Annual Meeting of the Presbyterian Church at Ormstown Shows Progress That Seems Common In All Churches During Past Year

At the annual meeting of the Ormstown Presbyterian congregation held on Tuesday evening, Jan. 30th in the church, the work of the past year was reviewed.

Increased membership and a satisfactory financial position were reported, also improvement in the attendance at all church services and interest in the different phases of the work of the church. A reduction of $500 on the mortgage was reported. Special thanks were given the Ladies' Aid and the Young People's Societies for their liberal support. Three new elders were added during the year, namely Messrs. George Kilgour, Allan McDougall, James Barrington. All members of the Board of Managers were re-elected with the addition of J. Ross Bryson. Cecil J. Bryson was elected secretary. Rev. E. J. Wyle, the minister conducted the devotional exercises and presided during the meeting.

Press Comments on the Elections

AFRAID TO FACE HOUSE

(Regina Daily Star)

Mr. Mackenzie King must be well aware this unexpected dissolution will lend color to the inevitable charge that he was afraid to face the House.

Opposition parties primed with numerous questions naturally will be angered at being deprived of the opportunity of airing their grievances and asking for information on the points on which their criticism would be founded.

School Fair Committee Finally Retains Regulation

Hinchinbrooke School Fair Committee Reviews Adverse Criticism Over Younger Pupils Competing In Plot Competition

A meeting of the Hinchinbrooke School Fair committee was held on Thursday night at the home of the Sec.-Treas., Mrs. Watson, with Mr. R. J. M. Reid in charge. All members were present with exception of Mr. Stephen Flynn. A letter of thanks for the committee's report to the Red Cross Society, Montreal, was read, and suggested that this letter be sent in turn to each school to be read to the pupils, so they may know how very much their gifts were appreciated by the Red Cross workers.

There has been considerable adverse criticism for the past two years over the younger pupils being allowed to compete in the plot competition, the objection being that they were too young to do the necessary work. It is an understood thing that each child does all the work of his own particular plot, but neither the judges nor committee are in a position to say if this ruling is not being kept. So after debating the question for some time, the committee decided it was inadvisable to make any change in the present system, that of allowing any child of school age the privilege of competing in garden plot competition. Mr. Reid hopes to have the necessary forms sent from Quebec at an early date, and the Secretary will get in touch with each teacher in Hinchinbrooke Schools and allow the children a few days to decide just what seeds they desire to grow. To make the work of judging plots easier, it was also planned to have all plots uniform, corn, zinnias, beans, carrots and beets being the varieties chosen for this part of the work. All children not entering plot competition may have their choice of four vegetables and one flower. It is hoped the parents will co-operate in this good work and allow the children a really good piece of garden ground and as near the house as possible, to make it easier to attend to the necessary weeding. The judges have found in past seasons that when they had to climb several fences and wade through grain fields to reach a garden, the result was not worth the trouble taken, as usually the weeds predominated.

Howick Takes Lead in Provincial High Playdowns

The Ormstown senior team played the first of a two-game total-goals series in Howick on Friday afternoon for the right to advance in the Provincial High School Hockey play-downs. Howick emerged with a 2-2 decision to take a one-goal lead into the second game, to be played in Ormstown this Friday night. Boyd Campbell scored for Ormstown early in the game. Alvin Ness evened up for Howick when his penalty shot dribbled away from V. Cavers in the Ormstown nets. Later, E. Cavers scored for Howick on a solo rush, and before the end of the second period, Howick scored again to go two goals in the lead. Kenny Boyd scored on Boyd Campbell's pass in the last minute rush to reduce the Howick lead to one goal. Three penalties were handed out by referee Mackenzie. Chadder, two to Ormstown, and one to Howick.

The school's junior team played their first game of the season when they met the Howick Juniors in Howick on Saturday. Norman Cullen broke away for Howick in the first period, and beat Donald Hooker in the Ormstown nets to give Howick a lead which they held until five minutes from the end of the game, when Raymond Meikle's pass-out in front of the Howick nets was deflected to the net off a defenceman's stick. Overtime failed to break the deadlock.

Ormstown: Goals, Donald Hooker; defence, Roland Glen, Erskine McCintock; forwards, Gordon Elliott, Centre: Melvin and Morris Winter. Subs: John Taylor, Raymond Meikle, Jim Williams, Merwin Stalker, Stuart Duncan, Douglas Elliott, Moffat.

Howick: Goal, N. Cullen; defence, E. Cavers, Baskin, centre, Ness; wing, Orr; wing, McRae, Subs, Logan, Steele, E. Orr, C. Orr, Baskin.

The Inter-House Hockey League began its scheduled games on Friday, January 19th. Since that time, three games have been played. Ellice House defeated Durham House by a 4-0 score, then succumbed the following week to Salaberry House by a 3-2 score. Salaberry then defeated Durham 2-0 the following to take undisputed possession of first place with two wins and no losses. The Girls' and Juniors' House games have as yet not been played.

Celebrate Anniversary

Neighbours, friends and relatives numbering about 250, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sherry, River Road, Howick, on Friday evening to celebrate with them the twentieth anniversary of their wedding.

When the guests had assembled Mr. Edward Bannion offered a few words of congratulations and then called upon Mr. Ward McLean, a lifelong neighbour, who, in a very capable manner, delivered the following address:

"We, your neighbours, friends and relatives, have gathered here this evening to honour you for more reasons than one. You have lived in our midst for many years, your childhood homes were here and it is not strange that we come to you with so kindred a feeling of love and esteem. Courtship's happy days blossomed into happy fruitful wedlock, a happy joyous union, and likeable children.

"Tonight marks a milestone in your happily married life and we could not let the occasion pass without showing some mark of our esteem and love. I take this opportunity to present to you Mr. and Mrs. Sherry, on behalf of the gathering, this china dinner and tea set and also this studio couch. We ask you to accept these gifts as a testimonial of our friendship and love. We hope that you will be spared to spend many more happily wedded days in our midst."

Mr. and Mrs. Sherry responded very fittingly, thanking their friends and relatives for their kind thoughts on this occasion. Lunch was served to the guests later followed by dancing.

Annual Service For British and Foreign Bible Society Held at St. John's Anglican Church on Sunday—More Contributions This Year

On Sunday night the annual service for the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in St. John's Anglican Church, the representative, Mr. Adams, being the special speaker. Rev. W. S. Hatcher conducted the service, assisted by Rev. J. H. Miller, D.D., and Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D. At the conclusion of the service, a business meeting was held in the lecture room of the church when the local president, Dr. H. R. Clouston, took the chair. Mr. J. A. Hunter, Secy.-Treas., read the minutes of the last meeting which was held in St. Andrew's Church, Feb. 4th, 1939. Contributions last year amounted to $95.01. The treasurer's report for the present year showed an advance in giving and receipts came to $129.98. A special appeal is being made in order to provide our soldiers with testaments. Every man going overseas receives a testament with this special message from the King printed in it: "To all serving in any force by sea, or land or in the air, and indeed, to all my people engaged in the defence of the Realm, I commend the reading of this book. For centuries the Bible has been the source of strength and strengthening influence in our national life, and it behooves us in these momentous days to turn with renewed faith to this Divine source of comfort and inspiration."

NUMBER OF TELEPHONES ON INCREASE

A net increase of 25 was recorded in the number of telephones in Huntingdon during 1939, according to E. M. Armstrong, manager of The Bell Telephone Company of Canada. On December 31, last, there were 977 telephones in service here as compared with 952 on December 31, 1938. If, as some authorities contend, the number of telephones in a community is an excellent barometer of general business, it would seem that Huntingdon is continuing to progress economically.

Anyone wishing to send a contribution, large or small, to this special fund, may do so through the churches, president or secy.-treas. The members of the executive were re-elected. A vote of thanks was given to the canvassers, who had done such excellent work.

BANQUET FOR AYRSHIRE MEN

Local Ayrshire breeders and their friends are cordially invited to attend the annual meeting and banquet of the Quebec Ayrshire Breeders' Club, on Thursday, February 15th, at the Queen's Hotel, in Montreal.

A feature of this event will be an illustrated lecture by Mr. C. T. Conklin, Secretary of the National Ayrshire Breeders' Association of the United States, in which lantern slides of some of the most famous Ayrshires of Canada, Scotland and the United States will be displayed. The lecture will include a review of the history and characteristics of the Ayrshire breed, as well as a discussion of the most prominent family bloodlines. Champions of leading shows, heavy producing cows and record breaking herds, as well as other features of interest, will be included in the address. Mr. Louis-Philippe Roy, deputy-minister of Agriculture for the province of Quebec will be one of the featured speakers. The business meeting is called for 10:00 a.m. and the banquet will be held at 1:00 p.m.

The Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada reports that T. B. As a five year old on three times a day milking she produced 20,103 lb. milk containing 82.16 fat with an average test of 4.39 percent butterfat.

ALL QUIET ALONG LOCAL POLITICAL FRONTS SO FAR

All seems quiet along the political fronts so far. Although there is some speculation as to who the Conservative candidate from this district will be in the Federal election there is nothing very definite about the choice. From present reports the name of no other Liberal candidate is heard than that of Donald Black, the present Member in the Dominion House. It will be another two weeks before there will likely be any political action in this district.

Jas. Durnin Elected Pres. H'don Co-Op.

Local Farmers' Society Was Unable to Reduce The Government Loan During Past Year—Other Directors Re-elected by Acclamation

The Huntingdon County Farmers' Co-Operative Society held their annual meeting in the Huntingdon County Building last Tuesday afternoon, at which time the financial report was presented. Election of officers also took place that day.

Following is the result of the election: James Durnin, president; John R. Walsh, vice-president; A. D. Godin, secretary-treasurer. The directors include: Joseph Carriand, Edson Hunter and W. J. Graham, who were all re-elected by acclamation.

A vote of thanks was passed by the gathering thanking N. April and J. L. Pelletier for their help through the past year and their presence at the annual meeting. The financial report showed that there was a good increase in milk and butterfat. In 1939 the local Co-Operative received 4,945,078 lbs. of milk compared with 4,592,475 lbs. in 1938. Butterfat manufactured at the local concern in 1939 was 161,919 lbs., an increase of 10,717 lbs. over 1938.

The report also showed that the directors of this agricultural firm have been unable to reduce the Government loan during 1939 due to the low price of butter and wishing to keep the payments to patrons as high as possible. In spite of these factors the directors decided that they would not increase the making charge, although, as the statement showed, the cost of supplies and fuel had considerably increased throughout the past year and butter during the year had a decided effect on the year's balance.

Fire Averted In Garage At Athelstan

Quick Response to Alarm Prevents Fire From Spreading

Had not quick response come when the alarm of fire was given, the garage owned and operated by Bert Shearer, Athelstan, would likely have been destroyed. At noon on Friday heavy smoke was seen coming from the garage and on investigation a pile of rubbish was found to be smouldering. Some damage was done to the beams and work bench, but many hands helped to put out the fire, which certainly had made considerable headway. Bert had left the garage shortly before, having gone home for dinner and he noticed nothing amiss at the time, and is deeply indebted to all who so ably assisted in putting out the fire.

MIGHT LOCATE RELATIVES HERE

A reprint in the Gazette of Montreal of an article which appeared in the Huntingdon Gleaner might be the means of uniting after long years of separation the Canadian relatives of an old Scottish family to their ancestral Scottish folks. John A. Stevenson, Canadian correspondent of the London, England, Times read the article in the Gazette which told of the Gebbie family of Howick observing in January of this year 100 years of service in the operation of the Howick Post Office by the same family. Because of information contained in the article which gave every indication that the family were the long-sought-for relatives, Mr. Stevenson, in conversation at Ottawa with Mr. R. Watson, Secy.-Treas., Comptroller of Treasury, and formerly of Huntingdon, stated, "They are unquestionably the Canadian relatives, my mother told me I had in Canada."

Addresses on Dairy Industry in Canada Heard at Meeting at Winnipeg

WAR INFLUENCE

The importance of the dairy industry in Canada was impressed upon the 55th annual meeting of the Manitoba Dairy Association at Winnipeg on Thursday in the address of Allan C. Fraser, secy. of N.D.C.

"Agriculture is a big business. It is a billion dollar business—approximately—a billion dollars a year in all its branches. The dairy industry, representing one quarter of this is in itself a huge industry. We, as dairymen, spend two to three million dollars a year in advertising our products, and telling the public that we are offering them the most nearly perfect food they can obtain—and it is a fact. We tell them that by using our products their children will have better bodies, better teeth, rosy cheeks, and have a better chance of life; that the flapper will cease to be and her place will be taken by an honest to goodness girl, good to look upon and they shall be beautiful and a joy for ever—and it is true. We tell the expectant mother that she is not doing her full duty to her prospective offspring if she does not drink milk—and this is true—and we tell dear old Mother and Dad that they will have fewer digestive disorders and sleep better if they use milk, and this is true. Adding all this up we again tell these modern Mothers and Dads that they should give us from one quarter to one third of what they spend for food and they shall be well served. We spend, as I have said, two to three million dollars a year doing all this, and we spend several more millions a year in careful processing and in very efficient service. When all this is done and when we add up finally, we say to ourselves, 'We have done a fine job of selling dairy products and we have given to the public everything in the way of service that they could ask for, and still there is no cheering for us, we are still regarded as just a bunch of fellows who keep and milk a lot of stupid cows, peddle milk and are perpetually complaining about our prices.' Few people know that we are the big industry we are; that in the national economy we are second only to the Mint, and we have those fellows beaten because we produce every day of the year and in every part of Canada, and much as we would like to, we cannot close down on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays."

Address of Mr. G. McMillan

"It is not to me an encouraging one, it is doubtful if even the stress of war will improve it," stated Mr. Gilbert McMillan, President of the National Dairy Council of Canada, before the meeting. "In taking the stand it has done on the competition of Vegetable Oils, the National Dairy Council has been called an alarmist, by some Dairy organizations, but we venture to suggest that when you see the people of Britain being rationed to 4 ounces of butter per week and the balance of their fats to be supplied from vegetable sources, these organizations who say admit our farm is well founded, I may say, may be wrong in this, but it is possible that considering our cost of production, we may have to be prepared to drop out of the export market for butter for the time being, and endeavor to adjust our production as closely as possible to our domestic demands."

Highway to Pass Through Hemmingford

Delegation Headed by J. W. Ross, M.L.A. And R. Fortin, M.L.A., Received by Hon. T. D. Bouchard—Considers Site

The main object of the new highway to be built between Montreal and New York State will be to facilitate travel between New York City and Montreal by making easy access to the Mercier and Jacques Cartier bridges. Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Minister of Roads and Public Works, said on Monday at the Government offices in Montreal. Though the site of the road has not yet been chosen, Mr. Bouchard made it clear that the work was in a straight line from one point to the other, taking into consideration the question of cost. It will be started this spring, if funds are available, he added.

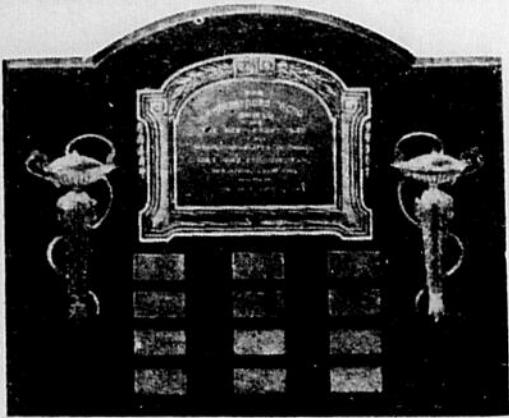

Mr. Bouchard received a delegation from the Eastern Townships and nearby counties, headed by James W. Ross, M.L.A. for Huntingdon; C. A. Kirkland, M.L.A. for Jacques Cartier; Alexis Bouthillier, M.L.A. for St. Johns; and J. Romeo Fortin, M.L.A. for Chateauguay, interested in the same project. The delegates, through their spokesmen, asked that the Government consider the advantages of a straight road from Montreal to Moers, N.Y., instead of a longer one that would go to Champlain, N.Y., through St. Johns.

Election Campaign Opens

TONIGHT Canada's general election campaign will get under way with Prime Minister Mackenzie King speaking over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. On Thursday at Brockville the Conservative leader, Dr. Manion, will speak.

From where we are standing we can not help but see some rather caustic comments forthcoming from the political leaders. As we have stated before, however, it is our hope that the election campaign does not descend to personalities nor to fighting for the political party alone. Canada will need as strong a government as possible to prosecute the war effort and this must never be lost sight of in the heat of political battle.

Of the various articles we have read advising electors how to vote we have noticed no finer than one which appeared in the Ottawa Farm Journal as follows:

- The elector must ask himself the following:
1. Whether the present Government, having regard to what it has done thus far in the war, or having regard to what it has failed to do, or done well, or indifferently, or badly, is the sort of Government that should be left in office to go on with the war?
 2. Whether Dr. Manion, having regard to the criticisms he offers and the measures he promises (including Ministers in his Cabinet regardless of policies) would be likely to wage war more resolutely and effectively than Mr. King has waged it?
 3. Whether, if the present Government is put out and another substituted, Canada's war effort would be carried on adequately and without halt by the heads of the permanent Civil Service during the period when the new set of Ministers were posting themselves on what had been done by their predecessors, deciding on further or different measures, and finding out whether those further measures were practicable?

