Deficit Grows

May Have To Pinch Pennies

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may have to pinch its pennies in the next month to keep within Finance Minister Fleming's forecast of a $393,000,000 deficit in the fiscal year ending March 31.

Its budgetary deficit in the first 10 months of the year, up to last Jan. 31, was $108,500,000. Mr. Fleming reported Friday night in his monthly treasury statement.

However, government bills tend to come in a rush at year's end. Last year, a deficit of $120,900,000 at the end of January ballooned into a $509,000,000 deficit for the 1958-59 year as a whole.

Mr. Fleming reported budgetary revenues in the April-January period rose sharply by $450,000,000 from a year earlier to total $4,337,900,000.

All major revenue sources showed higher collections, especially personal income taxes, up $178,000,000 to $1,347,900,000, and corporation income taxes, up $90,400,000 to $924,600,000.

However, an increase in expenditures nearly kept pace with the rise in collections. Budgetary expenditures for the 10-month period climbed by $437,600,000 to a total $4,446,400,000.

DEBT CHARGES UP

Main item in the rise was an extra $139,600,000 in the burden of public debt charges, which reached $859,500,000. Defence department outlays were $91,000,000 higher at $1,159,700,000. A few departments, including public works, veterans affairs and agriculture, spent less.

Government operations in the month of January alone added a $21,300,000 deficit compared with the small $18,000 surplus for January, 1959.

Mr. Fleming's report also gave fresh indication that the old age security fund, which finances the $55 monthly pensions to all aged 70 and over, is close to breaking even.

The fund, excluded from normal budgetary accounts is financed by special three-percent taxes on sales and on personal and corporation incomes. Mr. Fleming's budget last spring increased this tax allocation, formerly two per cent in all three fields.

He reported a $9,700,000 surplus in the fund for January—second monthly surplus this year.

BOAC Plane Has Trouble Over Atlantic

LONDON (Reuters)—A four-engined BOAC airliner from Montreal with more than 70 persons aboard developed engine trouble over the Atlantic today as it was nearing Ireland.

The pilot, according to reports received here, radioed that he would have to feather one propeller but added that he was not in any serious trouble.

The pilot's message said that he had decided not to make the scheduled landing at Shannon Airport—scene of the crash of an Italian airliner Friday—but would fly straight on to London.

The plane is a DC-7.

Will Welcome German Bases On French Soil

PARIS—(Reuters)—France Friday threw her doors wide open for West German military bases on French soil.

President de Gaulle's government also gave wholehearted endorsement to West Germany's demand for bases in other foreign countries but it studiously avoided any commitment on whether some of these bases should be set up in Spain.

Keeps Date With Doctor The Hard Way

LOS ANGELES (AP)—George Fotinos kept his appointment with the doctor—the hard way.

Fotinos, 47, his broken right foot in a plaster cast, was driving his car with his left foot only. As he tried to park outside the clinic Friday, his foot slipped.

His new car roared through the clinic's wall and right into the examination room. Fotinos was not injured. His car was wrecked.

Reveal 'Royal Secret' To Rueful Columnists

LONDON (CP)—A talented commoner with a taste for informality has been cast in the role of prince charming. Antony Armstrong-Jones, fair-haired royal court photographer whose engagement to Princess Margaret was announced Friday, has never appeared content to rest on a reputation created by his striking portraits of royalty.

Favoring a black suede jacket and denim trousers, the 29-year-old photographer emerged from his Piccadilly Road studio next door to a laundry to train his camera on all aspects of London life. His one-man shows leaned more heavily on sium district fires than high society portraiture.

Gossip columnists, rueful over their failure to penetrate the immaculately kept royal secret, recalled that they should have suspected something when Armstrong-Jones appeared in unaccustomed white tie and tails last May to join the princess in a box at the West Side Story, an American musical, in the first of their rare public appearances together.

JUST A PHOTOGRAPHER? Invariably on such occasions there were others in the party. Columnists, eager to link the names of eligible bachelors with the princess, ascribed the frequent presence of Armstrong-Jones at the royal residence to his photographic duties.

It is considered likely that the Queen will confer a title on the future brother-in-law before the wedding—date of which has not been announced.

As matters stand, the princess would be known after her marriage as Her Royal Highness Princess Margaret, Mistress Armstrong-Jones. Both she and her fiancé are 29.

Marriage to a commoner would not affect her ranking in the succession where she follows the Queen, Prince Charles, Princess

Socialists Protest Eisenhower Visit

Demonstrators Tear Down Flags

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Security measures surrounding President Eisenhower's Argentine visit were tightened today after about 500 socialist demonstrators in the heart of Buenos Aires.

The demonstrators burned one U.S. flag and surged through the capital's streets Friday night following a political rally, ripping down banners on buildings that had been hung in honor of the visiting U.S. chief of state.

U.S. secret service men and Argentine officials scurried about checking precautions as the president prepared to fly to the seaside resort of Mar del Plata where thousands of tourists in carnival mood were on hand to greet him.

Authorities said they did not anticipate that any incident would soil the welcome prepared for the president in the fashionable waterfront resort known as the "Pearl of the Atlantic." But they took no chances.

GUARD AGAINST OUTBREAKS Precautions were taken against a fresh outbreak of Friday's Peronist demonstrations that flared during the resounding ovation accorded Eisenhower in the capital.

Despite scattered outbursts by diehard followers of ousted dictator Juan D. Peron, the Argentine welcome for Eisenhower was the most enthusiastic of his Latin American goodwill tour.

Between 750,000 and 1,000,000 persons lined the six-mile motorcade route through Buenos Aires cheering the president.

In Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, major Brazilian cities he visited earlier, Eisenhower drew crowds of about 500,000.

The Peronists made no direct attack on Eisenhower or the U.S. Their main aim apparently was to embarrass Argentine president Arturo Frondizi's regime.

Friday night's socialist demonstration was the first report of anti-U.S. activity since Eisenhower arrived.

FIRST BREAK IN TOUR Today's visit to Mar del Plata marked the first respite in the president's strenuous tour. After three hours at the resort, Eisenhower was to push on to the mountain lake resort of Bariloche for a weekend of relaxation and talks with Frondizi.

Economics were expected to play a key part in the discussions. Frondizi has been seeking outside investments to spur industrialization of his hard-pressed country.

In a speech to the Argentine congress Friday, Eisenhower called for a greater understanding between the U.S. and Argentina and said there must be continual interchanges of ideas, persons and techniques.

While in Bariloche Eisenhower will have a chance to play golf, fish for trout or go sight-seeing.

Name Riding After Duplessis

QUEBEC—(CP)—The name of the late premier Maurice Duplessis is to be perpetuated in a new provincial constituency. The Quebec government will make the proposal in the legislature next week.

The riding of Duplessis is to be fashioned from part of the vast northeastern constituency of Saguenay which now extends from Tadoussac, 125 miles east of Quebec City, to Blanc Sablon on the Newfoundland-Labrador boundary.

Premier Antonio Barrette is scheduled to introduce a government bill proposing amendments to the Territorial Division Act which sets the boundaries of electoral districts.

The amendments will provide for the creation of new ridings, increasing the number of seats in the legislative assembly to 93 from 93.

45 Members

To Form Radiation Committee

TORONTO (CP)—Formation of a 45-member national committee to sell Canadians about radiation hazards and help form public opinion on what should be done to prevent an increase in such hazards was announced Friday night.

The National Committee for the Control of Radiation Hazards issued a manifesto outlining these specific objectives:

1. The immediate cessation of nuclear tests by all countries, to be enforced by a system of inspection, preferably under United Nations auspices;

2. Intensification of research into the effects of all types of ionizing radiation;

3. Enforcement of regulations designed to minimize radiation hazards;

4. Restriction of all scientific and medical techniques involving the use of radiation to persons properly qualified by scientific training and operating under conditions established by competent scientific bodies.

Provisional chairman is Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, chairman of the British Columbia Power Commission and former director-general of the United Nations Technical Assistance Administration.

The announcement said the committee will organize a national conference to be held in Montreal in March or April "at which its activities will be submitted for endorsement to a large number of like-minded people drawn from all parts of Canada."

CONCERN OVER HAZARDS

"An increasing number of people in Canada . . . have become deeply concerned over the possible effects on our own and future generations of the hazards resulting from the increase of radioactivity in the world and its atmosphere," the manifesto begins.

It says scientists do not agree on the extent of the danger but that some of the most prominent believe that nuclear testing has already caused or will cause hundreds of thousands of deaths.

Clearing Weather Forecast

Nearly all of Eastern Canada today was still digging itself out of a fierce storm that freakishly, all but by-passed the Sherbrooke district early yesterday.

While Southern Ontario was waist-deep in snow, and Montreal and Quebec City were paralyzed by the second severe blizzard in a week, less than three inches of snow fell on the Sherbrooke area yesterday and this morning.

A few more snowflurries were expected today, with clearing weather and light winds forecast for Sunday.

The light snowfall in the area, however, did make driving conditions dangerous, and several accidents were reported on district highways last night.

Buses between here and Montreal and Quebec City were cancelled most of yesterday, and trains arriving here from other parts of Eastern Canada were up to two hours late.

Elsewhere, the wind-driven snow that clogged highways, closed schools and claimed lives.

The storms reached from southern Ontario through the Maritimes from Thursday to early today.

Southern Ontario dug out from under the thick blanket of snow Friday. Montreal was coping with a slush removal problem left by the 10 inches of snow dumped on that city in mild temperatures.

Quebec City had all available workmen out Friday night trying to remove from six to eight inches of snow whipped into drifts by winds gusting to 60 miles an hour.

The Maritimes provinces were hit by rain, freezing rain and snow Friday, winds reached 70 miles an hour in some coastal areas.

Adventures With God

Inspiration (and Humor) In The Mail

By JANE SCOTT

There is never a dull moment when one adventures with God as a newspaper columnist. The mail is a constant source of inspiration.

One never knows what will fall out of an envelope. Sometimes it is a verse of scripture, a letter of appreciation or the doggerel with a humorous twist that has a bearing on something we have written.

When pasting scrapbooks we attach the letter or the doggerel with the column it refers to.

A decade ago we wrote an article addressed to younger readers in which we advised them to read carefully the books of Psalms and Proverbs. In the next mail came the following:

King David and King Solomon Lived merry, merry lives, With many, many concubines And many, many wives.

But when old age came creeping on, With all its aches and qualms, Solomon wrote the Proverbs, And David wrote the Psalms.

Air Crashes Kill 90

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN

Canadian Press Staff Writer NEWS SAMPLES: Two plane accidents kill 90. Israel and United Arab Republic sharpen quarrel. NATO shocked by West German moves. Canada tastes both victory and humiliation at Olympics.

There were bodies scattered all over the field. People were mixed up with the remains of sheep the plane had killed. . . . People were screaming, sheep were crying and dogs were barking. It was like a scene from hell."

This was a priest's description of the carnage after an Italian airliner crashed and hit a sheep flock following takeoff from Shannon, Ireland, early Friday, killing 29 persons and seriously injuring 23.

Many of the passengers were said to be Italians bound to new homes in the United States and Canada. The plane was en route to New York.

RIO TRAGEDY A U.S. navy plane and a Brazilian airliner with a total of 64 persons aboard them collided over Rio de Janeiro's bay in an overcast Thursday. Parts of the planes spiralled out of the overcast before the eyes of horrified spectators, seeming to hit the water and sink with an eerie gentleness.

Sixty-one persons died. The two tragedies brought to more than 325 the number of persons to lose their lives in eight major plane crashes since Jan. 1.

IKE SADDENED

The accident over Rio—capital of Brazil—occurred as President Eisenhower was visiting the country in the course of his South American tour.

Eisenhower, visibly shaken by the tragedy, and Brazilian President Kubitschek visited the three survivors with words of encouragement. Many of the U.S. victims were navy bandmen who had been scheduled to entertain the two leaders.

Eisenhower, who received a rousing welcome in the big Latin country, assured the Brazilian Congress that subversion of one Western Hemisphere nation by another would be viewed by the U.S. as intervention. On Friday, the American

UP THE LADDER — "I want some respect, I want to be an actress." Those words set the stage for Marilyn Monroe's walkout on Hollywood in 1955 at mid-point in her first decade in films. She's shown, left, at New York's Actors Studio where she worked hard to make her dream true. Result: a series of film hits, including the box office smash, "Some Like It Hot," in which the captivating Monroe smile, center, was a sensation. Marilyn, right, as she prepares to rehearse her newest picture, "Let's Make Love," and to make the Monroe "doctrine" rule Hollywood for some time to come.

