ET teachers will receive payment

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — Teachers of Alexander Galt and Richmond Regional high schools will receive a three per cent pay increase regardless of whether their attestations had been received from the government, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of the Regional school board held in the auditorium of Alexander Galt Regional High School.

Mrs. Sylvia Loomis, administrative officer of the regional school board said that it was considered safe to proceed with the three per cent increase suggested by the government last June. "The risk factor," she said, "would involve no more than one category and salaries could be adjusted accordingly when the attestations are received."

Commissioner Mrs. Marguerite Knapp moved that all teachers who have not already received the three per cent increase be paid the increase now, or as soon as possible. There was some debate as to whether the increase should be paid immediately or be deferred until October's salary cheques were sent out since it would cost the board $110 to send separate checks out, commissioner Eastman suggested the teachers were lucky to be getting it at all. Commissioner Garth Fields said that if the exception was being made for teachers, it should be made for the rest of the support personnel.

The board, however, unanimously accepted Mrs. Knapp's motion that teachers who have not yet received the three per cent increase according to the 1971-72 classifications based on the 6511 scale be paid the amount as soon as possible and not later than the first week in October. The 6511 scale is the lower of two scales set by the government.

FOLLOW GUIDELINES
Regarding salary increases for support personnel of the schools, Commissioner Bill Lyon said the board followed guidelines set by the government as the minimum salary scales. It was therefore recommended that the salaries of support personnel at present over the government norms be frozen and those under government norms be brought up to the lower line of the scale.

"These guide lines will be applied quite conscientiously," said Commissioner Lyon. There would be, however, a 10 per cent difference between personnel working in the schools and those working in regional offices since school employees have longer vacations than those working in regional offices.

Mrs. Knapp moved that the board accept the salary increases as indicated retroactive to July 1. The board accepted this proposal unanimously.

The question of delegation of power to the executive board to make decisions was referred for closed discussion in caucus. Mrs. Knapp said that at the moment the executive committee had no authority to make decisions, it could only make recommendations to the board to be adopted.

PARENTS INVITED

The board meeting was held after an assembly to which parents were especially invited to hear reports made by the principals, director of student services, and the director-general of the school board.

Frank Boushel, principal of AGRHS, said he was disappointed in the number of parents who were present but that he recognized the difficulties of parents who have to travel great distances to attend. His report to the parents and school commissioners covered the many athletic and other club activities already under way for the new school year.

He said the theme of the school was "how to make Galt a more human place to be" and he spoke of the awareness among all staff of the individual needs of the students at all levels.

Two level No. 1 teachers, Mrs. Snow and Mrs. McKnight spoke about the efforts being made to effect an easy transition between elementary and high schools for the level No. 1 students. A general invitation to all parents to visit AGRHS and see the programs in action was issued by Mrs. McKnight. "Come to Galt and see us in action, and let us know what you think of our programs," she urged.

Mr. Turpin, Director of student services, spoke of the team spirit which exists at AGRHS and urged the parents to participate in the school through the parents' committee. All parents were urged to participate in a meeting to be held at AGRHS on Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. to elect the School and Parent Committee.

The meeting lasted approximately seven hours.

Licenses needed

QUEBEC (CP) — Snowmobile drivers in Quebec will be required to hold a special driver's licence after Dec. 1. Transport Minister Bernard Pinard announced Wednesday.

As well, under sweeping new regulations the minister unveiled, all snowmobiles must be registered with the transport department by 1974 and they must carry a registration sticker.

ET aid now available

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers in rain-damaged areas of eastern Ontario and Quebec may apply next week for a $400 federal grant included in a package of federal-provincial assistance programs, the agriculture department announced Wednesday.

Application forms will be available in local feed mills, cooperatives and provincial agricultural extension offices. The department advised that eligible farmers file their applications before Nov. 15 to ensure consideration.

All other programs in the rain-damage package are jointly financed by the federal and provincial governments and will be available to all farmers living in areas where crops do not exceed 60 per cent of their normal yield due to unusually heavy rainfalls this summer.

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Marc (Boots) Boutin, 24, told a coroner's inquest Wednesday he thinks he set fire to the Blue Bird Club in downtown Montreal Sept. 1 while under the influence of alcohol.

Thirty-seven persons died in the blaze at the country and western music nightclub and dozens more were taken to hospital for treatment.

Boutin, James Michael O'Brien, 23, and Gilles Eccles, 24, are being held on coroner's warrants as material witnesses.

Boutin and O'Brien were arrested in a drug raid in Vancouver last week and were brought to Montreal Tuesday. Eccles was arrested a few hours after the fire.

Boutin told the inquest he tried to commit suicide twice. The night before his arrest he took a bottle of sleeping pills.

"If 37 people died, I didn't see how I should live," he said.

At the time, he said he wrote a letter to Montreal Chief Crown Prosecutor Stephen Cuddihy whose name he obtained from local newspaper accounts of the fire.

WOULD NOT LISTEN

Jimmy and Gilles kept on trying to discourage me but I was too drunk to listen to common sense," he wrote in the letter. "Gilles finally passed out before reaching the club."

The next night, Boutin said, he went to Vancouver in order to buy narcotics. That was when police picked him and O'Brien up on a drug charge.

Boutin denied he ever meant to kill anyone.

"We had friends in there. We had no idea, no conception that anyone would even be hurt. We did not even think it would burn down the staircase," he said.

"All we wanted to do—well, what we thought would happen was that there would be a big flash and most of the people would leave and the doorman would be fired."

O'Brien, who also testified, said he, Boutin and Eccles had been drinking heavily all day, at a beach near Montreal and at pubs in the city.

He estimated that he alone had 26 pints of beer, three double gins and a rum before reaching the Blue Bird Club.

REFUSED ENTRY

Boutin testified that the fire had been planned in the parking lot beside the club after he and the other two had been refused entry by the doorman when they tried to sit near friends where no table was available.

Boutin said he drove Eccles' car to a gas station where they filled a plastic bottle with gasoline.

Boutin said he didn't think he knew anyone at the service station "but while we were there, Gilles' father came over to the pumps and told us we were too drunk and should go home."

By the time they arrived at the club, Boutin said, Eccles had passed out on the front seat.

EVENTS NOT CLEAR

Boutin said he thought Jimmy was right behind him when he headed for the club. He said he remembered going in the front door but was not clear about events after that.

"Did you stay long?" Mr. Cuddihy asked.

"No," Boutin replied.

"Why not?"

"Well evidently there was a fire."

"Who set the fire?" Mr. Cuddihy asked.

"I believe it was me."

Testifying after Boutin, O'Brien said he was so drunk at the time he did not know if he was getting out to have a beer or what.

"I was behind Boots and saw him go into the club. As he came out he bumped into me or something, or I bumped into someone else and then I saw this huge flash and the next thing I knew there was nothing but flames," O'Brien said.

Asked by Mr. Cuddihy if he was sober enough to realize that burning gasoline on the club steps would be dangerous, O'Brien said he thought it would make a big flash and burn itself out.

"I remember once I was having a really hard time lighting the camp fire and I got mad and dumped a lot of gasoline on it and damned near blew myself up and it still didn't start the fire," O'Brien said.

The rest of their testimony dealt with their activities from the time of the fire until their arrest in British Columbia. The two, with the help of a few friends, made it to the west coast with only a tent, some fishing tackle and $175 in cash.

Earlier testimony Wednesday by two survivors of the fire centred on their efforts to break down a locked door on an indoor staircase to get out of the second-floor dance hall.

Arseneault gets life

SHERBROOKE (WM) — Guy Arseneault of Coaticook was found guilty Tuesday at Sherbrooke superior court of stabbing his wife to death on April 7, 1972. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The judgment, passed by Judge William Mitchell on Tuesday was made after seven days of trial. The jury returned the verdict of guilty of premeditated murder on Tuesday afternoon.

