THE WORK OF MAN---October View of Central Section of Montreal Taken From New Lookout on Mount Royal

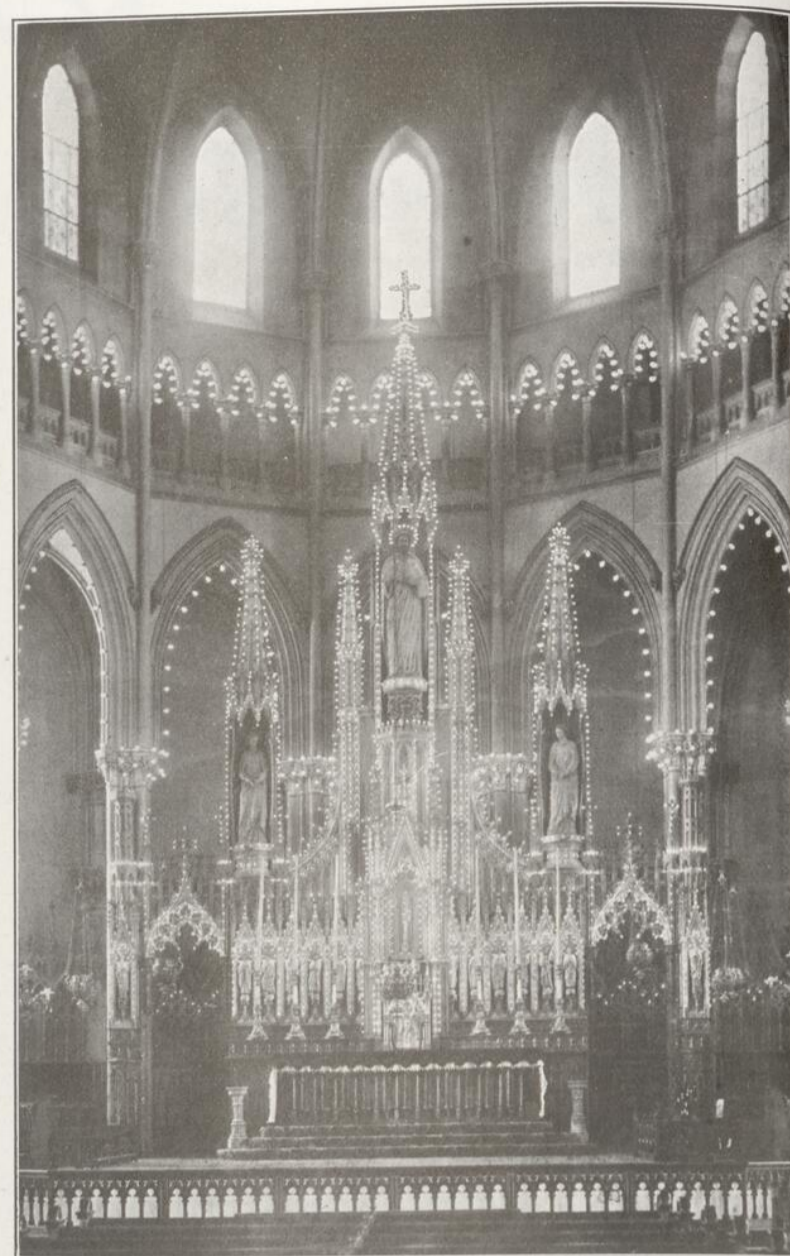

MONTREAL IN THE AUTUMN OF 1907—In the foreground of the picture will be seen the residence of Sir H. Montagu Allan (where Royalty has often been entertained), and the low-level reservoir, almost empty because of the recent trouble at the pumping-station. Beyond the reservoir the new science building at McGill will be noticed in course of erection. The illustration also shows Christ Church Cathedral, St. James Methodist Church, the Church of the Gesu, St. Patrick's Church, St. Paul's Church, St. Andrew's Church, the church of Notre Dame, the City Hall and Court House, the Harbor Commissioners' and G. T. R. elevators, the sky-scrapers in the business section of the city, and the Victoria Bridge. In the distance will be seen St. Lambert and the Beloeil Mountains.