Marilyn Adds Sparkle For Solid Gold Career

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — At the time of Marilyn Monroe's early fame, the boys in Korea were calling her "Miss Flame-thrower" and their girls back home were putting the "vulgar" label on her low-cut gowns and sweaters.

Marilyn Monroe, born Norma Jean Baker and now 34, had a flair for comical little girl-like whimsy-whimsy, and it was as natural as her curves.

The figure, the face, the mole and the lips gave her career the speed of a hot rod jumping a green traffic light, but her sense of humor has kept her going for 10 years.

It may keep her going for a long time. Maybe even another 10 years.

Marilyn may be a simple, little dumb blonde, as some Hollywoodites insist, but in many ways she is one smart cookie today.

There is little evidence that she acquired culture while fighting for Hollywood's "respect," any great added intelligence as the wife of intellectual Miller, or even that she has improved tremendously as an actress in 10 years.

BUT WHAT SHE has learned in recent years, is that Marilyn Monroe can't be the whole show and that she needs talented people around her to keep the Monroe "doctrine" in force.

There was a time, before she sailed off to New York, when Marilyn was talking like a girl who wanted to inherit the mantle of a great screen actress like Greta Garbo or Bette Davis.

She tried in "Bus Stop" and "The Prince and the Showgirl." Both films were far from being box office block busters, and Marilyn slipped in the audience popularity polls. Today she's back playing the kind of role she once walked away from—the sexpot blonde with the open mouth, provocative smile and the flipping hips.

There's no more talk of Marilyn the Duse.

Instead there's help, big help from supporting casts, good directors and the ever-present Paula Strasberg calling the dramatic signals for her.

PAULA, IN A WAY, is much like the mother of Shirley Temple who always stood beside the camera where Shirley could see her and who always said to Shirley, just before every scene: "Now sparkle, Shirley, sparkle!"

Almost like a child, Marilyn is sparkling today on Paula's cues.

In "Some Like It Hot," Jack Lemmon, Tony Curtis and director Billy Wilder helped give Marilyn one of her biggest hits.

Jack Cole, husband Miller, director Cukor. And with all this and Marilyn, too, there will be special guest appearances by Milton Berle, Frank Sinatra and Gene Kelly.

So 10 years of the Monroe "doctrine" in Hollywood adds up to this:

The girl with a dash of Betty Boop and a splash of Daisy Mae may be late for planes, trains and operations, but she was smart enough not to be late in discovering that she can be only as good as the company in which she travels.

When Marilyn goes hunting for box office gold these days, it's like a long-planned, well-organized safari into darkest Africa.

There are many litter bearers and all are dedicated to one goal—registering Marilyn on that screen with jackpot-hitting sparkle.

I can't help but suspect that even Marilyn, with her sense of humor, privately finds the whole thing terribly amusing as she and hubby Miller putter around their Connecticut farmhouse between films.

WHEN PAULA isn't standing right beside the camera to quarterback Marilyn, someone else is:

Familiar Subjects Spectacular Captured By The Close-Up Lens

A lot of fun can be had in amazing your friends with some unusual shots and the most spectacular seems to be when they see a familiar subject in unfamiliar circumstances, such as in close-up photography. The average person may take some time to fathom out what he really is seeing.

Now in order to take such a picture, you must be able to extend the lens from the film twice or more the focal length of your lens. The focal length is usually given by the manufacturer and engraved on the lens mount something like this—F—75mm 1:3.5.

Now in plain words, when your camera is set at infinity, usually engraved as a figure "∞" lying on its side, your closest position to a subject with most cameras will be three feet. In order to get closer to your subject, you will have to attach supplementary lenses, which come in various focal lengths, and fit over the camera lens. This, in effect, shortens the focal length, enabling you to come within two feet to 12 inches of the subject. If you are fortunate enough to have the reflex type of camera, it is no problem to focus accurately.

The proper name for these extra lenses is "potra." They come in numbers 1, 2 and 3. Each will enable you to photograph small subjects at short distances, in order to secure larger images on your film. Incidentally there are supplementary lenses for telephoto effects; that is, larger images of distant subjects. There are some on the market that are not too expensive, others, highly corrected, will dig deep into your budget. Kodak has a good selection called "Kodak Portra" lenses. They fit standard lens hoods zeiss, also have snap-on close-up lenses.

There are many uses for these attachments—making copies of prints when you have lost the negative, postcards, coins (old), also for floral photography, and insect studies. Last but not least, fish in your aquarium are great subjects. And talking about aquariums, when you try to get that famous specimen in front of the camera, I suggest you cut or purchase a piece of glass slightly smaller than the width of your tank, and slide it down as a false wall, thereby trapping in a smaller area the fish or fishes that you wish to photograph.

This saves you chasing them back and forth the length of the tank. The extra glass wall will not be noticed in the final print. Lighting for this particular set-up can easily be done by flash bulb, holding the flash above the tank. If this is not possible, because your shutter cord will not reach that far, place your camera on a tripod, focus for the center of the tank, and cut down your lens opening as much as possible in accordance with your flash guide number. Open the shutter and fire the flash independently. Now remember to keep these extra lenses in a safe place, and never allow finger prints to touch their surfaces, and the same goes for your camera lens. There are acids in those finger prints which could permanently damage your lens. Use only lens cleaning tissue and lens cleaning fluid, using a soft tissue, gently brush the lens to remove any form of grit or sand, then with a drop of lens cleaning fluid, gently clean off the offending grease. Never apply too much pressure, just enough to do the job.

CLUB NOTES

The Sher-Bell Camera Club held its Thursday night meeting this week at the King George Hotel. A movie was shown, and an interesting talk on the use of photography in the division of Wood Products at St. Lawrence Paper. East Angus was given club member, Hugo Sorry.

With much regret, the members learned of their President Doug Corbett's transfer to Montreal, but wish him all the best in his new appointment.

We welcomed the installation of Miss Dorothy Shattuck, of East Angus as Secretary. As a matter of interest, if you happen to be near your TV set, today, tune in Channel 3 at 1:15 p.m. An interesting course in photography is planned for the next thirteen Saturdays, which should prove instructive and profitable as they plan to give prizes. Details will be announced during the course, which is being sponsored by Anglo-Photo, distributors of famous makes of cameras.

'Regrettable Negligence' By City Employee

The failure to register the deed whereby the City of Sherbrooke purchased the property of the Venus Mills, Ltd., over 18 months ago was "regrettable negligence" on the part of a municipal employee, the city does not appear in danger of suffering any financial loss, Mayor Armand Nadeau declared during his press conference yesterday.

The registration of the deed, covering the 1958 deal, was made only in January of this year, some time after the company had gone into bankruptcy.

As the result of this bankruptcy, the transaction was not covered by the provisions of the Civil Code of Quebec but rather by the terms of the Bankruptcy Act, which was federal legislation.

Section 44 of the Bankruptcy Act provided that the trustee must recognize such transactions regardless of whether or not they were registered provided they were made in good faith, the mayor stated.

The section was designed to prevent a bankrupt from transferring property through a fictitious sale to defraud his creditors, Mayor Nadeau explained.

In the Venus Mills case, he continued, there was no question of bad faith but only of regrettable negligence on the part of a municipal servant.

He believed the city's stand would be supported by any court of the land. Thus the citizens had little cause for concern.

DECLINES BID

Referring to an invitation extended by J. A. Fortier, president of the Sherbrooke Proprietors League, to attend a meeting of the League Sunday afternoon, Mayor Nadeau said he had declined the invitation.

"I am carrying out my responsibilities at the City Hall for the best interests of the city," he said. "I am ready to receive serious suggestions from responsible groups, but I cannot waste time with small pressure groups who do not hold the respect of the public."

Mr. Fortier had referred to his political career being a "fiasco," the mayor said, but the record showed he had public support.

"The first time I ran for the mayoralty, I was defeated on a matter of principle by a few hundred votes. Next time I lost out in a three-way fight, also by a small margin. On my next attempt I was elected by the largest majority ever given a Sherbrooke mayor and I was given my present term by acclamation."

"We have carried out a $7,000,000 program of public improvements with the consent of the proprietors, indicating we have the full support of the public," he added.

Mr. Fortier's sole entry into the civic political field was to seek election as alderman in the East Ward, Mayor Nadeau commented, continuing, "Then he saved his deposit by only a few votes. He should talk of 'fiascos.'"

THOSE POLICE CARS

He replied to complaints by a local drive-yourself operator that the car rental firm had not been invited to tender on providing cars for the police department by explaining that no tenders had been called.

"The agreement with Foxbrooke Motors was renewed on the recommendation of the police committee when Foxbrooke offered to renew the service at the same cost. It was a routine committee decision," the mayor said, and stated that Foxbrooke had purchased the old police cars when the contract was signed last year.

BISHOP'S BULLETIN BOARD

By ROBIN KOTZE

On Wednesday, the Bishop's Gaiters basketball team travelled to Newport, Vermont to play a return match with the Newport squad. Bishop's was travelling without the services of Ted Runions and Mike Caswell who were unable to make the trip, and it was thought that Newport would have themselves an easy win. The final score of the game was 78-56 for the Gaiters, with Murray Smith leading the team with 24 points, Squee Gordon scored 16 points while Cliff Maclean pot-tered 10. The outcome of the game came as a great surprise to both the Gaiters and Newport because Newport beat Bishop's quite handily at Bishop's earlier last week.

For the past week, students have been seeing a great deal of coloured posters around the corridors of the University as election campaigning has been in full swing. Bruce Stavert and Barry Wansbrough are running for the position of senior man. There has been one of the most exciting campaigns seen on the Bishop's campus for many a year. Thursday night, Squee Gordon, David Marler, Tom Matthews and Chuck Coleman entertained a hungry audience in the men's and women's dining hall telling them in their song who the best man for Senior man would be. The entertainers were dressed in red vests and a very interesting and diverse selection of headgear. A rally with a torch light parade around the Campus was also held, which was partially covered on television. In all, it has been an exciting and colorful campaign. The voting took place yesterday.

The basketball team travelled to Quebec City last week-end to meet the Laval University squad in a regular league game. The final score was Bishop's 56, Laval 48. This was the seventh straight league game for the Gaiters without a defeat. Last night they travelled to Montreal to engage the University of Montreal team in the final game of the schedule. Win or lose Bishop's will meet either Sir George Williams College at the Bishop's gym or the R.M.C. boys at the C.M.R. gym on Saturday, February 27, for the Intercollegiate basketball championship.

The hockey team played host to the Macdonald Aggies last night at the Sherbrooke Arena. The team has received that needed shot in the arm as a result of their fine performance last week-end in Montreal.

Orators Are Busy; Sports Are Booming

By JUDY BANKS

Let us bring ourselves up to date.

The close of '59 was marked by a student-sponsored Christmas assembly and the vacation of the ten and a half days.

The soaring sixties saw the Grade Elevens make a theatrical excursion to Montreal to see the MRT's production of "Hamlet."

The graduating class also spent an educational afternoon in the Dominion Textile plant learning about the processing of cotton from the raw material to the finished product.

Grade Eleven is still in the news as Catherine Kell, Ian Moritz and Sydney Price from Bishop's University spoke to us on the values of higher education — especially in a small college — especially at Bishop's.

In February, we were given a very interesting picture of the careers in retail merchandising.

The shadow of Demosthenes lingers over our hallowed halls, as all students have been competing in the semi-finals of the Public Speaking contests.

The Senior Assembly on March 1 will provide oral combat for Judy Banks, Bill Brown, Eli Einbinder, John Hogg, Joan Leslie, Shirley McGenty, Gary Quinn and Diane Westerman.

As a result of the contest, one boy will be chosen to represent the school at the Rotary Club and two girls at the Business and Professional Women's Club. At the McGill Graduates Alumni Association's public speaking contest, Judy Banks represented the school.

Our sports world is booming. David Bondurant, Steve Connors and Billy McLeod were the three SHS boys on the Sherbrooke Pee-Wee hockey team in Quebec City this week for the international Pee-Wee competitions.

The senior hockey team lost out in the league semi-finals to Sunnyside. The Midget and Bantam teams suffered the same fate at the hands of BCS.

However, in basketball, the Junior Girls have emerged victors from all their games and the Senior Girls have lost one league game. Sherbrooke, Lennoxville and Sunnyside form the first place triangle. The Senior Boys have lost only one game and are tied for first place with St. Pat's. The Senior Boys also won the basketball jamboree in spite of their coach, Mr. MacKinnon, being hospitalized. The Junior Boys are getting a lot of experience.

