Jones' Convalescent Hospital, President of the Montreal Diocesan Sunday-school Association, and Lecturer for ten years in the Diocesan Theological College. He is the author of several well-known works, and, during his residence of nearly thirty-five years in Montreal, he has identified himself fully with the Church work of the city. In 1902 he was elected Bishop-Coadjutor of Montreal, with right of succession to the See. He was consecrated on 23rd of April, in that year, by the Most Rev. W. B. Bond, Archbishop of Montreal, assisted by Bishop Sweatman, of Toronto; Bishop Baldwin, of Huron; Bishop Courtney, of Nova Scotia; Bishop Dunn, of Quebec; Bishop Hamilton, of Ottawa; Bishop Du Moulin, of Niagara; Bishop Thorneley, of Algoma; Bishop Mills, of Ontario; Bishop Pinkham, of Saskatchewan and Calgary; and Bishop Hall, of Vermont. On the death of Archbishop Bond, in October, 1906, His Lordship became Lord Bishop of Montreal, and was duly enthroned at Christ Church Cathedral. He is "an eloquent orator, a faithful friend, an able administrator," and a thorough Churchman. His Lordship is exceedingly popular among the clergy and people, and is loved, honored and respected by the masses. His Lordship recently suffered a severe bereavement in the death of his wife, an amiable and lovable Christian lady, who had been his help-mate for nearly half a century. Truly, a lonely splendor sometimes attaches itself to the high offices in Church and State. Bishop Carmichael will preside over his first Synod during the course of the coming week. Although His Lordship is ipso facto the fourth Lord Bishop of Montreal, he is the fifth prelate of the Church of England in Canada who has borne that designation, as Bishop George J. Mountain, coadjutor to Bishop Stewart, of Quebec, assumed the title at the time of his consecration, and retained it for some years. In those days the diocese of Quebec included the two Canadas, as the provinces of Quebec and Ontario were then known. It extended from the diocese of Nova Scotia (which then embraced the dioceses of Fredericton and Newfoundland) to the waters of Lakes Superior and Huron. The episcopal oversight of this immense tract of territory devolved upon the Bishops of Quebec until the dioceses of Toronto and Montreal were created, in 1839 and 1850 respectively. Bishop George J. Mountain was the son of Bishop Jacob Mountain, first Bishop of Quebec, and was consecrated as coadjutor to Bishop Stewart at Lambeth on January 14th, 1836, under the title of Bishop of Montreal. On the death of Bishop Stewart, he continued to be called Bishop of Montreal until the formal establishment of that see in 1850, when he was transferred to and took the title of Bishop of Quebec. Bishop Carmichael, therefore, is the fifth Anglican prelate in Canada who has borne the title of Bishop of Montreal.

LORD BISHOP OF MONTREAL.

The Right Reverend James Carmichael, D.D., D.C.L., Fourth Lord Bishop of Montreal, is the second son of the late James Carmichael, Clerk of the Crown, County Tipperary, Ireland. He was born and educated in Dublin. Coming to Canada in company with the present Bishop of Niagara, (Du Moulin), and the late Bishop Sullivan, of Algoma, he was ordained Priest in 1859, by Bishop Cronyn, of Huron, and appointed to the Mission, afterwards the Rectory of Clinton, Ont. He was Assistant Minister at St. George's Church, Montreal, from 1868 to 1878; Rector of the Church of the Ascension, Hamilton, from 1878 to 1882, and Rector of St. George's Church, Montreal, from 1882 to 1906. He was appointed a Canon of Christ Church Cathedral, Hamilton, in 1880, and Dean of Montreal in 1883. He received the Degree of D. C. L. from Bishop's College, Lennoxville, in 1885, and that of D.D. from Trinity College, Toronto, in 1883. In 1885, and again in 1896, he was nominated for the Bishopric of Niagara, and in the latter year he was also nominated for the Bishopric of Columbia and the new Bishopric of Ottawa, and on each occasion received a strong lay support. Outside of his regular ministerial life, he has always been a busy man. He has twice been Prolocutor of the Provincial Synod, twice President of the Montreal Microscopical Society, twice President of the Natural History Society, one of the founders of the Montreal Citizens' League, a member of the Committee of Management of the Church Home, a director of the Protestant Hospital for the Insane, Vice-President of the

