Salon '71 a huge success

SHERBROOKE—Although the exact count has not yet been tabulated, Salon du Printemps '71 has by all indications broken the attendance record it set last year.

"The number that flocked to the Sports Palace and the arena certainly shows us that the Salon has a definite place in the city," said Palace promotion manager Gerard Pelletier.

Perhaps the success of this year's commercial and industrial exhibition was largely due to the wide appeal of booths and live demonstrations available to the public throughout the four-day affair.

Says National Union candidate Loubier

Party needs strong, common front

SHERBROOKE (WC) — It is time for the people of Quebec that the National Union party plant its two feet solidly on the ground and stop dreaming in color, according to former tourism minister Gabriel Loubier.

Mr. Loubier, candidate for the leadership of the party, was speaking to the Sherbrooke County delegation to the National Union leadership convention at a noon hour luncheon Sunday at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

The party hopeful, on a two-day visit to the eight counties of the Eastern Townships, was explaining his position concerning the renewed leadership of the party.

"If we are to succeed we must glue all the blocks together into a strong common front. We must have a face well defined economically, socially and constitutionally," he said.

Mr. Loubier noted that if the NU could define its stand on the three above mentioned subjects it would be quite possible to return to power. "The wind changes direction so often it is quite possible that the next government will be National Union," he affirmed.

As an example of the changing frequency of politics, Mr. Loubier used Robert Bourassa. "When people were informed that Bourassa was the new head of the Liberal party, people asked themselves the following question: If it had been Wagner maybe the Liberals could return to power but with Bourassa, a playboy and a tool of the Simard family, the Liberals can't succeed, can they? A few months later, Bourassa and the Liberals were back in power with a decisive majority. We can do the same if we regroup the party," Loubier exclaimed.

Mr. Loubier feels that Quebec is to survive economically it must encourage the free private enterprise system. He contends the pulp and paper industry, the textile industry and other manufacturing concerns are not attaining the same yearly development and profit increase to which they are accustomed.

"If I am elected as new party head I will press for reduced tax rates and special taxation powers for the Quebec industries. Only this way will we be able to increase industrial development, decrease unemployment, and rectify our present economical situation," he said.

He stated that in the pulp and paper industry 5,000 new jobs could be created yearly over a five-year period just by selective tax rates in that industry.

"The constitution of a country does not belong to political influence or to a political party, it belongs to the workers, the carpenters, the labourers, to the people of the country," he said.

He pointed out that it will be the job of the new party leader to discover the constitutional needs and wants of the people of the province.

Loubier, if chosen new party leader, will establish permanent party secretariats in each region of the province. The goal of these regional offices will be to re-juvenate old party supporters as well as to animate the people of that region.

"These offices would allow us to have a direct channel into the heart of our supporters problems as well as to the people's own regional problems. Together we could work out governmental policies that would be tailored to the needs of the people of the region," he said.

Rising costs putting squeeze on Bishop's

By PAUL TROLLOPE

MONTREAL — In view of the prohibitive costs of a small English university in Quebec, Bishop's University may be forced to abandon university education to allow its facilities to be used for collegial education.

In an exclusive interview with minister of education Guy St-Pierre, who was in Montreal to speak to a joint conference of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations and the Federation of Catholic Parent-Teacher Associations, The Record asked Mr. St-Pierre about the future of existing English-language universities in the province.

Having received the report submitted by Bishop's principal Dr. Dennis Healy on the direction of the university, Mr. St-Pierre expressed his belief that the report "presented one person's point of view — there must be others," and said that further study of the university is necessary to determine whether or not it should continue to offer university education.

To this end, the minister said, the recommendation of the Conseil des Universités will be accepted, and a study of the university made.

"There was a place for Bishop's in 1905," he admitted, "but is there still a place?"

Although Mr. St-Pierre hastened to say that "we haven't twisted their arms yet," his department has refused Bishop's permission to make a capital expenditure for an extension to the university library. "They simply didn't need more room there — with only 1,200 students," the minister explained.

Mr. St-Pierre told The Record that all four English-language universities in the province "must touch — elbow to elbow." He explained that the universities must "talk to each other — discuss things together."

He believes that it is imperative that the concept of English-language university education in Quebec be discussed globally, not in terms of each individual university.

"We're not trying to impose our views right away," he said, "until further study and discussion has taken place."

It is possible also that Sir George and Loyola will unite to form one English-language university. The future of these two colleges must be examined in terms of planning and population. Progress will undoubtedly result from talks and a fair amount of discussion together.

Meanwhile, he added, "we are reluctant to spend money on the expansion of either Bishop's, Loyola or Sir George." If they make capital expenditures without our approval, the minister said, they must find some way to bear the costs incurred from private funds.

Thomas Mores Institute, a private linguistic school in Montreal, was recently closed down due to the provincial government's refusal to subsidize it.

"Although we will protect the public by checking the teacher qualifications and maintain certain standards in these institutes," said Mr. St-Pierre, "we cannot provide financial assistance for them, for various reasons."

It would be uneconomical and unfair to the taxpayers to financially support such private establishments, the minister said, drawing a parallel, in a sense, with the Bishop's situation.

HEWARD GRAFFTEY SPEAKS TO CONVENTION

Grafftey named PC candidate

COWANSVILLE (SA) —

Heward Grafftey, newly-nominated Progressive Conservative Party candidate for the federal riding of Brome-Missisquoi, told a packed crowd at the Ste-Therese School Saturday night that "the mismanagement of the economy is going to be the next election issue."

The 42-year-old resident of Knowlton, MP for the riding from 1957 to 1968, was unopposed for the party's nomination as its candidate in the next general election.

Mr. Grafftey's acceptance speech hit the Liberal government of Prime Minister Trudeau for having failed to curb inflation while allowing unemployment to climb.

"During my days as an MP," the nominee said, "I came to realize inflation is the greatest difficulty which can afflict our people."

"The present government's policies, while unsuccessful in combating inflation, have produced the highest level of unemployment since the 1930s. If Mr. Trudeau believed in 'participatory democracy' he'd get his MPs out to see the unemployed people in their ridings, and they'd tell the

"Let it be clear that we in this party are federalists first and that politics come second," he said, citing the Fathers of Confederation as having been wise enough to put aside at least temporarily party animosities to forge the federation.

Voters will not be fooled again, he said, by the slogans which have been the rallying-cries of Liberal victories in recent years — "The Just Society on the federal level in 1968 and 100,000 jobs on the provincial scene last year."

"It is clear to me that Eastern Townships residents are sick of slogans and desire instead an intelligent discussion of the issues," he said.

In the time between now and the next election, the PC candidate said, he intends to attempt that discussion.

"It is certain that we will criticize, but we will also present our solutions to the problems facing us."

Council undergoes structural changes

By DAVID MAGILL

SHERBROOKE — Council will ratify a new administrative structure tonight which features a definite distinction between policy-making and policy-execution and hopefully will allow councillors more time to deal in depth with matters affecting the future of the city. The Record has learned from a reliable source.

The new administrative structure will feature the following:

—There will be four council committees. Three councillors will sit on each.

—There will be consultative committees attached to each of the four council committees. The consultative committees will probably draw their membership from the citizenry, much like existing entities such as the Consultative Committee on Tourism.

—Council will meet weekly, even though it is obliged by the Cities and Towns Act to meet once a month only.

—Councillors will be encouraged to become more active in helping plan the future of the city rather than seeing that it functions with some effectiveness from day to day.

The execution of policy, while remaining within the ultimate jurisdiction of council, will be overseen by an administrative council consisting of Mayor Marc Bureau, Municipal Manager Richard Fabi, Public Relations Agent Andre Collard, Technical Services Director Frank Mascolo and perhaps others.

—Mr. Fabi will be ultimately responsible for the every-day workings of city departments.

Council's decision tonight will mark the second time it has changed the city's administrative structures since it took office following the general elections Nov. 1.

Previous to Jan. 1, 1971, council met weekly and was divided into ten so-called committees. Those committees comprised one councillor each.

The councillor responsible for a certain city service kept in touch with the respective department heads within his jurisdiction and reported back to a committee-of-the-whole, which debated all matters before they appeared on public council meeting agendas.

The committee then were finance, traffic and transport, urbanism, public works, industry and tourism, protection, parks and roads, recreation, hydro and health.

The pre-1971 system served to be cumbersome and inefficient, Mayor Bureau pointed out earlier this year. Councillors were taking decisions which should have been made by municipal officials and also at times became too involved in everyday workings of the municipal administration, the mayor pointed out.

He revealed one ex-councillor went down to the Technical Services building on Galt Street West every day to supervise city employees.

The re-organization to obviate the previously cumbersome system was announced by the mayor in December and came into effect Jan. 1, 1971.

This second system featured two super-committees which met every two weeks and comprised five elected officials each.

Council met publicly on the first and third Mondays of each month.

The purpose of the first re-organization, according to Mr. Bureau, was to allow councillors more time to deal with matters of import to the future of the city while at the same time disposing of everyday city business.

Unfortunately, councillors were forced to spend a great deal of time further reforming internal municipal department structures. At the same time, they were able to debate matters which affect the long-term development of the city.

