Police investigating plot to assassinate Nixon

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Federal and city law enforcement officials are saying little publicly about a "possible conspiracy" to assassinate President Nixon during a brief visit here.

One federal source close to the investigation of the alleged plot said Monday it should be taken seriously even though nothing happened.

"It's something you shouldn't pooh-pooh," he said. "You'll just have to watch developments of the next few days."

But a source in the New Orleans police department commented: "This is going to be another one of those investigations which just drags on forever. I think it's been badly blown out of proportion."

Both sources declined to use their names.

Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso said: "For approximately one week, we have been working on an attempt to assassinate the president. But as of now, we do not have sufficient evidence to put this in perspective."

Gaudet, charging that he threatened Nixon's life in comments made in a drugstore last week.

CES strike still on

SHERBROOKE (CC) — The strike by more than 400 employees of Combustion Engineering-Superheater in Sherbrooke continued yesterday with no sign of an agreement in sight.

The strikers dug in yesterday adding telephones and other items to the picket lines which were set up in front of the Roy street plant over the weekend.

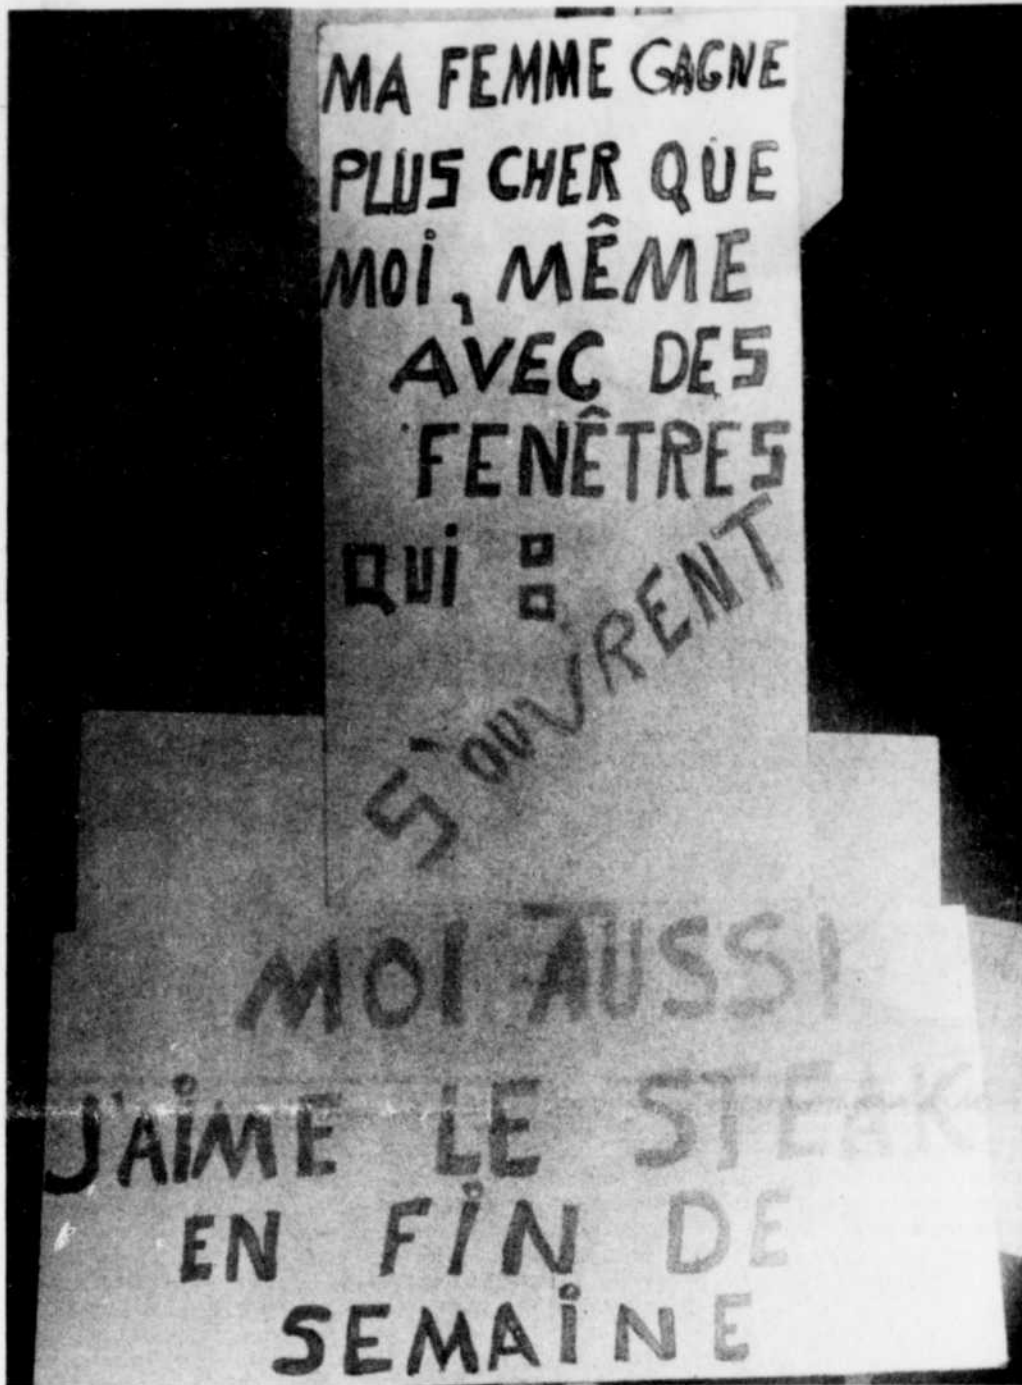

Union spokesman Gerald Lapointe said yesterday the men were willing to man the picket lines for as long as needed. The main stumbling blocks to settling the first strike in the company's Sherbrooke history are salary, job security and job subcontracting.

The union has asked for $0.73 an hour over two years or an approximately 20 per cent raise.

Employees voted nearly 100 percent in favour of strike action according to Mr. Lapointe.

Only last year company management and employees had joined together for an evening of enjoyment to celebrate 25 years of unionization at the plant. Both company officials and union leaders lauded the great relationship that existed between the company and the union.

To prove their point both sides noted that the company had not suffered a strike during those 25 years.

THE SIGNS TELL THE STORY — Workers at Combustion Engineering-Superheater continued picketing yesterday with no break foreseen in the strike. Prior to the current strike, the company hadn't suffered a walk-out in the 25 years there has been a union at the plant.

Brenda Mexico bound

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Hurricane Brenda bore down on the southeastern coast of Mexico early today after reversing her course.

At 3 a.m. EDT, the National Hurricane Centre in Miami said Brenda's centre was about 25 miles north-northwest of Ciudad del Carmen, a small port on the southwestern flank of the Yucatan peninsula.

The centre said the storm was drifting erratically toward the south-southwest and was expected to cross the coast a short distance west of Carmen during the morning. But it added: "Since the motion of the hurricane has been slow and erratic, the possibility exists that the centre may hesitate near the coast today rather than proceeding inland."

The hurricane is the second of the season.

In its progress through the Gulf of Campeche, Brenda generated gales for 150 miles to the north of the storm centre and for 75 miles to the south. Heavy rains that could cause dangerous floods were predicted for the coastal areas and northern slopes of the mountains behind the coast.

More people

SHERBROOKE (CC) — If attendance is any criterion the quality of the Sherbrooke Fair in 1973 is much better than the one offered the public in 1972.

Over the weekend the attendance at the fair was 36,137. For the same period last year the attendance was only 31,379. The net difference so far this year is nearly 5,000.

120,000 acres under fire

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — New blazes broke out Monday in the parched northwestern United States where more than 10,000 men already were struggling to control about 40 major forest and brush fires, most of them caused by man.

The earlier blazes spread over 120,000 acres and destroyed enough timber to build thousands of houses.

The most threatening new fire Monday was at Pine Creek in the Boise National Forest in southwestern Idaho.

"It's 1,000 acres and rolling," said Dick Klade of the federal Interagency Fire Control Centre in Boise.

Another new fire was reported spread over 1,500 acres at Clear Lake, Calif., near Ukiah.

Workers made good headway against several of the fires that started last week, but some of the blazes remained out of control, especially in California and Montana.

"Veteran fire fighters say this is as bad as anything in 18 or 20 years," Klade said.

"And the weather is getting warmer with no prediction of any significant precipitation."

Officials said regional forecasts predicted dry lightning.

Since Wednesday, Klade reported, about 123,000 acres—192 square miles—of forest and range land have been blackened or are still in flames. Sixteen fires covering 94,700 acres are still out of control, Klade said.

Klade said a majority of the fires have been man-caused and arson is suspected in California and some of the northern blazes. But he said no suspects have been apprehended and he did not know what evidence suggested arson.

Blazes known to have started by accident include the Rocky fire in Mount Hood National Forest, now controlled after enveloping 7,500 acres. Klade said that fire started when hydraulic fluid leaked from a logging vehicle and ignited.

Klade said earlier reports that more than 156,000 acres have burned were based on incorrect estimates.

Men were being flown from fire to fire throughout the region by 30 government and commercial aircraft. During the weekend the fire centre moved 128,000 pounds of cargo and 740 fire fighters.

CRITICAL IN CALIF.

"Northern California appears to be the real critical area at this moment," Klade said.

ICAO raps Israel

MONTREAL (CP) — The general council of the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) passed a unanimous resolution Monday condemning Israel for the Aug. 10 diversion of a Lebanese civil aircraft.

ICAO said in a statement the resolution was passed by a show of hands at a special meeting of delegates of 28 of the 30 countries which sit on the council. Nicaragua and Nigeria were not present.

ICAO, a special agency of the United Nations, has 128 member countries.

The meeting was requested by the Lebanese government after Israeli military aircraft intercepted a Lebanese civil aircraft, under charter to Iraqi Airways, near Beirut, and forced it to fly to Israel and land at a military base.

Israeli spokesmen later said the flight was intercepted because intelligence reports indicated leaders of Palestinian terrorist groups were aboard.

The plane, passengers and crew were later released.

On Aug. 15, the United Nations security council in New York voted to condemn Israel for the act, but invoked no sanctions.

Another serious situation continued in Montana, where the 4,960-acre Caribou Mountain fire in the Kootenai National Forest spread into Canada. Approximately 600 men were on the scene.

That blaze threatened Yosemite earlier but a granite ridge kept flames from the park.

However two new fires broke out Monday near Redding and Cleveland, Calif.

Major trouble spots there, he said, are a 12,000-acre blaze in the Stanislaus National Forest near Yosemite National Park and a 5,500-acre fire in the Eldorado National Forest north-east of Sacramento.

Estimates on the loss of timber are unavailable, Klade said, but the Stanislaus fire alone has consumed 28 million board feet—enough for 2,800 three-bedroom houses.

DETAILS SECRET

Giarrusso refused to say whether an organized group was involved or why the conspirators wanted to kill Nixon.

The alleged assassination conspiracy prompted Nixon to cancel a five-block motorcade down Canal Street Monday as he arrived here to speak before the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Instead, the president went directly from the airport to the Rivergate Convention Centre.

Meanwhile, the Secret Service filed a warrant against former New Orleans policeman Edwin McGrath, charging that he threatened Nixon's life in comments made in a drugstore last week.

Secret Service agents said they exchanged gunfire Monday night near Arroyo Hondo, N.M., with a man they believed to be Gaudet, 29.

Authorities said they had no reason to connect Gaudet with the alleged assassination conspiracy.

ROUTE CHANGED

The Secret Service said it uncovered a "possible conspiracy to assassinate the president" and that he agreed to change his route into the city.

But when he arrived at the Rivergate without incident,

Nixon mingled briefly with a crowd gathered outside the building.

Minutes later, he drew cheers from about 4,500 members of the VFW as he acknowledged for the first time he had ordered the secret bombing of Cambodia in 1969.

Gaudet was arrested for throwing a burning flag on the hood of Nixon's car here in 1970. He also was arrested for another flag desecration in 1970.

He was involved in a French Quarter bar fight in 1967 in which his pistol was discharged. He was suspended following the incident and was allowed to resign from the police force after a disciplinary hearing.

Cities hit hardest by soaring food prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Climbing food prices soared even higher in eight Canadian cities in July. Statistics Canada reported Monday, and a Progressive Conservative MP called for a special session of Parliament to deal with the problem.

The national report on living costs for July, issued earlier, said over-all consumer prices rose nine-tenths of one per cent and food costs—including groceries and restaurant meals—rose 1.9 per cent.

Monday's report said food prices rose more steeply in some cities, with St. John's Nfld., up 2.8 per cent; Halifax 2.3 per cent; Saint John N.B., 2 per cent; Quebec City 2.5 per cent; Montreal 2.7 per cent; Ottawa 1.8 per cent; Thunder Bay 2.3 per cent and Winnipeg 2.3 per cent.

The national report also separated grocery prices which rose 2.2 per cent, and restaurant meals, which rose five-tenths of one per cent. The report on the 12 regional cities does not separate grocery and restaurant prices.

Four cities had steeper hikes in over-all living costs—including food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care and recreation.

HIGHER THAN AVERAGE

The four were Quebec City, Montreal and Thunder Bay with 1.1 per cent, each, and Ottawa with one per cent.

