

No tax hike in Bourassa's budget

By DON MACPHERSON
QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa presented his first budget Thursday, a house-cleaning operation aimed at preparing the province for what he called an "economic resurgence."

Mr. Bourassa, 36, also finance minister, told the Quebec national assembly the province's finances had to be straightened out before any economic and social reforms could take place.

He described the aim of his $207,800,000 deficit budget as "consolidation."

The present government was left in "a $250,000,000 hole" by the former Union Nationale government. It had to be filled through negotiations with the federal government, adjustment of equalization payments by Ottawa and cutting provincial expenditures by $66,000,000.

The $250,000,000 "handicap" included expenses of nearly $100,000,000 which the former government did not account for when it presented its spending estimates for fiscal 1970-71 before calling the April 29 general election.

Mr. Bourassa did not present any new spending programs his budget, which contained no tax increases.

The budget made no mention of a medical care insurance program, which apparently is to be financed under a premium system. The Union Nationale had promised to start the program July 1, but the new Liberal government will not present its legislation on the matter until next week.

Proposals in the budget for tax reforms and measures to promote the economy were phrased in general terms.

A finance department official simply did not have time to draw up more precise legislative programs. Rather, it set out a number of fields for detailed study.

The $207,800,000 deficit for fiscal 1970-71, which started April 1, compares with a $230,700,000 deficit in the previous fiscal year.

The budget addresses included proposals for tax benefits for municipalities, working mothers, artists and professional athletes. It also promised a new system of investment grants for

The government said the revenue department's powers would be broadened in a battle against tax evaders. Penalties for late filers would be increased.

Jean-Jacques Bertrand, former Union Nationale premier and leader of the Opposition now, commented that Quebec will neither be "saved nor lost by a few million dollars more or less" in the budget.

He attacked the Liberals' constitutional views and asked whether the government "will henceforth clear the path for the steamroller of centralization or

In Montreal, business leaders generally commended the budget and said Mr. Bourassa had apparently done a good job considering the short time he had to prepare it.

Welcomed was the fact there are no increases in income, corporate or sales taxes which, businessmen said, are about as high as they can go.

The budget called for total expenditures of $3,677,000,000 during the 1970-71 fiscal year, more than $30,000,000 higher than planned by former government last February. Total revenues are estimated at $3,469,200,000.

The deficit will be covered by a $440,000,000 borrowing program for the government and Hydro-Quebec. Last year's borrowing by the government and its hydroelectric utility totalled $603,800,000.

Federal government payments to Quebec in 1970-71 will amount to $886,300,000, a 41-per-cent increase from last year due mainly to increased equalization payments.

Mr. Bourassa said the Quebec government will also seek redistribution of taxation powers between the federal and provincial governments.

In British election

Tories head for upset

LONDON (CP) — Edward Heath took bread-and-butter issues to the British voters and victory for his Conservative party seemed certain today in one of the most stunning upsets in British political history.

An anti-Labor government tide in Thursday's general election swept aside Labor MPs in many of their strongholds, and set the stage for today's resumed counting that was expected to put the Tories in power for the first time since 1964.

With returns in from about two-thirds of the 630 ridings, Prime Minister Wilson's Labor party was still ahead when counting stopped for the night.

But the Conservatives had a net gain of nearly 50 seats at that point, Labor had lost more than 40, and a large number of districts still out were safe Tory strongholds.

Based on the 418 seats decided by Thursday night, the Press Association computer analysis reported that the Tory showing would be enough to give them a majority of 33 seats. Labor had a majority of 65 at dissolution.

"I am ready to form a government," said the 53-year-old Heath, grinning broadly.

But Wilson, trying for an unprecedented third straight term, refused to concede, saying: "It could still be a very narrow thing."

It appeared, however, that the prime minister would be calling on the Queen before too many hours to deliver his resignation, paving the way for Heath, an accomplished organizer and vachtzman, to become Britain's first bachelor prime minister since Lord Balfour in 1902.

STANDINGS
Labor	226
Conservative	158
Liberal	2
Other	1
To come	212

Heath and Wilson were re-elected by increased margins but Jeremy Thorpe, the Liberal leader, barely made it by a margin of 369 votes.

An old Labor stalwart, former foreign secretary George Brown, was defeated.

When the counting of Thursday's vote stopped for the night, the 418 ridings counted lined up this way:

Labor 226, a net loss of 42; Conservatives 188, a net gain of 48; Liberals 2, a net loss of 3; others 1, a net loss of 3; and the non-voting Speaker, Dr. Horace King, who retained his seat.

POLLS WERE WRONG

The sharp swing to the Conservatives confounded the public opinion polls—all but one had showed Heath and his forces trailing badly.

The lone poll to pick the Conservatives was Opinion Research by a margin of one per cent.

"Not since Mr. Truman's surprise victory over Gov. Dewey (in 1948) for the American presidency has there been such a turn-up for the electoral book,"

Friends like that Harry doesn't need

LONDON (Reuters) — As early British election results rolled in in favor of the opposition Conservative party Thursday night, a firm of furniture movers offered to remove Prime Minister Wilson's effects from 10 Downing Street for free.

said The Daily Telegraph. "Never have so many polls been so wrong about an election result."

Heath fought his campaign largely on domestic issues, promising to curb rising prices, cut taxes and combat inflation by reducing government spending.

The opinion polls and the bookies apparently provided Heath with a major weapon—Labor complacency.

Labor voters by the thousands were lulled by the polls and the prohibitive 10-to-1 odds favoring the 54-year-old Wilson as a shoo-in. They neglected the polls to bask in the country's hot June sun. The voter turnout was in the neighborhood of 69 per cent when 75 or 80 per cent was expected.

RECORD 83.9 PER CENT
 In the 1966 election, which Labor won by a landslide majority of nearly 100 seats, 75.8 per cent of the electorate voted. The post-war record is 83.9 per cent in 1950.

Fifth constitutional conference to tell all

OTTAWA (CP) — The fifth federal-provincial constitutional conference, now being planned for September, may determine whether Canada can achieve a new constitution at all in this decade, informed sources suggested Thursday.

Postal station bombed

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's chaotic postal situation erupted in violence again Thursday as a small dynamite bomb exploded outside a suburban post office and four postal delivery trucks were attacked.

But post office employees provided normal service Thursday after sporadic walkouts and sit-ins disrupted delivery Wednesday.

The bomb, placed at the rear entrance of a suburban Longueuil post office, shattered windows early Thursday but caused no injuries.

No date yet for inquest into Wellington Street accident

SHERBROOKE — District coroner Louis Gagnon said yesterday no date had yet been set for the inquest in the death of the two girls killed in a traffic accident on Wellington St. last week.

Dr. Gagnon added an inquest might take place immediately should a third person, Mrs. Edmond Crete, 72, of 2551 Maisonneuve St. who is still in critical condition at St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, happen to die shortly.

A spokesman for the hospital said last night Mrs. Crete's

Wilson still singing though

LIVERPOOL (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson sang a baritone chorus of Happy Birthday in the street Thursday to a teen-aged girl who said she had voted for him in the British general election.

Britons 18 to 20 were allowed to vote for the first time. Wilson ran into Anita Clifford as he toured his Liverpool electoral district of Huyton.

"I turned 18 today and I have just voted for you," said Anita.

The beaming Wilson replied: "Let's sing for her."

At the other end of the age scale, two voters 107 years old also cast ballots. Mary Craigie of Southwold sent in her ballot by mail.

In Scouldin, 21 nuns of the Roman Catholic Carmelite Order left their enclosed convent at Langside to vote for the first time. The mother prioress said a Vatican council ruling six months ago "gave us permission to go outside if we considered we had a civic duty to perform. Voting is a civic duty — it concerns us very much who governs our country."

About 200 hippies, some in halloween masks, demonstrated against the election outside the stock exchange in London.

They shouted: "Vote for Guy Fawkes, the only man to enter Parliament with honest intentions."

Fawkes entered Parliament in 1605 with several barrels of gunpowder, trying to blow up the place. He was caught and executed.

Marijuana hell-they're on booze!

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The nationalist president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union charged Thursday "that all this fuss about youth and drugs is just a cover for their increased consumption of alcohol."

In an interview here at the 92nd annual convention of the Ontario WCTU, Mrs. James Nelson of St. Catharines said she doesn't believe surveys made in secondary schools which indicate large numbers of students are using drugs.

"When young people say they are smoking marijuana or taking LSD, they are really drinking," she said. "Alcohol is evil and the WCTU has emphasized over and over its dangers to health and mind."