STABBED THREE TIMES

The crime took place on April 7 this year at the home of Arseneault's mother and father-in-law, on Courcellette street in Sherbrooke. According to testimony, Arseneault's wife, Ginette, had left her husband because she said she was tired of Arseneault being unemployed and having to work to keep him. Arseneault visited his wife at her parent's house and after an argument in which she refused to return to live with him, he took out a hunting knife and stabbed her three times.

Ginette Arseneault's sister and mother-in-law were present at the scene of the crime and called the Sherbrooke police. Arseneault gave the knife to the police and confessed to the murder. He told police that he could not bear the thought of his wife leaving him and living with another man.

Germaine Bergeron, a psychologist testifying for the defense, said that Arseneault was mentally unbalanced. The jury and judge passed the maximum penalty for the crime, however.

Lowney refutes rumors

SHERBROOKE (WM) — The Walter M. Lowney Company in Sherbrooke yesterday denied reports on Tuesday newscasts originating from television station CHLT and radio station CHLT alleging a walkout of employees had taken place. The news reports were labeled "completely false." According to a communique issued by the company yesterday, management did not lock out employees on Monday and workers who demanded entry were not turned away. Also, employees at work on Monday were invited by their union executive to participate at a union meeting, the communique says.

The union demand that production should stop Monday in order to allow all employees to vote on the latest offer from the company was agreed to by management, the communique says. Also, the Lowney company agreed to the demand made by Paul Caron, the president of the union negotiation committee to pay all the employees without exception, for half the working day which was lost on Monday.

"The company accepted this request at the time of the signature of the new contract because it was understood that more than 80 per cent of the employees had fulfilled the obligation to attend the union general assembly," the communique said.

The company also said that a request to allow five union representatives to take a day off work on Tuesday without loss of salary was agreed to.

"After three intense and trying days of negotiation, representatives from both management and union needed a rest," the company's communique says. "This was a very legitimate request approved by the company, and it should be noted that the company representatives benefitted from the same privilege," it continues.

The report completely denied that employees were at any time intimidated. "As in all other negotiations, a final and just offer has been made. The choice to strike or accept these offers had to be made by the union members. This choice was made and a mutual agreement was made and signed in the presence of a provincial conciliator," management reported.

The offers made by the company will provide a rise in salaries varying from 33 cents to 45 cents, a 15 per cent increase over two years. The agreement also will provide a retroactive amount of $90 net to all employees on the seniority list. "Greatly improved marginal benefits will also be given," a spokesman for the company said.

Some 650 Lowney's employees belong to the International Bakery and Confectioners Union Agreement was reached at the conciliation level of negotiation.

COMPANY SETTLES — Walter M. Lowney Company settled with its workers on salary and fringe benefits last Tuesday. The company yesterday denied rumors broadcast by certain of the media.

Rotary governor speaks with conviction to Border club

ROTARY GOVERNOR — Oscar Palmer, left, president of the Boundary Rotary Club congratulates district governor Gordon Thayer on his fascinating talk to the club.

By IVY HATCH
BOUNDARY — Gordon O. Thayer, Rotary Governor of this district made his official visit to the Boundary Rotary Club on Monday evening, Sept. 18 at the Dufferin Heights Golf and Country Club House.

Addressing the good number of Rotarians and visiting Rotarians present, Mr. Thayer gave an interesting, informative, challenging and encouraging talk about Rotary International.

He told how he, with another 300 District Governors from all over the world, many in their native costumes, attended a nine-day training session at Lake Placid, N.Y. The program was so arranged that at the end of nine days all had met and discussed Rotary one with the other.

"Fellowship," he said in the great thing in Rotary. "You have it here," he continued. "I noticed it the minute I first came here." He congratulated the Boundary Club President Oscar Palmer and his membership for what they are doing. He suggested that the members back the president to make it a great year for the club and for the community.

He made reference to Rotary membership. "You are one of the oldest Clubs in this district and have a high peak in attendance." The Border Club was established 36 years ago.

FIRESIDE CHAT
He made reference to the Club projects, Sled Dog Derby each mid winter, Beano each week at the Border Theatre. He suggested "fireside" meetings, with the new and the older members to meet at homes and have discussions.

"Share a message about Rotary," he said. He referred to the Lake Placid days with 346 Rotarians and their wives there and how much was learned about Rotary those nine days. He continued, "I'm learning more every day."

"Friendships and fellowships are made by Rotarians," he added. "I can get to any home across the world of Rotarians at the Lake Placid gathering without fear for we are 'hands across the seas'."

From the message of the Rotary International president he suggested "let's take a look at the Rotary, a new look. If it has the same force the coming century it has had the past 68 years it is good."

He referred to membership where Rotary has the respect and the potential to bring others into the club. It means sharing, he said, sharing to improve the community, to bring others into the club. It's a community service.

Rotary needs to meet relevant times, for there are new needs, environment, pollution, drop outs, addicts, the handicapped are some of the problems of today. He asked, "Is there something we should be doing that we are not doing?"

Mr. Thayer told in a most interesting way how some Rotary Clubs are doing unusual things to help, such as a person who takes a blind man on a bicycle in the country while a picture of the surroundings is described so that the blind person can have a happier outlook of the world in which he or she lives. There were other stories equally as fascinating, all on Rotary accomplishments.

BUILDS RELATIONSHIPS
He spoke about the International Foundation and what the money is doing to create good international relationships between nations. He pointed out that youngsters from France at the Border this summer entertained in some of the Rotarians' homes was paid for from the Foundation. The Rotarians who house the youth are not paid.

Rotary is quietly trying to bring peace to the North and South of Ireland, he said. He spoke on the topics The Individual, You and Me, Truth and Authority, Carriers of Reality, True for Rotary and What It Shall Be.

Mr. Thayer stressed the importance to the Rotarians and their ladies the importance of coming to the District Conference of all area Rotary Clubs on Oct. 20-22 at North Conway, N.H. He outlined the extremely interesting program for Rotarians and their wives. In conclusion he asked, "Are you in Rotary or is Rotary in You?" adding, "think on this."

25-YEAR MEMBER
C.R. MacLean introduced Mr. Thayer who came here from Mirror Lake, N.H. He is a 25 year Rotarian. He is a member of the Wolfeboro, N.H. Club and is a teacher by profession.

For his excellent address he was thanked by Ronald Quigley, Rotary flags were exchanged and Mr. Thayer presented President Oscar Palmer with District directories, one for each of the members.

Afterward there followed a "fireside chat" period with many questions and discussions about Rotary.

TMTW and a M at Bishop's Saturday

LENNOXVILLE — One of last summer's smash Festival Lennoxville hits, "Ten Women, Two Men, and a Moose," will be presented this Saturday, September 23 in the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre at 8:30 p.m., a spokesman for the university said yesterday.

Starring Mia Anderson in a superb, one-woman show, this production is based on a dramatic rendering of selected passages from Canadian Literature.

As at Festival Lennoxville, Miss Anderson shares the stage with no one but an off stage tape recorder. She recites and acts out passages from the works of some of Canada's best writers. All of the pieces deal with women in one form or another.

This dual role of acting and recitation is a natural crystallization of Miss Anderson's extensive experience both as a stage actress and as a radio performer. It also encompasses her continuing interest in Canadian Literature.

All seats for this event are reserved in two categories: $2.50 and $3 with a special student price of $1. The box office is open between 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily. Further information is available from Gary Richards, 569-9551 Local 258, or Ron Taylor, 563-4966.

Pioneer cemetery bears witness

This is the second in a series of three articles by the Record's Joyce Hibbert on old cemeteries near the Drummondville area. The third and last article will appear in the Tuesday Sept. 26 edition of The Record.