Three basketball games with Danville and a Valentine's Dance made Friday, Feb. 12, a gala day.

Flash! The Dumbell is destined to go to press March 15.

Nearly 20,000 people sailed from England for the Massachusetts Bay colony between 1620 and 1642.

To Help Those In Need

Three-and-a-half-year-old Diane Simoneau, daughter of Mrs. Gerard Simoneau, of Sherbrooke, centre, tries on a pair of shoes at the Comptoir Familiale while Mrs. Alphonse Bergeron, manageress of the store looks on. The Comptoir, located at 39 St. Francis Boulevard, North opened yesterday. Articles of clothing may be purchased for a very low price. It is intended to help clothe needy families throughout the city who are in need of assistance.

Has Six Weeks To Find A Wife Or Leave Home

ASHBURN, England — (Reuters)—Jack Vicary, 39, has been given six weeks to find a wife. Otherwise, housing authorities told him, he will have to get out of his municipally-owned home.

Vicary, a male nurse, lived in the three-bedroom house for 24 years with his parents, who died last month.

"I'm not a confirmed bachelor," he said Friday. "I'm just a bit shy. But six weeks doesn't give me much time to find the right girl."

Japan Not Threatened?

Nikita Khrushchev's pronouncements in Indonesia on the new defence treaty signed between the United States and Japan are, from all reports, classic examples of speaking much and saying nothing.

Mr. Khrushchev asked why Japan continued to accept American military bases on its soil when "all know pretty well that Japan is not threatened by anyone, and no one will invade it."

Would Mr. K. have us believe that Red China to the west of Japan, and Russia to the north could not conceivably be threats to Japan?

He asked if the ruling circles of Japan have forgotten "the aggressive action of the militarists of Japan who recently tried to enslave the nations of southeast Asia."

Is Mr. K. implying by this that America should not take up with former enemies?

He said it was "important to state frankly and firmly that this gambling performance is very dangerous for Japan itself."

Did he mean because the Americans might let the Japanese down?

If Mr. K. meant all these things, his statements make very little sense.

But then sense is not what Mr. K. was interested in when he made the statements. His chief concern was trying to dissuade the Asian nations from entering into any form of friendly agreement or cooperation with the United States.

The Big Walk

There's nothing like a good brisk walk every day to keep one fit and healthy.

But Britons, who are among the world's most famous walkers, seem to be going a bit overboard on the activity.

More than 1,000 intrepid foot sloggers are engaging in a giant tramp that will take them the length of Britain, from the northern end of Scotland to Land's End, the southwestern end of England.

And they're not doing it just for their health.

A prosperous English vacation camp owner is putting up more than $6,000 in prize money.

In the scramble for the pot of gold at Land's End, they're emulating Britain's intrepid hiking queen, Dr. Barbara Moore, whose long distance marches on a diet of fruit juice and honey are the talk of the kingdom.

But where Dr. Moore's exploits have been fairly free of any complications, worried officials in England are looking for plenty in the big strolchoth.

With heavy winter hitting the northern part of the route, they paint a picture of hikers falling by the snowbound wayside in scores, taxing the resources of police, ambulances, hospitals, snowplows, and the patience of the country folk around whose homes they will totter.

If their worries have any foundation, it wouldn't be surprising to find distraught stragglers from the long walk arriving at Land's End for months to come.

Then will come the problem of getting them back to where they came from.

Editorial Notes

It's nice to know that we're adapting our creature comforts to the jet age.

World came from Britain this week that a chocolate covered marshmallow biscuit has been perfected that will withstand the rigors of high altitude flying.

Apparently a pilot complained after having the biscuits explode in his face as soon as he reached 5,000 feet.

Pity the Detroit man who had a magnifying glass, a finger print book, correspondence course lessons and a graduation certificate from a detective school all stolen from his automobile.

His problem is not unlike that of the near-sighted man who lost his spectacles.

A British doctor has warned that a wife's tongue can be deadly.

Writing in a monthly magazine called Family Doctor, Dr. Kenneth Hutchin says some wives couldn't "polish off" their husbands better if they set out to deliberately kill them.

He says that all men in their 40's and over who do non-manual work are heart attack risks and that stacking up work around the house for work-weary husbands in this age group is just asking for trouble.

The nagging tongue and the do-it-yourself trend in handling odd jobs represent two serious threats to the health of husbands, Dr. Hutchin says. "Admittedly it costs far more to have jobs done, but it is a poor economy to do-it-yourself if it kills your husband."

Saturday's Sermon:

You Are Invited

By REV. B. S. MURRAY, M.A.

Yes, you have an invitation from Christ the King to visit and linger awhile with Him in what the Bible calls "a place apart" (Mark 6:31).

Now anyone who is aware of this, surely cannot complain that his life is either drab or lonely. To have a King — THE KING OF GLORY — to call you by name and be sufficiently interested in you to have you abide, tarry with Him, well this is an embarrassment of riches.

Not to be invited, well, that's another story, writ, when we were young, in tears, bitter years and heartaches and with the March of Time similar experiences assumed the form of frustration, disappointment, and bitterness, discouragement, and all their accompaniments.

Happily in the Family of God there is AN INVITATION addressed to whosoever that willeth to come. You see our Christ is the universal, catholic Christ who has chosen to ignore such man-made barriers as those named social, religious, color, national etc. He bids us "Come" and expects us to accept such a gracious invitation.

O COME, ALL YE FAITHFUL On Christmas Eve, alone in my hotel apartment, with my radio as my companion the frequent repetition of the word "Come" arrested my attention. Pausing, I counted twenty "comes", twenty invitations in that much loved Christmas hymn O COME, ALL YE FAITHFUL.

The thought that the Church, the Bride of Christ, is friendly, gripped me. And fully aware that Her children in this race of ours of getting and spending are laying waste their powers to the point of exhaustion. She has provided a remedy. That is to say, that just as our earthly mothers wisely provided a spring tonic of sulphur and molasses so our spiritual Mother, the Church, suggests and provides a visit with Christ "in a place apart" where all ye who are weary, worn and sad may find relaxation, refreshment, renewal, restoration. (Isa. 40:31).

Why, look, there's a table furnished with all the vitamins requisite and necessary both for your body and soul. The Provider is the King of Love who knowing that the journey of life is too great for thee has arranged this and, as you eat the Bread of Life and drink the Wine of Love. He talks quietly with you about the deep things of and within you there wells up the desire to go forth, strengthened and refreshed in the mood of a hero, on to Journey's End. IN THAT PLACE APART

Now the name of this Table Talk, this adventure, this human-divine fellowship is LENT which begins on Wednesday March 2nd. I like to think that, if heretofore Lent has only been a name to you, now with this, or a similar interpretation, you will be lured to make full use of the privileges and opportunities such a time apart offers. For Lent is, as we have discovered, basically a Quiet Time during which we get to know God as our Father, Christ as the King of Love, and the Holy Spirit as The Guide and Comforter and, knowing Him, lead that quality of life from which cometh peace, power and joy. With our busyness and consequent deafness to the Voice Divine, we have in our ignorance been played God. What we need to do this Lent is be still and let God be God (Ps. 46:10) as we do our duty as men, living courageously and at all times being unfalteringly loyal to Christ and His Teachings (1 Cor. 16:13). And whosoever doeth this in the place apart will never be sorry!

ONE HOUR WITH THEE As I think our this sermon, I find those magnificent words of R. C. Trench recurring, Lord, what a change within us one short hour spent in Thy presence will avail to make. To which a modern hymn writer has added that whosoever knoweth the value of prayer will pray without ceasing. So, to our knees, beseeching our great and glorious God, OUR FATHER WHO ART IN HEAVEN to lift us out of our mire of selfishness and pettiness. Lift us to a level where we are able to release the divine spark within our being. Cause us to long for the upper reaches instead of being content with the daily meaningless nothings which concern the great majority all of the time. Let us join Thee in the visit to the Temple of God so we may learn the meaning of life instead of wallowing in the sloughs of money-grabbing and profit-seeking idiots.

ONE HOUR WITH THEE is worth a life time of business or rise in the stock market but how few of us are big enough to realise it! Awaken us, arouse us, cause us to become enthusiastic over the higher things of life and preserve us from the deterioration in store for all who worship the flesh and its comforts. PREPARE THYSELF

Nor let us ever forget that that hour spent with God in a place apart is an invitation which, in overleaping time and space, holds good forever and ever. Briefly, it is an invitation with a future! You see we belong to two worlds, — the here and now, the material and the world to come, the spiritual, at least that is what the Paul the Apostle meant when we penned as we have borne the image of the earthly so shall we bear the image of the heavenly. Accepting this, we affirm that we are creatures destined for a future life in another sphere with our days here but days of preparation for that life.

For many of us, this life here is comparable to a battlefield with our attitude a militant one. Quit you like men, be strong is the Pauline formula (1 Cor. 16:13). We are not here to play, dream or drift, but are really engaged in a combat with subtle spiritual enemies, the chiefest of which is the Devil, our armoured foe. So Paul advises us to take unto ourselves the whole armour of God. And putting on each piece with prayer, we will be enabled to withstand in the evil day and having done all to stand (Eph. 6:11). Thus equipped, we generate that moral energy which enables us to win the good fight.

Fortunately life is not all combat; there are interludes, rest periods, times when in quietness we listen to the Voice Divine bidding us "Come unto Me and rest awhile, and in My quiet strength again be strong. Alone with Me and with my father here, with Me and with My Father not alone you shall tell me all your problems and experiences so that I may empower you and fresh from your converse with Me return to your task and work till daylight softens into even;

The brief hours are not lost in which ye learn More of your Master and His rest in heaven. A FRIEND OF GOD

Now I wish that my pen had the power to convince you that religion is a great and glorious friendship with God through Christ. If we could visualise that Friend of sinners and saints, too, standing at the doors of all places where people assemble and meet together to worship in His Name and hearing His welcome voice bid them come in and we will do thee good, methinks our churches would be filled.

If I interpret aright, there are

OTTAWA — This week the Government has been getting blazes from the Opposition because of alleged failure to keep the farmers prosperous.

It is a most complicated argument, support prices, floor prices and deficiency payments and the degrees and circumstances under which they operate.

Enough to drive a nonfarm economist crazy.

But it is easy to see that the arguments from people such as Bill Benidickson, lawyer and Liberal member for Kenora-Rainy River, who started it, and from Bert Herdridge, farmer and CCF member for Kootenay West, and his leader, Hazen Argue, that they are conveying one main idea.

It boils down to the proposal that the Government must take whatever steps necessary to make sure that a farmer does not lose anything on his grain, hogs and eggs.

Or anything else he raises if you believe the implications in the arguments made by the farmers' friends.

A few years ago the Conservatives and the CCF were making exactly the same kind of arguments to the Liberals.

A Great Business

It would be great business if a government, without going Communist or even purely Socialist, could offer any such guarantee to any class of citizens.

And to the woodsmen and the operators of drycleaning establishments and the publishers of newspapers and the public utilities and the man who shovels my snow and mows the lawn.

Almost every week various spokesmen for organized groups in Canada call on Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his colleagues and outline programs of assistance they feel should be forthcoming from the federal treasury.

In one case the Prime Minister exclaimed that it would cost "a king's ransom" to meet the demands a delegation had outlined.

Of course the spokesmen and askers knew all about that. They would get only a small percentage of what they wanted, if anything.

It is a great big game that is played over and over in our public and organized life. And it is not really a bad idea.

The Silly Part of It The silly part of it is that a political party out of office promises the people all the help and improvements imaginable and finally gets elected.

Then the people come around asking for delivery. Silly but entertaining and it keeps a lot of people busy.

If the farmers and others really want to have their lives and their success insured by the Government they will have to accept a complete regimentation.

They will have to accept instructions as to what they may produce and when and how much; where to work and how long and at what compensation. And so on.

The people certainly don't want that and it is a pretty safe bet nobody in Canada wants to head or be a member of a government exercising that authority.

So we will go on promising and then trying to carry out as much of the promise as possible, fighting attacks for failure to deliver, and all to the glory of House of Commons debate and time-wasting.

Beaten Into The Ground

Back in 1948 Republican Thomas Dewey started out on what he and most other Americans thought would be an easy campaign to defeat Democrat Harry Truman for the presidency of the U.S.

His first stop was a prairie station far out west where there was to be a vast open-air meeting. He was launching his campaign with the farmers.

