

BIG PROGRAMME FOR THURSDAY AND FRIDAY AT THE EXHIBITION.

Attractive Entertainment For Those Who Attend Next Two Days of Sherbrooke Fair—Rain Mars To-Day's Exhibition—Lieutenant Governor Will Not Visit Fair This Year—Tuesday's Race Results—Prize List—Notes of the Exhibition.

Unfavorable weather again greeted Sherbrooke Fair on the morning of Wednesday, the day which under good weather conditions, brings out the largest crowds of the week. The rain fall began early during the night and there was no uncertainty relative to the probable weather conditions of the day. Consequently thousands who would have taken early trains for Sherbrooke did not start out at all. In spite of this fact incoming trains were filled with people who had taken a chance on the weather clearing. For four or five years the Sherbrooke Fair has experienced rainy Wednesdays. It was hoped that the weatherman would hand out something different this year.

There is some consolation for the thousands of fair goers who were disappointed, this morning, namely that Thursday and Friday have yet to come and the programme on these days is fully equal and in some respects even more attractive than the Wednesday programme, inasmuch as the biggest races of the week are on Friday. An outline of the programme for to-morrow and Friday is given below.

So, with favorable weather conditions, the attendance figures for the week may yet round out and the usual number of people be entertained on the grounds of Canada's Great Eastern Exhibition.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR NOT COMING.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec will not attend Sherbrooke Fair to-day as was expected. A telegram from His Honor this morning stated that he would be unable to come, owing to illness in his family.

TUESDAY AT THE FAIR.

Everything passed off successfully at the Fair Grounds on Tuesday. The full programme of horse races and grand stand specialties was run off to a fairly large crowd. The attendance, however, at yesterday's performance was not quite as large as on the corresponding day last year. Many no doubt took chances on the weather being fine on Wednesday and following days, when the excursion rates would be given and special trains run on the various railroads.

THE AUTOMOBILE PARADE.

For some reason or other, the parade of automobiles this year was not as large as last year, and the machines were not as gaily decorated. This was partly due to the fact that many evidently did not consider that the silver cup offered by Birks of Montreal was for the best decorated machine. Nearly thirty cars took part in the parade. The judges were Messrs. Gilmore, Merrie and Thrasher. After circling the track once or twice the cars were lined up in front of the Grand Stand. The prize for the best decorated car was given to Dr. W. Lamaly, of Cookshire. The prize for the "horribles" was won and merited by Mr. Eddie Harmer, who drove one of Mr. A. T. Drew's cars. The "hayseed" got up of this car was one of the features of the parade.

THE RACES WERE GOOD.

The races were exceptionally good, each heat being closely contested. The feature of the afternoon was the come back act performed by Dick Thornell, driven by E. C. Squires. Monday this horse was distanced in the first heat of the named race. Yesterday he came back and won the Named Race with comparative ease.

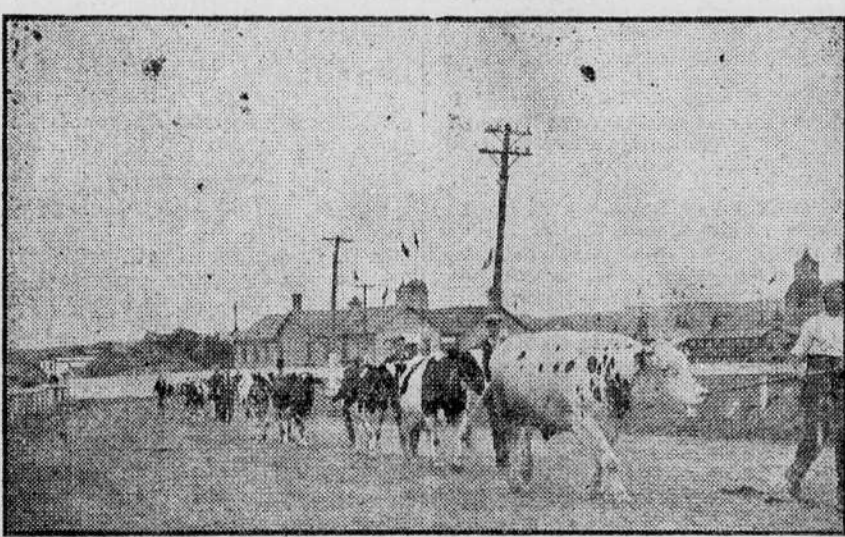

Jimmy T. furnished the first excitement of the afternoon. While scoring for the first heat of the 2.40 pace, 2.35 trot, this horse dumped Driver Langlois and ran away. An effort was made to stop him as he passed the stand first, but it was unsuccessful. Starter Pike called to those on the track to let him go, and go he did. The remaining horses were taken from the track and the driverless animal came tearing by the stand for the second time. Finally the horse found that he was not being urged, and slackened up. He was finally caught after having gone three-quarters of a mile. He finished third in the first heat, in spite of his impromptu workout.

SPILL IN THE SECOND RACE.

In the second heat of the named race Diamond B. broke a hobble in front of the stand on the first lap. His driver began to pull him in. La-bonte, who drove Sauve, was following some distance behind. He did not turn out in time, although he had plenty of opportunity, and the sulks collided. La-bonte was thrown out, but no damage resulted. The judges saw the accident, and although they did not consider that La-bonte's act was intentional, they forced to distance him. By mutual consent in the named race, distance was waived by the drivers. Dick Thornell had an easy time in

SWAM ENGLISH CHANNEL.

William Burgess Duplicates Capt. Webb's Feat.

NEGOTIATED DISTANCE IN 24 HOURS AFTER LEAVING DOVER.

Dover, England, September 6.—(Special)—William Burgess, a Yorkshire man, to-day successfully swam the English Channel from Dover to Cape Grisez. The swimmer landed at Cape Grisez at half past ten this morning, almost exactly 24 hours after leaving Dover.

Burgess' success to-day in swimming the English Channel, following nine plucky but unsuccessful attempts to negotiate the narrow strip of water between the French and English coasts.

Numerous attempts have been made to swim the Channel since 1875, when Captain Matthew Webb swam from Dover to Calais in 21 hours and 45 minutes, but no one has been able to duplicate Captain Webb's feat until to-day.

The Channel between Dover and Cape Grisez is only twenty miles wide but the tide through straits is very strong, and swimmers are obliged to cross at wide angle.

REUNION HELD OF "OLD BOYS".

Annual Meeting at Knowlton an Interesting Event.

MR. JUSTICE LYNCH WAS THE HOST ON THIS OCCASION.

Knowlton, Sept. 6.—(Special)—The annual reunion of the "Old Boys" of Knowlton has come and gone.

The chief feature of this gathering is the dinner, which took place, as usual, at the Lake View House. The menu was an attractive one and reflected great credit on the local printers. Smith Co. The dinner itself was one of Greene's best, and his patrons know just what that means. The absentees were Mr. Justice Davidson, Mr. Justice Archibald, Mr. Donald Macmaster, K.C., M.P.; and Mr. H. S. Foster. Judge Lynch was the host of the occasion, and after dinner the party adjourned to "Landscape over stories, old and new, when the photographer appeared on the scene.

The steam launch was then called into requisition, and the beauties of the lake were explored. Before separating Mrs. Lynch served a light lunch on the lawn, which was much appreciated.

Those present were: Mr. E. A. Dyer, Sutton; Messrs. T. Reid and J. M. Reid, of Montreal; Mr. D. A. Manson, of Moncton; Mr. Colin Holmes, of Stanstead; Mr. R. S. White, of Montreal; Mr. G. G. Foster, K.C., of Montreal; Mr. Irvine Lynch, of Knowlton.

THOUSANDS OF PERSONS DROWNED.

Great Flood in China Extends for About 700 Miles.

REBELLIONS HAVE ARISEN IN FIVE DIFFERENT QUARTERS.

Peking, Sept. 6.—The great flood which is devastating a part of the Chinese Empire extends from Ichang in the province of Hupeh to Shanghai on the coast, a distance of about seven hundred miles. The banks of the Yangtze-Kiang have been obliterated, except in the highlands and around the walled cities and towns.

So far the loss of life can only be estimated, but it is believed that thousands of persons have been drowned. Farmhouses and brush huts have been submerged throughout the entire district or are floating down the river. The loss to foreign property is extensive.

Shanghai trade has been seriously affected and the cotton and rice crops in the Yangtze-Kiang valley have been completely destroyed. The consequent famine will doubtless be more severe than that of last year.