Anti-British Magazines

SOME time ago the "Canadian Statesman" of Bowmanville condemned something we always felt existed, namely that the Liberty Magazine carried a two-faced policy, its American edition was anti-British while its Canadian edition was, of course, pro-British. In other words a general policy was not adhered to but rather one that would bring in the most dollars.

An American Journal, "Editor and Publisher", of New York City, had the following to say of the Statesman's editorial:

"A Canadian editor writes indignantly about the policy of a magazine with a large circulation on both sides of the border. In the United States, he claims, its policy is strongly anti-war and anti-British, while the edition that circulates in Canada is violently patriotic, urging citizens of the Dominion to give their all for the Empire. We can't blame them, as a genuinely patriotic Canadian, for resenting this play for Canadian readers and dollars as hypocritical, insincere, and essentially dishonest. We can assure him that, if his complaint is soundly based, he can let nature take its course."

It is surprising to us the number of American publications that are anti-British. On the whole we believe the United States is definitely behind Great Britain but why a certain type of American magazine should be constantly de-rating the British is difficult to understand. One can easily see the anti-British sentiment in such magazines as LOOK, LIFE, SATURDAY EVENING POST. Some time in October "Look" was banned for their definitely anti-British articles. The first time they were allowed back in Canada since that time was two weeks ago. And the swing back to pro-British in that issue was most noticeable. Could it be that this magazine also lifts its anti-British articles and pictures from its American edition and substitutes that which would be more likely to appeal to the Canadian people. It might be something for the censorship board to give more attention to.

Life in the Small Town

WHAT do you people do living in a small town? How do you ever put in time? You've heard that one from a city friend. We heard it once again the other day. So we sat down to analyze the situation.

First of all we realize that to be a stranger in a large city is just about as lonesome a situation as there is; you might just about as well be alone on the desert. Even after you do get acquainted the average individual finds it beyond his or her financial means to join the necessary clubs or "go places" that make for having a good time in the city. Then again, there's such a high-pressure "go, go, go" in the city that many are too tired to go out at night but find it necessary to rest in keeping with the daily struggle of the survival of the fittest. No, we are inclined to think that many people are just kidding themselves about enjoying busy city life. There are so many who are in various ways just existing rather than really LIVING.

One need not be, but then one can be quite busy in a small town, regardless of what the city dweller might think to the contrary. We talked with a number of citizens in town recently to find out just what they did after their normal working hours. And we learned that most of them were quite busy most of the nights of the week and some of them every night of the week.

What is there to do in a small town? What activities are there to make life busy and happy? Let's look over a partial list of them. In Huntingdon there are some dozen organized bridge clubs. In addition to these, many bridge or other card parties are held by friends or relatives. A card party can take up at least one night a week and in some cases more than this. Huntingdon has an unusually fine curling rink with fine club rooms where many a thoroughly enjoyable time can be had either during the day or night. Many of the curlers find time to go away to other centres to play in bonspiels and we venture to say that, on the average, they go away more than do the city curlers. In the city, generally speaking, the curlers either hold such pressing executive positions that they can not find the time to get away from business or else they are employed by a firm from which they hesitate to ask for the time off to go away for a few days to curl. In the city an annual fee of $50 and expensive extras attached make the sport prohibitive to many who would like to join, whereas if they lived in a town they would pay, as in Huntingdon, the sum of $5 for the first season while in the third season and thereon the sum of $10.

There's your fraternal orders which can demand your attention in a town at least one night a month, and in some cases many more. Amongst these are the Masonic Order, the Knights of Columbus, the Oddfellows.

Your church organizations are responsible for many nights. There are many women's organizations such as the Women's Missionary Society, the Women's Auxiliary, the Ladies of St. Anne, the Children of Mary, etc. Every church has its young people's society and then there are the Trail Rangers, the Boy Scouts, the Y Society, which is a non-denominational group, and a host of others which take up many nights.

There's your skating rink open three or four nights a week for skating. And in this connection we might point out that on Wednesday night a skating party for old timers was held, a luxury which does not seem to be indulged in on the same scale in the cities.

For those interested in singing there's the Huntingdon Choral Society practising two nights a week at present in preparation for the Quebec Musical Festival competition. Church choirs have practised once a week.

The Huntingdon Badminton Club is open every night of the week for its members and friends.

Not only are there the latest in picture shows at the local theatre every night but two each week, but there are also shows to be seen at Malone, Chateaugay or at Valleyfield. Then, Montreal is but forty-eight miles distant should one care to drop in to see an opera or musical comedy. Throughout the countryside there are amateur plays put on surprisingly well by home-brewed talent.

In Huntingdon there is plenty of hockey. Much fun is created by a Town League which operates two nights a week. One night a week here the local entry in the Valleyfield City and District League performs. Only eighteen miles away is Valleyfield where the stars of the Provincial League display their wares several times a week. A few miles away inexpensive skiing can be enjoyed.

The Log Lodge and the Huntingdon Chateau provide places where the young people can dine and dance nightly if they desire.

There are numerous town council meetings, committee meetings, School Commission meetings and such like to take up many a man's evenings.

In the summer time the small town really has its big innings. Just to be there rather than in the warm, stifling city is enough in itself. But in addition to this there are all the joys or readily accessible swimming and picnicking grounds. There are plenty of softball games to attend with town league or district league. There are good tennis courts and a fine bowling green.

A glance over the coming events in the Huntingdon Gleaner each week gives one a good idea of the numerous things that are taking place.

Yet one hears, "What do you people do living in a small town?" There's plenty to do in a small town if one wants to do it and if a city resident became actively interested in the many forms of activities that are at his or her disposal we'll wager that it would keep them so busy that there would be no time whatever left to even think about what a tough break life has handed them, or something. "What do you people do living in a small town?" Next time you hear that kind of supercilious talk open up with both barrels and convince the city speaker they're just kidding themselves but not others. Although we have had Huntingdon in mind when writing the answer to this question all the other towns are alike.

Canada's Many Crops

IN the first world war Canada was a house with one main prop — wheat. It was a sound prop and it strongly supported the Empire as well as the Dominion. We are fortunate to have that wheat prop today, but in a quarter century we have also developed other supports for our economy. As an indication of the increase in our manufacturing, more than half the population is now urban, according to the 1939 report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. We are known the world over for the progress of our mining. This year we are producing eight and a half million barrels of oil.

Canada is no longer a house with only one prop. It is a house supported by many industries. All of them may be fully needed before this war is over. It is part of our job on behalf of civilization to keep them all strong.

FIDO GETS JOB; KEEPS IT

Fido, a big black Belgian police dog, has earned his spurs as a bartender's assistant. He works in the tavern operated by his master, Ernest Thierstein, New Glarus, Wis. The barman's regular helper left him four years ago. One night while cleaning up his little tavern he was surprised to notice that the big dog was helping him gather the bottles. Since then Fido has been his full-fledged aid. When Fido spots an empty bottle he puts one paw on the table, twists his head and lifts down the bottle with his teeth. Then he goes behind the bar and deposits the bottle into a case on the floor.

WOMAN NAMED POLICE CHIEF

For the next year Mrs. Wilbur Clark, 33-year-old housewife, of Warren, N.H., will have two jobs on her hands—caring for her husband and four children and preserving law and order in the community of Warren. Mrs. Clark has been elected police chief of the community of 600 persons, and she is the only woman police chief in New England. Mrs. Clark has been nominated by friends "in fun" for years, but this year the nomination became a serious matter. She was elected in preference to the other candidate, a man. She took office immediately and issued this statement: "I am greatly interested in police affairs and desire very much to maintain law and order in our little community. I'm dead-set against the illegal selling of liquor, and I don't believe in gambling. My husband says I'm old-fashioned, but maybe that's why the people elected me. Anyway, I'm going to do the job properly." The new chief is certain that she'll be able to handle the law-and-order situation along with her regular household duties. Although Chief Clark is only five feet, eight inches, she doesn't expect to have any trouble in making arrests when that becomes necessary. Mrs. Clark's husband is in the trucking business in Warren.

JUST MISUNDERSTOOD

"Understanding alone can destroy Hitler and all he stands for," said a well-known lecturer on psychology at Liverpool, Eng. "He is playing with this knowledge of psychology and the resources of mass suggestion—playing with the weaknesses and fears of human nature. He is not a new type but he is the first of the old type to make use of the gigantic power which the progress of science has given him, through his cunning knowledge of the way to distort minds by mass suggestion. Once you understand him, all fear goes."

