Fire at Pine Lodge

A number of Shawville citizens responded to a call on Monday evening to help fight fire at Pine Lodge, Bristol.

The fire was in a third floor bedroom at the South-East corner of the main Lodge, and is believed to have started from a cigarette butt in a waste paper basket in the room.

The blaze was quickly subdued by the fire-fighting apparatus of the Lodge, and fast work on the part of employees and guests.

Considerable damage was caused by water and one partition in the room had to be knocked out to get at the fire.

Epidemic of Tire Thieving

Shawville is becoming aroused over an epidemic of tire thefts that has struck the village. Two weeks ago tires were taken from trailers owned by J. Tanner and Robt. Carswell, those guilty carrying along the wheels as well.

On Sunday night they visited the village again and took another spare tire from Robt. Carswell, local taximan, and broke into the Gatineau Power Company's garage and took a wheel from their trailer.

Monday night all the wheels on the trailers owned by Harper Renick, local blacksmith, and from the trailer of Heman Elliott, lineman for Pontiac Telephone Company were taken. The thieves wheeled the trailers into the fields off the back street and removed them at their leisure. All of the tires taken were of the 19-450 size usually found on Ford cars of the early thirties.

While Mr. and Mrs. Hulbert Armstrong were attending the V-J service being held on the Agricultural grounds on Wednesday afternoon, thieves broke into their home a mile East of Shawville and ransacked the house. Cupboards and trunks were searched and over $50.00 in cash was taken.

The thefts have been reported to the Provincial Police.

MARRIED

KNOX—SMITH

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, by Rev. A. F. Fokes, when Jean Beatrice Morrison, daughter of the late Edward Morrison, and Mrs. Lottie Smith, became the bride of William George Samuel Knox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Knox, of Bristol.

The bride, who was attended by Miss Grace Tubman, of Shawville, looked charming in a gown of powder blue sheer, cut street length, with black accessories, and she wore a corsage of American Beauty roses and ferns.

The dress of the bridesmaid was of a model similar to that of the bride.

The best man was Mr. John Knox, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony, supper was served to the close friends of both families at the home of the bride's mother, and later in the evening a large reception to 200 guests was given in their honour in the Theatre hall. The young couple left later on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and other points, and on their return expect to reside in Shawville.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta, with a fingertip veil. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carty, after which the couple left for Montreal. The bride wore a peacock blue crepe dress and a black hat. The will reside in Ottawa.

Thos. Harold Beckett Dies Suddenly at Sand Bay

Taken with a heart attack on Saturday afternoon while working on the new Red Deer Lodge being built at Sand Bay, Thomas Harold Beckett, the well known contractor and carpenter of this village, passed away at 3.30 p. m. He had been in his usual good health while working in the morning, and had visited the village and his home at the noon hour. The attack came while he was on the building and he was helped to the ground, and Dr. S. E. McDowell called, but although he worked with him for an hour, Mr. Beckett failed to respond to the medical help given. He was in his 53rd year.

Born in Shawville, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John A. Beckett, and has been a resident of this place all his life, except when he was away for short periods in various American and Canadian cities, following his trade. He was married 34 years ago to the former Miss Pearl Murphy, of Clarendon, who survives him; also left are two daughters, Mrs. Eckardt Elliott, (Marjorie) of Shawville, and Mrs. (Dr.) D. J. Scuccimarra (Eleanor) of West Point, N. Y.; two brothers, Raymond, of Shawville, and Donald, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.; one sister, Miss Matilda Beckett, of Shawville, and four grandchildren.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, from the home of the deceased's daughter, Mrs. Eckardt Elliott, King Street, to St. Paul's Anglican Church. Service was conducted by the Rector, Rev. Cecil Randall, who was assisted by Rev. A. F. Fokes, pastor of Shawville United Church.

Mr. Randall delivered a comforting sermon from the text, Psm. 31: 15 "My times are in Thy hand."

During the service three favourite hymns were sung, and as a special selection Miss Kay Woodley sang "In the garden."

Interment was made in St. Paul's Cemetery, the pall bearers being, Messrs Arthur Horner, Chas Chamberlain, E. F. Hodgins, G. G. McDowell, J. M. Argue and Donald Connelly.

