GENERAL STRIKE IN RUSSIA SHOWS SIGNS OF BREAKING

Plebiscite Will be Taken by the Workmen Upon Question of Ending the Struggle---Last Effort to Make Capital a Dead City.

NEWS FROM OTHER POINTS ENCOURAGING

St. Petersburg, Nov. 18—(1.45 a.m.)—Though, according to surface indications yesterday, the outlook for the speedy ending of the strike was gloomy, the revelations made at a meeting last night of the council of workmen's delegates showed that a large portion of the workmen were breaking loose from the control of the leaders and were anxious to return to work and a plebiscite which will be taken to-day in the various factories probably will result in a decision to abandon the strike Monday. At the meeting of the council, which was held in the same hall where Father Gapon, Maxim Gorky and other leaders denounced the Emperor on the eve of January 22nd, ("Red Sunday"), delegate after delegate from different factories arose and reported that the workmen, under the influence of the ultimatum issued by the employers, announcing that the factories would be shut down indefinitely unless work was resumed on Monday and with the pleading of their wives and of the conservative workmen ringing in their ears, were demanding that the strike should be ended. This precipitated a hotly contested debate between the moderates who declared that the strike in the first instance was a strategical mistake and that it would be a grave error in tactics to attempt to force the men to remain in line, and in the "last ditch" faction. One fiery speaker who mounted the balcony from which Father Gapon in disguise had delivered his last address in that hall, thundered his denunciation of those who wished to discontinue the strike. After a long discussion a motion to call off the strike was rejected and it was decided to call meetings of workmen in the factories to-day to lay the situation before them and to abide by the direction.

The leaders, however, were determined not to permit the strike to die without a final demonstration of their power to render St. Petersburg a "dead city." After the adoption of the resolution calling for a referendum, it was decided to bend every effort to close every store, market and office beginning at 11 o'clock this morning and to stop all street car and carriage traffic in the streets so as to bring the life of the Russian capital to a complete standstill. The stoppage of the electric plants, which the Government had succeeded in getting into partial operation was entrusted to electrical workers in the various districts, who were empowered to use any and all means deemed advisable for the injuring of the machinery and the short circuiting of the dynamos, even to the extent of destroying the plants. Another resolution called for demonstrations to effect the release of four delegates who had been arrested. It was decided to mass 3,000 men in front of each prison where the delegates are detained and to hold them there until they are liberated.

The Prefect of Police has published an appeal to the well-disposed classes warning them that the strike leaders intend to take aggressive action to day and asking them to co-operate with the police against the agitators "who are making life unbearable." In the meeting, the advocates of the strike laid stress on encouraging news from the interior which they said they would be able to place before the workmen to-day, but last night's despatches showed little confirmatory evidence of such news. A strike has broken out in the section of the South Western Railroad between Tsaritsyn and Verenesch, in the lower Volga region but the demands for shorter hours and higher pay are economic and have no connection with the political aims of the St. Petersburg strikers.

The news from Moscow is even more encouraging. The railroads are still running and the telegraphers have flatly refused to consider a strike for the political aims of Poland, whose endangered liberties form the ostensible cause of the strike in St. Petersburg. Work is being resumed in Moscow and the news from other sections show that the call of the St. Petersburg committee has awakened little sympathy. The utterly reckless spirit manifested by the "Reds" who engineered the political strike is producing a natural revulsion of feeling which is shared by all classes. The prospect of anarchy and mob rule, which would be the logical outcome of the present demoralized conditions in both the country districts and the cities has had a sobering influence. The lower classes who are always on the verge of starvation are growing bitterly angry against the agitators, who by these continued strikes are taking the bread from their mouths.

1.45 a.m.—Incited by the police, but in spite of all the authorities these classes are threatening reprisals. It is the intelligent middle class, however, which is beginning to rally to the support of the Government in its efforts to restore something like order and public tranquility. Many of the liberals who fought the Government actively before the proclamation of the Emperor's manifesto are now convinced that their leaders blundered frightfully by refusing to lend their support to Count Witte in his difficult task, because he had declined to accept the unqualified conditions laid down by them. They see that now it is too late and that they missed the opportunity of becoming the leading influence in the Government and that they by their inaction have become a negligible quantity. The leadership which they fondly imagined they exercised has passed over to the extreme socialistic element, with whose extravagant programme for the levelling of all ranks they have nothing in common. They realize that the restoration of public tranquility is an immediate necessity, as otherwise the Government will soon have to choose between repression and anarchy.

The new party of "Law and Order," which has lately sprung into being, with organizations in St. Petersburg, Moscow and the Baltic provinces, Astrakhan, Simferopol and elsewhere, the principal plank in the platform of which is the rallying of the sober and conservative forces of the nation to attain long expected liberties through co-operation with Count Witte, is preaching that all will be lost and the country plunged into hopeless bloodshed unless the "forces of law and order" unite to aid the Premier. M. Krosowsky, President of the St. Petersburg municipal council, has placed himself at the head of the St. Petersburg group of this party,

MILLIONAIRE'S SON ARRESTED FOR FRAUD

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 17—Richard H. Kastor, son of H. W. Kastor, a millionaire, was arrested to-day on an indictment charging Kastor with conducting a scheme to defraud in connection with the Merchants' Brokerage and Commission Co., of St. Louis Post office inspectors allege that Kastor acted between the company and a United States Senator, that the company paid Kastor to prevent the issuance of a postal fraud order against it, and that Kastor worked through the United States Senator.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA.

London, Nov. 18 — The Standard this morning publishes a report that Sir Chas. Hardinge, the British Ambassador at St. Petersburg, is about to resign, and that he will succeed Sir Thomas Sanderson as Permanent Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

FINANCIAL PANIC.

London, Nov. 17.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Telegraph says that a financial panic is prevailing there. He adds that Russia is drifting toward ruin. The gift of liberty from which she reasonably expected happiness and prosperity has been transformed by a handful of revolutionists into a terrible curse. Trade, commerce, and industry are at a standstill. The workmen are poverty-stricken, yet are disinclined to work. The schools are closed. Locomotion is suspended. The railways and telegraphs are working fitfully. Everything is topsy-turvy. Soon all the world will discern the terrible ravages made by the chaos of the past few weeks. The export trade has terribly declined in consequence of the strikes. The losses thus inflicted on the population are enormous. Gold is steadily flowing out of the country. Russians who hold Government or other securities are selling out at any price and purchasing English, French and especially German securities, with gold, which they immediately send or take abroad.

Yesterday the banks were crowded with panic-stricken bondholders, who frantically demanded foreign money for Russian scrip. Many intelligent men and women drove to the banks and instructed their banks to transform their scrip into gold and telegraph to open accounts with the Bank of England or Bank of France. Several times yesterday and to-day the managers of financial institutions had to explain to their affrighted clients that strangers cannot open accounts with those banks without further formalities. In addition to the outflow of gold, for which there is no export trade to make good, the service of the foreign debts will as usual absorb large sums, which cannot be replaced without more foreign loans. The Government points out that the outlook will be worse unless the political situation changes for the better.

A C.P.R. LEVIATHAN

Launching of the Empress of Britain---Last Link of the All-British Route to East.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 17.—The passenger traffic manager of the C. P. R., Mr. Robert Kerr, has just received from Glasgow, Scotland, details regarding the successful launching at the Fairfield Shipbuilding Works upon the Clyde, of the first of the new passenger steamships which the company intends adding to its Atlantic fleet next season. The new liner is called the Empress of Britain and will make her first trip from Liverpool to Montreal in May next. The Empress of Ireland, a sister ship, is now receiving its finishing touches in the Fairfield Yards and will be launched in January. She will make her first trip from Liverpool to Montreal in June next.

The Empress of Britain is the largest vessel ever launched from the Fairfield Yards, has a displacement of twenty thousand tons, and ranks as one of the largest leviathans upon the North Atlantic. It is now six years since the Canadian Pacific ceased to be nothing more than a transcontinental railway and began the creation of an all-British route from England to China, Japan and Australia under a single management. The first steamship line to be established was that between Vancouver and the ports of Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki in Japan, and Shanghai and Hong Kong in China. Then followed in 1893 the establishment of the steamship line between Vancouver and Australia. The same year the company acquired the Atlantic fleet of the Elder-Dempster Line, consisting of fourteen vessels and thus completed the last link in its chain of communication between England and the Orient. The two new ships which will be added to the company's Atlantic fleet next season will be the fastest vessels between Great Britain and Canadian ports. They will have a speed of twenty knots and will make the run between Liverpool and Montreal in six days.

YOUNGEST BISHOP

The Rev. Isaac O. Stringer Elected Bishop of Selkirk.

Winnipeg, Nov. 17 — Rev. Isaac O. Stringer of White Horse was elected Bishop of Selkirk by the House of Bishops.

I. O. Stringer is a graduate of the University of Toronto of 1891, and of Wycliffe College in 1892. He went immediately thereafter to Fort Simpson to work under the Bishop of Mackenzie River, then two years later of his own motion he pushed on five hundred miles farther north to Herschel Island. His sight failing, the doctors forbade him to remain longer in that region, so he came back to Toronto on leave of absence, spending two winters here.

He returned to White Horse, where he was associated with Bishop Bompas, Bishop of Selkirk. The latter asked for assistance, and recently he resigned his see to continue in work as a missionary to the Indians.

Rev. Mr. Stringer's election has come as a result of this action, having been arranged some little time ago. He becomes the Bishop of the whole diocese taking upon himself the entire episcopal duties, which his zeal and energy well qualify him to perform.

Bishop Stringer is the youngest Bishop in Canada, being not more than about forty years of age. His home is in Kingarf, near Kincardine, where his father, a farmer, died some five years ago. His wife was a Miss Alexander, and comes from the same place.

INCREASE IN THE EARNINGS

Intercolonial Railway Shows Improvement

FOR THE FIRST QUARTER

Investigation Which the Minister and the Deputy Made is Having Its Effect.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—With a decrease in the working expenses and an increase in the earnings, the Intercolonial Railway shows a marked improvement for the first quarter of the present fiscal year. The investigation which the minister and the deputy made into the working of the road during the summer months is having its effect.

This is shown in a small surplus of earnings over expenditure for the month of September. The earnings for the month were $636,271, leaving a surplus of $24,659.

For the three months the average deficit has been reduced to $25,938, so that if this is maintained the year would close with a small deficit. The figures for the three months are as follows:—

	Working Expenses.	Earnings.
July.....	$ 665,573	$ 634,611
August.....	746,261	674,748
September.....	661,612	686,271
	$2,073,447	$1,995,632

The deficit for July was $30,962, and for August $71,512. The surplus for September was $24,659. There will be a saving of $300,000 for the year in the maintenance of way, and $100,000 in the coal bill.

WORKMEN'S APPEAL

To the Soldiers and Sailors to Refuse to Act Against Them Any Longer.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 17.—The Workingmen's Organization to-day addressed the following appeal to the soldiers and sailors: "Comrades and brothers,—For a long time we have misunderstood each other. Your officers taught you to regard us as enemies of the fatherland and as criminals whom you should shoot, beat with your whips butcher with your bayonets. Our struggle for the people's freedom and the people's well being, has been depicted to you as a revolution against the fatherland which you are obliged to suppress. Many of you, believing this, have shot your own brothers, filling the streets of our town with blood. The case is now altered. The eyes of many of the soldiers and sailors have been opened. They understand that all of us are brothers and that we are sons of the same nation, whose common enemies are your commanders and those in power. They understood that the liberty of the people is their own liberty and the good of the people their own good. The men of the Black Sea fleet at Cronstadt stood against their commanders and signified that they wanted to lead the lives of men, that they wanted liberty and they associated themselves with the cause of the people. A hundred sailors at Cronstadt have been handed over to a court martial and to-day or to-morrow may be executed. Knowing this, we, workmen of St. Petersburg struck, demanding the release of our soldiers and sailor brothers and the abolition of court martials and the death penalty. Is it possible that you soldiers and sailors, will not arise and help your brothers at Cronstadt. Is it possible that you will remain hand in hand with the murderers of your brothers at Cronstadt. We workmen say the cause of the soldier and the sailor is our cause and so we have gone out on strike. You must say everywhere the cause of the workmen is our cause, and the struggle of the workmen our struggle, and you must associate yourself with the struggling people. You must strike and refuse to perform the duties imposed on you. Do not listen to the word of command, calling upon you to put down the workmen's movement. Let not one shot be fired by you against the people. Down with your blood-thirsty commanders. Long live a free Government and a free people."

BOMB THROWING AT WARSAW.

Warsaw, Nov. 17.—A bomb was thrown from a window of a house in Wolska street at a Cossack squadron to-night. There were no casualties. The Cossacks fired volleys at the house, which they subsequently searched and arrested two of their assailants. All the Government theatres have been ordered closed.

INSURANCE AFFAIRS

Summary of the Events of the Week---Mr. Tarbell's Evidence.

New York, Nov. 17.—With the end of the morning session, the Armstrong Insurance Investigation Committee finished a week that has not been eclipsed since the inquiry began. Early in the week Jas. Hazen Hyde was examined and he made charges against E. H. Harriman and former Governor O'Dell who successively appeared and denied Mr. Hyde's statements. Mr. Hyde, on being recalled, re-affirmed his former testimony. Then United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew was heard and when the session opened to-day it was expected that before the day was over Senator Platt would be called. He is wanted to testify as to the collection of contributions to political campaign funds by the insurance companies, Mr. O'Dell having testified yesterday that Senator Platt collected all such monies up to last year. It now is expected that the Senator will be heard early next week, possibly on Tuesday when the sessions will be resumed. Frank B. Jordan, son of the former comptroller of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, who at a previous session said he did not know where his father was or whether either his father or mother war living, was called again to-day and said that he had received a letter from his mother who was in Canada, since he first testified, but that she did not mention his father. Samuel N. McCurdy, assistant registrar of the Equitable, said that he had charge of that company's vouchers for legal service. Regarding the action of the insurance commissioner of California, who in 1897 demanded an examination into the company's methods, he asserted that thousands of dollars were spent by the Equitable in this matter. He justified the expenditure on the ground that it would have cost the society about $40,000 had no defense been made. Senator Depew was called to testify regarding a number of vouchers for legal services, but he declared that his knowledge of them was limited. One voucher of John A. Nichols for legal services was accompanied by a letter to Senator Depew referring to "Our friend who comes around once a year." And "your cantankerous friend up the river." The Senator said he knew Nichols had been ruined at different times by the Equitable but he did not know in what connection. Mr. Nichols, he said, was once quarantine commissioner and active politics. Gagee Tarbell, second vice-president of the Equitable Society, was called just before recess and had hardly got started in his testimony when Senator Depew was called. When he resumed it was almost time for adjournment and Senator Armstrong announced that as a sub-committee would take the deposition of Mr. Squire, no afternoon session would be called. Mr. Tarbell told of his 26 years connection with the Equitable Society and his activities in the interest of the policyholders. He started as a solicitor in Greene, N.Y., and later was given a general agency for the Southern Tier counties with headquarters at Binghamton. He was opposed to money being spent for legislative purposes and thought the policyholders in a body could defeat any legislation inimical to their interests. He said he had tried to interest the New York Life and the Mutual Life Insurance companies in an agreement to appoint a committee to look after such matters but the officers of the Mutual Life said it was impractical. Mr. Tarbell knew of no money expended for campaign purposes. Mr. Tarbell was on the stand when the adjournment until Tuesday was taken.

SITUATION IN RUSSIA

Warsaw, Nov. 17.—Regular railroad traffic has been resumed throughout Poland, the strike of the railroad men having ended. The normal life of the city has been resumed. The bank and stores have opened and the factories are in operation. When the telegraphers appeared for work to-day they were informed that they were discharged for participation in the strikes and that their places had been filled.

Moscow, Nov. 17.—All the Moscow railroads with the exception of the Nicholas line are working regularly. Only one train arrived from St. Petersburg to-day, but regular traffic from Moscow to St. Petersburg has been resumed. The factory strike was extended to-day.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 17.—General De Bulin, prefect of police, issued a proclamation to-day calling on the inhabitants not to yield to the demands of the strikers for the cessation of work which demand, it is pointed out are sometimes accompanied by threats. The proclamation announces all measures will be taken for the repression of violence.

The Quebec Chronicle

QUEBEC, NOVEMBER 18, 1905.

THE ILL-USED SENATOR

The plea set up by Hon. Senator Choquette in defense to the action brought against him in the courts by Mr. Parent, which we published in yesterday's issue is a most important one, and one to which we invite the serious attention of our readers. Mr. Choquette has occupied one high public position on the Bench; is a member of the Dominion Senate, and, if reports apparently well founded, and certainly not as yet contradicted, be true, aspires to become chief magistrate of the city; he is a prominent figure among the leading Liberal politicians of this Province; a gentleman well acquainted with law, as is testified to by his elevation to the Bench, and withal a journalist of high standing and experience, and editor of that eminently candid and veracious Government organ in this city, whose present alias is Le Soleil. All these qualifications and accomplishments combine to give a more than ordinary weight to his utterances, and these in the case before us are so interesting and instructive that we have no doubt his wish will be complied with, and that the Court House on Monday will be crowded to hear what further interesting revelations he has to make.

From what he has already said in his plea, we understand that he urges that he, Mr. Parent, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and other prominent leaders of the Liberal party in this Province, got together and came to an amicable agreement to sink all differences and combine to humbug the Legislature of this Province, and hoodwink the electors, and as it is Senator Choquette that asserts this, we presume the public will place every confidence in his assertion, for "Brutus is an Honorable man; so were they all, all honorable men," who spared neither trouble nor expense nor dinners to heal up a split in the Liberal party which their organs denied had ever existed, and to restore a peace which they said had never been broken. It is a little too bad that after Senator Choquette thought he had arranged matters satisfactorily, and that Mr. Parent had entered into partnership with jim to "jolly" the Legislature and electorate, he should find that his pal had gone back on him, and that he was humbugged himself.

THE FRIENDLY UNDERSTANDING.

The circumstances under which the last Provincial Cabinet crisis was brought about, and the result which was the kicking of the then Premier down stairs, and his explanation that his exit was voluntary and its abruptness due to sanitary considerations, are yet within the recollection of our readers. In the electoral campaign which preceded this, Senator Choquette had taken an active part, and resenting some alleged action by Mr. Parent had called him, as Mr. Guerin lately called Mr. Gallery, a "traitor" and other unsavory names, and had also made statements which, if proved, were sufficient to destroy all future public confidence in Mr. Parent. To the uninitiated there appeared to be an "imminent deadly breach" in the party and there were "hurryings to and fro," till peaceful counsels prevailed, and it was understood that Mr. Parent should be allowed to meet the House, elect his Speaker, and then retire. The arrangement was not perfectly satisfactory, either to Mr. Parent or the House; he had taken an action for libel in the courts and promised to prosecute it to the bitter end, but this also was not altogether sufficient. The House constituted itself a tribunal, condemned Senators Choquette and Legris by default, and enabled Mr. Parent to retire with honor. It now appears, according to the Senator that all this was of the comic opera style, and had been arranged for some time previously; that is to say that there was no antagonism between the two gentlemen, that Mr. Parent was to drop his libel suit and retire, and that he received the chairmanship of the International Transcontinental Commission in spite of the opposition of the majority, if not all the French members. It is true that Senator Choquette is too well acquainted with the law to allege in his plea that Mr. Parent's appointment was a condition of the abandonment of legal proceedings, but he certainly introduces it as a reason why these should in all equity be dropped; he does not urge it as a preliminary consideration in the bargain or agreement, but he presents it in the light of a subsequent one intended to clinch the bargain.

Mr. Choquette may succeed in proving his case, and showing that he has been the victim of misplaced confidence, but in doing so he reveals a political intrigue, and places the Legislature in the position of knowingly aiding and abetting it, or having been duped and deceived.

INVENTED THE TORPEDO.

A London despatch recently announced the death of Robert Whitehead, inventor of the Whitehead torpedo. Mr. Whitehead was an English engineer employed as superintendent of the iron works at Fiume, Austria. He began his experiments in the early '60s in co-operation with Capt. Dupuis of the Austrian navy. His first efforts were to construct a torpedo guided by wires, but he soon abandoned this for the automatic type. The principle is that of a self-propelling shell which will move with great speed below or upon the surface of the water, keeping the exact direction in which it has been started. There have been many improvements in the torpedo since Whitehead first secured its adoption by the Austrian navy in 1868, but all successful ones are adaptations of the Whitehead type.

The first use of these torpedoes in war was in the conflict between Peru and Chili in 1881, but no damage was done by them at that time. In the Chilian civil war, ten years later, an armorclad ship was blown up with torpedoes. The most important demonstrations of their use, however, were made in the war between Japan and China and in the Russo-Japanese war which has just closed. The effect of a torpedo, when it fairly strikes its mark, is so deadly that many have argued that the machine makes it useless to build battleships. But experience does not sustain this view. The Japanese, however, have proved that torpedoes and torpedo boats are very important auxiliaries to a fleet.

THE CONGRESS AT ST. JEROME.

On Tuesday next and two following days there will take place at St. Jerome, near Montreal, a colonization congress called together by the new Minister of Colonization of the Provincial Government, the Hon. Jean Prevost.

The congress promises to be a most interesting one, and at it the various plans for the promotion of the settlement of the wild lands of the Province will be fully discussed. On Tuesday, after the business of the day, a banquet will be given in the evening at which some well known orators will speak. On Wednesday Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be one of the speakers. On Thursday evening lime-light views in connection with colonization will be shown. It is expected that the attendance will be very large. Lake St. John will send a large quota of delegates who will leave Chicoutimi and Roberval on Monday morning by special train over the Lake St. John and Great Northern Railways, arriving at St. Jerome at 8.30 that evening. At Riviere a Pierre the energetic colonists of Lake St. John will be joined by a quota from the city and district of Quebec who leave here by special train at 1 p.m. on Monday. The combined parties are expected to number about six hundred, and will be conveyed by special trains over the Great Northern Railway from Riviere a Pierre to St. Jerome.

The members of the Lake St. John Colonization Society will be present at the congress in force, and the energetic Secretary of that Society, Mr. Rene Dupont, has prepared an illustrated pamphlet for distribution at the convention, which is really a work of art. It illustrates by photographs the marvellous progress being made in an agricultural way in the Lake St. John district, and gives statistics and reports of agricultural delegates which are worthy of the most progressive sections of Manitoba and the North-West. For instance the pamphlet states that the value of property in the town of Chicoutimi in 1881 was $254,000 and in 1904 it was $2,436,000. That in the town of Roberval in 1890 it was $68,000 and in 1904 $615,000.

Mr. Prevost is to be congratulated on the patriotic stand he is taking on behalf of the great cause of colonization. It is the most important question of the day for the Province of Quebec, and if Mr. Prevost can overcome the difficulties which have hitherto surrounded it he will do a great service. But care must be taken to safeguard the rights of the lumber trade, the greatest trade of the Province, and also to save the forests of the Province—our greatest asset—from destruction by imprudent fires.

ECONOMY OF THE EMBARGO.

The Farmers' Advocate, quoting from the Leeds Mercury on the cattle embargo, giving an English farmer's reasons for wishing freedom to import stock from other countries for breeding purposes, says:

"So far as Canada is concerned, the agitation for the removal of the embargo has not been shared in to any great extent by stockmen and farmers. While the development of an export trade in stockers might temporarily enhance prices, as a general policy it is economically unsound and not in the interests of Canadian agriculture. Our true policy is to rear more good cattle and finish them here."

This expression of opinion, from very high authority on agricultural affairs, bears out the view presented in the Free Press for years past.

Time was when the embargo seemed like a radical blow to the Canadian live stock trade; but it has not proved so to any extent that could be called disastrous in point of diminished shipments.

Sifted down, the interest of our official world has been from the start more enlisted in the preservation of the character of Canadian cattle from the imputation of being diseased than in the commercial aspect. The first being properly vindicated, the latter could well take care of itself. And it is a fact that not a single case of pleuro-pneumonia has ever been traced to any shipment of Canadian cattle, as originating on our soil.

As to the economic feature of such shipments, it is, as the Advocate shows, perhaps to the detriment of the laud that "stockers" are taken off to be fed and "finished" across the ocean. By fattening them on our own farms, the soil is kept up in better fertility, the coarse grains are used to good advantage, more farms and stables are built, with their equipment of machinery and implements, and more employment given to farm labor. The care of cattle gives work for men all the year round, and not only in seeding and harvesting as is otherwise the case.

