

Local woman tries to shoot boyfriend

A young Westmount housewife was arrested Sunday after she attempted to shoot her boyfriend in his Selby street home with her husband's 22 cal. rifle.

The 25-year-old woman, who lives in one of West-mount's largest new apartment complexes, is being held without bail in Westmount police cells pending a court hearing this week.

Police say the shooting came about after the woman and her young husband had had a domestic argument.

The women became very upset and left the apartment to live with her Notre Dame de Grace girlfriend.

After several days of living away from home, the woman returned on Sunday, to the apartment.

There she had another fight with her husband who had been entertaining a waitress at the club where he is employed.

She then went into her husband's room and took out his rifle. In the presence of her husband, she loaded the gun, placed it in the carrying case, and left the apartment, with her spouses best wishes for good hunting.

Not expecting his wife to get carried away with the idea of shooting anyone, he proceeded with the day's business.

Shortly afterwards, the woman turned up at her boyfriend's home on Selby street. She entered the house and went up to his room. In the room, the man was resting when she entered the door. He stayed there until he saw her take out the gun and cock it.

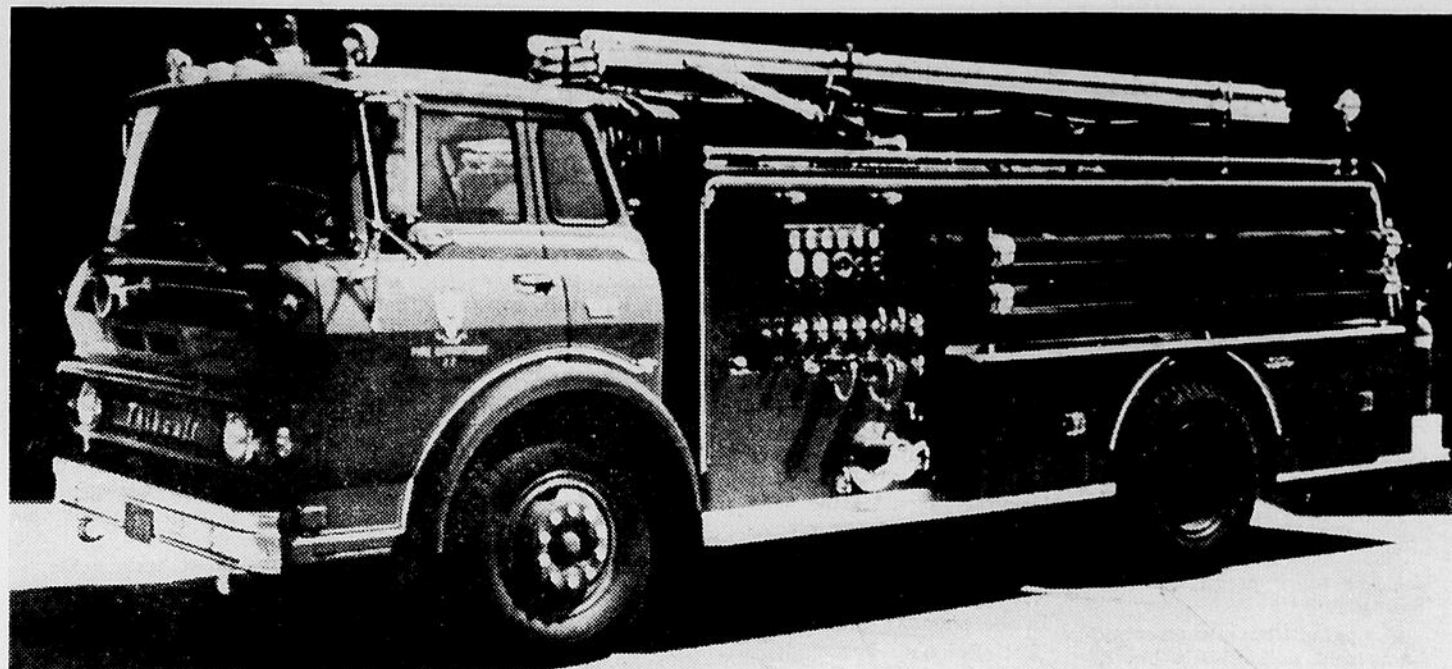

Then he jumped out of bed, and pushed the gun away just as she pulled the trigger. The shot went ripping through the wall.

Police were called and the woman was arrested and charged with discharging a firearm.

The next day, her very surprised husband appeared at the police station and attempted to post bail for her. He was refused.

Then he tried to have her moved to a mental hospital, but this too failed.

The woman will appear in court shortly.

NEW PUMPER: Westmount Fire Department proudly displayed their new pumper this week in front of the fire station on Stanton street. The new truck is fully automatic and according to fire officials it will serve as a better training ground for new firemen, seeing that it is easier to operate than the 1930 pumper that it replaced. The new truck carries 500 gallons of water and 1750 feet of hose.

Canada's 99th birthday to pass silently here—officially

After a very quiet St. Jean-Baptiste Day last week, both officially and unofficially, the City of Westmount can look forward to much the same on Dominion Day.

