Regional disparities dominate conference

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional disparity easily dominated the list of likely topics on the eve of the secret, three-day constitutional conference opening today.

Subject of a closed-door, ministerial meeting Tuesday, it emerged as a probable source of federal proposals for constitutional changes intended to give Ottawa more leeway to encourage economic growth in designated regions of the country.

And Jean Marchand, minister of the new department of regional economic expansion, grabbed most of the attention as he outlined details of the proposed regional disparities act to provincial ministers and, later, the Commons committee on regional development.

Western delegates to the ministerial meeting came away from their talks with Mr. Marchand concerned about proposed new federal powers that were described variously as "broad," "sweeping" and "power to do almost anything."

They called for further discussions on the same subjects at the constitutional conference, a proposal that drew opposition from Mr. Marchand and agreement from two Atlantic premiers.

Mr. Marchand, asked if the same subjects could be brought up again at the constitutional conference, said "I don't think so."

NOT OPPOSED TO IDEA
But Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia had "no objection whatsoever" to the idea.

Mr. Smith and Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island were the only two premiers who attended the disparity conference.

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, who arrived here Tuesday night, was asked whether in an interview regional disparity, as it may involve constitutional changes, would be a main topic of debate at the constitutional conference.

"I think so," he replied. "Ottawa has got to have the authority as well as the money." Mr. Smallwood earlier pledged to make regional disparity the "theme" of the conference, "if I can do it."

A R. Patrick, Alberta's mines and minerals minister, cautioned.

"Perhaps this is something the people think we have already agreed to in the west, but this is the first we've heard of it."

SAYS POWER SOUGHT
Provincial Treasurer D. G. Stewart of Saskatchewan said Ottawa was asking for "very broad powers. Certainly we can't reach any conclusion at this time."

Mr. Marchand told the Commons development committee "results are very good" from the discussions. He added, at another point, all provinces agreed with the philosophy of the bill before Parliament.

It would enable Ottawa to support new industries directly in slow-growth areas with capital grants of up to $12,000,000. Mr. Marchand outlined two areas of jurisdiction under the proposed legislation—one in which Ottawa would have the final say and another where provisions of the current constitution leave the provinces with the last word.

He said the provinces would be consulted on general development plans and designation of slow-growth areas. The final decision on support for a certain industry in a specific location would rest with the federal government, even if federal-provincial views collided.

In this case—provision of funds for a new industry—"when we say we have to consult with the provinces that does not mean we have to agree with the provinces." This would be "our jurisdiction."

But provincial jurisdiction was entrenched in the constitution when it came to financial aid for necessary facilities to support such industrial developments as roads, schools, sewers, and hospitals.

The ministers were to present their respective premiers with full reports on Tuesday's talks for possible further discussion at the constitutional conference.

Viet Cong move startles parley

PARIS (Reuters) — The tangled complexities of war and peace in Vietnam took on a new—and perhaps significant—twist today after the surprise announcement by the Viet Cong that a secret revolutionary government had been established in South Vietnam.

The Paris press office of the National Liberation Front disclosed Tuesday that a secret congress of opposition movements had "created the provisional government, presumably in a move toward ousting the Saigon administration which the Communists describe as a puppet regime."

Observers said the Viet Cong announcement may move the struggle over the political future of South Vietnam to a new and more acute stage and recapture the diplomatic initiative for the NLF.

In first reactions to the Viet Cong announcement, sources in the U.S. and Saigon delegations to the peace talks played down the significance of the secret government.

But many observers close to the talks said it seemed likely the NLF ultimately would seek to have the secret government recognized as a competent authority to conduct elections to determine the political future of South Vietnam.

THINK PACKAGE BETTER?

The creation of the provisional government may be the Viet Cong's attempt to skirt Saigon's flat refusal to envisage a coalition in Saigon, the observers said. With little hope of achieving a coalition in co-operation with the allies, the Viet Cong may have decided it is better to be able to present a package administration instead.

The Saigon government predictably dismissed its new rival for authority as "obviously completely unacceptable." A foreign ministry spokesman in Saigon reiterated that "we will never accept a coalition or any other sort of government arbitrarily imposed by the Communists."

The man who composed the South Vietnamese government's national anthem has been named information minister in the newly-formed government, the secret NLF radio announced today.

In a Vietnamese-language broadcast monitored in Saigon, the Liberation radio announced the full list of 12 ministers appointed after the front's convention held somewhere in South Vietnam June 6-8.

As expected, NLF chairman architect Huynh Tan Phat is prime minister. Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, delegate to the Paris peace talks, is foreign minister and composer Luu Hui Phuoc, whose national anthem is saluted by President Nguyen Van Thieu, becomes information minister, the radio said.

NAME TO JUNIORS
The radio said another 10 junior ministers were named in a provisional government of 22 persons.

It did not give any indication of how or where the new government would meet, identifying the site of the convention simply as "somewhere in South Vietnam."

Nor did it give any details of what moves would now be taken to try to drum up support for the body in South Vietnam.

All the members of the cabinet listed today are long-time Communist party members of the NLF.

In a later broadcast, Liberation radio said a 13-member committee was set up to act as an advisory body to the new government.

This would be headed by NLF chairman Nguyen Huu Tho.

The radio said the recent convention included delegates from revolutionary committees throughout South Vietnam.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Arson charges

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. — (AP) — A teen-age girl—said by police to be angered over being told not to date her first cousin—and her young brother were charged with murder Tuesday in the fiery deaths of their parents and 10 brothers and sisters.

Police said evidence showed that Susan Bailey, 15, had been banned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey from dating the 17-year-old youth last Saturday night.

Detective D. V. Eaton said the slim brunette and her parents had argued about the boy "for about a week" and "it could have been a factor" in the pre-dawn blaze that swept through the family's eight-room house Sunday.

Susan and her brother, Roger, 13, were led crying into Wood County Circuit Court Tuesday for a preliminary hearing.

House clash

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand clashed Tuesday night with Newfoundland Conservative MP James McGrath, who said proposed legislation would make Mr. Marchand a Canadian economic czar. The MP was accused of playing politics.

In a heated exchange in the Commons regional development committee, Mr. McGrath St. John's East said the minister was setting himself up as a "20th-century Louis XIV."

Strikes limited

TORONTO (CP) — A formula to protect the public interest but still permit public employees—including hospital workers—to strike is proposed by the Canadian Union of Public Employees in a document to be submitted to members of the legislature today.

The presentation by CUPE of its white paper on collective bargaining is part of a demonstration to be held by the union at Queen's Park to protest the prohibitions on the right to strike in the public service field.

Immigration rules eased as flow cut

OTTAWA (CP) — An 18-month nosedive in applications for immigration to Canada has scared the government into reversal of last year's administrative restrictions.

A year ago immigration officers were told to show no leniency to border-line applicants and to discourage those who got a pass mark of 50 points but whose occupations weren't in demand.

Immigration fell to 183,974 in 1968, a drop of 38,902, and projections in the first months of this year indicated a 25-per-cent drop for 1969.

Meanwhile, there has been pressure from Manitoba and Ontario, as well as some industries, to open the gates.

Informed sources say a new directive went to immigration officers late in May telling them to open the tap.

They are to be more lenient in granting loans for transportation, though the candidate must still put up a down payment of at least $50.

Personal interviews are to be arranged to assess candidates who earlier this year would have received the "don't call us" routine.

And borderline applicants who miss by only a few points the 50 mark are to be given a second look at least.

Defends boycott on beef

TORONTO (CP) — Leon Weinstein, president of Loblaw Groceries Ltd., Tuesday defended his suggestion that shoppers boycott beef and urged other supermarket presidents to "take the ball from here."

Mr. Weinstein June 4 advised shoppers to stop buying beef after prices increased 30 per cent in a month. He said Tuesday, however, that in the week since his boycott recommendation prices have not dropped.

In an interview, he cited the example of bacon prices in March, 1967, which dropped more than 30 cents in three weeks after boycott pressure from consumers. He said he hopes the boycott planned for June 19 by a group of Toronto housewives, Women Against Soaring Prices, will achieve similar results.

Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union in Saskatchewan, suggested during the weekend that Loblaw was trying to shift the blame for the rising costs to the producer, when the real blame fell on Loblaw itself which he said used expensive marketing gimmicks and profiteering tactics.

John Wiley, secretary-manager of the Ontario Beef Improvement Association said Tuesday that Weinstein's suggestion of a beef boycott is "completely irresponsible."

"The current climb in the price of beef is nothing more than the free play of the law of supply and demand," he said in a statement. The consumer demand for beef is greater than ever, he added. There just wasn't enough beef to meet this demand. This is what has forced prices up.

"I am not suggesting that the cattle growers do not have a perfect right to higher prices for their stock," he said. "But when the prices rise so sharply, I feel that the consumer has a right to know the reason."

STRIKING MINERS — A group of striking iron-ore mine workers in the Sept-Îles area pass the time between turns on the picket lines with a game of cards in a tent. The Provincial Government announced Tuesday that it was prepared to accept mediation of the dispute which has idled about 2,600 workers in the iron mines since early May. The strike is in support of contract demands.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE — Many a man has battled his way up but then bottled his way down!

Action and trust are depression remedies

A minister runs very often into depression or some phase of melancholia. A large number of people suffer from this form of emotional disturbance some time in the course of their life. There is no greater suffering than that of an acute depression.