This is the case from the Canadian farmers' point of view on the average. The interest of the British breeder, as voiced in the Leeds Mercury, is quite another matter.

BAD KIDNEYS

Can Only be Cured Through the Blood.

Bad backs—aching backs—come from bad kidneys. Bad kidneys come from bad blood. Bad blood clogs the kidneys with poisonous impurities that breed deadly diseases. And the first sign of that fatal trouble is a dull, dragging pain in the back. Neglect it, and you will soon have the coated tongue, the pasty skin, the peevish temper, the swollen ankles, the dark-rimmed eyes, and all the other signs of deadly kidney disease. Plasters and liniments can never cure you. You must get right down to the root and cause of the trouble in the blood—and no medicine in the world can do this so surely as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because they actually make new blood. This strong, rich, new blood sweeps the kidneys clean, drives out the poisonous acids, and heals the deadly inflammation. That is the only way to rid yourself of your bachache and have strong, sound kidneys. Mrs. Paul St. Onge, wife of a well known contractor at St. Alexis des Monts, Que., says: "I suffered for upwards of six years from kidney trouble. I had dull, aching pains across the loins, and at times could hardly go about. I lost flesh, had dark rims below my eyes, and grew more wretched every day. I was treated by different doctors, but with no apparent result. I despaired of regaining my health, and was becoming a burden to my family. I was in a deplorable condition when one of my friends advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began taking them, and after using three or four boxes, I began to feel better. I continued the treatment for nearly three months, when every symptom of the trouble had vanished and I was again a well woman. I feel justified in saying I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life."

New blood—strong, pure, rich blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make, cures not only kidney trouble, but a host of other ailments, such as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, erysipelas, St. Vitus dance, locomotor ataxia, paralysis, and the secret ailments women do not like to talk about, even to their doctor. But only the genuine pills can bring health and strength, and these have the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" printed on the wrapper around each box. If your dealer does not keep the genuine pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STEEL COMPANY BOUGHT.

New York, Nov. 17.—The Railway Steel Spring Company announces that it has closed negotiations for the purchase of the Latrobe Steel Company at Latrobe, Pa. The purchase will be financed by an issue of $4,500,000 of five per cent. bonds of the Railway Steel Spring Company. The Latrobe Steel Company manufacturers principally steel tires for car and locomotive wheels

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate-coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers," will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

National Airs,
God Save the King.

The committee of management of the society respectfully request absolute silence during the performance of each item. The Symphony Society have given considerable time and trouble to the preparation of the orchestral pieces and the effects will be much impaired if not entirely lost unless strict silence be preserved by the audience. The plan of the Auditorium is rapidly filling and those who wish to secure good seats should lose no time in doing so. The concert bids fair to eclipse all previous efforts of the Society. The orchestra is more numerous, the parts well balanced and attention given to shading and finish. The concert will begin as usual at 8.15 p.m. precisely, and will last about two hours.

POLICEMAN HELD UP.

Granby, Nov. 17 — Policeman Mc Curdy, while on his nightly rounds was held up by three armed men near A. C. Savage's store on Saturday morning at about two o'clock. On approaching the parties who were bunched on the sidewalk, McCurdy's hand instinctively glided around to his pistol pocket, and at the summons "hands up," he whipped out his gun and covered them. Although not lacking in valor, having had his baptism of fire at Trent River in '66 McCurdy deemed discretion the better part and gradually backing off until he reached a street corner, all the time keeping the villains well covered with his gun, turned and made pretty good time to the Town Hall, where he aroused his mate policeman, Ball, who, arming himself with a Snider rifle, the two advanced in good order, only to find that the rascals had beaten a retreat. Mr. McCurdy thinks that they were sneak thieves who were looking the ground over in the vicinity of Savage's store with a view to future operations.

Hospital Employes Resent an Order

NEW BROOMS SWEEP CLEAN

A Strike Threatened as a Result of the New Order of Things---Queer Situation in American Town.

Cincinnati, Nov. 17.—Women employees of the city hospital are in revolt against a rule just promulgated that they must wear corsets or lose their jobs. The jobs call for a payment of from $5 to $15 a month.

Housekeeper McGee, installed as head of affairs only three days ago, is said to be responsible for the order that caused the uprising. She called the workers to her room yesterday and made this declaration:

"Women of the hospital staff, I am very much alarmed at the condition of affairs that I have noticed. None of you wear corsets while at work. Now, this tends to slovenly habits, which I will have none of while I am in charge here. You must wear corsets or take the consequences."

Most of the workers were struggling vainly to-day with those things that have caged women since the time that styles ruled womanhood. Mopping the floors, serving the meals and doing the general work that needs the free use of the body were becorsseted, moaning women. Worst of all were the women in the laundry incased in the steel ribs. A strike is threatened unless the rules are rescinded or radically modified.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

ULTIMATUM TO THE PORTE.

London, Nov. 17.—It was ascertained at the Foreign Office this afternoon that the Ambassadors of the powers at Constantinople to-day presented a joint ultimatum to the Porte. The other powers did not agree to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne's proposals that the powers assume judicial as well as financial control of Macedonia, and that the control be extended to the vilayet of Adrianople, which was not included in the original reform scheme.

The ultimatum, as presented, in addition to the financial control of Macedonia, demands a two years' extension of the term of office of the Austrian and Russian civil agents, and of the officers of the European gendarmerie.

The Porte has been given twenty-four hours in which to reply. A refusal is expected, and consequently all powers except Germany, which will not participate, are preparing to despatch two vessels each to rendezvous at Piraeus in the course of the coming week. An Austrian Admiral will command the international fleet.

GERMAN NAVAL BILL.

Berlin, Nov. 17.—The Federal Council to-day adopted the navy increase bill which will be laid before the Reichstag at its next session. It provides for the increase of the present building plan by six large cruisers and for the raising of the number of torpedo divisions from 16 to 24. The entire additional cost up to the year 1916 will be $41,250,000. The naval appropriation bill is published. In the abstract it provides for an increase in the size and armament of the vessels hitherto voted, making the cost of the battleship $9,000,000 instead of $6,250,000. The report explains the increased size and cost of the ships already voted as being due to the lessons taught by the Russo-Japanese war. The new torpedo boats for the same reason will also be larger. The appropriation bill also proviues $1,250,000 to continue experimenting with sub-marine boats, etc.

GOT MONEY WHILE SICK.

St. Catharines, Nov. 17 — An interesting suit was tried in the Division Court to-day by Judge Carman. Some time ago when John M. Peart was employed by Albert Chatfield, plumber, here, he fell ill with typhoid fever, and for six weeks was in the hospital. During that time, once a week, Chatfield sent Peart $10, in all $60.

Some time after his recovery Peart left Chatfield's employ and started business for himself. Chatfield demanded the return of his $60, but his former employe refused to give it up, so Chatfield brought suit. The Judge to-day found in favor of Chatfield and ordered Peart to pay back the $60. The defence held the money was a gift, but the Judge took the view that as Peart had not earned the money he was not entitled to it.

INVESTIGATION OF THE CAR SHORTAGE

First Order Issued by the Railway Commission

THE GRAND TRUNK GUILTY

Of Discriminating in Favor of Shipments from Montreal and Portland.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The Railway Commission yesterday issued the first order in reference to the car shortage investigation.

The order is made to the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada and its purpose is to prevent discrimination as was alleged by the Dominion Millers' Association in letters to the board.

The present judgment simply deals with one feature of the car shortage situation, which, in view of the early close of navigation, was taken up first. The enquiry into the complaint of alleged shortage of equipment generally is being prosecuted.

The text of the judgment is as follows:—

"In the matter of the complaint of the Dominion Millers' Association, under the Railway Act, 1903, to the Board as set out in letters to the Board of the 14th and 22nd September, A.D. 1905, against the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, alleging delay in the shipment of ex'lake grain from the Georgian Bay and Lake Huron elevator ports and discrimination in favor of exporters as against the millers of Ontario in the allotment of empty cars for such grain.

"This complaint having come on for hearing before the Board at the City of Montreal, in the Province of Quebec, on Thursday, the 9th day of November, A.D. 1905, in presence of counsel for the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada and the representatives of the Dominion Millers' Association and the Shipping Federation of Canada; upon reading the order of the Board bearing date the 25th day of October, A.D. 1905, directing the Chief Traffic Officer of the Board, among other things, to inquire respecting alleged discrimination by the Grand Trunk Railway Company in the distribution or allottment of its freight cars; and upon reading the reports of the Chief Traffic Officer of the Board bearing date respectively the 6th day of November, 1905, and the 13th of November, 1905; and it appearing that the Grand Trunk Railway Company, in the distribution and allottment of its freight cars for the carriage of grain brought by lake shipments to certain points on its system, has discriminated unjustly, and is continuing and proposes to continue to discriminate unjustly against the flour milling industry in the Province of Ontario and in favor of shipments for export from Montreal, in Canada, and Portland, in the State of Maine, in the United States of America."

Now, therefore, the board doth order that if at any time after notice of this order, and before the 31st day of January next, the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada fails to furnish, at any of the following points on its system, namely, Midland, Collingwood, Meaford and Point Edward, all in the Province of Ontario, sufficient empty cars to fill all shipping orders then on file with the said company at such points, such cars as are furnished shall be apportioned among such shipping orders which have been then so filed for more than one day, at such port, in the order of filing until one car has been allotted to each order, after which the remaining cars, if any, shall be apportioned pro rata among the remainder of such orders which have been so on file for more than one day and which have not then been filled. This operation shall be repeated from day to day so long as the supply of cars is less than the requirements.

Provided, always, that the railway company may be allowed to utilize its equipment by departing from the order of filing as aforesaid:—

(a) So as to furnish loads of suitable weight for cars of capacity of less than thirty tons each which would otherwise be idle while waiting their turn;

(b) To furnish loads for cars so defective as to be unfit for the carriage of grain in bulk and,

(c) To clear elevator bins of remnants of grain when such bins are required during open navigation for the immediate reception of grain of another kind or grade for which other bins are not available, the total of such remnants not to exceed three carloads on any one day from any one bin.

That no shipping order for grain shall be considered to have been properly filled under the foregoing provisions until the grain is in the elevator from which it is to be shipped, or in a ship or vessel then in actual process of unloading into such elevator.

A LITTLE TYRANT.

There is no tyrant like a teething baby. The temper isn't due to original sin; the little one suffers worse than the rest of the family. He doesn't know what is the matter—they do. But baby need not suffer longer than it takes to make him well, if the mother will give him Baby's Own Tablets. They ease the tender gums and bring the teeth through painlessly and without tears. Mrs. C. Connolly, St. Laurent, Man., says: "Some months ago my little girl's health became so bad that we felt very anxious. She was teething and suffered so much that we did not know what to do for her. I was advised to try Baby's Own Tablets, and from almost the first dose she began to improve, and there was no further trouble. She is now in the best of health, thanks to the Tablets." The Tablets cure all the minor ailments of children, and are a blessing to both mother and child. They always do good—they cannot possibly do harm. Try them and you will use no other medicine for your little one. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mrs. Murphy's advertisement announces that her stock is now replete with all the latest novelties in millinery, blouses, dress skirts and other goods. Call and see her. She is always pleased to show you her goods.

What Flour Granulation Means in Bread-Making

Flour is composed of myriads of tiny granules.

To make good bread these granules must be uniform in size.

In poorly milled flour some granules are large, some small.

The small ones absorb yeast, "rise" and "ripen" before the large ones—the result is bread of coarse, poor texture.

The large granules are not developed into "sponge," they bake into heavy hard particles, spoil the texture of the bread and make it harder to digest.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is perfectly milled—all the flour granules are uniform in size—the sponge rises uniformly—the bread is even in texture — perfect in flavor — good-looking, appetising bread — easily digested.

Ogilvies back it with their reputation by branding it

MADAME BEATRICE LANGLEY,

And the Grand English Concert Company.

Every one of our readers who already heard Madame Beatrice Langley when she visited Quebec with Madame Albani would dearly like to hear her again if the occasion was offered. The beautiful artist is now in America for a series of performances which will last until January 29th, when she will appear in Boston, Mass., before returning to Europe. Just before leaving England to come out Madame Langley appeared with the celebrated Wood's orchestra, at Queen's Hall, London, and her playing created quite a furore. As a violinist Madame Langley and Marie Hall are the two most distinguished performers in the musical world. Her performance is especially distinguished for its rich and powerful tone—in this respect she stands alone. All those who witness her playing are struck with the graceful ease with which she overcomes the greatest technical difficulties, her attractive appearance, her queenly elegance and more so with the warmth of her interpretation and the manly yet sensuous tone she draws out of her violin, a gem which costs in the thousands. Madame Langley is a daughter of Colonel Langley and a granddaughter of the well-known Sir William Mitchell, the inventor of the international code of signals.

THE U.S. DRUG COMBINES.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17.—In the suit of C. G. A. Loder against the National Associations' of Wholesale and Retail Druggists, and the Philadelphia Association of Druggists, before Judge Holland in the United States Circuit Court to-day statistics were produced by counsel to the plaintiff to show that during the past six years the public has paid $96,000,000 in increased prices for drugs. Mr. Toder, who is a cut rate druggist, is asking $100,000 damages for an alleged conspiracy on the part of the defendants to ruin his business. Clayton F. Shoemaker, senior member of the wholesale firm of Shoemaker and Busch, had testified that to some extent his refusal to supply a cut rate druggist was due to his sympathy for the small retailer. counsel for Mr. Loder then produced figures and asked him where was his sympathy for the consumers who, the lawyer declared had paid $16,000,000 more annually for medicine during the six years since the combination of wholesale druggists was effected. Mr. Shoemaker said he did not believe the figures.

SUBSCRIBERS.

It is proper, we believe, to remind the subscribers to the series of orchestral performances to be given at the Auditorium by the Quebec Symphony Society that they would act wisely in securing at once their subscribers card at A. Lavigne's music and piano warerooms, 68 St. John street, if they want to benefit by the advantages granted to subscribers. The first performance of the series taking place on Monday evening next, there remains but little time to see to that detail and it should be attended to without delay. The reports from the Auditorium informs us that all the boxes have been secured by society leaders and nearly a good half of the reserved seats have already been disposed of. The Auditorium, on Monday evening, will truly present a brilliant spectacle very seldom witnessed when the curtain will be raised.

FASHIONS IN FURS

Some Seasonable Hints in Regard to These and Other Garments.

The newest material for afternoon frocks is silk crepon. A beautiful model made of the same is cut on princess lines, the skirt flowing freely at the hem, and the bounce arranged with capelike effect falling from a yoke of lace. The sole trimming is a folded ruching of the crepon, relieved by a bow of black velvet on the butterfly sleeves, which are adorned with the long, tight undersleeves of lace that now finishes all elbow sleeves.

Dahlia brown of a rich hue, violet of every imaginable tint, wine color, and a pecular shade of soft mignonette green, are the favorite colors this season, both for costumes and millinery. Hats for afternoon wear are getting bigger and the brims are mostly lined with contrasting shade. Dyed swan's wings, colored grebe and pliant jet quills, as well as jet chrysanthemums and dhalias are among the novelties used for trimming. Ostrich feathers are more popular than ever combined with ribbon velvet bows, white rosettes in shaded silks and velvets are greatly in evidence on hats for morning wear. Long hanging veils are pictured in fashion papers and shown at every milliner's, but seldom seen in the streets, and it is doubtful whether these draped scarfs will ever be properly appreciated by English women.

A smart hat for autumn wear is of the modernized French sailor shape, made of white felt, banked behind with deep colored roses and trimmed with two bands of ermine around the crown, crossed in front and decorated with the animal's heads.

The fact that her royal highness the Princess of Wales, has ordered several handsome brocades for use in India is sure to influence the coming fashions in evening gowns.

Ermine is a little out of favor, perhaps, because it has been so cheaply and, on the whole so well imitated; still it is used, especially in the more dressy forms of neckties and boleros. A dainty blouse coat of this fur is finished with points of Irish lace, resting on a high belt of white chiffon cloth. The fur sleeves finishes just below the elbow with points of lace, which connect it with the close cloth undersleeves.

No fur has the decorative qualities of ermine when used as a trimming or in combination with some other skin. It seems particularly to throw out the beauty of sable, and a newer combination is chinchilla and ermine. There is a distinct revival of interest in chinchilla, and some of the most stylish garments are made of it, as for instance a three-quarte(Directoire coat. In this case the grey fur is well set off by collar, revers and flaring cuffs of ermine.

White fox is much in favor for long boas and big muffs, as is also the silver and pointed fox. However, the white is first choice if it is becoming. A handsome set is a combination of the white and the silver fox. The muff, a huge affair, is white fox with a brush in the center, with a silver skin and brush on either side. The neckpiece has the white fur hanging in thick, rounded points to the knees, with silver fox on each side, making an extension over the shoulders. The heads of the darker skins are put on about at the waist line in front, and the two brushes meet behind.

One of the handsomest models seen this season is a long pelerine of Russian sable in a foundation of ermine, the darker skins hanging in long tails over the white fur. Over the shoulders this garment reaches the elbows, while in front it almost touches the hem of the skirt. Another handsome model in a jacket covering the hips, and made in the short waisted fashion of chinchilla trimmed with silver and white fancy braid.

The handsomest thing seen in the way of a Directoire coat is of a fine silky black broadtail trimmed with white broadtail, embroidered in lines of black chenille. The garment consists of a bolero, short in the back, but dropping to a little below the waist line in front, bound all about with a like of the white fur. The skirts which reach to somewhat below the knees fall from under this; the fronts are rounded and flaring and the back is laid in broad side pleats. The collar and pointed revers are faced with white fur, striped with black embroidery, in which there is a line or two of gold, and the front of the bolero is apparently closed by three smart fur bows. The sleeve is set in the shoulders with side pleats and has a turn-up cuff, with extension cuff of the embroidered white skin.

Muffs are exceedingly large this season, a fact due probably to the present fashion of making outside garments with short sleeves. There are some big, round muffs, especially in fox, but in the short skins the square flat shape is the best style Some of the bag muffs are still seen, but they also are very large. Muffs are much decorated with heads and tails, but lace and artificial flowers are not now used in this connection.

Fur-lined coats covering the dress skirt are not particularly smart features, yet, nevertheless, are most important in a winter wardrobe. Now that every one motors a little, a loose warm garment is absolutely necessary and these fur-lined ones may be smart if they are carefully cut on the half-fitted order and finished with handsome storm collar and big cuffs. There are also some new skins, short haired, brown and shiny, that are made up in paletots and in long fitted coats for the automobile.

About THE House

Winter is drawing near, and people with kitchen boilers had better take care.

In most houses there are service pipes exposed to the frosty air. Hence the dreadful explosions we hear of.

Old newspapers wrapped round pipes are excellent for protecting them from frost. It is also a good thing to keep the taps "dripping" slightly all night, but a bad thing of course, to let the water company know what you're up to.

Newspapers stitched together are also an excellent substitute for blankets. Cut into squares, they save dusters. Laid under carpets they prolong the life of the article above them.

As to stair carpets, every housewife does not know that most houses furnishers supply "pads" to place underneath them. These not only make the carpet wear much longer, but make the "tread" beautifully soft.

All doors, by the way, ought to be shut, the windows open when carpets are being swept and the dust allowed to settle before the furniture is dusted.

Wallpapers too, that have been up three years or so are wonderfully improved by "breading."

Take the crub out of a stale loaf, cut it in thick slices, and rub it gently over the walls, having previously dusted them with clean cloths. The bread will remove the dirt and restore the colors in a wonderful way. In Germany this method is employed for disinfecting a room after cases of infectious disease.

How many servants, in lighting a fire, fail to jam half a newspaper in under the sticks anyhow?

This is wrong. The paper should be rolled lightly in balls.

How many people, again, know that coal, like human beings, is the better for fresh air and that if coke be damped with a few buckets of water it will burn the hotter and brighter?

Books even want to breathe. All bookcase doors should be opened every now and then to let in the light and to change the air. This also gives the maggots less chance.

Camphor, pimento berries, and the like are insufficient in themselves to keep away from clothes such creatures as moths. That this is so has been proved by moths being hatched in an atmosphere impregnated with these substances. Kill every flying moth you see about.

Take your things stored for the winter frequently out of their boxes and brush and air them well. Use camphor as well if you like. You have then done all you can do.

As to rats, if builders do their duty they would give solid foundations to houses and cut off the approach of these pests by grating the drains. There would then be no rats.

If you are building a house see to this, and also that all open spaces beneath pavements and in walls and partitions are filled up. There will then be no mice. If you are about to enter a house as a tenant only, the thing you can do is to get these things attended to as far as possible.

One thing you can do at once, if you haven't done so already.

Sweep last season's flies from the chandeliers and out of the corners. They're not all dead yet, and if you don't throw them on the fire at once some of them will probably revive again as soon as the winter months are over.

Always place a wet umbrella handle down; and if you are in want of an extra latchkey, take the one you are using to a locksmith, and he will make you a duplicate for a shilling or less.

Creaking doors are easily remedied. A common lead pencil applied to the hinges makes an excellent lubricant, and if this won't suffice, it is surprising what a tiny touch of oil will do Dip your finger in the oil if you like, and apply it to the offending hinge.

To prevent a lamp smoking, soak the wick in vinegar, and dry well before using.

If your chimney is on fire throw a few handfuls of salt on the flames. If the domestic uses a foul "dishcloth", burn it; it is infested with microbes.

Speaking of microbes, what about hearthrugs, especially those cloth affairs made of what are known as "tabs"? These are abominations. Have no hearthrugs but what can be easily cleaned.

Men's clothes, too. Do men realize how dirty, in a sense, they are in their manner of dress? Women are much better off in this respect. Men should send their clothes to the cleaners a great deal oftener than they do.

Don't toast with table-knives. It takes the temper out of steel.

Sleep in all beds. It is dangerous to be got to. If you have spare beds sleep in them in turn.

INTERCHURCH CONFERENCE

New York, Nov. 16.—Three largely attended meetings in Carnegie Hall marked the second day of the Inter-Church Conference on Federation. The speakers at morning, afternoon and evening sessions being men of national prominence and noted Christian workers. John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, delivered an address on Sunday School work at the afternoon session pointing out that the success of these schools is largely due to the union of churches in their direction. Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, attacked the Sunday newspapers.

BY GOOD COOKING

This Woman Retrieved Her Family's Fallen Fortunes.

An American heroine, who would resent the telling of her uncommon pluck and may only be indicated so far as to reveal that her dearest friends live in Winnetka, Ill., is perhaps an example of the most remarkable industry and endurance in the annals of our humankind. She is an Eastern woman of a family once rich and proud, who found themselves in poverty and debt. They were four—an invalid mother, the heroine, two useless and complaining sisters, and she was no longer in the first flush of youth, for she was past 30 when she took up the burden for them all.

It was the heroine who called a halt in their unheeding disregard of impending ruin, for her sisters would have gone on in their fashionable routine, contenting themselves with no more substantial base of living than the traditions of the family wealth, and culture, and prominence. Nor, when the oldest sister asked their aid by suggestions or ideas, had either of them anything to impart but to go on in debt, their credit not being yet exhausted.

FACING RUIN AND DEBT.

The house they lived in already was mortgaged up to the eaves, and they owed $5,000 for food and clothing.

That the invalid mother could do anything more than exist languidly surrounded by luxuries gained by the endeavor of others, was not to be thought of. The sisters declared there was nothing they could do in the way of earning, and they could not threaten suicide, for that meant disgrace—the sharper horn of the dilemma. There was only the same old refuge for the shabby genteel—to keep a boarding-house.

At the suggestion of the elder sister the others sent up a wail in chorus. But the heroine was firm. She, like her sisters, had led an ultra-fashionable life, and knew nothing about housekeeping, but she lifted her task up bravely, and set herself to learn it in that expensive school, experience. Having secured more time in the matter on the mortgage, she began to learn to cook. Her quick discovery that she had a genius for cooking was the first stroke of good fortune. She knew enough about human nature to be confident that the house that served the best food deliciously cooked would beat all the others in the race. And she did not cudgel her brain to devise meals at a low rate for such as would pay no more. But the task she set herself was to prepare food better than any one else in their town, for those who would pay for food in every way the most desirable. A terrible logic was born of her trial. She reasoned from observation that if people would pay high prices for nothing else, they would not spare for the nicest things to eat.

