose berries that are a good rich colour, have no hulls and that are firm, clean and dry. To avoid damage to the delicate berries store them in shallow trays in the refrigerator until you are ready to use them. It is preferable to wash them gently before using them.

Here are some raspberry tarts by the Home Economists of the Consumer Section. Try them they'll melt in your mouth.

Glazed raspberry tarts

1 quart box raspberries
½ cup sugar
¼ cup water
4 teaspoons cornstarch
Few grains salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
6 large or 12 medium baked tart shells

Reserve 3 cups whole berries. Crush remaining berries, add water and bring to a rolling boil. Remove from heat and press through a sieve. In a saucepan combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add sieved juice (½ cup) slowly, combining thoroughly. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly until glaze thickens and becomes clear, about 5 minutes. Cool slightly and add lemon juice. Arrange whole berries in tart shells, then spoon glaze over berries. Chill before serving. Makes 6 large or 12 medium tarts.

If the tarts disappear too quickly, try a whole pie! Everyone will rave about this cool, ice cream pie.

Raspberry delight pie

1 package raspberry jelly powder
1¼ cups boiling water
Few grains salt
1 pint vanilla ice cream
2½ cups raspberries (1 pint box)
1-9" baked pie shell

Dissolve jelly powder in hot water. Add salt. Cut ice cream into hot gelatine mixture and blend with a slottled spoon or fork until the ice cream melts and is thoroughly blended with the gelatine. Chill in refrigerator and allow to partially set. Fold respberries into partially set mixture and turn into baked pie shell. Chill until set, about 30 minutes. The pie may be garnished with whole respberries. Makes 1-9" pie. The Home Economists of the Consumer Section
Canada Department of Agriculture.

As of March, 1960, 10 per cent of all Canadians in the 18-to-21 age group are attending universities.

A record 24,400,000 tons. That's the 1959 output of Canadian mines, up 55 per cent over 1958.

In 1959 wheat accounted for half of Canada's exports of $139,900,000 to Jajan.

CANNED FOODS ACT AND REGULATIONS

At this season of the year, the canning and preserving of vegetables is just about to begin. Mr. H. Robert of the Quebec Department of Agriculture believes that now is a good time to draw the attention of both industrial and domestic canners to certain articles of the Canned Foods Act and Regulations.

The permit for the making of canned goods for commercial purposes, which must be renewed annually, must be conspicuously posted on the wall, in the place or premises where the canned goods are manufactured. The number of the permit must be printed on all packing cases, in letters at least half an inch in height.

Every can offered for sale must bear a label showing the name and address of the canner, the name and a true and correct description of the canned product, its quality and net weight. An identical label must be affixed to the packing case.

All establishments shall be suitably lit and ventilated. All appliances, such as tables, trucks, vats, machines, kettles, containers, etc., shall be kept clean and sanitary. All operations in connection with the preparation or packing of products shall be carried on carefully and with strict cleanliness.

All yards, outhouses or other premises belonging to or used in connection with any establishment shall be maintained in a clean and sanitary condition and shall not be used for the emptying or storing or refuse. The drainage system shall be ample and kept in proper working order.

Most canners in the province of Quebec willingly conform to these requirements. From time to time, however, one or other of the foregoing regulations are not properly observed although they are clearly set forth in articles 6, 7 and 14 of chapter 40 of the Canned Foods Act.

More white-faced girls?

Fact is that shipments of face powder in Canada in 1958 were valued at $2,316,00 against $1,431,000 in the previous year.

The Relationship Of Man And Nature

TO subdue nature, to bend its forces to our will, has been the acknowledged purpose of mankind since human life began, but the time has come for a revision of our conception of the benefits and responsibilities of holding dominion over all other created things. A new spirit is abroad as scientists and laymen realize that man and the rest of nature are united and indivisible.

At a time when great elemental forces are clamouring at the bars of our civilization we need to discard our ideas of "attacking" the forest, "bringing under subjection" the mighty rivers, "conquering" the mountains, and "subduing" the prairie. Instead, we need to make the most of all nature as an ally.

Mankind is welcome to dominate the other forms of life, provided he can maintain order among the relentless forces whose balanced operation he has disturbed. This is a hard condition. Our past is full of sombre warnings of what happens when we fail to meet it. The evidence is in the remnants of great civilizations buried beneath mud and sand.

Only when we recognize that the study of all living things is a profoundly necessary part of human thought do we reach the moment of truth. Then we realize that we are part of a complex stretching back to the beginning of time and reaching out on every hand to the boundaries of the universe. Every one of us is an actor in a great drama in which each plays his part as both cause and effect.

The forces set in motion by every act of every animal and bacterium, by every inch added to the growth of plant or tree, affect the lives of other creatures. The principles which govern these interrelationships are embraced in the science called ecology, word coming from the Greek for "home" or "estate". Ecology is the study of how the household of nature is kept in order.

This Monthly Letter has to do with renewable resources, the essentials of life. Our primitive ancestors made their way for millions of years before they discovered how to use iron, copper, coal, oil and gold. But never has man been able to get along without food and water. This is why the relationship of all things has urgent meaning for us.

The state of affairs today

In a subject so old, so vast, and so continually new, it seems to be impossible to keep science and social life apart. In fact, we should not try to do so. Continuance of our human society depends upon our ability to heed the science of the rest of nature, and live within its bounds.

There are at least three good reasons for surveying the present state of affairs and learning about our natural environment: (1) our advancing technology uses up resources in increasing quantity; (2) our increasing population puts annually greater pressure upon our living space; (3) our continued existence depends upon our keeping our natural environment productive of the essentials of life.

Over and above the slow changes by natural causes such as climate, the earth has suffered measureless destruction of animals and plants by the uncalculating actions of both savage and civilized men. It was destruction of their environment that caused salmon to disappear from Lake Ontario, and the bison to die off our Western plains, and the passenger pigeon to vanish from North America. Forests have been burnt up, soil has been washed away, deserts have been produced, and rivers have been polluted. "We have," said Professor A.F. Coventry to the Toronto Field Naturalists' Club,

The Relationship —

"for a long time been breaking the little laws, and the big laws are beginning to catch up with us."

Hunting and fishing, formerly practised for the food they yielded, are valued today chiefly for their recreational use. Once in a while we encounter something that is very far from sport, and we see the wilderness in its sourest mood. It is the rampage of a killer who wastes wildlife for what he calls a bag. He gets no satisfaction except that of saying "Something which wanted to live is dead."

The true sportman knows the spirit of the outdoor world. He follows the rules of the game. He believes in and obeys laws which protect wildlife.

One of the most repulsive of the destructive results of human expansion is the poisoning of rivers, with consequent extinction of fish and of well-nigh every living thing except mould and putrefactive bacteria.

The fisheries of the lakes, ponds and streams are among our most important recreational resources. But our rivers are choked with the refuse of civilization. Our lakes are poisoned by industrial and sewage pollution. The water is dangerous to drink and risky to swim in; the plants are killed which should help to purify the water. Here and there across the continent municipalities are trying to stop the process of pollution. Several shipping companies have been prosecuted for dumping oil in our inland waterways, and a 50-mile zone off Newfoundland's east coast has been declared a region in which oil may not be dumped.

And now we are exercised about nuclear fallout. Its effect upon living things is a matter of debate, but there seems to be reason to believe that fallout will be like another influence superimposed upon all natural things.

It is because of growing awareness of the vital need for knowledge and action that the first national Canadian conference on conservation is to be held next year. Its title is "Resources for Tomorrow."

How is one to learn?

It is a great loss to travel the countryside and not see it, since contact with nature is a vital part of man's enjoyment of life.

Facts about nature may be read in books (like The Ladder of Life by A. Gowans Whyte and The Great Chain of Life by Joseph Wood Krutch, both introductory books) and seen on television (as in Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan's Web of Life, the Sunday CBC programme from Vancouver.) But after sampling in this way we will want to go into the woods and sit down.

The centuries of dead leaves that have fluttered to the ground have provided a rich layer of mould, soft as any carpet, with an embroidery of wild flowers to make is beautiful. The drama being played among the trees is without end. In the tops the robins are singing their absurd but delicious little four-noted songs; saucy squirrels are gamboling in the branches; ants are scurrying among last year's leaves on their mysterious errands.

These children of nature are all straightforward creatures with very simple intentions, and every one is supplied with beauties of one kind or another. Watching them, we realize that the mystery of life is not a problem to be solved, but a reality to be experienced and preserved.

Biologists are aware of the need to preserve nature's balance, and of the techniques, but only public opinion nurtured amid such scenes can make the application of these procedures effective. There is no automatic force in nature which will carry human beings forward irrespective of their own efforts. We need a new creed — to be stubbornly faithful to the facts of life; and a new determination — to contribute our effort in doing the right things.

Our hope is in education. The problem is not as simple as two plus two, quickly answered and as readily disposed of. This is a problem for statesmanlike people who take a long view, who look not at the next vacation or the next balance sheet or the next election, but at the future of mankind.

Since the beginning, the world has presented challenges to living creatures: to crawl out of the sea to live on dry land, to climb trees and mountains, to change in keeping with changing environment. Every creature is to itself the centre of its own universe, but it must have contact with all surrounding creatures. The challenge to us is nothing less than preservation of our species by restoring and maintaining its essential environment.

We are surrounded by, and we are part of, the eternal flux of life in an environment of natural forces. An Eastern proverb puts it: "To survive, all men must hold hands." And living things of all sorts are our kin in the wholeness of nature.

If we wish to preserve our present way of life we must come to terms with what is left of natural forest, soil, water and wildlife, and it will be on terms laid down by nature, not imposed by us. Any wrong which nature may for centuries commit, she has centuries to repair, but we, whose days are short, must walk warily lest we become the victims of the wasteland we make.

Nature has its laws designed to maintain balance. If the number of any living species tends to increase out of proportion, some force will arise to control it. There is an equilibrium in undisturbed nature between food and feeder, hunter and prey, so that the resources of the earth are never idle. Some animals or plants may seem to dominate the rest, but they do so only so long as the general balance exists.

These laws cannot be disregarded without disaster. Nature —which is our word for the total of the conditions and principles which influence the existence of living things — will not accept ignorance of her laws as an excuse for breaking them.

Nature's law does not command us to do, or to refrain from doing anything. It merely states that if a living being does so-and-so, then the result will be such-and-such. If we wish to avoid disability, pain and dissolution, we must pay attention to the warning.

Every balance requires checks. Living things are dynamic, always trying to expand. When population grows in an area so as to menace the food supply, predators move in; when their prey is reduced, the predators are driven to other areas in search of food.

Before shying away from the "cruelty" of nature, let us look at the necessity which prompts it. Let us suppose there were no control over soil bacteria, the smallest and simplest of all living things. Then, says John H. Storer in his delightful book on ecology The Web of Life, under favourable conditions each individual would divide into two about twice every hour. Even if it happened only once in an hour, the offspring from a single individual would number 17 million in a day, and by the end of six days the cells would have increased to a bulk larger than the earth. Or consider the oyster, which may discharge 500 million ripe eggs in one spawning. If all these matured and all subsequent progeny survived, after only four generations there would be a pile of oysters eight times the size of the earth. The balance preserved by nature prevents calamities of this sort.

ABOUT SOIL AND WATER

Good soil is a living thing, and its health is a matter of life and death to plants and animals. What folly it is to call silver, gold and gems "precious" and dirt "base". If there were as great a scarcity of soil as there is of jewels and precious metals, we should gladly give a heap of diamonds to purchase only so much earth as would hold a small violet in a tiny pot.

The soil is constantly changing. In the soil we find one of the oldest laws of life known to us: birth, growth, death, decay and rebirth.

Nothing is wasted in nature. Everything nourishes something else until the bacteria finally get hold of it and return it to the soil after breaking it down once more into inorganic compounds which plants can again transform into protein. The roots of man's physical and mental health spring from the soil.

Soil is first of all rock particles, then the organic matter from dead plants and animals, and finally a community of living plant and animal organisms. Roots, insects, worms and bacteria build fertility into it, while small mammals plow it and let in the air. The soil becomes filled with organic matter containing packaged energy from the sun.

The hive of living things existing in and on the soil is vitally important. At Rothamsted in England, the oldest agricultural research station in the world, it has been found that the population of invertebrate fauna per acre of fertilized land is fifteen million, of which eight million are insects.