The idea was that the farmers had been beaten into the ground by Democrat policies, and Republican promises to remedy these evils would start the campaign right.

I was not there but I had associates who were and they told me that when Dewey got off his train the vast prairie was glittering with rows of parked private planes of all sizes, rows and rows of the most expensive and modern cars and a few riding horses with silver-mounted saddles and that sort of thing.

These were the downtrodden farmers! Dewey, the reporters said, took a look at this audience and tore up his carefully prepared speech. The rest is history.

Perhaps our farmers are not doing that well. But I bet they are not as bad off as their opposition spokesmen paint them.

NORTHERN COAL Coal shipments from the mines on Spitsbergen, Norwegian island in the Arctic Ocean, are estimated at 180,000 tons for 1959.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir: To date I have been fuming re: the parking conditions on Wellington and quite agree with the unfavourable opinions and lack of definite purpose displayed, not to mention our fair City is fast becoming quite an object of ridicule for other towns and small cities to take sly jibes at our expense in more than one way.

Various people including myself, have taken to shopping where we can park and find we have some excellent stores elsewhere in Sherbrooke.

For instance a furniture set I am interested in I have located in a furniture store I would never have dreamed of visiting before our "hooded" meters went out of action (actually I was very pleased with our meters) before some pointed little heads formed an apex. My furniture is a well known make and some $50.00 less than Wellington asked.

Hardware stores elsewhere than Wellington are so courteous and even offered to order any items not in stock.

I found bargains that were really something and did not stand and wait for some condesending clerk to come to life and wait on me.

I have not once run into that indifferent, annoyed air bestowed on the humble shopper and get the usual "I dunno" haint got any" "maybe next week" replies or fishy stare.

Sales are certainly stepping up in every line in other parts of the city, since we may not park on sanctified Wellington.

So if Wellington doesn't want the horseless carriage trade, let's just bless their addled little pates and go elsewhere to trade. Happy Penny Pincher.

Bygone Days

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Taking part in an entertainment presented at Magog were: Arthur Smith, James Connor, Miss Marguerite Standish, Miss Adona Wheeler, Miss Doris Smith, Eric Campbell, Neil Campbell, Miss Sybil Patch and Miss Bessie Waterhouse.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The following officers were elected for the Sir John Fisher Chapter, I.O.D.E. Knowlton: Mrs. George H. Robb, Mrs. A. T. Woodley, Miss M. Knowlton, Mrs. A. S. Douglass, and Mrs. Leslie Roberts.

TEN YEARS AGO

Prime Minister Atlee, who won a shaky victory in Thursday's British general election, has revamped his Labor cabinet. He is expected to announce its makeup within the next 24 hours.

Mrs. Emile Jean, wife of the managing director of Le Nouvelliste and a former newspaper woman herself, died in hospital here today after several months illness.

PARTNERS ARE NEVER RIGHT

"When better defensive plays are made, I'll make them," said the unlucky expert. "But it won't do me any good. My partner will be there to nullify them."

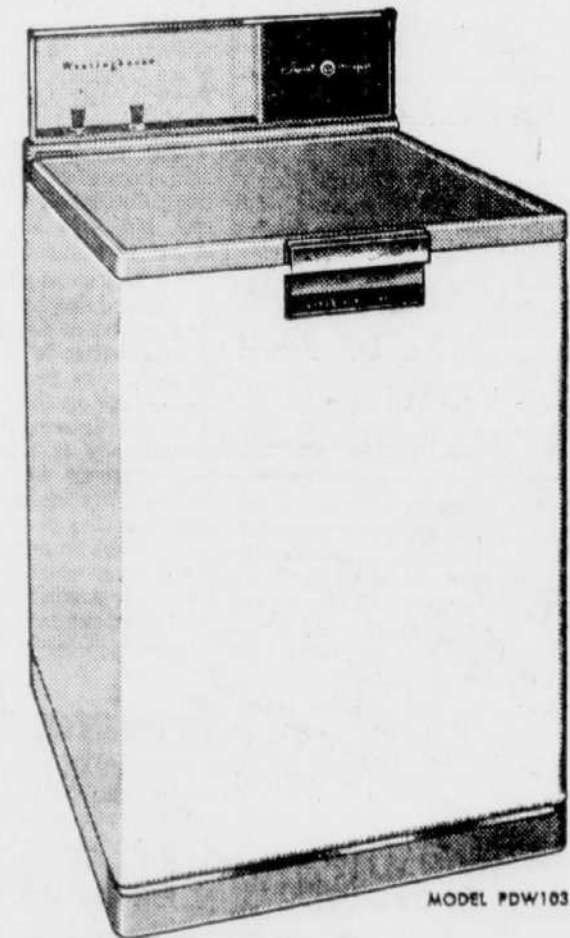

The unlucky expert had every right to sound a trifle bitter. He had opened the king of spades and shifted to the queen of clubs. This club shift should have beaten the hand and was the only lead that could beat it, but as the unlucky expert said, his partner was there to fix him.

South drew trumps and tried the diamond finesse. It lost to East's king and then all East needed to do was to lead a low club to let his partner in, but East had no desire to play partnership defense. He cashed his king of clubs and had no spade to lead. South got rid of his last three spades on dummy's diamonds.

I can't blame the unlucky expert for being aggrieved. His shift to the queen of clubs at trick two had been brilliant indeed.

president flew on to Argentina, arriving in Buenos Aires in an atmosphere made tense by four bomb explosions after midnight, apparently the work of followers of exiled dictator Juan Peron.

K'S TOUR
On the other side of the world, Soviet Premier Khrushchev continued his tour of Indonesia and seized the opportunity to lecture the happy-go-lucky islanders once or twice.

Offered gifts of handicrafts, he said he didn't like them and chided the Indonesians for wasting their time with such trifles. They should be building industry instead, he said.

Indonesian President Sukarno stole the thunder from Khrushchev at one meeting when— to wild applause—he said there should be representatives of the Afro-Asian nations at the forthcoming summit talks. Khrushchev's speech, in contrast, received only moderate cheers when he denounced imperialism once again.

GAZA DANGER
The border between Israel and the United Arab Republic has been the scene of recent clashes. Tension rose Monday when U.A.R. President Nasser charged that Israel was "massing troops."

The danger of a fresh outbreak increased sharply Thursday when Israeli sources said Egyptian infantry had moved into the coastal Gaza Strip where the United Nations Emergency Force maintains the peace.

But a UN spokesman denied in New York that the Gaza Strip had been penetrated and he said there was no "large buildup."

GERMAN UPROAR
It all started with an editorial-page article in the New York Times, saying that West Germany was seeking air force and missile training facilities in Spain.

This touched off a controversy that raged all week. Many NATO allies of West Germany were indignant, charging that Spain, not a member of NATO although it has defence arrangements with the United States, was approached without reference to the NATO council.

Britain advised West Germany to seek military facilities among NATO members. At the same time, the West German foreign minister said his country would not conclude military undertakings with Spain without agreement of its allies.

CANADIAN VIEW
In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Canada intends to "get to the root" of the reports and he said both the Spanish and German governments had denied that missile bases were sought in Spain.

In reply to questions in the Commons Thursday, he said that the matter had not been raised in the NATO council— but would be—and that Canada believes in "the fullest consultation among NATO members."

CANADA AT OLYMPICS
Ottawa's Anne Heggtveit, 21, won Canada's first-ever Olympic gold medal in skiing, beating European and American stars in the women's slalom at Squaw Valley, Calif., Friday.

Earlier, Barbara Paul and Robert Wagner won a gold medal for the pairs figure-skating. But Canada suffered a stunning humiliation where it really hurt—in hockey—when the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen were defeated 2-1 by the U.S. Thursday.

However, Canada with two games left to play still had a chance to win the title. The Sunday final game between Canada and Russia was expected to be the most thrilling of the tournament.

BIG BLOW
The worst storm since the big blow in 1944.

That's the way one official described a rip-snorting storm that smothered Toronto under 12 inches of snow and clogged roads throughout southern Ontario after hitting Windsor, St. Catharines, London and Hamilton.

It was accompanied by freak lightning and winds whistling at 50 miles an hour.

In Ottawa, eight inches of new snow piled up and Montreal got six.

In 1944, 22 inches of snow fell on Toronto Dec. 12 and the storm caused 14 deaths.

Canadian stock markets closed lower for the eighth consecutive week and investors, adopting a wait-and-see attitude, remained on the sidelines hoping for news that would spark a rally.

Last week the market showed signs of a rally when it shook off a sizable mid-week loss and started upwards. But investors' hopes were dashed when the industrial index suffered an eight-point loss during the latter part of the week.

However, some brokers say they can't see much more in the way of declines, especially in the face of the current New York advance. Others are already recommending that investors start a careful buying program while the market trend is still indecisive.

BONDS FIRMER
The bond market, which lately has been drawing most of the available money away from the exchanges, firmed this week and the result was a small decline in yields. However, the yields are still attractive and investors are showing an increased interest in short term maturities.

Western oils were hit hard this week and the index struck five-year lows several times before closing out.

But an announcement, hoped for sometime in March, by the National Energy Board concerning exportation of natural gas to the U.S., may add buoyancy to these issues.

The board recently concluded hearings on applications for export and investors anticipate a favorable decision.

unmistakable signs that many, tired and disappointed with worldly friendships, are turning to Jesus Only. A hymn writer has summarised this thus: No human heart could enter each dim recess of mine, and soothe and hush and calm it, O blessed Lord, but Thine.

As comforting as the fact that Jesus is our Friend Unchangeable is we have to remind ourselves that friendship is a two-way thoroughfare. We must be friendly and accepting Christ's invitation, change our relationship from that of an Acquaintance to that of a Friend. This privilege will involve corresponding responsibilities. Compensations, too, the least of which is not that of being acclaimed as a Friend of God.

COME TO THE SAVIOUR
May I express the hope that ye old church bell as it rings from yonder will be regarded by you as a personal invitation to come and worship the King of Glory and in this place apart, rest awhile. Listen Come... come it repeats o'er and o'er.

So much so that back to boyhood days am I waded, asing- ing Come to the Church in the Wildwood. Do you know there are 19 comes — invitations in that chorus alone? And these, with the twenty comes in the Christmas hymn O COME, ALL YE FAITHFUL, could impress on us the frequency as well as the urgency of the invitation to Come without delay to the Saviour.

Down deep in my heart I know that everything depends on my response to His invitation. In our baffling duality, half angel and half beast as we are, the problem of adjustment to God and fellow men is beyond human skill.

Otherwise hopelessly en'gled, wise, indeed, shall we be if and when we come without one plea except that the Blood of Christ was shed for me, and that Thou biddest me come to Thee, O Lamb of God, I come (John 6:37).

This, believe me, is the only way to find a solution to our confused, tangled lives. For Jesus, loving of heart, clear of insight, with a divine sense of values and of His own adequacy, is both able and willing to do this and more also. He would have everything in the heart that makes for pain, confusion and defeat reversed and made to bear toward Joy, order and victory.

This Lent then, come ye to The Place Apart... The Wayside Inn... The Haven of Rest.... (the name matters not)..... come, and experiencing the overflow of power, faith knowledge, and love which Paul the Apostle defined as the fullness of God (Eph. 3: 19) go forth, with life anew and ever near to the Heart of God, live happily ever afterwards!

New Head Man
From Sidewalk Sweeping To RCMP Commissioner

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA — It's a long way from sweeping the sidewalks of Regina to the commissionership of the RCMP, but Clifford W. Harvison has made it.

As a rookie policeman, he swept. Now, at 57, after a long career of chasing everyone from moonshiners to spiers, he is to become head man of the RCMP.

His appointment was announced Thursday by Justice Minister Fulton. He takes over from Commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac April 1, just a year after the present commissioner took command in a period of turmoil.

Commissioner Rivett - Carnac, 58, retiring for health reasons, assumed the post when L. H. Nicholson walked out because he disagreed with the federal government idea that it should not send RCMP reinforcements to Newfoundland on the demand of the island government during a loggers' strike there.

His tall successor—who stands six-foot-four-inches to recall that he has never had to fire a shot in anger in all his years in the RCMP.

In the same tradition of the Mountie not unlimbering his gun unless in extremity, the new commissioner in his earlier years has done about everything in the police case book, largely in investigation.

Except, perhaps, for the sidewalk sweeping.

That was in Regina, when he was a young rookie of the Royal North West Mounted Police. From there, he has gone on to some of the RCMP's trickiest undercover work.

It involves drugs, liquor traffic, fraud, espionage, and various types of smuggling.

