

PREMIER PARENT ABOUT TO RESIGN

Obliged to Leave on Account of His Throat Trouble

MR. GOULIN TO RESIGN

Rumor of the Capital Already Has its Personnel Pretty Definitely Constituted—Solicitor-Generalship Revived for Mr. Weir.

Quebec, March 20.—(Special.)—It is considered certain in political circles here that Premier Parent will resign to-morrow or Wednesday and immediately afterwards leave Quebec to undergo expensive medical treatment for his throat trouble.

Though the resignation of the Provincial Premier was not unexpected, his most intimate friends were not prepared to hear of it so soon. They were under the impression that he would continue in office a few weeks longer at least. But the Premier at last came to realize that he either had to obey the imperative orders of his physician or run the risk of endangering his life and consequently made up his mind on Saturday last to resign.

Hon. Lomer Gouin will be called to succeed to the Premiership, and it is said that he will be sworn in on Monday.

The personnel of the new Cabinet has not definitely been known, but it is said that it is likely to be composed as follows:

- Hon. L. Gouin, Premier and Minister of Public Works.
- Hon. A. Turgeon, Minister of Crown Lands.
- Hon. J. C. McNeill, Provincial Treasurer.
- Hon. Horace Archambault, Attorney-General and President of the Legislative Council.
- Hon. A. Tessier, Minister of Agriculture.
- Mr. R. Roy, member for Kamouraska, Provincial Secretary.
- Mr. P. Roy, member for St. Jean will replace Hon. A. Tessier as Speaker of the House, who will resign to accept a portfolio and it is said that the Solicitor-Generalship will be revived to which Hon. W. A. Weir will be named.

POLISH SCHOOL QUESTION.

Sienkiewicz, the Great Novelist, Describes School Life as a Round of Torment and Tragedy.

St. Petersburg, March 20.—Henrik Sienkiewicz, the Polish novelist, publishes to-day an article in which he describes school life in Poland as a "round of chagrin, torment and tragedy." He adds:

"The years of youth and adolescence are years of suffering and torture. It is only the fear that their children might become socially pariahs that makes parents wish them to obtain certificates."

A NEW CLUB FOR MONTREAL.

A number of young Irishmen and their friends, convened by Mr. Gerald S. Smith, met at dinner in the Welland Hotel on St. Patrick's night, to celebrate the feast of their patron saint. During the evening it was proposed to form a new club of a social character, the fees to be moderate, and sufficient to provide suitable rooms for the club, when numerous musical evenings could be held.

CAPT. F. LOYE SUSPENDED, DENIES ALL CHARGES OF RECEIVING MONEY

Mr. J. B. Pare, the Saloonkeeper on Trial for Illegal Selling, Says That He Can Prove That Capt. Loye Accepted Money From Him on Several Occasions

As the result of certain charges implied against him on Saturday in the Recorder's Court, Captain F. Loye, of No. 6 Police station, one of the best known police officials of Montreal, is now under suspension, pending a formal investigation. The case was one in which J. B. Pare, a restaurant keeper of 192 St. Catherine Street, was arraigned before Recorder Polier for selling liquor during prohibited hours. Captain Loye, in the witness box was asked by the counsel for the defendant if he had ever received money for protecting Mr. Pare. Captain Loye denied it emphatically and when asked a similar question later in the case was being tried and said advisedly that he was not prepared to say that he had received money for protecting Mr. Pare.

The charges alleged to have been made indirectly against Captain Loye, of having received gifts of money and other things, were reiterated by Mr. Pare, when interviewed this morning by The Herald. Captain Loye, on the other hand, says that the statements are utterly without foundation, and declares that he is able to prove them when given an opportunity.

From the Chief of Police.

Speaking this morning Chief Campbell said: "In view of the serious nature of the charges preferred against Captain Loye his temporary suspension was rendered necessary. That is over and the public and the captain himself. An investigation will give Captain Loye a chance to prove his innocence, but until such time as the statements made by him have been proved or disproved, or withdrawn, such action on my part was rendered necessary."

The Case in Court.

During the trial of the Pare case before Recorder Polier on Saturday morning, Mr. J. A. Drouin, counsel for Mr. Pare, asked Captain Loye, who was present as a witness, if he had ever received money from Pare. To this Captain Loye answered no. Mr. Drouin then specified a date, asking witness if he had not received a sum of money the night before New Year's. Captain Loye then appealed to the Recorder and wanted to know whether it was his case or Pare's that was being tried. At this Mr. Drouin repeated his question, and Captain Loye answered no. Mr. Drouin then specified a date, asking witness if he had not received a sum of money the night before New Year's. Captain Loye then appealed to the Recorder and wanted to know whether it was his case or Pare's that was being tried. At this Mr. Drouin repeated his question, and Captain Loye answered no.

