Autumn's corpses

The unpredictable weather that haunts us this time of the year gave most of us a miserable weekend. The gray skies gave many a good chance to get those last fallen leaves raked and other October chores done. While much of Quebec woke up under as much as 10 cm of snow this morning, the Townships received little of the white stuff overnight. However, snow began to accumulate this morning and about 5 cm are expected today. Conditions are expected to remain grim over the next few days with temperatures 10 degrees below normal. Today's high will reach just 6 and it'll drop to minus 4 tonight.

Bank rate hits 13%

OTTAWA (CP) — Gerald Bouey, governor of the Bank of Canada announced today he is raising the bank's lending rate to a record 13 per cent, although he is aware the high level of interest rates in the country is hurting individuals and businesses.

Effective immediately, the bank's pace-setting lending rate goes up by three-quarters of one per cent from the 12.25 per cent level announced Sept. 10. This is the second bank-rate increase in less than a month and the third since the Conservatives came to power in

May. It follows an announcement Saturday by the U.S. Federal Reserve Board that it was raising the discount rate in that country to 12 per cent — the highest it has ever been.

Since March, 1978, the Canadian bank rate has been raised 10 times from eight per cent.

The Bank of Canada resisted an increase in interest rates two weeks ago when the Federal Reserve Board announced a previous half-per-cent increase in its lending rate. But Bouey said today he felt the central bank had to match its U.S. counterpart this time.

By raising its rate, the central bank signals the chartered banks and other lending institutions that it wishes them to charge their borrowers more, discouraging credit buying and tightening the amount of money circulating in the marketplace.

Unemployment drops again

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of those unable to find work fell for the sixth consecutive month in September to 719,000 from 772,000 in August.

This reduced the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate to a three-year low of 7.1 per cent, Statistics Canada reported today.

The last time the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate, the government's usual indicator of the seriousness of unemployment, fell to 7.1 per cent was in September, 1976.

Seasonal adjustment means the rate compensates for predictable seasonal fluctuations in the job situation such as the beginning of the school year or freeze-up.

The number with jobs in September was 10.53 million compared with 10.91 million in August. The drop reflected primarily the removal of student workers from the job force with the end of summer vacations.

As always, regionally depressed areas and young jobseekers suffered most of the burden. The jobless rate in Newfoundland, for example, was 14.1 per cent — almost twice the national average.

For those in the 15-to-24 age bracket, the unemployment rate was 12.3 per cent.

Windsor, Ont., which has been the most obvious metropolitan trouble-spot in the unemployment picture for the last three months because of declining automotive production, showed a lower jobless rate than several other cities in September.

Its unemployment was 7.3 per cent, compared with rates of 9.7 per cent for Sudbury, Ont., 9.3 per cent for Halifax and 10.5 per cent for St. John's, Nfld. See JOBLESS, Page 2.

Weekend claims two ET drivers

Two Townshippers were among 71 persons who died accidentally across Canada this Thanksgiving weekend.

Leontien Veronneau, 71, of 1229 Bowen Street in Sherbrooke, was killed at 8:20 a.m. Saturday when wind uprooted a tree in front of 555 Murray Street and threw it on top of Veronneau's car. The tree caved in the hood of the car and struck Veronneau, killing him on impact.

Bernard Morin, 22 of 99 Johnson Street in Coaticook was killed on Route 147, below Boyce Road in Compton Township Saturday morning at 12:40 a.m. when his car overturned.

Quebec also had 17 traffic deaths, two drownings and two men killed in a plane crash.

Of the 71 accidental deaths, 53 were traffic fatalities, about the number predicted by the Canada Safety Council. The council had cautioned drivers to be extra careful during the Thanksgiving weekend because projection showed traffic fatalities could increase to between 52 and 58 from 44 in 1978.

The worst Thanksgiving on record was in 1966 when 109 persons were killed on the roads.

A survey by the Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Monday night local times showed 53 traffic fatalities, six drownings, two fire deaths, two killed in a plane crash, two killed in hunting accidents, one person electrocuted, one person crushed to death when a car fell from its jack, one person who died from exposure and one goaltender in a soccer match was killed in Chilliwack, B.C. when a crossbar from the goalpost collapsed on him.

Separate province

Acadiens push autonomy

EDMUNDSTON (N.B.) — A three-day conference on the political future of New Brunswick Acadians, the province's French-speaking minority group, ended here Monday with more than half the delegates agreeing they favor the establishment of at least an autonomous Acadian province.

Preliminary results of questionnaires returned by some 800 participants showed that 48.4 per cent would like to see an Acadian province in the northern and northeastern areas of what is now New Brunswick. Another 7.1 per cent said they favor a separate Acadian country.

Some 1,012 delegates and 90 observers met to discuss about 20 different options regarding their political future, including maintaining the status quo, merging with Quebec or the United States, establishing a separate province, or modifying the setup of New Brunswick.

There are about 240,000 people in New Brunswick who have French as their mother tongue.

The conference, organized by the Acadian Society of New Brunswick, replaced a meeting of an Acadian "estates general," which was cancelled last year after the provincial government refused to provide funds.

Another 32.5 per cent of questionnaire respondents said they prefer to remain within the province, but that special government structures and a decentralized administration should be created to accommodate the province's two cultures.

No agreements as Clark, Loughheed meet

MONTREAL (CP) — Agreement on future domestic oil prices proved as elusive as ever Monday in a two-and-a-half hour meeting between Prime Minister Joe Clark and Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta.

"We didn't agree on anything," Lougheed said as he emerged from the closed-door huddle in a downtown hotel. "It was just a continuation of discussions. We'll have more, I'm sure."

It was the second exploratory meeting between Clark and Lougheed about narrowing the $19 price difference between Canadian and imported oil. The prime minister has also met with Premier William Davis of Ontario, leader of the chorus of eastern governments who fear a significant price increase will damage the manufacturing-based economy of their provinces.

"We have a greater idea about some details, but we are still some distance from any agreement with Alberta or with other provinces," Clark told reporters after the meeting.

Lougheed, arguing that Alberta's oil reserves are a nonrenewable resource, wants the current domestic price of $13.75 a barrel raised much closer to the international level of $23 to $25.

Clark, whose government must finally set the price, wants an increase of at least $1 a barrel implemented before the new federal budget is handed down in November. But there have been indications that federal-provincial bargaining may delay an accord.

The prime minister refused to comment when asked if he had made any concessions to Lougheed, but did say Alberta's position was not extreme and that there was agreement on a few points.

If an accord is concluded, Clark said, "it won't be tomorrow." He was apparently referring to today's opening of a new session of the House of Commons, where oil pricing is expected to be a priority item in the throne speech.

Monday's meeting was announced last week as Lougheed was conducting an East Coast tour which included a stop in Boston last week to sniff out potential borrowers from Alberta's Heritage Fund, bulging with oil revenue.

Also at the meeting were a number of federal and Albertan cabinet ministers. They stayed secluded in the conference room while Lougheed and Clark stepped into the hotel hallway separately to confront reporters.

U.S. should get tough with Moscow: Moroz

TORONTO (CP) — Valentyn Moroz, one of five Soviet dissidents freed in April in exchange for two Soviet spies in a deal with the United States, said the only way the West can negotiate with the Soviet Union is by showing that it has greater strength.

In a weekend interview, speaking through his interpreter, Moroz said: "Western politicians have to come to understand that Moscow only understands power and strength."

"North America has greater natural resources than oil. They have wheat, and there is a catastrophic shortage in the Soviet Union with respect to foodstuffs."

Moroz, 43, in Toronto to speak to Ukrainian groups, said Moscow's greatest opportunity is the West's lack of understanding. "Western Europe and North America are relatively small islands of calm peace while the rest of the world lives in the logic of turbulence."

"To sign agreements with (Soviet Leader) Leonid Brezhnev is an illusion. It is an illusion to think that in this utopia you can divorce yourself from the rest of the world."

FEEES AT HOME

About his life in the West, he said: "I expected to have a greater sense of strangeness, of separation with America, but as it turns out, the reality of the North American continent is not as divorced as I would have expected.

"There are two reasons for this, Ukrainians and Western people are individualist, and the Ukrainian community has provided a bridge (for me) to become accustomed to life here."

About Canada, Moroz said, the country is within the ranks of the 10 most powerful countries in the world but Canadians have yet to become accustomed to their role in economic areas.

Moroz, a senior research fellow at Harvard University in Boston since June, says his years in a Soviet prison were a gift from God because the hardship allowed him to develop inner strength.

Judge considers Rhodie bail

PRETORIA (Reuter) — A judge decides today whether to grant bail to South Africa's former government propaganda chief, Eschel Rhodie, while he appeals against a fraud conviction which brought him a six-year prison sentence.

Rhodie on Monday became the first person to be jailed as a result of a long-running government slush funds scandal which toppled President John Vorster and cabinet minister Connie Mulder.

Pakistan to get bomb?

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes unidentified "Canadian nuclear experts" as saying they expect Pakistan to explode a nuclear device early in the 1980s, "a move that could trigger a nuclear arms race on the Indian subcontinent."

India tested an atomic bomb in 1974, and while its nuclear program has slowed since then, it "would be put into high gear by a Pakistani test," the newspaper says, adding that "despite official denials from Pakistan, it appears the country is on its way toward a bomb."

Dollar up, gold down

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. government's plan to cut inflation and support the dollar did what it was meant to Monday, as the U.S. dollar rose and gold prices plunged. But stock prices fell amid fears that the plan means higher interest rates.

In a Saturday announcement, Paul Volcker, U.S. Federal Reserve chairman, announced a one-per-cent increase in the discount rate — the rate at which member banks borrow money from the central bank. The discount rate now is at a record 12 per cent. The Federal Reserve also increased the amount of reserves member banks must keep — a further effort to gain more control of the money supply.

