Thirty-Sixth Year.

BANQUET TENDERED THIS NOON IN HONOR OF HON. J. E. PERREAULT

Minister of Roads and Mines Guest of E.T.A.A. Officials at Sherbrooke Fair—Children's Day Biggest and Best in Annals of Great Exposition—Thousands of People Crowd Fair Grounds Waiting to Witness Eclipse of the Sun This Afternoon.

The curtain rose this morning upon the most important day of the Sherbrooke Fair. There will be three outstanding events between noon and six o'clock—apart from the regular activity of the exposition. Hon. J. E. Perreault, Minister of Roads and Mines, was the guest-of-honor at a banquet tendered by the E. T. A. A. officials in the Exhibition Arena at 12.15 o'clock. The most perfect baby in the Eastern Townships will be announced at two o'clock, and thirdly—and this is undoubtedly the most impressive and important of all—the eclipse of the sun is scheduled to take place at 4.23.04 this afternoon.

When the organizers of the Exhibition drew up the week's programme they designated Wednesday "Eclipse Day." This fact, together with the great importance of the event, has made the date a red letter day for people attending the Sherbrooke Fair.

With the Exhibition Grounds recognized as a desirable location from which to view the eclipse, being elevated and spacious, thousands of people are expected to witness the spectacle from the grounds this afternoon. The eclipse will be one of nature's contributions to a Fair that is already garnished with attractions such as have seldom, if ever, been seen in Sherbrooke.

If one is to judge by the comment that was heard on all sides last evening about the Exhibition, it is this year an unqualified success. It is a success in times when success is a rare and appreciated thing. Primarily an Eastern Townships exposition, the live stock and other products on display are of a paramount class.

These are the fundamentals of the Exhibition, for after all it is for them that it is held. The horse races are also an important feature of the Fair that entertain a large number every year. The past two days have borne tribute to this fact. Interesting and closely contested, the harness races have excited much interest. They comprise a colorful side of the Fair it would be difficult to do without.

The Fair Grounds were the scene for thousands of happy youngsters all day yesterday. It was a memorable occasion. For weeks they had looked forward to this particular day of the Sherbrooke Fair, and now that it is over, like the little philosophers they are, they are satisfied and are anticipating something else—in all probability the next Children's Day of the Exhibition.

Although the weather conditions in the morning, when the first kiddies walked through the gate was anything but promising, the weather remained cloudy all day, but rain did not come. The boys and girls had the run of the grounds—being admitted free to the Grand Stand and for a reduced fee to the various Midway attractions.

The children's day was a success. The grounds yesterday numbered thousands—and all had an equal chance of winning Black Beauty, a little Shetland pony that has suddenly gained fame, not because of the publicity she received, but because of the desire she awakened in the hearts of kiddies throughout the Eastern Townships, but because of the prize she captured in the judging of ponies in front of the Grand Stand in the morning.

Black Beauty was won by Robert Pinard, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Armand, 31A Fort and Grand streets. The Grand Stand performance last evening was halted for a brief period and Mayor Ludwig Forest, surrounded by E.T.A.A. officials in front of the crowded Grand Stand, drew the lucky ticket.

When the winner was announced, Robert and his dad descended from the Grand Stand to claim the trophy. Perhaps there was not a happy boy in the world. "Now, I'm going to play!" exclaimed Robert, a diminutive lad, knee high, as he walked proudly beside his pony. Thousands of children envied him, but only one child could win Black Beauty.

The other two prizes awarded the children, watches, were won by Daniel Mullins, of Sawyerville, and Lucy Lutley, 67 Lincoln Avenue, Sherbrooke.

The ticket number which won the $50 which is donated by the Exhibition every night was 536. The winner will have to present the stub at the E.T.A.A. office to claim his prize.

Although yesterday was Children's Day—when they had the time of their young lives visiting the Midway, riding the various rides, enjoying the Grand Stand performance, examining the exhibits in the many buildings—adults were present on the grounds in large numbers. Today, of course, the attendance is expected to surpass that of yesterday, when about 13,000 persons were admitted to the Fair Grounds.

In the evening thirty-three Boy Scouts, members of the Y.M.H.A. 97th Philadelphia, Pa., Troop, were guests of the E.T.A.A., being admitted to the grounds and the Grand Stand performance.

These Boy Scouts arrived in Sherbrooke by car yesterday afternoon en route from Montreal and Quebec to St. Johnsbury, Vt., where they proceeded today to observe the eclipse of the sun. They are under the charge of Scoutmaster (Continued on page 2)

LEGAL BODY ELECT OFFICERS

Calgary, Aug. 31.—G. A. Campbell, K.C., of Montreal, was elected president of representatives of governing bodies of the legal profession in Canada yesterday. S. A. M. Skinner, Saint John, N.B., was elected vice-president and A. A. Moffatt, Winnipeg, secretary-treasurer.

The governing body, which is representative of law societies in the various provinces, held a conference yesterday preliminary to the annual convention of the Canadian Bar Association which opens today.

OTTAWA HOUSE MAY OPEN ON OCTOBER 6TH

Announcement to This Effect Considered Likely Soon After Return of Bennett from Calgary.

Ottawa, August 31.—Upon what precise date will the legislators be called together?

This is a question of wide interest, as an autumn session of Parliament appears a certainty because of the early action necessary by the Government in connection with highly important and pressing issues.

While speculation about the date for the opening of Parliament is keen, well-informed opinion in Governmental and parliamentary circles favors Thursday, October 6, as the most probable date, and an announcement to this effect is considered likely soon after the return of the Right Hon. E. B. Bennett from Calgary, where he is now attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association.

Whether the session will be designated as a special one, to deal only with one or two of the most urgent questions on hand, or as the beginning of a regular session to be continued until late in the year, and then adjourned over the Christmas holiday period, will depend largely upon the Prime Minister's intentions with regard to his attendance as Canada's principal delegate to the World Economic Conference in London, the date for which will probably not be set until after the United States elections in November.

The importance and the highly controversial character of the various issues pending will mean a prolonged sitting of the two Houses at Ottawa should all or a majority of them be taken up at the approaching session.

While the first in order are the consideration of the agreements reached at the Imperial Economic Conference, with the consequent tariff changes, and the implementation of the Canadian Government's promise to the United Kingdom in the matter of the appointment of a Tariff Board to which British exporters may submit specific cases of inequitable working of the preferential arrangements, the other matters awaiting parliamentary action include the reception and discussion of the report now being prepared by the Duff Commission which has been studying the railway problems of the Dominion, the creation of a Radio Board to nationalize and direct broadcasting in Canada, the electoral redistribution which is a sequel to the decennial census of 1931, and the reorganization of the Civil Service Commission.