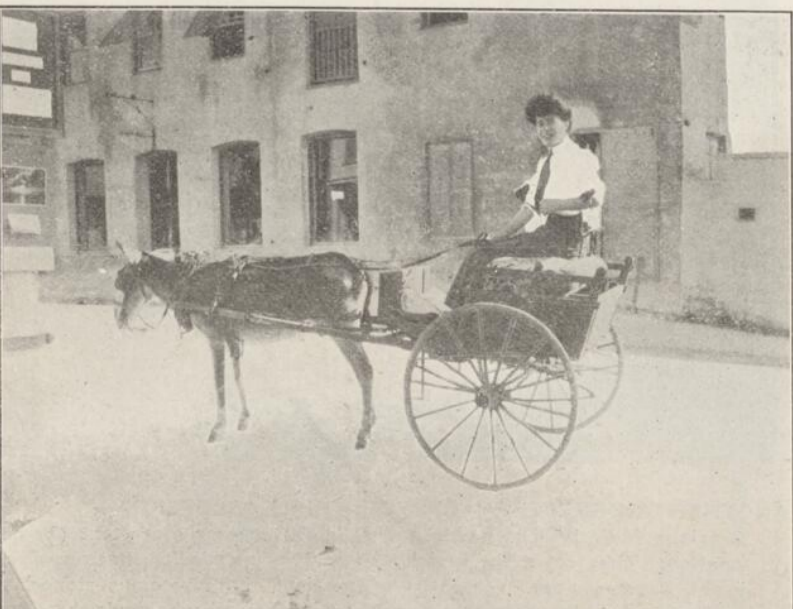

THE LATE CANON LOW, D.D.

This well-known Churchman, a photo-engraving of whom appears on this page, passed away recently in Ottawa, having been in failing health for some time. He was born in Calcutta, the day before Queen Victoria came to the throne, the son of the late Mr. David Carnegie Low, of Aberdeen, Scotland, who had married Miss Emilie Zoe Vignan, of Boucherville, Quebec. His education was commenced at Honiton in Devonshire, England, but on his arrival in Canada in early life he became an undergraduate at Trinity University, Toronto. Thence he went to Huron College to study divinity and to prepare for his career in the church which subsequently won for him the regard and esteem of all who knew him. He was ordained deacon in 1864, and in the following year he became priest, afterwards being licensed to a curacy at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Ontario. From then on his unique qualities found scope in wider fields of labor. He was successively incumbent of Merrickville and Carleton Place. In 1884 he became rector of St. Peter's, Brockville, afterwards leaving there for Almonte, and eventually taking over the living of Billings Bridge, which he resigned only a short time ago.

Dr. Bond, Lord Archbishop of Montreal and Metropolitan of Canada; succeeded to the See of Montreal as its fourth bishop in October, 1906, on the death of Archbishop Bond.

PERILS OF SNOW ON THE SCOTTISH RAILWAYS.—The overturned engine of the express which recently ran into the rear coach of a local train at Elliott Junction near Arbroath, Scotland, causing the death of over a score of passengers. The driver of the express was unable, owing to the blinding snowstorm prevailing at the time, to see the local train until he was just upon it. He kept his head and applied the breaks, but it was too late. When the engine was overturned the driver was himself thrown into a snow-drift, and escaped almost unhurt, but the fireman was pinned down beneath the tender and could not be rescued for many hours. He died soon after being removed. The disaster resulted in the death of 21 people, among the number being Mr. A. W. Black, M.P.

Jamaica THE GARDEN OF THE EMPIRE

To the student of history the Island of Jamaica is full of interest. To the lover of romance it presents a fascinating field. Outside Kingston harbor Rodney fought his memorable fight with the French fleet under the Count de Grasse, which forever settled England's domination of the West Indies. At Fort Charles the immortal Nelson watched and waited for the French fleet under the gallant D'Estaing. You may go there and tread upon the very quarter-deck he paced, and read the marble tablet, on which is inscribed:—"In this place dwelt Horatio Nelson. You who tread in his footsteps, remember his glory."