Three cities that matched the national rise were St. John's, Halifax and Winnipeg. The indices measure movements in prices within the specified community and cannot be used to compare price levels between cities.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) called for the special session of Parliament.

"When the food index for most cities in the Maritimes and central Canada again advances two per cent or more in one month with similar increases reflected in most western cities, then it is time for the government to act," he said.

He said the Liberal government's food price review board, headed by Beryl Plumptre, is "incapable" of dealing with the food price hikes.

"Only Parliament can deal with this national problem and it must be recalled," Mr. McGrath said.

Statistics Canada gave these regional details on July living costs:

St. John's: Living costs rose nine-tenths of one per cent, up 7.6 per cent over the past year in comparison with the national figure of 7.7 per cent, and food up 2.8 per cent for the month.

"Prices were higher for meat, poultry, fresh produce and eggs. Some foods, including fresh milk, sugar, processed fruit and tea, were lower in price." Housing and recreation costs were also up, while clothing prices declined.

Halifax: Living costs were up nine-tenths of one per cent and were up seven per cent over the year. Food was 2.3 per cent higher for the month.

"Quotations were higher for most meat, fresh produce, dairy products, eggs, sugar and restaurant meals. Housing rose seven-tenths of one per cent.

Clothing moved up four-tenths. Recreation and transportation costs were also higher.

Saint John: Living costs rose six-tenths of one per cent and were up 7.3 per cent from a year earlier. Food was up two per cent for the month.

"Prices were higher for meat, fresh produce, eggs, processed fruit and restaurant food. They were lower for bread, sugar, fats and oils." Housing rose three-tenths of one per cent, health and personal care dropped four-tenths. Recreation costs rose 1.3 per cent.

Quebec City: Living costs rose 1.1 per cent and were 7.8 per cent above a year earlier. "The food index increased 2.5 per cent mainly because of higher prices for meat, poultry, fresh fruit and vegetables, eggs and coffee.

Housing moved up five-tenths of one per cent in response to increased telephone rates and higher costs for tenancy and home ownership." Recreation costs rose 2.1 per cent, transportation 1.3 per cent, and clothing prices declined three-tenths of one per cent. Health and personal care dropped two-tenths.

NDP caucus plots living-costs action

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat MPs plotted action aimed at easing living costs Monday, working on a plan to withdraw support of the minority Liberal government if their latest list of demands is not met.

Leader David Lewis said after caucus discussions with 25 of his 31-member parliamentary group that the program would be announced after a morning meeting today.

There had been "wide support" for policy statements made at the party's July convention in Vancouver that the NDP press for a prices review board with power to roll back some price increases.

But the theme of the caucus discussion centred more around timing than the policies themselves, sources said. The question was not so much "what action to take, but when to take action."

Mr. Lewis, the only caucus member willing to comment at all after the six-hour meeting, refused to go into details, saying all would come clear in the statement today.

The program likely will not vary widely from the party positions worked out earlier this summer in Vancouver.

"We have no authority to reject the Vancouver policy statements," Mr. Lewis told reporters.

WAITING OUTCOME

The party, in part, was waiting for the outcome of the latest round of discussions between the government, railways and Associated Non-Operating Railway Unions before making its statement, other sources said.

Should that dispute end without parliamentary interference, there would be eight weeks before the scheduled resumption of Parliament Oct. 15 in which the government would have an opportunity to meet their demands.

Mr. Lewis said the caucus discussed a number of problems at the meeting, including the cost of living, "more particularly, escalating food prices," and the sectors of the economy most hurt by increased costs.

He said he had no doubt that all members of the caucus would support the party program when it was announced.

Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo), entering the meeting, said he did not think there was a split between the MPs on the question on continuing support for the government, but that there was one between the elected members and other card-carrying New Democrats.

SUPPORT CONTINUES

While party people appeared ready to pull the rug out from under the government, MPs continued to support the idea of using the NDP's balance-of-power position in the minority House to wrest progressive legislation from the government.

Bill Knight (NDP—Assiniboia) said constituents in his riding wanted the party to keep the government where it was and "squeeze it for all it's worth."

Lorne Nystrom, from the nearby Saskatchewan riding of Yorkton-Melville, agreed, saying the NDP was "better off to use our leverage to toughen up things like the food prices review board."

And Arnold Peters (Timiskaming) added that the party would not likely decide to withdraw support from the government "no matter what."

Rail talks stopped

OTTAWA (CP) — Rail strike negotiations broke off at 1:15 this morning following a six-hour closed session presided over by Labor Minister John Munro. The negotiators were to resume talks at 10 a.m. EDT today.

No details of the progress of the talks were made available but Mr. Munro reiterated his determination to reach a settlement soon.

Mr. Munro met representatives of the non-operating rail workers following a four-hour session alone with officials of Canadian National Railways and CP Rail.

Shortly before the sessions started Mr. Munro told reporters, "We're here to get a settlement."

It was thought the sessions with management were to reach a compromise on possible federal support in meeting the costs of a settlement.

Higher freight rates have been ruled out by the government, but the possibility of subsidies remained.

AGREE TO ATTEND

The unions representing the 56,000 non-operating rail workers have agreed to attend sessions "as long as there is progress." However, the union continued the rotating strikes it began July 26.

Workers in the Atlantic provinces were to walk off the job at 6 a.m. local time today, while workers in Alberta, British Columbia and the Northwest Territories went out for 48 hours at midnight Monday night.

Workers in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and northwestern Ontario returned to work at midnight Monday.

There will be no CP Rail services in the Maritimes today and Wednesday. The Dominion Atlantic-Railway passenger services linking Halifax, Kentville, Digby and Yarmouth will resume Thursday.

No progress in mill strikes

The strike has stopped all CIP and Price shipments.

A CIP spokesman said there has been no change in the dispute since talks broke off Aug. 2.

A spokesman for the UPIU, which is engaged in contract talks with a number of other newsprint producers across Canada, said "to date it seems that all the manufacturers are maintaining a very rigid line" in the talks.

A CNTU spokesman in Quebec City said the situation at the Price mills is quiet and no negotiation meetings are planned for the moment.

The CIP employees are seeking a two-year contract with a 40-cent hourly wage increase in the first year and a nine-per-cent increase, which ever is greater, in the second year. Current basic wages at the mills is $3.85 an hour.

The CNTU workers at the Price mills are reported to be seeking a similar settlement.

CIP, a wholly-owned subsidiary of International Paper of New York, has offered a total 18-per-cent increase over a three-year contract.

The strikes have forced some U.S. and Canadian newspapers supplied by the mills to reduce editions because of a lack of newsprint and have forced the cancellation of the Sept. 1 edition of four weekly color-supplement magazines carried in Canadian newspapers.

The CIP employees are seeking a two-year contract with a 40-cent hourly wage increase in the first year and a nine-per-cent increase, which ever is greater, in the second year. Current basic wages at the mills is $3.85 an hour.

Plea made for rationalism in sporting goods industry

TORONTO (CP) — Emil Solomon is romancing the Canadian sporting goods industry with a plea for rationalism and a quality product that he feels is destined to supplant established imported equipment.

The 48-year-old Dutch-born industrialist who started Pony Sporting Goods Ltd. on a shoestring in 1966 feels the only problem before the organization reaches the top is facilities to produce on a larger scale.

"We've had to turn down huge orders because we just can't keep up with the demand," said Solomon, who says he's "fanatically Canadian."

Pony, incorporated in 1971 on good faith and a sizeable bank loan, has already grown too large for the quarters it moved into just six months ago.

Future expansion calls for another 18,000 square feet of working space in the same building, housing a one-time shoe factory, and a new factory of 30,000 square feet being built at Campbellford, Ont.

Solomon said he has been able to gather around him experienced professionals.

GAVE UP SECURITY

Production manager Dick Huyck had no hesitation giving up security with one of Canada's top shoe manufacturers to work with Solomon and his host of associates and partners.

Blackie Johnston, former assistant coach to Leo Cahill with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, thought so highly of the Pony organization he turned down several coaching offers to remain as head of sales and promotion.

Pony today specializes in boots and shoes for all sports, from jogging to soccer, tennis to football, and at the blue-print stage is a hockey boot that Huyck feels will revolutionize the market.

Solomon believes in retaining experts in their fields to smooth over some of the flaws that might creep into his own designs.

Boston Bruin defenceman Bobby Orr lends his prestige and expertise to the Pony industry through his lawyer Alan Eagleson and Bobby Orr Enterprises.

Argos quarterback Joe Theismann is another consultant as is Harry Fauquier, captain of Canada's Davis Cup tennis team.

"If you get good men around you, that's half the battle," Solomon says. "If you want to make a good show, you have to get the best."

MAKES GOOD PRODUCT

Getting the best doesn't hold just to personnel. Solomon says the one way to get the Canadian market is to put out a competitive product that surpasses anything else.

"We're not stinting on anything, now or at any time. That includes the leather that we use, the inner soles that you can see and the finished product."

Proud as he is of the way the boots are selling—"If I could produce 20,000 a day I'd be able to sell them"—Solomon is just as high on other Pony products.

Soccer and tennis outfits and equipment, "made of the best quality Canadian-manufactured and made material," are making inroads on markets previously held exclusively by imported products.

Solomon declines to be specific about figures lest it give competitors a real indication of just how much of the market the company now has.

"But I'll let you know that we have 36 more salesmen starting across Canada with us Aug. 1, so that should be a pretty fair indication of just how far we have progressed," he said.

He had no idea in the mid-1960s that what started as an honest desire to help develop soccer at his son's school would turn into a thriving business "where the sky is the limit."

"No one at the school could play soccer so my wife suggested that perhaps I could help since I played a lot of soccer at home in Holland," Solomon said.

Talks with the principal at Golf Road public school led to classes where Solomon taught soccer theory two days a week and culminated with two city championships for the school.

FOUND PROFITABLE

It also launched an import business out of the family basement when Solomon discovered he could make a living selling soccer uniforms and equipment at a modest profit.

"We had trouble getting proper shoes for the school soccer team and we were using hockey sweaters because there was nothing else to use. It was too costly to outfit the boys properly."

"I wrote home to some contacts in Holland and they provided the complete uniforms for $11 each. I sold it to the boys for $15. The parents were only too happy to pay it and I got a modest profit of $4."

"That's what got me started in the import business."

While he keyed on European contacts for his suits and equipment," Solomon looked for a Canadian-made soccer boot that was within the price range of Canadian youngsters.

"I found the import of good soccer shoes was 100 per cent."

"I woke up one night and thought, 'Could I get shelf space with Canadian shoes?'"

Solomon said many of the smaller stores he dealt with encouraged him, and he talked to several shoe manufacturers who admitted thinking along the same line but it was just "lots of promises and I got frustrated."

"MAKE YOUR OWN"

"Then my wife suggested 'Why don't you make your own shoe?' So we did," Solomon went to a small shoe manufacturer, had him make one shoe to specifications and "sold $50,000 in orders in one week" visiting stores in Toronto.

"I saw the market, but the manufacturer just couldn't keep up with production."

That led to his book-up with the Eagleson-Orr group which purchased the shoe firm that was already handling his account and put it on a paying basis by installing up-to-date equipment and hiring about 100 full-time staff.

The Unity Bank of Canada, which saw enough in Solomon's scheme to loan the money to get started and since has been repaid in full, has bought a minority 17-per cent interest in Pony and has its president, Richard Higgins, and assistant general manager, Robert D. Bonnell, sitting on the company's board.

Unemployed youths given useful jobs

LONDON (CP) — Teen-agers who are unable to find work on leaving school in industrial areas of Britain hard hit by unemployment now have the opportunity of doing a socially useful job in a government project called Community Industry.

Sponsored by the employment department in 1971 with an initial budget of 500,000 pounds ($1.25 million) and operated in the field by officials of the National Association of Youth Clubs, the project gives unemployed school-leavers paid jobs for at least a year. Pay rises on an age scale from 9.85 pounds ($24.62) weekly at 16 to 13.43 pounds ($33.58) at 18.

The object is to build the youngsters' self-confidence towards obtaining permanent work, and make them better fitted for jobs in industry and accomplish tasks of benefit to the community which otherwise might not be carried out.

In Glasgow, Britain's blackest spot for unemployment since the decline of shipbuilding, teams of 17-year-old youths have turned a disused church into a centre for disabled drivers and converted two other old buildings into night shelters for down-and-outs.

Teen-age girls in the scheme have decorated the homes of 300 old-age pensioners, cared for the chronic sick and assisted at day nurseries.

On Tees-side, the industrial swath of northeast England centred on the port of Middlesbrough, boys and girls are assigned to specialized squads doing carpentry, bricklaying and so on.

Working under "skilled consultants", as do all the area teams—older men, often unemployed themselves—these squads have accomplished some advanced projects. One, recently featured on a national television program, was the refitting of Britain's last paddle-driven tug for renewed service as a pleasure-steamer.

Altogether about 150 projects have been completed and another 70 are under way in six other areas of Scotland and northern England. They range from landscaping parks and playgrounds to renovating furniture for needy families and providing road-safety instruction for schools.