Hunters killed in crash

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Two hunters were killed when their light plane crashed during the weekend in La Verendrye provincial park in northwestern Quebec.

Jacques Gingras of Quebec provincial police in Rouyn said Monday that the bodies of the men had been recovered from the wreckage of the Piper plane. A snowstorm had prevented a police helicopter from reaching the scene of the crash Saturday.

Deconcentration could cut powers

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Claude Lebel, secretary of the Quebec government's treasury board, says decentralization could take the form of giving more powers to municipalities instead of creating new government structures.

This "deconcentration" could include municipal control over elementary school education, daycare centres and some social services, Lebel told a weekend conference on decentralization held at Laval University.

MUCTC negotiations continue

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations continued Monday between the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission and the union representing its maintenance and cleaning staff in an attempt to avert strike action later in the week.

Union members were to vote today on when full-fledged strike action should be taken.

JOBLESS

One possible reason for the drop in Windsor is that many workers have taken earlier retirement or made other arrangements.

In spite of steady improvement in the jobless situation since early spring, Canada's unemployment rate remains higher than most others in the industrialized world.

Latest available figures show six-per-cent unemployment in the United States and Australia, 5.3 per cent in Britain, 3.7 per cent in West Germany and two per cent in Japan.

Government statisticians say the main reason for the country's high unemployment rate is the large number of new workers entering the job force every year.

Today's figures showed 63.2 per cent of the population either at work or actively seeking a job. This compares with a proportion of 57.6 per cent a decade ago.

meetings where others apparently were working hard.

In fact, he told reporters Monday, he has been hard at work in such areas as pensions and social planning.

Clark said he took the science-and-technology portfolio from Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn at the latter's request. The minister did not feel he could do justice to the portfolio when he was busy on energy-related matters.

Grafftey said he had never complained to the prime minister about his old job. He said he liked the challenge of social affairs and he likes the challenge of science and technology.

PARLIAMENT OPENS
MPs gathered amidst traditional splendor and ceremony today for the opening of the 31st Parliament to learn how Prime Minister Joe Clark plans to use the precarious minority position his Conservative government holds in the Commons.

Clark can expect to face the first tests of his hold on the Commons with at least two nonconfidence motions from the Opposition Liberals and the New Democratic Party, probably over the controversial proposal to sell Petro-Canada, the state-owned oil company.

It has been 4½ months since the May 22 election that made the 40-year-old Albertan the country's youngest and first western-born prime minister, the longest any new government has waited to call Parliament.

The general outline of Clark's legislative plans, read to MPs, senators and dignitaries by Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer in a televised ceremony in the red Senate chamber, will be debated for the next eight days in the Commons.

During that time Clark and members of his cabinet get an opportunity to give a fuller outline of what they plan to do about the nagging problems of energy, inflation and unemployment.

Israeli officials racially insensitive?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rev. Jesse Jackson said Monday that Israeli officials' refusal to meet with him on his Middle East tour demonstrated "a certain racial insensitivity."

Jackson, a U.S. black civil rights leader who completed his visit to the Mideast on Saturday, conferred for about 90 minutes with Ambassador Robert Strauss, President Carter's special Mideast envoy.

Peace conference in danger

LONDON (AP) — The Zimbabwe Rhodesia peace conference appeared on the verge of collapse today. The crisis emerged as guerrilla leaders rejected key parts of the British constitutional draft and Britain refused their demand to continue with negotiations for a transitional government.

Ohira resisting pressure

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira is resisting pressure from within his faction-riddled Liberal Democratic party to resign after unexpected reverses in Sunday's general election.

Government sources said the 69-year-old prime minister told a brief cabinet meeting today that he humbly accepts the "unexpectedly severe result" of the voting.

Indian hero dead

NEW DELHI (AP) — Tens of thousands of bereaved Indians flocked to the home of Jayaprakash Narayan on Monday to mourn the death of the 76-year-old national hero, an independence fighter who later turned to non-violence and ended his public life by rallying the forces that toppled Indira Gandhi from power.

The U.S.-educated Narayan died of a heart ailment in his sleep early Monday at his home in the eastern Indian city of Patna.

Passenger saves train

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman passenger used a hairpin to jimmy the lock on the control booth of a driverless subway train and then held her hand on a red "Auto Stop" button until a Metro supervisor came aboard to take charge.

The train had been dispatched on its scheduled rounds by a computer — after the driver left it momentarily — and passed through three stations before it was brought back under control.

Although the train automatically stopped at the three stations, its manually controlled doors did not open. Metro officials could not get aboard and none of the train's 100 passengers could get off during the unusual 15-minute run.

V. Kilena Loveless, 25, finally managed to get inside the control booth as the train neared a fourth stop. The train was boarded by a supervisor after Ms. Loveless managed to get the doors open and held her hand on a manual stop button to keep it from taking off again.

British soldier killed

BELFAST (Reuter) — A plainclothes British soldier was shot to death Monday by guerrillas within hours of former British spymaster Sir Maurice Oldfield's arrival in Northern Ireland to take over as supreme security officer.

Another soldier, also out of uniform, was wounded in what appears to have been a carefully planned Irish Republican Army ambush. He managed to evade the gunmen and run back to his base a few hundred metres away.

Judge okays conviction

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. federal judge approved an unusual agreement Monday under which nine leaders of the Church of Scientology will be found guilty of plotting to steal government documents about the church.

Security tight for Castro

NEW YORK (AP) — Security measures for the visit by Cuban President Fidel Castro this week will be among the most stringent ever in New York City, a police spokesman said Monday.

The long-rumored visit by the Communist leader was announced during the weekend and U.S. state department officials said the Cuban party applied for visas last week.

Castro is to deliver a speech at the United Nations on Friday but it was not announced when he will arrive in the city or how long he will stay.

Obscure company scores big

SHIMONOSEKI, Japan (AP) — For two decades, the employees of Chofu Seisakusho Ltd. grudgingly followed the boss's order: Buy company stock. The dividends came just recently — 30 of them became instant millionaires.

The obscure firm that makes boilers and home heaters was listed on the Hiroshima stock exchange for the first time on Sept. 20. It met with frantic buying offers, and closed the week at $17 a share — a 77-fold increase over its face value of 22 cents.

Multi-million dollar policy written

DANVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A Danville insurance agency has written one of the largest individual life insurance policies — $25 million — for a Southern California oil company executive, the agency says.

The first year's premium is $440,000, said Robert Ritter, president of SLP Corp., which is his headquarters in this community east of San Francisco. SLP created the policy with a consortium of nine insurance firms, Ritter said.

Wartime installations traced

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuter) — City authorities believe they have traced secret wartime underground installations near an abandoned chemicals factory.

The presence of the installations has been revealed by Second World War aerial photographs being used in current investigations into a disused factory where tons of munitions and poison gas canisters have been uncovered.

Kurds kill 22 Islamics

TEHRAN (Reuter) — Kurdish guerrillas killed 22 Islamic revolutionary guards in an ambush on a rural road in central Kurdistan, Iran, the official Pars news agency said Monday.

The agency said the attack took place Sunday night and described the rebels as members of the banned Kurdish Democratic Party, which earlier this year staged a full-scale rebellion against the central authorities of Iran's unofficial head of state, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Guerrillas attack Umtali

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Bolshoi Ballet dancers Valentina Kozlova and Leonid Kozlov, who defected to the U.S. last month, said Monday that things are "going badly" for Mrs. Kozlova's mother in Moscow.

Mrs. Kozlova said at a news conference through an interpreter that she had spoken to her mother on the telephone.

"She says things are going very badly for her, but she didn't tell us specifically what," the ballerina said.

Rape law tested

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's rape by instrumentality law will be tested in a case involving musician, composer and record producer Jack Nitzsche, accused of the gun-barrel rape of actress Carrie Snodgrass, prosecutors say.

Strike consensus grows among Bedford teachers

By NELSON WYATT
COWANSVILLE — Though local negotiations are proceeding at a calm pace, members of the Bedford Association of Teachers (BAT) will undoubtedly be joining their confreres across the province in considering a strike mandate when they meet at Massey-Vanier tomorrow afternoon.

Peter Langford, local negotiator for the 250-member BAT, told The Record in an interview Friday that while "the local board is not the problem", very few issues of any significance had been allotted by provincial negotiators for consideration at the board level. He pointed out that while 29 clauses were negotiated locally in 1975, only nine were being discussed between local school boards and their teachers during the current negotiations.

"These items are of the type that only take a few days to negotiate," said Langford.

The issues to be debated at the local and the provincial levels are decided by a protocol signed early in the negotiation procedure by the government, the school boards and the teacher's unions, in this case the FTQ, CEQ and PAPT. This is called a "partage" and while such items as workload and salaries will be negotiated at the provincial level, assignment and transfer, method of payment and the details of the school calendar are among those things on the agenda for local consideration.

Though negotiations locally have been going smoothly, Langford said local teachers are concerned over the state of provincial negotiations. He said representatives from the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers (PAPT) had visited the school recently for a briefing on the negotiations with the government and while "I'm sure that most people didn't go into that meeting wanting to go on strike, most came out convinced that it might be necessary."

He said that the results of a canvass on the teacher's feelings on the negotiations had changed since last fall.

"In September, most of the teachers were probably more interested in how the Expos were doing," said Langford. "Well, the season's over now."

Asked if Wednesday's meeting — to be attended by representatives from PAPT, including President Donald Peacock — would produce a strike mandate, Langford refused to speculate. "It will depend on the situation at that time," he said.

Langford said that a number of other teacher unions had favored strike action but not because of the salary issue. He said the government offers on working conditions were instead "an insult to their professionalism."