Having made progress in the perfection of many menus for weeks ahead, she set about finding the people she desired in her house and visited such; all of them solid in reputation and responsible in money matters. She was successful at the outset in finding many to meet her own views half way; that better health is secured by well cooked and attractive food; thereby anticipating the specialists in housekeeping by a decade.

GOOD COOKING BRINGS SUCCESS.

Her house soon filled. She had as first capital, herself as cook, and such a cook as would have been worth $3,000 a year to any first class hotel. It is not easy, at any price, to get a cook of the same degree of skill to to which she soon attained. The house prospered. Her labor yielded rich results—the first of ideal housekeeping, exquisite cooking, and rare administrative ability. She contracted a painful complaint owing to her incessant care and overwork. And, although from this time on, she never knew a day or night free from pain, yet she stuck bravely to her tasks, never flagging in energy and adding a summer hotel to her first enterprise. This was in a wealthy and exclusive east coast resort, where she pursued the same policy for a few and desirable people to a larger number, less fastidious. Again in this she prospered From the outset she had the rare wisdow to choose capable servants and to pay them well—more than they could have secured anywhere else, besides giving them pleasant rooms and good food. As a matter of course, her servants remained with her. And so she lived her hard working self-denying life; never free from pain, but working and winning for fourteen years.

Her lingering illness, long neglected, culminated in an attack which rendered it necessary that she should go to a private hospital for treatment. She rallied quickly and is now restored to health and hope and a newer fresh life. She can count as gains the payment of the mortgage on her home, the $5,000 of debt, the safely moving business of the town house and the summer hotel, and funds in bank to the amount of $30,000.

QUEBEC COMMAND

The Limits of the Different Military Districts Defined.

Militia orders have been issued at Ottawa giving the following limits for the Quebec command:

Military District No. 5 — The counties of Jacques Cartier, Hochelaga, Laval, Vaudreuil, Soulanges, Napierville, Beauharnois, Chateauguay, Huntingdon, Laprairie, Argenteuil, Terrebonne, Two Mountains, Montcalm, L'Assomption, Joliette, Berthier, Maskinonge, St. Maurice and Three Rivers.

Military District No. 6—The counties of St. Johns, Iberville, Missisquoi, Brome, Shefford, Rouville, Chambly, Vercheres, St. Hyacinthe, Bagot, Drummond, Richelieu, Yamaska, Nicolet, Arthabaska, Wolfe, Richmond, Sherbrooke, Stanstead and Compton.

Military District No. 7—The counties of Beauce, Bellechasse, Bonaventure, Dotchester, Gaspe, Kamouraska, Levis, L'Islet, Champlain, Charlevoix, Chicoutimi, Montmorency, Quebec, Portneuf, Saguenay, Lotbiniere, Montmagny, Megantic, Rimouski, Temiscouata.

SCARLET FEVER.

There are reported to be a number of cases of scarlet fever in the city at present, there being several at Jeffery Hale Hospital. Parents, as well as the school authorities, would do well to take due precautions with a view to preventing their children from being exposed to contagion.

PRESENTATION.

A number of friends of Mr. T. Murphy assembled in Tara Hall last evening and presented him with a very handsome testimonial in the shape of a fat purse. An address was read congratulating him on his approaching marriage to Miss Annie Mullins.

LEG FRACTURED.

Wilfrid Laroche, of St. Antoine, Lotiniere, employed as a sailor on the steamer Etoile, met with a serious accident at Cap Sante a day or two ago. When the boat reached the wharf there, the young man had his left leg caught in the rope with which the vessel was being moored, and before it could be released the limb was fractured.

BEFORE THE COURTS.

In the Recorder's Court yesterday a sailor of the steamer Virginian appeared on a charge of drunkenness and breaking a pane of glass in a saloon in Dalhousie street. Upon payment of damages caused, he was allowed to go. A laborer, for drunkenness, was fined $5 and costs or 15 days, while another laborer, on the same charge, fared more fortunately in being discharged.

An assault case from Beauport between boys was heard in the Police Court, the defendant pleading guilty and a fine being imposed. An investigation into the charge of assault preferred against a defendant already undergoing a sentence for disorderly conduct was begun, but adjourned until Monday.

THE LATE R. P. BOISSEAU.

The funeral of the late Mr. Roch Paschal Boisseau took place yesterday morning from his late residence to the Basilica, a large concourse of mourners being in attendance. A numerous delegation of St. Jean Baptiste Society, with banner draped, preceded the hearse. The chief mourners were the four sons of the deceased, Messrs. Roch Boisseau, Montreal, Eudore Boisseau, Baie St. Paul, Pierre Boisseau, Granby, and Raoul Boisseau, of this city, beside a number of other mourners. The church was heavily draped in mourning and duing the service Dr. Fiset sang "Pie Jesu." Revd. Cure Faguy officiated at the solemn requiem mass, with Rev. Fathers Laflamme and Lemay assisting. The interment took place at St. Charles Cemetery.

MASKED

An Enemy Masquerades as Friend.

It seemed almost incredible to the lady who writes from Clintonville, Conn., that coffee caused the physical ailments from which she had so long suffered.

In such cases the real cause is often the one least suspected, and one is loth to believe that the mask of friendship has hidden the face of a relentless foe.

"I had suffered much for years from nervous troubles which finally affected me that my whole system was run down, I grew pale and emaciated and had to practically give up domestic duties. The doctor did his best with me, but after two years faithful ministration was compelled to admit that he had done me no good. I almost despaired of ever being any better.

"September, 1903, will never be forgotten by me, for it was in that month that my emancipation, accomplished through the use of Postum Food Coffee after I had entirely quit the old kind, commenced. I shall always remember the date with gratitude.

"My improvement was a cause of wondering—almost incredulous rejoicing, to not only myself but my friends as well, so rapid and so great was it. I positively feared it would not last. My nerves quieted down and became steady and firm, the old headaches that used to follow any extra exertion ceased to trouble me, my weight increased and soon became greater than ever before, my mental powers grew more active and accurate, and the fresh glow came back to my cheeks, renewing the complexion of healthy girlhood.

"I cannot tell you how glad I was at the splendid change that Postum wrought in my condition, nor how I prize it for the good it continues to do me. We were out of it a week or so not long ago and used the old kind of coffee instead, for several days. All my bad symptoms began to return to trouble me, and it seemed like an old friend back again when I found the cup of Postum once more smoking and fragrant, on the board. It is food and drink to me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

A PLEASANT EVENT

Presentation to Mr. W. Langford at Moutmorency Falls Last Evening.

A very pleasant event took place at the Kent House last evening, when the employes of the Power and Dam Divisions of the Quebec Railway, Light & Power Company, who had planned a happy little surprise for Mr. William Langford, the master mechanic and superintendent of the Montmorency Power Division, waited upon that popular and highly esteemed gentleman and presented him with a magnificent testimony of their good will in the shape of a handsome and costly racoon coat. Accompanying it was a very neat address, setting forth the great respect and esteem for Mr. Langford which is felt by one and all of the employes and the cordial relations existing between them. There was a large attendance and the greatest of enthusiasm prevailed, Mr. Langford being greeted with loud cheers. The Montmorency band was also present, and added much enjoyment to the occasion, rendering "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and other appropriate selections. The address accompanying the gift was as follows:—

Montmorency, Nov. 17, 1905

To William Langford, Esq.,

Master Mechanic and Superintendent Montmorency Power Division.

The employees of the Power and Dam Divisions of the Quebec Railway, Light & Power Company consider that they would fail in the performance of an important and imperative duty, if they did not give expression in some way to their deep appreciation of your sterling worth and loyalty as a man, and to their grateful acknowledgment of the constant kindness and brotherly consideration, which they have received from you as their superintendent and division head. Without abating in the smallest degree at any time your keen concern and vigilance for the interests of the company, without depeciating in any sense, the respect due to the important position of trust, which you occupy as their superior by right of your ability, your experience and your thorough knowledge of your business, you have ever proved yourself to be their loyal and thoughtful friend, and it is a real pleasure to them to work under your directions and to carry out your orders. They have done so in the past, and they hope to do so in the future with an alacrity and efficiency begotten not so much of their respect for you as their boss as of their regard for you as a leader, who knows what he is about, and who never asks his fellowman to tackle a job or face a danger, that he is not ready to tackle or to face himself.

Under the circumstances, they desire to mark in some tangible way the feelings of esteem and gratefulness, which they entertain towards you and it has occurred to them that they could not do so better than by respectfully asking you to accept this fur coat as a slight token of their deep regard for you. It is not only appropriate to the season upon which we are entering, but they trust that it will prove a source of comfort to you in the arduous work in which you will be engaged during the severest period of the year.

They would also respectfully associate in their best wishes for your health and prosperity, your excellent wife and family, whom they pray the Almighty to long preserve in peace, comfort and happiness.

On behalf of the employees.

(Signed) T. E. WADE,
PHILIAS GIROUX.

Mr. Langford was taken completely by surprise, not having had the slightest hint of what was in store for him when summoned to be present at Kent House. He managed, however, to thank the donors for their generosity and spoke most feelingly of the good understanding which had always existed between the employes and himself, and which he was sure would continue to exist. At the conclusion of the ceremony refreshments were served and a very pleasant time was spent by everyone, after which a procession was formed, headed by the band, and Mr. Langford was escorted to the car.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY.

We are informed that the anniversary service of this Society will be held in Chalmer's Church on the evening of Sunday, the 26th instant.

DRILL HALL SQUARE.

The Minister of Public Works has given instructions to have the ground in front of the Drill Hall, occupied by the Joseph property, levelled and placed in order.

STREET COLLISION.

Yesterday morning the cart of a milkman named Antoine Dumas, of St Joseph de Levis, came into collision with an electric car at the corner of St. Peter and Laplace streets, the latter being the thoroughfare crossing St Peter street from Notre-Dame street to the Finlay Market, and a very dangerous corner. The milkman was crossing the street when his vehicle was struck. The cart was thrown against a window and much damaged and the milkman had his hand badly cut by broken glass.

SUDDEN DEATH.

A young woman named Mrs. Eug. Harris, wife of a plumber residing at 114 Dorchester street, dropped dead last evening after entering her home. She had been calling on a neighbor next door and left there for her own house shortly after nine o'clock. Some time later she was found lying dead in the hallway of the house, having apparently dropped dead just after having closed the door behind her. Mrs. Harris, who was a daughter of Mr. Jobin, of L'Evenement, was only 26 years of age, and had seemingly been in the enjoyment of her usual health last evening before she left home and while visiting her neighbor, having spent the early part of the evening with some of her relatives at her home.

ENJOYABLE TIME.

The first of Prof. Macdonald's select dancing assemblies took place at the Auditorium last evening and was most successful and enjoyable. The attendance was large, and good music and the splendid floor contributed much to the pleasure of the dancers. Prof. Macdonald had left nothing undone to make the opening event one of thorough enjoyment, and in this he admirably succeeded, as all present had nothing but words of praise for the very agreeable nature of the assembly and the successful manner in which it was carried out.

FRATERNAL CLUB.

The pleasant social gatherings of the popular Fraternal Club were inagurated at its rooms in the Masonic Building last evening. The club has won a well-deserved position among the social organizations of the Ancient Capital for the enjoyable characters of its various entertainments throughout the winter season. The coming season bids fair to be one of the most successful in the club's history and the membership are looking forward with much anticipation to the excellent programme of the club during the winter months.

Freight or express charges are repaid on all orders of $25 or over. This morning's advertisement contains news of much interest to both ladies' and gentlemen and should be carefully read by all who desire to secure the very best at the very lowest rates. Read Simpson's adv. without fail.

CARRIER, LAINE & CO. ASSIGNMENT.

In the matter of Carrier, Laine & Cie, debtors, Charles Henri Carrier, of Levis, manufacturer, and member of the commercial firm of Carrier, Laine & Cie, debtors, has declared that he consents to make an abandonment to the creditors of said firm as to his share, to wit—Five-fifths of the property of said firm. In the said matter, one of the members of the firm, Joseph Edmond Roy, tutor to the minor children of the late Omer Carrier, prays by petition for delay as to himself, to answer the demand of assignment, so that he may take and have homologated the advice of the family council, and govern himself accordingly upon the conditions imposed by the court.

AN AWFUL TRAGEDY

Further Details of the Attempted Murder and Suicide at St. Apolline.

"That Alexandre Laprise committed suicide with a firearm during a moment of mental alienation," was the verdict of the jury in the inquest held by Coroner Gosselin in the St. Apolline, County of Montmagny, tragedy.

Later details of the tragic occurrence which has stirred the hitherto peaceful village to a state of great excitement show that the first news of the happening was somewhat inexact. The name of the victim was A. Laprise and not Labrie. He was about 40 years of age, and the father of five children, the eldest of whom is eight years and the youngest two years. Laprise made but a poor living out of the ground and was in a state of much poverty, in addition to which much domestic discord prevailed in his home. Laprise was blessed with a good wife, devoted to him and his children, but he was somewhat jealous of his wife and as a result he made frequent scenes with his wife and threatened her. On the morning of the tragedy, Madame Laprise prepared dinner at the usual hour, but Laprise appeared preoccupied and showed no disposition to partake of the meal served up for him. Upon being asked if he was not feeling well, he made no reply, but left the house in a hurry. Madame Laprise did not pay much attention to her husband's action, thinking he was in bad humor. She observed him walking around the house and approaching closer and closer to the kitchen window. A few seconds later he entered the house in a furious rage and brandishing a razor, he threw himself upon his wife and seized her by the throat as if he intended to strangle her. He threw her violently to the ground and struck her blow after blow with the razor. Fortunately she was not seriously injured owing to the intervention of the grandfather, an old man of 80, who went to her assistance. The old man, who was sitting in a corner of the kitchen when Laprise entered the room and attacked his wife, jumped from his chair and seized the younger man by the arm, thus breaking the force of his blows. But for his prompt action, Mrs. Laprise would without doubt have had her throat cut from ear to ear. Covered with blood from her wounds she managed, with the assistance of the old man, to disengage herself from the grasp of her husband and ran from the house shrieking "Save my children." taking refuge with a neighbor. Laprise, no doubt, thinking that he had mortally wounded his wife, left the house precipitately after securing an old gun, and directed his steps toward the barn, about 300 feet from the house. Here he fired the charge from the firearm into his brain, death being instantaneous. Finding the barrel of the rifle too long to allow him reach the trigger, the man had utilized a broom handle for the purpose of discharging the gun, the muzzle of which he had placed against his ear. The whole charge traversed the head, inflicting a fearful wound, and when the neighbors arrived the unfortunate man was found bathed in blood and inanimate. The body was conveyed to the house. The kitchen, where the first part of the tragedy had taken place, presented a sad spectacle, the furniture being overturned and the floor covered with blood. The Coroner later held an inquest on the remains with the result noted above. Madame Laprise is still confined to her bed at the neighbor's house, where she had taken refuge, and is completely unnerved by the terrible occurrence. Drs. Cote and Cloutier, of Cap St. Ignace, and Sherrier, of St. Philomen, attended to her injuries. The fact that the woman is about to become a mother also adds to the anxiety as to her condition.

CUBAN MINISTER TO THE U. S.

Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States.

Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States, is an orator born. In an article in The Outlook for July, 1899, by George Kennan, who heard Quesada speak at the Esteban Theater, Mantanzas, Cuba, he said: "I have seen many audiences under the spell of eloquent speech and in the grip of strong emotional excitement; but I have rarely witnessed such a scene as at the close of Quesada's eulogy upon the dead patriot, Marti." In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, written from Washington, D. C., Senor Quesada says:

"Peruna I can recommend as a very good medicine. It is an excellent strengthening tonic, and it is also an efficacious cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—Gonzalo De Quesada.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead, of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his endorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

There is but a single medicine which is a radical specific for catarrh. It is Peruna, which has stood a half century test and cured thousands of cases.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Semi-ready tailors do but one thing—but they do that perfectly.

Merchant tailors cannot tailor by the Semi-ready method ----clothing manufacturers won't, it would cost them too much.

Semi-ready garments are tailored by teams of experts. Each tailor is a specialist, working only on that part of a garment at which he is a master.

Thus each Semi-ready garment passes through the hands of about 35 different experts. Each tailors only that part which he can do best, so that the completed garment is the perfection of high class tailoring in every detail. 514

Superfluous Hair

Removed by the New Principle,

De Miracle

It is better than electricity, because it does not scar or produce a new growth. Better than X-ray, because it does not burn, scar or paralyze the tissues under the skin. Better than depilatories, because it is not poisonous; therefore it will not cause blood poisoning, or produce eczema, which is so common with depilatories, nor does it break off the hair, thereby increasing its growth.

Electrolysis, X-ray or depilatories are offered you on the bare word of the operators and manufacturers. De MIRACLE is not. It is the only method which is indorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

SWIMMING RECORDS

Britons and Australians Too Strong for American Performers.

Notable improvements in the work of American swimmers during the past summer, and the splendid showing of St. Louis men in the championships, make a comparison of the form shown by American aquatic athletics with those of other nations apropos.

That the English and Australians far excel Americans in speed swimming, there is no question. They hold all the world's records, which range from three and tw-fifths seconds better than the American mark at 100 yards, to a full four minutes better at one mile, with a corresponding difference in their favor at the middle distance.

Joey Nuttall, for many years the best professional swimmer in the world is apparently going back. When in this country two summers ago, he essayed to swim any distance from 300 yards to a mile and bet $500 that he could break the existing record. There was no one here to take him up, and we were not treated to a sight of Nuttall in real action. True, he engaged in an occasional brush with Capt Tom Riley off Coney Island, but was never pushed to his limit.

At Govan, Scotland, lately, Nuttall, attempted to break the 500-yard record of 6.07, held by Keran, the fast Australian, but the best he could do was 6.41. This was on its merits, for Nuttall was not to receive anything for his trouble unless he accomplished the feat.

Just before sailing home, after a most successful summer in England, the Australian, Keran, who is without doubt the fastest man in the world to-day above 200 yards, won the 1000-yard English championship at Staleybridge in 13.24 4-5, breaking the English record by three seconds, Keran's world's record is 12.52 4-5.

Just before that, at the Hornsey roads baths in London, Keran won the 220-yard championship, easily beating Forsyth, in 2.37 1-5. The record is 2.28, heald jointly by Cavill and Lane of Australia, who made this mark when they swam a dead heat for the English championship in 1902.

Keran stayed out of the 150-yard championship, and, as a consequence Derbyshire came out of his shell and won from Forsyth in 1.38 1-5. The record is 1.36 3-5.

For the first time on record a foreigner won the English 100-yard championship this year, Zoltan de Holmay, the Hungarian, who won the 50 and 100-yard American championship at St. Louis last year, defeated Derbyshire for the English title in .59, breaking the English mark by one second, and coming within a second of the world's record of .58, held by Richard Cavill of Australia.

JIU-JITSU SCORED VICTORY.

Jiu-jitsu triumphed over "la savate" in ten seconds in Paris recently.

M. Georges Dubois, a well known exponent of the French style of boxing, who is as "handy" with his feet as with his hands, challenged Victor Re-nie, a professor of jiu-jitsu, to combat. The match attracted a great deal of attention, for jiu-jitsu is the craze of the hour among Paris sportsmen, and there was a large attendance. By the rules of the contest all methods known to boxers and wrestlers were allowed except "gouging out the eyes and kicking below the belt." M. Dubois felt that the honor of upholding "la savate" in the eyes of Paris devolved upon him, and he went to the contest animated by the fierce determination of a champion of a lost cause He went into the fight wearing a pair of heavy boots, with which he confidently averred he would settle his opponent "in a kick." In four seconds M. Re-nie had the "savate" man's arms feebly beating the air aloft. In ten seconds his leg was tightly clasped around Dubois' neck. At the end of a minute Dubois would have been dead of strangulation in the powerful leg-grip, but the umpires stepped in and gave the exponent of Japanese wrestling the victory. Re-nie declared afterward that any policeman selected at random in the streets of Tokio would have served Dubois in exactly the same fashion. Mr. Motono, the Japanese Minister to France, was present, and was much amused at the contest.

TERRIBLE PAINS ACROSS BACK

SUFFERED EIGHT MONTHS WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE. WOULD HAVE TO STAY IN BED FOR THREE DAYS AT A TIME

Doan's Kidney Pills CURED HIM

Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald, Hazeldean, Ont., writes us as follows: "I was a great sufferer from kidney trouble for eight months. I had terrible pains across the small of my back. I would have to stay in bed for three days at a time and could not do any work. I tried several remedies but of no avail, and also plasters but they were of no use.

One day a neighbor of mine advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I was so much discouraged I told him I was tired of trying remedies, but he urged me to try one box so I purchased one, and before I was through using it, I found a change for the better so I got five boxes more, and I have had no trouble with my kidneys since. I would not be without Doan's Pills in my house."

It is really not difficult to cure kidney trouble in its first stages. All you have to do is to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. They are a never-failing cure for all forms of kidney trouble. They quickly relieve the congested, overworked kidneys, and gradually bring them back to health.

Doan's Kidney Pills 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

OLD MAN FITZ GAM

His Coming Bout with Young Man O'Brien Should be Great.

Though Bob Fitzsimmons has signed to fight Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, in San Francisco early next month, he would have preferred to meet Marvin Hart, but the Louisville fighter showed little inclination to accommodate Bob with a scrap, and when O'Brien jumped into the center of the limelight by whipping Al Kaufmann, Fitz was urged to meet him by Coffroth and the rest of the Frisco pugilistic bosses. Fitz has never shirked from fighting, and few big fellows have performed as often in the roped arena as the wonderful Cornishman.

It is Fitz's proud boast that he has fought 362 battles and lost but two. With Jeffries retired, there is no question but that Fitz has the best claim to the championship. He is now 42 years old, and many doubt his ability to fight as well as he could ten years ago. Although Fitz acknowledges two defeats, both at the hands of Jeffries, history records the fact that he also lost to Jim Hall in four rounds. The bout took place in Australia. Fitz has always asserted that this contest was not on the square, and he clearly proved that he was Hall's master when he stopped him in four rounds at New Orleans.

Fitz also lost to Tom Sharkey in eight rounds on a foul, but Wyatt Earp, the referee, was severely criticised for this decision. Fitz claims that he was drugged the first time that he met defeat at the hands of Jeffries, but experts who saw the battle say that Jeffries did the drugging with a terrible punch on the chin in the second round. Jeffries flattened Robert out in eleven rounds in this fight. The second time they fought in Frisco Fitz felt so sure of winning that he prepared to open a school of physical culture upon regaining the championship, and spent $35,000 in preliminary advertising in the big magazines. All this money went to the bad when Jeff whipped him in eight rounds.

Fitz wisely decided that there was no field for a physical culture school operated by a defeated aspirant for the championship, and gave up the plan. His ambition is still running in that direction, however, and if he should win from O'Brien and then defeat Hart, he doubtless will quit the fighting game and establish a boxing school in New York.

Fitz has lasted longer in the ring than any other fighter in the history of the fistic game. Few pugilists have managed to defy Father Time so long and successfully as Fitz. The Cornishman came to America as a stowaway on one of Adolph Speckel's Occidental steamers in 1890, and beat Billy McCarthy and Arthur Upham in short order at San Francisco. He was then matched with Jack Dempsey for the middleweight championship, and defeated Dempsey in thirteen rounds.

He next whipped Peter Maher, a heavyweight, in twelve rounds, and has been fighting heavyweights ever since, although he seldom entered the ring weighing more than 165 pounds, and there has never been a time when he could not make the middleweight limit. Fitz was conceding weight to Corbett when he fought the Californian for the championship, and Jeffries outweighed him at least 60 pounds in both their fights. Fitz claims to be as good as he ever was, barring his hands, which have been broken repeatedly.

He busted his right thumb on Geo. Gardner when they went 20 rounds two years ago. He also broke his left hand on Joe Choynski at Boston in 1904. The police stopped the fight when Fitz had the gallant California Hebrew on the ropes and was beating him into a pulp.

Parson Davies has always claimed that Fitz was lucky to win from Peter Maher the first time they fought at New Orleans. According to Davies, Maher drove his right into Fitz's jaw in the second round and nearly knocked the Cornishman through the ropes. Davies says that Fitz was hanging helpless on the ropes when George Clark, the timekeeper, who had bet $3.000 on Bob, became excited and unconsciously rang the gong for the end of the round, which stu had 30 seconds to run—more than enough to have counted Fitz out.