A large number of beautiful floral tributes were received.

This handsome trophy, the Seagram Gold Cup, emblematic of the Canadian Open Golf Championship, was won on Saturday, August 4th, at Thornhill Golf Club, Toronto, by Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, with a score of 280, 4 strokes better than the runner-up Herman Barron, White Plains, New York. Outstanding players from all parts of Canada and the United States participated in the Tournament which was one of the most successful in Canadian golfing history. With the Seagram Gold Cup, Byron Nelson received a cheque from the R.C.G.A. for $2,000.

WINS VICTORIA CROSS

Cpl. Frederick George Topham, 27-year-old Toronto member of the 1st. Canadian Parachute Battalion, who has been awarded the Victoria Cross for gallantry while serving as a medical orderly during the Battle of the Rhine.

Topham, who becomes Canada's 11th Victoria Cross winner of this war, saw sniper bullets kill two other medical orderlies, but this did not stop him from treating and carrying an unknown number of wounded to safety.

The action occurred near Wesel last March 25, when the Battle of the Rhine was at its height.

Official Citation.

The citation accompanying the award to Topham read:

"On March 24, 1945, Cpl. Topham, a medical orderly parachuted with his battalion on to a strongly defended area east of the Rhine. At about 11.00 a.m., whilst treating casualties sustained in the drop, a cry for help came from a wounded man in the open. Two medical orderlies from a field ambulance went out to this man in succession but both were killed as they knelt beside the casualty.

"Without hesitation and on his own initiative Cpl. Topham went forward through intense fire to replace the orderlies who had been killed before his eyes. As he worked on the wounded man, he was himself shot through the nose. In spite of severe bleeding and intense pain he never faltered in his task. Having completed immediate first aid he carried the wounded man steadily and slowly back through continuous fire to the shelter of the woods.

"During the next two hours Cpl. Topham refused all offers of medical help for his own wound. He worked most devotedly throughout this period to bring in wounded, showing complete disregard for the heavy and accurate enemy fire. It was only when all casualties had been

Imagine the punishment these tires took in this grueling, torturing test of tire safety and endurance as Wilbur Shaw, the famous race driver, under supervision of the American Automobile Association, averaged 100.34 miles per hour for 500 miles on the Indianapolis Speedway—equal to 50,000 miles of ordinary driving. Not a single skid or blowout occurred in the entire 500 miles—at speeds up to 135 miles an hour—definite proof that Firestone Synthetic rubber tires will stand up to any demand you can make of them! cleared that he consented to his own wound being treated.

"His immediate evacuation was ordered, but he interceded so earnestly on his own behalf that he was eventually allowed to return to duty.

"On his way back to his company he came across a carrier which had received a direct hit. Enemy mortar fire was still dropping around, the carrier itself was burning fiercely, and its own mortar ammunition was exploding, an experienced officer on the spot had warned all not to approach the carrier.

"Cpl. Topham, however, immediately went out alone in spite of the blasting ammunition and enemy fire, and rescued the three occupants of the carrier. He brought these men back across the open ground, and although one died almost immediately afterwards, he arranged for the evacuation of the other two, who undoubtedly owe their lives to him.

"This non-commissioned officer showed sustained gallantry of the highest order, for six hours, most of the time in great pain. He performed a series of acts of outstanding bravery and his magnificent and selfless courage inspired all those who witnessed it."

Courts meet regularly to try offenders against Military Government regulations. They have jurisdiction over all persons in the Allied occupied territory except members of the Allied Forces.

German citizens acceptable to the Military Government are given arm bands as police officers. Uniforms will come later. They carry rifles to preserve order and guard valuable property.

They are typical of the progress toward governmental, educational and economic stability being made by the Allied Military Government units which moved into German communities immediately behind the combat troops. Upon Germans like these in the pictures—the children and adults—rests the fate of the new Reich. CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

What I have longed to write can now be written. The wheat is in! Yes, that's all I wanted to say—it doesn't sound very exciting does it? But there it is, and I can tell you every sheaf of grain that goes into the barn is mighty important these days because every farmer is looking at his livestock rather doubtfully right now, wondering if he will have feed enough to winter them, and if not whether there will be a shortage of what he may have to buy. And you people who buy your butter, cream, milk and eggs, you may yet come to realise why the farmer worried about feed for his livestock. It may be reflected in your milk bottles or in the eggs that you buy—especially when export trade must first be taken into consideration.