Langford agreed that the Parti Quebecois had proven to be tougher at the bargaining table than the Liberals and noted that the last contract was signed on November 12, 1976, just three days prior to the defeat at the polls of the Bourassa government. "The PQ is not naive," said Langford. "They've got the referendum coming up. They don't want to get the same thing as the Liberals."

The Bedford teachers, as well as those who belong to the Eastern Townships Association of Teachers (ETAT) are meeting in the wake of statements last week by PAPT President Donald Peacock who said that strike action on the part of his 6,500-member umbrella union was "inevitable".

Peacock said a walkout could be staged as early as October 19, with an all-out strike in November, because the unions and their counterparts are so far apart on three main issues. These are salary, teacher workload and a negotiating method known as the Parizeau Protocol that would require the government's final offer to be considered in a vote by union members whether the union leaders were satisfied with it or not.

The ETAT will be holding a meeting tonight at Alexander Galt Regional High School in Lennoxville to discuss a strike mandate while Bedford teachers will meet at 3:45 p.m. Wednesday. Champlain Regional College teachers, affiliated with the CEQ, will discuss a strike mandate Wednesday night.

From Little House by Katharine Snow

I am a slow learner and have become the absolute despair of my big-word son. For instance, I have been tramping these Megantic woods for years and never knew that moss (or mosses) have a sex life.

On one of our walks this summer my son, who stops every three steps to examine things that I can't even see, asked me if I had noticed the predominance of male moss this year. I thought that he might be leading into a questionable joke and hesitantly replied that I had never noticed. He fixed that unblinking stare of his on me and with no pity whatever, asked, "You know about the sex life of moss, don't you?"

At the convent even the sex life of humans was kept from us. I thought it best to confess at once my total ignorance of the whole subject. This frequently saves a lot of time. My lesson started then and there. It was deadly hot in the sunlight and the blackflies were having a good afternoon. I was compelled to squat down in order to examine more closely the innocuous plant life.

It seems that the tiny, jaunty stems with tops which look for all the world like little Irishmen in silk hats are the males, while the demure and simpering green spread a little further on represents the breathlessly awaiting females. Ordinary courtship, my authority assures me, is not so simple. "The boys," however impatient, must await rain or some kind of waterfall to wash them gently towards the anxious ladies. Thankfully he was a bit vague about the actual process of the union!

Essential education such as this was not limited to daytime hours. Nearly every clear night, and they were all clear, I was dragged from a wonderfully cozy bed and propelled outside, clutching my housecoat around me against the agonizing chill, pushed through pitch darkness down the ten steps to the sundeck to see the Seven Sisters.

My husband and my son know no time limits where the watching of stars, birds, fish or animals is concerned. Hence we might frequently stand for a very long time watching what seems to me, in my "blind and naked ignorance", to be the selfsame stars that I have been looking at all of my life.

I used to be a straightforward and truthful person but after years of these outdoor watches, I am driven by cold and discomfort to lie; I tell them zealously that I see exactly whatever it is that they want me to see. Of course they never believe me and question me endlessly in a way that would make the Inquisitors of the Holy Office look like pussycats.

However, I achieved one small victory this summer. Every year I agree that the Seven stars are indeed beautiful (and please, let me go back to bed!) but this year I finally said what I have always wanted to say—that I had never seen seven but only six stars. I should have known better! This mild defiance cost me an extra hour! There were seven stars, they told me, and they even knew their names. Numbled with cold, I acquiesced, but like Galileo, mounted the steps muttering, "Six".

As soon as the door was unlocked when we arrived home, I ran downstairs to the encyclopedia. There, in the description of the Pleiades, I found triumphant verification. It tells that one star of the cluster is always dim or invisible because she is Electra mourning for Troy, or Merope, who is ashamed of having wedded a mortal, Sisyphus!

Neither of these otherwise quite lovable fellows would ever admit that they did not actually know the story of the Seven Sisters before their difficult and recalcitrant housekeeper smugly set them straight!

Wonder what we will watch next summer?

Sherbrooke, Stanstead competitions

Ploughing ends as weather turns

A young contestant at Saturday's Stanstead match takes time out for a fried-chicken box lunch.

By CLAUDIA BOWERS
STANSTEAD — During the night, Friday, Mother Nature took a bad turn and the day of the Stanstead County Ploughing Match broke windy and cold over the hills surrounding Lake Massawippi.

But it in no way deterred 76 aspiring champions from proving their expertise on the field of competition, including four 71-year-old competitors whose ploughing experience comes down through over fifty years of turning the sod.

Lawrence Johnson, one of the famous Johnson family of Earlstown renowned for their ploughing ability throughout the Eastern Townships since the turn of the century, Mac Ross, Turner Hunter, a veteran of 41 years of competition and Curtis Beatty, who has ploughed in every match in the E.T. this year, vied for the position of oldest ploughman on the field. After careful perusal of birth dates, Curtis Beatty, the only one of the four who competed with horses, proved to be the oldest, his birthday being in January.

The most interesting event of the day unfolded near the entrance to the field as Jim Duff, editor of the Sherbrooke Record and Lloyd Bliss, editor of the Stanstead Journal competed against each other in a match that was a result of a challenge at the Ploughmen's Banquet last year. Here, one could almost smell the concentration in the air as both men, whose experience with tractors and farm machinery was next to nil, attempted with frowning concentration and some choice words to plough a straight furrow in the face of seemingly insurmountable difficulties. Nevertheless, they both completed their lands, and the results will be announced at the banquet slated for October 13th, at the Hatley United Church.

The season's premier competition, The 100th Anniversary Sherbrooke Ploughing Match took place at the Research Station in Lennoxville and in spite of rain, snow, sleet, wind and bitterly cold conditions, over 60 hardy competitors turned out.

Harry Jackson, driving a 1936 Farmall tractor sporting steel wheels and wooden spokes, chugged up the hill to the competition field and among the horse ploughmen once again was Curtis Beatty driving the Ed Sarrasin team, turning a fine sod as he bumped along on an antique sulky plow, bundled up in winter clothes, and wearing a warm smile as usual.

Willie Delaney, a Kingsbury ploughing enthusiast, had more than his share of misery yesterday. Competing with a walking plough behind a team of fine horses is always difficult enough, but Mr. Delaney had suffered a fractured ankle less than a week before the match and yesterday, in the miserable weather, he ploughed anyway, proving that today's farmers are still made of tough stuff.

Bob Johnson, son of one of the over-seventy contestants at the Stanstead match, ploughed this weekend at both matches and arrived at yesterday's competition on his tractor, covered with mud and half frozen, but carrying proudly in his pocket a silver medal won by his father in 1903 at a match held in Capelton in November of that year.

The Sherbrooke County Ploughmen's Supper will take place on October 19th at the Brompton Road Community Hall where every competitor will receive a souvenir plaque in addition to the supper, prizes, and dance to music supplied by Sundown Country.

Cowansville Flea Market raises $5,000 for CF

By NELSON WYATT
COWANSVILLE — Cystic Fibrosis research will receive a much-needed boost this week following the receipt of a cheque for over $5,000 after fundraising activities here Saturday.

Organizer Ivy Moreton told The Record that a veritable "tidal wave" of people flooded into the Heroes Memorial Elementary School basement when the doors opened for the annual Flea Market in support of CF research. A wide selection of items donated from companies and individuals proved to be a bargain hunter's delight as clothing, books, knick-knacks and everything else — even a kitchen sink — was offered. Another bonanza area was the snack bar, with sales over last year's record.

The CF Flea Market has become one of the big events locally over the past few years. "We don't charge very high prices," said Mrs.

Moreton. "Our main goal is to raise the money for research."

The effort has proven successful over the years, with last year's tally totalling $4000. The Flea Market also had to move to more spacious quarters in the school basement from a local church hall because public response was so great.

However, the CF research fund drive has no nationally-organized fund-raising campaign and Mrs. Moreton notes, "We could use a Jerry Lewis". The fundraising is split up into scattered efforts around the country with much of the work centred in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta.

Cystic Fibrosis is the most common potentially fatal genetic disease contracted by children and usually only allows them a lifespan of 17 years.

One in every 1800 children is born with CF.

Mrs. Moreton concluded by saying that the Cowansville group, composed of Mrs. Rita Ouellet, Mrs. Pat Lickfold, Mrs. Karen

Wright and herself, did not have any future fundraising plans with the exception of a "bubble campaign" around Christmas time.

U de S classes cancelled

SHERBROOKE (CAT) — Professors at the University of Sherbrooke will not hold any classes tomorrow in anticipation of Thursday's round of contract talks between their union and the university.

If there is no progress in the talks — deadlocked over salary and job security proposals — union officials say they may stage a strike.

Townships talk

Local nurses strike again

SHERBROOKE (CAT) — Unionized nurses at the Hotel Dieu and Youville Hospitals will stage another 24 hours strike today, their third in the past eight days. A union spokesman at Hotel Dieu says nurses there will strike again on Friday.

Nurses in 18 hospitals throughout the province, members of the Federation des Infirmieres et Infirmiers du Quebec, are picketing to protest lagging contract talks. The federation has been without a contract since June, 1978. They are demanding better wages and a four day week.

Fisherman's body found

WEST HATLEY (BVS) — The body of Omer Roy, 34, of Tracy, Quebec, was found Saturday afternoon, three months after Roy disappeared while fishing on Lake Massawippi.

His partially submerged body was found on the eastern shore four miles from North Hatley by a resident who was walking on the railroad tracks. His empty boat had been found nearby on June 24.

The Coaticook detachment of the Quebec Police Force retrieved the body and on Sunday a member of the family identified Roy.

Council roundup

ROCK FOREST (CAT) — Councillor J.A. Beaulieu has said that he will not run for office, even if he were offered "all the gold in the world." He said his decision was mainly influenced by the weak voter turnout in the town's referendum over whether Rock Forest should incorporate itself into a city.