A Baptist churchwoman, Mrs. Nelson decried the present campaigns being waged by pro-abortion groups in Canada.

Sez who us beer men ain't smart

By GERRY FLAHERTY

SHERBROOKE — There it was in big bold print, in Time Magazine's Canadian edition which hit the newsstands Wednesday — page 58. It's an article on advertising about Jerry Della Femina, at 33 the head of his own Madison Avenue ad agency.

The article concerns his recently published book entitled "From Those Wonderful Folks Who Gave You Pearl Harbour". The title came from a theme he suggested as the lead for an ad campaign for Panasonic, a Japanese electronics firm. And what I'm about to describe will indicate for itself why that lead was never used.

Referred to as the Peck's Bad Boy of advertising, Della Femina has written a book which includes many comments regarding the effectiveness of recent ad campaigns — and it is suggested that since he is so successful, one must pay close heed to his droplets of wisdom.

A reference in Time's review of his book just did it for this reporter, however. Apparently, beer campaigns are tough. For Della Femina contends that Stan Freberg's "Ballantine's Complaint" campaign, a takeoff on Portnoy's Complaint, was based on the wrong premise. "How many beer drinkers can read?" asks Della Femina.

Wait a minute I said as I tossed down the magazine. If beer drinkers don't read they must be uninformed and unsuspecting — hence unintelligent. Unintelligent infers stupidity, I thought. And since I enjoy beer, I must be stupid.

Wait a minute. I might not be as well read as could be, but I'm not that stupid either. And I know an awful lot of persons who enjoy the frothy suds and have a few clues as well.

Can he get away with it? Oh hell no! But maybe he's right? Check. Relax beer drinkers, for we aren't as dumb as Mr. Jerry Della Femina would think. Come to think of it, how can you trust the wisdom of one who can't even spell Gerry correctly?

So yesterday afternoon I went to the experts to try and discover statistically how intelligent the average beer drinker is. Mr. Jacques Ferron, assistant manager, marketing research, for Molson's Brewery Quebec Ltd. in Montreal, gave me the scoop.

"This guy must be ill informed," Ferron said, "and I'll prove it to you where the Province of Quebec is concerned."

The information started to flow freely, and by the end of the conversation, the suds-loving reporter was beaming with delight.

During November and December 1968, of Molson's had an independent marketing research firm conduct such a survey in Quebec. This is how the firm worked it.

It selected 2,471 male Quebecers over the age of 18. They were chosen to select as wide a cross-section of the potential beer-drinking male population as possible.

First of all, 67 per cent of those questioned had had at least one beer during the three months preceding the interview. The researchers did have a problem when they wished to tabulate statistics education-wise, for how does one relate correctly when there are technical schools, trade schools, classical colleges, junior matriculation and senior matriculation courses, and regular university courses to consider?

It was decided the following question, with the respondents broken up into three groups, would suffice empirically. What age were you when you last attended school?

Group one, those answering age 13 or less, was considered as having a primary education. Group two, between age 14 and 17, was secondary education. Group three, those persons who responded that they had last attended school when they were either 18 years of age or over, was felt to represent higher education.

In group one, 57.6 per cent had enjoyed a beer during the previous three months. In group two, 65.4 per cent had tasted of the bubbly froth during the three months span. And in group three, those having the greatest formal education, 75.9 per cent had partaken during the specified period.

So there, we aren't stupid after all!

And as Molson's marketing research man added, this higher

Better Believe Creedence No. 1

By ROGER DOUGHTY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The search for the Creedence Clearwater Revival began on a hot Wednesday in New York. The guys were in town for one day only, to play a concert at Madison Square Garden.

The Garden is a place where they crown champions and the Revival is being talked up as the new champions of rock — heavyweight division. John and Tom Fogerty, Doug Clifford and Stu Cook are the four guys who make up the Revival.

What with the Beatles having busted up, there are a lot of people around who feel that Creedence, with five singles and four LPs that have sold a million and with record-breaking concerts all over the globe, have earned the right to go around rocking to the rhythm of "We're Number One."

It was news to them. "The Beatles broke up?" asked John (he's the one with the Prince Valiant haircut who sings lead). "You'll have to forgive me, but we've been so busy that I'm not up on the latest scoop." "Who are the Beatles?" inquired Stu. "We've really been busy."

But that busy? "Well, if somebody wants to go around saying we're super, we'll take it," admitted Doug, the guy who lays down the driving beat that makes Creedence roll. "but we don't worry about labels. Besides, there are some other people around — like Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young and Led Zeppelin — who may not realize that we're more super than they are."

See? They're modest, too. When they first got started as junior high school kids in northern California, they had a lot to be modest about. It was 1959 when the group took shape, played dates for $15 a night and thought they were doing pretty good. Now they get $90,000 per concert.

John, Doug, Stu and Tom—the Creedence Clearwater Revival.

They don't have a press agent or manager to keep reminding them how great they are. They don't give many interviews and when they do grant one they often forget to read it after it's written. But not always. Tom, tugging at his long, blond mustache, smiled. "We don't mind doing them, but sometimes we get a little upset reading them. We did one with a guy from a national magazine that seems to be trying to become The Overground Rock Journal and the guy liked us."

"That was O.K. with us, but it upset him because he was prepared not to like us and the fact that he did messed him up. So he wrote something about us being All-American boys, which we aren't, but at least the guy could justify liking us."

In the course of becoming a supergroup, Creedence (the name comes from an acquaintance and the anti-pollution movement) connected with such goodies as "Proud Mary," "Bad Moon Rising," "Green River," "Down on the Corner" and "Travelin' Band."

Since so many other supergroups wear the "Made in the United Kingdom" label, the Revival could be regarded as an American national resource, but they're very large in Europe, too. They proved that to everybody's satisfaction this spring when they rocked up and down the continent.

"The customs inspectors had a great time searching our stuff," Stu chuckled. "You know, all long-haired American musicians pack drugs, right? Except we don't, so all the customs guys found were a lot of dirty socks."

"We don't beat people over the head with messages," explained John. "We know how we feel about things but our 'cause' is to make every record, every performance, every note as good as we can get it."

Which is probably why they're Supergroup No. 1.

SOMETHING TO BELIEVE, Russell Thornberry (London NAS 1352). It seems as if hundreds of imitation Gordon Lightfoots appeared on the scene a few years ago, and so when someone approaches me with an lp and tells me, "He's a lot like Lightfoot!", then I feel like I'm going to be sick. Russell Thornberry, though, was refreshingly different. He's more of a city folk singer than Lightfoot is, and his song-writing is spread out over more topics than most others in his category.

The album itself is very good, and though his vocals are not new or different, his guitar work could make a majority of the folkies look sick. Listen to the intricate melodies and finger-picking on songs like What's The Difference and What Became Of Me, and you'll understand what I mean.

Thornberry was a hit at The Montreal Pop Festival, his album is very good, and all kinds of nice things are happening to him... it's nice to see that there are still some highly creative singer-songwriters around.

MUSIC IS THE HEALING FORCE OF THE UNIVERSE, Albert Ayler (Impulse AS9191). I suppose that I like jazz just as much as anyone else, but when you get down to free jazz that makes absolutely no sense whatsoever and that does not even flow into itself, well....

What made me so mad about this album is the absolutely horrid vocals by Mary Maria. She completely destroyed anything that I might have enjoyed in the album in the first place. The only reason that anyone might want to buy this album is to kid people by saying that they understand it. Where are you John Coltrane now that we need you?

THE ISAAC HAYES MOVEMENT, Isaac Hayes (Enterprise ENS-1010). For those of you who bought Hot Buttered Soul and liked it you might be disappointed in this, Isaac's second album.

Side one of the album is quite boring and features one of Hayes' dissertations on I Stand Accused, but unlike some of his previous raps, this one is too long (11:30) and quite boring. Side two is far more interesting and features a 12 minute version of George Harrison's Something... it's very funky, very soulful, and very down to earth.

I really hope that Isaac will go back to the style that made him famous — his next album will probably be a return to the kind of material he did on Hot Buttered Soul.

NATURAL GAS, Natural Gas (Firebird FB-18). The Natural Gas played Bishop's at the end of last year, and everyone sat around not sure of what was happening in front of them because the band comes on so strong. Now, I try and review their album and I find that this tremendous power that they display on stage does not come off on record, and I miss it.