Joe Choynski, who was in Fitz's corner, revived Bob with ammonia, and the lanky boy managed to evade Maher in the succeeding rounds, until he came to himself again. Then he closed both of Maher's eyes and took his time chopping the big Irishman until Maher's seconds threw up the sponge.

Fitz's gameness has never been questioned by those who saw him enter the ring with Dan Creedon suffering from a terribly painful abscess in the right ear Vreedon smashed Bob on this ear in the first round.

"I saw the blow coming and tried to dodge it," said Fitz, "but I got it on the ear, and, strange to say, never felt any pain. The abscess, which had been paining me terribly the night before, broke and began ruaning, but never bothered me again. In the secong round I hooked Creedon on the chin and put him out for 40 minutes."

Fitz and O'Brien met in a six-round bout in Philadelphia last year and no decision was reached. Conflicting accounts were given of the bout. Some said that O'Brien had the best of it. Other favored Titz. Bob says himself that he had O'Brien calling for police. The chances are that it was nothing but a friendly go, with the two fighters dividing the purse. On form O'Brien has no chance with Fitz. Unless the red man has gone back terribly he ought to win from O'Brien and Hart in the same ring. One thing in Fitz's favor is that he has taken good care of himself. He seldom dissipates, which is probably responsible for his long and active athletic career.

ANOTHER HOT HOCKEY RUMOR.

The latest rumor in hockey circles is that a new league, to be known as the Amateur Hockey League of Canada, will be formed this week.

It will be composed, according to one authority, of Victorias, Montreals, Wanderers, Ottawas and Quebec.

In other words, the old C.A.H.L. will be revived under another name, with the Wanderers replacing the Shamrocks.

Conferences have been held almost daily in Montreal and Ottawa, and had it not been for ancient grudges, the situation would have been cleared up long ago.

If this new league is formed, the remaining clubs, viz., the Shamrocks, Nationals, Westmounts, Cornwalls, Brockvilles and Montagnards, will form a league of their own and endeavor to compete successfully with the rival organization.

It is said that the hockey puzzle will be solved at a meeting of those interested to be held here Friday night or Saturday morning.—Montreal Herald.

AN ARCTIC HOCKEY LEAGUE.

Dawson and White Horse will both have hockey teams of the championship variety this winter. It is also believed Atlin will be able to produce seven hockey players who will be able to hold their own with any of them. An attempt will be made to form a league and hold a hockey tournament at White Horse between teams from these three places some time in January or February.

The Mounted Police boys at White Horse have erected a hockey rink which would do credit to any city, and White Horse being the most central point that place will likely be chosen as the place to hold the tournament.

There is no talk of sending a team from the Klondike to the East to try conclusions for the Stanley Cup this winter, though many staunch supporters of Canada's national winter sport have not by any means given up hope of bringing the trophy to the North. It is quite probable a picked team from the Yukon Territory will challenge for the cup within a year or two. The next team to represent the Klondike will go out composed of players with not only a past record as a qualification, but all be tried and true players the product of the Northland. There will never be any trouble in securing the funds to send a team composed of Yukoners to the East in an attempt to lift the cup, as it is the belief of nearly every Klondiker that a properly trained and conducted team can be found right here in the North that will yet do honor to themselves and the territory.

FOOTBALL REFORM

President Schurman of Cornel Would Do Away With Gate Receipts.

President Schurman of Cornell University believes college football would be purified by doing away with gate receipts. On this subject he said:—

"I have always thought that the excessive costliness of football in our American colleges and universities is, after brutality, by far the most objectionable feature of the game. It is the prolific source of commercialism, gambling and professionalism.

"I cannot but think the time will come when it will be regarded as degrading to ask students to exhibit their athletic skill for the sake of gate receipts. No change in that direction, however, will be possible until several of the leading universities agree to a general reform of football. Such a reform would embrace the elimination of mass plays, and it would cut down largely the amount of money now devoted to the support of the game.

"The costliest features at the present time, apart from the necessary upkeep of the athletic field, are, I believe, the salaries of the professional coaches, the maintenance of the training table and the luxurious travel and hotel accommodations provided for the teams. If the American university public will consent to make a recreation instead of a business of football all these expenditures could be greatly reduced.

"While no university can, acting by itself, effect any great reform, some progress has been made in Cornell University. The cost of maintaining football, which formerly stood at $20,000 or more, has during the last few years been kept at about $15,000. This amount, which, it is said, is not large when compared with the expenditures of other universities, is in itself considered entirely too much. Of course, it comes from gate receipts.

"If there were no gate receipts, the game would have to be supported by the voluntary contributions of students and alumni. If, however, the reform I have suggested were adopted by several representative universities; if football were no longer organized as a business, but were played for sport's sake, the voluntary contribution of students and alumni would be adequate for the necessary expenditures of the game."

POOR AND RICH COLLEGIANS.

Harvard's Extremes Struggle Hard For Places on Eleven.

John Copeland Cunniff, poorest man in Harvard, started in life as a gas-fitter's apprentice.

Frederick Hall White, richest man in Harvard, recently came into possession of $3,000,000.

These two men are the candidates for the position of center on the crimson team. All season they have worked tooth and nail to beat each other out for the coveted honor of being the regular 'Varsity center. Both have won their "H." Oddly enough both got their letters in the Pennsylvania game last season. Both love the game and are earnest in their efforts to hold the position.

The struggle of these two players for the position is watched with an interest equal to that of seeing the coach develop the eleven for the hard games ahead of it. John Copeland Cunniff was a gasfitter's apprentice. He served his time at his trade and finally became a journeyman. It was then that he thought of an education. That he is successful is due to his own hard work. For several years he worked days and studied nights. He is a good student.

Frederick Hall White is a Brooklyn boy. Since his birth he has been granted every wish. His parents were wealthy, and recently at his mother's death he came into the possession of $3,000,000. He has his automobile, his charming suite of rooms in the swellest dormitory at Harvard, but his greatest ambition is to hold down the center position and play against the other big universities.

The fight will last to the end of the season. Each man works like a Trojan before every game. In practice they play with the vim others display in a game. Coach Reid is impartial. When one man plays better than the other he is used in the game. Things have changed at Harvard. Football is now also a leveler of ranks at that university.

KING'S HALL, COMPTON.

Compton, Nov. 17 — At no time in its history has the Ladies' College here re-opened under more encouraging and hopeful conditions than that of the present year.

Since the re-organization of its classes in September, especially at Thanksgiving, many visitors from different parts of the Province have visited the institution and seen for themselves its complete and thorough equipment for the classical and home training of young ladies. The result has been that there are at present more pupils in attendance than at any previous time. Very few vacancies remain and these have been applied for over and over. Other names will be placed on the waiting list. A new pupil from Mexico is expected soon, her sister being already in attendance. Two others are coming from New York, but especially are the merits of the school drawing to itself young ladies from our own cities, Montreal and Quebec. Not only is the curriculum of study closely followed but the home and social training of the pupils is strongly developed. A new feature of the school this year is the class of Juniors, consisting of eleven girls between the ages of 9 and 12 years.

The school is under the new Principalship of Miss Joll, late of "Edgefield," N.S., and an able staff of assistants each of whom is a specialist in some branch of education, and who alone is responsible for her special department of work.

THE DISASTER TO THE STEAMSHIP BAVARIAN

OPENING OF THE INVESTIGATION YESTERDAY

Captain, First and Third Officers Describe the Circumstances Attending Accident---Pilot Dupil, Chief Engineer and Look-outs Examined

Pilot Lachance Will Give His Evidence This Morning.

The inquiry ordered by the Marine and Fisheries Department to find out the causes which led to the stranding of the Allan S.S. Bavarian on the 3rd November on Wye Rock opposite St. Thomas was commenced yesterday morning and will be continued to-day. The special commissioner in the case is Chief Justice A. B. Routhier, who is also Admiralty Judge, and his assessors are Capt. Spain and Lieut. Pennell, R.N.

When the Commissioners ascended the bench shortly after ten o'clock, Mr. J. Dunbar, Registrar of the Admiralty Court, read the commission issued by the Department and after the swearing in of Mr. G. Prendergast, as interpreter, Mr. Newcombe asked who represented the parties in the case.

He was informed that Messrs. Pentland and Cook represented the Messrs. Allan, Messrs. Taschereau & Cannon, the pilot, Paul Lachance, and Mr. F. E. Meredith, the Canadian Shipping Federation.

Mr. Newcombe, Deputy Minister of Justice, and Mr. A. Galipeault, advocate, represented the Government.

When the witnesses were sworn the attorneys in the case were asked if they insisted on these witnesses leaving the court. Mr. Meredith remarked that in similar cases the witnesses were kept out of court and he asked that the rule be again followed out.

Chief Justice Routhier had no objection to allow the witnesses to remain in Court if the parties agreed but if not he would order them out as was the custom.

Mr. Newcombe wanted to know if Pilot Lachance was also to leave the room but Mr. Taschereau objected as he was very much interested in the matter. The pilot was allowed to stay.

Capt. Brown was then called and testified that he had been captain of the Bavarian since February last and previous to that he was on board the Ionian. He had been in the Allan service since 1874 and a captain since 1881. Since 1874 he had been more or less in the St. Lawrence route and had made many trips to the St. Lawrence. The last trip on the Bavarian was the seventh here this season.

On the 3rd November last the Bavarian had left Quebec, heading down the river at 7.27. Pilot Paul Lachance was in charge and the witness and first officer were on the bridge. Pilot Lachance was on the top of the wheel house near the Standard compass and gave his orders through a speaking tube, to the quartermaster at the wheel. The third officer was also in the wheel-house to see that the orders were carried out.

The night was clear and very light snow was falling and he was observing the lights on the way along and saw that they were all lit. They passed Bellechasse Light about one mile off and the river there was one and a half mile wide. Pilot Lachance who knew the Bavarian thoroughly, had set the course which was E. by N. when the steamer was passing Bellechasse Light. The pilot had given that order to the quartermaster. The pilot has a standard compass while another compass is in the wheel-house. The deviation of the standard compass is 4 degrees west. This was the captain's seventh trip to the St. Lawrence this season and the magnet has not been changed. He held the same course and passed a number of lighters after leaving Bellechasse Light. These lighters were coming up the river. He believed he could see the St. Thomas Light 6 miles away. When he first noticed the Crane Island Light it was bearing on the southward bow.

Just as the third officer went to cast the lead Crane Island was seen by all and the pilot ordered, "half speed ahead and never mind the lead."

Between 9.45 and 9.47 saw Crane Island light, and this was the first time he had seen it that night. Shortly after the steamer grounded and her position to-day is not the same as that she had when she went on the rocks as she has somewhat swung around. When the steamer got on the rocks, the order was given "Full speed astern," but the steamer did not move.

When he noticed the St. Thomas buoy with the light he told the pilot and the latter agreed, although he first thought it was a schooner light. As soon as Crane Island light was seen no lead was cast. After picking up a light witness saw them continuously.

To Capt. Spain—The St. Thomas buoy light is southward of Crane Island light and witness saw them both together.

The steamer was going about nine knots when she grounded. He saw lights on the port side after passing Bellechasse. He noticed Grosse Isle electric lights before the St. Thomas shore buoy but saw the latter a long way off, and just before striking the rock saw the St. Thomas and Crane Island lights.

One light was missing at St. Margaret's but no remark was made until after the steamer went ashore.

To Mr. Pentland — Witness stated that he held a certificate of competency from the British Board of Trade.

The Bavarian was built in 1899. He had 4 mates, 4 quartermasters, 18 able seamen, 2 boatswains, 11 ordinary seamen, a carpenter, eight engineers and 37 firemen on the steamer. There were 28 boats and the steamer was provided with three compasses in good order. The steamer was in first-class order when she left port. There were two men on the lookout, one on the port and the other on the starboard side, and they reported everything to the bridge. They reported all vessels and lights. After the steamer stranded he ordered three boats to be swung out as a precautionary measure, but he knew there was no danger. Two seconds were sufficient to drop an anchor. Another pilot, Alp. Paquet, was with Lachance, but he was only going on a trip to Rimouski. He was there at the time of the accident.

All the pilot's orders were strictly carried out and there was no interference with him except the witness saw there was something wrong and then he would interfere.

To Mr. Taschereau—He had always had full confidence in Lachance and has been up and down the river with him very often. He had made seven trips with him on the Bavarian this season and during two seasons was with him on the Ionian and he always gave satisfaction.

The lookout on the port side did not report a light at St. Margaret's. He had no doubt whatever that the light was out and before leaving Quebec he had not been informed that the light was not burning.

He thinks Paul Lachance is a good pilot but would not swear he was the best.

To Chief Justice Routhier—The St. Thomas light was reported by the lookout between five and ten minutes before the accident. The second pilot, Alfred Paquet, never spoke to him before the accident and neither he nor Lachance remarked that the light ahead was St. Margaret's. The pilot should have seen that the steamer was out of its course when he saw St. Thomas' and Crane Island lights together. When he (the witness) saw the chart he was satisfied that the steamer was out of its course.

Somewhere between Bellechasse light and Wye Rock he heard the pilot say: "That must be St. Margaret's shoal buoy."

To Capt. Spain—The lookout reported the electric lights at Grosse Isle.

To Mr. Newcombe—The channel there is about one mile wide. All lights are guides.

To Mr. Taschereau—Did not get any notice that any buoys were away.

To Mr. Meredith—Witness reads his log. The third officer remains in the wheel-house to see that the pilot's orders are carried out. There was no question of not leaving port that night nor any talk about anchoring. When he seen the two lights on his port bow he knew that one was Crane Island light and the other St. Thomas' shoal buoy. As far as the two lights were concerned, one could be taken for the other and it would be a good idea to change them. After the steamer was aground and while taking bearings he saw St. Margaret's light not burning.

After the steamer had stranded, pilot Lachance remarked that St. Margaret's light was not burning and when the captain of the quarantine boat came alongside, he told them that it had not been burning for three days. The pilot had not ascribed the accident to the fact that St. Margaret's light was not lit.

He, the witness, ascribed the accident to the fact that the pilot thought he was more northward than he was, and he was too southward. The aids to navigation on the St. Lawrence have been very much improved of recent years, but the starboard gas buoys should not be the same as the port side lights. The lighters in Quebec harbor never carry sidelights and the same may be said of many of the upper lake boats. It was not snowing when they stranded but he thought it was snowing at Crane Island.

In answer to Mr. Taschereau, witness replied that if pilot had seen the other light he might have changed his course.

Wm. Phillip Haines, chief officer of the Bavarian, was the next witness, and testified that he had gone on the bridge at 8 o'clock just as the steamer was about two miles west of St. Laurent Point. It was not before he had the St. Laurent light abeam that he saw the St. Jean light. The steamer was about mid-channel when it passed Bellechasse light and the next light passed was St. Thomas shoal. He could not state what course the steamer had when it passed Bellechasse light. When the steamer was about opposite Grosse Isle the pilot passed some remarks about not seeing the buoys and the captain asked him what was the course of the steamer, Lachance replying "East by the compass." What deviation? asked the captain, and the pilot replied "Four degrees," that would be e. ¼ n. northerly.

Witness was asked where the vessel was when that conversation took place and replied that he had the two bright electric lights on western end of Grosse Isle dead abeam. The pilot had remarked that he ought to be up to Grosse Isle buoy. The lights were showing plainly. Could see them all.

Witness was asked if there could be any question that he was up to Grosse Isle light then, and replied that there was none. There was no change in the course then to his knowledge. There was no change in the course until he gave the order "Starboard," that was when he ordered to stop the engines at 9.50, practically when she struck.

He remembered when the steamer stopped to cast the lead and that the counter order was given and he through the latter order was due to the fact that Crane Island Light had been picked up. Bellechasse Light was still visible at the time and he had the St. Thomas shoal some fifteen to twenty minutes originally on starboard bow. At the time the Grosse Isle Light was picked up it was bearing 3-3 points of the port bow.

To Mr. Taschereau—This was his third season to the St. Lawrence and he was well acquainted with Pilot Lachance and always looked upon him as thoroughly competent and prudent. After the accident the fact that the St. Margaret Light was not lit, was commented upon. That buoy was not visible but he did not think that any of them were in a position to say whether or not it was lighted. The Bellechasse Light was still visible when the steamer grounded.

Mr. Pentland remarked that if the court was satisfied with the evidence of Capt. Brown regarding the seaworthiness of the Bavarian he would not question the first officer on that point.

The Commissioners replied that they were satisfied on that ground, and the witness than continuing and in answer to Mr. Cook said that he could see the lights plainly at Cross Isle.

St. Margaret's Light was about half or three-quarter miles from the lights on Grosse Isle and always bearing on port bow.

In reply to Capt. Spain witness stated that after the ship struck he had seen a black buoy right abreast of the bridge and on the port side.

Asked if the ship was in the same position as she struck witness said that she was on starboard helm when she struck and he thought it had only careened slightly. Head of steamer is N. 76 E. and was steering N. 76 E. when it went aground.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

When the Commission resumed business in the afternoon, Mr. Taschereau, on behalf of his client, pilot Lachance, asked leave to proceed with the examination of pilot Joseph Dupil who had to leave in charge of the ss Tunisian. As no objection was made to this, Mr. Dupil was called to the box and for over an hour was examined and cross-examined by the Commissioners and attorney.

Mr. Dupil in answer to Mr. Taschereau stated that he had been a pilot in the Lower St. Lawrence for thirty-six years and during the last twenty-three years had been in the employ of the Allan Line, and for the last ten or twelve years had been the Company's senior pilot. Since the turbine steamers had come to this port he had had charge of them for the Lower St. Lawrence. He had known pilot Lachance for a number of years and he was one of the best and most careful pilots in the river and a perfectly sober man. He was well aware that there was a gas buoy on St. Margaret's shoal and he and the other pilots always used that buoy as one of the leading lights. It was very useful to pilots so as to avoid St. Margaret's shoal or Wye Rock. There was no question but that pilots should be notified when such lights are out, but they are never notified, and the consequence is that a pilot is on the look-out for it. In misty weather it was quite possible to take one light for another and if St. Thomas' light is taken for St. Margaret's a pilot is apt to run ashore on Wye Rock or St. Margaret's shoal, and if he had been on board the same thing might have happened him. The St. Thomas light seems to be much stronger now than formerly and on his last trip he saw St. Thomas' light before seeing St. Margaret's. If the lights were kept in order that is all that was required. In the present case if St. Margaret's light had been burning or if Lachance had been notified that it was not, he had no doubt that the Bavarian would have been safe.

In reply to Lieut. Pennell — Witness said he trusted to buoys as he did to the lighthouses and they had to steer as much as possible from those buoys so as to keep in the middle of the stream. The two electric lights at Grosse Isle were no use to the pilots as they are altogether out of the course.

In answer to Mr. Pentland, witness said that they could see these electric lights a good distance off and could take their course. If St. Margaret's light was out and we took St. Thomas' light it would pass on the port side and then the Crane Island light would be brought on the port bow. This would be a sign that something was wrong.

The St. Margaret's shoal light can be seen six or seven miles away and pilots use it as a leading light and he was never notified by the Department not to use that light.

To Mr. Pentland—The Crane Island light can be seen nine or ten miles away.

In reply to Mr. Meredith, witness said that they generally pass about a quarter of a mile from the St. Margaret's buoy.

He was a member of the Corporation of Pilots for and below the harbor of Quebec. This was an incorporated body with a membership at present of 119. The gross earnings of all these pilots were pooled and equally divided up at the end of the season.

There were only fifty-one pilots between Quebec and Montreal, therefore, there were over double the number below Quebec. All the pilots below Quebec got the same amount, but the pilots in regular lines got an additional sum. Nobody was allowed to receive any remuneration for bringing vessels up or down the river, if he was not a member of that Corporation.

John Hignett, Quartermaster of the Bavarian, was the next witness and stated that he went to the wheel at 8 p.m., but he had not noticed where the steamer was at the time. He took his course from the pilot, who gave his orders from above the wheel-house.

To Capt. Spain—Witness said he held a master's certificate and made five trips in the Bavarian. He was steering entirely by compass S. 88 E. just before she struck.

To Mr. Pentland—He always carried out pilots' orders and the last order given was starboard.

To Mr. Cannon—He knew pilot Lachance well and always considered him a very careful pilot. The steamer went ashore about one minute after she stopped. He did not see any lights until after the steamer went ashore.

F. C. Baylis, third officer, also has a master's certificate. He was in the wheel-house with the quartermaster and saw that the pilot's orders were carried out.

In answer to Capt. Spain, Mr. Baylis said that when he went down to heave the lead the course was S. 89 E. by the wheel-house compass. He did not heave the lead as the pilot said it was not necessary, having seen the Crane Island light.

In answer to Mr. Taschereau, the witness stated that that was his first trip to the St. Lawrence this season. He had only seen the St. Thomas light but not the Crane Island light. He was not looking out for the former but just happened to see it.

Capt. Brown and Mr. Hains were recalled by Mr. Pentland, and the latter stated that after the accident, pilot Lachance, who had come down on the bridge, was walking up and down striking one hand in the other and saying: "If I had done as I had thought at first, I would have followed my own judgment." The pilot spoke in English.

Al. Timpkins, able seaman on board the Bavarian, was on the chief officer's watch and went on the port lookout at 8.15. His duties were to report all lights and passing vessels on the port side and he did so. These reports he made to the bridge and a telegraph answer that the report was received was sent back. He had not seen the quarantine lights but saw lights in shore. There was a little snow but they had no trouble to report the lights.

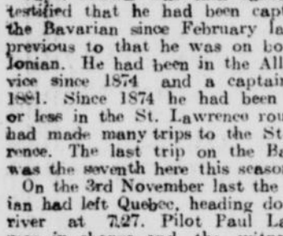

To Mr. Taschereau, witness said that he only saw one light ahead after seeing the Grosse Isle lights on shore.

Wm. Glynn, also a seaman of the Bavarian said that he was on the star board lookout and reported to the bridge all that he had seen. When the Bavarian grounded she had all the shore lights on her starboard side and one light ahead.

Mr. Daniel Gollan, chief engineer, stated that before going aground, he saw the shore lights at Grosse Isle. He was in the engine room, and the steamer was going half speed. There were three engineers on duty and they obeyed all orders received. Before the Bavarian groundied she was going about ten knots an hour.

Pilot Lachance was called, but as his evidence will be lengthy, the Commission adjourned to 9.30 this morning.

FAINTING WAS EPIDEMIC.

Strange School Phenomenon in England.

Clowne, a small coal mining town in Derbyshire, England, was unknown to fame (medically speaking) until May of this year, says the Canadian Journal of edicine and Surgery. It is true that the teachers of the elementary school report that they had noticed "something objectionable" about the air of the girls' class room since last summer holidays, and that solitary cases of fainting have occurred. But in the week following May 17th, 46 cases of fainting occurred in this class room. An escape of gas was noticed in the lobby, and this matter was at once set right, but the cases of syncope occurred quite as frequently afterwards.

Accompanying symptoms were chills and rigidity, and the patients were, afterwards, in a weak condition, and were assisted or carried home. The fainting fit lasted from 15 to 30 minutes. The school was twice closed for a short period, but, on classes being resumed, fainting again occurred among the girls. The infants in an adjoining class room were not affected.

The County Council authorities were notified, and Dr. Barwise, the county medical officer, went to Clowne and made a careful investigation. The floor was taken up and the gas pipes examined, othe drains were examined, and tests were made for carbon di-oxide and carbon non-oxide but all with negative results.

Dr. Barwise ordered that the chimneys should be swept and fires lighted and, on discovering that all the open fire-places in the school had been carefully stopped up, he ordered that these should at once be opened again, and, further, that a class of boys should be placed in the offending class room. This was done, and the boys have, at last reports, retained consciousness. Dr Barwise thinks it certain that the attacks are due either to (1) poisoning by carbon non-oxide, or (2) a nervous origin.

It should be added that the "oldest inhabitants" do not agree with the doctor. They have another theory, based on practical experience in mining accidents. It is known that a "fault" runs through Clowne, and that the "fault passes under the school. The recent earthquake was distinctly felt in Clowne and, therefore, the old miners think that the girls were, perhaps, poisoned by "after-damp" set free by the disturbance consequent on the earthquake.

If this is correct, it may explain the immunity of the boys, inasmuch as the supply of "after-damp" is probably exhausted.

THE PARDONER'S WALLET.