WOTTON PARRISH — Mayor Anselme Beaudoin will seek re-election to office. He hopes to beat contending councillors Roger Bergeron, Bertrand Sirois and Bruno Guimond.

AYER'S CLIFF — Mayor Jean-Paul Verpaelt is seeking re-election. Rumor has it that a town resident may challenge the mayor.

ST. CAMILLE — Mayor Bernard Laroche is seeking a seventh term in office. Councillors Normand Raiche, Victor Proulx and Marcel Guimond are also seeking re-election.

Sherbrooke to get Grand Express service?

MONTREAL (CP) — Voyageur Inc. is considering an extension of its Grand Express bus service, with a link between Montreal and Ottawa, and is also studying a no-frills option.

Voyageur president Hubert Pitre said Thursday the present Grand Express service between Montreal and Quebec City is doing well. The autumn occupancy rate varies from 35 to 65 or 70 per cent, he said.

The addition of a no-frills option, he said, would give customers the comforts of the Grand Express, with music and reserved seats, but without meals or hostess service. Ticket prices would be lower.

Pitre said the company was thinking of adding the option first to the Montreal-Quebec run, then extending it to Ottawa, and possibly even to Sherbrooke, Que., if the market warrants it.

KEITH SPICER COMMENTS

Western trek sold Quebec — but not independence

In Quebec as elsewhere, the special charm of nationalist movements lies in poets preaching politics and politicians preaching poetry.

These past ten days a trio of premier Rene Levesque's most engaging backbenchers (Gerald Godin, Pierre de Bellefeuille, Jean-Francois Bertrand) mixed poetry and politics in a valuable four-province tour of the West to explain Mr. Levesque's idea of sovereignty-association.

That the 27 per cent of Canadians living west of Ontario should find the concept inscrutable should not surprise. Last week's $57,000 PQ government poll showed that 46 per cent of Quebecers still think the political independence Mr. Levesque wants would somehow not make Quebec a separate country.

The PQ's step-at-a-time strategists, quarterbacked by intergovernmental affairs minister Claude Morin, rejoice in this ambiguity: Persuading Quebecers they can eat their independence cake and have Canada too is their key argument to win next spring's referendum.

The PQ's three musketeers played the flip side of the record for western businessmen, students, union groups and editors. The theme: Sovereignty-association would let "English Canada" eat its Canadian economic cake while getting Quebec off its back — along with all that nagging about language and blackmail over jurisdictions.

If anyone has a chance to make this pitch sound "normal" (as the PQ's legitimizing code-word calls anything the pequistes want to do), it is surely these three good-humored and gracious gentlemen.

One hesitates to give them the kiss of death back home by too-effusive praise.

But they did do a fine job with the arguments and strategy Messrs. Levesque and Morin have stuck them with.

What's in such tours for the pequistes? Obviously, the long-term hope of softening up English-speaking Canada to see their light on painless session. But the main hope — with the referendum looming — must be to hype up evidence for Quebec voters that a "yes" vote is safe: English Canada, the PQ wants to show, is secretly in love with Mr. Levesque's proposal.

Not to drench the musketeers' mission in cynicism, one must add that each of them spoke as a sincere believer. Like most of their colleagues, they truly think that after a mild rejected-lover's sulk in the months following Quebec independence, the rest of Canada would come to its senses, and try to patch together a liveable — indeed healthier — relationship with Quebec.

That's a tenet of PQ gospel that is but the first of many transportable certainties one hears from itinerant pequistes. To the extent it is rational it is respectable; to the extent it blinds believers to massive contradictory evidence it is an illusion.

The fact remains that after almost three high-profile years in power, plus a Babel of conferences and propaganda, the PQ has failed to unearth a single English-speaking Canadian with any audience to join its cause.

This may be, as many pequistes serenely allege, because we are imperialists to the last man, woman and child. The thought does not cloud their vision — at least publicly — that perhaps, just perhaps, there is something unworkable in their theory or unattractive in their methods.

Therein lies the great fragility of such tours for the PQ's understanding of the real world. Unless its emissaries truly come to listen (as one of the trio did), as well as preach, unless they are prepared to question fundamentally their own hypothesis, the word dialogue will ring hollow.

The PQ response to that is that no real dialogue is possible until they win their referendum. Until then, until they gain the over-a-barrel leverage they think they will win, they must brook no doubt and brand even sympathetic Anglo skeptics as rednecks.

On reaching home, the three amiable ambassadors will claim that they detect great change to their advantage in the West. The traditionally courteous, even sometimes red-carpet, welcome they got led to few if any converts — indeed it seemed mainly to end in better-informed misgivings.

Westerners are careful not to offend Quebecers by arguing with them".

claimed an oft-echoed observer, "but if they mistook our politeness for agreement, they're kidding themselves".

The real value of such tours — which should continue and expand — lies not in pre-referendum jousting. It lies in creating post-referendum contacts, the opportunity to speak civilly to one another when it will be time for bruises to heal and for "victors" (whether pequistes or federalists) to rediscover generosity along with the "losers" dignity.

Toward this less spectacular but more precious goal, Mr. Levesque's three emissaries have traveled well by reminding both sides that often ideas are less important than the quality of the people who defend them.

That, for both Quebec and the rest of Canada, is good poetry and good politics.

Bears out there

We understand there are several people out there who have solemnly vowed not to leave their beds until today's accumulation of snow melts. Good luck. It may be a six-month snooze.

All signs point to a long winter. Our highways are littered with the corpses of skunks and other small animals too fat to move quickly. Nina Rowell, our correspondent up around Bury, called last week to say plenty of bears have been spotted wandering around the golf course and Pope Memorial School, more than anyone can remember. More bears seen means there are probably more bears out there, and in our books, they're proliferating for a hard winter. The deer are low in numbers, and if this snow continues, they'll be even lower, since the white background makes them easier to spot.

Another sure-fire sign of a long winter — the family next door has an enormous woodpile. So does the old gent just before the tracks in Ayer's Cliff. The people selling woodburning stoves and cordwood say they're plenty busy. With all that, who needs an almanac?

Is there a gap left by The Star?

MONTREAL (CP) — Was The Montreal Star's demise another symptom of an ailing Quebec economy?

Will one newspaper — The Gazette — be enough to give English-speaking Montrealers the information they need during the critical debate on Quebec's future?

Did The Star die solely from the financial effects of the eight-month-long strike of its pressmen?

These were only some of the questions being asked following The Star's abrupt closing Sept. 25. The reason immediately cited by its owners, FP Publications Ltd., was the loss of $10.4 million since returning from the pressmen's strike.

"The simple truth is that Montreal can no longer support two independent English language dailies like The Star and The Gazette," publisher Art Wood said in his farewell letter to staff.

But his assessment isn't shared by all industry observers.

When The Star closed, FP immediately signed a tentative agreement with The Gazette, owned by Southam Inc., which would let the Gazette take over the defunct paper's modern printing plant and offices. And The Gazette left the door open to the possibility of starting another afternoon paper eventually, if everything else works out.

The tentative agreement hinges on a number of points, however, including disposal of sticky labor contracts that could saddle the new owners with unneeded Star workers.

HEAD-ON WITH GAZETTE

But others may be interested as well in starting a new paper, including Pierre Peladeau, the head of the Quebecor Inc. tabloid chain. Peladeau said after the Star's collapse that he wasn't interested in the paper's assets, but thought Montrealers might be interested in a new morning tabloid — which would put him in head-on competition with The Gazette.

Hugh Faulkner, former Liberal secretary of state, also made a brief foray to Montreal to see if there was any basis for bringing back The Star. Faulkner, before his defeat in the May 22 federal election, was involved in the financial rescue of a chainsaw company in Peterborough, Ont., and evidently thought there were some parallels.

But Faulkner himself admitted he was not optimistic, and other observers tended to dismiss his overtures as well-meant dabbling.

As well, there have been some indications that former Star editorial employees may try to round up financial backing to start up another newspaper.

Letters

Two weights...

Editor: "Deux poids, deux mesures" is an expression used in French Canada to describe two sets of rules used in evaluating something. It is these very two sets of rules that provide services and financing to French Canadians while denying similar services to non-francophones that are annoying Canadians from coast to coast.

A great fuss is being made, for example, about a French language high school for 58 students in western Ontario, while the anglophone Quebec students of the Quebec north shore have to go to the Eastern Townships if they want English education.

The francophones hors du Quebec get financing by both the federal government and the Quebec government, while the Freedom of Choice Movement that is fighting for the rights of Quebec anglophones don't get a penny from either government.

A shining example of this double standard is the funding of the legal expenses of George Forest, in his fight against an English only ticket in Winnipeg, was assured entirely by the Secretary of State's department in Ottawa.

We are challenging the traffic ticket of the Montreal Urban Community which is entirely in French although 35 per cent of the population of the MUC is non-francophone. This time, however, the Secretary of State's department has thus far refused to provide a nickel of financing to cover the legal expenses that will be incurred in this case.

Their argument is that the precedent established by the one case is sufficient. Obviously, if that case was sufficient, the French only ticket wouldn't presently be existing. The truth is that the previous Liberal government went out of its way to support francophone individuals and groups who sought to promote and enhance the French culture across Canada. They were particularly reticent, however, to provide the same support of anglophones.

The present government has chosen to follow this track for fear of being perceived as being anti-French.

The legal challenge of the unilingual French ticket in Montreal is not anti-French, it's anti-wrong, anti-injustice, and in not supporting its challenge, the government can only be perceived as discriminating against anglophone Quebecers because that's exactly what it is doing.