However, we don't have to worry about wheat. We never had such a heavy crop. Twenty-one loads off six-acres. What we would have done if son Bob hadn't been home I don't know. Now all three men are complaining about sore backs and aching limbs—but they have the satisfaction of knowing the wheat is in the barn and not out in the field where right now it would be getting nice and wet as it has been raining since sometime during the night.

Many farmers in this county have been glad to take advantage of Farm Commando help from the city, and, according to all reports, the Commando workers have given splendid satisfaction. They work hard, and the farmers work hard, but if you ask me, the hardest worked man in the county is the Agricultural Representative, who is responsible for ordering and placing the men where they are most needed. It is a wonder to me that the poor man isn't going in circles. Take our own case for instance. We wanted a man to help stook wheat. All right, we could get one. The next day it rained—that meant more telephoning to cancel the arrangement. And I suppose what held good for us held good for other farmers in the country. Another time we wanted help but as a sufficient number of farmers had not applied for help no men were sent out. Another time our local "Rep" phoned out to see if we could use a man as he had more men than he could place. It so happened that we couldn't. So there you are—and if that is a sample of what is going on all over the county then I say that acting as a go-between for farmers and farm workers is surely no picnic. So, when we give credit to the city fellows who come out to help the farmers we certainly shouldn't forget to also give credit to the man who helped to get them there—our local agricultural representative.

I mentioned a few minutes ago that it had been raining. And this is a holiday week-end and our city folk are here to enjoy a few days in the country. Sunday wasn't too bad—cool, but at least it was fine. Monday, dismal, dull and raining. The lights have been on in the house nearly all day. So what did we do? Well, I'll tell you. Daughter is giving the house a regular lousecleaning all in one day! And do you know what she told me—she said, quite kindly but very emphatically—"Mother, you are a real good mother but you are not such a good housekeeper." "Daughter" I replied, "if you had had as much to do as I have lately, you wouldn't be a good housekeeper either."

And the rest of the family... friend Bert undertook to clean the inside of all the windows. And what a help that is. Partner and Bob dismantled an electric stove that was to be packed up and taken Partner's brother in the city. The idea was to send it by transport but after taking it to pieces they decided it would be just as easy, if they could get it in the car, to deliver it personally. They got it in all right, so now, they are away. Daughter is still sweeping and dusting, the windows are nearly cleaned, the weather is clearing and I'm hearing a few remarks about going out to shoot ground-hogs.

And I—well, I'm thinking a nice hot cup of tea would be quite in order, and after that I think I had better set out to prove to Daughter that my housekeeping abilities are only dormant—not extinct.

Princess of Grätzen

LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

CHAPTER XIV

"Fool! You would not have tried that had you known how good Manfred is with the trigger." He bent and took the keys from Roger's pocket. "Thank you." He stood up. "And you, my friends. Let this not spoil your merriment. It is war, you know—a war whose demands transcend anything else." "Even the love of God and the love of your brother," said Meridel.

"Princess of Grätzen." Oberlieutenant Faber bowed stiffly. "I salute you. And yes—even perhaps such loves as you mention. I am glad you have found sanctuary in this country. It would be a shame for such beauty as yours to suffer."

"Make haste!" said Kehl in German. "There is no time for talk. You know the pretty one? She is the Princess of Grätzen, isn't she?" He bowed slightly, his mouth set in a hard smile. "She is warm here, isn't she? We shall go now."

Roger had risen slowly to his feet. Rudolph stood beside him. Meridel moved close to the old lady whose eyes never left the thin, stubbled visage of Michel Fabre.

"Oberlieutenant Faber," she said. "A little child stamped on your picture and said she hated you." "It is war," he said. "War. You do not understand, you people. You will know one day soon. Auf Wiedersehen."