He had a hand in one of the big and largely-unsung stories of the last war that involved the capture of a spy landed from a German submarine in the Gaspé area.

The spy, with his $6,000 in Canadian cash and a portable transmitter, was taken in Officer Harvison went down from Montreal to talk to him. While he doesn't say exactly how he did it, the upshot was that the spy turned his transmitter toward Hamburg for a year with material fed to him by the Canadian authorities.

GARDINER — In fond and loving memory of our dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. James Gardiner who passed away on February 27th, 1959.

How much we miss you yet.

HER HUSBAND,
CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN.

HENDERSON — In loving memory of a wonderful Dad and Mother, Grandpa, and Nan, who passed away February 27, 1959 and Mother who followed two days later, March 1, 1959.

WAYNE, DALE and EARL, (grandsons).

THE FAMILY.

RANSEHOUSAN, Beryl — In loving memory of a dearly beloved daughter, who passed away February 28, 1956.

Home And School Assoc. Takes Shape At Waterloo

WATERLOO — Over 100 parents and teachers met in the High School gymnasium to form a Home and School Association. Mrs. Frank Graves was in the chair and spoke briefly stating that a group of those interested had got together and decided to call a general meeting. This was the first opportunity for parents to be able to thank Mr. Pickford, Mr. Wayne, Mr. Gardner and Mr. McAskill for the work they had done for the children in sports. A round of applause showed appreciation and enthusiasm.

Mrs. R. S. McIntosh, of Bedford, was guest speaker. Mrs. McIntosh, 1st vice-president of the Quebec Federation of Protestant Home and School Associations, outlined work on the provincial level and the regional level. She stated that on both levels there are what are called workshops, places where one goes to learn to handle matters connected with Home and School. The speaker gave a resume of what had been accomplished in Bedford by the Association during the ten years since its formation.

The Doctor Says

HERE IS DIET THAT HELPS CURB ARTERY HARDENING

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D.

Since the tendency to arterial hardening progresses from cradle to grave, the controlling diet must be simple, palatable and easily obtainable.

Its purpose will be defeated if it requires the purchase of special foods, if it involves special cookery, if it is monotonous or expensive, or if it becomes so troublesome that no one but an eager beaver will bother to stick to it.

Here is a basic diet that's not sufficiently demanding to satisfy food faddists and too demanding to appeal to defeatists who've not yet given up the "wear and tear" theory of arteriosclerosis and therefore think that any effort is wasted.

BREAKFAST:
Fresh fruit in season, cold cereal with milk and a teaspoon of sugar; a slice of toast with a thin spread of butter; coffee or tea and/or milk.

LUNCHEON OR SUPPER:
Vegetable juice or fruit cup, eggs and bacon or leftover meat, fish or poultry or hamburger or hot dog; half a buttered roll; fresh or stewed fruit or cheese and crackers.

DINNER:
Relishes or raw vegetables, clear soup or vegetable juice, main course of meat, poultry or fish with potato and a green and a yellow vegetable; salad with cheese or stewed or fresh fruit, or a sweet dessert a few times weekly.

SNACKS:
Crackers and milk, hamburger or hot dog on half a roll, clear or thick soup, fresh or stewed fruit, carbonated beverage.

Flavor foods to taste with salt, pepper and condiments unless forbidden by your physician. There's no need to avoid red meat, salt or fats of animal origin unless your doctor gives specific orders to that effect. You don't need to substitute vegetable oils or special foods unless you're so directed.

If you are normal weight, indulge yourself once or twice a week provided you don't gain.

If you find yourself gaining weight or you fail to lose excess weight, cut down on quantities but eat everything.

If you are grossly overweight, try to manage so that you lose no less than one or two pounds a week but no more than three.

But whatever you do, don't worry. Tackle tomorrow's problems tomorrow.

Addition To High School

Kiwanis Club Hears Plans Of Waterloo School Board

WATERLOO — The Kiwanis Club was given concise statements of facts concerning the High School and its work to keep abreast of the trend to higher education, by A.J. Buckland, chairman of the School Board in a talk at the club's dinner meeting.

He had figures to show that the government is aware of its responsibilities in regards to education for both French and English and is fair and generous in its grants. The most recent step is the new Library Bill, which assists smaller schools to establish libraries. The general public has also proved its interest in education, and men of executive ability devote hours of work each month in the interest of the schools.

The finances of the High School were explained in detail, figures of cost and expenditure being given on every item.

The subject of enlarging the High School was again brought up. The Board has worked hard on this project for two years. The only way to get government grants was to join with Shefford and Stukely, and June, 1960, will see the new Board installed with three members from Waterloo, and one each from Shefford and Stukely. Arrangements for a bond issue will be made, a grant from Quebec procured, an architect engaged, and the contract given to enlarge the school, to be ready by 1961.

Mr. Buckland also gave a resume of the past year's events in the High School. He named the commissioners and explained their duties. They are: Frank Bockus, in charge of outside maintenance, heating and staff house; W.A. Parkes and

Frank Bockus, electrical installation and staff house; Robert Flood, finance, public relations, staff and grants; Dave Schaeffeld, inside maintenance and janitor; O. T. Pickford, teachers; W. A. Parkes, industrial arts; and A. J. Buckland, chairman, and Mr. Pickford, principal, heads

Oh To Be One Of The Lucky 13

GAZA, Egypt (CP) — Thirteen girls, including three Canadians, serve with the United Nations Emergency Force along the Egyptian border with Israel.

One of the Canadians has the longest service of anyone with UNEF—Miss Marion Warren of Hamilton and Toronto. She's the commander's secretary and hasn't been home since she volunteered for the job in 1956.

That the girls like their position as the only available women for the men of the UNEF is suggested by a song they sing to the tune of Macnamara's Band. It starts:

Oh, I'm one of the lucky 13 girls with five thousand men;

I'm one of the lucky 13 girls, I'm stepping out again;

From Monday night to Saturday, I've got dated with nine or ten.

*Cause I'm one of the lucky 13 girls with five thousand men!

Cosmetic Expert Finds Canadian Women Use Too Little Make-Up

TORONTO (CP) — The two extremes—too much or too little make-up—are the most frequent mistakes made by women, says Barbara Harmer, New York cosmetic expert.

"With Canadian women it's generally a case of too little make-up," she said in an interview during a visit to Toronto. Miss Harmer's own face mirrors the look of "natural beauty" which she says can be achieved with the proper use of make-up. Proper colors, artfully applied with the proper implements, produce the right effect.

"We don't want the perfect statue look." Even worse is the theatrical look that some women get by using too much make-up, she says.

FIRST STEP
"Of course, all beauty begins with cleansing." She advises a cream cleanser. Facial cleansing is not just a soap and water treatment, she says.

Regular beauty care should take 10 minutes at night and 10 minutes in the morning. "Every woman, even a busy housewife, can spare 20 minutes a day."

A veteran of 21 years in the beauty business, Miss Harmer says rouge is most important to Canadian women who are under the impression that outdoor exercise gives them enough natural color. Outdoor weather gives color to the nose and the area around the nose, where it's not needed. Color should be applied high and wide on the cheekbones to draw attention to the eyes.

Many tricks can be done with lipstick to give the face the desired oval shape. With a brush, guide the lipstick from the outer corners to the centre. The lower lip should be curved down for "a smiling, or kissable, look." A tiny mouth will look larger with a light shade.

EYE MAKEUP
Even the most conservative of women can wear eye makeup if they begin by experimenting with "timid" shades, says Miss Harmer, whose choice for a first eye-shadow is soft blue.

The color of eye accent, as with rouge and lipstick, is dictated by the costume.

For pastels and navy, Miss Harmer recommends rose or rose-red with a touch of blue for lipstick and blue accent for the eyes.

The new bamboo shades are best with golden-toned lipstick and green eye accent.

Mauves, fuchsias and pinks are enhanced by blue-toned makeup with an orchid cast.

She says mascara for the upper eyelashes is a must for everyone, and eyebrows should never be under-estimated.

The higher the brow the younger the face, Miss Harmer says. She cites television and movie actresses Loretta Young and Ann Sothern as examples of her theory.

Here Are Some Guideposts Toward Lasting Friendships

If you want to keep a friend: — Don't be too free with your advice, or too prone to tell him things "for his own good," or insist on being helpful when he obviously thinks he doesn't need your help.

— Do stand by him loyally instead of discussing with others his faults and shortcomings.

— Be as gracious about letting a friend do something for you as you are in doing something for him.

— Don't ask a friend's advice unless you are prepared to act on it. He is sure to resent having you ask him what to do, if you then do just the opposite.

— Don't let yourself get so busy that you don't have time for your friends. That's the quickest way to lose them.

— Don't dwell on your friends' faults or try to reform them. Just take them as they are and be thankful for their many good qualities.

— Be as tactful with friends as you are with new acquaintances. Even old friends can have their feelings hurt by a tactless remark.

— Let those whose friendship is important to you know how much value you place on it. Friends shouldn't be taken for granted.

— Don't be so sensitive and easily offended that your friendships are strong while they last, but never last very long.

OBITUARIES

GORDON A. MORRISON, OF ARLINGTON, MASS.

SCOTSTOWN — Relatives and friends were shocked by the sudden death of Gordon Alexander Morrison at his home in Arlington, Mass., on Jan. 26, 1960.

He had been apparently in his usual good health until the morning of his death, when he suffered a heart seizure and died within a few minutes.

Mr. Morrison was born in Dell, Que., on Sept. 19, 1884, son of Alex. G. Morrison and Dora Campbell.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife Euphemia Campbell, formerly of Prince Edward Island; a daughter, Dorothy; a granddaughter, Dawn Robin Houghton; two sisters, Mrs. M. MacLeod, of Arlington, and Mrs. Donald Moshen (Myra), of Detroit, Mich.; and a brother, John C. Morrison, of Scotstown.

On finishing grade school, Mr. Morrison had taken a business course in Montreal and was later employed as a C.P.R. policeman.

In World War I, he went overseas with the Canadian Red Cross Field Medical Corps and on his return, emigrated to Massachusetts, where he took a course in embalming. Mr. Morrison was employed by J. S. Waterman and Son, of Boston, for 32 years. He was a member of the Waterman Quarter Century Club and was to have retired this year.

The funeral service was held at the J. S. Waterman Funeral Home, conducted by Rev. Lewis Williamson, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, Arlington. The pall bearers and guard of honor were members of the Waterman staff. Burial was in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Arlington.

Mrs. Burns was the youngest and last surviving daughter of the late William Forbes and his wife, Mary Ann Ralston, of Maple Grove. She was united in marriage to Victor Burns on April 22, 1908. They resided in East Angus until 1913, when they moved to Alberta with their two children.

In 1936 they returned to the Eastern Townships and purchased a farm in Flanders, where she resided until her death.