Capt. Loye's Emphatic Denial.

Captain Loye, when asked about the matter to-day denied that he had received money from Pare. He stated that on one occasion Pare had left $10

Sir Wm. Mulock Says Service Should be Within Reach of All

FEDERAL CONTROL DIFFICULT

Organized Municipal Management is Most Promising Scheme in Opinion of P.M.G.—First Meeting of Important Committee.

Ottawa, Ont., March 20.—(Special.)—The first meeting of the Special Committee to enquire into the telephone question was held to-day. Sir William Mulock was appointed chairman. The object of the committee is to take evidence as to the working of telephones in Canada and elsewhere, the idea being, if possible, to pave the way to nationalizing the telephone in this country.

Sir William Mulock in accepting the chairmanship outlined what he considered should be the aim and scope of the committee. The principal objects of the committee should be to endeavor to secure telephone connection to every person in the Dominion.

who should desire it. Sir William then went on to outline a scheme by which telephones could be brought within the reach of all through the control of the municipalities. There were difficulties in the way of the Dominion Government assuming the service. There were the collecting of tolls, making repairs, etc. The Dominion Government would have to collect by the municipalities the same as water rates etc. is now done.

WHY HE MAY BE PREMIER OF A RUSSIAN PEACE CABINET

Czar Has Begged Him to Reconsider His Resignation—Mobilization Orders are Now Explained as Due to Desire for Better Position From Which to Make Terms

ST. PETERSBURG, MARCH 20.

Anxiety regarding the fate of General Linevitch's forces continues, the main danger to them being the Japanese columns which are hurrying northward along the great trade route twenty miles west of and parallel with the line of retreat. The heads of these columns were officially reported to be passing Kakoman, thirty miles northwest of Tie Pass, on Friday. Their appearance doubtless hastened the Russian retreat, which may now have become literally a race northward, as once the Russians are headed it would be easy for the Japanese by a short cut to the left flank to cut the line of retreat. After leaving Kai Yuan, General Linevitch is believed to have divided his army, the main portion clinging to the railroad and the other falling back along the Mandarin road which runs to Kirin. It being impossible to leave the latter open to the Japanese lest they then be able to creep up on the left flank, the War Office desires to proceed in an orderly fashion.

Complete details of the losses at the battle of Mukden are not yet available at the War Office, but the reports thus far received indicate that 120,000 men were killed, wounded or made prisoners, and that about eighty field guns were captured. Almost every rifle gun, it is affirmed, was removed.

Cabinet to Settle Peace.

New York, March 20.—A St. Petersburg despatch to the Times says:

According to a statement by a high personage the question of peace will probably be submitted to the council of Ministers after the impending re-organization by which the council is to absorb the committee of Ministers and become a sort of cabinet under a Prime Minister, who, presumably, will be M. Witte, the leading peace advocate in Russia.

The Czar has begged M. Witte to withdraw his resignation.

An agreement of the mobilization of troops in the districts of Moscow, Odessa and Warsaw, is regarded by the war party as convincing proof of the Government's intention to continue the struggle, but the advocates of peace declare that it may equally signify an intention to negotiate for peace.

They say that if the Government is really preparing to receive or make overtures it would naturally wish to produce the strongest array of armed force in order to induce the foe to give the best terms.

The apparent hopelessness of the Cabinet to Settle Peace.

N.S. STEEL WILL PASS DIVIDEND

But in Spite of That the Stock To-day Showed an Advance

ANNUAL STATEMENT IS OUT

Directors Decide to Take Dividend Money and Put it Into General Reserve.

As expected on the "Street" the N.S. Steel Company has passed its dividend on the common stock.

This does not mean, however, that the company was short of money to make the payment. Over $600,000 was carried forward to credit of profit and loss on the first of this year, but the directors decided to sacrifice the immediate interests of the shareholders in order to husband the resources of the company and put more money into improvements. The stock advanced on the Exchange to-day in spite of the dividend announcement.

The main items of interest in the statement are as follows:

The profits of the year were $601,337.24 and the balance brought forward from last year was $665,542.83 making a total of $1,266,880.07.

Loss and loss account on the 31st of December, 1904, which has been dealt with in the manner submitted by the accounts herewith.

The balance carried forward at the credit of profit and loss account on the first of January, 1905, is $665,542.83 as compared with the sum of $665,542.83 on the last of January, 1904.

At a special meeting of the company, held on October 8, 1904, an issue of $3,000,000 six per cent. consolidated bonds was authorized, under the terms of which $1,500,000 was sold and the proceeds applied to the purposes of the company, the balance being only available for the purpose of retiring the first mortgage bonds.