SPEAKING OF GERMS

When it comes to germs in both numbers and variety, the mouth of a human being outdoes the mouths of most animals. Tests of saliva made by the departments of dentistry at the University of Pennsylvania proved this conclusively. Saliva from the mouths of human beings was compared with that of two horses, twenty-eight pigs, fifty dogs, eight cats, a rat and numerous animals from Philadelphia's zoo, including a hippopotamus, lions, monkeys, elephants and rhinoceros. The bacterial count in all human mouths exceeded that in the mouths of all animals tested. Nearest approach to the human mouth was found in the saliva of an old baboon who had bad teeth. What an argument for the broadcasters for disinfecting mouth washes.

WAR'S ODDEST EVACUEES

Winston Churchill has the most curious billet of the war—10,000 fish evacuees. At his home, Chartwell, Westerham, Kent, he already has 40,000 fish of his own. To these are to be added the pets of fish expert Stanley Slater. Fish breeding is Winston's hobby. He has seven lakes and ponds full of all kinds of fish, and he feeds them and tends them himself—and knows quite a number of them by name. He may be seen wading about in the lakes for hours on end. And none of his fish are ever caught!

REFUGEES DIGGING TRENCHES IN ENGLAND

German men and women, all "non-Aryan" Christians, are busy digging trenches in the grounds of a south coast rectory so that crippled women evacuated from Hoxton, London, will have a shelter in the event of an air raid. A number of political refugees from Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia living in Manchester district have sent a letter to the lord mayor offering themselves for defence, A.R.P. and national service work. Fifty-four Basque children—refugees in a Welsh town since early in the Spanish civil war—are supervising the filling of the town's sandbags and giving the benefit of the experience they gained in their own country.

SHOT AT WRONG TARGET

That it pays to know what one is shooting at even in target practice was proved again last week near Cohoes, N.Y., where five youths, aged 14 to 18, were blown to bits by the explosion of a dynamite magazine. The boys, out hunting, apparently used as a target a steel-covered magazine of 200 pounds of dynamite left by a contractor who is deepening and widening the New York state barge canal at this point. The explosion shook houses within a radius of 20 miles and left a crater four feet deep and 30 feet wide.

WEED SEEDS VITALITY

As the result of practical tests on the vitality of weeds carried out at the Dominion Experimental Substation at Regina, Sask., wild mustard seeds buried for five years showed a considerable proportion of live seeds, in some lots the percentage being as high as for seed kept in dry storage. Stinkweed after three years in the ground has a fair proportion of germinable seeds but after being five years in the ground very few were left alive. Russian thistle showed only a very small proportion of germinable seeds after one year in the ground and after two years no live seeds were found. The germination percentage of wild oats after two years in the ground was small and was nil at five years.

POLITICAL PARTIES PREPARE FOR FRAY

Not Much Real Political Action Expected For Another Two Weeks—Prime Minister and Cabinet Not to Make Extensive Speaking Tours

Party headquarters are donning their armor and marshalling their forces for the war of ballots on March 26th. Since the abrupt dissolution of parliament to give way to a new election to be held within the minimum statutory period, the political events of interest have been the explanations from the Prime Minister of his action, a manifesto issued by the C.C.F. party condemning Mr. King's action as arbitrary and the "negation of democracy", having prevented discussion in parliament of the government's conduct of the war, and criticism from Dr. Manion, the Conservative leader of the government's "unfair and impulsive" dissolution of parliament. In addition, Dr. Manion has leveled bitter attacks on the Minister of National Defence, Mr. Rogers, a point of sharp criticism being the alleged lack of proper clothing for British Columbia units of the overseas force. Answering the charge Mr. Rogers referred to reports of Ordnance officers that all members of the British Columbia unit had woolen underwear, battle dress and army coats. General attacks on himself and his department, the Minister said, would be answered during the campaign.

The Prime Minister and most of his cabinet will not make extensive speaking tours during the election campaign. They will remain at their posts in Ottawa directing Canada's war activities; they will present their case to the people in the main by radio and through newspapers. Mr. King explained recently he was sorry he had to forego the "pleasantest part of election campaigns", the personal contacts with the electors. Since the war started, he said, he had not had a single day's relief from work. He proposed to maintain that program so long as necessary, but there is a limit to one's endurance. On his part, the National Conservative leader, Dr. Manion has proclaimed and explained a promise, in case his party is elected, to form a National Government. His idea, he said, is that at this time of world crisis and national danger, the people do not want "petty bickerings of party continuously sounding in their ears. They do want, when this election is over, a government of the best men

BUSINESS OUTLOOK GOOD (The Financial Post)

With the opening of February business interest turns to the outlook for spring, which is generally regarded as favorable. January trade was better than usual. Public purchasing power was stronger and weather conditions satisfactory. Accordingly the volume of sales was much higher than a year ago. Present indications point to a continuation of the upward trend. The index of employment in Canada, at the beginning of January, was 7½% above last year and the highest for any January on record, in spite of a seasonal decline from the beginning of December. Current unofficial reports indicate that since the turn of the year industry continues to absorb an increasing number. Unskilled and clerical workers, however, are not in as great demand as other classes. This, of course, means an increase in the number of buyers, which, combined with the fact that many people are feeling greater security as regards their jobs, has speeded the movement of goods.

LET'S LAUGH

A traveller in a Pullman in doubt about the amount of the tip he should give the Negro attendant, said to him: "What is the average tip that you get?" "Two dollars, sah." The traveller gave him two dollars, whereupon the Negro clasped his hands delightedly. "What's the idea?" asked the traveller. "Well, sah," said the Negro, "you is the first man dat ever came up to the average."

A schoolteacher relates that he was informed by a pupil recently that the phrase "Biblical times" was a reference to an early Jewish newspaper!

A spinster living in a London suburb was shocked at the language used by two men repairing telephone wires close to her home. She wrote to the company on the matter, and the foreman was asked to report. This he did in the following way: "Me and Bill Fairweather were on this job. I was up the telephone pole and accidentally let the hot lead fall on Bill. It went down his neck. Then he said: "You really must be more careful, Harry!"

Little Ted was saying his go-to-bed prayers in a very low voice. "I can't hear you, dear," his mother whispered. "Wasn't talking to you," the small one answered firmly.

Daddy: Well, Dicky, did you know it was my birthday tomorrow? Dicky: No, but I suspected it. I saw Ma going into de 5 and 10 fer a present fer somebody.

City Girl: Don't you dress in a particular way when you prepare your pigs for winter? Farmer: No; I dress the pigs.

C.G.: Oh! Farmer: But I always wear a smoking-jacket when I cure the meat.

BOILED HAM

Scrub the ham thoroughly, using a solution of water to which soda has been added in the proportion of 1/2 teaspoon soda to 1 quart of water. Now completely cover the ham with cold water and set it aside to soak for from 8 to 12 hours, or overnight.

Next morning, or when the cured meat has soaked the required length of time, drain off the water in which it was soaked, and cover it with fresh cold water. Bring this water slowly to a boil and then partially cover the pot and simmer gently, allowing 30 minutes per pound of ham. If the ham is known to be extremely salty, you can bring the water to a boil, drain this off, and cover again with cold water and bring again to the boil, and drain, and then leave the third water on the ham and cook it for the required length of time in this water.

The flavor of the ham is improved and it is made a little more tender if you add two or three bay leaves, a carrot, an onion, and one-half cup of vinegar to the water in which you are cooking the ham.

When the ham has cooked the required length of time, remove the pot from the stove and allow the ham to cool in the water. Now drain it off and cut off the rind. The fat may be scored and about 1 cup or more of brown sugar rubbed into it, and the whole surface of the fat may be stuck with whole cloves. The ham is then placed flat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan and baked in a hot oven for from 15 to 30 minutes, or until the brown sugar forms a glaze that is nicely browned. If you wish to serve the ham warm, do not cut it for half an hour after the glaze has been baked—keep it hot in a warm oven with the oven door left slightly ajar.

HAM CROQUETTES

2 cups cooked ground ham
1 teaspoonful minced onion
2 tablespoons chili sauce or tomato catsup
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon paprika

Method: Have the ham finely ground and combine with the onion, and chili sauce or catsup. Make a sauce by melting the butter and stirring in the flour and gradually adding the milk. Cook this, stirring constantly until the mixture is thick. Add the seasonings and then mix in the ham mixture. Set this aside to chill until firm.

