

China representation debate opens quietly

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The China representation debate opened quietly in the General Assembly Monday with Canada and the United States expressing opposing views and Saudi Arabia confusing an already less-than-clear situation by proposing a new two-China formula.

The 131-country assembly also heard the foreign minister of the Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan warn that admission of the People's Republic of China would mark the "beginning of the end of the UN as an instrument for the preservation of international peace and security based on law and justice."

The debate is expected to last at least a week. Most observers feel it still is a toss-up whether Albania will win with its annual "one-China" resolution or whether the U.S. will prevail with its attempt to retain a seat for Taiwan.

Albania and its allies, and Canada, said Monday the only issue before the assembly is who should occupy the China seat here.

The United States and its allies in the debate said the only issue is whether to expel a member, the Nationalist government of Taiwan, because the vast majority of the assembly is in agreement that Peking should have a seat.

PEKING WON'T COME

The Canadians and others said it is clear the People's Republic will not come here if Taiwan retains a seat. The Americans said that should not be part of the assembly's consideration.

Canadian Ambassador Yvon Beaulne said Canada believes the assembly "cannot further delay a decision that it is the People's Republic of China who speaks for China in the UN."

The assembly has before it the Albanian resolution calling for the expulsion of the Nationalists and the seating of the People's Republic. Beaulne spoke in support of that resolution.

The U.S. has proposed that the Albanian resolution be considered an important question requiring a two-thirds majority for passage. The U.S. is certain that the Albanians cannot hope for a two-thirds majority. They hope the Albanians will be defeated and that the assembly then will go on to consider an American proposal calling for the seating of the Nationalists and the Communists.

But Saudi Arabia added a complication to that Monday when it proposed an amendment to the Albanian resolution, drastically changing it.

CONTROL IS KEY

Under the Saudi amendment, the People's Republic would be the "sole legitimate representative of the whole territory over which its exercises 'full control'."

The government of Taiwan could sit here as representative of the people of the country over which their government rules."

U.S. Ambassador George Bush "dual representation" proposal had told the assembly that raised "grave political and legal difficulties." He said Canada proposals are known as "two-hopes" that the Albanian resolution, the correct one will be "approved by an overwhelming majority of this assembly, so as to leave no doubt divide China but only to provide as to what has been decided representation for both sides here."

Bush pressed the American plan of seating the People's Republic in the assembly and the surprised by the Saudi initiative Security Council and retaining a seat for the Nationalists in the Beaulne said the American assembly.

SHERBROOKE 'CORD

THE SHERBROOKE RECORD, TUES., OCT. 19, 1971

Council decides not to change street name

SHERBROOKE (LH) — City council last night decided not to rename the King St. West interchange to Jacques Darche interchange. Council decided that since the work was being done by the Quebec Roads Department, the most they could do would be to recommend to Quebec the renaming of the interchange.

City council approved the recommendations of the Public Service Commissions Report. The report, which dealt with the problems of pollution on public beaches recommended that beaches be closed if necessary and that regular pollution counts be taken along public beaches and bathing pools.

In a more positive vein, council also voted the formation of a committee which would continually check the condition of public beaches.

Council also voted to set aside a total of $60,000 from the 1972 budget to be used to set up a laboratory as well as to clean beaches and surface waters.

Council also decided to repair parts of the runway of the municipal airport at a cost not expected to exceed $9,000.

Toward the end of the meeting, discussion centred on the lack of leisure facilities in the South-Central area of Sherbrooke. Council members first argued that they had never been presented with any sort of cohesive plan for the area and that in any case, money was not available to expand recreational facilities in this area.

Mayor Marc Bureau pointed out, however, that it was council's duty to allocate money from the city coffers if they thought such projects to be worth while.

Council then agreed to meet with certain citizens' representatives during the week to see if something could be resolved.

Council also approved a budget of $765,000 for snow removal this year.

MAGOG LANDMARK DISAPPEARS — Many memories can be associated with the Bellingham barn on Bellevue Street that was demolished this past week. Belonging to Brian Bellingham of Ottawa, the structure was erected in 1899 from used material. Old timers in the community believe the barn originally was located across the road.

Regardless, it stood in the former location for many years, originally to house horses, and, when the gasoline engine took over, an extension had to be built to accommodate the new gas-buggies. Due to years of deterioration, the structure finally had to be dismantled, leaving an unfamiliar vacance.

Trudeau apologizes to Kosygin

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau again Monday night urged Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to recognize the wish of the majority in Canada to make friends with Russia.

The appeal followed personal and public apologies to Mr. Kosygin after the Soviet leader was grabbed and nearly pushed down on Parliament Hill eight hours earlier.

The assailant was a young Hungarian who came to Canada as a refugee after the rebellion in 1956.

Mr. Trudeau, speaking at a state banquet for Mr. Kosygin at Parliament Hill's West Block, urged him to look beyond the strong views of minorities here.

"Canada and Canadians want very much to be able to look to the north, as they have looked to the south, and see friends in each direction," he said.

Notes of his speech were distributed to the press in advance.

KGB and RCMP men, whom Mr. Trudeau had berated as "a little lax" in the noon incident, were whiplike as Mr. Kosygin arrived for the banquet in a limousine.

About 200 demonstrators, most from Eastern European countries, earlier had applauded Mr. Trudeau's arrival and chatted pleasantly with him.

But they booed lustily when the Soviet leader arrived in a phalanx of police.

Mr. Trudeau, at the banquet, said Canadians generally want to make friends and he hoped Mr. Kosygin, during his eight days in Canada, would get a chance to "sample the genuine sincerity and warmth of Canadians."

Soviet-Canada ties open, says Kosygin

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet-Canadian "collaboration is not directed against anyone," Premier Alexei Kosygin told a state dinner Monday night. "We have no hidden motives."

"If, however, countries conduct their external policies with the design of undermining the positions of others, of infringing on their legitimate rights and interests, such a course can only aggravate present world tensions, make it more difficult to settle burning issues and produce new focuses of crisis and conflict."

The Soviet leader's remarks were contained in a text released during the dinner tendered by the Canadian government during his eight-day visit, begun Sunday night and marred by bomb threats and an assault on Mr. Kosygin personally on Parliament Hill Monday by a lone assailant.

The text contained no mention of the animosity shown toward the Soviet leader's visit.

Mr. Kosygin said any country's foreign policy that seeks to undermine or infringe upon the rights of others is bankrupt and "the dangers it holds, even for those countries which might attempt to implement it, will be revealed."

The fact that Canada and the Soviet Union in one year have exchanged leadership visits is significant, he said.

"It indicates above all that relations proper to good neighbors are becoming established between our states."

Ottawa's hospitality was an expression of the amicable feeling of Canadians toward the Soviet people.

The Soviet Union attached great importance to the protocol on political consultation signed in May, when Mr. Trudeau became the first Canadian prime minister to visit the Soviet Union.

Rabbi Kahane arrested at Dorval airport

MONTREAL (CP) — Seven members of the Jewish Defence League, including leader Rabbi Meir Kahane, were detained by the immigration officials after landing at Montreal airport late Monday night, a league spokesman said.

The spokesman, who identified himself as Sam Waterstein, said the men were taken off an Air Canada flight from New York and immediately were taken into custody.

The men were en route to Ottawa to protest, during Soviet Premier Kosygin's visit, the treatment of Jews in Russia.

Mr. Waterstein said efforts to make contact with Rabbi Kahane have failed. He said it was not known where the men are being held.

He said immigration officials informed him that Rabbi Kahane and the other six men were to be deported at 7 a.m. today.

Sir George computer affair

Bracey ejected from court twice

MONTREAL (CP) — Martin Bracey, 26, charged with mischief in the 1969 computer sit-in at Sir George Williams University, was twice ejected from court and was cited four times for contempt during the first day of his trial Monday.

Bracey is appearing in criminal court along with Gail August, 28, and Leo Barker, 21, who are facing the same charge in connection with the occupation of the computer centre in January and February 1969.

They were among 92 persons charged after the sit-in ended in a computer-smashing spree that caused some $2 million damage.

Justice Kenneth C. MacKay said he would impose sentence on Bracey on the contempt charges after the end of the trial.

The judge ordered Bracey ejected after citing the accused three times for contempt for a variety of personal insults hurled at the bench during the beginning of the morning sitting.

REMOVAL TOUGH

Four policemen were needed to remove Bracey. He was brought back in at the judge's instruction when the first Crown witness was about to testify.

None of the three is represented by counsel. When Judge MacKay asked Bracey if he was ready to cross-examine the witness, the accused broke into another series of insults and received his fourth contempt citation.

Bracey was escorted back into court for the afternoon sitting by several policemen. He and the other two said they had no desire to cross examine the Crown witnesses.

University officials testified that during the 14-day sit-in they were denied access to the centre by students and were deprived of normal use of its facilities.

Other Crown witnesses included two students who admitted to participating in the sit-in.

Voce remains in condition serious

MONTREAL (CP) — Butch Voce, a rookie defensive halfback with Bishop's University Gaiters, was still in serious condition Monday night in hospital.

Voce suffered a broken neck and a dislocated vertebrae Saturday in a Quebec University Athletic Association football game in Lennoxville against Sir George Williams Georgians.

He was hurt mid-way through the first quarter when he made a headlong tackle on a Georgian pass receiver.

"He's improved some, but he's still in critical condition," Al Grazys, Gaiters' assistant football coach said.

Grazys said that the doctors are considering surgery and that the young ball player is receiving no visitors.

Hijacker surrenders

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hijacker who commandeered a jet aircraft over Alaska and directed it to Vancouver surrendered Monday after releasing his four crew member hostages.

Priority status for French

English teachers irked by brief

MONTREAL (CP) — English-language teachers employed by the Montreal Catholic School Commission said Monday they disagree with the commission's brief on the Quebec government's Bill 28 to reorganize Montreal Island school boards.

The 2,200-member Federation of English-speaking Catholic Teachers said the MCSC's call for "priority status" for the French language was probably prepared by a nationalist element within the commission and could not be construed as representative.