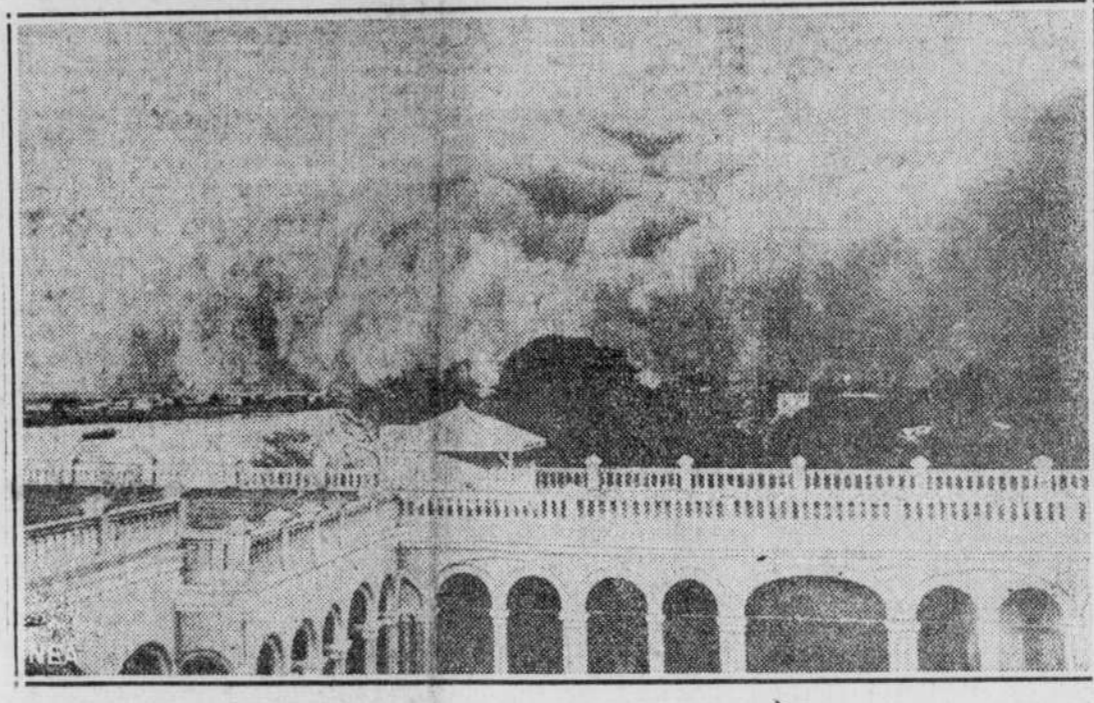

The St. Lawrence Waterways treaty will not be taken up, except in informal discussion, as its disposition by the Canadian Parliament is likely to be postponed to await the action of the United States Congress on the measure.

AGED INVENTOR DEAD
Media, Pa., August 31.—Hugo Bilgram, pioneer mechanical engineer, inventor, manufacturer, economist and oldest member of the Franklin Institute, is dead here aged 85. He invented the bevel gear generating process, said to have revolutionized the manufacture of bevel gears.

that the ten per cent. preference tendered to Canada in June would be made permanent, and this, with a quota of the business of the United Kingdom assured, would prove satisfactory. Favorable agreements were also completed at the conference with other units of the Empire in respect to lumber, he said.

"It must be remembered, however," he stressed, "that these agreements must be followed up with an intelligent development of the markets if we are to derive the full benefit of them."

FORMER BANK MANAGER IS IN JAIL AWAITING TRIAL

Sidney Rafuse Held Following Alleged Attempt to Rob Branch of Royal Bank of Canada at Shubenacadie.

Windsor, N.S., Aug. 31.—Charged with attempting to rob the Royal Bank of Canada at Shubenacadie, Sidney Rafuse, a former branch manager of the bank, appeared in police court here and was remanded to jail when the case was adjourned until Friday, September 2.

Rafuse was arrested on August 24 following the night in which the police killed Gerald Freckleton and wounded Edson Boutlier. Rafuse had entered the building before Freckleton and Boutlier and was talking to the manager when the others came in, drew handkerchiefs over their faces and ordered the staff into the vault. He is a brother-in-law of Freckleton.

HUTCHINSONS ARE QUIETLY GOING ALONG

Were Believed This Morning to Be Preparing for Next Flight of Their Leisurely Crossing of the North Atlantic Ocean.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Somewhere along the coast of Newfoundland's Labrador, the flying Hutchinsons were believed this morning to be preparing for the next flight of their leisurely crossing of the North Atlantic ocean. Last word received from the party of eight people came last evening to the effect that they had landed at Hopedale, Labrador, at 2:20 p.m. (E.S.T.). Then the silence of the northland closed down upon them. Radio communication was poor and Newfoundlanders reported it could not get into communication with either Hopedale or Nain.

Yesterday when the amphibian City of Richmond, took off from the harbor of Port Menier, Anticosti Island, Hutchinson announced he intended refuelling at Hopedale and flying the seventy-five odd miles from there to Nain, where he would spend the night. It had not been learned early today whether or not he completed this programme.

Hutchinson is taking his wife, two little daughters and four others with him on a flight from New York to Edinburgh. He intends flying from Nain to Iceland in a single hop, the Danish Government having declined permission for him to alight in the waters of Greenland.

His amphibian is no longer fitted to settle down on land, the wheels having been removed at Saint John, his first stop after leaving New York.

ADDITIONAL DUTIES ARE IMPOSED BY FREE STATE

Sheep and Poultry Imported into Free State Will Be Subject to New Regulation.

Dublin, August 31.—Duties on sheep and poultry imported into the Irish Free State were announced by the Government as a further encouragement to home industry.

A duty of eleven shillings and three pence ($2.70) per head will be imposed on all sheep, and three shillings (75 cents) on all poultry imported by the terms of the order which was issued under the Emergency Duties Act. Two-thirds of the full rate is applicable as a preferential rate in the British Empire and the United Kingdom.

The duties are not directed against the United Kingdom as the imports of sheep and poultry from there are negligible. The main trade is carried out between the Free State and Northern Ireland.

NOVEL CAMPAIGN AGAINST PROHIBITION CONDUCTED

Director of Car Searching for Reformed Drunkard Says He Has Not Found One Man Benefitted by Prohibition.

New York, Aug. 31.—The motor bus "Diogenes," which left here on June 1st for a wide tour of the United States sponsored by the prohibition research committee for the announced purpose of "finding one drunkard who has been reformed by the passage of the 18th Amendment," returned yesterday.

Paul Norris was director of the anti-prohibition sponsored tour. He said the committee covered 12,000 miles, visiting thirty-six states and the District of Columbia, and would conclude its work in New York this week.

"We have yet to find," Norris said, "a single law-reformed drunkard, or a single family in the whole of the United States, who has benefited by the passage of the 18th Amendment."

PARLEY PACTS OFFER CANADA WIDE OPENING

Hon. Robert Weir Tells Toronto Convention of Opportunities for Canadian Dairy Products in Britain.

Toronto, August 31.—After two days of discussion the national conference of agricultural officials today neared definite conclusions as to what must be done to put the Canadian farmers' business on a paying basis.

Special committees drafted to deal with every problem from the health of cattle to the price of eggs are due to report their findings to the conference for its approval. The broad object of their work is to help the farmer market his produce profitably by organizing and co-ordinating every agricultural service in the Dominion.

Expressing his satisfaction with the progress of the conference he summoned, Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, entered the discussion on poultry and dairy products yesterday to tell 100 delegates that Empire countries supply only thirty per cent. of the eggs consumed in the United Kingdom and less than twenty-five per cent. of the dressed poultry. The new Empire preferences should increase the percentage, he suggested.

J. S. Singleton, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, said the farmer's greatest opportunity now lies with concentrated milk products. At present, he explained, the United Kingdom imports 320,000,000 pounds of these, of which only 8.6 per cent. is British and 1.6 Canadian.

TORONTO RADIO DEALERS WARNED BY GOVERNMENT

Government Would Have Dealers Become Detectives for Collection of Radio Set Licenses.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Toronto radio dealers have been notified by the Dominion Department of Marine that they will render themselves liable to a fine if they sell, after Sept. 1st, a radio set to any person who is not the holder of a radio receiving license issued by the department.

The order met with a cold reception from some dealers. One man said he "would not work as a government detective without pay because it can't collect its own fees." Other dealers claimed the notice had not yet reached them although they had heard of its contents.

MOLLISON IS VERY ANXIOUS TO GET GOING

"Heart's Content" Ready to Make Ocean Hop, But Kindly Advice of Friends Keeps Noted Flier from Starting.

Sydney, N.S., August 31.—Captain James A. Mollison awoke this morning to find unfavorable weather reports and the friendly advice of his doctor-host counselling him to wait. Out at the Cape Breton flying field his little Moth plane "Heart's Content," which carried him to the first westward solo crossing of the North Atlantic was ready to go, but clouds over the ocean were undispersed. In Sydney, Dr. Freeman O'Neil advised the resting of shaken nerves.