Now shape the mixture into round cakes and roll in finely sifted bread crumbs, then into an egg mixture made by beating together slightly 1 egg and 1 tablespoon water. Again dip in bread crumbs and fry in hot fat, which has been heated to the place where it will nicely brown a cube of day-old bread in 30 seconds. Fry the croquettes until they are delicately browned and drain on unglazed paper and serve hot, with vegetables.

Ham timbales are easily made, and they are not fried but baked in custard cups.

HAM TIMBALES

1/2 cup milk, scalded
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon fat or lard
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
or other meat sauce
1 1/2 cup ground or minced cooked ham

Dash of paprika

Method: Stir milk gradually into beaten eggs, add fat, bread crumbs, Worcestershire sauce, ham and paprika. Turn into well-buttered custard cups or timbale molds. Place in a shallow pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes, or until a silver knife, when inserted, comes out clean. Unmold on hot buttered toast triangles and serve with buttered canned peas and broiled tomatoes or mushroom caps. When tomatoes or mushroom caps are not available, this dish is attractive enough without either of them. This amount will serve 6 individuals.

Ethics of Etiquette

WHAT IS POLITENESS?

One of the first rules of courteous observance is to be polite. Many of us cherish a mistaken notion as to what politeness really is.

John Wolcott Phelps says: "The essence of politeness consists of so conducting ourselves, in word and manner, that others may be pleased both with us and with themselves." That is an ideal definition. It sums up perfectly the real meaning of politeness.

If a singer asks you about his voice and you tell him that you found it raspy and harsh, that is unkind and inconsiderate. If you tell him that you regard it as a clear and beautiful voice, that is insincere and untruthful. But if you tell him that you liked the nice, quiet way in which he finished, or the clear way in which he expressed his words, that is polite.

If a door is open and there is a draft that annoys you, and you close the door simply a selfish and commonplace act. But if you are not even conscious of the draft and you rise to close the door because you notice that it is disturbing someone else in the room, that is politeness and fine consideration.

Politeness is actuated by a spirit of service and fellowship. The well-bred man is polite instinctively, and with no thought of impressing others. He is as polite in the street car, at business, or in his home as he is at the most formal and ceremonious function.

Dahlia's Whatnots

This man is freed from servile bands
Of hope to rise, or fear to fall.
That man who, citizen of a democracy, stoops to buy or sell a vote, is like the man that, for the sake of a few hundred dollars, sells from the hill on which his dwelling is securely planted a plot of ground for a gravel-pit so close to his home that the spring freshet undermines its foundations and it tumbles about his ears. He may not realize the evil of his action, because he knows it is commonly done, and he may harbour no worse sentiments than does the mischievous urchin trying to outwit his playfellows. But, in effect, he is a traitor to the cause of human freedom, and to all who, going before him, have blazed a trail to the enjoyment of democratic institutions. They have often sacrificed liberty and even life in a struggle for those ideal constitutional rights of which the secret ballot is the earnest and token and which he sordidly barter away. It seems incredible that in such a time as this, with Hun and Red at the gates of civilization, men who betray their own highest interests should be so plentiful. But how could it be otherwise since the Government, having entered the field of politics, has permitted for bribery, proceeds to send out its organizers to tempt voters to break those very laws? If you say that your party or your candidate did not do these self-contradictory things, and that you are a Canadian government, of by, and for Canadians have done them both. A few months ago I heard it both affirmed that $25 was the price of a select-upward trend, and that there were still a few who have not bowed the knee to Baal—or, in this instance, Mammon. You don't believe it? Ladies and Gentlemen, meet the Municipal Council of Tweed, Eastings, Co., Ont. Tweed, a town of 12000 inhabitants, was offered a new Post Office the other day, but sent word to Ottawa that it could do with the old one, in view of the country's debts and war effort. And so, thought the age of miracles was past.

Quid, are war-time elections good or bad? Answer, Yes, good or bad—depending on the man, time, and place. There was Mr. Duplessis last fall thinking that others were pleased both with us and with themselves. There was Mr. King last fall thinking they were radically wrong, but now he thinks they are the life of the party. There was Mr. Hepburn so unconditionally opposed to them that he did his best to do away with even municipal elections in his province "for the duration." If a singer asks you about his voice and you tell him that you found it raspy and harsh, that is unkind and inconsiderate. If you tell him that you regard it as a clear and beautiful voice, that is insincere and untruthful. But if you tell him that you liked the nice, quiet way in which he finished, or the clear way in which he expressed his words, that is polite.

If a door is open and there is a draft that annoys you, and you close the door simply a selfish and commonplace act. But if you are not even conscious of the draft and you rise to close the door because you notice that it is disturbing someone else in the room, that is politeness and fine consideration.

Dundee

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nora, also Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Nora spent Saturday evening with friends in Massena, N.Y., where they were guests at a birthday party.

The last few weeks the United Church congregation have been hearing several students from this year's graduating class of the United Church Theological College, Montreal. The students are filling the pulpit as possible candidates for the Dundee charge. The names of those who have been up to Dundee thus far are, in order, Messrs. Baugh, Lindley, Barbour, Rudd. Two more student candidates will be heard in the coming weeks.

Up to date the snow removal problem has not been much of a worry to either the local town officials or Mr. Oliver Derosier, who has a contract with the Dundee Council for the removal of snow from the local roads with his truck snow plow. However, spring is not here yet and with Mr. Groundhog or Mr. Bear setting such a fine view of their shadow as they did on Candlemas Day perhaps spring may still be a long way around the proverbial corner yet.

Major Crooks who resides at Cedar Point on the St. Lawrence is at present on a South American cruise. The trip lasts thirty days. The Major's Secretary, Miss Marion MacMillan, accompanied him.

The Dundee Social Club, dancing on Tuesday night in the Firemen's Hall, reached the halfway mark of its schedule last Tuesday night. The winners in the first half were the Methodists. The boys from Dundee have three teams entered in the League this year. The Tigers, Canadians and straight Dundee all placed well up in the League standing thus far. The game has caught on so well that a ladies' Dart Ball League was formed this year. The local ladies entered a team and did themselves proud by leading the League at the half-way mark. It is expected a banquet will be held at the close of the schedule for all the League players and supporters. The game seems to have gone over with a bang this year as the League has 12 men's teams and several team entrants by the ladies.

Mrs. A. P. O'Reilly of Dundee Lines is spending the week with her sister in Kingston, Ont.

Mrs. A. F. Coyle, Mrs. Francis Tallon and Mrs. L. J. McCaffrey attended the funeral of Mrs. Agnes Walsh in Molra, N.Y. on Saturday.

With the coming Federal election date only a few weeks away interest in the issues is being discussed quite freely. A. H. Fraser has been appointed enumerator for the local poll and will be making the rounds this week preparatory to making the Federal Parliamentary Voters' lists.

EARN HIS LEARNING

Cleveland, O.—Wallace Tibbitts, Penn college freshman, spends $1.81 a week for meals and never misses the dinner bell. Every week-end he hitch-hikes to his home in nearby Medina, runs a one-day egg route, works on a farm and returns to his attic room with groceries to last a week. By preparing his own meals, Tibbitts spend less than $5 a week on all of his college expenses.

A teacher spoke to his pupils recently on words that are linked together in pairs. He cited Darby and Joan, pepper and salt, ham and eggs and then asked for the words usually associated with "Picts."

"Shovels, sir!" was the unanimous reply from the class.

Success of Famous White Feather Cake Recipe... DEPENDS UPON FLOUR USED

One of the specialties served to the guests at Westview Lodge, North Tryon, P.E.I., is "White Feather Cake". When asked for the secret of her success in making this delicious cake, Mrs. Inman, the owner of Westview Lodge, said, "I have found I cannot make it successfully with any other flour except Robin Hood. I have tried to but had no luck, so now I always use Robin Hood Flour."

Generously she gave the recipe for the cake which has become the favourite among her guests, and we invite our readers to try it for themselves. But remember what Mrs. Inman says—"The real secret of success, back of this recipe is the use of Robin Hood Flour." You soon discover that not only for "White Feather Cake" but for white bread, buns, tea biscuits or any home baking, Robin Hood Flour is the real secret of baking success.

WHITE FEATHER CAKE

2 1/2 cups sifted Robin Hood Flour
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup milk
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. salt
5 egg whites

Measure sifted flour, add baking powder and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together till light and fluffy. Add flour mixture alternating with milk, a small amount at a time. Combine after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla, fold in egg whites beaten stiff but not dry. Bake in three greased and floured layer pans in rather a slow oven 325 F. fifteen minutes, then increase slightly and bake about 15 minutes until cake starts to draw from pan. Spread lemon filling between layers and on top.