The Liao river in Manchuria is also flooded. Many have been drowned and a serious famine in that section is certain. The Chinese Government has other important matters confronting it at the present time. Rebellions have arisen in not less than five different quarters. Reports received here say that in the province Kansu the Mohammedans, 20,000 strong, are threatening Sining Fu. The Canton authorities are worried by terrorists whom they are endeavoring to ferret out. Reports have also been received that Chinese troops in Tibet have been defeated with a loss of 600 men and have retired into Lhasa. In the fourth place the Mongolian princes and religious heads are united against the Chinese development and colonization schemes and are reported to have appealed to Russia for protection.

SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT.

Stated That Germany Will Accept France's Proposal

EARLY AGREEMENT BETWEEN COUNTRIES OVER MOROCCAN DISPUTE PROBABLE.

Paris, Sept. 6.—(Special)—Advices received here to-day from Berlin intimate that German Imperial Chancellor Dr. Von Bethmann-Hellweg has indicated his acceptance of France's proposals presented last Monday to German Foreign Minister Herr Von Kiderlen-Waechter by French Ambassador L. Cambon looking to settlement of Moroccan dispute.

The French Foreign Office, however, maintained an attitude of reserve regarding the progress of negotiations. Despatches which look as though they had common origin at French Embassy in Berlin received to-day by several Paris newspapers also indicate that an early agreement between France and Germany of Moroccan dispute is most probable.

By permission of Mr. Baker, Messrs. Falkner and Ball were allowed to reply in behalf of the Government but they were interrupted. Thus the meeting broke up in disorder. WATERLOO.

Mr. Arthur Martin has disposed of his live stock and rented his farm for one year and leaves in a few days with Mrs. Martin and daughter for Troy, N.Y., where he will take charge of a large farm. He expects to be away for three years much to the regret of their many friends.

The funeral of the late Mrs. G. W. Kendall, whose death has already been reported, took place on August 29th. The late Mrs. Kendall passed away on August 26th, at the early age of 41 years and five months. To those whose good fortune it was to have known Mrs. Kendall, found her to be an affectionate disposition, winning in many ways that her friendship circle was a large one.

Mrs. Kendall, whose maiden name was Miss Melina Ellen Percy, was born in St. John's, Nfld., and came to Waterloo about twenty years ago and lived for some months after her arrival in the house where she died, as companion to the late Mrs. Mitchell. About twenty years ago she married Mr. Kendall and now leaves to mourn an irreparable loss, one daughter and two sons, one sister who resides in Cambridge, Mass., and two brothers in St. John's, Nfld. The funeral which took place at the Methodist Church on Friday was largely attended by relatives, friends and neighbors, all desirous of paying a last tribute of respect to a good friend and neighbor. The floral tributes were many, covering the entire top of the casket. The funeral service was eloquently preached by the Rev. E. W. S. Coates who was away on his vacation at Brockville, returning here for the occasion. The bearers were Messrs. A. A. Racicot, W. H. Bell, C. H. Daigneau, G. E. Jones, Mr. N. O. Rockwell, manager. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the family in this their great and sad bereavement.

He had a stroke of paralysis two years ago, from which he never fully recovered. Mr. Vadden had been financial secretary of Toronto Typographical Union No. 91 for over fifteen years and was well known in labor circles throughout Canada.

"MONA LISA" IN THE STATES. New York, Sept. 6.—A fresh hunt for the "Mona Lisa," stolen from the Louvre in Paris, is being pushed in the foreign quarters of every large city in the United States. The renewal of the investigation is based on a tip received by Customs agents from abroad to the effect that the famous painting has already been smuggled into this country. The painting after being landed in a Canadian port, was shipped immediately west, the story goes.

PRICE OF FOOD GOES UP. London, Sept. 6.—The threat of dear winter food is growing insistent in many quarters. All foodstuffs are steadily advancing and prices which a few years ago would have been regarded as exorbitant are threatened in regard to bacon, milk, butter, potatoes and other staples. The potato crop has failed in those parts of Great Britain where usually it is most assured, and there is now no doubt of a wholesale failure of the best sugar crop in Germany, on which English refineries so largely rely.

FIGHTING IN MEXICO. Mexico City, Sept. 6.—A battle is reported to have occurred between Federal troops under General Frederico Morales and a force commanded by General Emiliano Zapata, near Chinameca, in the state of Morelos. News reached the department of the Interior to-day that fifty Zapatistas have been killed. Zapata is said to have been seen to fall from his horse. 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF BUFFALO TRAGEDY. Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 6.—(Special.)—To-day marked the tenth anniversary of the assassination of President McKinley in this city, an event which caused the whole world to mourn and which changed the course of the history of the nation. The President was shot twice by the assassin Czolgosz, while in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American Exposition, one bullet entering his arm, the other perforating his stomach. He survived his wounds eight days later. His death occurred in the home of John G. Milburn in this city, where Vice-President Roosevelt took the oath of office

CENTENARY OF NOTED ASTRONOMER. Washington, D.C., Sept. 6.—(Special.)—One hundred years ago to-day saw the birth, in Georgetown, of James M. Gillis, the world-famous astronomer, who, according to his biographers, "first in all the land conducted a working observatory, who first gave his whole time to practical astronomical work, who first published a volume of observations, first prepared a catalogue of stars and planets and carried into effect the construction of a working observatory as contrasted with one intended chiefly for instruction." Dr. Gillis made numerous valuable improvements in astronomical instruments and it was under his charge that the Government observatory in Washington became one of the best in the world. His death occurred in this city, February 9, 1865.

TO DISCUSS "NE TEMERE" DECREE. London, Ont., Sept. 6.—(Special.)—The intellect and the power of the Anglican Church in the Dominion are concentrated in this city to-day. On every train distinguished and influential laymen have been arriving for the meeting of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada, the sessions of which were formally opened to-day and will continue until well into the coming week.

The indications point to a meeting of unusual importance to the denomination. The resolutions to be introduced and acted upon are numerous and of more than ordinary interest and importance. Foremost on the list is a motion condemning the "Ne Temere" decree of the Roman Catholic Church, which will be introduced by the dioceses of Toronto, Saskatchewan, Ontario, Algoma and Rupert's Land.

Other resolutions to be discussed by the convention will deal with the proposal to change the name of the church, the preservation of the laws of morality on ships carrying immigrants, the proposed increase of the episcopate of the Canadian Church, the necessity of interesting young men in the work of the ministry, and the long-standing controversy in regard to church union.

COMPLAINED UNIVERSITY MEN DEPEND ON LECTURES RATHER THAN READING. (New York Herald.)

London.—The question whether serious reading is dying out in England is actively discussed in book-selling and literary circles, owing to some striking remarks by Professor Sir Joseph Thompson. Speaking at a dinner of the Associated Bookellers of Great Britain, the Professor of experimental physics said:

"In the University of Cambridge I am afraid that the habit of reading has almost entirely disappeared. The undergraduates expect to have the thing digested for them, and many of them read very little. That is a very serious evil, and it would be better for the coming race to encourage reading."

From what can be learned both from libraries and bookshelves, it would seem that, in the wide world outside Oxford and Cambridge, the tendency for the book borrower is to indulge in fiction and light literature rather than for the book buyer to choose more solid fare.

"People certainly seem to read more for entertainment than for instruction or culture," remarked the manager of one of the leading circulating libraries. "The demand for old books has not increased proportionately with the increase in the number of readers."

Another side of the question is recalled when the ever-increasing number of "reprints" is considered. It is now quite possible to form quite a large library of "solid reading"—travel, biography, classics and the like—at a cost of about ten cents a volume, and Mr. J. M. Dent, whose "Everyman" series reached a sale of a million and a half in England last year, does not take a pessimistic view of the situation.

"Yet," he says, "I fear there may be much in Sir Joseph Thompson's complaint. The tendency, at any rate, at Cambridge and many other universities, is to aim at short cuts to knowledge, to work only for examinations, which are ever growing harder, and to ignore wide culture, and what used to be called the 'humanities.' But the working man, as my experience with 'Everyman' shows, is willing to read good books if they are placed within his reach."

JUDGE SICOTTE DIES SUDDENLY.

Had Long Career at the Bar in Montreal District.

END CAME WITH STARTLING SUDDENNESS AS HE HAD NOT BEEN ILL.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—(Special)—Judge Louis W. Sicotte died suddenly at Vaudreuil last night while engaged in conversation with Lt.-Col. Labelle. He had not been ill, and his death came almost without warning.

He suddenly collapsed while talking and died in a few moments.

He was born at Boucherville, Que., in 1838 and after a long career at the Bar was made Clerk of the Crown in 1882 and Judge of Session for the Province of Quebec, Montreal district in 1897.

He leaves a widow and five children.

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE SEA.