Water is essential to soil development, as it is, indeed, to all living things. Movement is of the essence of water, and the most damaging impact of civilized man on his environment is the shattering of this cycle of movement. The break is caused by the destruction of plant cover, removing the sponge-like texture of the complex topsoil — topsoil which, it has been estimated, took five hundred years per inch to build.

Breaking the water cycle has wiped out civilizations in Mesopotamia and North Africa and elsewhere, but because of soaring world population we have reached a new crisis. "Never before," says William Vogt in his soul-searching book Road to Survival, "has the hydrologic cycle been badly dislocated in the presence of so many hundreds of millions of people."

Waste of water, including unnecessary run-off, or excessive use from any one place for industrial and domestic purposes, or for irrigation, can lower the underground water table, sometimes far away, and deplete or temporarily exhaust the supply.

The primary means of increasing and maintaining water reserves is to protect and improve the plant cover on our watersheds. From these areas of drainage the water is fed by run-off and seepage to surface and underground streams.

The watershed problem is one of the red-letter problems of the day. Almost everything that has to do with renewable natural resources, with forestry, farming, hunting, fishing, and the economics of production, is tied up with the watershed.

Plants and trees

It is quite correct to say that all flesh is grass. Animals lack the ability to subsist on the simple elements in air, water, sunshine and soil. To perpetuate themselves, they must eat grass or one another. The plant can turn inorganic chemicals into living tissue.

No one can deny, then, the importance of plant life to continuance of the human race. Without that silent, endless manufacturing process which goes on in the green leaf under the influence of chlorophyll, sunshine, air, and moisture — the world's primal industry — we should surely die.

Every spring, nature's factory starts again to produce food, harnessing the sun's energy and combining it with elements from air, water and rock, into living tissue. From the roots, through the fibres, the sap runs up, carrying water and nourishment to every part of the plant, and in the inside part of the bark it flows down, bringing the foodstuffs which the leaves have manufactured.

Forests are living societies of trees, shrubs and other forms of plant cover. Although more than forty per cent of Canada's surface is covered by trees, our people are becoming conscious of the need to conserve and expand our forest resources.

Most industrial countries pass through the same three stages of forest history. The first is marked by energetic and often ruthless exploitation of virgin forests. This is generally followed by a period of increasing dependence on foreign supplies. Then the third chapter begins: the effort to rehabilitate or partially restore the domestic forest resources.

Violation of the laws governing the extent of necessary forest cover is one of the most tragic examples of human folly in the face of nature's well-ordered system. But it does us no good to place all the blame upon the pioneers. They did the thing that seemed right to them under their circumstances. If they denuded our watersheds with axe and fire, if they used the hoe and the plough where only trees could grow, they paid the price in their own lives through blasted hopes and abandoned farms and niggardly living. It is our part, knowing more of the interrelationships of all nature, to repair the damage where we can, and to make sure that such things do not occur again.

Importance of environment

What is environment, in the sense of "natural environment"? It includes all factors, natural and artificial, which affect the development of living things.

Life is correspondence with environment. Different creatures seek different environments, but everything exists at a specific place under specific circumstances. As human beings, our greatest psychological asset is a sense of confidence in our environment.

The carrying capacity, which is the measure of the amount of life any area of land or water will support under given circumstances, may be altered from time to time by changes in conditions caused by nature or by man's use of the area.

It sometimes happens that these changes lead to a precarious existence. The creatures in the area may seem to be leading a static life, but our environment is not a museum display case in which petrified groups are forever removed from contact with nature. Something is always happening, and just a little change, a little more severity, a little more depletion, may bring to an end the existence of groups or all the population.

No one knows how many species during the ages failed to meet the challenge of their environment. George L. Clarke, of Harvard University and Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, says in his texbook Elements of Ecology that about 21,000 species of extinct vertebrates and an even larger number of extinct higher plants have been described.

Today it is necessary for mankind to adjust its usage and to manage earth's remaining resources more creatively if it is to survive. We see the warning in the life history of every forest. Trees such as oaks grow so big that their own seedlings cannot survive in their shade; the oak forest perishes, and is replaced by shade-tolerant trees like the beech, the maple and the hemlock. Then, as long as the present climate continues this will remain a beech, maple or hemlock forest — a climax forest — because these trees have the ability to reproduce under their own shade.

Effects of human acts

It is a curious commentary on our sense of values that though we think of mankind as being the highest form of life the other forms of life almost invariably go into decline wherever we take possession of a piece of the earth.

Civilized man has been more ruthlessly wasteful in his attitude toward the natural world than has served his material interests. The practical utility of land, water and forest has been diminished seriously by our determination to allow them to serve no purposes but our own. This exploitation led Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian dramatist and writer, to say: "Everything seems to foretell that man, the last comer to this earth, will be the first to leave it."

Through the use of his intellect, man has to some extent escaped from the controls of nature. He has meddled with small parts of a machine of whose total design and purpose he was ignorant. He now faces the hard task of encouraging natural forces to work in restoration of the damage he has done.

Because of the danger attending ignorance, we need much more information about nature than we have yet gathered. Even well-meant efforts may bring disaster, as witness the experience with deer at Kaibab Forest, on the north rim of Grand Canyon. When, in an effort to increase the population of deer, the authorities killed off great numbers of mountain lions, coyotes, wolves and other predators, the deer population increased from 4,000 to 100,000 in fourteen years. The land did not have the carrying capacity for that huge number, and consumption of all the food was followed, in two years, er, and consumption of all the the herd through starvation.

Editorial Notes

Please Take Care!

WE deplore accidents of all kinds no matter where they happen and we feel especially those that happen in or near any town or built up area. Speed on the open highway is permissable up to 50 miles per hour, except where specially marked strips are designated for lower speeds. All built-up areas require a lowering of speed and passing through towns also requires lower speed. These limits are usually well marked as to entering upon and leaving.

Many towns have important highways passing through them and leading into them and we feel that such points need the extra special care of the automobile driver. Because he is in a 30-mile an hour zone, does not mean that such speed can be maintained. There are hazards which should compel the driver to realize he must adjust his speed to the requirements of such. The loss of life and the injury suffered by persons, to say nothing of the property loss in wrecked cars, is really appalling.

Last week, a small boy was knocked down by a car on the outskirts of town and injured so badly, that he died on Saturday as a result. The driver took all precautions, according to reports, to avoid hitting the boy, but was unable to do so.

We urge all drivers of cars to reduce their speed when approaching built up areas and towns. At this time of the year children are around more than at any other time and there is no means of knowing just when they may appear. In town it is especially needed to be cautious. Small children are at play and concerned only with such play and do not look to see if cars are coming. It costs little to the car driver to proceed slowly and be ready to stop under any circumstances in order to avoid accidents.

Our main street is again becoming particularly hazardous in this respect owing to the gradual return to parking on both sides and the narrowness of this street for two way traffic. It is therefore particularly necessary that car drivers keep a sharp watch for children darting out from in between these parked cars, when they are required to keep so close to the parked cars on either side. There have been accidents on this street before when it was operated in this manner and there will be again. It is one street that requires the driver to keep his speed and his car under control at all times.

Chateauguay as can be seen from the many reports of accidents, is another point where utmost caution should be exercised. If drivers of cars will do their parts in this, we feel sure that accidents will be cut to a minimum. It is so little to ask, yet so much to gain. If all will exercise the same precaution, then it will not be long before all drivers will see the need. None of us are in such a hurry that we cannot slow up and use discretion where it is needed. Remember, the life we save, may be our own.

Changing Our Government

CHANGING over from the Union Nationale Party to the recently victorious Liberal Party to take over the Government of the Province of Quebec, is a slow procedure and has caused much comment. However, it is expected the new party will be in office this week as the old government is expected to resign on July 5th or 7th.

Although they had not taken office, Liberal officials issued several orders for stoppage of work contracts, payment on cheques and other matters until they had a chance to investigate. There was some anger aroused when persons leaving government offices were asked to open their brief cases and purses as they were leaving. Both Mr. Barrette and Mr. Lesage apologized for this commenting that the police officers had been over zealous in their duties. However, Mr. Barrette became aroused over this and threatened to remain in office until all recount and official counts had been made. Later, he toned downed his attitude in this respect and said his government would resign as quickly as possible.

While the former government had planned having an immediate session to study Hospital Insurance and some other matters, Mr. Lesage says he will not hold a fall session in September as with the heavy amount of legislation in his program, it will not be prepared by that time. He says he intends to implement his election program and the social security items will be among the first. He also intends to do away with the patronage program and to institute enquiries into the previous administration.

Having been out of office in Quebec for so long, it is only natural that the Liberal Party will be quite active in trying to prove to the electors that they mean what they said during the election campaign. We, the people, will be watching developments with a keen eye and awaiting the outcome of the various commissions that are to be set up.

Be Prepared

THE aim of the Boy Scout movement is to help mould character and develop youngsters who are cheerful, neighborly and resourceful.

Its motto is "Be Prepared" and its slogan, "Do a Good Deed Every Day."

That such goals are not mere catch-phrases is amply demonstrated in the list of awards announced recently for those of Canada's 150,000 Boy Scouts who distinguished themselves in various ways.

Who, for example could be better prepared than Robert Harold Brannan, plucky 14-year-old scout from St. Thomas, Ont., who "never forgot to smile" all through an illness that eventually took his life?

And what better deed than his decision to donate his corneas to the eye bank of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, enabling two blind persons to regain their sight?

Doctors discovered in October, 1958, that Robert had a malignant tumor of the right leg. The leg was amputated above the knee and fitted with an artificial limb. But the tumor spread to his lung and he died July 6, 1959.

"Bob never complained or forgot to smile," said his scoutmaster, Gerry F. LeCourtois. He was a patrol leader and kept up his work as long as he could during his illness. He was "an inspiration to the entire troop."

Robert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brannan, will be invited to receive the Cornwell badge — highest Boy Scout award for gallantry — from Governor-General Vanier in the fall.

Every scout promises to help other people at all times, and this, too, is borne out by the long list of awards to those who saved others from possible death.

The silver cross for gallantry with considerable risk when to Scout Peter Lawrence, 12, of North Sydney, N.S., for the rescue earlier this year of five-year-old Gordon Fiander from drowning, Cub Ronald Richmond, 10, of Parry Sound, Ont., for rescuing four-year-old Patricia Milne from the Seguin River, and Cub Andrew Kitchen, 8, of Kitchener, Ont., for saving his seven-year-old sister Heather from the Grand River.

The Boy Scout movement had its beginning in Canada about 1908 and stories of helpfulness and heroism have been turning up each year with regularity that leaves no doubt of the value of scout training.

Rampant Destruction Of Fish And Game Resources

(By W. G. (Bill) McHugh)

The pollution of the waters surrounding the Island of Montreal and of the Chateauguay and Ottawa Rivers has been well reported by newspapers and the resultant public awareness of this pollution and its health hazards has caused the responsible authorities to take action. What people are not yet aware of, is that while our Provincial Government is planning the promised pollution clean-up, there are new sources of pollution cropping up with appalling regularity. The following is an example of this flagrant spoiling of our fish and game resources.

It was reported to me that an amount of waste oil can be seen floating down the Bouchard River, the waters of which empty into our Lake St. Louis at Dorval. This oil was traced to its source which was discovered to be the new C.N.R. dump yard deisel shop (north of Lachine).

Following this stream which runs through the City of Dorval, Summerlea Golf Course, railway property and then a recently dug branch-off that runs directly into the C.N.R. deisel shop, I was able to witness the destruction that this oil dumping causes. Spring-time high water spreads this thick brown waste oil far and wide with the resultant killing of greenery along its banks. The soil is so saturated with this gucky stuff that this stream is ruined. Our feathered friends can no longer drink from this stream or have the necessary cover for their protection that this stream provided. The many birds which usually concentrate about a stream of this kind were notably absent. By observing the prints of fox, one could see their frustrated attempts to avail themselves of clean drinking water. This stream also provided ideal conditions for the procreation of fish, but they will no longer run this stream, thus one more spawning area ruined, not by progress but my money-mad apathy.

One virtually fumes at such goings on, for in this age of industrial progress there is little enough left of relatively upspoiled local nature without the wholesale destruction of that which remains. Quite a few people have, in the past, sat along the banks of this stream to enjoy the closeness and solitude of nature. Now they witness the very thing that drives people away from cities.

The damage to this stream is irrepairable, but this deliberate oil dumping by the C.N.R. must stop, for its destructive flow reaches into Lake St. Louis. A report of this has beensent to the Department of Fish and Game as they will handle the legal side of this matter.