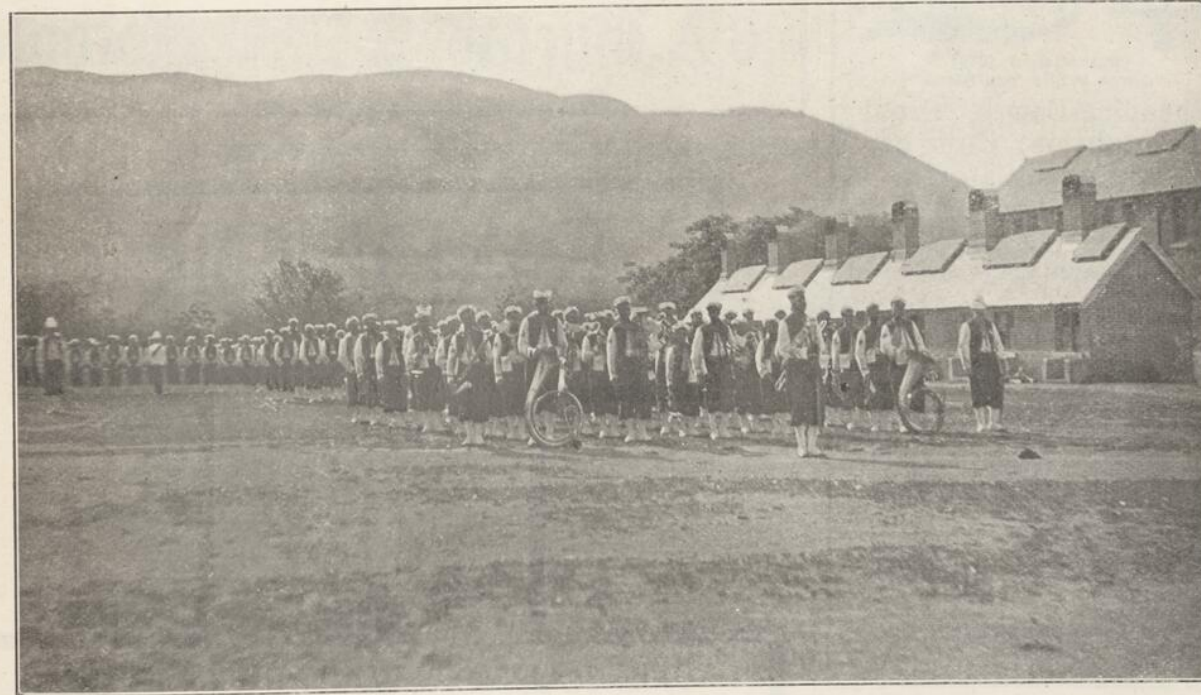

Engulfed in Earthquake.

There is the tomb of Louis Galdy, who was engulfed in the earthquake which swallowed up Port Royal more than two hundred years ago, thrown up again by the second shock, flung into the sea, and rescued by a boat. He lived for more than twenty years after. You can see the grotto in the forest where dwelt Three-fingered Jack, Jamaica's Dick Turpin, who was pursued and slain by a Maroon, the latter cutting off his three-fingered hand as proof of his death, and being granted $100 a year for life from a grateful Government.