Officials at city hall have stated that there will be no ceremonies in our town whatsoever.

The usual places will be closed of course, the city hall, post office and the library. The police and fire departments will be on duty and there will be no garbage collection. All banks will be closed.

The mayor has issued no official statement concerning Dominion Day, July 1st, the 99th birthday of our nation.

In past years, just after the war, the city had a flag raising ceremony and a few speeches were given by city officials. But, it seems, as Westmount gets older, her interest in provincial and national festive holidays lags.

Therefore, Westmounters, who want to join in the celebrations of Canada's birthday, will, as on St. Jean-Baptiste Day, have to venture into Montreal.

Conditions were much the same in Westmount last year, except for the bombing of City Hall.

Mental escapee caught

Westmount Police arrested a man after he broke into a meat market in Westmount and soon discovered he was a escapee from a mental hospital in Brockville, Ont.

The man was noticed by officers in a patrol car running away from Lionel's Meat Market at 39 Somerville avenue. He was stopped and questioned.

The police then learned of the break in at Lionel's and the man was taken to the station on Stanton street.

After seeking information on the out-of-town man, police learned, via teletype, that he was wanted in Brockville after he had escaped from a mental hospital there.

Westmount detectives escorted the man to the Quebec-Ontario border, where they were met by guards from the hospital.

ELECTED: Arthur Diamond, 55 Sunnyside avenue, has been elected president of the District Grand Lodge No. 22 of B'nai B'rith. He was installed in his new post at the third annual District 22 convention held in New York at the Concord Hotel.

Arrows - arrows everywhere but ne'er an arrow for me

One must admit that the street lights located at the intersection of Sherbrooke and Victoria can be trying for someone who encounters them for the first time.

Here is an example: this week a red sports car came down

Victoria avenue, and stopped for a red light at Sherbrooke street. The driver was beside Maey's front door. When the light changed he noticed that all he got was an arrow indicating he could turn right, but what he wanted to do was go straight down Victoria. What to do? While he was making up his mind, a woman behind him, who wanted to turn right on Sherbrooke street began to honk her horn. He paid no attention and stayed put.

While all this was going on a police car happened upon the scene and the officer understood what was happening right away. He motioned for the driver of the sports car to make the right hand turn regardless of whether he wanted to make it or not.

This he did and he was closely followed by the police car. While the officer was examining his licence and giving him a warning, another car came east along Sherbrooke and in the same situation found himself half way around the block before he noticed the arrow showed only a straight direction was permitted at the time. The car stopped dead half way around the corner and the man stopped traffic and people walking in two directions all by this one move.

All this time, the police officer was still giving the little red sports car driver a warning and examining his licence.

Well, maybe that is the best way; one thing at a time.

A Westmounter in Great Britain

Boots for Mr. Berton

by Stephen Schofield

Guildford, Surrey, Eng.: In the current Church News is an item about a Canadian, Pierre Berton of Toronto, who has had published in England, his book, The Comfortable Pew, which is recommended here by the Bishop of Guildford.

The book, a most refreshing and admirable work, is absolutely true on most points. But on some points Mr. Berton needs a little illumination. I say this, not the Bishop.

One of these points is caste or status, about which Mr. Berton apparently does not understand elementary behaviour. And however strange it may sound, I begin with feet, or more precisely, with footwear.

For years I have worn army boots and policemen's boots, which I find extremely comfortable and readily available. When I last returned to Westmount, an old friend gently reproved me in the matter of presentable footwear.

"Steve," he said, "you can't go around here in those boots! You're not in the Surrey countryside now. This is Westmount. You go downtown and buy a nice pair of shoes and I'll pay for them."

To me a bargain is irresistible. To be frank I cannot refrain from peering at the wondrous assortment of articles in windows under the three golden balls. How well do I know East and West Craig street from St. Lawrence.

Once I acquired a brand new fireman's suit of heavy blue serge that fitted me perfectly and wore like iron for years. By the time the Salvation Army received the suit from me the seat of the trousers glistened like the rump of a horse in the noonday sun.

In Eaton's basement I found a dark blue tie with a light stripe which went very well with this suit, and thus attired, one afternoon, returning from Ottawa by train, I was sitting beside a delightful gentleman, Senator A. K. Huggessen of Westmount, who extolled the Liberals all the way to Montreal.

50¢ Bargain

And he asked me if I was an Old Etonian because, he said, he rather thought that the tie I was wearing . . . (I did not tell him where I had bought it — for 50¢).

Thus being an inveterate bargain-hunter, when my friend offered a pair of shoes regardless of price, that very morning I stepped off the elevator into the shoe department of one of Montreal's biggest stores, and went through every style they had, up to $48 a pair.

I was not concerned about price; I was concerned about comfort. All the shoes were at least somewhat pointed and uncomfortable.

"I'm sorry," I told the clerk, "my toes stretch straight and wriggle joyfully, and I walk a lot. Why cramp them?"