No one moved. Not until, above the low moaning of the wind, they heard the sound of a motor, did anyone have the will to speak, to blink even, of what had happened. Roger went to the window then. Meridel came and stood beside him, her hand through his arm. They saw the tail lights of the station wagon receding until they were only fiery pin points; then nothing.

"They'll be over the border before morning" said Roger. "I'll go at once to St. Didier and telephone the police and the military from there. It won't do any good. They must have it all figured out. I suppose they'll trade the wagon for some other car before long. Mike—Mike seems to belong there." His mouth was swollen, twisted now more with scorn than pain. Oberlieutenant Faber. I'll bet he has the Iron Cross.

"Yes, monsieur, he has." It was Rudolph who spoke, softly, sadly. "That and other honors from the same source."

"My God, Rudolph!" Madame got up from her chair. "What is this you tell us? What do you mean?" "I did not mean to speak of it ever, Madame." Rudolph stared unhappily at the fire. "But now there is no point in keeping silence. It was Jules Goujon who told me—Jules who once happened to see his picture—the one Meridel has. And Jules knew how much Meridel was interested in that one. Jules had seen him when he was taken prisoner by the English. And Jules described him—yes, even to the Iron Cross he wore. Oberlieutenant Faber! I am sorry, Madame. I would have died gladly to save you this. And you, Monsieur Roger—and you, Meridel."

"I do not deserve to be spared anything," Meridel looked at Roger. She took her own handkerchief and reached up and dabbed it against his mouth, helping to stanch the flow of blood from the cut lip. "I was a young girl with a lot of silly dreams."

The air was keen and sharp as Roger ran most of the way to St. Didier des Montagnes. Pere Delambert paced up and down the long hall while Roger called the provincial police, the military authorities in Montreal, to tell them of the two escaped prisoners, of the taking of his station wagon. "Yes, some hours ago," Roger said. "One of them had a gun. They wore sheepskins, knitted caps—if that is any help, I fancy they'll have a change of clothes. I—I hope you get them."

He hung up slowly and went to the cure's fire where he lit a cigarette and leaned an elbow wearily on the mantel. There Pere Delambert found him and quickly moved a big leather chair for him close to the blaze.

"I could not help hearing. It has then been an exciting evening for you at the Chateau Philibert? There was no violence, I trust."

Roger touched his lip ruefully. "I had a wild idea of throwing a book-end—Rodin's image of 'The Thinker'—I never liked it—at the fellow who held the gun; the other landed with his fist on my mouth before I could get going."

His fist was always like iron, thought Roger, recalling other days.

The cure's man drove him back home, covering in a few minutes the long miles that had taken hours of walking and running. Roger ran up the steps of Philibert where the lights in the downstairs living room still burned. Madame and Meridel and Rudolph were sitting there. The fire burned cheerily.

"There," said Roger, standing straggle-legged in front of the fire, facing them. "I informed the authorities. The chances are they knew nothing about the escape. Perhaps the discipline in the camp had slackened a bit. But the hunt will be on now."

"You think they will be taken?" Meridel's eyes were bright in the firelight, but there was a tired, drawn look about her mouth. "They will not be allowed to cross the border, to regain their own country in time and again cause death to the innocent?"

Roger shook his head. "I do not think they'll be recaptured. Mike—Mike"—repeating the name he smiled bitterly—"knows every road and byway between here and the line. He knows what he's doing—always did know."

Madame stood up straight and defiant. "I am not finished yet. Michel Fabre always defied me, always had his own way, always laughed last. But tonight I have pity for him, the anger has gone out of me. It would be a mercy if a bullet from some guard's gun would put an end to a life like that. A traitor, a murderer—! God have ed the old lady from the room, leaving Roger and Meridel to the quiet there, the soft murmur of the flames on the hearth, the low voices of the wind in the trees.

"It has been hard for you, Meridel," he said.

SOUR APPLES FOR THE GERMANS

The sidewalk cafes of Berlin are operating again, but the wines and schnapps and wonderful food of old Germany are only a memory. The drinks on the table in this picture are just colored water, now in great demand, and the broad tray the waiter is carrying is heaped with the main dish of the day—green apples.