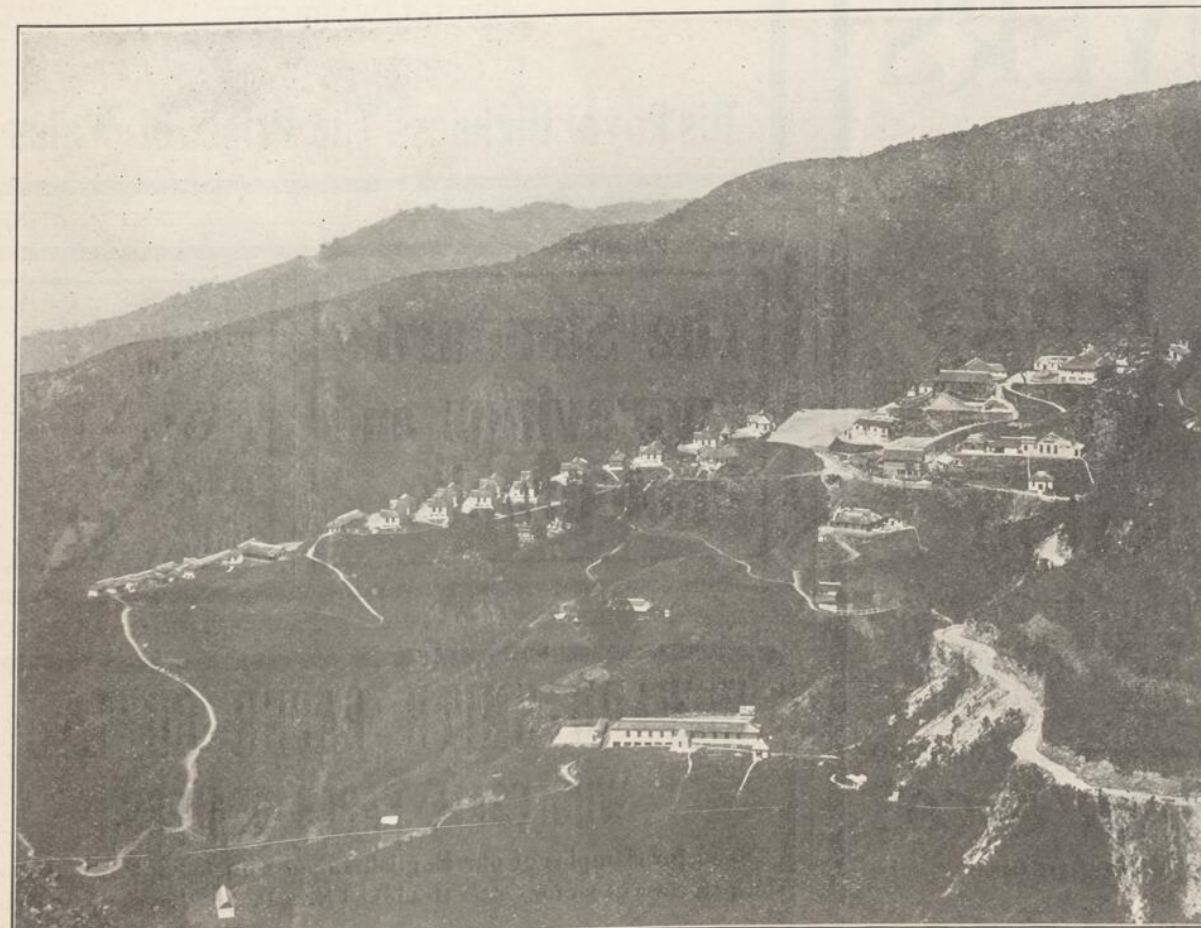

World-Famous Springs.

There are the world-famous hot springs, the cascade baths—where you can stand beneath a lovely waterfall and take a shower-bath beneath its water-curtain of pellucid green fringed with golden-white.

There are a thousand things to see, to do, to marvel at. And when you have seen them all, you will say that Jamaica is the gem of the ocean, the garden of the Empire, the Paradise of the Western seas.

Hints to Lady Readers. Chiffon veils are bordered with platings of taffeta ribbon in a harmonizing shade.

Leather hand-bags are considerably smaller than they have been for several months past.

A soft satin girde may finish with short ends at the left front or right side of the back; or, if not too wide, may finish at the centre of the back, under

A great many lace sleeves are seen in cloth, velvet and silk bodices. They invariably carry out the scheme of the yoke, giving a sort of sleeveless jacket impression.

Black, dark blues, browns and olive greens lead in the color selection.

Despite the fact that capes on motor coats have been frowned upon because of their tendency to flutter in the wind, the newest models show capes of one kind or another, but are strapped down or held firmly, so the objection is done away with.

Chiffon velvets will again be the fabric par excellence for the toilette of ceremony and evening cloaks and coats.

It is interesting to learn from this authority that the Briton sheds tears far less frequently than the people of any other nation. The Latin races—notably the French and Italian—are the most given to weeping. There is, however, no race of mankind which does not cry.

Pointers for the Gentlemen.

The last few years have not been productive of new fashions in overcoats. Indeed, one may search in vain for anything radically different in design this season.

The short covert coat should be classed as a spring and autumn rather than a winter style.

With the fashion of longer sack jackets, it was necessary to give the overcoat a little more length.

There seem to be no strict rules as to the finish of overcoats except that the collar shall not be of velvet and that lapels shall not be faced with silk.

There is a tendency not to use the side vent so much this year, but if the covert coat is to be worn for riding, a centre vent is advised.

Under the general name of Chesterfield may be listed all the more or less full-backed, loose-hanging overcoats.

The very full or bulging-back Chesterfield is, however, a style that is now as little seen as the form-fitting back is common.

The best selection is, perhaps, the straight or only moderately-shaped coat, with fly buttoning, velvet collar, fairly large lapels, and simple flap side pockets.