Captain Mollison yesterday got a cable from London. Its contents were not disclosed, but Dr. O'Neil had one in his pocket from Amy Johnson Mollison asking him to see that her husband returned to England by steamer if his condition was such as to endanger his chances of making the flight in safety. It was the doctor, himself a flying enthusiast, who took the Captain to his home after the "Heart's Content" came down in the middle of a violent electrical storm on Monday, at Coxheath. This morning he saw the flyer was "shaky" and cabled Mrs. Mollison, advising against the return flight.

Dr. O'Neil said that if the flyer went to Harbor Grace "before several days at least," he would be doing so against advice. "He is tired out. His experience in landing in rain and lightning at Coxheath was about the worst, I should think, he has ever had," said Dr. O'Neil.

He admitted, however, that Captain Mollison had not made any definite promises, beyond the fact that he was willing to stay until "the weather clears up."

Meanwhile plans were going forward. Orders had been left at the airport where the "Heart's Content" was flown from Coxheath yesterday, to have the plane refuelled and groomed for the hop to Harbor Grace. Mechanics are already at the Newfoundland Airport ready to give the little ship a final check over prior to the final long jaunt to Crofton Aerodrome.

URGED TO ABANDON RETURN FLIGHT

London, August 31.—Lord Wakefield, who backed Captain J. A. Mollison's first flight across the Atlantic, today appealed to the flying Scot to abandon the return flight from Harbor Grace.

His voice was added to Amy Johnson's, the flier's bride, who yesterday urged Captain Mollison's host in Sydney, N.S., Dr. Freeman O'Neil, to do his best to have her husband abandon the flight. Dr. O'Neil had described Mollison as suffering from nervous strain.

"My husband thinks the world of Lord Wakefield," Amy said today. "And I am sure he will accede to his request. All of Jim's friends are much disquieted by the message I received yesterday from Dr. O'Neil, I telephoned and cabled Jim, as a result of the message, to abandon the flight and anxiously am waiting for a reply."

Stephan of Hapsburg, ringed round by royalty, was christened with a bottle of water from the River Jordan.

The son of Archduke Anton and Princess Ileana had for a godfather exiled King Alfonso of Spain and for godmother, former Queen Elizabeth of Greece, former Empress Zita of Austria and the Archduchess Margareta. In her absence, Zita was represented by the Archduke Theodor.

WIDE POWERS GRANTED VON PAPEN IN FIGHT TO CONTROL NEW REICH

Special, Undated Decree Signed by President Von Hindenburg Calls for Dissolution of Reichstag at Any Time—Opposition Reported Unwilling to Give Chancellor an Opportunity to Use His New Powers Immediately—Von Papen Discusses Economic Plans With Cabinet.

Berlin, August 31.—Chancellor Franz Von Papen returned to the Capital today with a blanket "death warrant" for the new Reichstag in his pocket, and permission to use the document the minute the government's economic programme is threatened. This was in the form of an emergency decree signed without date by President Paul Von Hindenburg, even before the infant parliament officially had seen the light of day.

The Chancellor came back from East Prussia to confer with the cabinet on his economic programme which contemplates an outlay of about $300,000,000 in tax refunds, staked on the early return of prosperity. Employment would be furnished nearly 2,000,000 if the plan were to be utilized completely.

In an effort to stave off the threat of dissolution and neutralize the Chancellor's talks with the President at the latter's country residence near Neudeck, East Prussia, the newly-elected Nazi president of the Reichstag, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, telegraphed asking for an immediate audience with the chief executive.

The President replied to Goering that he would prefer to see the praesidium of the Reichstag when he returns to Berlin some time during next week.

Political circles professed to see in this a further studied indication the President and the cabinet are running the country, and that others must wait until the chief executive has time for them.

Her Goering adjourned the Reichstag, organized yesterday, until it should be called, which probably will be next week. The new Prussian Landtag, which also met yesterday, was adjourned until September 29th.

Indications in parliamentary circles today seemed to point to at least a little longer life for the Reichstag, the newspaper Zwoelfuhrblatt intimating the Nazis and Centrists were unwilling to give Von Papen a chance to apply his dissolution order immediately.

NAMED TO PLAN WORLD PARLEY

Frederick M. Sackett (top), ambassador to Berlin, and Norman H. Davis (below), former under-secretary of state, have been named to represent the United States on a preparatory commission which is to plan for the world economic conference. The commission is expected to meet in London late in September. The United States agreed to participation on condition that war debts and tariff rates would not be discussed.

Magog, Que., August 31.—Cloudy skies and hazy atmosphere gave a discouraging greeting today to the large group of astronomers whose instruments were ready to record the total eclipse of the sun. Although the sun showed through the clouds occasionally, there was little hope the weather would clear enough for delicate observations to be made.

There was an air of discouragement among the sixty scientists who had hoped for an opportunity to extend very considerably the world's knowledge of the sun and moon. M. Stratton, of Cambridge University, who headed the British eclipse expedition was, however, smiling and philosophical. At best the Weatherman had promised only an even chance of clear skies and such eventualities as had weather must be anticipated by men of science.

While the astronomical observations might prove a failure, there was still a good chance that the layman might see a rare and impressive sight. If the sun was not entirely obscured by clouds the gradual creeping in of the moon would fall on this locality at 3:25:00 p.m. E.S.T., according to calculations. The period of complete darkness was to last for about 100 seconds.

During the period of totality, when the sun's brilliance is dimmed by the moon's shadow, an opportunity is provided to see the sun's corona. This takes the form of an effulgent aura about the sun's rim and is regarded as the most striking effect associated with the phenomena.

Nearly all the thirty instruments set up here on the grass course at New Hampshire Radio Club were to make a record of the corona. Spectrographs that break up the rays of light from the corona and photograph them have been placed on substantial cement piers. Preparations had been made to take approximately one hundred photographs of the effect.

Magog was not, however, the only place where observations were being made. Strung along the centre line of the shadow through the province of Quebec into Vermont and New Hampshire a number of vantage points had been taken by astronomers and it was hoped that at one observation station or other a clear sky would prevail.

In addition, at some places records were to be made of the effect of the eclipse on radio and other things which might respond to the unusual event.

The leaders and their corps of assistants here were well-trained in their parts. Like a drill squad they had during the past few days carried out rehearsals so that each man would carry out his duties promptly in arranging the instruments and taking the photographs.

MORE WEAVERS JOIN RANKS OF THE STRIKERS

Third Day of Lancashire Strike Brings Little in Way of Relief, as Both Sides Maintain Stand.

Manchester, England, August 31.—The third day of the Lancashire cotton weavers' strike today showed both sides standing firm with 145,000 operatives, as estimated by trade unions, participating in the walkout.

The number of strikers was swelled yesterday and strike officials said complete stoppage of the textile industry by the end of the week was expected.

The dispute arose over a ten per cent. wage cut and working conditions, although the great walkout was directly caused by failure to secure reinstatement of 3,000 strikers at Burnley, where it originated.

Detroit, August 31.—Mrs. Vera Miller got a divorce because she said her husband paid her too much attention. He sent flowers every day to the office where she worked and her employers, said they could not employ a woman whose husband could afford to do that.

NOW SCIENCE TELLS WHY BRAN IS SO GOOD FOR HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Healthful Iron

By using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, millions of people have overcome common constipation, and the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

New laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN supplies two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Further experiments prove ALL-BRAN provides twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Eat this delicious cereal and avoid pills and drugs. They cause artificial action, and often lead to harmful habits.

Try two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has a delicious, nut-sweet flavor. Enjoy as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in making fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

YOUNGEST BARRYMORE MAKES FIRST PUBLIC APPEARANCE

In This Washingtonian Year Many Interesting New Facts Have Been Revealed About the Great American.

That a French Huguenot should have been the earliest American ancestor of George Washington and should also have been the "original" ancestor for Yorktown, Virginia, presents a poetic coincidence in truth that takes on the aspect of destiny says the New York Times in an editorial. The inscription, which records these facts marks the Site of the home of the adventurous Huguenot who was born in France 1591 and died in Yorktown 1657.

The original Yankee for Yorktown and through the marriage of his daughter Elizabeth to Colonel George Meade he became the earliest American ancestor of General George Washington.