Regulation 6: integration of English Quebecers

MONTREAL (PT) — The objective of Regulation 6, says education minister Guy St-Pierre, is not to gradually do away with English-language schooling in the province, but to "integrate English Quebecers into the political, economic and cultural life of Quebec."

Speaking to a joint conference of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations and the Federation of Catholic Parent-Teacher Associations held Friday and Saturday at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, the minister explained Bill 27 and Regulation 6, which drew heavy criticism by several speakers, parents and teachers at the conference.

Bill 27, the minister said, decentralizes the bureaucracy of the department of education so that in the future, "it will not be necessary for me to have to sign a form authorizing repairs to the roof of a school in the Gaspé."

It also places emphasis on and institutionalizes parent participation in the form of school advisory committees, and extends eligibility of nomination to school boards to all those over 21 years of age, he said.

The old Bill 63, the minister explained, was enacted to ensure that the high school graduate would have "a good knowledge of French at the end of school." The purpose of Regulation 6 is to provide the details of one way of achieving this, which is soon to be implemented in the English schools in the province.

"Is it a desirable objective that students have a good knowledge of French?" the minister asked the gathering.

Encouraged by applause, he responded that, "This, and only this, is the objective of Regulation 6."

In addition, said Mr. St-Pierre, a test will be taken by each pupil at the end of elementary school, to help the teaching staff in grouping classes in the high school. At the end of high school, another exam will be given to graduating students to enable the school as well as the department to determine whether or not their objectives have been reached.

The minister also explained that much of the consternation expressed by parents and teachers was caused by a mistake in the translation of section four of the regulation.

"French will progressively become the language of instruction in other subjects." This should read "certain other subjects." After careful research, he said, the department will decide exactly which subjects these should be.

In any case, a 35 to 40 per cent ceiling will be placed on French-language instruction.

The global aim of his department's policies is to "try to mobilize the maximum potential of parents, teachers, students and civil servants alike," the minister added.

Although the minister said he was "not at liberty" to reveal the details of Bill 28, which will soon be presented to the national assembly, he did say that the bill is vastly different from Bill 62, and would provide for "unified" school boards — "a more viable school system for the island of Montreal."

The right of parents to choose out of six possible alternatives the kind of schooling they want for their children will also be guaranteed, the minister said, "and it will be the obligation of the school board to satisfy these rights." Compromises will have to be reached in certain cases, he admitted.

Concluding his address, the minister declared that "the solutions of 1921 are irrelevant to 1971" and exhorted the English-speaking population of the province to cooperate with the department.

"There are some people on both sides," he said, "who don't want either Bill 27 or 28 or Regulation 6 to work. If we let them get their way, we'll all have to foot the bill for it."

Questioned later at a press conference, Mr. St-Pierre optimistically estimated that more than 50 per cent of the English-speaking people have "complete trust" in his department and their policies, especially Regulation 6, and said they "realized that this is but the mechanism to attain an objective." Some parents are, he said, understandably concerned about the possible misapplication of section four of the regulation.

When questioned as to how the school boards were to find qualified teachers to teach other subjects in French, Mr. St-Pierre replied that there is definitely a surplus of teachers in the province and that school boards could therefore afford to choose the best qualified.

He added that since there is a contrition (leaving the profession) rate of 15 to 20 per cent in the Quebec teaching profession, he is not worried, and feels that if the school boards are "careful" about the replacement teachers they choose, "there will be no difficulty in finding suitably qualified teachers." A major area of specialization in teacher training, he said, is the teaching of non-mother tongue languages.

In answer to a question by an interviewer from the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation about total immersion teaching, Mr. St-Pierre replied that this type of teaching requires certain factors — parent motivation, teacher qualification, student intelligence and motivation — and said that although this method has been very successful where it has been tried, it should be voluntary.

That is why, he explained, this method is not being used in the vast majority of our public schools. See AIM, pg. 3

The ancient Greeks are believed to have been the first to use a combustible material, similar to gunpowder, in warfare. Pierre Lavallee gave a brief report on the upcoming Summer Festival which is being sponsored by the chamber. Proceeds will be used to sponsor youth activities in the Border communities.

The official opening of the festival will be May 17 at the Imperial at 7:30 p.m. Four lovely princesses, Wendy Chamberlain, Gisele Roy, Jean D'Arc Chauvette and Connie Hartley have been chosen and will be introduced at that time.

The opening reception will include civic dignitaries of the Boundary along with other guests.

The tentative program will include sports, parade, music, with specials planned for young people and senior citizens.

Maxime Doyon announced a communique from the Quebec Liquor Board stating they are studying a suitable location for a store. The chamber has been working diligently to co-ordinate efforts to achieve such a store in Rock Island.

Mr. Tremblay, the new manager of the Bank of Commerce, was welcomed as a new member. He replaced Wilford Duchesneau who has been transferred to another bank.

Mr. Lavallee also spoke about the May 29 March for the Kids a 20-mile trail with all money pledged to go to youth recreation and invited all to join in the walk.

Resolutions set at mini-Congress

SHERBROOKE (WC) — Last Saturday, the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce held an all-day symposium to try and answer two prominent questions which the Chamber is faced with.

The first question concerned the lack of public participation in the workings of the chamber and the second was to decide in which direction the chamber should direct itself during the next fiscal year.

The symposium held at the University of Sherbrooke was attended by only 24 of the 450 members. The day was broken into three workshops: industrial affairs, the chamber and its priorities and regional priorities. Each workshop decided policies to be undertaken during the coming year and these policy resolutions were adopted by the assembly when it convened in the afternoon.

A summary of the resolutions which were accepted and will hopefully curb the lack of participation and involve the chamber in more pertinent local and regional problems follows:

INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE — The chamber should establish an information exchange center dealing primarily with the manufacturing industry but keeping in mind the other industries that have operations in the region.

The chamber will also try to establish closer contact with organizations involved in industrial affairs. Also, it will try to orient itself closer to local enterprises. The goal of this would be to raise participation as well as to clarify the role of the chamber. Hopefully by associating itself with other organizations repetition will be avoided.

THE CHAMBER AND ITS PRIORITIES — During the coming year, the chamber will put into operation two committees. The first would be founded to study the rules, the workings and the structures of the chamber. The second will be to study the financial situation of the chamber.

The chamber should try to organize the monthly supper meetings in a different way. The possibility of speakers being replaced by discussion sessions will be studied.

"At the moment the chamber is faced with indecision. We do take stands on local questions and even when we do take a stand it takes too much time," Tom Leonard, president of the chamber said.

REGIONAL PRIORITIES — This committee workshop recommended that the present symposium formula be amended to assure greater participation of the members. The chamber should also try to encourage the participation of university and CEPEG delegates.

The Sherbrooke chamber should try to establish closer contact with other regional chambers and in doing so interest each other in common or individual problems.

The workshop recommended the formation of a committee to study the technical problems of pollution in the region and to prepare a brief on the subject. The committee would try to answer such questions as what problems are faced by industry in its bid to stop pollution. The goal of the brief would be to inform the public about what is being done to halt pollution in the region as well as to explain why it cannot be curbed overnight.

The chamber should during the next year ask the city to clearly define its industrial policy.

The chamber should also ask the provincial government to proclaim publicly the advantages, especially the monetary advantages, of the Tessier White Paper on municipal regroupment. The chamber will ask the government to impose a time limit on the voluntary regroupment of the municipalities.

It was also recommended that the chamber publicly advocate revamping of athletic, touristic and other regional facilities.

Although not many of the chamber's members participated, those attending agreed that the symposium had been worthwhile and that it had been extremely gratifying.

LARGE CROWDS BUZZED AROUND THE MANY EXHIBITS ALL WEEKEND AT SALON DU PRINTEMPS AT THE SPORTS PALACE AND ARENA.

Schools reminded of census

QUEBEC (PT) — Deputy Minister of Education Yves Martin last week issued a directive to all school commissions in the province, reminding them that a census must be taken of all persons under 21 years of age residing in the district under each commission's jurisdiction, a Quebec department of education press release says.

The census, which must be carried out during the month of May, will determine the number of youths still attending school in the respective area, the number attending school elsewhere, and the number no longer attending school.

Even if the school commission concerned is destined to disappear under Bill 27's regrouping of school boards, the press release says, it is still responsible for the census in its own area, otherwise confusion and inaccuracies would result from overlapping and annexations, the disparities of which are soon to be rectified by the bill.

The scholastic census is still the best way, the press release adds, for school commissions, along with the various other branches of school administration in the department of education, to maintain a continual up-to-date assessment of their responsibilities; whether they be for elementary, secondary, or college or university education.

"In adopting a firm and clear position in Victoria, Mr. Bourassa could greatly remake his image not only in Quebec but also English-Canada."

Mr. Ryan was speaking at a symposium on the constitution organized by the Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies.

Bridge project revealed

SHERBROOKE (DM) — A bridge over the St. Francis River near the Lowney plant to connect with the King Street West interchange? The city wants it.

MNA Jean-Paul Pepin is talking it up in the provincial capital.

Government officials like the idea.

There is one small problem.

Money. Who is going to pay for it?

The bridge project was revealed Friday by Mayor Marc Bureau at a news conference. Questioned on what solutions the city envisioned to the eternal traffic tie-up at the King Street West Jacques Cartier Boulevard intersection, Mayor Bureau suggested the previously-secret bridge project could relieve the beleaguered intersection of many of its problems.