By REV. DONALD CAMPBELL
(St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Sherbrooke)

Even in its milder forms, it is a destructive frame of mind. It creates a feeling of hopelessness and worthlessness beyond any reason. We all swing from feelings of buoyancy to normal and mild feelings of despondency, but in a depression we swing to depths beyond the normal level, which may end up in an extremely obstinate and vicious condition which is a grave mental illness.

Depression can have different causes. It may have a physical basis, be due to a particular situation, come on at certain stages of life, or may develop without any clear cause.

Obviously every depression does not call for professional help. Often mild depressions will pass away, and need alarm no one. But when a deep depression persists, it is folly not to seek competent professional help. And better early than late, when the depression may have taken deep root. Waiting too long can cause much suffering and can be very costly. Follow your practice with the common cold. Try your home remedies, and if it persists, call upon your family doctor for his advice.

But what about a few home remedies? There are various things you can do to relieve extreme mood swings.

When you feel depressed, try to keep busy. Don't sit in a chair and say to yourself, "I'm going to be cheerful. I'm going to have courage". Nor will it help to have a friend or relative tell you to snap out of it. Get busy with something that will divert your attention. Find something that will absorb your attention for the time being. Sedentary brooding will only make you sorry for yourself. Busy hands, physical labor, have wonderful healing properties for the mind. That's why it is no kindness to refuse to let a bereaved person do anything at the time of bereavement. That is why they give work and activity therapy in mental hospitals. Busy hands will help to get our minds back into a normal mood.

This is not to encourage idle thinking, however, for it can easily lead to self-pity. Constructive thinking can act like an emotional tonic. Some find working mathematical problems a help. Others find help in constructive reading. A pleasure trip, with a total change, may do it. A note of warning, however, about books on how to overcome worry. They may be all right for emotionally well people, but they are not wholesome for the depressed. Shut them.

The effect of a depression is to make a person believe a lie—namely, that his situation is hopeless. This is not true. Where there is life, there is hope, as long as God is alive. You must learn to distrust the things that a depression tells you, for it denies God.

In our life, reason ought to govern our feelings. In Christian faith, both certain knowledge and hearty trust go together. In depressions the knowledge remains, but the trust seems to fail. So does hope, which is the dominant characteristic of Christian experience. So, where there are feelings of hopelessness, we must place over against them a reasoned hope.

TWO DIE IN ACCIDENT — The driver of this vehicle, Eugene Laflamme of 89 Grove Street, Danville, was instantly killed while a passenger, Miss Claire Tamon of Magog, died from injuries of the crash in the Hotel Dieu Hospital. The accident occurred at noon, June 1, on the roadway leading past the Bellevue Golf course in Melbourn. Also injured in the Laflamme vehicle were Mrs. Laflamme and five children. The most serious, Guy, was later reported to be in satisfactory condition in hospital.

The accident occurred when a second vehicle, driven by Irwin Lefebvre of Route 32, Melbourn, met on the gravel road, in a cloud of dust. The Quebec Provincial Police, Richmond, investigated the incident. (Record photo: Wm. H. Lunan Studio)

U of S Med Centre famous everywhere but in home town

Dr. Maurice LeClerc, dean of the University of Sherbrooke Medical Center, said yesterday the only place in the world where the institute is not well-known is here in its home town.

Commenting on the fact that the World Health Organization chose the center as one of two in the Western Hemisphere to be visited by Cameroon organizers of an African medical school, the dean said it was not unusual for experts to inspect the school's facilities.

"We have visitors from all over, almost every day," he said. "We've hired two permanent employees to take care of them."

The delegation of five Cameroon doctors and an Australian medical school organizer of WHO yesterday inspected the center to study methods that might be employed in the proposed school of medicine at the Federal University of the Cameroons in Yaoundi. The experts had just arrived from a week-long visit to a center in the Brazilian capital of Brasilia.

Dr. A. M. Rankin, who set up and administered a faculty of medicine at the University of East Africa in Dar-Es-Salaam, Tanzania, said the group would study new teaching methods employed at the two institutes.

He said he was impressed with the involvement of the U of S medical school in the life of the community. Any institute of medicine must reflect in its work the needs of the people it serves, he said.

Dr. Rankin, representing WHO and the Cameroon experts yesterday headed by Dr. Rene Essomba, will organize the new school to develop home-bred medical men and women to serve the young federation.

The biggest problems being encountered in Africa with similar projects, Dr. Rankin said, are the lack of trained staff and good equipment.

The construction project will be financed by the Cameroon government which will receive aid from other countries.

City police update methods

Police have been forced to modernize their approach because of growing sophistication in the criminal element, Jean-Paul Pelletier, deputy director, Sherbrooke police, told the Rotary Clubs yesterday. Sherbrooke police, he said, are being issued with riot sticks, helmets, and detailed briefings on the new menace of riot control.

Radar traps have also been installed and used with rewarding results, according to statistics given by Deputy Director Pelletier. Only two people have died from auto accidents since January in Sherbrooke compared with 11 fatalities over the same period last year. The number of child pedestrians injured has dropped from 13 to 7 in the last year, and the total number of accidents from January to June, 1969, has been set at 753, 23 less than for the same 6 month period last year.

Mr. Pelletier stressed that, despite modern equipment and tactics, the policeman's best weapon is still the average man on the street. The Sherbrooke police force has 100 men serving a city of 80,000. They need all the assistance and cooperation the public can render.

Deputy Director Pelletier closed his talk with the hope that the police, with the help of every citizen in Sherbrooke, will make the city a safer place in which to live.

The luncheon closed with a reminder that the Rotary Club celebrates its 50th anniversary next week.

Private woods operators must plan, or government will, warns minister

CAPLAN, Que., — (Staff) — Claude Gosselin, provincial minister of lands and forests, says that the economic importance of privately owned forests is such that they are the source of 25 per cent of the raw material used in forest industry and, therefore, their growth and control should be planned.

Addressing a meeting of Gaspé area wood forest product producers, the minister said that the government is proceeding with a study of private forests in order to establish a program of regional development.

Production development negotiated by joint plans is in excess of one million cords annually. This is a very good reason for the government to complete an inventory of forestry resources in order that the industry operate in a rational manner.

The minister encouraged producers to institute self-discipline in order to avert, as much as possible, government intervention, as such intervention would not necessarily be always in their interest.

It was stressed that forest resources are as important as agricultural resources to the rural economy, and should, under the circumstances, be closely controlled by the owners.

Cowansville escapees caught five miles from scene by QPP

COWANSVILLE (Staff) — Quebec Provincial Police yesterday captured two men who escaped Monday from the penitentiary here.

Prison officials reported that the two men, Claude Bastien, 31, and Roland Legace, 24, were captured at Iron Hill, five miles north-east of the penitentiary.

A third man, Francois Schirm, 37, was re-captured less than three hours after the jailbreak. The convicts scrambled over a fence during a recreational period and ran off in a northerly direction.

Bastien and Legace each have two years remaining on three-year sentences.

Schirm is serving a life sentence for his part in a 1964 theft of weapons from a Montreal gun store in 1964 by a group of terrorists.

He was found guilty of the murder of a store employee which happened during the holdup.

Brain-washing danger in hot line proposals

There is no doubt about who asks the questions in today's complex world, which governments keep making more complex. It's the citizen. Who should answer the questions, who should be the source of information, is not so clear.

Postmaster General Eric Kierans is reported to have an idea for an elaborate network of hot-line phones. Every post office would have one and they would be directly connected with central data agencies in Ottawa that could supply instant answers to the public's questions. What excellent instruments they could be for thought control if a government were of a mind to control the thinking of the people who called up to chat.

In Parliament recently there was a discussion of the paucity of news available to Canadian embassies. One Opposition member complained about the daily Canadian Press news bulletin that reaches them because it contains no "clash of opinion" and is pretty much limited to hockey scores, trivia and answers by the Prime Minister to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

It is just this clash of opinion that makes democracy work, difficult as it is.

Anyone with experience in answering the public's questions knows that interpretation enters into all but the most simple answers.

Should the information role be played by the Government?

Many people believe that it should not and go as far as to say that often the information source ends up by being an intermediary between government and the individual.

No Gwendolyn, grandma wasn't a hippie just because she had a rock garden.

Trimming that surplus

One of the problems facing any Finance Minister who manages to report a surplus in his budget speech is that he always has plenty of advice as to how the excess revenue — real or imagined — can be disposed of.

And recent reaction, both within the House and outside, to Finance Minister Benson's announcement last week that he hopes to end up the fiscal year with a surplus of $250,000,000 runs true to form and was to be expected.

The Provincial Premiers, hard pressed to meet their own obligations, are making loud noises to the effect that the federal government should be more generous in its treatment of the lower levels of government.

Of course, the Members of Parliament have ideas of their own on disposing of the extra cash in the treasury.

They have made no overt suggestion, as yet, that their indemnities be increased but they have suggested that family allowances be increased, that there be bigger old age pensions, that new farm subsidies be introduced and old programs expanded. And one or two have suggested that taxes be reduced.

The deep interest of the MP's in getting rid of the surplus is in marked contrast to their disinterest in balancing the national financial accounts during the dozen or so years in which whopping deficits were run up.