At the same special meeting of the company the balance of the preferred stock, amounting to $380,000, which had previously been underwritten, was offered to the shareholders on April 15th, 1904. The balance, not taken by the shareholders, was allotted to the underwriters and the proceeds were applied to the purposes of the company.

The volume of general business transacted by the company during the past year did not differ greatly from that of 1904.

In view of the earnings of the last half year being somewhat smaller than anticipated, and of the large amount of working capital now required by

Only in circumstances like those which have arisen from the introduction of the Autonomy bills does the lay mind get a satisfying view of the glorious uncertainty of the law. Everything, in these days, is being proved and disproved by reference to the constitution. Timid souls, by the hundred, who are rather terrified by the row the bills have kicked up, are mildly inquiring what the constitution says, and their situation is not bettered a whit, for they are promptly assured, and with equally convincing positiveness, that the constitution paints the thing both black and white. The constitution, according to the way you read it, both calls for the education clause and prohibits the insertion of that clause. Heaven only knows what the courts would say, and anyone who would like a little private revelation on that subject ought to read the judgments given by the different courts on the two issues presented on the Manitoba case. It involves no contempt of court to say that up to the time the Privy Council passed upon the second case every position taken by both sides had been sustained and rejected by one or more of our most eminent judges; and when the Privy Council decision did come down it was in conflict with itself, for while it held that the Manitoba Catholics had the right to remedial interposition by the Dominion, it as much as said the Dominion was under no precise obligation to apply the remedy. So when our good friend, the Toronto Globe, in fine judicial temper, says, "It is essentially a question of the interpretation and application of constitutional documents," it takes us into a field that is full of mazes, one from which the weary wanderer might, indeed, issue at length, but most likely "from the same door where in he went." We would most likely have to say, after the courts had had their say, what we intended to do about it ourselves.

What has been done so far? In 1873 Parliament, fresh from long years of embittered controversy over school questions, accepted almost without dissent the clause which required that in any school section a minority might set up its own school. Those who made that the law, and George Brown, who dissented from it, considered the action final. The clause has lasted until now, has governed all the ordinances made by the territorial legislatures up to now. Mr. McCarthy tried to get it repealed, but failed. And when he tried, in 1894, he claimed, unless it was got rid of, he would likely remain forever. Sir John Thompson, whose clarity of view everybody admitted, held that Parliament would be free to give the new provinces what constitution it chose, and advanced the view that the passage and continuance of the education clause of 1873 constituted a deliberate scheme framed for legislation with regard to the Territories which should—while they were in the Territorial conditions—keep them not only under the control of this Parliament, but keep them governed upon principles consistent with the policy of this Parliament, a policy which this Parliament conceived to be the best adapted for the peopling of the Territories. That is really where we are again to-day. The school system is there, it has been made, by successive enactments, suited to the needs of the population, nobody to-day proposes a grievance on any ground, and it is proposed to Parliament by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to keep the "policy of Parliament" deliberately adopted in 1873, for reasons as good and sufficient (looking to the preservation of peace and harmony in a country two-fifths Catholic and three-fifths Protestant) to-day as they were thirty years ago.

STREET LIGHTING.

In the early days of electric lighting, many cities paid two to four times the fair price for street lamps, and not a few municipalities still pay double the value of the electric lighting service. In 1889 San Francisco was paying as high as $440 per standard arc per year, though St. Louis was paying only $15 a year for each street arc of 2,000 candle power, burning all night and every night. New York was paying from $84 to $182. Pittsburgh, in the very heart of the coal regions, was paying $195 per arc per year. At that time companies producing electric lighting with steam plants should have made fair profits out of rates ranging from $75 to $85 in Eastern cities, while in San Francisco $100 would have been a fair price. As the people learned something of the facts, lower rates were demanded, but the companies for the most part yielded grudgingly—they were protected by monopolistic franchises and agreements, by their influence with public officers and by the ease with which they could doctor their accounts and make statements of costs difficult for the people to controvert, since the experts in the large cities were practically all in the companies' employ, or under their influence. Some concessions have been made, however, and the reductions in most cases have been large. By 1894 Springfield had forced down the price from $218 to $75, and San Francisco from $440 to $200, and since then there have been large reductions all along the line.

The history of municipally-owned plants (and there were 460 such plants in the United States in 1899) shows great decreases in the cost of installing and operating electric lighting systems. There are few industries in which invention has effected greater economies. In 1889, the dynamo used cost $45.20 per arc, while the lamps cost $50.00; in 1902, the dynamo only cost $18 per arc, and the lamp $22.50. In the same period the cost of carbons was reduced from $40 to $50 per thousand to only $10 a thousand. In Detroit, when the municipal plant was first established, the cost per arc light was over $90 a year. By 1900 the cost had been reduced to $65.45, including interest and depreciation, and allowing proper amounts for taxes and insurance. The private company prior to the installation of the plant was charging $132. The city could have reduced the cost still more if it had been permitted to supply lighting for commercial purposes.