Mr. Bureau added MNA Pepin was working hard at convincing the provincial government to accept the project.

Mr. Pepin confirmed last night discussions have taken place on the subject with provincial authorities. He revealed the discussions have reached the point where provincial authorities accept the project in principle. Negotiations are currently under way on what the provincial-municipal cost break-down will be, Mr. Pepin said.

The bridge will alleviate many of the circulation problems now encountered along King Street West.

If constructed, it will channel much of the traffic from the University of Sherbrooke and Sherbrooke Medical Centre directly onto the road to the Eastern Townships Autoroute or the soon-to-be-constructed Transquebecoise Highway to Richmond.

Do estimated costs for the project have surfaced yet.

Mr. St-Pierre also indicated that the department of education will give financial aid not only to parents' advisory committees established under one of the provisions of Bill 27, but also to Quebec publishers who intend to publish new Quebec-oriented textbooks — where they are needed.

Speaking on a panel to discuss the importance of English-language education to Quebec were Stanley Machnik, director of professional development for the Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers; Mrs. Solange Chaput-Rolland, author; and Dr. Allana Reid-Smith, vice-principal, John Rennie High School, Pointe Claire.

Asking herself and the audience whether English education is really necessary here, Mrs. Chaput-Rolland wondered exactly what education is — "Is it just training to become a technocrat and to make money? Is your education in tune with Quebec? Isn't it time we stopped talking about bilingualism and started living it?"

She also explained the importance of parents' attitudes towards the French people in their children's motivation to learn French.

"To really speak French means to enter the spirit of a French person," she said. "We must set an example to the rest of Canada, and we have not done it. Let's try to overcome our mutual intolerance and set an example with this regulation (Regulation 6)."

Reiterating the position taken by the province's Protestant school administrators in Ste. Adele a week ago, Dr. Reid-Smith emphasized the importance of the English schools retaining control over policy and curriculum, in their educational system. This can best be accomplished, she said, by separate English and French school boards.

Dr. Smith also stressed the importance of acquiring better textbooks for certain courses, although admitting that she personally had no use for texts, and said that the Quebec government has stubbornly refused to allow the schools to change one of the present high school history books which, she said, "has many deficiencies."

The panel discussion was moderated by Mrs. Betty Shapiro, Gazette columnist.

Annual meetings of the two federations were also held, along with several discussion seminars on various topics in education, as well as a panel discussion on local control in education, moderated by Peter White, president of the Eastern Townships Publishing Co. (Sherbrooke Record).

The two-day conference ended with a reception hosted by the provincial presidents of the two home and school federations.

Design for chaos

When the Canadian government appointed the Economic Council of Canada under Dr. John Deutsch it got some good advice. From the present council, under Dr. Arthur Smith, it is getting the worst possible advice at the worst possible time.

Dr. Smith tells a parliamentary committee that the government should abandon all efforts to restrain wages and prices, by voluntary or compulsory means, should adopt bold policies of fiscal and monetary expansion and, in short, should stop worrying about inflation.

By an interesting coincidence, Dr. Smith delivered his testimony at the moment when the United States government, having generally followed this sort of advice from its own experts, found itself in a currency crisis with the weakness of the American dollar nakedly revealed to the world. If the Canadian government were foolish enough to accept Dr. Smith's design for total surrender to inflation the same results would occur here. But that would not be the worst of it.

In the first stage of the new and planned inflation, Canadian prices would rise even faster than they have risen up to now. In the second stage, as Canadian exports were priced out of the world market, the Canadian dollar would fall and re-stimulate them. Standing alone, this devaluation would be temporarily advantageous to the exporting industries, but only until their prices were driven up again by unrestrained wage costs; whereupon exports would shrink. In the third stage the price of all imports would rise, in Canadian currency, thus further increasing the cost of living already raised by the inflationary cycle in the domestic market. And, in the fourth stage, as consumers resisted these additional costs, Dr. Smith's grand boom would soon turn into a grand bust.

Fortunately the government has less reckless and more responsible advisers than Dr. Smith. Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada and one of the world's most respected monetary experts, recently warned the government and the public that wages, production costs and prices must be restrained or Canada will further demoralize its whole economy.

Sir Roy Harrod, an equally distinguished authority and the leading economist of Oxford University, testified before the parliamentary committee, and his testimony was almost the exact opposite of Dr. Smith's. He said that the Canadian government should aim at reasonably full employment - as it is doing - and then freeze wages and prices by law until it worked out a permanent program of restraint over all aspects of the economy, including corporate dividends.

Between the two alternatives of letting the economy run wild, with the continual destruction of all savings, and attempting to prevent what Prime Minister Trudeau has called the ultimate "disaster," the government must choose.

It may argue that the choice was made nearly two years ago in favor of restraint and so, in a partial sense, it was. As a result, prices rose less in Canada last year than in any other Western nation, but this pause was deceptive and brief because the underlying pressure of wage increases was not restrained at all. Now, when these higher costs begin to express themselves in retail prices, the government's bold experiment, lacking an essential element, is on the verge of collapse.

This may worry the government, the consumer, Mr. Rasminsky and Sir Roy Harrod but it does not worry Dr. Smith in the least. As his testimony shows, he was opposed to the experiment in the first place, foresaw its failure with obvious satisfaction, and retrospectively attacks the government in these words: "Policy shifts are made after problems have developed or when impending problems are no longer avoidable . . . Such reactive policies run serious risks of aggravating instability and other problems."

Yes, they do, but Dr. Smith's own plan to abandon all restraints offers a foolproof recipe for maximum instability. This is so obvious that no government in its senses will accept his advice. Nevertheless, it must greatly aggravate the government's problem. For every labor union in the country, and all greedy corporate managers, will now say that their demands for unlimited wages and profits have been endorsed and sanctified in advance by the chairman of the Economic Council.

Unless the government has lost both its courage and its wits, it will refuse to swallow the Economic Council's latest folly, to admit that it was wrong from the start and, crying havoc, to welcome inflation unrestrained and finally ruinous.

Tax cuts to spur investment

By LUBOR J. ZINK

to non-productive use (i.e., from expansion of the economic base to welfare) do not help reduce unemployment. They cushion the plight of the jobless but also reduce their chances of finding work, because the money spent on relief is not available for job-creating investment.

This simple fact tends to be overlooked by people who see remedy in wholesale nationalization of the means of production, distribution and exchange.

Nationalization is a political and administrative measure which does not in itself create a single additional productive job. Nor does it generate investment capital for economic growth.

What it does, as can be seen in the so-called "people's democracies" which put it into effect, amounts to replacement of the market system with central planning of all economic activity which is predicated on and cannot exist without a totalitarian political structure.

In such a system, unemployment is "solved" by slave-labor camps and by pauperizing wages for the rest of the regimented labor force. The result, apart from unshakable political tyranny, is destruction of economic incentives and personal initiative.

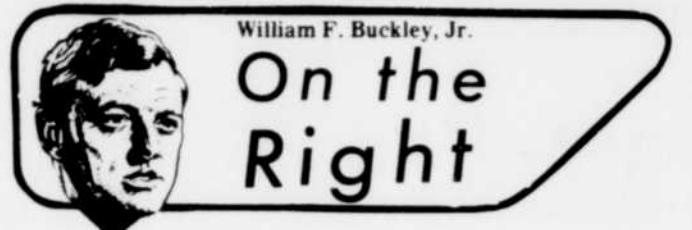

In the absence of incentives and competition, both the quality and quantity of work deteriorates. Seeing no escape from the clutches of the bureaucratic machinery of the all-powerful one-party state which is the sole employer, people do as little as they can get away with. The economy in such a system, even though claiming full employment, runs at a fraction of its capacity and provides a standard of living no worker in the "capitalist" countries would willingly accept.

This, of course, is no reason for accepting high unemployment in the market economy system which, when properly managed, provides the framework for both material well-being and political and individual freedom. The examples of such countries as Switzerland, Western Germany and Japan, which have no unemployment problems, show what a good management of the market economy can do.

According to Dr. Smith's calculations, Canada's economy would need to grow for three to four years at a steady rate of at least 6.5 per cent to reduce our rate of unemployment to four per cent. The present growth rate, in real terms, is less than half of what Dr. Smith reckons is needed.

While some improvement in the growth rate can be expected as a result of the Trudeau Government's abandonment of its misconceived deflationary policies, a major boost is necessary to accelerate and amplify the upturn. The Government could and should provide a substantial portion of the needed boost by tax cuts designed to spur productive investment.

Senator Stennis has introduced a bill refining a clutch of others, including one by Senator Jacob Javits, which would limit the President's authority to commit American troops to action after a certain period of time, unless Congress consented. Concerning the proposal, a few observations:

1) There may well be a Constitutional question. One analysis of the President's powers as commander-in-chief suggests that Congress cannot in fact dictate to the President how he should deploy the armed services of the United States, it being the President's sovereign responsibility to deploy them according as he evaluates the military situation.

On the other hand, the Constitution just as clearly leaves it to Congress to declare war. It becomes then a definitional question: what is a war? Is it possible for Congress to say: that is a war which requires United States troops to engage in combat for more than 30 days? That is the direction in which the Stennis-Javits analysis is going.