By JOYCE HIBBERT
DRUMMONDVILLE — If you travel 18 miles east of Drummondville and then leave Route No. 22 and continue two miles along an unpaved farm road, you will find another small pioneer cemetery. It is easily spotted inside a wire fence a few hundred feet from the road, in the peaceful countryside. The five tombstones bear witness to one family's determination to establish roots there long ago.

Actual location of the cemetery is on Lot No. 15 in Range No. 2 of the Municipality of L'Avenir, formerly known as Durham. John Husk was an English soldier from Brixham, Devonshire serving with the 103rd Regiment of Foot in Canada. After completing 12 years of military service and at 36 years of age, he was honorably discharged in 1816.

Although first granted land in Wickham township, he soon decided to move nearer the sawmill at Ulverton. According to family records, he purchased the new land from Indians referred to as Lazare 2nd and Pierre Wesanamat.

The ex-soldier didn't enjoy a settlers life for long. He was trapped by a tree he was felling and died, leaving his 12-year-old son to carry on in his place. John Husk was the first of the family to be buried on the farm land. His is one of several unmarked graves.

It is believed that Indians are also buried there. The tombstones, all clearly marked, were erected to John's son, William Wood Husk and his family. Six years ago vandals uprooted the stones and members of the Husk family decided to set them in solid concrete to discourage further damage.

Two earlier farmhouses have disappeared. The third was built on a different site and stands a quarter of a mile from the cemetery. In 1870, Cyrus Husk, John's grandson, took over a ferry. It carried people across the river St. Francis from the Husk property to Kingsey, another small settlement.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who once ran a newspaper in nearby L'Avenir, sometimes used the ferry. On one occasion he told Cyrus Husk that he felt he could make his mark if his health were better.

There are numerous descendants of John Husk living. Among them is Stafford Husk, the last of the name to farm John's original acres.

The TD bank has a new way to lend you money.

It's called

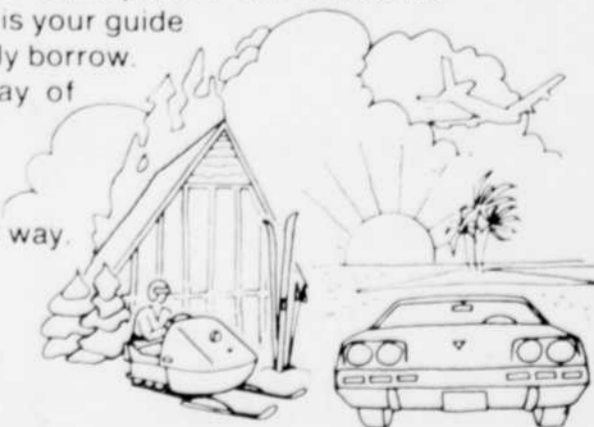

CASH-FLOW

This is our new way of turning your personal loan wishes into reality. It's the money you're earning that counts most with us, not your possessions. Here's why.

You're probably basing many of your major expenditures on a cash-flow system right now. For example, you figure how much money you'll have coming in over a period of a year, and how much you plan to spend during the same period. This difference between income and expenditure is your guide to the amount you may comfortably borrow.

That's what our cash-flow way of lending you money is all about. Simple-enough, isn't it?

Stop in. And ask us about a personal loan—the new Cash-flow way.

Up to summit

So the European summit is on after all. Barring last-minute untoward events, it is to take place in Paris on Oct. 19 and 20. This change of heart in Paris was brought about by an agreement in principle reached last week at the Rome meeting of the European Common Market foreign and finance ministers. Since the agreement is somewhat vague — it provides for the establishing of a European monetary fund as a first step towards a monetary union scheduled for 1980; and it promises a relentless fight against inflation — one may well wonder what the earlier fuss was all about.

As The Times remarks, President Pompidou, having failed to bludgeon his partners into surrender over the political secretariat that he wanted in Paris, required a new issue he could then claim as a French success. This should now be provided by the promise of a monetary union in a dim future, and an imminent crusade against inflation.

The European fund may well be a useful instrument, but as of now it's very small potatoes. German commentators have remarked with glee that in Rome, Germany has forestalled the earmarking of specific sums for this fund, something that would have forced the federal republic to bail out once again the Community's weak sisters. The fund will start out with a capital of $1.4 billion, a fraction of the money that in a single day moves across the European exchanges.

The stabilization of European currencies remains an equally distant goal. Italy is following her own path since her economic difficulties have proved too much of a strain on the lira; and the pound will probably continue to float even after Jan. 1, 1973, when Britain joins the ECM.

The battle against inflation will be no easier, since each member nation faces different inflationary pressures. Britain has to cope with unemployment. Italy has to fight industrial stagnation while France and Germany have drastically to reduce their rates of inflation.

In Germany, the mere word "inflation" triggers frightening memories that could have serious political repercussions, even though the German rate of inflation is well below the European average. In Britain, the higher cost of food that will be the first consequence of the accession to ECM and its agricultural featherbedding, in the present climate of rising prices may have an equally unhappy political fall-out.

The French want a monetary union, but they want to remain economically "masters in their own house." However, unless the economic policies of the major ECM countries are co-ordinated, and a certain measure of supranationalism introduced, all talk about monetary union by 1980 and a fight against inflation now will remain the stuff of unread official communiqués.

The disparate economic performances of the various countries and their varied rates of inflation can only be brought in line by drastic measures, an unpalatable task that no government seems willing to tackle.

Nixon seeks hat trick before election

WASHINGTON — The odds are improving somewhat on President Nixon's achieving the hat trick — meaning an acceptable settlement in Vietnam before Election Day. It is still an open bet either way, but what has really happened is interesting enough to deserve careful thought.

To begin with, it needs to be clearly understood that negotiating the details of a settlement is bound to be a contentious, time-consuming task, even after both sides have decided they want one. The Hanoi leadership has been warned of this in plain terms. But the leaders in Hanoi have also been warned by their Soviet and Chinese friends that the time to do business with the President is before the election.

At best, at least a month will be needed to work out the details if the moment finally comes when Hanoi's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, tells Dr. Henry A. Kissinger: "Let's stop sparring and get down to business." Thus the next fortnight or so is the crucial, last-chance period.

President Nixon is known to believe that if Le Duc Tho is (ital) not (unital) instructed to get down to business before the end of September, that will effectively imply Hanoi's decision against an early settlement. In that event, the North Vietnamese can be expected to try to aid Sen. George McGovern by driving their troops to produce the appearance of trouble in South Vietnam during October.

On the other hand, because of the time problem above mentioned, President Nixon is also known to believe that the state of the U.S. election campaign in mid-September will greatly influence the decision in Hanoi. In this connection, much impact can be expected from the Louis Harris poll, again showing Sen. McGovern a dreadful 34 points behind.

Long ago, furthermore, the Hanoi leaders plainly decided to wait and see how things might develop before making any gamble on Sen. McGovern. That is the real meaning of the far-from-secret "secret meetings" between Le Duc Tho and Dr. Kissinger.

Thus far, the "secret meetings" have been nothing more nor less than a device for keeping Hanoi's options open against the time when a decision about a future settlement would eventually have to be taken. Thus there was considerable meaning in the simple fact of the long meeting in Paris last Friday.

There are also other facts to consider. En route to Paris, for one thing, Le Duc Tho clearly heard unpalatable news in Moscow. Until recently, the Soviet formula for relations with North Vietnam remained "all necessary aid until complete victory."

But when Le Duc Tho passed through Moscow, Pravda published an authoritative article merely promising "all-around aid." There was no mention whatever of "complete victory." The dilution of Soviet support was both obvious and serious.