EXPAND SCHEME

The government plans to expand the scheme into nine more areas within the next few months and to increase the number of job places to 2,000 from 550, financed by a further 1.3 million ($3.25 million) of public money.

Although primarily devised to alleviate the damaging effect of teen-age unemployment, the project may also be extended into areas such as London where jobs are plentiful but where many youngsters still encounter problems adjusting to a working life.

Since the scheme began in Glasgow 13 months ago, more than half the 80 original youngsters have found jobs and apprenticeships, chiefly in the building trades. Notably, there has been no gang warfare on Community Industry sites of the kind for which the tough city on the Clyde is notorious.

"Of course, we don't know how many would have got jobs anyway, with or without Community Industry," says youth club official Bill Hawthorn, area manager for Glasgow.

SOLD ON IDEA

But he declares himself "sold on the scheme" because it "gives these youngsters dignity" and helps alleviate the hopelessness and anti-social attitudes so often bred with a school-leaver's first taste of unemployment.

Jack Eaton, area manager of the Tees-side scheme, says his 16-18 year-olds have been out of work an average 10-14 months before they join Community Industry.

"Some come in with a chip on their shoulder and we have to work to get that off," says Eaton. Like Hawthorn, however, he maintains there are comparatively few personality problems, with only a handful of youths fired for repeated indiscipline.

ELDERS HELP

Part of the secret seems the system of skilled consultants, who act as father-figures as well as craftsmen handing on their skills. One of the most encouraging things, say the organizers, is the quality of the work these generally low-talented youngsters are capable of doing.

"We anticipated that menial tasks would be all some of them could do," says Hawthorn. "But some of the work undertaken has been very good."

Although youth unemployment generally in Britain has fallen since the government raised the school-leaving age last year to 16 from 15, officials expect a hard core will always remain. In Glasgow they put this hard core at around half the present level of 1,400 jobless school-leavers

PSST, HEARD THIS STORY — CP Air stewardess Vicki Cowan gets the inside story about a remarkable Canada Goose conservation program on Canada's Pacific coast. The seven-week-old Canada Goose was among 250 airlifted to Vancouver for a project of the Pitt Waterfowl Management Association. President R.B. Trethewey confirmed the gosling's report that the two-year-old program will have introduced some 500 Canada geese to the area by summer's end. Sportsmen and other interested persons contribute about $10 per bird to cover related costs. The goslings are distributed to selected farms where they are kept in enclosures until they reach breeding maturity at the age of three. Then they will be released to nest in the area, or where they please. The association obtained this shipment of goslings from the Ontario Waterfowl Research Foundation in Guelph, Ontario, through the co-operation of the Canadian Wildlife Service and Ducks Unlimited (Canada). CP Air, the Vancouver-based international airline which aided in the unusual airlift, had the Canada Goose as its corporate emblem for many years.

Steam overdose turns woman sex-hungry

ORANGE, Calif. (Reuter) — A mother of eight has sued a local health spa chain for $1 million, claiming that steam burns she received while locked in a sauna bath turned her into a "sex-hungry nymphomaniac."

Maria Parson, 46, claimed in her Superior Court suit that as a result of the incident in the steam room three years ago, she has begun compulsively picking up men in bars. Her lawyer, Marvin Lewis of San Francisco, said that before the incident in the Orange branch of the Holiday health spa chain, Mrs. Parson was a "devout Catholic mother of eight."

"Now the best thing you can call her is a sex-hungry nymphomaniac," Lewis stated. Mrs. Parson said she was in the steam room when it became too hot. Trying to open the door, she broke off the handle and as a consequence of being trapped, received steam burns.

DRAWN TO STRANGERS

As a result of the incident, her suit said, she developed extreme sexual tendencies and has since made advances to a dozen to two dozen men in local bars.

Her affidavit also contained a statement by psychiatrist Dr. Deane Benton of Santa Ana, Calif., who said:

"Mrs. Parson said she has developed sex feelings for complete strangers. These feelings often took control when she was sitting near men in bars."

Benton said Mrs. Parson told him she previously had good sexual relations with her husband Bruce, but sex with him now is "a chore."

Lewis said her husband once had to take her to Mexico to get her away from a man she picked up in a bar.

Non-stop talker traps service-men

Dear Ann Landers: I am in charge of maintenance for a large luxury apartment building in this city. The problem is a well-heeled widow in her early 60s. We have a record of her "requests" for service and last month she called 42 times. This month her requests will exceed that number.

She asks for someone to come up and move a piece of furniture, replace a light bulb, repair a leaky faucet, check the intercom system, "do something" about her TV reception, "do something" about her noisy refrigerator, "do something" about the draft from the windows, etc.

When the men go up there they have a devil of a time getting out. She always has the table set for two and asks them to sit down for coffee and a sweet. Yesterday she invited the window washer to stay for lunch.

This morning the electrician told me he is sure she disconnects and unscrews things so she can call somebody to come and fix it. What can be done about her? She's a non-stop talker and nobody wants to go up there.—Big J

Dear J: The poor lady is lonely but it is not up to the building to supply companionship for widows.

Tell her she is entitled to X number of service calls a month and after that she will have to hire outside help.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 18-year-old daughter is in love with a boy whose past reads like a nightmare. Broken home, stealing, reform school, drugs and alcohol. She was a fine girl until she met this boy, but for the past two years her life has consisted of lies, evasions, crying and nerves.

Now that she is through high school I wonder if we should stop fighting this thing and let her go with him. She has continued to see him on the sneak and we know it. We can't discuss it anymore. If the subject is brought up she says, "It's my life and no one can tell me how to live it."

She is an intelligent girl and has plans for college. His future is very unpromising. He couldn't get into any college even if he wanted to, which he doesn't. His present job consists of sweeping floors.

There is no end to the heartache caused by her mad passion for this boy. Her brothers, both older, have tried to talk to her. Her friends have tried to make her see the problems she will face if she continues to go with him.

Nothing seems to help. Seeking professional help is not the answer. We tried that, too. Should we give up and let her go with him freely so that the forbidden does not seem so magical?—Another Sad Mother

Dear Mother: A girl 18 is old enough to pick her own friends. My guess is that when you stop attacking her selection she will no longer need to defend it. This is often the case with girls who take up with undesirable company. She'll probably drop him when she feels she can do so of her own volition and not because you want her to.

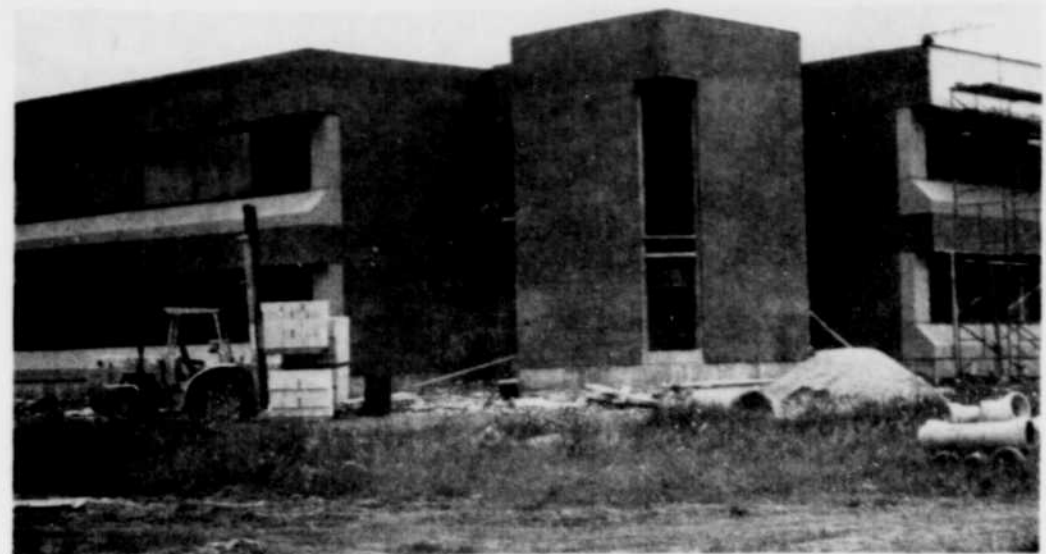

Annie Old Kid: Here we go again. I refer to your nutty views on guns. I have hunted since I was 12. I have never shot a gun carelessly or caused an animal to suffer. Some of the beef you eat was the result of a smack between the eyes with a sledge hammer, or a knife through the jugular.

Give us hunters equal time. Don't take our guns away.—Michigan

Dear Mich: Relax, Sport. I don't want your hunting guns. I'm after the Saturday night specials — the hand-guns that are killing thousands of innocent people. Those are the murder weapons I'd like to see melted into scrap iron.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What To Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Information Centre: The lowdown on Quebec's English CEGEPs

THE NEW ST. LAMBERT CAMPUS OF CHAMPLAIN REGIONAL COLLEGE UNDER CONSTRUCTION DURING THE MONTH OF JULY.

THE SNOWDON CAMPUS OF VANIER COLLEGE UNDER CONSTRUCTION DURING THE MONTH OF JULY ON DECARIE BLVD. NEAR QUEEN MARY ROAD.

MONTREAL — The CEGEP Information Centre is an organization of English-language CEGEPs designed to provide a central voice for the colleges of which it is comprised.

Since its inception in April 1972, the centre has attempted to achieve three purposes. To inform high school students, teachers and principals of the nature of collegial education, and college students, faculties and administrators about secondary education; to improve relations with the public in such a way that understanding of CEGEPs is increased, and to undertake to best serve the community through aligning itself with businesses and chambers of commerce.

The following press release was written by the centre on behalf of its constituent members: Champlain Regional College, Dawson College, John Abbott College, Marianopolis College, and Vanier College.

There are now over 3,400 students enrolled in the career programmes offered by the English CEGEPs. Prior to 1969, and the establishment of the English CEGEP system, only 400 places existed for English students of this Province who wanted post-secondary training in a career or technological area. This training was provided by the primarily French-language Montreal and Laval Institutes of Technology.

As a result of this limitation, post-secondary career programmes are a new and unfamiliar kind of educational stream for most English Quebecers.

They offer students advanced training in a number of areas: the area of the biological sciences with programmes such as Nursing, Medical Laboratory Technology, and Dental Hygiene; the physical sciences programmes such as Mechanical and Civil Technology, Electrotechnology, and Chemical Technology; the social service programmes which include Library and Police Technology, Community Recreation Leadership, and Special Care Counselling; the management programmes offering Data Processing, Secretarial Science (two and three-year programmes), and Business Administration with specialized options in marketing, personnel, and finance; and finally the applied arts programmes in Popular Music, Professional Theatre, Ceramics, Commercial Art, Interior Design, and Graphics.

For the most part, the programmes are three years in length and have two principal goals: to provide students with an excellent preparation in the specialized field they have chosen, and to provide them with a good general education which will make them well-rounded individuals capable of adapting to the needs of a changing society.

OPPORTUNITIES GOOD

One of the factors that has probably contributed most to the continued growth of the career programmes is the relative ease with which graduates of most programmes find jobs. The results of a recent questionnaire distributed to the programme coordinators in each of the colleges indicated that many students have jobs waiting for them even before they graduate.

Only two of the 32 programmes offered indicated a lack of jobs readily available: Social Service, where the job market is uncertain due to pending social legislation from Quebec, and the applied arts technologies, where only a limited number of students can be absorbed into the job market each year. In both programmes students are informed of the lack of jobs before registering and then are very carefully screened before being accepted.

Average starting salaries for graduates vary somewhat from one field to another and from one graduate to another. However, salaries generally range from $6,000 to $8,000 annually.

PARENTS RESIST

The marked increase between 1969 and 1973 in the number of students enrolled in career programmes is a clear indication of the need for this kind of education and of the interest students are showing in it.

Nevertheless, parent reaction to the suggestion that their son or daughter apply for a career programme is often negative. Parents still believe that taking a career programme is some kind of indication that their child cannot make the university grade. Whether or not a student attends university is still seen by many as a measurement of social status.

In actual fact, there is no basis for this assumption. The entrance requirements to many of the CEGEP career programmes are just as demanding as the requirements of most of the pre-university programmes.

However, many parents also advise their children against these programmes because they fear closing the doors on future study and the opportunities which that kind of study can afford. For most programmes this fear is unfounded.

Although it is true that the career programmes are all designed to prepare students for the working world rather than university, many programmes provide students with a theoretical background strong enough to continue their studies with relatively little make-up time involved.

The majority of the physical sciences, social service, management, and applied arts programmes can be continued at university.

THE FUTURE

There is little doubt that career programmes will continue to attract large numbers of students because they provide an education that is both practical and theoretic. However, as they become more firmly established in the CEGEPs and more easily accepted by parents, questions will arise which will have to be answered if these programmes are to retain their value.

— Should the CEGEPs be offering programmes to accommodate high school graduates from the technical and vocational area?

— Have the colleges struck the proper balance between a general, liberal education and practical, skill-producing instruction?

— And finally, — Once a programme is established in a college, how do students and teachers retain sufficient contact with industry to assure a programme's relevance in terms of the working world?