We are going to challenge the ticket anyway, because we're sure that individual Canadians will be supportive, but in copping out on this one, David MacDonald's department can hardly pretend that it's changed its direction with the change of government.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

Tito tough going finally coming in from the cold

WASHINGTON — Anti-communist Yugoslavs in the San Francisco area can breathe a little easier these days. Their tormentor, Tugomir Dzalto, has finally returned home to the dictatorship he served so cruelly — and illegally — in recent years.

Using the diplomatic cover of an attaché in the Yugoslav Consulate in San Francisco, Dzalto was actually an agent of Marshal Tito's secret police. Anti-Tito dissidents and other Yugoslav exiles complained of his intimidation and threats of violence. But his diplomatic status protected him from action by the FBI and the State Department even when his violations of U.S. laws were clear.

Top-secret documents and other confidential sources have given us a picture of Dzalto's methods. They were summarized by the FBI director in a secret memorandum to the State Department as constituting "an abridgement of the constitutional rights guaranteed United States citizens and resident aliens, and are clearly outside the scope of his diplomatic duties in this country."

Here are just three examples of Dzalto's police-state tactics:

"The FBI was told that Dzalto went to a Yugoslav emigre's home "to blackmail the individual into furnishing information to Yugoslav intelligence agencies." Though Dzalto had arranged the visit as a social call, he arrived wearing a pistol, which he ostentatiously took off and put on the coffee table as he sat down. He stayed till 5 a.m. and swore the emigre to secrecy by threatening reprisal against relatives in Yugoslavia.

He once confronted a group of Croatian exiles who were handing out protest leaflets in front of an auditorium where a Yugoslav dance troupe was performing. According to the FBI, Dzalto "called one of the protesters by name, pointed his finger at his face and stated, 'Your grave is made' in Serbo-Croatian." The FBI then explained: "The words used by Dzalto are an old Croatian death threat."

Dzalto invited an American citizen of Yugoslav descent to the consulate on the pretext that they had mutual friends in the old country. Once inside the consulate, however, the American was pumped for information on Yugoslav emigres. When the visitor refused to tell him anything, Dzalto threatened him.

Unless he cooperated, "unfortunate circumstances could eventuate regarding this individual's elderly parents, who still lived in Yugoslavia," a confidential report states. Worse yet, when the American threatened to tell the FBI, Dzalto shrugged it off, cockily assuring his visitor that "the Yugoslav Embassy in Washington can manipulate the American authorities to minimize the impact of such an occurrence."

Unfortunately, Dzalto's confidence in Washington officialdom was well-placed. Intelligence sources told our associate Dale Van Atta that the FBI "raised hell" about Dzalto with the State Department to no avail.

On Dec. 1, 1977, the FBI director advised Foggy Bottom that Dzalto "openly and without regard to United States law has waged a war of intimidation, threats and blackmail against individuals whom he considers anti-Yugoslav government in their sympathies." He added that Dzalto "seems to have no concern for the possible diplomatic consequences of his activities."

The State Department did exactly nothing. As one official explained to us, an individual's diplomatic function "is whatever the State Department says it is" — and apparently Titoesque intimidation of dissenters is considered an appropriate function for Yugoslav diplomats.

Repeated phone calls to the San Francisco consulate elicited only the information that Dzalto had gone home to Yugoslavia "this summer." Congressional sources believe he left after learning of active Senate interest in getting him kicked out of the country.

FINE FIASCO: When Jimmy Carter took office, he promised to support a strict strip-mining law that would protect the environment while assuring that needed coal reserves are effectively mined. The Surface Mining and Reclamation Act of 1977 was designed to do just that.

But bureaucrats in the Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining have succeeded in dulling the sharpest teeth in the law — heavy fines that can be assessed against "scofflaw" coal companies that are caught breaking the rules and fail to correct their violations within the prescribed time period.

The fines system enacted by Congress was intended to discourage such lawbreakers. Fines assessed against offending operators mount geometrically every day that the fines go unpaid and the violations go uncorrected.

But a federal agency's enforcement of the law is only as tough as the people who are in charge of it, and the Office of Surface Mining Enforcement director, Harriet Marple, is a tabby cat, not a police dog.

Marple told our reporter Matt Speiser she considers the assessments in this category "completely inappropriate." So she simply stopped mailing out assessments to recalcitrant coal operators.

Instead, the assessments are dumped in a cardboard box, known informally as the "Megabucks Box" for the millions of dollars' worth of uncollected assessments and additional fines it represents. Meanwhile, the possibility of collecting the fines becomes slimmer by the day, because the law requires that notices of assessments be sent out within 30 days.

So the scofflaws of the strip-mining industry are being let off the hook — all because one willful bureaucrat decided that she knows what Congress intended better than Congress does.

Remember Bill 101, would-be investors warned

LONDON (CP) — A large British banking group has a word of caution for British firms planning to set up shop in Quebec.

Midland Bank, which features Canada in its latest edition of the business publication Spotlight, says: "British concerns thinking of setting up in Quebec province should familiarize themselves with legislation on the use of the French language in business there."

They should also "be aware of other possible implications of recent political developments in Quebec."

Generally, however, Midland says the climate for foreign investment remains favorable in Canada despite federal and provincial controls.

The publication points out that "the French-Canadian market, centred in Quebec, often requires a different approach from that adopted in English-speaking Canada."

It lists differences in market tastes between Quebec and the other provinces and says that "although there is a nation-wide agreement to employ both languages in packaging, it may be necessary to style products and their packaging, brand names and advertising slogans expressly for the French-speaking market."

The group says there would probably be a good market in Canada for farm equipment from the United Kingdom.

"Some of the best opportunities are to be found in the West, where huge development projects are planned or under way."

The publication also mentions that "large capital investment in the fishing industry could interest British exporters of fishing and marine equipment."

Midland Bank is represented in Canada by a wholly owned subsidiary, Midland Financial Services Ltd.

S American Liberals hurting

OTTAWA (CP) — It is hard to be a Liberal in South America these days, leading Latin American Liberal politicians said Thursday.

Guerrillas, multi-national corporations and dictatorships have impeded liberalism in most of the countries from the Rio Grande on the Texas-Mexico border to frigid Tierra del Fuego at the tip of South America.

Joaquin Franco, vice-president of Panama's Liberal party, traced for the audience of 300 Canadians, Europeans, Africans and Latin Americans the history of Latin American culture from the pre-colonial era of sophisticated native empires in Mexico and Peru through the bloody wars of independence in the 1800s.

He was speaking to delegates to the 32nd Liberal International Congress, which opened earlier Thursday.

He also touched on the postrevolutionary age of the caudillos — charismatic men on horseback who seized power — as well as the traditional Liberal-Conservative antagonism that sparked several civil wars. Latin American Conservatives have traditionally supported special rights for Roman Catholic clergy and have been landowners or military officers. Liberals have generally been shopkeepers, teachers and intellectuals.

REJECT VIOLENCE

Hector Echeverry, president of his country's senate, said Liberals in Colombia — ravaged by savage Liberal-Conservative civil wars in 1899, the 1930s and 1949-1957 — now strive towards consensus and reject violence and conflict as means of gaining power."

But the children of La Violencia (The Violence) of 1949-1957 are all too alive and well. Marxist guerrilla groups and terrorist organizations continue to operate in several areas of the country.

Echeverry, a member of his party's central directorate, lashed out at the roles played by foreign aid and multi-national corporations.

"A large part of the public services, including health and education, in the poor countries are paid for by the rich nations so their multi-nationals can gain access to the poor nations' markets," he told about 300 congress delegates.

"Every year the poor countries' dependency grows larger and larger."

For Hector Sandler, an exiled member of Argentina's congress and now a philosophy of law professor in Mexico, the most sinister challenge is military dictatorship and its pretensions to technological achievements it cannot hope to achieve.

PEOPLE DUPED
Military dictatorships no longer pretend to be legitimate political systems but efficiency-conscious modernizers and have duped the people into believing the liberals are to blame for the once-promising country's nosedive into chaos, he said.

"There is no Liberal party there," Sandler said. "The man in the street believes, and has been led to believe, that Liberal parties are to blame for it (torture and repression)."

He said Argentinian liberals are no more than technocrats in disguise who do not believe in the Liberal parties' message of individual liberty and freedom from oppressive government.

Francisco Huerta, head of Ecuador's Radical Democratic Party, who said he fought the government for several years from the dense rain forests on Ecuador's eastern frontier, told the audience liberty and freedom are the ideals of Latin America.

"We will fight for those," he said. "Liberalism can only be created through the will of a people which no longer accepts dictatorship."

Ecuador, which this summer elected a civilian government for the first time in 10 years, is one of three democratic countries in South America. The others are Colombia and Venezuela.

CHILDNAPPING CONTINUES, AMNESTY GROUP SAYS

By CAROLE TREISER

More than 60 children, aged between two months and 17 years, have been abducted and are being held prisoner by the military government in Argentina, the local branch of Amnesty International announced this week.

The group released the names of the children along with information surrounding their capture. They say that babies have been torn from their mother's arms by soldiers, children have been abducted on their way home from school and many were taken during raids on their homes. Information on the whereabouts of the children is scanty.

"Though 90 per cent of the world's nations practice torture and violate basic human rights, we thought it important in this International Year of the Child to make public the plight of the Argentinian families," Jean Charron, head of the local Amnesty group said.

Charron says the military abducts children from parents whom they think are political subversives.

The group has been working since 1976 to have the children released, but the Argentine government denies any responsibility in the abductions.

Amnesty is calling for public support and will have an information booth in the Carrefour de l'Estrie from October 15-20 for all those who would sign a petition calling for the release of these children and who would give the group active support.

Down-to-earth pontiff a hit with U.S. society

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Through some peculiar magnetism a rugged, down-to-earth Pope John Paul is making a hit with his preaching of strict morals and farm faith in a heavily secularized society.