It further recites that he was a captain in the Indian uprising, a member of the House of Burgesses, justice of the county of York and a leader in thrusting out Governor Harvey, which was the first opposition to the British Colonial policy.

Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, who has followed the ancestry of Washington back for many generations, states that so far as he is aware this is his only direct European Continental heritage.

He showed some of the traits which are most distinct in Washington's character, and expresses the opinion that during the Bicentennial no one else has brought to light new Washington material of such significance as that discovered by Dr. Stout, who conducted the researches resulting in the establishment of the French Huguenot claim to a share in developing the nature and determining the career of Washington.

Four other Presidents had Huguenot blood in their veins: Tyler, Garfield, Roosevelt and Taft. But Washington is now to have the supreme place of honor in the Memorial Church in Huguenot Park, which was erected as the National Monument of the Huguenot-Walloon Tercentenary. Jay, Boudinot and Henry Laurens, Paul Revere and Richard Dana, Longfellow, Whittier, Freneau and Thoreau, Maury, Dana and Le Conte, Vassar, Girard and Gallaudet and thousands of others are remembered there and will find added distinction when Washington takes his place among them in this Washingtonian year.

As has been observed, there could be no more appropriate place for such a memorial than the south shore of Staten Island, "a region rich in Huguenot tradition" and of Arcadian simplicity and peacefulness, but near the great, towering city up the bay, in whose beginnings those of Huguenot-Walloon ancestry had a proud, historic and not-to-be-forgotten part.

In a news article in the same edition, the Times discusses the date of Washington's birth. The writer says any schoolboy is sure that George Washington was born on February 22, 1732, but his biographers are less certain. The Washington family Bible gives the date, somewhat ambiguously, as "the 11th day of February 1731-2." Which year was it 1731 or 1732? Does this merely mean, as some say, that he was born in the Winter of 1731 and 1732—that is, in what we should call February, 1732?

The fact that the day is put at February 11 instead of February 22 is easily explained. When Julius Caesar established his calendar in 46 B. C., he based it on the assumption that there was 365 1/4 days in a year; therefore he ordered that each year should have 365 days except every fourth year, which should have 366. Actually, however, the year is eleven minutes and fourteen seconds short of 365 1/4 days.

As the centuries passed, this slight error became clearly noticeable. By the sixteenth century it amounted to about ten days—that is, the sun passed over the equator each Spring ten calendar days earlier than it had in Caesar's time.

To remedy this situation, Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 ordered that ten days be dropped out of the calendar. And to prevent a similar discrepancy in the future, he further declared that only those centenary years should be leap years which were multiples of 400; this would take care of the error in the Julian calendar, which amounted to about three days in 400 years.

Pope Gregory's calendar was accepted in most Christian countries, but England retained the Julian calendar until 1751. By that time the total error was about eleven days. To bring the calendar up to date, therefore, a royal proclamation ordered that the 3rd day of September, 1752 should be officially known as the 14th of September, and the following days numbered accordingly. At the same time, January 1 was made the beginning of the year 1752; formerly New Year's day was March 25.

Both of these changes affected Washington. His birthday was moved up eleven days, to February 22, and since the year 1751 only extended from March to January, he had no birthday in that year. Hence, if he was born in 1731, old style, he did not reach his twentieth birthday until 1752; this is the assumption on which the bicentennial of his birth is being celebrated this year. If he was born in 1732, old style, however, his twentieth birthday occurred in 1753 and we are celebrating his bi-centennial a year too soon.

PEPYS' DIARY TOUCHES UPON MANY SUBJECTS

London Fire, the Plague, Attendance at Church and Love Affairs But a Few of Subjects Treated.

Arthur Christopher Benson began to keep a regular diary in 1897. At any time during his busy day he would seize on it and bring it up to date. He filled up a grey or purple notebook each month. Year by year he filled in these little volumes until there were no fewer than one hundred and eighty. Mr. Benson was for many years assistant master at Eton and master of Magdalen College, so he was in a position which enabled him to meet with many of the celebrities of his day and many are the stories which he has to tell. Although extremely interesting and entertaining, the Diary cannot be classed as personal. In the winter 1908-9 no one would suspect how dire his sufferings were. On October 3, after a long entry, he writes: "I am glad that for the time being I am in perceptive spirits, to be kept by a Master of Magdalen, an essayist and a novelist. James Woodforde's Diary is that of a country parson in the eighteenth century, so in it you have rural England, but one might say that it is too personal, as the person is almost a part of the scene. Barbellion writes consciously and deliberately for publication and loved to pose: 'My father was Sir Thomas Browne and my mother Marie Bashkirtseff. See what a curious hybrid I am.'" How unlike these diaries are to that of Pepys, with its personal note and confessions of his many peccadilloes.

Pepys of the seventeenth century is of the Court, the Admiralty, London, the notables of his day, as well as comments on the Great Fire, the Plague, his attendance at church and his many love affairs. It is a personal diary, but it is that of a man about town, not by any means fearful to record all his petty thoughts and actions.

Many people have tried to write diaries, only to acknowledge their defeat. Byron acknowledges this when he writes: "I fear one lies more to oneself than to anyone else." Gladstone, I think, goes straight to the point when he writes: "I do not enter into interior matters. It is so easy to write, but to write honestly nearly impossible." Yet it is this nearly impossible which Pepys, and only he, has achieved. Even as a boy of sixteen we find him indiscreet, when he exclaims on the day of the execution of Charles I. at Whitehall: "Were I to preach upon this matter my text would be, 'The memory of the wicked shall rot.'"

There is some uncertainty as regards the exact year of his birth, as it is given as February 23, 1632, and 1633; in any case it is now three hundred years since his familiar figure walked the London streets. At the age of seventeen he entered as a bursar at Cambridge, then proceeded to Magdalen College, where he was a member of the society of scholars; he attained, but on October 31, 1658, he is severely admonished for being scandalously drunk with a comrade. When twenty-two years of age, December 1, 1655, he married Elizabeth St. Michel, daughter of Alexandre Marchant, Sieur de Saint Michel, of a good Anjou family. As he was a Huguenot he was dismissed by Henrietta Maria of France from her court. How Samuel made their acquaintance is unknown. Sir Edward Montagu, Admiral of the Fleet and future Earl of Sandwich, makes him his confidential servant, with quarters in his house at Whitehall. When his diary begins, 1659, he is residing at Axe Yard, Westminster, and had been appointed clerk to Sir George Downing of the Exchequer at a salary of 250 per annum. He witnessed the rise and fall of the Cromwellian period. In 1660 he also witnessed the arrival in London of General Monck. The tavern or coffee house is the market for news, but that place is expensive and little money is in his pocket. He is worried, as he paid for two bottles of wine which he carried from the tavern: "I had not the wit to let them know at table that it was I that paid for them, and so I lost my thanks for them." Lord Montagu takes him as his secretary on a trip to The Hague, "a most neat place in all respects." All the show places are visited and duly noted. He is accorded the honor of seeing the young Prince of Orange, the future William III, and also of kissing the hand of his new sovereign, "a very sober man." He purchased some "fine linnen stockings and wide cannons," along with presents to his wife. We find his in great uncertainty of mind about a pretty woman he found sleeping in his bedroom, and again, "kissing a young maiden who wore a ring," and also, on another occasion "toasted the King's health so well that waking betimes in the morning he mistook the rising for the setting sun."

Pepys returned to England on the ship carrying Charles II, who relates to him on the quarterdeck how he made his escape from Worcester. This converts him to an enthusiastic admirer of the Stuarts. He is now appointed Clerk of the Acts, and with this appointment he begins his public career, justice of the peace for Middlesex, Essex and Kent; he resolves to learn "the multiplication tables."