It would take some very close reading of Hansard to find the parliamentarians suggesting that the deficit be eliminated by cutting family allowances, reducing pensions or increasing taxes.

If there is any credibility left in Keynesian economics, what the Government should be doing at the present time is to apply the surplus to the reduction of the national debt which this year, on a per capita basis, went up from $809 to $824.

Probably it will be argued that $250,000,000 would not make much of a dent on the national debt but at least it would be a start.

And one thing is sure. If the surplus were two billion instead of $250,000,000, at least some of the Members of Parliament would still be urging the cabinet to get rid of it by spending, spending and spending.

What did writers who can't write ever do before they learned how to spell four-letter words?

June 11, 1969... The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

Give ear to my words, O Lord; give heed to my groaning. (Psalm 5:1, RSV) PRAYER: Help me to pray the best I can, Father, and not to refrain from prayer because I know my attitudes are wrong and unworthy of a child of Thine. In my distress I need Thee — Thy comforting presence, Thy help. Amen.

PET — Mixture of boredom, intelligence

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — David Lewis, the deputy leader of the New Democratic Party is generally regarded in the Parliamentary Press Gallery as the most able opposition MP in the House of Commons.

He is very intelligent, an excellent speaker and a fearsome opponent in debate. While a dedicated socialist, Mr. Lewis is not a stuffy reformer and has managed to maintain a nice sense of balance and humor about the world and the people in it.

It was in his role as a first-rate opposition member and a leading member of the NDP that he was asked to assess the performance of Prime Minister Trudeau with regard to the latter's background as a one-time supporter of NDP causes.

Mr. Lewis was intrigued by the assignment, made the sporting observation that of course he was highly prejudiced and then pressed on with the job.

"In domestic policies Trudeau shows nothing to indicate he had earlier leanings to the NDP party," Mr. Lewis said for openers.

"He is extremely conservative in every respect, he believes in balancing budgets and cutting expenditures — he is very reactionary."

With respect to international affairs, Mr. Lewis conceded that the prime minister was a little more progressive. "I don't know what his motivation is and he still shows a lack of imagination in some aspects of foreign policy. His approach to NATO for example is a mish-mash—it falls between two stools."

Mr. Lewis noted the NDP believes in the complete withdrawal of Canadian forces from Europe. But he acknowledged that a case could be made for a continuance of the important military role Canada has in Europe now.

"But there is no sense in playing games with NATO as Trudeau is doing. This accomplishes nothing, makes our allies angry and yet still keeps us in the alliance. This is not decisive action."

The NDP deputy leader also felt that Mr. Trudeau was shilly-shallying on his comments about the ABM system proposed by the U.S. "Trudeau talks as though he is against it but yet he won't say so."

INTELLIGENT BUT BORING

Mr. Lewis at this stage in the interview realized he was belting away at the prime minister with considerable vigor. "I restate my prejudice but I cannot see that his policies show anything of his alleged early progressiveness."

The prime minister's personal performance in the Commons was described by Mr. Lewis as a mixture of boredom, intelligence and indifference. "Trudeau is highly intelligent but usually boring in his speeches although not in his answers."

"He has an attitude of indifference. The prime minister gives me the impression of considering Parliament a necessary nuisance rather than an essential democratic instrument."

Mr. Lewis was convinced that Mr. Trudeau had lost a great deal of support since last year. "On the campuses they were pretty wild about him but now that seems to be gone — there is widespread disenchantment."

The NDP spokesman felt that generally, Canadians were seriously disappointed. "I still believe Trudeau has a good deal of support but there is no doubt the glaze is off."

Could Mr. Lewis make a comparison of the prime minister with his predecessor, Lester Pearson? "It is really too early for that but Pearson showed a humanity and a deep concern for people that Trudeau has not demonstrated."

And, Mr. Lewis added: "I must say that the Trudeau cabinet is no stronger than that of Pearson's — in fact it may be a good deal weaker."

This was Mr. Lewis' assessment of Pierre Elliott Trudeau who at one time campaigned for socialist candidates. Mr. Lewis thinks Trudeau is a very poor socialist, if he ever was one. Mind you, Mr. Lewis acknowledges that his judgment may be just a trifle prejudiced.

"Let Mr. Benson tackle the interminable monetary problem HIS way..."

The London Scene

Shopping picture shifts

LONDON (CP) — The shopping scene here has shifted in the last few years from the revolutionary innovation of Carnaby Street and its mod styling.

First it went to the crowded, noisy boutiques on King's Road in Chelsea. Now it's right inside the large department stores.

It's shattering, unbelievable, to anyone used to traditional departments in this type of store. Some stores are outdoing the noise and mod styles of even Carnaby Street and King's Road.

Staid old Harrod's of Knightsbridge now has an elevator direct to the mod fourth floor. Once there, you immediately are into a huge, murky section devoted to the young crowd. It's called Way In, and certainly is.

The walls and low ceilings are a medium blue color with only a few small scattered spotlights offering pools of light. Music blares, as it does on every shop on Carnaby Street and King's Road. There are racks and racks of merchandise.

TRY BROMPTON ROAD The first thing that hits the eye in the gloom-accentuated area is a sign which says: "One-Sex Clothes in Two-Sex Sizes."

Drift on farther and another sign announces: "Wear and Wear Alike."

Then come sections for girls and boys and, in due course, lingerie, wigs, sandals, jewelry, and racks of paperbacks. Finally, there is a cafeteria and coffee bar, both in the same over-all blue and with dim lighting.

If you haven't time to see Carnaby Street—and it's much too touristy now—or King's Road, where the real London action is, you'll find branches of some of the best-known mod boutiques on Brompton Road around Harrod's. They'll give you a comprehensive idea of London styles and prices.

Selfridges, the big department store on Oxford Street, is celebrating its diamond jubilee. It also has introduced the large mod-shop idea—and you can't miss it.

As you enter the main doors there is a sign showing the way to Miss Selfridge. If you haven't guessed it, that's the name of the shop.

It's mainly for girls but you step right into a "unisex" section featuring cotton corduroy levis in gold, red, black or pale violet as well as see-through cotton lace pants and blouses marked His and Hers.

Just so that you won't miss the point: At the entrance are two large panels showing Adam and Eve wearing small strategically placed branches of leaves.

The maximum impact comes at 6 p.m. on late-closing night—Thursday—when swinging young London is on a shopping spree.

As always, there is the blare of popular recordings over loudspeakers.

The great interest here, even more than in Canada, is in men's clothing.

The first wild enthusiasm of a few years ago for far-out styling is dying out, except for the very young or the exhibitionists. Young men are becoming more interested in good but not stuffy styling and older men are accepting a younger, less conservative look.

Austin Reed, long known as a top men's store in Regent Street, now devotes a section, called Cue Shop, to this concept of a shop-within-a-shop.

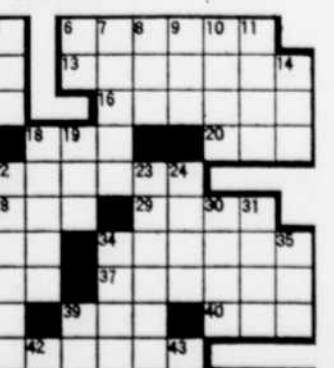

It's more mod than the rest of the store, and the merchandise is fairly expensive.

PRISONER AND FIRE — A weary firefighter staggered from the bush Thursday seconds after his crew had been evacuated from an area threatened by a forest fire burning out of control in the Rocky Mountain House area of west-central Alberta. "I can't imagine those guys leaving me behind," he said.

Who's they? he was asked. "The guards from Nordegg," he said. "It's a prison forestry camp and I'm an inmate there. I was brought here with 39 other guys, but it looks as though they've showed off and left me. Oh well, I guess that means I'm free." (CP Wirephoto)

"Kan Do Kangaroos" is a bilingual summer program for children between the ages of five and seven operated and supervised by the YM-YWCA.

The project will provide summer activity for the child, both in entertainment and learning. Through a wide variety of activities, Kan Do Kangaroos will broaden the child's social experience, develop interests and skill in crafts and promote physical activity at an early age. Opportunity to explore city industry as well as rural produce, is part of the program, planned to arouse stimulation in the child.

As a secondary function, a bilingual learning experience in a fun atmosphere is provided.

Tours have been arranged that will take children to the fire station where fire hazards and prevention will be taught, to the theatre where presentation will be discussed, and to the milk plant where processing will be observed. Many other educational aspects are scheduled that will make learning a treat.

There will also be an extensive program of handicrafts, finger painting and art to encourage creativity. Swimming and gym play are an important part of Kan Do Kangaroos because of the growing need for early physical activity.

Kan Do Kangaroos will operate all summer from July 7 to August 29. Afternoon schedules are planned from 1 to 4:30 p.m., three afternoons a week. The children will be divided by age into groups of five to allow for maximum attention and guidance, with one trained leader in charge of each.

The leaders will be working in co-operation with Y staff to insure an enjoyable and safe program for the children. All activities will originate at the Y and fan out into the big city.

Summer employment for interested responsible teens who enjoy working with children, is an additional benefit.

If you are interested in helping your child prepare for community life, become involved in worthwhile projects, and at the same time, be safe from traffic on the streets. Contact YM-YWCA, 300 Montreal Street.