How Can I?

by Anne Ashley

Q. How can I keep leather shoes soft and pliable?

A. Rub the shoes about once a week with castor oil, or rub occasionally with vaseline.

Q. How can I destroy any taste of baking powder when making biscuits?

A. Add a teaspoonful of sugar and it will destroy any taste of baking powder. Buttermilk is always a good substitute for fresh milk when making biscuits.

Q. How can I whiten the teeth?

A. Apply peroxide of hydrogen, diluted with one half water. Or clean with prepared chalk and orris root every morning and night.

Q. Can I use laundry starch that is left over?

A. Yes, by allowing it to settle and dry, and then putting back in the package to use again.

Q. How can I clean a white felt hat?

A. By using one quart of corn-meal mixed with one cupful each of salt and flour. Rub well into the surface of the hat, let it stand overnight, and then remove by brushing.

Western Wheat

Any hopes that westerners had, during the very cool weather of the Spring and early Summer, that it might mean a big crop, as it has done before, have been disappointed, says the Winnipeg Free Press.

There will be a little less than an average crop of wheat, but better crops of coarse grains, according to the third Free Press crop report.

Manitoba is happy at the prospect of good crops almost everywhere.

Quebec to Abide By Liquor Decision

Quebec province will follow the other provinces in whatever is decided in the public interest at the Canadian Association of provincial Liquor Commissioners conference opening in Toronto Monday, it was announced recently by Judge Edouard Archambault, general manager of the Quebec Liquor Commission.

Judge Archambault will not attend the conference himself but he will name delegates to the conference who will report to him on the outcome of the talks.

"Rationing will disappear gradually depending upon the extent of the supplies that are made available," he said. The Commission now is mapping out its post-war plans and it would take into consideration the aims of temperance groups.

Mrs. Irvin Weber, of Ottawa, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Swartz in town. Mrs. Weber attended the funeral of her father-in-law, Mr. Ernst Weber, at Kitchener, on Tuesday of last week.

That Atomic Bomb Has Terrific Effects

The terrific effects of the atomic bomb were described by Dr. Donald Leeg, professor of geophysics at Harvard, who witnessed the test on July 16th in the New Mexico desert.

"It beggars description," he said, "I was 50 miles from the explosion awaiting a message. There were thunderstorms on the horizon and I was afraid I could not see the flash. At 5.30 a. m. H-hour, it let go. It lit up 180 degrees of the horizon, not like one but a dozen brilliant suns. It stayed lit up and made the chills run up my back because I knew what might happen if it were uncontrolled. It was followed by a brilliant red wall of flame. Fifty miles away it was like an earthquake."

At the source its brilliance was so great an individual looking at it would be blinded. It created a crater a half-mile across and a quarter of a mile long. The seismic disturbance caused does not equal that of an earthquake, but the force is so concentrated I'd rather go through an earthquake than face that explosion.

MARKET LOW GRADE CATTLE THIS MONTH

Forecasting record cattle marketing this Fall, the Dominion Department of Agriculture requests farmers to prevent congestion in packing plants by marketing their low grade cattle in August. Bulls, dry cows and plain cattle should be marketed in August, and all steers and heifers which have attained good finish by September should then be marketed promptly, says the Department.

By following this marketing plan, farmers will be able to dispose of their old cows of both beef and dairy breeding and younger cattle of undesirable type at more advantageous prices than obtainable on a congested market in the Fall. Last October and November poor quality cattle flooded the markets in such quantities that packing plants could not handle them with the result that some farmers lost money in cattle feed bills and in weight shrinkage.

The Department described packing plant capacity as sufficient to handle promptly all cattle offered this Fall if marketings are as orderly as suggested. Packing plant labour is said to be fully as plentiful as last year and more storage space is now available.

HOUSING EARLY PULLETS

Early hatched pullets will be the star performers in fulfilling our shell egg commitments with Britain during the next months. But just how capable they will carry on depends on whether or not they get a good start when moved from free range to the laying pens.

The practice of housing pullets in the same building next to the laying flock presents a disease problem, particularly in this true if there has been trouble such as infectious colds during the past winter. Though apparently the flock is healthy there is every likelihood of some carriers being among the number.