No ordinary person is Samuel Pepys, Esquire, faithful subject of Charles Second, confidante of my Lord Admiral Montagu, Master of Arts, Justice of the Peace, Clerk of the Acts and of the Privy Seal. His wife must be received in society, so Elizabeth is admitted to Montagu's table. Behold him now a man of some consequence and in a position of granting favors. Being invited as godfather to a christening, Pepys brings a cup and six silver spoons, but, alas, when he discovers his name is not to be given to the child, he keeps the cup and spoons for another occasion. With the Restoration "jollity" returns to England, ale and wines appear on the table and our hero has "painful nights."

"Went to bed, my head aching all night. My body out of order by last night's drinking, which is my great folly. About the middle of the night I was very ill—I think with eating and drinking too much, so I was forced to call the maid, who pleased my wife and I in her running up and down so innocently in her smock." Pepys is master of the house and situation, but there came a time when such was not the case. During an agitation of the Fifth Monarchy Men we find Pepys on his doorstep. "Though with no good courage at all, but that I might not seem to be affeared, got my sword and pistol, which however, I had no powder to charge." At this time we read: "The King came to me of himself, and told me, Mr. Pepys, said he, 'I do give you thanks for your good services all this year, and I assure you I am very sensible of it.'" The king's coronation day had been a day of joyful experiences. He attends My Lord's table, picks up some food and quiets himself to the sound of four and twenty violins.

Returning home he falls in with some gallants and is compelled to drink the King's health. The day finished. "Scarcely in bed, but my head begins turning round and I was sick; if ever I was drunk, I was this time." His morning collation has to strengthen his stomach, so he has his "morning drink in chocolate."

While he may sleep until the end of the sermon, he suffers remorse, but "how charming, when gliding on the river, to take off boots and stockings and dangle the feet in the water." He experiences the "pleasure like that I felt in the country, sleeping alone without my wife."

An event of great importance happened on January 3, 1661, when Pepys saw women on the stage. French actresses had dared to appear on the London stage in 1639, but their reception was so hostile that the experiment was not repeated till this year. "A woman acted Parthenia and came afterwards on the stage wearing men's clothes. She had the best legs I ever saw, and I was very well pleased with it." Only a short time before, the King had asked, "When does the play commence?" "Why, the Queen has not yet finished shaving."

Passionately fond of the theatre, he is seen one day in the eighteen-penny seats by clerks in the office who are in the half-crown boxes—this spoils his evening. The stage, especially the "beauties," create a tenderness in Pepys. "I sat behind in a dark place; a lady spit back-wards upon me by mistake, not seeing me, but after seeing her to be a very pretty lady, I was not troubled at all about it."

Elizabeth, his wife, makes a scene regarding his artistic friends, so, in imitation of Mrs. Stuart, she wears ringlets; this he cannot tolerate, swears and clenches his fist. They go to dine at an ordinary, when peace reigns for the moment. On returning home Mrs. Pepys returns to the charge, but Samuel buries himself in Boyle's Hydrostatics and lets the storm pass.

Evelyn had known Pepys for forty years when he wrote: "Today (May 26, 1703) died Mr. Samuel Pepys, a very worthy, industrious and curious person. Not an Englishman surpasses him in knowledge of the navy. He was universally loved, hospitable, generous, well-informed in many things, an expert in music." Mr. Arthur Ponsonby, an authority on diarists, writes of him: "A man who made no deep scratch on the surface of life in his day, but his official integrity won for him respect in his department, whose constancy preserved for him, the affection of a few friends, and whose pleasant occupation brought him to the knowledge of men of learning."

GUESTS AT THE HOTELS.

Our friends, the hotel men, complain that visitors to the Sherbrooke Fair no longer stay in the city over-night. That is, fewer of them do, than in the good old days of yore, when the visitor came from a long driving distance.

Possibly the disappearance of the old dollar-ated bus as much to do with this as motor cars.

A well-to-do farmer said, "The only thing in Sherbrooke which did not go up in price is the yearly subscription to the Record." What doesn't go up can't come down, and the subscription list still holds its complete coverage.

It is always better to do a wholesale business than a retail one; better to have a full house than two pair.

To be sure, the food tax stands in the way of the decreased price which should follow the lower price of foodstuffs and wages.

Still, there are many factors in the hotel situation which should be given the consideration which individual hotels are giving to it.

One thing is assured. Any good hotel can have a waiting list if it be gone about in the right way.

ANSWERING THE ROLL CALL OF THE SURVIVORS.

There will be a large gathering of Returned Soldiers in Danville on the 10th of September, where officers and men who served overseas will join in a re-union at the call of the Canadian Legion.

It is a story of mingled glory and sadness. At the gathering there will be a spirit of camaraderie such as old soldiers alone can enjoy to the utmost.

There was a total enlistment of 593,411 for the Canadian Expeditionary forces.

Of these:
There went overseas ..... 418,032
Also for Flying Corps ..... 24,160
Enlisted with Allied Forces.. 14,399

A grand army of ..... 433,811
The balance of Canada's "over half million" served at the Canadian base.

There were killed and died during the war 84,674.
The wounded numbered 149,732.

So that thirty-four per cent. of the army of the Dominion actually bled for their country.

At the end of March, 1931, there were 73,787 disabled pensioners and 19,483 dependent widows and children.

From April 1st, 1916 to March 31st, 1931, the net disbursements on account of pensions was $468,943,483, the amount for the last year being $45,114,488.

"The best hearts are ever the bravest," said Sterne, but the epic of the story of a young and independent country flying to the aid of the Mother Country remains yet to be told by some Lincolnian expression.

milked, observed at the supper table to his hostess: "Thank you, no. I do not want cow's milk, I want milkman's milk."

There will be a clear and specific issue at the general elections of the future, and the price of milk to the consumer, as compared to that paid to the dairy farmer, will take only second place to that of the growing burden of taxation.

Dairy farmers who ship to Montreal, claim that they net only 14 cents a quart on milk which is sold to the home at ten cents a quart, and that this is too big a spread for mere distribution.

Possibly the farmers are themselves to blame in some respects. They rely upon the distributor for service formerly given by themselves, forgetting that whoever performs this service must do so at a cost to themselves.

What ever may relieve a man of endeavour, or of diligent performance of a necessary duty, someone must pay for it. And the cost is usually more than the farmer would pay if he performed the same service himself, as he did in days of yore.

Harking back to the good old days of 1872, a diamond anniversary period, the dairy farmer supplied his own local market, and he was better off in net returns than is the dairyman who accepts all the paternal services offered.

A MINOR DEFICIT, AND THE FIRST IN TEN YEARS.

With a drop of over ten millions of dollars in revenue, the Taschereau Government in Quebec will have a deficit of but $384,708 in one of the most strenuous years in all its history.

Premier Taschereau and his colleagues who have for more than two years been studying and practising economy, can be congratulated on their overcoming to such an extent the drop in revenue.

The losses were incurred chiefly in the setback of the sale of spirituous liquors by the Quebec Liquor Commission, which is a consumption devoted to be approved by the temperance people.

There was also a falling off of four millions caused by the slackening in building, and the lesser stumpage dues collected from the lumbermen.

Increases were registered from food and amusements, and also in the fact that we use more gasoline in riding about and trying to forget our troubles.

All in all this first deficit within ten years is not a major one, and in the face of the conditions the Provincial Government may be relied upon to adjust its affairs so that there should be no need to impose upon the people some new forms of taxation as is being done by the civic government of Montreal.

EDITOR'S NOTE BOOK.

Charles N. Dorion, M.P., who won out in Quebec-Montmorency in 1930, has challenged Premier Taschereau to sense public opinion on the St. Lawrence Seaway by running against him in that constituency. Mr. Dorion has more bravery than discretion, but he cannot cheer himself up in that manner. Mr. Taschereau did not consider him worthy of his steel, but retorted that it would be quite as logical for him to ask Mr. Bennett to test out the feeling in the Premier's own constituency.

"I would send him to prison, only I think a fine would punish him worse," said a Toronto magistrate who imposed a penalty of $500 on Joseph Green for taking civic relief when he had $201 in the savings bank, Government bonds, and properties paying him rent. "Just an old miser" was the verdict of the shameless fellow.