The MCSC's brief, presented last week, said French should be the language of teaching for all except English Canadians or immigrants "who have already acquired an English culture."

Bill 28 proposes the reorganization of the island's 33 Roman Catholic and Protestant boards into 11 unified boards under an island-wide council.

The teachers said in a statement that the commission's language policy is a retrograde step and "represents a reversal of a long tradition—40 years in fact—of tolerance, goodwill and respect for the rights of others."

The teachers also said they only want four new boards since a greater number will make it impossible for English Catholics to receive quality education because of the fragmentation of their numbers.

About 20 per cent of the MCSC school population attends English schools.

Bill 28 was also criticized Monday by the Protestant committee of the Superior Council of Education. The Protestant committee wants the 33 confessional boards reduced to a smaller number of religious boards rather than the 11 unified boards.

While most groups who are opposed to the bill want the regrouping along linguistic lines, the council, which oversees education on the government-advisory council, said it was concerned with the "right of dissent" if the bill goes into effect. This pre-Confederation right gives Protestant and Catholic minorities the right to "dissent" from the majority school system and establish separate schools, at least at the elementary level.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in the Commons Oct. 8 the policy is one of "multiculturalism within a bilingual framework."

At a news conference later that day, Gerard Pelletier, secretary of state, told a news conference later that "a very substantial sum" of money would be available to fund a variety of programs promoting this policy.

FLQ communicates authentic

MONTREAL (CP) — The anti-terrorist squad of the Montreal police department confirmed Monday the authenticity of three communiques from the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The squad did not elaborate. The three communiques announce the existence of four new FLQ cells and say that two of the cells are preparing a program of "selective assassination."

All three communiques also commemorate the death of Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, found strangled last Oct. 18.

Rose trial opens

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Rose, 28-year-old former school teacher, will act as his own defence today when his trial for kidnapping Pierre Laporte opens in Court of Queen's Bench.

His trial was scheduled to start Monday but was postponed for 24 hours by Mr. Justice Fernand Legault to give the accused a chance to prepare his defence.

Rose, convicted of the noncapital murder of Mr. Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, and charged with kidnapping the minister last year, had requested a one-week postponement to prepare his defence.

He argued that he had been kept in isolation since Sept. 3 and had been unable to prepare his defence because the necessary material was not at hand.

Francis Simard, 23, an unemployed laborer, also was scheduled to begin his kidnapping trial Monday. However, at the request of Crown Prosecutor Jean-Guy Boilard, it was postponed until the November assizes.

How do you choose a family doctor?

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Dear Dr. Lamb—How can a person choose a doctor? Is a doctor of internal medicine more competent than a general family medicine doctor? How much is a general family doctor allowed to handle and what can he or she should he handle?

Dear Reader—A good question and a difficult one to answer. In a small community there may be only one doctor, that solves the problem. He won't be upset if you don't go to see him because he probably already has more than he can do. Many doctors are trapped in exhausting situations and would welcome some relief from their work load. They may not have time to give complete medical examinations unless a patient is ill. If you wish to go to the nearest clinic for an annual evaluation and have the results sent to your community doctor.

In larger communities a good choice is a doctor working with other doctors, in partnership or in group practice. Such groups usually offer more services because they can pool their resources to buy expensive equipment and hire office help that would be impossible if each was alone. They can share knowledge, skills and provide 24-hour coverage. Good doctors do practice by themselves but it is a lot harder for them to do it alone. The group, of course, can be made up entirely of general practitioners or family practice physicians.

Beyond small group practice in organizational complexity is the clinic, composed of specialists, also a form of group practice. Larger clinics can afford more equipment and services. It isn't necessary to go to these for small problems, like having a small cut sutured or immunizations, but they are excellent for difficult problems that require the skills of different specialty areas and the equipment to do the job. Large hospitals and medical centers are in the same category.

A specialist in internal medicine has four or five years of extra training after becoming a doctor. If he is "board certified" you can be certain he is in the upper half at least in skills within his specialty. Internal medicine includes all the specialties of heart, lungs, digestion, endocrine glands, and body systems. To become a subspecialist, such as a heart specialist, a physician must first complete the internal medicine training. Many internists practice family medicine.

The general practitioner or family medicine physician may also have had more training beyond medical school, and usually has training in obstetrics, general surgery and pediatrics. Many of them, with their experience, are just as well qualified for their task as a specialist in internal medicine is in his.

In selecting a doctor, find out if he is a member of the county medical society. If a hospital is available, is he on the hospital staff so he can admit patients? With the problems of being admitted to a hospital these days, unless your doctor is on the staff he may not be able to get you into the hospital if you need to go.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — Everything looks your way for a change and this turns out to be an unusually exciting day.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — You are concerned with distant affairs, perhaps lack of correspondence from another country.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Even though you've had some good luck lately, don't try to dazzle others with your possessions.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22) — Your hopes may materialize just when you had about given up. Thank friend who gave you an assist.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21) — A slow-paced day, but welcome after a rather active period this week. Head all traffic regulations.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — A new, workable idea will impress the boss and could even result in advancement in near future.

©Media Features, Inc., 1971

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — You feel like going on a buying binge and may even get the urge to start your Christmas shopping.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Let busy-body's tongue wag as long as your conscience is clear, your people have nothing better to do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Tone down when speaking to someone who is overworked due to emotional stress. Let your own be courteous.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Emphasis is on the unusual. You may be attracted to an unusual outfit or color totally unlike you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — There is an undercurrent of deceit in Aquarius charts. Someone may be undermining you behind your back.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — You feel better than usual and your work performance reflects this. The boss will be duly impressed.

At 75, the perennially young Waldemar von Zedwitz has taken up the new two-handed game of Bridge. We can't describe the game here, but we can assure you that it is a delightful game for two.

Here we see him sitting East and defending against three no-trump at New York's Cavendish Club. Waldy was never a fast player in his youth. Age hasn't slowed him down, but it hasn't sped him up either. He studied for some time before playing the nine of spades on dummy's six.

This play cooked South's goose. All Waldy had to do was make sure he grabbed the first diamond so as to lead the spade queen. South had to lose four spades and a diamond.

Let's see what Waldy thought about when he played the nine of spades instead of the queen at trick one.

First he counted points. Assuming declarer held 25 or 26 for his bid this left 4 or 5 for West. West couldn't hold both ace and king of spades. Also the three spot lead indicated a four or five-card suit. Hence South was marked with at least three spades. If South held the ace-king of spades the nine spot play would let him win the trick with the jack but with the actual situation the nine spot play would beat the game contract and was worth trying.

First birthday party

COOKSHIRE — Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Learned celebrated their daughter Lisa's first birthday on Sunday, Sept. 26.

Guests who attended the party were her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Learned, East Angus, her paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. R. B. Learned, Cookshire, her paternal aunt, Miss Susan Learned, Montreal, and her paternal uncle, Mr. Grant Learned, East Angus.

A long distance telephone message of congratulations was received from her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hoare, of Three Rivers, and from her paternal aunt, Miss Maxine Learned, a student at Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S.

Little Lisa was the recipient of numerous gifts and cards, and the traditional birthday cake was served as part of the refreshments.

Recent guests of Mrs. Clarence Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hamilton were the Misses Gwen and Mary Hamilton, Montreal, Mrs. Rachel Majury, Sherbrooke, Mr. Duncan Kinnear, Mr. Lawrence Kinnear and Larry, all of East Angus, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dempster, San Francisco, Calif. The many friends of Mr. John Van der Leden Sr. will be sorry to learn he is not as well as might be.

Mrs. Hazel Patton has returned from visiting her brother, Mr. J. McNaughton in Derby, Vt.

Mr. Allan Lebourveau, of Lacolle, was a weekend guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lebourveau. While here he accompanied them on Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Lebourveau in Brookbury. Miss Eleanor Lebourveau and Miss Eleanor Jackson also went to Brookbury.

Mrs. J. D. McFadyen, Miss Mary Farnsworth, of Lennoxville, were Sunday guests of Mrs. O. C. Farnsworth.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Drennan were the Misses Bertha and Margaret McVetty, Montreal. Callers at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnston of Beausfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McDermott have returned home from a month's holiday spent in Brandon, Man., and in Great Falls, Montana, visiting relatives and friends.

Recent guests of Mrs. R. B. Learned were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Morrill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goodfellow and two sons, of Danville.

Welcome Party

AYER'S CLIFF — Mrs. Lillian McFaul entertained a few friends recently in honor of Mrs. E. Cole who has recently moved into her new home purchased from Mrs. Pearl Berwick.

A pleasant afternoon was spent playing 500.

The hostess served delicious refreshments around the dining table which was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a bowl of fall flowers.

A pleasant social time was enjoyed getting acquainted with the guest of honor. Prizes were awarded for the card games and the winners were Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. E. Whitcomb and Mrs. C. Libby. Lucky Cup prize was won by Mrs. E. Price and the floating prize by Mrs. Jessie Taylor.

Fifty purebred cows sold

VICTORIAVILLE — Fifty-four purebred dairy cows fetched an average price of $659 a head at the Bois-Francs Holstein Club's annual auction on September 29, making a total of $35,240. Pierre Gignac, the club's president said he was well satisfied with the result.

The top price of the sale was paid for a cow from the farm of Boisclair et Fils, "Clairbois Allie Lucky Boy 2352389" born on January 5, 1969. She was bought by Omer Pepin of St.

Bonaventure in Yamaska County for $1,225. "Clairbois Clarette RA Prince," another cow from the same farm, born on August 11, 1969, was bought by Adria Tardif of Ste-Marie, Beauce, for $1,125. "Tourily Susie Triune Reflection," offered for sale by Gaston Tourigny of Victoriaville, was bought by Marcel Croteau of Warwick for $1,000.

This year's auction was enhanced by the presence of a delegation of eight livestock experts from France which visited various parts of Quebec between September 20 and October 1 to study Holstein rearing in Quebec. This delegation, under the sponsorship of the department of Intergovernmental Affairs was mainly interested in studying the organization and methods of groups here selecting and improving Holsteins and in the use of these dairy cattle in crossbreeding for beef production.