There is no class of man so superstitious as the sailor. To whatever nation he may belong, and whether he sails in a giant Cunarder or in a Chinese junk, his superstitions form a most important part of his existence. Although many old superstitions died with out increased knowledge of the globe, and although the introduction of steam has done much to lessen the terror and mystery of the deep, yet many curious beliefs still prevail; and absurd as they may appear to one whose nights are spent snugly abed on land, it is unwise to impart such opinion to a sailor. His environment tends toward a belief in signs and portents, and however clear-headed a man he may be, he is seldom at ever, free from this dread of some invisible menace.

All are aware of the ill-luck which is said to belong to the ship whose name has been changed; but it may not be so generally known that a belief prevails among seafaring men that the vessel whose name ends in A rests, also, under an evil spell. Indeed, it would almost seem that the latter superstition is not wholly unfounded, if we consider but a few of the disasters at sea in our own times where in the ill-fated ships have borne names, which ended with the first letter of the alphabet. For instance, H. M. S. "Victoria" sunk in the Mediterranean, is still fresh in the memory of Englishmen. Other well-known instances are the Stella, lost off the Channel Islands; the Arquipa, ashore on the coast of America; the Cobra, a destroyer, which broke her back in the North Sea on her maiden voyage; and the Sardinia burned in harbour at Malta. The fate of the last named vessel, in the light of the two superstitions already mentioned may be fairly said to have been preordained; for, in addition to her name ending with the letter A, she had, during her career, borne at least one other, viz., Gulf of Corcovado. Needless to say many ships have been wrecked whose names did not bear the unlucky final letter, and there are hundreds afloat which do possess it and in which it is safer to travel than on the railway. A very common superstition among sailors of today is that which attaches an evil influence to a particular member of a crew, and sometimes to a passenger. Equally common is the belief which attaches to a particular man, the contrary reputation of possessing a personality or quality tending to good luck, and according to which the vessel he sails in is blessed by his presence, inasmuch as whatever the vicissitudes of the voyage, the issue will be favorable.

WILL TALK ON RECIPROCITY.

Knowlton, Sept. 6.—(Special)—There will be a meeting on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Lakeview Hall on reciprocity, when Professor Stephen Leacock and Mr. E. E. Howard will be the leading speakers. The ladies are invited.

ORIGIN OF BLACKMAIL.

Blackmail, however little the black-mailed man or woman of today may be inclined to think so, got its name, and its reason to be, originally, in the interests of law and order.

Up there, the strong man, armed, kept his cattle. Down here, the pacifist cattle owner grew beef. The cattle needed a good supply of beef. The strong man might just have swooped down, and lifted the whole herd. Had he done so often—he did do so sometimes—the pacifist grazier would have changed the venue, probably. They might have found a shortage of beef at the cattle more inconvenient than a superfluity. The strong man put it in this way: Send me up so much beef every week, and I will insure you against further orders of this sort and you may grow your beef in peace. The pacifist agreed; he had no other. It was better to supply one strong man than many. So he paid his rent—his mail, as he called it—while a part of him degenerated. So mail became blackmail, and blackmail, in this way, stood for law and order.

PUNISHMENT FOR "JOY RIDERS"

(New York Tribune.)
The killing of the Brooklyn physician turns out to have been the work of "joy riders." No law will ever put an end to the species. The fool is a heritage of the human race. Men will always do as these men did—take out automobiles without authority and, drunk with love of speed, rush along the highways in wanton disregard of human life. Sometimes they kill themselves, which is most fitting. Sometimes they kill others, and then it is fitting that society should act, and act effectively. Until now society has failed. The fool in the automobile kills and flees, and only rarely is he caught and punished.

It is plain from this case, as from many others, that the identification of the automobile is too difficult. The license number of a speeding machine can very seldom be read at night. Four persons tried to read the number of this "joy riding" automobile in Brooklyn. They made out only the last two figures of five, and they were agreed as to what these figures were. But it turns out that the two figures which they thought they saw did not occur in any place in the actual number of the machine, and only unusually successful detective work on the part of the police made possible the discovery of its occupants.

Numbers should be made more easy to read. What is to prevent the requirement of illuminated numbers at night? If "joy riding" is to be reduced the capture of the "joy rider" should be made easier and his punishment more certain. There is no reason why the automobilist who slays while proceeding on a highway in a manner and at a speed which show wanton disregard of human life should not be punished by taking human life.

VERY MUCH HIS OWN EDITOR.

Looking over a copy of the New York Tribune dated Jan. 9, 1851, a writer in the Manchester Union lighted upon a letter from Meridian Village, N.H., with its reply which he considered evidence of the editorial policy and animus which made the Tribune famous. They are as follows: Meridian Village, N.H., Monday, Dec. 23, 1850.
Mr. Greeley, Sir—I wrote you that if I took your paper, I wished the privilege of inserting a piece or more in respect to the church and clergy. You complied so far as to send me your paper. I then forwarded you the money, and the communication. If you do not think proper to insert it, why did you not send it back as every honorable man would have done? And now, sir, I do not wish your paper longer. I shall not take any more out of the office if they are sent; and I demand of you to send that composition and the money, otherwise I shall consider it my duty on your part. (Signed.)

Sir—I have no recollection of any such letter as you speak of and possibly never read it. Most certainly I never assented as I never will assent in order to secure a subscriber, to publish such articles as you or any other man may see fit at a future day to write. It is not the practice of this establishment to hire people to take the Tribune over to pay premiums for subscriptions, nor do we, of course, give our patrons anything better for their money than our paper. Your "piece" in respect to "The Church and Clergy" I have no recollection of, but am very sure I should not have printed it at any rate. The subject is one which can only be handled with profit by writers possessing far more knowledge, sense and fact than you seem to have any idea of. Your "composition" is of course, indiscoverable in these parts; if it ever came here it has probably been used to kindle the fire long since and has thus contributed to the diffusion of light in spite of the author's opacity of mind and churlishness of disposition. Your money will of course, be returned to you, and I shall be very glad to be rid of you so cheaply.—(Ed. Trib.)

DECLINE OF FAMOUS PEARL FISHERIES.

(German Trade Review.)
The once famous fresh water pearl fisheries in the river known as the White Elster in the Planen district of Saxony have steadily declined in importance. Although the fishing is carried on under the supervision of Government inspectors and every care is taken to foster the growth of a variety of pearls well known on the market the yield has so dwindled that during the last year only six good pearls and seventeen of second quality were found. This is a contrast to preceding years, when large finds were made during the fishing season. From 1867 to 1900 nearly 4,600 of all grades were found. Some of the best years were during the middle of the 17th century, but owing chiefly to the increase of factories along the banks of the stream, contaminating the waters, as well as to the destructive agency of floods and ice flows, either the mussel beds have been destroyed or the mussels prevented from having the necessary repose, with the result that the historic pearl fisheries of this district are now threatened with extinction.

THE "SURPRISE" PARTY.

(Boston Transcript.)
The "surprise party" was once such a pest with the humble citizens of this land that a body hardly dared leave his house lest it be filled on his return with ice-cream drippings, oak and marble junk, and neighbors who meant well. So endured the reign of terror; no man's premises being safe from the invasion until stout-hearted Zeph Jacobs, harness maker, braved the evil spell. His turn came, as he knew well, when he entered his modest cottage after a weary Saturday night's marketing, with thoughts of the bills to follow. Zeph was encircled by forty avowed friends, who thrust under his nose a photograph album bound in white celluloid. As he stepped into the ring to make his speech of thanks, before the company adjourned to the refreshments (which were, of course, on the usual subject), Zeph's jaw was seen to stiffen. Here is the speech, as near as could be gathered from the irate guests: "Friends, you mean well, but you've made a bad mistake. Instead of this here family album, if you really wanted to please me you ought to have got me one of them manicure kits, so's I could set up for a blacksmith." With which he hoisted the album through an open window, taking with it a potted geranium. Thereafter the surprise party languished.

COTTAGE INDUSTRIES.