That message, not particularly a hot topic in much modern social discourse, is getting an extensive hearing, not only first hand for the enormous crowds surrounding the Pope but also via radio, television and the press for millions of others.

But it is the man with his heroic aura of standing up for his convictions under the fire of Nazism and communism, and his machismo manliness coupled with unaffected warmth that draws the multitudes, not the fervent belief and ethic of his message.

That message is being promulgated in a remarkably broad way in a land that many analysts, including the president, say is suffering a slump in moral values and spiritual fibre.

Whether the road show of John Paul with its urgent call to staunch faith and disciplined conduct will have much impact on North American thought and mores remains a question. But at least the word is being circulated.

"He has gained the ear of the world as a leader in an age that lacks for leadership," said Rev. Francis Murphy, a noted religious scholar from Washington, D.C.

There is a lot of hoopla and follow-the-crowd atmosphere about the Pope's appearance, but nevertheless he speaks unswervingly the gospel of the evangelist.

When he does quote from a papal encyclical it is usually from his own, The Redeemer of Humanity, issued last spring and his only one so far. It stresses human worth and dignity as being formed in the image of God and Christ's exaltation of human life by sharing it.

ARGENTINE LOSS HIT CANDU

OTTAWA (CP) — The lost sale of a package of nuclear technology to Argentina valued at more than $1 billion has caused the industry to stumble but not fall, say those closely tied to the issue.

The deal was seen as crucial to the export prospects of the Candu heavy water reactor because of the likelihood of the first deal opening the door for the sale of three more reactors.

Now Atomic Energy of Canada International, the Crown corporation that seeks foreign customers for the high technology system, is facing stiff competition from West Germany for the outstanding contracts.

While industry spokesmen acknowledge shock and disappointment at the lost sale, they remain confident the Candu system will prove its worth in the coming decade.

"The fact that we've done rather poorly on the export market may have more to do with failing to communicate with customers rather than reflecting on the reliability of the system," Bill MacLown, president of the Canadian Nuclear Association, said Wednesday.

"We didn't lose the deal because the product wasn't right but because we failed as a country to give the assurances that were needed," he said in a telephone interview from Toronto.

SYSTEM REFINED

The Candu nuclear system has been evolving for 30 years from its beginnings in Second World War atomic research. Since then, taxpayers have invested about $1.5 billion into refining the system that uses natural uranium as fuel and heavy water as a coolant.

There are currently 24 Candu reactors operating, under construction or planned for the generation of electrical power in Canada. Most of them are in Ontario where heavy industry and population density creates the biggest demand for power.

"We need all the electricity we can get and I believe that by 1990 the Candu system is going to be indispensable," MacLown said. "I regard nuclear power as our trump card."

Feminist summit accused of ignoring non-whites

By SONDRRA CORRY
NEW YORK — The issue of race moved to a central position at an international conference on feminist theory on Saturday as black poet Audre Lorde confronted a nearly all-white feminist audience at New York University.

The conference was held to commemorate the passing of thirty years since the publication of Simone de Beauvoir's The Second Sex, the first theoretical work to examine the situation of women, and also to review feminist theory since 1949, with focus on the past ten years. The race issue was first raised Thursday evening by black writer Susan McHenry in an unscheduled reading during the second session of the three-day conference, but was nearly swept aside by a mixture of apologies and feelings that the raising of the issue was out of place. But on Saturday afternoon, during the last session, Audre Lorde succeeded, with her brilliant and powerful use of language, in convincing the audience the issue was central to feminism. She condemned the academic arrogance of a conference which had no consideration of poor, black, lesbian or Third World women. She asked the audience to stop looking for resolutions of differences and to ask what difference means, to examine the role of difference in the lives of American women. She blamed academic feminism for the failure to recognize that differences are a crucial strength. Referring to the academic setting of the conference, she asked, "What does it mean when the symbol of patriarchal racist power is asked to examine the roots of that power?" While European women were well represented at the conference, with an especially strong contingent from France, due to the focus on de Beauvoir, there was poor representation of women from Africa, the Middle East, Asia and South America. There was a wealth of well-known poets and writers, some of the most creative energy in the feminist movement, such as Helene Cixous and Monique Wittig from France, and Americans such as Ti-Grace Atkinson, Charlotte Bunch, Robin Morgan, Mary Daly, Jane Lazarre, Alix Kates Shulman, Blanche Cook, Gerda Lerner, and Elizabeth

Janeway. Lorde however pointed out the absence of black American talent, accusing white feminists of not knowing their names, of not reading their books, of not reading black newspapers, magazines and journals. White women are often ignorant of the work of Lorraine Hansberry, Zora Neale Hurston, or unaware of such women as Alice

Walker, June Jordan, Michele Wallace, Sandra Flowers, Toni Cade and Ntozake Shange. Women pointed out from the floor that the issue disrupts conferences time and again, yet is never resolved, to which Lorde answered that black women will not continue indefinitely to ask to be included in the white movement.

D'ville hosts clinic

DANVILLE (JE) — The monthly clinic of the C.L.S.C. took place in the Anglican Church Hall on Monday afternoon, October 1st. Eighteen citizens of the community were present to hear nutritionist Louise Roux, speak on economic ways to buy and prepare food. Everyone was very interested in this topic and there were many questions and answers. Miss Roux prepared several very tasty dishes and everyone had a chance to sample them. Mrs. Alden Boreham, a lady with a great deal of experience with flowers and vegetables, also gave us some very good tips on fall gardening. She arrived with a colourful bouquet of flowers and everyone had to guess how many different kinds of flowers were in the vase. This was won by Mrs. Frances Hall. Another mystery gift, a brown box weighing approximately four pounds was given to Bonnie Laxson, and turned out to contain gourds. During this time, Nurse Colleen Wilkin saw the people wishing to have their blood pressure taken and talk over any problems concerning their health. The next clinic will take place on Monday, November 5th.

Smoking, drug use condemned

Tummy ad was unforgettable

TORONTO (CP) — One of the most successful advertising campaigns ever produced in Canada features an unforgettable stomach. It was Sandy Gilbert's stomach in the raw. She was pregnant and the commercial was a warning to all pregnant women not to jeopardize their baby's life by smoking, drinking alcohol or using drugs. The 30-second TV spot was part of a major advertising campaign by the Ontario government on the prevention of mental retardation. The commercial, produced by Foster Advertising Ltd., has been pronounced a landmark in Canadian advertising by an independent study by the Longwoods Research Group Ltd. A survey done for the ministry of community and social services showed the commercial achieved an unprecedented level of audience awareness. It begins with Mrs. Gilbert gliding her hands over her protruding stomach. She is five months pregnant. The camera focus is soft and the sound of a heart beat and a discordant sustaining musical note create tension. "Face the facts of life," says a male announcer. "One out of 33 children born in Ontario this year will be mentally retarded. Don't let yours be one of them. Alcohol, tobacco and drugs don't mix with babies. "See your doctor. Find out what you can do during and after pregnancy. In most cases, mental retardation can be prevented. "Face the facts of life," he concludes. Mrs. Gilbert, a 36-year-old professional model, now has a healthy five-months-old daughter named Teil. "I was thrilled at doing the commercial," said the mother of three. "My husband, Bryan, didn't object to me standing in the nude when I did it because he believed in the cause. "It's too bad not everybody liked it." Donald Rennie, ministry communications director, said the ministry received a small number of complaints from people protesting the commercial was repulsive, provocative and ugly. But out of 1,100 letters from women, 85 per cent asked for more information on mental retardation. Only 15 per cent were negative and of that, half objected to the portrayal of a bare stomach on television, Rennie said. Mrs. Gilbert said that because of the concern over public reaction, she had to shoot two commercials.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle an argument. Did you say the following: "Nobody knows why girls want show-off weddings. It works their mothers to death. It runs their fathers into debt and adds to their burdens. It makes the bride haggard with anxiety, so that invariably she looks homelier than she does at any other time." My friend claims Ann

Landers wrote this in one of her columns a long time ago and she clipped it out. I say it was Dorothy Dix but I can't recall the year. Can you straighten us out? — Belle And Jean In San Diego

Dear B and J.: Although it sounds like something I might say (I agree wholeheartedly) I did not say it. If Dorothy Dix said it she said it before 1948. She died that year. If your friend insists she read it AFTER 1948, don't argue with her. I believe many papers continued to run Dorothy Dix's column after her death. They used others writers, of course, but none was as good as Dorothy.

Dear Waiting: One thousand pennies is $10. If you put them in a savings account the bank will pay you interest. This is a good way to make money. Also, money kept at home can be stolen. So find something else to play with, honey, and ask your mother to take the pennies to the bank. I am glad you wrote because a lot of adults can use the same advice.

Miscellaneous shower

ROCK ISLAND (DB) — Miss Joanne Smith of Rock Island was pleasantly surprised when she arrived at the South United Church hall in Rock Island on Sunday afternoon, September 30, to be met at the door by her sister Diane, who pinned a corsage of kitchen utensils on her dress and escorted her to a decorated chair between her mother, Mrs. Dale Smith and her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Anson Hamilton. Mrs. Joanne Belknap pinned a yellow silk mum on Mrs. Smith's dress and a rust one on Mrs. Hamilton's dress. The mothers helped the bride-elect open her beautifully wrapped parcels, to find linens, dishes, electric appliances and many more lovely gifts for her new home. While the gifts were being opened and passed around, her sister-in-law Mrs. Suzanne Smith made a chapeau of the ribbons and bows. The guest book was a pillow, made by Mrs. Margaret Belknap and embroidered by Mrs. Lyn Drew, with a girl in a blue dress standing beside a trellis of red roses and marked "Joanne's Shower, September 30." About sixty guests signed their names on the back. Joanne thanked her many friends for coming and for the lovely gifts, also the hostesses Miss Diane Smith and Mrs. Joanne Belknap for working so hard and arranging the shower, and a special thanks to Ivan Belknap for helping to decorate the hall and placing the chairs. Mrs. Pauline Chamberlain guessed the number of macaroni pieces in a jar and Mrs. Cote, Tammy Jones, Carmen Major, Jeannie Norton, Bonnie Drew, Margaret Belknap and Mrs. A. Carbonneau each received a gift for sitting on marked chairs. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, including two identical shower cakes made and decorated by Mrs. Joanne Belknap in the shape of double wedding bells iced in white with bows and flowers trimmed in blue and marked Jim and Joanne. Before leaving, the guests wished Joanne much happiness in the future.