The mission visited the Quebec Artificial Insemination Centre at St. Hyacinthe and the Dominique Savio, Michon and Montendon farms in the same region. It also visited many other Holstein farms in Quebec.

This delegation from France was guided by Marcel Chevrete, general director of regional laboratories for the agricultural department and Conrad Bernier of the department's livestock division.

John Dunn elected president of national infantry association

MONTREAL — Col. John Dunn of Sherbrooke has been elected president of the Canadian Infantry Association at its recent meeting at Royal Roads, Victoria, B.C.

The association comprises one member from each infantry battalion in the Canadian Armed Forces — about 50 militia and 10 regular — as well as other serving or retired infantry officers.

Col. Dunn, a Sherbrooke businessman in civilian life, is assistant to the Commander, Eastern Sector in Montreal, headquarters for all the militia in Quebec.

The association's chief function is to advise both the military and civil arm of government on what it considers are problems affecting the infantry branch of the Forces.

Col. Dunn said this year the emphasis would be on stressing the need to improve clothing and equipment of the militia to a standard equivalent to that of the regular force.

He said the new role of the militia is to provide a ready backup force for the regular troops, and to do this effectively, proper clothing and equipment is necessary.

Creditiste MP irked by "bureaucrats"

WINDSOR (LH) — "Each time a citizen of my riding, or of any riding asks me to help him resolve his problems concerning unemployment insurance, or any other problem which concerns actual legislation, it is my duty to help him and I will make it a personal point of honor to take all the necessary steps until justice is done."

So said Lionel Beaudoin, Creditiste MP for the riding of Richmond, upon receiving a letter last Wednesday from the Unemployment Insurance Commission located in Windsor.

The letter informed him that requests made for unemployment insurance and social aid must be made by the head of the family, or the person in case of one person only.

"I have never refused to help my fellow citizens and have no intention of depriving them of my support in the future because

Roland Paradis, interim director of the office in Windsor, thinks I should let my constituents get themselves out of trouble amidst all the complex laws on unemployment insurance and social assistance," he said.

"If my intervention disturbs the peace of the director of the Windsor office, this only furnishes greater proof that my concern has not been in vain. It will wake up the bureaucrats and force them to consider the circumstances of the needy," he added.

"There is no doubt, that in knowing the details of the laws on social assistance, I am in a good position to help those who need to obtain that which is owed to them," he said.

"Veti-care" sends cheques

QUEBEC — The veterinary section of the Quebec department of Agriculture's grants and subsidies division announces that the first animal health insurance cheques were sent out to beneficiaries on August 27 and that, from now on, these cheques will be sent out regularly.

The grants and subsidies division points out that many of the bills submitted by farmers with their claims have been or are being carefully examined and that, since its staff also has to get used to the new administrative procedure involved, the replies have perhaps been slower than could be desired. At present, however, everything is working well and with few hitches and it appears that all cheques will go out within the specified time.

The contributory animal health insurance plan, which was put into effect in Quebec on July 12, is designed to make veterinary services more readily available to all farmers by means of a direct contribution to their cost by the agricultural department, and to reduce the price of animal medicaments as the result of the setting up of a central depot under government control.

Ladies' Curling Club

Lennoxville curlers open season

LENNOXVILLE (LM) — The Lennoxville Ladies' Curling Club held its semi-annual meeting last Thursday, Oct. 14, with Mrs. H. I. MacLeod presiding.

Mrs. H. Mallalieu, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting followed by Mrs. S. Rowe who gave a current treasury report.

It was reported by Mrs. G. O'Boyle, match committee chairman, that the ice should be ready by October 19, after which a free week of curling would follow for all new members interested in joining the club. Those who may wish to join the club are asked to contact Mrs. Philip Tinker at 569-5582.

Due to the rising costs of operation of the club it was proposed to raise the fees of the active and business members in accordance with that adopted by the men's club.

A request was made to hold two casserole suppers during the season and to operate the kitchen during the men's bonspiel. Members agreed to work out the operations as it would be to the benefit of the club.

A discussion and suggestion period was held on the subject of the Ingram Trophy Play-Offs between the Lennoxville and Sherbrooke ladies' clubs.

The coming events scheduled to date are as follows: a warm-up bonspiel the week of Oct. 25, "Potpourri and Fun" weekend Oct. 29-30 for curlers and non-curlers; opening mixed bonspiel Nov. 1-6; opening tea Wed. Nov. 3; invitation day, Dec. 2.

The Mardi Gras which is to be held in February will be structured under co-convenors

Mrs. L. Gingras and Mrs. A. Hallam. Other appointments saw Mrs. E. Lennon and Mrs. S. Rowe elected to the prize committee and Mrs. F. Yealand elected as new social convener. Tea and cookies were served by the executive to the members at the close of the meeting.

Quebec studies broiler sizes

QUEBEC — The Quebec Department of Agriculture's Marketing Branch has carried out an analysis on the size of broiler chicken enterprises in Quebec.

This analysis, made with help from specialists at regional agricultural laboratories and offices, was part of a study undertaken by the department in order to take inventory of broiler production capacity in the province.

The analysis, completed from statistics and figures gathered from 1,117 producers specializing in broiler chickens, is an important source of information for both poultry breeders and specialists.

In particular it states that the total floor area of the 2,092 buildings studied is 18 million square feet.

If we consider that there are four and a half batches per year and one chicken per square foot, the production capacity could amount to 81 million chickens per year, says Roger Paiement poultry specialist at the marketing branch.

Farmers interested in this study can obtain additional information from their regional agricultural office or local offices, or can write to the Marketing Branch, 201, Cremazie St. East, Montreal.

Two-car collision

BORDER (LH) — A two-car collision took place Sunday night on route 5.

Dufferin Country Club

Shareholders meet

DUFFERIN (IH) — The annual meeting of the shareholders of Dufferin Heights Country Club was held at the clubhouse on Friday evening, October 15. President Wally Browning presided and requested all to stand for a moment in memory of a popular member of the club, Allan J. Pocock, whose death had occurred a few days previous.

Because 1972 will mark the golden anniversary of this club, the directors and executive of 1971 year were all returned to office unanimously for already they have laid groundwork for a season of special activities to commemorate the event.

The charter was granted on January 10, 1922. Wally Browning remains president; Douglas Henderson, vice-president; Louis Barber, Richard Wing, Gerald Farrow, Robert Alger, and George Joyal. Each committee will remain as last year's. Gordon (Doc) Stewart was re-appointed as secretary-treasurer.

The financial report in copy was in the hands of all present. The report indicated a successful past season.

As President Browning gave his remarks, he noted one object of 1971 had been to lessen the short term notes and this has been accomplished. They hope to wipe it out in 1972. Clubhouse repairs had been carried out. Much of the work was free labor on the part of members. He outlined briefly recommendations for 1972 to include enlarged locker space for the women. The building of a new shed has been started and should be completed before winter.

"We have operated the club as best we could" were his remarks and then expressed appreciation to his directors and members for dedication.

J. M. Thomson was chairman for the election of the directors. Harold E. Bowen was re-appointed as auditor.

Mr. Browning said that to make the 1972 year a season of successful celebrations all must participate to make it so. He asked all members with ideas to submit in writing their suggestions to him, or Mr. Stewart, or any of the directors. While all may not be used, the most feasible will be selected for the program. One suggestion made at the meeting is that all members display extra effort to make green fee players more at home.

The group noted the excellence of the greens this year and the increased number of green fee players as well as additional new members in the club.

Stuart Edgar was named chairman of a committee of Mr. Browning, Mr. Alger, Mr. Barber and Mr. Farrow to make improved changes in the course. Mr. Edgar replaces the late Mr. Pocock.

The club is now nearly closed, the furnishings will be removed to another place as nothing is now left at the Clubhouse during the closed season.

Pop society

After much public relations propaganda about a "great new season" on the various television networks, the new fare has now been on the air sufficiently long for one to render a tentative judgment.

And what we have seen has hardly been new, but rather a return to an oldtime television staple: violence.

A great deal of prime time programming on the CBC and CTV networks is picked up from the three major American networks, and when one considers that ABC, CBS and NBC network affiliates are all received in this area from New England and New York, the majority of TV programs available to Eastern Townships residents are American in origin.

It will be remembered that for some years now the largest concern of American public officials in regard to television has been that there is an excess of violence on the tube.

This season, however, would appear to be sufficiently removed from the last assassination and national outpouring of grief and self-evaluation in the United States that American television producers have abandoned whatever restraint they may have placed on their tendencies to blood.

The result has been a new season in which violence has made a comeback to the point where the volume is staggering. Much of it, too, has not been merely incidental to the plot line. Made-for-TV movies featuring psychotic mass murderers have followed one another in a gruesome succession the past few weeks.

The effect of televised violence has long been debated. Does exposure to violence, even mock violence as portrayed on television and in the movie theatre, render the individual more susceptible to committing violence himself?

Much depends, of course, on the mental stability of the adult who is exposed to violence. In what must be a sobering enough percentage of the population, however, the power of suggested violence holds great sway.

We have seen, in a similar situation in Montreal the past two weeks, how one shooting of an employer by an aggrieved former employee followed another such shooting in which three men died.

And this past summer saw an extortionist use a plot from a movie aired on his local television station to attempt to gain ransom in return for information that would allow an airborne jet to land safely without an altitude-sensitive bomb exploding.

The power of suggestion in children is even stronger. Studies have shown how children, left alone with props, will nearly always emulate the behavior displayed by an adult model they have just seen in a similar setting on film. If the model acts violently towards several dummies or dolls, for instance, the children show an overwhelming propensity to do the same.

That the issue of televised violence has seemingly blown over in the United States after three major assassinations in the last eight years is evidence of to what degree an affluent and technological nation falls prey to what might be called a "pop society." The U.S. has gone on from such crazes as the hula hoop and twist to new fads like gun legislation, ecology and Edmund Muskie.