All this indicates that not only is this generalized pollution problem in need of an immediate solution, but also that the existing anti-pollution laws should be more rigidly enforced so that these abusers of our laws will be made to see the error of their ways. Those responsible for the enforcement of these laws should get out and do their jobs and, by consistent and swift action, make would-be pollutions think twice before they destroy public property just to save themselves a few dollars.

Whereas I am quite sure that it is not the general policy of the C.N.R. to dump their unwanted waste oil into streams, this is one case of bungling incompetence that should be used as an example of what happens when persons who are not conservation-minded are given positions of responsibility in industry. The result of a national ignorance that only public education on conservation can cure.

For sure, much of the so-called necessary destruction of our fish and game resources that goes hand in hand with industrial progress could, with a little foresight and sacrifice, be avoided. When all is cement and steel, and one through economic necessity has to live in an environment devoid of natur's splendour, our lot will be a sorry one indeed.

Chairman of the Anti-Pollution Committee.

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

The Week In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) Liberal Leader Jean Lesage made it clear this week his party plans to abolish the practice of patronage in provincial politics.

Speaking to reporters following his party's first general caucus since winning the June 22 provincial election, Mr. Lesage described patronage as "A Public Plague" and patronage agents as "Public Bloodsuckers."

He did not indicate what methods his government would employ to curb patronage. But he did say there was not a dissenting voice at the caucus when measures planned at the department and local riding levels were outlined to the members.

The Party had promised during the election campaign to eliminate patronage tactics. Mr. Lesage said at the press conference he will act if the name of any person who has engaged in this kind of activity is reported to him.

Patronage has been a well-known adjunct of political life in Quebec. This is the system under which friends of the party in power obtain government contracts and party supporters get preferential treatment.

Meanwhile there were some indications that Mr. Lesage and his Colleagues would probably be sworn into office July 5 or July 7.

Early this week Premier Antonio Barrette said his Union Nationale administration would remain in office until final returns made the Liberal victory official. But some petitions filed in district courts by party supporters for judicial vote recounts were dropped a few days later. Political observers said this was a sign that the Union Nationale's stalling tactics were weakening.

Criticism over Mr. Barrette's decision to remain in office has has obviously hit the Union Nationale hard. The Premier's stand was constitutionally correct but politically risky. Beaten governments customarily bow out quietly.

The Liberals in the meantime increased their majority from five to six in the 95-seat Legislative Assembly Friday by winning an additional seat in Gaspe North following a judicial recount. The recount gave the riding to Liberal Candidate Claude Jourdain by an 11-vote majority over Alphonse Couturier, the Union Nationale Candidate.

On election night Mr. Couturier had been declared elected by a five-vote majority.

The change boosted the Liberal Party's total seats to 51 and reduced the Union Nationale total to 43. The other seat is held by an Independent.

The first withdrawal of recount petitions was in Montmagny riding where Attorney-General Antoine Rivard was defeated by Dr. Laurent Lizotte, a Liberal, by only nine votes. Other Union Nationale petitions were almost immediately withdrawn in other ridings.

Political observers say it is now obvious the Provincial Government may meet once more, perhaps twice, and then hand in it's resignation.

Mr. Lesage also announced this week that his government will probably not call a session of the new legislature in September because the legislative program was so heavy it might not be ready by that time.

He said the Liberals intend to propose at the next session — some time in the autumn — adoption of the social security benefits promised during the election campaign.

Mr. Lesage made a series of other announcements:

1. The Liberal administration will examine the entire financial picture of the provincial treasury. The finance department alone had a total of $31,800,000 in unpaid bills, he said.

2. A Royal Commission of inquiry into the 16-year administration of the Union Nationale Party will be established.

3. A Royal Commission of inquiry into the sale of the Montreal Gas Facilities owned by the Quebec Hydro-Electric commission to the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation will be set up.

4. Hospital Insurance will be put into effect in Quebec by January 1, 1961, if at all possible.

5. The Legislature's committee on privileges and elections would be summoned during the legislature session for a full-scale inquiry into election procedures and tactics.

6. Legislation dealing with the Montreal, Municipal System of Administration would be decided upon after the first report of a commission into the matter becomes available after August 30.

Poliomyelitis Vaccination

"Present evidence indicates that approximately ninety percent of vaccinated persons develop an effective immunity against poliomyelitis" states Dr. F. O. Wishart in an article published in the current issue of "HEALTH", official organ of the Health League of Canada. These are attractive odds.

"Public Health Reports", published by the U. S. A. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, states that over 50% of their population have received at least one injection.

Has the same percentage of citizens received an injection in Montreal or the Province of Quebec? Our records do not indicate that this is so. The Departments of Health are nevertheless not to blame. On the contrary credit should be given to these Health Authorities. It is up to the public to seek this protection.

The Provincial Department of Health has placed vaccine at the disposal of Municipal Departments of Health, Provincial Health Units and the March of Dimes, a foundation for the prevention of polio. The Department of Health of the City of Montreal gave over 19,500 free injections last month, within a few hours, in three of their numerous clinics.

The public, however, should not rely solely on Health Departments nor postpone till tomorrow what can be done to-day. Public Health Agencies have not the monopoly of Salk Vaccine. Physicians in private practice and those employed by many industries can also obtain vaccine on the open market.

The great majority of cases of poliomyelitis occur in children and young adults, but cases are not unknown even in the fifth and sixth and even the seventh decades of life. It is therefore, impossible to draw an arbitrary age limit beyond which there is no risk. One would like to suggest that it is foolhardy for persons under forty or fifty not to seek the protection of Salk Vaccine.

Of course, there is no reason to panic. Polio does not, at present exist in our midst at the epidemic stage. Nevertheless... can we rest assured that it will not recur within a few months as it did last year?

A single injection of Salk Vaccine does not guarantee immunity. Three injections are recommended and these should be spaced as stipulated by the Health Authorities. Immunization should be started today.

The Province of Quebec Division of the Health League of Canada fully endorses anti-polio public health measures, and congratulates the authorities responsible for last month's successful initiative. Let us all do our share to fight poliomyelitis and, in a few years through these combined efforts, this disease, like smallpox and diphtheria, will become a disease of the past. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Do the Gouzenkos Ever Regret Their Decision?

Canada's mystery family is still living incognito fifteen years after Russian cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko fled the Russian embassy in Ottawa, taking with him proof of his country's spying operations in Canada.

Protected by an elaborate cloak and dagger ritual, the Gouzenkos—now known by another name—told Chatelaine magazine writer Christina Newman of their reasons for believing their decision in 1945 was the right one. They value their freedom in Canada, even though they are under protective surveillance by the RCMP. They turned down a government pension because they wished to be independent—but Igor has a five-point program he urges the Canadian government to adopt to encourage other Soviet spies to follow his example. One point in his program would guarantee an ex-spy a pension.

The Gouzenkos children are unaware of their real identity—they are told of a fictitious homeland. The couple has no knowledge of what has happened to members of their family still in Russia when Igor made his dramatic spy exposures.

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) The Commons paid its highest possible compliment to Dominion Day observances last Friday by turning up for a holiday sitting while holding back on the fireworks for future occasions.

The business on hand — timely but controversial — was the Bill of Rights sponsored by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

It popped back into the Commons, with symbolic timing, after being reintroduced for first reading a few days earlier. The original bill was presented to Parliament in 1958 but was set aside to allow more time for study.

Freedom-Conscious

The Prime Minister, in a television address on the eve of the Dominion Day sitting, said of the bill:

"It will make Parliament freedom-conscious. It will make Parliament realize that rights are to be preserved. It will make Parliament more cautious in passing laws that would have the effect of interfering with freedom.

"It will act as a landmark by means of which Canadians through Parliament will have redeclared those spiritual things which have made Canada great; it will preserve the spiritual wells in legislative form without which freedom cannot survive.

"It will give to Canadians the realization that wherever a Canadian may live, whatever his race, his religion or his color, the Parliament of Canada will be jealous of his rights and will not infringe upon those rights."

One new clause in the bill recognizes that Parliament in future cannot be found by present acts. In other words, the Bill of Rights like any other bill, can be amended or repealed.

Some Argument

There was a slight procedural hitch and some political recriminations as the bill was launched in the Commons.

Opposition leader Pearson said a major criticism by his Liberals was that the bill, which had been before a previous session, was held back until near the end of the current session, leaving no time for a committee to hear representations.

Arnold Peters (CCF-Timiskaming) argued on a point of order that the bill could not be dealt with at this session because its subject matter had already been decided on in a previous bill.

Mr. Peters referred to the feeds act passed this session which "empowers a government inspector. . . . to enter private property, search the premises and any private documents and papers therein and take away samples, all without the due process of a search warrant."

Having voted these powers, Mr. Peters argued, the Commons cannot now vote the opposite way by approving sections of the Bill of Rights which provide that no one may be deprived of their right to enjoy property or be subjected to detention or search without warrant except by due process of law.

Speaker Roland Michener got the debate under way again, without ruling on the merits of Mr. Peters' argument, by desiding that Mr. Peters should raise his points when the Commons studies in detail the specific clauses involved.

Rail Wrangling

Serious consideration was promised by Transport Minister Hees for a suggested railways staff freeze while a royal commission investigates the social and economic impact of rail layoffs.

Mr. Hees told CCF House leader Hazen Argue: "I will give the matter serious consideration . . . serious attention."

Mr. Argue said it was high time for a freeze on further staff layoffs on the railways, and described those that had occurred already as deplorable, cruel and callous.

He suggested a royal commission investigation of the hardship that had ensued, perhaps by the current royal commission on transportation after it had finished its work dealing mainly with freight rates.

Forests and Fish

The Liberal Opposition said it doubts there is any necessity for the Federal government to establish a new department of forestry.

HAVE YOU ENOUGH SECURITY? A successful man realizes the value of security. Unclouded by worry, his mind can function quickly, efficiently. He's not afraid of tough jobs, tough decisions, because he's not afraid of the future. Think! Are you this sure of yourself? Do you have this kind of security?

No man can ever know real security unless his future and the future of his family is safe. Successful men realize this early in life. They protect this future with LIFE INSURANCE. They know that whatever happens their financial security and the security of their families is unconditionally guaranteed. This is a good feeling to have . . . a feeling that gives a man confidence, courage. It's a feeling that can make a man a success.

How about you! If you don't have enough security . . . maybe it's because you don't own enough LIFE INSURANCE with valuable savings features. Look into it. Your LIFE INSURANCE man is a most important person to talk to on your road to success.

There is no substitute for Life Insurance!

If you want success you need: SECURITY to give you freedom of mind . . . CONFIDENCE in yourself and your future . . . EXTRA MONEY to seize opportunity. And in the later years, when you'll appreciate it the most, LEISURE to enjoy the rewards of your achievement. These are the ingredients of success. These are the things that LIFE INSURANCE can help to give you.

The first 57 great great grandchildren of Queen Victoria were given in the last issue. The list continues with the remaining 85.

58. CHRISTINA (called Christa), Princess of Hesse (1933), m. Prince Andrew of Yugoslavia and reside at Foxbridge, Sussex, England. She is a niece of Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

59. DOROTHEA (called Puppa), Princess of Hesse (1934), m. Apr. 1, 1959 Prince Friedrich zu Windisch-Graetz and reside at Milan, Italy. She is a niece of Prince Philip.

60. KARL, Prince of Hesse (1937), resides at Salem, Baden, W. Germany; is nephew of Prince Philip.

61. RAINER, Prince of Hesse (1939), nephew of prince Philip.

62. CLARISSA, Princess of Hesse (1944) born posthumously four months after her father was killed. She was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Lady Pamela Mountbatten in Jan. 1960; is niece of Philip.

63. MICHAEL I, Last King of Romania (1921), m. at the Royal Palace, Athens, Greece to Princess Anne de Bourbon-Parma, niece of the last Empress Zita of Austria-Hungary. Reside at Versoix, Switzerland. Michael was twice a King, first at the age of six years when he succeeded his grandfather King Ferdinand in 1927, his own father having deserted his family and chose exile ... his mistress Mme Lupescu. In 1930 Michael was replaced by his father who came back to the throne and reigned as King Carol II. In 1940 Carol was forced into exile by the pro-Nazi government and Michael was declared King again. In 1947 the Communists forced Michael, his mother and the entire Romanian Royal Family into exile. In 1943 Michael took the daring step on his own initiative to arrest the Dictator of Romania, General Antonescu, and thereby cleaned the country of the German invader. The Russians then entered the country and have remained ever since.