Father: why he rates high on June 15th

By BETTY CANARY

June 15th is Father's Day. The heart warms and the mind boggles at the thought of all the little hands now busily nailing and gluing up tierracks and desk calendars in honor of the occasion.

A lot has been said lately about fathers abdicating their positions as the heads of American families, and I, for one, want to come to their defense. I have no polls or statistics to back me up, but I'll bet that for every runaway father, we could find at least 10 who have found happiness amid the oatmeal bowls and the wreckage of personal dreams.

All the conflict between fathers and offspring we see today, well, some would have us believe it to be a phenomenon of the '60s. This is patently ridiculous. All generations have had their difficulties in communicating with each other. For example, when I was a teen-ager I thought my father hated me—just because he would look at me, shake his head and say, "Betty, what you're good for is a lot of talk!" As I grew older I realized that he actually meant to encourage me. So, I started making speeches.

I am sure that my own five children will someday make their own discoveries. They will wonder how their father could possibly have used all the key holders they patiently saved out of plywood, the calendars pasted up with pictures from Life and National Geographic, the pencil holders made of painted orange juice cans. And they will discover he has used the new ones each year and saved the old ones in a file cabinet drawer. He has gently laid them to rest along with handmade greeting cards signed with Xs and Os, next to stacks of expensive cards—including the one Stu bought and proudly presented one year without realizing the gold letters said, "Happy Father's Day to My Favorite Uncle."

They will understand someday that not everybody has a father who will laugh when he comes home to find a picture poster nailed to the door of his den. Especially a poster picturing W. C. Fields with the caption, "A Man Who Hates Dogs and Children Can't Be All Bad."

I am certain they will remember that he's the man who will not allow bumper stickers or decals on car windows no matter how much a child pleads. And, that he's the one who was so angry about the loss of a $2 set of wrenches that he made the basement workshop off-limits to everybody for six months. But, I think they will also remember the even billion wheels he has replaced on toy cars and scooters and wagons.

PINK and BLUE SHOWER

Mrs. William Parnell, Spring Road, Lennoxville, was entertained at a pink and blue shower at the home of the Misses Pam and Pauline Goodenough, Montreal St., on Tuesday evening, May 27.

The room was decorated for the occasion with pink and blue streamers and a stork.

Mrs. Parnell was presented with a corsage which was a blue and white baby's rattle tied with a pink ribbon.

During the evening, games were played, and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Parnell expressed her appreciation for the lovely gifts and for the party.

Shower

ROCK ISLAND — Miss Nancy Hartley, a popular June bride was guest of honor at a shower held in the Town Hall on June 4, attended by a large number of relatives and friends.

Miss Hartley was planning to attend the drive-in when her fiancé stopped at the hall and the hostesses rushed out to greet her, very much to her surprise. As she regained her composure she was presented with a kitchen novelty corsage and escorted to a chair which was surrounded with gifts. Seated with her was her mother, Mrs. Roland Harley and future mother-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Archer, each of whom were presented with corsages of tulips in multi-colors.

The decorations were carried out with yellow, blue and white garlands. The trio opened the packages to reveal beautiful gifts for the new home. After being admired they were arranged on a table to be later displayed at the parental home.

Refreshments served included a shower cake, made and decorated by Mrs. William Comstock with pink roses and a miniature bride. This was cut by Miss Hartley and as the guests departed for their respective homes Miss Hartley expressed her appreciation for the shower and gifts.

The hostesses for this delightful event were Miss Nan Mallard, Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. Murton Smith, Mrs. Betty Archer, Mrs. Pat Archer.

SHERBROOKE Hospital GRADUATION — At the dinner and dance for graduate nurses, held at the Le Baron

New and former graduates gather to dine and dance

Twenty-three Sherbrooke Hospital graduate nurses in multi-colored gowns were feted in the banquet room at the Le Baron Motel Friday night, June 6. Led by alumnae president, Miss Thelma Gratham and nursing director, Miss Jean MacMillan with music provided by Mr. Maurice Foucault, approximately 67 older graduates rose to pay them tribute.

The head table was decorated with bouquets of multi-colored mums and honey gold and mauve candles. The other tables held small vases of gold and mauve mums.

Grace was said by Mrs. Alex Savage, second vice-president and during the supper Miss MacMillan proposed a toast to the Queen.

Miss Gratham thanked the alumnae for her corsage of pink and white carnations. Addressing the new graduates she told them some of the alumnae's history, stressing the need of their active support and pointing out the fact that in the near future an alumnae member would belong to a unique group. She then introduced each new graduate to those assembled.

Mrs. Erwin Watson, first vice-president, spoke a few words regarding their future and proposed a toast to the graduates.

Miss Janet Martin replied on behalf of her classmates, thanking those who assisted them during their training and the alumnae for its banquet and dance.

Miss MacMillan stated that the evening was especially memorial for her also, as this was the first class to graduate since she had become Director of Nursing. She thanked the graduates for her lovely corsage of red roses and wished them a happy and successful future.

A springtime gala was the motif for the dance and the room was decorated with branches supporting multicolored leaves and artificial roses. Next to a rose and cedar arbor stood the receiving line, Miss Thelma Gratham, Dr. and Mrs. John Decarie and Miss J. MacMillan.

With music provided by the Maurice Foucault Orchestra, the graduates, their families and friends spent a memorial evening.

Protect Nails

Before tackling any "dirty" jobs, dig your fingernails into a bar of soap—the soap will act as protection against troublesome dirt that leaves ugly stains and traces underneath fingernails.

Approaching marriage

The approaching marriage of Allison Margaret Anne Brown, daughter of Mrs. Edson Brown and the late Mr. Brown to Rodrick Lloyd Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey, all of Waterloo, has been arranged to take place on June 28 at St. Paul's United Church, Waterloo.

Personals

Mr. Leo Groleau, Stanstead, entered the Sherbrooke Hospital on Sunday, where he will undergo eye surgery.

Today's recipe

Wedding time is here and the bride who is inexperienced in the kitchen can impress her man with crunchy, lacy, French-fried onion rings.

They go with he-man steaks, hamburgers, salads or make good hors d'oeuvres. These are prepared ahead items for a working woman, since onions dipped in a fritter batter may be frozen.

To freeze—fry, drain and leave the rings on paper towel-lined cookie sheets and place in the freezer. Then put them in lightweight paper boxes or make an aluminum foil container. Put onion rings carefully into container with a paper towel between layers. The rings may overlap some but don't make layers too deep. Seal and label.

When the urge for onion rings hits, just place some on a cookie sheet or on a layer of foil in a 375-degree oven until crisp. Takes only minutes.

BATTER

Combine in flour sifter 1 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Beat 1 egg into deep bowl until thick and lemon-colored. Add 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon vegetable salad oil and stir in sifted ingredients. Beat until smooth, cover and set aside while preparing onions.

ONIONS

Select 4 sweet Spanish onions, about 3 1/2 inches across. Cut off root end of each and slip off loose skins. Hold by stem end and slice about 1/4-inch thick and slip off skin. Makes about 5 servings.

FRY

In electric skillet or heavy frying pan, add oil or shortening 1 1/2 to 2 inches deep. Ideal temperature is 375 degrees on temperature-controlled range or using deep-fat frying thermometer. Dip a few onion rings at a time into batter, using long-handled two-fork fork, and let drain briefly before dropping into heated fat. Turn only once and do not crowd in skillet. When golden-brown on both sides, lift out and drain. Serve hot immediately or freeze.

Shape Up Calves

To improve the shape of your calves, try doing this toe-riser exercise: Stand with your toes on a book and hold a fairly heavy book in each hand. Now let yourself down until your heels touch the floor. Then, slowly, rise up on your toes again. Do only a few of these at first, gradually working up to about 20.

Smell Good Routine

Fragrance adds a new dimension to any woman if it's worn with style. Apply your perfume to pulse spots—at your wrists and temples, the base of your throat, inside your elbows and behind your knees. Always remember to dot on fragrance lightly.

QUEBEC SCENE

Huge fraud unveiled in welfare

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Paul Cloutier, minister of health, family and welfare, said Tuesday his department was defrauded of more than $1,122,000 in the past year.

Mr. Cloutier told the national assembly a year-long investigation in the department's affairs had revealed the loss.

The minister did not specify how the fraud had been committed but said investigators had examined social welfare files in Quebec City, Thetford Mines, Rivière du Loup and Valleyfield.

They had discovered false names and addresses in some of the 45,000 files studied, he said.

until after the summer recess, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Tuesday.

Speaking in the national assembly, Mr. Bertrand said the legislation was approved in principle by the cabinet May 28. Mr. Bertrand made public June 1 his intention to introduce legislation allowing for referendums to be held in the province on important matters—including Quebec's status in Confederation.

governments of Quebec and Newfoundland as well as the companies and unions involved are in agreement.

Involved in the conflicts are Quebec Cartier Mining, in near-by Port Cartier and Gagnon, the Iron Ore Co. of Canada operation in Sept-Îles and Schefferville, and the Wabush Mines pelting plant and loading dock at Pointe Noire.

The workers have been on strike in support of contract demands for the last five weeks.

election as a solution to the "disastrous" economic situation in Quebec.

Mr. Lesage told the national assembly his Liberal party's return to power would mean a return to political, economic and constitutional stability.