"A doctor's diagnosis of a business depression was that 'the times have hardening of the arteries and the circulation is bad.'"

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The C. W. Gate, K.C., and C. G. Knight left to attend the Methodist General Conference at Winnipeg as delegates from Sherbrooke district.

The harness races on the first days of the Sherbrooke Fair were won by the entries of H. B. Stewart, of Beebe, and J. E. Dearden, of Richmond. The best time was 2:22 1/4.

Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan returned from a visit to the Maine coast; Miss Lizzie Sangster from a vacation at the seaside; George Thompson from Boston to visit the family of George E. Smith.

Rev. Richmond Shreve, newly appointed rector of St. Peter's Church, arrived with his family from New York State and took up residence for the time being at North Hatley.

The 80th birthday of David McCurdy, whose home was a few miles from Lennoxville, was celebrated by a gathering of friends and relatives. The presentation of an easy chair to "Uncle David" was a feature of the afternoon.

Letters to The Editor

OUR TAX BLEEDING COUNTRY
To the Editor,
Sir—Farmers have been thinking rather than writing for a short time back. We have been haying and harvesting, and wondering. So much has been said by the press and other political parties that all it was necessary to do was to read and listen.

However now and then a farmer speaks up as did Alden Lenon in your issue of August 25th, and tells some real truth: "When all farmers are forced to furnish soup kitchens, we will still live in soup." We still live in hope that the Imperial Conference will help out a great deal with regard to our markets, as friendly gatherings of this nature among the people, whether they be rich or poor matters not, to discuss their own affairs, is sure to bring about mutual gain to all concerned. This is the attitude the farmers have taken, and some good results have been obtained.

The casual observer will note that many who are not farmers are with us in sympathy, and we believe will join with us when the right time comes. We cannot quite agree with the attitude the farmers have been taking in Iowa, to force the issue, as most farmers are law-abiding citizens, but some of our friends about what are "full of potato bugs." Hence we might look to England for a little guidance again. On this point the farmers have sadly neglected their duty too long. This is a free country, with the exception of the numerous taxes, duties, licenses, inspectors and permits placed upon us, which are too great a burden on our people to stand it much longer; some adjustments must be made to relieve the situation.

We should call a halt to further extravagance and unreasonable expenses of the present Government, both Liberal and Conservative, and ask our leaders to be cautious about signing up new treaties for waterways which would still further place our country in billions of debt. We have on our hands already too many public-owned roads, and they are just helping to ruin our country and driving the tax payers to the Poor House every day. The Good Book says, "The meek shall inherit the earth" and if we are not so now, the generations to follow will have time to ponder the question: "Why did they pay the debts of this Dominion at the rate we are travelling in? The sooner we encourage men to work for the country's good instead of for a party, the sooner times will become normal. If our Government would devote a little more time to studying how they could reduce taxation, and a little less on trying to think up some new taxes to add on another tax, where it will not be noticed by the public, it would be much appreciated by the electors and ratepayers.

What are the only two leading industries in our Province that are prospering? Rum and tobacco. Are these the basic industries of the land? If so what are we coming to? Can the rising generations keep them booming and prosper themselves? What kind of an example are we setting our children to follow in their own land, and for changes to be made? City dwellers and farmers think it over and if possible suggest a remedy.

In closing let me say one word that Mr. Alfred Wood the Editor has championed the farmer's cause with little recompense for his time or space in his own paper, which should be in every home for 50 miles around. I am sure every member of our Quebec Branch of the United Farmers of Canada appreciate what he has done for us.

I must stop writing for I want to go to the Great Eastern Exhibition and see the stock and meet the other boys.

Yours truly,
J. B. REED.

PRESS COMMENT

CANADA HONOURED.
Halifax Herald.

People are reading with interest that the man who "tells the time of the world" and who "largely directs the movements of men on or over the sea" is Canadian.

Sir Frank Dyson, M.L.D., F.R.S., Astronomer Royal, with headquarters at the world-famed Greenwich Observatory in England, accompanied by Lady Dyson, is a visitor to this country. With Sir Frank and Lady Dyson are several other British astronomers.

Sir Frank is sixty-four years old and the eldest son of a Baptist minister. He has fought his own way to the top. By means of scholarships he graduated from Cambridge University. He has studied several sciences in different parts of the world, been a member of the Royal Society of London, and now holds one of the most responsible posts in the realm of astronomy. Some years ago he wrote "a little book on astronomy" as he termed it, and which he modestly proclaims is now "very much out of date." He is one of the few experts who understand the Einstein Theory.

All this is of particular interest to Canadians on the eve of the phenomenon which brings these distinguished scientists to our shores.

LOBBYING FOR JUDGESHIPS.

The persistent rumour that Mr. Justice Gregory is to retire from the Supreme Court Bench of British Columbia should revive serious discussion over the possibility of improving the present method of naming new men to that high office.

As the situation is now, the Dominion Government is supposed, ostensibly, to name Supreme Court judges without consulting anybody.

As a matter of actual practice, whenever a Supreme Court vacancy occurs, Ottawa is flooded with the representations of lobbyists seeking the judicial plum for their friends.

Now even under these circumstances the harassed Ottawa Government seldom makes a mistake in its nominations. The various Supreme Court benches in Canada are composed of remarkably capable men.

But still, even though rare, these mistakes do occur. And the appointment of a single incompetent judge in any province can corrupt the justice of that entire province.

To avoid making any mistakes at all, the nomination of new judges should be entrusted to the provincial Bar Association. The members of this body, or even the members-at-large, should select say three names to submit to Ottawa. Ottawa could then choose any one of these names and make the judicial appointment without any possibility of mistake.

Apparently the principle of lobbyism should not be allowed to interfere with the grave and vital task of choosing judges who represent the most stable, sound and efficient factor in our entire system of government.

CITY MANAGERSHIP
The question of city managership is going to be looked into in the near future. It has never got further than academic discussion in St. Thomas.

The stockholders of a large business corporation elect a board of directors to formulate the policy in this behalf, and in the company. In every case where the right man has been hired it has been a success. Four hundred towns and cities in the United States have managers. The system is making steady headway. The board hires a general manager to carry out the policy, and the best of his skill and knowledge, and he is responsible to the board. If he is not successful they dismiss him. If he shows good results he stays on the job. A successful manager has always made money by wise buying and smart spending.

LOONBEAMS

by Ted Bullock.

Blinded by the march of progress, humanity sometimes forgets what simple things our civilization rests on.

It is easy to fall down and figuratively worship some intricate invention of laboratory-prisoned scientists; hard to remember that the most astounding triumphs of science rest, after all, on humble raw materials.

I was moved by these subtle musings this morning by the Provincial Mines Department exhibit at the Fair.

My attention was attracted by the gentle fluttering of a great Union Jack, visible from a distance.

As I drew nearer I saw a cleverly made silhouette of King George and the Prince of Wales carried out in milled asbestos and crushed chrome.

In front of polished panelled walls of beautiful Quebec wood, I saw piles of humble-looking rocks, glass tubes filled with pulverized minerals.

"Not quite as impressive," a friend said, "as the midway, the grand stand, or some of the other exhibits, is it?"

"Superficially it is not," I replied. "But basically, my lad, this is probably the most important exhibit of the lot."

Our entire civilization rests on minerals.

Without them we would still be living in holes in the ground, attired in garish creations of be-draggled dog skins, hunting food with sharpened bits of rock.

You lie asleep in a comfortable bed slung on metal springs, supported in a frame at least partly made of metal.

A metal alarm clock awakens you, sends you to your bath in a metal tub. Pipes, taps, heaters which bring you your warm water are all made of metal.

You eat a breakfast made on a metal stove in metal utensils, off china made of minerals and with metal flatware.

You walk or ride to work. Your sidewalks are laid and your streets paved with minerals in one form or another.

The building you work in is of minerals or metal, was built with tools of metal.

And so it goes all day.

My agents inform me that commercial minerals worth seven million, fifteen thousand, two hundred and thirty-nine dollars were produced and sold last year in these Eastern Townships alone.