WEAVING, SPINNING, KNITTING, EMBROIDERING AND BASKET MAKING IN IRELAND.
(U.S. Consular Reports)

It is surprising that the handwoven fabrics can still survive against the productions of machinery, and the Irish peasant understands how to dye his handwoven cloths with lichens and plants which give them an amiable effect, and the quality of durability and appearance give them a distinct value.
The centres of hand weaving and spinning are in Donegal, Mayo, Conamara and Kerry, where there is abundant mountain grazing for sheep with luxuriant wool and where labor is superabundant. The leading centre, however, is Donegal, and it is estimated that $50,000 a year is paid to the peasants of the impoverished and barren districts of Donegal for the homespun cloths. The cloth is usually sold at country fairs, where it is brought in large rolls or webs about 25 inches wide. As a loom of the necessary size could not be accommodated in the tiny cottages occupied by the peasants, the homespun cloths are not made in double widths. Each district in Ireland produces cloth of a distinct character. In North Donegal the cloth is heavy, well woven, substantial and generally dyed in dark colors with stripes and checks. The market for this is usually a retail one. The products of Castebar resemble those of North Donegal, but are somewhat brighter in color. In Conamara and other parts of County Galway there is a peculiar sort of flannel of very durable quality. It is usually dyed in red, dark blue or black, and the Galway weavers of women present an odd but vividly picturesque appearance clad in hood and cloaks made of this peculiar material. The Kerry homespun are well made, but poor in color and pattern, vegetable dyes being very seldom used.

In each of the cases which have been mentioned the cloth is produced for local use, and only the overplus reaches the outside market. In South Donegal, however, the cloth is an extensive homespun industry, there, carried on especially on the whole market and conducted upon business principles. There is a hereditary talent for coloring the cloths prevalent among the Donegal peasantry, and the cloths which come from this district are considered as beautiful as any woolen fabrics produced anywhere in Europe. There are no statistics available as to the exact importance of this industry. Hand knitting is still able to compete against mechanical imitations and is a means of livelihood to many peasants in the isolated regions of the country. The wild districts of Kinross, in County Donegal, is an important centre. An Arran industry in Mayo produces some very fine specimens.

Hand embroidery, as it is done in some parts of Ireland, can not be satisfactorily imitated by machinery and is a cottage industry of importance. Irish art needlework is of the best quality and will bear favorable comparison with any produced in Europe.

The centre of the cabinet-making industry is in the vicinity of Killarney. Basket work is engaged in Lifford, County Galway, and in Castlegomer, County Kerry, and in Castlegomer, County Kerry. Much ingenuity is shown in adapting the wicker work to useful purposes.

POULTRY CLIPPINGS.

The steam heated poultry house is now gone the way of other foolish fads.
That poultry is creating more interest than usual is evidenced by the way magazines devote paragraphs and even pages to the subject. The following is how "Collier's" refers to the laying contest. We are grateful for such notices, but who ever heard an incubator laying eggs.
Over near Nashville a snake crawled into a hen's nest and swallowed a porcelain nest egg. The result was not eggs—actly as his snakeship expected and he soon eggs-cruated. A rest was held with eggs—no rest—ults, and the farmer, who was the nest by the farmer, who was eggs-cruated over the result of his experiment, as he eggs-cruated the plan to his eggs-cruated neighbors.

Iowa State College has a barred rock hen that laid 230 eggs during the past year. They weighed 56 pounds or more than eleven times as much as the hen, and if sold at an average price of 25 cents a dozen they would bring $1,750, or $9,250 more than her feed cost.

According to the Macon (Ga.) "News" the Barred Rock hen, "Debbie" owned by Mr. Harry Northington, of Macon, which established a record of 124 eggs laid consecutively, from January 7th to June 14th, after taking a rest of about one week, resumed business on June 12th, and has deposited an egg every day since, making 135 eggs since January 7th. We would like to hear from anyone having fowls with a record better than that of "Debbie."

During the month of June 806,888 eggs were shipped from Petaluma, Calif.
It would be better to wash eggs sent to market than to send them in a dirty condition. But washed eggs have no keeping qualities. The water appears to dissolve the gelatinous substance which seals the pores of the shell, and the air is thus admitted and soon starts the decomposition. The better way to treat dirty eggs is to take a woolen rag slightly moistened with water, and gently rub off the dirt.

It is said that the calico printers use more than 40,000 dozens of eggs each year, and that the coffee roasters, the photographic trades, the cracker and biscuit combines, and the chemical trades consume twice as many large quantities are also used in the leather trades for tanning. They are also used in the preparation of many patent foods, and the liquid trade takes no inconsiderable number. For many of these uses, inferior grades of eggs are used, not because they are better, but because they are cheaper. One biscuit company in New York buys 4,000 eggs every week.

HOW PICKPOCKETS FOLLOW THEIR WORK.

ONE WHO HAS BEEN AT GAME TELLS HOW IT IS DONE.

It was outside a jeweller's shop in the Strand where I first set eyes on the subject of this interview says Tit Bits. He was a quietly-dressed youth, and I watched him "settle" near a City "Johnnie." The latter was apparently lost in admiration of the sparkling gems that shone behind the plateglass windows, and I began to tremble for his shekels.
By the reflection of the window I could see that the arm of his neighbour, the "quiet" young man, was, from the elbow, stretched horizontally across his body, and that the fingers of his right hand, were partly concealed by a colored handkerchief. Presently I saw the fingers of the youth "toying" with the watch-guard of the unconscious "Johnnie." The time was ripe for action. I pressed suddenly forward between the two, and the pickpocket immediately released his hold of the chain, glared at me, and hurried up the street. In a moment I was after him.

EXPERTS ARE BORN, NOT MADE.
"You can tell me a little about the art of pocket-picking," I said, tapping him on the arm. "You are undoubtedly aware of the fact that I saw you attempt to snatch that fellow's chronometer?"
"What do you mean?" he ejaculated. "Do you take me for a thief? Who are you?"

"A journalist," I replied. "If I had been a detective you wouldn't have got off so easily. I suppose pocket-picking is really an art?"
"It is," declared the youth, when he realized that I had no intention of introducing him to a policeman. "There is no class of artist who, in their calling are so dexterous as pickpockets. Like poets, they are born, not made. Their nerves must be of iron, and yet as sensitive as instinct. Their hands, too, must be as strong as steel, and as light as down, so to speak. Perhaps it would be difficult to find a society lady who looks after her hands so well as I do. Look at mine."

FOREFINGERS WORTH HAVING.
They were well cared for without a doubt, but what struck me was the fact that the two forefingers were almost of an equal length, while the thumb was longer than that of the average hand.

"What strange fingers and thumb you have," I said.
"Ah! They are qualifications with which the successful pickpocket, and the successful only, are furnished. In believing a stranger of his property it is these two forefingers that do the work. How? For instance, supposing I wanted to pick the pocket of your coat. I should gently glide my two forefingers and thumb to the bottom of that pocket, and gradually ease it of its contents. A practised thief never tugs at anything, however tempting it might look. Clumsiness means failure, and perhaps the loss of liberty."

NEWSPAPERS ARE HANDY.

"What is the most common method of pocket-picking?"
"That performed under 'cover' of a handkerchief, usually of dark silk. My father was a pickpocket—one of the best in Europe, and he brought me up to the profession. He used to rely on a newspaper, and in crowded buses and trains he appropriated the contents of scores of ladies' handbags with the assistance of a copy of the 'Times.' On one Lord Mayor's Show Day he secured twelve watches, ten of which he sold for a large sum. That was a fine day's pocket-picking you must admit."

"The reckless fashion in which women expose their pockets means money to us. Only yesterday while seated on top of a bus going down Piccadilly, I spotted the gaping pocket of a smartly dressed lady sitting in front of me. I dipped my fingers therein, and found not a purse of gold, but a purse holding three pawns, three and a dirty handkerchief. I put it back again."

"I suppose that diamond pins and brooches are not in your line?"
"Aren't they, though! I have a nice little dodge to gain possession of 'shiners' as we call diamond pins. The West-end is the happy hunting-ground for jewels. In the height of the season I jump into a bus that carries a throng of fashionable tourists, seating myself inside in a position which allows me a view of the people on the pavement. The moment a gentleman there shows a diamond in his tie, I prepare to alight. Jumping off the vehicle in a clumsy fashion, I manage to collide with him. My right hand which is put forward to protect myself in the collision, just touches the other where the diamond sparkles. With an apology I raise my hat and step out of the way—and the diamond is mine. The whole manoeuvre only occupies a second or so, and I have secured a good many valuable diamonds in this way, as well as many sham ones."

At that moment the pocket-tapper evidently caught sight of someone he had no desire to meet, for he turned abruptly down a side street and hurried away without another word. A few minutes later I searched for my pipe and tobacco-pouch, which I was in the habit of keeping in an outside pocket of my overcoat. The pocket-tapper had been there before me. The pouch and pipe had gone, so had a silk handkerchief, but I never felt them again.

ONE PIE FOR 70 GUESTS.

(London Sketch.)
Seventy guests banqueted on a single pie at Gorleston, and there was plenty to spare when they had finished. The pie had a three inch crust and weighed a hundredweight and a half, it was made in three sections or water tight compartments, and each held had a substantial bulkhead of crust. Its interior was packed with six rabbits, six kidneys, twenty-eight pounds of beefsteak and potatoes, turnips, carrots and sprouts. The pie, as it is called, is boiled, not baked, and its builder, Skipper Hartman, made the cooking process an eight hours watch.