For the Politburo in Hanoi, however, the fact that Quang Tri has now been retaken by the South Vietnamese no doubt weighs heavier than any change of Soviet attitude. Elements of no less than five North Vietnamese divisions have been used in the defense of Quang Tri. The troops in the citadel were literally under orders to "fight to the death."

But in much of the fighting in and around Quang Tri, the North Vietnamese high command has had to use absolutely raw, almost wholly untrained reservists. Barring a regiment or two, Hanoi has already thrown into battle all the men in North Vietnam's equivalents of U.S. basic training camps.

This partly explains Quang Tri's recapture by the southerners. And with Quang Tri lost, and with no remaining capability to threaten Hue, the northern high command faces a bleak prospect.

To be specific, the North Vietnamese forces have now disastrously failed in their area of maximum effort. Hence it seems unlikely that they can still put on a big, noisy show in South Vietnam in October. They may be able to stage the kind of "high point" that really amounts to nothing more nor less than a firecracker demonstration. But they will need enormous luck to do better than that.

Such are the factors. Yet one must always remember that any order to Le Duc Tho to seek an early settlement will necessarily mean a deep change in the Hanoi power structure. And one must also remember Adolf Hitler's suicidal obstinacy in 1945.

'You'd like to emigrate to UGANDA..?'

Quebec population change

By Joseph MacSween

MONTREAL (CP) — A historic change in Quebec province's population pattern is one of the unsettling components in the life of la belle province, particularly Montreal—the real cockpit of cultural clash.

A sharply-reduced birth rate in the French-language majority reflects urbanization and altered attitudes to Roman Catholic church authority.

Immigration, meanwhile, has strikingly changed the makeup of the non-French minority, which once was almost entirely English, Irish and Scottish.

What is the population picture today as compared with the beginning of the century? Census figures for 1901 show Quebec's population of 1,649,000 in that year was 80 per cent French-Canadian, nearly 18 per cent Anglo-Celtic and other ethnic groups only about two per cent.

The ethnic breakdown for Quebec's 5,259,211 citizens in the 1961 census was 80.6 per cent French-Canadian, 10.8 per cent Anglo-Celtic—a more accurate term than the oft-used Anglo-Saxon—and 8.6 per cent other groups.

Full results of the 1971 census have not yet been released but advance figures on mother tongue only—not ethnic groups—show a percentage drop in French and a smaller drop in English, in a Quebec population of 6,027,764, swelled by newcomers with mother tongues other than the two official languages.

NEVER COMPILED

Prof. Jacques Henripin, director of the University of Montreal demographic department and one of Canada's leading authorities in the study of population and vital statistics, says a "real demographic history" of old Quebec has never been compiled.

"But we can discuss the main elements which were and now are the crucial factors in the determination of what will happen to the French-speaking and the English-speaking," said Dr. Henripin in an interview.

"What happened in the past, until 1950 let's say, is that French-Canadian fertility was much higher than that of the rest of the population.

"This compensated for what the immigrants brought to the English side, because even in Quebec most immigrants from foreign countries adopted English, with one exception, the Italians."

School figures now indicated however that in Montreal, where nearly all Italian Quebecers live, approximately three-quarters of Italian children attend English-language schools. This probably would be reflected in the forthcoming new census figures.

mographers make their hypotheses "as realistic as possible" but the nature of the science precludes hard predictions.

"Within this field of realism, we made some hypotheses which were more favorable to the French-speaking and some which were less favorable," he said. "In any case, whatever the hypothesis, it pointed to a decline. For the whole province, a decline in the French-speaking from 82 per cent in the 1961 census to something like 72 to 79 per cent in the year 2000.

"It was much more serious for the metropolitan area of Montreal where the proportion would decline from 66 per cent in 1961 to something between 53 per cent and 60 per cent in 2000."

Prof. Henripin emphasized that his findings depend on such factors as fertility, immigration and language—that Quebec continue to receive immigrants who opt for English—continuing to operate more or less as in the past.

"If the situation changed drastically, for instance in the political situation, so that the English people would leave the province, well these figures would be no good," said the professor and author.

He reported that Quebec, breaking out of a post-Second World War pattern, had a net emigration in 1968, 1969 and 1970, estimated respectively at 5,000, 13,000 and 34,000. Figures for 1971 and 1972 were not available.

Though the Henripin projections are sometimes used by French-Canadian nationalists as an argument for separatism, the professor said he is no separatist and cannot see "what supernatural thing would come about by separatism."

Concern along these lines was accentuated in 1969 when Prof. Henripin and two colleagues, Prof. Hubert Charbonneau and Prof. Jacques Legare, published a study indicating that Montreal's French-language majority might be little more than 50 per cent by the year 2000.

Prof. Henripin stressed in the interview that in undertaking that kind of study de-

No French, no job

Dear Sir:

Discrimination still exists in Sherbrooke. Why, I can't seem to understand.

I was a security guard stationed at the main gate of a plant here in Sherbrooke, a position for which I was best suited — traffic control. Suddenly the employees' union swooped down and had me removed. The reason? — I wasn't bilingual. Now I am out of a job.

I am an English-born Canadian disabled veteran of World War II, proudly served in the Royal Canadian Naval Service during which time I sailed and worked along with many French-origin Canadian boys, many of whom had difficulty with the English language.

In undertook their plight and helped them overcome this as best and most practical as I could. Consequently, I made many good friends, some of whom I still keep in contact.

I am trying hard to learn the French language — tried to purchase a book on "French-English" by the phonetic system, but don't know the title of the book.

However, I am not discouraged by this ordeal. As I always say two wrongs don't make a right, even though I wasn't given the benefit of the doubt.

Pollution in Soviet pulp mills no different from ours

VANCOUVER (CP) — A five-man group of Canadian pollution control experts, recently returned from a tour of pulp mills in the Soviet Union, said Wednesday the Russians haven't made any dynamic strides in controlling pollution.

F. G. Hurtubise, leader of the mission and director of technology development for the federal environment department, said the technology used for pollution abatement in the U.S.S.R. is apparently "essentially the same as that in Canada and the United States.

"There is no technological breakthrough that we have found," Mr. Hurtubise said.

The group went to the Soviet Union in August for a two-week visit, met with Russian experts in pollution control, then toured two pulp mills, one on Lake Baikal in Siberia and the other the Kotlas Pulp and Paper development northeast of Moscow.

Both mills were using "classical effluent technology," Mr.

Hurtubise said, with the Lake Baikal mill especially effective in combatting pollution.

The Lake Baikal mill has "a very intricate system of pollution abatement," he said, because the government put "very severe constraints" on its effluent quality.

"It appeared from what we saw that there is a considerable push toward pollution control," said Mr. Hurtubise.

Lake Baikal has long been the subject of scientific research into its marine population, and the Soviet Union was concerned that aquatic life not be disturbed, he said.

The mill used biological, mechanical and chemical methods of pollution control. Mr. Hurtubise said, and had succeeded in controlling pollution to an extent unmatched in Canada.

"However, you must remember that we have no pulp mills of the Lake Baikal type in Canada," he said.

"And we do not impose such severe restrictions on pollution abatement on Canadian mills."

The Baikal development is a kraft mill that manufactures dissolving pulp for use in the manufacture of rayon cord for tires.

Reduction of the costs of biological treatment systems, better measurement of toxicity of pulp mill effluent and improved utilization of sludge left by pollution control are some of the areas the mission leader felt would benefit from information exchanges.

"The problems are so enormous that we have to exchange information, not only with the U.S.S.R., but with other countries," he said.

The visit came under a Canada-U.S.S.R. agreement on exchange of technological information on certain industries. Under the agreement, experts will exchange visits, hold meetings and trade information on common problems.

Sawyerville council clears business

SAWYERVILLE (VW) — The regular meeting of the Sawyerville municipal council met in the Town Hall on Sept. 5, with an agenda of seasonal business.