I find more plausible the argument that Congress should have the authority to make the final determination of what is and isn't a war; just as I find plausible the argument that the President should make the initial determination concerning the use of American troops. It is, I think, a convincing reconciliation of the two authorities.

2) On the other hand, such accretions as are proposed by Senator Mansfield make little sense. Senator Mansfield is proposing to tack on to the proposed draft renewal a provision requiring one half of our troops in Europe to come home. Where our troops are posted would appear to be clearly a matter for the commander-in-chief to decide on. If Mr. Mansfield wants to impinge on the executive prerogative through the manipulation of the money powers of Congress, let him go ahead. But as a direct imposition on the freedom of the military authority of the President, his proposal and others like it are unconvincing.

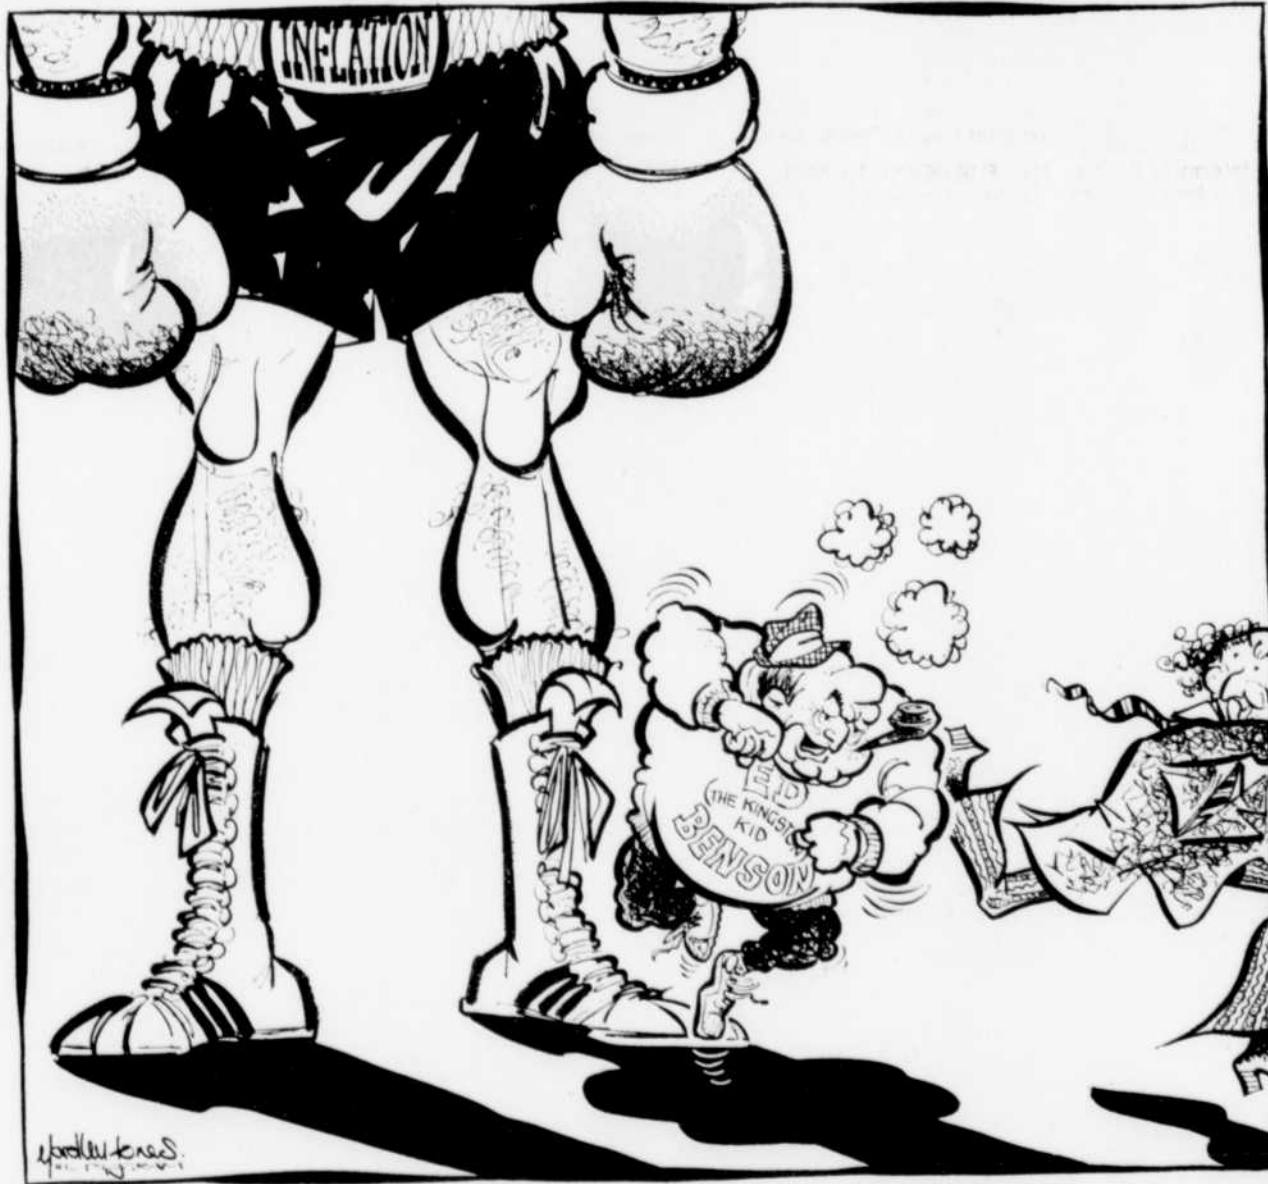

3) As an aspect of the relationship of forces, it is interesting that the liberals of Congress (up until Senator Stennis joined their ranks) have suddenly found themselves the premier critics of executive license. As I pointed out recently in connection with the preposterous motion by the Americans for Democratic Action to impeach President Nixon, the liberals have for over a generation rejoiced at the assumption of power by an American president. They were, for instance, not heard to utter a word of criticism of Franklin Delano Roosevelt when he moved American troops like toy soldiers about the globe, back before Pearl Harbor.

The liberals are reacting to the Vietnam war, and are seeking to take advantage of every means they can in order to embarrass the President.

On the other hand, American conservatives ought not to be disposed to abandon their allegiance to the Constitution simply to prevent the political embarrassment of Mr. Nixon: even as American conservatives would never deny that the Senate had the right to reject Judge Carswell, even though it was plain that some senators were seeking primarily to embarrass Mr. Nixon. It is altogether fitting that if Lyndon Johnson had asked for a declaration of war in February of 1965, he'd have got it.

Two things would then have been clarified. One is the penumbra of unconstitutionality that many opponents of the war keep insisting upon. Another is the nature of the corporate commitment to the enterprise. The excuse for not declaring war was always that to have done so would suggest the necessity of committing one's total arsenal, and that in a nuclear age is dangerous. But we have probably learned from Vietnam that more dangerous still is the attempt at a graduated response under ambiguous auspices.

If we had declared war, not only is it likely that we'd have won our engagement a long time ago, but also that critics of the war, recognizing that they were now being tempted by actual instead of metaphorical treason, would have hesitated in their efforts to discredit, and to impede, what would then properly have been called our war effort.

Protest raise

Dear Sir,
In a report published in the papers recently when our MPs were voting themselves a small increase of 44 per cent in their salaries, the reporters mentioned the fact "that" there were baleful looks cast at an unusually crowded Press Gallery.

Is it possible, sir, that those MPs could feel a sense of shame? Surely not, after having only a few months ago voted to give our Old Pensioners a magnificent raise of 42 cents per month, or $5.04 per year. After all, the MPs rose to the occasion then, so why shouldn't they cut themselves a piece of the pie?

Then our Foreign Secretary Hon. M. Sharpe, goes on a junket to African nations and scattered more millions like confetti at a wedding. Again I say why not? The pensioners who have been paying taxes all their lives are still taxed on their meagre pensions to help make all these mandates possible.

But sir, I say the pensioners have had it. I would like to take this opportunity to thank those 118 members who had the intestinal fortitude to say NO and vote against the measure and for those 100 who abstained and were not in attendance. I say why don't you stand up and be counted, and to all the MPs, why don't you face your constituents and give them your account of why you voted or did not vote for or against the raise.

Over the months there have been several letters published in your columns from pensioners and senior citizens voicing their disgust and frustration at the government's attitude towards their complaints which have been showered upon them by our government.

Meanwhile, our Minister of Labor is going ahead with plans and soon legislation to give our unemployed $100.00 a week TAX FREE. Yet, the pensioners of course will help to pay for that out of our frozen $80.00 per month.

To the pensioners the time to call a halt is now. The newly formed Magog Eastern Townships Old Age Pensioners Association has decided to take a strong stand on behalf of our members in protesting against the treatment of our Canadian pensioners. We are asking all pensioners who belong to senior citizen groups to help. If you belong to any of these groups, ask your president to contact us. To those unattached, write us anyway and give us your strength and support. We will arrange to answer all letters received. As an individual, to a politician you are nothing except at an election time, but as a strongly organized association which can control a lot of votes, you will command respect of all politicians.