This three decker provided a savory meal which more than satisfied the guests, and its wrecked and dismantled hull provided ten gallons of excellent soup that was gladly welcomed by the poor of Gorleston.

FINE RETURNS FROM THE TURF.

PROFITABLE SPECULATION IN ENGLAND IN GOLDEN HORSE-FLESH.

That wonderful mare has just been sold for $35,000, long after her sensational career of the course had come to an end, this recalls other striking turf deals.

More than one horse has won a fortune for the present Duke of Portland, but his marvellous stroke of luck was his purchase of the invincible St. Simon, whose death occurred only a few years ago. When Prince Bathurst died, his horses came under the hammer, and amongst them was a two-year-old which attracted the Duke so greatly that it acquired it for $8,000. That two-year-old was St. Simon, and he was never defeated on the Turf, winning nine races worth $23,000.

On retiring from the course St. Simon went to the stud, and he proved a most distinguished father. Two of his sons—the late King Edward and the present Duke of Devon—were victors in the two Thousand Guineas. In fees alone he earned no fewer than $1,250,000.

Stirred owners of racehorses are ever on the watch for young thoroughbreds, and there are many extraordinary examples of valuable racers being discovered in the most unlikely places. Deadlock, the dam of the famous Isinglass, was brought out of the shafts of a trap in the streets for $125. The popular idol, Victor Wild (who ruined half the small bookmakers when he won his second Jubilee), was picked up out of a selling race for a few sovereigns by a London publican.

Against these claims have appeared statements by veterinarians of standing like Edmund Huret and St. Pierre-sur-Diven, where this disease is prevalent, challenging the results. They say the serum is far from perfect. "It does not keep and it is not preventive; as to its efficacy I am thoroughly sceptical," writes one expert. In view of this the Minister of Agriculture cautiously issues a statement that the Doyen claims are premature and it would not be wise to lessen the precautions till more mathematical experiments have been made.

Dr. Doyen's modest reply is that he "appeals to the country, which to-morrow will know how to render justice unhesitatingly to him who must henceforth be considered a benefactor of humanity."

THE SWALLOWS.

(Hartford Courant.)

Nobody can explain why wild birds do certain things, nor why tame ones do, either. A domestic hen in the road is as big a puzzle as a partridge in the woods. But naturalists study acts and tell us what certain birds do, even if they cannot tell how or why. For example, at this season of the year the swallows begin to combine in great flocks. They are to be seen now, in various parts of the state, ranged along the telegraph or telephone wires. Along the Sound shore they are found by millions, enormous flocks filling the air and actually clouding the sky. It is true that they are getting ready for their flight south. But how come these speechless birds to be able to pass the word along to meet? Some call, covering many miles must have gone out to assemble them. Presumably the most of them are young birds, hatched this summer. What do they know of the flight south? They have never been out of Connecticut, and now they are preparing to go hundreds of miles away to a region entirely strange to them. Who calls them together? Who gives the signal to start? One day they are here and the next all are gone. They go because we have cold weather here, but they go before it becomes cold, and they return here to meet the returning summer and be warm, but they get here before the warm weather is assured. Hence it is evident that cold does not drive them away nor warmth bring them back. The notion entertained years ago by Gilbert White (and not by him alone) that swallows hid themselves in the mud at the bottom of ponds doesn't go, these days.

Terrible Itching Got Little Sleep

Until Cuticura Remedies Cured Him

Those who have suffered long and hopelessly from torturing skin eruptions will read with interest this letter from Mr. T. Williams, 115 Pacific Ave., Winnipeg (dated Jan. 14, 1911): "The Cuticura Remedies certainly did work finely, and I am thankful that there is such a remedy, and that I tried it. About three months ago a terrible itching commenced on my body. I could not understand it. It gradually grew worse and covered a large portion of my body. There was also a slight eruption of the skin, sort of a rash. I suffered greatly with the itching and at night time I had little sleep. I tried one or two remedies which did no good, and then I tried Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent. In about ten days I was completely cured."

For more than a generation the Cuticura Remedies have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp eruptions, of young and old. THE EVENING PERFORMANCE.
For the opening night the performance last night was well attended. The stands were well lighted and everything passed off smoothly. The attractions on the stage went off without a hitch and were seen to even better advantage than during the day.

Pouchot's Aerial Ballet was seen for the first time, and was well worth going to see. The height of the stage would not permit them flying out into space as high as they would like to have gone. The changing electrical effects, and the graceful motions of the swinging performers were thoroughly enjoyed.

The fireworks were, as usual, the best money could buy. This part of trouble yesterday on the Midway.

The plan was this. A person desiring a vision of his future would place a coin in the hand of the gypsy. She would cover it with a handkerchief, make a few passes, and the mystery shrouding the victim's future disappeared.

One young man who had come into town to see all the wonders of the big show, in order to obtain an exceptionally good fortune, so the story goes, placed some seventeen dollars in the palm. The handkerchief was placed over the money, and in his complaint to the police, he asserts that when it was removed the money had disappeared. The gypsy claims she did not receive it.

The result, however, was that three women and one man were arrested and conveyed to the police station. Two of the women had babies in their arms and the youngsters were taken along with the others in the department's "Black Maria."

The whole party appeared before Judge Mulvena this forenoon. They all pleaded guilty and were each fined $2 and costs and ordered to be deported.

These engines are made with one, two or three cylinders, and from one and a half to thirty-six horse power, kerosene or gasoline can be used as fuel. The M. Moody Manufacturing Co., Terrebonne, Que., have an engine that attracts the farmer's attention, as it is made especially for farm use, built on special steel truck, can be moved from one position to another without delay, and sufficient horse power to do all kinds of work on the farm. Those interested should not fail to see this very serviceable engine. Mr. McKee will cheerfully answer all enquiries regarding the same. A most complete line of sleighs, carriages, harnesses, blankets, robes and horse furnishings is carried constantly in stock at his store on King St..

the programme is always interesting, and last night was no exception. At seven o'clock Nevers Band, 2nd Regiment of Infantry, Concord, N.H., gave a band concert which was appreciated.

INTEREST DISPLAYED IN JUDGING.

The attention of those on the grand stand was divided between the vaudeville stage and the ring beside it. In this ring the handsome high steppers and fancy drivers were being judged.

THE FLOWERS.

On the lower floor of the Horticultural Building is the floral display, which in some notable respects this year is behind that of former years.

Several leading exhibitors have been unable to enter and the unprecedented hot weather of July and August played havoc with the tender growing plants of certain kinds and prevented full development in others. There is, however, a very fine display and to the casual visitor nothing seems wanting in riotous color and bloom. The centre of the large space is devoted to stands of plants, and very beautiful they are in their variety of color, shape and form. Geraniums are arranged in a solid phalanx around one side, then glowing scarlet and crimson, pink and clear white, contrasting with the deep green leaves and the bushy thrifty plants in foliage are scarcely less striking. The Rex Begonias and Begonias in bloom and Fuchsias, with their graceful bells are well represented, and the tables of cut bloom comprising asters, pansies, verbenas, nasturtiums, Drummond phlox, gladioli, sweet peas, etc., show no falling off in the annuals.

A collection of lovely out-of-door grown roses, unusual so late in the season, shows that the early flowers were affected by the heat.

Great taste has been displayed in the table designs which are pretty and graceful, and there is a collection of bouquets (showers and masses) that are extremely creditable, as are also the half-dozen funeral designs. Hanging baskets and stands embellish the rotunda where all is light, bloom and fragrance.

Mr. W. H. Lovell is the director, and Mr. Harry Robinson in charge. The judge is Mr. Wm. Penny, of Quebec.