VALENTINES EASY FOR RESOURCEFUL

Here is how you mothers who find it hard to buy the Valentines that are so much in demand with children, can make some very interesting ones from that pile of old Christmas cards you have probably tucked away in some drawer or other.

As a rule, most cards are decorative enough, with a little dash of paint here and there, and of course all references to Christmas either artfully covered or cut out. You can change them this way: Supposing the card reads, "A Merry Xmas Greeting," cut out Xmas and paste the word "Valentine" on the underneath sheet.

Better still, if cards are four-fold ones, simply cut off the half with greetings on it. Write your own Valentine verse inside, cut out all reference to Xmas on the face of card and paste some jolly colored picture, or even a painted one of your own, underneath. Cut-out parts may be done in heart shapes or others appropriate to the season and edges could be given zig-zag or scalloped treatments. Once you have started, other ideas will suggest themselves, and it is fun helping to make them and compose the silly rhymes.

Tigers Downed 5-3; Local Curlers Lead at Howick 'Spiel

Huntingdon Wins on Goals By Defence

J. Campbell, White, C. Grant, Cartier Star as Valleyfield Downed Late in Third

Diminutive Jules Cartier rose to great heights in the league game against Valleyfield Tigers last evening at the Valleyfield Arena to beat the home team by the score of 5-3. There were less than four minutes to go when the short-handed Huntingdon clan launched two power plays which netted them the winning goals.

The defence combination of Charlie Grant and Johnnie Campbell accounted for the winning margins when the latter scored at the sixteenth minute mark on a pass from Red White. Grant assured the game for Huntingdon when he beat George Laplante on a close-in shot. The visiting team scored three goals in the first frame but the Tigers came back strong in the early stages of the final period to even the count. Huntingdon were not to be denied that evening as they came back stronger than ever in the dying minutes to upset all the Tigers' hopes.

The Huntingdon scorers in the first period were Johnnie Campbell on a pass from Red White. Later White picked up a well-laid pass by Morris Hunter to beat Laplante for Huntingdon's second marker of the game. Poirier on a double pass from Morris Hunter and Red White scored for the red and black machine to end the scoring for that frame.

Fine Curling Competitions At Ormstown

J. A. Ross and W. G. McGerrigle Skip Winning Rinks—Ormstown Wins Round

Playing one of the finest curling games witnessed in the Ormstown Curling Rink on Thursday evening, the Huntingdon and Ormstown Clubs met for the preliminary games in the Governor-General Trophy competition, double rink iron for the determining of a winner to compete in Montreal on Thursday next.

W. G. McGerrigle won an easy victory over the four skipped by Cunningham of Huntingdon but the game between skips Soucy and Ross was a battle from start to finish for Soucy to maintain the lead procured by the McGerrigle four. Several times the total score was tie all, and twice during the game a count of five was made by each team. With the last end to play, the Ross Huntingdon team needed three points to win; early in the end they secured their three counts. Soucy's last stone drawn to cut the count, Ross came back with a heavy stone, wicking across the tee with his iron was unable to hold the tie end, therefore the Ormstown Club were the winners.

AUBREY-RIVERFIELD

The Aubrey-Riverfield W.I. met in the rink club rooms on Thursday, Feb. 1, with fifteen members present and Mrs. Annie Gracie in the chair. A letter of thanks from Mrs. Robinson, who had been the recipient of one of the quilts sent by the W.I. at Christmas, was read by the secretary, also a letter from Capt. Payne's assistant at Farmhouse, expressing appreciation for the quilts and used clothing forwarded to their Mission House for distribution among the needy there. Current events were given in their departments of work by Mrs. C. W. Easton, Mrs. Janet Reddick, and Miss J. Morris, while Miss E. Rorison gave an interesting paper on "Institutes in other lands," showing what branch of work was undertaken by the different countries. A poem entitled "Room for the Leper" was beautifully rendered by Miss Janet Morris and greatly appreciated by the members. Miss Morris is certainly to be congratulated on her wonderful memory and aptitude for learning poetry. A brief review of the life of Nellie McClung, the Canadian author, was given by Mrs. Jas. Angell with brief and humorous excerpts from "Clearing in the West," one of Mrs. McClung's later books, the story of her early life. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, followed by dainty refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. Janet Reddick and Mrs. McKell, after which a game of curling was enjoyed by most of the ladies present.

A friendly bonspiel among the ladies of our local rink took place in Riverfield rink on Wednesday, play commencing at 9 a.m. Following are players and score:

HUNTINGDON GRADS DEFEAT ORMSTOWN 5-4 IN OVERTIME

On Friday night Huntingdon Grads defeated Ormstown for the first time this season. The locals started the game late and with only eight men, two of which were rookies and went out to put up a scrappy game and the Huntingdon team had to extend themselves to the utmost to eke out a victory over the weary Ormstown crew.

For the visitors, J. C. Lefebvre, M. Duke and A. Helm were the big guns with Sonny Grant turning in a strong game on the defence. For the locals all played well, outskating the visitors most of the way. Primeau was much improved in goal. John Lefebvre and Mons Duke scored all the Huntingdon goals, the former with three and the latter two. Allan Helm had three assists to his credit and Lefebvre one.

The local scorers were McGovern, E. Legault, McAdam and Forget, with assists going to E. Legault and G. Legault.

Chapter 13
Timberline went willingly on his errand.
The Laredo Kid, instead of dying, as he undoubtedly should, mended from the first day. In three days, having the lay of the land and feeling master of the situation, he spoke some part of his mind.
"Yuh been good to me, Cousin Barry," he jibed, with so much malice in his eyes that it must have been the overflow of the spleen within him.
"As soon as you can hold a gun steady," said Barry angrily, "I'm going to hand you one—and kill you."
Laredo laughed at him. Two days later he appeared to have a relapse. It turned out to be just a bit of clever acting on his part.
Barry was away an hour. When he came back he was wet with sweat and was breathing hard; he brought Sarboe back with him only to discover that the Kid had gone. Gone also were both saddle horses and the bulk of what little provisions the cabin afforded. Laredo, riding away, had neither gone empty handed nor left them a means of overhauling him.
They shouldered their small packs and started on the long walk to Barry's old home.
The third day by mid forenoon they came within sight of the old home.
They went on and a moment later Sarboe heard a strange sort of exclamation burst from Barry. Some one had come out onto the rickety old porch; it was a small, slender woman. She called out something and started down the steps as two men came out of the house behind her.
And then Sarboe was hard beset to keep up with Barry Haveril who went striding alone to the house as though he could not get there fast enough.

Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. Wm. Wood and family in the sad loss by death of her father, Mr. Roy of Ormstown.
Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ross entertained at a "500" party on Friday evening for the benefit of the Red Cross Society.

my staying here now would only drag you all into it. Sure, I'll go. But there's something you're all forgetting—"

Lucy sprang to her feet. There were fires in her eyes, too; she stood quivering with anger. She could not wait for Barry to finish. She cried out passionately.
"What about me? What am I to do?"

"That's what I was thinking of," muttered Barry.

"Don't you see?" demanded the girl. "It isn't only Barry they want. They're after me, too!"

Lucy's eyes were brighter than ever and her face was aflame again when she made her hurried rejoinder.

"I am not going back to—anybody, until I know a lot of things!"

"You whirled to Barry. "Take me with you, Barry!"

"We wouldn't let 'em take her," said his father. "Not unless she wanted."

"But don't you see?" cried Lucy. "It would be the same as if Barry had had the time to turn things upside down to get me—it's the Hamilton money they're after. I know it. Didn't they—didn't someone murder for a part of it long ago?"

Barry caught her by the arm. He didn't speak to her but to his brother.

"Get a couple of horses saddled up for us, will you, Lute? We'll be getting ready to go."

The wily lighted windows behind them were blotted out in the dark. The black limbs of trees like monstrous arms spread above them.

A sigh escaped the girl. That was when, after a few minutes of riding, she experienced a sensation of relief, of escape. At the same instant Barry spoke.

Barry said, "Yop know I love you, Lucy?"

And Lucy, her voice hushed like the breath of night air through the pines, answered him with the question, "Do you, Barry?"

"And you, Lucy—down in your heart?"

"Don't Barry!"

Presently she said, "Barry, life is terrible, isn't it? It isn't fair! It doesn't give us a chance. If one only knew—"

"Why didn't I take you away with me that time from Tyler'sville?" he exclaimed bitterly.

She didn't answer, but in her heart she whispered despairingly, "Oh, why didn't you, Barry?"