I tried three big shops in Montreal and one in Westmount, where I found a style at $35 a pair which were, at best, only fairly comfortable; and it did not seem right to allow my friend to pay so much for uncomfortable shoes, however well they may appear.

Again and again I asked the salesman: Why have you no shoes like this, my own, that allow the toes to be straight? Because, he said, no one would buy them.

Perfectly Natural

What does this mean? It means a whole industry is geared to a national desire for appearance at the cost of comfort.

Of a nation in such shoes every day, is it not perfectly natural for many of them to attend church for the same reason? Why should churches be exempt from this desire? No reason at all. Shoes — for show; church — for show, is exactly what one would expect.

Mr. Berton, and perhaps particularly, as he quotes, Mr. Vance Packard, author of The Status Seekers, both need a little enlightenment, if I may be permitted.

What you both say — and you take a long time to say it — is simply that people seek status. Well, what of it? What, if anything, is wrong with seeking status? And where does it get them? You do not get to the root of the matter.

Peanut Butter

You, Mr. Berton, emphasize caste and status seekers among the clergy, churches and congregations. Of course! This is so in every hospital and business in every town and city in the land.

Once inside any institution or company, its caste system and status seekers are as plain as peanut butter on bread. Church congregations and clergymen are comprised of the same human bipeds.

Is there any reason for them to be an exception? None at all. In this respect they are exactly the same. What applies to caste systems and status seekers within Church hierarchies and congregations of all kinds from top to bottom applies equally anywhere else.

But Why?

But why? Yes, why? What goads the status seekers? One incentive is the search for something that cannot be precisely explained; an old ache, a deep nagging desire, an indefinable something that continually eludes us all, no matter what friends we have what job or money is secured, what house or country we live in, or what status we reach.

Expecting to satisfy this longing some people troop through divorce courts and provinces and countries and jobs, always in vain. For it cannot be found in this world.

This longing is actually Hope, which is one of the theological virtues, meaning a continual anticipation of something that cannot be found in this world. A Christian attitude toward this is that it is probably not meant to be satisfied in this world, only in the next.

I do not believe (I wish I did) that for all Christians this desire will finally be satisfied. But its existence, since God creates no desire in vain, would seem to indicate that for some of us, presumably the most deserving, it will sooner or later be satisfied.

More Powerful

Another — probably the most powerful — incentive to the status seekers is pride. Not the kind of pride that prompts us to do a job well; not the desire to achieve. Rather the pride that induces us to compete with others — where the trouble begins — to show others what we achieve, to show the town how smart we are, what status we have.

It is on this raw nerve that Satan prods with a red hot poker, setting people and nations against each other. This pride has been the chief cause of misery in every family and nation since the world began.

The opposite of pride is humility, which I would say was shown by the Anglican Church in asking you, Mr. Berton, to write The Comfortable Pew. Anyway this pride is a goad to the status seekers.

Permanent Mainspring

Also urging the status seekers is a craving to be on the inside, to belong to what is considered a select circle; a delicious sense of intimacy. This is one of the permanent mainsprings of human behaviour within churches or anywhere else.

Thus goaded, the status seekers proceed and what do they really find? Some are snubbed and left out in the cold. Others succeed to get in and then what? Higher and higher, in and up indefinitely — to what? To nothing.

Cabbage

The status seekers are not gathered together on account of a common interest in religion, or in music or tennis or bridge, for that matter, or because they like each other.

They do not seek religion or music or friends. They seek status, a search that leads to nothing, to a shell, a vacuum, a cabbage bereft of its leaves, one for each status achieved.

A few friends chatting over a bottle of beer, or a group playing bridge or singing around a piano because they like bridge or music or each other's company — this is friendship. Aristotle ranks it

Quebec harbours a bit of England

This article by New York reporter Jay Walz is reprinted from the May 29th issue of the New York Times.

By JAY WALZ
Special to The New York Times

WESTMOUNT, Que. May 23 — Change is coming up to this stronghold of English speech, of the stately English home and of the Anglican faith in French Montreal.

Mayor Michael T. Tucker conceded it was slow change, and there was as much pride as concern in his words. "There is no place in Canada like Westmount."

The one-square-mile municipality of Westmount, an independent suburb of Montreal, remains English, despite its complete encirclement now by the French-oriented metropolis and the intrusion of high-rise gance" of Montreal's English community concentrated largely in Westmount.

Now Jean Lesage, the Liberal Premier of Quebec, in which province Montreal is situated, has called an election for June 5 to establish a "stronger Quebec than ever." He is stumping the province and calling for "humane government," meaning affluence for all — French as well as English — and for "egalitarianism," meaning an end to English overlordism.

Although a minority in Montreal, the English-speaking residents here dominate Westmount (population 34,000) 3 to 1. Most of Montreal's powerful and wealthy English speaking executives live here. One hears very little French, even in the City Hall, although all paperwork there must be done in Quebec Province's two official languages. In predominantly Roman Catholic Montreal, Westmount is referred to as that "haven of white Anglo-Saxon Protestants."