Segregation of the birds according to age is the safest practice and helps to solve feeding problems. Pullets just coming into lay have need for a high protein diet, while the same ration if fed to younger birds will result in lost profits through small eggs, laid before bodily maturity has been reached.

The question of comfortable quarters for the new flock of layers during the warm weather months is an important consideration. On range they have been accustomed to open range shelters and if moved to hot stuffy houses, one may run into difficulties that cost money, such as cannibalism, possibly a partial moult and drop in egg production. Every pen should have a window in the back that can be opened for cross ventilation. Fresh air is the cheapest requirement of the flock, but more often than not the one that receives the least consideration.—E. P. G. Farmers' Magazine.

NEW RATION TOKENS WILL SIMPLIFY BUYING

Use of ration tokens will simplify and cut in half the amount of work-meat wholesalers and retailers and banks in handling meat rationing it has been pointed out by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Besides simplifying the meat shopping of people living alone and small families the use of tokens has cut down the number of ration coupons that had to be designated each week as valid thus providing a considerable economy in rationing machinery.

The new meat tokens will be light in the pockets or handbag of the consumers. Made of vulcanized plywood they are almost the same size as a 25 cent piece, slightly thinner, of a light blue colour with a small hole in the centre. They have the word "CANADA RATION" and "MEAT VIANDE" stamped on both sides. Eight of them have the same value as one meat coupon.

By the end of the war in Europe at least 150,000 magazines were being sent overseas monthly from Canada. Requirements of merchant seaman and the Canadian armed forces stationed in the Western hemisphere were also met. This was all done entirely by voluntary citizens' committees and clubs.

Japanese City 'Blown To Atoms'

It Is Predicted That World's Most Destructive Missile Will Shorten The War

The atomic bomb, which the United States has unleashed against the Japanese, marks the end of an era, an age, a civilization, says Neal Stanford in The Christian Science Monitor.

For destruction and devastation it surpasses two-thousandfold anything yet developed; it is but the beginning.

The breaking up of the atom is not new. But harnessing the very basic power of the material universe is.

That this force from which the sun draws its very power has been harnessed for destructive purposes is the consequence of this tragic world-engulfing conflict.

That it can, and will, be usable for constructive, productive post-war uses goes almost without saying.

But it is such a novel, incredible, fantastic discovery, its production so elaborate, technical, and scientific, that little is yet known of how that will be done.

It is commercially impossible to harness the atom now or even in the near future, so that power can be produced to compete with coal and oil.