The ruling Union Nationale party had "given up" in the face of Quebec's economic problems, he said, because "they realize they don't have a competent enough ministerial team to attack the problems seriously."

Speaking in reply to Finance Minister Paul Dozois' budget speech, the Liberal leader said the government's lack of clear constitutional policy was creating uncertainty within the financial community.

Ready for talks

QUEBEC (CP) — Donat Quimper, Quebec's deputy labor minister, says the province is willing to go along with the choice of an independent mediator in an effort to settle a strike by 2,600 Quebec iron ore workers.

Mr. Quimper said Tuesday that a mediator should be chosen by mutual agreement of the Quebec, Newfoundland and federal government and that settlement should be reached without prejudice toward the labor laws of Quebec.

The strike in northern Quebec near the Labrador border has stopped 65 per cent of Canada's iron ore production.

Another 4,000 workers have been laid off or have refused to cross picket lines.

But a grimmer aspect is the threatened shutdown of the 360-mile railway which carries food and supplies to Wabush and Labrador City, Nfld., and Schefferville, Que.

Federal labor minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday that Ottawa was ready to agree to the choice of an independent mediator on condition that the

Lesage honored

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition leader Jean Lesage celebrated his 57th birthday Monday and received praise from Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and a spray of roses on his desk in the national assembly.

Mr. Bertrand lauded the "extremely important role" played by the Liberal leader in the national assembly.

"You are fulfilling your role as Opposition leader so well," said Mr. Bertrand, "that we hope you will reside in that position for as long as possible."

House Leader Pierre Laporte, responding to Mr. Bertrand's remarks, said to Mr. Lesage: "There is only one way in which we can make the people of Quebec rejoice and that is very simple—become premier of Quebec before your next birthday."

Sent to trial

Another 73 persons have been committed to trial on 12 charges, each in connection with the outbreak of destruction in the university's computer centre and faculty club.

The case of another student, the last to be accused in connection with the outbreak, was postponed until October.

ROCK FOREST SHOPPING CENTRE

2000 BOURQUE BOULEVARD

President of Border firm feted on 25 years service

ROCK ISLAND — A celebration was held at the Dufferin Heights Country Club House on May 27 in honor of E. C. Sutton, president of Spencer Supports (Canada) Limited, on the occasion of his completion of 25 years of service with the company.

Expecting that he and Mrs. Sutton were spending the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Colt, Mr. Sutton was completely surprised on arriving at the Club House to find about 47 of his staff there to greet him. On entering the door they were met by Mrs. Claire Murphy and Miss Marion Phaneuf, who presented Mrs. Sutton with a corsage of red roses, and Mr. Sutton a white carnation boutonniere, flecked with silver spray, tied with a silver ribbon, to signify 25th anniversary.

Wine and hors d'oeuvres were served by Mrs. Murphy, Miss Phaneuf, Miss Laurette Davignon, assisted by Mrs. June Leslie and Mrs. Margaret Black. Mr. and Mrs. Sutton spent the next few minutes chatting with their friends.

A poem, composed and read by Miss Phaneuf, expressed how fortunate the staff is to have Mr. Sutton as their President, covered some amusing incidents and congratulated him on his 25 years of loyalty and friendship.

A toast was proposed by Roland Paiement to the guest of honor, who was then seated at the head table. The table was centered with an arrangement of red and white carnations, white chrysanthemums, and snap dragons in a setting of silver spraved ferns. In the center a silver numeral 25 was most eye-catching.

Dinner was served buffet style. Mr. Paiement, accountant and assistant-treasurer of the company, presented Mr. Sutton with a gift on behalf of the staff. The gift was a desk piece with a white onyx base, topped by a gold clock and two gold pen holders with black pens. Mr. Paiement spoke briefly and on behalf of the staff expressed best wishes. Everyone agreed with the speaker when he said, "Mr. Sutton is more than a president — he is a friend."

Mr. Sutton thanked the staff recalling some experiences of his early days at Rock Island, but not overlooking how appreciative he was and how deeply moved by the thoughtfulness at this anniversary time.

A most pleasant social evening followed with everyone enjoying music, singing and dancing.

The hostesses for this happy event were Mrs. Murphy, Miss Phaneuf, Miss Davignon and Mrs. Olive Crawford, assisted by Mrs. Leslie and Mrs. Black, who were warmly thanked for a most successful party.

Mr. Sutton has also received the Company's gold watch as a member of the 25-year club.

BARBER "BOB" ELECTED ALDERMAN — Elections held in Richmond recently for a councillor to Ward No. 2, Seat 1, saw R. "Bob" Morin, barber, win out over his opponent Donat M. Cloutier, milkman. 411 persons were eligible to vote with 58 per cent turning out to the poll. Mr. Morin held a majority of 92 votes in the final count. This is not his first appearance at the council table, previously he was in office in 1952 till 1958, and in May, 1968, he was elected to fulfill the seat left vacant by Alderman E. Richard who made the bid for the office of mayor.

RICHMOND FIBRE PLANT BOUGHT BY THIKOL

Richmond fibre plant is taken over

RICHMOND — (Special) — In a joint statement, J. W. Crosby, Chairman of Thiokol Chemical Corporation and T. C. Winder, Jr., president of Grace Fibres Canada Ltd., announced that Thiokol has acquired the Canadian polyolefin fibre, carpet backing and rope business of Grace Fibres Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of W. R. Grace and Co., for an undisclosed amount of money.

Thiokol also obtained from Grace all of the remaining patents and patent applications related to its activities in the synthetic field.

Last November, Thiokol purchased

Grace's Dawburn Division at Waynesboro, Va., a major producer of polyolefin fibres and woven fabrics in the United States. In December, it acquired similar production facilities on the West Coast. A new 250,000 square foot plant for the production of carpet backing woven from polypropylene fibres is nearing completion at Toccoa, Georgia.

"This Canadian acquisition," Mr. Crosby said, represents a further extension of Thiokol's participation in the growing market for synthetic fibres.

SHIPTON DONATES TO CANCER FUND — The present Cancer drive has brought in some $700 to date, in the Danville - Shipton district. In the photo, Mayor Roy Monahan, of Shipton, is seen presenting a $25 cheque, donated through the council, to Mrs. G. Olney, president of the local Society.

Mrs. G. Olney, a cancer sufferer, looks on. (Record photo: Wm. H. Lunan Studio)

Stanstead Chapter IODE closes until September

STANSTEAD — The last meeting of Stanstead Chapter IODE until September was held on June 2 at the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Elder at Cedarville on the shores of Lake Memphremagog.

The day was hot and humid but breezes blowing in from the lake were most refreshing and all were delighted to see the lake, sparkling and beautiful. The meeting was held on the spacious porch and the lawn with the Regent Mrs. W. T. Greer welcoming the 32 members and visitors.

Mrs. H. M. Cass, secretary, announced she has received several generous donations of items for the fall bazaar. It is gratifying to the members to have support from Quebec Province businesses and manufacturers.

A letter of appreciation was read from Miss Betty Young, an intermediate student nurse at the Sherbrooke Hospital, now on affiliations in Montreal, for the second portion of the Mabel Stockwell Nursing bursary.

Mrs. K. E. Baldwin, Education secretary, announced there are a total of seven applications for the Nursing Bursary and scholarship of 1969-70. A committee of Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. W. T. Greer, Mrs. Mabel Wallace, Mrs. J. McCannell and Mrs. Lorne Ogilvie will meet after the exam results are in, and make a recommendation.

Mrs. D. Renwick announced that a sum of $225 was raised during the past 10 months for the benefit of the Frontier Swim Project, through marathon card parties, suggested by Mrs. Renwick in the fall and her project has been fully supported by the members.

A letter of resignation from Mrs. Philip Gaudine was accepted with regrets. Mrs. Gaudine and her family will be leaving Stanstead soon, and their friends made during Mr. Gaudine's teaching at Stanstead College. Mrs. Gaudine was also secretary of World Affairs and a replacement for the remainder of the year will be made at the September meeting.

Mrs. J. McCannell, Mrs. Ruby Wilding, Mrs. Lorne Ogilvie and Mrs. Greer each read communications of pertinent information from the Provincial Chapter, pertaining to IODE work and projects. Mrs. Greer further stated that in the month of October, a new membership drive will take place.

Plans were made to visit the pottery at Way's Mills on June 27. An executive meeting, to be attended by conveners of the bazaar, will take place on August 4 at the home of Mrs. Greer in Stanstead.

Mrs. Ellen Wallbridge announced all members are invited to a splash party by the King George Chapter IODE at St. Johns on June 12.

Mrs. Percy Poaps agreed to be in charge of additional tea cloths for the bazaar. It was suggested that, starting in September, a fine of 10 cents be imposed upon members not wearing their IODE badge pin, which met with approval of the members.

The highlight of the last meeting was the initiation of a new member, Mrs. George Carruthers, who was warmly welcomed.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Elder for their hospitality. Sherry was served and afterwards a pot luck supper. A most pleasant meeting, in an ideal setting, the gathering was much enjoyed.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Prolonged Exposure
To Sun Can Be Harmful

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Although sunlight is necessary for life it is not an un-mixed blessing. Looking at the sun will cause retinal burns resulting in a permanent blind spot. This is especially prevalent in persons who watch solar eclipses. Prolonged work or play in the bright sun also cause a severe conjunctivitis or pink eye and snowblindness in skiers.