The album is good, though, too good to be put down just like that. The two men that actually lead the group are George Olliver (lead vocalist and songwriter) and Brian Wray (piano, organ, flute, and musical arranger) and they are the ones that have done most of the work on this album.

The sound is good, the production is good, and the material is excellent. The cuts that are the best are The All Powerful Man, Live and Learn, and Leaders Of The World. All Powerful Man is one of these basic jazz-rock-blues things, but the time changes are just fantastic. Live And Learn is a heavy, pounding rhythm and blues thing with the horns bouncing all over the place, and Leaders Of The World is a beautiful ballad that slips and slides around your head and is probably the best cut on the album.

It is an album that is definitely worth getting, that is if you can get it around here....

PRESENT—FOR YOU AND YOURS... It's your move. Most endeavors are under excellent rays so far as personal happiness is concerned. A wrong decision could result in a minor setback, but nothing too serious—you'll get a second chance.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — A recurrence of an old complaint could mar the day. Be prepared mentally.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Sleep a little late and take your time about doing chores.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Laser could be opened to more objective accomplishment. Be alert.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22) — Attend to usual Saturday routine, then relax and have some fun.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Luck is where you find it, and this could be very close to home.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Lay should dawn bright and cheerful, and you'll feel relaxed and happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Strag off criticism. Consider the source from whence it comes!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Lay should be relatively peaceful, sensibly relaxed — but probably dull!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — It doesn't pay to make plans too far ahead — as you'll realize tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A climactic day but you'll be elated conclusion is finally reached.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Postpone serious endeavor for the moment. You deserve a respite.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — A turn in an entirely different direction may be just what situation calls for.

PRESENT—FOR YOU AND YOURS... People tend to be stubborn under current rays, and someone must break the deadlock. Don't stand on ceremony—make the first move towards reconciliation. You can reach a better understanding if you are utterly frank.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — Aim for harmony within the family circle, so life will be more serene.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Let things moving as early as possible—you will have a full schedule today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — You find it difficult to adjust to cultural differences of others. Try tolerance.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22) — You may find a new door opening for you. Do not hesitate to make a move.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Don't veto suggestion in an arbitrary manner. Consider merits.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Time-waster could throw you off stride. Be frank about your need for privacy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Although it won't be as easy as you anticipated, plunge into the job anyway.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Your enthusiasm and attitude plans will brighten the day for those around you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A special favor for a friend will make up for some past slights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Hide your time. Fast move could undo gains you've only recently made.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Social life under auspicious aspects, but be cautious when driving.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Opportunities are there — obvious or not. It's up to you to ferret them out.

Two men critically injured in Stoke Road two-car collision

SHERBROOKE — Two persons are in critical condition today at the Sherbrooke Medical Centre, following an accident Thursday afternoon on Stoke Road, in which two trucks and a car were involved.

Reported in critical condition today are Jean Lamy, 23, of 1663 Ledoux St. Sherbrooke, and 22-year-old Paul Labbe of La Patrie, in Compton County.

A third person, 57-year-old Bernard Leboeuf of Stoke Centre, driving a small school bus filled with children, was not injured. Quebec Provincial Police said here last night.

A spokesman at the Medical Centre said yesterday both injured men had suffered severe head injuries as a result of the accident. "Their situation is quite critical," he explained.

The accident occurred around 4 p.m. yesterday, just about half a mile from the Sherbrooke Medical Centre, police said.

The school bus, driven by Mr. Leboeuf, was stopped alongside the road, police said, letting off some children.

The small Chevy van driven by Jean Lamy, as traveling in the direction of Stoke, while the third vehicle, a passenger car driven by Paul Labbe, was traveling along in the opposite direction.

The accident occurred when the two traveling in opposite directions crashed into each other at the spot where the school bus was still parked, police explained.

Sponsored by Optimists Club Expect dividends from bike safety program

By PRESTON GURD

SHERBROOKE — Although police say accidents involving bicycles are on the decline, an analysis of the four accidents so far this year reveals that they need not have happened at all.

Speaking in an interview yesterday, Lt. Gaetan Blais said that incorrect bicycle procedure was a major factor in causing the accidents.

But, he said, it is very difficult for the police to enforce bicycle regulations as there are too many other duties which take higher priority.

However, he will get a chance to get together with the youngsters this Saturday, courtesy of the Optimist's Club.

Gerry Morin of the Optimists Club told a news conference yesterday that he expects up to 800 cyclists and cycles to turn out at Portland Park for Saturday's fifteenth annual optimist's bicycle inspection.

The proceedings will kick off at nine a.m. with a thorough briefing from Lt. Blais, followed by the inspection.

Fifteen club members will be on hand to thoroughly check out each bicycle: lights, reflectors, tires and brakes.

If a bike fails the test, the cyclist's parents will be notified. Mr. Morin noted there is an added inducement in the form of a drawing for two bicycles and 50 accessories of various types.

He says, "We believe that what we can do every year does a little bit to help" and the statistics seem to agree with him.

Lt. Blais said the figures for 1968 showed three fatalities and 10 injured on bicycles. In 1969, there was only one fatality (actually involving a tricycle) and eight injured.

So far this year, four have been injured.

However analysis of these accidents, said the Lieutenant, showed the following infractions: two cases occurred at dusk, when visibility was low, one case occurred at night, in two accidents the brakes failed, also in two cases, cyclists were cutting across traffic; in one, the cyclists failed to stop at a stop sign, and finally, in one case the cyclist was attempting to maneuver while carrying a gallon of water in one hand.

He emphasized that if the cyclists had followed police recommendations, the accidents would probably not have occurred.

His department recommends that, even before riding in the street, the cyclist should know how to ride and be mounted on a bike of the correct size.

They should stay off sidewalks, observe all rules of the road, and get off the streets well before the sun sets.

He concluded, "This is something parents could and should teach their children."

Munro favors guaranteed annual income as humanizing factor

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Thursday that a national guaranteed annual income would be a major step forward in enabling the poor "to work their way out of the debilitating, dehumanizing process of welfare dependency."

Mr. Munro told the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare that a guaranteed annual income "would entrench the principle of social assistance as a right—and that's vital."

He said an income plan is the "prime source of speculation" on the government's white paper on social welfare legislation. The white paper now is under cabinet consideration and will probably be made public in the fall.

A guaranteed annual income is an essential alternative to present welfare plans, Mr. Munro said.

"Dignity is essential to rehabilitation, and the sense of being on the dole," of lining up for a weekly or monthly cheque, is the demeaning opposite of dignity."

But Mr. Munro warned that such a plan would cost "hundreds of millions of dollars of new public funds" if payments were to reach "meaningful levels—say $3,600 for a family of four."

The minister also warned the guaranteed income alone wouldn't "do the trick."

"I am worried that in a number of instances, its implementation might actually impede the process of rehabilitation, by giving the illusion of a complete solution."

A text of Mr. Munro's speech was released in advance.

Battles still not won

John Fisher, an after-dinner speaker sometimes known as Mr. Canada, has a mastery of words. He can offer high-sounding advice in almost any question couched in language that indicates he has an impressive knowledge of what he is talking about.

But very often his remarks contain more oratory than useful advice, his recent remarks at the opening session of the Canadian Association of Consumers at Saskatoon being a case in point.

Mr. Fisher told the delegates that they should concentrate their offensive on the current wastefulness in the modern consuming society and that they were fighting yesterday's battles over dubious packaging techniques and misleading "cents-off" deals. But actually these battles have been far from won.

The Association was responsible for having red stripes removed from cellophane bacon wrappers, thereby permitting the public to see what it was actually buying. It succeeded in having the government adopt standardized sizes in children's clothing.

But it still has a fight on its hands to end certain questionable packaging techniques. Surely, a customer should be provided with sufficient information on a package to know whether the so-called "giant economy size" is actually better value than the smaller-sized package of the same product.

As matters now stand, he frequently has to be an expert in mental arithmetic to know for certain.

Similarly a consumer can be misled by the familiar cents-off deal. He sees a product with "15 cents off" printed on the package. The unanswered question is — 15 cents off what?

The Association might have other tasks ahead of it but it cannot rest on what it has already accomplished in the marketing fight.

Probing on the cheap

The cost of Royal Commissioning, as every Canadian knows, mounts marvelously as time flies and studies proliferate. The long-lasting Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, unquestionably holds most of the records in this dubious competition. By the end of March, 1970, it had cost the taxpayers a plush $8.6 million for its efforts.

But sometimes somebody makes a mistake with the appointment of a commission that has not been properly briefed on the question of work extension and cost expansion.