64. Mr. MIRCEA LAMBRINO, who styles himself Prince Mircea Carol Gregory of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen (1920) who is perhaps one of the most tragic personalities of the 20th century. Born of the marriage of King Carol II and Miss Joanna Lambrino, the Royal House and the Romanian government refused to accept her as his wife and therefore had the union annulled. This son, born after the annullment, was forbidden to take his father's name. He was therefore given his mother's maiden name and with her went to Paris. The Romanian government and Carol's family paid her off handsomely to leave the country forever. She died of cancer in 1953 in Paris. Twice following World War II Mircea journeyed to Brazil where his father was then in exile to seek some sort of financial assistance for his mother but King Carol refused to see him. In 1953 Carol died and Mircea was declared a legal heir to the fortune left by Carol after his death in Portugal in 1953. The Portuguese law courts recognized him as a legal son of Carol II. In 1956 the French courts, occupied with personal property left in that country by Carol, recognized Mircea as Prince of Holenzollern-Sigmaringen. Like his father, Mircea Lambrino has been unfortunate in marriage. His first marriage to the Russian girl Miss Helene Navagatzine ended in divorce and so did his second marriage to the French actress Miss Lena Pasteur, nee Bottin. He was reported to have married Miss Jane Williams of the USA in Feb. 1959 but at this time of writing I have never been able to verify if the marriage ever took place. She was heiress to a "multi - million dollar" fortune through an uncle. Mircea resides with his son in Paris, France.

65. PETER II, King of Yugoslavia (1923), m. Princess Alexandra of Greece, GREAT GREAT granddaughter of Queen Victoria. He is a Godson of the late King George VI of England and of Queen Mother Elizabeth. He became King on the assassination of his father in Oct. 1934 under the Regency of his cousin Prince Paul, a brother-in-law of Marina, the Duchess of Kent. In 1941 Paul was sent into exile because of his dealings with the Germans and Peter reigned alone. He fled his homeland for self-exile to England when the Germans invaded Yugoslavia in 1941. In Nov. 1945 Marshal Tito ousted the monarchy and threatened to execute Peter if he so much as showed his nose back on Yugoslav territory. His marriage, out of favour with both the Yugoslav government - in - exile and the British government and bitterly opposed by his mother, nearly ended in divorce but were reconciled in 1955. They live in near-penury at Monte Carlo, France.

The couple were on their way from Vienna via North Africa by Lufthansa Airlines for a visit to Brazil where the Count had investments. The plane was coming in for a landing but as the pilot banked the plane the wing tip caught the soft earth causing the craft to skid and burst into flames. Eye-witness reports say that passengers could be seen inside the plane trying desperately to open windows but could not. Over 60 persons perished in the disaster. The couple had had a baby daughter only a month before they died.

The Week At Ottawa

there are too many ministers and too many departments already.

He said it is obvious that "all the ministers who exist today are not needed." The cabinet — comprising 23 ministers responsible for 20 departments — included ministers "who are not charged with sufficient duties or sufficient responsibilities.

Mr. Chevrier was speaking on a resolution proposing establishment of the forestry department. The resolution was approved later and the bill introduced.

Speakers representing all three parties in the Commons called for a tougher stand by Canada in asserting territorial fishing rights.

No one said it in so many words, but there were clear implications of a feeling that Canada is allowing itself to be shoved around. The display of non-partisan solidarity came during Commons consideration of fisheries department estimates.

Fisheries Minister MacLean, replying to demands that Canada unilaterally proclaim an axclusive 12-mile fishing zone off its shores, indicated there still is hope of reaching some kind of international agreement on offshore rights.

Drug Addiction

A maximum life sentence — perhaps even for first offences — is the federal government's idea of a punishment to fit the crime of narcotics trafficking.

Justice Minister Fulton said cabinet approval has been given for such a sentence in the Justice Department's preparation of a new approach of narcotics addiction.

The statement was made as the Commons studied the justice department estimates. The perusal will continue later.

Lasting Pastures

It is often said that prices for dairy products are higher in Canada than anywhere else in the world. It should perhaps be added that, on far too many of our farms, costs of production are also the highest in the world. Mr. Paul Robert of the Quebec Department of Agriculture says that the part which a high-quality pasture can play in reducing the cost of milk production is well known, but that many farmers hesitate to follow good example in this matter, in the belief that the establishment of such pasture is a costly business.

It is true enough that it does cost something to prepare and sow and fertilize enough pasture for a herd which is capable of making a living for the dairy farmer. This is the very reason why it is necessary to take the proper steps to get maximum yields from our improved pastures and, at the same time, ensure for them a sufficiently long life.

The first rule is that, as far as possible, pastures should be established on fertile, will-drained and well-limed land. Since there is no danger of losses from lodging, it is advisable to apply plenty of fertilizer. Between 250 and 400 pounds of 4-24-20 to the acre is not too much in the year of seeding.

When sowing a pasture in rotation, the farmer should not allow himself to be unduly influenced by talk of "sensation" seed mixtures: he will do better to follow carefully the recommendations of the provincial seed board or the nearest experimental farm.

In the establishment of a pasture, the grazing down of the nurse crop is an advantageous and, in many cases, a necessary practice. The trampling of the animals promotes germination and generally makes for a better pasture the following year. It is wise to remember not to wait too long before grazing off the nurse crop. As soon as it is six or seven inches high, a reasonable degree of grazing should be permitted so as to give the ladino clover and grasses a chance to develop normally. It is also well to bear in mind that ladino clover should not be grazed between the beginning of September and the middle of October. This rule also applies to the succeeding year.

Since much is expected of an improved pasture, it goes without saying that it should be generously fertilized every year. A grudging application of fertilizer at the time of sowing will not be enough to ensure abundant pasture for four or five years. It is therefore necessary to supply pasture lands with plant nutrients every year, using 0-20-20 when the clover is abundant and 4-24-20 if grasses predominate.

It is always better to subdivide pasture fields and to allow the different sections to be grazed intensively in rotation. In this way, a section will be completely grazed within a fairly short time and will then have a chance to make a uniform recovery while the stock are covering the other sections. It should be remembered that it is advisable to feed cattle a little dry hay when they are on a field of practically pure ladino clover (unless they have access to a natural pasture where they can find the fibrous material they need).

To sum up: pastures which are expected to provide abundant grazing for four, five or six years should be established on fertile, well-drained and well-limed soil; supplied with the necessary plant nutrients in the form of commercial fertilizer and be grazed in a rationally controlled manner. The results will be surprising.

Buying Flour

The consumer section of the Canadian department of agriculture advises homemakers to buy white flour in the largest amounts that use and home storage permit to save time and money.

Whole wheat and Graham flours should be purchased in amounts that can be used in a reasonable length of time because they do not keep well in hot weather.

Flour should be purchased according to the type and use for which it is intended.

Always read the label to learn the type of flour, the weight, and whether it's enriched. There may also be recipes on the label.

Flour should be stored in tightly covered containers in a cool dry place. Moisture causes spoilage.

No Blood Bills For Travellers

Canadians travelling in the United States who become hospitalized and require blood transfusion therapy may receive free blood transfusions, just as they do across Canada. Hospitalized Americans in Canada also receive free blood through the reciprocal arrangement between the Blood Transfusion Services of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the American National Red Cross.

The plan should be assuring to visitors who may require blood transfusions during illness or accident while far from home. No blood actually crosses either way over the border, but a system of "credits" is maintained in records of the two humanitarian organizations of the two nations.

Canadian who receive blood transfusions in American hospitals should advise their local Canadian Red Cross Branch at home as soon as possible after the transfusion is recommended. If the Canadian patient cannot do this, the notice can be readily effected by the doctor or the hospital in a very routine manner.

The advice to the Canadian Red Cross Branch should specify the patient's name and address, the name of the hospital, the name of the surgeon or principal physician and the number of transfusions given. This information is necessary so that the Canadian Red Cross Society may arrange replacement of the blood by the American National Red Cross to the hospital concerned.

Small Potatoes

The best things come in small packages. This certainly holds true for new potatoes. There is nothing more flavourful than small new potatoes that come directly from the garden to your dinner plate.

New potatoes have such tender, delicate skin that it would be a pity to peel them. And they are so small that if you did remove the peel there would hardly be anything left to the potato. Brush them gently under running water and pop them into boiling, salted water — just enough to barely cover them and prevent them from sticking. Potatoes are an important source of Vitamin C and they also contain Vitamin B and minerals especially iron. These nutrients can easily be destroyed by too much water or over cooking. Cook them until barely tender and they will practically melt in your mouth.

The ideal way to serve new potatoes is to smother them in butter. For something fancier, cover them with butter "maitre d'hotel", a mixture of creamed butter, lemon juice and chopped parsley.

If you are calorie watching, as many of us are these warm summer days, forget the butter and just serve new potatoes plain. They will still be delicious and you will not endanger your figure because potatoes in themselves are not fattening.

Perhaps you are tired of plain boiled potatoes. Then do as the French do. Melt 2 tablespoons butter and 3 tablespoons shortening in a large frying pan. Then add 24 small potatoes, one layer deep and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and a few grains pepper. Cook over medium-low heat, turning often, until potatoes are tender and golden brown on all sides, about 35 minutes. This gives six servings and what servings! These are called "Chateau" potatoes and when you serve them and hear the compliments you will feel like a queen in her castle or "chateau"!

Shopping Mall In Ottawa

by Dorothy Barker

My boss is a thoroughly masculine person with a truly feminine kind of intuition. He always seems to know when my two itchy feet have trod the home boards long enough. Then the telephone rings and a long distance operator waves her magic wand and a familar voice says, "How would you like to travel up to Ottawa? Understand that new mall is creating considerable comment."

The capital, as it should, has shown leadership in giving this venture a three months' try. Tourism is important, not only to Canada's National railway, but to merchants and trades people as well, right across the Dominiom. New ideas are essential if we would attract tourists from outside our borders and keep our own tourist dollars at home.

When my train arrived it was a relief not to feel like a toad under a harrow while crossing the street in the trafficless area. I felt like a small child who had suddenly been given permission to play in the middle of the road. Without turning a hair, I found I could wander from the little book shop that has garnered more dollars for paper backs from my literature budget than any other shop in the cities I have visited since I became a vagabond, across the street to gaze covetously at a shop window crammed with feminine apparel for summer wear. Sparks Street, between Elgin and Banks Streets, for three months will be a pedestrian shopper's paradise.

With the hope that this mall will prove the competitive answer to shopping plazas and give downtown merchants an even break for the buyer's dollar, Ottawa has spent $30,000 on an experiment.

And what a delightful experiment! Colour, atmosphere and customer comfort were paramount considerations in the planning of this undertaking. Flowers bloom in profusion and small trees grow in huge concrete tubs right in the heart of the city. Bright yellow benches lure weary potential purchasers to rest a bit between visits to shops in the area.

Perhaps it is because Ottawa, our seat of government, has a cosmopolitan atmosphere, it made the sidewalk cafes seem intrinsically a part of the picture. The sound of French, typical of the capital's conversational pattern, gave the out-of-doors cafe idea an added allure. For a continent-bound traveller such as myself, my morning on Ottawa's mall produced a feeling of having been transported in seconds to Paris.

Luring the tourist dollar has become big business since the cuimination of the last war. It is a terribly important faucet of our national economy. It seems to me that the promoters had their tongues in their cheeks when they endorsed the expenditure for this first Canadian shopping mall. With this trusty sling shot they figured they could kill two birds with one stone. Garner extra dollars for bemoaning merchants faced with the hazard of suburban shopping plazas and, at the same time, attract more and more travellers to their city.

Will it work? I hope so. I was sold on the idea, though I should think it would take a Solomon to decide where such a mall should be blocked off. After all, it really only benefits the merchants within the closed-off-area. Or so I thought, until I saw literally droves of pedestrians making their way farther afield.

I took the trouble to talk to native Ottawans. What did they think of the idea? Without exception they all made the same remark. "Sure dresses up the old burg". The women were all in favour, while the men smiled tolerantly and said, "Makes the coffe break a bit more romantic."

Calgary and Victoria, it is said, have their eyes on the project. Ottawa may be acting as a guinea pig, but hats off to those persons who had enough imagination to believe that Toledo's shopping mall could be repeated this side of the international border.

Ways to Prevent Waste of Poultry Feed

Feeding is the most expensive item of egg and poultry production and yet it is perhaps in this part of poultry management that the least economy is practised.