Handicapped Sherbrookers go to Quebec

SHERBROOKE — A delegation of representatives of the Sherbrooke Fraternity of the Sick, the Eastern Townships Cerebral Palsy Association, the Sherbrooke Handicapped Recreation Club and the Sherbrooke Association for the Mentally Retarded will be meeting Minister of Social Affairs, Claude Castonguay, in Quebec City, Thursday morning to present him a petition of 10,000 signatures. The purpose of this encounter is to demand that the Quebec government establish an annual guaranteed income policy on behalf of all persons — from 18 years of age to their year of retirement — who, on account of a handicap and of social circumstances, are not in a position to be able to satisfy their own needs. The promoters of this initiative consider essential the adoption of such a policy which should guarantee to all concerned a reasonable and realistic income, an income more in proportion with their real needs, an income which will not oblige them to live in a state of privation as is often presently the case.

Help man in street, bar president says

By MARK PEDERSEN
SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The president-elect of the Canadian Bar association wants lawyers to spend more time on legal problems faced by the man in the street.

E. Neil McKelvey, 48-year-old senior partner in New Brunswick's largest law firm, McKelvey, Macaulay, Machum and Fairweather of Saint John, says people need more legal advice in dealing with the increasing complexity of life.

Mr. McKelvey is national vice-president of the association, and is expected to be elected president during the annual convention at Vancouver next week.

"Generally speaking, the government and government agencies are getting more involved in people's lives," he said in an interview. "There are more things now that require legal advice. The best example of that, of course, is the income tax laws."

In the face of this growth in government activity, he added, lawyers should direct more of their attention to the protection of individual rights.

NEED STREAMLINING

The profession needed "increased productivity," and possible procedures to streamline legal research are expected to be discussed at the annual convention.

One possibility was the use of computers to store information on existing legislation and notable legal precedents. However, Mr. McKelvey believes it would take at least two generations to gather and file the necessary material.

But whether by computer or conventional means, streamlining is needed and the Canadian law information council has been formed with representatives of the bar association, provincial law societies, law schools, law libraries, judges and the federal justice department.

Mr. McKelvey thinks expanded legal services could be brought within reach of average Canadians by introduction of a legal fee insurance scheme similar to private medical insurance plans. Those involved would pay premiums and be insured for legal fees.

British Columbia was in the advanced stages of preparing such a scheme and a similar plan was expected in Ontario. But the bar association might be able to help extend it across the country.

Tall and dark-haired, Mr. McKelvey has a deep tan, acquired on the summer days he spends aboard his 31-foot sloop Quelle Vie with his wife and two sons.

A native of Saint John, he was the only child of a harbor pilot. He decided during high school to become a lawyer. After serving with the Royal Canadian Artillery in Europe during the Second World War, he graduated from Dalhousie law school and returned to Saint John in 1949.

Litigation, labor relations and maritime law have become his specialties.

He is a director of Bell Canada as well as a member of the New Brunswick Barristers Society and a past president of the Saint John Law Society.

He respects the past work of the national bar association in winning amendments to federal legislation and hopes to promote more interest in law reform among Canada's 21,000 lawyers.

The bar association can claim much of the credit for formation of a federal law reform commission and similar bodies in the provinces but response from lawyers to various commission proposals had been "disappointing" so far, he said.

"In this day and age everyone is questioning the law. I think lawyers are more qualified to question than anyone else because they know the problems and they know the right questions to ask to find the answers."

The goals of the workshop will be to determine the health and social service priorities in the region.

Castonguay to visit

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Officials of the Eastern Townships Health and Social Service Council announced yesterday Social Affairs minister Claude Castonguay will visit the region in September to determine the success of the implementation of Bill 65.

Mr. Castonguay will visit Sherbrooke and review the success of the council so far in the region, Mr. Painchaud said. All the newly elected members of administrative councils of health and social service institutions in the region will be invited to participate in a workshop on that day.

The goals of the workshop will be to determine the health and social service priorities in the region.

Varie recaptured

MONTREAL (JD) — Montreal police captured Jacques Varie, 28, a fugitive from the Cowansville institution.

Varie was taken at 6889 Papineau, Apt. 69, on Saturday night. He fled the penitentiary May 1, accompanied by Jean Robert Lavallee.

He was unarmed and offered no resistance to the squad headed by Detective Sergeant Roger Roche.

Varie was serving seven years on charges of breaking and entering, complicity to commit robberies, qualified robbery, assault with intent to maim and wearing disguises while committing robberies.

Lavallee, 21, who is still at large was serving 15 years on charges of armed robbery, receiving stolen goods and attempted escape.

Industrial day looms (finally)

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Despite numerous snags the city of Sherbrooke will finally hold its industrial day.

City officials announced last May that an industrial day would be held in June to coincide with the inauguration of construction in the city's new industrial park. The local officials withheld naming the date because they were awaiting word on when Premier Robert Bourassa would be available to attend such an event.

Sources close to city officials have said, however, the premier isn't interested in attending the ceremonies. So council, three months later, have decided to go ahead with the event despite the fact Mr. Bourassa will not be there.

The city, which now is organizing the event in collaboration with the Chamber of Commerce, has decided to hold what they term an "industrial meeting" on September 12 — with or without the premier.

The decision has sent Sherbrooke MNA Jean Paul Pepin scurrying after cabinet ministers so that he can save face when the day arrives.

City officials plan to invite more than 500 persons from government and industry for the day. The goal of the activity is to bring new industry to the industrial park.

Rosaire Coutu, president of Sherbrooke city council's industrial commission, announced last week that September 12 was the date. He has been under fire for his inability to get the premier here.

When the day was first planned municipal officials had expected to announce that at least six new industries were building in the industrial park.

Women's centre 'a success'

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — According to Sandra Wood, the Women's Centre has enjoyed a "tremendously successful summer."

The centre, established by women of the Eastern Townships, was organized in the hope of aiding women of the area to do those activities which they may not have found feasible previously.

Operational due to an Opportunities For Youth grant, and located on the Bishop's University campus, the centre attracted women of all ages. The one group not represented, asserted Wood, were teenagers.

The centre's activities included courses in sewing, embroidery, crocheting, basket-weaving, yoga, field trips to places of interest such as the experimental farm and The Pottery and qualified occupation of children.

The centre, in its first year of operation, closed yesterday. Wood was not certain whether the operation would continue in future summers.

Too soon—too late

The nation's harried consumers may note with interest the latest anti-controls argument put forward for our consideration by David Barrett, the premier of British Columbia. According to the West Coast leader, it is now two years too late for Ottawa to consider the imposition of price-wage controls. In his words: "I don't think controls are any longer relevant."

This invites two comments. If it is now too late for controls, which are no longer relevant, there was presumably a time two years ago which was the right time. Controls then would have been relevant. But at that right time, as consumers must surely remember, Mr. Barrett's party with its union allies was leading a most vociferous opposition to controls. Thus we are now being told, in effect, that we missed the bus by the very people who caused us to miss the bus. We are evidently supposed to be grateful.

The second point is that contradictory arguments are now being used simultaneously by the anti-controllers in and out of government to persuade us that nothing effective must be done. For the official view in Ottawa is not that controls are ruled out for all time (we are even told occasionally that the government has contingency plans) but that the time is not yet ripe.

As Herb Gray, the minister of consumer affairs, has been insisting for these many months, we must first have full information. No one surely will deny that the government has been zealous in the pursuit of facts. Not content with its own truth-seeking, it set up a parliamentary committee to dig for information. It then set up the food prices review board, whose chairman has now announced the helpful conclusion that we don't have to buy.

Unfortunately for the researchers (not to mention the consuming public) the facts sought change constantly as the inflation becomes progressively worse. But although the situation has been deteriorating at a rate, as measured by Statistics Canada, which increases from month to month, we are still being warned that controls would be premature, despite the contrary view of Mr. Barrett that the hour is now too late.

It is considered prudent to tackle a small fire before it becomes a major conflagration. The longer inflation runs unchecked the more difficult it will be to restore the situation. But still we are being lulled with the refrain that the time is not yet ripe—that the public is still unready—and, of course, that things are worse in other countries. So they may well be, but if nothing will stir the government but a Latin American inflation, we may indeed come to a time in which relatively moderate measures will be irrelevant to the harsh facts of the crisis.

Agnew's tribulations may help his '76 bid

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — In defence against allegations of political kickbacks, Spiro Agnew has asserted a vice-presidential independence from the White House that few of his predecessors were able to accomplish.

Agnew's political rise or fall will depend on the outcome of the criminal investigation. But if he is cleared, Agnew's stance is likely to strengthen his chances for the presidency in 1976.

By the nature of the office, Agnew, like most before him, has been "the president's man." Now with a crisis of his own, Agnew is going it alone—and in a style that is in marked contrast to President Nixon's handling of the Watergate affair.

The vice-president has opted for an outspoken course of action, despite reported advice from the White House to keep silent.

"I think the vice-president of the United States should stand on his own feet," Agnew declared at an Aug. 8 news conference in which he denounced as "damned lies" charges that he accepted payoffs from private contractors in exchange for government contracts before, during and after he was Maryland governor.

'DEFENDING MYSELF'

"Although I welcome the president's support... I think the office of vice-president is an important enough one that the man has to stand on his own feet, so I'm not spending my time looking around to see who's supporting me," Agnew said. "I'm defending myself."

The comment was prompted by reporters who questioned just how much support Agnew was receiving from the president.

White House spokesmen have said the investigation "does not diminish or change the president's confidence in the vice-president." Other than that, there has been no endorsement such as Nixon gave aides John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman when they resigned in April over the ture of the Watergate scandal.

The White House officials also have denied reports of strained relations between the Nixon and Agnew staffs and that a meeting between the vice-president and Nixon the day before Agnew's news conference was "acrimonious."

Despite the denials, the reports have persisted. Until the Agnew investigation was disclosed, the vice-president was seen less and less in public as his role in this administration diminished.

EXPRESSED REGRET

In a newspaper interview last May, the vice-president expressed regret that he had not been used more during Nixon's second term. "Although I can't say I'm not busy, I think I could be even more productively employed," he said.

A former White House staffer says feuding between the Nixon-Agnew staffs is long standing and originally was inspired by Ehrlichman who stripped Agnew of his liaison role with state and local governments.

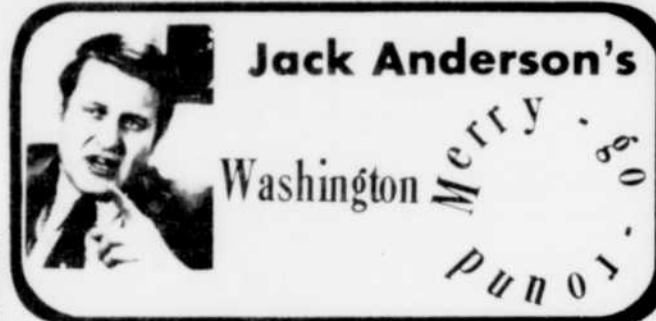

The former staffer, who asked not to be identified, said Haldeman carried it further early this year when he trimmed Agnew's staff 10 per cent, took away his White House office and banished him to a suite in the Executive Office building.

On the surface, at least, Agnew has not let either the internal White House differences or the federal investigation disturb him.

He flew to Denver Wednesday, a day after agreeing to let federal prosecutors examine his personal records and, in a speech to the boiler-makers convention, again demonstrated loyalty to the president.

The president, Agnew declared, won't bow to the condemnation with popularity or glory, but rather with his responsibilities to the country.

The French Connection

WASHINGTON — The aristocrats of the world heroin trade live millionaires' lives in Europe with telephone - equipped Mercedes automobiles and friends in cabinet rooms and mayors' mansions.

The behind-the-scenes activities of these shadowy criminals who manufacture heroin and ship it to the United States are described in detail in a classified Justice Department document. We have obtained a copy of the Department's "French Drug Trafficking Hierarchy" and have stricken the names of the agents and the code numbers of the informers to preserve their anonymity.

Unlike the pathetic and often dangerous addicts who roam U.S. streets, the merchants who supply their demands confine their own intake to American whiskey and London gin.

"There is no single Big Boss of French drug trafficking," the Justice narcotics report asserts. "Rather, as in the case of most legitimate as well as illegal undertakings, small common interest groups are the building blocks of the business."

RAPID GAIN

"On one hand, there are groups with access to morphine base (the semi-finished heroin) laboratory facilities and chemists. Then there are other individuals or groups with the capital to invest for rapid, maximum gain."

The narcotics trade to the United States is presently so lucrative that these financiers, after backing only 10 shipments, can "retire" and then lend out their money to others at "exorbitant interest rates for use in drug or other illicit operations."

The traffickers meet with the financiers "through criminal associations at such places as the 'Trois Canards' (or) Cafe Galvani in Paris... the Royal Bus, a bar in Madrid... Ranch Kentucky, a Marseilles area underworld meeting place (and) the Cravache Bar near the Gagnes race track."

There, despite rings of thug-like protectors, they are under the watchful eyes of French and U.S. "narcs" and informers, and electronic surveillance devices that would make a Waterbugger rattle his bars with jealousy. The "French Connection-style" agents have dogged the traffickers' hand-made shoe prints and produced this roster of the men who make America's drug habit.

— Although some top traffickers are in custody and others are shifting to West Germany, the document identifies a "mysterious Georges" of France as heroin's prime mover. The muscular 50-year-old has been spotted at Paris's posh Plaza Athence hotel and has been seen parked in his phone-equipped tan Mercedes 300 SL before rich, discreet Parisian restaurants.