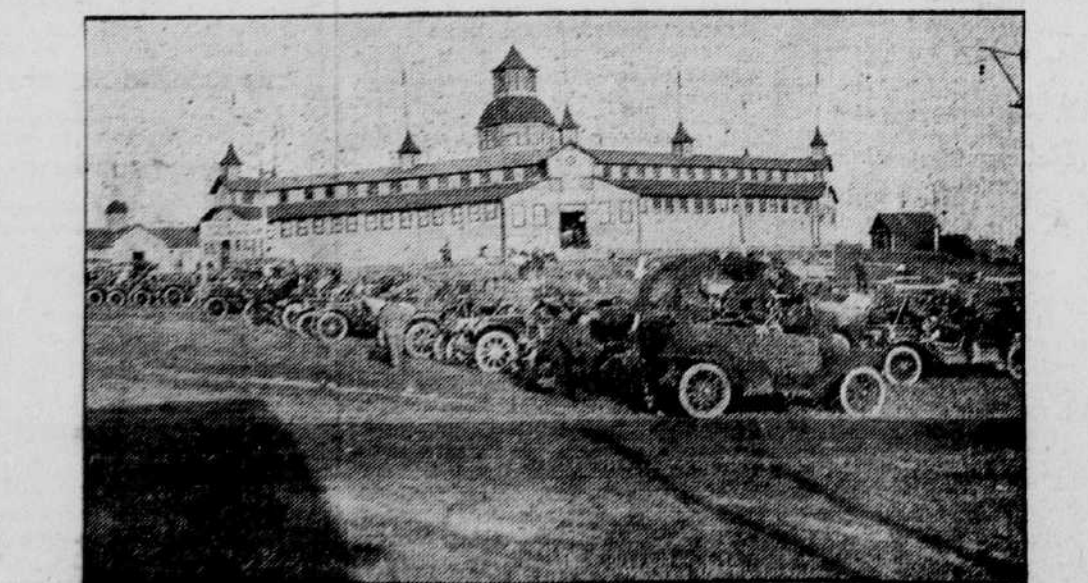

MIDWAY FORTUNE TELLERS ARRESTED.

The gypsy fortune tellers got into community. They are the only company in Canada carrying a full and complete line of glass used in buildings of every make. A few of these goods always in stock are polished plate, sheet, window, ribbed wire, 3, 3-16, 1-4. They manufacture the latest designs, leaded art designs, brass and copper prism tiles, bevelled plates, mirrors, plain and bevelled. A few specialties are sidewalk prisms, corner bars for store fronts, glaziers' diamond points, store front bars, etc. This is one of the most artistic displays ever put on exhibit in the Main Building. The Hobbs Gold Medal Window Glass is positively the best and cleanest on the market. Those interested are requested to see the French plate glass which took the Grand Prix at Paris, also captured several other leading prizes. This company's warehouse is at 71-73 William street, Montreal. T. J. Guilboud, salesman, in charge of the exhibit, has many enquiries as to class of goods handled by his firm.

CODERE, SONS & CO., INC.

Wholesale and Retail Hardware Merchants, 161 Wellington St., Sherbrooke, have an extensive exhibit in the Main Building, showing a few lines of the large stock they carry. Several makes of washing machines are on exhibit, including a number of water power washers which can be operated by simply attaching the connecting hose to a faucet in the kitchen. These motors are run by about thirty-five pounds pressure. A complete line of attachable wringers are always in stock. Several lines of roofing manufactured by F. W. Bird & Son, Hamilton, Ont., are handled by the Codere Co., including Neponset, Cotel and Paroid roofing. These goods are favorably known throughout the country, being largely used by contractors and builders. A portion of their exhibit attracting much attention is that showing the fitting of kitchen and bathroom. The lines consist of every article from the lowest to the most expensive. This firm are agents for The Theo. Davidson, Ltd., Manufacturing Co., Montreal, who have a very fine exhibit of their tinware of every description, also in the Main Building. Codere, Sons & Co., Ltd., are extensive dealers in all lines of hardware, including shelf and heavy, electrical supplies, plumbers' and blacksmiths' requirements,

BUFFALO BULLS ENGAGE IN BATTLE.

DEPOSED RULER OF HERD TRIES CONCLUSIONS AGAIN AND WINS.

(From the Denver Post.)

Two bulls, monarchs of the buffalo herd at City Park zoo, engaged in mortal combat Sunday morning. One was killed. The other is now king with a dozen subjects to pay him homage as ruler.

The big bison, as the specimens are in captivity, tried conclusions a year ago, when Pablo, imported from Montana, and 9 years old, was bested by Colorado, a home product of the same size and pugnacity, after an all night contest full of gore and fierceness.

Loss of prestige did not set well with Pablo. He was never the same. Pulled from his throne in a night, he sulked and bided his time, just like the jealous ruler expatriated but ever mindful and determined to win back his throne.

Just how these two massive animals started their battle no one knows, save the others of the herd and they are dumb. When Animal Keeper Hill made his usual inspection of his yards Sunday morning, he found in one corner of the buffalo lot he found Colorado, horned horribly and dead.

For fifty feet the earth had been ploughed up violently. It was also blood soaked. More than 100 feet away stood Pablo, docile, fatigued, his horns clogged with gore and dirt, his horns discolored with Colorado's life blood. The dozen other members of the herd were gathered about the hay stack, eating as if nothing had occurred.

Like man, the buffalo must have his king. The difference is that the latter must win his throne by sheer force of strength. Herdity does not go among people of the plains. Since the herd brought to City Park Zoo a score of years ago the rulership has gone only to him that wrested it from his predecessor.

Colorado will be mounted and placed in the museum at City Park.

BISONS' BLOTING OUT A MYSTERY.

DESTRUCTION OF 4,000,000 HEAD IN NORTHERN HERD NEVER EXPLAINED.

The destruction of the immense northern herd of bison, which is stated to have numbered 4,000,000 head at the beginning never has been told with any degree of accuracy.

To this day, however, the whole of the vast West is scarred and pitted with their groovelike trails and basin like wallows, which are permanent records of migratory marches and daily dust baths of these heavy beasts, says the Washington Herald.

The buffalo was of vast importance to the Indian aborigines; its tendons or sinews supplied strong strings for sewing and bows by which they fought. They used the horns for hunting or for warlike purposes. The bones were used for making spoons; its skin afforded warm clothing for their bodies in winter, and also efficient covering from rain and cold for their tents and tepees; and its fresh provided the healthiest, strongest and most savory venison, together with the original potato and maize, or Indian corn, for their chief food.

In the autumn the animals migrated to warmer climates, and with their departure fresh meat was not obtainable. This led to the provision by the natives of a preparation of buffalo meat which was preserved for a great length of time, and called by the natives of South Africa "biltong," by the Indians of South America, "tasanga," and by the aboriginal natives of North America, "pemican."

The lean venison was cut into narrow, thin strips like ribbons and hung on trees, lines, poles or brush to dry thoroughly in the sun and wind; the meat also was shaved or scraped in small quantities clean from the bones, and well dried over a fire. It was then pounded into fine powder. Carefully sewed, water tight bags were made of the animal's hide, and the hairy side out and the fleshy side within. The marrow, boiled in water from the bones, was skimmed off and added to the boiling fat. The fruit of the June berry and Saskatoon berries were added to the powdered meat to improve the flavor, and the whole was pressed into the skin bags and the boiling fat was poured in and thoroughly mixed so as to saturate completely the whole mass. The bags were then sewed up water and air tight and heavily pressed to make their contents solid and in as small bulk as possible.

DYING MAN KEPT IN POLICE CELLS.

Had Fractured Skull When Placed Under Arrest

MAN WAS A ROMANIAN AND A RUSSIAN IS HELD FOR ASSAULT.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—With a charge of drunkenness hanging over him to which he probably will never be able to answer, Milan Brinzak, a Roumanian, 31 years of age, lies in the Notre Dame Hospital in an unconscious condition from a fractured skull.

Before he was brought to the hospital at 11 o'clock Monday night, he had lain for four hours in the same condition in a cell at the Frontenac Street police station, and it is said by the physician at the hospital that there was no sign of intoxication on Brinzak when he was brought to the hospital.

Louis Zoborek, a Russian Pole, 32 years of age, who was arrested at the same time as Brinzak, was arraigned before Mr. Recorder Dupuis yesterday morning charged with having assaulted the Roumanian.

Constable Morand of the Frontenac Street station, who arrested both men, laid only a charge of common assault against Zoborek, but when Mr. Recorder Dupuis learned that Mr. Brinzak was in the Notre Dame Hospital in an unconscious condition, and unable to appear in Court, he ordered that the charge against the Russian be changed to aggravated assault.

Zoborek pleaded not guilty, and he was remanded to await the result of Brinzak's injury.

Mr. Israel Schaefer, of 479 St. Lawrence Street, went to the Frontenac Street police station with a couple of Brinzak's friends to get him out on bail. He was still unconscious, or, as the police said, too drunk.

But he had been four hours in the cell and still showed no signs of sobering up. Mr. Schaefer suggested that it might be better to send him to an hospital. He said that Brinzak was not in the habit of getting drunk, and he did not have the appearance of a man who was under the influence of liquor.

The police then commenced to realize their mistake, so Brinzak was sent in a patrol wagon to Notre Dame Hospital.