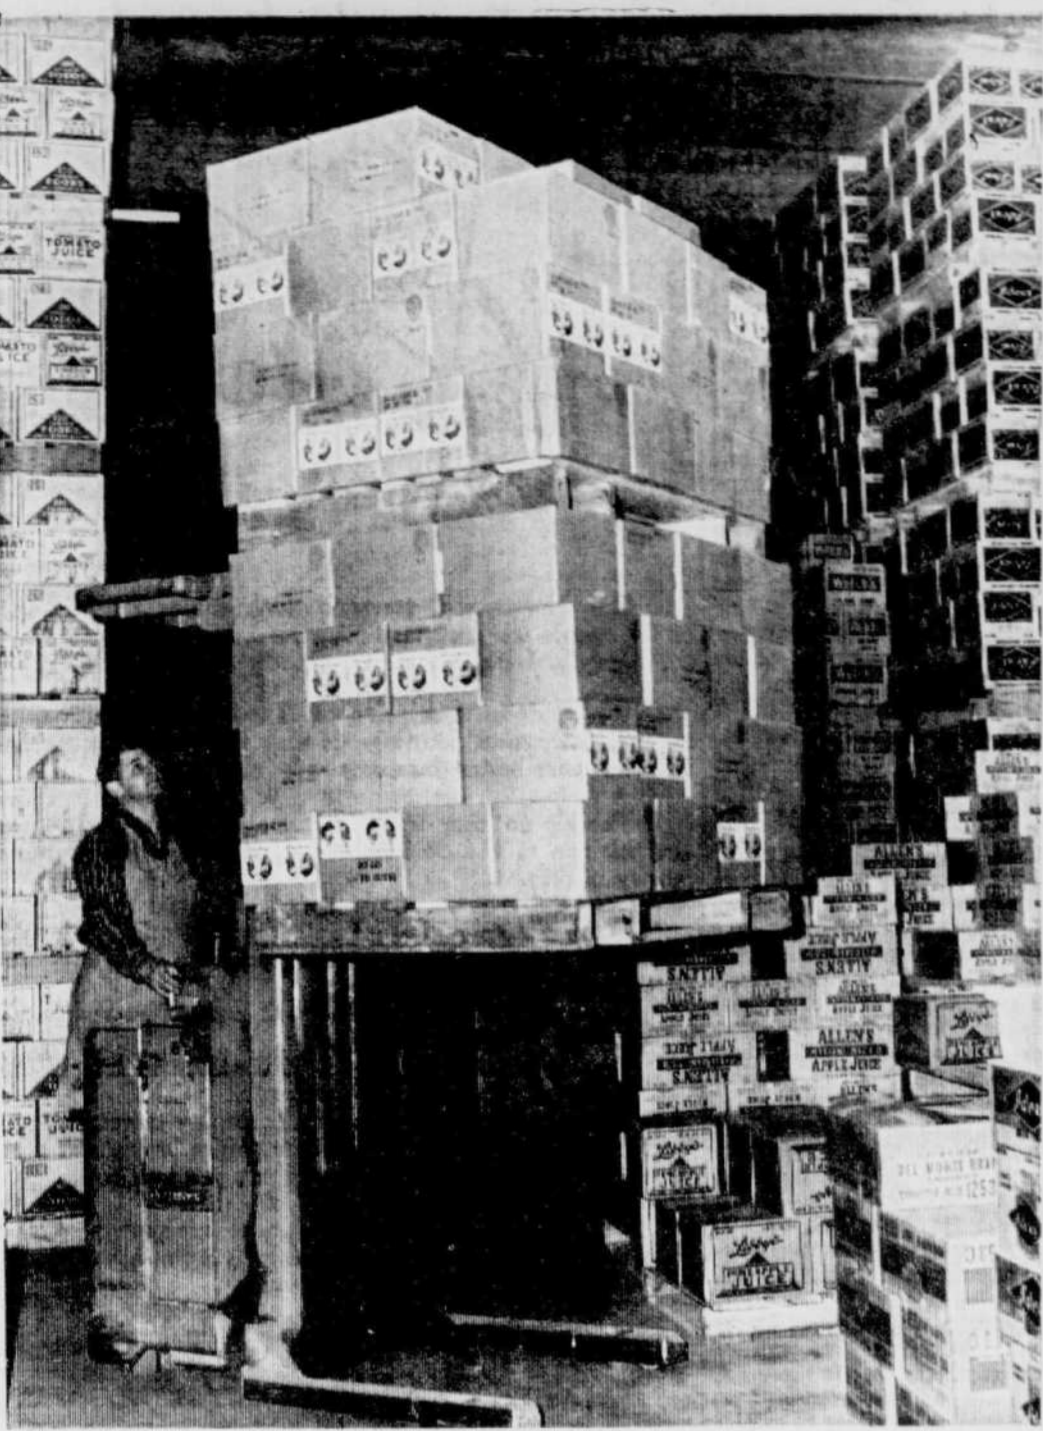

Mrs. Burns is survived by her husband; three daughters, Irene, of Sawyerville, Muriel, Mrs. Gill Heon, of Ottawa, and Lena, Mrs. Ivan Bailey, of Detroit, Mich.; a son, Carl, of Toronto, Ont., and four grandchildren. One child died in infancy.

She was devoted to her home and a good friend to all, the many flowers and letters received being a tribute to the esteem in which she was held.

The funeral was held in the Sawyerville United Church. Rev. H. Fraser conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Canon W. C. Dunn. The choir sang two hymns, "I Will Sing a Song of That Beautiful Land and There is No Night in Heaven." Mrs. Phillips sang "The Old Rugged Cross."

Bearers were Alvin and Harris Nugent, nephews, George Loveland, Franklin Evans, Clinton and Aubrey French.

Interment was in the Island Brook Cemetery.

Gettings

By Gladys Taylor
Today sees the official wind-up of our "moon contest"—though I doubt if it will see the end of discussion on what books to take to the moon. I've been surprised at how many casual conversations I have had in the past few weeks which have finally ended up with "moon-book" suggestions.

Winner of the contest, as decided by the judges is Mrs. Adelaide Atkin of Georgeville, Que. Congratulations to Mrs. Atkin. Please let me know which prize you prefer, a copy of my book The King Tree or my forthcoming novel The Marquis Woman.

And now thanks to all of those who took part in the contest—I found your letters most interesting and I was particularly grateful for the many expressions of appreciation for our SATURDAY'S BOOKSHELF, which most of you included in your letters. The only way we can tell whether we are pleasing you is by your letters or personal comments—and we greatly appreciate both.

Mrs. Atkin's letter follows: I would take the following books with me to the Moon.
1. The Bible—for its continuing help and inspiration.
2. Any volume of Shakespeare—for the sheer joy of reading it.
3. Anthology of North American Poetry.

4. Works of Thoreau—if this essayist and naturalist could get so much out of living alone perhaps I too could do it.
5. English-Russian Dictionary—the reason for this is obvious.
6. Seed catalogue—at least I could look at pictures of the things I knew and loved on earth.
7. Bird Book.
8. Diary of Samuel Pepys—I like the old rascal and I might want a little male companionship!
9. Alice in Wonderland—with Disney illustrations—for life on the moon one would need the spontaneity of faith to meet the unexpected which seems to be a magical quality possessed by children.

To judge from the news items that have come my way this week, Africa is much in the news—and likely to be much in our writing.

Dr. Donald Creighton, well-known author of such award-winning historical works as JOHN A. MACDONALD, DOMINION OF THE NORTH and THE EMPIRE OF THE ST. LAWRENCE has recently been chosen to go to Central Africa as a member of a British Royal Commission to study constitutional problems in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyassaland. He expects to return to his teaching duties at the University of Toronto in the fall—and no doubt then, we'll be reading of his experiences.

CLARKE, IRWIN & COMPANY informs us that Robert Homan whose book DUST BEFORE THE WIND has just been received for review, is "a rolling stone—at present in Africa" I'll wager he's gathering material for another book—On Africa!

MCCLELLAND & STEWART is already beating the drums for a Canadian-authored book, THIS SIDE JORDAN, laid in Africa, which they are publishing this fall. The author is Margaret Laurence, born and educated in Manitoba, but now living in Vancouver. She lived for six years in Africa where her engineering husband worked on the new port of Toma near Accra. The book will be published simultaneously by MACMILLAN of London and ST. MARTIN'S PRESS, New York. It is Mrs. Laurence's first book and it sounds good. Watch for THIS SIDE JORDAN.

Traffic accidents in Canadian streets and highways claimed 2,246 lives in the first nine months of 1959, against 2,277 in the same period of 1958.

Affluent Society: A Capsule Course

THE AFFLUENT SOCIETY by J. K. Galbraith, 356 pp., $6.00 - Houghton Mifflin — Canadian born, U.S. educated, now Professor of Economics at Harvard. Dr. Galbraith writes primarily for his own profession, and it is a courageous, and perhaps presumptuous layman, who would attempt to evaluate what amounts to a potential text book for the post graduate economics student.

Undeterred by such consideration, however, this reviewer, recalling with some effort the elementary economics courses of earlier collegiate days, plunged bravely ahead only to find that imperfectly remembered, and traditionally cherished economic principles were apparently no longer valid or at least were in sore need of re-examination in the light of the present day society of affluence — North American model — in which we live.

The author has provided a brilliant, provocative, and penetrating analysis of our modern western economic system and the failure of what he calls "the conventional wisdom" (traditionally and generally accepted classical economic thought) to account for or cope with the facts of affluence as found in our so-called free enterprise system today.

Having successfully provided the almost sacrosanct economic theory, Dr. Galbraith proceeds to postulate novel, and perhaps to some, revolutionary or at least radical ideas by which to judge or measure the values established by this socially inefficient era of material abundance in which we find ourselves.

At times, difficult, but always rewarding reading, "The Affluent Society" amounts to a capsule college course in economics and can be recommended without reservation for those who wish to call themselves educated men.

This is an important book, in the true sense of the word, and it is a pity that it probably will not be as widely read by important people as it should be.

In this connection, the author himself must, I think, bear some blame, for there is sometimes an unfortunate tendency to pretentious language, questionable punctuation and awkward construction, which would render intelligent ideas almost unintelligible to the general reader and discourage him from proceeding further.

J. K. GALBRAITH

Dr. Galbraith and his publishers would be making a greater contribution to the public weal, and incidentally a greater profit, were they to produce a popular and simplified version of this perceptive and persuasive volume rather than relying on the present edition to produce the presumably desired effect on the thinking of the leaders of the affluent society.

Dorothy Daigneau
Theftford Mines, Que.

Dear Mrs. Taylor
"... I would take Selections From Irving and Hawthorne. Scott's Lady Of The Lake surely would have to go along, and a few of Patience Strong's books. I'd take too, a book or two by L. M. Montgomery and Good-bye Mr. Chips by James Hilton. Also The Golden Dog, Ben Hur and Scottish Chiefs."

I believe the first project on the moon should be the establishment of a lending library.
Ida Duboyce
Knowlton, Que.

Dear Mrs. Taylor

Bessie Guy,
Kinners's Mills, Que.

Dear Editor:
"... Then, for the long moon nights, when exploration would be impossible... I would have at hand a book of advanced mathematics dealing with differential and integral calculus and differential equations... it has been my idea that the height of intellectual achievement has been reached when one can sit down and work out the solution to a differential equation..."
Doris King

Grenfell, Evangelist, Physician

WILFRED GREENFELL by J. Lennox-Kerr, — 259 pp. — $4.00 — Ryerson Press — In 1892 an evangelist — medical missionary appeared on the coast of Labrador to bring medical aid and spiritual encouragement to the people in the many scattered settlements.

The poverty, ignorance and living conditions of the Labrador fishing people so appalled him that he devoted the rest of his life to their welfare.

Wilfred Grenfell, physician and evangelist, was a remarkable and gifted man capable of inspiring great loyalty and trust in his co-workers, of inspiring enthusiasm, lasting interest and sympathetic support in England and North America, and of creating bitter antagonism and opposition among those whom he criticized.

His gift for the dramatization of the plight of the fishermen made him and his work internationally known.

For more than forty years Grenfell strove to improve the lot of fishing people of Labrador and Newfoundland, establishing nursing stations, hospital centres, schools and cooperatives along the coast.

The author, J. Lennox-Kerr, delves deeply into the life and work of the remarkable Grenfell. His account, while sympathetic and understanding, makes no attempt to bury or gloss over the exuberant, impulsive temperament that so frequently involved him in controversy or showed up as lack of judgment.

This is an absorbing well-written study of a colorful, dedicated man, and well worth reading.
Noel O'Brien

Dear Editor:
"... I would greatly miss the Sherbrooke Daily Record... but I would be very happy if I could have a supply of writing paper, pens and ink... as there is a great deal I want to write about."

I would take along some books on electricity, physics, dynamo, chemistry, atomic energy, radiation, nuclear energy and medicine. With these books I would study to find the solution to epilepsy, muscular dystrophy and cerebral palsy. I would study about mental telepathy in relation to electric currents and radio stations etc., each human becoming a sending and receiving T.V. or radio station..."
Mrs. W. Beaucage
Sherbrooke, Que.

Dear Mrs. Taylor:
"... if I were going to the moon I would try to take along books that would be of the utmost importance historically..."
Glenna Ross
Theftford Mines, Que.

Dear Mrs. Taylor:
"... Gladys Hasty Carroll's book As The Earth Turns... it is an old friend that fits me like an old shoe."
Green's History of The People — not because I have ever read it but have always intended to and might have time on the moon.
I would not want to take a complete library, else why go to a new planet. I would want a few blank pages in my mind to absorb moon culture.
Mrs. C. F. Carr,
Sutton, Que.

'Biased' Review

THE FOUNDATION AND THE MAN - by Walter Dawson - 23 pages - (privately printed) - THE FOUNDATION AND THE MAN can't really be called a book because it's so short. And this can't really be called a review because it's so biased.

As a Canadian writer I can't help but be biased in favor of the CANADIAN WRITERS' FOUNDATION, of which this book is the story.

The C.W.F. began in 1931. It's beginning reminds me of a stretch of Manitoba hillside, burnt into bleak black ugliness by a spring fire but blossoming in wild blue profusion - with what, as a child, I always called "Fire Flowers" - in the fall.