"Under these pressures what is happening to Westmount this spring?" Mayor Tucker was asked.

Spring, as the Mayor pointed out, has come late. But rains are now restoring the western slope of Mount Royal, the hill dominating the island of Montreal, to its lovely green color. Lawns are bursting with tulips and flowering shrubs, and the mailboxes appear peaceful.

On the election, Mayor Tucker, a businessman representing a British metals firm, declared "I am no politician at all. No Mayor of Westmount ever is." Westmount, though conservative, has had little trouble adjusting to Liberalism under Premier Lesage, he said.

"I would say most of Westmount now votes Liberal," added the Mayor. Mr. Lesage wishing to increase his already comfortable majority, is not attacking Westmount this season. Even the fiery Mr. Levesque is conducting a subdued campaign.

Westmount has resisted repeated efforts by fast-growing Montreal to annex it. But now Mayor Tucker and his nonsalaried councilmen, like municipal officials nearly everywhere face the problems of the rising apartments and a new section of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Mailboxes Booby Trapped

It was, indeed, Westmount's uniqueness that three years ago led terrorist to drop bombs in mailboxes there, causing casualties and spreading fear. The perpetrators were suspected of being extremists protesting English domination of French Canada.

Recently, Rene Levesque, Quebec's Minister of Welfare and a nationalist, attacked the "arro-

'Y' launches programme for youngsters 6-7

Beginning Monday, July 4th, the Westmount branch of the Y.M.C.A. will launch a programme for the younger set in Westmount.

The Happy Holiday Club, as it's called, was organized by the costs of city services and declining tax sources. All of Westmount's stately one-family houses are growing old and the taxes on them are insufficient to run a modern city. Westmount obviously can neither industrialize nor become a market place.

By revising the zoning laws it could permit the construction of a few tall, profitable modern apartment houses and office buildings. That is what Mayor Tucker has led this home-loving suburb to do.

"The three apartment complexes under way will increase our tax revenues 25 per cent," he said.

Westmount Village Being Built

A $25-million project designed by Mies van der Rohe, the architect, will provide a contrast to its Victorian-style surroundings. Named Westmount Square, it is to contain a 21-story office building, two luxury apartment towers with air-conditioning, swimming pools, a weather-controlled shopping mall and a 700-seat theater with parking space for 750 cars.

Now Mayor Tucker faces another threat to Westmount's un-touchability. Quebec Province has appropriated a strip across the southern boundary for the Trans-Canada Highway. The houses in that area are somewhat dowdy, but they are comfortable and moderately priced. The 220 families living in them have been told to move. Few can obtain equivalent housing at 1966 prices and many face hardship.

'Y' after many requests were made to have a programme for the local children of this age group. Most local summer activities do not include this age group in Westmount.

Staff

The staff will be composed of the following: Andy MacDonald, Phy. Dir., Mrs. McLearn, housewife, Ron Watt, Youth Prog. Dir., Mrs. Shine, housewife, and assisted by four specially trained teenagers.

We Say

Un exemple pour Westmount

LAST week on the Feast of St-Jean-Baptiste, and again this week with Dominion Day, it would appear Westmount is doing nothing special other than to shut up shop for long weekends.

A pity.

These two holidays have more significance than conveniently timed hot-weather holidays.

Little Ormstown, (pop. 3,500) 40 miles southwest of us, is doing far more.

From last week to next, June 23 to July 3, an imaginative bridge of community events is providing an inspired and memorable link between the traditional fête of French Canada and the birthday of all Canada.

It's Semaine de l'amitié, Friendship Week.

Ormstown, like Westmount, long was an English-speaking enclave of mostly Scottish settlers in a French-speaking province. Patois now mingles with the brogue. Roman Catholicism now blooms in a Presbyterian field. Contentedly.

That contentment should not go unexpressed and unnurtured, nor lie dormant until, say, next year's once-in-a-lifetime Canadian Centennial. So thought young, active Mayor Bruno Beaulieu (who last year succeeded Mayor Archie McCormick) as did the Town's clergy and other leading lights.

Thus arose an energetic program of band concert, majorette display, bonfire, field day for youngsters, a choral concert under the stars, an open air dance, a banquet and religious observances including a community celebration of the R. C. parish priest's 25th anniversary, all scheduled for various days and evenings.

Most moving and significant of all was Monday's "Marche oecuménique" visit of all the four churches of Ormstown. Clergy and people, French and English, held a "progressive" service. They in turn overflowed the Anglican church, crammed the Presbyterian, squeezed into the United and all but burst the Roman edifice in an open, unaffected, happy and spontaneous display of friendship and Christian unity.

There wasn't anything strange about nuns' habits in an United Church, the Lord's Prayer said in French in an Anglican Church, black gowns of Presbyterian choristers in a church of Rome.

Nor almost the entire Christian population of a community joining hands in one place of worship to receive in unison the benediction of all their priests and ministers.

Tuesday morning, and for a long time to come, Ormstown will be a happier, more cheerful, friendlier and altogether more pleasant place — and an example.

To Westmount, for instance.