NATURAL HISTORY NOTEBOOK

PRESENTED BY THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF NATURAL SCIENCES, OTTAWA National Museums of Canada

IGUANA

CONOLOPHUS SUBRUSTATUS III 30

The Galapagos land iguana is one of the most primitive members of the iguana family. It inhabits the arid regions of the Galapagos Islands, where it feeds on cacti and their flowers. It suffers no adverse effects from eating cactus spines which pass easily through its digestive system.

This lizard averages 1.5m in length. It is yellowish with brown blotches on its sides and legs, and has a spiny crest running dorsally from its head. When Darwin visited the Galapagos Islands in 1835, he found so many land iguana burrows that he had to tread cautiously. Today very few iguanas exist and their future looks bleak.

Man has introduced a variety of domestic animals to the islands, including goats which have eaten the protective undercoat of vegetation, thereby exposing the young lizards to birds of prey.

Museum trips enjoyed by group

COOKSHIRE — A large busload of members of the Compton County Historical and Museum Society, the Ascot-Lennoxville Historical Society and a few friends enjoyed a trip to the Odanac Indian Historical Museum and to the Richmond County Historical Museum in Melbourne. Both of these Museums are well worth visiting, and all will receive a warm welcome from those in charge.

At Odanac, the visitors were shown around the building by a guide who explained the making of various articles, and told of historical facts, especially of the Abenakis. Some brought their lunch, a few went to the restaurant, and after lunch, pictures were shown of Indian festivities, etc.

At Melbourne, the articles were displayed on the three floors of the old home, and explanations were given of the various articles. This building was acquired by the society through the generosity of Mr. Newlands Coburn, and it represents the typical home of the last century, very interesting, indeed.

The coloring of the trees along the way was magnificent, and all felt they had a wonderful introduction to nature and to the life styles of the previous century.

Mr. and Mrs. D.J. Macmillan visited a number of friends at the Wales Home on Sunday.

Mr. Ray Stevenson, Mrs. Hazel Patton and Mrs. Heatherington joined the bus group who visited the Odanac Museum, and the Richmond County Museum

South played two rounds of trumps, ruffed his last heart and lost a finesse to West's jack of diamonds. West led back a diamond. South got one useless club discard from dummy on his good diamonds, but finally lost the club finesse and the game.

"Expletives deleted," gulped South. "Three finesses and all three wrong."

South was unlucky, but he was also guilty of declarer malfeasance. The hand was a lay down in spite of the losing finesses. South had overlooked an extra chance. He should have taken the club finesse before trying for the jack of diamonds. It would have lost but South would have cashed the ace of clubs, entered dummy, led the jack of clubs for one diamond discard, the 10 of clubs would have dropped and there would be the nine for a second diamond discard.

The extra chance would have brought home the bacon. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

THE LONG DISTANCE CONTEST

Here's how to play.
For every three long distance calls you make between September 29, 1979 and December 2, 1979, you get one entry. It doesn't matter how long the calls last. Nor does it matter where you call as long as it's long distance. And it's easy to enter. When you've made three long distance calls, you fill out one entry form and send it in. You can even submit a facsimile of the form outlining the discount periods as shown in the contest rules. And for every additional three long distance calls you make during the contest period, you can enter again.

Ten very grand prize packages.
You could win one of 10 economy-class trips for two to Air Canada's Caribbean or anywhere in the world Air Canada flies. Imagine yourself sun-bathing on one of the golden stretches of sand in the Caribbean, enjoying the warm, friendly atmosphere. Or perhaps there's a part of our country you've always wanted to see. Air Canada will fly you there. There may even be a favourite part of the Old or New World you'd like to explore. Air Canada flies to several destinations in Europe and the U.S.A. Air Canada will take you on a trip for two that will last a lifetime.

$2,000 in American Express Traveller's Cheques.
Included in each of the 10 grand prizes will be $2,000 in American Express Traveller's Cheques (Canadian funds). Yours to spend anyway you wish. American Express Traveller's Cheques are the world's most widely accepted traveller's cheques. Should they be lost or stolen they will be replaced usually on the same business day. American Express Traveller's Cheques are the best holiday protection you can carry.

A complete set of Samsonite Espana luggage.
Pack up and go with a six-piece set of Espana the new luggage by Samsonite. Durable, water-resistant nylon in black with burgundy or gold with tan, your choice.

A Polaroid SX-70 Sonar camera.
The smallest instant camera in the world, the folding SX-70 Sonar will let you remember every detail of your trip. Precise "Sonar" focusing and automatic exposure in any light conditions. Sharp, bright pictures from a distance of 25 cm (10") to infinity. Compact, lightweight - folds to approximately 2.5 cm (1") x 10 cm (4") x 23 cm (9"). Never needs batteries.

The approximate value of each prize is $4,700 dependent on winner's point of departure and destination.

You can pick up entry forms and contest rules at your Bell Weboutlet, Telephone or Bell Public Offices. The selection of winners will be made at random on December 19, 1979 at 2 PM EST in the offices of A.C. Nielsen Co. Limited, Unit 3, 146 Waterloo Ave., Scarborough, Ontario. The winners may pick their prizes at the nearest Bell Business Office.

Don't forget to take advantage of Long Distance discount rates.
The most economical time to make your contest calls is during Bell's regular discount periods. To refresh your memory, here they are. Calls within Ontario and Québec.

Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial UCW

The first of the Fall Rallies of Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial U.C.W. was held in Cookshire United Church on Sept. 18. This was the first time an evening Rally had been held, and it proved to be very successful. Registration, in charge of Birchton U.C.W., was at 4 p.m., after which members had time to examine the Book Display set up by Mrs. Lorna Johns.

Worship was conducted by Bury U.C.W., after which members of Cookshire U.C.W. served a bountiful and most delicious supper. After supper Mrs. Claris Phillips introduced a group of young children from Cookshire Elementary School. This being the International Year of the Child, these children, under the leadership of their music teacher, Mrs. Jean Dawson of Island Brook U.C.W., sang several songs in French, Spanish and German, as well as in English.

Mrs. Marion Laberee, Area Vice-President, welcomed the members, and also members of the Presbyterial Executive who were present. Mrs. Hilda Archer, president of Presbyterial, spoke briefly, as well as Mrs. Muriel Prescott, chairman of Church in Society. Mrs. Phillis Smith reported the next deadline for Happenings to be Nov. 1. Mrs. Mary Ladd and Mrs. Laberee reported on Summer Event in Ottawa. Mrs. Mary Hatfield, Youth Worker for the Presbyterial, showed slides and spoke about the work she and her husband do with the young people.

Mrs. Mildred Miller, Vice-President of Presbyterial, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Kathryn Anderson from Montreal-Ottawa Conference Office in Dorval, who followed the theme of the Rally in her presentation. Our theme was, "When Two or Three Are Gathered Together," but Miss Anderson began by telling us that she had developed a theme of her own from our theme, hers was very simple, "Small is Beautiful." She reminded us that in today's world Christians are a minority, and the part played by small groups in caring and sharing is vital to the life of the church.

After Miss Anderson's

presentation, which was accompanied by slides, the gathering broke up into small groups for discussion, later coming together to report their findings.

The registration committee reported an attendance of 70 members, the largest in recent years.

Mrs. Barbara Ward thanked all who had attended, and especially all those who had worked so hard to make the Rally a success.

Scottstown U.C.W. were in charge of the collection, with Bishopston U.C.W. giving the dedication.

Mrs. Claris Phillips led the closing hymn, and Mrs. Hilda Archer closed the meeting with prayer, after which Island Brook U.C.W. served coffee and cookies.

Beavers down Olympiques

By MARC GAUDET
HULL — Serge Boisvert led Sherbrooke Beavers to a 6-4 victory over Hull Olympiques Sunday night. Boisvert now has seven goals this season; he is the top scorer for the Beavers.

Boisvert shot five times on Hull goalies Dean Mills and Daniel Sanscartier. The latter replaced Mills in the third period when he was injured by a Louis Begin shot in the chest. Beavers shelled Hull's goalkeepers for 30 shots and Olympiques replied with 44 shots on Corrado Micallef, who amazed everyone in the arena, including his parents, with his acrobatic saves.

Hull opened the scoring at 8:39 in first period with Michael Brisebois scoring, answered by Louis Begin with his seventh of the season at 16:53. Hull outshot Beavers 12-8.

During a Hull penalty, Serge Boisvert tallied at 0:18 of the second, and Rejean Cloutier followed at 0:52. Marc-Andre Marchand cut the Beavers' lead to 3-2 but Norman Beck registered his fourth goal of the season, and Jean Poulin put the score 4-3 for Sherbrooke, who was outshot 17-8.

In the third period, Michael Brisebois registered his second goal of the evening at 13:16 but Serge Boisvert responded at 14:12 — 36 seconds later, Dennis Martin put the score out of reach, 6-4.