From the same publishers, andby the same author, we h ave received The Pardoner's Wallet, a volume of charming and well-digested papers, which, after all, possess at least a certain community of interest. They discuss in a happy manner, various aspects a human nature, which, while open to friendly criticism, are pardonable. The author expresses his views with an independence which is both delightful and delicious. Since Addison and later, since Oliver Wendell Holmes, we have encountered no more pleasant collection of essays and addresses than that which we find in this pretty volume of miscellanies. The humor is both quaint and infectious. The literary style of Mr. Crothers is thoroughly admirable, and in nowise is it strained or common place.

GIVEN AWAY FREE

A fine $300 Karn piananto (Pianola) offered to the public as a present

By the C. W. LINDSAY, Ltd., Dealers in high grade Pianos and Organs.

Knowing the great pleasure we could cause to all lovers of music who have a piano or who intend purchasing one, we have taken advantage of these holiday months, which is our busy time, the time the majority of people choose to make the important purchase of a piano, to offer every one the opportunity of participating in the drawing of the Karn pianola.

CONDITIONS:—1o. Will be entitled to a ticket for $100.00: Any one who will purchase of us one of our fine upright pianos for the sum of $200.00 or more, either for cash or on time.

2o. Will be entitled to a ticket: Any one who will give us the name of a person to whom we will succeed in making the sale of a new or second hand piano valued over $100.00. Names to be given to the office personally or by mail specifying the name with initials and address in full of said party with signature of remitter. The person winning the pianola having no claim on the premiums in silver.

3o. Every name received will be registered in a special book for the purpose and will have the signature of the remitter of the name, so in case that the same name should be given to us by a second party we would be able to show that the name had been already given to us and for this reason could not entitle the latter with a ticket for that name.

These are the simple conditions to fulfil. As you see they cost absolutely nothing and every one has a chance, either by furnishing us the name of a future buyer to whom we will succeed in selling an instrument at the price mentioned above or by buying a piano from us over $200.00 to gain this fine pianola which is worth $300.00 to any lower of music who has a piano.

The pianola will be exhibited in our warerooms from this date and invitation is extended to the public to come and hear and make use of this pianola themselves. With this wonderful instrument no knowledge of music is required and any one, young or old, will be able to reproduce the most difficult music as perfect as though he was a thorough musician. Therefore, if you intend buying a piano or know of some one who intends buying one, immediatly put yourself in communication with us in order to obtain as many tickets possible as already stated, every name to whom we will succeed in selling a piano entitles you to one ticket on this pianola and every ticket is a chance to win a value of $300.00. Now is the time to talk pianos; the more you will talk pianos with every body, the more you will come in contact with people who intend buying.

Remember it is a $300.00 article that some body is to get without paying one cent.

GREAT ANCIENT CEMETERY.

Discovered in Indian Territory and Contains Remains of Thousands.

An ancient burial ground has been discovered on the Arkansas River near Webbers Falls, I.T. This burial ground is about two miles in length and probably contains the remains of many thousand people.

About forty years ago the ground where these remains of human beings are now being found was covered with a heavy growth of timber and a heavy undergrowth or cane, but of recent years the timber and the cane have been cleared away, and the land put in a state of cultivation. In digging wells and other excavations human remains have been unearthed for several years past, causing little comment, as they were thought to be those of Indians.

Cultivation of land on the benches near the river bank, followed by heavy rains, caused washouts to occur frequently when human remains were brought to view in several localities, widely apart. Investigation shows that this burial ground runs for two miles along the banks of the river, the graves being in regular order, about four feet apart, and corresponding with the points of the compass. All of these people were buried facing the east. With each was found an earthen bowl inside of which was a mussel shell, the bowl in every instance being in the curve of the right arm, which enfolded the same, which was no doubt a religious rite.

In most cases the bones and bowls crumbled to dust when exposed to the air, but some were in a fair state of preservation. In one instance only was a war implement found, and that was a spear-head about nine inches long, in the grave of what appeared to have been a giant, while the others appeared to be below the average man of to-day. The skulls are unusually thick, some of them a half inch or more in thickness, with receding foreheads and heavy back heads, being very wide in proportion.

A report of these discoveries has been sent to Washington. It is believed that this is a burial ground of a prehistoric race.—Daily Ardmoreite.

ROMANCE OF WEST.

Death of Chief Justice Bain Permits Telling of the Truth About an Adventurer.

Chief Justice Bain's recent death in Manitoba recalls a story to one (a London, England, correspondent) who knew the facts of a remarkable romance at first hand, and is now at liberty to recount them for the first time. The late judge was merely a link in a chain of events that had its beginning in a Princess street jewellery shop Edinburgh, and ended at Winnipeg.

In the early 70's a slight, aristocratic looking young man stepped from a carriage into the jewellery establishment of Mr. Marshall, the most fashionable of its day in Edinburgh. There was evident taste in his selection of various articles of jewellery, and particularly interest was shown by him in a small silver ——— of Venetian workmanship. He instructed that his purchases be sent to a fashionable house with the bill. Whatever hesitation Mr. Marshall or his people might have had regarding the account was removed by the card handed by the distinguished looking purchaser, which read, "Lord Gordon Gordon," the family name of at least three of the noble families in Britain and a reference to one of the best known divines of the Scottish capital. His appearance in the same shop with this clergyman a few days afterwards completely allayed any doubts of Mr. Marshall regarding payment for the extensive purchase.

MADE JAY GOULD HIS MARK.

The next the world knew of Lord Gordon Gordon was his appearance in London as a guest of a well-known corporation solicitor. From this shrewd adviser of financial investments the records show that Lord Gordon Gordon borrowed over $10,000. Shortly afterwards he was heard of in New York as a guest at the Astor House.

At this time the financial world was agitated by the colossal schemes of Jay Gould and Jim Fisk, among which the wrecking of the Erie Railway, then one of the chief railways of the continent, was a considerable factor.

There is a mystery surrounding the origin of a report which soon spread through Wall Street and into the counting houses of the wealthy and speculative that the good-looking young titled Britisher, registered as Lord Gordon Gordon at the Astor House, was the representative of the British bondholders of the Erie Railway. These interests were great and were presumably hostile to the Gould plans.

The story is told in the newspapers of the time that Lord Gordon Gordon was the only man of the day in the financial world of the United States who dared treat Jay Gould cavalierly. The American millionaire, so runs the account, was kept kicking his heels day after day in the anteroom of Lord Gordon's apartments while awaiting an opportunity to confer with the supposed representative of the British interests in the Erie Railway. The first interview resulted in the great American capitalist being abruptly shown the door by the apparently insulted young aristocrat. The last resulted in the deposit by Gould of negotiable securities amounting to several millions of dollars in the hands of Lord Gordon Gordon as evidence of good faith on the part of Gould in a transaction whereby the British investors were to be outwitted through the breach of faith of their supposed agent.

THEN HE WENT WEST.

The game was a gigantic one, for a boy only out of his teens was seeking to outwit on their own ground the shrewdest financiers of the American continent. He succeeded after a certain amount of vexatious litigation in New York. He escaped successful criminal prosecution through the dubious character of the original transaction and the alleged complicity of Gould in his scheme against the British investors.

Lord Gordon Gordon was next heard of in St. Paul. It was the time of the construction of the great transcontinental railway, the Northern Pacific, then being built under great financial difficulties. The arrival of a millionaire and a British lord in one and the same person could mean only one thing—investment in the wild prairie lands of the embarrassed railway. He was treated royally by the officials. Excursions were made to prospective town sites, a great buffalo hunt was arranged, and on many a site of a now prosperous Minnesota and Dakota town the historic banner of the Gordons of Scotland and the stars and stripes fluttered before the marquee of a youth who was befooling a continent to the fullest.

TOOK REFUGE IN WINNIPEG.

But the implacable Jay Gould still had his emissaries on the trail of the young adventurer, and Gordon knew it. In consequence, one day the people of St. Paul learned that a buffalo hunt had culminated in the arrival of Lord Gordon at Fort Garry, then forming the nucleus of the city of Winnipeg.

The life of Lord Gordon Gordon is well known to the Winnipegers of the early days. He occupied the home on the estate at Silver Heights owned by the Governor of the Hudson Bay Co., who is known as Lord Strathcona, Canadian Commissioner in London. Lord Gordon Gordon's hospitality was a byword from Lake Superior to the Rocky Mountains. Silver Heights was the centre of the social life of the little settlement on the banks of the Red River. What if there was a cloud over the past of a gentle-mannered host with fascinating gifts and of lavish generosity? The Northwest settlement, the newborn Province of Canada, took him, as was the way of the frontier, for what he appeared to be. The intimate friend of the Provincial Ministers of the Crown, of the judiciary, of the officers of the military, and of the better class of professional men, he also was the comrade of the half-breeds and Indians on many a buffalo hunt or canoe trip in the untraveled north.

GOULD TRIED KIDNAPPING.

While Gordon was the guest of gubernatorial dinners and the host of great hunting parties, Jay Gould had not been idle. Several attempts had been made on hunting trips to inveigle the youth across the border to a spot where he could be arrested on a criminal charge. The crime of obtaining money under false pretenses was not extraditable under the Ashburton treaty, and various were the schemes which Gould tirelessly set in motion to bring Gordon within the clutches of United States law.

Kidnapping was attempted twice, and once was almost successful. In the dead of night the chief of police of St. Paul, with two United States constables handcuffed Gordon in his bed at Silver Heights and on swift horses bore him towards the United States border. The lady servant of Gordon, his foster brother it was said, a young Highlander, who was believed to be the sole repository of the secret of his mysterious life, aroused the town of Winnipeg, a few miles away. An armed rescue party was at once dispatched in pursuit. The Attorney-General wired Pembina, the border town toward which the kidnappers had ridden, and great was the jubilation along the Red river when the news came that the men of Pembina had forced the release of Gordon from the quasi-official kidnappers at the point of the revolver.

The breakers of international law were taken prisoners, prosecuted by Attorney-General Clerk, and were sentenced to terms of imprisonment. Representations were submitted to the British Goverment and a long correspondence took place between London and Washington regarding the matter.

TORONTO COURTS APPEALED TO.

Foiled in this attempt, detectives were sent to Great Britain by Gould to ferret out the career of Gordon in Scotland. That career, as far as they could learn, began in the Princess street jewellery shop of Mr. Marshall in Edinburgh. But pertinacity, time and money can do much, and the agents persuaded Mr. Marshall to take a trip to Toronto, and there on Canadian soil lay an information against one styling himself Lord Gordon Gordon, charging him with obtaining jewellery under false pretenses, specifically mentioning a Venetian casket of antique workmanship.

In the depths of winter the journey of the Canadian police officers was made and the arrest consummated one night when a northern blizzard made the trail between Silver Heights and Winnipeg almost impossible. Gordon had taken his arrest with the cool insouciance that was his distinguished characteristic. He sent for his solicitor, John F. Bain, the principal lawyer of the Province, who had been his personal friend had professional adviser throughout the many complications of his short life in the Canadian West.

MR. BAIN'S ULTIMATUM.

"This is an action on the part of the Crown, on the part of the Canadian Goverment, and I have to inform you," said Mr. Bain reluctantly, "that it will be impossible for me to act for you. I have been the adviser of the Crown for several years in Winnipeg, and have been specially instructed in this case on its behalf."

Gordon looked thoughtfully for a minute, and the silence in the little house grew oppressive.

"You can go thus far and retain your standing of professional honor, Bain," said Gordon quietly, "you can tell me if those legal papers carried by these men are any good, and if they are sufficient to compel me to appeal in a Toronto court."

"They are," answered the lawyer. "Do you notice that they specifically describe that Venetian casket in which is the love letter of Mary, Queen of Scots, to Adam Gordon? You know several people have seen it. That will be sufficient to compel you to appear for trial."

"Strange fatality," said Gordon almost dreamily as he exchanged a look with his servent who stood in the doorway of his adjoining bedroom. "From Adam Gordon, the page of Mary's court of Holyrood 300 years ago who died for his devotion to one who lived to win men's hearts, that letter has brought nothing but ruin to his face. But, heigho, that's an old, old story. And this means a journey to Toronto. We go by the Dawson route through Canadian territory, I suppose?"

There was some hesitation in the police officer's face when Gordon put the question to him.

"We shall try, and may get through that way. It has been a bad winter. It would be easier to go down through the States."

A DRAMATIC DENOUEMENT.

Gordon looked earnestly at the unsteady eyes of the police officer, for a minute and said quietly: "I see it all, Jay Gould has won. Away from Winnipeg, we shall be in Saint Paul in a week and with his money and influence at work it means conviction. I see what it all means, but needs must when the devil drivers,' said he lightly. "A cold night, isn't it? I must wrap up."

He retired to the bedroom a few steps away, from which the police were aware that there was no other outlet than the door, and he and his servant busied themselves apparently with the question of the clothing requisite for the journey.

"We shall have to make a search of the premises, sir," said the policeman.

"In a minute, policeman," said the soft, indifferent voice from the inner room. "Grant help me with these shoes. Thank you, and now good and faithful old friend and brother—goodbye." And it must have been then, in the clasp of hands, in the semi-darkness, that the fateful casket with its historic contents were passed, for the police officers never found it, and Grant disappeared from the Red river settlement that night.

"You had better hurry a little sir," said the police officer. "You have many friends in these parts, and I want to get on the road before daylight."

"To Saint Paul," said Gordon appearing in the doorway. "I shall take a shorter road. Good-bye, Bain."

There was a curious smile on his boyish lips and a defiant upraising of his head that recalled the gallant bearing of the gay Gordons of old in scenes of battlefield and then—the flash and crash of a revolver shot and Lord Gordon Gordon fell dead in the center of the room, carrying the mystery of his life with him.

Watch the Skin for Bad Blood

It Comes to the Surface in the Form of Pimples, Boils, Rashes and Humors.

Where the blood is weak and depraved the system lacks staying power and force. Frightful ulcers and unsightly blotches break out, the skin becomes yellow and muddy, the eyes lack lustre.

Reader, does YOUR blood, need attention? If so get Dr. Hamilton's Pills at once; they filter out all poisons, eliminate disease-making germs, nourish and re-vitalize every drop of blood in the body.

No medicine exerts such a marvellous influence for good as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they clear the complexion, make it exquisitely beautiful; they cure pimples, rashes and skin troubles of every kind. Read the following carefully:

No Appetite---Bad Color---General Debility

"I was run down," writes Mr. Albert E. Dickson, of Fairhaven, P. O. "My color was dull and unhealthy, appetite was poor, and I constantly suffered from rheumatism.

"I found it hard to sleep, and felt worn out and tired all the time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills made an instant change. I grew stronger, my blood was restored, rheumatism vanished. To-day I am vigorous, cheery and healthy in every respect."

You will never realize what good health means until you feel the quickening, vitalizing effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Every tired, overstrained, nervous man and woman should use this grand tonic regularly. Life will then be full of happiness and buoyant health. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1. By mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

AGE ADDS TO ITS POPULARITY.

Fifty years ago Putnam's Corn Extractor was introduced. Its sale has been enormous. The reason is that "Putnam's" is the only painless and sure cure for corns, warts and bunions. Doubtless you have proved this yourself.

CAT STORIES.

A blue law crusade case of importance was on at the police station, but owing to the appetite of the station house cat no case could be proved. Butchers Schardon and Shrope had been accused of selling sausage on Sunday, and it was alleged by the accusers that the sausage had been saved. When a hunt was made for the condemned sausage, however, it could not be found. The office cat, licking her chops, looked wise, and the magistrate announced since the cat had eaten the evidence there could be no case.

ANOTHER WISE PUSSY.

Cats do not think—no animal does, says Mr. Burroughs. But how about the Lanconia cat that found it difficult to catch the abundant English sparrow in his New Hampshire village and evolved the scheme of planting himself with his back to the street where the sparrows congregated and watching them in the reflections of a plate glass window? He has played this game for a long time—not being deceived by the window, but when a sparrow gets within jumping distance, then the cat leaps and gets his victim. And is not this reasoning?

CATS IN PALL MALL.

Cat lovers should take a walk down Pall Mall. There is a tabby there who has become quite a public character. She sits in the middle of the pavement outside a shop, and greets the passers-by as if they were old friends. Lately she has introduced a kitten to public life, and it is indescribably comic to see a pair posing side by side as if they were sitting for their photographs. When two or three dogs appear on the scene there is a strategic scooting into the shop. But when a solitary dog approaches, tabby arches her back and glares, and he thinks it advisable to continue his promenade with an air of affected carelessness. The kitten endeavors to live up to the family dignity, but I do not think she will ever have her mother's spirit.

GREAT LAKE SAILORS.

The lake sailors think they have nearly all the dangers and hardships of the Atlantic seamen (except their poor pay) and other perils of their own besides. They have no tides—except every seven years, some say—but they have currents to consider, currents that run in all sorts of different directions at unscheduled intervals. They have no Banks of Newfoundland but they have fogs; for instance in the Straits of Mackinaw—full of reefs, islands and other vessels. Worse than that they have forest fires which send thick clouds of smoke for many miles across the water, stinging the eyes and blinding them. They have no icebergs but they are sometimes frozen up all winter long in the middle of the lake with food and fuel running low. ("And there we stuck," said the mate of the Hutchinson, "and ate oats till the ice broke.") * * * Upon big Lake Superior they have terrific hurricans; there their records show a velocity equal to that of tempests in most parts of the seven seas except the tropics; but a storm on the lower lakes is liable to prove more destructible. Lake Erie, the smallest of the group, over a thousand feet in some places, reaching six hundred feet above the sea level and four hundred feet below, but Lake Erie in its deepest spots is only about two hundred and in most parts much shallower. Accordingly one of those sudden and furious storms kicks up a tremendous row, so that between the very choppy sea and the constant danger of running aground, the lake captains dislike Lake Erie in a blow more than any other for as with sailors the world over, it is not water (which is their element), but land which they fear.—(Jesse Lynch Williams in 'The Workers of the Great Lakes," in The Outing Magazine for November.)

PSYCHINE

Taken promptly and faithfully according to directions will not only invariably prevent Consumption but will never fail to cure any of those lesser diseases which are always the forerunners of Consumption.

CONSECON, May 30th, 1904.

It affords me pleasure to speak of the merits of Psychine, which I found to be a marvelous tonic and tissue builder. I was taken down with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs. In fact, I believe I was never free from colds for months previous, and tried many of the common cure-alls and cheap nostrums you see advertised, but obtained no relief. I had then learned that such remedies are merely palliative and not curative preparations. Friends advised Psychine, and after taking several bottles I became sound and strong again. Scores of my friends have been saved much suffering with Psychine, and I voluntarily give permission for the publication of this statement.

WILD GAME IN JAPAN

Hunting, As Understood in Europe or America, Unknown.

Men often ask me about the sport obtainable in Japan, and so with respect to this it may not come amiss if I here explain. Hunting, such as the people of England and Ireland understand it by that term, is absolutely non-existent in the land of the Mikado. Foxes, deer and hares are plentiful enough, but Japan's natural features and the methods of agriculture followed by its farming classes are all, and most uncompromisingly, too, against it.

Of candidates for the rifle Japan possesses quite a respectable number, among them being three species of bears, the wolf, a species of stag, another antelope, and, if it is permissible for an old Anglo-Indian to place him in the same category, the wild boar. All are, however, scarce, and getting scarcer yearly, and it certainly would not pay anyone to make extensive preparations for going in search of any of them, for, though the Aino, that extremely hairy aboriginal of Japan, hunts them all most assiduously, he will render no assistance to a stranger to do likewise, and as for the Japanese hunter, he is the most pitiful of shikaris.

And then again, the slightest deviation by a foreigner off the beaten tracks of foreign travel in Japan is more likely than not to lead to unpleasantness for him, for suspicion of foreigners and their motives is one of the leading and worst traits in the Japanese character. Not being sportsmen or travellers in the same sense and from the same motives as the English-speaking people are, they cannot understand why anyone should spend his time in pursuit of objects which—to them, at least—bring no tangible results. To travel they have no objection, but only to do so to see places of interest and with some very definite object in view, such as for the spying out of a foreign land or for the gaining of knowledge upon a special subject, but never for sport.

To revert, however, to the wild game of Japan, it is a pity indeed that matters are as described, for the bears of the land are unique, as well from the point of view of the enormous size, strength and fierceness of one species as from the diminutiveness of another. The first is a great carnivorous brute, a sort of grizzly, who makes nothing of killing. Next to him comes a black beast very much like the sloth bear of India, and last of all a diminutive little brute scarce larger than a good sized spaniel, exceedingly shy and seldom seen.

The wolves of Japan are scarce, cowardly and of little account, and found now only in the extreme northern parts of the empire. The stag is about the size of and in make and shape and habits, too, like the fallow deer of England and Scotland. The little Japanese antelope must be a very near relative indeed of the jungle bakri of India, possessing, as he does, the same general appearance and shy habits.

The wild pig of Japan appears to be a domestic pig run wild; indeed, I have seen herds of Manchurian and Mongolian swine, great black hairy beasts, driven through the streets of Pekin, of a far wilder and fiercer breed than any wild pig I have come across in Japan. The boars there are, however, of a fair size, but never so tall on the legs, nor with such fine tusks, as the jungly sooar of India. To ride one of them down, as we do his brother of India, would be an impossibility, for, as it would be the case in hunting, so, too, in this sport, the nature of the country would be all against any one attempting to do so.—Tokio correspondence London Field.

Torpid Liver Cause of Fevers

THE SUREST WAY TO PREVENT DISEASE IS TO KEEP THE LIVER ACTIVE WITH

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Too frequently an external cause for fever is looked for, when the real source of trouble is from within the body itself.

To begin with, the liver becomes torpid, sluggish and inactive, and poisonous bile is left in the blood to corrupt the whole system. The result is the overworking of the kidneys and the clogging up of the organs of excretion.

Food which should be digested is left to ferment and decay in the intestines, and inflammations and fevers are set up.

In such a condition the body is a regular hotbed of disease, and is most susceptible to any ailment of an infectious or contagious disease.

The best insurance against disease is the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to keep the liver active. This great medicine has a direct and specific action on the liver, and is wonderfully prompt and effective in awakening and invigorating this important filtering organ.

A healthy liver means pure blood, good digestion and the proper working of the bowls. A healthy liver ensures the onward passage of the food through the intestines and excretory organs, and so removes all chance of poisonous waste matter remaining in the body to produce pain, suffering and disease.

Mr. Louis Joseph Albert, St. Louise, L'Islet Co., Que., writes'—I am happy to have an opportunity of certifying to the merit of Dr. Chases Kidney-Liver Pills. For three months I suffered from liver complaint, loss of appetite and inability to digest the food. I suffered from violent pains in the stomach and sides, smothering feelings and depressed spirits.

Reading about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I decided to try them and obtained considerable benefit from the very first box. I am now in splendid health and can say positively that I was cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

TALISMANIC GEMS.

Magic and Mystic Jewellery Now the Fad in London Society.

Talismanic gems are the fad of the hour in London. Society, which has been revelling in occultism, is having its jewels re-set cabalistically.

The idea comes from Paris, where the Parisians are wearing mystically engraved jewel amulets to ward off evil influence. Mounted in platinum and gold, the jewels which do not become talismanic until they have left the engraver's hands, are being set in fantastic designs as rings, pendants, bracelets, and necklaces. Needless to say, the new craze is good for the jewellers, for the jewels must be new, or, at least, re-cut, if they are to bring good luck to the wearers.

The mystic stones with their equivalent signs are:—

January—The Water Bearer—Sapphire.
February—The Fishes—Amethyst.
March—The Ram—Blood Jasper.
April—The Twins—Emerald.
June—The Crab—Agate.
July—The Lion—Cornelian.
August—The Virgin—Sardonyx.
September—The Balance—Chrysolite.
October—The Scorpion—Alectorine.
November—The Archer—Topaz.
December—The Goat—Coral.

The topaz, engraved with a falcon, procures sympathy for its wearer, and the blood-red coral, with a man bearing a sword, is reputed to protect the wearer from epidemics.

Beryl engraved with a frog and set in platinum and gold in the form of a pendant, is the favorite love talisman, while the alectorine, which is one of the stones of the season when engraved with a human hand, sustains affection between husband and wife. The cornelian, bearing a man with a sceptre, favors fortune and so does the sardonyx when engraved with an eagle.

Not every stone, however, brings good luck, for the onyx, which, like the jade, is being extensively used for studs, rings and charms, when engraved with the head of a camel produces frightful dreams.