Many Prominent Physicians Photographed in Front of Laval; Some Handsome Montreal Churches

ILLUMINATED ALTAR IN ST. JAMES CHURCH, MONTREAL—During recent years the rapid development in the system of electric lighting has made it possible for many of the Roman Catholic churches in Montreal and elsewhere to brilliantly illuminate their altars and chancels. The church in the illustration is but one of many examples of elaborately lighted altars to be found in Montreal. (Photo by Gordon, St. Catherine street West.)

INSTRUCTORS OF THE YOUNG—In the Province of Quebec the primary education of Roman Catholic boys is largely entrusted to the Christian Brothers, an organization possessing a world-wide influence. Until recently the Brothers were also employed as teachers in some of the separate schools in Ottawa, but they were obliged to withdraw a few months since owing to their reluctance to qualify under the Normal School regulations of the Department of Education of the Province of Ontario. OFFICIALS OF THE UNION ST. PIERRE, MONTREAL—This organization is connected with the Roman Catholic parish of St. James, Montreal, and includes many citizens of prominence in the Canadian Metropolis. (Photo by Lapres & Lavergne, St. Denis street, corner Ontario.)

THE HANDSOME CHURCHES OF CANADA'S METROPOLIS—Interior of St. Charles Roman Catholic Church at Montreal, showing the pretty arrangement of the columns supporting the arches in the nave. The architecture of this church, although modelled in Byzantine style, is rather unique, and at once strikes the visitor to the edifice as being something out of the ordinary. The reredos at the back of the altar could more properly be called a screen, so different is it in appearance from its prototypes. The church is solidly constructed of stone, and occupies a fine position on Centre street, Point St. Charles, Montreal. Father Carriere is its parish priest. (Photo by Lapres & Lavergne, St. Denis street, corner Ontario.)

St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum Moving to Their New Home; Vice-Regal Hunting Party at Quebec

AN INSTITUTION THAT GIVES BOYS AND GIRLS A WORTHY START IN LIFE—The boys of St. Patrick's Orphanage, from a photograph taken on the steps of the old home on Dorchester street West. In the near future the inmates of this home will be removed to the new Orphanage at the back of the Mountain.

S. T. PATRICK'S ORPHAN ASYLUM.—The transfer of the pupils of St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum to their handsome and commodious new Home at the back of the Mountain will shortly take place. A brief resume of the work of the present Home on Dorchester street West (near St. Patrick's Church) may prove interesting to those who have always had the welfare of the institution at heart.

The last-named building was erected in 1850 through the efforts of the late Rev. Father Dowd, parish priest of St. Patrick's Church. The nucleus of the building fund was derived from the estate of one Mr. Bartholomew O'Brien, who bequeathed the sum of £1000 for the purpose of erecting such an asylum. Father Dowd, after maturing his plans, considered it advisable to take into his confidence the leading men connected with the Irish community in Montreal. A meeting was held, when plans were perfected for the building of the Home. On Nov. 21, 1851, the Feast of the Presentation of our Blessed Lady, the orphans entered their new quarters for the first time. The occasion was a time of rejoicing to all concerned. The little tots had hitherto been housed on Craig street, near the Champ de Mars. In those days there were very few houses on the hill on which the new Orphanage had been built, and accordingly we find it recorded that the transfer of the orphans was not an easy one by any means. A good deal of snow had fallen during the early hours of Nov. 21, through which the boys and girls had to trudge their way. "Their little feet loitered not, however, so light were the hearts that urged them on. The summit of the 'Home' topped hill was gained at last, and St. Patrick's Asylum appeared in bold relief to gladden the gaze. For a moment, order was forgotten and a joyous shout awoke the surrounding stillness. Each little one was anxious to bound forward and to be the first to cross St. Patrick's threshold. Notwithstanding the early hour (6 a.m.) many friends of the establishment were present at the opening Mass, during which some of the orphans from the Grey Nunnery sang hymns. After Mass, breakfast was served, when the children enjoyed a great treat."