Beavers received 14 minutes in penalties, including two minutes to Corrado Micallef for cross-checking and a two-minute bench penalty. Hull took only six minutes in penalties to Jean-Pierre Viens, Alain Vigneault and the bench for same reason as Beavers.

"I am really happy with this victory," said coach Ghislain Delage. "I am proud of my players because that's the way I want them to play." "I think the most dangerous players for Hull were John Chabot and Michael Brisebois," said goaltender Micallef. "Michael Brisebois is really heavy to move in front of the net," added defenseman Cloutier.

After the game, Hull announced a trade, sending Bobby Wall back in Trois-Rivieres for Jean Gauthier and Marcel Tourigny, former Montreal Juniors and now former Draveurs.

Between the second period and third one, defenseman Jeff Leverman changed into street clothes because he didn't get much ice time. Coach Delage has suspended him indefinitely.

Last Friday evening, Sherbrooke electrified 2,293 fans at the Sports Palace when they clobbered Hull Olympiques 9-2. Rick Secco and Serge Boisvert tallied twice apiece. Other scorers for the Beavers were Rejean Cloutier, Andre Cote, Denis Morin, Guy Perreault, who added two assists, and Mike Laforest. Guy Perreault was ubiquitous.

Michel Galarneau and Michael Brisebois scored both goals for the Olympiques. Yvan Charbonneau stopped 29 shots. Charbonneau, who kept Beavers in the game, played his first contest at Sports Palace this season. "It was the 'Yvan Charbonneau Evening,'" said a jubilant coach Delage, "my defense was better than at Verdun. Boisvert paced the game and Secco opened the play for us," said Delage. "In the third period, we stopped back-checking and Hull took advantage to score both goals."

Next game for Sherbrooke is Thursday in Cornwall Friday evening, they will host Montreal Juniors at the Sports Palace.

Francois Lecompte fired one goal and added a pair of assists as Montreal Juniors scored a 7-4 victory over Laval Voisins in the only game scheduled in the QMJHL Monday night.

In action Sunday, the Juniors edged Shawinigan 3-2, Trois-Rivieres bombed Laval 11-3, Chicoutimi defeated Quebec 8-5, and Cornwall outlasted Verdun 5-2.

GAITERS DOWN WINLESS CONCORDIA

By PAT TRACY

MONTREAL — Concordia Stingers got stung, as the cliché goes, as Bishop's Gaiters soundly defeated them 35-19 in Montreal Saturday. The game was a tense one for the Gaiters who had both a strong wind and a determined Concordia squad to contend with. Concordia hasn't won since 1977. Although the Stingers came on strong during several points in the contest, they were never able to come within seven points of the Gaiters.

Bishop's opened the scoring early in the first quarter on a field goal from Jim Etcheverry. The uproar from the many Bishop's fans had barely died down when Mario Boulanger blocked a Stinger kick close to the end zone and jumped over the line for a Gaiters touchdown. A successful convert brought the score to 10-0 for the visitors.

A second field goal by Etcheverry late in the quarter maintained Bishop's momentum; however, a 75-yard touchdown by Concordia's Mario Spina brought the Stingers into the game. The Gaiters continued their rally into the second quarter as they received two points for tackling a Concordia player in the end zone. A third Etcheverry field goal brought the score to 18-8 in favor of the Gaiters.

The Stingers were quick to narrow the scoring margin with a wide field goal attempt where they were conceded the single point and a successful field goal minutes later. Spina had his second long run and would be touchdown of the day at the end of the half, but a penalty against the Stingers nullified his attempt as the Gaiters held the lead at the half.

Doug McNeaven scored his first touchdown of the day early in the second half on a short run. Etcheverry's extra point on the play was good as the Gaiters regained a commanding lead. An interception by Mark Fabri put the Gaiters in good scoring position and led to Etcheverry's fourth field goal.

Concordia's second touchdown came moments later as Pat Sheahan scored on a short run. The convert was good and Bishop's fans began to hold their breath. A Concordia interception put them in reach of a touchdown, but they were forced to settle for a single point on a wide field goal attempt.

In the final minutes of the game, Steve Bely and Etcheverry combined for an 85-yard touchdown. With a successful convert, the Gaiters were able to ride out the clock.

Bely was the leading rusher for the Gaiters with a total of 185 yards while Doug McNeaven had about 80 yards. Coach Bruce Coulter was pleased with his players performance in the game. "I had told the players that this was a crucial game — that Concordia was an improved team and that they would have to play well — and they did," he said. Earlier in the week, the team had devised a plan to stop Concordia's Bruce Wilkins — the former Gaiter star — and the defense "did a great job of carrying this plan out." Coulter said Marty Edwards was the key man on defense.

Coulter admitted he was a little worried about the windy conditions as the Gaiters' game is mainly a passing one; however, the offense played well and the wind didn't affect the passing.

Bishop's meets Queen's next week at Kingston in a decisive game. According to Coulter, if the Gaiters win the game, they could gain home field advantage in the playoffs.

...but Stingers win soccer tourney

MONTREAL (ME) — Bishop's soccer Gaiters finished last in the Canadian Intercollegiate Soccer Classic here Monday. The event was won by Concordia Stingers as they blanked Waterloo 3-0 in the final.

Euripedes Koronis, Steve Dunlop and Costas Karakatsianis scored for Concordia.

In the consolation game, Clarkson College of Potsdam, N.Y., edged the Gaiters 4-3. Mark Bissonnette netted twice for Clarkson, with singles scored by Reggie Horne and Lynn Norton. Peter Arndt, Rene Goehrum and Brent Couhert scored for Bishop's.

High schools: Galt gridders win

LENOXVILLE (PT) — Both Alexander Galt football teams came up victorious to capture the number one spot in their respective leagues over the long weekend. In senior action Galt rallied at Massey Vanier to a 25-6 win. Brad Vaillancourt paced the Pipers with two touchdowns while Willie Home and Kevin Moore added others. Quarterback John Coulter booted one convert. Massey Vanier's single touchdown in the game came from Dennis Walker.

Down 14-13 at the half, the junior Pipers came on strong to defeat the BCS juniors 48-14 Saturday. The game was revenge for Galt as they had lost 18-14 to BCS in a previous game this year.

David "O.J." Quig was top scorer for the Pipers with four touchdowns while Craig Warnholtz added two. Meridith Wilson added one touchdown and six converts. Jeff Pille had an excellent day on defense for the Galt squad.

The weekend wins put both Galt teams in first place in their divisions, while BCS takes second. This week, the juniors take on Massey Vanier at Galt Tuesday while the seniors battle BCS Wednesday in what should be an exciting contest.

In other Galt sports, the senior field hockey team lost 1-0 to North Country from Newport, Vt. Friday. There were no other weekend games for the Pipers.

Richmond hosted two BCS boys soccer teams on Saturday in their only games of the weekend. The bantams fought to a 0-0 tie while the juniors defeated BCS 4-0. Ken Comeau had a good day for Richmond, scoring three points and Tony Dunkerley had the marker.

At Massey Vanier, the girls' field hockey teams came away with two victories and one tie in weekend action. The senior team defeated Centennial of Greenfield Park 2-0 on Thursday with Rhoda Pearson scoring both goals. Pearson scored two more markers Friday as the seniors shutout Chateauguay Valley 3-0. Anne Rousseau scored the other point. In what was described as a "giant defensive struggle", the juniors fought CVR to a 0-0 tie.

Stanstead College was on holiday over the weekend and played no games. This week, two Stanstead teams will travel to Ashbury and two soccer teams will take on Alexander Galt Wednesday.

BCS had an active weekend with several games against old boys and old girls teams. In senior football, the Old Boys defeated the BCS team 21-3 on Saturday. The Senior girls soccer fared better, defeating the Old Girls 4-2 while the boys senior soccer team lost 7-1 to the Old Boys. The Old Girls and the senior field hockey team battled to a 2-2 tie.

On Friday, the BCS girls soccer teams played host to Richmond Regional winning all three games. Both bantam and junior teams came out with 2-0 victories while the seniors defeated RRHS 5-0.

Esks whip Als 47-6

Whenever Edmonton Eskimos and Montreal Alouettes meet, it seems one or the other is thirsting for revenge.

The Eskimos slaked their thirst in grand style Monday, dismantling the Alouettes 47-6 in the last regular-season encounter between the Western and Eastern Conference leaders of the Canadian Football League. That left the Alouettes and coach Joe Scanela hoping for another rematch in the last week of November for the Grey Cup. "Right now they're a better team," Scanela said of the Eskimos, "and we have to do something about it."

"I would like to play them again, I really would." In other CFL games Sunday, Hamilton Tiger-Cats moved into a tie with Toronto for third place in the Eastern Conference by humiliating the Argonauts 42-3, while Calgary Stampeders survived two Winnipeg marches late in the game to defeat the Blue Bombers 18-13.

Sunday, Ottawa Rough Riders edged winless Saskatchewan Roughriders 20-19, thanks to a failed two-point conversion attempt by Saskatchewan on the final play of the game.

"Everybody did what they're supposed to do," Edmonton coach Hugh Campbell said after his team displayed the balanced offensive and defensive punch that carried the Esks to the Grey Cup over Montreal last year.

Magog team takes relay race

MEGANTIC (ME) — In the tightest finish in the 12-year history of the annual Fernand Grenier Relay Race, a team of runners from Magog beat out 29 others from Quebec, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Magog completed the 6758-kilometre course in a time of 3 hours, 24 minutes, 54 seconds, followed by an Ottawa group, 16 secs. later. Dalhousie University took the bronze medal with a time of 3:29:58. The record time for the Grenier race is 3:20:40, set in 1976 by an Ottawa team.

Race president Grenier was elated at the tight finish and also at the wide-range of participants. "The participation of Nova Scotia, joining Quebec and Ontario here, gave the race a truly national flavour," he said.