To all the young people, some of you who will be voting for the first time. All of you have parents who will be pensioners at some time. I ask to please give some thought. Ask questions of those who would presume to look after your interests as your parliamentary representative. Who knows? You may be ensuring that your parents golden years may be blessed with a bit more ease and security than is the case with many of our senior citizens at the present time.

To those interested, I ask you to contact Mr. H. Nicholl, 762 John St. Magog, Que. We hope to affiliate with the National Association and thus have more strength.

Thanking you on behalf of the Committee,
I remain,

Sincerely,
ROBERT HAMILTON

Frank, Pete dazzle Hawks, force seventh game

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, spurred by a top performance from the Mahovich brothers—Frank and Peter—Sunday afternoon sent this season's Stanley Cup final to a seventh and deciding game with a 4-3 decision over Chicago Black Hawks.

The best-of-seven final now shifts to Chicago for the Tuesday night final, scheduled for 8:30 p.m. EDT.

Big Peter Mahovich scored second and third period goals—his ninth and 10th of this year's playoffs—with his second of day scored while the Canadiens were playing one man short.

It proved to be the winner. Meanwhile, Brother Frank, after missing a penalty shot attempt in the opening period, wound up with one goal and assisted on two others to break one playoff record and tie another.

His tying goal in the third period gave him 14 so far this spring, to break the 13-goal mark set by centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins in last season's playoffs.

Frank also assisted on Yvan Cournoyer's first period goal and his brother's in the third period.

His three-point output tied Phil Esposito's 27 points he had last season on 13 goals and 14 assists. Jean Beliveau picked up two assists to break the record 15 set by Chicago's Stan Mikita in 1963.

Jim Pappin, Chicago's bustling right winger, was almost the hero for the Hawks. He scored twice, once in the first period when each team was one man short and again in the second for his ninth and 10th playoff goals this year.

Chico Maki counted the other Chicago score in the middle period.

Ken Dryden, the rookie Montreal netminder, set a record of his own when he completed his 19th consecutive playoff game for the winners.

His victory Sunday moved his total minutes played to 1,171. Glen Hall had the previous 1,111 mark while with St. Louis Blues in 1968.

The Canadiens victory thus shifted considerable tension from the shoulders of coach Al MacNeil, who was guarded by several plainclothes policemen during the game.

The officers were on hand behind the Montreal bench area, after threatening telephone calls were received following an outburst by veteran forward Henri Richard against the Montreal coach Thursday night.

Richard's attack came after the Canadiens had dropped a 2-0 decision to the Hawks in Chicago.

Dryden had a busy afternoon in comparison to his Chicago counterpart Tony Esposito. The Montreal netminder stopped 27 of 30 shots the Hawks fired at him, while Esposito handled 12 of the 16 Canadiens shot.

The Hawks outshot the Canadiens 11-5 in the opening period, and 14-6 in the middle stanza. The teams each had five shots in the closing 20 minutes.

This is the first time since 1963 that the two cup finalists have each used only one goaltender throughout the entire playoffs.

Sunday's game was the 42nd game of the current playoffs, a record. The former mark was 40 set in 1968. It was the Canadiens 19th playoff game this year, also a record. The blues held the former mark of 18, set in 1968.

The last Stanley Cup final to go six games was in 1967, when Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Montreal 4-2. The last time a series went seven games was in 1965, when the same two teams met, and the Canadiens beat Chicago 4-3.

Chicago started strong in the opening minute of the first period. But the Canadiens, lead by Richard with centre Jacques Lemaire and Marc Tardif on the left side, gave the hometown crowd of 17,817 some occasion to cheer.

The Canadiens survived successive penalties to Peter Mahovich and Leon Rochefort at 3:44 and 5:12 of the period, and Rochefort was barely back on the ice when Pappin and Montreal's Pierre Bouchard went off at 7:34 for high-sticking and elbowing respectively.

Chicago's Keith Magnuson and Pete Mahovich started a little bumping contest at 9:45 of the period and Skov decided they needed minors for hicksticking before it was over.

While this pair was off, Pappin counted his first goal of the day at 11:25. The Chicago winger intercepted a loose pass by Montreal's Jacques Lemaire in the Canadiens' end.

He flew down the right side and slid around Montreal's Guy Lapointe to beat Dryden with a neat backhand.

One minute later Cournoyer evened the count, 1-1, with a backhand of his own.

The Montreal right winger got a big assist from Jean Beliveau on the play, as the veteran Montreal captain managed to tie up the Chicago defence pair of Doug Jarrett and Magnuson. Cournoyer was then able to slide the puck out from underneath the feet of the trio for his goal.

Peter Mahovich had his first goal of the game at 5:04 in the second. He swooped around the back of the Chicago net to tuck the puck in behind Esposito.

But Maki drew the two teams even at 17:40 of the period, when he got the puck behind Dryden as a result of a 35-foot screened shot.

Pappin then was back for his second of the day 68 seconds later.

On his second goal, Pappin first got behind Montreal's defenceman Terry Harper and shovelled the puck high in the net.

However, Frank Mahovich made it a 3-3 game at 5:10 of the third, when Esposito made the original stop, only to have the puck bounce in off his own defenceman, Pat Stapleton.

At 8:46 Houle was caught holding Bobby Hull and 10 seconds after the Montreal player went to the penalty box, Peter Mahovich combined with brother Frank for the winner.

Pete somehow managed to beat Stapleton and Bobby Hull to the puck and then just flipped it high into the left-hand side of the net on southpaw Esposito's stick side.

Chicago coach Billy Reay yanked Esposito with 58 seconds remaining in the game and Harper almost scored into the empty net.

Skov called 11 minor penalties throughout—seven to Montreal.

MacNeil offers no Richard comments

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Al MacNeil of Montreal Canadiens refused to comment on the controversial Henri Richard incident after Sunday afternoon's 4-3 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

But he did have something to say about a goal that was disallowed by referee Art Skov in the second period of the game.

MacNeil has had an escort of plainclothes policemen since threatening telephone calls were received at the Forum. The calls came as a result of a blast put on the coach by veteran forward Henri Richard following last Thursday's 2-0 loss to the Hawks in Chicago.

Richard claimed the Montreal coach was "incompetent."

MacNeil has steadfastly refused to comment at any length on the situation. The Forum had a considerably larger police force on hand for Sunday's game than is normal.

"The lifted-net goal by Jacques Lemaire early in the second period should have been allowed," MacNeil said. "The net didn't move that much."

"The referee should take into consideration the speed of the play and the crowding around the net at a time like that," MacNeil added.

"It would have been a 2-1 hockey game in our favor at that time if the goal had been allowed and it would have given us a lift."

Asked repeatedly about the Richard incident, MacNeil said he did not want to talk about it other than it did not bother him.

Asked about his controversial line changes during the series and Sunday afternoon, MacNeil said:

"If you watched the game closely, you saw some changes out there this afternoon. Some people seem to be surprised by the fact that hockey players can play different positions."

He may have been referring to the fact Richard, normally a centre until the playoffs, was again on right-wing with Lemaire and Marc Tardif as his linemates.

Frank Mahovich said Sunday's win and his one goal and two-assist game, was not his most satisfying game of the playoffs.

"I have to say my most satisfying game was our seventh against Boston (Bruins) when we eliminated them in the quarter-finals," Frank said.

MISSED SCORING CHANCE

Mahovich, who missed an opportunity to score on a penalty shot in the opening period, said it was his first chance at such a play during his lengthy career.

"I want to say that I didn't miss my shot. I was happy with what I did because I got off a good shot, but Esposito made a good save," he said.

Young Pete Mahovich who got two goals including the winner, said on his game-winning goal everyone was covering his older brother Frank on the play.

"Frank got the puck over to me and I rapped it in."

Goaltender Ken Dryden said he had hurt his right knee as a result of a shot in the first period, but it had resulted in a bruise and not a twisted muscle.

"If I had twisted it," said Dryden, "I couldn't have raced out to the blue line shortly after to check the puck away from Jim Pappin."

Jean Beliveau, who missed several shifts in the first period, sported an ugly four-stitch gash on the top of his head. The Montreal captain said it came from an errant stick.

"I went behind the net to get the puck and someone's stick just clipped me," Beliveau said. "I think it woke me up."

Remparts play host to Oil Kings tonight

QUEBEC (CP) — The abbreviated version of the Memorial Cup junior hockey championship gets under way tonight at The Coliseum and it's difficult to say what to expect.

Edmonton Oil Kings, champions of the Western Canada Hockey League meet Quebec Remparts, Quebec Junior A Hockey League champions in the opening game of the best-of-three series to determine the No. 1 first-level junior hockey team in the country.

Leading the Remparts offensively is Guy Lafleur, almost everyone's pick as the No. 1 choice in this summer's National Hockey League's draft of amateur players.

The native of Thurso, Que., scored 130 goals and picked up 79 assists for 209 points in leading the Remparts to their second straight league championship.

HAVE SCORING PUNCH

Other standouts are: Lafleur's centre, Jacques Richard, a 53-goal scorer during the regular season; Michel Briere who finished runner-up to Lafleur in the QJHL scoring derby with 144 points in 51 goals and 93 assists; and Andre Savard, who was third in the scoring derby with 139 points on 50 goals and 89 assists.

Centre Don Kozak was the top Edmonton goal scorer during the regular season with 60 goals, followed by right winger Danny Spring with 43 goals.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Wednesday night with the third if necessary Friday night.