These are some of the principles of the exponent of the new cult.

CURE OF CROUP.

When a child has an acute attack of croup, make a poultice of linseed meal and mustard, rub a little oil or lard on top, then put it right round the child's neck. Give the child a good dose of castor oil, enough to make it sick. Many a child's life is saved through this when there is no doctor at hand. If mothers would make a small chest-preserver of red flannel the shape of a heart back and front, and twice a week put a few drops of turpentine on it, it would prevent many a sore throat and chest complaint.

HAVE YOU HEARTBURN ?

It's quite common with people whose digestion is poor. Immediate relief follows the use of Nerviline. Stomach is strengthened, digestion is made perfect, lasting cure results in every case. Use Polson's Nerviline once and you'll never be without it because every type of stomach disorder is conquered by a few doses. One 25c. bottle of Nerviline always convinces. Sold everywhere for the past fifty years.

PIGMY FREAKS OF PAMIR.

People and Animals Diminutive — Dwarfs of the Amazon.

The Pigmies at present in England are giants compared with some of the tribes of natives who inhabit the wilds desolate and almost unknown Pamir plateau to the north-west of the Hindoo Koosh range of mountains in Central Asia. So great is the attitude of this great tableland that geographers refer to it as "the roof of the world." Few, indeed, are the travellers or explorers who have even ventured NEAR to its southern fringe, lying just beyond the north-west frontier of India.

But the scientific world is being startled by the news which is leaking out of the results of the explorations by the two Danish officers, Messrs. Olousen and Philipsen, who have recently penetrated into some strange corners of this hitherto mysterious region. They have an astounding tale to tell. But they have brought back with them over 300 photographs incontestably proving what they say. In parts of the Pamirs, it appears, the people are not only all dwarfs, but the very animals of the district, wild and domestic, are correspondingly diminutive in stature.

The full-grown men and women are rarely a yard high. Their donkeys and their horses, which in appearance resemble our smallest ponies, are about the size of large dogs. The bulls and cows — fierce little creatures — are no larger than a new-born European calf, and the sheep are about the size of small poodies. Tigers no larger than kittens are said to infest the ....is.

Smaller and lower even in the human scale, however, than these Asiatic pigmies are some creatures which the natives of the great Congo basin in Africa call Kaieke, and will insist are men and not beasts.

The Kaieke are said to have very long hair, small, keen eyes, to be very wild—never coming into towns — and only to be seen in the bush, where they sometimes try to hold converse with the natives.

Another race of dwarfs, discovered by a J. D. Sullivan on one of the tributaries of the Amazon, are a people remarkable, chiefly for their ugliness. Their stomach, which is distended in the back as well as in front, is out of all proportion to their tiny spindling arms and legs. This is because of their habit of gorging. After a hunt they will eat like animals, and then lie listlessly in the hot tropical sun for days, till hunger again impels them to get more game.

In the same way among the wandering African pigmies a slain elephant becomes the site of a new camp until all its flesh is consumed, when the little men move off in search of a fresh quarry, which they blind before spearing to death by shooting poisoned arrows into their eyes. Individual pigmies, however, it is said, may also be encountered in the villages of the big negroes, where they are petted as curiosities.—Pearson's Weekly.

GIRL THIEVES.

Spurious Money Substituted in Pockets of Victims.

The police authorities of Vienna have arrested several persons who, it is stated, are confederates of the man Schapira, who was arrested in London the other day for the alleged forgery of Austrian bank notes.

One of the persons arrested is said to be an attractive girl, 24 years old, named Laura Klugmann, the daughter of a cantor in a synogogue at Budapest. Although living in apparent poverty with her father in a miserable garret in the latter city, about $400 in cash, forged and genuine bank notes to the value of $1,500 and a large quantity of valuable jewelery were found on the premises.

The girl Klugmann acted as the manager of a gang of girls, whose manager o. a gang of girls, whose business it was to induce well-dressed men to drink in their company until they were intoxicated. It is alleged that the girls then rifled their pockets and substituted spurious paper for the genuine bank notes found upon them.

In Galicia three more members of the gang of forgers, of which Schapira is said to be the head, have been arrested. They are Judah Leib Katz, Moses Parness, an elder in a synagogue, and his brother-inlaN, Pinchas Friedmann.

Schapira, it is alleged, was sentenced in 1879 to eighteen months' hard labor for the forgery of Russian postage stamps to the value of many thousands of pounds, which were circulated throughout the empire.

Shortly afterward he escaped to London, and, it is alleged, induced a number of other counterfeiters to come and assist him in his criminal work. Among these was an engraver, who received 20 per cent, on the value of the notes and stamps designed by him.

The receipts of the gang for the last five or six years are estimated by the police at many hundreds of thousands of florins.

WAS SENT NOME AS INCURABLE

Then Jos. Boone Found Health in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He was Unable to Work for Seven Years Before he Used the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

Cottel's Cove, Nfld., Nov. 17—Special—The days of miracles are past, but the cure of Joseph Boone, of this place almost ranks with the sensational cures of the earlier ages.

Mr. Boone had been ailing for eight years, seven of which he was unable to work from the effects of Backache and Kidney Complaint. He was all aches and pains.

He was treated by several doctors, and after seven months in the hospital was sent home as incurable. It was there that reading of cures in the newspapers led him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. It took twenty-one boxes to cure him, but to-day he is strong and well and hard at work lobster fishing.

People who have learned that if the disease is of the Kidneys or from the Kidneys, Doddls Kidney Pills will cure it.

The best prayer against pain is abstinence from sour apples.

STRANGE DREAMS WHICH LEAD TO FORTUNE AND SUICIDE.

There has seldom been a lottery in which dreams of lucky numbers have not played a romantic part, as in the case of M. Cousin, who won the second prize of £8,000 in the recent French lottery.

That, for instance, is a strange story that is told of Signor Fozzi, a merchant of Milan. Not long ago the signor dreamed of his daughter, who died several years since, and next morning, with his dream still mournfully haunting his memory, something brought to his mind that it was one of the days on which the municipal lottery was open. To the lottery he went, being a man of sporting instincts, and his dream suggested the venture. His daughter having died at the age of 24 years, 13 days, 4 hours, he selected these numbers to bet upon, and two of the three proved highly lucky. One, on which he had laid 8s. 4d., brought him 250 times his take, or over £100; and the other 4,250 times his stake of £1 12s. 6d., or nearly £7,000.

It was a dream that brought fortune too late for an Italian peasant called Luca. The peasant dreamt one night that he had been present at the drawing of the great state lottery, and that the first prize of £8,000 had fallen to ticket 24,016. When he awoke he was so strangely impressed by his dream that he scraped together all the money he possessed, and, after long searching, was able to buy a ticket, not of the number of his dream, but consaining the same figures in a different order. Then he fell on evil days, his wife died of an illness brought on by hardship and starvation, and a few days later he succumbed. Within a week of this double tragedy the ticket he had purchased was awarded the great prize at the lottery drawing.

DREAM ENDS IN SUICIDE.

A similar pathetic story is told of once a familiar figure in Sackville street, Dublin, where for many years she earned a scanty livelihood by selling laces and other small articles. One night she dreamed of a number which was to win a great prize in a forthcoming lottery, and when she awoke she hurried to the lottery office to insure it. The number was not drawn; but her faith in it was unabated, and time after time she insured it, selling her clothes, and even the very basket that contained her goods, to raise the necessary money. At last her small resources were quite exhausted; one day she was unable to insure the number, and that very day it was drawn. This blow of fortune was too much for the poor old creature, and, groping her blind way to the Royal Canal, she ended her troubles in its waters.

In the early days of lotteries in England to dream a number was always looked on as the luckiest of omens. In an old copy of the Post Boy we may still read this advertisement: "This is to give notice that ten shillings over and above the market price will be given for the ticket in the £1,500,000 lottery, No. 132, by Nath Cliff, at the Bible and Three Crowns in Cheapside." Light was thrown on this mysterious notice by a letter which the advertiser wrote to the Spectator, in which he says: "You must know I have but one ticket, for which reason, and a certain dream I have lately had more than once, I resolved it should be the number I most approved.

"My visions ace so frequent and strong upon this occasion that I have not only possessed the lot, but disposed of the money which in all probability it will sell for."

GRACE'S LUCKY ESCAPE.

About the same time a footman, on the strength of a similar dream, spent the whole of twenty years' savings in purchasing two lottery tickets bearing his lucky dream numbers; and when the tickets proved blanks, we learn, "after a few melancholy days he put an end to his life." In his box was found the following plan of the manner in which he should spend the £5,000 prize which his mistress preserved as a curiosity:—

"As soon as s have received the money I will marry Grace Towers; but as she has been cross and coy I will use her as a servant. Every morning she shall get me a mug of strong beer, with toast, nutmeg, and sugar in it; then I will sleep until ten, after which I will have a large sack posset. My dinner shall be on the table by one, and never without a good pudding. I will have a stock of wine and brandy laid in. About five in the afternoon I will have tarts and jellies and a gallon bowl of punch; at ten, a hot supper of two dishes. If I am in a good humor and Grace behaves herself, she shall sit down with me."

SMALL BIRDS.

The smallest bird in the world is said to be the pajaro mosca, or fly bird, of Cuba. It is of the humming-bird family, but far smaller than any of its kindred. The only pair that have been known to live in captivity were exhibited in New York. These tiny birds fly with such incredible swiftness that it is practically impossible to catch them, but a laborer happened to find this pair in the nest while they still were fledglings, and was able to secure them by covering them over, nest and all, with a bottomless cage until they were old enough to be separated from their parents. Fed with honey diluted with water, they poised themselves over the dish on vibrated wings, while they thrust their long bills into the food.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

MYSTERY OF GLAMIS.

Lady Henry Somerset Tells Some interesting Stories Concerning the House of Strathmore.

(By Lady Henry Somerset.)

London, Nov. 16.—The coming of age of Lord Glamis, the heir of Lord Strathmoce, was one of peculiar interest not only on account of the fact that the young man is heir to vast estates in Scotland and one of the most interesting historical castles in the United Kingdom, but also because a strange romance attaches to the history of the family.

That a mystery surrounds Glamis Castle is undoubted. It has been authenticated again and again that something exists within its gray walls which brings horror to those who are aware of the secret. This secret, whatever it is, is known only to the reigning lord, his eldest son when he attains his majority and the factor who manages the estates.

I knew at one time intimately a friend of the late Lord Strathmore. He told me he had been at college with him, that he was one of the gayest, merriest youths he had ever met, but that the day he became aware of the ghastly secret, he was a changed man, grave, sombre, deeply religious, and having lost much of the joy of life which was so prominent a feature in his character before. The subject of the mystery of Glamis castle is never alluded to by those who stay in the castle, it is far too serious to be joked about, and is treated with the utmost solemnity by all members of the family.

The history of psychical research has put beyond all possibility of doubt the fact that visions of some sort occur in special places. One of the most prosaic people I know, who stayed in the castle, was walking in the gardens built on the grey ramparts, when she suddenly met a lady dressed in green, and she followed her a little way down the path. It was a sunshiny day, and she saw the light fall upon her as she went, and wondered that she had not noticed her among the company who were staying in the house, when suddenly she vanished. On returning to the house she asked one of the members of the family to explain what she had seen, and was begged not to allude to it. She had seen the Green Lady, one of the apparitions which was constantly visible.

On another occasion a lady was staying in the castle with her little child. She slept in one of the old state rooms, and beyond it was a small bedroom occupied by the little girl. In the middle of the night she was aroused by the feeling that some one was in the room, and by the light of the night-light she saw a tall male figure pass from her room into the girl's, and almost immediately a scream came from the child, and she rushed into her mother saying she had been wakened by a great giant looking down upon her, all dressed in armour.

The stories have been too often repeated and told too circumstantially to be easily explained, and now that another heir has been initiated into the dread mistery, the world again wonders what it all means. The castle is of historic interest as it is the place in which was perpetrated the famous murder of King Duncan for ever immortalized in Macbeth.

"First Aid" to the Bowels

DOCTOR CASCARET
Office—In your own Vest Pocket
On call any Minute Day or Night

When Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Headache, Bad Breath, Coated Tongue, Belching of Stomach Gas, or any of these forerunners of Indigestion appear, Old Dr. Cascaret wants to be right on the spot in your pocket.

He wants to check the coming trouble instantly before it can grow into a habit of the Bowels to be costive.

Ladies, who extend to Dr. Cascaret the hospitality of their Purses or their Dress Pockets, will be rewarded with a fine complexion, and healthy Happiness.

These will about fifty times repay for the trifling space occupied, and the ten cents per week at cost.

* * *

Dr. Cascaret guarantees to cure the most obstinate cases of Constipation and Indigestion, without discomfort or inconvenience.

His medicine does not gripe nor purge, nor create a drug habit.

Because it is not a "Bile-driver," nor a Gastric-Juice Waster, but a direct Tonic to the Bowel Muscles.

It exercises naturally the muscles that line the walls of the Intestines and Bowels.

Want of Exercise weakens and relaxes these Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg muscles.

Old Dr. Cascaret goes directly after these Bowel-Muscles. He wakes them up just as a cold bath would wake you.

Then he works them (through the nerves) till they get so strong from that Exercise that they don't need any more help to do their duty.

But Dr. Cascaret wants to be right on the spot, in your Pocket or Purse, where he can regulate these Bowel-Muscles all the time, in health, and out of health.

Because, even the strongest Bowel-Muscles may be overworked.

Heavy dinners, late suppers, whiskey, wine, or beer drinking, nervous excitement, sudden exposure to cold or heat and a dozen other every day likelihoods tire the Bowel Muscles.

In such cases a little Cascaret in time is worth fifty dollars worth of Treatment later on, to say nothing of the suffering, discomfort, loss of Business Energy, and loss of Social Sunshine it saves.

* * *

Old Dr. Cascaret carried constantly in your Vest Pocket, or in "My Lady's" Purse is the cheapest kind of Health-Insurance, and Happiness-Promotion, that ever happened.

Little thin enamel Cascaret Box, half as thick as your watch, round-cornered, smooth-edged, and shaped so you don't notice its presence.

Contains six Candy tablets—Price Ten Cents a Box at any Druggist's.

Be sure you get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company, and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

Big box of tablets (to re-fill pocket-box) at 50 cents.

Carry Cascarets constantly in Vest Pocket, or Purse.

A sample and the famous booklet, "Curse of Constipation," Free for the asking. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chic...

A GREAT GERMAN RESORT.

Baden-Baden, world famed for its curative waters, is exquisitely fair in its natural beauties, and in the loving, artistic care given it by man through a long stretch of superlative natural beauty to the lover of scenery, bits of quiet woodland, and ruins rich in saga for the student of the past, a charming climate and while shorn of its former glamor of wickedness in gaming life, its handsome gardens, fine hotels and gorgeously palatial casino hold quite enough to entice the lover of pleasure and frivolity for a stay of several weeks.

The gay life that once flowed up and down the Lichtenthaler Alley, with its broad roadway and splendid promenade, and circulated in and about the terrace and great halls of the casino when the gaming tables attracted the devotees of pleasure from all the capitals of Europe, still graces Baden-Baden during the three weeks of the summer racing season. Many crowned heads of greater and less degree can be seen there at that time; King Edward of England, when Prince of Wales, was a faithful visitor. Although the gaming tables have been suppressed, an evening in the Baden-Baden Casino still bears a stamp of mundane brilliancy which does no injustice to the traditions of the past.—From "The Pearl of the Black Forest," by Grace Isabel Colbron, in Four-Track News for November.

Matters Which Will Be of Interest to Many.

Pity the Poor Bachelor.

Laying all jokes aside, what excuse has an old bachelor for living? Possibly the better one is that he can't help it or that it is no fault of his that he is or that he continues to exist. These observations are made from the old maid's point of view, which seems to be the point from which the old bachelor is viewed. There are other viewpoints from which he appears to better advantage, particularly at first glance, but when the halo of sentiment which he has gathered around him has been blown away even these points do not offer entrancing views. The fact remains, however, that he still exists and still has natural force enough to develop a halo of sentiment that is more or less attractive to the opposite sex, if not really magnetic, and strong enough to draw attention to him, and respectful attention too. The bachelor ought to know why he is as he is, and no doubt he does, but for some reason or other he has not been entirely successful in satisfying the public that his reasons are good and sufficient. It is up to him, therefore, to set public opinion right concerning himself.

An Eccentric Lord.

Matthew Robinson (Lord Rokeby), a prominent but eccentric Englishman of the eighteenth century became famous for his long beard and his pronounced hatred of medical practitioners. In regard to the former it is said that upon one occasion when going to an election he stopped at an inn where the country people, who had assembled from miles around, took him for a Turk and through this mistaken idea almost worried "me lord" to death. His dislike for physicians was carried to such an extreme that he left a codicil to his will which was to the effect that a favorite nephew was to be disinherited should he (the nephew) in the last illness of the lord let his sympathies cause him to send for a doctor. This having been made known to the nephew when his uncle, the lord, was in good health, it is needless to add he allowed that person's spirit to take its flight without calling in any of the "infernal surgical fraternity."

Grewsome Humor.

The story of the French humorist who was presented with a silver ornamented coffin by a grateful undertaker whom he mentioned in his latest story is not without a parallel in the Lincoln's Inn store of anecdotes. The late Mr. Edward Karslake, Q. C., while canvassing at Colchester in the seventies, is said to have asked an elector to make him two trunks. "But I'm not a trunk maker," said the disappointed tradesman. "What are you, then?" inquired the candidate. "I'm an undertaker," was the answer. "Very well, then," said the learned gentleman, "make me a coffin instead." When the coffin arrived at his London residence there were members of his family who strongly objected to giving it house room. Very good," he rejoined. "I'll have it sent to my chambers. It will serve as a receptacle for Beavan's reports."—London Globe.

Proved Her Responsibility.

A curious incident occurred at a railway station at Kingstown, near Dublin. A wealthy lady one day demanded a ticket on credit, saying that she had forgotten her purse. The clerk naturally refused to accede to her request, whereupon the enraged lady went straight off to her bank, drew out a hundred pounds in gold and, returning to the station, shoveled the sovereigns through the pigeonhole of the booking office in front of the astonished clerk. "There," said she; "that will teach you that I can be trusted with a return ticket to Dublin!"

Never Surrender.

There is no defeat. Don't admit it for a moment. Never surrender. When the last second comes, make the last thought hopeful, the last breath brave. The man or creed that tells you it is too late speaks hopelessly and in ignorance of the great mystery, for we are the great mystery, fragments of a fate, a future, not within our comprehension, beyond the speculation of the thing that dies.—Schoolmaster.

Fitting.

"I beg your pardon, doctor," said the toast master after the dinner was over, "for introducing you inadvertently as 'professor.'"

"That's all right," replied the principal speaker of the occasion. "The title fits me better than 'doctor' does. I profess to be a doctor, but I get mighty little practice."

Getting Out of It.

Mrs. Unappy (after the quarrel)—When we were married you said you'd be willing to follow me to the end of the world, and now— Mr. Unappy—Now I desire to call your attention to the fact that the world has no ends. It is round.

When one meets the tipping problem face to face he understands what is meant by the saw "All things come to him who waits."

Dirty Tibetans.

The people of Tibet rarely wash, finding it warmer to be dirty.

Doctors In Italy.

In Italy the term "medico condotto" is applied to a doctor who is appointed to attend upon the sick poor of a commune. Such a doctor gets only $300 or $500 a year; but, as he is allowed engage in private practice and gets pension after twenty-five years' service, there is no lack of candidates fe vacancies.

No Drug Stores In Japan.

In Japan there are no drug stores. The doctors dispense the medicines, and if the patients call on them they charge for the medicines only.

THE HOTEL BREAKFAST.

How the American Meal Appears to an Englishman.

The American hotel breakfast is representative of the general delight in good living. The length of the menu and the variety of the dishes bespeak an appetite that in the early morning can relish a meal little less substantial than a dinner.

The hotel breakfast begins with fruit—grape fruit if it happens to be in season, the bitter sweetness of which seems designated by nature to awaken the appetite. And there is really a bewildering problem when next you are asked to choose among the cereals—from the old fashioned oatmeal to all kinds of predigested preparations. Cooked oysters in every style are offered on the menu, and even in the best restaurants a plate of oysters costs only a shilling. The choice of fish can be made from a long list—of kinds unknown in England, including weakfish, bluefish and shad, with its delicate roe. It must be out of compliment to English travelers that herring and haddock are imported. You see them very seldom on an American breakfast table.

When boiled eggs are eaten they are opened by the waiter into a glass, no small quantity of butter being added—salt butter, for "sweet" butter is seldom served. With chops or steak the American, who never eats cold meats at breakfast, usually orders potatoes, and the meal may be brought to a close with pancakes. These hot cakes, which are made of wheat, buckwheat, rice or cornmeal, are eaten smothered in maple sirup, a delicious treacle obtained from the sap of maple trees.

The American drinks coffee for breakfast—such a coffee as you may find in Paris, but not in London—and that he does not prefer tea would need no other explanation than the failure to understand the art of making it.—London Mail.

THE FIRST PIE PLATES.

They Were Made by the German Potters of Philadelphia.

The first pie plates were made early in the eighteenth century by the German potters who settled in Philadelphia.

After the clay was prepared it was cut into small pieces by means of a brass wire and taken to the workbench to be made into plates.

The clay was roughly beaten into a flattened form looking like a colossal buckwheat cake. This was rolled out into a thin sheet with a roller much like a rolling pin, and then a disk cutter was used to cut it into circular pieces of the required diameter. This bat, as it was called, was then laid on a board until partly dry and was then decorated.

The slip decoration was applied by means of a slip cup, an earthen vessel with goose quills inserted into the openings, through which the liquid slip was made to trickle over the ware in a variety of patterns, just as icing is applied to cake at the present time. The slip mixture was of a creamy color made of white clay and water.

Favorite motives for decorations were flowers, fruits and scenes, tulips being a special pet.

A Lutheran minister asked his potter to dine with him to discuss designs for a set of plates he wished to order. As the potter was accustomed to dine at 12, he was almost famished when the clergyman's 2 o'clock dinner was served. When the set of plates came home, each with a pious sentiment interwoven among the marginal decorations, the minister laughed to find an extra plate, bearing this inscription: "I have never been at a place where they dine so late." So much for Pennsylvania-German humor.

A Rebellious Actor.

Frederick Lemaitre, the French actor, was playing Robert Macaire in a town of France where two soldiers of the garrison represented the policemen who had to arrest him. In the spirit of his part he gave one of them a vigorous kick. "Ha, we must see to this!" cried the infuriated soldier and promptly knocked Lemaitre into the orchestra. At this there was a terrific din, and the soldier began to see that the vindication of his uniform was not popular. But Lemaitre, when he regained the stage, took the gendarme by the hand and said: "Excellently well done, my friend. The uniform must be respected even in the theater. Come to lunch with me tomorrow and bring your comrade."

Hats, Boots and Hearts.

Mrs. Nolan had made some disparaging remarks about the costume of her husband's bosom friend, Mr. Herlihy, and they were promptly resented.

"'His hat is turning green wid age,' is it?" said Mr. Nolan, with fine scorn, "and 'his boots is rusty and cracked lookin',' did I hear ye say? Listen now to me, Mary Nolan. If ivery man's hat an' boots covered as warrm a hearrt as Phelim Herlihy's there'd be more proud wimmin in the worrld!"

Good Training.

Miss Sightseer (in Egypt)—Mr. Newrich, you scale up these rocks as if you'd been climbing pyramids all your life! Were you bred in the mountains? Mr. Newrich—Oh, no; but I carried a hod up a two story ladder for a good many years before I struck oil.

The Retort Caustic.

Mr. Sapleigh—I spent last evening in the company of the one I love best in all the world. Miss Pert—Indeed! And weren't you tired of being alone?

In the reign of George III. hats were taxed. The least tax was threepence. Those above 12 shillings in value paid a tax of 2 shillings.

A Fish That Could Talk.

A natural curiosity captured on the coast of Africa on May 5, 1854, by Signor Cavana and exhibited in all the great cities of Europe during the years 1859, 1860, 1861 and 1862, where it was advertised as the "talking fish," was in reality a species of the African seal, well known to naturalists on account of its wonderful powers of mimicry. This particular animal was about twelve feet in length and weighed something over 800 pounds. It had a fine, doglike head and large, beautiful black eyes, which seemed to sparkle with intelligence whenever the creature was spoken to by any one. It was very docile and when told to dance would roll over and over in its bathtub, with first tail and then head above the water, all the time chattering as though enjoying the sport as much as the spectators did. It soon learned many odd tricks and, it is claimed, learned to articulate at least three words very plainly—viz, "mamma," "papa" and "John," the last being its keeper's name. When told to pray it would clasp its flippers in the attitude of supplication and put on a sanctimonious look.