The new television season has demonstrated to what extent the gun legislation issue and accompanying anti-violence outcry has dissipated. Ecology shows signs of going the same way, a victim of the mass media's ability to overkill and at the same time treat inadequately a matter of the utmost importance. And Edmund Muskie, as big an overnight hit in 1968 as Laugh-In, is beginning to wear a little thinner at the edges.

If the anti-violence crusade is dormant for the moment, however, wait until another national headline-making killing develops and listen to the battle resume.

Sex education in Canada

Nancy meets Charlie in the hall

By JEAN SHARP

"Nancy is going to have babies."

"How do you know?"

"She met Charlie in the hall."

This mother-daughter exchange about the rabbits in two Grade 3 Toronto classrooms was one child's eye view of the beginnings of sex education at her school.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates a steady increase during the last three or four years in the number of schools teaching sex education. But many do not.

A report published in April by the Vanier Institute of the Family says 31 per cent of the schools in its survey offered some family life education, and 68 per cent did not offer it at all. The report says it is likelier to be taught in urban than in rural or small-town schools.

Only New Brunswick has province-wide compulsory sex education taught in the health course in Grades 7 to 9.

Nova Scotia and Newfoundland have no official course, though it is taught in some classes. In Prince Edward Island the topic is under discussion by the education department's curriculum board.

Where such courses are being added, it is often at the request of the public. Home and School groups in Montreal have been encouraging school boards to extend classes. A North Vancouver school board questionnaire indicated 70 per cent of parents favor a program in the schools.

The medical society in East Kootenay, B.C., and the Fernie and Cranbrook school boards in British Columbia are considering birth control courses in schools because of concern at the number of unwanted pregnancies.

Where sex education is taught, there is a wide variation in what is included. Some school boards have comprehensive instruction that begins in the lower grades and continues through high school. Between that and no course at all are courses restricted to a few grade levels, and those comprising one or two talks on the subject.

In most cases it is taught as part of a health course, in guidance or in home economics classes. It is rarely called sex education, a fact emphasized by several educationists. A full course is usually called family life education or some variation on the name. At its most extensive it goes beyond the biology of sex and deals in sociology, in relationships, responsibilities and stresses in the family and community.

DIPLOMACY NEEDED
Such names are also used as euphemisms, however, because although they are rare, controversies do occur over sex education classes.

One of the liveliest has been going on in Calgary for several years. The public school board has had to offer its course on an extra-curricular basis. Now the board has a family life specialist, Rev. Dale Berg, who says a curriculum program has been approved.

proved, to be developed "upon request from students, parents and teachers. It is definitely optional."

Toronto has had controversy, and has a school trustee who says sex education is atheistic and anti-Christian.

G. M. MacMartin, assistant superintendent of curriculum in the Ontario department of education, says a little diplomacy is necessary in "emotionally sensitive areas." He says difficulties usually occur if parents aren't told about courses and their content.

Many schools deal with the possibility of controversy by making the courses optional. Saskatchewan teaches family life education in Grades 7, 8 and 9, but anyone who wants to keep a child out of the classes may do so.

PARENTS INVOLVED
In some cases, parents are invited to see what the children will learn. The Edmonton separate school board had a program for parents and curriculum director Robert Westbury says the board is having trouble keeping up with the demand for family life education.

Mr. MacMartin says Ontario has involved teachers and parents in curriculum committees representing several schools. They help decide what will actually be taught. The Vanier report says the educationists felt public opinion was their primary problem. Finding room on the curriculum and training teachers were larger concerns.

Teacher training has most often been done in in-service programs. Teachers in the French-language Catholic school commission in Quebec City have been receiving a 30-hour course. The English Catholic school commission has an instructor for its teachers.

Some Canadian universities now offer courses in sex education techniques for teachers. The University of Manitoba has one.

BRING IN EXPERTS

The Universities of Alberta and Calgary have programs, and have had summer courses. Lakehead University in Thunder Bay has had a course for some time.

In some schools, outside experts handle all the teaching. The Protestant school board of Greater Montreal has two physiotherapists who work in high schools. The women, Margaret Cates and Eleanor Findlay, approached the board with the plan. They had worked with unwed mothers, and felt sex education is needed. This year they are training high-school teachers.

Student reaction to the courses seems as mixed as their content.

A Grade 9 boy in Toronto says he and his classmates find their course informative. "They tell you how babies are brought about and about adolescence and all that. A lot of it is discussed between teacher and students. It's a discussion, not a teacher standing up there for half an hour talking I don't feel shy about it."

On the other hand, a student group in another part of Toronto did a survey that found the students considered their course inadequate, and the Ontario government's select committee on youth described most courses as "so circumspect as to be valueless."

Going from outside in

FREDERICTON (CP) — Robert J. Higgins wouldn't say he defeated the establishment Saturday to claim the leadership of the New Brunswick Liberal party, but he did admit he won the battle "from the outside in."

A polished and positive young lawyer, he captured the post in much the same way he campaigned in 1967 when he became the only Liberal to survive a Progressive Conservative sweep in his native Saint John and first win a seat in the legislature.

The 37-year-old former economic growth and municipal affairs minister earned the victory, as he put it, by going from "house to house and delegate by delegate" to get his points across to the 1,761 eligible voters.

"I didn't gather about me a group of people who have been in the party a long time," he said. "I chose to go from the outside in."

BACKED BY MCCAINS

He had money behind him. Some of it from the McCain family that runs the largest frozen-food processing plant in Canada at Florenceville in the upper St. John River Valley, but the bulk of financial backing from the party's old guard went to John Bryden the man he defeated on the second ballot to succeed Louis J. Robichaud.

"I wanted to win on the basis of my ideas and not who was backing me," Mr. Higgins said later.

One high-ranking Liberal said after the convention: "A lot of new blood came into the party today and that's a good thing."

A soft-spoken and articulate Irish Roman Catholic and the candidate least able to converse in French, Mr. Higgins accepted his victory quietly and was quick to point out that the campaign had been clean.

Mr. Bryden, a former deputy minister, was among the first to congratulate him, and Norbert Theriault, the former health and welfare minister who finished third, said: "I'll work my guts out for Bob Higgins."

SON OF TAILOR

Mr. Higgins, the son of a Saint John tailor and classed by some as an American-style politician, pledged to renew the party for the 1970s.

"The first thing I want to bring into the party is the principle of accountability," he said. The Liberal executive must become more accountable to the party and the elected members more accountable to the electorate.

William F. Buckley, Jr.
On the Right

Television the other night focused on student indignation at Normal, Ill., home of Illinois State University. I remember one young man protesting bitterly against the registrar's refusal to enroll him as a qualified voter.

"Do you consider that Normal is your home?" asked CBS. "Yes I do," he replied, with that special emphasis one gives to Big Lies.

"Where do you go on holidays, to your parents' house?" asked the interviewer. "Well, yes. But I visit with my parents. My home is here."

The laws defining residence differ, and it is true that a great deal hangs on what an individual declares his residence to be. Theoretically, you can declare that the corner of 42nd Street and Broadway is your home. But then it is also here and there required that you make your point plausibly, and the new laws that local legislatures are now considering will turn—or should turn—precisely on that point.

For instance, there is the point the lawyers raise by which the sincerity of one man's adoption of a place of residence is judged in tight cases, to wit, is there animus revertendi? That is, is there a subjective intention to return to the residence which you have ostensibly abandoned? If John Jones leaves Eureka Springs to matriculate at Illinois State in Normal, does he intend to return to Eureka Springs after he has completed his education?

And the second question, of course: does he intend to settle down at Normal? Whereas most students do not take up residence in the town in which they were brought up, the overwhelming majority forsake the town at which they attend college. The protesters' point is that even if Normal, Ill., is considered merely a waystation between Eureka Springs and that happy place where John Jones will eventually settle, shouldn't he have a normal political role at Normal, Ill.?

I should think not. At Madison, Wisconsin, last winter, the legislature sat down to consider a bill which says that a student enrolled at the University of Wisconsin will be presumed to have taken residence at Madison only transiently. It is difficult to see wherein that is a repressive piece of legislation. It is preposterous to suppose that the residents of Madison, Wisc., are going to permit, let alone encourage, an enormous body of students to tinker with the town's laws during the few years that the students are in residence. Participatory democracy does not entitle you to demand of the pilot the right to run the airplane during your flight across country.

Now, clearly different kinds of protection are needed by different size towns. Boston and New York and Chicago probably could afford to give the vote to its resident students (though they should not feel under any obligation to do so) and simply absorb the damage. But if Hanover, New Hampshire, or Williamstown, Massachusetts—for instance—enfranchised the student body, they would very simply be playing Russian roulette. One has only to recall the episodic frenzies of the last few years to recognize the seizures to which students are occasionally given. A vote can be a very decisive instrument, and the idea of giving effective power to ten thousand students who can commit a community to years of indebtedness, or to other social fancies, is, well, unappealing.

This is not to suggest that students are necessarily zany, merely that the idea of democracy is that those who do the voting should endure the consequences of their own laws.

Again, distinctions can be made on reasonable grounds. For instance, there is a difference between an undergraduate, berthed in a tax-free dormitory, and a married graduate student, living in an apartment or house which is paying taxes to the municipality.

There is the tax point, which is itself significant—a voter should be helping in an appropriate way to defray the social costs of running the town. Students are substantially exempted from sharing the tax overhead of towns they temporarily inhabit. Indeed, as for instance in New Haven, there is great ill-will engendered by the refusal of the university—Yale—to pay taxes on such of its buildings as are unrelated to education, namely faculty clubs, ice-skating rinks—that kind of thing. In any event, the married student develops ties which are different from the undergraduate—celibate, I almost designated him, lapsing into ancient habits.

Even so, in the history of college towns, individual student bodies are transitory experiences. They should not be given the power of hit and run drivers.

...and two chicken chow mein, to go...

Fourth try for Moscow

Election tripping

WASHINGTON CP — There are fewer votes in Moscow, U.S.S.R., than in Moscow, Idaho, but somehow the urge to visit the Soviet capital seems to overcome American presidents every election year.