One real offender in this respect was the Royal Commission appointed in 1950 to inquire into lease rentals at Banff and Jasper National Parks.

By every criteria of commission longevity and expense it was a total flop.

Chairman Harry Patriquin was appointed December 9, 1950. He presented his report on December 14 — only six days later — with a total bill to the taxpayers of $882.

There is no record of Mr. Patriquin being appointed to any other study body. Obviously he was incapable of learning.

ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — At the very moment that President Nixon sent a fact-finding commission to Vietnam and Cambodia, to report on the progress in the war over there, President Thieu sent a fact-finding commission to the United States to find out what was going on here.

This commission headed by President Thieu's dearest friend, Sen. Daw Key, has just returned to Saigon to give President Thieu a very optimistic picture of what is going on in the United States at the present time.

The commission said it was impressed with the fighting ability of the National Guard who had routed the students this spring and indicated that "Americanization" is moving faster than anyone had expected.

Sen. Daw Key said "Predictions that President Nixon's government would topple in a few months have been proved false. Morale among the construction workers has never been higher, and some Administration officials predict the students will be driven out of their university sanctuaries before the end of the rainy season."

Sen. Daw Key told President Thieu that he could now see the light at the end of the tunnel and he saw no reason why the United States could not do all of the fighting in its own country by 1972.

While the commission said it was heartened by what it saw, it warned that President Nixon faced many difficulties. "Inflation," said Sen. Daw Key, "is one of the United States' major problems and could be a big setback to pacification in the major cities."

DOUGLAS FISHER

It's a fortnight since Mr. Benson unpegged the dollar. My reading then was that this was the end of the "restraint" policy.

The economy had slowed down too much; the tough use of monetary and fiscal policy "on the demand side" was creating too much hardship — unemployment, wilting business confidence, exaggerating regional disparity.

The inner circle mandarins were getting jittery; a bail-out essential. How to do it, after all the bull about inflation being the No. One. Villain? What about face? How to save it?

Mr. Benson denied that restraints were off; the anti-inflation drive went on. Then he hared to Montreal to speak with Bourassa and Robart to explain unpegging and to brief the premiers about the pending Winnipeg session he was having with provincial finance ministers.

At Winnipeg the bucks flowed. Bourassa rambled home with $150 million; the others got varying, tentative sums.

It was now suitable, after five days' grace to forget the denial, to acknowledge that the fiscal-monetary clamps were indeed easing. But the anti-inflation fight? Never!

Out of Winnipeg came the new Poor labor and its case, press galley reporters are suddenly captivated. Aloof Pierre unbends. Last Thursday PM pauses in his daily gallop out of House to office.

Holds a little seminar on the magic. The 6 per cent wage ceiling guide-line popped out with its voluble smiling agent, John Young of The Prices and Incomes Commission. We could now see why Mr. Benson tripped to Montreal. Ontario and Quebec stood four-square with the 6 per cent ceiling.

Mr. Benson was delighted to join Dr. Young and the premiers of the big provinces. So was Bud Drury, President of the treasury Board. He found it his duty to apply it at once in the negotiations with the postal unions.

Predictably (one might fairly say) organized labor did not respond well. None of that 6 per cent ceiling stuff for labor; rally round the posties, boys; toss some strike sweetener into their pot; gather the clan in Ottawa; labor shall press-conference with the best of them; solidarity forever!

Inflation still serious problem; very serious; Government is boosting the economy but a new time horizon is essential; a year with wages restrained; 6 per cent with some reasonable exceptions; Government agrees with PIC; so do provinces; voluntary controls must work; they'd better; suited to our complex economy; legislated price and wage controls are not out; they may be necessary; hopefully not.

As one bedazzled reporter said: "He was really great; committed, straightforward; easy to under-

A good report

"Electrical blackouts and brownouts are predicted for the summer, which could have a very serious effect on the natives who are dependent on air conditioning for survival."

"Attempts to curb polluted waters or hold back smoke have not gone as well as advisers would have hoped, and the infiltration of poisons in the air has reached new unacceptable levels."

The Daw Key Commission also said that it was concerned with the unemployment rate in the countryside which reached a new high and has been making the natives restless.

"While the commission did not see President Nixon personally, it was given a tour of the newspaper plants and TV networks that were still left partially standing after Vice President Spiro Agnew's heavy attacks on them. The commission members were shown captured enemy editorials proving that the notorious First Armored Eastern Establishment Press Division intended to attack the Nixon government and bring it down. Had Vice President Agnew not launched a counterattack when he did, Agnew spokesmen said, Washington would now be in the hands of Walter Cronkite and Herblock."

On his arrival at the airport in Saigon, Sen. Daw Key told newspapermen that the United States needed more time to solve its problems and he did not expect to see any miraculous changes overnight.

"These people need our help and understanding," Sen. Daw Key said. "They have made great strides in the past few years. It is a start, but they have a long way to go. Their roads are clogged, their trains don't work, their telephones break down and their stock market is falling. Yet this is no reason to lose faith in them."

We are being used deceitfully

Yesterday another economics wizard took up the lesson on national television (CTV's Question Period). Smiling, voluble Dr. John Young, chairman, chairman of PIC, was hurt (but gallantly so) that one questioner should cast doubts on the splendid independence of PIC. Of course, PIC works closely with Government, indeed with governments; but a creature of the Federal Government? Never.

Of course, PIC wouldn't be very effective or efficient if it were out of contact with governments. PIC is unlike other agencies, not like royal commissions, etc. PIC is not just for fighting inflation. It's for saving jobs. There'll be less use of demand restraint those discarded old fiscal and monetary curbs) if price and wage restraints work. Six per cent ceiling too high. A step on way down to four per cent. That's a really magic figure.

More gobbledegook with percentages — productivity; consumer price index — stressing temporary nature of 6 per cent; obviously much hinges of making labor see sense. Yes, salaries are in the package too (no good "stats" on them forthcoming).

Dr. Young, smiling all the while, rolled along, co-operation is coming from provinces; time is running out; "hope we can make it"; for the good of the country; we had the December conference; labor wouldn't show; might have made the difference by now; saving jobs; a difference environment then; more freedom to move. Now that demand restraints are off, success on wages and price front even more imperative.

You've noticed by now (perhaps choked on) the dirty skepticism in my rundown.

I believe that hundreds of us are being used in a pretty deceitful operation by the Federal Government. It hasn't any intention of instituting formal wage and price controls. This would go beyond the economic beliefs of most of the Cabinet and the chef mandarins.

Most of us can understand and respect a law. It's impossible to feel the same way about wrist-twisting by the most muscled power-centre in the country, whether its labor or the copper producers or the steelmakers being twisted.

Did you know that the very senior civil servants recently got a 5 per cent raise in their salaries? Before you warm to their restraint, to their intuitive respect for the 6 per cent ceiling that was to come, think which you'd rather have: 5 per cent of $30,000, plus, a year or 6 per cent of a postman's $5,600 to $6,000 a year?

Quebec unity

Jeffrey Waldron is a Grade 11 student at Alexander Galt Regional High School in Lennoxville. His essay on the problems of Quebec unity took third place in a competition sponsored by the Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

By JEFFREY WALDRON

Peaceful co-existence: what is it? One definition could be "two people, races or nations, living together in peace and harmony." In the case of Quebec, we speak of the French and the English. Why can't they get along together? What causes the tension, distrust and quarrelling between the two groups? Who is to blame, French or English?

Perhaps there are several reasons. Historical developments may have caused the present conflict. The government may be partly to blame, and last of all, perhaps it is us — the individual, who is to blame. Let us examine each.

Historical causes probably began after the fall of Quebec. A fortress city of about 8,000 people, Quebec was faced with attack by the British. Louisbourg had just fallen to the British, shocking the people of Quebec. But could Montreal, the French general, succeed in defending Quebec? The answer was no.

The city was strong on the outside but decayed and weak on the inside. Its officials and government gentlemen were corrupt and very inefficient. The actual capture of Quebec is a story in itself, and will be omitted here on the assumption that everyone knows how James Wolfe gained the Plains of Abraham, fought Montreal, and led his troops to victory.

This memorable event occurred in September of 1759. French control, which had been built up for dozens of years, had been taken away in one decisive, 15 minute long battle. The fall of Quebec meant the end of New France. Montreal surrendered, and the Treaty of Paris, in 1763, made British control official.

The above Treaty gave England the entire east half of the American Continent; the lower half being the Thirteen Colonies.