MUST TEACH THE YOUNG

One of the most hazardous things our young will do is drive the family car. From a strictly dollars and cents point of view, it seems a waste to spend millions on their education while we neglect a subject that can easily cost them their lives before they have the opportunity of using their education. — Stanstead (Que.) Journal.

Biography of Streets

Cote St. Antoine road

In the first part of this description, it was remarked in passing that the Cote St. Antoine road probably originated in an Indian trail. There are fairly strong reasons for this supposition.

Although the town of Hochelaga had disappeared between the visit of Jacques Cartier and the coming of Champlain so that the pioneers of Villie Marie found the Island of Montreal empty of inhabitants the tradition of their former home persisted among the descendants of the Hochelagans. They knew its by-ways and its vantage-points. The presence of five Indian wells on the Lacroix and Joseph Leduc farms, and a number of graves found in the neighbourhood (on the hillside) would indicate a small and primitive settlement — perhaps one even earlier than Hochelaga itself.

When the Sulpicians built the 'Mountain Fort' and removed their Indian mission from the immediate environs of Ville Marie, there was again an Indian encampment in this direction. Two generations ago there was still standing a great tree on the Cote St. Antoine road about the present Argyle avenue, which had Indian 'picture writing' carved deep into its wood.

Whatever its origin, this road very early became a favorite, as the safest way to Lachine, being inland, and so farther off the line of a sudden attack by marauding Iroquois bands than the lower roads, for that reason "La Haute Folle" was the ground chosen for their homes by the little community of settlers who had selected farms in this part of "La Contree St. Joseph" in preference to their lower frontage on Lac St. Pierre.

The exact date of the first houses has not yet been determined. The burnt remains of the Joseph Leduc house lie under the lower group of trees in the Murray Park. Whether it was built by the original Jean Leduc, one of the three stone-masons brought out to build Ville Marie, is a matter for further research.

There are a number of sketches of the St. Germain house, with its wayside cross, which stood to the west of it.

The oldest remaining house, is probably that of the Hurtubise family.

Iroquois raids

These dwellings were built for strength, of solid stone, with very thick walls. The cellars were fortified, usually in two compartments, between which stood a strong masonry partition. Each part was reached by a separate trap door from the room above. The front compartment had loop-holes, the back had none. Tradition has it that on the alarm of 'Iroquois' being given, the women and children were put into the back compartment, which had no opening, while the men descended the front cellar, and shot through the loop-holes.

But Iroquois raids were not the only excitement. Pleasanter things occupied most of the time and attention of the little community. The land was good and certainly the Seigneurial dues were not excessive. An entry in the Seminary rent-roll of 1671 shows that the Hurtubise farm as having 1 capon or 10½ minots de blé per 20 arpents; or ¼ reduction for cash. (A minot was about a bushel).

Large families were the rule, and the hard work of lumbering and tillage was often broken by a wedding, or a christening. The records of these events are preserved in the barest Parish entries, and notarial deeds. All such entries centred in Villa Marie for the whole district.

Because of changes due to the passage of time, it is sometimes hard to locate the earliest grants.

The Cote St. Antoine road, however, remains unaltered in the line since the days of those early settlers, with the milestone which used to stand beside the way, let into a garden wall near the foot of Forden avenue, marking one mile from the 'Mountain Fort.'

YOU SAY

$100 a week ... looks good up here

Sir: Referring to the letter in the Westmount Examiner, week ending, June 23rd; "Selby Residents give opinion."

If the majority of the Selby Street Residents have incomes of "One hundred dollars per week." They are living on investment incomes of One hundred thousand dollars, at 5% interest; and more power to them. It has been stated their incomes are broadly made up of wages, Family Welfare, Various Charities, etc.

I would hazard a guess the Investigators of the conditions of the Selby Street Residents Would have to go well above the Boulevard to get any similar group, living on Investment Incomes, around one hundred thousands dollars, at 5% interest, and when you found them, they would not be financed by Family Welfare, municipal allowances, Children's Allowances etc., but they would be paying Income Tax, Westmount City Taxes, School Taxes, Water Taxes etc., etc.

Just to keep the record straight: Westmount is very often made a butt of jokes by Politicians and others as the home of Dilitantes, Millionaires, etc. Nothing could be further from the truth. I would hazard a guess, eliminating a few families, who do possess Inherited wealth, or created wealth, the average home owners income compares favorably with the Selby Street Residents, who enjoy one hundred dollars per week, and pay no Municipal Taxes, No School taxes, nor Special Westmount taxes, no water taxes and above all, no income Taxes. Think it over.

Money, only way to fight Multiple Sclerosis

Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada president D. L. Inwood, of Western avenue, recently addressed the 18 annual meeting of the society, and gave his report.

Inwood stressed the need for more money in the way of grants to fight and defeat this dreaded disease.

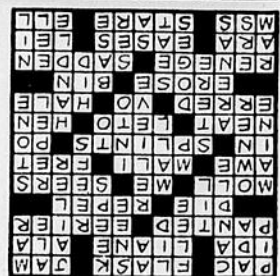

"We must acquire greater knowledge of the characteristics of Multiple Sclerosis," he said.