— Just beneath him the American agents rank a man known only as "Tonton (uncle) Robert," a Corsican with close friendships in the Marseilles mayor's office. At "Uncle Robert's" level, are two others — Pierre "Marseilles Pierrot" Roggerio, a hard-bitten 34-year-old; and Henri Ronesio, who slips into gun running when the drug trade is bearish.

— Before brilliant work by American customs and narcotics agents sent him into disgrace, Andre Hirsch, a 55-year-old Swiss, was one of the most ingenious shippers to the United States. He tried to smuggle in a giant cache packed in Spanish paella — rice and fish — cans, but lost both his heroin and his liberty.

A 'COMER'

A narcotics "comer," according to the report, is Jacques "Strasbourg Jack" Engelhardt, a pal of "Mysterious Georges." He came to the top through his part in a $66 million shipment.

— The Gentleman Jim of the narcotics world, who counts U.S. labor leaders and European ministers and heads of state among his friends, is Maurice Castellani. He is as much at home in New York as in Paris.

Besides these kingpins, there are dozens of other colorful smugglers listed, ranging from printers, to drivers to "Claude Mareau," a mechanic famed for fitting a Lancia car with a hidden compartment in which 160 pounds of pure heroin were smuggled into the United States.

Rich or poor, the Justice Department document casts a cold, businesslike eye on them all. "In essence," concludes the study, "traffickers are like individuals with a saleable commodity. They seek an association with other individuals who can provide services for a mutual profit."

Pork Chop: The Humane Society has chastized the government for using rabbits and a "Horset Miniature Pig weighing 100 pounds" to test wrist slingshots in the Gainesville Eight trial of Vietnam vets.

The government charges the vets planned to use the slingshots to disrupt the 1972 GOP convention. In tests at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology aimed at showing the dangers of the slings, various missiles ruptured a shaved rabbit's stomach wall and penetrated a rabbit's body, but only bruised the doughty pig. The finding: the slings weren't likely to hurt a fully clothed adult unless the missile hit him in the eye, open mouth, ear canal or jugular vein.

Without choosing sides in the trial, the Humane Society, in an angry letter to the Army, said that since the government already knew the slings would "dent pinewood boards... We express our complete disapproval" of using the pig and rabbits for tests.

The Army insisted to us that the animals were anaesthetized, were painlessly killed after the tests and that "unfortunately there is no substitute for living tissue" in such tests.

Democracy with a difference

By PAUL ANAST

ATHENS (AP) — President George Papadopoulos has renewed his pledge to restore the parliamentary system to Greece next year. But it will be considerably different from the democracy his military coup ended six years ago.

"I declare before the Greek nation that I will keep strictly to the announced schedule regarding the stage-by-stage establishment of the democratic order," Papadopoulos pledged Sunday in a broadcast shortly after he was sworn in as president of the new Greek republic at the Orthodox cathedral.

Papadopoulos then went on to make a series of startling announcements:

—The lifting of martial law immediately, the restoration of all civil liberties and the reinstatement of suspended articles of the constitution.

—Amnesty to all political prisoners including Alexander

Panagoulis, serving a life sentence for trying to assassinate Papadopoulos.

—Establishment of a constitutional court to legalize political parties in preparation for election of a parliament next year.

That parliament will not be responsible for defence; the maintenance of public order, meaning the police; or foreign policy. Those are reserved by the republican constitution for the president, the post to which Papadopoulos was elected unopposed in a referendum July 29.

OPPOSED BY PARTIES

There was no indication whether the constitutional court will permit any attempt to revive the parties that existed before the coup, most of whose leaders are bitter opponents of the regime. But it is not likely since Papadopoulos repeatedly has spoken with contempt of the politicians and has said: "The old political world no longer has a place in Greece's political life."

In addition, the president will appoint 20 of the 200 deputies in parliament.

"The new democracy is for all of us," Papadopoulos said in his speech Sunday.

"Differences can exist and are even necessary under the democratic order."

The president's inaugural amnesty applies to all political crimes committed inside Greece since April 21, 1967, the date of the coup. It affects at least 300 persons.

Among those included are persons accused of crimes against the government committed outside the country. These presumably include such well-known exiles as actress Melina Mercouri and newspaper publisher Helen Vlachou, who have carried on vociferous campaigns abroad against the regime.

Papadopoulos did not specify whether the amnesty applies to the 69 accused of taking part in the unsuccessful navy rebellion last spring after which he proclaimed the republic and deposed King Constantine. The king has been an exile in Rome since he tried unsuccessfully to oust the military regime in December, 1967.

The family

35th anniversary

BEEBE — Mr. and Mrs. Alton Wing were asked to attend a cook-out at the home of their son, Allen Wing and family in Stanstead.

On arriving they were presented with a corsage of yellow mums tied with an orange ribbon, to Mrs. Wing, by Mrs. D. Wing. Mrs. R. Wing presented Mr. Wing with a yellow mum corsage, in honor of their 35th wedding anniversary.

Taken by complete surprise, they were given seats of honor, and served a delicious meal, including an appropriately decorated cake in a book design, done in pink and white, with inscription, Happy 35th anniversary from the children and grandchildren.

The cake was made by Mrs. Horace Doyon, of Stanstead. Several games were played, with some enjoying a night swim in the pool.

The celebrants were presented with a gift of money and an anniversary plate, for which thanks were graciously expressed by each.

During the evening flash pictures and movies were taken, to be cherished souvenirs of the pleasant event.

Mr. and Mrs. Wing were married on August 20, but due to distance of their son Michael, and his inability to attend at that time, the event was held earlier.

The immediate family members included Mr. and Mrs. Alton Wing, celebrants, Beebe, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wing, son Dexter, Stanstead, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wing, three daughters, Rock Island, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wing and two sons, Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Willis Willey

Miss Heather Hill, Magog enjoyed two days here last week, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Graves of Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Willey were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Phaneuf and family in Beebe.

Mr. Bobby Heckley has returned home to Rosemere after spending several weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Heckley.

Recent callers of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Willey were Mr. Gordon Fuller and Mrs. Winston Rundle and son Patrick, Cowansville; Mr. and Mrs. William Seymour, Derby, Vt.; Mr. William Brousseau, Magog; Mrs. Beatrice Illsley, Orwell, Vt.; Mrs. Rodney Davis and Mr. Doug Davis.

Mrs. Cora Askew who is spending an indefinite time with her sister, Mrs. William Brousseau, Magog recently spent a few days at her home here with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Willey.

Mrs. Blanche Schoolcraft has returned home after a ten-day visit at the home of Mr. A. B. and Clyne MacDonald at North Hill, Gould. While there she met many of her old friends who made her so welcome in the 40's and 50's, when she made it her home for four and a half years with the MacDonalds.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wuthrich were Mr. and Mrs. Cutting and daughter, Tracy, and Mrs. Harold Mehlenpacher, Dunnville, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mehlenpacher and daughter, Robin and son, Rodney, Burlington, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Willey were in Cowansville, Aug. 3rd, calling on Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fuller and Mrs. Winston Rundle and family.

Milby WI

The August meeting of Milby WI was held at the club room, Aug. 2 with 14 members and four youthful guests present.

The meeting opened with members repeating the Collect.

A most satisfactory report was given of the 40th wedding anniversary at home and dinner July 28 in the Scott Hall, catered to by the Milby group.

Mrs. Mildred Cairns as head of the Social Committee, received a warm vote of thanks for herself and workers, who gave so generously of time and effort to make this a success.

Mrs. Roy Sutor presented the treasurer's report which shows a gratifying balance after all expenses are paid, including the redecoration of the club room.

It was decided to buy material to refinish the floor which several members had, with much hard labour and time, rendered spotless. Money donations were received from two members to help with this expense.

Much credit and appreciation is due to the club room committee and helpers who have given so unselfishly of their time and energy in making a dull, grimy club room into a most attractive one.

Home economics convener, Mrs. Dorothy Green read a letter from the Information Service, Dept. of Agriculture Quebec listing types of entries for Women's Handicraft Competition, Expo, Quebec, 1974. She also entertained the group with a humorous reading, a satire on the High Cost of Eating.

Welfare and health convener, Mrs. R. Patrick, and Mrs. Naylor Jr., reported many cards sent to shut-ins, birthdays and anniversaries remembered, flowers sent to three shut-ins, and a gift to a senior member in hospital. A sunshine basket was presented at the meeting to a member who had been a recent surgical patient in hospital. Calls had also been made, visiting the shut-in.

Education convener, Mrs. Robt. Sutor, reported money given to Lennoxville School had been much appreciated and used to buy cold drinks for the children.

Citizenship convener, Mrs. Wm. Sutor, spoke of the death of the former Prime Minister, Louis St. Laurent, who was born in Compton, and laid to rest there.

Publicity convener, Mrs. McKee, then read an article — a tribute to him as a man, and a brief review of his term in office at Ottawa. Compton's pride in this local son was most evident in their heart-warming, yet sad, welcome to his final home-coming.

Mrs. Robt. Sutor and Mrs. Allan Sutor reported $71. collected for the Cancer Fund.

Cards of thanks were read from Mrs. Beattie for the shawl received; and from a shut-in bedridden for 7 years, remembered often by the club with calls, cards, and flowers; from another member for a gift while in hospital; also from the Cancer Society.

A letter is to be sent in answer to Mr. Broadhurst's letter, stating the members' decision that the club room will not be used as a museum, only for use by the members.

Mrs. Allan Sutor reported that arrangements had been made to pipe water into the club room at the earliest possible date.

Five members volunteered to work at the Institute booth at the Sherbrooke Fair.

The President gave a detailed report, as delegate, of the annual convention at Macdonald College in May.

The group was in favor of entering a float in September Tombola as a County project.

Plans were made for entertaining the County meeting, August 8, at the club room.

Fourteen members answered the roll call which was to bring, or wear, something she had made.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses Mrs. Roy Sutor, and Mrs. Naylor, Sr. assisted by Mrs. Broadhurst.

The Sept. meeting will be held at the club room, hosted by the social committee.

Three Villages

Guests recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fortin, Derby Line have been Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fortin and boys of Alma, Lac St. Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Ludger Hupper, their son-in-law and daughter and three children from Plainville, Conn.

Mrs. Yvonne Lacroix and son of Beebe, Que., Mr. Arsene Fontaine, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Guy Chunt, Miss Marguerite Fontaine, of Magog, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Charette and Mrs. George Paradis of Contre, N.H. and on August 12, Mrs. Tancide Blais of North Troy came to spend a few days at the same home and to visit other relatives in the community.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, Burlington, Vt., spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Nettie Albee, Rock Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Tiechert and girls, Nancy and Tammy, Stanstead, spent a few days at Orchard, Maine.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Winter and family, Stanstead, have been Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Collins and son of Enfield, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark of The Narrows, Fitch Bay, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Young, Beebe.

Church holds centennial service

A special service to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Adderley Presbyterian Church was held on Sunday, Aug. 5.

The guest speaker for this special occasion was Rev. Waldon Moore, minister of the River John - Toney River (Nova Scotia) Pastoral Charge. Mr. Moore was a former student minister of this congregation.

He chose as his text Joshua 4: verse 6. He was assisted by the present student minister, Mr. Donald MacLeod and Mr. David Scott, minister of the Thetford Mines - Kinnear's Mills United Churches.

The Adderley Presbyterian Church was dedicated for worship 100 years ago. It was built by settlers who came mainly from the Island of Arran, Scotland.

The first minister to preach in this pulpit was the Rev. Bethune Many of the early settlers walked several miles to listen to lengthy sermons.

Church registers were not carefully kept but the first funeral service held in this church was for John D. Mackenzie. Some of his grandchildren still worship there.

On August 5, the church was filled to capacity with many descendants of former families of this congregation and others interested in attending the centennial service.

The organist was Mrs. Susan Dacres of Inverness and the soloist was Miss Thelma Crawford of Lennoxville. Once again the old church rang with the singing of the psalms.

The members of this congregation are very grateful to all those who have donated to the church funds or assisted in any way in refurbishing the exterior of the church building for this memorable occasion.

After the service refreshments were served to the many guests who had come from far and near to participate in the service.

Cleveland UCW

CLEVELAND — The August meeting of the New London UCW was held at the home of Mrs. Douglas Fletcher. There were 11 members and three visitors present.

Mrs. O. Taylor led the devotions and had as her theme Back Seat Driver. Seven local and four Wales Home calls were reported for roll call.

Mrs. Gladys Perkins and Mrs. Royce Taylor are to put flowers in the church on September 2 and

Silver anniversary

BEEBE — Mr. and Mrs. R.E. McAskill entertained at the Pace cottage for Mr. and Mrs. D.E. Lefmann, in honor of their silver wedding anniversary. Members of the two families and near neighbors along the lakeshore were guests. A very pleasant evening was spent.