The burnt-black area of the writer's hillside began in the financial tragedy of a talented young Canadian writer who was said to be "the Canadian novelist most likely to have approached Thomas Hardy in style". Raymond Knister whose desperate, depression-era, appeal for help for himself and young family was not met because of lack of a writer's funds to do so, drowned "under the most tragic circumstances" two months after his fruitless cry for aid.

Dr. Pelham Edgar, the heart behind the C.W.F. vowed, on learning of the young novelist's death, that never again would such a thing happen to a Canadian writer. Out of the ashes of Raymond Knister's tragedy grew the "fire flower" of the C.W.F. which, in the 29 years of its admittedly often precarious existence, has managed to help 26 distinguished Canadian writers, among them such well-known ones as Sir Charles G. D. Roberts, Marshall Saunders and Berthel Brunet.

Many people would be surprised at how many of our most honoured Canadian writers have died in poverty. There are several reasons for this susceptibility to poverty among writers. First, writing remuneration - even in their prime - is not considerable and since, with age, a writer's production decreases, so inevitably does his income. Added to this is the fact that authors have no recourse to unemployment benefits, no workmen's compensation, no group pension plan and no Civil List such as exists in the United Kingdom by which British writers of distinction may be accorded a measure of practical recognition.

On the proviso that an equal amount be raised by private subscriptions, the Canada Council now grants a sum of $6,000 a year to the C.W.F. for the aid of needy writers. And it is to the credit of the Canadian public, who in their small or large donations seem to be vowing with Dr. Edgar that never again would "such brilliant literary talent as Raymond Knister's be caught in such dire financial straits" - that each year this amount has been raised.

THE FOUNDATION AND THE MAN is such a little book. But within its pages lurk glimpses of the tragic circumstances in which too much of the culture of Canada has had to struggle for existence. GLADYS TAYLOR.

Adventures with God

Thumbing through our 1950 scrapbook we found the lines with the column. We took our own advice and re-read the two books again.

LEARN THE HARD WAY
Since writing ten years ago we have met many people who have lived merry, merry lives; men and women who have learned the hard way the facts that gave David and Solomon the qualms, and led them to write the Proverbs and the Psalms.

And almost too late of our contemporaries have begun to read the portions suggested. It is a pity that so many people make a mess of life before they will listen to advice. The lure of the merry, merry life is an illusion and a snare. And yet seeing the human wrecks around them seems not to deter youths from having their fling and getting their sting.

If only they would listen to the voice of experience and analyze the words of David and his son Solomon, they would be "wised up" and saved from the regrets, remorse and qualms that haunt the foolish ones who think that they can ignore the laws of nature and God and still live happily ever after.

CAUGHT UP WITH HIM
David learned that he couldn't win with sin. His merry merry younger life finally caught up with him. And when it did it wrecked his nerves as well as his reputation. There were no tranquilizers in those days to dull his senses.

"There is no soundness in my flesh," he cried, "because of thine anger; neither is there any rest in my bones—because of my sin. For mine iniquities have gone over my head: as a heavy burden they are too heavy for me. My wounds stink and are corrupt because of my foolishness."

"I am troubled; I am bowed down; I am feeble and sore broken; I have roared by reason of the disquietness of my heart. My lovers and my friends stand aloof from my sore." Psalm 38.

What a picture of misery! David's merry, merry life was the cause of his awful, awful strife. And your merry life will eventually end the same way. Listen to what Solomon wrote to his son:

"THE WAY OF TRANSGRESSORS IS HARD." Prov. 13:15.
And he may have added: "Take a look at your granddad and see what I mean!"

I am not surprised that David wanted to save his son and grandsons and the rest of the human family from the torture and remorse that follows a sinful, merry life. Compare the first chapter of Proverbs with the first Psalm. You will sense the urgency expressed by these conscience-stricken fathers to their sons.

WARNED ABOUT FOLLY
The thought uppermost in their minds was this—Oh that I could help you soon to see the folly of sin and sense the remorse that follows when we go our own merry way and put God out of our lives even for a few weeks!

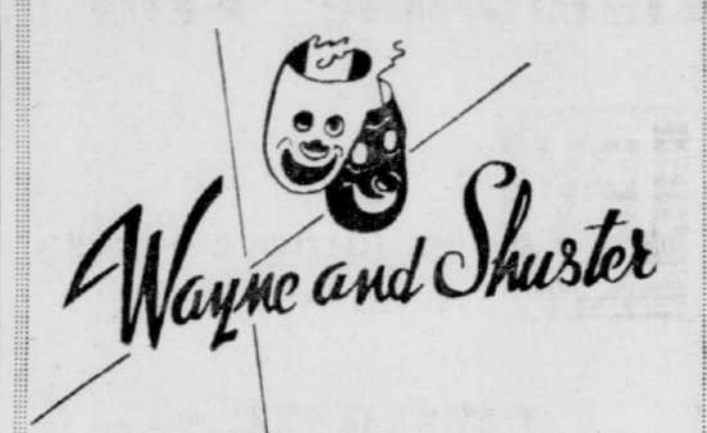

"Blessed is the man," wrote David in Psalm 1, "that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful."

And Solomon wrote in Prov. 1:10 "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not... My son, walk not thou in the way with them; Refrain thy foot from their path; For their feet run to evil and make haste to shed blood."

True: "When old age came creeping on, with all its aches and qualms, Solomon wrote the Proverbs and David wrote the Psalms," to alert you and me to the pitfalls of the merry, merry life that ends sometimes on the gallows, and always in remorse and regret.

When his sin caught up with him, and the kick went out of his heels and into his heart, David wrote Psalm 51. He turned to God and confessed his sin and forsook it. But, though he found forgiveness, he could not erase the unhappy memories of his merry life.

Neither can we. And those memories give us qualms.

FAMILY RESEMBLANCE — A man who bears a striking resemblance to Gustav Mahler is to take part in a concert at London, Ont., marking the 100th anniversary of the late composer's birth.

The similarity is obvious. The man is Alfred Rose, a nephew of Mahler.

Mr. Rose, shown here posing with a bust of Mahler, will deliver a commentary at the Feb. 6 concert between songs chosen from the early and middle periods of the composer's work.

Mahler was born in Bohemia; then a part of Austro-Hungary but later of Czechoslovakia, July 7, 1860. Before his death in 1911 he had become director-general of the Imperial Opera House in Vienna and later conductor of the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

Many cities throughout the world are planning special concerts to commemorate his birth.

Mr. Rose is in possession of letters written by the composer to relatives and friends, including Mr. Rose's mother, Justine Mahler, who was particularly close to the composer. He also has original manuscripts of many works.

The letters and manuscripts have been under study in the last few years by a French musicologist who plans to publish a biography of Mahler this year.

Mr. Rose hopes the biography will shed light on Mahler as a man and composer and correct some of the errors made by previous biographers. (CP Photo)

Likes To Be In Tune With Her Audience

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—When Margaret Ann Ireland plays the piano, she likes to be in touch with the audience. "When I feel the total concentration of my listeners, then I play my best," says the 31-year-old pianist who will make a concert tour of The Netherlands, Denmark, Germany and the Soviet Union in March and April.

It will be the fifth European tour for the attractive, dark-haired musician, a native of Winnipeg who now lives in Fair Vale, near Saint John, with her husband, lawyer Norwood Carrier, and their two children.

She has won critical and public acclaim abroad, and, at the invitation of the Soviet ministry of culture, will become the fourth Canadian musical artist to visit the Soviet Union. Others were Toronto pianist Glenn Gould, Toronto singer Lois Marshall and conductor-composer Jacques Beaudry of Montreal.

THRILLING PROSPECT
"I'm immensely thrilled at the prospect," she says of her Soviet tour which will take her to Leningrad April 2-4, Kiev April 7-8, Kharkov April 12-13, Vilnius, Lithuania, April 16-17, Riga, Latvia, April 20-21 and Moscow April 23-24.

She is particularly anxious to meet Russian musicians and hear Russian music. Her repertoire for the tour will include Russian compositions, notably Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto. She will also play piano selections, without orchestral accompaniment, by Schubert, Beethoven, Prokofiev and Chopin. And an auxiliary program will include works by Canadian composer Dr. Arnold Walters of Toronto, Bach, Barbs and Villa Lobos.

Miss Ireland received her early training at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto.

More and more Canadians every year are finding that it is to their advantage to have work done in the wintertime when skilled men and materials are available.

This applies particularly to home improvements — renovation, redecoration, repairs and maintenance. Most of us know of jobs around our home which we'll have to have done sometime. It may be a recreation room to be built, a living room to be redecorated, a kitchen to be remodelled, an extra room in the attic, new electrical fixtures or wiring, or replacement of plumbing or heating equipment.

Whatever the need, it will pay you to "Do It Now", during the winter, because—

1. Skilled tradesmen, readily available in the winter, may be too busy in the spring or summer months to do smaller renovation jobs.

2. When tradesmen are not too rushed they can do better work which results in economy for you.

3. Deliveries and service on materials are better when supply houses are not busy. Sometimes, also, firms offer special winter discounts.

4. By building, a home or place of business during the winter, you will occupy it earlier than if you waited till spring to build. This means a saving in rent or earlier payments on the mortgage. In the case of a business establishment, it means an earlier return on your investment.

In addition to home improvements, there are many other things that can be done advantageously during the winter including maintenance and repair of lawn mowers, electrical appliances, outboard motors and automobiles, as well as dry cleaning of drapes and rugs, replacement of upholstery, etc. By taking a realistic approach to winter work you also will be helping your community for you'll be creating employment for workers during the traditional winter lull thus effecting a saving in welfare and other costs. ### Fireplaces Can Be Attractive, Practical — If They Work

By MR. FIX

A fireplace is a thing of beauty. It's also pretty useful. But in too many homes it sits idle during chilly evenings. Just because it smoked once when you tried to use it is no reason to give up on it.

If your fireplace smokes it's because of insufficient draft. And insufficient draft is a problem with many causes, most of which you can take care of.

Soot Problems
Before you attempt to light the fire check the chimney to see if it's clogged. A heavy coating of soot can choke off most of the needed air. So can a loosened brick that's become dislodged. Poke around with a long pole but keep out of the way of falling debris.

A brush on a flexible, long wire handle will clear out much of the loose soot from below. For a thorough cleaning you'll have to get on the roof and lower a weighted burlap bag or a chain fastened to a length of rope into the chimney. Run it up and down a few times.

Make certain that the fireplace opening is covered before cleaning the chimney.

Rusted Damper
You may find that the damper has become old and rusty and

Do It New campaign our own interests coincide with good citizenship, for when everybody works, everybody benefits.

There may be nothing wrong with your fireplace except its location. If it's one that lacks ventilation, give it some. Most modern homes are too well insulated to permit a fire to burn properly. Open a window slightly and it may solve your problems.

Cold Chimney

If smoking occurs only when the fire is first started your trouble may be nothing more than a cold chimney. This is especially true with exterior chimneys. plenty of warm air is needed to rise and take the smoke along with it. Preheat the chimney with lighted newspapers held near the top of the fireplace.

Build the fire close to the back. This will heat up the back wall, prevent a pocket of cold air that would interfere with the draft. Anyway, a fire built too far forward would probably blow smoke in your face regardless of the condition of the fireplace.

Q — Do warm air heating ducts require cleaning?

A — They should be cleaned periodically. In the event of a malfunction, a spark could ignite isn't closing all the way. If you can remove the damper, clean it thoroughly. If it looks as though it needs repair, or if it doesn't seat itself properly when closed, have it repaired by a professional.

Check the chimney for loose mortar joints that could cause air leaks. Check its height. It should be at least two feet higher than the roof top to avoid downdrafts caused by flow of air over the roof. Clear away overhanging branches if there are any.

Flue Woes

Measure the flue opening. When you get back down to earth, measure the fireplace opening. The flue area should be 1/12th the fireplace opening (or the opening should be 12 times the flue area, if you prefer looking at it that way). If the fireplace is too large for the flue, build up several rows of bricks at bottom or sides to get the right proportion. Often, the addition of a metal hood will reduce the size enough.

SECOND GOLD MEDAL

Anne Heggveit.
That's all that has to be said.
But still, her fantastic comeback in winning the Ladies' Olympic Slalom gold medal more than considerably eases the despair caused by the loss to the U.S.A. by Canada's Olympic hockey team. Her total time for the two runs of 1:49:6 minutes was well ahead of others in the race for the gold medal. The event was the wind-up of the Alpine competition in the 1960 Winter Olympics.