CURIOUS GROUNDING OF A STEAMER.—The Norwegian steamer Volund went ashore at Blomidon on October 3rd, while en route to New York with a cargo of gypsum from Windsor, N.S. She was successfully floated on October 9th and towed to Parrsboro for repairs.

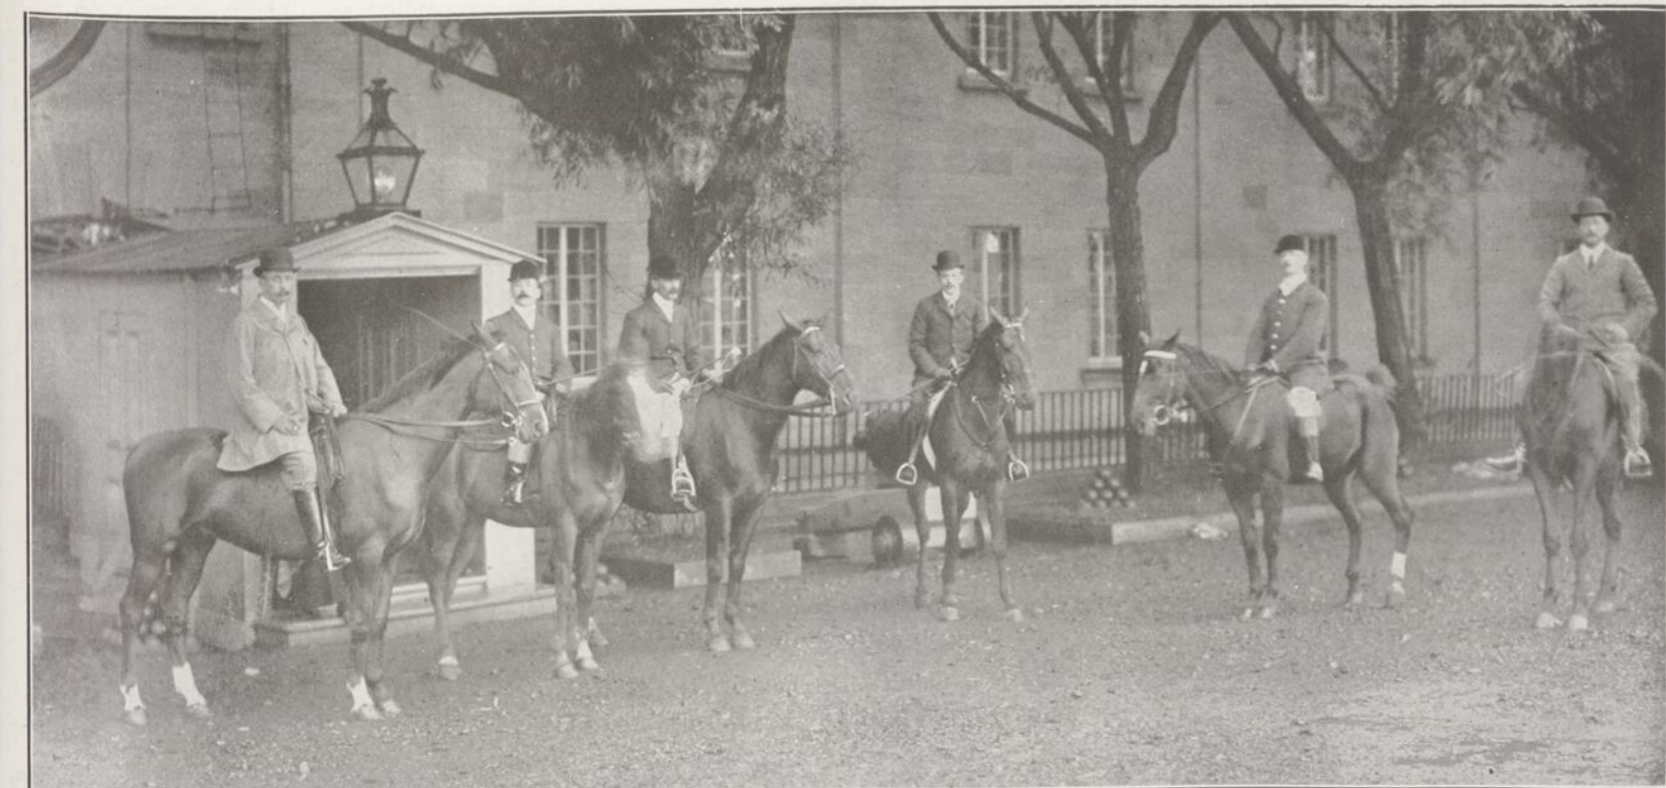

1851, the Asylum has done a noble work. Thousands of boys and girls have found homes within its walls; have been educated and religiously trained; have been fitted for the duties of citizenship in this Canada of ours. Scores of the laddies who have lived within its walls have entered the Holy Church, while others have adorned the industrial, professional and commercial life of Montreal, Canada, and even the United States. The influence of the Home has always been wholesome in its tendency, and thousands of boys exist to-day who received their first start in life within its walls.

Montreal's Sons of England Hold One of the Best Church Parades in the History of the Order

MONTREAL SONS OF ENGLAND HOLD A CHURCH PARADE—Scene at the Drill Hall as the members of the S.O.E.B.S. of the District of Montreal, headed by the Veterans Association, marched out on their way to divine service at Grace Church, Point St. Charles, recently. The parade was one of the best in the Society's history.

Parisian Fashion Notes.

ON many of the autumn gowns seen at the Chantilly Race Course one notices that the jabot is more than ever esteemed, but, of course, entirely original in form and material. It is very fluffy and soft, and reaches from throat to belt or waistcoat, many of them being of fine laces mounted on sheer tulle. All of these jabots are fastened to the blouse here or there with jeweled safety pins. One of the most noticed gowns was one composed of mousseline de soie entirely covered with soutache, so that the original material was almost invisible. This was used for the top of the skirt and for the loose cloak; cloth in the same tone completed the borders. Ruthlessly extravagant is the fad for cutting up several almost priceless old shawls to make a single gown. Yet a number of gowns were seen, the beautiful borders being the only trimming, with a touch of velvet ribbon finished with tassels in cashmere shades.