Richard Nixon is no exception. He hopes, however, to be the first United States president actually to succeed in visiting Moscow while in office.

While there are numerous possibilities for a slip-up between now and next May, when Nixon has said he will make a trip to the Soviet Union, there are equally as many reasons for believing he can succeed.

Dwight D. Eisenhower's planned visit in June, 1960, was thwarted by the loss of the U-2 spy plane over Soviet territory. John F. Kennedy is said by aides to have received an invitation to Moscow before his assassination - and undoubtedly would have used it in 1964 if the international climate had been right.

The Soviet Union's "fraternal assistances" to Czechoslovakia in August, 1968, caught Lyndon Johnson on the verge of announcing a Moscow visit timed to help the Democrats win the election that November. The visit was cancelled.

TIMING IS NATURAL

The projected Nixon trip to Moscow is being viewed here as a natural - even inevitable - out-growth of the current world situation, even more than a bid for stature six months before American voters are called upon to judge Nixon's first four years in office.

After Nixon announced plans for a visit to Peking, Washington stayed alert for any reaction from the Soviet Union that would signal a deterioration in their relations.

In the administration's opinion, there has been none.

On the contrary, the Soviet leaders have indicated a willingness to pursue "peaceful co-existence" with the United States on a wide front.

Four-power agreement on Berlin has been achieved, and the East Germans are under Soviet pressure to make peace with the West Germans about the divided city.

Negotiations about the limitation of strategic arms, known as the SALT talks, have continued without noticeable reluctance on the Soviet part.

Peripheral agreements on such issues as improved "hot-line" communications, germ warfare, and incidents involving naval forces at sea are either completed or under active discussion.

HAS FIRM VIEW

Nixon has frequently said that a summit meeting should "accomplish something," and he once criticized President Johnson for inviting Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to Glassboro, N.J., "simply for the purpose of having a meeting."

In a sense, however, observers here feel the Moscow trip would be important even without a treaty to sign, an agreement to announce or any other visible accomplishment.

It will come after Nixon's visit to Peking. It will thus serve to reassure the Soviet leaders that Washington is not striking up an anti-Soviet alliance with the Chinese. And it could increase the pressure on the Peking leadership to come up with solid evidence that its relations with the U.S. are improving.

None of that should hurt Richard Nixon in the 1972 elections.

Bishop's students visit Bowdoin

BRUNSWICK, Me. — There may be no final answer to the question of the relative merits of the small versus large university, but on Thanksgiving weekend a large group of biology students from Bishop's University in Lennoxville tipped the balance a little when they took off for ancient Bowdoin College, 170 miles away in Brunswick, Me.

Not just an outing, theirs was a serious and finely-tuned field trip to study marine life in its natural setting, alive. When the Saturday tide was at its lowest ebb the Bishop's students were far out on Bailey Island with shovels, nets, clam rake, tweezers, pails, collecting bottles, and other equipment, searching every habitat available — mud flats, tide pools, exposed rocks covered with seaweed — for life, chiefly invertebrate life. The students were as enthusiastic as ever and brought back to the Bowdoin laboratories more than they could study effectively in the time available.

For the fourth time in recent years, following trips in 1961, 1964 and 1967, a large laboratory was turned over to the Bishop's students, complete with dissection microscopes, compound microscopes, all equipment needed and a fine library, all through the co-operation of Dr. Alton Gustafson, a marine ecologist who has been playing a great part in the efforts of the state of Maine to clean up the environment.

Under the dissection microscopes, the seashore came alive, and the students, ranging from the biologically inexperienced first year Champlain College ones to the final year Bishop's honors biology students, provided their own 20-ring circus as new species after new species, all performing, came under observation. The locations of the most unusual discoveries were posted on the board and the students toured the microscopes, learning more per hour about functional marine biology at Bowdoin than per day at Lennoxville.

On Sunday the process was repeated at another collecting site. By this time the students had learned something of the great need for oxygen at the edge of the sea. They were more careful in their collection and chose small specimens.

Back at the laboratory, the best were selected for the return trip. Late Sunday night the group reached Lennoxville with 45 gallons of clean sea water and that same night proceeded to set up marine aquaria with starfish, sea urchins, sea anemones, hydroids, barnacles, snails, mussels, clam worms, tube worms, worms galore and many less er lights.

This productive trip was arranged through the biology club and its president, fourth year student Gary Berenzny of Montreal, and used the services of four professors, A. N. Langford, Kenneth Moore, Donald Potts and L. Sepp, each with a different interest in the sea, to guide the 31 students in their study.

Construction of chambers announced

QUEBEC — The Quebec minister of Agriculture, Mr. Normand Toupin, announces the construction of chambers with fully controlled atmosphere at Manicouagan Elite seed potato station in Saguenay County at a cost of about $212,000. It is expected at the agricultural department that the building, which has already been under construction for several weeks, will be finished late this fall and ready for research purposes during the winter.

The structure will have a total area of 4,080 square feet and will include three growth chambers of 700 square feet each, a preparation room and a service room.

It will be mainly used for the very early culture of potato plants and propagation of virus-free potatoes. Later it will also be used for bud and meristem cultures.

Mr. Toupin pointed out that this installation is part of the Manicouagan station's normal development program. The station specializes in the production of disease-free seed potatoes of different varieties. Thanks to these new facilities most of the pre-growth tests hitherto carried out in the greenhouses at La Pocatière with the help of specialists of the Canada Department of Agriculture may now be carried out at Manicouagan.

Thus, only one phase of the research will henceforth be done outside the station, namely the checking for freedom of disease of plants to be used for seasonal propagation. This has been carried out for several years past at Homestead in Florida where the climate is particularly suitable for revealing symptoms of potato diseases and the immediate roguing of infected plant.

Bishop's drama

LENNOXVILLE — The Bishop's University Drama Department is presenting Vaclav Havel's The Memorandum for its first major production of the year.

This recent Czechoslovakian play opposes the general sins found in job-climbing and bureaucracy. It specifically levels itself to Soviet red-tape.

The play has a satiric thrust as Havel exposes rather than whips his victims.

It is based in the naturalist tradition, yet we find characters exposing themselves in unexpected and ridiculous ways. What is apparent as real, suddenly shifts and is bared to absurd standards.

It is the interplay of these varying standards that moves Havel to illustrate the final depravity of these characters.

The play is directed by Tom Lytle and will appear at the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre from Oct. 21-23.

Autumn cool weather and Hydro-Quebec

Autumn is here with its cooler weather and shorter days. Time to install the double windows and turn up the thermostat. And hunters are getting their guns ready. Unfortunately, some of these hunters will use electrical insulators for target practice. Every year, this mindless practice of shooting insulators deprives Quebec communities of electricity and endangers people whose very lives may depend on electricity. In the fall, electricity is even more vital to the people of Quebec. Lights go on earlier and heat turned on to take the chill out of autumn nights. In all seasons, you can count on Hydro-Quebec to provide you with clean power. Hydro-Quebec - power that comes clean.

Missisquoi Chapter IODE to mark 40th anniversary

BEDFORD-The October meeting of Missisquoi Chapter IODE was held at the home of Mrs. Hannibal Sheltus, the meeting was opened with the Prayer of the Order by the regent, Mrs. Lennox Ames. The minutes were read by the secretary Mrs. R. Oakes and accepted as read. The treasurer, Mrs. Sheltus reported disbursements of $42.50. The chapter appreciates a donation of $20.00.

A wreath was ordered to be purchased and will be deposited at the Soldiers monument at the Remembrance Day service on November 11.

The 40th anniversary of the formation of the chapter will be observed at the November meeting with a tea, at the home of Mrs. Ralph Oakes, a number of officers and regents of various chapters will be invited to attend.

The chapter was formed at a meeting in October, 1931 at the home of the late Mrs. William King, the first regent of the chapter in February, 1932 from the late Mrs. William Hodgson of Montreal, at that time president of the Provincial Chapter presenting the charter. During the war a great deal of war work was done by chapter members, the regent being the late Mrs. E. A. Chadsey at that time.

Over the years the Chapter has taken an active interest in the affairs of the community, and always ready with help when needed. The present regent of the chapter is Mrs. Lennox Ames. Of the original twelve members, nine have passed away, two are no longer chapter members, only one member is still an active member of the chapter.

This summer the IODE sponsored a project called Atlantic Adventure '71, this was a youth travel and exchange designed by the IODE to strengthen Canadian unity.

All expenses were defrayed from funds raised by members in every part of Canada, plus a small grant from the Secretary of State department.

The boys, two from each province and territory travelled by train to Halifax where the Adventure began and returned to their homes by air, after a farewell weekend in Quebec. Billeting at first was a university dormitory, where the boys could get to know each other, but most nights were spent in the homes of IODE members. In addition a charter bus took the boys and their two escorts on a 4,500 mile trip.

On this trip many points of interest were visited in the Maritimes, the Coast Guard College, Alexander Bell Museum, a steel mill, famous Peggy's Cove were visited in Nova Scotia, in New Brunswick historic Fredericton and King's Landing, an authentic 100 year old settlement in New Brunswick and the Confederation building and arts center were also visited in Prince Edward Island.

The boys received a hearty welcome from provincial and municipal officers at all times. Sports were deep-sea fishing, swimming in the Atlantic, an open air folk service in Prince Edward Island and a diorama in Quebec City were among firsts.

The annual sale of the Chapter, of knitted articles and baked goods will be held on December 4.

Mrs. Creller read an interesting article on the potato industry in New Brunswick, in which province there are 60,000 acres under cultivation of mechanical potato pickers, which is a great help, although cutting down on manual labor.

The meeting concluded with the singing of God Save the Queen, after which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Creller served refreshments.

A House Principal talks on AGRHS at WI

SAWYERVILLE — The Women's Institute held their regular meeting in the school cafeteria on Oct. 6 with an attendance of twelve members and one visitor and three members from the East Clifton WI. The Roll call was a question box. Questions were handed in to be answered or discussed at next meeting.