We sincerely regret to report that illness has struck several members of the well-known Breton family of this vicinity. Mr. Harvey Breton, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Breton, and family, motored to Hamilton, Ont., to see their brother, Adelard, who is suffering from a stroke, while their sisters, Rita, Mrs. Larry Poulin of Thetford Mines, and Eva, Mrs. Charles Grogier of Montreal, are not enjoying the health we would like them to have. We all hope that good health may soon be restored to the entire family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Harper, of Toronto, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Minnaugh. Other guests at the same home included Mrs. Rodney McDonald, Mrs. Jean Hamley, Thetford Mines, Mrs. Elger of Thetford Mines, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Marshall, of Henderson Vale.

Mr. and Mrs. Cuyler McGillivray and son, Wayne of Ayer's Cliff were overnight guests of Mrs. Gertie Wright who accompanied them to Inverness following a visit with Mr. and Mrs. John Watton, and Mr. and Mrs. John Currie, of Lennoxville.

The marriage of Lorne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carroll, of Laurierville, to Francoise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Paradis, of St-Pierre Baptiste took place on July 21st in St. Andrew's church, Inverness, with the Rev. A. Ross Mackay, of Montreal, officiating.

Open House

Open house will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Moss, 14 Campbell street, Beebe, on September 8, from 2-5 p.m. in honor of Mr. A.J. (Amie) Carbonneau, who will be observing his 90th birthday.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): A romantic aura in Aries charts, promises an eventful, perhaps exciting, day. Look your very best.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Romantic liaisons aren't apt to work out as you hoped (unlike Aries) so postpone dates until future time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make something decorative for your home. You'll be proud to display your own efforts, no matter how simple.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): You have a vague feeling that all is not well, but you can't put your finger on anything concrete.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You feel independent, but cooperation is necessary if you would achieve your lofty goal in short time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): The skies clear a little but this is no signal for overconfidence in some areas. Keep doing your best.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Volunteer work may open the door to new friendships that will be very rewarding in days to come.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You have a general feeling of optimism if you were born late in the sign, but not so if born during early part.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): The generation gap seems to be wider than usual under current rays. Try to keep an open mind on both sides.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Emphasize tolerance of different people and situations that are not within the realm of your experience.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Dilemma may not be as difficult to solve as you think it is. It takes effort to overcome obstacles.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Work closely with those whose know-how you can absorb for your own benefit. Look and listen carefully.

DOJARS & GOOD SENSE

by WILLIAM J. MARTIN

Auto Financial Services

A pool of some 800 California drivers is involved in a test of the new automotive catalytic converter, but they are spending most of their time looking for service stations which sell unleaded fuel. For if these test cars are filled with even a low lead gasoline, the $300 muffler-like unit will not stop pollutants.

California was chosen by both Ford and General Motors for test purposes because of the more stringent emission control regulations there. The new converters will cut hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions by about 90% from the pre-1968 models. The automakers say it is the only way they will be able to meet the new U.S. standards.

All 1975 model cars in California and 1976 models elsewhere in the U.S. will probably be equipped with the catalytic converter, but without lead free fuel, the converter is useless.

U.S. standards currently call for all stations pumping at least 200,000 gallons of gasoline each year to have a lead free pump by July 1, 1974, but what about smaller stations and those in Canada and Mexico?

If such tourism is going to be encouraged, a lot of lead free gasoline is going to be needed soon.

Fewer Calories and More Flavor in Charcoal Grilled Foods

When flavor and fewer calories are the goal in outdoor menus, chicken wins the bid. It scores, too, on the budget side because chicken is one of the lowest-cost meats in the market today. Just compare and see.

Chicken Tandoori is a delightful style of cooking chicken that is native to the Near East. Yogurt, cool and tangy, and spices make a marinade that adds great flavor to this dish. Into the marinade goes a great flavor-enhancing ingredient. It's Ac'cent, and it does wonders for bringing out the real "chickeny" flavor. Seems to make so much more of your bargain buy. Foods are known to lose flavor during storage, and this product helps restore it, coaxing Nature to put back what time took away.

Serve Chicken Tandoori with a sparkling fresh Cucumber Salad. This, too, is economical with the fine supplies of fresh cucumbers in the market. There is no reason why outdoor cooking need put a dent in your budget. Choose foods carefully and cook them with seasonings and low cost ingredients.

For those on a strict weight-reducing regime, half portions of Chicken Tandoori are in order at only about 200 calories per serving. Others can enjoy full portions of half a chicken at only 425 calories per serving. This savory, grilled chicken is hearty and satisfying for eating outdoors, and it isn't rimmed with extra fat like so many meats served from the grill.

CHILI CHICKEN LOW CALORIE

An even lower calorie recipe to cook on the grill is Spicy Chili Chicken. Here you get the wonderful zing and spice of chili without the high calories in the original bean-filled dish. The characteristic chili powder, cumin and coriander seasonings are used in a tomato juice, parsley, onion and garlic marinade. After this does its savory work, the chicken is sprinkled with Ac'cent to enhance the chicken flavor and help make a harmony of the spices. Grill this chicken on a bed of coals at the light gray ash stage, and you come up with fabulously-flavored chicken at only 390 calories a serving.

Incidentally, these chicken recipes work equally well under the kitchen broiler.

CHICKEN TANDOORI

3 2-pound broiler-fryer chickens, halved
2 cups yogurt
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon ground coriander
2 teaspoons chili powder
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 teaspoon turmeric
2 teaspoons Ac'cent
2 teaspoons salt

Place chicken in bowl or shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over chicken. Cover and refrigerate 12 to 24 hours, turning chicken occasionally. Drain. When coals have reached the light gray ash stage, place chicken skin side down on grill set 3 to 6 inches from coals. Cook until tender, turning and basting occasionally with marinade, 45 minutes to 1 1/4 hours. YIELD: 6 servings; 425 calories per serving.

CUCUMBER SALAD

3 large cucumbers, pared and sliced
3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
3 tablespoons chopped onion
3/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon Ac'cent
1/8 teaspoon dried dill weed

In bowl mix cucumbers and remaining ingredients. Cover and chill several hours. YIELD: 6 servings.

SPICY CHILI CHICKEN

2 cups tomato juice
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 tablespoons chili powder
1 teaspoon ground coriander
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 cup chopped parsley
2 bay leaves
4 2-pound broiler-fryer chickens, halved
4 teaspoons Ac'cent

In large bowl mix tomato juice, onion, garlic, chili powder, cumin, coriander, parsley and bay leaves. Add chicken, cover and marinate several hours. Remove chicken from marinade; sprinkle with Ac'cent. When coals have reached the light gray ash stage, place chickens skin side up on grill set 3 to 6 inches from coals. Cook until tender, turning and basting occasionally with marinade, 45 minutes to 1 1/4 hours. YIELD: 8 servings, 390 calories per serving.

CAN SHE FRY A CHICKEN?

Charming Billy in the song was asked if he intended could bake a cherry pie. It would have been more essential to ask if she could fry chicken. It's more basic. Certainly it is basic to a good picnic.

Now is the time to take a quick refresher course on frying chicken, that economical meat standby that gives such good value. A simple flour coating gives wonderful results. Just be sure to include the Ac'cent to coax the chicken to its peak of delicious flavor. It's a flavor enhancer that makes the most of the foods you buy. Here is a tried and true way to fry chicken:

BEST-EVER FRIED CHICKEN
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
1/2 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 teaspoon paprika
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Shortening or salad oil

Mix flour, salt, Ac'cent, paprika and pepper in plastic or paper bag. Add chicken pieces, a few at a time, and shake until well coated. Heat shortening or oil 1/2 inch deep in skillet over medium heat. Add chicken, skin side down. Cook uncovered for 15 to 25 minutes on each side, turning only once. Drain on paper towels. YIELD: 4 servings.

Inverness

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Little, of Huntingville, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Longmore, of Ste. Agathe de Lotbiniere, were recent guests at the Albert Carroll home.

The Misses Mildred and Elsie McKenzie, of Montreal, have been visiting for a week with their brother Kenneth and Mrs. McKenzie. Kenneth has had a serious bout with bronchitis which prevented him from attending the anniversary service of the Adderley Presbyterian Church on Sunday last, an event in which he took a great interest. At this moment, Mr. McKenzie is improving slowly.

We are pleased to welcome back Mr. and Mrs. Don McLeod and family, who spent their vacation visiting relatives, and friends, in the Cape Breton area.

The people of this community appreciate the fact very much that Rev. Mr. Waldon Moase, Mrs. Moase, Darlene, and Kathy, of River John, N.S., are spending a large part of their vacation with us. Since the arrival, Mr. Moase has been the guest speaker at two special church services, and from bases at the Bernard Robinson and Hubert Cook homes, they have been welcome guests of many of their acquaintances, who were pleased, indeed, to see Mr. Moase in such good health following his serious illness last winter. The good wishes of the entire community accompany them back to their duties in River John.

Mrs. Alger Patterson is spending a week with relatives in Concord, N.H. During her absence, Mrs. Thelma Wright of Lennoxville, is a guest at her uncle's, Mr. Patterson.

Guests at the McVetty home included Mr. and Mrs. Manville Williams, of Danville, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Smallman, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., Mrs. Hattie Learmonth and Miss Mildred Learmonth of Lennoxville.

The little chapel, near St. Jean Brebeuf, on the historic Craig's Road, was filled almost to capacity on Sunday, Aug. 12 by a congregation composed of visitors from outside points as well as those who live nearby and delight in taking part in this annual service. In this instance, the service was conducted by Mr. Don McLeod assisted by Mr. David Scott, of Thetford Mines. Rev. Mr. Moase a former Incumbent of St. Andrew's Church at Inverness, now of River John, N.S., was guest speaker and dwelt convincingly on the different meanings of the word SUCCESS in the spiritual, business and political life of any individual. Mrs. Katherine Cox was organist for the occasion.

Unfortunately the little chapel was raided by vandals early in the summer, who looted the interior of many articles of value. But, not dismayed, those in charge brought in replacements for the articles stolen, and are to be congratulated on their ability to overcome emergencies.

It was with genuine feelings of regret that those present said Au Revoir to Mr. and Mrs. Moase, Darlene, and Kathy, as this was their last public appearance before leaving for their home. Mr. Moase, in turn, speaking for himself, Mrs. Moase, and girls, said that they will always remember the kindness and hospitality extended to them here during their stay in this area, and that it was their earnest wish to return for another visit as soon as it was possible to do so.

Messrs Don and Dougie Kelso have returned to Sherbrooke after spending two weeks holiday with their parents Mr. and Mrs. K. Kelso, other guests were, Miss Lily McKinnon of Lakeland, Florida, Miss Jennette McKinnon, Montreal, Miss Laura and Florence McKinnon of Ottawa, Mr. Cuyler McGillivray of Ayer's Cliff, Mr. and Mrs. George Emes, Fort Frances, Ont., Mrs. G. Learmonth and Miss Mildred Learmonth of Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Kelso were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Wallace in Kinnear's Mills.

Mr. Douglas Kelso of Sherbrooke spent the week end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Kelso. Other guests were Rev. and Mrs. W. Moase of River John, N.S. Mrs. George Birnie of Lower Ireland, and Mrs. Thelma Wright of Lennoxville.

Raises kangaroos

SONOMA, Calif. (AP) — Tom Rooney raises kangaroos. "It's kind of neat to come home and know that you've been keeping an endangered species all these years," says Rooney with a smile.

Rooney, a retired entertainer, started raising the Australian animals 17 years ago. He lives with his pets on a ranch in an area more famous for wines than kangaroos.

Rooney first imported one of the marsupials into the country to star in a stage show. The show didn't last, but Rooney developed a fondness for the animal named Sydney and made him a pet.

Over the years Sydney and his four mates produced 18 joeys, or baby kangaroos, three of whom still ramble the 12-acre ranch, startling passersby and carrying on playful boxing matches with Rooney and a hired hand.

The three kangaroos are Sydney IV, 5; his mother Elizabeth, 7; and Matilda, his mate, 7.

They live in a large converted barn on the ranch among the vineyards in the Valley of the Moon, north of San Francisco. Their quarters are complete with a special chandelier over the animals' sleeping area that incorporates light and heat lamps, and a portrait of Queen Elizabeth.

Cross Canada motor trip to be re-enacted

TORONTO (CP) — Ford of Canada announced Thursday it will re-enact the 1925 cross-Canada motor trip by a Canadian-built Model T—the first time an automobile had been driven coast-to-coast without leaving Canadian soil.

Ford said four 1974 model cars will begin the journey Aug. 28 in Victoria and will end Oct. 4 in St. John's, Nfld. The original journey, to promote the concept of a trans-Canada highway, began Sept. 8, 1925, in Halifax and ended 40 days later in Vancouver.

The Model T suffered only four tire punctures and needed one minor mechanical adjustment in the 4,794-mile voyage.

In each of 100 communities through which the cars will pass, there will be a re-enactment of the 1925 ceremonies—the signing of a commemorative scroll by the mayor.

The idea for the journey was prompted by the discovery earlier this year of a silent movie made by one of the participants, Edward Flickenger, then chief photographer for Ford of Canada. The film, found in the storage vaults of a Toronto advertising company, record's the car's progress along mud trails, across unbridged rivers and mounted on railway wheels.

Mr. Flickenger's companions on the original trip were Dr. Perry Doolittle, then president of the Canadian Automobile Association, and J. L. S. Scrymgeour, a former newspaper man who handled publicity on the trip.