It is the first time that a Canadian has ever won a gold medal in Olympic skiing competition.
Turning to the hockey picture, those who are not by now discouraged by Canada's showing against the United States will have a chance to see the Canada vs Russia game at 4:00 p.m. standard time tomorrow over CBC-TV. However, it will only be carried providing the pattern of Sunday's Olympic events is not altered.

For Canada to win the round-robin hockey tournament, Russia must first beat the United States and lose to Canada in the Sunday final.

The rest of Canada's athletes may rest with the experience they have gained.

Should Canada's hockey entry win, that light dims somewhat beside the brilliant performances of Canada's lady skier and skating pair.

In the class "B" section of the St. Francis Valley Badminton League playdowns Bishop's is setting the pace with 16 points while East Angus has six, Lake Megantic five and Sherbrooke four. The annual Montreal Sportsman's Show will open March 18 and judging from advance reports it should be one of the best ever put on. So don't forget to take in the Show commencing March 18.

Sunnyside High School copped the honors in the QAPSA district playoffs by knocking over Sherbrooke High in a two-out-of-three series. They will now meet the winners of Shawinigan or Quebec for the Provincial Championship. We understand that Sunnyside possesses a strong, well balanced club and stand a good chance of winning the title. At least we know their opponents will have a battle on their hands when they meet the boys from the Border Town. Congratulations Sunnyside. Keep up the good work.

See where salmon from Canada's coast took the spotlight in Field and Stream magazine's 1959 fishing contest. A giant chinook smashed a record of 49 years' standing.

The new chinook king is Heinz Wichmann of Terrace, B.C., with a 92-pounder caught last July 19 in the Skeena River of British Columbia on a crocodile lure. The biggest Atlantic salmon was a bruiser from New Brunswick's famed north-shore river, the Restigouche, which weighed in at even 50 pounds.

Quebec also placed two large fish in the Atlantic Salmon category and accounted for the biggest brook trout caught by C. Charbonneau of Montreal.

Several of the top winners were caught in Quebec waters which speaks highly for the province and the good fishing we hear so much about. This time we have the figures to prove that Quebec ranks with the best. A more complete detail can be found in the Field and Stream.

"The greatest player ever to wear skates." That's the opinion of Detroit Red Wings' General Manager Jack Adams on his club's sensational playmaker, Gordie Howe. The story is in Look Magazine and will no doubt bring plenty of comment around the country.
Howe has spent 14 grueling seasons proving he's the best player in the National Hockey League. He is five-time winner of the Ross Trophy for scoring most goals and he has given no sign he's anywhere near finished. Anyway this story in Look should make some of the ardent Canadiens fans burn no doubt but Jolly Jack tells why he rates his star as such.

Garard A Standout

Sherbrooke Pee Wees Are Swamped 10-0

By LEN O'DONNELL
(Record Sports Editor)

QUEBEC — Sherbrooke All Stars went down to a 10-0 defeat at the hands of the Scarborough team here in the first game of the "AA" series of the International Pee Wee Hockey Tournament Friday.

The weather forced a two-hour delay in the opening game which was scheduled for 9:00 but owing to the heavy snow fall everything was off time.

Gord Wright and Don Griffin paced the attack with two goals each, while Park, Landell, Cook, McLean and Glendinning accounted for the others. The Scarborough team packed too much power for the Sherbrooke squad.

George Garard in the nets for Sherbrooke turned in an outstanding performance despite the ten goals which got by him. Time after time he came up with outstanding saves to stop the high-flying Scarborough club. Garard handled a total of 43 shots, 17 in the first, 16 in the second and 10 in the final. Doug Kerton had only three shots to make all in the third period.

Scarboro applied the pressure at the start and kept it for the first two periods. It was only in the third that the Sherbrooke team showed any resemblance of the brand of hockey they were capable of.
The youngsters seemed nervous and a little lost at first. The heavy snowfall held up the game for over two hours while the youngsters were trying to make their way to the arena. It was the worst snow storm of the year. Sherbrooke was obliged to play without Murray Ward who couldn't reach the rink, in fact he only arrived at noon.

Wright opened the scoring after five minutes of play. They bombarded Garard and the youngster kicked everything out for the first five minutes but then the pressure began to tell. McRitchie made it 2-0 and Park finished off the scoring for the frame. In the second they added two more by Landell and Cook as the locals began to settle down and began to click better. Scarborough added five more in the final frame. Only two penalties were handed out, one to each club.

The Scarborough club displayed great form and played their positions well. They had a big strong club and outwitted the Sherbrooke team by at least ten to fifteen pounds per boy. Sherbrooke didn't get a shot on the goalie until the third period and they could only get three at him.
Sherbrooke, despite their loss, fought every inch of the way and George Garard got great support from the fans for some of his saves.

Anne Heggveit Wins Slalom

"Didn't Play Any Strategy" Went All Out To Win Race

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — Canada's comeback star, Anne Heggveit of Ottawa, flashed back to the top rank of world skiing Friday as she scored a brilliant victory in the women's slalom to win the first Olympic gold medal ever awarded to a Canadian skier and took the women's world title to boot.

"This was the race I'd been pointing for," said the bashful 21-year-old blonde, who was almost overcome with joy at her tremendous win in the last Alpine event of these Winter Games.

Carrying Canada's Olympic ski hopes on the basis of her record in European competition last year that won her the award of Canada's woman athlete of 1959 in a Canadian Press poll, she slipped out of the top 10 in the two earlier races, the downhill and the giant slalom.

Friday it was make or break, and she made it.

"I didn't play any strategy," she said later. "There was no point to that, or holding back. With such an evenly matched field I had to go out to win each run."

The slalom competition consisted of two runs down two different courses on difficult, rock-hard Papoose Peak. Both had 53 tightly placed gates over the equal distance of 1,575 feet, dropping 610 feet in altitude. This race requires more skill than blinding speed, as in the downhill, and is tighter than the giant slalom which is something of a combination of both.

The Canadian ski queen, who started out in the sport back home in Ottawa when she was two years old, shot down the first course in a flat 54 seconds, digging, swishing and swinging as she went.

She said later that she almost came to a dead stop at the 10th gate, and was surprised when her time was announced.

She had drawn second starting position, and from then on she watched the runs of such American and European stars as Penny Pitou of Gilford, N.H., favored to take both the race and the world title, Betsy Snite of Norwich, Vt., Heidi Biebl, Sonja Sperl, Anneliese Meggl and Barbi Henneberger of Germany, Therese Leduc of France and Yvonne Ruegg and Madeleine Chamot — Berthod of Switzerland, the 1956 Olympics downhill winner.

Miss Pitou had a non-spectacular time of :58.8, but that seemed good enough to sew up the world combined title which does not count as Olympic competition.

Then, after all 43 skiers from 14 countries had made their first runs, Anne lined up second again for the payoff.

"I decided I was going to crash or stand up," she said.

She stood up, and her time was 55.6 seconds, just 1-10th of a second over Miss Snite's second-run time. But the Canadian girl's total came to one minute, 40.6 seconds to 1:32.9 for the American blonde, who eventually wound up with second place.

ANNE HEGGTVEIT

Then Miss Pitou lost all her chances when she fell on the second run. And 17-year-old Mariann Jahn of Austria, second in the first run with a time of :55.5, fell and did not finish. She was well down in the starting rotation and from then on no one could come close to the Canadian time.
Anne said she lost "a few tenths of a second" when she slipped a little on the third-last gate of the second course. She came out a little low and side-slipped a trifle, "but I wasn't in danger of falling even though I lost something there."
Miss Ruegg, winner of the giant slalom earlier this week, also tumbled and Miss Chamot-Berthod, still recovering from an injury, was not in contention.
Miss Henneberger placed third with a time of 1:56.6, followed in the top 10 by Miss Leduc, Hilde Hoffer of Austria, Liselotte Michel of Switzerland, both tied for fifth, Stalina Korzukhina, Russia, Miss Sperl, Renie Cox of the U.S., and Chantal Minuzzo of Italy. Miss Biebl, the 1960 downhill winner, was 23rd.

Don Jackson Takes Bronze Medal
In Men's Figure-Skating Meet

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — Dynamic David Jenkins, who cheered for his brother at the last Winter Olympics, put on a brilliant show himself Friday and won a gold medal for the United States by scoring a unanimous victory in the finals of the men's figure-skating championship at the 1960 Winter Games.

Don Jackson of Oshawa, Ont., who skated his heart out in trying to win Canada's second gold medal of the day and match Anne Heggveit's skiing victory, had to settle for third place and the bronze medal.

Both he and Jenkins excel in the free skating that contributes 49 per cent of the point total toward the Olympic title. But Jenkins did better than expected in the school figures which count 60 per cent, placing second behind former European champion Karel Divin of Czechoslovakia while Jackson finished fourth.

Divin, rated behind both North Americans in free skating, had his compulsory total to bolster his score and win him the silver medal.

CANADIAN SEVENTH
Donald McPherson of Canada placed seventh in a good performance in the free skating, and took 10th place in the aggregate rating with a total of 1,279.7 points. Jenkins scored 1,440.2 for his winning total and Divin had 1,414.3 compared with Jackson's 1,401.0.

Alain Gilette of France, third in the compulsory figures, was fourth in the combined, followed by Tim Brown of the U.S., with 1,374.1 and Alain Calmat of France with 1,340.3.

Jackson was cheered to the echo as he followed Jenkins to the ice, but it was apparent from the start that he could not overtake the American. One of the judges had given Jenkins an almost unprecedented 6.0 — perfect — rating.

But Jackson tried, skating with artistic finesse to an overture, then increasing the tempo with double flips and jumps and climaxing his performance with four double axels, reversing the action from the right to the left foot as he leaped high off the ice.

HIGH RATINGS
The nine judges rated him 5.8, 5.7, 5.8, 5.7, 5.6, 5.7, 5.6, 5.8 and 5.7 for general impression and 5.8, 5.7, 5.8, 5.8, 5.7, 5.8, 5.7, 5.8 and 5.7 for sporting merit. Jenkins, however, had drawn a total of nine 5.9 ratings in both categories plus the perfect 6.0.

McPherson, the 17-year-old Canadian junior champion, closed the first half of the program with a fast performance to symphonic music.
Jenkins, skating to a Greig piano concerto, opened with a series of dance steps, then executed two double axels, jumps with 2 1/4 turns in the air.

He followed this with a double flip—two turns in the air off a toe point—and a triple salchow—2 1/4 turns from a backward jump off one foot.

Heggveit Proud Of Anne's Medal

OTTAWA. —(CP)— Halvor Heggveit said Friday he is proud and happy that his daughter, Anne, has become the first Canadian to win an Olympic skiing gold medal.

The 21-year-old Ottawa ski star took the medal at the Winter Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif., by winning the women's slalom, closing Alpine event of the 1960 Games.

Mr. Heggveit, an employee of the Bank of Canada, said he and his wife "are very happy for Anne, especially after all the effort she put into it."

He took the afternoon off from work to listen to radio broadcasts of the games and to be on hand at home should his daughter telephone.

Spahn Signs Braves' Contract

MILWAUKEE. —(AP)— Warren Spahn, the Milwaukee Braves' great left-hander, came to terms with general manager John McHale Friday for the 1960 season.

Spahn's 21-1/2 record last year gave him his unparalleled mark of 10 seasons with 20 or more games won. Terms were not disclosed.

The Braves also announced that catcher Charley Lau, already in camp at Bradenton, Fla., signed his contract Friday.

MONTREAL. —(CP)— McGill University's relay swim team set three Canadian records Friday in time-trial workouts to prepare for the Intercollegiate swimming championships today in London, Ont.

Cameron Grout and Richard Pound were in on all three. They combined with Dave Sherwood and Chris Mills for a record 3:03.3 in the 400-yard free-style and 8:11.4 in the 800-yard free-style, and later with Peter Rees and Stan MacDougall in the 400-yard medley with a time of 4:07.

Ancient Archie Gets Two Offers

NEW YORK. —(AP)— Offers for two championship fights were extended Friday to veteran lightweight Archie Moore.

Jack Fugazy, managing director of Feature Sports Incorporated, said he had wired separate offers to Jack Kearns, Moore's manager, for the aged scrapper to meet the winner of the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavy title bout this September and also German lightweight contender Eric Schoppner. The Moore-Schoppner bout would be held early this summer.

The National Boxing Association recently relieved Moore of his title because he did not defend it within the required six months period. However, Archie is still the recognized champion in New York State.