Mrs. MacRae, president, welcomed the visitors Mrs. A. Robinson, Mrs. A. Nugent and Mrs. D. Twyman were appointed on the committee to arrange for the Rebekah Banquet on Nov. 6.

This branch of the Institute served doughnuts and coffee at the Museum in Eaton Corner at the Annual meeting of the Historical Society. The President thanked the members who made doughnuts or worked at the meeting.

Correspondence consisted of an invitation from the Brompton Road WI to attend their meeting on Oct. 12. A letter from Mrs. W. Coates, County President, listing three important meetings in October, also a Thank you note from a member who has been remembered while in hospital.

The Agricultural convenor mentioned the beautiful foliage at this time of year. The fruit and flower committee reported cards sent and a balance still on hand.

The Institute members will canvass the blind.

Mrs. Halliday, Education convenor, introduced Mr. Bernard Hodge, one of the House

Principals at Alexander Galt Regional School. He gave a helpful talk on happenings at the school and answered many questions. He was thanked by Miss G. Gaulin.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses Mrs. Gertrude McGilton and Mrs. Andrew MacRae and a social hour enjoyed.

Mrs. Gordon French of the East Clifton WI thanked this Branch for a pleasant evening.

officers on the good work done that evening. Sister Gladys expressed her thanks for the gift. Sister Donna Hey presented Sister Norma Moynan with her past noble grand pin. Sister Moynan thanked the members for the pin and all who had helped her in the past year.

Remarks were given by Sisters Thompson, Burnham. Lodge closed in ritual form and a nice lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Sixteen members of the Golden Rule Rebekah Lodge attended the District meeting in Knowlton Friday evening October 1 for District No. 2.

UCW hold Thanksgiving offering meeting

SCOTSTOWN — The Thanksgiving offering meeting of the UCW was held in the church hall on Tuesday afternoon Oct. 5 with nine ladies present.

The meeting opened with the worship service taken by Mrs. F. B. Mayhew, the theme Paul and the Gospel. She read the first eighteen verses of Romans 1. Meditation, Prayer and two verses of Come ye thankful people were sung.

Mrs. Ladd conducted the business meeting, first thanking all who helped to make the social evening a success. Minutes of the September meeting were read and Mrs. Ross MacDonald gave the treasurer's report.

4 ladies attended the Presbyterian Rally held at East Angus on Sept. 30. Mrs. Mayhew gave a report of the rally with the other ladies adding some highlights.

It was decided to have a Bring and Buy sale at the November meeting. A discussion took place on changing the lights in the hall.

All were pleased that Mrs. Rufus MacLeod was present at the meeting, Mrs. Ladd having gone to Bury to bring her. Mrs. MacLeod thanked the group for remembering her with a card at the last meeting.

A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Lillian MacIver, Secy-treas. of St. Paul's Presbyterian Sunday School. The offering was received by Mrs. Rufus MacLeod dedicated by Mrs. Ladd with a meditation of the Lord's Prayer taken from the Happenings. The Happenings are being passed around for all the members to read.

Mrs. Ladd was in charge of the study. Some members had brought in answers to questions given them from the previous meeting to answer. These were read before Mrs. Ladd took the second chapter in the book. How to be a Christian without being religious. More questions were given to be brought in at the next meeting.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction and a picnic lunch was enjoyed.

Abercorn

Mr. and Mrs. Lorrie Meacoe and three sons of Ottawa spent several days visiting Miss Doreen Meacoe.

Mr. Douglas Wighton spent a week in Ottawa and Hull, Sept. 18-24.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Chaff in the sudden death of Mr. Richardson, of Montreal, their brother-in-law. Also to Mrs. Reid in the accidental death of her husband, Mr. Reid. Mrs. Reid has gone to her home in Chambly, after selling their village home to Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Garland.

The WI sponsored a 500 card party in their hall Sat. Sept. 25. Mrs. Pearl Labe is spending an indefinite time as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Colton and family in Argyle, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGrath called on Mrs. Ada Goodhue while she was a surgical patient at B.M.P. Hospital, Cowansville. Mr. Robert Plouffe, Freighsburg, and Mr. Douglas Wighton were in Sherbrooke Sept. 25-26 to attend a seminar meeting.

The Pleasant Valley Cemetery Association are sponsoring two 500 card parties, starting Oct. 2 in the Town Hall.

Mr. Gerard Poulin attended a Caisse Populaire meeting in Eastman Monday evening, Sept. 27.

GUILD MEETING

All Saints' Guild was entertained by Mrs. H. J. Garland, Sept. 15 with several members and a guest attended.

Business discussed. Buying a new vacuum cleaner, the church wall to be repaired before cold weather, also repairs to the chimney.

The new drapes have been made and add a lovely touch to the altar.

The Thanksgiving Service was held on Sept. 26, members and friends decorated the church for this occasion.

Chance game won by Mrs. Hollis Wilkins.

Mrs. Grant Forgrave will have the Oct. meeting on the 20th.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served, assisted by Mrs. Bleser.

Inverness

A very successful joint meeting of LOBA Lodge No. 995 of Kinnear's Mills, and Orange Lily Lodge No. 1041 of the LOBA met together in the Orange Hall at Inverness to greet their Provincial Grand Mistress, R. W. Sister Alma McLeod. Three initiations took place. Mr. and Mrs. Winston White, of Lennoxville, and Inverness, and Mr. Howard McIlarg of Thetford Mines, became members of the Association.

Following the meeting, the ladies of the two lodges provided delicious refreshments.

While in Inverness for the meeting, Sister McLeod was a guest at the McVetty home.

Mrs. Eva Gregoire, Montreal is visiting at her parental home here. Mrs. Gregoire has just returned from a trip to Spain, and was unaware of the serious bus accident in that country in which so many Canadians died until she reached points at which English papers were available, while, at home, great concern was felt for her safety until the names of the victims were released.

Guests of Mrs. Gertie Wright were Mr. Cecil Currie, Mr. Dale Currie, Mr. Ted Davis, of Hamilton, Ont., Mr. David Currie, of St. Pierre Baptiste, Mr. Herbert Wright, Mr. Hughes, from Danville, and Mr. Dick Mitchell, of Thetford Mines.

St. Luke's Cemetery Committee met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mirmnaugh recently when matters of a routine nature were disposed of satisfactorily.

Mrs. Hilda Stevenson was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mirmnaugh.

CFL roundup

Ti-cats inability obvious

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Joe Zuger has had his problems moving the Hamilton Tiger-Cat offense against opposing Canadian Football League teams this season, and it's showing in his punting statistics.

Zuger has had to kick the ball away 130 times in 12 games this year, a record second only in the league to Billy Van Burkleo of Calgary Stampede, who has punted 133 times in 13 games.

But Zuger is the leader among regular punt men in the league with a 48.9 average, and he can maintain that pace, he'll set another season record.

Zuger set the previous best season punting average of 48.4 in 1968 and managed a 48.2 average in 1969. Before that, Dave Mann's 48.0 average with Toronto Argonauts in 1961 was the top mark.

In total yards gained by punting, Zuger already has passed his previous top total of 6,249 in 1968 with 6,360 this season, but he's still a long way behind the record of 7,222 yards punted by former Hamilton kicker Cam Fraser in 1957.

THIRD IN PASSING

Among passers, however, Zuger ranks only third in the Eastern Conference behind Sonny Wade of Montreal Alouettes and leader Joe Theismann of Toronto Argonauts.

Theismann has gained 2,062 yards on 125 passes completed,

Wade 1,904 yards on 137 completions and Zuger 1,467 yards on 116 throws.

The CFL weekly statistics show Don Jonas of Winnipeg Blue Bombers still leading the Western Conference passers with 3,865 yards gained on 239 completions, followed by Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders, 2,228 yards from 159 throws, and Calgary's Jerry Keeling, 1,572 yards on 130.

The WFC now has two ball carriers in the 1,000-yard club —George Reed of Saskatchewan and Jim Evenson of British Columbia Lions.

Evenson gained 1,158 yards in 237 carries and Reed 1,073 in 199 runs.

This is the seventh season Reed has gained 1,000 or more yards rushing and brings his career total to 10,880 yards, just 29 short of the league record set by Johnny Bright in 13 seasons with Calgary and Edmonton Eskimos. McQUAY STILL LEADS Toronto's Leon McQuay still holds the EFC rushing lead with 960 yards despite having missed three games with a knee injury, returning last Sunday as a flanker instead of a running back.

McQuay could still reach the 1,000-yard club in Argos' remaining game if coach Leo Cahill allows him to return to the backfield.

Dennis Duncan of Ottawa Rough Riders, with two games remaining, is well back of McQuay with 727 yards in 142 carries.

Jonas of the Blue Bombers appears to have the Western Conference and league scoring championships clinched with a 32-point lead over Saskatchewan's Jack Abendschan.

Ticats' Tommy-Joe Coffey, the EFC scoring leader, is 44 points behind Jonas.

NHL roundup

Gilbert leads NHL scorers

MONTREAL (CP) — Right winger Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers, off to the fastest start of his 10-season career, has picked up 11 points in his club's first five games to lead the National Hockey League scoring race today.

Gilbert's performance marked the first time in nine seasons a New York player has led the scoring parade. His 11-point output includes a league-leading eight assists.

Andy Bathgate, former Ranger right winger, was the last Ranger to lead the scoring list—on Jan. 17, 1963—but he finished second to Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings that season.

In fact, the Rangers have not had an Art Ross Trophy winner yet, and the last New York player to win the scoring title was Bryan Hextall in 1941-42. The Art Ross Trophy, awarded annually to the NHL's top points finisher, was presented to the league to honor the scoring champion for the first time in 1947-48.

Among the eight points Gilbert picked up last week in three games were his 300th regular-season assist and 500th point. Gilbert currently holds a three-point lead over defending champion Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins.

LINEMATES THIRD

Tied for third place are Gilbert's linemates, left winger Vic Hadfield and centre Jean Rabe, along with rookie Bobby Sheehan of California Golden Seals.

All three players have seven points, and Sheehan and teammate Norm Ferguson each scored three goals in one game last week.