All games in the series are scheduled for Quebec City.

Reay left bewildered by Mahovich brothers

MONTREAL (CP) — "Those Mahovich boys" had Billy Reay shaking his head in wonderment after Montreal Canadiens scored Reay's Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 to carry their Stanley Cup final to the seventh-game limit.

The Mahovich boys were Montreal's Frank and Peter Mahovich.

Frank, who scored a record 14th playoff goal, went both ways for the Canadiens. His 27 playoff points also ties the single-season mark, both of which were established by Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins last year.

Peter scored twice, including the winner with Montreal playing a man short in the third period. He, too, played a key penalty-killing role.

"Those Mahovich boys," said Reay, "where did they come from? What nationality are they?"

Without specifying his plans, it was obvious from the way Reay mentioned their names he planned to have the Chicago team nationalize the hockey team representing the country of their forefathers.

The Mahovich boys, are one generation removed from Yugoslavia, their parents having moved to this country and into mining around Timmins, Ont.

"I thought we had the game and blew it," said Reay. "We made mistakes and they took advantage of them. We deserved to win and didn't," he added when it was mentioned Chicago held a 30-16 edge in shots.

"We have to come up with the same kind of effort at home," Reay said in reference to the deciding game in the best-of-seven National Hockey League final at Chicago Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

Asked what Tony Esposito wanted when the Chicago goaltender skated over to the player's bench just before Frank Mahovich's penalty shot in the first period, Reay said:

"He just asked if he could skate out to meet the play," which Esposito did and forced the Big M to shoot fast. Esposito smothered the shot, creating a mass exodus of the Black Hawk bench as his team-mates rushed to congratulate us.

Esposito had set up the penalty shot himself when he threw his stick at a loose puck near the Chicago blueline with Frank Mahovich swooping in unimpeded.

The chunky Esposito, whose only comment after the games was, "I don't want to say anything now," played solidly as he has in all 17 post-season games for the Hawks.

PENALTY CALL 'GOOD'

Reay, who earlier in the series knocked the officiating, said the penalty shot called by referee Art Skov, the first such penalty called in Stanley Cup play, "was a good call."

"I'm not worried," centre Stan Mikita said. "No way, no way," he replied when asked if all the pressure is on Chicago now. "We've just gotta go one more game, that's all."

"Tony made some great stops," he said of the goaltending support Chicago has had from the Sault Ste Marie, Ont., native.

"I thought we had the momentum when he stopped that penalty shot," Mikita continued, "but when we had a two-man advantage and didn't get more than two good shots ... well, that's the old ball game."

"It was very disappointing," added Pit Martin. "We'll just have to get them Tuesday ... maybe that home ice will be kind to us."

Defenceman Doug Jarrett, who went crashing into the boards late in the first period as he attempted to take Pete Mahovich out of the play, aggravated an old shoulder injury but missed only one shift.

NICE HAUL: Bill Rice, left, and Al Bradley of Lennoxville show off their catch taken home from Lake Massawippi this weekend. Bill is holding an 18-pound lake trout while Al holds his two land-locked salmon, each about two pounds.

Expos remain at .500 level

Bateman bombards Reds in 9-3 win

Just when it appeared the Redhead was dead, Houston Astros manager Harry Walker breathed life into slump-buried Doug Rader.

"I might not be out of my slump yet, except for Harry—he took me to his room in New York last week and talked about my problems," said Houston's third baseman dubbed Red Rooster for his flaming hair and gregarious ways.

Rader responded to the ego-building chat with his second straight two-hit game Sunday, including six runs batted in on a grand-slam home run and double to lead Houston over St. Louis Cardinals 12-4.

In other National League action Sunday, Pittsburgh Pirates beat New York Mets 4-2; Philadelphia Phillies axed Atlanta Braves 4-3; Montreal Expos clobbered Cincinnati Reds 9-3; Los Angeles Dodgers tripped San Francisco Giants 9-6; and Chicago Cubs topped San Diego Padres 9-8 in 10 innings. The second game of a Chicago-San Diego doubleheader was suspended after six innings because of darkness with the Cubs leading 6-3. It will be completed Aug. 4.

Chicago beat San Diego 6-4 Saturday. San Francisco blanked Los Angeles 1-0. Cincinnati downed Montreal 6-1. New York blasted Pittsburgh 9-5. Atlanta walloped Philadelphia 6-2 and St. Louis edged Houston 6-5.

GAME WAS OFF
Indeed, Rader had problems before the talk. He was hitting 154 and had no homers and only five runs batted in to show for more than 30 games—a dramatic back-flip from last year's 25 homers and 87 RBI.

"I've been hitting the ball better the last week," said Rader, who connected for a three-run homer against the Mets after seeing Walker. "Since that second game in New York, before which Harry talked to me, I'm swinging better. I'm making better contact. I'm hitting the ball harder."

Rader ripped the third slam of his five-year career in the first inning off Jerry Reuss, touching off Houston's biggest spurge of the year—17 hits.

The Astros scored three more in the third, two on Rader's double, and four in the fourth. Rader's six RBI tied a club record.

Houston ace Larry Kierker, notching his sixth victory in seven decisions, wasn't around at the end. He labored the first six innings, coughed up 13 Cardinal hits, and needed relief help from Jim Ray.

CHOKE OFF RALLY

Richie Hebner, Manny Sanguillen and Bob Robertson stroked run-scoring hits and Dave Giusti choked off a ninth-inning rally as Pittsburgh beat New York and climbed to within two games of the Mets in the East Division.

Giusti came in to get the last out after Pittsburgh starter Dock Ellis was touched for a run and left men on first and third.

Willie Montanez, who earlier drove in three runs with two homers, doubled and scored the winning run on Don Money's ninth-inning single as Philadelphia held off Atlanta.

Money's hit proved to be the decisive run as the Braves came back to score twice in the ninth on singles by Sonny Jackson and Dusty Baker.

John Bateman drove in four runs with a homer and sacrifice fly to lead Montreal over Cincinnati. Bateman delivered a first-inning run with his fly ball and added the crusher with a three-run homer in the eighth.

Wes Parker's two-run homer highlighted a three-run eighth and Los Angeles struck for three more in the ninth for a comeback victory over San Francisco.

Jim Hickman's two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th carried Chicago over San Diego for the Cubs' sixth straight victory.

Tigers' Coleman licks old team

Denny McLain and Joe Coleman have taken turns putting one over on their old friends with a lot of help from their new friends.

Coleman, traded to Detroit Tigers from Washington last fall in the celebrated McLain deal, pitched against the Senators for the first time Sunday and beat them 5-4 on Mickey Stanley's second home run of the game.

Last Friday night, McLain made his first start against the Tigers and blew a 2-0 advantage in the ninth inning before winning 3-2 on Paul Casanova's sacrifice fly.

In other American League games, Minnesota Twins defeated Chicago White Sox 6-2; Milwaukee Brewers topped California Angels 6-2 and Oakland Athletics divided a doubleheader with Kansas City Royals, bowing 10-4 after a 4-2 first-game victory. Rain washed out the Baltimore Orioles-Boston Red Sox game and the Cleveland Indians-New York Yankees doubleheader.

In Saturday's action, Cleveland beat New York 4-2, Chicago dumped Minnesota 8-2, Kansas City nipped Oakland 5-4, Baltimore pounded Boston 7-4, Washington Senators edged Detroit 4-3 in 15 innings and California defeated Milwaukee 4-1.

"It means a lot to me," Coleman said Sunday after nailing his fourth victory without a loss on the rebound from a serious spring-training injury. "A lot of guys on the Senators weren't here last year when I was here, but it is something to beat your former team-mates the first time you face them."

Second-inning homers by Stanley and Norm Cash helped stake Coleman to a 4-0 lead, but big Frank Howard lashed a homer and run-scoring single as the Senators fought back to tie.

Coleman, who suffered a fractured skull when he was hit by a line drive in a March 27 exhibition game, was on the ropes after Howard's fifth-inning single knotted it.

But Tigers manager Billy Martin stuck with the 24-year-old right-hander and he responded by tossing one-hit ball the rest of the way while Stanley broke the deadlock with a leadoff homer off reliever Denny Riddleberger in the eighth.

Cesar Tovar scored the deciding run on a sixth-inning balk by Chicago reliever Vicente Romo as the Twins came from behind to trim the White Sox.

Minnesota tied the game 2-2 in the sixth on doubles by George Mitterwald and pinchhitter Charlie Manuel, an error by pitcher Tom Bradley on Tovar's sacrifice bunt and a single by Rich Reese.

Romo then came out of the Chicago bullpen, walked Harmon Killebrew on four pitches and was charged with a balk when he slipped off the mound on a 2-0 pitch to Jim Holt, enabling Tovar to score.

The Twins drew away on Leo Cardenas' seventh-inning homer and a two-run double by Mitterwald in the eighth.

Ellie Rodriguez and Ted Kubiak snatched their first home runs of the season and Tommy Harper broke out of a prolonged slump with a triple, double and two singles, leading Milwaukee past the Angels.

In the first game at Kansas City, the Athletics capitalized on an error by shortstop Fred Patek, who failed to touch second base on a one-out force play, to snap a seventh-inning tie on run-scoring singles by Bert Campaneris and Reggie Jackson.