In his report, Inwood stated: "It is my very pleasant duty to report to you on the activities of your Society for the year which ended December 31st, 1965.

Additional traffic troubles: Not only is there "No Parking" on Olivier avenue below Western but it is also one-way south. All this because of rerouting of the buses.

Unity starts to roll . . . from report cards to sidewalk surfing

By CHARLES HOWES

Many of the Unity Boys' Club members have been bouncing into the Club with their report cards, and most of our gang we are happy to say have passed their year with flying colours.

May we the staff pass along our congratulations to all those who have earned their academic awards, and to those who were not successful, may we say that during the Summer months we hope they make a resolution to try much harder next year.

School to Unity

From the four walls of the many schools that our Club members attend to the walls of the Unity Boys' Club; and awa-a-y we go down the Summer Friendship Road. All is in readiness for a swinging, scintillating Superb Summer of Fun for all. Uncle Tom and Aunti Tori have been putting their heads together on numerous occasions during the last few weeks and have come up with a number of new games, crafts and special events.

Assembly Time

A new program feature. Regular daily assemblies which will feature surprises, contests, sing songs, special announcements, prizes, credit slips, will start off each and every day. Those taking part in this year's program will be well advised to be at the Club by 9:30 a.m.; as the door will close again in ten minutes and not open again until the morning assembly has been completed. These opening interesting and fun filled sessions will last about forty five minutes; so be an early bird and get in on the excitement from the minute the club door opens.

Room for Sixty

Sixty is all that we will be able to take on a trip to Glengarry park, a provincial park in Ontario. Glengarry situated about 60 miles West of Montreal offers a great swim and picnic area and this is the location of the first of many special trips that we will take this summer.

Grasshoppers Due

From all reports the Beatles and the Rolling Stones are completely nothing in comparison to the group known as the Grasshoppers. This is another one of the sparkling features of the Unity Boys Club Summer program. The grasshoppers are scheduled to appear at the Morning Assemblies, so get with it and be there.

The last few days has seen the gymnasium at Unity transformed into a roller rink, to be more specific a Skateboard Rink. Basic fundamentals of the proper way to handle and ride a skateboard has been passed along to the boys and girls, young and old. Free time "surfing" periods have been scheduled along with a few novelty events such as figure eights, relay races and slalom events have been set up. A pleasant activity and a welcome change for all who take part.

FIGHT POVERTY IN SCHOOLS

All studies conducted on the question of poverty have revealed that low incomes go hand in hand with low education levels. One showed that 36 per cent of Canada's low income families were headed by men with only an elementary education or no education at all — an additional 17.6 per cent of male family heads had only two or three years of secondary schooling. It is obvious that in the long run programs to upgrade educational levels are fundamental to any meaningful attack on poverty. — Swift Current (Sask.) Sun.

M. L. Rothman heads Roslyn Home and School Association

The Roslyn Home and School Association held a meeting recently in which the Association's annual report was submitted by president John Porter.

The new officers for the year 1966-67 were elected and taking the post of president will be M. L. Rothman, 638 Roslyn avenue.

Other officers elected were: 1st vice-president, C. Burgess; 2nd vice-president, H. A. Jones; treasurer, J. P. H. Castle, and secretary, Mrs. D. Everall.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

In his address to the Association, Porter said:

"Once again, I am pleased to be able to report to you that our various projects enjoyed an active and successful year. Particularly for the organizers were the answers to the questionnaires distributed to parents last summer. It was not possible to act on all the suggestions, but your Executive welcomed this opportunity to learn your views on our program.

"The enthusiastic response to extra-curricular French, which was offered for the first time this year, shows that parents are concerned with the amount of instruction available in French. One of the major aims of the French project is to get the school system to expand the teaching of French in all grades, and there are already results to show in this area as the Principal has recently been able to obtain a second French specialist for the school.

"The Roslyn Home & School wishes to thank both the Principal and the staff for their active help and interest in our affairs; without their co-operation, little could be achieved.

"Finally, on your behalf, I want to thank all the volunteers and committee members who have given so much of their time and energy to the Home & School. Their effort and enthusiasm made my job easy, and it has been a pleasure to work with them."

It was noted at the meeting that membership was at an all-time high of 345, an increase of 33 over 1965.

ART

Chairman of the art committee, D. G. Hague, stated that the art classes had completed another very successful year. Fifty-five pupils were enrolled in the course which was held three times a week from October to May.

BALLET

A total of 107 pupils were enrolled in the ballet classes this year with lessons being held twice a week. Chairman, Mrs. R. C. T. Harris, said that the demonstrations which were given for the parents in January were a great success.

FRENCH

Chairman Carol Kahn announced that in response to a letter distributed in the Spring of 1965, parents showed great interest in the extra-curricular French conversation classes proposed for 1965/66. A H. & S. committee was formed to initiate a French Project.