In 1898 a small municipal plant in Chicago, supplying 1,100 full street arcs, was run at an expenditure of $98 per arc. In 1899 the operating cost had been reduced to $55.95, though not cost $3.90 per ton, and the plant was not run at its full capacity. Besides the superintendent's control of labor was hampered by politics, two shifts of men being employed every night at high wages. The private companies in the same city only employed one shift at $35 to $40 a month. Chicago paid the private companies $250 per arc, and, indeed, is paying many of them the same rate yet under contracts that it has not been able to get rid of.

Montreal is paying less for its street lamps than many American cities, though even with steam power much lower rates would yield a fair profit to a private company. The city pays for 1,203 arcs at $39.82; 239 half-arcs, or equivalent in incandescent lights, at $60; 12 three-quarter arcs or equivalent at $60; and 30 (new) arcs or equivalent at $40; an interesting chaos of prices. On the whole perhaps the hours of service are longer in Montreal than in most cities, though if the nights are long in winter they are correspondingly short in summer. Moreover, when the new contract is in full effect we shall be paying only $60 a light. In 1890, Carrol D. Wright found that municipal plants supplied street arcs in service between 3,500 and 3,750 hours a year, at an average cost of $64.71, while for plants supplying a service of over 4,000 hours, the cost was $53.56. Undoubtedly, a hydraulic company could give lower rates, and make fair profits on actual investment. There is at least one municipality in Ontario which supplies arc lights at $35 per year. Of course, in the case of the Montreal company, considerable current is probably lost in transmission, but the lower relative cost of operating large plants and the greater amount of business done would tend to offset the advantage which a small plant possesses from its proximity to the area of service.

In this connection it may be noted that the aldermen of Montreal look after the interests of the municipality much better than the citizens look after their private interests. While the city is paying $39 for arc lights under the existing adjustment of old and new contracts, the price quoted to private users is $100. In not a few American cities electric companies supply private users with arc lights at a much lower rate than they charge the municipality—in some cases at nearly half the public price.

A SPURIOUS IMITATION.

Like the little circus that always comes a couple of weeks after the big circus, one Redfield, a Chicago engineer, has come after Osler, and with the alarming statement that a man is not fit to be a father till he is past forty. He claims that the children of the old are better behaved than the children of the young; that David, Solomon, Lincoln, Franklin, Pitt and Beaconsfield were all born when their fathers were old men; that the great thinkers and philosophers of the world have been born of parents who had reached mental maturity; that he has invariably found extreme youth in the parentage of reckless, adventurous, dissipated, aggressive types of men. He argues that no man should be allowed to marry till he is twenty-nine, or woman till she is twenty, and claims that if none married before twenty-five poverty would disappear in two generations, and crime and viciousness with it.

All of which is arrant nonsense. The man who carries his dinner-pail to work and who has a family at home to support and to cherish, is apt to be a mighty sight better citizen than the selfish bachelor who starves his soul that he may be sure of mushrooms with his steak. The sons of the adventurous poor are very apt to believe in ideals at which the sons of those who put comfort first are apt to sneer. And, conceding all the premises—except that viciousness and criminality have special attractions for the relatively poor, which is absolutely untrue—the world can do with a very occasional addition to the present stock of slow-going, leisure-loving philosophers, and wants a lot more of the adventurous, aggressive type. Even the reckless have their use, especially in a country like ours. The home is still the keystone of the nation, and while there are agencies enough at work, especially in cities, to alter its aspect, it is pleasing to believe that its existence on the Canadian soil is not so seriously threatened.

Just imagine a world in which there would be no grandchild and no grandfathers being set up as the best possible!

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

"We are all socialists now," is a phrase that applies to Canada as well as to Great Britain. The socialists in this matter also will have the support of the alarmingly large element in Canada's business community which wants public help for all its enterprises, which is afraid of the privately owned elevated systems which built up the huge grain traders of Chicago and Buffalo, which clamors for bounties for carrying on industrial enterprises, and for public aid in the transportation of products to market and for bonuses and subsidies on every hand—Montreal Gazette.

PAINS!

For Society Folk. People of fashion do things sometimes that cause pain in the stomach and aches in the kidneys. Hard work and hard pleasure have pretty nearly the same results. A sour stomach, a bad breath and pains about the heart and head are caused by gases from the stomach. Hutch cures them quickly. You take one when you feel badly. Three at night to move the bowels next morning, then one after each meal, and your trouble will go away. It is nature's own remedy for pain. They are chocolate coated, and contain nothing that is injurious. There is nothing like it in the world. It's a doctor for ten cents. At your druggist.