"Tonight I'm going to take you to Tex Humphreys' ranch," said Barry. "It's not far; we'll be there in an hour or an hour and a half."

"Sh!" whispered Lucy, and reached out to catch his sleeve. "I hear someone coming!"

He, too, heard horses' hoofs on a bit of rock trail in the distance, and a moment later there were faint, faraway noises from the woods, come day, an 'c'n come on back if the coast is clear."

"You had better go right away, Barry," said his mother.

"Of course you're right," Barry said. "I don't want to run out on you folks, but it's clear as day that Timberline said: "If a gang swoops in on us while Barry's here, we got to fight it out with 'em, ain't we? If Sundown'll do a quick sneak, let 'em come."

"That's sense," nodded Ben Haveril. "Barry won't have to go far, but he better start alone. He c'n watch the house from the woods, come day, an 'c'n come on back if the coast is clear."

"You had better go right away, Barry," said his mother.

The Press Speaks on Election

ment ever to be assembled in Ormstown has been ignominiously dissolved.
A new parliament is needed. Responsibility has been imposed upon the electorate to see that the next parliament is more truly the mirror of the Canadian spirit of national service.

PEEVISH ACT

(Ottawa Journal)

Mr. King's sensible course, and duty, was to report to Parliament, to tell Parliament what his Government has thus far done, and how it has done it, and why; and then, this duty performed, effect dissolution.
Instead, he has preferred, for some reason not clear, to act in a seemingly peevish mood that many will interpret as arrogance, injecting unnecessary bitterness into a campaign that should be waged with good sense and soberness.

TAXPAYERS' RIGHT TO KNOW

(Brampton (Ont.) Conservator)

The Prime Minister has seized upon the Ontario government's vote of censure as the reason for his peevish mood. Few people will be so foolish as to believe that this is the real reason for Mr. King's refusal to bare the details of his administration of Canada's war effort. The taxpayers of Canada, contributing one million dollars daily to prosecute this war, are entitled to know whether the King government is giving a business-like administration of these funds or whether their work has been done in a wasteful manner.

Mr. King has denied the taxpayer this right. He may argue all he pleases about the facts coming out in the campaign, but as the independent "Saturday Night" points out, "The Canadian people do want to have the affairs of Canada discussed, and if they cannot have them discussed in the proper place, on the floor of the House of Commons, they will have them discussed in other places where they can be discussed as sensibly, as justly and as responsibly."

Mr. King has resented criticism in reply to it he has called a general election. Instead of reporting on his government's work, it seems to us that had Mr. King been satisfied himself as to his government's war effort, he would never have taken the issue in the manner in which he did.

SERIOUS MISTAKE

(Edmonton Journal)

There can be no excuse for basing the dissolution of the present parliament on the Ontario House, with less than half its members supporting the resolution proposed by the Liberal Premier.
Looking at the matter simply from the standpoint of political tactics, the sudden dissolution is a serious mistake, for many will be bound to jump to the conclusion that it was decided upon because of the desire to conceal something that would have come to light during the session.

SHARP TACTICS

(Moncton Times)

Prime Minister King may believe that by his craftiness in closing Parliament before any debate on the issues could take place, his administration would escape expressions of advice from the Liberal party. But the desire to conceal something that would have come to light during the session.

VOTE NON-PARTISAN

(St. John's (Que.) News)

Mr. King's record will not be written only in terms of his success at the polls. It will also be etched in the manner in which the campaign is conducted and the extent to which the Government refrains from using its temporarily strategic power of wartime censorship and control.
Let it be hoped that the electors at least, will approach their problem of deciding for whom to vote, only after they have forcibly ejected from their minds any vestige of party or partisan influence. Then, and then only will Canada have the type of men needed at the helm of our country today, and then only will every citizen be given an equal opportunity of contributing his share to the vigorous prosecution of our present task.

PRODUCE THE EVIDENCE!

(Orillia (Ont.) Packet & Times)

The prospect is that, in the midst of a war, we shall have an internal conflict between the ins and the outs, with no particular principle at stake, and arousing no very deep interest—unless, indeed, Dr. Manion should succeed in producing evidence that he is in a position to form a really strong National Government, for which there has been a demand in many quarters, where party affiliations do not count for much.

A SERIOUS SITUATION

(Carleton Place (Ont.) Canadian)

To again entrust the government of Canada to a party under the leadership of Mackenzie King, particularly in such a time of stress, would appear to be utter folly. He has proven that he is not a wise enough man for the job we have on our hands. This is a time when the best leadership Canada can produce should occupy the government benches, irrespective of politics. This is the most serious situation this country has ever been called upon to face and the best brains are required to direct this country's effort. If we lose this war we will have lost everything while, let us not trifle in procuring the ablest men available to direct Canada's war effort.

GOVERNMENT STAKES ITS FUTURE

(Collingwood (Ont.) Enterprise-Bulletin)

The opposition is terming the decision unfair tactics and charging that the election is not in the interest of the country, but of the government and the Liberal party. For this argument little favorable can be said. It is heard at the start of almost every campaign, but soon dies away. Owing to a general feeling

Dear Sir:—
Your Editorial in your issue of January 31st, in regard to the announcement by the various political parties, of their platform and what action they intend to take in support of that platform, is indeed very timely.

There are some no doubt who will vote straight party regardless of the declared platform of their party but there are many, and I hope and believe the great majority, who will vote for the party they believe will more nearly represent the people's idea of what a Government should do these days.

Some people believe we should not do anything in regard to the present struggle in Europe, and such will want to know which of the Political parties will adopt a policy in keeping with some of their ideas.
Some, and I hope most, feel that nothing short of the very utmost of effort is needed and they want to know who, if any, of our Political parties will adopt that view.

There are others who think that a small contribution in men and munitions and a large contribution in money is the best effort.

There are many different ideas and we want to know what is the idea of the political party who seeks to represent us as a Government and why it is their idea.

We somewhat resent the politician who seeks to put us wise to just how inefficient, stupid, etc., the other party is by pointing out their mistakes and errors alone because we know that we know the shortcomings of our Political leaders and do not need to be told and if Mr. Manion and his party believe that Mr. King and the Liberal Government have made a mess of things let him tell us what he would have done in like circumstances and what he will do if returned to power.

If Mr. King feels his party has done all that the situation requires, let him tell us why the situation has only required what has been done and tell us too how far he is prepared to go to fulfill any need which may develop.

We know the Conservatives will magnify all errors of the present Government and we know that Mr. King and his party would do the same if the situation were reversed so it is no good wasting time telling us how badly he has been treated and how much misunderstood. We know and will give credit and place blame without having to be told. After all it is the people of Canada who are fighting, if fighting has to be done, and not the Government of Canada. We want to know what is being done, going to be done and why.

As you say "If Germany wins we shall no longer be Liberals, Conservatives, Social Credit, C.C.F., We shall be as the Czechs, as the Poles."

Mr. Guy Stowell in company with friend from Huntingdon and the Beaver spent Wednesday evening in Cornwall, Ont.

Mr. Kenneth Steven of Saranac Lake, N.Y., a young man about 30 years of age, who is a nephew of Mr. Robert Steven of this place, met with a very unfortunate accident last week while working in the Swift Packing Co. plant at Saranac Lake.

While using the elevator lift which was of the open type he fell on the elevator floor in such a manner that as the lift ascended it pinned him against the upper floor of the building. His both legs were broken and badly bruised but having the presence of mind to have pulled the stop rope just in the nick of time saved him from a much worse fate of being badly mangled had the elevator continued on its way. As a result of the accident he will be confined to bed for several months.

The many friends of Mrs. Donald Hamilton are sorry to learn that she is a patient in the Montreal General Hospital, and all hope she may have a speedy recovery.

Impressions of Canada

The West is Enthused About Forthcoming Federal Election—Provincial Election Foreseen in Alberta—West Regards "Mitch" as Troublemaker—Writer Continues to be Much Impressed With "Western Spirit"

(Written especially for The Huntingdon Gleaner)

By DONALD C. MACDONALD

Banff, Alberta
West of the city of Calgary the completely snowless fields roll on in those same undulations that may be seen in the heart of the prairies when the eternal flatness gives way to rolling land. But as the city gradually fades into the distance, the hills seem to grow and the valleys to deepen. Then the train rounds a corner and suddenly, as if by the magic wave of some giant's hand, in the distance there rises in all their majesty and grandeur, in all their dazzling, awesome beauty—the sunlit, snow-clad mountain crags outlined against the darker morning blue of the western sky.