General Murray, of the English, granted liberty of the Catholic Religion to the French, along with many other privileges. The British were very lenient to the French. Soon after, the Proclamation of 1763 gave Quebec her borders, which contained an area about one-twentieth of its present size.

In 1774, the Quebec Act replaced the Proclamation. General Murray and Sir Guy Carleton were again lenient with the French, hoping to retain their loyalty. Economic, social and political problems continually sprang up. Tension grew. French leaders such as Bourassa, made known their grievances. Open rebellion occurred under Louis Joseph Papineau.

After Confederation in 1967 any further conflict was minor and generally insignificant. Today Quebec comprises 15 per cent of Canada's population, with over 5,000,000 people. Seventy-five to 80 per cent of this population is French-speaking.

In the past five years Quebec has been hit by outbreaks of violence. Its people are dissatisfied. Demonstrations occur very often. The FLQ (Federation de la Liberation de Quebec) has terrorized many cities, especially Montreal. Bombing occurred often, and violence erupted in the streets.

Recently, tension has decreased slightly. Nevertheless, strikes crippled many services. The air-traffic controllers went on strike, and the postal-workers strike disrupted operations. New political parties sprang up, the most important one being the Parti Quebecois, which advocates independence from Canada, and other extremist measures.

Did historical events cause today's problems? Surely the French have stopped resenting the day Quebec became English in 1759. Or have they? I think they have, and that recent conflict has been caused by the latter two reasons: the government and or the individual is to blame.

Which government is to blame, the federal or the provincial? Unnecessary and expensive political links between Quebec and France continue to gain disapproval of the public.

Ever since President DeGaulle was ordered out of the country for saying "Vive le Quebec Libre" in a speech, there has been a definite communication between Quebec and France that the general public would like to know more about.

Federal-provincial affairs continually produce conflict (e.g., conflict over location of the new Montreal jet-port). The two governments just don't get along together. The question of the efficiency of the provincial government is being asked. Why are the Quebecers very heavily taxed? Is Quebec deep in debt? Quebec recently borrowed $100,000,000 from British Columbia).

Does federal-provincial conflict indirectly produce English-French conflict? Only to a degree. Political co-operation is needed to fight inflation, to satisfy the Quebec population, and to iron out many of our problems.

But I think that the individual carries the most blame. The French and English seem to take the same attitude toward each other as do the whites and negroes of the United States.

Today's affluent society has created a sort of "social sickness" within people. People seem to care only for themselves, and often refuse to recognize the values of somebody "different". We dislike the French and they dislike us.

Each side seems to be too proud or conceited to even consider compromises of any sort. Bilingualism is a compromise but then the French say, "Why should I learn the language of a minority group?" and the English invariably think of several reasons for not learning French.

However, in my community, credit must be given to the French for practising bilingualism far more than the English. The individual is just not making much effort to get along. I consider myself very lucky to be on good terms with the French in my community. Indeed, I have as many French friends as I do English. This came about as a compromise between us.

Why was I able to get along? Well, I dislike being called names as I walk by a person, and the only way to remedy this is to go half way towards being friends. Unfortunately, my case is not that of the majority of the people.

The French follow a religion which encourages them to have 14 children, and many of them do. But once these children reach the age of 16, they are on their own. Few get help to go to college. No wonder there is a French movement to take over English schools and colleges. If only they would stop and examine the real causes of conflict!

So, I think that of the three causes, the main and most deep-rooted cause of conflict is the apathy, prejudice and social-sickness of the individual. If the individual would only admit his mistakes and go half-way, then peaceful co-existence might become a reality, along with a better government and economic position in Quebec.

Soot rain is calculated in tons

LONDON (AP) — Every year, 62 tons of soot, grit and sulphur gently rain from the polluted heavens on Rawmarsh, Yorkshire, a mining and industrial town.

That's a bit more than six pounds for each coal-burning citizen.

The atmosphere of that outback of Britain, fogged by the greasy smoke of domestic soft coal, blankets windows, washing and lungs with black scum that clings like feathers to molasses.

This is why Rawmarsh is called by Britons "the muckiest place in the north." It's one of the 23 places, colored "black" by the ministry of housing and local government, which until now have refused to put the Clean Air Act into force.

Mayor Ernest Payne said switching to smokeless fuel would be too costly in Rawmarsh. Four of five houses, he said, still use the smoky domestic coal.

"I just don't believe in smokeless zones," Payne said. "Experience has taught us that it takes hours to light a smokeless fuel fire and it has poor heating qualities."

Payne, a coal miner for 50 years, added: "There is nothing like a good coal fire and I just do not believe that domestic coal causes damage to health."

Not even the return of the sun and some lost animal life to those areas of Britain freed from the fog of soft coal appeals to Mayor Payne, or some other officials in north England and Scotland.

TRYST LINGERS ON

That's where the British love affair with coal—rooted in the industrial revolution when Britain laid the foundations of its power and wealth—still burns brightest.

A spokesman for the National Coal Board said that of the 17,700,000 tons of domestic coal used every year in Britain more than two-thirds of it is burned in such northern areas as Durham, Yorkshire and Lancashire.

In his rearguard defence of soft coal, Payne estimated the cost of converting each house to smokeless fuel at $198. The town already has a $15,600,000 debt for slum clearance.

How long can the black areas keep defying the government?

A spokesman for the ministry of housing and local government commented: "These authorities can be forced to comply with the law but there is no question of any action being taken at present. We are still at the stage of trying to persuade them."

Official figures show that deaths from bronchitis and other respiratory diseases are higher in areas of smoke pollution. In the Yorkshire and Humberside region, 3,294 persons died of such ailments in 1968, compared with 597 in a smokeless zone like East Anglia.

A spokesman for the Medical Research Council said there was no proof that smoke from coal burning directly caused bronchitis.

"But there is strong evidence that this disease is greatly aggravated in smoke-polluted areas," he said.

In Greater London, which is much sunnier and cleaner as a result of the clean air laws, the cost is calculated at about 36 cents per head a year.

The ministry of housing rejects economic hardship pleas.

"It is a question of priorities," a spokesman said. "You can save on local taxation but only at the expense of public health."

In areas where householders have adopted central heating or smokeless fuel, experts have noticed a dramatic change in the atmosphere. A recent report by the Greater London Council said winter sunshine had increased in the centre and the suburbs, with fog less frequent.

The report went on: "London householders and public authorities are now able to grow successfully many more plant types than was possible before the Clean Air Act."

Sunday Sermon Subject for June 21, 1970

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Forces?" This question is the title of the Lesson Sermon to be read in Christian Science churches this Sunday. The creation of man and the universe is ascribed to God rather than to a chain of material reactions, according to Isaiah: "I have made the earth and created man upon it: I even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded." Also in the lesson from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy are the pertinent questions: "Did man, whom God created with a word, originate in an egg? When Spirit made all, did it leave aught for matter to create? Ideas of Truth alone are reflected in the myriad manifestations of Life, and thus it is seen that man springs solely from Mind."

Bedford

Miss Jill Kerwin and Miss Cathy Robinson, students at King's Hall, Compton, have returned to Bedford to spend their holidays with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kerwin and Mr. and Mrs. R. Robinson.

Ricky Robinson who has attended Stanstead College is also with his parents, while Mark Champagne, attending school at Northampton, Mass., is with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Guy Champagne for the summer.

Mrs. J. Robinson, Montreal, is the guest of Miss Beatrice Rowe during the absence of the latter's sister Mrs. D. Leney in England. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Derick of Dauphin, Man., who are visiting the former's brother Mr. Stuart Derick in Noyan, were visitors of the latter's brother Mr. Herbert Derick and Mrs. Derick in Bedford.

Miss Marion Sawyer has received news of the death, following a heart attack, of her cousin Mrs. Charles Henry Ferguson, Westlake, Ohio. Mrs. Ferguson, who was formerly Ruth Ashmore Jones, of Montreal, had often been the guest of her relatives in Bedford.

Mrs. G. Smith, Ayer's Cliff, has been the guest for several weeks of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bokus.

Miss Mary Fleming, Wales Home, Richmond, is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. Jones.

Miss Nettie Lovering has gone to Stanstead to visit her niece, Miss Gertrude Ketchum.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Muncaster and Miss Judy Muncaster spent the weekend at their summer home, Moe's River.

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of North Hatley

On Sunday June 21st at eleven a.m. the congregation will receive as speaker, the Rev. K. T. MacLean of Knoxville, Tenn. Mr. MacLean is no stranger to this region, as he has served as guest preacher for the past several summer seasons and always has a stirring and timely message. Mr. MacLean will return to the pulpit on July 5th, and will conduct services for the balance of that month.