COULDN'T USE POETRY. Tom—She said I was a poem. Dick—I guess that's why her old man turned you down.

Great Men at Their Ease.

The late Sir Wemyss Reid had many interesting reminiscences of his membership of over a quarter of a century of the Reform Club. There stories of Palmerston still linger. One Sir Wemyss used to tell how, at a time when there was a grave crisis in the fortunes of the Cabinet of which he was the chief, one of the Ministers, dining alone, walked up to him and addressed him with an air of assurance. "Well, Lord Palmerston, what is going to happen with this bill and untrifled countenance the old statesman, looking up, replied: "Up on my word, I don't know. Can you tell me?"

Of Mr. Bright at the Reform Sir Wemyss Reid had many recollections. He was delighted in talk, and was fond of repeating poetry. On one occasion he began to talk to Sir Wemyss about his favorite hymns, and was warned by his subject he repeated some of them. It was a strange subject, perhaps, for a club smoking-room, but it was still stranger to observe that, as he spoke, the wonderful voice of the other men in the room first looked up and began to listen, and then, as though drawn by an irresistible spell, nearer to him, until before long he had them all sitting round him in a circle enjoying that "muscle of the human speech" of which John Bright recited hymns in a club smoking-room.

"There," exclaimed Sir Wemyss on one occasion, "is a picture for an artist if he only knew how to treat it." Mr. W. E. Forster, another of the club members, was fond of a game of whist, and it was while playing one of these at the Reform that he made a remark to Mr. James Fergusson, who has become famous. Forster was Mr. Fergusson's partner, and had inadvertently made one of those blunders which strike the soul of a partner to its depths. Looking across at the novelist, he said to him with that smile which always lighted up his face like the sun on a hill-side, "My dear fellow, if it will relieve your feelings you can call me 'Bucksnot'."

Keep Peace—And Prosper.

(Winnipeg Free Press.) We are six millions of Canadians of whom two and a half millions are Roman Catholics, and the duty before us is to live together in peace, fully and unitedly in this Canada of ours, with every Canadian of us secure in his just rights and with respect for other's conscientious convictions. Only in that way can we make Canada a great and prosperous country. No greater harm can be done by our country than the harm which flourishes and around which we are capable of doing. The present juncture is one which calls in a pre-emptive measure for the best efforts of all sober-minded Canadians to prevent any such harm being done. To Western Canada it is above all important that no incendiary agitation should be allowed to get a start, to paralyze business and check the development of the country. The only way to a real solution of the problem now before the country is the way of a reasonable compromise; and the Free Press hopes and believes that the leaders of the Liberal party in the Parliament of the Dominion, which is the real council of the nation made up of representatives of all the Canadian people, will be equal to the duty of finding out and following a course which will commend itself to the country's sense of justice.

Milner's Successor.

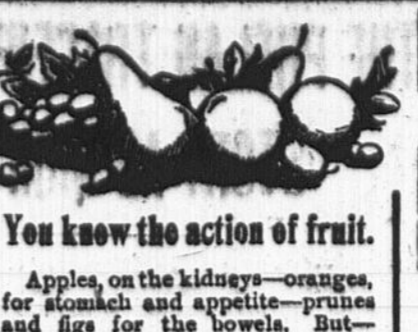

Lord Selborne is one of that group of young men, more or less contented, who were chosen by fortune and trained by the accident of family to embrace the profession of politics as soon as they left the university. Others of the same group, fifteen years ago, were indistinctly connected in men's minds were Lord Curzon and Mr. Wyncham. All have "arrived" and properly so, for they have had a rigorous training for a politician is a sound one, and only needs the stimulus of success to be more extensively followed.

His earliest steps in public life were guided by the Lord Chancellor himself, to whom he acted as Private Secretary, and he went in a similar capacity to assist Mr. Childers at the War Office and subsequently at the Exchequer. During this period he married Lord Salisbury's oldest daughter, "the choice which, if it had been ours to choose for him, we should have most desired," wrote the First Lord Selborne, and he went in a similar capacity as Liberal member for Wiltshire. His most prominent vote in this Parliament was one given in favour of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's amendment to the Address in January, which turned out Lord Salisbury's Government at a somewhat critical time—an operation about whose wisdom the Liberal opinion of the country was not very favourable. At the time of the Home Rule upheaval he was one of those who boldly severed connection with Mr. Gladstone and they in the Liberal Unionist Party, and since then no man has worked harder than he for his cause, or with more progressive success both in Parliament and on the platform.