Use of Atomic Power

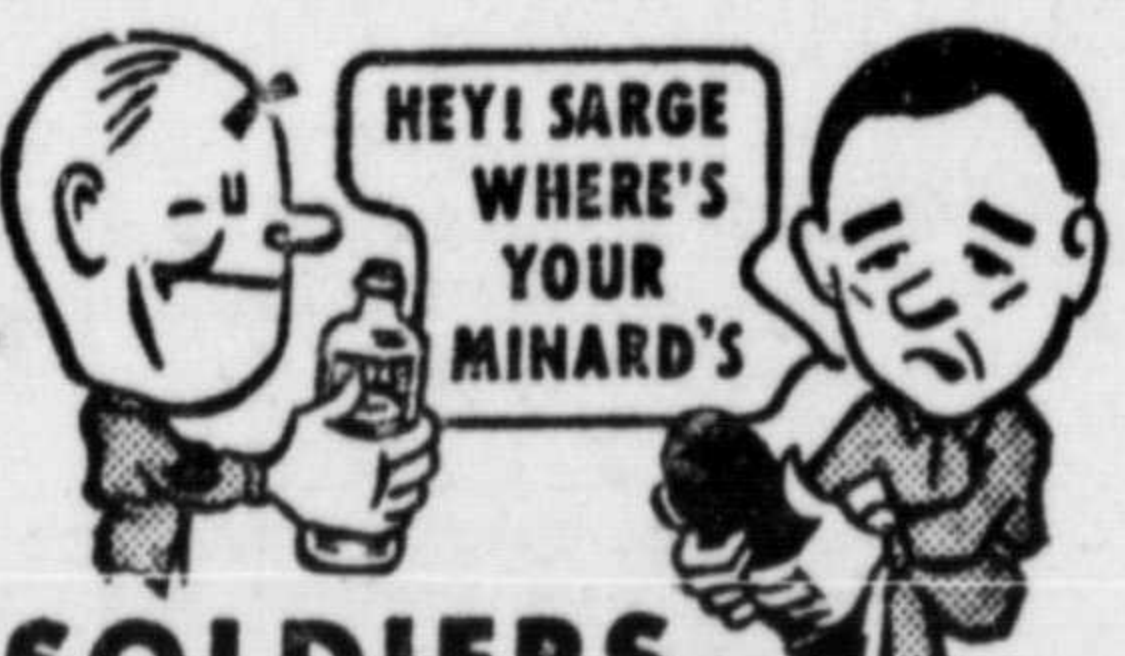

But the atomic bomb, despite its avianchial destructibility, has pointed the way to the contrasting constructive use of atomic power.

It is a fantastically expensive procedure. Already the United States has sunk $2,000,000,000 in this experiment, and it is just dropping its first bombs.

It requires vast areas for production—the equivalent of many small countries. The United States has two large tracts devoted to producing this power—as well as innumerable smaller ones. One is a 450,000-acre reservation in the State of Washington. Another is a 30,000-acre reserve in Tennessee.

This work also requires research and know-how. These, fortunately, the United States, in co-operation with the British, have to a large degree. The British pooled their men and knowledge with America in their race against time and the Nazis.

It took 2½ years to get the first bomb. Therefore production of atomic power cannot be accomplished on a shoestring.

Uranium 235

The atomic bomb hunt started right after the war got under way when a German mathematician, a Jewish woman, Lise Meitner, calculated that something which had puzzled natural scientists for 10 years was really an explosion of atoms of one of the kinds of the metal uranium.

Within two weeks after she published this calculation the great physics laboratories in the United States, England, and Germany had verified her prediction. She was banished from Germany shortly afterward, but Hitler put all available physicists at work on atomic bombs and atomic power at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, Berlin.

What the natural scientists found was that a rare form of uranium, known as 235, when bombarded with low electrical energy (in the form of neutron rays) would react by splitting some of its atoms almost squarely in two.

Up to that time no atom had ever been really smashed. A few electrons or other particles had been forced out by the smashing rays used, which might be X-rays or rays made of atomic particles.

Details Withheld.

An atomic bomb equaling in size and weight about a pea equals in explosive power a 5-pound box filled with TNT.

If an atomic bomb weighs 11 pounds it equals in effect a 10-ton bomb.

If it weighs one ton, its explosive force will rock the target with the impact of 20,000 tons.

Imagine 2,000 freight cars, each laden with 10 tons of superdynamite, crashing down on a Japanese city. How much of that city would remain intact?

And it is well to keep in thought that the 20,000-ton impact can be produced by dropping a single one-ton atomic bomb.

For the time being, the military atomic bombs.

Power of Bomb

A faint idea of the power within the atomic bomb can be grasped from the fact that the explosion of a munitions ship in Halifax, Nova Scotia, on June 6, 1917, killed 1,500 persons, injured 4,000, and made 20,000 homeless. Two and one half square miles of Halifax were devastated. That munitions ship carried 3,000 tons of TNT—about one

GEN. CRERAR HONOURED BY DUTCH

General H. D. G. Gen. Crerar received this highest order of the Netherlands on July 20, at Spelderholt.

seventh of the equivalent of a one-ton atomic bomb.

It is impossible yet to sketch, even in the broadest lines, the changes in warfare—aerial and land and naval warfare—be brought about by the atomic bomb. Air warfare, particularly, will have to be conceived in entirely new terms. There no longer is need for heavy and relatively slow bombers. Neither will there be need for escort fighters. Atomic bombs will be carried to their target by jet-propelled planes traveling at between 500 and 800 miles an hour. Antiaircraft defenses, as they were known until yesterday, will be of no use whatsoever.

No fortification will be able to withstand the atomic bomb. No city will outlast the first raid.