There it was found that his head was injured and the physicians said that there was little doubt but that his skull was fractured. The Roumanian was still unconscious at an early hour this morning, and his condition was such that his physicians hold out but little hope for his recovery.

Should the injured man die, the charge against Zoborek will be held in abeyance until an inquest has been held, in which case the verdict would probably be one of manslaughter.

SAYS SCHOOLS ARE FAILURES

HEADMASTER MAKES REMARKABLE UTTERANCE ON BRITAIN'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

London.—High Master Paton of the Manchester Grammar School has just given Englishmen the shock of his life.

To make the matter clear it should be understood that the term "public school" means in England exactly the opposite to what it means in America. It means an ancient educational institution generally heavily endowed, extremely exclusive in its admission of students and very expensive to all who attend. There are about ten large public schools in Great Britain and perhaps five times as many small ones.

Now if there is any one thing of which the English are proud of it is of these public schools. They consider that they turn out the best material in the world and that no imaginable way under heaven exists of improving them. They have always assumed that everyone recognizes this to be the case. High Master Paton is probably the only man who ever had the courage to disagree with them and he only did it the other day, in a speech at Nantwich. The high master is a public school graduate himself, and recognized as one of the ablest educators in England.

The substance of what he said—the speech was too long to reproduce in detail—was this:

Thinking people who examine the product of public school education are not by any means satisfied. The public school boy has many good qualities, but when consideration is given to his advantages, the product is in many respects woefully disappointing.

Practically all the good things going in the way of high positions in England go into the hands of men who are drawn from one social class and that is the class which sends its sons to our public schools. Naturally then, most of the things are well done, are done by men who have been through the public schools. But so, too, are the things that are ill done, blunderingly, stupidly, sloppily, disastrously.

And is there the most direct prospect of our public school system being revolutionized, or even reformed? Well, to tell the honest truth, there is not. The false tradition is too firmly rooted. The vested interests are much too strong.

Mr. Yapp also discovered on his last visit two species of ferns growing on trees whose thick fleshy stems are filled with galleries tunnelled by ants, the ferns thus forming living nests for the ants.

The room itself is beautifully furnished and arranged and is a fit sitting for the dainty articles of women's wear, which are effectively displayed. The walls are a deep, rich green, with lino and frieze, and the rugs on the polished floor correspond in color. The window drapery is of semi-transparent green stuff, and the large mirror, the show case and tables, contribute to the general effect, that of quiet refinement. The stock was chosen by Mrs. Boydell in New York and Boston. Mrs. Boydell is assisted for the present by Miss Hulsehouse.

ELKINS—CARPENTER.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Rowell, on London Street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding last evening, when Miss Irene Belle Carpenter, of Portland, Me., Mrs. Rowell's niece, was married to Mr. Ralph Wentworth Elkins, also of Portland. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, pink and white hydrangeas being effectively used in the drawing room, where a floral arch was erected under which the bridal party stood. In the hall purple asters and golden glow wreathed the banisters of the stairs, and in the dining room and living room sweet peas and asters glowed in every conceivable place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. T. G. Brown, Pastor of the Methodist Church, the bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. A.E. Rowell, wearing a lovely gown of white chiffon over white silk, with pearl trimming. She carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and a maiden-hair fern, and was attended by her two young cousins, Miss Albert Rowell, who carried a bouquet of sweet pink peas, and Master Gerald Rowell, both were dressed in white. The wedding march, when the bridal party entered the room, was played by Miss Fanny Brannard, of Coaticook cousin of the bride.

About sixty guests, principally relatives from Lowell, Lawrence and Andover, Mass., were present.

After congratulations and good wishes had been presented to the newly-married pair, refreshments were served in the dining room, the table being arranged with pale pink satin ribbon, pink sweet peas and smilax, with the wedding cake in the center.

The bride and groom left by automobile for the station, amid showers of confetti, for the honeymoon, and on their return will take up their residence in Portland.

The bride's going-away gown was navy blue ladies cloth, and smart black and green hat.

PRO PATRIA.

Oh Canada, land of the maple and spruce,
Unequaled in grandeur, thy spacious domain,
Thy forests and glens fitting home of the moose,
Land of Freedom, thou'rt worthy the name,
Oh why should thy sons their inheritance vast
Ever dream to surrender, or fear
That their own native country can
E'er be surpassed?
Canadians! Hold Canada dear!

Oh Canada, surely thy peerless Northwest,
The marvel of nations, thy destiny sure,
Must inspire a resolve in each patriot's breast,
A vow that thy place shall forever endure.
Can the land that we think of with high pulsing pride
Ever be a subordinate state?
Ah not 'till her sons have their birthright decided.
Canadians! Keep Canada great!

Oh Canada, storied in history grand,
Holding in the archives of thy past
Living names of dead heroes who died for their land,
To whom freedom was first and was last.

Proud shame, should thy sons ever
Alter the right,
Ever swerve from this shining ideal,
Cloud thy glad morning sun, may eclipse it with night.

Canadians! Be faithful and loyal,
Oh Canada, land in his path where the sun
From the east to the western skies,
Shines over the course thou wert destined to run,
Pointing out where thy destiny lies.

Secure in the Empire, yet free in thyself,
Was ever a pathway more bright?
Can thy sons ever leave this grand highway for self?
Canadians! Lead Canada right!

In the fold of the Empire security lies
For each nation which holds there a place,
And proudly we hold it and deem it a prize.

Yet ununsullied by blot or disgrace,
Rising hope of the Empire, the place to all,
Nor more fair could a prophecy be,
Can thy sons ever falter and compass
Canadians! Keep Canada free!

HONOR IN POLITICS.

(The Housekeeper.)
Representative Longworth of Ohio, tells of a negro who brought his three sons to town on election day in a border town in Ohio.

"Hello, Raatus," said a man who knew the negro, "what are you doing here?"

In the afternoon the same man met Raatus again. "Have you voted, Raatus?" he asked.

"Yassir, I's voted, an' my boys, they's voted."

"How did you vote?"

"Well, boss, it was a disney way. I meets a Republican on th' street an' he gibs me seven dollars to vote his ticket. An' I meets a Democrat, an' he gibs me seven dollars to vote his ticket. So I voted for th' Democrat."

"But the Republican gave you the most money."

"Yassir, dat's just th' pint. I voted for dem Democrats because they was least corrupt."

FRENCH SCHOOLBOYS.

(From the Saturday Review.)
A real revolution has taken place in the last twenty years in the life of French schoolboys. It is the fact that the boys used not to be happy in the lycées. The lycée was invariably placed in a town frequently a musty monastic buildings confiscated at the Revolution, and often terribly cramped for space. The regulations devised by Napoleon were purely military. The boys were not shut in, they were imprisoned with inferior ushers, who treated them as corporals would treat soldiers. The professors never lived in those barracks; and their natural impulse was, even more than to-day, to leave the place the moment their class was over. The headmaster was merely a fly-by-night, constantly changed without anybody noticing any difference; neither he nor anybody else had the least influence in the tone of the school, and morality was what it could be in such circumstances.

A great many of the lycées have been rebuilt, some of them at a convenient distance from towns; the discipline is less strict, the boys are no longer marched in silence from one place to another. Though there is still little communication between masters and boys, their intercourse is friendly; the professors have more freedom than they had, and the deadly uniformity of yore is giving way to more human methods.

SARDINES.

(London Globe.)
The sardine has been honored with a history, the writer being no less a personage than a member of the Societe Academique of Nantes. The sardine in early days was brought in in small boats. Then came a police ordinance in 1738 in the interest of the poorer classes against the monopolist. Owing to the police ordinance, the sardine was a source of livelihood to the Bretons. Joseph Cillien, whose name is still revered in Nantes first prepared the fish with oil. His venture was a great success and he had many imitators. In 1835 there was something like a crisis in the sardine industry. Millet, who was the chief curer, had his factory indicted as a nuisance, but the difficulty was overcome by removing it from the centre of the town to the shore. Although the fame of the sardine was firmly established it was only in 1855 that it received its apotheosis. Then it was shown in the Paris exhibition,

THE BEST SHOTS OF THE EMPIRE.

A Few of Famous King's Prize Winners.

MAJOR THOMPSON'S UNIQUE BOAST—TWO MEN WHO HAVE WON MEDAL TWICE.

In view of Private Clifford's capture of the King's Prize at Bisley a few words about some of the more famous marksmen who have won the $1,250 and the premier prize of shooting in past years at Bisley will be of interest.

Lieutenant W. T. Davies, of the 6th Welsh Regiment, is one of the two or three men who have won the medal twice. His last occasion was in 1903, and his former one in 1893. Moreover, in 1897 he ran the actual winner very close; and in 1903, he secured winning the $1,250 and the gold medal he tied for the silver one with three other shooters. He is a Llanelli man, and, owing to his striking success, may almost be regarded as the finest marksman who has taken part in the great contest, or at any rate, the most consistent.