It had been brought to the attention of the Council that an agreement signed in June between the Department of Social Affairs and the Quebec Association of Owner Pharmacists made it illegal for doctors to sell drug medication to patients. It was felt that this created hardship for many people in rural areas, and discriminated against rural residents.

A motion was passed by this Council requesting the Department of Social Affairs to amend this agreement, allowing rural doctors to sell medication, to avoid patients having to travel great distances to drug stores or suffer delay in receiving medication because drugs had to be mailed to them.

The matter of winter road plowing for the winter of 1972-73 was discussed. Mr. Charles Kingsley was again given the contract for snow plowing.

A notice of motion was given that at the next or subsequent meeting, a bylaw will be introduced governing noise pollution in the town.

Negotiations have been entered into with the municipalities of Clifton and Eaton for recompense for the citizens from those municipalities who use the Sawyerville dump.

Now a Captain

GEORGEVILLE — Military authorities at the Canadian Forces Base Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, have announced the promotion of Lieutenant V.S. (Vaughan) Cochrane to the rank of Captain.

Capt. Cochrane joined the Canadian Armed Forces in 1967 and upon completion of pilot training, was selected as a Flying Instructor. Capt. Cochrane has been instructing for the past three years at CFB Moose Jaw.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cochrane of Georgeville, Quebec, Capt. Cochrane and his wife, Linda, now live at 940 Caribou St. W., Moose Jaw.

Brome authorizes new hall

KNOWLTON (SM) — The September council meeting of the Town of Brome Lake was held in the County House on Monday September 11.

Routine business and minutes were conducted in the usual manner and several new items of business were transacted. The tender for the Diesel Oil Contract was awarded to Yves Desgens for the distribution and supply of Shell Oil Products for the forthcoming year for the mechanical vehicles belonging to the Town of Brome Lake. A grant was given to the firemen for their annual ball to be held at a later date.

The authorization for the construction of a new fire hall was approved, and for this purpose a public meeting was held on September 21 for the purpose of approving the borrowing of money for the hall. The new bylaw authorizes the purchasing of equipment and the building of the new hall.

Tenders are to be called for the construction of the fire hall. The opening of a new municipal garbage dump is to be postponed temporarily pending the outcome of the new garbage dump to be installed in the Granby area. Present arrangements for garbage collection will remain for the time being.

The Bell Telephone Co. will be constructing and maintaining lines within the boundaries of the municipality and, for this purpose, the municipality has given Bell Canada authorization to trim and control all trees growing in the municipality that interfere with the efficiency and safety of telephone lines. This is to be done without unnecessary damage and at all times at the risk of the company.

The Canadian Shade Tree Service has been authorized to remove several dangerous and dying trees. The offer made by Waterloo Municipality for Town of Brome Lake youths to use the Waterloo arena at a cost of $35 per participant was declined. Disbursements for the past month of $23,150 were approved.

Nine building permits were authorized by Council.

Capital gains tax decisions. What are you going to do about them?

Start at the beginning.

Your first major problem is deciding whether the "tax free zone" or "valuation day value" is best for your investment portfolio and other assets.

You make this decision once and once you've made it, you have to live with it.

Then you must determine the adjusted cost base of your assets for reporting capital gains in 1972 and future years.

All transactions must be considered — stock splits, conversions, exercised rights, stock dividends, warrants and stock options — and the amortized cost of bonds is needed.

Canadians have never had to do this kind of record-keeping. Sounds difficult, doesn't it?

It is.

This was prematurely announced and it has since been confirmed by the Beebe Council that Beebe's Chief has too much work to do for him to be able to exchange work.

There will not be an exchange of days between the two communities' police.

NORTH HATLEY — The Valley Weavers' Guild opened activities by holding their September meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. John York in North Hatley with 11 members and two guests present.

In opening, a tribute of regret was expressed in the loss of two valued members during the summer — Mrs. Helen Hyatt, a charter member and true craftsman and Mrs. J. Philippe Lefebvre, an inspiring member. Mrs. William Van Horn reported on the annual conference held at North Hatley when Montreal area Guilds were guests and Mrs. York reported on the success of the sale held at the Antique Show and thanked all who helped. Mrs. York also asked for suggestions for a new format for these conference meetings.

The members were pleased to accept an invitation to hold an exhibition of weaving and sale in conjunction with the Philathea Harvest sale and Scone tea at the Lennoxville United Church Hall on October 25.

Mrs. York had floor runners and rugs on display and the usual weaving discussions made for the social hour when the hostess served a delicious lunch.

Texstyles

Madeleine Levason

Jeans, those most democratic and universally worn North American garments, are still conquering new frontiers. In Russia, Japan and even Communist China, the word is jeans, according to textile marketing expert, W. A. McVey of Dominion Textile Limited.

Describing the development of the jean market as "one of the greatest evolutions of the past 25 years," Mr. McVey said the trend has spread rapidly "far beyond anyone's vision." After Europe, it spread to eastern bloc countries. Now in China, "where most clothing is standardized for all, the young people are breaking away and want a change to something different, something new" — jeans.

Speaking to the 450 leading scientists and technologists attending the 13th Canadian Textile Seminar (International) at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. Mr. McVey said the Canadian textile industry has seen four major fabric and style trends develop in recent years.

He named the "advent of permanent press, the explosion of fashion in the men's wear, a radical swing to knits in women's wear and the more recent breakthrough of knits into traditional woven fabric markets in men's slacks, jackets and shirts."

Canadian textile mills have responded to these challenging market waves, Mr. McVey said. "We were in the forefront with permanent press. In men's wear we went from two or three basic shades in shirts to 400 fascinating and exhilarating colors over a variety of fabrics. In bottom weights (pant fabrics) we moved from standard colors to fashion."

The rapid swing to knits in ladies wear and then into men's wear was world-wide, creating over-all shortages in equipment and fabrics. The jean evolution, for instance, required the introduction of new fabrics and new finishes at an unprecedented rate for both men's wear. All of this meant substantial capital outlays for new equipment.

Mr. McVey said "nevertheless our industry responded well to the quick changing market scene." He pointed out that his company's apparel division products featured 60 per cent new fabrics which were not part of the lines only three years ago.

Reviewing the facts of the Canadian textile industry's problems in coping with severe competition from its giant neighbor to the south, plus the traditional styling influences of Europe and the pressures caused by the low prices of Asian imports, Mr. McVey said: "Canadians demand the very best in fashion, quality, value and service." Catering to this demand for a small number of people spread over a large geographical area was only one of the many facets of competition in Canada.

Mrs. Dorothy Geddes, Home Economics convenor, thanked all for their generous donations to the handicraft booth and noted that October was the month for the donations for the pre-Christmas sale to be held on November 4, in St. George's Church Hall, Queen Street.

Proud of pregnancy

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago when I was 15 I lost my leg in an accident. I was a champion ice skater and loved to dance. Knowing I would never again excel in these areas was a real blow. In a few months, with the help of a good counsellor I managed to accept my limitations. But this is not what I'm writing about. What drives me crazy is that when I decide not to wear my artificial limb (it gets uncomfortable after a while) people stare, or gasp, or turn their heads away, as if the sight of the stump makes them sick.

I've made MY adjustment. Why can't people who are fortunate enough to have both legs make theirs? Why must they make me feel like some sort of a repulsive freak? Sometimes I want to scream. "This is the way I am! If I can stand it, so can you!" Please print my letter. Ann. It might help make life easier for those of us who are abbreviated, but whole. — The Gimp

Dear Friend: There will always be insensitive clods in the world, but you seem to have an uncontrollable desire to punish them — perhaps because you have suffered so much.

I hope you will resume your counseling and get rid of your anger. Your "adjustment" isn't complete.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from "It's What's Up Front that Counts" and I must respond. "Front" complained about the tasteless digs she got while working during her pregnancy.