Origin of the Aztecs.

An old tradition says the Aztecs were one of seven powerful tribes that emerged from seven caverns in a region called Aztlan, or place of the heron. They wandered away from their fellows after a great confusion of tongues and settled in the region they are known to have inhabited. This tradition may be partly fabulous, but it is sure that the Aztecs settled the country before the eleventh or twelfth century.

All the tribes lived in peace for a considerable time until the strong began to encroach upon the territory of the weaker. Then a fierce war for supremacy over the whole territory ensued and lasted many years. Under the leadership of their military chiefs the Aztecs obtained control of the whole territory and established a very enlightened form of government. This was consummated in 1324 or 1325.

Detecting Guilt In Liberia.

The brown skins of the natives in Liberia are often daubed with red and white clay, the effect of the latter being rather startling. This is called dressing. Sometimes a vertical blue mark is seen across the forehead. This is a sign of freedom. The Kroomen have it more than others. They are largely employed as extra hands on the steamers. When a man is suspected of murder, theft, etc., he is made to drink sasce wood. This being deadly poison, his innocence is declared by the draft not proving fatal. It is said, however, that this is only a form. When the fatal moment arrives some expedient is generally adopted, or else it is considered that only an innocent man would be willing to approach the deadly draft.

Weddings In Korea.

At a Korean marriage every one rides on horseback and in single file. First comes a manservant, who carries in both hands an imitation life sized wild goose, covered by a red scarf. Then come the bridegroom, his friends and all the servants he possesses or is able to borrow. At the bride's house the servant first deposits the goose on a bowl of rice; then all dismount, and, leaving outside their outer robes, their hats and their boots, they enter the house and make as much noise as they possibly can. The pandemonium does not cease till the guests are paid to go away. A feast follows and then the bridegroom is taken to his bride, whom he sees for the first time.

Real Balm of Gilead.

The real balm of Gilead is the dried juice of a low shrub, it is said, which grows in Syria. It is very valuable and scarce, for the amount of balm yielded by one shrub never exceeded sixty drops a day. According to Josephus, the balm or balsam of Gilead was one of the presents given by the queen of Sheba to King Solomon. The ancient Jewish physicians prescribed it evidently for dyspepsia and melancholia.

Didn't Want an Elephant.

"An elephant must be a pretty expensive animal."

"Yes; I wish I had enough money to buy one."

"What do you want with an elephant?"

"I don't; I merely expressed a wish for the money."

Gets Nothing.

Hicks—The way Bragley talks of providing for his wife he seems to think nothing too good for her. Wicks—H'm! And the way he actually provides for her he seems to think nothing is good enough for her.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Important Moment.

Mr. Newlywed (in the kitchen)—What are you cooking there, my dear? Mrs. Newlywed (excitedly)—Don't bother me now. There's the cookery book. I'm making recipe No. 187 on page 396.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Quebec, 11th November, 1905.

In order to comply with the request of the majority of the proprietors and tenants on De Salaberry street, I hereby give notice that in future the snow will have to be removed by the parties obliged thereto according to Bylaw No. 351 of the Municipal Council of this city, which reads as follows:—

Be it ordained and enacted by the Council of the City of Quebec, and the said Council doth hereby ordain and enact as follows:

I. The three first paragraphs of section 1 of said By-Law No. 227 are repealed and replaced by the following

I. Any proprietor, tenant, occupant, or person in charge, or having care and management of a house, building, lot of ground, or part thereof within the limits of the City of Quebec, bounded by or adjoining on any of its sides to a street, lane, public place, or passage, shall be bound:

(1) To remove the snow or ice exceeding four inches in height from the half of the width of the street, lane, or passage, bounding or adjoining such house, building, lot of ground or part thereof, within forty-eight hours after the falling of such snow.

(2) To level the snow or ice when not exceeding four inches in height on the half of the width of such street, lane, or passage.

(3) The present By-Law shall not affect the obligations incurred by the "Quebec District Railway Company" as to the removal or the levelling of the snow or ice in streets where the cars run.

II. The present By-Law shall form part of the By-Law which it amends.

III. The provisions of the said By-Law No. 227 which refer to the paragraph replaced as aforesaid, shall apply to the provisions which are substituted thereto.

BUYING RUBIES IN BURMA.

A Peculiar Method of Bargaining For the Precious Stones.

The peculiar business methods of oriental merchants are illustrated by the manner of buying rubies in Burma. In the examination of rubies artificial light is not used, the merchants holding that full sunlight alone can bring out the color and brilliancy of the gems. Sales must therefore take place between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m., and the sky must be clear.

The purchaser, placed near a window, has before him a large copper plate. The sellers come to him one by one, and each empties upon this plate his little bag of rubies. The purchaser proceeds to arrange them for valuation in a number of small heaps. The first division is into three grades, according to size. Each of these groups is again divided into three piles, according to color, and each of these piles in turn is again divided into three groups, according to shape. The bright copper plate has a curious use. The sunlight reflected from it through the stones brings out with true rubies a color effect different from that with red spinels and tourmalines, which are thus easily separated.

The buyer and seller then go through a very peculiar method of bargaining by signs, or, rather, grips, in perfect silence. After agreeing upon the fairness of the classification they join their right hands, covered with a handkerchief or the flap of a garment, and by grips and pressures mutually understood among all these dealers they make, modify and accept proposals of purchase and sale. The hands are then uncovered and the prices are recorded.

JAPANESE PROVERBS.

They Are More Picturesque In Language Than Ours.

"Roses have thorns" and "Walls have ears" are as common in the Japanese speech as in our own. We say "More haste, less speed," but the Japanese phrase is "If in a hurry go round." In this country we very often remark that "accidents will happen in the best regulated families." The Japs, on the other hand, with an eye to the picturesque, vitalize it, so to speak, in their "Even a monkey sometimes falls from a tree." One of our useful English sayings is "Those who play with edged tools must expect to cut their fingers." In expressing a similar thought the Jap goes us one better so far as picturesqueness is concerned. He says, "If you keep tigers you are likely to have trouble." One of our standard maxims is to the effect that "oil and water won't mix." The Japs have not improved on this. "You can't rivet a nail in a custard" is their way of putting it. "The lotus springs from the mud" is their poetical expression of the common thought that "out of evil good may come."

What could be more suggestive and at the same time so poetic as their "Scattering a fog with a fan?" When a Jap undertakes the impossible his neighbors do not scoff at him or mock him. They simply say that he is "building bridges to the clouds" or that he is "dipping up the ocean with a shell." Failure in such a country must be as delightful as success in our more material land. "Thine own heart makes the world" is worthy of Emerson or Browning.

The Defiant Drummer.

"It was right funny," said Uncle Hosea, telling of the orchestral concert. "A smart Aleck lookin' feller set in the middle, an' all ter oncet the little man at the end o' the line hit the big drum a sassy rap. Well, the smart Aleck feller shakes a little stick at the drummer, an' what does he do but hit her up ag'in jest ter show he was as good as the next man. An', by Jinks, he didn't take no back talk—or, rather, no orders—from the smart Aleck man, because he just kept a-whackin' that big drum in spite o' the boss' a-shakin' that stick, as if ter say he'd catch it if he didn't quit. Yes, sir; I gloried in his spunk, if he was little. An' at the end o' the tune he whooped it up on that drum harder than ever. A little man for nerve every time."

It is curious to notice the vagaries of humanity in cases where no hard and fast line has been already drawn. Although most right handed persons put on their coats left arm first, a considerable percentage thrust in the right first. Soldiers fire from the right shoulder, but sportsmen are found who prefer the left. In working with a spade a proportion of right handed men grasp the spade with the left hand and push with the left foot and right hand, though when using an ax the same individuals would grasp farthest down with the right.

A Korean Custom.

In some parts of Koren, and among some Korean families, it is the custom for bridegrooms to dwell under the roofs of their fathers-in-law until the first son has been born and attained to years of manhood. Should any Korean, however, stay in the house of his bride's people for more than three days after his wedding, he is compelled to remain for an entire year.

Too Violent an Innovation.

"You told me you had an original idea in your novel."

"I had," was the reply, "but the publisher discovered it in the proof sheets and made me take it out."

When a man marries in some other church everybody wonders whether he will go with his wife or she with him. —Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

FINED FOR ADULT ATION.

Brockville, Nov. 16—The Department of Inland Revenue is taking active steps towards suppressing the sale of adulterated foods in Brockville. An inspector came through here some time ago and collected samples of goods from the shelves of local merchants. They were submitted to the Dominion Analyst, and during the past month reports have come back in the form of a demand for fines for selling adulterated goods, mainly pepper, cream of tartar, and jams.

EXPERIENCE OF A BIRCHTOWN LADY

Tried in Vain to Cure Her Dyspepsia till She Used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Cured Her Completely and Permanently.

Miss Mary Brown, of Birchtown, Shelburne Co., N.S., relates an experience that is of immediate interest to thousands of people in all parts of Canada. These thousands are the people who face a square meal with mingled feelings of pleasure and dread, in other words the victims of Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

"I can say I had Dyspepsia for some time," says Miss Brown. "I tried many medicines, but never met with anything to help me till I used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"After taking three boxes I think they have made a perfect cure. And as it is over a year now since I took them I think I can safely say the cure was a permanent one."

If you want to eat three square meals a day and enjoy them use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A SAGACIOUS DOG.

Ottawa, Nov. 16—Great excitement prevailed in Hull this morning over the narrow escape of two little boys from drowning in Lake Flors, one of them being rescued by his dog. The children were Edmond and Johnny Poirier, four and six years of age respectively, sons of Mr. Nap. Poirier, Kent street, Hull. They were playing on the frozen surface of the lake, not far from their home, their sleigh being drawn by the dog. The lake is 25 feet deep. Fortunately help was at hand, and both children were taken from the water, very badly frightened but not any the worse for their experience. The intelligence displayed by the dog was commented on on all sides with fervent praise and thankfulness. Mr. Bernabe Durocher, who lives near, happened to be crossing the lake at the time and seeing the children thrown from their sleigh and break through the ice, ran at once to their assistance. The dog, which was hitched to the sleigh, turned and seized one of the boys, and Mr. Durocher secured the other. When Mr. Durocher had got him safe, he pulled out the other, whom the dog had held from sinking. They are both quite well.

EXTREME MEASURES.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—M. Vouich says: Happily matters have not reached such a desperate stage as to declare for the moment that the Government is waiting to see what will be the popular response throughout the country to the appeal for a general strike. While neither a dictatorship nor martial law for St. Petersburg or Russia proper has been decided upon there is no doubt that the Witte Cabinet has been already compelled to consider the possibility of the Government being driven to extreme measures. The attitude of the moderates who naturally would be expected to support the Government at such a crisis leaves the Government, unless it is prepared to immediately convoke a constituent assembly based on universal suffrage, no choice between the anarchy which the revolutionists are trying to create or repression. Rumors are circulating this afternoon that the Emperor will extend clemency to the great majority of the Cronstadt mutineers.

There was an immense meeting of workmen and Polish sympathizers at the new theatre on the Moika canal this afternoon and despite the snow storm an overflow meeting was held outside. Members of the Polish delegation spoke, but in a very temperate tone, declaring that Poland did not seek separation, knowing that an independent Poland would be an easy prey for Germany. They wanted and believed they were entitled to autonomy and asked for the aid and cooperation of all believers in the principle of self government. Resolutions were adopted calling on the Government to abolish martial law and grant autonomy to Poland and appealing for the support of the Russian nation.

WHEN RUN-DOWN, "DRAGGY," USED-UP

You Lack the Vigor, Courage and Staying Power that "Ferrozone" Can Supply

Night comes and it's hard to sleep. Morning dawns and the anxious, tired feeling is still there. Don't neglect this gradual decline; it can't cure itself. But by forming rich, pure blood, Ferrozone will quickly supply the nutriment and building material your system craves.

Instantly you are aware that some powerful force is building up your depleted energies. At once you feel braced, toned, strengthened. Search the world over and you won't find anything to tone up a weak system like Ferrozone. Physicians claim it is the most strengthening, uplifting medicine ever discovered.

No more spells of tiredness, but bounding, joyful health when you take Ferrozone, of which Mrs. H. S. Gold, of Bowsman, Man., speaks in the following words of praise:

"I state my case because I think it may assist other women to health. A year ago I was almost a wreck. I was pale and emaciated, suffering from nervousness and hysteria. Little things going wrong in the house bothered me. The doctor advised different treatments, but they didn't help. He said my low condition was due to weakness that might never be cured. Ferrozone had a peculiar grateful effect and built me up quickly. The ills I suffered from are cured. I am now strong and vigorous and was made so by Ferrozone."

Why not cast aside the chains of sickness and enter the bright, happy life of robust health. Let Ferrozone help you—let it cure you once and forever. Price 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

CAYENNE PEPPER.

Try a Sandwich of It if You Are Troubled With Insomnia.

"Did you ever try a cayenne pepper sandwich?"

This question was asked a lady to whom sleepless nights were growing to be an almost unendurable burden.

"Not that, but I have tried about everything else," was the discouraged answer. "I don't suppose, however, that it would do me any more good than the thousand and one things I have tried."

"I have suggested the remedy to a great many people similarly afflicted, and in every instance good results have followed. I wish you would let me make you one."

The haggard face of the sleepless woman told its own story. She languidly assented to her friend's request, with little or no faith in its efficacy, yet willing, like the proverbial drowning man, to "catch at a straw" that promised any relief.

A cracker was forthwith produced and quite generously buttered. A liberal sprinkling of cayenne pepper was then added, the two halves put together and the patient requested to partake of the spicy concoction.

Strange as it may seem, but little inconvenience was experienced. The slight smarting sensation in the mouth was soon over, and no unpleasantness was felt in the stomach. The cracker was eaten just before retiring, and very soon after the patient was sleeping peacefully.

The pepper acted as a stimulant to the stomach, drawing the blood from the excited brain and inducing a night of more refreshing sleep than had been experienced for a long time. The remedy was repeated the next night, with the same result. A cayenne pepper sandwich is much less harmful than drugs and when taken in small quantities is a good tonic for a weak stomach.

Sick headache has also been known to yield to a cup of hot water to which have been added a generous pinch of cayenne pepper and a nip of soda as big as a pea.

TRICKS OF THIEVES.

Clever Schemes That Aid In the Perpetration of Crime.

"Thieves resort to clever methods in order to get away with the goods," said an old police officer, "and I am firmly convinced that if the criminals of the world would devote the same amount of time, talent and patience to thinking out uplifting and advantageous schemes for humankind they would in a short while revolutionize the world in many useful ways. But somehow the mind of the criminal seems to be sharper, if I may say it, and brighter and quicker than the mind of the honest man. The fact may be explained in any number of ways. In the first place, the criminal has nothing to do but think out some plan of getting something that doesn't belong to him. That is his special business. Quite naturally the plan he works out under those circumstances will often startle even the oldest men in the police departments of the country. Who would have thought of the wire saw, a thing so small that it can be slipped in between the layers of the shoe sole, but the criminal who found in it a ready, convenient and unfailing means of escape? He is constantly thinking up some new scheme. Here we find a man and woman in a jewelry store. The woman carries a parrot with her. The bird suddenly gets away and begins to flutter around in the store. The jeweler is afraid the parrot will break something. He tries to catch it and succeeds after a short while. A small purchase is made. The man and the woman leave. Result, several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry gone. It was stolen during the excitement over the bird. Good scheme, eh? Yet it is but one out of a million worked by the clever degenerates of the world."

The Spinning Wheel In Ireland.

The spinning wheel and the flax wheel are still found in the Irish cottages, where many a girl has her wedding dowry of linen and homespun made at home. Although it is more the task of the older women, there are still girls who do their spinning stint and lay by a certain amount for their wedding outfit. A pleasant sight it is to see the elderly women outside their cottage doors spinning the flax or the wool. As long as the weather is warm the sturdy Irishwoman, old or young, scorns a roof except to sleep under. The free air and sunshine are her choice, and the sweet sky is the fairest roof.

Politics and Humor.

In the world of politics the man who would obtain political preferment must be serious. No man who cultivates humor to the exclusion of his other gifts can hope to attain to the highest places in the political arena. The American citizen reserves the inalienable right to vote for whom he wills, and the serious man who suppresses his sense of humor rather than the man who cultivates it is honored with his preference.

MONKEY MOTHERS.

They Display More Pure Affection Than Any Other Animal.

A wild beast tamer of long experience tells some interesting things of the affection of animals for their young. He had an elephant once, he says, who did all in her power to spoil her young one. She fussed over it and cuddled it up so that when the time came for it to leave the cage it was simply unmanageable. When one of the men made a bold move toward the baby he was promptly butted in the stomach and bowled over in a peculiar way which the youngster had of expressing his feelings toward those whom he disliked. At last by a ruse the mother and son were separated. But there was no such thing as keeping them apart. The baby rubbed the skin off its forehead and trunk trying to get through the bars, and both wailed so long and piteously that the keeper was obliged to put them together again.

A shy baby camel that passed through the hands of this same trainer refused to look upon the world except from its favorite station between its mother's legs. The mother, too, would show her displeasure at any effort toward intimacy by spitting violently at every one in sight.

The kangaroo also is very fond of her offspring and will patiently carry it about long after it is ready to hop on its own account.

But for a display of pure affection the mother monkey beats any other animal, and when there is an addition to the family circle there is general rejoicing. A baby monkey sticks fast by its mother, and, asleep or awake, it seems always in her thoughts.

The Lazy Koreans.

It is hardly an exaggeration to say that the Koreans are the laziest people on earth. All day long they lie about the streets smoking their gigantic pipes. A native pipe is a six foot length of bamboo, with a metal bowl, and is carried tucked into the neckband and down the trousers leg. All work of very nearly every kind is done by the women, who occupy perhaps the most degraded position held by the sex of any nation. The unfortunate female population is collectively a beast of burden and denied even the most elementary recognition as human beings. A Korean girl has no name. She is merely known as "daughter of So-and-so," her father.

Sleep For the Young and Aged.

A four-year-old requires 12 hours; one of 7 years, 11 hours; of 12 years, 10 hours, and of 16 or 18, 9 hours. After that 7 or 8 hours is sufficient until after 60; then the hours should be increased gradually with each decade, as the man or woman of 80 requires as much sleep as a child of 10. And it should be remembered that the most health giving beauty making time is early.

It All Depended.

"Don't we go any higher?" asked the facetious guest in the hotel when the elevator stopped at the twenty-fourth floor.

"Not unless the elevator drops, sir," answered the truthful elevator boy.—Judge.

Advice.

"Two folks," said Uncle Eben, "is bound to git into trouble—de man dat won' take no advice at all an' de man dat tries to take all he hears."

The people who help us most are those who make light of our achievements and have faith in our possibilities.

The English Coxcomb and His Quill.

In Elizabeth's time a case of toothpicks made of wood was carried about by fine gentlemen. A more violent eccentricity of fashion is pointed at by Sir Thomas Overbury, who describes a courtier as walking in St. Paul's "with a picktooth in his hat, a cape cloak and a long stocking."

Co-operation In Italy.

In northern Italy there is a co-operative association for every thousand inhabitants.

Hair Stockings.

Stockings made from human hair are worn by Chinese fishermen as the best preventive of wet feet. They are drawn over ordinary cotton stockings, being too rough for putting near the skin.

The College Man.

Records prove that the college man at thirty is far in advance of the man of the same age who entered by the apprentice door. Even at thirty it is shown that four years spent at college were not wasted and that he really acquired the ability to learn how to do things.

Equine Sense of Smell.

The horse when grazing is guided entirely by the nostrils in the choice of proper food, and blind horses are never known to make mistakes in their diet.

The Bulldog.

As to the derivation of the word bulldog, it is only necessary to state that at one time this species was exclusively used in bull baiting, and from that circumstance arose the name by which it is universally known.

Won With a Kiss.

In the days of George III. it was the custom to get ladies to place a shilling between their lips to entice intending recruits to kiss it out.

A Double Saints' Day.

St. James and St. Christopher share July 25 between them. In some parts of England the apple trees are blessed on this day, which is said also to mark the success or failure of the hop crop.

A schoolmistress received the following interesting letter from the mother of one of her pupils:—

"Dear Miss: You writ me about whipping my sun. I hereby give you permission to beet him enytime it is necessary to lern him lesens. He is juste like his father; you have to lern him with a club. Pound nolege into him—I want him to get it, and don't pay no attenshun to what his father says. You handle him."

An Odd Jewish Ceremony.

In the Jewish Encyclopædia is an account of the queer ceremony of the taking off a brother-in-law's shoe by the widow of a brother who has died childless, through which ceremony he is released from the obligation of marrying her. The ceremony is described as follows:

The yabam (brother-in-law) must have his right foot, on which the shoe is placed, washed very scrupulously, and after he has strapped it on he must walk four cubits in the presence of the judges. Then the chief of the judges reads the following passage, which the yabamah (woman) repeats word for word: "My brother-in-law refuses to raise unto his brother a name in Israel; he will not marry me." Then the yabam is required to repeat the sentence, "I do not wish to take her." He then presses his right foot against the floor while she looses the straps with her right hand, takes off the shoe and throws it some distance away. Then she places herself in front of the yabam, spits on the floor in front of him and repeats these words after the presiding judge: "So shall it be done unto that man who will not build up his brother's house, and his name shall be called in Israel 'the house of him that hath his shoe loosed.'"

Poison In Walls.

"As much as 46 per cent of organic matter has been found in plaster taken from the walls of a hospital ward in Paris." Statistics tell us that it is not uncommon to find air in public assembly rooms and even in dwellings containing from ten to fifteen times the amount of carbonic acid found in pure air. Of this gas Tomlinson says: "It acts as a poison. If we attempt to inhale it by putting the face over the edge of a beer vat the nostrils and throat are irritated so strongly that the glottis closes and inspiration becomes impossible." One need remain but half an hour in an unventilated room to have inhaled 600 times the foul and poisonous fluid; the blood will have carried it to every part of the body, and the entire system will have become saturated.—Exchange.

Tying a Horse to a Hole.

It has been discovered that the desert Indians, who have never been accredited with superabundant wits, have for many years employed a method of tying their horses to holes in the ground that is clever, unique and effective. The operation of tying a horse to a hole seems an impracticable and impossible one, for there is something decidedly intangible and unsubstantial about the hole. The operation is performed in this way: Kneeling on the hot sands, the Indians dig with their hands until they have made a hole about two feet deep. They then tie an immense knot in the end of the halter rope, lower it into the bottom of the hole, fill the hole with sand and then jump and stamp upon it until the earth over the knot is about as hard as sandstone.—London Magazine.

Cats and Cattle.

In certain parts of southern California it is absolutely necessary to have cats to successfully raise cattle. The cows feed on a red clover which makes a superior quality of beef. This clover grew very sparsely until it was discovered that one farmer who had raised a large number of tabby cats always had fine clover fields. Investigation proved that the cats killed the field mice who killed the wild bees who fertilized the clover seeds by carrying the pollen from flower to flower, thus causing the seeds to sprout thickly every year. Now all the farmers have many cats.

Practical Economy.

A man whose impecunious condition is chronic and who borrows with the airy grace of a beau in an old comedy recently approached an acquaintance, all smiles and geniality.

"You're just the fellow I wanted to see," he said. "Could you lend me $5 for a minute?"

"I could," said the acquaintance dryly, "but let me tell you how to save that $5. Wait a minute and you won't need it."

The Capacity of the Lungs.

The lungs contain about one gallon of air at their usual degree of inflation. We breathe on an average 1,200 times per hour, inhaling 600 gallons of air, or 24,000 gallons per day. The aggregate surface of the air cells of the lungs exceeds 20,000 square inches, an area nearly equal to the floor of a room twelve feet square.

Something of a Torrent.

Young Wife (sobbing)—I will not be quiet! Before we were married you said I had a charming flow of language. Young Husband—And so you have, dear. It not only flows, but dashes, leaps, bounds, roars, goes over cataracts and mill sluices, and there is an occasional waterspout as well.

Stupid.