IOOF jewel presentation
At tables adorned with wild flower arrangements, the women's society of the church served an excellent turkey dinner, the anniversary cake was part of the dessert.

AYER'S CLIFF — A happy occasion took place on Saturday evening, June 13 in the hall of Beulah United Church when several members of Alexandra Lodge, IOOF were guests of honor and were presented IOOF jewels.

Seventy-five persons, members of the Lodge and their families, also Thornton Cleveland, recently installed Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, IOOF; Edward Hyatt, P.G.P., and Mrs. Hyatt, Henry Brock, Gr. High Priest and Mrs. Brock, were guests.

Everyone signed a card to be sent to Canon H. C. Denton, on the sick list; Nelson Pierce, on behalf of the Lodge presented Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith with a lovely anniversary cake, as they were observing their 34th wedding anniversary.

Nelson Pierce presented Howard Keeler with his 40 year jewel. As each presentation was made, remarks were spoken.

Mr. Cleveland presented the 25 year jewels to John Saunum, Ernest Whipple, Victor Christensen, Archie Moulton, Howard Ayer, and the three Smith brothers, Frank, Alvin and Harold. There was a 25 year

MANSONVILLE — Mrs. Keyworth George and Mrs. Edith Cote were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower for Miss Christine Brulotte, a June bride-to-be, in the United Church Hall on Saturday evening June 13th at 8:00 p.m.

The hall was decorated for the occasion, with a floral umbrella from which pink and white streamers fell, to be fastened at each corner of the table which was laden with gifts.

On arrival, Miss Brulotte was met at the door by Mrs. Keyworth George, who pinned a corsage of kitchen gadgets on her shoulder after which she was shown to a seat at the gift table, between her mother, Mrs. W. Paul Brulotte and Mrs. Lafontaine, who acted as stand-in for the prospective mother-in-law, who was unable to be present.

The ladies on either side of Miss Brulotte assisted her in opening her presents, which were then passed around the entire circle of about fifty guests, so that all might see and admire them.

After the opening of the presents, Miss Brulotte thanked her many friends and relatives. Lunch was served buffet style by the hostesses assisted by a few of the ladies present. Guests from out of town were from Montreal, Iberville-Waterloo. The shower cake, made by Mrs. Keyworth George, centered the table occupied by the guest of honor. This cake was made to resemble a piano, complete with keyboard and musical arrangement; the top of the piano held a tiny parasol and a silver bell.

BROME — Miss Elizabeth Soles, a July-to-be, was guest of honor at a shower on June 8th at Brome Hall, where 41 friends and neighbors gathered to present gifts.

Miss Vicki Sturtevant met the bride-elect at the door and presented her with a corsage of yellow and white carnations, a gift from two friends in Florida.

Miss Soles was escorted to her chair in front of a table laden with gifts. The back-drop was made of yellow and white streamers and a yellow decorated watering can. The side table was centered with a cake the shape of a watering can, flanked by tapers and bowls of pansies.

Miss Doreen Howard assisted the bride in opening the gifts. Miss Soles graciously thanked all present for the useful gifts and extended thanks to Miss V. Sturtevant and Miss N. Owens the organizers of the party and to all the other friends who helped in any and many ways.

A game was played by all the guests while tea was being prepared, the prizes were won by Mrs. Evelyn Raymond, Mrs. Clara Whittaker and Mrs. Lyla Owens.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses and several other friends.

THREE VILLAGES — The home of Mrs. Moody Davis in Stanstead was on Friday evening the scene of a happy occasion when Mrs. Ross Thornicroft, the former Linda Davis of Montreal, was the guest of honor at a post nuptial shower.

She was accompanied to Mrs. Davis' home by her mother, Mrs. Merton Davis on an errand. Entering the home, Linda was taken by complete surprise when she found about 25 relatives and friends awaiting her and to be presented with a kitchen novelty corsage by Mrs. Wallace Powers.

Linda was escorted to a chair where the decor of a parasol and ribbons in pastel shades were suspended from the ceiling. The prettily wrapped and ribboned gifts were arranged on the coffee table and on the floor.

Linda was assisted to open these by her mother, while from the ribbons and bows Mrs. Malcolm Moloney made a chapeau, later presented and worn by Linda. In her usual nice way, Linda voiced her appreciation.

Refreshments were served from the linen covered dining table centered with a floral arrangement. The shower cakes, presented to Linda were made by Mrs. Moody Davis, one a bride in white the other, her attendant, in blue.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Moody Davis, Mrs. Wallace Powers, Miss Leslie Sherl and Kathy Bachelder and Mrs. Donald Lafond.

Miss Nancy Nourse was in charge of the wedding guest book, a gift to Linda from her mother, and signed by guests from Beebe, West Charleston, Vt., Exeter, N.H., Sherbrooke and the Boundary Villages.

SAWYERVILLE — A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Miss Norma Bain on Saturday afternoon June 6 for Miss Carolyn Dillon. The bride-to-be was met at the door by Miss Marian Bain who pinned on a corsage. Miss Norma Bain escorted Miss Dillon to her chair and presented her with many gifts and best wishes.

Miss Dillon was assisted in opening the gifts by her mother, Mrs. Carl Dillon, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Hollis Cairns. After the gifts were passed around and admired, several games were enjoyed by the ladies. The winners were Mrs. Donald Doyle and Mrs. Carl Dillon.

Lunch was served by Miss Norma Bain, Mrs. Dale Smith, Mrs. Crescent Bain and Miss Marian Bain. The bride's cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Frances Bain. After lunch Miss Dillon thanked everyone for the shower gifts and the hostesses for the shower. The color scheme used was mauve and yellow streamers and flowers.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Heat, Gentle Massage Help in Osteoarthritis

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—According to my X-ray report, I have a congenital lumbarization of my lumbosacral joint. What does this mean? Is it related to spina bifida?

A—In lumbarization the first segment of the sacrum (normally one solid one) is not fused to the second segment. This is an oddity, not a disease. It is not related to spina bifida.

Q—What is cervical spondylosis? Is there any cure for it?

A—This is a degeneration of the disk between the vertebrae of the neck, a form of osteoarthritis. It is usually an accompaniment of aging. Although there is no cure, gentle massage are helpful. The neck should not be moved forcibly. If the pain is severe and persistent it may be necessary to wear a brace.

Q—I am terrified of bees. A man in the next block has a bee farm so there are always lots of bees around. How can I protect myself when I go out?

A—Bees will not bother you if you don't bother them.

Knowlton

Stanbridge East
On June 2, Mrs. Harvey entertained in honor of Miss Brenda Heney, work convener for Stanbridge East Red Cross. Miss Heney has been awarded a distinguished merit pin and the citation, which accompanied it, for her work. Friends and workers had been invited, who congratulated Miss Heney after the pin had been presented by Mrs. Harvey. Light refreshments were served by Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Frank Corey.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Erno was baptized by Rev. W. R. Lake in Stanbridge East United Church, receiving the names, Larry, Edwin. Godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sanborn. Later Mr. and Mrs. Erno entertained at dinner, guests being Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sanborn and Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Erno.

Mr. Edwin Bedington, Summerville, N.H., a former resident, was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Corey and Mr. and Mrs. H. Douglas on the weekend. Mrs. Ellen McBrearty, Montreal, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Hayes for a week. Jon Cockerline has returned from Vancouver, B.C., where he spent a few weeks and is employed at Torrington Co. for the summer months.

Miss Maria Onegow, Montreal, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. F. Onegow.

Mr. Peter Onegow has completed his course and is being employed by Torrington Co. for the summer months. Mrs. Mervin Corey, Mr. Gerald Corey and Miss Pat Reynolds attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lampman at their home in Bedford on June 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Langevin and daughter, Christina, Cornwall, Ont., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hayes recently. Mrs. Fred Cook attended a miscellaneous shower for Miss Cheryl Best at the home of Mrs. Fred Gilman. Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Duncan and Mrs. W. R. Lake were supper guests of Mrs. Frank Corey. Mr. Eddie Sornberger motored up from Concord, N.H., and visited Mr. and Mrs. Douglas and Miss W. Douglas, enroute to be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Sornberger, Cowansville.

unless you are wearing perfume or scented cosmetics or a flowery printed dress—plain light colors will not attract them. If you have previously been stung, you may be sensitive to bee venom so, to be on the safe side, you should have your doctor give you desensitizing shots.