New York, which won the Vezina Trophy last season when netminders Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure wound up with the best goals-against average for the first time in 31 Ranger seasons, is the highest scoring team so far this season with 22 goals.

Half of the New York goals have been scored by the Gilbert, Hadfield and Rabe line, which has 25 points.

Van Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens and Sheehan share the lead in goals with five each. They are small men by NHL standards, both measuring five feet, seven inches.

Tony Esposito of Chicago

Black Hawks, Vezina Trophy winner two seasons ago, is all alone in the goalkeeping department. He has allowed only five goals in the same number of games and has recorded a pair of shutouts in the process for a 1.00 goals-against average.

Only one game was scheduled for tonight when Vancouver Canucks travelled to St. Louis for a game against the Blues.

Will Murtaugh retire, return?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Will Danny Murtaugh return as manager of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates next year?

"I'll decide in the next month or so if I'll return," the 54-year-old manager had said during the World Series, says a decision would be made only because of his health.

He resigned last year after the Pirates won the world championship in 1960 because of a heart ailment. But he has returned twice since—in 1967, only for a year because of a second heart attack, and last year when he led the Pirates to a division title.

If Murtaugh should step down, his likely replacement would be Bill Virdon.

Virdon, the Pirate batting coach and former center fielder for Pittsburgh, conducted the Pirate clubhouse meetings during the regular season.

He also was interim manager when Murtaugh was hospitalized, again for a heart problem.

General manager Joe L. Brown has said Murtaugh is his manager as long as he wants the job, but he is not as free with his endorsements of Pirate players.

There are very few untouchables on the Pirate club and Brown can be expected to trade for players he believes will strengthen his club.

The Pirates will be looking for improvement at shortstop and probably in some areas of pitching.

Gene Alley, who batted .227 during the regular season and started only one game in the World Series, is scheduled to undergo a knee operation soon and has indicated he may retire from baseball.

Jack Hernandez, who played shortstop in Alley's place, did a fine job in the Series, but he batted only .206 and had 18 errors during the season. Alley had 22.

Center fielder Al Oliver, platooned during the season with Gene Clines, says he wants to be traded if he doesn't play every day.

Relief pitcher Bob Veale, who has more victories and shutouts as a Pirate than any other pitcher on the staff, also may be on the market, although his 7.04 earned-run average, despite a 6-0 record, may not be very attractive to other clubs.

WINS 116 GAMES

Veale has won 116 games in nine seasons with the Pirates.

A major question in the Pirate pitching department is whether Dock Ellis will ever wear a Pittsburgh uniform again.

Ellis, who had a 19-9 record this season but pitched only 2 1-3 innings in the first game of the World Series because of a sore elbow, has called the Pirate management cheapshots.

Ellis excludes Murtaugh in the blast aimed primarily at Brown and the Pirate ownership.

If Murtaugh, who gets along well with Ellis, retires, it would seem to heighten chances for Ellis' exit.

Robert Clemente, the most valuable player in the World Series, probably is the only untouchable.

Willie Stargell, who will undergo knee surgery during the winter, also may be in that category, along with catcher Manny Sanguillen.

Harris again candidate for CFL MVP

MONTREAL (CP) — For the third consecutive season, line-backer Wayne Harris of Calgary Stampede was announced Monday as one of the nine candidates for most valuable player in the Canadian Football League.

Three players from each CFL team are nominated by sports-writers and sportscasters from across Canada in three categories: most outstanding player, Canadian player of the year and most valuable linemen.

Harris, a perennial all-star, has been linemen of the year three times in the past six seasons. He is one of three linemen nominated this season as the league's most valuable player.

No linemen have ever received the award, won last season by quarterback Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Harris was also nominated as his team's representative for the most valuable linemen.

Mark Kosmos of Montreal Alouettes and Marshall Shirk of Ottawa Rough Riders were also voted to represent their teams in the top linemen and most valuable player categories.

Edmonton defensive back Dick Dupuis and Bill Danychuk, Hamilton Tiger-Cats offensive guard, are also dual nominees this year.

Dupuis was named to represent the Eskimos in the most valuable player and Canadian player of the year while Danychuk was named in the top linemen and player of the year categories.

NOV. 2 IS TARGET

Second round balloting will reduce the nominees to six, three from the west and three from the east. Results of the voting will be announced Nov. 2.

The six finalists will be in Vancouver during Grey Cup week and the final selections will be announced Nov. 25.

Following is the complete list of nominees.

Canadian player of the year—Jim Young, B.C.; Dick Dupuis, Edmonton; Wayne Shaw, Saskatchewan; Larry Robinson, Calgary; Bob Larose, Winnipeg; Mike Eeben, Toronto; Bill Danychuk, Hamilton; Wayne Giardino, Ottawa; Terry Evanshen, Montreal.

World Series roundup

Weaver still thinks Orioles best

BALTIMORE (AP) — The former world champion Baltimore Orioles could be the team to beat in 1972—and there's a lot of young farm-club talent to help them.

Room will have to be made on next year's roster for at least two players from Baltimore's club system as the Orioles seek their fourth straight American League pennant.

Three Baltimore farm clubs won championships during the season, including a second straight in the all-rookie Appalachian League.

"This still is the best damn team in baseball," manager Earl Weaver said

Sunday after the Orioles had been upset in the World Series for the second time in three years.

"We'll prove it next year," he added "when we win 100 games for the fourth straight season."

The Orioles this year became only the third team in history to win at least 100 games three years in a row. But the loss to Pittsburgh Pirates in the World Series tarnishes the record somewhat.

The Orioles added five new faces to their 25-man roster after beating Cincinnati Reds in the 1970 World Series, and more changes are due before next season.

MAY SEEK PITCHER

If the Orioles do barter, they probably will be looking for more pitching—despite a starting rotation of four 20-game winners—and possibly a catcher.

The bullpen was a bit weak in 1971, partly because the relievers were used infrequently as starters completed 71 games. But Dick Hall is 41 and did not have a particularly good season.

The Orioles also may reduce their infield or outfield corps to make way for infielder Bobby Grich and outfielder Don Baylor from their Rochester farm club.

Grich was sent back to Rochester after hitting .383 in 1970. He led the league this year in hitting with .336, and home runs with 32, while driving in 83 runs as the second-place batter.

Baylor hit .313 this year with 20 homers and 95 runs batted in.

Mickey Scott, a left-handed reliever who had a 9-1 record with nine saves at Rochester, could be added to the bullpen without the necessity of a trade. Another Rochester pitcher, right-hander Roric Harrison, had a 15-5 mark in 1971.

Times changing for Jim Harrison

TORONTO (CP) — The times are changing for Jim Harrison, 24-year-old centre of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Gone are the flashy sports car and the paunch, thickened by soft drinks and rich food.

Now it's a house and maturity and a self-imposed restriction on food.

"I knew my job was in jeopardy," said the Bonnyville, Alta., native. "I didn't really expect to be with the Leafs this season because I heard during the summer that I was involved in a lot of trade talk."

A National Hockey League trade in 1969 brought Harrison to Toronto from Boston Bruins in exchange for Wayne Carleton, now with California Golden Seals.

SCORED 10

That season Harrison netted 10 goals, increasing the total to 13 last year.

Increasing too was his playing weight. When he left Estevan Bruins of the Western Canada Hockey League, Harrison weighed 185 pounds.

MIDI GONE YOUNG — Girl's midi dress, by Tick-a-Tea, showing a Victorian influence. Made in bonded Courtois, it is available in the following color combinations: plum and white, saxe and white, or black and white.

PANTS STILL IN — Child's cat suit in knitted Orlon, with a backing of bonded nylon, made by Morley St Joan in red, rust, or purple. The orange patent belt is an eye-catching accessory.

London fashions for younger set

Children's fashion at the moment seems to be in as great a state of uncertainty as that for adults. Manufacturers are including everything from minis to maxis in their collections for autumn, 1971 — and some are making a number of styles available in a choice of lengths.

Most of the dresses, from London designers, for the autumn are in three lengths, with the mini emerging as standard. Midis range from anything between below-knee level to mid calf, while the ankle maxi, is usually in a late day or party mood.

However, if there is hesitancy over hemlines, the designs in dresses couldn't be better, nor the selection greater.

It will certainly be difficult during the coming autumn to pin-point any neglected age group. From toddler to teenager, there are styles which combine flattery, originality and practicality. Shapes are clearly defined, and are often accentuated by either definite color contrasts or trim.

The peasant, or gypsy look is popular in all ranges and is in complete harmony with the longer lengths. So, too, is the charmingly updated Victorian image. But it is not only to the past that manufacturers have looked for their inspiration; the modern co-ordinated image is prevalent, and designed to suit all ages.

The trouser trend also plays a most important part in young fashion, from the smallest size.

Pants-suits consist of trousers (straight or slightly flared in the leg) to be worn with either tunic top (which in itself can be worn as a mini dress) or a matching jacket (anything from waist to midi length), harmonising patterned blouse or sweater. The dungaree style, no longer restricted to denim, has become very much a fashion cult. So, too, has the all-in-one cat suit. Gaucho pants are often teamed with matching boleros. The more decorative styles sport contrasting braid. Hot pants and jump-suits — usually with overskirts — although featured, are limited.

The fabric story is one of hard-wearing practicality. The progress made in the field of man-made fibres is such that it takes an expert to determine exactly which particular category a fabric belongs to. Natural fibres are now treated to withstand very much harsher wear than they have in the past. For autumn many materials are now very finely bonded, which helps enormously in shape retention.

Some debts that are never paid

Many people who claim to be debt free do not realize that from the moment they are born they are in debt in one way or another.

For instance, the moment an expectant mother reaches the maternity ward, social capital in the form of hospital service is involved.

Even father's dash to the hospital door calls for social capital. The roads he takes, the police escort he may require, the stop signs, are there only because of money borrowed by various levels of government to pay for their existence and maintenance.

In 1969 (latest statistics available) the Government of Canada was in debt to the tune of $24 billion. Debt at the provincial government level totalled $20 billion across Canada. Municipal debt was somewhat lower at $6 billion. The total of government debt was over $50 billion — roughly $2400 per person. This is a debt which no one expects to be repaid.