In the Fall, 165 registrations were received. Six qualified part-time teachers were engaged and the Committee was able to place 116 children in 16 lunch-hour classes and 10 after-school classes, according to their age and proficiency in French. In Grades I and II, groups of eight children were taught informally; in Grade III, groups of twelve used the audio-visual "Bonjour Line" system.

among the virtues and it probably causes about half the happiness on earth. And no status seeker can have it.

Such groups do realize safe and snug status. The difference is that the status is incidental, a mere by-product, not the reason for gathering in church or anywhere else.

* The following quotations are used by kind permission of Mr. Pierre Berton, author of The Comfortable Pew:

"The Ecclesiastical Caste System" (title) p. 75

"The doctrinal meaning of joining a particular church is far less important than the social or business meaning," Vance Parkard confirms in The Status Seekers. p. 71

"So clearly defined is the class system (in churches) that Warner and Hollingshead were able to make caste charts categorizing each denomination by its relative position on the ladder of status." p. 78

"(Members of) a famous Canadian family, the Masseys, joined a higher status church . . ." p. 80

"It is ironic but undeniable that the Christian Church, in which all men are supposed to be equal in their humility before God, is as much obsessed with status as any major social institution." p. 78

* * *

Oddly, there has also come to hand a response to The Comfortable Pew, entitled The Restless Church, edited by William Kilbourn. And at my request The Canadian Press Clipping Service has sent me a thick bundle of comment by clergymen and laymen. But neither the new book nor the comment, as far as I can see, answers some of the pertinent questions Mr. Berton puts very plainly. Because of this, and because the topic is perennial, I plan to submit one or two further articles on Mr. Berton to this column.

Money, only way to fight . . .

Within its financial capabilities the Society has continued research to find the cause and cure of Multiple Sclerosis. During the year 1965 fifteen projects were sponsored at universities across Canada at a cost of $97,000.

"It is probable that as our scientists develop their projects and acquire greater knowledge of the characteristics of this disease, more money for research will be required.

"The lack of knowledge of a specific cause of Multiple Sclerosis constitutes the most basic problem. It seems reasonable to believe that development of a treatment will logically follow discovery of its cause. This is why the Society has always emphasized the importance of research.

"It is interesting to note that over 60% of the applications received for grants are in the area of Bio-Chemistry of the nervous system. This situation parallels the experience of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society of the U.S.A.

"Perhaps the greatest difficulty facing the patient is the lamentable lack of institutions in Canada for the physically handicapped. This is a matter of concern to the multiple sclerosis patient without means, and is a phase of public health that should be given serious study by the various governments responsible for Medicare. Ordinarily the multiple sclerosis patient cannot occupy a hospital bed, and homes and families are not equipped to take adequate care of the patient.

"To assist as much as possible, our National Director of Patient Services, Dr. Misick has, during the year 1965, produced a wealth of literature to guide those families having the care of a multiple sclerosis patient. We all owe her a debt of gratitude, not only for the usefulness of her work, but because she has given her time and talents on a voluntary basis.

Cash Balance

The statement of receipts and disbursements shows a cash balance of $46,477.40. You are reminded that these are committed funds payable in the year 1966 covering research authorized during the year 1965.

The Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada was founded in Montreal eighteen years ago. After long consideration by your Executive, it has been decided to transfer the Headquarters to Toronto for the greater efficiency of the Society as a whole. The transfer is to take place later in the year.

"I appeal now to our French speaking compatriots to come forward to form a French-speaking Division to cover the entire Province of Quebec. There is important work to be done for the French-speaking Multiple Sclerotic. A special clinic in a French-speaking hospital is paramount and if this report comes to the notice of willing volunteers, I would ask them to communicate with the Society."

Large field for regatta

This year's Valleyfield International regatta, July 16-17, is expected to draw the largest field of international racers in the 28-year history of the annual event.

Jacques Sauve of Valleyfield, president of the regatta committee, said at a press conference here Monday that he feels two factors will draw the powerboat's top names to the Lake St. Francis course.

He said the fact that the local regatta is scheduled two weeks after the world limited inboard championships at Picton, Ont., this weekend, and that this year's races are being run as an "avant-premiere" for the 1967 world exhibition powerboat regatta in conjunction with Expo 67, will add to the entry list.

The winners in all classes at Valleyfield will automatically qualify for starting positions in the finals of their class events in the 1967 world regatta.

It is expected that boats from as far away as New Zealand will be on hand for the 1967 events.

This year's program at Valleyfield will include competitions for nearly every world class of competitive power boat, inboard and outboard. The outboard races will be run Saturday, and the inboard events the following afternoon.

TWO MINUTES

WITH THE BIBLE

BY CORNELIUS R. STAM, PRES.
BIBLICAL BIBLE SOCIETY
CHICAGO 25, ILLINOIS

The Apostle Paul had much that he yearned to teach the believers at Judea — wonderful truths that would have thrilled them — but they were "hard to be uttered," or difficult to explain to them, since they were "dull of hearing." The word "dull" in Heb. 6:12 really means "slothful" or "disinterested." They were not merely hard of hearing, as we say, but were too lazy, too indifferent, spiritually, to pay attention. They were not sufficiently interested.