Mr. Roger Paiement of the Quebec Department of Agriculture describes the principal methods of preventing waste of feed. In the first place, the feed hoppers should not be filled to more than one third of their capacity and care should be taken, when they are being refilled, not to pour the mash on the floor. The hoppers should be provided with a generous inside lip to prevent the birds from spilling the feed out onto the floor. It is recommended that the hoppers be allowed to become empty towards the middle of the afternoon so that the dregs and dirt can be emptied out of them. Effective measures should be taken to destroy vermin in the feed storage. Enough feed hoppers should be provided to permit the birds to feed without crowding or waste.

Feed can also be saved if the recommendations of a good programme of feeding and diet are observed and if unprofitable birds are quickly removed from the flock by timely culling. Poultrymen will find that it will pay them to follow the foregoing recommendations: feed is too expensive to be thrown away for nothing.

The Challenge of Age

Women have nothing to fear from old age—if they keep alive to the very last moment. This is the opinion of a noted psychiatrist, Dr. Ruth Franks, one of a panel of authorities whose answers to women's fear of aging appear in an article in Chatelaine magazine.

On the panel—brought together by Chatelaine editors Doris Anderson and Jessie London—were Dr. Mary Albertson and Dr. Jean Davy, both medical specialists; Dr. Franks; Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, research engineer, still active in her profession at eighty-two; Mrs. Jean Good, sociologist, and Mrs. Helen Brown, retired after twenty-seven years in the beauty salon business.

Ways in which Chatelaine's panel speakers suggested women can keep alive, in every sense of the word, included sensible health rules, good grooming, an interest in other people, a zest for learning new things, a satisfying occupation and independent attitudes.

And, said the panel's beauty authority, an older woman who is well-groomed can make most of today's younger women look like frumps.

If your kitchen cupboards are of natural or stained wood, give them a coat of marine varnish. Since it is made to protect boat bottoms, it will do the same for your cupboards.

Reach Agreement Re Roads In Prudential Area

At the town council meeting the other night, a formal request was made to the council by the president of the Prudential Home Owners Association that all present and future building permits designated for Prudential Construction be temporarily revoked until such time that the property for the proper entrance and exit to the project was turned over to the town and until such time as the roads be cut to now isolated residents of the development. Needless to say that after that request was put forth there was a hot time for awhile but finally Mr. Bedzow and the president of the P.H.O.A. and council reached an agreement, that the proper land be turned over and the designated roads be cut as soon as the sewer cuts were made, which will start immediately.

An agreement was made with the builders of Prudential to hold a meeting with members of the Executive of Prudential Home Owners Association within the next two weeks to discuss parks and playgrounds for our development. Mr. Labrecque, the president of the P.H.O.A. feels very confident that the development of this meeting will be very satisfactory to the people in our area.

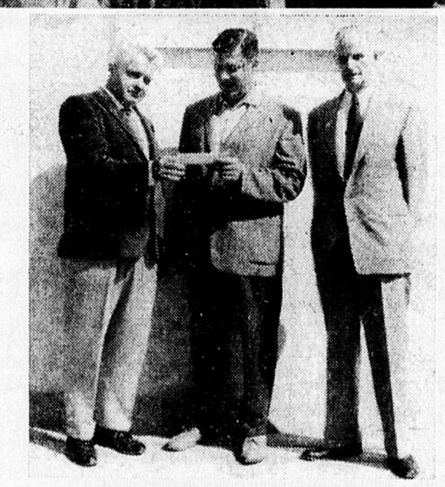
C.P.O.A. Acquires Deeds For Recreation Area



(by Mrs. Kay Cowper)

The Board of Trustees of C.P.O.A. Playground recently announced that they had signed the deed of sale for the recreation area with Mr. Joe Laberge. When the title search was made it was found that Colonia Development Corp. did not have a clear title to the complete area. Mr. Laberge interceded and was able to successfully acquire the land from all the interested parties and in turn sell it to the Association at his cost. Plans will now be made to remove some of the trees on the area but leaving enough to give some shade.

Emile Blanchard, age 32, of Ste. Martine, is in Barrie Memorial Hospital, Ormstown, following an accident at 2.25 p. m. on Friday. Blanchard evidently lost control of his 1953 Ford sedan on Route No. 4 on the curve near the Green Giant Cannery at Ste. Martine and his car rolled over into a vacant lot. He was taken to Ormstown by Barrette ambulance of Ste. Martine, suffering from injuries to his back and head as well as extreme nervous shock. The car is a total loss. Officers Bonhomme and De Francisco investigated.

A 1959 Meteor Tudor was damaged beyond repair at 10.30 p. m. on Friday when the driver, Laurent Matton, age 29, of 12 Cote St., Chateauguay Park, lost control of the vehicle at the Caughnawaga exit of the Mercier Bridge and the car rolled over into a field.

Special Meeting Called To Select Candidate For Catholic School Board

(By Robert Wormald)

Last Wednesday evening, June 29th, a meeting was held by the Colonia Home Owners Association. The members of the Chateauguay Home Owners Association were invited as well.

As this meeting was held on short notice the members were notified by radio and by telephone.

The reason for the gathering was to find somebody eligible to become a school commissioner in the forthcoming elections for the Catholic School Board. As everyone knows there are two vacant seats.

The meeting was chaired by Mr. R. J. Flanagan. The members were asked to elect two potential candidates for the Catholic School Board. As there has been a great deal of dissatisfaction with the recent decisions of the board it was decided it would be preferable to have somebody who would represent both associations and all new residents of Chateauguay. It is necessary to have a representative willing to fight against any discrimination on the part of a minority such as the English Catholics.

Mr. Allan Pilon and Mr. Robert Faust were elected to represent both associations. They were promised strong support from all present.

Mr. Phil Bonneau had considered running independently but agreed not to run to keep the votes from being divided.

From latest reports it appears that eight candidates are running for the two vacant seats. One is for re-election. Some are being supported by the commissioners of the present school board who would like to keep some control — others are running independently. Mr. Allan Pilon and Mr. Robert Faust are supported by the Colonia Home Owners Association and the Chateauguay Home Owners Association.

The elections will be held July 11th, 1960 at the Pie XII school. The poll will be open from 8.00 A.M. until 6.00 P.M. The only eligible voters are those in whose name the property is registered. It is important that your vote is not wasted so please hurry home on the night of July 11th as the poll closes at 6.00 P.M.

Chateauguay Aquatic Club Paddlers Chalk Another Win

(By W. B. MacDonald)

Dominion Day was an extra special day for the Chateauguay Aquatic Club Paddlers. They competed in the 41st Annual Regatta put on by the Lachine Racing Canoe Club. The day marked the successful result of two weeks of hard training put in by our Chateauguay paddlers. If you remember they were able to capture 21 points from their Regatta held last June 18th. But since then the crews have had time to improve and were able to place Third with 30 points. The boys were so happy with their showing and have decided to really work hard. The most enthusiastic were the Juveniles, they report to training the same evening of the Regatta. These boys will be paddling together for two and in some cases three years, this means a stronger club in the future and who knows the heights they may reach. We must not forget the tried and true paddles like Donny Duffy, who won the Junior Double Blade Singles and P. H. Breandal Trophy; Sandy Morrison and Graham MacGregor, who place third in the Junior Tandem and John Roch and Robin Walsh, who placed 5th in the same race; Jerry Kezar, who placed 2nd in the Juvenile Singles, and Paul Duffy, who placed 2nd in the Senior Double Blade Single's Race. The paddlers celebrated their victories with a party last Saturday night. There is a Dance planned for the Juveniles this coming Friday night. It is winded from reliable sources that the paddlers may have a chance to see the North American Canoe Racing Championships held on September 4th in Washington, D.C., U.S.A. on a camping trip to be held at that time. The best of luck to all paddlers, keep up the splendid work. Let's not forget Commodore Kevin Duffy, trainer-coach, Jerry Duffy and all the men who are donating their time and energy to keep the boys of our area occupied, your doing a wonderful job. The Chateauguay Aquatic Club will be competing at the Regatta held at the Grand Trunk Boating Club, on Sunday, July 10th. If you are not occupied Sunday, why not drive over to Verdun and support our crews.

Chateauguay Briefs

Monday's municipal election in the Town of Chateauguay is causing as much talk and speculation as the June 22 Provincial Election. Mayor Soyez is seeking re-election as Mayor and the success of his campaign to retain his seat of honor depends on how much effort his three opponents put forth between now and voting time. Messrs. Edmund McElroy, Jos. Laberge and Ed. Duranceau are in the mayoralty race and each has also had considerable experience with the public and is well and favourably known. Mayor Soyez has had eight years' experience as Mayor and 16 years as an Alderman. Edmund McElroy and Jos. Laberge perhaps enjoy much of the English-speaking favor while Mr. Soyez can point to a large number of successful public works completed during his terms. May the best man win, and may every qualified resident cast his ballot on Monday.

-o-

Eight men are contesting for two vacant seats on the Catholic School Board of the Town of Chateauguay. Mr. Maurice Cassavant, Secretary-Treasurer since January of this year, informed the Chateauguay Gleaner, on Monday, that on July 11 qualified voters may cast their ballots in favor of two of the following: Phil Bonneau, R. E. Cureton, Edmund McElroy, Karl Baranowski, Maurice Crepin, Robert Faust, Marcel Fournier, Allan Pilon. This election is also causing much discussion, as much among the newer residents as among the old. Voting hours are from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Again, may everyone qualified cast his ballot.

-o-

Changes during the past few years in Chateauguay are hundredfold and they go deeper than the eye can see. Not only has the appearance of the area changed, but the heart of it as well. Contrary to some years ago, there is a very large English-speaking population now, and they are making themselves noticed by asking for English representation in municipal, school and public affairs. Fair representation is a good thing for all, regardless of who or what the minority represents.

-o-

Work on the bridge has been partially resumed and residents in the area are expecting the noises caused by the machinery to start in full swing shortly. Maybe this time the powers that be will see that work shuts down at a reasonable time and thereby allow all to get a fair amount of shut-eye.

Candidate For Catholic School Board

(By Robert Wormald)

Mr. Karl Baranowski of 94 Taylor St. in the Station advises that he has consented to be a candidate for election to the Catholic School Commission.

A resident of Chateauguay for six years, Mr. Baranowski is a well known citizen of our community. He has been active in civic affairs and among other duties has served on the junior hockey board.

Mr. Baranowski has been employed with Dominion Structural Steel for the past ten years and is now engaged as a steel inspector. The father of two school age children, Mr. Baranowski states that he is most familiar with the many problems facing parents and taxpayers of our rapidly growing communities. He believes however that the educational needs of our children in Chateauguay must receive the first consideration of all parents and accepts the nomination as a duty with the belief that as a bilingual citizen he can be of real assistance to the commission and the community.

Mr. Baranowski urges that all ratepayers consider his candidacy on voting day, Monday, July 11th, 1960.

The last long week-end till Labor Day rolls around. Friday and Saturday were ideal summer days but Sunday rather put a damper on things. Good day for relaxing and taking things easy.

All the children are looking forward to the Field Day this Saturday which takes place from noon till closing time on the grounds of West End Commercial Centre. The ladies of the development have been contacted and asked to bake their specialty as a contribution to the Home Bake Table. There will be a candy table too, so any extra donations for the table would be appreciated. Now, if Mr. Weatherman will only favor us with his sunny smile everyone will be happy.

Seems that some of the men on the sports committee have built up a baseball back stop for the boys in the development. Our thanks go out to Imperial Gardens for lending us the land., to West End Development for donating the lumber to build same and last but not least to the men who gave so generously of their time that our boys might have a place to play ball. The back stop is situated in a clearing at the end of West End Drive. Any boy between the ages of 8-14 interested in playing ball is asked to get in touch with Mr. R. Metcalfe at OX. 2-8147.

Parkview is putting on another dance this Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in Marcel Desgroseilliers Hall in Ste. Philomene. This hall is situated just a couple of miles past Parkview — just follow the sign and you can't get lost. Tickets are available at the door, $1.00 each with several door prizes going to the lucky ones. There will be an orchestra with drinks to be had, while refreshments will be served later in the evening.

The Beauchateau Shopping Centre situated just over the bridge seems to be showing signs of life. Who knows, maybe we shall have a Shopping Centre in Chateauguay by the fall.