Prolonged exposure also dulls the luster of the hair, causes thickening and wrinkling of the skin and predisposes one to skin cancer and keratoses (senile freckles).

Then there is the danger of sunstroke, which is really a form of heatstroke. This can be prevented by wearing a broad-brimmed hat in the sun and avoiding vigorous exercise to the point of sweat depletion. Perhaps the old saying, "He hasn't got sense enough to come in out of the rain," should be changed to: "He hasn't got sense enough to come in out of the sun."

Q—In a recent column you answered a man with angina pectoris who was taking nitrites, dicumarol and Librium. I have been told that a person who is taking Librium should not take anticoagulants. What do you think?

A—Although the effect of chlordiazepoxide (Librium) on coagulation is variable, there is no reason why it can't be given with dicumarol so long as the patient's clotting ability is checked every two or three weeks to make sure it does not fall to a dangerous level.

Q—What is the cause and treatment of follicular lymphosarcoma?

A—The cause is unknown. This is a very malignant type of cancer. The best hope for survival is early and complete removal of the tumor followed by deep X-ray treatment of the surrounding area. Some of the newer chemical agents, such as vinblastine, triethylene amine and chlorambucil, may be helpful additions to the treatment.

Q—Although I sleep well every night, I have dark circles under my eyes. What would cause them? How can I get rid of them?

A—The cause may be a hereditary trait (thin skin in that region). The condition bears no relation to the state of your health but it may be aggravated by menstruation, pregnancy and aging. Masking cosmetics are the best remedy.

be no reason to hold off. West will know that his partner can't have another spade to lead to him later on. Then it won't matter what West does. South will lose the club finesse. East will lead back some red card and South will make four no-trump.

Should spades divide 4-3 instead of 5-2 the duck play won't matter. South was sure to make his contract in any event. Of course, there is one slight chance that South will lose by ducking.

That five of spades lead and the queen play by East might be a doubleton lead by West and a brilliant play by East to give the impression that he, not West, was short of spades. In that case a South who ducked would pay off to amazing defense.

Domtar woods operations start again

EAST ANGUS — Domtar Woods Limited have begun their woods operations in the Eastern Townships and Chaudiere regions for the 1969-70 season.

B. E. Jarvis, Woods Manager for the Eastern Townships Division revealed that the cutting program for the division is set at 108,000 cords; 4,000 cords in the State of Maine, 62,000 cords in the Chaudiere area and 42,000 in the area surrounding Domtar's pulp and paper mills at East Angus and Windsor.

The wood cut under this program will be used by these two mills.

The woods operations were suspended last July because of a strike at the two mills. The prolonged work stoppage caused a surplus of wood and chips to build up in the area. To relieve the situation, Domtar sent part of the Chaudiere production to its mills at Donnacona and Trois-Rivières. The situation is now greatly improved and a normal cut is expected this year.

This year's program will bring approximately 500 wood workers back on the job. The salaries to be paid to these employees, between now and February 1970, will amount to approximately $1,500,000.

In addition to this, the company will rent locally the equipment such as tractors, skidders and trucks, required for the transportation of wood.

The company will continue the policy of good forest management and, at the same time, search for new methods of producing wood more efficiently.

More skidders will be appearing on the job for certain areas, while selective cutting will be carried out in others, where required. The policy of cutting each year only that volume of wood which the forest grows annually will continue.

Farm development funds are planned

QUEBEC — Agriculture and Colonization Minister Clement Vincent has tabled a bill in the provincial legislature under which Quebec would devote very large funds to the development of farming enterprises.

The bill would allow grants to farmers for farm development through a program of improvements to land and buildings, either when they establish themselves on farms or enlarge them by acquiring more land.

A young farmer between 21 and 40 years old who is establishing himself on an economic farm may receive grants totaling $4,000, comprising an establishment grant of $1,000 and a grant of $3,000 for farm improvements. Any farmer who acquires more land to make his farm into an economic or more profitable enterprise and intends to carry out an improvement program may obtain a grant of up to $2,000.

The same person may not obtain this grant and the grant of $3,000, however. The grant of $1,000 is payable in annual instalments of $200 and the other two are payable as the improvements are made, following presentation of receipts to the Quebec Farm Credit Bureau, which is responsible for implementing the act.

These subsidies replace the $1,000 establishment grant provided for young farmers in the Department of Agriculture and Colonization act, the financial aid of up to $2,000 for farm consolidation under the same act, and the conditional rebate, after 10 years, of one third (up to $3,000) of an establishment loan from the Quebec Farm Credit Bureau or the (federal) Farm Credit Corporation.

Except in the case of the $1,000 establishment subsidy for young farmers, all applications for grants must be accompanied by a farm improvement program and a statement of the use to be made of the grant, which must be approved by the Bureau.

Farming corporations and partnerships meeting certain requirements may also qualify for these grants. The $3,000 grant to young farmers who are establishing themselves and the $2,000 farm enlargement grant have the advantage of no longer being tied to a farm mortgage loan.

Views on Ottawa remain

QUEBEC — Agriculture and Colonization minister Clement Vincent has pointed out that bills now tabled to amend Quebec's farm credit legislation do not imply any change in the stand he took at the Canadian agricultural congress in March, and that Quebec's position remains essentially the same as expressed at that time.

Mr. Vincent added that Quebec counts on the cooperation of the Canadian government to ensure that the efforts now being made will provide farmers with credit facilities which are the best organized possible, and also the best suited to present-day needs of agriculture from the standpoint of increased efficiency and best use of the taxpayer's money.

Mr. Vincent also stressed that, when the farm-credit amendment bills now before the Legislature have been passed, his government and ministry intend to start on the second stage of the program to adapt farm credit to the needs of modern farming. This second stage would enable Quebec to fulfil its aims and exercise its jurisdiction as regards farm credit, land use and development, and agricultural reorganization, while ensuring the necessary co-ordination with the federal government and the other provinces in pursuing national aims.

PROGRESS ON PREVENTION AND CONTROL OF DECAY IN FOREST TREES

The possibility of preventing the development of decay in forest trees through the application of silvicultural and forest management procedures, based on a sound knowledge of the fungi involved, is receiving serious research attention by forest pathologists in Canada.

Studies recently completed at the Department's Victoria Forest Research Laboratory on the red heart fungus, which is the principal cause of decay in balsam fir, indicate it is essentially a wound pathogen requiring freshly exposed heartwood and the susceptibility of these injuries is of relatively short duration. This suggests that the occurrence of natural or man-made injuries, namely, broken tops and live branches, and stem and branch abrasions which expose sapwood and heartwood to attack by this fungus, are the real determinants of the decay status of a particular forest stand. Top and branch breakage of trees is usually caused by winter storms or by falling trees, while stem and branch wounding results mainly from activities of man and animals in the form of logging scars, axe blazes, pruning wounds and animal chewing, notably basal abrasions caused by black bears. A knowledge of these hazards emphasizes not only the significance of stand histories and damage characteristics in the preparation of accurate decay estimates, but suggests practical preventive measures which can be adopted to keep injuries resulting from felling, logging and sanitation operations at a minimum. These developments, coupled with the finding that the rate of linear extension of decay in balsam fir approaches a constant in trees from widely separated regions, provide valuable new guidelines for the management of this species.

Research is also continuing to explore the possibilities for biological control through the introduction of organisms which can compete successfully with the red heart fungus. Recent observations suggest that the dominance of this fungus during periods of cool, wet weather is due to the absence, or relative rarity, of fungal competitors, notably, a non-decay-producing fungus which is disseminated by insects whose activity is limited to temperatures above 60 F. Should the situation warrant it, this fungus could be disseminated by man, but under conditions that would better serve his interests.

For disease control

Seed potato program revised, improved

OTTAWA — An improved seed potato certification program for Canada has been approved and will become fully operational by 1971, reports the Canada agriculture department's plant protection division which is responsible for the inspection and certification of seed potato crops.

The revised program, which has been developed over a period of several years, is designed to provide greater control of bacterial ring rot and other diseases of potatoes.

Basis of the program is the annual introduction and multiplication under controlled sanitary conditions of seed grown from a limited number of tubers that have been given a clean bill of health after testing. Five classes of seed potatoes are provided — Elite I, Elite II and Elite III, Foundation and Certified. Formerly, only seed of the last two classes was produced in this country.

Foundation will continue to be the main class offered for export and domestic seed potato markets and Certified seed will continue to be used for production of table potatoes.

Seed planted for production of Elite I will be obtained from selected plants that have been tested and found free of bacterial ring rot and virus infections. An innovation is the reduction in classification of the seed produced by plants in the various classes. This seed of Elite I will be certified as Elite II and so on through the range. Under the previous program, classification remained unchanged (Foundation seed from Foundation stock, for example) as long as a variety continued to meet specifications.

There is one exception to the annual reclassification. A Foundation seed grower may maintain his own seed source for continued production of this class. The seed, however, must be used only on his own farm and only if the farm has been free of ring rot for at least three years. Some of the regulations under the revised program are effective immediately. However, it is expected that two years will be required to get the program into full operation and assure sufficient Elite III seed to meet the needs of Foundation growers.

Officers of the Plant Protection Division are confident that by feeding high quality, disease-free seed into the system each year and by minimizing chances of outside contamination, Canada will be able to meet the most exacting requirements for freedom from bacterial ring rot and virus diseases of potatoes.