Those minerals were made up, right in our eleven counties, into manufactured goods worth practically eighty million dollars.

We are accustomed to think of ourselves as an agricultural region. Yet our total farm products last year brought us only a bit less than fifteen millions.

Quebec's astute Mines Minister, Joseph Edouard Perrault, will visit the Fair today.

I commend to him his own booth, prepared right in Sherbrooke under the direction of Glenn Sampson.

It is the front window of a magnificent industry.

Quebec's astounding development in the last thirty years rests not a little on her output of aluminum, silver, of chromite, on her $11,000,000 a year in copper, her molybdenite, her lead and zinc, her iron, her gold, her asbestos, feldspar, mica, apatite, kaolin clay, magnesite, talc, colouring materials, slate, granite, cement, marble and building stone.

CITY BRIEFLETS

TWO SUSPECTS ARE HELD
The local police, in their work of protecting the public on the Exhibition Grounds, yesterday afternoon placed in custody two persons whom they suspected of being pick-pockets.

The two, a young man and a woman, were arrested by Constable Henri Boisvert near the entrance to the Grand Stand. They were warned by Chief H. O. Camirand to leave town—and the Chief said this morning that they were leaving.

Over fifteen children were reported lost yesterday on the Fair Grounds. The police recovered the lads before the day was out.

SEVERAL ACCIDENTS
Two automobile accidents occurred near Sherbrooke yesterday. Philippe Pinard, of Cookshire, driving from Lennoxville to Sherbrooke, was injured and removed to the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital when the car in which he was driving collided with another vehicle driven by F. Hardy, of Newport, Vt., who escaped uninjured. Pinard's condition is not necessarily serious.

Charles Ward, of Providence, R.I., and a companion were also removed to the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital yesterday by Lord's ambulance following an accident which occurred when the car in which they were travelling left the highway, near Little Lake on the Montreal road, broke a telephone pole and crashed in a field. Ward's condition is serious, although not critical.

Norbert Cote, 37 Belvedere street, was sitting on the door steps in front of his home, watching some men working in the street, when he took a fainting spell and dropped on the sidewalk. He was removed by Lord's ambulance to the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital.

Nearly fifty millions a year are taken out of our mines and quarries.

And as our people, by means of displays like this, become increasingly conscious of the value of our mineral wealth, we shall get far more than that.

Which reminds me of an invitation to cast a Loonbeamatic eye over the ancient gold diggings at Dalton where John Henry Pope, in the far-off sixties, dug out for himself a cool quarter million.

I had intended to pop over in the Puddlejumper with Alfred Wood and John Henry's Senator-Son Rufus, the Cookshire snorter.

Now I play with the idea of borrowing Charlie Howard's costly Packard and of inviting the Honourable Joseph Edouard along.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hall, who have been guests for a few days of Mrs. E. G. Milford, "Fernhurst", Howard street, returned last evening to their home in Montreal West.

Dr. and Mrs. Dallas G. Bray and Mr. Dallas Bray, Jr., of New York, arrived in Sherbrooke last night, and are guests of Dr. Bray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Gilbert Bray, Queen street.

Miss Nish and Miss Philp, who have come from Macdonald College to act as judges in the Domestic Science classes at the Exhibition, are guests at Mrs. W. M. Tomlinson's, Melbourne street.

Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, arrived in town today to visit the Exhibition, while Dr. Archibald, director of Clifford Ave. Stock Service at Ottawa, was expected to arrive and be a guest at the Fair this afternoon.

Miss Ruby Hunt, who has spent the summer holidays at "Prospect House," on Melbourne street, is leaving tomorrow, to resume her duties as a governess. During her stay Miss Hunt was also a guest of friends in Ayer's Cliff and Bury.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenton Lothrop, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Jamieson and their daughter, Miss Evelyn Jamieson, returned to Montreal to meet Miss Kathleen Harvey, who returned in the Duchess of Bedford, after a delightful sojourn abroad. The return trip was made via Knowlton, where Miss Harvey left the motor party to join her mother, Mrs. Ella Harvey.

Miss Gertrude Meagher, Laurier avenue, has returned from Frampton, Que., where she spent a pleasant two weeks' vacation. On her return, Miss Meagher was accompanied by Messrs. Gerald and Frank O'Connor and Miss May Pickett, of Albany, and the Misses Henrietta and Helena Hinds, of Roselle, N. J. While away Miss Meagher also visited Quebec City and the Shrine of Ste. Anne de Beauce.

The ladies of the Sherbrooke Country Club, enjoyed a jolly well-contested match yesterday, when "choose your own partners" was the order of the day. The competition resulted in Mrs. Stephen Newton and Mrs. F. A. Baldwin winning first place, Mrs. B. N. Holtham and Mrs. C. P. Buckland coming second. On account of the eclipse today, the challenge match with the juniors, has been postponed until Friday.

Daughters of the Empire will be invited in hearing that at the exhibition of Handicrafts in Toronto, sponsored by the Lyceum Club and the Women's Art Association, there is shown in the I. O. D. E. booth, a beautiful banner, with the emblem of the Order embroidered in colors, contributed by members of the local chapters, members of the I. O. D. chapters, members of the local chapters will remember Miss F. Forabji, regent of the chapter in far off India.

And so we go cheerily along, refreshed, and encouraged to try and do better.

William David Andrews, of Winnipeg, makes us blush with this letter: "I wish to assure you that I am always glad to receive the Record for I always feel better after I read it. There are some good papers, some bigger papers, but when it comes to comparison of papers the Sherbrooke Record stands in the superlative degree of excellence, for it is the best. It is unsurpassed for news and truth, and its pages always abound with a lofty grandeur of expression and high ideals which make it welcome in so many homes. I am always so glad to get it, for it makes a man feel like a new man; for he knows that he has read something worth while."

FINE WEATHER IS EXPECTED FOR ECLIPSE

Scientists at Magog and Throughout Advantageous Sections of Quebec Prepared to Make Observations of Total Eclipse of the Sun This Afternoon—Sherbrooke to Be in Darkness for Ninety-Three Seconds.

At 4:25:04 o'clock this afternoon the moon will roll in front of the sun and a great shadow, several thousand miles in length, will be cast across the earth's surface.

For ninety-three seconds Sherbrooke will be enshrouded in a darkness that will be slightly more intense than at night when there is a full moon in the sky.

This, of course, will occur providing the weather is favorable and there are no clouds obscuring the sun at the time of the great phenomenon. Commencing in the far north, the umbral shadow will sweep directly across the Magnetic Pole, Hudson's Bay, through the Province of Quebec—striking principally Magog, Parent and Sherbrooke—and then into the northeastern United States, finally crossing eastwards to disappear at sunset in the mid-Atlantic.

Tons of scientific equipment, including coronagraphs, spectrographs, tower cameras and huge telescopes, have been brought to this province by astronomers of several countries who are here to observe the daytime darkness this afternoon. Many of these astronomers are stationed at Magog, which is a scene of activity today, as final preparations are made to observe the spectacle in the heavens. Observations of a hundred seconds will provide work for the scientists for a year.

While there are no scientific groups in Sherbrooke, the city will be almost in the direct path of the eclipse and large crowds are gathered at the Exhibition Grounds and other advantageous points this afternoon— impatiently awaiting the darkening of the skies and the occurrence of the awe-inspiring event.

A total eclipse of the sun is a phenomenon of such unforgettable character that no persons who can possibly be within the favored area at the right time should allow trivial circumstance or apathy to prevent them from making the attempt to see it. The majority of mankind live their lives through and die without ever seeing this solemn and impressive spectacle.

To have the path of totality come to one's very door is an event only likely to happen on the average once in 360 years. Hence those whose span of life brings them on to the doorstep at the right time are extremely fortunate. In the last 1,300 years, the lunar shadow has only twice passed over London, and five times over Edinburgh.