In 1925, there were only a few hundred miles of paved highway in Canada, mainly near large cities.

In Northern Ontario, the car sometimes covered less than 20 miles a day over rocks and mudholes.

On 14 occasions the car's rubber wheels were replaced with steel flanged wheels so it could be driven along transcontinental railway lines. The car covered 853 miles on the rails, the longest stretch being 408 miles across the north shore of Lake Superior.

The car averaged 120 miles daily for the entire trip.

Education programs encourage drug use

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Some drug education programs may be doing more to encourage than to prevent the use of illegal drugs by students, a report in a medical journal says.

The report in the August issue of Pediatrics, published by the American Academy of Pediatrics, was written by Dr. Forest Tennant and Dr. Charles Lewis, physicians, and Dr. Sue C. Weaver, an educationist.

They studied drug-education programs at a high school for United States servicemen's children in Wurzburg, West Germany, and in three Los Angeles schools.

The U.S. government spent about $108 million on drug education programs between 1969 and 1972 and has budgeted $66 million for 1973, they said. They said there is no indication these programs are having the desired results.

They said the drug education program in Wurzburg may have prevented drug-related hospital treatment of students. But, the researchers said, "it

London stores are wary of foreign shoplifters

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign shoplifters have led storeworkers in London's fashionable West End to rename the tourist season. They are calling it the thieving season.

Security chiefs say shoplifters who prey on central London stores are almost all foreigners and almost all well-off.

The head of security at one of London's biggest and best-known department stores says: "The percentage of foreign nationals among people caught shoplifting is a staggering 93 per cent."

Stealing by light-fingered visitors, many from Iran and the Middle East, has soared to such levels that a London magistrate last week carried out a threat to jail well-heeled foreign shoplifters.

The Lebanese wife of a wealthy banker was sent to jail for 30 days for stealing goods worth $5. The court was told she had $425 cash on her at the time.

Five other wealthy women—two Syrians, two Iranians and a Japanese—were slapped with similar jail terms by magistrates Friday. An Italian Roman Catholic priest got off more lightly; he was fined $12.50 for stealing a book.

PRINCESS IN SCAPE

Princess Hussa al-Khalifa, 15-year-old daughter of the oil-rich Emir of Bahrain, was in the news after she and three others were apprehended by suspicious store employees. Shoplifting charges against the princess were dropped by the store after the young woman denied she was trying to steal anything. She told reporters she was mystified as to how baby clothes got into her bag.

The Bahrain embassy here issued a statement Saturday regretting the publicity.

It is estimated that goods worth nearly $5 million are stolen daily by industrial pilferers and shoplifters in Britain. London's chic fashion stores suffer more than most in the summer season.

The owner of one trendy Chelsea boutique said: "Sometimes I just cannot believe how they have the nerve. Last week I caught a French girl walking out of the changing room with two of my dresses under her own."

Acceptance of tri-level process necessary for local governments

OTTAWA (CP) — Claude Langlois, who looks like a prophet in a business suit, has a warning for Canadian governments:

"The tri-level process has to be set back 30 years."

"Tri-level process" is verbal shorthand for joint consultation among federal, provincial and municipal governments on matters of vital importance to local government. It began in Toronto last November and is something close to Mr. Langlois' heart.

Mr. Langlois is only 33 but as secretary-general of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities for five years he attended the conception and birth of the tri-level process.

Now, he is leaving the federation at a time when the municipal position for the second tri-level conference in October is still uncertain. He says he decided to resign long before the disension-ridden annual meeting in Charlotte-town early in July.

Mr. Langlois, a friendly, articulate man with a dark beard and probing eyes, said in an interview that the three levels of government have to settle their areas of responsibility. Then, they must have the money to carry out those duties.

"If the principle of local government isn't accepted, then what are now local government councils must become administrative arms of provincial governments."

"If local government is government, then let it be so. If it isn't, then quit calling it that."

IGNORES DETAIL

Mr. Langlois is deeply interested in the interplay of governments but does not worry about the detail of municipal government.

"I don't think I have read a bylaw in my life."

Having helped to get the tri-level process on its feet, Mr. Langlois said he does not want to stay with the federation as a mere manager of future conferences.

He is looking for other challenges, possibly in the same field of intergovernmental relations. He has had several offers but refuses to discuss them publicly.

The Toronto conference was probably the high point in Mr. Langlois' term with the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

After long preparations, the federal, provincial and municipal governments sat down together for the first time in Edmonton this year. That was considered a major accomplishment since some provinces, particularly Ontario, appeared ready to veto further national discussions.

Mr. Langlois says he was elated at the conclusion of the conference because the federation had been recognized as the voice of the municipalities nationally. All provincial organizations of municipalities belonged to the national body.

DIVIDED SHARPLY

But the united front at Toronto may be more apparent than real. There were sharp divisions over several issues at the annual meeting in July. Several big city mayors said the federation with its emphasis on national tri-level talks is irrelevant to their needs.

But Mr. Langlois said he is hopeful. There seemed to be a strong desire to spell out what exactly are the roles of the different levels of government.

He said the federation wants a national commission to search out what responsibilities should be assigned to each level of government. This was too big an issue to be settled by an annual two- or three-day conference of elected officials.

Once it is clear who is responsible for each service, tax resources should be divided up to allow governments to carry out their duties, he said.

NEEDS HARD LOOK

"I don't see how the Canadian system can continue to function efficiently and effectively without a very hard look at how we are governed."

The national commission proposed by the federation would probably have to spend three or four years studying the system of government before producing recommendations.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "The recent death of Alphonse (Sonny) Moyse has taken away another of my old-time bridge friends. Sonny started to work for Ely Culbertson shortly after Ely founded Bridge World magazine and became editor and publisher after Ely died. Illness caused him to sell it some years ago but he remained a contributing editor.

Jim: "I knew him slightly. He was always pleasant and nice to everyone although he did sort of feel that anything thought of after 1935 was not good bridge. He had one particular obsession. He believed that the 4-3 trump fit was likely to be really worthwhile.

Oswald: "Let's tell them about a good recent example from the Fort Worth Regional."

Jim: "I was North and opened one club with my 20 points. Minda Brachman, my partner, responded one spade and I bid two diamonds which is forcing in our system. She temporized with two hearts and eventually I put her in six spades."

Oswald: "Most pairs who reached a slam played it in no-trump and could only collect 11 tricks. Playing in spades, Minda was able to make a 12th trick by ruffing a heart with one of your trumps. To add to the record, the top score on the hand won the open pairs for you and Minda."

Canada, U.S. hope to salvage medals

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — Canada and a demoralized United States, lightweights so far at the World University Games, saw in the start of swimming today a chance to go home with respectable medal totals.

After five days of competition, the Soviet Union dominated with 44 gold, 21 silver and 22 bronze. The U.S. had only two gold, three silver and nine bronze, and had to wait for its gold until the final two track events Monday. Canada, with one silver and three bronze, two of them won Monday, has long looked to swimming as the source of its brightest medal hopes in international appearances.

The Americans are good bets to pick up a dozen golds in the four days of swim competition. But they have no chance of catching the Soviets, who grabbed medals by the handful in gymnastics and wrestling and took 18 golds from the 34 track and field events.

The two Canadian bronzes Monday went to two British Columbians in jumping events. Brenda Eisler of Vancouver, a student at Simon Fraser in Burnaby, B.C., notched her third in the women's long jump.

SHARES BRONZE
John Hawkins, of Courtenay and the University of British Columbia, was among seven awarded bronzes in a mass tie for third in the men's high jump. Vladimir Maly was the winner in the high jump, giving Czechoslovakia its first gold. Bulgaria won its first gold on the strength of Liliana Tomova's 1.59.5 performance in the women's 800 metres. Glenda Reiser of Ottawa, who won Canada's silver medal Friday in the 1500 metres, lagged seventh.

Five other European countries won golds Monday. Margrit Olfert of Poland beat Miss Eisler in the long jump. Pietro Minnea of Italy took the men's 200 metres, Francis Clement of Britain the 1500, and Lisa Porsainen of Finland became the premier women's sprinter when she added the 200-metre gold to her earlier first place in the 100. Czayna Rabsztyk of Poland won the women's 100-metre hurdles, with Wendy Taylor of Abbotsford, B.C., seventh. The Soviets took eight golds Monday, including Nadezhda Chizhova's in the women's shot put. Diane Jones of Saskatoon, Canada's other earlier medal winner with a third in the pentathlon, was eighth in the shot put.

Other Soviet golds Monday came in the men's hammer throw, javelin, 5,000 metres, 400-metre hurdles and sabres and in the women's 4 x 100 relay and springboard diving.

GOLD TARNISHED

The American golds came in the men's 4x100 and 4x400 relays, but the lustre of one was dulled. The Russians had finished first in the 4x400, but were disqualified for interfering with an American by stepping outside their lane on a baton pass.

Sprinter Larry Brown of Jersey City, N.J., spoke for most of the U.S. track and field athletes after competition ended Monday.

"I'm cold, tired, sick of bad food and fed up with all this security. I want to go home."

The Americans were so anxious to put their bad memories behind them that U.S. team officials were trying to have one of their two charter planes leave early.

Bruce Collins, a University of Pennsylvania hurdler, offered some reasons for the poor track and field showing:

"We came here out of season, having reached our peak in May and June, and ran into teams peaking for the European championships. We put together a team hurriedly when some of the guys originally scheduled to compete decided not to come. Many came here worn out from rough tours in Europe and Canada."

Team officials said the U.S. is not as committed to the games as are other countries, and San Jose State decathlon specialist Roger George agreed:

"I never heard of the University Games until this year. Imagine my surprise when I got here and found to most teams it is just like another Olympics."

In Memoriam

FLANDERS — In loving memory of a most wonderful mother, Pat Flanders (nee Rodgers), who passed away on August 16, 1967 at Kingston General Hospital and this letter I write to her:
Dear Mom,
I think of you in silence and your name people often recall.
6 years ago you left us and maybe someday we'll be together again.
Until we reach that brighter dawn where loved ones never part.
I'll look at your picture on the wall and let your name be recalled.
And I'll think in silence, that's my Mom.
Your only daughter
DEBRA ANN

HORAN — In loving memory of our husband, father and grandfather, Andrew Horan who left us so suddenly two years ago to-day August 21st, 1971.
August comes with deep regret.
It brings back a day we'll never forget.
He was taken without any warning.
His going left hearts full of pain.
But though he is gone from among us,
In our hearts he will always remain.
Remembered always by his wife,
STELLA & FAMILY

HORAN — In loving memory of my dear son who passed away - Gordon, June 3rd, 1963. Andrew, Aug. 21st, 1971.
"To some you may be forgotten.
To others a thing of the past.
But to me who loved you and lost you,
Your memory will always last."
Remembered always by their MOTHER

HURLBUT — In loving memory of a dear mother, Margaret, who passed away one year ago today, August 20, 1972.

Good-will extended visitors

STANBRIDGE EAST — A good-will gesture was held at Stanbridge East over the weekend of August 4-6 where the Volunteer fire dept. were hosts to 41 ball-players and enthusiasts from Mt. Forest, Ont., who arrived in town on Saturday, accompanied by Mr. Elmer Wick, recreational director.

The guests were welcomed by the Stanbridge East Volunteer

Fire Dept., along with the various local ball teams, the peewees, juniors, seniors and girls' teams.

Welcoming events were held at the Memorial Hall and tours of the town and surrounding area held.

Exhibition games were held on the ball park, as well as competitive games.

The guests departed on their home journey on Monday, Aug. 6, bringing to a close an enjoyable and long-to-be remembered weekend.

A return visit by the Stanbridge East ball teams is anticipated for early in September, and it is hoped that this will become a yearly event in the life of the Recreation Association.

A new town

By MRS. GEORGE PARSONS (Bury Correspondent)

The following items taken from a copy of the Sherbrooke Gazette, published May 23, 1884, may be of interest to present day Record readers.

"Channay - such is the name of a newly born village in the Township of Woburn at the head of Lake Megantic. It already contains a store, post-office, with weekly mail from Piopolis, a boarding house, a sawmill and a frame built chapel.

Its site is on the west shore of the Arnold river, at the point struck by Colonel Benedict Arnold on his unfortunate invasion of Canada in 1775.

The township of Woburn contains some of the best arable land of this Province. The Channay settlement is carried on under the patronage of the Eastern Townships Colonization and Credit company whose principal share holders are domiciled in the city of Nantes, Brittany France. That company is bringing forth immigrants from the Swiss mountains in view of the securing, making and manufacturing of the celebrated Gruyere cheese.

Quite a number of these vigorous mountaineers have already come as forerunners in the colony and seem well-pleased with our country and our healthy climate, our beautiful hills and lakes and our rich pastures which remind them of their mother land. The success of the contemplated cheese factory at Channay, would not only benefit that settlement, but also the whole Megantic territory."

Question - What happened to Channay? Is it the present

Nantes?

OBITUARY

JULIA M. SCHOOLCRAFT of Mansenville

Julia Schoolcraft passed away suddenly at her residence in Mansenville, Que., on Monday, July 30, 1973, in her 79th year.

She was born July 7, 1895, at Bolton Glen, Que., the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Durrell. She was one of 14 children (9 girls and 5 boys) all of whom predeceased her sister surviving her, Mrs. Argyle (Ettie) Lane of South Bolton, Que.