The ladies of West End held an emergency meeting a week ago Monday to discuss further matters pertaining to their bingo on Wednesday, July 6th. It was also decided at this meeting that we would henceforth be known as the Ladies Auxiliary. Several ladies volunteered to help at the Bingo, also to phone residents in connection with refreshments for the Bingo on July 6th and for the Home Bake Sale on Saturday July 9th. It was decided to hold another meeting on Monday, July 7th to iron out any last minute details connected with the Bingo. As usual, the meeting was quite well attended and our thanks go out to Mrs. L. Golden of St. Denis St., who has so kindly given us the use of her basement for these meetings.

Social Hi-Lites

Miss Grace Mearns of Verdun has spent the past week at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thoburn, Imperial Gardens. While visiting in Chateauguay she also stayed overnight at the home of another aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. K. Smeall of St. Louis Square.

Miss Doreen Jones of 112 St. Louis St. had quite a surprise when a kitchen shower was given in her honour several weeks ago. Doreen received many lovely gifts and all her friends from Cote St. Paul and Chateauguay attended. The shower was given by Mrs. J. Owchar and Mrs. R. O'Reilly. After the gifts were opened a cold buffet lunch was served.

Mr. George Marshall of 148 St. Louis St., has two important events to celebrate this week. On the 6th another birthday rolls around while the 8th is Mr. and Mrs. G. Marshall's wedding anniversary. Best wishes to both of you.

Eddie Smeall of St. Louis Sq. spent the long holiday week-end with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kemp at their country home in Half Moon Lake, Brownsburg.

Another holiday weekend is over and a much nicer one, weather wise, as well. Many folks spent the holiday weekend visiting or just having a pleasant day at the beach.

About 15 men and boys helped out at the Playground, on Friday morning, and a few worked all afternoon as well. The Committee wishes to thank those who came out and helped. They managed to get the stones raked off the land as well as getting the shack painted. Also 2 large tiles installed as playground equipment.

It is hoped to have a couple of work nights, later on when those who did not get out will have a chance to help. As yet the rest of the equipment has not been received.

Congratulations to the Fire Department who sponsored a successful Street Dance Friday night on Lockhart St. Some 200 Teens really enjoyed themselves. The married couples, for the most part stood back and watched, but it was nice to see the teens have a good evenings fun right in the Development. There'll be another Street Dance this Friday night on Spring Crescent St. at Craik St.

Five men from Maplewood Presbyterian Church, including Rev. John Allan, attended a Sector Dinner on Wednesday night at Ormstown Presbyterian Church.

Congratulations to Donna Teel of Circle Road who graduated from Sir George Williams Business College, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Blenkhorn and family of Lang St. spent Saturday visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. Blenkhorn, Mr. Blenkhorn's parents, at Foster and camped overnite at Iron Hill on Saturday nite.

Don't forget the Coffee Party on July 13th., next Wednesday morning, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Kay Cowper, 425 Cardinal St. This is being sponsored by the "Women of the Church" and admission is 35¢ or an article for their Sale in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Houghton of Cardinal St., report an attempted break-in at their home while they were away for the weekend. Neighbours saw three teenage boys go to the Houghton's front door about Midnight Saturday night, then go around to the back of the house. They became suspicious and phoned the Police, and also phoned Houghtons. The boys had cut the screen in the back door and one bedroom screen, and it is believed that the phone ringing scared them away.

The Police arrived within five minutes but the boys were gone. Neighbours on the street saw the boys, however, and they would be recognized, should they be seen again.

The Houghtons wish to thank their neighbours for their thoughtfulness in calling the Police and the Police for coming so promptly.

Candidate For Mayor Town of Chateauguay

May I take this opportunity to express my best regards to the readers of the Chateauguay Gleaner and wish full success to the editors of this distinguished and constructive newspaper.

I wish at the same time to inform the serious electors of the town of Chateauguay that if I am definitely in the race for the mayoralty that will take place on July 11th, 1960.

It has been an honour to represent ward number six for the past two terms as alderman and I feel I am in a position to offer my experience in the town's government to the entire population of Chateauguay.

My platform is as follows:

To conduct the meetings with proper decor and dignity. I am open at any time to constructive criticism but I feel for the good of everyone concerned the town meetings should not offer the atmosphere of a circus as has been the occasion far too many times in the past.

Six elected aldermen have backed me.

I feel the only answer to good administration is a good understanding among the council.

The only way to spend taxpayer's money is with justice and integrity.

The town should have parks and playgrounds and other adequate improvements according to the means of the population.

Taxes should be kept at a rate that will not hurt anyone.

I am in favour of a town manager, also feel a committee should be formed that would have the full co-operation and approval of the council in order to straighten out the affairs of the town and encourage industry to our locality.

Industrial firms pay taxes to the neutral panel and this in turn benefits all.

I am in favour of adequate zoning and construction by-laws.

I am forty-four years old and live in the home where I was born.

My father was French and my mother Irish giving me a perfect understanding of both languages and cultures.

I was educated in the Valleyfield Seminary.

I am married and the father of six children.

In response to an article in last week's Gleaner, I might say despite my deep belief in my religion, I have too much respect for the parish priest and the Corpus Christi to put their worth on my electoral platform.

At the last procession I had no Repository on my lawn but all my life I have concentrated my efforts to have a repository in my heart where I carry our Lord together with all the beloved citizens of my town.

Thank you and God bless you.
JOE LABERGE.

CHAPTER XI
BEAUHARNOIS

Until the canal was opened, Beauharnois was the only village on the river-bank between Caughnawaga and St. Regis. St. Timothy consisted of a mill and a few houses; Valleyfield had no existence. The traffic was all on the north bank, along which there was a continuous settlement, with several villages, larger and more prosperous then than they are now. The building of the canal and the growth of Valleyfield I will treat of further on. Beauharnois as a village may be said to date from 1820, when the bishop formed that portion of the seigniory that lies between the St. Lawrence and the Chateaugay into a mission, named St. Clement, and a church was begun. How meagerly populated the country was is evidenced by the register, for in the wide extent of it comprised in the mission there were only in

1821 —	148	24	112

The cause of the large number of deaths in 1821 I have been unable to ascertain; probably it was due to smallpox, which periodically visited the parishes. The agent for the seigniory, Milne, made no effort to induce people to settle, and it does not appear that any lots were conceded in his time. Those who desired were allowed to take up lots and paid rent, but received no deeds. This was partly due to a legal doubt as to who had authority to act for the seigniory. One of the heirs, George, sailed in a ship for South America, which was never heard of, and a certain number of years had to pass before his estate could be administered. The other reason was the desire of the 3rd son, Edward, to have the tenure of the seignory changed to free and common soccage, so that he could give purchasers absolute possession. The Imperial government in 1822 had passed an act giving power to seigniors to so commute the tenure, and Mr. Ellice tried twice, in 1823 and 1826, to take advantage of the new law, but was baffled by the officials at Quebec, the whole sentiment in that city being against the destruction of the seigniorial system, and who raised all manner of technical objections. The grist-mill having fallen into a state of disrepair, Milne, in 1820, employed two immigrants, newly arrived from Scotland, to refit it, and those two men, Peter Macarthur and William Donaldson, became prominent in the district. They had intended going to Ontario and it illustrates the then travelling facilities, to state that Macarthur, as the quickest mode at the season when the roads were deep with mud, walked from Montreal to Kingston. While resting at Cornwall, he called to his companions to look out of the tavern window and see the mail, an ox-team yoked with beech-withe traces to a cart. Disappointed with the stony character of the country on the route, he returned to Montreal, where his two younger brothers, Daniel and Alexander, had hired out as shearers until he came back with his report. His employment by Milne decided their destination, they taking up farms on the Chateaugay. The fall (1820) was an exceedingly dry one, and on Macarthur's hurrying to Milne's house to inform him the mill was in danger of catching fire from the adjoining bush, he was told it would be no great loss, as it was about worn out and was insured. The machinery of the mill was very primitive, the power being derived from a wheel set in a chamber that had been hollowed out of the rock at the rapids and driven by the force of the current. After renewing the machinery, Macarthur built several mills for the seignior, putting up no fewer than four in the following eight years — Ste. Martine, Howick, St. Timothy and Norton Creek. The renewal of the Beauharnois mill was Milne's last official act. He had been detected by Richardson, Forsythe & Co. in misappropriating funds, and retired to Ste. Martine, where he led a disreputable and secluded life, losing the esteem even of his poorest neighbors, and on his death there was buried in Georgetown churchyard, where he fills an unmarked grave.

In June, 1821, the new agent, Lawrence George Brown, arrived. He was a member of a respectable Aberdeenshire family and was of good education. When he visited Beauharnois, he found only two houses besides the manor-house and a church in course of construction, where the present stone-edifice rears its front. Arrangements were made* with Richardson, Forsythe & Co. to give up their agency, so that the entire management was vested in Brown. To assist him,† Robert H. Norval ,who belonged to Fifeshire, arrived during the fall, and he was to keep the books, a set of which were opened with the year 1822. Brown's instructions were to develop the resources of the seigniory and render it a source of profit. The first step in the new policy was to induce immigrants to settle, and to do this the land had to be surveyed. Charles Archambault was employed to conduct the new survey. He began on the Chateaugay, running anew the old lines and changed the numbers of the lots. Although deeds were refused, immigrants were readily granted permission to take up lots, a privilege of which a number freely availed themselves. Despairing of getting the tenure changed, Mr. Ellice, in 1826, ordered Brown to grant deeds of concession, and by the end of 1827, 20,000 acres had been conceded to 228 different persons. The terms differed slightly from those of the former deeds in that there was no sliding-scale as to rent during the first years. The settler paid $10 for a location-ticket, sat rent free for three years, and after that paid $10 a year rent. The inability of Mr. Ellice to sell the land was against its being taken up, for the immigrants had been mainly induced to cross the ocean in the hope of becoming owners of places of their own, and recoiled from the proposal to become tenants even on easy terms and with security of tenure. If the immigrants were shy about becoming censitaires, the habitants had no hestitation, and after some experience Brown preferred to deal with them, and he filled whole concessions with French which Ellice desired should be peopled with his own countrymen, for he looked forward to the time when one of his sons should go and live upon the seigniory.

*It is probable that Mr. Ellice made the transfer in person. He visited the province twice before his well-known visit in 1832.

†Brown had need of a secretary, for he wrote so vile a hand that he could not read his own manuscript when he forgot its subject.

The new policy, combined with the equally important innovation of steam navigation, caused Beauharnois to grow into a village. The first steamboat was the Perseverance, which plied between Lachine and Cascades, calling at Beauharnois or any other wayport when required. When she started I have been unable to ascertain, but she was certainly on the route in 1820, her chief business the conveyance of military stores for the fort at the Coteau and the passenger traffic with Ontario. With the exception of the road to Ste. Martine and another that had been cut out from the Basin to St. Timothy, there were no roads. In 1825 there were not over a score of houses, to which there were large additions made in that year. John Ross and William Becket came from Montreal and began business, and for the next score of years the only store worth speaking of was Ross's. A commodious manor-house was built on the bank of the St. Louis where it enters the lake, and an office alongside of it. The lot attached was reserved and in 1827 was used as a model-farm. Brown represented that the habitants succeeded poorly because of their ignorance of farming and contended that all they needed was to be shown how to do better. Operations began on an extravagant scale and conducted in a still more wastful manner, so that during the 14 years it was maintained it cost the seignior over $20,000. That it did some good is unquestionable, for there was a yearly distribution of young stock and seed-grain among the farmers. When Edward Ellice, the younger, visited Beauharnois in 1838 he pointed out that the farm could be of no advantage to the habitants; that the example it set was one to be shunned rather than imitated. In February, 1828, an agricultural society was organized, the inducement being a government grant of $200. Brown was appointed president, but the moving-spirit was the secretary, Mr. Norval, who was an enthusiast in agricultural improvements, and who really carried on the work of the society for the next 20 years. Two shows were held, the first at Huntingdon, where $72 in prizes were awarded, and the second at the stone-tavern, Ste. Martine, with $123 in prizes. On 12th October, 1829, a plowing-match took place on the farm of Jacques Forand, west of Ste. Martine, when 7 Old Countrymen and 5 French Canadians entered. As the country became more thickly settled and the funds increased, the number of places where the shows were held were added to. About 1829 a weekly mail was secured, coming from Montreal by way of the Basin. Henry Bogue was postmaster. In that year St. Clement ceased to be a mission and became a parish.