The scientific encampment at Magog, occupying close quarters between two fairways of the Hermitage Club golf course, has presented a scene of bustling activity for the past few weeks, and the site has become a converging point for scientists from many parts of Europe, Canada and the United States.

The British visitors provide the nucleus around which the representatives of other countries gather. Cambridge University has sent a large party under Dr. F. J. M. Stratton, director of its solar physics observatory. McGill University and the University of Toronto also have a number of scientists at Magog today.

Of the instruments to be used in observation work only three will take photographs of the corona. The main part of the work is spectrographic and the set-up of lenses, mirrors and refractors is indeed a confusing one to the layman's eyes. A hundred more instruments developed in three improvised dark rooms. The astronomers expect that they will spend most of the night in these dark rooms for anxiety as to the results obtained will be at a feverish pitch until the plates begin to tell their story.

Many months of study, however, will be necessary before these sensitive plates give up the major portion of their knowledge. The clearer the weather, the more detail they will record. A light haze, such as often accompanies summer weather, while not desirable, will not nullify the efforts of the expedition.

In regard to ordinary photographs of the eclipse by amateurs it is feared that the results will be disappointing. Taking the average focus of lens to be five to six inches, the sun will be only a few minutes in diameter or hardly the size of the head of a pin.

Photographing the sun during the first stages with naked lens stopped down to the smallest diaphragm will give blurred reflections around the sun. The appearance of the sun, in diameter or hardly the size of the head of a pin. The best result can be obtained by holding a piece of film in front of the lens. The film must be of such a density that when it is looked through the orb of the sun is sharply defined to the eye and appears of the same brightness as when the moon is examined. It is, therefore, important that the silver in the film is developed to a density that makes it safe to look at the sun in blue sky at midday.

Special observations to be made today by the Cambridge expedition established at Magog include a study of the wave-length of the principal coronal line by an objective interferometer, a photometric study of the intensity of the lines of the sun's chromosphere at different levels in the sun's outer atmosphere and a study of the polarization of the corona in different wave-lengths. Amongst other paraphernalia the party has brought a 10-foot coronagraph, an objective grating, spectrographs including quartz slit one, and a 20-inch reflector with a prism spectrometer.

Astronomers are particularly interested in the "flash spectrum" just visible for a brief instant at the beginning and end of totality.

The spectrum of sunlight is a rainbow-colored band of light created by the narrow dark Fraunhofer absorption lines, but just at totality these dark lines are reversed, that is, they shine out as bright lines, the more intense background of the light from the surface of the sun having been cut off.

A spectrum is produced by means of one or more prisms or fine gratings, which separate the paths of radiations having different wave-lengths of colors. From the bright or dark lines in the spectrum the atoms in a hot gaseous source or intervening gas may be identified, each kind of atom producing its own set of signals which also give information about the electrical and magnetic state of the source.

Whether or not there is oxygen in the corona of the sun will also be probably determined this afternoon. So much has been accomplished of late in photography in the red that it is hoped by scientists to be able to obtain better pictures of the sun's atmosphere and corona than ever before.

The corona is the sun's crown of glory, its outer atmosphere, and the most overwhelming part of a total eclipse. It consists of a pearly radiance emitted from the sun in all directions to distances of many millions of miles. Its light, however, is so faint that it can be seen only in regard to developments following the eclipse there will be probably little scientific news for some time, as much research and calculation will have to come before any authentic conclusions can be drawn.

In the meantime the members of the general public with the scientists in hoping that the view may be satisfactory for all concerned.

Fellows' Syrup contains valuable natural elements which promote digestion and the conversion of food into blood, muscle, tissue and bone. This reliable, scientific preparation is made in Canada and sold at all drug stores.

HEAVY HITTING KEEPS YANKEES WELL IN FRONT

Circuit Smashing by Ruth, Gehrig and Lazzeri Responsible for New Yorkers' Present Standing

New York, August 31.—The ability to belt home runs into the distant bleachers when there are men on base and the game hanging by a thread has been an outstanding characteristic of the Yankees in their headlong flight toward the American League pennant.

A glance at their record reveals the clouting New Yorkers have won a total of twenty-eight games by the slender margin of one run, and that in nineteen instances they pounded one or more for the circuit to achieve victory.

Yesterday it was Gehrig whose two homers brought victory over the Chicago White Sox by six to five. Johnny Allen did not pitch much of a game, yielding twelve hits, but Lou's thirtieth and thirty-first four-baggers brought in five runs and made it easy for the big rookie to score his fifteenth triumph in seventeen games.

The lowly Boston Red Sox gave the day's prize performance in knocking Wes Ferrell from the box in the first inning and beating Cleveland by six to two.

The Chicago Cubs set a season's record in the National League by defeating the New York Giants by four to three for their eleventh straight victory.

SPORTING NOTES

LEADING BATTERS The leading batters in the major leagues to date are:

BRITISH GOLFERS GET LEAD FROM U.S. Brookline, Mass., August 31.—The British Walker Cup golf team seeking its first victory over the United States, today stole a lead on its rivals.

Why Doesn't Babe Didrikson Swim the Channel?

New York, August 31.—That remarkable athlete Babe Didrikson is getting ready to compete in the Women's National Golf championship beginning at Salem, Mass., September 26, but that is such a long way off that we feel prompted to make a few suggestions as to how the Babe might spend a few idle moments of her time meanwhile.

It strikes me that the Babe ought to go in for a little variety. She can run, jump, play basketball, toss the javelin and discus or whatever happens to be handy; she can play a respectable game of golf with gentlemen years her senior, and she can cook, sew, write, turn handspindles and, possibly, could play the dulcimer if properly introduced.

Also, she hasn't ridden a winning race on Equipoise. It is suggested, however, that she ride Equipoise before swimming the channel, and if you remember what the pictures of channel swimmers looked like, you know why.

Just as a preliminary warmup, how about a finish match, no-holds-barred with either Strangler Lewis or Jim London? Shouldn't this be a great help to her putting at Salem, and Babe says she isn't such a good putter, you know. She could practice putting the Strangler into ringsiders' laps.

JOHN KERRIGAN BEDFORD FAIR ARRANGEMENTS CONCLUDED FOR SPORT EVENTS

Knowlton Star Came Second to Beaconsfield Performer in Provincial Golf Tourney Yesterday—Former E. T. Title-Holder Turned in Score of 82.

Montreal, August 31.—John Kerrigan, a member of the Knowlton Golf Club and former Eastern Townships junior titleholder, came within a single stroke of capturing the junior golf championship of the province yesterday.

Parke, the stationmaster, was particularly keen that the men in his charge should appear the smartest on the line. For some weeks he had noticed that Pat, the porter, was becoming slovenly in his appearance, and he decided to talk to him on the subject.

It seems to me, would be a natural for Madison Square Garden and would fill that bowl at Long Island City as it never has been filled before.

Other hints to the Babe, as to events in which she might take part to her athletic advancement:

- 1—Drive a team of huskies in the Pas Dog Derby. 2—Contest with Sonia Henie for the figure skating championship of the world. 3—Sit in an endurance contest with Flagnole Kelly. 4—Matriculate at Notre Dame in order to play quarterback. 5—Sign a contract to pitch for the New York Yankees. 6—Enter the Pacific Coast log-rolling tournament. 7—Engage in a special match with Sidney Franklin, the bull fighter. 8—Battle Helen Wills for the world's tennis supremacy. 9—Drive Marchioness to a new world's trotting record. 10—Run from coast to coast. 11—Climb the Matterhorn. And, after that, she ought to be in pretty good shape to play golf.

Final preparations are being made this week for the classic five-mile marathon sponsored by the Sherbrooke Record and the tug-of-war and sand-carrying contests under the auspices of La Tribune, events which have aroused a furor of interest throughout the Eastern Townships.

On Friday evening, the runners will assemble at the Exhibition Arena at 6.15 o'clock for final instructions. Through the courtesy of the directors of the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association, a large room equipped with a shower bath has been placed at the disposal of the competitors, while a guard will be posted at the entrance to keep a close watch on every one's personal possessions.