Fliers Drop Gifts To Native Rescuers

Natives in a New Guinea village saved the lives of two crashed fliers of the R.A.F. They fed them and guided them to two weeks past Japanese positions. Soon after the airmen got back a plane flew over the village and dropped parcels containing brightly colored calico trousers, shorts, razor blades (greatly prized because they can be made into so many things), barbers' scissors, knives, jackets, fishing lines for stringing bows, medical supplies. And a toy dog for Lazarus, the small son of the village mission catechist.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

Moth-Killer

United Kingdom scientists have found a simple means of making clothes permanently mothproof. The agent is D.D.T. — the anti-malarial, anti-typhus powder developed in Britain during the war, which has already saved thousands of Allied lives. In its new role of moth-killer it is dissolved in oil and applied to the wool during manufacture, thus becoming a permanent part of the wool's structure. A minute quantity — 0.1 per cent of the weight of the wool treated — is sufficient to make the cloth moth-proof however many times it is washed or cleaned. D.D.T. can also be used for temporary moth-proofing of clothing already in use—i.e., by mixing with the solvents used in dry-cleaning. Clothing cleaned regularly in this way would be nearly 100 per cent moth-proof. This new application of D.D.T. was developed by research workers of the United Kingdom Wool Industries Research Association.

Following an illness extending over three months, Isabella Galloway widow of Isaac Langford, died at her home in Bristol, on Saturday Aug. 15th, in her 57th year.

Born in Bristol township, she was the daughter of the late Andrew Galloway, and his wife, Elizabeth McLennan, natives of Ireland. She was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church and was active in all Church organizations.

Surviving are two sons, Ernest, overseas, and Mervin, at home; one daughter, Mrs. H. Trudeau, Quyon; one brother, Alfred Galloway, of Sudbury, and 11 grandchildren.

Interment was made at Norway Bay Cemetery, the pall bearers being, Messrs Albert Trudeau, Allen and Elgin Abbott, Bert McLarnon, Wm. Webb and George Drummond.

WILLIAM HURST EMMERSON

On Wednesday William Hearst Emmerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Emmerson, of Bristol, fell dead, as he was carrying a case of eggs into the Smiley general store, at Weirstead. It had been known that the young man was not in the best of health, but he had desired to drive into the store for shopping, as he had often done before. His untimely death at the age of 22, came as a shock to his family, and his many friends in the district.

Born in November, 1922, he had lived all his life at his home on the farm.

He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Allen and Dalton, all on the homestead.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from his late home to the Pentecostal Mission at Bristol Ridge, where service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. W. F. Wendt. Burial took place in the Maple Grove United Cemetery, Shawville.

NEW CEILING SET

Ceiling prices on wholesale cuts of spring lamb have been set by an order which becomes effective on August 6th, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced.

The new prices for wholesale cuts are in line with carcass ceiling prices which are established to allow an extension of the higher price period from July 16 to August 31.

Flt. Lieut Smiley Visits Relatives Here

A guest at the home of Dr. D. J. and Mrs. Campbell over the weekend was their nephew, Flt. Lieut. J. B. Smiley, formerly of Woolsley, Sask., and recently returned from overseas.

Flt. Lieut. Smiley had a very interesting war record. He enlisted in February, 1939, in the R. C. A. F. In a flight over France in May, 1940, he was shot down, receiving wounds in the head and neck, and was taken prisoner by the Germans.

He was interned in twelve different prison camps, finishing at Stalag Luft 3, where he helped to dig the tunnel where the escape took place, being liberated on May 2nd by the British 2nd army and flown to England.

He served in an all-Canadian fighter squadron. In January he marched with other prisoners from one prison camp to another ahead of the Russian invasion and in April marched East away from the British until they overtook them.

While a prisoner he received from Geneva the Y. M. C. A. medal for leadership in sports and moral building. Only about five percent. received this award.

Piano music supplied by Mrs. A. Radmore was enjoyed in the early part of the evening, also singing. After an address, prepared by Rev. P. R. Stote, of Charteris, was read to Mr. Seman by his niece, Miss Elaine Crawford, of Greermount, a purse of money was presented to him by Rev. A. Radmore, of Campbell's Bay, to which Mr. Seman made a very pleasant and fitting reply, expressing regret that his wife could not have been present.

Refreshments brought a very happy evening to a close.