Sea Scouts Attend Rendezvous

28 Sea Scouts headed by Skipper William Yarnell and assistants Frank Castle and Terry Reilly left for the Quebec Sea Scouts Rendezvous at Camp Anderson, Choisy, Que., on Thursday evening. The Theme of the Rendez-vous was Fun and Frolic, but time was allowed for Troop Scouters to carry out their own program, i.e., instruction and passing tests. Instructors and examiners were available. The program for the long week-end included Scouters meetings, swimming, raft building, games, a water program, rowing, a whale hunt, sailing, a Church Parade, and best of all a camp fire. The boys were reminded that a good Scout always leaves his campsite better than he found it and that good camping is a good habit, clean camping is a must.

Transportation by private cars was arranged by Group Committee members, Mr. Frank Elkin and Mr. Jim Alcock.

Scouting News

All Cub Packs and Land Scouts in Chateauguay have suspended operations until September. The Sea Scouts continue on through the summer as usual. Mr. R. Cameron McCutcheon, Vice-President of the Provincial Council, honored in the Boy Scouts Association's Dominion Day awards who received the Silver Acorn is a brother of Des McCutcheon of the Heights.

Junior Chamber of Commerce News

Mr. Fernand Beaudry, Secretary of the Chateauguay Junior Chamber of Commerce advises that members attended the Provincial summer meeting held at Hull, Que., recently. One of the topics under discussion at the meeting by the International President was a proposed affiliation of Ontario and Quebec Chambers of Commerce. It was thought that bilingual Chambers would be an asset.

Red Cross "Chatistics"

Although final figures are not available, the Recent Red Cross Campaign conducted in Chateauguay shows that approximately 50 cents per home was realized. With 2766 homes in our area the upcoming Blood Donor Clinic slated for July 22nd at Maple School should be well attended. Final arrangements as to hour, etc., will be available shortly from Mr. Clifford King.

Kinsmen Mail Box Report

At the present time the Mail Box Count conducted by Clifford King shows a 20-25 percent participation. Come on folks make arrangements through your Kinsmen Club to purchase that necessary mail box or mail slot so that we may enjoy mail delivery. The Post Office Department in Ottawa definitely states that inauguration of Letter Carrier Delivery Service will not be effected unless at least 80% of the householders have provided the proper facilities and when service is actually started delivery will not be made to a point of call which has not met with these requirements.

Lake St. Louis Water Pollution

Now that the dust has settled on the political battlefield we should take a hard look at the water pollution situation.

It is unfortunate that this pollution scourge has been used as a plank in both of the party platforms. Such a backward step of civilization should never have happened in the first place, let alone be used to further the political ambitions of some persons who in campaign speeches only showed how ill-informed they are on this subject.

Haste Makes Waste

The sooner our Provincial Government takes pollution out of the realm of politics and replaces it in the hands of reliable and informed personnel, with an order to produce immediate results, the sooner we will be rid of this appalling condition. Haste makes waste, but by now enough time and money has been spent on preliminary study to warrant some action.

Similar pollution problems have been solved elsewhere. There is no reason why proven methods of sewage treatment can not be effectively used here.

A Stitch In Time

Time is now an important factor, for the condition of the waters surrounding the Island of Montreal is such that an epidemic of typhoid or other fatal disease can not be considered as improbable. The concentration of polio in areas of the North Shore of Lake St. Louis must be looked at with suspicion, even though the health authorities deny (or do they) any tie-in of polio and pollution.

An Amazing Mess

Pollution is an amazing mess. A combination of industrial wastes and municipal sewage causes a chemical nightmare that is not easy for the layman to understand. One pepeles the water so that the other is not digested and the result is an open sewer—dangerous and destructive.

To my way of thinking the best yard-tick to assess pollution is this. If it's not fit to drink—it's polluted. There is no such thing as partly polluted water. Either it's clear and clean or it's not acceptable.

It's All or Nothing

At this stage the public should continue to take a keen interest in anti-pollution so as to assure that a good and thorough job is done. Treating the sewage of St. Annes to Lachine will rid us of 90% of Lake St. Louis pollution. The remaining pollution will then be 10% to much. The Chateauguay River should be relatively easy to clean up as well as the sewer outlets from Melocheville and the property owners who connect their washrooms direct to the lake. While the aiming is good, lets all aim for a 100% pollution clean-up.

W. G. (Bill) McHugh.
Chairman of the Anti-Pollution Committee.

Water pressure was again very bad last week for over two hours last Monday night not even a drop could be had. Anyone who might need water in a hurry for any emergency would be just out of luck. We hope something will be done to relieve the situation and fast.

The marriage of Nini Leblanc, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Leblanc of Park Ave., to Roland Boutin, second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Boutin, also of Park Ave., will take place on Saturday, July 9th, at 9 A.M. at the church in St. Philomene. Mrs. Boutin's brother, Reverend Father James Doyer from Assomption College, Worcester, Mass., U.S.A., will conduct the ceremony. Nini will be wearing white and will have three flower girls; one will be Nini's cousin, Diane Levesque, wearing pale blue, and Roland's two young sisters will be the other two. Diane Boutin will wear pale blue and Louise will be in pale yellow. About 150 or more guests are expected. Roland's sister Theresa and her fiance, Mr. John Mikolor, are coming from Stratford, Conn. Also Rolland's brother Marcel will be coming from the States to attend. The reception will be held in St. Philomene. May we extend our best wishes for a long and happy married life to the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem Levesque were happy to have a number of visitors over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. John Levesque, Clem's cousin, spent an enjoyable evening with them, also Gaby's cousin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Harwood from Malone, New York paid them a visit. Mrs Gaby Levesque's sister-in-law, Mrs. Laporte, and four children, spent all day Friday, July 1st, with them. The sound of the children's happy voices could be heard all day long.

Mrs. Allan Rowat of Veteville braved those strong winds Sunday afternoon by walking with her two children to the Park to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Evan Watson.

Mrs. Levesque's nephew, 11 yr. old Denis Bugold is visiting them for a week.

Keith Lord participated in the Regatta with other members of the Aquatic Club of Chateauguay, held at the Lachine Racing and Canoe Club, Friday, July 1st.

The new location for Déziel's store which moved downstairs is very impressive with so much more room and is nice and bright and cheerful.

Anyone having any news that they would like printed please help Mrs. Guthrie by phoning the information at OX. 2-6777.

I wish to thank all the kind people who have helped me to complete this column in the past two weeks while Mrs. Guthrie was on holiday. Also I wish to apologize to the one person I offended by mentioning their name in the column. Everyone else I wish to thank for their kind comments which were very heartening, indeed.

The extended date for dog and bicycle licences expired on Friday, July 1st. Anyone caught without their licences risk a $40.00 fine, which is not a very pleasant thought.

We are inclined to think Keith Lord our route boy as being cruel to his dog when he takes the dog on the leash while delivering his papers on his bike. Actually, such is not the case; the dog really enjoys going with him and knows when she see's him with his papers and gets all excited and dances all around him when he fails to take her along which happens when it's too hot she sits and cries after him. Keith never goes too fast for Penny to keep up and she looks forward to this outing.

Volunteer Firemen Do Their Part

The successful street dance on Lockhart St. in Colonia Friday evening was the effort of the Volunteer Fire Department, some of whom are pictured above: left to right, Captain G. Jones, B. Wallace, Lieut. J. Howarth, Dep. Chief G. McKee, T. Sonne. Music was arranged and supplied by Messrs. R. Richard and G. Monest. In the background may be seen the fire truck and the booster pump which are housed in Colonia and manned by volunteers.

Chateauguay Police have been advised to be on the look-out for bogus ten-dollar bills starting with the serial numbers F over D 8447863. The fake currency is reported to be excellent in reproduction but a trifle light in color.

Two Aldermen for the Town of Chateauguay, Messrs. J. Mantambault of 370 Salaberry Blvd. and Ernest Dupont, 30 Dupont St., were re-elected to their positions by acclamation last week. One new Alderman, Roger Blain, 370 Dunver Road, was also elected by acclamation.

Mr. Irven Watt, the master mind of the Public Works Dept., is enjoying a holiday in the vicinity of Quebec City. Mr. A. G. Doucet, Secretary - Treasurer, who shares the same office in the crowded city hall, says he wishes his friend was back... elections are causing a greater than usual amount of work.

The installation of sewers and water mains on Boivin St. is practically completed. This work has progressed in jig time and appears to be to the satisfaction of all.

Little has been said about the bridge the Grey Nuns are building from their island to the mainland at the north end of Chateauguay Station; however, work is going along well and the new bridge will doubtless be a great improvement over the ferry they have used for so long a time.

Residents say there seems to be more boats of every kind anchored in the Chateauguay this year. It is to be hoped that all operators of these craft will observe the safety laws for their own benefit as well as others.

A few weeks ago young and old were fishing at every opportunity; at present, at least many of the young have taken to picking wild strawberries and some of the berries they display seem to be as large as many of the tame variety. A few early birds have also had stomach aches because of eating those little green apples, but even they agree they were rushing the season. Residents of the Gardens, Terrace, etc. will no doubt be happy when the apples are ripe and there will doubtless be plenty for all as many of the houses are located on former apple orchards and most homes boast at least one or two trees.

went in, in groups. We saw milk being put into bottles. We went into the cooler. It was so cold in there we could see our breath.

Mr. McArthur, the man who owns the dairy, gave us chocolate milk and then he took us to the barn. We saw a bull that weighed about a ton. Boy! was he ever big.

I saw other things but I couldn't write them all down.

We ate our lunch on the lawn under trees. It was like a big picnic. After we ate lunch and played games it was time to leave to come back to school. We all thanked Mr. McArthur for the lively time and we have all learned so much about dairy work.

"Our Trip To The Dairy" by Ann L'Ecuyer.

Yesterday Miss Stevenson and Miss Harkness took the children of Grade 2 to visit the Cherry Bank Dairy at Howick.

We went on the school bus. Some children go on the bus every day, but for some of us this was the first time.

We took our lunch and we were given chocolate milk at the dairy. We saw all the barns, cows and calves. Everything is so very clean. We were shown how they washed the bottles and how milk is put into the bottles.

We all had a nice trip.

Teatime Topics

The most beautiful cake in the world can be a flop it it falls apart when served.

Here are a few hints to assist in making neat slices of cake and pie.

The batter type of loaf and layer cake should be cut with a sharp, straight-edged, thin-bladed knife. For perfect slices, keep the blade free from frosting and cake crumbs by dipping it in warm water before each cut is made.

Foam cakes such as angel and chiffon cakes should be cut with a serrated blade using a slow sawing motion. If a serrated knife is not available two forks can be successfully substituted. Separate the pieces by lightly pulling the forks away from each other as the cake is broken.

Fruit cake will slice easily when chilled. Use a sharp, straightedged, thin-bladed knife and a light touch. The knife should be dipped into hot water before each cut. Slice with a slow sawing motion.

A clean heavy thread is the tool used to slice jelly or cake roll. Place a 15-inch piece of thread under the cake roll where you want it sliced. Bring the ends of the thread up on each side of the roll and cross them over the top. Pull the ends of the thread quickly down to cut completely through the cake roll.

Meringue-topped pies can be sliced easily if the blade of the pie knife is buttered before using.

Cutting pie into equal slices for a family of five is easy if you follow this pointer from the bakery Foundation of Canada. First cut a "Y" the width of one serving, then make two more cuts — one on each side — dividing each of the two larger pieces. The result is five similar slices of pie.

Calculating Coffee

Italian statisticians in Rome recently figured out that the average man in Italy works 216 minutes to earn a pound of coffee. Workers in the United States, in comparison, work 16 minutes for the same pound of coffee, Canadian labor 34 minutes.

Statistics on other countries were: Swedes, 60 minutes; Norwegians, 72 minutes; English, 81 minutes; Dutch, 93 minutes; Belgians, 97 minutes, Swiss, 100 minutes; French, 110 minutes; and West Germans, 180 minutes.

Mothers at Home

Mrs. Mel Walters of London, first vice-president of the Ontario council of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, says that women today are faced with the great challenge of returning the mother to her rightful place, the home.

Speaking to delegates at the Hamilton diocese, Mrs. Walters said the problem could be overcome by securing special legislation which would ensure substantial wages to the husband so that he can support his family without the need of the wife working outside the home.

The department of labor listed 43.5 per cent married women among women workers in all industries during 1958.