A Good Look at Saturn.

(Collier's Weekly.) The ability of the eye to see objects in perspective is not extended to very distant things. On the verge of landscape the perspective is lost, because the distance between the eye and the object is so great that the angle subtended by the object is so small that the rays of light from the object to the eye are practically parallel. Much more is there a lack of relief in the sun, although the distance of the latter is 94,000,000 miles greater, and the sun, does not appear to be less than the stars, notwithstanding the fact that it is, in reality, a million times nearer. Thanks, however, to an instrument called the stereocomparator, invented by Dr. Pulfrich, and based upon the stereoscopic principle, it is now possible to see the heavenly bodies in a relief quite as realistic as that which we behold in an ordinary stereoscopic picture. For this purpose a photograph of the celestial motions. Two photographs of the planet Saturn are taken at intervals of a few hours, and are placed in the space of time Saturn will have moved a considerable distance in its orbit and its moon will also have changed its position. The result is the same as that produced by making two photographs of a fixed object from different angles, and when the photographs are placed in the stereocomparator the observer sees the planet no longer apparently glued to the same background that contains the stars, but standing out in full relief, a free globe, with its beautiful rings plainly discernible around it without support or connection of any kind.

Such a view gives one for the first time a correct idea of the immense magnitude and proximity of space. The apparent dome of the sky vanishes like the flimsy of an inclosing bubble suddenly pierced, and is replaced by height and depth below depth tower and yawn around the little floating mote that is still in doubt. Similar views may be obtained of all the planets, of the asteroids, and of comets. A comet, as a rule, is only seen by the sweeping the stars. They are apparently involved in its tail and the ignorant sometimes imagines that they are being cut off by it. But a picture of a comet prepared with the aid of the stereocomparator shows it as really is, detached from the background of the heavens, far to the side of the stars, flying through free space. Great practical importance attaches to this new method of viewing the bodies of space. It affords a criterion by which a new comet may be distinguished from a distant nebula, and a new asteroid from a distant star.

By ANDREW MACPAILL, M.D. LONDON SPECTATOR: "Dr. Macpail is of somewhat temper, but really great things and men he reverences. The book has many attractions and the author has a way of describing the real greatness of the men whom he describes. The criticism on Walt Whitman shows acuteness and sanity, and the appreciation of John Wesley is all that we could wish." HILARIOUS HERALD: "These essays are not only remarkably interesting but distinctly interesting, full of shrewd insight, strewn with sparkling ratiocination, thoroughly informed as well as appreciative. TIME FOR RUSSIA TO PUT OUT A FEELER FOR PEACE

Should Japan's Demands be Unreasonable the Onus of Unpopularity Would Then be Shifted—Indemnity Impossible as Russia Does Not Regard Japan as Holding any Russian Territory.

St. Petersburg, March 20.—While Emperor Nicholas, whose word is final, still declines to abandon the prosecution of the war, and the Government maintains its ability to continue the conflict, the Associated Press is in a position to state that the Emperor's own ministers, are now strongly urging that the time has come to indicate to Japan Russia's desire for peace upon a reasonable basis. Should Japan then attempt to impose too onerous conditions these influences argue that in the view of the universal wish to see the bloody conflict ended, Russia's position will be strengthened abroad by the alienation of sympathy from Japan, and the situation at home improved when the bloody Emperor's pacific proposals have been met with impossible terms.

One of the Emperor's ministers, in a conversation with the Associated Press, said: "We have suffered bitter defeat. We can, however, still continue the war, but both countries have suffered great losses in blood and treasure, and it would only profit the rivals of both were we to fight on until one or the other is exhausted. Russia has a hard task fighting the war against sea, Japan, and a thousand miles from home, and I contend she can make a dignified peace, without glory, but not without honor. As the victor on land and sea, Japan can afford to remember, as Bismarck did at the conclusion of the Austro-Prussian war, that two countries which must live throughout the long future as neighbors, may need each other's friends." Japan may consider the time propitious on account of the situation in European Russia, to try and crush us. Suppose, for the sake of argument, she succeeded in finally forcing a humiliating peace, it could not be more than an armed truce. Russia is too big and powerful to retire permanently from the field. The clouds at home will eventually roll away. With the army and navy reorganized in five, ten or fifteen years there will come inevitably, our revenge. No permanent peace is possible now or later, unless Japan is reasonable."

NO INDEMNITY WITHOUT INVASION.