Recreation Association position is re-defined

The Sports Editor:

In reply to an article of May 7, 1970 in the Sherbrooke Record headed "Lennoxville Softball Out" the Lennoxville Recreation Association takes this opportunity to clarify an apparent misconception and misunderstanding of the situation as it exists.

The Lennoxville Optimist Community Park has always been and will always be open to everyone in the community. Over a period of several years this park has been enlarged and beautified, with an adequate lighting system installed as well as many playground facilities, complete with the recently enlarged clubhouse.

The Town of Lennoxville, as most towns its size, has a budget not nearly large enough to support, maintain and permit continued growth and improvement of its parks.

Therefore the association consisting of representatives from majority of local organizations and service clubs was formed to help provide the extra funds necessary for the expansion and direction of activities and maintenance of the various parks, under the supervision of the Town of Lennoxville.

At the last meeting of the Association, a Recreation Director, for summer activities was chosen.

At the same time it was decided to have a salaried Evening Parks Supervisor to ensure that the park and its facilities for Evening Softball would be adequate for those involved.

It was decided unanimously by the members of the Association that to help defray the expense of the evening operation it would be only fair if those benefiting from the facilities available would contribute $40 per team.

This means that if a team consists of 15 players, the cost per player per season would be $2.62 or over a 14-week period not including play-offs, a total of less than 20 cents per player, per week.

Undoubtedly the majority of the players being salaried persons, the Association felt this would not deter their interest in helping to overcome the expenses incurred in the above operation.

Naturally the Association realizes that the Softball League has other expenses in this operation but they also have the liberty to take full benefit of all proceeds collected at each and every game and never has been required to reimburse the Recreation Association.

The Association feels that there has been a misunderstanding between itself and the Softball League.

The Association feels that there is not a softball player who has used these facilities in the past that would not gladly donate the $2.62 per season as mentioned when he or she realizes that this amount will help in the expansion and maintenance of these facilities they are using.

The Lennoxville Recreation Association is a non-profit organization of local citizens interested in the growth of our parks and recreation facilities and that all funds received are used for this purpose.

As a postscript and for the information of the citizens of Lennoxville, it should be noted that there were over 130 boys 7-15 years of age who enjoyed a successful Hockey Season and helped in the support of the Association and their League by contributing a $5.00 fee per player.

It could also be noted that the four-team Pony Baseball League formed last year consisting of 60 days, 13-15 years of age also helped by purchasing their own sweaters and crests as well as contributing to transportation costs for out-of-town games not to forget to mention the parents who gave their time and co-operation.

We trust that the Lennoxville Softball League after having read this article and examined it thoroughly, will reconsider.

The Association is also aware of the benefits realized by the local citizens who have enjoyed the calibre of Softball offered by the league and know that the League would have the full co-operation of the citizens, the Association and the Town of Lennoxville, should they reconsider.

Lennoxville Recreation Association
Don McQuat, president.
Robert Nichol, Town of Lennoxville Parks Commission.

Canonero Preakness winner

BALTIMORE (AP) — Canonero II, virtually unwanted as a yearling and unknown as the Kentucky Derby winner, now has the opposition unhinged as he shoots for the first Triple Crown in 23 years.

"I don't intend to hook Canonero again if I can help it," Reggie Cornell, the trainer of Eastern Fleet, said after the Cinderella horse of 1971 scored a spectacular triumph Saturday in the Preakness.

It was Eastern Fleet who stayed with Canonero II throughout the 1 3/16 mile classic. But at the end, Venezuelan jockey Gustavo Avila and his mount were pulling away.

The victory margin was 1 1/2 lengths and the time of 1:54 broke the Pimlico track record, set in the 1955 Preakness by Nashua, by three-fifths of a second.

"My horse didn't stop," said Eddie Maple, the jockey aboard Eastern Fleet. "The other one just ran faster."

If the race had been longer, jubilant trainer Juan Arias said, "he would have won by a bigger margin."

DISTANCE NO WORRY

The Belmont Stakes in New York, last of the Triple Crown series on June 5, is at 1 1/4 miles. Arias said the distance would not bother Canonero II, and the owners and trainers of other horses seem to agree.

So far, only Jim French, the third-place finisher from the 11-horse Preakness field, seemed likely to compete in the Belmont. Five of the field were in the Derby, too, with Jim French the runner-up that time.

Sound Off was fourth in the Preakness, followed by Bold Reason, Executioner, Royal J. D., Vegas Vic, Impetuosity, Spouting Horna and Limit to Reason.

Despite the recent startling successes, the Belmont doesn't figure to be a walkover. Among the Belmont possibilities who missed the first two Triple Crown races are Good Behavior, Run the Gantlet and On Your Toes.

Citation, in 1948, was the last Triple Crown winner.

Long hair and the employer discussed

By Ann
Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 20-year-old boy who has been looking for a job for seven weeks. The last three places I applied seemed promising, but I wasn't hired. I decided to check back and find out why. All three personnel heads said my qualifications were excellent but my appearance was against me. What it boiled down to was long hair and a short beard. I finally asked the last personnel guy if he would hire me if I cut my hair and shaved my beard. He replied, "Yes." I looked him straight in the eye, said, "Nuts to you," and walked out.

The system is rotten and this is proof. What has my hair and beard to do with my ability? I consider it my constitutional right to wear my hair any way I please and to have a beard if I want one. I would like your opinion on this. If I get the answer I want I will take it back to those jerks and shove it in their stupid faces.

Baton Rouge

Dear Bat: Sorry, Buddy. When you are asking for something—you do it their way. If an employer doesn't want a kid with long hair and a beard, it's his constitutional right not to hire him.

Alumnae meet

Sherbrooke Hospital Nurses' Alumnae meeting will be held tomorrow evening, Tuesday, May 18th, at 8:15 p.m. in the Norton Residence. Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. J. Atto, Mrs. G. Bryant, and Mrs. A. Savage. Mrs. W. Klineck will show slides on Nigeria, and the Bond Drawing will take place.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 Days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special)—This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. It has made people slim, attractive and feel young again. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories and offices throughout the U.S.

Word of its success has spread like wildfire. This is the diet that really works. No pills or drugs. We have testimonials in our files reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first 4 days, but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you partake of foods formerly "forbidden," such as big juicy steaks, roast or fried chicken, rich gravies, spareribs, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are full and still lose 10 pounds in the first 10 days plus 1½ pounds every two days thereafter. The secret behind this new "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. The grapefruit acts as a catalyst the "trigger" to start the fat burning process. You eat as much as you want of the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and blood are gone your weight will remain constant. A copy of this very successful diet plan including suggested menus can be obtained by sending $2 to Grapefruit Diet. MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. If after diligently trying the diet plan you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days and 1½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Fill out the coupon, mail it today, and you will receive your diet rush via first class mail. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth, while enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners.

Some of you kids make a lot more trouble for yourselves than you need. You walk around mad at the world, unpleasant, surly, daring people not to accept you and when they don't you yell, "Damn the establishment!"

You'll do a lot better, fella, when you learn to smile and meet the world half way. A chip on the shoulder is usually a sign that there is wood higher up.

Dear Ann Landers: This will probably sound like a dumb question and I would not be asking it except that something fantastic happened today. Can a lady have a baby without knowing she is pregnant?

Today a woman gave birth in the parking lot of a supermarket. A couple of people came to her rescue when she was seen leaning on her car in pain, unable to open the door. One man said to her, "I'm going to call for an ambulance right away or the baby will be born here." The woman shrieked, "Ridiculous! I am not pregnant. It's appendicitis or something I ate."

Within a few minutes that woman gave birth to a baby. Someone hailed a passing squad car and the woman and her baby were taken to a nearby hospital. How in the world could such a thing happen? Was this lady nutty? Did she suddenly develop amnesia? Please explain how a woman can go through a pregnancy and not know it.

If I Didn't See It I Wouldn't Believe It

Dear It: Such an occurrence is rare, but it is not unheard of. The explanation is that some women do not experience the usual symptoms of pregnancy. In the case of the parking-lot mother, she may well have been completely unaware of her condition until the birth.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widow going with a gentleman who is not wealthy but he is comfortable. I have a birthday coming up next month. He asked me what I wanted. Before I could reply he announced matter-of-factly, "I plan to spend $25." I was never so shocked in my life. I told him I couldn't think of anything I wanted. Now I'm not sure any gift would be acceptable to me. Wasn't this crass on his part? Please comment.

Vassar '40

Dear '40: Your friend is obviously a practical fellow. He is also a cautious type. Some people believe in laying it on the line. He might be crass, but he's honest. Don't knock it.

Birthday celebrated

SAND HILL — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rothney entertained at a turkey dinner, in honor of their daughter Donna's twenty-first birthday. Fourteen relatives and friends attended. The table, covered with a white linen cloth, was centred with a birthday cake, topped by a tiny bouquet of crocus and flanked with lighted tapers in blue glass holders.

Donna received many gifts and cards for which she expressed her appreciation.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rothney, Kelly Sue, and Troy, of Eaton Corner; Mrs. Eva Sawyer, of Sherbrooke, and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, of Waterloo; Linda Guy, of Birchton; Miss Sheila Crichtley of Huntingville; Mr. Stanley Cathcart, of Sawyerville; and Don and Marilyn Rothney.