She received her education in Bolton Glen and on April 30, 1919, she was united in marriage to Orville Schoolcraft in the United Church of Christ, North Troy, Vt., after which she took up residence on the farm not far from Potters Springs. When the Schoolcraft farm was sold nine years ago, she and her husband moved to the village of Mansenville.

She was a devoted charter member of the Quebec Women's Institute. She joined the McNeil's Crossing W.I. when it was formed in the early 1920s. When this branch was discontinued, she then joined the South Bolton Branch in 1938 and became its president from 1942 to 1946. She was also Welfare and Health Convener for many years and performed other duties as well. Relatives, friends and members of the W.I. lovingly called her Aunt Judo. She and her husband occasionally attended the Senior Citizens gatherings in the Town Hall.

She is survived by her husband, Orville, a son, Raymond, and his wife, Kay, Mansenville, a daughter, Mrs. Claramae (Pat) Hammond of St. Catharines, Ont., grandsons Gary Hammond and Allan Schoolcraft, her sister Ettie, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held in the Mansenville United Church on Wednesday, Aug. 1 at 4:00 p.m. the Rev. Carl J. Gustafson officiating. Her favorite hymn, The Old Rugged Cross, was sung by Mrs. H.C. McLean, accompanied by the organist, Mrs. Merton Bailey.

The bearers were Ian Heath, Thayne Hamilton, Ross McNeil, Garth Durrell, Ellis Durrell and Clifton Jersey.

Interment was in the Mansenville Protestant Cemetery.

Those from out-of-town who came to pay their last respects were from St. Catharines, Picton, and Chatham, Ont., Beebe and North Troy, Vt., Ayer's Cliff, Montreal, Waterloo, Cowansville, Knowlton, Bolton Centre, South Bolton, Dunkin, Highwater, Vale Perkins and Knowlton's Landing, Que.

Master McMahon shows Expos how

MONTREAL (CP) — The old master showed his pupils how to do it Monday night at Jarry Park.

The old master—Don McMahon—came out of the bullpen to choke off a bases-loaded rally in the 10th inning by Montreal Expos, then San Francisco Giants scored two runs in the top of the 11th for a 6-4 National League baseball victory.

McMahon, 43, is the Giants' pitching coach, although he's on the club's 25-man active roster. McMahon relieved Elias Sosa in the 10th with the bases full and Expos' shortstop Tim Foli at the plate. He got Foli to pop out to shortstop Mike Phillips and the threat was over.

Gary Matthews then led off in the 11th with a triple to right centre field and scored when second baseman Larry Lintz failed to handle the relay throw properly. The Giants added another run and then McMahon easily retired the Expos in order.

"McMahon shows his pitchers how to do it," said Giants' manager Charlie Fox. "Then he goes out and does it himself. He does the job."

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Willie McCovey scored Tito Fuentes with a sacrifice fly.

Montreal took a 2-1 lead off San Francisco starter Tom Bradley in the fourth on a walk, a hit batsman, an infield out and a throwing error by shortstop Phillips.

Matthews' ninth homer of the year tied the score in the seventh and the Giants took a 3-2 lead on a triple by Phillips in the eighth.

As Sask. downs Ottawa

Reed breaks Brown's rushing record

REGINA (CP) — Veteran Saskatchewan Roughriders star George Reed set a North American rushing record Monday night as Roughriders defeated their Ottawa namesakes 18-12 in Canadian Football League action.

But he didn't realize he had broken by one yard—the former record set by one-time Cleveland Brown Jimmy Brown, and neither did the 21-032 home-town fans who cheered Reed's every move before the record-setting run.

The record came with only 18 seconds left in the game and wasn't announced until most fans were already on their way out of the Taylor Field stadium. That and the fact the run only covered two yards meant, ironically, that Reed got fewer cheers than on his previous 18 carries that night.

Altogether, Reed piled up 81 yards rushing against the still-winless Ottawa team to give himself a total of 12,313 for his 11 years in Regina.

He also added two touchdowns—the only one in the game—to his previous career record of 107 touchdowns rushing. And he had 50 yards in pass receptions to boost his total-yards record to 15,710 yards.

After the game, Reed said he didn't realize he had broken the rushing mark until the public announcement.

He called the achievement the greatest thrill of his career.

The stats

	Ott.	Sask.
First downs	17	20
Yards rushing	88	119
Yards passing	271	201
Net offence	369	320

TAKE FIRST PLACE
The Saskatchewan win gave them first place in the Western Conference, although both Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos are only one win behind and have played one game less. For Ottawa, the outcome meant a zero-for-four record and continued residence for the Rough Riders in the Eastern Conference cellar.

Unless Calgary and Edmonton tie in their game Wednesday night, one of them will afterwards share first place with Saskatchewan.

While Reed's 12 points were the basis of the Saskatchewan victory, placekicker Jack Abendschan added five on a fieldgoal, a single and a convert. Punter Al Ford also scored a single.

Veteran Ottawa placekicker Gerry Organ provided all his team's 12 points as he booted field goals from 27, 34, 34, and 16 yards.

Saskatchewan dominated the first part of the game, running up a 10-0 lead after the first quarter, in which they had the ball for 32 of the 47 plays. Ottawa didn't even get a first down until almost 10 minutes into the second quarter.

But after Rick Cassata replaced Jerry Keeling as Ottawa quarterback, the balance of play began to swing and the half-time score was 11-6 for Saskatchewan.

FAST RECOVERY
Organ's placekicking moved Ottawa to a 12-12 tie by 5:02 of the final quarter, but it took Saskatchewan only four plays to bounce back.

Starting from their 35 after Organ's last field goal, Saskatchewan leaped 61 yards on a pass to halfback Tom Campana. Then quarterback Ron Lancaster hit halfback Bobby Thompson for six, leaving Saskatchewan second and four on the Ottawa eight.

Reed took it from there, scoring the touchdown in two off-tackle runs.

Ottawa launched several drives, but always seemed to run out of steam when within scent of a touchdown.

Halfback Bobby Thompson had a poor night for the eastern team as he failed on several end-run attempts, sometimes slow to get to holes opened by his blockers, sometimes slow to make the right move.

In 10 plays, Thompson netted only 21 yards. He either lost ground or made no gain on five plays.

Kelly Leafs' coach

TORONTO (CP) — With seven months of rumors setting the stage, Toronto Maple Leafs announced Monday night the signing of veteran Red Kelly as coach for the rapidly-approaching National Hockey League season.

From the time the 47-year-old Simcoe, Ont., native was fired as coach of Pittsburgh Penguins in January, rumors had placed the former Detroit Red Wing and Maple Leaf performer as successor to John McLellan who resigned following Leafs' sixth-place finish in the Eastern Division.

So it was hardly surprising when reporters arrived at a Maple Leaf Gardens news conference to find the redhead in attendance.

His contract with Leafs is for a four-year period, "at a good salary because Red wouldn't have signed if it wasn't," said Leaf general manager Jim Gregory.

"We're extremely happy we've finally been able to get Red signed. It's just been the last few days that Red's situation has cleared itself so that he felt he could negotiate with us with the ultimate goal of signing a contract and we've just done that."

ABANDONS CONTRACT
Kelly's contract with the Penguins for some $50,000 a year with more than three years left to run, was the stumbling block in his negotiations with the Toronto organization.

"I just decided definitely today, although I had been considering it for some time," Kelly said he'd received seven or eight inquiries about his availability and three serious offers, some from World Hockey Association clubs.

He blamed office politics for his dismissal from the Penguins.

"I understand they thought I was using the wrong players. I also understand they felt I couldn't get along with the players."

"This whole thing hasn't changed my thinking about hockey but maybe I've learned a little about management."

JUMPED FROM JUNIORS
Kelly went to the NHL from the junior ranks, making his first appearance with Detroit in 1947. He played there 12½ years before joining Toronto and finished his 20-year professional stint there.

He was elected to Parliament twice as Liberal member for York West.

Through the years he was on eight Stanley Cup winners. He was on the first all-star team six times and the second all-star team twice.

A defenceman who successfully made the transition to centre after being obtained by the Leafs in 1960, he was the first winner of the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's top defenceman and was a four-time winner of the Lady Byng Trophy as the league's most gentlemanly player.

TOP PING PONGER — Keen competitions were held on Saturday in North Hatley to determine a ping pong champ and when it was all over, Neil Gerrish emerged as victor. He was

Brooks hitting his way to Hall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a slip of the tongue, but quite understandable.

After Brooks Robinson's 2,500th career hit helped Baltimore's three-run rally in the ninth inning for a 4-3 victory over Minnesota Twins Monday night, Orioles manager Earl Weaver predicted:

"Brooksie will be in the Hall of Fame five days after he hangs up his glove. He's got to be the greatest third baseman ever to play baseball."

Robinson, who played his first game with the Orioles as an 18-year-old in 1955, has done some miraculous things since, but even he will have to wait five years before being eligible for the Cooperstown Hall.

The rally produced the eighth straight victory for the American League East leaders and made Robinson the 49th player in major league history to reach the 2,500-hit plateau.

"I have a very slim chance of ever reaching 3,000," said the 36-year-old Robinson. "I have to play about three more years. It's not impossible, but the last 100 hits were the hardest."

In other American League games in Monday night's abbreviated major league schedule, Kansas City Royals thumped New York Yankees 6-2, Boston Red Sox edged Texas Ranger 5-4 and Oakland A's whipped Detroit Tigers 7-2.

In the National League, Cincinnati Reds beat New York Mets 8-3 in 16 innings, San Francisco Giants beat Montreal Expos 6-4 in 11 innings, and Houston Astros trounced Pittsburgh Pirates 10-2.

"I hear all about Brooksie's fielding before I get here," Weaver said, "but you still don't believe it until you see it."

"Now that I've been watching him for five years, I probably haven't seen it all yet."

Robinson's hit scored Ellie Hendricks, running for Boog

Powell, who had singled prior to Paul Blair's run-producing single. After a sacrifice and an intentional walk, Blair scored on a high bounce to third off the bat of Merv Rettenmund for the dramatic ninth-inning victory.

ROYALS END SLUMP
Kansas City's four-run fourth inning put the lights out for the Yankees and helped break a four-game losing streak for the Royals, second in the AL West.

Steve Busby played the leading role in the Kansas City production, winning his 12th game with late relief help from Doug Bird.

The Yankee defeat dropped them into fourth place in the American League East, four games behind the Orioles.

After John Mayberry belted his 24th homer of the year in the third inning, the Royals sewed it up in the fourth. Kurt Bevacqua knocked in the first run of the inning with a single.

Cookie Rojas followed with a two-run base hit and then Fred Patek scored the final run on a double steal.

Carlton Fisk slugged a two-run homer in the ninth inning, his second circuit blast of the night, to power Boston past Texas.

Gene Tenace blasted two home runs and drove in four runs to lead Oakland over Detroit. Vida Blue won his 14th game with a seven-hitter for the A's, leaders in the AL West by three games over Kansas City.

Johnny Bench delivered a run-scoring single which broke a 3-3 tie and started the Reds on to their 8-3 extra-inning victory over the Mets.

Houston pitcher James Rodney Richard, the six-foot-eight fireballer, flirted with a perfect game into the sixth inning, teased with a no-hitter into the seventh and ended up with a two-hit, 10-2 victory over Pittsburgh. Al Oliver got both hits, in the seventh and ninth.

Local stars, Nashua split two games

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — The Lennoxville Ladies' Softball League all-star team played host to Nashua, New Hampshire, over the weekend and competed in two exhibition contests.

Both teams and a few fans came out in the sweltering heat Saturday afternoon for their first encounter, which Nashua won handily 21-7.

The Americans came on strong with seven hits while they were walked 10 times. Three New Hampshire batters struck out, with the squad committing three errors.

The home-town girls hit nine times, but lost the game with their nine miscues. One batter walked while two others struck out.

The second meeting was held Sunday at 1 p.m., with the Lennoxville contingent coming out on top by a 10-0 count.

Decreased errors and becoming accustomed to the slow pitch of the Nashua pitcher were the major factors in the turn-around.

Ginette Jacques pitched the two-hitter for Lennoxville, in which the southern opponents received a single walk and were struck out five times. The concentrated fast pitching displayed a reverse from the previous day, as Nashua were not familiar with the increased speed.

Bucs top Carnivals

QUEBEC (CP) — Sherbrooke Pirates scored two runs in the top of the tenth Monday night to defeat Quebec Carnivals 6-4 in an Eastern League baseball game.

In the second inning, with two men out and bases loaded, first baseman for Sherbrooke, Luther Quinn, errored on a grounder by Don Schuldes. Three men scored runs for Quebec.

A base on balls by Alfredo Zavala followed by a home-run by John Vance brought in two runs for Sherbrooke in the third.

In the fifth inning a two-base hit by Ron Mitchell brought Mario Mendoza of Sherbrooke through home plate.

The visitors tied the game after Ken Macha's ninth inning home run.

Elsewhere in the Eastern League last night, Pittsfield took two games from Three Rivers, 2-0 and 6-1. Reading beat Bristol 2-0 and West Haven downed Waterbury 8-4.