I, too, worked through my pregnancy — and I was big as a house — absolutely enormous. It was comical to watch people's faces when they saw me. They tried not to stare but they just couldn't help it. I was beyond belief. I'd finally make the observer comfortable by saying, "Biggest thing since the Graf Zeppelin — isn't it?" This never failed to crack them up and from then on everyone was relaxed.

Whenever I stepped into an elevator I'd take bets as to whether or not we'd make it. I figured it was better to come right out and say what they were thinking.

Those Women's Libbers are crazy. Ann. I wouldn't trade places with any man. This is the ONE thing we can do that they can't. Sign me Just Plain Happy

Dear Hap: I won't debate the merits of Women's Lib, but how many men do you know who envy a woman the ability to get pregnant? You say it's the one thing a woman can do that a man can't. I agree, but it's also the one thing that most men are darned happy can't happen to THEM. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: It's obvious you are no bridge player. You told the woman who wrote about fighting with her husband over the card table to "throw in the deck" — permanently. That advice stank.

Throwing in the deck is an admission of defeat. No one ever became a good bridge player by giving up. Better advice would have been to keep the rule book at the table. (Choose your own expert.) When an argument starts about who should have done what, look it up and settle the bloomin' thing then and there. Of course it slows up the game, but everyone will learn from it. Even a dumbbell like you. — Miami

Dear M: Not me. I'm no card player. As for YOUR suggestion — it sounds like a sure way to hatch another argument. If Goren says one thing and Becker says another, you've got another hassle on your hands.

SOUP'S ON!

What offers more good cheer and comfort on a chilly day than a bowl of hot, steaming soup? It hits the spot when served at lunch, dinner or as a late evening snack.

This Cream of Asparagus Soup boasts real old-fashioned flavor, but makes use of today's modern frozen foods. Handy chicken broth gives a subtle background flavor to the rich creamy soup. The elegant cut asparagus spears, which come frozen in a delicately seasoned butter sauce, make this soup special. At serving time sprinkling pungent-flavored Parmesan cheese on top of the soup is a MUST!

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Don't Let Machine Be a Shocker

Dear Dr. Lamb — I recently read your column about the reducing machine Relaxacisor. I have a transistorized Relaxacisor. Are they dangerous, too? My husband says that certain types of things store up electricity.

If we turn it in where would we do this and is there any chance of getting our money back on this type of device?

Dear Reader — The electrical devices that produce contractions of the stomach muscles create a problem by introducing an electrical current into the body. It is the electrical current itself that stimulates the muscles to contract. The problem with attaching these to the abdominal muscle is that the heart itself rests just at the bottom of the rib cage near the pit of the stomach.

The danger is that the electrical current will pass to the heart and literally cause electrocution. It doesn't matter whether the electrical current that is applied to the muscles of the body is provided through the electrical current from a wall socket or whether it is from a transistorized or battery model.

Any of the electrical devices that use electricity to stimulate muscle contractions are dangerous. These are the ones that the Federal Trade Commission has asked to be discarded and have denied the right for their continued marketing.

This, incidentally, is not the same thing as a vibrator. A vibrator produces stimulations solely by mechanical effort. It does not introduce electrical current into the body. Vibrators also don't do much for reducing a person's excess fat either. So, specifically, the answer to your question is that the transistorized Relaxacisor that you have is dangerous and should not be used.

Jim: "It was tough luck that North and South each held three clubs, but it was even tougher luck that they got into that never-never land between game and slam without the cards to warrant it."

Flames burning to show they belong, veterans fired up

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Cliff Fletcher's first job when he assembled his new Atlanta Flames for their National Hockey League training camp here was to instill a sense of pride in the combination of veterans and rookies.

Fletcher, general manager of the new entry, and coach Bernie Geoffrion called a team meeting before they held a workout.

"I told them they all had something to prove," Fletcher said. "Most of them had been culled over for some reason or another—and now they had to show they belong in the league."

That was a week ago, and now after two exhibition games against the other new NHL entry this season—New York Islanders—Fletcher feels he's got his mixed bag working on the pride angle.

"Let's face it, there are few professional athletes who don't have pride," he said after a 4-1 win here Sunday and a 3-3 tie Monday night against the Islanders.

MYRE AN EXAMPLE
Pride was goalie Phil Myre's problem

last season and probably the basic reason why he ended with the expansion club.

Drafted from Montreal, Myre last year had his best training camp with the established Canadiens. But he finished sitting on the bench behind Ken Dryden, a condition that existed until Dec. 29 when he got into a game—overweight and considerably out of shape.

Myre's reaction was to sulk and ask to be traded. The Canadiens complied and left him unprotected in the expansion draft.

"Now I feel I'm part of a team," Myre said. "You feel wanted—and it's nice to know that other people are relying on you."

The goaltender says he is finding it tough to get in shape this year "because I was out of condition when I finished last season." He estimates he played 50 NHL games in 2½ seasons with the Canadiens.

TOUGH CAMP
Myre says Geoffrion's camp is one of the toughest he's been in, with two workouts a day, preceded by 20-minute exercise sessions.

"We won't go out and win the Stanley Cup, but we should be able to hold our own against any team in the league."

Myre says, "We have a lot of young players who can really skate and that's why it's been such a good camp. There are about 10 or 12 guys all fighting for positions."

Fletcher agrees the Flames' key is youth and speed.

"We have 15 candidates trying out for forward positions and only three of them are over 25," Fletcher says. "We don't have any super stars and we're obviously lacking in the goal-scoring department."

Veteran defenceman Ron Harris, obtained from Detroit Red Wings, said the younger players have shown plenty of speed and hustle. Myre agreed and noted that spirit on the club is excellent.

The cornerstone of future Atlanta teams is forward Jacques Richard, the Flames' No. 1 pick in the amateur draft, after a strong junior career with Quebec Remparts.

Richard is beginning to feel at home at camp and has impressed both Geoffrion and Fletcher with his skating.

Any chance?

The Cowansville Voyageurs have a new motto for the 1972-73 hockey season which goes something like this: "It's this year or never for the Voyageurs." And if you're a betting man, you'd be a lot more secure by putting the rent money on the latter alternative.

The press release says 30 "hard-heads" have united to make up the junior club's administration and, it's probably best that their skulls are made of stern stuff, because they may have to beat them against the wall in frustration before the year is out.

"I don't know how many of you have a similar ax to grind with the Voyageurs, but for the last three years the September song in Cowansville sounds like a broken record. The Voyageurs are going to be an exciting, competitive hockey club of which the whole town will be extremely proud. And the fans actually believed this—until they saw the first game."

With this new group of directors, the Voyageurs have changed hands three times, and that's probably the best indication of the shredded situation of junior hockey in this town. One year of turmoil isn't bad, two can barely be tolerated, but after that the fans have every right to ask a few questions.

But before you put the rap on some of the people pulling the strings at the executive level, bite your tongue for a couple of minutes. Sure it was unmistakably a case of mismanagement which turned the first year of operation into a bigger mess than the city dump. But no one works miracles in their first season, right?

Well, the next year wasn't exactly an example of smooth sailing, either. After the team had gone through a couple of general managers, a handful of coaches and a thousand disgruntled hockey fans, the directors decided the water was getting too deep and promptly bailed out.

This left the Voyageurs with no one looking after their welfare until the Minor Hockey Association headed by Jean-Paul Sirois assumed the battered steering wheel. That lasted little more than a month, before they too disowned the franchise, on the grounds that half the players didn't give a damn whether they pulled on a uniform or not.

So, with a handful of games left in the season and the Vees hopelessly mired in last place the team was in limbo and prepared to suspend all ties with the Richelieu Junior circuit. But an emergency meeting convinced the Minor Hockey Association to complete the remainder of the schedule, after which they washed their hands of the affair.