Bride showered

STANSTEAD — Miss Jean Elliott, a June bride, was on Saturday evening, May 8, the guest of honor at a delightful shower held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cooper. On arriving, Jean was surprised to find about 35 relatives and friends assembled. Miss Susan Cooper and Miss Pamela Peacock, two of the bridesmaids at the forthcoming wedding, the hostesses for the shower, presented a corsage of daffodils to Jean and to her mother, Mrs. James Elliott, and to Mrs. Gordon Hartley, mother of the prospective groom, and to Jean's sister, Janet.

The four were seated at a table which was arranged with the prettily wrapped and ribboned gifts. The lovely electrical appliances, linens, kitchen utensils, and other equally lovely and useful things were passed around and admired. Jean, in her usual gracious way, voiced her appreciation. Church Meetings

NORTH HATLEY — Mrs. P. H. Scowen entertained the Anglican Church Women of St. Barnabas Church at her home on May 5.

Mrs. C. Coleman, president, opened the meeting with the members' prayer and the prayer of St. Assisi. The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report was given. Plans were discussed for the annual Bazaar. The many and varied gifts were on display for the children at St. Luke's Hospital.

Tea was poured by Mrs. C. Coleman and Mrs. W. Sutherland from a nicely appointed table centered with a large bowl of fruit.

Several guests were present including the Reverend James and Mrs. Brooks, Waterville, Father Gagnon of St. Elizabeth's Parish and the Reverend D. H. Buxton, Miss O. Partridge and several ladies attended from the Connaught Home.

UCW
The regular meeting of the North Hatley United Church Women was held on Monday, May 3 in the Community Hall.

Mrs. Ronald Olson conducted the devotional period which was planting and reaping and was tied in with the program, which was a review of the histories of the Women's Associations of Trinity, Plymouth, Waterville, Hatley, Sangster and North Hatley. This history was prior to the present United Church Women's organizations.

The treasurer gave a good report. The members were encouraged to save used stamps to aid leper colonies.

It was decided to send money to the Toronto Depot rather than a bale. The clothing collected will be used to aid welfare in this district.

Mrs. E. Hatch reported on the visit to the Connaught Home and also other calls.

Mrs. J. Hall will be responsible for the forgotten patient at Douglas Hospital this month.

Members were reminded of the Think-In Day to be held at Trinity United in Sherbrooke on May 18, also of the UCW Summer School at Macdonald College, Aug. 16-18.

Tea was served by the hostess, Mrs. Milton Sharrman.

Oswald: "The Chinese team had finished second to Italy in 1969 and we were not surprised to find them opposing us in the 1970 finals. They play a system called 'The Precision Club.' It is a good system, but enormously complicated."

Jim: "It is far too complicated for ordinary players and may be too complicated even for the Chinese. Bobby Wolff and I reached six clubs on today's hand. The bidding in the box shows how the Chinese got to seven."

Oswald: "The first two bids look normal, but the opening bid was artificial and merely showed at least 16 high-card points. The two-diamond response was also artificial and was supposed to show 5 points or less. Two clubs showed the suit and four spades was the 'impossible negative' that said he really had a very good hand with a singleton spade."

South's five-spade call was due to his having miscounted their convention. He thought that North had a good hand with a very long spade suit North jumped to seven clubs to make sure his partner wouldn't try anything like seven spades."

Jim: "Seven clubs was a laydown since there were 12 top tricks and both red queens are doubleton in front of the ace-king-jack. Tai of China drew trumps and cashed his ace-king of hearts to see if the queen would drop. It did and he claimed."

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Spasms can cause neck pain

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—What causes me to have tightness and soreness in the back of my neck at the base of my head. At times I give a quick jerk with my head and it makes a popping noise for a short while. I am inclined to be very nervous. It comes on me more if I am upset over anything. When I was 20, I received a hard blow on my chin, and the trouble came on shortly afterwards. I am 48 now and wonder if that could have been the start. Could you tell me what I should do to relieve the condition and what doctor I should see for some help? At my age it will be bothering me more.

Dear Reader—As you describe your pain, it is probably due to muscle spasm. The muscles in the neck contract and cause limitation of motion and give rise to pain. When you move your head and stretch the muscle sufficiently, the spasm or cramp is relieved and the pain may disappear. This is similar to stretching the calf muscle if you have a cramp in the leg.

It is true that individuals with repeated episodes of muscle spasms are more apt to have them when they are experiencing tension. There are a lot of things, however, which can contribute to the problem, and apparently you have been having difficulties for almost 28 years.

Posture can be a contributing factor, if you have one leg which is considerably shorter than the other, the entire skeleton will be out of line and will change the pull on the various muscles along the spine all the way up to the neck.

Such an underlying postural defect can constantly irritate the muscles and make them more susceptible to spasms or cramping. Disorders of this sort can be corrected, or helped, with a heel lift (a pad under the heel or increasing the thickness of the heel of the shoe) in many cases.

You should see a specialist in physical medicine. Your family doctor, county or state medical society can give you the name of a reputable specialist in physical medicine near your home. Underlying disorders, like postural defects, usually can be corrected.

Aspirin, which is remarkably good at relieving pain, is sometimes helpful in making these conditions tolerable.

Missisquoi Chapter IODE

BEDFORD — The monthly meeting of Missisquoi Chapter IODE was held at the home of the regent, Mrs. Lennox Ames, who opened the meeting with the Prayer of the Order. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Ralph Oakes. In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Hamibal Sheltus, the financial statement was given by the regent. Disbursements included $30.03 for wool, $25.00 to Echoes, administration fund, $21.00.

A letter of thanks had been received from the Douglas Hospital for donations received at the recent shower of the Chapter, also a letter of thanks from Mr. Fred Clough. The secretary was instructed to send a letter of thanks to the Hon. Mr. Cloutier regarding the McLennan Travelling Library.

Mrs. Ames, who attended the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter in Montreal gave a report, reading the address given by Mrs. Ferguson at the provincial meeting. Mrs. Ferguson has served in various offices during the past eight years, the last two, as provincial president.

One point stressed in the address was the importance of the primary chapters in the Order, without their help and work the Order could not function. Each Chapter must hold at least four monthly meetings and one executive meeting during the year. Mrs.

John Gibbs is the new provincial president and will attend the National Annual meeting of the IODE which will be held in June in St. John's, Nfld.

The services secretary, Mrs. Richard Craighead, reported a shipment amounting to $41.55 to IODE House, Montreal, consisting of reading matter, used clothing and baby shirts.

A request was received for a donation to the Cancer Society, this was given.

It was decided that a series of card parties be held at the homes of the members to raise funds, $3.00 per table, the money to be turned in by September.

Two interesting articles were read by Mrs. Neil Creller, one dealing with the seal hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the other regarding the work of the Indian Brotherhood in British Columbia.

At the semi-annual meeting, Mrs. Gibbs presented Mrs. Ferguson with a silver tray in recognition of the splendid work she had done in the Order during her term of office.

The meeting concluded with the singing of God Save the Queen. The hostess was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. William MacArthur.

Mrs. Creller invited the members to meet at her home for the June meeting.

GOVERNEMENT DU QUÉBEC • DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE

Committee appointed to study insurance hikes

QUEBEC — A study committee has been appointed by order in council to investigate causes of continuing rise in automobile insurance costs in Québec, and decide the best means of rectifying this situation.

The Québec government has just adopted this measure in fact, following a recommendation by Mr. William Tetley, Minister of Financial Institutions, Companies and Cooperatives, who had indicated a while ago his determination to take action in this respect.

The committee will be under the chairmanship of Jean-Louis Gauvin; other members are: Jean-Marie Bouchard, Claude Belleau, Ewen Rankin and Stephen Normand who will act as Secretary.

As can be recalled, Mr. Tetley had announced that Québec government had decided to take two courses of action: setting up an interdepartmental committee for implementation of a series of short-term measures in various departments involved, with a view to reduce automobile insurance rates, and setting up a committee to study in depth all aspects of automobile insurance in Québec.

The first action was taken immediately, and the committee's work is almost completed. A report will in fact be submitted within the next few weeks to the Minister of Financial Institutions, Companies and Cooperatives. Meanwhile, the Minister held talks with senior staff of his Department and representatives of the automobile insurance private sector, and as a result, it was possible to check the exorbitant cost increase.

Setting up a study committee on automobile insurance costs will provide the government with means of action necessary not only to stabilize costs but particularly to reduce them.

There is need for undertaking thorough studies on the whole question and elaborating most satisfying solutions, considering new social requirements and the pressing needs calling for efficient government action.

The members of this committee are all acknowledged experts in the actuarial field, law and technology. The new committee will have extensive powers which will enable it to hold public meetings so that members can hear the representations by interested persons, associations and groups.

The committee's assignment will be to determine to what extent losses incurred by both individuals and the community through automobile accidents are justly compensated in the current system, and to find out if such losses are distributed fairly among all parties involved.

Members of the committee will also be called upon to investigate the possibility of reducing losses to the community as a result of automobile accidents.

Lastly, they will have the responsibility of looking into legislation as well as systems existing in the automobile insurance sector, both in Canada and abroad.

The committee will report on its findings to the Executive Council, whenever the progress of its activities makes it possible.