Chateauguay Gleaner

Editorial Notes

In the past week's issue of The Chateauguay Gleaner it was reported that the number of local accidents was on the decline; however, this week conditions seem back to normal and accidents are occurring here, there and everywhere. The reason may well be that traffic was excessively heavy because of the holiday week-end. Or, it may be that one local resident was a lot closer to being correct than he was given credit for when he said that fewer accidents occurred during the week of June 22nd (Provincial Election) because the people had more to do than race around bumping into each other and trying to cheat death. Be that as it may, one thing is certain: more and more accidents are occurring on Mercier Bridge. One friend of the Chateauguay Gleaner who wishes to remain anonymous wrote the following, in part:

"On Saturday (July 2) between 7.00 a.m. and 1.30 p.m. I went to the entry of the Mercier Bridge, on the LaSalle Hill, to take surveillance of the traffic circulation, which was very dense. Cars, bumper to bumper, formed a line from the Mercier Bridge to Upper Lachine Road, Metropolitan Blvd.; this was a triple line. Many cars were overheated and the radiators were boiling; the stench of rubber was everywhere.

"Five Provincial Police from the Mercier Bridge detachment arrived on the scene to help activate the circulation. Some drivers, evidently with frayed nerves, jeered at the officers and hurled abusive language at them. The officers were doing their utmost to restore normal circulation. Some drivers went as far as to say they would see that the officers would be dismissed from the Provincial Police Force. One lady, driving an expensive 1960 Oldsmobile, went as far as to tell one officer that he could be assured he would lose his uniform within a few days.

"Now, it is highly probable that the drivers who made the threats and used abusive language, did not stop to realize that the Victoria Bridge was closed at this time; also, that holiday week-end travel was abnormally high. If they had considered this, they might have behaved like ladies and gentlemen (thank goodness the latter were in the majority). It might be apropos to suggest that these people who acted rudely are, in all probability, the first to call for help from the Provincials when their cars are in trouble on the road or when they have any kind of trouble.

"Circulation on the Mercier Bridge is not good even under ideal conditions at the present time. Many in Chateauguay have the firm belief that during the week traffic onto the Mercier from Routes 3 and 4 is much heavier than from 9-C and the "Stop" sign should be on the latter highway; also, it would seem that the traffic on the right (coming from Chateauguay direction) should have the right-of-way over traffic on the left.

"In conclusion, let us be a little more considerate of our police officers and they, in turn, will be just to us. A suggestion that might help the officers as well as ourselves is that perhaps the Provincial Police could check the number of cars entering the bridge from both highways; figures should prove where the "Stop" should be. One recent evening cars were backed up as far as the Gai Motel waiting to cross the Mercier".

Cubans Have Seized British And American Owned Oil Refineries In Cuba

An oil shortage is threatened in Cuba following the Castro regime's seizure of the last two foreign oil refineries in Cuba. These were taken over by the Cuban government for refusing to process state-owned crude oil that Castro had obtained in a sugar-for-oil deal with Russia.

The Cubans last Friday seized the American-owned Esso standard and and Dutch-British Shell refineries, two days after seizing the American-owned Texaco properties. These moves ended virtually all normal imports of western oil.

Canadian Shell expressed regret that management of its Royal Dutch Shell associate in Cuba had passed out of its hands. "This means that effective control of the company's operation now has passed into the hands of the Cuban authorities," said a statement by the Canadian company at Toronto.

Crisis Looming

The Castro government was reported wooing shipping circles in the United States and Europe in a bid for tankers to avert what could be a disastrous oil famine for Cuba. Fidel Castro told a TV audience last June 24 that Cuba had a 66-day supply of gasoline and a 34-day ration of fuel oil.

An oil shortage could be disastrous because Cuba's power is supplied almost entirely by oil-burning electric plants.

Ernesto Guevara, chief of Cuba's National Bank, insisted that Russia had not only the petroleum but indicated the Russians could ship it in an emergency.

He also referred to the take-over of refineries as "intervention," and not expropriation. He said the government was merely operating the refineries, but warned that if the foreign companies continued to refuse to handle Russian crude, the plants valued at more than $100,000,000 would be confiscated.

"Intervention" as interpreted by Castro's government can mean anything up to outright takeover. The American-owned Cuban Telephone Company has been "intervened" since January, 1959, with no sign it will ever revert to its owners. There is no record that any foreign property or business that had been "intervened" has been returned.

In London, a Foreign Office spokesman said Britain takes "a serious view" of the action in Cuba, and is "actively" considering steps to counteract it, but did not say what steps are being considered.

Khrushchev's Stand

Nikita Khrushchev has washed his hands of President Eisenhower but stands ready to talk with the next United States president. The Soviet premier spelled out his position on future East-West talks while in Vienna, on a nine-day official visit to Austria.

Austria's socialist Foreign Minister Bruno Kreisky told reporters "Nikita told us he would not do any business with Eisenhower. He is willing and ready to go to another summit with a new U.S. president."

As for the Russian action in breaking off the 10-nation disarmament talks at Geneva last week, Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko was asked if the Soviet Union intended to break up the three-power Geneva negotiations on suspension of nuclear weapon tests. "The future attitude of the Soviet Union will depend on the progress of these talks," he said.

Diefenbaker Letter

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has called on Soviet Premier Khrushchev negotiations at Geneva.

The prime minister's letter to Khruschev, replying to one from Khrushchev June 27, was dated June 30. In it, Mr. Diefenbaker said he fails to understand why Russia broke off the disarmanent talks at Geneva when it was aware the West was about to introduce new proposals.

Such actions as the Soviet walkout "stand in odd contrast with your professed desire for genuine negotiations, and scarcely reflect a recognition of the urgency and importance of the work of the committee," he said.

A note from the United States to Moscow last Saturday formally accused Russia of torpedoing the Geneva disarmament conference.

Cyrus Eaton

A United States millionaire and a Russian scientist shook hands at Pugwash, N. S., last Friday and wrote a new chapter in the small community, birthplace of Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton and world-famous for the "thinkers' conference" initiated by him.

About 3,000 people of Scottish descent met at the salt-mining and lobster-fishing community for the annual gathering of the clans and fishermen's regatta, highlighted by the presentation of the Lenin peace prize to Mr. Eaton.

Russian physicist D. V. Skobeltzyn, who headed the Russian delegation to the Geneva atoms-for-peace conference in 1955, handed Mr. Eaton the shiny gold medal and a cheque for $25,000. The cheque will be given to "the Cause for Peace." The medal was pinned to Mr. Eaton's lapel by Mrs. Amasasp Aroutunian, wife of the Soviet ambassador to Canada.

The 77-year-old financier said Russia's decision to give the award to an "acknowledge apostle of capitalism from the United States" was evidence of Russia's desire for peace.

N. B. Goes Liberal

Louis Robichaud, 34, is the youngest premier in the country. He led New Brunswick's Liberal party to victory over Hugh Flemming's Progressive Conservatives in the June 27 provincial election, and succeeds Mr. Flemming who had been in power eight years.

The Liberals won 31 seats, Progressive Conservatives 21. In the last legislature, the Conservatives had 33 seats, Liberals 12, Independent one and there were six vacancies.

Of Many Things

HOSPITAL SERVICES PLAN

Here in Manitoba, where I reside, premiums for Manitoba Hospital Services Plan have been raised. We all knew it was coming, because the Minister of Health and Public Welfare had been hinting at it for some time. Furthermore, the cost of hospital services, wages, new forms of treatment, etc., had been going up and more and more beds were being added.

All this didn't make the increased premiums any easier to take. Everybody said "Ouch." On the other hand, instead of being sore at the Manitoba government for raising the premiums, most citizens gave them marks for doing it the honest way, rather than hiding the cost by dipping into the general fund or slapping a sales tax on us.

Furthermore, as a married man with five children, I still pay less for a six-month protection period than it would cost me if any member of my family spent two days in hospital; and, according to the papers, a single man pays less for the protection period than he would pay for one day in a Winnipeg hospital. If we are going to have such Plans, they have to be paid for, and the only honest procedure is to let us know the actual cost.

Saskatchewan is about to launch a prepaid, compulsory Medical Services Plan. They expect it to cost about $35. per family per year. If they haven't estimated the cost any more accurately than they estimated the cost of their Hospital plan, it will pretty soon be costing the people of Saskatchewan more like $200. per family per year. When their hospital plan began, they thought it would cost about $5. per family per year, or $5 millions a year. It was half as much as that again in the very first year and it soon shot up to $33 millions per year, but very few citizens know it. And, of course, the Federal Government came to the rescue eventually.

Whatever such Plans are launched in the future, I doubt very much if the government in Ottawa will again come to the rescue. I think the people in each province are going to have to pay for whatever Plans they want. I do not believe that the pre-paid, compulsory medical Plan, to be inaugurated in Saskatchewan, will spread across Canada. Instead, it may well prove so costly to that province that no other province will want to touch it!

Canada's Aluminum Production

Aluminum is used for so many purposes that annual output in the free world now stands at about four million tons. The Book of Knowledge estimates that the United States produces nearly one half of this and Canada about one quarter. More than 80 per cent of Canadian aluminum is exported.

Vast areas thinly peopled

In discussing the Canadian northland, the Book of Knowledge says that half of the population of Canada lives no further than 125 miles from the United States border, and only one-tenth as far away as 250 miles. Yet Canada stretches almost 3000 miles between its southern and northern extremities.

Electors of the
TOWN OF CHATEAUGUAY

This year again I am asking you for your support to continue the job started a few years ago. What has been done in Chateauguay for the past years required much hard work and self-denial for those who held public posts during that time. As every one knows I have been your Mayor for the last eight years, after serving on the town council for more than sixteen years as Alderman. I have seen the town grow from a small rural town to a full community that still continues to progress.

Electors of Chateauguay, I will continue to do my best possible as I always did in the past and to work for some of the most urgent requirements of this town such as:

1) Surface drainage, the method of which should be decided upon by competent authorities.
2) Elections to be held every three years for the mayor and all the aldermen, so as to eliminate a yearly expense and petty politics.
3) A more adequate police protection for all parts of Chateauguay.
4) No new subdivision of land is to be accepted by the town without provision for parks and playgrounds, and these provisions should be transferred to the town.
5) Garbage removal to take place twice a week during the summer months.
6) It is of the utmost importance to provide for a filtration plant in a near future. This too has great possibilities to sell water to neighbouring municipalities, to do so we must be in a position to supply good water to the residents of the town as well as to other municipalities. By not doing so they could arrange to get their own water plant, which would be a great loss of revenues and prestige for our town.

Many other things remain to be done, but everything in its time. Personally, I am for a progressive and honest administration and to give every taxpayer the full value of his tax dollar. In view of these facts I hope your support will be in my favour on July 11th and whatever the final verdict may be, I will bow to your decision.

The East German Ministry of State Security is an organization located in the Lichtenberg section of East Berlin. The Reader's Digest reports the main function of this organization is to undermine West Berlin and to destroy the morale of its inhabitants. Specifically entrusted with the attack on West Berlin is Section Five of the Ministry, an enormous apparatus which uses all conceivable means, including kidnapping and murder to harass West Berliners. Their main targets are the police, political parties, labor unions, public utilities, transport, school, and big industries.

Reader's Digest says Dr. Paul Dudley White, the noted heart consultant, is the most vocal and determined crusader for the revival of bicycling. Dr. White says pedaling a bicycle exercises every muscle in the body and is not exhausting. He states further that "if we could make a bicycle ride a routine part of our everyday life, it would be a vital step toward restoring our health and vigor."

Peas in the Pod

Just crack the pod with your thumb and there they are... tender, green peas all in a row! What a thrill it was, as a child, to be allowed to shell peas. It didn't happen very often, so it never became a chore. But chore or not, its worthwhile. Nothing can compare with the flavour of fresh peas from the pod. Buy them by the pound: 1 pound of peas in the pod will give 1 cup of shelled peas and will serve two persons; 2 to 2½ pounds will give 3 cups peas and be sufficient for 6 servings.

To cook fresh peas: place them in a saucepan, sprinkle with salt, then add boiling water (1 cup water for 3 cups of shelled peas). Cover tightly and boil for 5 to 7 minutes. Add butter and cook uncovered until peas are tender and liquid has eveaporated, about 3 to 5 minutes. Various seasonings blend well with fresh peas. Add marjoram, mint or rosemary to the cooking water. Add garlic, chopped onion and parsley, nutmeg or savoury with the butter.

Do you like sauces with vegetables? If so, here is one to add to your collection. It is especially nice with fresh peas.

Mustard — Lemon Sauce —

1½ cups medium cream sauce (substitute liquid from peas for half the milk in the sauce).
½ tablespoons prepared mustard.
1½ teaspoons lemon juice.

Blend mustard into cream sauce. Sprinkle lemon juice over peas. Add sauce.