I have the utmost respect for the hockey doctrines of Jean-Paul Sirois, and for this reason I know he was sincere when he explained the total indifference of the players as the prime reason for abandoning the franchise last year.

"There was a complete lack of discipline among the players," he revealed at that time. "Whenever the coach would try to teach them something the words either were unheeded or prompted an argument."

The time has come to suspend junior hockey in Cowansville and take a serious look at the coaching techniques which are being applied at the minor league level, because there's little doubt this is the root of the evil.

Too many of the Saturday morning tutors are getting out of bed, pacing sleepily-eyed behind the bench, and going with their best to pull out a victory which makes them look like a coaching wizard. Forget about cracking down on your hockey players or teaching the proper fundamentals—if they can put the puck in the net isn't that all that matters?

Unfortunately most minor hockey leagues, Cowansville naturally included, don't have someone with the teaching talent of a Howie Meeker, because if there was ever a man who could transform raw potential into hockey prowess the occasional Hockey Night in Canada analyst is that person.

For lack of a better comparison, the old adage about you can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink will suffice here. You can bring hundreds of hockey players into training camp, but how can you carve them into a competitive unit if there's no willingness to learn?

Somewhere along the line the Cowansville minor hockey programme has become soft. Until stricter measures are adopted the operation of a junior franchise should be suspended, since there aren't enough local products to stock one.

The betting here is that the Voyageurs won't last the season and, even if they do, it will be their last for some time to come.

Liske ready but so are others

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Pete Liske is expected to be ready for the Philadelphia Eagles' 1972 National Football League home opener against Cleveland Browns Sunday, but head coach Ed Khayat is readying a couple of new backups just in case.

Liske suffered strained muscles in the joint of his right shoulder last Sunday as the Eagles lost 28-6 to Dallas Cowboys.

The 30-year-old Liske, former Calgary Stampeder quarterback in the Canadian Football League, is undergoing whirlpool and other treatment for the injury and will take it easy in practice drills.

John Reeves, the Eagles' No. 1 draft choice, is the backup quarterback, but showed his inexperience in the Dallas defeat.

Khayat said free safety Bill Bradley and strong safety Steve Preece, former college quarterbacks, would practice taking snaps and making hand-offs as a precautionary measure.

Weaver figures he's got it figured

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Earl Weaver, bless his optimistic soul, has finally figured out the American League East pennant scramble. All he needs to win it is a little help from his friends.
After his Baltimore Orioles absorbed a vital 9-1 and 4-0 doubleheader sweep at the hands of first-place Boston to tumble 2½ games off the Red Sox' pace Wednesday night, Weaver studied his baseball schedule and discovered Boston spends the next four days playing second-place Detroit Tigers. Then the Baltimore boss offered his analysis.
"I'll be rooting for my good friend Billy Martin Thursday and Saturday," revealed Weaver. "And I'll be rooting for my good friend Eddie Kasko Friday and Sunday. If my good friends win, we'll get Boston three in a row and we'll be all even with three games to go."

RIVALS BETTER OFF
Managers Martin of the Tigers and Kasko of the Red Sox are in infinitely better shape than Weaver today. Detroit trimmed Cleveland Indians 4-1 Wednesday night and are second, one game behind the Sox with 12 to play compared to Boston's 13. Weaver's Orioles are now third, 2½ behind, with only nine to play. Fourth place New York, rained out at Milwaukee, is 3½ behind with 12 games remaining.

Elsewhere, Oakland Athletics reduced their magic number in the West to seven by whipping Chicago White Sox 6-3. Minnesota Twins topped Texas Rangers 3-1 and Kansas City Royals defeated California Ay-gels 9-2.

Baltimore ran into two hot pitchers in Boston and Marty Pattin and Luis Tiant simply proved to be too much for the Orioles.
Pattin surrendered five hits in the opener and had an easy time of it when Boston scored seven runs in the fourth inning. Carlton Fisk drove in three runs.
The victory ran Pattin's record to 15-12 after a horrendous 2-9 start. He is 13-3 since June 12.

TIANT TERRIFIC
Tiant, the veteran righthander with the herky-jerky motion, improved his record to 13-5 with a four-hitter in the nightcap. He has won nine of his last 10.
Evans contributed a triple and homer to the second game victory.
Woody Fryman fired a six-hitter and drove in a pair of runs with a clutch single after Duke Sims, another National League refugee, had snapped a ninth inning tie with a double at Cleveland.

The victory gave Fryman an 8-2 record with the Tigers since coming over from Philadelphia in early August. Since his arrival, Fryman alone has won more games for the Tigers than Mickey Lolich, Tom Timmerman and Joe Coleman have won combined.
REGAIN CUSHION
After their five-hour, 15-inning marathon the night before, Oakland and Chicago played a relatively routine encore with the Athletics winning 6-3, restoring their West Division edge to five games over the slipping Sox.
Ken Holtzman won his 18th game—a career high—for Oakland while Wilbur Wood, 24-15, took the loss.
John Mayberry crashed a first-inning grand slam homer and pitcher Steve Busby drove in three runs with a double and two singles as Kansas City trimmed California.

Minnesota rallied for three runs in the eighth inning, two of them on a bases-loaded single by Bob Darwin to overtake Texas.

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali unleashed a flow of superlatives in praise of Floyd Patterson, offered him a rematch and then clamored for heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.
"Patterson is a great, great fighter. I thought he'd be nothing but he surprised me," Ali said after he hammered Patterson's left eye shut, sliced open a gash above the eye and stopped him after seven rounds of a scheduled 12-round fight Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.
"I didn't knock him out. I didn't get him on a TKO. All I did was close his eye," Ali said.
Despite the loss, the 37-year-old Patterson said he would resume training and refused to entertain thoughts of retirement.

Beautiful weather for closing

BOUNDARY (H) — The weatherman was very cooperative on Sunday, Sept. 17 so that the softball players could have a cook-out as planned which was held on the grounds of the Sacred Heart school in Stanstead.
The committee were very pleased with the attendance. They are also grateful for their support and to those who donated towards its success. They are:

IGA, and A & P, Rock Island; Peleerin Butcher, Rock Island bakery, Ferguson Appliance, Peacock's store, Del Monty Hotel, Maples Hotel, Maclures restaurant, Modern Dairy, O. Letourneau, L. Grenier, Three Villages and Dupont Hardware.
Races as well as ball throwing contests were held for the younger set. The committee gave a resume of the season's work to the group as well as the financial report.

A point of apology is made for the oversight in neglecting to thank the parents who donated sandwiches, the women who helped the coaches with the lunch of hot dogs, beverages, chips and other goodies distributed.
Lloyd Bliss was present and took several photos of the awards made. Denis Parent, the president, presented the trophies to The Tigers who won the Pony group. Another trophy went to the Pirates who were champions of the season.

In the younger group, the winners were the Red Sox team while the champion of the season went to the Cubs.
Appreciation was expressed to the Sacred Heart school board, the janitor and the donors who made possible the climax to a successful season of baseball.

B.C. beats Argos as crowd chants

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, with Leon McQuay and Bill Symons reunited as running backs for the first time this season, looked to be in Grey Cup form Wednesday night—by a few minutes.
Then they reverted to the form that can now conceivably label them the worst team in the Canadian Football League when they blew an 8-0 lead and fell 23-9 to British Columbia Lions.
The interlocking game with the Western Football Conference tailenders did little to bolster Toronto playoff hopes.
It left the Eastern Conference team with a 1-7 mark and four points behind third-place Montreal Alouettes in the standings. The Als, however, have a game in hand.