Rabies investigation a continuing job with many lives depending always on it

HULL — The telephone rings in a police office. A child has been bitten by a dog. The worried mother thinks the dog might be rabid, but she doesn't know what to do.

It happens every day, and this year with increasing frequency in eastern Canada.

What happens after that telephone call?

The police officer will likely tell the mother to take the child to a doctor, he'll contact the Canada Department of Agriculture's local sub-district veterinarian, find out where the dog is and tie it up for observation.

If the dog dies or has inadvertently been killed, the sub-district veterinarian will take the dog to his laboratory where the head will be removed, frozen and placed in a can for speedy delivery to the Animal Diseases Research Institute at Hull.

In western Canada, it would go to the Lethbridge, Alta. headquarters. In the Maritimes, it would go to the Sackville, N.B. laboratory. If the dog doesn't die it should be kept under close observation for at least 14 days before one can consider it free of rabies.

The family doctor will want to know as quickly as possible if the dog had rabies. He doesn't want to begin vaccination unless he's reasonably sure that rabies is involved because there's a slim chance — about one in 5,000 — that the child could react to the vaccine and be paralyzed.

That's why every day is a rush for life at the Canada Department of Agriculture's laboratory at Hull, where Dr. Michel Beauregard, two biologists and a technician conduct rabies diagnosis tests.

They remove a part of the animal's brain and stain it with a fluorescent antibody. The antibody will attach to the rabies virus in the brain tissue to form detectable clusters.

When the stained tissue is slipped under an ultra-violet microscope, the fluorescent antibodies light up like Christmas tree bulbs and clusters can be spotted quickly and easily. A cluster indicates a brain lesion, which means the animal had rabies.

The technique, which takes only a few hours, is about 98 per cent accurate, according to Dr. Beauregard.

What about the other two per cent that the technique won't spot?

"Whenever we get a specimen that doesn't show any lesion, we inoculate mice with brain tissue from the specimen," says Dr. Beauregard. "In a couple of weeks the mice will show rabies symptoms if the animal had rabies."

But doctors can't wait that long for a diagnosis. In these cases, the doctor will gather all the advice he can from the local veterinarian and use his own judgment on whether or not to begin vaccination. Only four

READY-AIM — Dr. A. L. Kassirer prepares a needle to give a rabies injection.

Canadians have died from rabies since the first wildlife case was positively identified in 1947 in northern Canada.

When Dr. Beauregard spots a positive rabies case, he doesn't waste any time.

The sub-district veterinarian or doctor is notified either by telephone or telegram.

Fortunately it appears that humans are more resistant to rabies than many species of animals.

It may take from a few weeks to several months for the disease symptoms to show after a bite by a rabid animal, but once these occur it's too late to save the person. Death comes within days. That's why doctors want to begin vaccination as soon as possible and that's why they can't wait for results from the more time consuming mouse test.

Dr. Beauregard says that foxes are the main problem to Ontario and Quebec; on the prairies, it's skunks. Other animals are involved, but often only as a result of a bite from a rabid fox or skunk.

Last year Dr. Beauregard's group handled 5,890 specimens; so far this year they've handled 2,430.

"There's been an increase in the number of submissions. About 30 per cent have been positive for rabies so far this year," says Dr. Beauregard.

Incidentally, if you suspect that an animal has rabies, you are required by law to report it to the CDA's Health of Animals Branch veterinarians.

Beef, pork prices up?

OTTAWA — Beef and pork prices may rise during June according to the Canada Department of Agriculture's monthly Food Outlook. Following is a detailed analysis.

BEEF: With demand edging upward, prices can be expected to be firm to higher.

PORK: A seasonal increase in prices may occur.

EGGS: Wholesale prices are expected to remain steady at a relatively low level.

POULTRY MEAT: Wholesale prices of broiler chicken (under four pounds) are likely to be relatively low and steady. Prices of other poultry meats could move slightly upwards.

APPLES: Large supplies with prices somewhat lower are expected.

POTATOES: There are ample stocks of old potatoes. New crop will appear at month end, with prices a little higher.

ONIONS AND CARROTS: Lower prices are expected for old stock which is in good supply. New crop prices will rise seasonally.

TOMATOES AND CUCUMBERS: Supplies of both are increasing with ample imported stocks and higher prices.

ASPARAGUS: Supplies will increase and prices decline.

NEW CROPS: Cauliflower, lettuce, radishes, rhubarb, spinach and strawberries will be appearing.

FIRE — Dr. Kassirer gives this not-too-happy boxer a rabies injection.

Canadian farm exports are shipped to 130 countries and involve some 200 commodities. The average Canadian farmer feeds 45 persons.

Soil microorganisms

Numerous, busy, essential and hungry

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. — To maintain life in the soil all possible crop residue must be worked into the land, says V. O. Biederbeck of the Canada Department of Agriculture's Swift Current Research Station.

In general, soil shelters more life than any other environment on earth, but most soil organisms can't be seen with the naked eye. Special techniques are required to reveal their abundance and variety.

There are usually more microorganisms in a handful of Prairie soil than there are people living in this world.

Living soil represents less than one per cent of the total soil volume, yet it is essential for crop production and soil fertility.

Growing plants depend upon the products of microbial activity. Soil microorganisms are continually decomposing dead plant remains and in this process, they release important nutrients to the plant roots.

Not all the nutrients in plant residues are broken down into simple plant - available compounds. Some are microbially transformed into dark - colored organic "humus" material.

Humus improves the structure and water-holding capacity of soil. In humus form, nutrients are stored and protected from losses due to leaching.

Microorganisms create many other soil changes which may maintain or increase fertility. Under favorable conditions certain bacteria and algae can bid considerable amounts of gaseous nitrogen from the air and convert it into plant - available forms.

Other organisms degrade various pesticides, preventing the accumulation of many toxic chemicals in soil and ground water.

Some microorganisms produce slimes and gums which cement soil particles into more stable aggregates and help prevent wind and water erosion.

For these transformation processes soil microorganisms require organic matter as a source of nutrients and energy.

That's why it is very important that all crop residues be returned to the soil to maintain the desired high level of microbial activity, says Mr. Biederbeck.

Two members honored prior to departure

DANVILLE — Two members of the Young Mothers' Group of St. Augustine's Church were honored prior to their departure, at the regular meeting held May 22, at the home of Mrs. Frank Davidson, Asbestos.

At the close of the meeting the president, Mrs. Albert Gillm, presented souvenir gifts to Mrs. Lee Catchpugh and Mrs. Joe Morris, both taking up residence elsewhere in the near future.

Although both ladies were surprised at the gesture on the part of the members, they expressed appreciation for the remembrance and good wishes of their friends.

At the social hour refreshments served by the hostess, included a Bon Voyage Cake, which had been presented to them by Mrs. Hilary Smith of Danville, who assisted Mrs. Davidson as hostess.

It is the wish of the members that any of the congregation who care to do so, will join them at their September meeting. Anyone wishing further information is asked to contact the president, who will gladly welcome them as either visitors or members.

The consistently good golfers should be rewarded

MONTREAL — O'Keefe Brewery of Quebec has announced it will operate its province-wide golf circuit for the 12th consecutive year and this year has added a new purse of $1000 for the best over-all player competition and instituted a new $100 award for the most improved young pro.

"We think the golfer who plays consistently well should be rewarded," said brewery promotion manager Yvon Bonin. "It could turn out to be a golfer who never finished first, but placed highly in every tournament he played, that would deserve recognition."

"The award for the most improved player should also stimulate young pros to keep working at their game," Bonin added. "It takes a lot of work to become better at golf, as all of us amateurs know well and when a young man is dedicated to improvement he should be rewarded for the results."

The points system will cover, in addition to the O'Keefe events, almost every golf competition for pros in the province this season. The winner will receive $400 and there will be runner-up prizes of $250, $175, $100 and $75.

O'Keefe's golf schedule, which last year attracted 3,803 men and women amateurs, includes four pro-am events worth $2,000 each, six amateur competitions for all classes, the Bic Open, the O'Keefe-QGA "Champion of Champions", event and, the O'Keefe Quebec CPGA championship.

The professional championship, worth $5,000 and won last year by Jean-Guy Pinard of Boucherville, will be played again at the City of Montreal Golf Club — Sept. 4-5-6, over 54 holes. Over the season, the pros will compete for more than $14,000 in purses and amateurs again will split up close to $10,000 in merchandise prizes on the largest provincial golf circuit in the country. Pro entry fees are returned to the Quebec PGA and amateur fees of $4 are turned over to the club staging the tournament.

The first pro-am will be held at LaSalle in Montreal from June 20 to 22 and, as in most cases, women will play Friday, Class B and C men Saturday, and the pros and Class A amateurs on Sunday. Other pro-am events are at Mt. Gabriel, July 4-5-6, St. Jean, Aug. 1-2-3, and the Ki-8-Club in Trois-Rivières, Aug. 22-23-24.