Now in this paradise of mountain beauty, a National Park where the animals are safe from the hunter's hand and the deer will feed from your hand and the chick-a-dee from your window-sill or shoulder, where you may drive along the road, as did the King and Queen last year, and not only see but take close-up pictures of mountain sheep and goats, elk, moose all within a few miles, where you may leave the car and go on a ski-sled down the dizzy mountain heights miles below into the valleys and go up another mountain-side to bathe in an outdoor pool of sulphur springs and see below in the valley, two miles down, the well-known C.P.R. hotel and through the steam that rises from the warm water into the snappy mountain air, the surrounding snow-capped mountain peaks—from such a setting as this I shall attempt to forget it all for a moment, turn my mind back to the prairie to sketch a few impressions so that they may catch the next air-mail east.

For instant ease from chest colds, ordinary sore throats.

RUB ON MINARD'S GREAT CANADIAN RUBBING LINIMENT

MINARD'S LINIMENT

This is the land where war and rumours of war have not been replaced, but rather mingled and confused with elections and rumours of elections. The talk in Manitoba and Saskatchewan was, when I came through, centred in political circles on the coming sessions. Here in Alberta, beyond the session which Premier Abernethy has called one week early for February 8th, there looms the sure prospect of a provincial election when the Social Crediters will face the electorate for the first time since they came into power in 1935. Already the party chiefs are mustering their forces for a provincial election that will claim the same national interest as the Quebec election of last fall. (But more of Alberta and its $25 a month Social Credit scheme at some later time.)

Now, to add to the voters' bewilderment, there has come like a bolt from the blue the news of a federal election. The general reaction to the news throughout the west was well expressed by one editorial opinion: "We had hoped that it might be possible to defer a federal election for this year at least, and felt that many Canadians shared the same hope that, with a war on our hands, it might be possible for the political parties to come together in some sort of an arrangement, that for the present, would have spared the country the upheaval and possible distraction from major purposes—namely, helping to win the war." While in Winnipeg before the announcement of the election, a prominent Liberal newspaperman expressed the hope that the Prime Minister should leave himself be railroaded into an election by the outbursts of "Mitch" Hepburn, who throughout the west, is generally regarded as a troublemaker. A conservative pressman of the same city ventured the opinion that in party circles the only people anxious for an election were those who stood some chance of bettering their position by it. Similarly, the outstanding conservative leader of Regina, although critical of the Government's conduct of the war, felt that the place to thresh it out was on the floor of the House and not the political platform. But these were opinions expressed before the dissolution of parliament, and it is idle to dwell on them further, for the decision has been made, is irrevocable, and come what may, March 26 will bring an election.

Last week I wrote, in part, of the conditions that many of the people of western Canada have faced throughout the decade of the "frightening thirties," and of the "fortitude" with which they have faced them. The deepest impression after crossing the prairie is by way of confirming what I wrote. Typical, for example, is the following short editorial with the caption, "Courage and Enterprise and End from the Regina 'Leader-Post': "Several times within the past year or two the municipality of Chester, southeast of Regina, has come in for comment on its valiant effort to remain as far as possible self-sufficient during the trying years since 1930. Last May the people of Chester held an old-time fiddling contest and dance that attracted visitors from a radius of 180 miles. The proceeds of this and other functions have been used to keep the wolf from the municipal door. The 1939 crop was a disappointing one, but a series of nine or ten crop failures has not affected the fine spirit that has kept the flag of Chester flying."

Continuing, the editorial informs us that "For some time the directors of municipal affairs have felt that they needed a medium whereby the people of the municipality could be kept posted on community plans and developments and a meeting of rate-payers decided that a newspaper was the answer. So the 'Chester Chats' came into being. With a circulation of 600, this bright little paper keeps the people of Chester informed on local affairs. In a recent issue a proposed hospitalization plan was explained. In addition, the paper covers a wide range of subjects all the way from overhauling tractors and raising pigs to a bit of advice to the love-lore from 'Donna Dell.'"

"Too often," the editorial concludes, "there is a lamentable lack of interest in the affairs of local administration, but the people of Chester are right behind their reeve and councillors. They have been able to carry on under conditions that have needed much courage and resourcefulness."

While in Saskatchewan I went out from Regina and spent a day in the heart of the dried-out area. There for ten years they have sown their crops and they have watched them parch in the merciless heat of the summer sun; so often, as during last year, not only did the wheat-fields stretching as far as the eye can see, yield little or nothing, but their carefully tended garden, spared from the extreme drought, fell victim to the heat brought, and nothing but the stripped stalks of the plants remained. People who came out to carve for themselves farms and homes and futures out of the virgin soil of the prairie in a day when there was not a cloud on the horizon to dim the prospects for good times and endless opportunities, have watched what reserves they may have accumulated slowly waste away. And yet with it all, as you go among them there is less grumbling, less crabbiness about the hand that has been dealt them in this game of life, than one usually hears among people who are in immeasurably better circumstances. They are not bitter; theirs is not a warped philosophy of life, but rather a well-balanced and a wholesome one—inspiring.

Among these people most of whom came from the east originally, many from the Chateauguay Valley, there is one old lady in her ninetieth year. Away back in the days before the war when the starving tide of humanity poured into the Canadian west, she left her home in Fertile Creek. Today not only is she so spry and capable as to be able to live alone in her own little home, which is the essence of neatness and cosiness, but she has the most warming and sparkling sense of humour that it has been my good fortune to run across in many a day. "Yes," I said, when talking of the changes back east, "many of the old country schools are thriving community clubs . . ." and with reference to the one in Fertile Creek, added, "they have it all fitted out with electric lights now." "Is that so?" she said in surprise, and then in a manner as coy as a teen-ager, she turned to a friend sitting nearby, and with a merry chuckle, that rang as true as a bell, added, ". . . and just think, we can't afford them!"

Such is that sense of humour which lightens the load of life, that indomitable courage which lingers as strongly now despite her ninety years, to epitomize the spirit of the west. So many times during the last ten days I could not help but think how much poorer Canadianism should be without it. Another spring is coming; these people will turn their backs on what the last ten years has brought them, and sow their crops for the future harvest. Truly indeed, hope springs eternal in the human breast. And as long as we have in Canada a people in whom that spirit lives, we need not fear for the future.

available irrespective of politics to handle our war effort". Both the old parties and "if possible all important parties in the House of Commons" would be represented in the proposed cabinet. No outstandingly able man would be kept out because of party affiliations. Leaders in business and industry would necessarily be included.

There is likely to be comparative quiet in political arena for a fortnight or longer while finishing touches are put to party organizations. When key speeches are made of complete manifestos issued, the public will get a clear picture of the general lines of attack and defence. The issues will undoubtedly be almost exclusively confined to the government's conduct of the war on both military and economic sides. The sudden dissolution of parliament will also be the subject of platform discussions. But other domestic issues those at least not concerned directly with the war will be the order of the day in a secondary place until the war ends.

During the last week of January war orders issued by the Supply Board reached a total of over 15½ million dollars, the largest sum expended by the government since the war began. The major part of the contracts were for the construction of anti-submarine vessels of the "whale catcher" type. These orders amounting to $12,000,000 were placed with shipbuilding companies in Montreal, Quebec and Sorel. Further orders for the same type of boats will shortly be placed with shipyards in other parts of Canada. The Dominion is also beginning to take a more important role in the work of combating the U boat menace. In all arrangements, are being made to build 46 "whale catchers" in Canada. A list of all the war orders issued by the Supply Board and its predecessor the Defence Purchasing Board between July 14th and the end of the year has been published. It aggregates 11 million dollars. It does not include purchases of the month of January.

Broadcasting During the Election
Free broadcasting on the CBC network by political parties in the election campaign will be restricted to 12½ hours, the time being allotted as follows: Liberals 5½, Conservatives 4½, C.C.F. 1½ and Social Credit 1½ hours. The distribution was arranged and agreed upon by representatives of the parties. It was based on the average of the popular vote of the four groups in the 1930 and 1935 elections. What time might be allotted to new parties would depend on the extent of their organization, the number of candidates, etc. Paid election broadcasting will be confined to privately owned stations for local and provincial distribution, except in the case of Quebec, where the CBC is the only station giving local service.

As war conditions have caused a shortage of fresh fish in Britain, the Minister of Fisheries has appointed a Fishing Advisory Board of eleven members to arrange the orderly supply of Canadian fish to the British market.

A letter from "Over There"
Mrs. E. Cleland, of Montreal, visiting in Huntingdon this week, states that she recently received a letter from her son, Coburn Cleland, with the C.A.S.F. "over there." He is enjoying his experience and will shortly have a leave. Mrs. Cleland states that the rumour to the effect that Coburn was the first Canadian to sink a U boat was quite erroneous.