Q—Last fall I was stung on the arm by a wasp. The severe itching lasted for two or three days but a dull aching has persisted. What do you advise?

A—Although the pain of a wasp sting is severe, it should not last more than a couple of days. Some other cause for your present pain should be sought.

Q—I have heard that taking vitamin B will keep mosquitoes from biting. Is this true?

A—Very doubtful, but mosquitoes prefer skin that has a temperature over 90 degrees. That is why some persons appear to be immune to their bites. Their skin temperature hovers between 87 and 89 degrees. Mosquitoes also prefer to bite persons with alcohol in their blood, probably because this increases the skin temperature. Heavy breathing also attracts them. They show a preference for black, dark red and dark blue and tend to avoid white, yellow and light green fabrics.

Marine resources gain government attention

By JOHN BEST
OTTAWA (CP) — Concern about depletion of fishing resources lies behind federal legislation designed to curb the activities of foreign trawlers on Canada's east and west coasts.

In the process, the government is arming itself with tools for strengthening offshore security and policing offshore pollution.

Bill 203, officially an act to amend the Territorial Sea and Fishing Zones Act of 1964, has been publicly denounced by the United States. Japanese criticism has been made through diplomatic channels and other countries with maritime interests are not happy with Bill 203.

But the government appears intent on pressing ahead to obtain parliamentary approval this session. Federal officials express hope it will speed international law affecting marine resources.

When the bill comes into force, Canada will have a 12-mile territorial sea, compared with the present three-mile territorial zone and contiguous nine-mile fishing zone reserved to Canadian fishermen except for special treaty rights.

Since states do not normally allow foreign fishermen to operate in their territorial sea this aspect of the legislation does not fundamentally change matters.

WIN GREATER CONTROL
It will, however, enable the government to act more forcibly to deal with vessels causing pollution off the coasts, and to protect national security by exercising greater control over movement of foreign ships.

Under international law, ships have a right of "innocent passage" through territorial seas, but the coastal state has a right to see that such passage is in fact innocent.

The most revolutionary aspect of the bill—and the one that has sparked most interest abroad—would shut off thousands of square miles of Canadian waters to overseas fishing vessels.

It provides for what Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has called "a new idea in international fisheries." This involves closing lines across the entrances to both the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Queen Charlotte Sound.

The delicacy of the move can be gleaned from the fact that many other states have been sending their fishing fleets to the areas concerned for years—in some cases centuries.

Others, including Japan and the Soviet Union, are carving out steadily larger stakes in the Canadian fishery. It's doubtful they would take kindly to the suggestion that their expanding operations be curbed.

PHASE THEM OUT
With seven countries, Canada has promised to conduct negotiations on a phased withdrawal rather than simply turfing them out. They are Britain, France, Norway, Denmark, Portugal, Italy and Spain—whose vessels have traditionally fished in the waters affected.

"Perhaps by 1974 they should be out," Mr. Davis has said. "I do not think we are going to ring down the curtain and say, 'You cannot come in any more.'"

Beyond that, special arrangements may be made with individual countries. Japanese fishermen may for instance be permitted to continue fishing off B.C. for dogfish, which has little market in Canada.

And Canadian officials hint at a certain sympathy for the plight of Norwegian villages whose livelihood would be grossly affected if their fishermen were denied access to traditional harvesting grounds.

The negotiations with France will be complicated by the fact that French fishing rights in some of the waters affected are covered by treaty, and further by inability of France and Canada to reach agreement on a demarcation line between St. Pierre-Miquelon and the Newfoundland coast.

U.S. IS OPPOSED
The country that has come out most strongly against the Canadian initiative—the U.S.—stands to lose little if anything by way of access to fishing resources when the bill goes into effect.

Activities of American fishermen in Canadian waters are covered by treaty and other reciprocal agreements which both sides find advantageous. These are being maintained.

The U.S. opposes the Canadian move for the same reason it has publicly opposed Canada's legislation to establish a 100-mile pollution control region seaward from the Arctic archipelago.

"We are concerned that this action by Canada, if not opposed by us, would be taken as precedent in other parts of the world for other unilateral infringements of the freedom of the seas," Washington said in a statement April 16.

The statement made clear that the U.S. regards bodies of water such as the Gulf of St. Lawrence as high seas. It said the U.S. was willing to accept a 12-mile territorial limit, but only as part of an international treaty providing freedom of passage through the straits leading to such bodies of water.

WON'T BE BOUND
Washington has suggested that the dispute over fisheries closing lines and Canada's Arctic pollution bill be referred to the World Court in The Hague.

Canada, protecting its legal position, has excluded such disputes from its acceptance of the international court's compulsory jurisdiction, in effect serving notice that it would not be bound by any judgment the tribunal might make if litigation were launched. The U.S. takes the same general view of the court's jurisdiction in matters where its national interest could be affected.

Its reservation does not extend to the proposed 12-mile territorial sea, however, since the concept already is well established in international law. Forty-five countries now have 12-mile territorial seas and 12 others have set their limits even wider, ranging up to 100 miles from baselines drawn near the shore.

At the heart of the Canadian government's policy is a rapidly growing feeling of alarm that the country's super-abundant salt-water fish resources are in danger from unrestrained operations by foreign trawlers.

"Massive fishing expeditions by other states covering the surface of the sea with trawlers and mother ships are rapidly depleting the living resources of the sea," says External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

CAN'T WAIT LONGER
"We cannot wait longer for the international community to realize the danger and move to meet it."

A fisheries department official put the matter more succinctly: "Why should we allow those huge Russian fleets to come in and vacuum the Gulf of St. Lawrence, perhaps putting our own little inshore fishermen out of business?"

Soviet fleets have been operating intensively off Canada's Atlantic coast in recent years.

Canada has for years campaigned for international rules of law covering the breadth of the territorial sea and contiguous zones.

At the 1958 Geneva law-of-the-sea conference it sought vainly to get common agreement on a three-plus-nine formula, and in 1960 sponsored an unsuccessful attempt to have a six-plus-six formula written into international law.

The 1960 initiative fell short of success by a fraction of one vote. Thereupon Canada joined with Britain to try to get multilateral concurrence in a six-plus-six formula despite the failure at Geneva. Forty countries agreed, provided that the U.S. and other major powers joined in. But Washington declined, saying it did not consider such a move timely or appropriate.

WILL FILL IN MAP
"I hope it will not be taken as a sign of anti-Americanism but merely as an affirmative sign of Canadianism for me to say that we really are not prepared, in light of these developments, to accept the proposition that it is always desirable to proceed multilaterally instead of unilaterally," Mr. Sharp has stated.

Drawing of the fisheries closing lines will complete the fisheries map of Canada.

In 1967 Canada established straight baselines along the east coast of Labrador and along the eastern and southern coasts of Newfoundland. From these lines, the territorial sea and exclusive fishing zone was measured. This was set up under 1964 legislation and implemented only after long fruitless negotiations with the U.S. to obtain their concurrence.

The lines were not, however, extended across the Strait of Belle Isle and Cabot Strait—entrances to the Gulf of St. Lawrence—nor across Fortune Bay in Newfoundland, opposite St. Pierre-Miquelon.

Magog-Orford provides tourist guides

Three young women will provide tourist guide service for the Magog-Orford area this summer. Lise Bilodeau of Coaticook; Carol St. James, Sherbrooke; and Michelle Faucher, of Baie Missisquoi are all CEGEP students at Granby, where they are studying for professions in the tourist industry. Their venture into business, starting June 20th until the end of August received the approval of the Magog-Orford Tourist Association, and they have been allowed use of the tourist information office by the City of Magog.

From their rendez-vous point at the tourist bureau on the Memphremagog Promenade, the girls will provide guided tours of the city and rural district, basing their rates on the number of people guided, and time spent.

This is a three-purpose undertaking for the ladies, who explained they have to earn funds to pay for their education, and at the same time wish to gain experience in the tourist industry, which is their chosen field. Thirdly, they'll endeavour to prove that the guide service offered can be good business, this being the first time anything of its nature has ever been tried here.

"It's going to be hard going for us financially," one of the girls said when interviewed, noting that she and her companions have already hired shared accommodation, are planning on careful budgets. What counts most though, she added, was that they could give the authorities of Magog, and visitors as good a guide service as possible.

The Tourist Techniques Course being taken at Granby is run in conjunction with the University of Sherbrooke, and is underwritten by the Province of Quebec.