Looking at debt in another way, it may be said that children owe their parents a debt if only for their very existence on earth.

This debt, plus the debt incurred through upbringing can never be repaid. In North America, parents generally don't expect repayment anymore — care of the aged has become a government expense. But in many societies, compensation comes through continuing family care of the elderly.

Historically we owe a debt to the people who discovered, explored and settled Canada. For our freedom we owe those who signed the Magna Carta: it was paid for in blood.

Many of us tend to look at a debt as merely unpaid bills. We clean them up once or twice a month and we think we're out of debt.

What do they involve? Mortgage payments, medical and dental expenses, or payments on consumer goods purchased through credit.

This is just the beginning of our real debt. The total picture extends far beyond these horizons.

THE OLD AND THE NEW — This Italian dish combines old world flavor with modern ingredients, to give you the best of both worlds.

To celebrate an Italian

Arroz con Pollo Isabella is a dish of Spanish origin especially created in honor of Christopher Columbus, an Italian. And why not? After all, it was Queen Isabella who subsidized Columbus' voyage to the New World and so won his loyalty, gratitude and some say his heart too.

Devised in Test Kitchens, the recipe uses modern ingredients to achieve Old World flavor and appeal. Zestily seasoned with an envelope of spaghetti sauce mix, the meal-in-one also has the benefit of being economical — both chicken and rice are good food buys. Nutritionally, the dish provides one serving from the Meat Group, one from the Vegetable Group and one Bread-Cereal serving, three of the four Basic Food Groups needed daily for good health.

Apples and honey are a delicious combination and a favorite Spanish dessert. In this quick-and-easy Honeyed Applesauce, canned applesauce is appropriately embellished with allspice — a spice discovered by Columbus.

ARROZ CON POLLO ISABELLA

2½ to 3 pound frying chicken, cut up
¼ cup oil
1 envelope (1½ oz.) French's Spaghetti Sauce Mix
1½ cups water
1 can (14 oz.) whole tomatoes
1 cup raw rice
1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas
1 can (4 oz.) pimientos, cut up
Brown chicken in oil on all sides, about 15 minutes. Add contents of envelope of spaghetti sauce mix, water, tomatoes, and rice, stirring to mix thoroughly. Cook, covered, 30 to 45 minutes or until chicken is tender, stirring occasionally. Stir in peas and pimiento. Cook, covered, an additional 10 minutes. 4 servings. NOTE: Garnish with quartered hard-cooked eggs, if desired.

HONEYED APPLESAUCE

1 can (14 oz.) applesauce
2 tablespoons honey
½ teaspoon Ground Allspice
¼ teaspoon Ground Nutmeg
½ cup shredded coconut
Combine applesauce, honey, allspice, and nutmeg. Sprinkle coconut over top. 4 servings.

Bridal shower

SUTTON — Mrs. Ralph Davidson and Mrs. Ken Wright entertained at a miscellaneous shower, Tuesday evening, September 28, at the home of Mrs. Davidson in honor of Miss Audrey Patten.

The gifts were placed in a basket beside a decorated chair.

Audrey was surprised upon arrival to find 26 relatives and friends awaiting her. After the gifts had been opened and passed around for all to admire, Audrey, in her pleasant and happy manner, expressed her many thanks to her hostesses and to all present for the lovely and useful gifts.

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl, 16. Last year one of my best friends was raped. In June my eight-year-old sister was approached by a child molester. Last month one of my older sister's friends was beaten up while walking home from work in broad daylight. And so on.

I want to take guitar lessons which would require a 12-block walk. We live in a good part of town but my parents say no! They don't want me walking anywhere alone after dark. So, O.K., I won't take guitar lessons. I can't walk 12 lousy blocks for something I've waited three years for.

Thank you, World! Somewhere there is Love and Peace and Beauty and Truth. Somewhere people live simple, decent lives. Somewhere people don't have guns in the house — they don't even lock their doors. Somewhere a person can walk down the street at night and not be scared to death that he will be hit over the head. Or shot.

—A Girl in Kansas

Dear Girl: Somewhere, you say? I'd like to know where that place is. It used to be that the small towns were safe. But no more. What can we do? There are no easy answers, but I can make one suggestion which is closely related to the problems you listed. We can demand that our legislators pass tougher gun laws. Today almost every nut and his cousin has a gun. If the laws had been changed 10 years ago I can think of some great Americans who might be alive today.

Dear Ann Landers: I am not a complainer, and I have a fairly good relationship with almost everyone I know, but this one girl who works in our office drives me loony. She is a lively person, talks a lot, laughs a lot, and always has a story to tell — complete with gestures.

Whenever she talks to me she always manages to give me a hard sock and I am sick of it. I've told her a dozen times to keep her hands to herself but it doesn't do any good. Every time she relates an incident she hits me — or she'll give me a jab in the ribs with her elbow and ask, "Get it?"

I am desperate for some advice on how to put an end to her galling habit. Please help me.

SOCIAL NEWS
Mr. and Mrs. Colin Smith, Hamilton, Ont., were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lownd and their house guest, Mr. E. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan MacKee have returned to their home in Thetford, after visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. McElravy and the McElravy family.

Mrs. P. Bullard, St. Pierre Baptiste, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bullard.

Mr. and Mrs. Leamon Lownd are spending an indefinite time with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forgrave in Abercorn.

Miss Dorothy Pinchin has returned from Lake Louise, Alta., where she was employed for the summer.

Mrs. Roger D'Oust and Sylvie Ann of Ormstown spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Grapes.

Mrs. Morris Smith spent a few days in Beaconsfield visiting her niece and her husband, Dr. Ajamein.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family and friends of the late Mrs. Ellen Forgrave, whose death occurred on Sept. 18 at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson. Several from here attended the funeral at the United Church in Sawyerville. Sympathy is also extended to the family and friends of the late Edwin Prescott, whose death occurred at the Sherbrooke Hospital on Sept. 20. Several attended the funeral services at the T. French funeral home in Sawyerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Merrill have returned from a nine day trip to Maritimes, where they left Dianne at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College in Truro, for her second year, and Marsha at Mount Allison University in Sackville to begin her arts degree. While in the Maritimes they visited friends and relatives, in Halifax, and River Hebert and Great Village, N.S., Summerside, P.E.I., Moncton, St. John, Oromocto and their son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Duckworth in Hartland, N.B. They also had the pleasure of seeing Dianne being interviewed on the farm broadcast, "A Way Out" on the Maritime TV Network.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Schultz of Santa Rosa, Calif., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson. Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forgrave, Abercorn and Miss Gareth Forgrave, RN of Ottawa were also guests at the same home, called here by the illness and death of their mother, Mrs. E. Forgrave.

Richmond area UCW Fall rally

WINDSOR — The Fall Rally of the Richmond Area UCW was held at Windsor United Church on September 23 with 47 members in attendance.

After registration of those present by the Danville UCW, the meeting opened with words of welcome by the chairman, Miss J. Pepler of Richmond, and the Vice-President of Windsor, Mrs. M. Dubuc. Mrs. E. Baldwin of Lennoxville brought greetings from the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbytery.

Mrs. Z. Judson of Lennoxville then led the group in an enjoyable half-hour of singing hymns from the New Hymn Book.

The theme of the Rally was "The Church, Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow," and the main address was given by Mrs. George Houston of Montreal, who was introduced by Mrs. W. Potts of Ulverton. Mrs. Houston spoke of the various interests of the groups in a community with particular mention of the young people. How should the church reach out to these people?

Discussion groups were formed to consider the questions which were posed, and a great deal of interest was displayed in speaking of the role of the Church in the present-day society. After luncheon was served by the Windsor ladies, the group leaders reported on their conclusions and Mrs. Houston led the evaluation of the theme.

Roll call was followed by a report of Summer School by Mrs. E. Hoy of Lennoxville. Mrs. M. Johnston of Melbourne Ridge then thanked Mrs. Houston for her interesting and thought-provoking address.

The meeting closed with a worship service conducted by Rev. L. Beaudon of Drummondville.

Ladies Guild supper big success

IRON HILL — Mrs. Lillian Hall entertained the Ladies Guild of Holy Trinity Church, Iron Hill. There were 11 members present and guests were Mrs. Sylvia Beard, Mrs. Susie Beattie and little Miss Paula Thomas.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the president Mrs. Wm. Mason. The minutes were read by the secretary Mrs. Annie Mason. These were approved and seconded. The treasurer Mrs. Stanley Mount gave a report of the Chicken Pie Supper which was held recently in Iron Hill. Net proceeds amounted to $560. All bills were ordered paid.

It was decided to hold a Christmas Tea and Work Table.

Home Cooking sale and Knick Knack table of Christmas articles, on Sat. afternoon, Nov. 13, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

There will be a drawing of a Buckskin Pony Colt donated by Mr. Andrew Howard.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Robert McGovern for painting the kitchen chairs and nursery chairs, also cleaning of the hall and kitchen after the Chicken Pie Supper. Our thanks to all who donated food and gave of their time to make our Supper a success. The meeting closed with prayer.

There were six gentlemen who joined the ladies for tea and refreshments were served by the hostess.

If you didn't shop Dominion last week you probably paid too much.

If you select your supermarket on the basis of the items and prices they advertise each week, you may be lulled into believing you're getting the most for your food dollar. On your total order. But, it is obvious that you select, by far the biggest part of your weekly order from the thousands of non-advertised items. Right?

Think about it. Have you been paying more than you should for the non-advertised items you buy regularly at some other store? A good question. And until now, maybe hard for you to answer. What with all the supermarket claims. Confusing statements. And no real way to find out for yourself.

Now, we're going to make it easier for you. Easier to compare prices on hundreds and hundreds of items you need and buy regularly. Items which are rarely advertised by most supermarkets.

So, if you are not now a Dominion shopper. And if you think you're getting a square deal on your "total" food order, at some other supermarket we say: If you didn't shop Dominion last week you probably paid too much.