STRIKE — Magog city alderman Gerard Page went up to the batter's plate Sunday night, to launch the first ball of the season for the "Sans Pression" league. The league is made up of players over 35 years of age. Seen left to right are: Rouville Lizotte, captain of the Magog Foundry club; Luc Lussier, captain of the Parish Guards club; Roger Goulet, league president; Normand Jacques, vice-president; Alderman Page and Normand Gendron, treasurer of the association. The three other clubs in the league are the Expos, which are sponsored by the local police department and two clubs backed by Federal Packing and Langlois Lumber. (Record photo: Charles Catchpugh)

The six events for amateurs only are at Joliette, June 27-28-29; the Saguenay Country Club in Arvida, the same dates; Matane, July 5-6; Val d'Or, July 26-27; Lévis, Aug. 9-10; and Drummondville, Aug. 15-16-17. Lévis is the only event where there are no women's competitions.

The Bic Open will be staged Sept. 12-13-14 and the "Champion of Champions" — which brings together the club champions of Quebec Golf Association member clubs — is scheduled for Sept. 21 at Wentworth in Montreal.

The only qualifications for entry to a circuit event is that the amateur must be a member of a QGA-member club or other recognized Quebec club, possess a certified handicap rating and file registration, with the $4.00 entry fee, with the host club no later than the Friday one week prior to the event. Absolutely no post entries will be accepted this year.

The four pro-am events are qualifying tournaments for the O'Keefe Quebec CPGA championship, worth $1,000 to the winner. To become eligible for the big event a pro must play at least two of the pro-am attractions on the schedule. The provincial pro championship is worth $5,000 — $500 to seniors, 50 years and over (1-$200; 2-$125; 3-$75; 4-$50; 5-$30); $4,500 to all pros (1-$1,000; 2-$700; 3-$550; 4-$425; 5-$350; 6-$275; 7-$200; 8-$175; 9-$125; 10-11, $100 each; 12-$80; 13-14, $70 each; 15-16, $60 each; 17-20, $40 each).

Prize money in each pro-am is $2,000 with $400 earmarked

New York Mets continue to amaze the fans

For the first time in their celebrated eight-year history, New York Mets are amazing... except to themselves.

Gil Hodges' expansion urchins, sparked by a repatriated pitcher and a rejuvenated slugger, socked San Francisco Giants 9-4 Tuesday night for their 11th consecutive victory in the majors this season.

Tommie Agee cracked four hits, including a pair of homers, and Don Cardwell hurled eight brilliant innings before tiring as the Mets shot six games over the 500 mark—a never-never-land for the Mets for many years—and solidified their hold on second place in the Eastern Division of the National League.

Agee, the fleet centre fielder whose home-run total slipped from 22 in 1966, when he was the American League's Rookie of the Year at Chicago, to 14 in 1967 with the White Sox and five last season with the Mets, drove in three runs with his eighth and ninth homers and one of his two singles.

WINS FIRST GAME — Cardwell, called off bullpen duty for his first start since May 15, checked the Giants over two hits until the ninth, when he needed relief help from Ron Taylor, a Toronto native, and earned his first victory in more than a month.

New York remained seven games behind Chicago Cubs, who overtook Atlanta Braves 3-1 behind Ken Holtzman's pitching and home runs by Willie Smith and Ron Santo.

Los Angeles Dodgers climbed within one game of the Western Division leading Braves with a 2-1 nod over skidding Philadelphia Phillies. Houston Astros downed Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4. St. Louis Cardinals shaded Cincinnati Reds 5-4 and Montreal Expos topped San Diego Padres 7-4 in other NL action.

"The old Mets are dead, baby!" Agee beamed after boosting his batting average 18 points to .278 with four hits in five trips to the plate against loser Mike McCormick and two successors. He has driven in 26 runs, nine more than his total for the 1968 season, when he batted just .217.

"Hodges has done a magnificent job with this club... better than anyone else," said Cardwell, 33-year-old dean of New York's fuzzy-checked pitching staff, who contributed three singles and a sacrifice fly to the Mets' 12-hit attack and brought his season pitching mark to 2-6.

HITS 20th HOMER — The strapping right-hander, backed by Agee's slugging and a three-run homer by Cleon Jones, took a 9-1 lead into the ninth. Then Willie McCovey blasted his 20th homer, stretching a hitting streak to 15 games, and Jack Hatt poled a two-run homer. Taylor came on to get the last two outs and cement Cardwell's first triumph since May 6.

The Cubs trailed right-hander Ron Reed 1-0 in the eighth inning at Atlanta when Smith smacked a pinch-hit homer and Santo unloaded his 10th home run of the season after an error by Orlando Cepeda.

Holtzman, who has lost only once, became the majors' first 10-game winner with ninth-inning help from Phil Regan as the Cubs nailed their eighth victory in the last nine games.

Ted Sizemore lashed a bases-loaded single with two out in the ninth, carrying right-hander Don Sutton and the Dodgers past the Phillies, who have lost nine in a row.

Sutton, 34, scattered seven hits in a duel with Woody Fryman. Houston's victory over the Pirates was marred by a third-inning collision between shortstop Hector Torres and left fielder Jesus Alou that sent both Astros to a hospital—Alou with a severe concussion and Torres with facial cuts and bruises.

Al Oliver's short fly ball to left went for an inside-the-park homer when Torres and Alou ran together. They were carried off the field on stretchers and taken to hospital.

BROCK STARTS RALLY — Lou Brock launched a four-run St. Louis burst in the first inning with a homer and scored the deciding run on Vada Pinson's eighth-inning double after singling off reliever Clay Carroll and stealing his 28th base in 28th attempts.

Bob Gibson survived eight Cincinnati hits, including a homer by Bob Tolson, for his eighth victory in 11 decisions.

The Expos, who snapped a 20-game losing streak at Los Angeles Sunday, struck for three runs with two out in the ninth at San Diego. Don Bosch doubling home a pair to break a 4-4 tie and scoring on Maury Wills' single.

Mack Jones drove in three Montreal runs with a double and his 11th homer. Ed Spiezio slammed two homers and Nate Colbert one for the Padres.

NHL fathers continue move toward league's expansion

Campbell said Tuesday night the league's expansion committee will bring in a preliminary report today and will probably recommend a full-scale meeting to consider league enlargement and re-alignment be set for New York, June 25.

He had indicated earlier that the addition of two more franchises will necessitate the geographic re-alignment of the East and West divisions.

Vancouver and Baltimore had been considered the top prospects to gain the new franchises for 1970-71, but Nick Mileti, owner of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, has been attending these sessions and is making a strong pitch on behalf of his city.

Representatives of the club owners and the players committee, headed by Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson, held a second meeting Tuesday in what promises to be a full-scale battle.

The players' group is attempting to have the reserve clause abolished from its standard players' contracts and the option clause substituted.

Eagleson admitted after the second session that "each side gave a little today and agreed to further meetings" with a joint statement expected sometime today.

The intra-league draft, a further nudge toward additional expansion, and continued meetings between the owner and player representatives feature today's sessions of the National Hockey League's annual meetings.

The intra-league draft is an internal affair where the 12 big league clubs draft from each other after each has filed a protected list of 14 players, plus two goalkeepers. The draft price is $30,000 and the rules stipulate that no club can have more than three draft claims against it.

Tuesday night the clubs each filed their protected list with league president Clarence Campbell. The combined lists contained several surprises.

Such well known names as Dick Duff of Montreal Canadiens, Pierre Pilote, Marcel Pronovost and Floyd Smith of Toronto Maple Leafs, Dean Prentice and goalie Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings, Eric Nesterenko of Chicago Black Hawks and Elmer Vasko and Leo Boivin of Minnesota North Stars were missing from the sheltered circle.

On the other hand the Wings listed the name of Carl Brewer as a protected player.

Brewer, a former all-star defenceman with Toronto went into voluntary retirement and regained his amateur status after the 1964-65 season. He recently signed with the Wings as part of an old Toronto-Detroit deal.

Both sides have agreed to a further two-day meeting in Toronto July 15-16.

ET meet will be continued

The Y's Men's Club of Sherbrooke has announced that it plans to hold its annual school Track Meet again next year.

A great deal of doubt arose over the divisional problems presented by the Regional High School in Lennoxville. This school will eliminate a large number of the individual schools which were entered in this year's competition. It will leave a total of three regional schools operating in the Eastern Townships as well as a number of small private schools.

Y's Men's representative Bob Jarjour said that a number of changes will be made in the structure of the meet. He said that further details concerning these changes will be worked out later in the year after consultation with the schools involved.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

I find that during my best periods of concentration, I'm actually utilizing a cliché that football coaches like to throw into their conversations.

I am, I discovered, hitting them one at a time.

Concentration breaks down mainly because the golfer is not thinking entirely about the golf ball at his feet. Maybe he's thinking about the hole ahead or a putt that lipped the cup 20 minutes ago. Whatever he's doing, he's probably not thinking about the one shot at hand—as though it were the only shot he had to hit all day.

You can't concentrate on an entire situation. You can't say, "I'm going to concentrate from No. 1 to No. 18 today, no matter what happens," because that takes you away from the subject at hand—the golf ball.

I go up to each shot as though it were the only one

I had to hit—as though my entire career rested on its success. I don't care what it is, whether it's a six-inch putt or a drive into a 20-acre field, all of my attention is focused on the one shot.

On the putting greens, there are times when I can block out everything around me except the ball and the hole for up to 15 seconds. Everything else seems to disappear.

It comes from concentration. It comes from playing each shot individually. And, more important to me, I guess, it works.