Perdita—It doesn't matter if this is the third installment of the story. The synopsis is printed, telling how the first chapters went, so you can start reading it from here. Penelope—Yes; but how stupid of them not to have the synopsis tell how it ends.

The Friends.

Effie (just engaged)—What do you think Edwin said last night? That if he had to choose either me or $10,000 he wouldn't even look at the money! May (still waiting)—Dear, loyal fellow! I suppose he wouldn't like to risk the temptation.

"Money," said Uncle Eben, "is what makes de mare go, but sometimes it wants a sensible driver to prevent somebody f'um gittin' throwed habd." —Baltimore American.

GREAT THOUGHTS.

They Have the Gift of Immortal Youth and Strength.

The influence of the law of action and reaction can be traced more clearly in those everyday human affairs which come under our individual observation than in the greater movements of mankind which are often imperfectly recorded. We act and are acted upon. The people we meet make an impression on us; the impression may be for the moment or it may last through life. Bloom, fragrance, grace, harmony, beauty, majesty, affect us agreeably; deformity, imbecility, distress, cruelty, affect us unpleasantly. The plea of the unfortunate, the thought of our visitor, the opinion in the newspaper, the issues of the time, impress us in accordance with our moods or natures. Certain words, tones, sights, awaken echoes within us of old happiness or pain.

There are words and tones which produce beautiful reactions—the lullabies of the mother, the endearments of the lover, the voice of sympathy, the enchantment of music, the messages of the poets, the trumpet calls to honor and duty. And there are words which produce misunderstanding, confusion, aversion, anger—the words of whining, complaining, fault finding, of envy, jealousy, slander, of malice, intolerance, brutality.

The response to the public speaker is reciprocal to his power. If he be dull, the hearers are wearied; if he be convincing, courageous, forceful, the audience will kindle, and he may rouse them to laughter or tears, to indignation or fury, to generosity or sacrifice. He may change the opinions and convictions of some and the course of the lives of others; he may even save a city from slaughter or make a state. If his thought be really great, it may live through many ages, stirring generation after generation. The reaction of moral effort may be prolonged; it may even gain force with time, indicating its connection with some stupendous primal energy. The echo of a great physical convulsion dies quickly, but the echo of the words of Confucius and Buddha, of Plato, Seneca and Christ, still lives. The voice of Socrates before his judges kindles men whose ancestors were untamed savages when Socrates spoke. Buildings decay, monuments fall, rivers run dry, races decline, but a great thought suffers from no impairment or decrepitude; it has the gift of immortal youth and strength.—From "Balance: The Fundamental Verity," by Orlando J. Smith.

Why Some Folks Go to Europe.

When New York society doesn't know what else to do it goes abroad. An ambitious woman gets wind of some rival's intended function. Not to be invited or not to be seen among the guests means a slight easily endured if the world be not cognizant of the fact, but intolerant if it is; therefore the ambitious woman sails away to Europe. She may not be gone six weeks, but her absence is thus to be accounted for. In other cases it is known that society takes this absent treatment to cure heart troubles, to escape social obligations that weigh too heavily on the income or, again, from sheer ennui it departs. This restlessness of certain sets in society would be dangerous were it not for the safety valve which that really overworked Atlantic ocean has become of late years. When all else fails, go to Europe.

The Beautiful.

Beauty prevails in spite of all we do. We may build ugly buildings, we may think ugly thoughts, we may wrinkle ourselves in worries or the contemplation of ugliness, we may even worship ugliness under the name of utility, but lightly, without an effort, the gentle hand of beauty descends upon all. Beauty may do her subtle work in many ways. Sun, moon, fog and rain are alike her servants. The fresh red houses, garish eyesores in the sun, become wonderful as they loom blood red before the man in the mist, or in a few years the red is quieted, and the searching light only makes it more beautiful.

A Conversion.

A country circus advertised that "at 12 o'clock the cannibals will be fed." A large crowd assembled, but to everybody's disappointment the savages ate potatoes. In reply to some indignant questions the manager said: "But, gentlemen, don't you see that their diet is evidence of my skill? I have converted them into vegetarians."

The Selfish Man.

A bachelor one day set the table in his lonely abode with plates for himself and an imaginary wife and five children. He then sat down to dine, and as he helped himself to food he put the same quantity on each of the other plates and surveyed the prospect, at the same time computing the cost. He is still a bachelor.

The Game of Life.

Life is a queer game of blind man's buff, played in a mist on a mountain top, and the players keep dropping over the precipices. But nobody heeds because there are always plenty more, and the game goes on forever.—H. Rider Haggard.

Good to Have and Bad to Lose.

"A man, like a razor, must have some temper to be any good at all."

"Yes, temper is a good thing to have, but a very bad thing to lose."

An impudent fellow may counterfeit modesty, but a modest man can never counterfeit impudence.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

The following letter is supplied by the firm of Neuville Belleau & Co., Stockbrokers, 92 St. Peter street.

New York, Nov. 17—The stock market sentiment had become composed this morning over the Russian outlook and prices rebounded at the opening. In many cases the first gains were widely extended during the course of the day, but the speculative taste showed the same tendency towards specialization as for some time past. The money market was comparatively tranquil and the prevailing rate all day was 6 per cent. The action of the foreign exchange market indicated that yesterday's violent advance was due as much to the fright over Russian affairs as to the relaxation of our money market. The further decline in money rates to-day did not push exchange notably higher, the price fluctuating irregularly during the day. Preliminary estimates of the week's currency indicated a further decline in the cash holdings of the banks. The loan account of the banks is expected as a matter of course to show a large reduction. The announcement of the issue of New York Central treasury stock to stockholders at par was a stimulating influence upon standard railroad stocks. Standard railroad stocks had a more general share in to-day's advance than for any day of the week. Union Pacific's 2 point rise was a notable effect on sentiment. The continued violent advance in Reading and in Smelting, however, kept the market distinguished still as one of specialties. Besides these two stocks there was a large number of others not usually prominent that made striking advances. The rise in prices of metals kept all metal industrials prominent. Notwithstanding some normal profit taking in the final hour the closing was active and strong and generally at the best prices of the day.

CLOSING LETTER.

Boston, Nov. 17—After noon the market continued strong, but without special feature. Boston Consolidated sold at 19½; Franklin ot 18⅜; Osceola at 107½ and Mohawk at 58½. Tecumseh closed at 13⅜ and Granby at 9¼; Wool 40½; Dom. Iron sold at 21. No sales of Dom. Coal.

New York, Nov. 17—Advices from St. Petersburg were less sensational this morning, including a denial of the report that the Credit Lyonnais branch had refused to accept Russian securities as collateral and London sent moderately higher prices with a reported better feeling in regard to the Russian situation. This influenced a decidedly strong opening in our stock market and a forceful demonstration was given of the extent to which the bull element have obtained control of the speculation. Opening gains averaged from ½ to 2¾ per cent through the list and the short interest found a decided security of offerings when it tried to cover. London bought about 20,000 shares and the various pools took hold of their specialties and rushed them up in a vigorous manner.

The renewal rate in the call money market was six per cent and there was a good supply at this figure, which also contributed to bullish confidence. Smelters was a leading feature, making a new high record on large transactions and confident buying. The Southern iron stocks were also strong. Amalgamated Copper was aggressively bought by brokers identified with Standard Oil interests and advices in regard to the metal market continued exceptionally favorable. In the railroad list the leading position occupied by Union Pacific was effective in sustaining bullish sentiment. In the afternoon the tone continued strong, but dealings were in considerably less volume. Tenn. Coal & Iron was a feature, advancing on a report that the company would be taken over by the United States Steel Corporation on terms equivalent to 110 for the stock. The closing was strong, though somewhat irregular near the best prices.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

New York, Nov. 17—Canadian trade in staple goods at wholesale is quieter, but holiday specialties show increased activity, dry goods leading, with hardware and groceries also reporting a fair trade. High prices and good demand for dairy products have helped Canadian trade this fall. It is estimated that $30,000,000 have been brought into the Province of Quebec by sales of these products. Montreal reports collections fair from the province and good from the West. Toronto advices indicate that trade is satisfactory and that a large holiday business is being done. Shipments of goods west are checked by a scarcity of cars due to the heavy grain movement east. Winnipeg reports the reorder trade better and collections improved. Victoria and Vancouver report a fair re-order trade with all kinds of lumber active and a disposition on the part of wholesale grocers to shorten credits. Failures for the week number 41, as against 30 last week and 24 in this week a year ago.

A FALSE REPORT.

Paris, Nov. 17.—The foreign office to-day gave out a denial of the report that Germany has protested to France and Great Britain against their negotiations with Liberia by which a portion of Liberian territory was to be hypothecated to secure a loan. The statement says that no negotiations for a loan are pending, that Germany has not protested, and that the sole negotiations between France and Liberia refers to the delimitation of the boundary of the African Republic.

THE STRIKE IN ST. PETERSBURG.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 17—In some quarters the belief is expressed that martial law will be proclaimed in St. Petersburg to-morrow. It is expected that the Emperor and Grand Dukes insist on this step against the counsels of Count Witte. The employers during the day finally informed the workmen that they had decided against [illegible]

The hunting and calling of moose and caribou are among the sportsman's chief delights during the continuance of the hunter's moon and the manly sport of tracking the big game through the gorgeous autumnal woods of the Canadian Adirondacks is one that tends to renewing the youth of both mind and body, and the upbuilding of a robust frame and a strenuous manhood. The Quebec and Lake St. John Railway is the open door to the sportsman's paradise of the northern woods, where moose, caribou and bear exist in countless numbers, their run-ways crossing the forests in every direction.

SWEPT BY A COMBER.

Halifax, Nov. 17.—The Plant Line steamer Halifax sailed for Boston Thursday, but three hours afterwards she returned to port battered and broken by a tremendous sea, and with her officers so badly injured that one at least of them had to be taken to the hospital, where it is considered doubtful if he can recover. The steamer had only just got squared away off Sambro on her course for Boston, with the wind south-southeast, when a huge wave combed over the bow of the steamer as she was in the trough of the sea, and struck the pilot house, smashing the roof and front and carrying away log, compass and fixtures. The sea also broke in a portion of the woodwork in the smoking room, washed out the forward staterooms, and flooded the social hall and forward cabin. Captain Ellis and Third Officer Glynn, who were in the pilot house, were thrown against the wall, and the third officer was so badly hurt that he became unconscious. Cut on the forehead, the temple and back of the head, he was covered with blood, his spine was hurt and he had other internal injuries. Capt. Ellis was hurt about the legs and cut about the face and hands, but was able to move about.

CANNOT BE DONE

Newfoundland Unwilling to be Party to Suit.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The suggestion, made some time ago, to take the difficulty which has arisen with Newfoundland over the boundary on the Labrador coast into the courts for settlement does not turn out to be a feasible one. With Newfoundland unwilling to be a party to such a suit it would not be satisfactory.

An effort will, therefore, be made to get the question settled under an old Imperial statute of William IV. for the better administration of justice and His Majesty's Privy Council. Under this statute His Majesty can refer to the judical committee of the Privy Council for hearing and consideration anything that he "shall think fit."

The consent of Newfoundland would not be necessary.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT.

As an illustration of industry the ant has, in compliance with the scriptural injunction, been held up as a shining example to the sluggard. As a proof of the saying that practice makes perfect science offers the flea in evidence. The flea's gait is a hop; he never walks, nor canters, nor runs. As a supreme result of his long and persistent practice as a hopper we are told he is now able to hop two hundred times his own length. Ye boastful college athletes to the woods! If the average broad jumper among our athletes should achieve the success of the ordinary flea he would be able to jump about 1,100 feet, while, as it is, he has never yet, even with a running start, encompassed twenty-five feet. "Go to the ant, thou sluggard;" go to the flea thou athlete!—From "Vest Pocket Confidences," in Four-Track News for November.

BOARD OF TRADE

Interesting Session of the Council Held Yesterday Afternoon.

A meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade was held yesterday afternoon at the Board rooms, those present being Messrs. W. Power, M.P., presiding, Geo. E. Amyot, E. E. B. Rattray, M. Joseph, Dr. Dd. Morin, V. Lemieux, and N. T. Levasseur, Secretary.

A letter was read from the Montreal Board of Trade proposing the holding of a conference of the Boards of Trade of the Dominion at Montreal in the spring of 1906. The last occasion upon which the Boards of Trade of the Dominion met was in Toronto in June, 1902, and the Montreal Board deems it advisable and valuable that the various Boards should confer together periodically on commercial matters of interest to the Dominion and the Empire. The Council of the local Board decided to co-operate in the movement for such a conference.

A series of resolutions passed by the council of the Toronto Board of Trade upon the subject of tax on commercial travellers was also received. These set forth the assertion that the Toronto Board was in favor of the freest possible trade intercourse between the Provinces and is strongly opposed to any tax on commercial travellers; and as the growth of the Dominion toward a larger national existence depends upon the unity of feeling between the Provinces fostered by such freedom of intercourse and control by the Federal Government of all matters relating to trade and commerce; and whereas it is stated that the National Government has decided to sacrifice some of the rights which should belong only to it by refusing to disallow the acts imposing such objectionable taxes passed by the Provinces of British Columbia and Quebec; therefore the Council of the Board expresses itself as of the opinion that it is the obvious duty of the Central Government to control and protect the trade and commerce of the Dominion and that for the Dominion Government to permit Provincial legislation affecting business among the Provinces or between any two Provinces is a refusal to carry out the sacred trust committed to it by the British North America Act, and the council would urge upon the Dominion Government the importance of reconsidering its decision; and the various Boards of Trade throughout Canada, the Manufacturers' Association and the Trades and Labor Council be asked to co-operate to that end. The resolution were concurred in by the Council of the Quebec Board after discussion.

The Secretary of the Board was instructed to write to the chairman of the Tariff Commission requesting information as to the date upon which the Commission proposed to hold sessions in Quebec, and offering the use of the Board rooms for their sessions. The Board would like to know the date of the Commission's meeting in Quebec in order that due preparations may be made. Upon notification of the date of the Commission's visit to this city the Secretary was instructed to notify, and especially the local Branch of the Manufacturers' Association, of the date by advertisement, so that they may, if desired, be heard by the Commission.

The complaints of Anger & Son, Leclere & Letellier, Mr. J. C. Kaine, M.P.P., and others in regard to discrimination in freight rates by the Quebec & Lake St. John Railway were referred to the Provincial Railway Commission for investigation and regulation.

The Secretary was requested to prepare articles for the press from time to time upon the Board of Trade and its work, in order to bring the same more prominently before the public and in this way create more interest and enlist wider support in the various matters in which it is interested.

The next monthly general meeting of the Board of Trade will be held on Tuesday afternoon next at 3 o'clock.

PRINCE LOUIS AT NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 17 — Prince Louis of Battenberg wound up his social obligations here to-night by attending a supper at the New York Yacht Club. The Prince went to the club house from the Astor residence, where he had been the guest at a dinner, accompanied by John Jacob Astor. At the supper the America's Cup was exhibited. When the function was over the Prince left for his flagship, the Drake. Many British and American naval officers were among the guests.

24 HOUR AUTO RACE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 24.—W. L. Clemens and Chas. A. Merz to-day finished the 24-hour automobile race at the State Fair, breaking the 24-hour record, the 1,000 mile and all other records for stock cars between 650 and 1,000 miles under similar conditions. They finished 1,000 miles in 21 hours, 28 minutes and 4-5 seconds. The 24 hours record previously held by Guy Vaughn, who travelled 1,015 4-5 miles was beaten by Clemens and Merz who reeled off 1,094 3-16 miles in the 24 hour run.

SHIFT

If Your Food Fails to Sustain You, Change.

One sort of diet may make a person despondent, depressed and blue and a change to the kind of food the body demands will change the whole thing.

A young woman from Phil. says:

"For several years I kept in a run-down miserable sort of condition, was depressed and apprehensive of trooble. I lost flesh in a distressing way and seemed in a perpetual sort of dreamy nightmare. No one serious disease showed, but the 'all-over' sickness was enough.

"Finally between the doctor and father I was put on Grape-Nuts and cream as it was decided I must have nourishing food that the body would make use of.

"The wonderful change that came over me was not, like Jonah's gourd, the growth of a single night, and yet it came with rapidity that astonished me. During the first week I gained several pounds in weight, my spirits improved, and the world began to look brighter and more worth while. And this has continued steadily, till now, after the use of Grape-Nuts for only a few weeks, I am perfectly well, feel splendidly, take a lively interest in everything, and am a changed person in every way." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Of the periodic pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from disease. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. T. Dolan, of Madrid, Perkins Co., Nebr., writes: "I was cured of painful periods by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and his Compound Extract of Smart-Weed. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines the best in the world."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

The sluggish liver made active by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

EARLY R. R. DAYS

On the North Shore Recalled by Mr. Thomas Crockett, the Lumber King.

The Moncton Times has the following:—"Mr. Thomas Crockett, the well known lumber king of Bonaventure County, Quebec, was a passenger on the maritime express yesterday morning en route to Halifax where he is going to look after the purchase of a couple of ships for use in his lumber business. A Times representative had a short but interesting chat with Mr. Crockett, who is a brother of Conductors J. B. and William Crockett, was formerly in the service of the I. C.R. He was a brakeman on the first train between Moncton and Campbellton. After serving some time as brakeman he learned telegraphy and was connected with the despatching department for some time. Mr. Angus McLellan, the well known express conductor of Campbellton, is the only conductor on the north shore to-day that was on that division at the opening of the road.

"Mr. Crockett left the railway service quite a number of years ago and went into the lumbering business in Bonaventure County, Quebec. His success in that line of business is well known. He has not only accumulated considerable wealth, but he is recognized as one of the largest lumber operators in Quebec. Mr. Crockett gets out a large quantity of railway ties every year and his business in this branch is very large.

"This year, Mr. Crockett says, he will get out about ten million feet of lumber."

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hearty eating, is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

15 KILLED BY POWDER EXPLOSION.

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 17.—A special from Spencer, N.C., says: A private telephone message received here from Marion, N.C., reports that 15 were killed near there to-night by the explosion of a powder magazine located just outside of the town. The shock of the explosion was so great that it was felt at Morgantown, 25 miles away. The report has not been confirmed. The scene of the explosion is remote from the telegraph.

NEW YORK HORSE SHOW.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

Pittsburg, Nov. 17.—Notwithstanding the fact that the sessions of the American Federation of Labor seem to drag it is stated that business is being transacted with greater despatch than ever before and that the present meeting may be completed by next Thursday. The contest for the next convention is being waged vigorously and if Toronto, Ont., which has been considered, as having almost a sure thing of it, secures the convention, she will have to work because Denver, Colo., is making a strenuous try for it.

NO DECISION GIVEN.

New York, Nov. 17—In a 3-round boxing exhibition between William E. Cokayne, a Royal Marine from the cruiser Drake, and middleweight champion of the British navy, and Jack Reine, of the battleship Iowa, said to be the champion in his class in the American fleet, took place to-night in Tom Sharkey's gymnasium. The British marine was easily the better man. He was said to weigh 157 pounds and the American 154. In the first round Cokayne drew blood. The gong saved the American from a knockout in the second and he was on his knees taking the count when the gong closed the third and last round. No decision was given by Referee Sharkey, but he said the cup for which the men fought would go to Cokayne as he made the best showing. The hall was packed. None of the higher officers of the fleet were present. There appeared to be no betting.

WANT A MINISTER

Irish Catholic Deputation Waited Upon Provincial Premier Yesterday.

With the request that a Minister representing the Irish Catholic section of the population be appointed to a seat in the Provincial Cabinet, a large deputation of Irish Catholics yesterday morning waited on the Provincial Premier, Hon. L. Gouin, at the Parliament House. The deputation was headed by Mr. Wm. Power, M.P. for Quebec West and among those present were Dr. P. Coote, David O'Sullivan, Martin Connolly, James Piper, J. J. O'Flaherty, and others, representing Quebec Centre; Dr. Howe, Mark Tucker, J. Barry, E. Neville, J. Hanrahan, M. Kenny, Geo. Mulrooney, P. Doyle, James Murphy, P. Evoy, M. Burns, H. N. Bartlett, R. Baker, and others, representing Quebec West; T. B. Turner, Maurice Coleman, F. Mallin and others, representing Quebec East.

The delegation was introduced by Mr. Power, who explained the object of the visit to be the requesting of the appointment of an Irish Catholic representative to the Provincial Cabinet. He pointed out the importance and numerical strength of the Irish element, which he held was fully entitled to representation in the Cabinet.

Dr. Coote, in the course of a very well worded speech, mentioned the fact that Hon. Mr. Gouin had already promised, during the last session of the House, to take an Irish Catholic representative into his Cabinet. The justice of granting representation to minorities had been followed in other provinces, and notably in the Province of Ontario where Hon. Mr. Evanturel had represented his nationality in one government; and on the accession of another government, Hon. Mr. Rheaume had been called to the Cabinet as Minister of Public Works. This action on the part of different governments in Ontario had been well received by all classes of Canadians.

From three Irish Catholic representatives Hon. Mr. Gouin would undoubtedly have to make his choice. And in doing so, he would be only following the truly Christian maxim: Do unto others as you would wish they would do unto you.

Mr. M. Coleman followed, strongly recommending the nomination of Mr. J. C. Kaine, the local member for Quebec West, who he said was greatly esteemed for his business ability and broad-minded views.

Mr. J. Ahern, advocate, also supported the claims of Mr. J. C. Kaine, and also pointed out the importance of his constituency, one of the most important business centres of the Province. He paid a tribute to Mr. Kaine's integrity and position in commercial life as well as his numerous qualifications to fill the position most acceptably.

Mr. J. J. O'Flaherty also supported the Irish Catholic claims to a seat in the Provincial Cabinet. The Irish Catholics in the Province numbered 114,000, which was slightly in advance of the English Protestant element, yet there was never any overlooking of the latter in Cabinet representation.

Mr. Gouin, in reply, said he was pleased to meet a deputation of the Irish Catholic citizens, and assured them that the Irish had no warmer admirers than himself. He had promised the Irish Catholic population representation at the last session and he would keep his word. He had great respect for Mr. J. C. Kaine, whom he knew to be a Liberal and an Irish Catholic, and he fully understood the stand which he had taken in the last election. But there was Mr. John Kelly, of Bonaventure, a Liberal as well as an Irish Catholic. His claim to the seat in the Cabinet would have to be considered. And there was another Irish Catholic Liberal, Mr. Michael Walsh of Montreal, whose friends had already pressed his right to the seat in the Cabinet. When the proper time came the title of Honorable would go to one of these gentlemen. But Hon. Mr. Gouin seemed to think it only fair that time should be left to his discretion. It might be a month. It might be sooner; or he might have to take even longer time to consider.

PAPA GAVE IT UP.

The fireside of a well known citizen was thrown into an intellectual commotion the other evening, and the cause of it all was the perplexity into which a young miss of the household was plunged while preparing her home work for the next day at school, where, by the way, home work and every other kind of lesson work, should be attended to, says the St. Catherines Star. The girl gave it up, and finaly appealed to papa, who has been muttering to himself ever since in an effort to settle the problem that was the cause of all the trouble.

The question was this: "From which quarter does the wind blow the strongest when the skies are the bluest?" Doubting that any such fool question would be given to a pupil of a wardschool to solve, papa asked his little girl to have the question written out by the teacher, and it came back again in the shape of the same startling interrogation: "From which quarter does the wind blow the strongest when the skies are the bluest?" There was no mistake.

Meanwhile papa had been haunted at the office and during his peregrinations about town, and had got the thing hopelessly mixtd. He was trying to figure out which skies would blow a quarter the bluest when the wind was the strongest, or from which wind a quartez blew when the skies were the strongest; then he blew himself and tried to guess in what quarter the wind was when he was the bluest, or if a quarter was the strongest when the blues were the skiest.

Meeting with a Zetetic exponent of cosmogony he fired the proposition at him this way: "Say, Jack, which skies are the strongest when the bluest quarter is the flattest? No; I mean from which quarter does the sky blow when the blue is the strongest? That's not it, either; what I want to know is, from which skies does a quarter blow when the wind is the bluest? Hold on, I have it now: From which blue does the sky blow a quarter is"—but the Zetetic had fled and the last seen of papa he was trying to persuade the new postmaster to mail the question to Senator Robinson to be placed in the same pigeon-hole with another burning question: Do the French or the Scotch have the pull, or have I lost my grip?"