Cloths for street costumes are somewhat heavier than the chiffon quality we have become so accustomed to, and are noticeable for their original color blendings in tones quite new and pleasing as well as in designs that embrace two very distinct varieties, the stripes, and the plaids, or cross bars. The lines may remain clear and distinct, or they are made to approach the shadowy effects that have become so familiar of late. There never fails to be a few examples of bizarre cloths, which are dubbed stunning by many; loud and

"Fashion-Craft"

The Artistic View Point.

Rightly or wrongly "Fashion-Craft" believes that its salesmen should be just as hard to please as its most fastidious customers.

That is, none but men trained in clothes knowledge can sell Fashion-Craft Clothes.

They must understand not only FIT which is elementary knowledge, but color effect and pattern effect so that their taste and judgment is used to the buyer's interest.

Think what this means—helping the customer to choose, and not forcing him to buy.

The Commercial View Point.

Fashion-Craft business Suits include fine English Worsteds, Saxonomies and Cheviots, in ample variety from $15 to $30.

The $15 Suit has $15 worth of substantial wearing value and the appearance of higher priced garments.

Every Suit at whatever price is intended to emphasize one fact, that Fashion-Craft Clothing is a distinct type and that the wearer is getting the best a custom tailor can do—plus Fashion-Craft distinction.

Suit for suit—price for price, Fashion-Craft wins the confidence of good dressers.

vulgar by others. But few tailors would think of using such cloth except as an introduction into parts of a suit, and no doubt they will manage to evolve no little chic effect out of it, in contrast with a solid black or some very dark color.

One of the most wearable novelties on this order was a fine glossy black serge, measuring fifty-seven inches in width. It had a half-yard wide plaiding executed over its surface, with a black satin finish braid three-eighths of an inch wide, stitched to the cloth on both edges. Very unusual are many of the newest chiffon velvets, while there are many reproductions of those with small pin dots, checks and stripes, that have remained so extremely popular for a year or two past.