Lance-Corporal Ommendsen's name is well known at Bisley, where he had taken prize after prize for years. He is of Scandinavian descent, as his name implies, and he was the hero in 1901 of one of the most sensational finishes in the records of shooting. Everybody was already congratulating Sergeant-Major Burr, of the 11th Regiment, on being the winner, for it seemed as if he must carry off the prize. But he was so upset with their congratulations and the excitement of the moment that he missed the target altogether with his last shot, and thus finished equal with Ommendsen. In firing off the six Ommendsen easily beat his rival, scoring two bulls to his latter's two magpies; and so he came out a most sensational winner of the blue ribbon of marksmanship.

We have also Private George Gray, who astounded everybody in 1908 by bearing away the premier honors of the classic struggle, though less than twenty-one years of age at the time. George Gray belongs to the Scottish Rifles, had only been shooting for three years, and he won the $1,250 and is in business with his father at Glasgow. When asked how he came to be such a first-class shot, the Canadian-born George Gray replied, naively, "By practicing with a miniature rifle in my father's back garden at Helensburgh."

Lieutenant Addison, who is a South Australian, was another noted winner. For his father won the Queen's Prize in Australia in 1884; the son followed up this by taking the King's Prize at Adelaide in 1902 and again in 1904. This double feat was very clever, when one remembers how finely Australian troopers shoot as a rule. But the lieutenant's supreme performance was when he came off first at Bisley in 1907, amid the plaudits of the Antipodes, who had waited eagerly to hear how her best representative would succeed against the Mother Country's picked marksmen. Addison, when thirty-two years old, fully justified their confidence.

Rennie, of Glasgow, bears a name well known to most good shots. Curiously enough, when asked how he came to be such a marksman at Bisley for the $1,250 he put it down to a coal strike. The strike was in 1894, and it threw him out of employment for the time being.

"Having nothing to do, owing to the strike, I simply lived on the range, in order to pass the time usefully," Mr. Rennie said, "I was always practicing shooting, and this undoubtedly made me so proficient that in my great year of success at Bisley I won no less than $1,800 in hard cash, besides several medals."

Sergeant Reid is another frequent attendant at camp, and a shot whom all intending winners of the chief prize have to watch closely. He carried off the chief event in 1899, and is in the General Post Office. He lives in Earling, and he can boast of what few noted marksmen can, viz., that he has during his career as a shooter carried off no fewer than 600 valuable prizes as mementoes (very useful as solid ones, too!) of his success. The sergeant has other claims to special fame in the competition, for he was the last winner under the old regime, when the shooting took place at Wimbledon Common. Moreover, he had made the record score up to that time with the Martini-Henry.

Major Thompson has a unique boast. He can claim that his name has appeared six times in the last hundred for the great prize, and of these four were in consecutive years. It is questionable whether any other marksman but Thompson has ever done this. As a striking example of his consistent shooting we may mention that in 1895 he was eighth, in 1896 he was first, and in 1897 he was second, only beaten on the post by Ward, a Devonian who made a most remarkable succession of bull's eyes right at the last minute. The major's fatal position, he avers is second; for he tells how, in the year he won the $1,250 and the gold medal, he was second for the silver medal, second for the bronze medal, second for the Bullock cup, and second for the Volunteers' best aggregate. As if this were not enough, the major has also on three separate occasions been second for the Calverton Shield and the Championship of Scotland. So no wonder he regards "No. 2" as his fateful number on these occasions—TIT-BITS.

HOW A LOCUST SHEDS ITS SUIT.

(Hartford Times.)

While spending Sunday at Berlin, at the farm of my brother my attention was called by him to a form of insect life which to me seemed curious enough.

On a fine catalpa tree were what my brother called August fly of the locust family clinging to the bark. They were in different stages of dress and undress. One was on the point of leaving the old shell, while others were just commencing to show their desire to be off with the old and on with the new clothes nature provides for them.

The one I witnessed first shook its head a few times, then it seemed to push its body from the tree, to which it clung with its feet. As it worked large drops of green liquid fell from its eyes. As we watched the insect's old clothes split up the back and out came the body, the legs still remaining in the shell.

After a period of rest the legs were drawn out slowly until the insect was entirely free, and then he started to walk away from his temporary prison and enjoy the fresh air of Berlin. His wings, which were at first doubled up, were unfolding, and the fluid which we had noticed coming from his eyes was seen coming down from his body over the new gauzy wings, and as it dried formed a thin skin over them. He then appeared to be fully dressed and ready to enjoy life again or to be taken for a Sunday breakfast by some lucky bird which might perhaps spy him.

BROME LAKE BOATING CLUB.

Annual Meeting Held at Knowlton Last Night.

DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS WERE ELECTED FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

Knowlton, Sept. 5.—(Special).—The annual meeting of the Brome Lake Boat Club was held last evening. The President, Mr. W. R. Grainger reviewed the work of the past year. Mr. F. N. Williams acted as secretary in the absence of Mr. F. L. Nunn, and read the financial statement for last year, which showed a small surplus. It was shown that 378 shares had been sold, and it was suggested by Mr. Justice Lynch that more shares be disposed of in order to have enough funds to make repairs on the Club House. This suggestion was highly favored.

It was moved by Mr. Beattie and seconded by Mr. A. W. Pettes that a ballot be taken for the directors for the coming year. Messrs. Harris and Webb were appointed scrutineers. The vote resulted as follows: Rev. E. M. Taylor, Messrs. J. E. Fay, W. R. Grainger, J. R. Kennedy, J. M. Webb.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Mr. Grainger was appointed president, Mr. J. R. Kennedy, vice-president, Mr. F. L. Nunn, secretary, Mr. F. N. Williams, assistant secretary.

A vote of thanks was accorded to Mrs. Fay for her work as pianist during the past season. Mr. Shepherd, caretaker, was also commended for his work.

GOLF.

FRIENDLY GOLF MATCH.

A friendly match was played Saturday on the St. Francis Golf Links, between teams of the Holmhurst Club and the St. Francis Club, the visitors gaining a victory. The score was as follows:

3 Imms vs. Herbert 0
0 Williams vs. Turnbull 1.
0 Gale vs. Fraser 3.
0 Johnston vs. Macdonald 3.
0 Spriggins vs. Stewart 0.

0 Bean vs. Causton 2.
0 Lavers vs. Lawrence 0.
0 Osgood (J. H.) vs. Beader 0.

The hostesses at the tea which was given Saturday were Mrs. H. D. Lawrence, Mrs. Geo. Borlase, and Mrs. Wm. Morris and in spite of the rain, which seems to be the usual accompaniment to a golf tea, a very pleasant hour was spent by the members and friends, who gathered around the decorated table.

DECLINE AND FALL OF THE FORMAL CALL.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

There is plenty of confirmation for the rumors recently in circulation with relation to the passing of the formal call in fashionable circles, at home and abroad. One reason for the decline is understood to be an awakening to the fact that, considering the time and trouble connected with the observance of the custom, it paid small dividends in pleasure either to the caller or the person called upon. Of late years, it is stated, the practice in many quarters has been to wait until such time as it was certain the party to be called upon was out before making the call. A writer in the London Daily Mail, declaring that the custom has fallen into desuetude in England, does not hesitate to say that there was never any real excuse for it, that it never had any real meaning, that it was one of the insidious customs of social life, especially where the calls were entirely formal. Friendly calls, of course, are an entirely different thing.

But credit for the breaking down of this custom and for the undermining of several others, based wholly or partly on formality, belongs in main to the growing desire for outdoor life. The women of the period, like the men, do not care to be cooped up when they may see all of their seasonable delights in the length of time it formally took to pay or to receive afternoon calls.

The automobile and the motor boat have been large contributors to the disturbance of the old social routine. The ladies are not found so much at home as they used to be in good weather; in bad weather, of course, calling drops off under the best of circumstances, but weather that used to be considered bad for calling is now regarded as all that could be desired for motoring or sailing.

This comes from the fact that the women of the period are thinking less of the weather than they used to, except in the sense that they are more than ever desirous of breaking into it from the drawing room, whether it rains or shines. The formal calls seems to have succumbed to the lure of the great outdoors, which does not mean, of course, that calling or any other of the substantial phases of social activity is being abandoned for the social recreations. Not at all; it simply means that the calls and the social functions of the future will be less perfunctory and more generally seasoned by the experiences of the road, the bay and the coast. Society will be none the worse for having something worth while to talk about.