To the suggestion of the possibility of an alliance between Russia and Japan, the minister said: "A reasonable peace must first be established." "What," was asked, "would be reasonable?" "Broadly speaking, Russia's renunciation of her entire Manchurian policy should satisfy Japan's claims. She could have her protectorate over Korea, such privileges on the Kwantung peninsula and at Port Arthur, as the powers would not oppose, and the Chinese Eastern Railway be placed under international control. Russia maintaining her rights to a railway line through northern Manchuria and Vladivostok." "What would be Russia's attitude on the subject of indemnity?" "Russia never yet has paid indemnity, and history practically affords no precedent for indemnity when territory is not occupied to insure payment, and Japan holds not a foot of Russian territory. Japan could, however, take the proceeds of the sale of the property and rights of the Chinese Eastern Railway, which was built with Russian money." The minister said, further, that "complete details of General Kuropatkin's losses have not yet reached the government, but it is already known that the Japanese ports are greatly exaggerated. The 100,000 tons of guns and many hundred cars were left behind in false, as practically no siege guns or rolling stock fell into the hands of the Japanese. No new general mobilization has been ordered and it may not be necessary. Of the 300,000 reservists, mobilized last fall, 140,000 and the fourth army corps, numbering 40,000, are now beginning to arrive in the Far East. If, therefore, Linvitch's army totals 200,000, he reaches Harbin, (if that is to be the new base), he will have an army of about 400,000 men, without summoning additional reserves. Some regular units, like a division of the Guards, might be sent without further mobilization."

CONCORDAT IN FRANCE IS DOOMED TO GO

Owing to the strained relations between the Government of France and the Roman Catholic Church Archbishop Bruchesi has been asked for his opinion on the conditions now prevailing in the French Republic. He said that he considered the concordat doomed, and its abolition would be welcomed, said His Grace, if the Catholics were left as free as they are in Canada and the United States. But there is a clause in the law which takes over the churches and hands them over to the State. This is to be composed of seven members, but there is nothing in the law that prevents the commission being composed of anti-Catholics. These people may leave the Catholic churches of France to whom they like.

OPPOSE COSTIGAN BILL.

New Brunswick Lumbermen Claim that Dam Proposed in St. John River Would Divert Business to States.

St. John, N.B., March 20.—(Special.)—George S. Cushing, one of the leading lumbermen of New Brunswick, and A. P. Barnhill, solicitor, left Saturday for Ottawa, to represent lumbermen of New Brunswick in a fight against a bill introduced by Hon. John Costigan, which asks permission to build a dam at the Winding Ledges in the St. John river, where it forms the boundary between Maine and New Brunswick. American lumbermen are largely interested in the enterprise promoted by Mr. Costigan, and it is claimed that the bill, if passed, will have the effect of diverting to mills on the American side of the line business that now comes to Fredericton, St. John and other points, besides seriously interfering with operations of the lumbermen below the proposed dam.

She hustled about, with the busy air of a house-wife who understood the whole art of looking after the family. But something puzzled her. "Mr. Pyne," she inquired, "where is your cup?" "I—er—took it down," he explained. For some reason Constance felt instantly that she had turned the tables on him since their last rencontre. She did not know why. He looked confused, for one thing; he was not so glib in speech as another. "Down where?" she demanded. "Not to the kitchen. I have been there since you brought up your breakfast and the dad's on the same tray." "I breakfasted alone," remarked Brand calmly. "Mr. Pyne had feasted earlier."

"He had not," persisted Constance. "I wanted him to—"

Pyne, with the guilty feeling of a detected villain, explained to Constance how the cup might be rescued. "I shall keep a close eye on you in the future," she announced as they went below.

CHAPTER XI.

MRS. VANSITTART'S FEAR.

The tribulations which clustered in bee-like swarms in and around the Gulf Light-house during those weary hours, of insufficiency of food, interior temperatures ranging from the chill draught of the entrance passage to the partial suffocation of rooms with windows closed owing to the incursions of the rising tide—this unpleasant aggregate of physical misery was seriously augmented by an ever-increasing list of sick people, an almost total absence of any medical comforts, and a growing knowledge on the part of those not too despondent to defer their ultimate relief might be deferred for days rather than hours.

No mere man can understand, and a woman of ordinary experience can but dimly imagine, the difficulty and arduousness of the task undertaken by Constance and Enid. To cook and supply food for eighty-one persons with utensils intended for the use of three, to give each separate individual an utterly inadequate portion, so skillfully distributed that none should have cause to grumble at his or her neighbor's better fortune—here were culinary problems at once complex and exhaustive.