This is always a serious condition in the light of the fact that "God hath spoken," and that disobedience to His Word will be judged (Heb. 1:1, 2; 2:1-3). Yet, also, this is the condition of the professing Church today. The great majority of religious people are not sufficiently interested in what God has said to engage in diligent, prayerful study and, like those of Paul's day, still have to be taught "the first principles" of the Bible. They have remained babes, spiritually, unable to digest anything but "milk," and so remain "unskillful in the Word of righteousness" (Heb. 5:12-14).

What has brought this condition about? Is it because God is unwilling to lead us further into His truth? Most assuredly not. It is because so many men of God in high places no longer have the single passion to know God's Word and to make it known.
They could be as greatly used of God in teaching the Scriptures as their predecessors were, but they are "slothful of hearing" and hence have little of value to teach.

RELIGIOUS RADIO BROADCAST, JULY 3, 1966

how many really understand what it is? This question will be

Sunday morning at 9:45.

ley Presbyterian church will be held in Dominion Douglas Church corner of Lansdowne months of July and August. For Westmount Park and St. Andrew's

Services will be held in Westgregations of Westmount Park and St. Andrew's church during July and August, Reverend H.

Ray Ashford will be preaching
this Sunday.

Christian Science

There is no suspension of classes during the summer months in the Sunday Schools maintained by the churches of the Christian Science denomination. All children, including those of tourists and vacation travellers, are welcome as visitors in provided they have not reached the age of 20.

It is an established custom of the Christian Science denomination to hold only one church service each Sunday during July and August. Accordingly, the Westmount, will hold Sunday morning services only throughout the summer. The Wednesday eve-

Linebacker—bagel-baker gives Newman a problem

One of the major aims of the Montreal Beavers Football Club is to help any of the players that are interested in locating jobs. It is amazing how many problems can arise.

Many of the young men are college graduates interested in pursuing careers in engineering, electronics, public relations and advertising. There are school teachers and salesmen.

But team President Johnny Newman is scratching his head this week after receiving the signed contract of linebacker this week after receiving the signed contract of linebacker Allen Fried, whose vocation is that of a bagel-baker.

An education and business major, Fried has spent considerable time in his native Brooklyn, New York learning to be a bagel-baker. Head Coach Marvin Bass says he will have no difficulty finding a place on his ball team for the hard-hitting 230 pound linebacker. But Newman doesn't know where to go about finding employment for the six foot, 24 year old Jewish player.

The return of Fried's contract along with that of husky centre Don Williams of Chicago brings to nearly 50 the number of players who have signed their contracts. Others have agreed to terms but the contracts are still out.

Montreal fans may remember Fried because he played three games with the Quebec Rifles at the beginning of the '64 season before returning to Delta State College in Mississippi. At that time he was not interested in bagel-baking.

Williams is a 6'3" hard rock who tips the scales at 258 pounds. Williams had a strong season with Fort Wayne Warriors last year. He has been a standout with the club for the past three seasons.

SCOREBOARDS

The Montreal Beavers Football Club have come up with their answer to Major League baseball's colorful, flashing scoreboards.

Whenever a field goal is successful at the Beavers' Automotive Stadium on the Expo site, lights will flash on both sides of the uprights. The display will be set off as well when the ball passes through on a convert attempt.

To ascertain that the demonstration is ignited as often as possible by home team scoring, Head Coach Marvin Bass is bringing three field goal kickers to the start of training at Loyola, July 15th, and he plans to keep two of them around for the season.

Of the three men, all of whom are signed, two are kicking specialists while the other man, Lou Bobich, is an excellent defensive back. He punts as well as kicks placements.

The showy recording of successful field goals, which will be set off by a magic eye, is not the only feature which makes the Beavers' goalposts unique to professional football. There will be only one goalpost at each end and that will be ten feet high and the crossbars will be projected to the goal line at the specified 18'6" distance apart.

Of the three, Bobich is expected to retain the defensive halfback position he held with the Fort Wayne Warriors last season. The 22 year old, 6'1", 185 pounder set a league record with 42 points-after-touchdown in 45 tries, including one seven-for-seven game against Hartford. He intercepted 10 passes and returned the ball 159 yards.

The specialists, just one of whom will make the squad, are William Freitag, a New Yorker of German descent, and Gary Cannon, of Cleveland, Ohio. Both are soccer players and use the now popular soccer-style for kicking.

Freitag, at 5'11" and 190 pounds is 29 years old. Currently the soccer coach at Hofstra University in Long Island, Freitag was being wooed by the National Football League Giants until that team made their controversial signing of Pete Gogolak. Freitag has no collegiate football background because he was playing professional soccer at the time he was in school.

The 26 year old Cannon had a good football run at University of Tennessee where he handled the place-kicking assignments from 1959 to 1962. A self-taught kicker, Cannon feels that much of his success is due to kicking shoes which he designed himself. Cannon has been out of football for three years while he continued studying.