On the other hand, the B.C. win—their second in nine games—moved the Lions into a fourth-place tie in the WFC with Calgary Stampeders, the team that won the CFL final from Toronto last year.
'GOODBY LEO'
The teams left the field to a chant from the sellout crowd of more than 33,000 singing "Goodbye, Leo, goodbye." But the strains didn't appear to upset Toronto coach Leo Cahill.
"As long as their singing Goodbye Leo, they're not out robbing banks," he said in a post-game interview.
It was increasingly evident during the game, however, that the Toronto coach was upset as the Argos committed five turn-

Black ump not expecting trouble

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Art Williams, who began work as the first black umpire in the National League Monday night, says he doesn't expect harassment because of his color.
In the stands was retired umpire Emmett Ashford, who broke the color line in the American League and once was reported to be the target of abuse from white umpires.
"I don't believe that," Williams said of the report.
"I don't believe there was anything worse than the intonation that any other rookie umpire gets. When you're a rookie, you handle the baggage. When there's three in the cab, you sit in the middle—right over the hump."
Art Williams loves it, though. It was 25 years ago that Jackie Robinson became the first Negro player in the majors. The telephone call that Williams got recently came from Fred Fleig, the National League's secretary.
Fleig asked Williams to join a regular National League officiating crew for the rest of the 1972 season. Recalls Art: "There was pandemonium in my house. I can tell you that."

A one-time player in the Detroit Tigers organization, Williams settled down in Bakersfield, Calif., with a family with five children and a job as supervisor of 180 men in the Bakersfield sanitation department.
But, he said in an interview Wednesday: "I just couldn't put baseball out of my mind."
Williams worked Little League games and soon became one of the most respected college and high school umpires in the area. He sought out Bob Engel in Bakersfield, a National League umpire, who directed Williams to the umpire development school in Florida.
In 1969 came a job working in the Pioneer League, then the Midwest League in Class A baseball. Last year Williams was assigned to the Class AA Texas League and then the International League in Triple A.
All the credit goes to his wife, Williams says. "She worked 40 hours a week at one job as a nurse and 20 hours a week at another, plus keeping house for five kids. But she never stopped encouraging me."

More AGRHS action

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Three teams from Alexander Galt Regional High School played Bishop's College School at the college fields Wednesday and came home with a win and two ties to start off the regular season.
The Junior Girls Soccer team came up with the only win of the day narrowly beating their opponents by a 1-0 score. Sue Berwick made the Galt tally.

Black ump not expecting trouble converts to complete the swamp. Leon McQuay ran the ball 11 times for 94 yards, one romp of 31 yards giving the Argos their 8-0 lead. He also fumbled twice. Ivan MacMillan, who converted, picked up an earlier single on a wide field goal attempt.

Argo quarterback Wally Gabler, a steady influence in his three previous starts, had a nerve-wracking night completing only 15 of 32 attempts for 185 yards and three interceptions.
But again, Gabler couldn't be faulted for many of the missed passes that were on target but dropped by such normally sure-handed receivers as Symons, Dave Cranmer, Mike Eben and Tony Moro.
"B.C.'s not a bad ball club," observed Cahill. "They were just hoping someone would do something for them, and we did it."
"We really did something for them."

Expos lose, Mauch on the march

CHICAGO (AP) — Glenn Beckert's bases-loaded two-run single and solo homers by Billy Williams and Ron Santo gave Milt Pappas a 200th career pitching victory Wednesday as Chicago Cubs defeated Montreal Expos 6-2.
A Cubs loss would have clinched the National League East pennant for Pittsburgh. The Pirates still could clinch the flag by beating New York Mets Wednesday night.
Pappas scattered seven hits in recording his ninth successive victory and his 15th against seven losses for the season.
Although 53 major-league pitchers piled up 200 or more mound victories since 1900, Pappas is the first to reach that plateau without a single 20-victory season.
Mike Jorgensen slammed a two-out homer to give Montreal a 1-0 lead in the first, but the Cubs rocked starter Mike Torrez, 16-11, for three runs on four hits, including Beckert's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the first.
Torrez also gave Williams his 33rd homer leading off the third and Santo his 17th homer in a two-run Cub fifth. Williams also singled in four trips to raise his league-leading batting average to .335.
Ron Fairly added the Expos' final run in the ninth inning when he hit a two-out homer, his 13th of the season.
Manager Gene Mauch led virtually his entire Montreal Expo squad to the Chicago Cub clubhouse door after Wednesday's game, apparently to confront Chicago outfielder Jose Cardenal over an alleged obscene name-calling incident.
Cardenal, who later accused Montreal pitchers of throwing at him over the last few seasons, was charged with shouting an obscene name at Mauch during the Cubs' 6-2 victory when the Cub player was deked by Expo pitcher Mike Torrez.

Backed by at least 15 of his players, Mauch summoned Cub manager Whitey Lockman to the clubhouse door and was reported to have told Lockman:
"Cardenal called me a bleep-bleep and nobody's going to walk away from me after he calls me that. The next time, I won't wait until the end of the game if that happens again."
At first it appeared Mauch and the Expos were marching across the field to congratulate Cub pitcher Milt Pappas, who recorded his 200th career victory.
But Mauch was still burning when reporters discovered the real reason for the visit.
REFUSES COMMENT
"No, I won't tell you anything," said Mauch abruptly. "I know how I feel and that's all I care about."
Lockman also declined to elaborate, but is reported to have had a post-game huddle with Cardenal after Mauch's march to the Cub clubhouse.
Cardenal denied he said anything to anybody on the Montreal team, especially after close pitches by Montreal's Torrez in the third and fifth innings. In the fifth, Cardenal slammed a single, stole second and went to third on Torrez's pickoff throwing error and scored on an infield out.
"He's full of bleep," said Torrez when told Cardenal accused him of throwing at him.
"I even like Cardenal a little bit. I used to play with him on the St. Louis Cardinals. There is no reason I would try to hurt him."
Cardenal said Montreal pitchers have thrown at him four or five times this year and four or five times last season, and even as long ago as 1970, when he played with the Cardinals.

Ali stops Floyd in 7th

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali unleashed a flow of superlatives in praise of Floyd Patterson, offered him a rematch and then clamored for heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.
"Patterson is a great, great fighter. I thought he'd be nothing but he surprised me," Ali said after he hammered Patterson's left eye shut, sliced open a gash above the eye and stopped him after seven rounds of a scheduled 12-round fight Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.
"I didn't knock him out. I didn't get him on a TKO. All I did was close his eye," Ali said.
Despite the loss, the 37-year-old Patterson said he would resume training and refused to entertain thoughts of retirement.

The bout between the two former heavyweight champions had few highlights for the first five rounds as Ali, 218 pounds and enjoying a nine-inch reach advantage, danced around Patterson and jabbed Patterson's 188½ pounds, brought thunderous roars from the crowd of 17,378 that paid $512.361 when he landed several rights and left hooks and dug punches into Ali's midriff.
FEELING-OUT SESSION
However, it was evident Ali was merely testing Patterson for the early part of the bout.
"Ali had to study Patterson's style for the first few rounds," Angelo Dundee, Ali's manager said. "Patterson was zigging and zagging and Ali had to figure him out."
In the sixth, Ali unloaded a flurry of lefts and rights, ripped open the cut and rocked Patterson with a right flush on the jaw shortly before the bell. He staggered Patterson again in the seventh with sharp combinations while the half-blinded Patterson, his eye swollen tight and blood streaming down his cheek, managed to land two good rights. The ringside physician halted the bout in between the seventh and eighth rounds.
"I personally didn't like it, but the doctor knows what's best," Patterson said. "I'll be better next time."
Ali had been accused of carrying Patterson when he defeated him in 12 rounds in 1965 to retain his title. In that fight, Ali hit Patterson, who was fighting with a slipped disc in his back, almost at will.