By adopting fantastic devices, bringing into service empty jam-pots and hardware-tins, they found it was possible to feed twenty at a time. This meant the preparation of four distinct meals, each requiring an hour's work. Long before the last batch, which included themselves, was lamenting the absurd discrepancy between appetite and antidote in the shape of anything to eat, the first was ravenous again. In the occupants of the two bedrooms the girls encountered a passive fortitude which was admirable. It was an extraordinary scene which met their eyes when they entered either of these stuffy apartments. Many of the rescued ladies had not given a thought to changing the demi-toilette of evening wear on board ship for more serviceable clothing when the hurricane ver-took the vessel. They all, it is true, possessed cloaks or wraps of some sort, but these garments were still sodden with salt water and therefore unwearable, even if the oppressive warmth in each room rendered such a thing possible. Their elegant costumes of muslin, cotton, silk and satin, were utterly ruined. Lucky were the few whose blouses or bodices had not been rent into tatters.

Some of the worst sufferers in this respect were now the best provided. Blankets and sheets had been ruthlessly torn up and roughly stitched into articles of clothing. Mrs. Vansittart, for instance, who first suggested this via media, wore an exquisite Paris gown and a loose dressing-jacket arrangement of yellow blanket, the component parts of which she persuaded two other women to sew together on the model provided by her own elegant figure.

A few quick-witted ones who followed her example exhausted the available stock, and pillow-cases and rugs would have undergone metamorphosis in the same way had not Constance come to the rescue by impounding them, declaring that they must be reserved for the use of those sufferers who needed warmth and rest.

SUPERIOR MERIT

Remarkable Curative Properties of a Remedy for Indigestion and Stomach Weakness.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a preparation for the cure of dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion and stomach trouble, are a great success as a cure for these troubles to the fact that it is prepared for disease and weakness of the stomach and digestive organs only, and is not recommended or advised for any other disease.

It is not a cure-all, but for any stomach trouble it is undoubtedly the safest, most sensible remedy that can be advised with the prospect of a permanent cure. It is prepared in tablet form, pleasant to taste, composed of vegetable and fruit essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal, every one of which act effectively in digesting the food eaten, thereby resting and invigorating the weak stomach; rest is nature's cure for any disease, but you cannot rest the stomach unless you put into it something to digest. It will do its work or assist in the digestion of food. That is exactly what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. One grain of the digestive principle contained in them will digest 2,000 grains of meat, eggs or similar wholesome foods, they will digest the food whether the stomach is in working order or not, thereby nourishing the body and resting the stomach at the same time, and rest and nourishment is nature's cure for any weakness. In persons run down in flesh and appetite, the tablets build up the strength and increase flesh, because they digest flesh-forming food which the weak stomach cannot do, they increase the flow of gastric juice and prevent fermentation, acidity and sour watery risings. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores at 50 cents per package.

Winnipeg.—Three Finlanders who had just returned from the winter lumber camps, were assaulted with clubs by unknown robbers just outside of Fort Frances last night. The two men who held them up are supposed to have escaped over the river to the Minnesota side.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate nurse from the Blockley Training School, at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinician Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes: "I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use."

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with various bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would blot after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had an acute discharge and pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad as a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female ills, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

ness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Experience has proved this.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is free and confidential.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

MISS AUGUSTINE MILLER. A lady residing at 52 Papineau avenue used the remedy here described, and her experience, told in her own words, will quite likely interest all women deeply. She says: "I want to thank you for the good I have received from the use of St. James Wafers. I was honestly in a critical condition. I took this wonderful remedy through a friend's advice, as she had been benefited by it before. For about two years I suffered with dragging backache, and my stomach was so weak I could hardly digest the lightest food. My nerves were completely prostrated and I suffered, at the slightest excitement, from bad headaches. At times I was entirely overcome. After I had taken St. James Wafers for about two weeks, I could sleep peacefully, and had a good appetite for my meals. I am now entirely cured of all my sufferings. I cannot speak half highly enough of St. James Wafers. I earnestly and cheerfully recommend this wonderful remedy to every woman afflicted with weakness. —Miss Augustine Miller, 52 Papineau Avenue."

1905's Showing of Spring Millinery

THE BEST OF ALL!

The unbiased comment of one of this city's leading newspapers on the opening day (last Thursday):—

"To-day in W. H. Scroggie's new Millinery department, spring is present in full attire, radiant flower-crowned. There has never before been such an elaborate display of Millinery made by this house."

A particularly attractive showing of Hats—wide variety of styles, reflecting simplicity as well as dainty elaborateness. A touch of distinction—of exclusiveness about each. 'Tis not our purpose to produce quantities of any one style, but to introduce a note of variation in every model. Flowers in a bewildering range of shades, and all other approved forms of trimming in splendid profusion complete our exceptionally fine and comprehensive showing of Spring 1905 Millinery.

Equally as attractive in effect—equally as complete in range as on the opening days. A satisfactory selection can certainly be made at Scroggie's.

WEATHER—MODERATELY COLD.