The three pretty belles interviewed said they chose Magog for their experiment because this area shows the most promise for tourist industry progress. And, they explained, "We gained considerable encouragement from an official of the Magog-Orford Tourist Association, who said a venture of the type we'll run should surely succeed in this area."

In giving a resume of what they would offer their customers in the way of tours, the girls said they would have several on schedule, and would choose points of interest for each. The choice would depend on the people they hoped to guide. However, in mentioning some of the points of interest they'll base their tours on, included the 3 high points in Magog, one at the Lions Club observatory, one in Michigan, and one in the region of Bellevue Heights and Macdail Park. They will include local features, like the Dominion Textile plant, city hall, the parks, churches and schools, then outside of town, will concentrate on the Mt. Orford Provincial Park area, the St. Benoit du Lac Monastery, Orford Lake-Eastman area, and sites of historical significance.

"We'll keep strict hours too," one of the girls added, emphasizing that she and her friends would be all business. The trio intend being on the job 12 hours a day, from opening of the tourist bureau at 9 a.m. until closing at 9 in the evening.

A number of people are anxious to see what develops from this new guide service, particularly the Magog-Orford Tourist Association. Surely, if anyone will make a go of such a venture, three pretty girls like these shall be the ones to succeed, especially because of their determination, smart appearance and pleasant personalities.

Wish to tour Magog and district anyone?

TENNIS ANYONE? — For more than three-quarters of a century Magog has seen a keen interest in the game of tennis, which resulted in many exceptional players developing in this community. One of the main centres of activity for tennis players over the years has been the Magog Tennis Club, which is still the city's main site of play. The above picture was taken about 50 years ago, and only a few of those in the photo can be identified. Guesses are they are, left to right: Harry Jackson; unknown; Harold Hall; unknown; George Kinnon; Herb McDougall; H.D. Roberts; unknown; Ernest Bradley; and the chap seated is also unidentified. The Club is still a private recreational area, restricted to members, but anyone wishing to pay the specified membership can join. Last year, the Dominion Textile Company turned the property over to the City of Magog, with the understanding that they allow the usual member-directiveship to continue. The municipality were gracious in their willingness to accept responsibility for the acquisition, feeling that it in turn was an added supplement to the local tourist industry. The Magog Tennis Club is situated on Merry Street South, on some 3 acres of lakeside property at themouth to the Magog River. It has a fine beach, 3 large tennis courts, a children's swing and game area, lawns, many shadetrees, and a large well kept clubhouse with exceptional facilities. Robert Cooney is president, assisted by a dozen executive members.

TOURS OF MAGOG-ORFORD AREA will be provided this summer by 3 college girls, who have begun a business of their own at Magog. Lise Bilodeau, Carol St. James, and Michelle Faucher, are all CEGEP students, studying for careers in the tourist industry field, and have chosen Magog as the best location to practice for their chosen professions. They'll make the Magog Tourist Information Bureau off the Memphremagog Promenade their headquarters, and will hold office hours from 9 a.m. until 9 each evening, seven days a week, starting June 20th until the end of August.

By Ted Anderson

As a result of the week's action, the Sherbrooke Optimist Club sponsored Red Sox are holding down top spot in the league standing with a two-point spread over the Senators. Young Denis Roy, pitching for the Red Sox, came up with a four-hit win over the Indians.

The Orioles, one of the top four in the league standings, had their guns spiked twice since last Friday night. Daniel Brault of the Tigers held the Orioles to three hits for a 10-6 win. Brault sent 11 men down by the strikeout route.

Wednesday night, the Twins won their first game in ten starts by taking a surprising 5-3 win over the Orioles. Peter Bishop was the winner of this one.

Last Friday, Denis Roy blanked the Twins 9-0. This was Roy's third win in three starts. Monday, it was Orioles 9, Yankees 4 at Lennoxville. Butch Lebrun, the Orioles power pitcher, struckout 14 men in this one. In Sherbrooke the same evening, the White Sox evened their big hurler Gaetan Doucet were held scoreless by Franco Zol, pitching for the Red Sox. The Sox won by a 6-0 score.

Tuesday night, the Twins lost 14-5 playing against the Indians. Richard Menard was the winner with the loss being charged to Jean Boutin. Denis Halle hit a two-run homer for the Indians to help Menard's cause. In the other game played Tuesday, it was the Senators 10-1 over the Tigers. Young Charles Lizotte took this one with the loss going to Claude Morin.

The surprise of the week was the Twins' upset win over the Orioles. Twins Manager Curt Bishop states that he and coaches Al Simons and Bruce Allanson are giving the younger members of the team all the playing time they can and that in the latter part of the schedule the team should come along. With Peter Bishop, Jeff Coates and Leslie Evans, the team has hitting power and it should pay off in the early future.

While taking in the Yankees-Oriole game last Monday at Lennoxville, I had the occasion to have a few words with Gerry McKinsey, coach of the Yankees and a leading member of the Lennoxville Optimist Club. Our talk centred around how much the Lennoxville Optimist Club is used. The Little League plays their games there, the Lennoxville Softball League, the Lennoxville Women's Softball League along with a P.O.N.Y. League and now a Midget League is also playing there if there's time. This is indeed a Community Park since a children's playground is also available. Gerry remarked that with all the activity something has got to be done about getting another park, but where to put it is another question. Anyhow, it's wonderful that the community park gives so much enjoyment to so many.

Stars this week go out to Denis Roy, Peter Bishop and Denis Halle.

Hunting and fishing in the E.T.

By NORM NICHOLL

Mrs. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain newly appointed Minister of Tourism, Fish and Game has started out in the usual fashion of former tourism ministers in her new position. Namely, in promising a review of private club holdings in the province.

The study of such holdings is to be made in depth into such holdings leased on Crown land; also being taken into account will be the protection and wildlife management of the areas.

This seems to be the first area that any Minister holding this portfolio seems to go after. Remember, the former Minister did the same thing. He cancelled, if my memory serves correctly, some two hundred leases before he shifted to other matters. Surely the same data is available to Madame. Or could it be that some leases have blue sign posts and red would be better?

There are numerous other fields where action is needed. A proper environment for deer; better controls over water pollution while perhaps not directly responsible to the department, still a requisite for fishing. What about some consideration of the insurance plan whereby we pay four or five premiums for one policy?

Little League spotlight

Brian McLellan-Yankees

Brian McLellan is playing in his first year of Sher-Lenn Little League competition, but already he has established himself as both a fine hitter and an effective pitcher for the Lennoxville Optimist sponsored Yankees.

The 12-year-old has clouted three home runs thus far this season and has been a major factor in the great improvement of the Yankees during the 1970 campaign.

Chances of the Yankees capturing the Little League laurels are "pretty good", Brian says, "and if you do something wrong on the field, the coach lets you know about it."

Brian, like every other ardent Little Leaguer, follows the Major Leagues closely and cites Rusty Staub of the Montreal Expos, Larry Jaster of the Atlanta Braves and super-catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincy Reds as three of his favorites.

In Thursday night's start against the Tigers, Brian allowed a scant two hits as the Yankees notched a 4-2 victory for their sixth in 10 outings this season.

Johnny Rougeau to go against Michel Dubois in Saturday wrestling

SHERBROOKE — Over 3000 wrestling enthusiasts are expected at the Sports Palace Saturday evening, when promoter Claude Genest will present another exciting slate of professional grappling.

Featured in the main bout, a best two-of-three falls affair, is International Heavyweight Champ Johnny Rougeau of Montreal who will go against badman Michel Dubois, a 232-pounder, who hails from Godbout, Quebec.

In yet another matchup, Arizona's Steven Little Bear will measure up against 225-pound Ken Russell of Hamilton.

Saturday night's action will begin at 8:30 p.m.

CAMPERS

turn, light, cook,

This is scheduled to be a one fall or 30-minute bout.

Paul Leduc at 223 pounds and also of Godbout, will face blockbusting 284 lb. Danny Lynch of England in another one fall or 30-minute encounter.

The favorite tag-team match will pit Vic Rostassini, a 233-round native of Hamilton, Ontario, and Len Shelley of Montreal against the likes of Chin Lee and Sugi Suto of China.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

"Don Quixote," by Miguel de Cervantes, was published in Spain in 1605 and 1615, in two parts. The World Almanac notes "Don Quixote" contains the following sayings: "Honesty is the best policy," "A finger in every pie," "A peck of trouble," "Birds of a feather flock together," "I'll turn over a new leaf," "With a grain of salt," "Think before thou speakest," "Mum's the word," "Thank you for nothing," and "I give up the ghost."
